Space shuttle Atlantis back from trip to orbiting station

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Space shuttle Atlantis returned to Earth Saturday, ending astronaut Jerry Linenger's trying and at times perilous four-month mission aboard Russia's orbiting Mir station.

Atlantis swooped through a somewhat overcast sky and touched down at 9:28 a.m., 1 1/2 hours late because of thick, low clouds that gradually scattered as the sun rose.

Mission Control waited until the last minute before directing Atlantis and its seven-member crew home - to the delight of Linenger and his family, separated since January.

"Feeling great and good to be home," Linenger said after the shuttle rolled to a stop.

Wife Kathryn and the couple's 18-month-old son, John, waited at the runway to welcome him back from the aging Mir station.

NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin also showed up - with presents. At Linenger's request, Goldin brought tulips that the astronaut could give to his wife, who is eight months' pregnant. The director also had a teddy bear for John - the stuffed animal was dressed in a NASA T-shirt - and a rattle for the boy's new brother or sister.

Mission Control congratulated the shuttle pilots for their successful nine-day Mir resupply flight and offered "a special welcome home for Jerry."

At 132 days, Linenger spent more time in space than any other American except for Shannon Lucid, whose 1996 Mir mission lasted 188 days. Linenger, a 42-year-old doctor, left for Mir aboard Atlantis on Jan. 12. The shuttle returned for him last week, docking with the station on May 16 and dropping off his replacement, Michael Foale, for a 4 1/2-month stay.

The Atlantis crew delivered a new oxygen generator - assuring Foale and his two Russian crewmates of sufficient air - and crucial repair equipment to the 11-year-old outpost, which has been in orbit six years longer than its designers intended.

Mir's age showed during Linenger's stay. Among the problems were a fire, the failure of oxygen generators, the malfunction of a

Senate gives approval to historic budget deal

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate decisively approved the carefully constructed deal to balance the budget and cut taxes, despite attempts from both the left and right to either boost spending or fiddle with the tax reductions.

By a 78-22 vote, the Senate approved the five-year budget outline Friday, concluding a marathon four-day debate on the measure.

"The American people asked us to work together," said Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., as he waved a copy of the vote tally in the air. "And I think what we just held up is evidence that we understood them."

Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., described the budget agreement's approval as "a historic moment," and called it a step towards completing the deficit elimination that began with the 1993 budget reduction accord.

"It isn't just a matter of competing the job; it's a matter of doing it the right way," Daschle said. With both parties seeing the agreement as a political victory, 41 Republicans and 37 Democrats supported the measure. Fourteen Republicans and eight Democrats cast "no" votes.

Work on the budget outline would have been complete Friday if the House hadn't adjourned the night before for the Memorial Day recess amid a dispute over an unrelated emergency spending bill for flood victims. The House and Senate are expected to resolve the differences in the bill when they return June 3 from the holiday break.

After that point, Congress will begin the real heavy lifting: 15 tax and spending bills that set out the details of the agreement.

Those bills will provide specific details to the $85 billion in net tax cuts over the next five years for millions of college students, families and investors.

Those bills also will spell out the $321 billion in savings out of Medicare, defense and other programs, while providing new spending for children's health care, high technology and other priorities of President Clinton.

Those bill will be taken up in a tougher political environment. After the recess, Congress has to address a stalemate over an $8.4 billion bill for the military mission in Bosnia and flood disaster aid. One key fight is an attempt by Republicans to attach legislation to the disaster aid bill that prevents federal shutdowns and other provisions Clinton opposes.

But for now, the budget agreement gave both sides sufficient fodder to declare victory.

"This is the end of the radical revolution that (House Speaker) Newt Gingrich talked about," said Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif. "No more terrible, devastating cuts in Medicare, Medicaid, education and the environment."

Private firms will handle crop insurance

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department is turning over crop insurance programs to private companies.

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman announced Friday that crop insurance will be available exclusively through private agents starting with the crop year that begins in the fall of 1998.

Catastrophic crop insurance had been available through both local USDA Farm Service Agency offices and private agents in 36 states. But the 1996 farm law requires the department to transfer sales to the private sector if a sufficient number of agents were available in each state.

"While the sales and servicing of policies will be done by the private sector, this change will not weaken the existing safety net for producers," Glickman said. "I am determined that everyone will have access to crop insurance."

USDA will continue to subsidize policies, establish terms and conditions and guarantee funds for the payment of approved claims.

Among state's top 50 cities Hereford ranked good for business

Hereford has been ranked among the top 50 cities in the state in a survey to show which communities were considered good for business.

The ranking was announced in the May/June issue of Outlook Texas magazine. The survey forms were sent to 119 cities whose population qualified them for inclusion in the rankings.

"We excited that Hereford has received this honor," said Mike Hatley, executive director of Hereford Economic Development Corporation. "We consider this a real plus when we go out to recruit new businesses to the community."

Hatley said the survey asked questions about infrastructure, access to airports and highways, city operating budget, existence of enterprise zones, and what rating city bonds carry. "They're the kind of questions that experts say are of interest to businesses who are looking for a new location."

According to the magazine article, the cities surveyed ranged in size from small towns to cities with more than one million population, so the magazine devised a weighting system.

Cliff Skiles, HEDC president, explained that the statistics were broken down so the cities could be ranked in four categories: population, unemployment, number of new jobs created during 1996, and average weekly salaries. He said the survey also tried to measure each city's "livability" factor, based on schools, recreation and climate.

"Being in the this second tier of outstanding cities is a real bragging point for us," said Skiles. "The fact that our community has been progressive enough to adopt the half-cent sales tax has been instrumental in building some of the support we need to recruit businesses."

"Other things in our favor are that we have a full-time executive director, and we have a designated enterprise zone. We have been aggressively participating with other state and national recruiting efforts, so that also helped place us among the best cities."

Hatley added that he feels the quality of life in Hereford is a top priority. "You can crunch all the numbers you want, but what makes this a great town is the quality of life here. We have excellent schools, a caring community, and an atmosphere that rewards excellence," he said.

Three HHS seniors have their careers 'locked up'

Receive county jailer certificates

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

Three Hereford High School graduating seniors have their careers locked up.

Jaime Zamora, Jennifer Olvera and Valerie Ulibarri walked across the stage to receive their high school diplomas Friday night.

The students then walked into their careers in law enforcement.

"They come straight out of high school with a county jailer's certificate," HHS Law Enforcement Teacher Bryan Hedrick said.

"It looks good for our students and our parents," HISD Vocational Director Lloyd Stebbins said.

The students participated in the HHS law enforcement program. The two year program is taught for two class periods each day.

Hedrick has 15 years of law enforcement experience. He is a Reserve Deputy with the Potter County Sheriff's Department.

Upon completion of the program and state jailer's school, Hedrick took five students to the Amarillo College Testing Center for the county jailer's examination.

Students must be a junior, have an average of 80 or above average and have a good class attendance record to be eligible for the exam, he said.

Students also must have completed or be currently enrolled in Computer Applications, English and Speech, Hedrick said.

The examination was administered by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officers Standards in Education (TCLOSE), he said.

TCLOSE is the state agency which regulates the state, county and city jails, Hedrick said.

Three of the five students passed the exam. The three students, Zamora, Olvera and Ulibarri, received 12 hours of college credit and their jailer's certificate, he said.

"His percentage of passing probably is as high as any school around," Stebbins said.

The HHS program is affiliated with Amarillo College's and South Plains College Law Enforcement Academy, Hedrick said.

The students can continue to study law enforcement at these colleges, he said.

Zamora plans to attend Amarillo College to become a probation officer. He has applied for a jailer's position with Potter County Sheriff's Department.

Olvera plans to start as a jailer and work her way up the law enforcement career ladder. She has applied for a jailer's position with the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department.

Ulibarri plans to attend Amarillo College to become a probation officer.

"I've got some really good young people. It will be difficult to see them go," Hedrick said.

carbon dioxide-removal system and a leaky cooling system that caused soaring heat and humidity. The three Mir men had to breathe the leaking antifreeze fumes.

The tool kit brought up on Atlantis included a valve for a spare carbon dioxide-removal unit that has yet to be built and clamps and plugs for punctured cooling loops. In addition, the shuttle crew provided lithium-hydroxide canisters to purge carbon dioxide from the air and detectors for fumes escaping from broken equipment.

Besides making repairs, Linenger conducted science experiments and participated in the first U.S.-Russian spacewalk in April. During the successful five-hour walk, he and cosmonaut Vasily Tsibilyev gathered space dust catchers and checked experiments along the sprawling Mir. Atlantis is scheduled to fly back to Mir in September to pick up Foale and leave Wendy Lawrence, the sixth of seven Americans to live on the station. The shuttle-Mir program is providing National Aeronautics and Space Administration with valuable practice for construction of the international space station, which is to begin next year.

Linenger has a month of physical rehabilitation awaiting him as well as a list of chores, including preparing a nursery for his second child. His wife is due to give birth June 27.

"I'm going to be busy. I just got an update today that her car broke down yesterday so I've got another problem," a laughing Linenger said from the shuttle on Friday. "I'm used to repairing things. I should do all right."

Film cutting

Premier Cinema Corp. president, Gary Moore, center right, and Moovies 6 manager, Mary Hamby Friday cut a strip of film to mark the grand opening of Hereford's new six-screen movie theatre located at 400 N. 25 Mile Avenue. The cutting was hosted by the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Hustlers. The theatre opened with four screens Friday night.

Officers taking DARE to streets

HPD plans special summer display, patrol

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer
The Hereford Police Department is taking its DARE, or the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program, to the streets. HPD officers Carol Keyes and Randy Stribling will set up shop in the maroon DARE van and trailer in various locations around town this summer. The first stop is scheduled for Tuesday at the Hereford Aquatic Center, Keyes said. The officers will pass out drug awareness and prevention literature to adults and children, she said.

"It's not just for kids. The literature we have does not only pertain to kids. It pertains to adults too," Keyes said.

Then, the two officers will put on their bicycle gear and patrol the area, she said.

"If we're not there, we will be in that area of town on bicycles," Keyes said.

Visitors may sign up for special weekly drawings at the van. The drawings include items of smoke detectors, motion detectors, footballs, basketballs and bicycle helmets, she said.

"We want everyone to come see us and sign up," Keyes said.

The DARE trailer was donated by the Hereford Noon Kiwanis, and the literature was donated by the Hereford Elks Lodge, she said.

Local businesses or individuals who would like to help sponsor this project should contact Keyes, HPD, at 363-7120.

McVeigh prosecutors stunned by testimony from key witness

DENVER (AP) - Hoping to give jurors a three-day weekend full of doubts about Timothy McVeigh's involvement in the Oklahoma City bombing, defense attorneys instead were stunned by damaging testimony from their one of own key witnesses.

Daina Bradley, who lost two children, her mother and her leg in the 1995 blast, told jurors that she saw two men get out of a Ryder truck in front of the Alfred P. Murrah building moments before the explosion.

One man had an olive complexion. But the other, Ms. Bradley said Friday, was a white man - and she couldn't say it was not McVeigh.

"You told me that there was nothing that you saw about the man that ran across the street that was different than what you could see when you looked at Mr. McVeigh," said prosecutor Patrick Ryan. "There weren't any differences that you could see."

Ms. Bradley conceded, "Yeah." It was a staggering blow to the defense, which began its case Thursday with the suggestion that the real bomber died in the explosion. Lawyers hope to raise doubt in jurors' minds by attacking the prosecution's evidence and timeline of events leading to the blast that killed 168 people.

The defense could wrap up its case next week.

Ms. Bradley had previously said she saw a lone man with olive skin get out of the bomb-carrying truck. But even though she changed her story last week after meeting with prosecutors - and the defense knew it - McVeigh attorneys called her anyway because her description of the olive-skinned man with curly hair under a baseball cap fits that of the mysterious John Doe 2.

It also fit with earlier-defense testimony that a second person was seen at the Ryder rental agency and the motel where McVeigh stayed days before the bombing.

Instead, her appearance backfired on the defense, which referred to her in opening statements weeks ago as the witness who would describe a man bearing no resemblance to McVeigh getting out of the Ryder truck.

Jurors also learned Ms. Bradley has spent years in mental institutions and has an admittedly poor memory.

"You can tell me one thing one week and I would forget the next week," she said.

McVeigh, who could face the death penalty if convicted on murder and conspiracy charges, sat across the courtroom at the defense table, showing little expression and staring intently at the witness.

Pressing Ms. Bradley on her changing statements, the defense suggested that she came up with the new story when she was subpoenaed two weeks ago to appear in a courtroom full of fellow bombing survivors.

"You have never said that Timothy McVeigh was the person who got out of the truck, have you?" asked McVeigh attorney Cheryl Ramsey.

"No," Ms. Bradley replied, adding, "He got out and walked away very quickly."

The 21-year-old woman wavered often on her recollections, citing the toll of years of taking medication for mental disorders and the trauma of the bombing. She was trapped under rubble in the building's Social Security office for five hours and was only freed after rescuers cut off her leg.

Things did get better for the defense Friday afternoon when Nancy Kindle, a waitress at a Denny's in Junction City, Kan., said McVeigh and two other men ate there the afternoon of Easter Sunday in April 1995.

She said she remembered McVeigh because "he had a cute appearance to me." McVeigh blushed.

Her testimony was important because prosecutors have suggested that McVeigh and a co-defendant, Terry Nichols, were traveling to Oklahoma City that afternoon to drop off a getaway car.

Stocks rally to first record since January

NEW YORK (AP) - Stocks rallied Friday, boosting the Nasdaq market to its first record since January, as investors grew confident that Federal Reserve policy has swung decisively away from boosting interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained nearly 88 points, beating last Thursday's record close at 7,333.55.

The Standard & Poor's 500 and the New York Stock Exchange composite index also jumped to new highs, but most notable was the Nasdaq market's return to record territory after a four-month drought.

