LAW OFFICES OF WITHERSPOON
AIKIN AND LANGLEY

Headed for museum

Hereford attorneys John D. Aikin and his wife, Mel Ruth, stand by the sign which stands on the north side of the office he is closing down this summer in downtown. The sign originally was on the side of the firm's larger offices closer to the courthouse. It will be donated to the local museum once the office is closed.

Not-so-small part of history ends with law firm closing

John Aikin tosses records, recalls big cases

By JACK STEIN
Brand Editor

When a small downtown Hereford office closes next month, the Texas Panhandle and Plains will lose a not-so-small part of history as a legal era comes to an end.

Within the walls of that office are stored some of the most significant phases of the area's legal history which during the past 50 years has been directed not only out of that office, but a much larger building which once housed this important firm, one of the largest in the Panhandle/Plains.

The two different offices have been home to a law firm considered one of the most influential in Texas, one that in recent years has been reduced in size as partners made their journeys into the great beyond, leaving only a semi-retired partner to operate the once thriving business.

On Aug. 31, 1997, after a 50 year and one month history, the Law Offices of Witherspoon, Aikin and Langley will cease to exist in downtown Hereford.

John D. Aikin, last surviving partner in the firm, is spending this summer putting the finishing touches needed to close the office, throwing away old records and otherwise shutting down the law firm which quietly started Aug. 1, 1948.

"I was just hunting a job," Aikin explained in telling the story of how this East Texas boy ended up spending a lifetime in Hereford. "I had graduated from law school and helped my brother get re-elected to the state senate...he had two opponents...it was the last time he had an opponent."

This brother was the popular East Texas Sen. A.M. Aikin, known not just in Texas politics, but throughout the country for his political savvy and ability to get things done.

"I had this friend in Plainview who graduated law school (with honors)," Aikin continued. "He went into the insurance business, I don't know why, but I visited him and he sent me to see Judge Witherspoon in Hereford."

"I really liked him. I had seen a lot of other lawyers in the area but I liked Judge Witherspoon the best. He told me he didn't think he would ever want a partner, but told me to call him when I passed the bar exam."

When that call came, the end result was the hiring of John Aikin and the beginning of a long business partnership which also involved the partnership with the late Earnest Langley.

Without the help of that bride, he might never have become an attorney or made his home in Hereford.

"I went to law school with her for a year before being called for military duty in 1942," Aikin said. "When I went overseas she finished and went to work for Judge Alexander as a briefing clerk."

"When my train from Seattle arrived in San Antonio (after discharge from the military) she took a train from Austin and met me. She worked and put me through law school."

The young couple had maintained correspondence throughout the war years including his 28 months of overseas duty and found remembrances of that long distance love affair when they moved from their Hereford home.

"We found every letter she had written me and every letter I had written her," Aikin said, "that was really interesting to read."

Within a couple of years of his becoming associated with Judge Witherspoon in Hereford, the business relationship turned into a full partnership, one which lasted until Witherspoon died a few years ago.

That left the burden of running the office to Aikin, but he wanted to retire and last summer purchased a home for his retirement back in the old East Texas hometown, Paris. It was difficult to keep the business going by long distance so the decision was made to close it down.

"I couldn't do it without the help of my wife (Mel Ruth)," Aikin said. "She not only put me through law school when I returned from the service (during World War II) but she came back when I really needed her to run the office."

"I didn't have the knowledge or ability to take care of the administrative things, I was just a practicing lawyer, but she is great with the computers and managed the office for me. Now she's helping me close things down."

Aikin confined his practice to general law during the past 50 years, doing very little criminal law, although he did serve as county attorney for a few years.

"I had been working for the commissioners court when the county attorney resigned," Aikin recalls. "They asked me to take the job and I agreed, as long as the prosecution could be done by my assistant. They agreed and I served for a couple of years."

The retiring attorney also recalls that one of his biggest cases came in the 1970s and it took him about six

Stocks fall back sharply after week of big gains

NEW YORK (AP) - Stocks pulled back sharply Friday, erasing most of the week's gains, as a pristine outlook for inflation, interest rates and corporate profit growth developed a few blemishes.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 130.31 to 7,890.46, leaving the blue-chip barometer with a loss of 31.36 for what turned into the busiest week in Wall Street history.

Broad-market indexes also suffered steep losses as investors moved to secure some gains from this week's record-setting advance, which on Wednesday had put the Dow above 8,000 for the first time.

In truth, the chief culprits behind Friday's selling weren't all that disheartening, leading many observers to conclude that investors were looking for a reason to pull some money out of the market.

Interest rates edged a little higher in the bond market, but remained near their lows for the year, after an economic report with some potential inflationary implications.

And although Microsoft reported late Thursday that it nearly doubled its profit for the June-April quarter, meeting most analyst forecasts, the results failed to satisfy the inflated expectations that had sent the software giant's shares soaring earlier in the week. Microsoft, which plunged 8 15/16 to 140 1/2 in heavy Nasdaq trading, also issued a cautious forecast about the coming quarters.

"A market that lives by earnings and interest rates can die by them too," said Charles G. Crane, director of research at Spears, Benzak, Salomon & Farrell, noting that virtually all the news of the past week has been encouraging. "The market was like a forest that hadn't received any water. It doesn't take much of a spark to start a little fire."

Bonds stumbled in Friday morning after a University of Michigan report unexpectedly revealed a sharp improvement in consumer sentiment during the first half of July.

The markets have been rallying since mid-April amid signs that the vigorous pace of the economy was slowing enough to keep a lid on inflation. A sharp pickup in consumer activity, however, could force the Federal Reserve to raise its key lending rates, easing inflationary pressures, but potentially hurting company profits.

The consumer sentiment data "was the first July numbers we've had a look at, and it surprised nearly everyone," said Hugh Johnson, chief investment officer at First Albany Corp.

"The worry is that the economy will pick up in the third quarter," said Johnson. "Everything has looked so perfect. It's looked as though the economy is growing at very moderate pace. It's looked as though inflation is very benign, and so it's led us to believe the Fed will not raise interest rates any time soon. But today we got a little bit of a wrinkle, and that led to a round of profit-taking."

School registration begins this week

Registration of students in the Hereford Independent School District for the 1997-98 school year will begin this week with Friday and Saturday set aside for elementary registration which will be at the administration building.

Junior high students who did not fill out a scheduling or course request form in the Spring can register Monday through Thursday at Hereford Junior High offices. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Hereford High School students will pick up schedules at the high school on dates to be announced next month.

Friday's elementary registration will begin at 7 a.m. and continue until 7 p.m. Saturday registration will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m.

"Parents are encouraged to register their (elementary) students during these two days in order to avoid delay in getting their children in classes promptly on the first day of school," said Corky Lockmiller, director of the Hereford I.S.D. Intake Center.

"All student registration will be done at the intake center in the administration building throughout the year, but we are adding staff on July 25 and 26 to take care of the mass registration."

"Parents who wait until school begins to register students will still do so at the intake center, but may find themselves spending much more time than those who register in July."

"We've tried to anticipate as many needs as possible and have the services or solutions available for parents during this two-day period."

Lockmiller also said that because children will be unable to visit their classrooms or meet teachers at this year's registration, it is not necessary for them to be present while parents complete the paperwork.

"We tried to schedule hours that would allow working parents to accomplish this task before or after work, or on their lunch hour," Lockmiller said. "The Saturday time is also something we are trying for the first time in hopes of accommodating more parents."

Students in the four-year-old kindergarten through sixth grades should be registered for school during this time according to school administrators.

Parents need to show a birth certificate, immunization record and Social Security card for each student they are registering.

For students needing immunizations, the Texas Department of Health has extended its hours to accommodate those needing to visit the clinic. Hours will be 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Parents should take immunization records with them to the health clinic.

"We are grateful to the TDH for extending their hours to help parents obtain immunizations during this process," Lockmiller said.

Representatives will also be on hand to screen children for Medicaid Well-Child checkups and appointments will be made for qualifying children.

Official orientation and registration at Hereford Junior High School will be divided between two evenings in August.

All seventh grade students will meet Tuesday, Aug. 12, at 7 p.m. and eighth grade students are requested to meet Aug. 14 at 7 p.m.

Following the orientation the students will meet their teachers, tour classes and pick up schedules. Parents are encouraged to attend the orientation with their children.

Additional information may be obtained from Nena Veazey or Corky Lockmiller at the school administrative offices, 364-0606 or 364-7600.

Replacement crew will make repairs to Mir spacecraft

MOSCOW (AP) - Russian space officials broke the news to three tired men aboard the Mir space station today: They will go back to Earth without completing critical repairs to the spacecraft, leaving the job to a replacement crew.

Mission Control officials told the crew over a special video link that the complex repairs on Mir's Spektr module would be performed by two Russian astronauts scheduled to go into space in early August. The module was damaged June 25 in a collision with a cargo ship.

"They reacted with understanding, although on a purely human level I understand full well that they were, of course, upset," Mission Control chief Vladimir Solovyov told reporters afterward.

Solovyov said he told the Mir crew, two Russians and one American, not to blame themselves for the collision - one of many mishaps to befall the orbiting outpost over the last six months.

"You, the crew, have done quite a lot," he said, recounting his conversation with the astronauts. "A lot of experience has been gained. There is no need to engage in self-flagellation."

One consequence of today's decision, which is to be formalized Monday, is the likely postponement of a scientific mission by French astronaut Leopold Eyharts. He was scheduled to accompany Anatoly Solovyov and Pavel Vinogradov when they lift off into space Aug. 5.

"That poor guy," one Mir crew member was overheard saying to Mission Control. "He's gone through so much. It's a shame."

Solovyov explained that the French experiments would require more time and energy than the hobbled station could provide until it regains full power. He said discussions with the French are continuing, and a final decision will be made Monday.

The decision to wait for a new crew also means that American astronaut Michael Foale, who has been aboard the station since May, won't take part in the tricky repair

Local Roundup

Citizens going to jail

The Muscular Dystrophy Association will be rounding up and issuing warrants for notorious Hereford citizens this week as the 1997 Hereford Lock-Up to benefit MDA gets underway. Citizens from the community will be placed in the MDA jail which Wednesday, July 23. The jail will be located at K-Bob's Steak House on 25 Mile Ave. Arrests begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. The "jail birds" will remain in the lockup until $500 has been pledged to MDA or after an hour they will be released for good behavior.

Tax office closes

Deaf Smith County Tax Assessor-Collector Margaret Del Toro is asking that persons who have business with the office in the courthouse next week to complete this business in the early part of the week. The offices will be closed all day Thursday, July 24, so that information may be downloaded into the office computers and regular business will not be conducted on that day.