In the absence of any fresh economic news to aggravate the market's lingering inflation jitters, interest rates held steady in the bond market after creeping toward worrisome levels during the prior two sessions.

Interest in Western articles spurs Marfa man's business

By EDUARDO MONTES
Associated Press Writer
MARFA, Texas (AP) - In another time, the Buddy Knights of the world weren't so scarce. When the West was still wild, spur makers were in demand to meet the needs of the cowboys taming the range.

Now, the few craftsmen left would be hard pressed to survive if forced to rely on the dwindling cowpunchers. It's fortunate for them then, the market has grown far beyond that.

The 1990s have brought about a resurgence in the popularity of handcrafted western gear. Collectors and Old West enthusiasts are snatching up spurs, holsters, belt buckles and saddles and the better gearmakers are booked for months.

"There's a renaissance of gear making," said Knight, a spur builder out of Marfa, 200 miles southeast of El Paso, who began making equipment full time for cowhands in 1988.

"Mostly it's for wealthier people now," he said. "A lot of people I sell spurs to own horses and that's their getaway, they're weekend cowboys."

No one can seem to pin down exactly when the cowboy craze began, but collectors and gearmakers agree the last few years have been good for craftsmen who excel at this functional form of art.

"I don't think anybody has ever stopped making spurs. It fell out of fashion and out of demand until really about the last six or seven years and now there is a total explosion," said Bill Manns, coauthor of an upcoming book on western gear, "Cowboys and the Trappings of the Old West."

Opinions vary as to what drives the market. Manns said cowboys and "cowboy wannabes" want something that stands out among the mass-produced goods sold at some western gear outlet shops.

Others say buyers are drawn by the romance of the Old West. "As there are fewer and fewer cowboys, we value them more as sort of a historical myth, so their gear becomes more valuable to us," said Leslie Lehmann, manager of The V6 Collection, a gear shop in Marathon.

But the scarcity of true antique equipment probably plays a larger role than either of those reasons. Buyers are having a hard time finding quality artifacts from the cowboy's heyday in the late 19th and early 20th centuries and when they do, the gear is usually prohibitively expensive.

"Everything just went up ridiculously high," said Jerry Wallace, a spur maker from Madill, Okla. "The old stuff is so scarce and there ain't none left on the market, except junk. Museums and the doctors and lawyers have bought just about all the good stuff."

Consequently, contemporary gearmakers have been given an opening to go after would-be buyers who have been left out of the antiques market. If they're truly good and can make a name for themselves - as an elite few have - business can be lucrative.

A pair of simple spurs can go for as little as $250 to $300. Pieces crafted by sought-after gearmakers can have price tags around $1,000 to $2,000. The best belt buckles can go for around $4,000.

A custom spur can be anything from a pragmatic steel band with a few decorations to an elaborate showpiece. Two basic styles are the California spurs, which have fine engraved silver inlays, and the Texas spurs, heavier pieces with large silver overlays, often in the shape of stars and steer heads.

Not too long ago, the Autry Museum of Western Heritage in Los Angeles paid $4,000 for a pair of California-style spurs made by Bill

Heisman, considered one of the top contemporary gearmakers.

Manns calls the purchase a watershed event.

"That exceptional price encouraged a lot of other spur makers," said Manns, who refers to Heisman as the "creme de la creme."

Heisman, who stopped taking orders for spurs in 1993 and is still trying to fill them, said he expects interest to remain high. "I don't see it (the market) going anywhere but up, or at least staying strong," he said.

That's not to say, though, that gearmakers are driven by money alone.

People like Heisman, Wallace and Knight began hammering out spurs because they needed them themselves or knew someone who did. Heisman and his brother used them while riding in rodeos. Knight does some cowboying - in West Texas the word is also a verb - on the ranches sprawling around Marfa.

They still seem to enjoy the work. "We're all trying to keep the spirit of the West alive," said Knight. "It's an ethic we're helping to preserve. For better or for worse the West, even as I knew it, is going away."

Wallace isn't quite so philosophical, but he makes his own point equally well.

"I was raised with Roy Rogers and Gene Autry when I was a kid," he said. "I'm 51 and still like to play cowboy."

Oklahoma document gets thumbs-up at UT

AUSTIN (AP) - Interstate rivalry aside, University of Texas experts say Oklahoma's constitution is OK.

After a close inspection, UT restoration experts said the 90-year-old document is ready for display in the Oklahoma Capitol when officials there complete a new display case.

The constitution made its first trip out of Oklahoma this week for a checkup at UT's Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center, which houses numerous rare documents.

James Stroud, the center's chief conservation officer, said the Oklahoma constitution was a fine piece of work.

"It looked in pretty good shape. In fact, I would say it is in excellent shape. I don't see any major restoration work for this document," Stroud said Thursday, a day after Oklahoma Secretary of State Tom Cole took it back north of the Red River.

After decades of being on display in Oklahoma City, the constitution was put into storage in 1994, when problems were discovered in the display case that held it. Moving toward getting a new display case, Oklahoma officials decided to have the document checked out.

The Library of Congress in Washington referred them to UT's experts, who were glad they got the job, even though it was done for free.

"It's always good to have a constitution in your lab once in awhile," Stroud said.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if he had his life to live over, he'd need a lot more money.

To stay youthful, stay useful.

My wife and I have decided that we need help. But we've also reached the conclusion that it'll be up to us to help each other.

This philosophy was confirmed Thursday morning. We were in a rush to get to Lubbock, where I had a meeting with some other publishers. The meeting was to start at 10 a.m. We stopped by McDonald's for breakfast and pulled out at 8 a.m., plenty of time to make the meeting.

About a mile south of Dimmitt, Lavon made a startling discovery - she had left her purse at McDonald's. Besides all the stuff a woman carries in her purse, it also contained her driver's license, credit card and some cash.

We wheeled around and headed back to Hereford. She was sure that a friend sitting nearby probably spotted her purse and picked it up, or that a McDonald employee had it safely stored away. The latter proved to be true, Lavon retrieved her bag and we started to Lubbock again - this time at 9 a.m. The 70 mph speed limit helps, so I was only about 30 minutes late for my meeting.

Just so readers don't think I'm just picking on my better half, ye olde editor has also forgotten a few things. Only some frequent reminder notes from my wife have kept the incidents from being more frequent!

Lavon thinks maybe I am mellowing in my old age, because I didn't get too upset about the situation. About 15 years ago, we spent a week in Ruidoso at a condo with some other friends. We were in a car by ourselves because I had to stop by Lubbock on the way back for a meeting.

On the way out of town, we hauled two plastic bags full of trash in the trunk to drop off in a dumpster. We also had a plastic bag full of dirty clothes. When we pulled up to a dumpster, she volunteered to get out and toss them the trash.

We were about 20 miles out of Ruidoso when Lavon told me to pull over to the side of the road, she needed to check something. You guessed it - we had a bag of trash in the trunk, but no dirty clothes!

To top it off, the dumpster was behind a restaurant/bar and across the street from a convenience store. After we dumped our trash, the establishment dumped theirs - including whiskey bottles. She couldn't reach the mess, so I crawled into the dumpster, moving bottle and trash to get to our bag! We could see customers across the street looking at us digging in the dumpster!

She claims I wouldn't speak to her the rest of the way to Lubbock. As I recall, I was listening to a baseball game and just wasn't interested in conversation.

Wilma Futrell came to visit with me last week, expressing concern about what she considers a dangerous situation at the intersection of US-60 and Main Street. At the time, her husband, Ralph, was hospitalized in Amarillo as a result of injuries sustained in a collision at the intersection on April 12.

Her husband died Saturday night, after being in ICU for 30 days and finally being moved to another room. Services were held here Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Futrell said her primary concern now was for the safety of other motorists who approach this intersection and the lights are flashing. She realizes the state controls traffic lights on the highway, and she feels they should review and evaluate the traffic flow at Main and US-60.

We checked with Police Chief David Wagner to confirm that when trains go across Main near the intersection, the lights go into a flashing mode with the yellow caution lights facing East-West traffic and flashing red lights facing the North-South traffic.

Wagner said he was not sure why the state chose to do it this way, and he intends to check with a DOT engineer in Amarillo. Our thought was that if vehicles fill up the short space between US-60 and the tracks, it might stack up highway traffic waiting to make a right-hand turn and proceed south across the tracks.

Whatever the reason, we think it would be prudent to evaluate the system. For one thing, the city is now using four-way flashing red lights at several intersections, and this could make it confusing for local drivers approaching the Main/60 intersection.

Editorials from around the State

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial comment from Texas newspapers:

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Starr, White House lawyers notes: Let's see. Independent counsel Kenneth Starr, a lawyer, claims that notes taken by White House lawyers during a meeting with Hillary Rodham Clinton, a lawyer, and with her personal lawyer are not covered in any way by the traditional attorney-client privilege.

Other than those in the meeting, no one - including Starr - has any idea what the notes contain or to what degree they are relevant. Starr is desperate for anything that will give his investigation some forward momentum concerning the Clintons. The White House, feeling that Starr's investigation is mostly a political vendetta, wants to draw a line someplace. This is a likely place. One court ruled that the notes are privileged. A second court disagreed. Now, properly, the Supreme Court will judge the issue.

Starr's position seems to be that (1) there is no privilege because the White House lawyers were not the first lady's personal lawyers and (2) she is a private citizen, not a government employee. On the other hand, courts earlier ruled the first lady to be the "functional equivalent of a federal employee."

The White House position is that in almost all circumstances, a conversation involving lawyers is privileged. It draws specific parallels between this case and conversations between corporate executives and a company's legal counsel.

This is complicated and legalistic but important. The privilege being invoked is itself a vital and basic part of the legal protections secured to all American citizens, even those in the White House. If an exception is to be found to the basic expectation of confidentiality when a citizen consults a lawyer, Starr should be required to have something more than wishful thinking about the notes' importance.

Austin American-Statesman on keeping lottery undedicated: Lawmakers keep trying to dedicate money from the state lottery to specific education programs, even though the practice is unsound public policy (especially from an unpredictable money source) and though it won't actually add a dime to public schools.

Symbolism over substance seems to be the operative philosophy here. The way lottery money is handled now is the proper way: The proceeds, about $1.3 billion for 1998, go to the state general revenue fund, which pays for numerous programs, including education. Lawmakers ought to dedicate themselves to not dedicating lottery money to any specific program.

San Antonio Express-News on academic standards for athletes: Student athletes are dummies who are recruited by colleges and universities for one reason: to exploit their talents on the field.

The statement is, of course, ridiculous and insulting. But that is what coaches in effect are saying about student athletes as they lobby lawmakers opposing a bill that would tie state-funded scholarships to academic standards.

Coaches testifying before the Texas Senate Education Committee Wednesday predicted doom for Texas college athletics. "You might as well blow up the football field and the basketball courts and make parking lots out of them," said University of Texas basketball coach Tom Penders.

He exaggerates the consequences. Or does he? The bill, authored by state Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, would allow state-funded scholarships, grants or other financial assistance only if an entering freshman athlete's high school grade-point average was equal to or greater than the average high school GPA of all entering freshmen students the previous academic year.

The standards are hardly rigorous. Yet UT women's basketball coach Jody Conradt told the committee athletes would not cut it.

That suggests student athletes come to college unable to perform at the level of their classmates. How could that be? Is less expected academically of student athletes? Are educators condoning - or worse, encouraging - such indifference?

Further, how can lawmakers justify giving athletes leeway when they won't consider race as a factor in college admissions?

Those questions should be put to the bill's detractors, among them members of the education committee who reportedly stand ready to let the bill die.

Honest answers are likely to reveal a destructive mind-set that puts athletics ahead of academics, a mind-set legislators should reject.

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

Being retired is everything I ever thought it would be. Now, if I could just stay retired...

Being an ol' softee, I agreed to help out a while at The Brand and it's fun. Seeing Hereford people again has been rewarding. Some who have made catty remarks, like "a bad penny keeps turning up," I'll not embarrass by printing their names. They are teasing, aren't they?

Anyhow during almost a year off the full employment rolls, I have not missed getting up early, attending evening meetings or hurrying to meet the ever-present deadlines that are indigenous to the newspaper business.

In a career that has spanned all or part of four decades, there have been some highs and lows, as in all professions. But, I never cease to marvel at the changes in our lives during the last 45 years.

A noted columnist who died a few years ago said his grandmother was the only person he knew who thought television wrestling shows were real and trips to outer space were not.

When my grandmother died at the age of 101, I began considering all the changes that had occurred in her lifetime. As I thought about it, I realized that many, many of them were during my lifetime.

There have been times when I tend to agree with the columnist's grandmother.

For instance, as a youngster I was not interested in books of science fiction, or other materials of that genre. Buck Rogers was not my cup or tea, nor was Flash Gordon. These comic strips were just too far-fetched for me. Then came Sputnik and all the space travel since then.

There are those who have heard about my experience teaching school (mercifully, short-lived) the fall the first Sputnik shot through space and was circling the globe. My fourth grade social studies unit on gravity, etc., had just been finished on a Friday when the Soviet announcement came on Sunday.

Everything that goes up has to come back down, I drilled those li'l darlin's and they learned the lesson well. However, they were shocked, as was I, about Sputnik. If ever I entertained the hope that they didn't read the newspaper or listen to TV news, it was then. But it wasn't to be.

First thing Monday morning, a boy waved his arms violently to get my attention so he could embarrass me before the whole class. Why didn't that "thing" come back down, he wanted to know. Somewhere in my past, I had heard something that answered his question and got me off the hook. It had escaped the earth's gravitational pull, I announced. End of discussion, thank goodness.

Anything electronic is beyond my ken. Sometimes the VCR does what I want and sometimes it doesn't. Usually more of the latter. Some months ago, I planned to be away from home when a special program was to be telecast by the PBS station. I couldn't find the instruction manual but I thought I could set the time, channel, etc., without the book.

Disappointment reigned when I came home and tried to view the show. Nothing.

Computers are the lifeblood of this business. Never will I forget the first time I tried to compose an article on the computer. If tears had done any good, I'd have cried a flood in my office. Only by rote did I ever make it through the early days of computers in the newsroom.

The latest challenge in my life is the Internet. I've tried to master the nuances of this latest bit of technology. About all I've learned, and that's subject to question, is to send E-mail communications to members of my family. Even about that innovation, though, I'm unsure. Never know if the messages reach their destination.

Now that I've confessed my ineptitude, I must end on a positive note.

Even with all the changes in the world and the newspaper field since I began, I've never once regretted my decision.

Thanks to all who have endured with me.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I hope everyone saved the special Senior Class section of The Brand because it is a real treasure - some of the finest people in the world are pictured there.

It is my privilege to work in a shop that serves young people, the senior pictures in the special edition hold many pleasant memories. I'd like to tell you a little about the graduates of Hereford High, Community Christian School, and those from our neighboring towns.

When they ordered senior class rings, one of the designs they selected was the cross. When they chose their graduation invitations, the verses they selected included such messages as "although we have different dreams and different destinations, by working together hand in hand, we can make the world a better place," and "the ocean of life lies before us, but we do not fear the future because our vessel is Love, and our Captain is the Lord Jesus Christ."

Several of the students brought their own Bibles into the store with them, and prayerfully chose a verse of Holy Scripture to be printed on their graduation announcements.

It takes time to select graduation supplies or prom tuxedos - and I would like to use a bit of that precious time to offer a word to these young people whom I believe will make a real difference. I'd like to tell them I have faith in them; that by working with God they can make the world a better place; and not one of them has ever laughed at me, or ridiculed me for saying so.

Each responds in his or her own way, from the heart, and their responses reaffirms my faith in them. And it doesn't stop with the seniors. At the sixth-grade graduation at St. Anthony's, the class gave a donation to help rebuild a church near Amarillo. Someone burned the church; the youth are helping rebuild it.

Sometime back at a community-wide prayer service, one of the prayer leaders said, "God is raising up a great army of our young people." I believe it, and many of those special soldiers are right here.

Maybe the best graduation gift we can give them is to tell them we're proud of them.

Names in the news

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - LeAnn Rimes is only 14, and she's getting an early lesson in the politics of Hollywood.

Miss Rimes was asked to record "How Do I Live" for the soundtrack of the Nicolas Cage movie "Con Air," but filmmakers rejected her version, reportedly because she was considered too young for the romantic ballad.

The producers asked Trisha

Yearwood to do the song. Now both recordings have been rushed to radio stations, pitting the two singers against each other in the battle for airtime.

Curb, Miss Rimes' label, paid to make the record and video. The company thought they would retain rights to the song if it wasn't right for the film, chief Mike Curb said in Thursday's edition of USA Today.

Israelis establish Padre beachhead

Close-knit community bound by religion, nationality, work

By KATE MEWHINNEY
Valley Morning Star
SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas - Sitting behind the glass counter at his souvenir shop, the bearded man with wavy, gray-flecked hair slowly flipped through Israel Shelanu, a Hebrew newspaper.

A light breeze passed through Rafe Assor's shop, virtually the only movement he had seen all day in the store, which was packed tight with racks of T-shirts and beachwear and display cases stacked with shot glasses.

It was a quiet day, the middle of the week in May before the summer season, and Assor, with his round, ruddy face and smiling eyes, was taking a break.

The 40-year-old shop owner belongs to a small but close-knit community of about 20 Israelis who are bound by their nationality, their work and their Jewish faith.

"They're all like a big family," said Roi Elisha, who is visiting his uncle, Island resident Ofer Elisha, for a few months. "They're good friends. All of them help each other."

For the last 15 years, the Island has drawn a small community of Israelis, the majority of whom make a living through their souvenir stores.

A drive down Padre Boulevard past some of the T-shirt shops gives evidence of the Israeli culture's presence. Flying from the rooftops of several stores are flags with a white background and the blue Star of David, the national flag of Israel, which share space with U.S., Mexican, Canadian, British and Confederate flags.

Assor worked as a farmer in South Israel near the Egyptian border before moving to the United States - first living in New Jersey and then in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., before moving to the Island nine years ago.

For many of the Israelis, a family connection has brought them to the Island, and in many cases, they end up staying.

"How most people got down here is by word of mouth ... This guy ends up bringing his cousin, his brother, his friend," said Gabriel Vanounou, whose brother-in-law, 25-year-old Yaniv Ruven, came down for that very reason. Ruven came to visit his sister Merav, who is married to Vanounou, and stayed for several months.

The same family ties brought 28-year-old Eyal Levi, a former professional soccer player for the Israeli national team, to the Island.

Inside Levi's simple two-bedroom white brick house, 15 people sat at two long tables placed in a T formation.

"Ma, ma! (Hey, what's up?)" Levi yelled in Hebrew to his guests as they knocked at the door.

Once everyone arrived, they were seated around the tables, laden with a tremendous amount of food - including baked chicken legs, pickled cabbage and a stewlike dish with peas served over rice.

The men wore cloth skull caps, called yarmulkes.

Yosef Pilo's makeshift yarmulke made out of a paper towel got laughs from the rest of the guests, especially when it occasionally lifted in the breeze of the ceiling fan overhead.

Ruven led the ceremony in Hebrew as the guests followed along with the paperback prayer books.

But keeping up with the religious customs has not been easy in the Valley.

The nearest synagogue is in Brownsville. And for his Passover meal, Levi and 28-year-old Pilo had to drive to Houston to buy the kosher meat.

"I don't like the food here in America," said Ruven, pointing to a box of vegetable pizza sitting on the coffeetable in front of him at Levi's house. "We can't eat a lot of things - like pepperoni."

Under Jewish doctrine, its followers cannot eat pork or shellfish, and meats have to be kosher, or blessed by a rabbi.

Animals cannot be damaged before they are killed. For instance, if a chicken has a broken leg it won't be blessed by the rabbi and cannot be consumed.

At his store and deli, On the Bay, Assor has some Israeli foods on the menu such as hummus, a bean dip made from garbanzo beans, as well as olives and candy from Israel.

The Israelis struggle to balance assimilation into U.S. culture with a need to retain their cultural identity. Added to that is the challenge of learning a new language and the pressures of making a business successful.

"I'm always working hard," Levi said. "Every penny I earn I enjoy because I work for it."

the Island seven years ago when Levi came to visit him.

Levi never left. "I came, I like it, and I stayed," he said.

In fact, he ended up buying his brother's store. Now Levi owns a T-shirt store, a head shop and a souvenir shop in one of the major resort hotels.

Vanounou, who has been living here for 10 years, came down from New York when his brother opened a store on the Island.

"It was a big change," said Vanounou, who owns Surf's Up. "There was a lot of sand, a lot of empty lots. Not that many buildings."

"I was shocked. But they promised, 'Just wait and see, South Padre Island is going to be a big thing.'"

In 10 years, Vanounou said one of the biggest changes was the development of Padre Boulevard, mainly due to the proliferation of souvenir shops.

"The Israelis have made a big difference to business," Vanounou said. "All the T-shirt shop owners have."

The tight-knit group has stuck together, especially in the early days when they were less accepted as a part of the community.

"In the beginning, they looked at us in a different way - like, 'What are these people doing here?' - but now everything's OK and there is no problem," said Assor, who nonetheless was reluctant to be photographed for this story, citing concerns about anti-Semitism. Others resisted photographs, apparently for the same reason.

The group also unites for holy days. Just last month, Levi held a seder for Passover at his home for his single friends.

"We're still here keeping the religion, trying to do as best as we can," Levi said.

Rockets reverse trend, beat Utah by 118-100

Colorado slips by Astros by 8-7

By The Associated Press
Just like last year, coming home to Coors Field turns things around for the Colorado Rockies.

Dante Bichette homered and drove in three runs and rookie Bobby Jones earned his first career win for Colorado, which beat Houston 8-7 Friday night following a 3-10 road trip.

Ellis Burks homered for the fourth straight game as the Rockies won for just the fourth time in 11 games.

Rockies' relievers gave up 34 runs in 33 2-3 innings for an 8.55 ERA during the road trip. On Friday night, three relievers combined to allow only one unearned run over the final 2 1-3 innings to preserve Jones' first career win.

In other NL games, Atlanta beat Los Angeles 4-2, San Francisco beat St. Louis 2-0, San Diego beat Florida 6-3, Chicago beat Cincinnati 3-1, Philadelphia beat New York 2-1 and Montreal beat Pittsburgh 4-1.

Donnie Wall (1-2) was tagged for eight runs and seven hits in 4 1-3 innings. Houston manager Larry Dierker left the club Friday following the death of his father in Los Angeles. Bench coach Bill Virdon is managing the Astros this weekend.

John Smoltz (6-3) allowed two runs and seven hits in eight innings as visiting Atlanta beat Pedro Astacio (3-3) for the ninth straight time. The Braves have won seven straight while the Dodgers have lost six in a row.

Ryan Klesko hit a two-run homer in the sixth that increased Atlanta's lead to 4-1. He has four homers and six hits in 15 career at-bats against Astacio.

Giants 2, Cardinals 0

Shawn Estes (6-2) pitched a two-hitter for his second shutout of the season to outduel rookie Matt Morris (1-3) and send visiting St. Louis to its 10th loss in 12 games.

Barry Bonds had a run-scoring groundout in the fourth and Jose Vizcaino added an RBI single in the sixth.

Padres 6, Marlins 3

Fernando Valenzuela (2-6) won for the first time in seven starts, allowing five hits in 5 2-3 scoreless innings. Wally Joyner had three hits, including a two-run homer, as San Diego won its fifth straight.

Cubs 3, Reds 1

Sammy Sosa homered and Terry Mulholland (4-3) allowed one run and five hits in eight innings at Cincinnati.

Since opening the season with an NL-record 14 losses, the Cubs have surged past the Reds by going 17-14.

Cincinnati has the worst record in the major leagues at 14-31 and trails the fourth-place Cubs by three games.

Phillies 2, Mets 1

Rookie Garrett Stephenson (2-0) allowed one run and three hits in six innings as Philadelphia handed visiting New York only its fourth loss in 13 games.

Dave Mlicki (0-4), winless in 15 starts since Sept. 19, 1995, allowed two runs and five hits in six innings.

Expos 4, Pirates 1

Pedro Martinez pitched a five-hitter with a season-high 12 strikeouts and no walks at Olympic Stadium and improved to a club record 8-0.

HOUSTON (AP) — Bench scoring, rebounding, shooting percentage, 3-point production. The Houston Rockets had been woeful in every single category.

Then came Game 3, and everything got better in a hurry.

The Houston Rockets, getting a tremendous boost off the bench from 38-year-old Eddie Johnson, reversed their troubling trends of Games 1 and 2 and defeated the Utah Jazz 118-100 Friday night.

It cut their deficit to 2-1 in the best-of-7 Western Conference finals and kept them out of a 3-0 hole — something no NBA team has ever climbed out of.

Game 4 is Sunday before the series returns to Salt Lake City for Game 5 on Tuesday night.

The main reason the Rockets are still very much alive was Johnson, a journeyman shooting guard who played in the Greek League last season before being signed by Indiana, getting traded to Denver and then being waived.

The Rockets signed him in early March, and Johnson had his best game of the season Friday night with 31 points on 12-for-17 shooting, including 5-for-8 from 3-point range.

He led Houston to a 47-28 edge in bench scoring — a category the Rockets had lost badly in each of the first two games.

The Rockets outbounded Utah 38-30 to reverse another trend from the first two games, and shot nearly 59 percent from the field after shooting 38 and 37 percent in Games 1 and 2. Their 12 3-pointers matched their combined total from the first two games.

Houston also outscored the Jazz in each of the final three quarters to recover from an early 14-point deficit.

Hakeem Olajuwon added 27 points, Barkley had 19 points and 16 rebounds and Clyde Drexler scored 15 points.

Karl Malone scored 21 points, John Stockton had 17 points and 10 assists and Greg Ostertag had 15 points for Utah, which lost for just the fourth time since March 1.

Indians scalp Orioles, 6-1;

Tigers pound Texas by 7-1

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

Jimmy Key's name received all the pregame hype. But once it was over, Chad Ogea was the pitcher everyone was talking about.

Ogea pitched a two-hitter with a career-high nine strikeouts as the Cleveland Indians ended Key's winning streak with a 6-1 win over the Baltimore Orioles on Friday night.

Ogea (pronounced OH-jay) needed to be perfect to outduel Key (8-1), who lost against a team he has beaten 16 times in his career.

Key, who came in with a league-low 1.80 ERA, was tagged for 10 hits and six runs in 4 1-3 innings — his shortest stint this season.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was: Seattle 8, Kansas City 4; Boston 9, New York 3; Detroit 7, Texas 1; Anaheim 12, Toronto 2; Milwaukee 4, Chicago 1; and Oakland 8, Minnesota 4.

David Justice and Manny Ramirez each had three hits, with Justice improving his average to .384.

Tigers 7, Rangers 1

At Detroit, rookie Brian Moehler (3-3) scattered seven hits in eight strong innings and struck out a career-high nine. He fanned AL MVP Juan Gonzalez four times.

Melvin Nieves and Tony Clark both homered for Detroit. Darren Oliver (2-5) lost for the third time in four decisions, giving up four runs and nine hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Mariners 8, Royals 4

At Kansas City, Mo., Ken Griffey Jr. hit his major league-leading 21st homer and Jay Buhner hit his fourth homer in as many games as Seattle rallied from four runs down to win.

Randy Johnson (6-1) won for the 23rd time in 24 decisions, allowing all four runs and eight hits in seven innings. He struck out 10 — his 72nd game with double-digit strikeouts.

Red Sox 9, Yankees 3

At New York, pinch-hitter Mike Stanley lined a tiebreaking three-run homer in the eighth and Wil Cordero hit a three-run shot in the ninth to send the Yankees to their fifth straight loss.