Hospital board meets Monday

Directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District will hold a regular meeting Monday beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the board room at Hereford Regional Medical Center. Topics of discussion include: Building financing/Reimbursement resolution; retirement plan consideration; real estate counter offer to purchase land; planning study approval; departmental presentation by Shellie Hamby; and financial and operations reports.

Slight chance of rain

The forecast for Saturday night was partly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms. Sunday, mostly sunny with a less than 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. High in the lower 90s and south wind 10-20 mph. Sunday night, partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Low in the mid 60s. Monday through Wednesday: Highs in the mid 80s to around 90. A slight chance of mainly evening and nighttime thunderstorms. Lows in the 60s.

Rain triggers landslide in China, 48 people killed

BEIJING (AP) - A landslide triggered by heavy rains has killed 48 people and injured another 40 in southwestern Sichuan province, a newspaper reported today. The landslide struck at 1:40 p.m. Thursday, in Xingwen county, 875 miles southwest of Beijing, the newspaper China Daily reported, citing a local radio broadcast. The report did not provide further details.

A landslide Tuesday in neighboring Guizhou province killed 31 people. The deaths from the landslides increased the number killed in this summer's seasonal rains to 221. Floods in the south and drought in the north have damaged 30 million acres of farmland. The government has acknowledged this year's grain harvest will fall short of 1996's 540 tons.

LBJ doubted his own ability

Tapes reveal he was frustrated as vice president

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - As he eased Robert Kennedy out of the vice presidential picture in 1964, President Lyndon Johnson said the nation's No. 2 job was a lousy one anyway. In tape recordings of White House telephone conversations made public Friday by Johnson's presidential library, the former president said being John F. Kennedy's vice president was tedious. "I found it was very frustrating to sit there and not be able to do anything in the Senate, to sit there in the cabinet and not have any places under your jurisdiction," Johnson said. Johnson met with Bobby Kennedy at the White House on July 29, 1964 to give him the bad news - Kennedy wouldn't be Johnson's running mate. That job eventually went to Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey. It was a ticklish meeting, and Johnson recounted it that afternoon in phone calls to two close advisers - Clark Clifford and McGeorge Bundy.

Using all the political wiles for which he was famous, Johnson praised the younger Kennedy, told him he had a bright future and attributed his decision to the Republican Party's nomination of conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater. Then he asked for Kennedy's help in the upcoming campaign.

And he tried to sell Kennedy on the idea that not being vice president wasn't much of a loss.

Johnson said he told Kennedy: "I think there's much that you can do that will make yourself better understood and better prepared for any responsibilities or ambitions you may have than just hearing the roll call in the Senate."

Other tapes showed Johnson was unsure whether he himself wanted to run in 1964, beset by doubts over whether he could lead the nation and angered by "damn lies" in the press.

"I have a desire to unite the people, and the South is against me, and the North is against me, and the Negroes are against me, and the press doesn't really have an affection for me," Johnson told his press secretary, George Reedy, the day after the Democratic Convention opened in Atlantic City, N.J.

Johnson said he told Kennedy he became the 1960 vice presidential nominee because it "was good for my country and good for my party and good for my state. I thought a Democrat was much more preferable than (Richard) Nixon. And that's why I did it. And I said, 'I don't think that you'd be happy there.'"

Shortly after their conversation, Kennedy decided to run for the Senate from New York. Johnson campaigned for him. In 1968, Kennedy was assassinated while running for president.

At the close of their 1964 meeting, Johnson hinted - none too subtly - that he knew Kennedy was eyeing bigger things.

"He looked up at me and smiled and said, 'Well, you didn't ask me but I think that I could have done a hell of a job for us' - meaning if he'd have gone on the ticket," Johnson recalled to Clifford.

months to get it tried, not an easy task considering he was up against the federal bureaucracy.

"The Federal Power Commission wanted to remove irrigation gas from Priority 2 and move it to Priority 3," Aikin said. "Well, farmers in this area couldn't stand that, they needed Priority 2 to continue irrigating their fields."

A change in priority numbers would have meant that in times of natural gas shortages, farmers could possibly be left without natural gas to operate their irrigation pumps.

"We filed suit to keep it Priority 2," Aikin continued, "and I spent the first half of 1975 in Washington, D.C., trying that case."

"George Mahon was a great witness for us and I also took 15 or 20 farmers there to testify as well for the Plains Gas Irrigation Association which I was representing."

"I couldn't get enough witnesses up there to testify so I asked for field hearings, you could do that, and they were held at Lubbock, in the coliseum. I put on a slew of witnesses."

After the hearings in Lubbock the case was moved back to Washington, D.C., and this gave Aikin a chance to repay the "excellent work my secretary did during these hearings. She (Linda Swint) kept up with everything at the office, kept my private practice going."

"I brought her and my wife to Washington, put them up in the Mayflower Hotel, to hear the closing arguments. They liked that."

And this long six months of trial paid off in the end. "We won the case, we kept the irrigation gas on Priority 2," Aikin exclaimed.

This wasn't his only big project as an attorney. Another he recalled involved trying to get legislation approved in Texas which would give the same group of farmers more benefits.

"We wanted to put their gas suppliers under the Texas Railroad Commission, so the commission could set prices, not the company," Aikin said.

"We had legislation passed in the Senate (approving the request) but lost it in the House (of Representatives). It seems (the gas supplier) put on a big party before the final vote for legislators and we lost it by two or three votes."

Aikin says he has no idea how many cases passed through the offices in the past 50 years but with as many as eight attorneys involved in the firm an any one time, he knows there were plenty.

"I'm going through those records now, throwing them away, and this office is full of these records."

In the early years the offices were located closer to the courthouse in a building which had a basement library full of law books, a library he gave away when the firm began downsizing and moved into the present quarters at Main and Third Street.

And although those offices will close, there will still be an attorney named Aikin operating within the community.

"I will continue to work on a few cases" Aikin says. He will accomplish this by keeping the firm's post office box number, telephone number and a fax machine at the secretary's house.

"We've had that post office box number, 1818, and telephone number, 364-1100, too long to give them up," he said. The secretary will continue checking the mail and answering the telephone which will be installed at her house.

MIR

operation, which involves a space walk into the ruptured Spektr module.

The crew continued today to fix the damage from a massive power blackout on Thursday. They reactivated the station's gyroscope system, allowing the handicapped station to regain its precise orientation toward the sun and conserve precious fuel supplies.

Since losing power, the station has relied on thrusters - which use liquid fuel - to keep its solar panels in the sunlight. Solovyov explained that once the gyroscope system is on line, it uses no energy.

"We still need to work with (the gyroscopes), to test them. But on the whole we are now in the regime of expense-free orientation," Solovyov said.

He said that Mission Control was able to have a continuous 30-40 minute conversation with the crew today - something possible only when the station is able to keep itself precisely positioned during its orbit around the Earth.

The Mir's misfortunes have included a fire in February, breakdown of the oxygen system in March, a breach of the cooling system in April and the cargo ship collision in June.

The repair from the cargo ship crash will be complex. One cosmonaut will have to don a spacesuit to venture into the sealed Spektr module, which was depressurized during the collision.

Using special flexible gloves, he will have to reattach power cables to the module's three working solar panels - an operation described as extremely delicate.

Research: 'What makes man tick?'

By BEN DOBBIN
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) - Diana Schoeller and Sherry Lutzen want to know what makes men tick: how they think, what they feel, why they behave in certain ways.

College classmate Christopher Myer shares their intrigue. "There's a lot of confusion right now about what being a man is," he says. "We're up for murder, rape, drug abuse, violence, aggression. Obviously we don't know who we are since we're having all these problems."

A generation after women's studies began setting down roots on American campuses, scholars scrutinizing the world through the prism of gender have come full circle to integrate the study of men, or what it means to be male.

On the slopes above this Finger Lakes town, the history and sociology of masculinity have been dissected in classes and workshops for a decade. This fall, Hobart and William Smith Colleges will become the first university in the nation to offer a degree in men's studies - an undergraduate minor.

"This is not a fad, a tongue-in-cheek kind of gimmick," says Rocco "Chip" Capraro, a history professor at the coordinate men's and women's colleges. "The interest is much more serious, because men's problems are not going away."

The caricature of '90s guys trekking into the woods to beat drums and bond around a campfire might be difficult to shake, but analysis of male roles in a hurriedly changing society is extending across an array of academic disciplines, from literature and religion to psychology and health.

In fact, U.S. college courses that delve into manhood have proliferated from about 40 in 1984 to more than 500 today, says Sam Femiano, a founder of the American Men's Studies Association.

"Just as women and blacks and gay people have been invisible in traditional studies, men have been hypervisible as public figures, writers, scientists, military heroes - but not as men," says sociologist Michael Kimmel of the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

In a 19th-century British literature course, he says, any debate about the Bronte sisters inevitably turns to "their relationships to marriage, family and femininity," whereas, instead of "fatherhood, family and sexuality," Charles Dickens prompts discussion of "class relations, industrial society and Dickens as a social novelist."

"Integrating gender requires us to go back to what we've been teaching for decades with fresh questions and new ideas," says Kimmel, whose books such as "Men Confront Pornography" often serve as texts in men's studies.

For many Hobart and William Smith students, instead of being an arcane subject, the "Men and Masculinity" course also delivers a personal impact.

"There have been experiences in my life where men have done odd things to me or around me and taking this course is a kind of therapy," says Ms. Schoeller, 19, of Danbury, N.H.

Men are molded by social expectations much more than she realized.

"Women are taught the ideal body, the ideal domestic responsibility thing, the ideal wardrobe; men are taught the ideal extracurricular activities, the ideal job, the ideal car," she says. "Each gender is left to the mercy of society to define who they become."

The liberal arts school added a "Theories of Masculinity" seminar for first-year students in 1992. Its spring-semester course tackles topics such as sexism, homophobia, date rape and domestic violence, using films such as "Born on the Fourth of July," "Deliverance" and "Philadelphia."

The class draws many more sophomores and juniors than there's room for and women usually outnumber men - a curiosity seen in most men's studies programs nationwide.

"One could see it as men not really wanting to confront that which may be problematic about being a man," says sociology professor Jack Harris, who teaches alongside Capraro.

Higher levels of suicide, homicide, alcohol abuse, heart attacks, sports injuries, work-related stress - "the data is the way it is because men are acting like men, in ways typically violent to themselves or others, or taking unnecessary risks in ways women typically don't," Harris says.