The Red Sox rallied for four runs against three pitchers in the eighth. Cordero's RBI single made it 3-3 and Stanley hit his second three-run homer in two days against his former team.

Raiders erased from tourney

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Keith Ginter's seventh-inning fielding error propelled Southwest Missouri State to a 4-2 victory over Texas Tech Friday at the NCAA Central baseball regional, eliminating the Red Raiders from the tournament.

With the Red Raiders (46-14) up 2-1 in the bottom of the seventh, second baseman Ginter dropped the apparent third out of the inning on a routine fly ball. The error allowed the tying run to score while putting the winning run on base.

The Bears' Brandon Jackson later hit an RBI single off Tech losing pitcher Monty Ward (9-4) to drive home the winning run. Tech attempted a comeback in the top of the ninth, but SW Missouri's winning pitcher, Scott Geitz (7-2), retired two straight batters to end the game. The victory pushed the Bears' record to 34-24.

In the second inning, Tech took a 1-0 lead off a Josh Bard solo home run, but the Bears tied the score at 1-1 in the third off an error from Red Raider Joe Dillion. The score remained tied until the seventh when Tech scored one run in the top of the inning. Later in the inning the Bears scored the winning runs of the game.

Rice 10, Clemson 6
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Bubba Crosby went 2-for-4, including a homer and a two-run triple, to lead Rice past Clemson, 10-6, Friday in the NCAA Central Baseball Regional.

Clemson (41-22) will play Southwest Texas Texas at 11 a.m. Saturday in the double-elimination tournament. Rice (45-14) will play the winner at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Lance Berkman, the nation's home run leader, had a solo shot for Rice in the first inning.

In the sixth inning, with a runner on board, Clemson chose to intentionally walk Berkman. Crosby foiled the strategy with a triple to right field, giving Rice a 6-4 lead. Crosby's home run came in the ninth.

Hutsted improved his record to 8-1 in outdueling Southwest Texas hurler Jason Divin (7-5), who gave up 6 hits and 7 runs in 5 1-3 innings.

Nevada 7, SW Texas St 1

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Brent Hutsted scattered seven hits and struck out seven, pitching Nevada past Southwest Texas State, 7-1, Friday in the NCAA Central Regional.

Justin Martin went 3-for-5 for the Wolfback. He was the only Nevada player with more than one hit. Joe Inglett doubled in two runs.

Nevada took a 3-0 lead in the third on a walk and three singles and added two unearned runs in the fourth. The Wolfback made it 7-0 in the sixth.

SERVICE IS OUR WAY OF LIFE

Service is more than a word. At Parkside Chapel, it is our way of life. Service of us is the many things we do beyond the expected. When someone is dealing with a loss it is wonderful to hear, "Don't worry about it. I will take care of all the details." We hope to free our families from the emotional strain of funeral details so they can concentrate on their personal needs. The staff at Parkside Chapel will be taking care of all details with quiet dignity.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

It's been said that one reward for having teenagers is that it looks good on your resume for sainthood. Could that apply to teachers also?

If you have been associated at all with HJH this school year, you know that we have had a busy, exciting and successful year. And working with teenagers is rewarding in many ways.

Our students have excelled in the classroom, and beyond. Our athletes have learned much about sportsmanship and fair-play and they have been winners throughout the year. Students have been very successful in orchestra, choir and band. These programs, especially in the choir area, are growing in enrollment and in interest.

Congratulations are in order to Javier Alonzo who is a "top student" in orchestra, not only at HJH, but in the area. Javier will be performing with the Amarillo Youth Symphony Orchestra during the 1997-1998 school year. We are so very proud of you, Javier. Raymond Jenkins is our orchestra director and he urges our students to compete as well as to always do their best.

Industrial Technology, History Day, Junior Historians, Computer Club, and Builders Club members have been busy in competition and in serving the community throughout the year. They have represented our school well. Categories Class is another area where our students spent time helping others. Student Council is being organized and if "off and running" for our next school year.

Summer camps and meetings are available for students during the summer months. Check with teachers, coaches, The Brand, and on Cable TV for schedules. The library has an excellent reading program for junior high and this would certainly be an asset for any student.

Thanks to our school board for recognizing our students in so many areas. They deserve applause, also, for their constant support for our teachers and students in the many areas where we travel across the state to represent our school. In the event some of you do not know this, our students go first class and they have learned to be conservative with expenses; (if we save, we can go first class the next time). Seriously, HISD is the envy of many schools in the care they afford their students.

Our students were complimented on their behavior by motel employees, tour guides and in places where we stop to eat, as well as by other adults in areas where our students have visited, throughout the year. Thanks, parents, for your help in this area.

Thank you to all who helped to take care of me, again, this last week of school. Due to the sudden death of my son-in-law on Sunday night, I left town about 3:30 Monday morning, and my school family took over for me. Thank You!!!

Children are likely to live up to what you believe of them...

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: For the past few months, I have been thinking seriously about killing myself. I have tried to think of reasons not to, and the only one I can come up with is that it would cause my family a lot of grief.

I am 15 and feel so alone. I am scared. I feel worthless. The problem is I am absolutely certain that I am gay. At 15, a guy should be thinking about what he wants to do in life, not how to kill himself. I have always wanted to get married and have children, but I now know that lifelong dream is impossible. If there were some pill I could take to make all these sexual desires go away, I would gladly take it.

This isn't the easiest letter to write, Ann. I have nobody to talk to, and I need your advice more than anything. I can't talk to my mother because I am scared to death of how she would take it. Please, Ann, help me. I can't go on this way much longer. -- Hampton, Va.

Dear Hampton: You are not alone. According to some studies, an estimated 10 percent of individuals, worldwide, are homosexual. Did you know that Alexander the Great, Leonardo DaVinci, Michelangelo, actor Rock Hudson, rock star Freddie Mercury, author Truman Capote, poet

Allen Ginsberg and playwright Tennessee Williams were gay? They were outstanding in their fields and contributed a great deal to the world.

Homosexuals are born, not made. They cannot change themselves. You need counseling to help you accept yourself as you are. Your favorite teacher, school counselor or family doctor should be able to recommend someone who can help you.

You already have taken the first step by writing to me. Now keep going, and get yourself some supportive professional help. Write to the National Youth Advocacy Coalition, 1711 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Suite 206, Washington, D.C. 20009. Good luck to you, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure you will remember Sydney Harris who for many years wrote a wonderfully insightful column for the Chicago Daily News. I was a faithful fan of Harris' and clipped many of his fine articles and filed them away for future reference.

This afternoon, I was re-reading some of those columns and came across one that seemed tailor-made for your readers. I hope you will print it. -- D.S. in Chicago

Dear D.S.: Sydney Harris was a friend of mine, and it is with pleasure that I reprint the piece you sent. Many thanks. Here it is:

The difference between Winners and Whiners is --

The Whiner says, "I don't know, and I'm sure nobody else knows, either."

The Winner says, "Let's find out."

When a Whiner makes a mistake, he says, "It wasn't my fault."

When a Winner makes a mistake, he says, "I'm responsible, and I'm going to see what can be done to set things right."

When a Winner makes a commitment, he honors it.

When a Whiner makes a promise, he keeps it if he doesn't change his mind.

A Winner feels responsible for more than his job calls for.

A Whiner says, "That's not my department."

A Winner says, "There ought to be a better way to do it."

A Whiner says, "That's the way it's always been done. Why change?"

A Winner paces himself and rarely bites off more than he can chew.

A Whiner has only two speeds -- hysterical and lethargic.

A Winner says, "I could be a lot better, and I'm going to try to improve."

The Whiner says, "I'm not as bad as a lot of other people."

Gem of the Day: The success of a dinner party depends not so much on what you put on the table as who you put on the chairs.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.15.)

Couple exchanges wedding vows

MRS. JAMES DEE HOUSTON III
...nee Michelle Ann Emerson

Michelle Ann Emerson and James Dee Houston III, both of Amarillo, exchanged marriage vows Saturday afternoon in First Presbyterian Church of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Martha S. Emerson of Hereford.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dee Houston Jr. of Amarillo.

The Rev. Jeremy M. Grant of the church and The Rev. Louis L. Dale, retired Presbyterian minister and uncle of the bride, officiated at the ceremony.

The church was decorated with an altar bouquet of mixed flowers and two arched candelabra.

Maid of honor was Destina Rodriguez. Best man was T. J. Skelton.

Bridesmaids were Eryn Davidson, Carol Hund and Allison Farr.

Serving as groomsmen were Schan Henson, James Shewbert and Benjamin Hampton.

Ushers were Bryan Johnson, nephew of the groom; Brandon

Emerson, Nathan Emerson, Aaron Porto and Stephen Porto, all cousins of the bride.

Brandon and Nathan Emerson also served as candle lighters.

Organist was Jan Metcalf. Ray Jenkins performed "The Lord's Prayer" as a violin solo.

The bride chose a gown, made by Martha Layman, of white bridal satin with a sweetheart neckline, princess lines and a chapel train. The bodice and short sleeves were overlaid with beaded and sequined re-embroidered lace. The hem and train were edged with beaded and sequined lace.

The headband style hair piece was hand-made by the bride.

The cascading bridal bouquet included bright red roses, star gazer lilies, delphinium and liatris. Within her bouquet, the bride carried her great-grandmother's baby necklace and her grandmother's wedding band.

The "Book of Common Worship" used by The Rev. Dale had belonged to the bride's great-grandfather who was a Presbyterian minister.

Bridal attendants wore dresses made of royal blue Asanti faille. The dresses were styled with a sweetheart neckline, raised waistline and a full pleated skirt. Each attendant carried a different colored single rose with baby's breath.

The couple was honored with a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Servers were Trendi Emerson, cousin of the bride; and Sheree Johnson and Carmen Smith, nieces of the groom.

At the registry were Lindsie Emerson, cousin of the bride, and Brianne Johnson, niece of the groom.

The bride's cake was decorated with tiny bright-colored roses and arranged in three staggered tiers. Crystal appointments were used, one of which was given to the bride's great-grandmother of her wedding day in 1921.

Following a wedding trip to Walt Disney World and Orlando, Fla., the couple will be at home in Amarillo.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1994. She is now a senior education major at West Texas A&M University pursuing a degree in elementary education and early childhood.

The groom graduated from Caprock High School in 1991 and from WTAMU in 1995. He now manages the student computer labs at WTAMU.

Mexican-American foods can actually fit into a diabetes meal plan. From a nutritional standpoint, a traditional Mexican-American diet offers many advantages, but some ingredients cause people to become overweight, making them more susceptible to diabetes.

"The Mexican-American diet reflects Spanish and Indian influences -- mainly vegetarian, based primarily on maize, beans and squash," said Dr. Mary Kinney Bielamowicz, a nutrition specialist and professor with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "It is high in complex carbohydrates and emphasizes the consumption of fruits and vegetable rich in Vitamin A and C, which is just what the USDA dietary guidelines recommend."

The two drawbacks of the Mexican-American diet are the liberal use of added fat, particularly lard, and a preference for high-fat meats, she said. A contributing factor is stove-top cooking, such as stewing or frying with liberal amounts of oil and lard, instead of baking or broiling. Most foods, including meat, beans, tortillas, rice and potatoes, are fried. "When a person's diet consists of mainly fried foods, added fat and other high-fat products, this could lead to obesity," said Bielamowicz, a member of the cultural diversity committee of the American Diabetes Association-Texas Affiliate. "As a result, this individual could end up with hypertension, health disease, diabetes mellitus or a combination of these illnesses."

According to the American Diabetes Association, more than one million of the estimated 22 million Hispanics in the United States have diabetes -- one in every 10 Hispanic adults. Also, population studies among Hispanic women with diabetes show significantly higher death and complication rates during pregnancy. Only a few steps need to be taken to cut down on fat, sodium and sugar in the diet, Bielamowicz said. Meals and recipes can be modified by following these steps:

*Increase carbohydrate intake up to 55 to 60 percent. Eat more servings of breads, cereal, pasta, fruits and vegetables. Continue to serve sopa de arroz (Spanish Rice) sopa de fideo (similar noodle dish), potatoes, tortillas or beans with each meal.

*Use corn tortillas instead of flour tortillas. Make tortillas from ingredients using whole flour and margarine made with unsaturated fat such as canola, corn, soybean and safflower oils. Include beans daily to maintain high levels of soluble dietary fiber consumption. Increase intake of fresh fruits and vegetables.

*Incorporate sweets such as pan dulce into a mixed meal that includes protein and fat only if diabetes is controlled and body weight is reasonable. Account for calories in the total meal plan. Use no added sugar in drinks such as licuados and aguas frescas.

*Eat the appropriate amount of protein. Daily protein intake for the average man would be equivalent to that in eight ounces of red meat or two cups of beans. For a woman, the intake should be 6.25 ounces of meat, or slightly more than one and a half cups of beans.

*Reduce oil used in preparing sopsas. Prepare frijoles cocidos (boiled beans) instead of frijoles refritos (refried beans). Prepare meats asadas (grilled) instead of fried. Chill and skim fat off broths and stocks when preparing caldos. Use skim, 1 percent or lowfat milk instead of whole milk or cream. Avoid high-fat cheese using part-skim milk queso fresco instead. Bake corn tortilla chips to replace fried chips. Rather than frying tortillas, heat in foil in an oven, in a heavy pan for a short time on each side, or in a microwave oven.

*Restrict egg consumption to less than three a week. Eat chorizo (sausage) and menudo only on special occasions. Instead, select some of the new, light sausage available on the market today. Drain fat from fried chorizo, and trim visible fat from meats. Avoid using lard in cooking. Use polyunsaturated oils or olive oil instead.

*Replace sweetened carbonated soft drinks with water or diet sodas. Use artificial sweeteners in beverages.

*Taste food first before using salt. Minimize consumption of salty snack foods such as chips, chicharrones (fried pork rinds) and dips. Instead of salt, use lemon in drinks or on fruits such as melon. Add flavor to foods using onion, garlic, cumin, oregano, cilantro and other spices.

Nearly any recipe can be modified for a more healthful meal, Bielamowicz said. For example, instead of having fried beans with Mexican sausage, eat boiled beans with chili sauce made with lean meat.

For more information on modifying recipes, contact Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Family and Consumer Sciences Extension Agent.

— YOUR EYES —

About Cataracts

Cataracts are the gradual clouding of the natural lens of the eye. With age, most people experience some of this clouding. Smoking and excess exposure to the sun can speed the loss of vision.

In the earliest stages, a cataract does not interfere with vision, and it's only during a routine examination that it's discovered. With time, though, vision gets hazy. The glare of bright light may make it worse. Sunglasses may be helpful, especially the newer glare-control lenses that filter out blue light. Some are self-darkening photochromatic lenses, available plain or ground to your prescription. Check color vision before wearing them for driving.

The good news is that cataracts respond well to surgery that has been made easier and less complicated in recent years. After the cloudy lens is removed, it is replaced by a lens implant or a contact lens. Glasses may still be needed to fine-tune vision for distance and near-vision tasks.

Don't Become A Highway

Road Construction Ahead.....

The intersection of US 385 and US 60 will be one of many sites of $5.9 million worth of roadway improvements in Deaf Smith County this year.

Warning signs will be everywhere in Hereford area this summer

It will be hard to miss the bright orange "Road Construction Ahead" signs in Hereford this summer. With $5.9 million dollars worth of construction in Deaf Smith county alone, drivers are sure to notice the major highway improvements in the area. Here's a list of where you'll find construction work.

•On US 60 from the US 385 intersection west to the Castro county line. The roadway is receiving a major rehabilitation and, when the project is completed, will be a stronger road with a new surface and striping. The project is scheduled to be completed by October.

•On US 385 from the north city limits of Hereford, south to the intersection of US 60. With heavy truck traffic through Hereford, the outside lanes of this roadway really take a beating. The Texas Department of Transportation plans to strengthen the road by treating the road's subgrade and adding concrete pavement. This project will begin this week.

•At the intersection of US 385 and US 60. This project will improve the life of the roadway at one of Hereford's busiest intersections. The old intersection will be replaced with a new concrete intersection. Concrete is more expensive but will last longer with the intersection's heavy truck traffic. This project is expected to begin in late summer or early fall.

•On US 60 from the intersection of US 385, east to the Randall county line. This project is similar to the one going west on US 60 and includes a major rehabilitation. The project is scheduled to begin in late summer or early fall.

•On F.M. 1259, F.M. 2587, and S.H. 214 in Deaf Smith county. These three roadways are on TxDOT's annual "seal coat" schedule. A "seal coat" is one of TxDOT's most cost effective preventative maintenance projects and greatly extends the life of a roadway. The "seal coat" projects will be completed during this summer months.

Railroad Crossing Ahead.....

This railroad crossing at Main St. (F.M. 1259) in Hereford is one of 7 in the area.

Air bags save lives.....

Air Bag Safety:
Buckle Everyone!
Children in back!

Air bags save lives. They work best when everyone is buckled and children are properly restrained in the back seat. Children riding in the front seat can be seriously injured or killed when an air bag comes out in a crash.

An air bag is not a soft, billowy pillow. To do its important job, an air bag comes out of the dashboard at up to 200 miles per hour - faster than the blink of an eye. The force of an air bag can hurt those who are too close to it. Drivers can prevent air bag-related injuries to adults and children by following the critical safety points listed here.

SAFETY POINTS:

- Children 12 and under should ride buckled up in a rear seat.
- Infants in rear facing child safety seats should NEVER ride in front seat of a vehicle with a passenger side air bag.
- Small children should ride in a rear seat in child safety seats approved for their age and size.
- Check your vehicle owner's manual and the instructions provided with your child safety seats approved with your child safety seat for correct use information.
- Everyone should buckle up with both lap AND shoulder belts on every trip.
- Driver and front passenger seats should be moved as far back as practical, particularly for short people.

Hereford sees 7% increase in seat belt usage.....

Hereford Police Lt. Bennie Barrick is trained to help motorists properly install child safety seats. For more information call the Hereford Police Department at 363-7120, Tracy Tellman at 806/356-3295 or the Safe Riders hotline at 1-800-252-8255.

Hereford sees 7% increase in seat belt usage

Residents in Hereford are buckling up more often since the Hereford Police Department (HPD) began its campaign to increase seatbelt and child safety seat usage and consequently save lives. In November of 1996, HPD kicked off the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP). STEP is a program that identifies and analyzes specific traffic safety problems in a community, and uses patrol officers in selected locations to catch drivers violating traffic safety laws.

Officer Terry Brown says, "The statewide average seatbelt use is 71.75 percent. In Hereford, we identified a 31 percent seatbelt compliance rate, and that's a problem." So, on major holidays like Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter and Memorial Day, Hereford police officers have been working overtime to target drivers who aren't wearing their seatbelts.

"On some of the holidays, a few drivers wearing their seatbelts were pulled over and rewarded for buckling up," says Brown. "One resident received a Thanksgiving turkey and another received an Easter ham."

"The STEP program has obviously worked for Hereford," says Brown. "Since the first seatbelt survey last November, our seatbelt compliance rate has increased 46% and our child safety seat compliance rate has increased 24% percent. That's a lot of lives potentially saved,"

Funded by the federal government, grants are issued to states for the STEP program. Last year Texas received $625,000 for the Occupant Protection STEP program. The Hereford Police Department received $20,000 for this year.

GIVE US A BRAKE

Building roads is dangerous work. Imagine being a highway worker and going to work knowing you are putting your life on the line. Hard-working individuals lose their lives each year due to careless drivers in highway construction work zones. The death toll is on the rise. Protect your investment in Texas and respect highway worker's lives.

When you see workers on your highways, remember they're working hard to build and improve roads that make your trip safer, efficient and more enjoyable. Texas highway workers are more than just numbers, they are family members friends and neighbors. Highway workers deserve a BRAKE. Remember these simple rules when traveling through work zones:

- Don't speed. Observe orange work-zone warning signs calling for reduced speed. Eighteen percent of work-zone accidents are caused by motorists driving too fast for conditions.
- Keep a safe distance from the vehicle in front of you. Most accidents in work zones involved rear-end collisions.
- Stay alert. Keep your eyes peeled for orange work-zone traffic signs. Pay attention to flaggers in orange vests directing traffic.
- Be patient. Traffic delays in work zones are unavoidable as improvements are made to Texas roads. Patience can prevent accidents.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

On the Right Foot - Getting new employees up to speed

The cost of adding new employees continues to grow. If you include the direct cost of hiring and the loss of efficiency while a new hire gets up to speed, you may find you are spending several thousand dollars per employee.

In today's hyper-competitive marketplace, where every profit dollar is important, finding and keeping good employees is more critical than ever. We've discussed finding good people in previous columns, so we'll keep this one focused on getting new employees up to speed quickly.

Here are some tips for getting new hires started off on the right foot. You should include these basic elements in your indoctrination plan. They will help new folks develop a positive attitude about your company, have more enthusiasm and become productive quickly.

They will help new folks develop a positive attitude about your company, have more enthusiasm and become productive quickly.

Creating a quick start make them feel at home. The first day at a new job may be the most important. Most employees are anxious about their first day. They are wondering is this is the right job? Will they like - and be liked by - others who work there? Will they be good at this job?

It is important to give the new employee assurance and put them at ease. It is also important to reinforce the benefits of working for you and your company.

An employee checklist can cover many of the areas you wish to discuss on the first day and during the first week. You should include introductions, company history and goals, location of necessary facilities, company policies and rules and who to call in case of emergencies.

This orientation process should include a summary of company benefits, pay periods, hours, breaks and safety information. Give the new employee plenty of time for questions.

Don't expect too much too soon. While you may need your newest employee to be productive immediately, this seldom happens. Give them time to adjust to their new environment and routine. You and other employees set the tone by your example. Use your best employees to work closely with your newest hire when you can't be nearby.

Give them good directions. The most frustrating time for new employees may be the period wherein they don't know exactly what to do. They may either do the wrong thing or do the right thing in an incorrect way. Clearly define what you expect and the results you want. Put your instructions in writing if necessary.

Stay in close contact. Don't just give them good directions; follow up. Give the opportunity to ask questions and seek your approval. By staying in close contact you can nip problems in the bud. You can also correct negative behavior before it becomes a bad habit.

Add responsibilities gradually. Your goal is to allow each employee to grow and assume responsibility as quickly as possible. However, each employee has a different comfort level when undertaking new duties. Add new tasks and responsibilities gradually. You don't want to overwhelm them.

There is a fine line here. You don't want to bore your quick learners either. With a little practice, you'll learn how to add responsibility while giving the guidance necessary to keep everyone comfortable, yet challenged.

Praise in public, correct in private. Mark Twain said he could live for a month on a good compliment. Praise is important. Especially if the praise is sincere, deserved and offered in the presence of others.

Correction, discipline and criticism require the opposite approach. You must correct and discipline in a positive manner, but only in private.

These techniques are working for thousands of successful companies. With a little thought and practice they can work for you as well.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

I don't know how it is at your house, but at ours, very soon after school dismisses for the summer, the relief subsides and the restless boredom sets in. Of course, Deaf Smith County Library's solution is the Summer Reading Club.

Pre-registration begins Tuesday, May 27. The program does not officially begin until June 2, but it would be a good idea to come in this week and beat the rush. And there will be a rush. Each year we enroll about 800 children and have between 300 and 350 children attending each weekly activity.

When I was teaching, there were some activities that the other teachers and I would not attempt. We were afraid to try them with a group of 20 children. Coming to the library was a crash course in managing large groups of children. Becky has the process fine tuned so that we can handle 300 children gluing and painting things and do it without damaging the carpet in the least. Remarkable!

Don't forget the new program for those who have finished 6th, 7th and 8th grades. Teen-Read will begin June 4 at 10 a.m. with a water color painting lesson. Encourage those who are too old for the traditional summer reading program to come and enjoy fun, food and reading.

For Ed McBain fans, we finally have a new 87th Precinct novel. In Nocturne, the once world famous concert musician, Svetlana Dylovich, is found dead on the floor of a cold apartment on the coldest night of the year: a little old woman with a shattered bottle of cheap liquor by her body and two fatal gunshot wounds to her chest.

While no murder is really routine, to detectives Carella and Hawes, this one looks at first like a robbery. But the evidence does not add up. The interview with Svetlana's hard-edged, lounge-singing granddaughter prompts them to start looking for a missing envelope full of money and for a killer who had more than robbery on his mind. Not all the victims are innocent and not all the victimizers are criminals.

Louis L'Amour fans will want to read The End of the Drive. This is a collection of seven never-before-published tales, together with one complete novella containing all the elements typical of Louis L'Amour - comic twists, stark realism and crackling suspense.

Joan Hess' book The Maggody Militia, is rich with small town life. Arly (short for Ariel) Hanks, chief of police in Maggody, Ark. (population 755), usually needs only a radar gun to enforce the law, until a group of camouflage-clad patriots march in with maneuvers - and murder.

It all begins when a pretty widow named Kayleen allows a group of survivalists to use her back pasture for paint-ball war games. The problem is that it is the first weekend of hunting season when bourbon-swiggung good ol' boys with deer rifles shoot at anything that moves...and that might include make-believe soldiers in fatigues.

Suddenly Arly has her hands full: burglars are breaking into remote home throughout the county; Mayor Jim Bob is a missing person, and his wife is having a hissy fit; the very pregnant Dahlia Buchanan is behaving more strangely than usual; and Estelle, of Estelle's Hair Fantasies, gets a surprise inheritance that has the residents of Maggody running for cover.

When a survivalist gets killed, Arly wisely suspects that there is no secret government conspiracy behind this homicide - just the usual human evils of blind ambition, big money, and deadly obsessions.

Long After Midnight by Iris Johansen, The Big Picture by Douglas Kennedy, Every Day by Elizabeth Richards, Blood Lines by Cynthia Harrod-Eagles, and The Dancing Floor by Barbara Michaels are also new this week.

Jane Brody's Allergy Fighter

specializes in addressing nasal allergies or "allergic rhinitis". Among the topics covered are: how allergies happen, strategies you can use to avoid allergy-causing substances, understanding allergy medications, and special strategies for treating allergies in children.

Irons in the Fire by John McPhee is a collection of pieces ranging from New Jersey to California. This is a blend of colonial history, paleogeography, radiometric dating, societal drift, tectonic theory, school kids by the busload, and Mayflower descendants in leather jackets, cowboy boots, and one-way shades.

Baseball fans will want to read The Only Way I Know by Cal Ripken, Jr. He includes the inside story of baseball, his rise to challenge Lou Gehrig's record, and the roller-coaster ride of the eighties as the Orioles take the World Series and enter into what he calls "the dark years."

He also takes us through his strategies at the plate and in the field, his attention to the tiniest detail of positioning, or glove selection, or batting stance. It is like a private tutorial with one of the true masters of the art of playing baseball.

The Insider's Guide to Buying a New or Used Car by Burke Leon and Stephanie Leon, Home Schools: An Alternative by Cheryl Gorder, Resumes for Computer Careers, Calligraphy by Don March, and The Art of the Stonemason by Ian Cram are other new nonfiction books.

Local agent contributes to St. Jude's Hospital

NASHVILLE -- St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and the Students Against Driving Drunk are two organizations that will benefit from insurance agents generosity, including that of Jerry Shipman, State Farm agent in Hereford.

At the national convention of the National Association of State Farm Agents, the third annual charity auction raised approximately $20,000 for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis.

"We are proud to be 'Partners in Benefiting Children' with St. Jude, an outstanding hospital that helps young children with cancer from all across the country," Shipman said.