The course explores diverse expressions of masculinity across race, class and sexuality.

"In our society, we've tended to focus only on the narrow, most elite forms of masculinity," Harris says. "Most of us men would fail if John Wayne was the model because we're living smaller lives, trying to raise a family, trying to get the job done, often with much fear and uncertainty."

Big changes in women's lives, in relationships, parenting and the workplace, carry big implications for men. Just as the emergence of men's movements such as Promise Keepers and the National Organization for Men Against Sexism attest, "this is, kind of, men catching up with change," Capraro interjected.

Alexis Santi, 21, says the course demonstrates male privilege "even in something as simple as walking the street at night. Men don't have the issue, 'Am I going to get heckled? Is someone going to grab me in an inappropriate way?'"

Ms. Lutzen, 42, a mother of four who is finishing up a studio art degree, says she's discovering "men's issues are just as stressful as women's issues. I can almost sometimes feel as sorry for them as I do for us."

"I always thought everything was just fine for them," she adds, laughing. "Maybe they're just better at hiding the way they feel."

She says she has pulled back on

"categorizing men" and thinks men's studies are an eye-opener. "They should have courses in kindergarten - when you get to seventh grade, a lot of times it seems too late."

So far, there are few fears that men's studies constitute a backlash against a women's movement making too much headway. Most scholars see it as a natural progression.

"Women's studies called attention to the fact that we all play certain roles socially that are very much determined by our gender," says Charles Thornbury, an English professor at St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn.

Through books, films and plays, his students explore men's aggression and self-scrutiny in war ("The Things They Carried," by Tim O'Brien), sports ("North Dallas Forty"), and at work ("Glengarry Glen Ross").

"Women and ideas of femininity are constructed in relation to men and masculinity, so you can't really understand one without the other," says Mike Messner, an associate professor of sociology and gender studies at the University of Southern California.

"The study of men is not there to rectify a silence about men, because everything before has been about men. It's there more to start looking at men in different ways, through perspectives that arise in women's studies."

"The idea," echoes Capraro, "is to find agreement ultimately on issues of social justice and gender equity."

Lubbock hospital may take lead in changing drug testing policies

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - One tragically misplaced epidural anesthetic shot could force a Lubbock hospital to take the lead on an issue that haunts physicians and every other American profession: drug abuse.

When South Park Hospital and Dr. Jack Dunn III agreed to a $10.5 million settlement with the family of the late Margo Glickman Johnson earlier this month, industry experts say the medical profession paid heed.

The defendants never admitted to the claim by Mrs. Johnson's family that Dunn was drug-impaired during the procedure and the hospital should have known it. However, the hospital did agree to pursue some drastic policy changes.

South Park pledged to try and persuade its medical staff to change the institution's bylaws to include the implementation of drug testing and mandatory educational programs.

"The significance nationally of the Lubbock case is that it will raise the issue in every hospital in America," said Rick Wade, spokesman for the American Hospital Association. "It's going to have the potential for a lot of hospitals and medical staffs to say, 'Wait a minute. How is it we assure the public that every doctor practicing inside institutions is fully competent?'"

Clint Matthews, South Park's chief executive officer, was quick to add that he can't coerce doctors to change their rules. It's too early to tell what changes, if any, the suit will force in hospital drug policy, he said.

Pre-employment drug testing is a rarity nationwide for physicians to gain privileges at hospitals, Wade said. He added that random drug testing, which also is a possibility under the settlement, doesn't exist as far as he knows.

"We do not know of a hospital in America that's been able to convince its medical staff to do that," said Wade. Other industry insiders echoed his statement.

Jake Glickman, Mrs. Johnson's father, sued Dunn, South Park and others after the 20-year-old woman died as she prepared to deliver a baby on July 4, 1995. Dunn erroneously injected a powerful anesthetic directly into a major vein.

Her undelivered baby died with her.

"(Glickman) made a promise on the day his daughter died to do something about what had happened," said Richard Mithoff, Glickman's attorney. "We recovered the maximum amount of money under the law, but what was primary was getting something done about this (impaired physicians)."

Additionally, the hospital promised to urge the Texas Legislature to address laws regarding access to drug abuse information about doctors and whether hospitals can be held liable when they're negligent in credentialing physicians.

The hospital admitted no liability in the settlement. Dunn did not pay to renew his license, the State Board of Medical Examiners said.

Of the 45,000 licensed physicians in Texas, the state board has publicly censured only 104 in the past three years for drug abuse, and only two of those saw their licenses revoked. The others were reprimanded or suspended.

Since 1995, addicted doctors have had the option of confidentially turning themselves in, but fewer than two dozen have done so, state board attorney Tony Cobos said.

"We need to have proof someone is engaged in intemperate use of alcohol and drugs," said Cobos. "It's very difficult, because sometimes professionals are very good at hiding substance abuse, especially physicians aware of the signs of substance abuse."

Doctors receive due process like anyone else, added Cobos, heaping the burden of proof entirely on the board.

Once identified as a drug abuser, a doctor can be placed under strict supervision after rehabilitation. The main form of enforcement is the peer review process, in which doctors monitor each other and privately critique their colleagues' performance.

The Dunn case proved that system isn't foolproof, though. Another Lubbock hospital's peer review committee had obtained a letter Dunn wrote to a girlfriend detailing his history of drug abuse. When he moved on to South Park, the confidential letter didn't travel with him.

Doctors tend to report each other only if they're entirely sure the whole process is classified, said the AHA's Wade.

"If I'm doing a peer review and all that is discoverable, then as a physician I might not be candid for fear of retaliation," Wade said.

Dr. Robert Jones chairs a committee on physician impairment for the Texas Medical Association, the state's leading doctors' organization. He stressed that doctors watching doctors is more effective than pre-employment and random screening, which he opposes.

"We used to have a moral obligation to report these things, and now it's a moral and legal obligation," said Jones, who said 50 doctors in his San Antonio area are recovering addicts. "Patients also need to realize their obligation to rid us of this (drug-addicted) core."

He added that testing doctors is far more expensive than testing other workers because of the wide variety of drugs physicians can access. Stringent, random testing of known abusers is more effective.

Dr. Libby Stuyt, a psychiatry professor and addiction specialist at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center here, estimates that roughly 10 percent of Americans abuse of drugs or alcohol. Doctors, she said, are no different than the general population when it comes to addiction.

"There's nothing protective (from addiction) about being a physician," said Dr. Stuyt, who has helped treat addicted doctors. "In fact, there are some things about being a physician that put them at higher risk for drug abuse."

Those factors include easy access to prescription medications, detailed knowledge about substance interaction and a keen ability to avoid detection, Dr. Stuyt said.

"Just applying the law of averages to the physician population could indicate a much higher incidence than what's being reported," said Mithoff, the plaintiff's attorney. "That's argument enough for this kind of drug-screening."

Band director gets 30 years

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - A former West Texas high school band director was sentenced Friday to 30 years in prison for having a sexual relationship with a teen-aged student.

Daniel Nanez, 32, had been convicted Thursday on five counts of sex with a girl over a two-year span, beginning when she was 13.

Nanez was found guilty on two first-degree counts of aggravated sexual assault of a child and three second-degree counts of sexual assault of a child.

Jurors deliberated about 2 hours before assessing five concurrent prison terms and a maximum fine of $10,000 for aggravated sexual assault of a child.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the really frightening thing about middle age is the knowledge that you'll grow out of it.

A ramor without a leg to stand on will usually get around some other way.

Newspapers across the country are facing a problem over which they have no control - the delivery of their newspapers to out-of-county subscribers. The subject came up at a recent Texas Press Association convention. Roy Eaton, publisher of the Wise County Messenger at Decatur, is president of the National Newspaper Association, and he reports that late delivery, or lack of delivery, has been an increasing frustration for many publishers.

This unreliability comes at a time when the Postal Service has raised newspaper rates and has asked for approval of a 33-cent stamp for first class mail.

We've been in the newspaper business long enough to remember when we stamped an address on the papers, placed them in mail bags and tossed them in the back door at the post office. The postal workers did all the sorting.

Later, newspapers had to sort their papers for out-of-county, out of area, and out of state. In recent years, newspapers have been required to increase the number of sorts, bundles and bags going to the post office while the service has declined.

We've answered many complaints here from subscribers in other areas of Texas as well as those out of state. Many times the complaint is that they won't get a paper for three or four days in a row, then they will receive two to four at one time.

The problem, it seems to us, must be at U.S. Postal Service sectional centers. They apparently are simply not getting newspapers delivered on a timely basis.

The National Newspaper Association has filed comments on the USPS' five-year strategic plan now being developed. The NNA stresses three main points:

1. Universal service at uniform rates is a critical element of the Postal Service's future.

2. The Postal Service must be operated by sound business principles, but must remain a public enterprise unless it chooses to relinquish important government protections.

3. USPS must continue to improve delivery and contain costs - and must improve communications within its large network of postal employees - so that newspapers will reach their intended readers on time.

We've also heard some retail business owners complain about the postal service choosing to sell ties, earrings, cards, stationery, Christmas videos and other items. Maybe they should concentrate on delivering mail on time.

Have you heard anyone talk about their grandchildren lately? A friend of ours tells the story about two of his grandchildren, 8-year-old Miriam and her brother, Luke, age 5.

The grandparents had taken the two youngster out for a meal. Miriam had finished most of the things on her plate, while Luke still had his plate loaded with goodies.

She was especially lusting after a fried chicken leg. Asking her brother to share, the answer was a definite, "No!" But she didn't give up. "Do you know where that chicken leg came from?" she asked.

Luke looked puzzled. She continued, "That came off an old dead chicken."

Luke put the chicken leg down, and before long Miriam was feasting on the juicy chicken leg. It seems Luke is learning early about the manipulative ways of the tender gender.

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

From this point of view, the accepted subject for opening a conversation with a stranger is the weather.

Being a neutral topic, discussion of the weather also is limited to a few cliches: Hot, isn't it? Think it will rain? Is it going to snow? Boy, the wind is blowing, isn't it.

Now, these questions have limited answers: yes, no, yes, yes. The trick to getting a conversation started is to come up with a more tantalizing question, or observation, if you will.

Such as: Did you get much rain last night? Was the road iced over this morning? Did you see the tornado touch down north of town?

But, the greatest reservoir of weather information is a cable television station that does nothing but weather for 24 hours a day. It's almost my favorite station on the tube.

The weather spokespersons are like characters in a sitcom. I have some favorites and some not so favorite. Since much of my weather channel viewing is early in the morning, I've grown accustomed to the faces of many of them and I'm a little irritable when the ones I like are not on duty.