The National Association of State Farm Agents also contributed $20,000 raised at their 1996 charity auction to the Students Against Driving Drunk organization. SADD works to provide students with the best prevention and intervention tools possible to deal with the issues of underage drinking and drug abuse.

COUNTRY PORCH ADDS CHARACTER

Dormers Add To Country Charm

BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

Cross the large country porch and enter this home through a long formal entrance foyer. The dining room is through a cased opening and it features a bay window. Another cased opening leads directly into the activity room or to the stairs up to an undeveloped attic area. The ceiling in the activity room is a stepped tray, providing an elegant feeling.

The kitchen and breakfast room open to the activity room, also contributing to the feeling of spaciousness. The breakfast room has a bay window and overlooks the sun deck which is accessible either from the master bed room or the activity room.

The kitchen includes all the modern conveniences. An extra touch for the cook is that the sink is located overlooking a snack bar between this area and the activity room.

The master bed room is located off a hall which connects to the laundry room and oversized double garage. A half bath is located here as well, for daytime use.

The master suite includes another stepped tray ceiling and a lavish bath including separate glass shower and garden tub. A closet with abundant hanging space is coupled with the bath area.

The three remaining bed rooms, which utilize a central bath, are accessible from a hall off the activity room.

The exterior is country with triple dormers, a covered front porch and horizontal wood siding.

All W. D. Farmer plans include construction details for substituting brick, frame or stucco exterior finish. Plan number 2558 includes 2,595 square feet of heated space and is drawn with a basement foundation.

New Acoustical Windows Shut Out Noise, Bring Tranquility

Do you live near an airport, a busy highway or a noisy school yard? Are quiet times a rarity in your home? Noise pollution is a serious subject. Unwanted, uncontrollable noises, especially random, interrupting noises, can be a serious source of distraction and stress, greatly reducing the quality of life. Noise reduction in cities and factories, for example, is taking on a high priority for many civic leaders.

But you don't have to wait for someone else to improve the quality of life in your home. Acoustical windows are here and they are for real. There is a big difference between an acoustical window and a normal window. You've got to hear the difference to appreciate it. Success stories abound from homeowners who live near noisy highways or busy city streets. They can attest that, when they close the window, simply no sound is heard from the outside.

A funny thing happened on the way to developing a more energy efficient window. Window-makers learned how to make windows quieter. Since most noise "penetrates through the fenestration," that is, it comes in through windows, the "acoustical window" has been a boon for tranquility seekers.

Many vinyl acoustical windows install exactly like standard replacement windows into the same opening. They are available with diamond or colonial (square) grid patterns, placed between glass panels for easy cleaning.

It's not enough to just make the glass sound-proof. Sound penetration through the window frame has to be reduced, too. Good vinyl acoustical windows are 100% fusion-welded vinyl. All-welded windows have much better acoustical properties than windows whose corners are screwed together. Welding makes the window airtight, so sound can't "leak in."

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
 Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 -- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Extension Agent's Notes

By DENNIS NEWTON
County Extension Agent-AG

I stated in last week's column about how I was still concerned that damage done to the wheat stems by the late freeze could hurt the potential yields by causing lodging of the plants not only as they develop, but even after they mature.

As the Bible says, "And it came to pass..." The high winds that we had on Monday evening really did a number on some wheat fields by laying the plants over.

It was a very spotted occurrence, but I had several producers call about the problem. I looked at several fields and I have no doubt that the lodging was caused by the weakened stems from the early freeze.

The $24,000 question is, will the wheat still make grain? We do have a distinct advantage in that we have an adequate supply of moisture.

Couple this with a long range weather forecast for cool temperatures over the next few days, and I would say that it has a good chance for recover. As the weather continues to warm up, more detailed damages from this lodging can be assessed.

I attended the field day at the research center in Bushland on Thursday and was glad to see a number of Deaf Smith County farmers on hand for the event.

I was pleased to see Dr. Kenneth Porter was recognized for his fifty years of work in wheat research. Dr. Porter's wheat lines including TAM 101, TAM 105, TAM 107, and TAM 200 helped to give wheat producers a boost in yields that had to be measured in the multi-millions of dollars.

He is a great person and contributed so much to the High Plains agriculture.

The moisture was great. It should really aid us in finishing out our wheat crop and getting our summer crops off to a good start. The moisture also is bringing about the age old problem of dealing with unwanted weeds. Now is a good time to tackle one of our biggest problems, field bindweed.

Normally, we recommend spraying field bindweed in the early fall or late summer, but with the good amount of moisture available and the rapidly growing condition of the weed, I think that now would be a good time to hit it with some herbicide. Some of the herbicides that can be used are 2,4-D, Dicamba (Banvel), Landmaster BW, or Tordon 22K.

For producers planning to plant sorghum, apply 1 to 2 pints of 2,4-D, 7 to 14 days prior to sorghum planting. Plowing to prepare the seedbeds may begin 3 to 7 days following herbicide application.

Control bindweed in 6 to 12 inch sorghum with 1 pint of 2,4-D. If a freeze has not occurred by harvest, apply 1 to 2 pints of 2,4-D or 0.5 to 1 quart of Banvel, or 1 pint 2,4-D plus 1 pint of Tordon 22K.

Spot treatments for bindweed are also effective. Small patches should be eliminated prior to becoming large and infesting other areas.

Spot treatments often include complete soil sterilization for long periods of time. The herbicides have proven very effective in spot treatment are Arsenal for non crop areas only, Tordon 22K and Banvel.

There are others that will control the weed in small areas. Many producers do not plow through bindweed spots, leaving them for herbicide treatment later.

If you do this, be sure and get those spots treated before your crop gets to big to get into.

Leaving untreated areas simply gives the weed an opportunity to spread and develop even more.

Before using a herbicide it is very important to read the label and follow directions. Check labels to be sure that your intended use is approved by the manufacturer.

Labels change constantly and should be routinely reviewed. Also, many of the herbicides mentioned will damage surrounding susceptible crops under certain conditions.

Producers should remember that Deaf Smith County is a herbicide regulated county. Use of 2,4-D or other phenoxy herbicides during certain times of the year is prohibited without the necessary permits.

Unlawful and misuse of these herbicides can result in severe crop injury to susceptible crops. Check before you spray is a good habit to develop. Consideration for others many times keeps accidents and unnecessary damage from happening.

A producer once told me that keeping field bindweed in check "is like feeding the milk cow, no matter how many times you do it, you still have to repeat the process tomorrow."

I think that sums up the situation pretty well. Think warmer weather!! See you next week.

Electric industry deregulation may not be in consumers' best interests

Texas' electric cooperatives contend that a proposal to deregulate the electric utility industry by 2001 may not be in the best interest of electric cooperative consumers. The co-ops are concerned that several key elements of the draft bill are not fully understood and they say that more time is needed to review them, according to Mike Williams, president of the Texas Electric Cooperatives (TEC).

It is not clear that deregulation of other industries has benefitted rural Texans, Williams said.

Ag Day set for June 22

Panhandle Agriculture Day is set for Thursday, June 22, at the USDA-ARS Southern Great Plains Conservation and Production Agricultural Research Laboratory and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Bushland.

Registration and refreshments will begin at 8:30 a.m.

The program will consist of tours of research project field locations, exhibits, speakers explaining and discussing agricultural advances and concerns, traditional and alternative crops, irrigation, recent weather damage, commodity marketing and agricultural financing.

Highlights will be four stops at research plots and demonstration sites from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., followed by a noon luncheon.

The luncheon is sponsored by the Texas Wheat Producers Board and Producers Association.

There will be a salute to Dr. Kenneth Porter, internationally renowned wheat breeder, for his 50 years of service to area growers and consumers.

For more information, contact the TAES at (806) 359-5401.

TEC is the statewide association that represents the 75 distribution cooperatives and 11 generation and transmission cooperatives.

"Dramatic changes are being proposed that will impact how the electric industry in Texas operates. We believe that this proposal needs more time to be fully understood and to allow for thoughtful examination by legislators and the public to assure that these suggested changes are indeed in the public interest."

"Unfortunately, this proposal does not necessarily assure lower electric rates or reliable service for our cooperative members," Williams said.

Electric cooperatives serve approximately three million consumers in 244 of Texas' 254 counties, primarily in rural and suburban areas.

"However, we continue to support any industry restructuring that benefits all customers of electric cooperatives in Texas," he said.

Steve Louder, president and general manager of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, agrees with Williams' statements and asks that customer comments be directed to his office in Hereford.

The phone number is 364-1166 or send written comments to Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Box 753, Hereford, Texas, 79045.

land," Tsakopoulos said in a prepared statement.

Federal officials say Angelo Tsakopoulos has damaged wetlands by plowing part of his land as he turns it into a vineyard.

Before filing the suit, he wrote a letter to the EPA charging that "much of the federal regulatory bureaucracy has embarked on an assault against farmers, as it encroaches upon fundamental agricultural activities such as discing and other forms of primary tillage."

But Tsakopoulos, a millionaire Sacramento developer and major political campaign donor, is defying the regulators by suing the Environmental Protection Agency and Army Corps of Engineers. The class-action lawsuit filed early this month accuses the federal agencies of making up rules to expand their authority under the Clean Water Act.

The Corps of Engineers contends that the plowing on Tsakopoulos' 8,400-acre Borden Ranch does fall under Clean Water Act regulations because it endangers wetlands that are home to wildlife.

"Bureaucrats who don't know farming are ignoring national farm policy, inventing new regulations and ordering farmers to request permission from Washington to farm their

Both agencies have said Tsakopoulos has violated the law by failing to apply for a permit, but they declined comment on the lawsuit.

Tsakopoulos charged that clean-water rules "are being enforced far beyond the realm of congressional intent and far beyond the jurisdiction of both the EPA and the Corps."

American Film Institute gives Scorsese its blessing

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

It has the distinctive ambience of an Italian family dinner — without the pasta. And that's an appropriate setting for a tribute to a man who has made movies about his mother's spaghetti sauce (Italianamerican), an Italian-American boxer (Raging Bull) and the mob in New York and Las Vegas (GoodFellas, Casino).

It's the American Film Institute Salute to Martin Scorsese, airing Wednesday, May 28, on CBS.

Amid the cheers of the black-tie crowd, Scorsese makes his entrance with a daughter draped over each arm and takes the seat of honor. From that spot, the writer, director, producer and sometime actor blows kisses to Sharon Stone as she sets the tone of appreciation that rings through the program, laughs as James Woods jokes about his perfectionism and blinks back a tear as Robert De Niro speaks of their long association.

Other celebrities on hand to offer their congratulations are Michelle Pfeiffer, George Lucas, Joe Pesci, Jodie Foster and previous AFI award winners Gregory Peck, Steven Spielberg, Jack Lemmon and Clint Eastwood.

The AFI was founded in 1967 to preserve the nation's film heritage and develop young filmmakers. President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed documentarian George Stevens Jr., son of director George Stevens (I Remember Mama, Shane, Giant), to head the institute. In 1973, Stevens established the life achievement award.

Today, Stevens and his son, Michael, produce the annual AFI television special. The winner, he explains, is selected each year by the institute's board.

"A kind of subcommittee is appointed to go through the various prospects and possibilities," Stevens says. "They usually bring two or three names to the board, and very often a board member will add another name. And then it's a secret ballot."

Stevens admits choosing a life achievement award winner is a balancing act, somewhere between a "so far, so good" and a eulogy. The amount of films necessary for an artist's consideration is not to be overlooked either.

"It has to be — what would you say — 25 years? I don't recall us ever discussing it, but it's not three or four pictures," he says. "It's a substantial body of work."

Occasionally, the award rejuvenates a dormant career. "I think in the case of Jimmy Cagney (1974) and Bette Davis (1977), it did, but those were really exceptions," Stevens says. "I do not think it is an award that, year in and year out, alters the course of somebody's career. It really more confirms it."

Stevens accepted an award at this year's gala for preserving and restoring hundreds of films and for leading the AFI's Center for Advanced Film Studies, whose graduates include David Lynch, Martin Brest and Jon Avnet.

"I've just been involved in the restoration of Giant and Shane," Stevens says. "When I was starting the AFI, it never occurred to me that (the films) would someday be in jeopardy."

But this night belongs to Scorsese, who recalls watching the first AFI special, honoring John Ford, on TV.

"Scorsese is very much what the AFI and the life achievement award are all about — not just his work but his dedication to the medium of motion pictures. And that interest he had in the directors of (an earlier) generation took him to the place where those great directors themselves (stood)," Stevens says.

Could another such director be tuning in Wednesday?

"That's a lovely thought," Stevens says.

The influential writer, director, producer and sometime actor is this year's recipient of the AFI's lifetime achievement award at the American Film Institute Salute to Martin Scorsese, airing Wednesday on CBS. Scorsese joins such previous award winners as Steven Spielberg and Clint Eastwood.

★ ★ May 25-31 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Now is the time to make your move at work. Telling the right people about your ideas puts you in the spotlight — and in line for a promotion. Don't be nervous. Your family is behind you for support. A close friend is there for you when you have a romantic problem.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Be bullish when it comes to meeting new people on Tuesday. Someone who has a lot of influence in the business world will enter your life and present you with a golden opportunity. Don't let it slip away. Loved ones will need your support later in the week. Be there for them.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
It's your turn to shine this week. Your personality wins you favor at work, and you make a lasting impression on a superior. As for romance, your personal life sparkles too. An old friend comes back into your life and introduces you to someone special.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Work gets hectic this week, but don't worry. While you may be overwhelmed at times, you can handle the pressure. Just try to remain calm — even if everything seems to be going crazy. A loved one turns to you in a time of need. Be yourself, and he or she will get all of the support that he or she needs.