A few of these men and women have voices that grate on my nerves and I'd just as soon not listen to them. To a person, they are well groomed and tastefully dressed. Being a woman, I wonder if the female types have to buy their own clothes or if there's a wardrobe room for them.

But the really amazing thing about these people is their ability to tell about the weather all across the country -- indeed, all around the world -- with seemingly boundless knowledge of geography. The names of cities and towns, rivers and lakes, mountain ranges and deserts roll off their tongues as though they were sliding through honey.

Granted, they probably work from a script out they know where to point when the names pour forth. Seemingly never at a loss for words, these folks tell us what the weather is like in Berlin, Germany, or Washington, D.C., which wouldn't strike everyone as being of interest. If they are looking at cue cards as they talk, I can't tell it. I've wondered if they just memorize everything.

They rattle off the forecast for locations on either side of the continent -- then explain where a tropical storm is churning up a hurricane. These folks are on top of the weather, from the Rio Grande River to the Great Lakes, from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

There probably are people out there who think weather channel viewing is kind of like watching grass grow or paint dry. But for trivia buffs, the channel is a gold mine. Nowhere else -- not even on "Jeopardy" -- is there as much trivia tossed in with some real information.

When I first started tuning in, I knew that any kind of forecast, in depth, for my location would not be a real possibility. But I soon learned that the comprehensive nature of the weather news given could almost pinpoint any location in the U.S., even the Panhandle of Texas.

It's fun to see and hear about weather in cities and states where friends and family members reside. I have a niece in North Carolina, so when the weatherpersons started talking about a tropical storm east of the North Carolina coast, I immediately began worrying about my kin in that state.

When floods were wreaking their havoc in Central Texas, I kept up with the situation in Austin and San Antonio, where a sister and daughter reside, respectively.

Anyhow, back to the weather as a conversation opener. Nice weather we're having (or horrible weather, as the case may be) can open a whole world of conversation. On the other hand, the remark could turn the whole thing off. Who cares? may be the response.

Let me say this, though. I'd sooner watch the weather channel than the soaps.

State Board of Education chairman says

TEKS will set higher standards

BY JACK CHRISTIE, CH. State Board of Education

New curriculum standards that will be used to educate Texans well into the next century won the approval of the State Board of Education this month. The standards that detail the information students must know will influence classroom instruction, textbook content, teacher preparation and the state's testing program for years to come.

The standards are the product of three years of hard work by Texas educators, national scholars, business leaders, parents and others who provided input along the way. Public input came in the form of more than 18,000 faxes, phone calls, letters and electronic messages. Almost 350 citizens testified in person before the board.

That intense commitment and interest from some of the brightest people in the state and nation helped forge the new standards, which are called the Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills (TEKS).

Hundreds of changes were made - some as late as the day before final adoption - to ensure that the new curriculum standards were the best they could be. Endorsements of this more rigorous curriculum came from Gov. George W. Bush, the state's major reading organization, top science educators, the Texas Business and Education Coalition and many others.

The documents, I believe, set higher standards for Texas children. The curriculum will be more rigorous than it is currently. We have raised the bar for Texas students and I believe they will rise to the challenge.

The TEKS will impact classroom instruction for the state's 3.7 million public school children beginning in 1998-99. Those changes will be measured empirically by our state testing program. As Time magazine noted: "Texas is a national leader in high-stakes testing..."

The changes in the curriculum will be apparent on a daily basis in the classroom. The new standards place greater emphasis on phonics than has been the case in recent years. They introduce algebraic concepts at an earlier age. More specific content is outlined in science courses. They personalize history by making students aware of the people who made the history.

Contrary to fallacious rumors, greater emphases was put on the basics, such as grammar, spelling, addition, subtraction, the alphabet and multiplication tables.

The TEKS represent the first top-to-bottom overhaul of the state's curriculum since 1984. They replace the curriculum, know as essential elements, which for the first time gave Texas citizens some assurances that students all across the state were covering the same material at the same grade level.

The new essential knowledge and skills take the next step by returning some decision-making authority to the local level. Unlike the essential elements, the TEKS do not tell educators how to teach the material.

We believe educators on the front line are the ones who should decide what approach or methodology will work the best in their local community. We trust local educators to make the right decision because we know they are working every day to make life better for Texas children.

The TEKS can help Texas public schools rise to new heights. They can help Texas children become the pacesetters for the country.

A sampling of editorial comment from Texas newspapers:

Amarillo Globe-News on Mars adventure:

So, just how good are those folks at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, who landed a space ship on the surface of Mars on the Fourth of July? Consider a few facts.

Mars is only about 4,200 miles across, roughly half the size of Earth. The Ares Vallis landing site on the Martian surface covers approximately 60 miles. Plenty of space to land a craft, right?

Not exactly. Mars currently is about 119 million miles from Earth. However, the Pathfinder space probe's looping journey over the past 17 months carried the craft more than 310 million miles.

JPL scientists had five opportunities to make mid-course corrections on the Pathfinder; they used four of them.

Given the speed with which Earth AND Mars orbit around the sun and the trajectory that added more than 100 miles between the planets, as well as the tiny size of the target planet and the even tinier size of the landing area, there's only one thing left to say to our friends at JPL. Man, that's good shootin'.

The Texarkana Gazette on dangers of eating while driving:

We do not want to minimize the dangers of drinking and driving, but drinking is not the only way to drive impaired, or more aptly, inappropriately. So is dashboard dining, as the practice has become known in the fast-food industry.

Eating on the run, or rather on the drive, has become so common that fast-food retailers constantly are experimenting and refining their to-go fare so that drivers will not be distracted by dripping or dropping food.

The easier to eat, the safer to drive, we suppose. According to a wire report, the average American ate 13 meals in a car last year, a number that has been rising steadily since the beginning of the decade. And in 1995, police nationwide attributed 6 percent of 37,221 traffic fatalities nationwide to inattentive driving.

Come on, let's all confess to blowing through a light or pulling out in front of someone because we tipped over our coffee or some kind of sauce oozed from a wrapper into our laps.

Hurry, Hurry. Hit the road, suck down a meal and chase it with an antacid.

Yes, indeed, we are what we eat. If we are not careful, we could eat, drink and be buried.

Bay City Daily Tribune on national anthem:

Now comes Ted Turner, the husband of Jane Fonda, to suggest that we change our great country's national anthem.

Forget "The Star Spangled Banner," says the television mogul. "America The Beautiful" that's the ticket.

The Daily Tribune has one word for Ted. Balderdash! There are certain things we just don't mess with. The flag and our national anthem are two of them.

Some have said the current anthem is hard to sing. So what? Brave men and women through the years have died to defend America. If we have to strain somewhat to sing our tried and true anthem, then so be it.

That's but a small sacrifice. Turner's reasoning is about as far out as his wife was during the Vietnam War.

"The Star Spangled Banner" is a war song written by a prisoner of war of the British at Fort Mchenry. It's all war," Turner explained. "It's time to change with the times, because brotherhood is a lot more important than military force and that's what 'America The Beautiful' is all about."

America is also about tradition and national symbols and the human spirit that make our country the greatest on earth.

Turner's idea should fall on our mostly tone-deaf ears.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Regarding Dr. Howard Johnson's letter (7-12-97) on the abortion issue: Amen and amen!

He covered everything perfectly. The only thing I would add: Someday all those who perform and condone abortions, including Bill Clinton, will have to stand before a Holy and Righteous God. They may also have to face the millions of babies they murdered on this earth, who are now growing up in Heaven.

Telemedicine equipment valuable weapon

By EDUARDO MONTES
Associated Press Writer
ALPINE, Texas (AP) - Dr. James Luecke approaches his young patient with a long, antenna-like instrument, provoking a fearful grimace.

"It won't hurt. I'm not going to touch you," he reassures the boy on the metal gurney.

Anticipating pain anyway, 8-year-old Jake Shoemaker tenses his body. But the doctor is telling the truth, the odd camera with the prongs standing out from the front never touches the boy's burned inner thigh.

It isn't necessary since all Luecke is trying to do is transmit a live picture of Jake's raw, red skin back to a burn specialist 250 miles away.

The distant doctor watches the examination on a video monitor at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center in Lubbock. His own intent face is visible on a monitor in the emergency room where Jake is being examined.

The effect is that of a disembodied head looking over Luecke's shoulder, which in a sense is exactly what's going on.

Luecke is using the TeleDoc telemedicine equipment at Big Bend Regional Medical Center to hook up with another doctor who can evaluate his treatment of Jake's burns and make suggestions for further care.

"It's just a valuable weapon in your arsenal," Luecke said later. "Especially out here, you can get yourself in some pretty tight binds and you feel pretty alone."

Since being installed in 1990, the system has often proved invaluable to Luecke, one of only four doctors serving the Big Bend region, a 16,000-square-mile area larger than Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.

The local doctors can almost literally just flick a switch and consult with authorities in just about any medical field thanks to the two-way TV equipment and the cooperation of Texas Tech's complement of physicians.

Before the advent of the university's telemedicine program, called HealthNet, patients had to take tiring roadtrips to see a specialist, or their doctors would consult other physicians over the phone, not always an ideal situation.

Even getting to the sole local hospital is a burden for some because of the distances between the small towns scattered throughout the area.

Jake's mother, Jenni Shoemaker of Alpine, said she was grateful HealthNet allowed her son to be treated in town after a firework exploded near his groin. It also made her feel better to have another physician second her doctor's decisions.

"They (local doctors) have been right," Mrs. Shoemaker said. "But sometimes it helps to hear from a specialist."

But telemedicine is about more than just convenience.

The use of distance technology is growing worldwide, with Texas being a leader in this country, because it can save money while bringing medical care to those who might not otherwise receive it.

"We now have the capability to electronically transport a medical specialist from anyplace in the world to any other location," said Dr. Jay Sanders, president of the American Telemedicine Association. The impact has been particularly significant in rural areas.

"The big things are access to tertiary (specialized) care, both for the patient and the doctor, and a means of breaking the sort of academic and medical isolation that a lot of rural family practitioners feel," Luecke said.

"That's important for us," he added. "A lot of the way that physicians learn is by interaction with colleagues: What are you doing for this, what are you doing for that?"

Luecke operates in considerable seclusion. The Alpine hospital and his practice in Fort Davis are hidden away in some of Texas' most remote country. It takes several hours' traveling over often-tortuous, two-lane roads to reach the nearest large city, El Paso, more than 200 miles away.