LEO - July 23/August 23
You feel more like a lamb than a lion this week, but don't get discouraged. This feeling of insecurity will pass by Friday, and you'll be back to your old self again. Look to a close friend for an encouraging word; he or she will help you keep your chin up. Don't be too shy to strike up a conversation with a co-worker; it could lead to an interesting date.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
The pressure is off of you this week at work. All of your hard work pays off, and the higher-ups finally notice you. Enjoy it, but don't become overconfident. You'll still have to work hard to stand out among your co-workers in the future. That special someone finally makes a move.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
You're in the money this week. You finally finish a project at work, which wins you compliments from co-workers. Your love life blossoms as a friend of a friend asks you out. This is the perfect opportunity to let your personality shine.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Things start to get to you at work this week. It seems as if everyone is against you and everything you do is wrong. Don't get too disheartened. Take some time off to collect your thoughts. A little relaxation is just what you need to rejuvenate yourself.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Be careful when making important decisions late in the week. Think things through thoroughly, and don't make any hasty decisions. Ask for advice from loved ones if it makes you feel better. A stranger introduces himself or herself to you when you're out with friends. Take it slowly.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
You get the green light to move ahead on an important project at work this week. If you act like a professional — and don't become a control freak — you can have a lasting impact on the company. A loved one takes up most of your free time taking care of a personal problem. Don't get upset; just be supportive.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Life is on the upswing this week. Everything goes well at work, and your manager even comments on your progress. Superiors have their eye on you. As for romance, your new attitude pays off when it comes to the opposite sex. Your phone will be ringing off the hook.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
You feel like a fish out of water early in the week. While you go through the same daily routine as always, things will seem different, and you'll feel out of place. Don't get worried. The feeling will pass by the end of the week. Just try to stay focused and relaxed.

TV PIPELINE

Q: A few years ago there was a Beau Bridges series set in the West. Can you tell me the name of the show and anything about an actor on the show named Sterling Macer? -Anne in Flint, Mich.

A: Harts of the West, which ran on CBS for the 1993-94 season, starred Beau Bridges and his father, Lloyd, and was set on a ranch in Nevada.

Sterling Macer Jr. had a supporting role as Marcus St. Cloud, a manipulative ex-con who worked on the ranch.

Prior to Harts, he co-starred as Cpl. Robert Davis in the acclaimed ABC drama Homefront and appeared in the feature film Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story. After Harts, Macer had a role in NBC's 1996 TV movie The Beast.

Trivia note: In 1982, Macer graduated from Kickapoo High School in Springfield, Mo., with a classmate named Brad Pitt.

Q: My sister and I recently saw a TV movie titled Love With a Perfect Stranger with Daniel Massey. We had never seen this actor before and want to know if he is Raymond Massey's son.

Also, what other movies has he been in? -Kathryn Elrod, Athens, Ga.

A: Yes, Massey, 63, who co-starred in the 1966 TV movie Samson and Delilah, is the son of the late veteran actor Raymond Massey.

Born in London, where he later began his very successful stage and screen career, he has a sister, Anna (Angels and Insects), who also is an actor.

His career highlights include being nominated for an Academy Award™ for his performance as Noel Coward in Star!, the musical autobiography of Gertrude Lawrence starring Julie Andrews. That lavish movie, which flopped in 1968, has garnered new appreciation since its release on video and its recent airings on American Movie Classics. His other films on video include The Entertainer, In the Name of the Father, Scandal and Stalin.

Q: Who played Adam Banks and Charlie Conway in the Mighty Ducks movies? -J.G., Bloomfield, Ky.

A: Vincent Larusso and Joshua Jackson, respectively, played those roles in all three Ducks films to date.

Q: What was the name of the show that used "Paint It Black" by the Rolling Stones as its theme song? -Fan via e-mail.

A: That was Tour of Duty. Terence Knox starred in the 1987-90 CBS drama.

Q: Will Prince Street be back? If so, when? -M.C. in Kentucky.

A: The heavily promoted police drama was DOA in its premiere. It is not expected back in any form, at any time.

HIGHLIGHTS

Cars entered in this year's Indianapolis 500 will be using new engines that have yet to complete a 500-mile race. The Indianapolis 500 airs Sunday on ABC.

Calling it the Indy 500 might be stretching it

By Bill Quinlan
©TVData Features Syndicate

There will be a different sound to this year's Indianapolis 500, but the competition should be as intense as ever.

Gone are the turbocharged engines that have roared to victory in recent years. They have been replaced by a new generation of normally aspirated V-8 power plants, as the Indy Racing League attempts to contain the high costs of racing. These engines have yet to complete a 500-mile race, so the drivers and their teams will face the dilemma of how hard to race their cars. The Indianapolis 500 airs Sunday, May 25, on ABC.

It will be difficult to top last year's finish, in which Buddy Lazier, who was recovering from a broken back, passed Davy Jones with eight laps remaining and held on for a narrow victory. Lazier is healthy this year, but Jones will miss the 81st Indianapolis 500 because of injuries sustained during a practice run in January. An exciting addition to this year's race is Robby Gordon, a NASCAR Winston Cup driver, who also will compete in the NASCAR Coca-Cola 600 in Charlotte, N.C., later in the day. Gordon is a former PPG CART ace and SCORE off-road champion.

Among the top contenders at "The Brickyard" are 1996-97 IRL points leader Mike Groff, 1996 IRL rookie of the year Tony Stewart, and 1996 IRL co-champions Buzz Calkins and Scott Sharp.

Arie Luyendyk, the fastest man in Indianapolis Motor Speedway history, also should be a factor in the race. Luyendyk won the 1990 Indianapolis 500 in record time, and set records for fastest single lap (237 mph) and fastest four-lap average (236 mph) in last year's qualifying.

Other drivers to watch include former Indy 500 runner-up Scott Goodyear, former Formula One driver Eddie Cheever and Robbie Buhl.

And once again, a huge crowd will fill the stands and the infield in anticipation of another wide-open battle for the checkered flag -- provided, of course, there are enough cars still running to finish the race.

Dear Candace: I loved the acting and chemistry of T.W. King (Danny) and Laura Wright (Ally) on The City. I would love to see them move over to the new ABC soap opera, Port Charles. Their talent should not be wasted. -Cindi R. on the Internet.

Dear Reader: You don't have to worry about either one of them not getting a new job. But it's unlikely that they will be working together.

Dear Candace: The actor who plays Detective Morris on Another World looks familiar. Has he been on any other daytime shows? He is a very good-looking man, and I think he is a great actor. -AW Fan in Mellen, Wis.

Dear Reader: Robert Gentry (Morris) has been on several soaps. He played Ross on All My Children, Ed on Guiding Light, Jordan on Generations and Giles on One Life to Live. This is his second time on AW. The first time, he played the role of Philip Lyons from 1979-81.

Dear Candace: What happened to Matthew Ashford, who played Tom Hardy on General Hospital? Is his character off the show for good? I really like Ashford, and I think he is a terrific actor. Also, did they get rid of Miranda on GH? -M.N. in Florida.

Dear Reader: Ashford's character was written off the show. Unfortunately, Tom was lost in the shuffle when the writing changed hands. None of the new writers really knew the history of the character or what could be done with him. Ashford says he was very disappointed and felt as if the writers just didn't care.

Miranda (Leslie Horan) also was written off the show.

Dear Candace: Can you please tell me if Kristen Blake and Susan are the same person on Days of Our Lives? Also, we are getting kind of sick of Carrie (Christie Clark) being so sweet and giving up her man. When is she going to wake up? -F. Wright on the Internet.

Dear Reader: Eileen Davidson portrays Kristen and Susan. As for Carrie, she could use a little backbone.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best.

You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

I had to cancel the trip to Branson in June because of lack of interest. You who paid your deposit will be getting it back soon. Everything is ready for the one in December. I will be mailing out the itinerary for it and the October tour soon.

Dues are due in June. There are a different categories you can designate to pay. We did this last year because some people thought the amount of dues was too small. The form with amounts of each category is in this edition of Senior Scene.

We have decided to go back to Thursday and Friday for the Thrift Store to be open. We tried the new schedule for a few weeks and we feel it is better to return to the old schedule. This change will be effective June 5 and 6.

We will have a TRIAD meeting Friday, May 30 at noon. The SALT committee will be appointed and we need a lot of you who are interested in working with this group. If you remember Dan Morales, Attorney General, was here about six months ago to introduce this program to help our community combat the SCAMS that take our money. It seems crooks are after our senior citizens.

We are running behind on our schedule. Please come! We need your help. Three groups are involved in this program -- Hereford Police Department, Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department and the Senior Citizens.

See you at the Center.

HSCA Activities

By Peggy Maxwell, Activities Director

We honor our fathers during the month of June. A father's hands help give us strength by showing us the way to tackle problems, work things out and do our best each day. They can ease a hurt, help cheer us on or teach us something new. We honor all fathers and grandfathers -- you are special people.

Remember the Senior Center of wonderful noon meals. You don't have to cook or do dishes. We also have planned activities. Check the activity calendar for a new activity to add to your weekly schedule.

President's Corner

By Norma Thurston, HSCA President

Dear Friends,

Spring is finally here. The late freeze and snow have set our trees and shrubs back a bit, but the moisture was very good.

We have all looked forward to this weekend for Pioneer Days. There have been class reunions, and friends and relatives visiting in town.

There was a Pancake Supper at the Center Friday night and there was lots of visiting going on. It was a great time. It's always good to see friends and family.

We want to thank all the volunteers for all the hours they work every week. If it was not for them, the Center would not run nearly so smooth as it does. When we meet one of the volunteers, we should remind them just how much we appreciate them.

Garden in bloom

The triangular shaped garden on the north side of the Senior Center is in full bloom and providing viewing pleasure for the Senior Citizens. Jan Furr has devoted many hours of loving care to the garden and it shows.

Living history center preserves structures for pleasure of public

By PAUL EBNER

The Victoria Advocate

GONZALES, Texas - As visitors make their way down the winding entrance trail, it seems a drift back in time.

The trail leads to Pioneer Village, a mixture of restored and re-created structures from the 1800s. It is on a 16-acre tract just north of Gonzales. Established by the Gonzales County Restoration Association in 1977, the Village is nearing its 20th anniversary.

"The purpose was to preserve 1800-era structures in Gonzales County and ultimately to have a living history center so the buildings could be used and enjoyed by the public," said Larry Finch, president of the Restoration Association.

After choosing the site for the Village and clearing the land, the first structures were moved in and restored in 1980. Since that time, others have been added until 11 structures stand on the site, with nine dating back to the 1800s.

The other two structures, a blacksmith shop and broom factory, are replicas from the era.

"The broom making and blacksmith shops are re-creations, but all the equipment used is from the 1800s," Finch said.

The centerpiece of the Village is the Hamon Church, which was dismantled and moved to the Village in January of 1989 and fully restored in December of 1987.

The church was originally built in the late 1870s by the people in the Hamon Community in southeast Gonzales County. It was first used as a Presbyterian church and later became known as the Hamon Baptist Church.

The church has served as a meeting place for the Village and, since being restored, has been the site of seven weddings. Some of the weddings have taken an 1800s theme, including one re-creating the Civil War South.

All but the latest three structures - the Muenzler House, the Oak Forest School and St. Andrews House - were dismantled, moved to the site and restored.

"Each building was disassembled on its original site, keys made, loaded on a trailer and moved to the Village," Finch said. "Then they were put back together basically like a jigsaw puzzle from the keys by volunteer labor."

The Knowles-Townsend House and the granary were the first to be restored.

Built in 1860, the granary is one of the more popular stops for school

SOCIAL SECURITY

Byron Sansom

"Assistant District Manager"

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: When I start receiving retirement benefits, will my benefit amount be the same for the rest of my family?

A: Your benefit amount will not stay the same. Social Security provides an annual cost-of-living increase which is based on the consumer price index. The 1997 increase for beneficiaries was 2.9 percent.

Q: If a person begins working at age 18, at what point will he/she be insured for Social Security disability benefits?

A: Generally, a young person who starts work at age 18 would become insured for disability benefits in about one and one-half years. For more information, call Social Security's toll-free number and request the booklet, "Disability."

Q: How do the administrative costs of the Social Security program compare with private insurance companies?

A: Most insurance companies pay more in administrative costs. Insurance companies pay an average of 11 percent of premiums collected in administrative costs. Social Security pays administrative expenses less than one percent of benefits paid. Social Security has certain advantages of scale because it is compulsory and does not have to advertise, and because of the huge number of people it covers.

Q: A friend told me about a statement she received from Social Security. It gave her estimates of her retirement, survivors and disability benefits. I'd like to get an estimate of my benefits. Is there a fee for this?

A: All services are free from Social Security, including the "Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement" you mentioned. These services include applying for a Social Security number, checking your earnings records, or changing your name on your Social Security records. Call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, for any of these free services.

Q: Is it true that if you continue to work after age 65 without collecting Social Security retirement benefits, your benefit amount may increase?

A: Yes, your benefit may increase and in two ways: 1) You receive "delayed retirement credits" for each month you delay retirement after the age for full benefits (currently age 65) up to age 70. For people who reach 65 in 1997, the annual credits will increase their benefits 5 percent a year. That rate gradually increases in future years, until it reaches 8 percent per year for people turning 65 in 2008 or later. 2) Your benefit also may increase because Social Security uses your 35 highest years of earnings. By working past age 65, you would probably increase your average lifetime earnings on which your benefit amount is based.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD
Straight Answers About
Vitamin and Mineral Supplements

It seems almost every day new research confirms the benefits of healthful eating habits, including the role that vitamins and minerals play in keeping us healthy.

Nutrition experts agree that healthful food choices can best provide the variety and balance of vitamins, minerals and other nutrients needed for good health. However, when circumstance make healthful eating a challenge, you may wonder whether taking a multivitamin and mineral supplement is for you.

Question: Do I need a multivitamin/mineral supplement?

You can get all the vitamins and minerals you need by eating a wide variety of foods.

Look at the Food Guide Pyramid to see how your eating habits stack up. If you are getting all the servings you need from each of the five food groups every day, you probably don't need a supplement. Eating a wide variety of foods is important because food contains the ideal mix of nutrients, which work together.