A handful of specialists do venture into the area periodically. The rest of the time the 20,000 or so people in Brewster, Jeff Davis and Presidio counties rely on local physicians who have to be "Everydoc."

The doctors deliver babies, treat common ailments, perform surgery and help run area clinics.

"This is really the frontier," said Joe Lister, director of development at Big Bend Regional. "It's a major shortage area. They have to do so much."

Technology has eased the burden.

First pioneered in Alpine, the TeleDoc system is now a regular part of patient treatment at the hospital, which uses the equipment for outside consults about four or five times a month.

The TeleDoc, a mobile cabinet containing the cameras and other hardware needed for videoconferencing, also allows Big Bend's doctors to keep an eye on clinics in the distant towns of Terlingua (80 miles away) and Presidio (90 miles away).

"It's really been a Godsend," Carol Boschert, the physician's assistant running the Presidio clinic, said from her office during an interview via the TeleDoc.

1997-98 HHS Drill Team Officers

Wrestlers advance in AAU

The Hereford YMCA wrestling team earned one second place silver medal and a third place bronze after making it past early competition in the AAU Grand Nationals being held this weekend in Bakersfield, Ca.

Coach Rip Evers said Kris Hamerbeck lost in the finals Friday and received a silver medal for his efforts, this means he is among the top two wrestlers in north America in his weight class.

Javier Alonzo captured the bronze, third place medal when he lost in the semifinal round late Friday.

Evers said all four wrestlers from Hereford advanced to the Friday and Saturday rounds of competition with victories in their earlier matches.

Alonzo advanced by beating a wrestler from Russia. Evers said the Hereford youth pinned his opponent in 1.5 minutes to advance into Friday's semi-finals.

Jeremia Beltran likewise disposed of his opponent, but by an even quicker time.

This opponent, from California, went to the mat in just 45 seconds giving Beltran a chance to advance with the match on Saturday.

Hamerbeck won his first two matches advancing to a Friday night match with an Oregon wrestler.

Kris Cathey moved into the semifinals by default according to his coach.

"Both of his first two opponents showed for the matches, but just walked off," Evers exclaimed. "We don't know why, they just walked off."

The Hereford wrestlers are the only representatives from West Texas entered in the meet, Evers said.

Carl Lewis to retire before home crowd

HOUSTON (AP) - Carl Lewis says he's chosen an exhibition on his home track at Robertson Stadium in Houston as the last race of his competitive career.

It'll be a relay race with longtime running mates Leroy Burrell, Mike

Marsh and Floyd Heard either in pregame or halftime festivities of a college football game Sept. 13 between Pittsburgh and Houston, his alma mater.

"We've run many races together and gone through many wars together, and I'd like to run a relay and integrate some people in the community and some world-class athletes, so that I can finish my career with what brought me the most joy - relay races with my teammates," Lewis said Friday night.

"I want to make it a symbolic race. It won't be a track meet per se, but I'll be able to run a race when people can physically see the last one ... on my home track," said Lewis, winner of nine gold medals at four Olympics.

His comments were in an interview with Houston television station KPRC at an all-comers meet at Rice University in which he won his 100-meter heat in 10.59 seconds.

Drill Team captures top honors at camp

The Drill Team recently returned from an M.A. summer camp where Sarah Wright, Laura Zambrano, Cristin Leasure, Jerilyn Rule, Leann Bivins, and Anna Delgado received top recognition as being selected to the M.A. All-American Performance Team. The camp was held at the University of North Texas in Denton and attracted more than 800 students from surrounding states.

M.A. is selecting the "All-American Performance Team" award at each of the camps it administers across the United States. The winners are selected for this award above all other students at the camp on the basis of their performance, technique, leadership, and all-around ability.

The presentation of the M.A. "All-American Performance Team" award came at the completion of tryouts during the camp. M.A. has been conducting summer workshops for over 22 years and is one of the largest privately held dance and auxiliary companies in the world, holding events for thousands of students each year.

As an M.A. "All-American Performance Team" member, students eligible to travel with M.A. and will be featured in the Jeep Eagle Aloha Bowl in Honolulu, Hawaii or the CompUSA Florida Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Florida, and the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Dublin, Ireland.

HISD physicals due

Athletic physicals are due soon for students in Hereford schools who want to participate in sports during the upcoming school year.

Students in seventh through ninth grades should make a doctor's appointment to have those physicals completed before school begins.

Athletes in grades 10 through 12 will have their physicals Thursday, July 31, at the Hereford Independent School District administration building.

Girls physicals will begin at 6:30 p.m. according to school officials with senior boys physicals to begin at 7:30 p.m., junior physicals at 8 p.m. and sophomore physicals at 8:30 p.m.

Hereford's progress, friendly people brought bowling center to community

The announcement Friday that a new bowling center will be located in Hereford was more than evidence that chamber of commerce and other local officials are working for the community, it was a positive sign for the area.

Donald Mansell, the Amarillo businessman who is the driving force behind this new family recreation center said Hereford was "the outstanding choice for this facility."

"We looked at a lot of cities in the area and Hereford stood way above the others in being the place we wanted to build."

Mansell cited several things which swayed his decision to spend a quarter million dollars on the recreational center including the friendly atmosphere of the community.

"Several people visited with us, wanting to secure a bowling center for the city," Mansell said. "We found the city very progressive, the people very friendly and the demographic history of the town is outstanding."

"There was also a previous bowling center here which was successful so we decided this was the place for a new facility."

Mansell is already working on making sure the bowling center has what the local citizens want.

A local representative, Clea Weemes, is already lining up bowling leagues which will begin play as soon as the bowling center is opened about Sept. 1. She will coordinate the new leagues and may be contacted at 364-2716.

"We will also have a snack bar, video game room and limited pro shop," Mansell said. "We can't offer a full service pro shop at this time but will have some items for sale."

"We also will offer discounts for persons using our full service pro-shop in Amarillo. We will be able to measure for bowling ball fit here, but the actual work will be done at our Amarillo facility."

Construction on the new facility begins soon in Sugarland Mall. Mansell joined Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce officials to announce the new business at a news conference late Friday morning.

The new facility will operate under the name Hereford Recreation Center.

"We are very pleased Mr. Mansell chose Hereford to expand his business as this will be a great addition to our community," Executive Vice President of the Chamber Don Cumpston said when the announcement was made.

"This is just another example of people working together for the betterment of our community."

Mansell, who also owns and operates Eastridge Bowl in Amarillo and another bowling center in Plainview, will construct a 16-lane, full service bowling alley in space which is not vacant in the Sugarland Mall complex on 25 Mile Ave.

Mansell also serves as the bowling coach of the highly successful West Texas A&M bowling team.

Manager of the facility will be Tony Trieber, Mansell said.

Cumpston said that two local individuals, Don Tardy and John Sherrod, were instrumental in securing the bowling alley for the community. Tardy has a local real estate firm and is leasing agent for Sugarland Mall and Sherrod is president of Firstbank Southwest.

Youth soccer looking for more co-ed players

The Hereford Youth Soccer Association still has several positions open for players who want to participate in the upcoming season.

The co-ed league will have 15 teams for youngsters ages four to 16 and will compete in six divisions, six years and under, eight and under, 10 and under, 12 and under, 14 and under and 16 and under.

Registration for the league is $35 and will include a complete game uniform, enrollment and insurance.

The league is affiliated with U.S. Soccer.

Comets opened opportunities for athletes other than cagers

By CLAUDIA FELDMAN
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON - When professional women's basketball swept into town last month, some opportunity-starved athletes danced for joy.

Sure, the Houston Comets were excited to play, but the other professionals pumped and ready were members of Team NRG, the 14-member dance group that performs during game timeouts.

Other WNBA teams also have dance groups, but to date, none of them is like the Houston dancers, who perform a blend of classical dance, hip hop, break dancing and gymnastics designed to keep fans entertained.

In their most daring stunt so far, half of the NRG (short for energy) began a routine by rappelling from rafters 80 feet off the floor. Others wanted to do it, but had to draw for the honor.

The seven men and seven women with a variety of backgrounds were selected from 150 hopefuls during an audition a few weeks before the Comets' opening game.

The youngest member, Nick Drago, is a 16-year-old student at Cypress Creek High School. The oldest, 29-year-old Paris Lee Moran, teaches karate and taekwon do in Katy. Lashowndra Bradford schedules surgery appointments at St. Luke's Hospital, while Tangela Hughes, a recent Texas Southern University grad, just finished an internship on Capitol Hill. After basketball season, she will be looking for a job with a government agency, perhaps the Labor Department.

"This is an outlet for us, a way to express ourselves, a chance to shine," says Hughes, the dancer and future bureaucrat. "You can work from 9 to 5, then come straight here."

Four to five days a week, that's exactly what most of the dancers do. They work, then race to The Summit for a couple of hours of practice that resembles a dance class. Team director and choreographer Marilu Amador creates the routines; the group follows behind.

According to NRG rules, those who don't practice don't dance at game time and certainly don't get paid.

The dancers just laugh when asked how much they earn. They're not supposed to tell the amount, but it's not much.

They're not in it for the bucks, they say. They love to dance. And many of them are hoping their 14 Summit performances during the regular season will give them exposure, the big break that moves them closer to careers in dance and acting.

"It's a foot in the door," explains Moran, the 29-year-old who describes himself as the daddy of the group and an aspiring actor.

As he says it, his friends are demonstrating that foot in the door, extending their legs and pointing their toes.

Jose Williams, 21, wants dance to be his full-time career. During games he's often doing freestyle dances upside down on one arm.

"It's a lot of fun being down in front of thousands of fans," he says. And it's wonderful to be recognized.

"I'll go to the mall or be in the grocery store, and people stop me. They'll say, 'Hey, don't you work for the Comets?'"

Students in the Houston Independent School District tend to recognize Williams because he's taught hip hop and break dancing during visits to schools.

"I want to show the girls and boys they can do it, too. Dance is not just a girl thing."

Drago, the youngest member, says the audition and first practices were intimidating. "All these guys shave every day," he says, pausing for the laugh.

Drago has been studying jazz, tap, ballet and hip hop for years.

"I want to pursue dancing and acting," he says. "I'll do anything so long as I'm in front of people and making them happy."

Before Bradford, the St. Luke's employee, learned of the NRG, she had years of cheerleading experience, first at Kirby Middle School, then Forest Brook High School. She'd also been a Derrick Doll for Houston's recently vanished football team.

She hopes her NRG gig will lead to a position with the Houston Rockets dance team.

Amador, standing close by, nods thoughtfully. She's director of both dance teams, plus the dancers for the Texas Terror.

Kathy Alavanja is majoring in biology and business at Houston Baptist University, but she loves to dance and will continue to follow opportunities that develop.

She's glad she's out of the cheerleading business, and so are her parents, she says. Cheerleading friends and partners at HBU occasionally dropped her, she says, and once she suffered a collapsed lung.

"I'd rather dance," Alavanja says.

That's how Amador, who serves as NRG coach, cheerleader and occasional fellow dancer, got her start. She took dance lessons throughout her childhood in South Texas, then landed a position on the Rockets' dance team. As time went by, she moved up through the ranks, and now directs dance teams for three teams that play in The Summit.

NRG is getting sharper every day, Amador says.

"My goal as a leader is to have a structured and elite dance team without having inside pressures. We try to eliminate competition with each other."

Hughes, the recent TSU grad, pipes up. "When I told my mom I was picked for the team, she said, 'Oh my God, my daughter is a professional dancer.' She's been telling everybody."

Rheba Shepherd, 20 and a student at Stephen F. Austin State University, says her mom has been telling all her friends, too.

"Finally one told her, 'Stop showing off!'"

An opinion

Some Cowboys camps bizarre

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - My personal favorite for the most bizarre moment in Dallas Cowboys training camp history came several years ago when team mascot Crazy Ray jumped in front of a "Gator" land rover carrying the team's leading rusher, throwing out Emmitt Smith and knocking him somewhere over the rainbow.

Smith recovered from a slight concussion and proved that he could take a hit from a moving vehicle as well as he could from a blitzing linebacker.

We never saw Crazy Ray at another Cowboys camp. Austin has proved a little wilder as a training camp base for the Cowboys than laid-back Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Oh, Cowboys got in trouble there, OK. But they seemed to be more careful. It was such a small town at the time that everybody knew what every Cowboy was doing at all times.

There was the night someone blew the cover off Herschel Walker's meatless diet by reporting he had seen the running back order five hamburgers from McDonald's. And a sack of fries.

Reporters used to sit on a dorm patio with cool drink in hand and watch Cowboys players try to beat the curfew back to their dorms.

Once Ed "Too Tall" Jones didn't make it. He tried to disguise himself as a tree as a coach walked past. Didn't work. Not too many trees wear hats.

Cornell Green was the master at beating curfew and slipping back to his room undetected. He stuffed pillows under the sheets in lifelike forms. Asked once how he could live such a lifestyle yet be ready to go at early practice, Green replied: "You have to learn to sleep fast."

In Austin, players have the run of one of Texas' most free-spirited cities. They can have all the fun they want because Barry Switzer isn't one to insist on closely monitored bed checks.

Once the Dallas Observer sent a reporter to training camp to track the Cowboys down and follow their nocturnal pursuits. The report included the information that several players had been recognized trading autographs for condoms at a local store. It wasn't exactly front page stuff.

Training camp was a death march under former coach Jimmy Johnson and in recent years owner Jerry Jones, in concert with Switzer, has calmed things down. Players like Deion Sanders can even ride around in their $35,000 custom-made Mercedes Benz golf cart, replete with stereo and a soft mist for the sweaty face.

Another favorite from Austin was how Jones tried to project himself as a coach in the early days of his ownership. He even went the extra mile to ask Johnson to consult with him with the cameras grinding on draft days from Valley Ranch.

Johnson told about the day a man Jones has recruited in a bar approached him. He was a 300-pound tub of Jell-o but somehow Jones thought he could be molded into an offensive lineman.

The bemused Johnson took the man to a spot where there was about 40 yards between two large trees. As the South Texas sun beamed down, Johnson told the man to run to the far tree as fast as he could and return as fast as he could.

The man got to the far tree, sank to his knees and couldn't return.

Ah, training camp stories. Which will be the funniest one this time?

Tech loses keyplayers

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Two players key to Texas Tech's chances this season were declared academically ineligible Friday.

Sophomores Sammy Morris, a fullback who missed much of last season because of academic problems, and defensive tackle Jason Jones will not play for the Red Raiders in 1997, the school announced.

Morris was the only returning fullback with any experience and was a candidate for the tailback spot vacated by Byron Hanspard, the ex-Tech star who bolted for the NFL last winter.

Morris' ineligibility leaves virtually no rushing experience behind returning starting quarterback Zebbie Lethridge.

Tech declared Morris, a San Antonio native, ineligible last November because he missed a required study course. The news came the week after he made a stunning game-winning catch at Texas A&M.

Until then, Morris was perhaps the Red Raiders' most pleasant offensive surprise in 1996. He ran for 226 yards on just 29 carries, caught 13 balls for 221 yards and helped block for Hanspard, who had a 2,000-yard season.

TPW may give hunters longest season ever

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is considering whether to approve what would be the state's longest duck hunting season in nearly 40 years.

TPWD officials have recommended a 74-day season in east Texas and 97 days of duck hunting in the High Plains Mallard Management Unit, which runs east of U.S. 283 in the Panhandle south to Del Rio.

In addition to the longer season,

Shula heads for hall of fame

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - For 33 years, he stood on the sidelines, his granite jaw almost as prominent as his record. Don Shula was the epitome of the pro football leader even before he became the winningest coach the game has known.

Shula will be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame next Saturday, joining other legends, such as Halas, Lombardi and Brown. The only reason he wasn't there sooner is that he was busy trying to win games until last year.

"Coaching has been my life for more than three decades, and that was a reward itself," Shula said.

Shula is the headliner of this year's Hall of Fame class, which also includes Wellington Mara, Mike Haynes and Mike Webster. They bring to 189 the number of inductees.

None had a better career than Shula. The numbers are overwhelming: a record of 347-173-6 with Baltimore and Miami, a winning percentage of .665; 17-0 in 1972, the only perfect season in NFL history; 17 first-place finishes; only two losing records in 33 years; youngest coach to win 100 games, 200 games and 300 games.

"I always felt as though greatness is not measured by success alone but by success over an extended period of time," said Kansas City Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer, one of Shula's closest friends and a longtime admirer. "Certainly Don has met each of those criteria that I consider to be a part of it. He has done it for as long as most and better than most."

"His ability to adapt to the changing face of our game was what set Don apart. He won in the '60s in Baltimore and in the '70s and '80s in Miami. His ability to get people to accept the fact that hard work and attention to detail will enable you to get that little edge that probably is the difference between being a championship team and a winning team, or a mediocre team and a losing team - that was Don Shula."

The masterpiece, of course, was the Dolphins' spotless 1972 season, capped by a 14-7 victory over Washington in the Super Bowl. Each year, members of that team - from such familiar personnel as Larry Csonka, Bob Griese, Larry Little and Nick Buoniconti to the lesser-known players from the No-Name Defense - quietly, but emphatically, root for each NFL club to lose at least once, preserving their sole claim on perfection.

"We'd win the toss, keep the ball seven or eight minutes, score a touchdown, hold them three-and-out, hold the ball seven or eight more minutes, score another touchdown, be ahead 14-0 and the first half's near over," Shula said with a grin. "That's great coaching."

It seems fitting that Shula enters the Hall of Fame with Mara, owner of the New York Giants. It was Mara who introduced Vince Lombardi as an inductee in 1977; Lombardi and Shula generally are considered the game's greatest coaches.

Shula is the patriarch of a family that has devoted itself to the NFL. His sons, David and Mike, have coached in the league and will present him at Saturday's ceremonies.

Mara joins his father, Tim, the founder of the Giants and a charter member of the Hall, in Canton.

"That's the first time it's happened, so naturally I feel good about that," said Mara, 80, who has been part of the NFL since he was 8. "I know my father would feel good about it, too."

"I feel as though my chief attribute is longevity, and I'm certainly not knocking that."

Mara admits he'd love to have had Shula coach for him.

"I'm very honored to go into the Hall of Fame with Don Shula," he said. "You must include Shula, Vince Lombardi and Tom Landry as among the greatest coaches. We had the pleasure of having Lombardi and Landry on our coaching staff at the same time. I felt I learned a lot about all aspects of football from all three of them."

"We've been very friendly throughout the years. We worked together on the competition committee for many years. I've admired him as a coach and a man and regretted it just didn't happen that we had him coaching for the Giants. Any time we might have an opening, he never was available. Of course, why would he be, as one of the great coaches ever."

As for the other inductees, Haynes is considered one of the best 1-on-1 coverage backs the game has known. A four-time All-Pro, he spent his first seven NFL seasons in New England and the last seven with the Raiders.

"What made him unique was his height (6-foot-2) and reach," said former Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann, who faced Haynes in the Super Bowl after the 1983 season. "He could keep an arm on people and they couldn't get away."

Webster wasn't allowed to put an arm on defenders as a center. It didn't matter much. He still dominated opponents as the anchor of the superb offensive lines of the Pittsburgh Steelers' 1970s dynasty.

Webster did not miss a game for 10 straight seasons. At one point, he played in 177 consecutive games and appeared in 245 in 17 years with the Steelers.

"I'm not sure I'm a Hall of Famer," said Webster, who recently has experienced hard times that led to unemployment, homelessness and the breakup of his marriage. "I was there every day and did everything I could to be as good as I could be."

Gives kids opportunity to express grief

Children's camp heals emotional wounds

MEDFORD, N.J. (AP) - Megan O'Donnell stares at the painted terra-cotta vase gradually filling with memorial carnations. The 10-year-old watches stone-faced, waiting her turn. On a portable harpsichord, a teacher plays "Amazing Grace." A counselor reads, one by one, the names of the deceased being remembered this day in this chapel in the woods.

When her mother's name is read, Megan steps up and places her white carnation in the pot. A few tears betray her brave face, make their way down her cheeks. She quickly wipes them away.

But when her mother's name is called again, and her sister brings up another carnation, more tears emerge. Megan fights them, but they keep coming.

A counselor pulls her close, and in the woman's lap she sobs hard, her long honey-brown hair pulled around her eyes for privacy.

This is Camp Lost and Found, a three-day bereavement camp for children who have lost a parent or close relative.

Run by Trinity Hospice of the Visiting Nurse Service Systems Inc., which serves southern New Jersey and Philadelphia, the camp gives children ages 7 to 14 a place to meet others like themselves, to talk and play with kids who all share their feelings.

"I like that we're the only people," says Danielle Boyson, 10, whose father was beaten to death. "I'm glad we talk about it here."

"It makes me feel better," agrees Justin Arroyo, whose dad died in a car accident.

Camp Lost and Found is free, funded by donations and volunteer help. Children are referred by school counselors, religious leaders and funeral directors. A record 60 attended this year, on Father's Day weekend.