For some people, a complete multivitamin/mineral supplement offers benefits that are both effective and safe. A supplement may help when:

*Try as you might, the rush of everyday life frequently keeps you from eating the recommended number of servings from the Food Guide Pyramid.

*You are on a very low-calorie weight loss diet.

*You are elderly and not eating as much as you used to and should.

*You are a strict vegetarian.

*You can't drink milk or eat cheese and yogurt.

*You are a woman of child-bearing age who doesn't eat enough fruits, vegetables and beans.

Question: If I'm trying to lose weight, do I need a supplement?

The most healthful way to lose weight without sacrificing proper nutrition is to follow the recommendations of the Food Guide Pyramid along with a program of daily physical activity.

If you eat less than 1,200 calories per day, it can be difficult to meet your nutritional needs. To be sure, you should ask your doctor whether you need a supplement.

Question: I'm planning to become pregnant in the future. Do I need a supplement?

To help prevent birth defects of brain and spine, health authorities recommend consumption of 400 micrograms of folic acid daily at least one month prior to conception. Good sources of folic acid include leafy green vegetables such as spinach and greens, kidney and pinto beans, and citrus fruits and juices. Some cereals are fortified with folic acid. Check the label to be sure.

Question: I'm a strict vegetarian who doesn't eat any meat, poultry, fish or dairy products. Am I missing out on any vitamins and minerals?

You may be at risk for vitamin B

12 deficiency because this vitamin is only found in foods from animals. A vitamin B 12 deficiency can lead to anemia and problems with nerves and muscles. You can get vitamin B 12 from fortified soy milk, other fortified foods or a multivitamin/mineral supplement providing 100 percent of the Daily Value for vitamin B 12 (6 micrograms).

Question: Are there any risks from taking high doses of single supplements?

Before taking a supplement, be aware that health risks exist for some people. For instance, it is recommended that pregnant women take more than 5,000 IU daily of vitamin A from retinol (a form of vitamin A). Too much vitamin A can increase the risk of birth defects.

In addition, too much iron can increase risk of chronic disease, so it is recommended that men and postmenopausal women not routinely take iron supplements at levels higher than 100 percent of Daily Value. Check the label to be sure. Check with your doctor before taking a single supplement.

Question: If I decide I need to take a supplement, should I look for certain levels of any individual vitamins or minerals?

For those who choose to take a supplement, it is best to select a product that provides no more than 100 percent of the Daily Value for vitamins and minerals. Check the Nutrition Facts panel on the label.

Minor depression can be due to biological changes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Researchers at the University of Pennsylvania have discovered biological changes in the brains of elderly people suffering from minor depression.

Mental health experts said they hoped the findings would encourage older people to seek treatment for minor depression and not dismiss it as a byproduct of old age.

"My colleagues and I hope that family members, caretakers and primary care doctors will recognize the signs of minor depression and encourage seniors to get the help they need," said Dr. Anand Kumar, the study's lead author and director of the Mood and Memory Disorders Program at Penn.

The two-year study examined 18 healthy elderly patients who experienced minor depression for the first time in late life and compared them to 31 non-depressed patients. Patients' median age was 69.

Using an MRI, researchers discovered the prefrontal lobe - the region of the brain associated with emotional states and behavior - was significantly smaller in elderly patients suffering minor depression than in their non-depressed counterparts.

Kumar, whose study was published in the May 15 issue of the Archives of Neurology, said minor depression is much more common than major depression but gets less attention.

Minor depression affects one in five people age 65 and older and is more prevalent than major depression in the elderly.

Although the study didn't analyze treatment options, Kumar said antidepressants coupled with psychological therapy may relieve late-life minor depression.

"Older folks with emotional disorders seek treatment less often than younger folks do," said Dr. Myron Weiner, a geriatric psychiatrist and specialist in Alzheimer's and other dementias.

"That's because elders have the attitude that it comes with the territory and bear up on it," said Weiner who is on staff at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.

Meet Your Board

CECIL BOYER

Cecil Boyer served as treasurer on our board from 1988 to 1992. He was reappointed to fill a vacated position in 1995.

He serves as treasurer of the Golden K Kiwanis Club and works every week at the Thrift Store. Cecil is always busy either volunteering, or at his job as bookkeeper at Harold's Body Shop.

I remember when Harold got a computer for his bookkeeping. Cecil told me he could never learn that -- he was too old! But guess what, that's been several years ago and he is still keeping books only on a computer.

Cecil has a wonderful wife, Eunice, and they have a wonderful daughter, Beverly. They have three grandchildren.

They are in Abilene this weekend helping Beverly with a garage sale. You know for sure this is one couple who is never bored with life.

Thank you, Cecil, for serving on our board.

Employee Spotlight

KENNETH DUNCAN

Kenneth Duncan was a faithful volunteer at the center cleaning tables, helping with dishes and playing dominoes with our Seniors for a couple of years before he was hired as a paid staff member.

When an opening came up March 1, 1988, Margie Daniels, executive director, asked him if he would like it and he was very excited to have his first paid position.

Kenneth very seldom missed work and only then if there is a very exciting Hereford ball game or church activities he wants to attend. He is always early to the center to have coffee, visit with friends and willing to clock in early if he is needed.

One thing we know about Kenneth, he loves our Seniors and the center and we love him. Thank you, Kenneth, for all you do and for your caring attitude and your faithfulness!

Volunteering Runs in the Family!

Roberta Artho; her daughter, Wanda Jesko; and her brother, Tony Irlbeck have something else in common other than being related. They all volunteer at the Senior Center several times a week in different areas.

All help in the serving line during the noon meal and Roberta and Wanda help prepare trays for the home delivered meals when needed.

Roberta quilts and Wanda goes out to help deliver meals as needed. Tony works everywhere from helping set up for special events to cleaning up afterward. He also trims rose bushes.

Elroy, Roberta's husband and Wanda's father, helped deliver meals almost every day for eight years before he was deceased.

One thing about these friends, you never hear them say they are bored or have nothing to do!

Afternoon tea is way to escape life's pressures

By JOY AULT

Valley Morning Star

HARLINGEN, Texas - In this hurried, high-tech society, more and more people are looking to carve out some meaningful time with friends. But when they get together, it's not just to socialize but to share a love of reading and unwind with a cup of tea.

A relaxing, gentle ritual, the resurgence of afternoon tea is a welcome way to escape the pressures to today's busy life. And incorporating a good book or the morning newspaper helps keep the pace unhurried. But when you add friends, the "literary tea party" provides a mental escape and a way to connect with others.

The literary tea party is a forum for such diverse topics as fiction, poetry, history, biographies, parenting or hobbies including computers, gardening and photography. Any book can spark a discussion.

The What-to-Read Club of San Benito uses its monthly book reviews to interest members in reading a variety of books, not just the one evaluated.

"Recently, the review was on a book about life in Alaska during the Gold Rush," said Mary Hardy, vice president in charge of programs. "Members hadn't read the book, but related incidents of the Gold Rush and that period from other books they had read."

At times, an author becomes the focus and members discuss other books they've read by the same author. Or they discuss books in the same category by other writers.

After the book review and discussion, members have tea and nibble foods that may include miniature quiches, fruit trays, veggie trays with dips, little cakes and cookies.

But one doesn't only have to include books as part of tea party experience. Building relationships is an outgrowth of teas, whether literary or simply social.

"I'd like to give a tea. Do you want to help me?" Lyn Kerr said one day to a sorority sister.

Mary Jane Avinger said, "Sure," and the two gave a tea for their Alpha Omicron Master Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority of Harlingen.

Kerr's Victorian doll collection, placed around the house, set the mood. One doll, surrounded by Victorian fans and roses, presided over the main serving table.

An old-fashioned hot chocolate pitcher held a bouquet of roses on the table where raspberry herbal tea was served.

"The pitcher was my mother's when she went to college in the early 1900s," Avinger said.

From her grandmother's Haviland china, guests munched scones with lemon curd, chicken salad sandwiches, plum muffins, pecan tassies, strawberries dipped in chocolate and apples dipped in caramel.

This smaller tea party became a springboard of ideas for the preferential tea, an annual event for all the sorority's chapters. Victorian dolls and fans came into play again, along with jewelry spilling from assorted Victorian boxes.

A nosegay of flowers and ribbons cascaded over a cake patterned after a Victorian greeting card.

"The formality of teas and parties have sort of fallen by the wayside in the 80s and 90s, and we like to bring back some formal parties and customs of the 40s and 50s," said Ruth Scoggins, preferential tea co-chairman.

"We want the young people to know there's more than chips and dips and jeans."

"High Tea at 4" was a Sunday afternoon preferential tea at Scoggins' home with spiced tea, finger sandwiches and a cake with yellow roses. A crystal vase held a Victorian bouquet of fresh flowers.

Complementing the theme, guests' dresses included tea-length lace with matching hat and gloves, and elegant black with beaded bags.

"They pulled their hats and gloves out of the archives," Scoggins said.

Hostesses for the high tea did their part to revive gracious customs by wearing ruffled white aprons over black skirts and white blouses with black bow ties.

"The purpose of these events is food, tea and friendship," Avinger said.

VILLAGE

children who tour the Village each year, some allowed the opportunity to shell corn and grind it into cornmeal.

The Knowles-Townsend House was built in the mid-1840s and was located southwest of Gonzales near Nixon.

The house is "double-pen, central chimney" style home - two rooms connected by a chimney, which, according to Finch, was rare for this part of Texas.

The Gates House was the next structure moved to the Village in 1981. Lack of funding and the poor condition of the house delayed restoration for three years.

The house was built about 1856 some 10 miles southeast of Gonzales by Samuel Hardin Gates, who used whole elm and oak logs and covered them with cypress siding that was floated up the Guadalupe River to Gonzales.

The Greenwood Cabin, built in the 1830s, was moved to the Village in 1984 from its location 12 miles north of Gonzales. It is the oldest building in the Village.

"Every structure was donated and most restored by volunteer labor," Frinch said.

Volunteerism is important to the Village, since funding has been difficult to come by, Frinch said.

"Most of our funding has been local monies," he said. "Because the buildings are being moved, we don't qualify for a lot of the particular federal and state grants that would be available."

That is something one of the original organizers, Sandra Wolff, finds hard to understand.

"If we would restore them out in the pasture where nobody could see them, they (any historic commission or federal group) would pay for it, which makes no sense to me," Wolff said. "Since we are moving the structure off their original sites, to them it's destroying the historical value."

But that is something Wolff says the organization is not doing.

"To us, we're saving the buildings so people can see it. And if you can't put it somewhere they can see it, you're really not accomplishing anything," she said.

Another big funding problem the organization faces is its classification as an outdoor museum, which allows visitors to enter the structures.

"People can actually go into the houses and touch things and that is a big no-no for the people who give you the big money," Wolff said.

"To the people coming through, it makes it a real special place.

"So many places where you go you have ropes everywhere and you have plexiglass and everything is in a case and you can't figure out what you're looking at and why.

"Here it is like stepping into a house someone has just stepped out of for a moment. It's real and because we want to keep that, we just have to do without that money, even though we have been able to do many things with what funds we have raised," Wolff said.

Finding restoration workers is also a bit of a problem, Wolff said.

"You can't just go hire a carpenter; you have to basically hire a craftsman or a carpenter who is interested in what you are doing because the way they do things now is so different from the way they built the structures in the 1800s.

"We try to stay as authentic as possible when we are restoring them."

At the organization's fall festival in November, volunteers dress in pioneer fashion, taking extra care to bring the Village to life.

Young at Heart Choir

Young at Heart Choir performs for groups at various locations

The Young at Heart Choir has been busy recently performing for various functions. Most recently they won a superior rating at the Amarillo Baptist Association choir festival held at the First Baptist Church in Canyon.

The Young at Heart Choir is members of Hereford Senior Citizens who are from all denominations. All seniors who like to sing, whether or not they are affiliated with any church, are welcome to be a part of the group.

The choir is directed by Mike

Sabo, minister of music at First Baptist Church. Marcella Bradly is the accompanist.

The choir was privileged to sing at the Gospel Jam held at First Presbyterian Church as well as at Temple Baptist Church, King's Manor Methodist Home, Prairie Acres Nursing Home in Friona, Hereford Care Center and First Baptist Church in Hereford.

This is a wonderful outreach ministry for Senior Citizens and a community service.

The Young at Heart Choir is self-supporting with help from its own members and local churches. The Center assists by furnishing a van for trips, as does the First Baptist Church.

HCC celebrates Open House, other events in month of May Hereford Care Center was busy in May with an open house to celebrate four years in Hereford.

The day was full of entertainment. The Community Christian grade school entertained with singing to start the program, followed by the Golden Line Dancers from Senior Citizens.

The children from Community Christian come every Thursday during the school year. The Golden Line Dancers perform at HCC the first Monday of every month.

The Hereford Junior High Orchestra completed the morning program.

Community Christian Junior and Senior High Band performed after the noon meal followed by the Senior Citizen's Young at Heart Choir, directed by Mike Sabo.

The finale of the day was Janet Rector from Friona, who sang.

May began with a birthday party for residents with May birthday. There were five who celebrated birthdays. The cakes were provided by First Presbyterian Church.

Residents celebrated Cinco de Mayo on May 5 with a party of Spanish music and chips and dips with punch.

National Nursing Home week was a busy time for the residents, too. Monday there was a trip to see the happy Hatters. Tuesday there was music and a special Bingo where everyone got a prize. Wednesday there was a big balloon launch.

Friday started out cloudy for the garage sale, but the weather improved and the residents came out to help. Our thanks to all who helped or donated items for the garage sale.

Hereford Care Center has a new face in the activity Department. She is Samantha "Sam" Ludwig. Cindy Sublett has a new position as volunteer coordinator.

Partial dentures or bridgework were worn in what is now the Tuscany region of Italy as far back as 700 B.C.