They lost 34 fathers, seven mothers, three uncles, two brothers, one sister, three grandmothers, two grandfathers, one cousin and one nephew - to AIDS, cancer, suicide, heart attacks, homicide, auto accidents, drug overdoses, diabetes, kidney failure and Lou Gehrig's disease.

"They are the forgotten grievers," explains Liz Hoff, the camp coordinator. "The parent's love wants to protect kids and keep them from feeling pain. But we need to let them express it."

"They allow each other to do what we won't allow them to do."

Some of the camp's activities are purely for fun; others are designed to help the children realize they're not alone in their loss.

They decorate postal boxes, depicting their outside faces and drawing their real feelings on the inside.

Hearts, suns, rainbows, smiley faces adorn them. One boy draws a neutral face - a straight line for the mouth. A girl opens hers to reveal a dark interior. "It's black and blue," she says.

They make sailboats out of juice cartons and set them afloat on the lake. Carrying a lit candle as cargo, the boat symbolizes saying goodbye.

Counselor Vicki Curtis tells of Jacqui, 13, whose nephew ran out into the street and was killed by a car while she was baby-sitting. She feels her family still blames her.

On her boat, Jacqui wrote "It's OK" and let it go.

"You feel so helpless. You want to take away their pain," confesses Curtis, a hospice payroll coordinator. Her dream is to be approached by a former camper who says, "You were my counselor, and you helped me."

The volunteers get 21 hours of training, but are left with their own intuition about what the kids need.

Victor Forte, an environmental engineer, says he tries to give them space to deal with their feelings. "You don't perform miracles in one weekend."

Mark Johnson, an FBI agent at his third camp, says he gets as much out of the program as the kids. He was 9 when his brother died, followed shortly by his mother.

"You hope that you can provide an opening for them to continue or start the mourning process," he says. "So they don't turn around at 45 and are mad at the world."

With one volunteer for every two campers, the counselors get to know the children's stories well. They must resist the impulse to right their world.

If one lesson is oft-repeated, it's that it's OK to cry. Some campers, mostly older girls, let the tears flow, frequently breaking down in sobs and seeking hugs; a group of girls rushes to provide that comfort. Others cling to their counselors.

But the emotions come in waves. Children drawing angry red figures on the inside of their mailboxes are soon howling with delight over a snake found in the woods.

Forte says he was amazed his first year how frankly kids discuss death. During bedtime giggling, they will question each other about what the body looked like in the casket, then switch to girl talk and rude jokes.

At the memorial service in the chapel, a girl who clung to her mother and cried when she was dropped off at the camp is now chatting constantly, entertaining a friend with animated facial expressions.

She is Tori McLaughlin, 10, her name recognizable from news stories. Two years ago her father, Camden County prosecutor's investigator John McLaughlin, was gunned down along with a Haddon Heights patrolman by Leslie Ann Nelson, a transsexual now facing a death sentence.

When asked how her father died, Tori offers a digestible account: "He was going for a search warrant and saw gun bullets. He saw Leslie Nelson. He went upstairs. His last words were, 'Drop it, Drop it!'"

Tori is tired of public sorrow. She complains that every time she starts crying, someone puts a camera in her face.

"I've had a lot of that all year with the trial. You need to leave me alone," she says. But she talks about how she misses catching frogs with her father, their plans to build a canoe, the way he'd fall in the front door and announce, "I'm home!"

One by one, the children place their carnations in the terra-cotta pot.

Some wiggle in their seats, playing with their flowers and asking when it's their turn.

One boy hides in the back, weeping, his counselor at his side. On the trip to the altar, he walks with a "gangsta" swagger and laughs. Back in his seat, he resumes his grief.

At the end of the memorial, a counselor remarks how lovely the flowers look, representing so many beautiful spirits.

The children sing "We Are the World," some straining their faces in crescendo, others staring at the ground.

Soon their families will take them home.

Director for Family and Consumer Services named by Extension office

AMARILLO -- The appointment of Donna Brauchi as the new Extension Director for Family and Consumer Sciences in the Panhandle district will become effective Aug. 4, according to an announcement made by Dr. Margaret Hale, assistant director for Family and Consumer Sciences and Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station.

Brauchi will join Dr. Bob Robinson, Extension Director for Agriculture, to administer district-wide programs for the Panhandle. "Donna is an excellent choice for our district. Her contributions as an agent have just been outstanding," said Robinson.

The new Extension administrator began her professional career as a county agent in home economics in Ochiltree County in 1973, and completed a six-week training assignment before moving to Hemphill County. In 1981, Brauchi assumed the Gray County agent's position.

She holds a bachelors degree in Home Economics and a masters degree in Home Economics Education from Texas Tech University. Within the Extension Service, steering committee and writing team that developed the "It's Up to Me" youth program.

The agent was instrumental in the development of the Gray County Latch Key program which now provides after-school care for children in six Pampa Elementary schools. Her programming efforts have been recognized through the Texas Extension Specialist's Association Achievement Award in 4-H in 1996 and in Home Economics in 1991.

Brauchi has a distinguished leadership record and currently serves as district director of the "Texas

Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences. She holds a regional leadership role as Northwest district director of the organization.

Brauchi co-chairs the state writing team for the County 4-H Management Guide. She served as a member of the design team developing the statewide 4-H Consumer Critters Project. She was a member of the curriculum

She was awarded the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Superior Service Award in 1987. Brauchi's family includes her husband, Ronnie, and their two sons, Brian and Barry.

Ex-Cons need place to stay

AUSTIN (AP) - It's a fact Teresa Farr says most Texans don't want to face: as more people are sent to prison, more ex-cons become eligible for parole and have to be reintegrated into society.

The best way to do that, she says, is to welcome them back, give them jobs and encourage their new start.

Ms. Farr has a close-up perspective: until recently, a halfway house was right next door to her home and hair salon in Dallas.

But most people don't share Ms. Farr's view, and the lack of support for halfway houses and other prisoner-release plans is becoming the state's newest criminal justice problem, according to Texas parole officials.

Nearly 80,000 Texans are on parole. The majority live in their own homes, have jobs and go unknown as ex-convicts to most people they encounter at work, in grocery stores and on street corners.

But some don't have homes to go to upon release. Others, particularly domestic abusers and sex offenders, aren't allowed to go home. For them, halfway houses serve as way stations until they can find an appropriate and acceptable, living situations.

Even though more halfway houses are needed, Victor Rodriguez, chairman of the 18-member Board of Pardons and Parole, says there's little point in trying to build more right now.

"We need to work on erasing from people's minds the perception people have of halfway houses," Rodriguez said. "It is not feasible for us to try to establish more of these facilities until we negate some of these negative perceptions."

Denzil Avery, on parole from a 1993 conviction for selling drugs, champions halfway houses as a way to overcome the many obstacles that keep offenders from successfully re-entering society.

"I feel for the people who can't even get an opportunity after they paid their debt or had their debt enlarged after they get out," said Avery, 48. "It doesn't take a rocket scientist to know that the deck is stacked against you."

Even he never lived in a halfway house, Avery said. Texans who fight halfway houses and other release programs only hurt themselves and their neighborhoods.

"You've got to deal with that and the first time frustration sets in, a lot of guys go back to what they know," he said.

State law requires parolees eventually return to their "county of residence." That means, for example, that people living in Harris County when they were sent to prison must return there as soon as possible.

But with only 10 halfway houses in the state - with enough space for fewer than 800 parolees - some offenders end up in regions where they never lived. That's unfair to residents in those areas, according to Paul Levelett.

The 54-year-old retiree lives next to a halfway house in El Paso. Levelett said he has no problems with his neighbors but says residents in other parts of the state should have to accept into their communities parolees from those areas.

"I tend to think that it should be the responsibility of where they came from," he said.

Levelett and Ms. Farr said residents of the halfway houses around them have not driven up crime and are generally good neighbors.

The halfway house once next door to Ms. Farr was forced out by a faction of neighbors, she said. She believes crime has crept up since the facility's departure.

The state doesn't own or operate any of its own halfway houses, and getting private companies to build or operate new homes is getting more and more difficult, said the parole board's Rodriguez.

Melinda Bozarth, former director of the TDCJ parole division, said three new homes are being considered in areas where no halfway houses currently are located.

There also is a County Jail Work Release program in which parolees live in a county jail and are allowed to leave for work and for other reasons similar to halfway houses. Only 15 counties have agreed to participate; most fear liability for the inmates and their actions.

Under state law, public hearings are required to allow residents to voice their opinions about the new halfway house proposals. Another state law taking effect later this year will limit the number of sex offenders that can be sent to any county.

Rodriguez said the county-of-residence law, the limit on sex offenders and the public hearings have nothing to do with helping parolees reintegrate into society.

"It's all driven by resistance (to the release of offenders)," he said. "Success wasn't a factor."

And Ms. Bozarth said the county of residence law may actually hurt parolees' ability to reintegrate into society.

"An offender who goes back to the county he came from goes back to the drugs and the dysfunctional family," she said. "That's not a good start."

Ms. Farr said Texans should step back and consider parolees' success before fighting them.

"Locking them away and ignoring them is kind of what got them to where they are at today," she said.

Watching intently

Joy Class lives up to its name

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

There is a Sunday school class at First Presbyterian Church in Hereford called the Joy Class. And from all appearances, the class does just what its name suggests -- brings joy to all those involved.

The Joy Class is for people with mental impairments.

Literature for the class is obtained from Friendship Ministries whose belief is that "everyone is created in God's image and can relate to him. Salvation is a gift that is not dependent on a certain level of intelligence."

The class is directed by a group leader, but the actual teaching is done on a one-to-one basis with a teacher for each student.

Group leader for the Joy Class is Norman Smith whose son, Kent, is one of the students.

"We saw a need for this kind of class because of Kent," said Smith. "And we knew there were others in our community who would benefit from the class as well."

Class attendance ranges from three to six.

"Our goal is to have a teacher for each student, but when we have six students, sometimes one teacher will have two students. This can create confusion because the students do not always understand why they have to share a teacher," Smith said.

Brenda Johnson, one of the volunteers who serves as a teacher, stated, "I enjoy this class more than any I have ever taught. The students are a delight."

Others who volunteer as Joy Class teachers are Nancy Smith, Mary Carter and Audine Dettman.

"We hope our class will grow as people learn more about what we are doing here. So this will mean that our need for volunteer teachers will grow as well," Smith said.

Smith and the teachers work together to create a time of learning so the material they are studying will come alive for their students.

Class time begins with the simple statement "God loves you" made by each teacher and repeated by each student.

Music is an integral part of the curriculum. Students sing along with recorded songs or participate by making appropriate gestures to the words.

Smith has reset the words to many of the songs on his computer in larger type to make it easier for the students to read and follow.

Visual aids are also used to enhance the teaching.

A video with action and music can help relate an idea or principle that the students might not understand through class discussion.

Even though the students may not be able to verbally communicate the Christian principles they are learning, the Joy Class is helping teach them to live by these principles in their daily lives.

PCS will celebrate 31st anniversary

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Panhandle Community Services will celebrate its 31st anniversary as a Community Action Agency in August.

Celia Serrano, coordinator for PCS in Hereford, has announced that the week of Aug. 4-8 has been designated as Community Action Week in a resolution signed by County Judge Tom Simons.

According to Serrano, the mission of Panhandle Community Services is to be a significant influence in meeting the changing needs of Panhandle residents.

"We try to assist families faced with financial problems and crisis with direct transitional services, but we also encourage them to strive for self-sufficiency," Serrano said.

As a Community Action Agency, PCS receives funding from the Community Services Block Grant that was created in 1981.

"We have obtained funds for many innovative programs which have been very successful," Serrano said.

Currently assistance is available for programs relating to energy, housing, transportation, retired and senior volunteer programs, vocational assessment/training, emergency assistance and Families in Training.

"Our Families in Training program currently receives state incentive monies and national recognition for successfully getting families out of poverty," explained Serrano.

An application is taken from anyone who feels they need assistance. Individuals are screened and

Zetzsche, Breeden exchange vows

Lora Ann Zetzsche and James Berrimand Breeden both of Austin were united in marriage June 21 at Frio Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of George Zetzsche of Mosca, Colo., and Frances Zetzsche of Hereford. She is the granddaughter of Owen and Georgia Andrews of Hereford.

The groom is the son of the late Berry and Barbara Breeden.

Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. James Bozeman, retired pastor of Temple Baptist Church in Hereford.

The church was decorated in bright summer flowers and green plants.

Matron of honor was Cay Taylor, sister of the bride. Serving as best man was Joe Don Zetzsche, brother of the bride, of Abilene.

Guests were seated by Jim Zetzsche, brother of the bride, and Trace Taylor, brother-in-law of the bride.

Flower girls and their escorts were, Ashley and Kyle Zetzsche, children of Jim Zetzsche and Janet Jogodzonski; Alyssa and Austin Taylor, children of Trace and Cay Taylor.

Ring bearer was Logan Taylor, son of Trace and Cay Taylor.

Music was provided by vocalists Jeannie Conway and John Curtis. They were accompanied by Kenneth Shore of Dumas.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floral arrangement in her hair made by Evelyn Morath, fiancée of the bride's brother.

She carried a bouquet of summer flowers in bright colors also made by Morath.

She wore a ring that was worn by her great-great-grandfather.

The couple was honored with a reception at the church.

Servers were Morath of Abilene and Kimber Bruns, cousin of the bride, of Amarillo.

Others assisting were Sue Andrews, Juanelle Andrews of LaRussell, Mo., and Veradelle Bruns of Amarillo.

The tables at the reception were decorated with bright colored tablecloths and birdhouses.

Following a wedding trip to Amarillo the couple will be at home in Austin.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and Texas Tech University. She was formerly a teacher at Dumas High School. She is currently teaching at Fulmore Middle School in Austin.

The groom is a graduate of high school in Waynesville, Mont. He is employed by MFS Technologies.

Food and Family

By LAWRENCE HEADLEY

Food Group: BREAD
Knowing what to eat and how much is a serving.

If you eat a lot of bread, pasta, cereal, and rice you're doing exactly what your body wants... and what the Food Guide Pyramid recommends.

These foods contain complex carbohydrates (or starches) that provide the body with energy. They also have lots of vitamins, minerals and fiber.

High carbohydrate foods are located on the bottom of The Food Guide Pyramid because you need the most servings of this group each day--anywhere from six to 11.

So...what's a serving? Well...a dinner roll, slice of bread, or one corn tortilla are each one serving...as is 1/2 a bagel or a small pancake. Half a cup of cooked rice or macaroni also equals one serving.

Remember, six to 11 servings of this food group each day. The number of servings will depend on individual calorie need.

Thank You

We wish to thank everyone for their special concern during the illness and death of Harold Kriegshauser, our husband, father, grandfather, and great grandfather. The flowers, food, cards, phone calls, Masses, prayers, and visits were a great comfort to us. We extend a special thanks to the doctors and nurses at Hereford Regional Medical Center who so lovingly cared for him. Your kindness will always be remembered. God bless each of you.

MR. AND MRS. LEROY McDONALD
...celebrate 50th anniversary

Anniversary reception will honor McDonalds

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy McDonald will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. July 27 at K-Bob's Annex in Hereford.

McDonald married the former Pauline Rink on July 27, 1947, at the First Baptist Church of Lazbuddie. The couple lived in Lazbuddie and Farwell where they farmed. In 1962 they moved with their children to Mesa, Ariz., where they owned and operated Harper's Janitor Supply. In 1964 the family and business moved to Hereford and became known as Hereford Janitor Supply. They retired in 1990.

The reception will be hosted by their children and their spouses, David and Carolyn McDonald of Hereford, Ronnie and Theresa McDonald of Amarillo and Debbie and Randy Willey of Midland. The couple's six grandchildren will also assist with the reception.

Silver anniversary is observed by couple

Mike and Janice Brumley celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at dinner with their children.

Elaine Marnell on July 15, 1972, in the Catholic Church in Hereford. Mr. and Mrs. Brumley have lived west of Hereford for the past 25 years, where they farm and ranch.

Military Muster

SGT. AND MRS. LONGORIA

Marine Staff Sgt. Rene Longoria recently completed a 1-1/2 year assignment with the American Embassy in La Paz, Bolivia, South America.

Longoria will assume the duties of detachment commander with the American Embassy in Bonne, Germany.

Longoria has been in the Marine Corps for 17 years, having also served in Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Columbia.

He graduated from Clovis High School in 1980. He is the son of Rolando Longoria of Hereford and Simona Longoria of Albuquerque. He and his wife, Marisol, have three children, Jordana, Rene Jr. and Victor.

Marine Pfc. Jose E. Mendiaz, a 1996 graduate of Hereford High School, recently completed the Logistic Vehicle Systems Operator Course.

During the course with Marine Corps Detachment, U.S. Army Engineer School, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., students are taught the techniques and procedures needed to effectively perform all logistics operations on tactical motor transport vehicles.

Mendiaz joined the Marine Corps in November 1996.

Organizational meeting is set

Adults who are interested in Girl Scouting are invited to an organizational meeting at the NCA library at the Church of the Nazarene, LaPlata and Ironwood, at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Ideas and suggestions to help make this a wonderful year for the girls of Hereford will be welcome.

For more information, contact Marie Carra at 364-2248.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

The responsibility of tolerance lies with those who have the wider vision.

Eliot Due to today's tremendous social problems, many kids are defiant towards parents, teachers, and anyone else in authority. Many kids think it is "cool" to not do what is asked of them or to disrupt class or home activities.

Tolerance in relating to teens often lies in part to our widening our views. Following are suggestions to help in counteracting the negative forces of today's society and perhaps will help develop more tolerance towards kids of all ages.

Listen to your teen when he or she is having a problem. Although these problems may seem minor to you, they may be the most important things in the world to them.

Observe your teen, or student. Acting in a negative way consistently or pulling into a shell are clues to a potential problem.

Get to know your teen -- talk to him, find out what is important to them, what they like and enjoy, who their friends are and what their dreams are. Get to know them as a person.

If you foresee a problem, try to identify it. Don't wait for them to come to you -- go to them. Sometimes all you can do is listen and offer loving support, but that's a lot.

Set limits. If you set a curfew, enforce it. Let them know there will be negative consequences for breaking the rules and then follow through. All teens try to push the limits, but they need limits and authority, someone to set limits and to be there for them.

Give your teen lots of hugs, especially when they make mistakes. Tell them you love them at least once a day! (Due to today's society, teachers are somewhat limited in this area).

When your teen makes a mistake, forgive and forget. Let them know they were wrong and what they need to do in order to not repeat the mistake. Sometimes we forget what it was like to be a teenager and how stressful this time of life can be.

Provide a spiritual compass. Teach your teen about God and about right and wrong. Live what you believe and set an example by taking them to church. In the Hereford area alone, there is a very wide choice of churches, so you should have no problem there.

A reminder: get physicals before school begins. Check supply lists before buying supplies. If not, you may have several articles that will be of no use in junior high.

"There are souls in this world who have the gift of finding joy everywhere and of leaving it behind them when they go."

— YOUR EYES —

Why You Need Sunglasses

That same ultraviolet light that ages and damages skin and that has been shown to cause certain cancers can damage the eyes, too. Too much sunlight permanently damages the retina, the light-sensing layer at the back of the eye, and can damage the lens, too, making it less elastic (so we need glasses to focus clearly) and cloudy (what we know as cataracts).

The best protection, short of staying out of the sun altogether, is to wear quality sunglasses which block both ultraviolet A and B rays. Nonprescription sunglasses come in three grades: "cosmetic," which blocks only 70 percent of UVB and 40 percent of UVA; "general purpose," which blocks at least 95 percent of UVB and 60 percent of UVA; and "special purpose," blocking at least 99 percent of UVB and 92 percent of UVA. Large glasses with wide side shields offer the most protection.

WENDY EMERICK, ANTHONY GALE

Couple plans to wed in Dallas ceremony

Wendy Michelle Emerick and Anthony James Gale, both of Copperas Cove, announce their engagement and approaching marriage.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Sylvia Rupert of Coppell and the late David Emerick. She is also the granddaughter of Bill and Mozell Phipps of Hereford.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Kathleen Baxter of Greentop, Mo.

The couple plans to be wed Nov. 8, in Dallas.

Miss Emerick is a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School and a 1996 recipient of a bachelor's degree in psychology from Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls.

Mr. Gale is also a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School. He is now studying in the Golf Professional Training Program with the P.G.A. of America and is currently employed as assistant golf professional at Copperas Cove Municipal Golf Course.

YVETTE PICKETT, RUSTY SMITH

March wedding set

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Pickett III of Hereford announce the engagement of their daughter, Yvette Maria of Newport Beach, Calif., to Leon Russ Smith, also of Newport Beach.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Thomas N. Smith of Newport Beach and Virginia F. Russ of San Antonio.

The wedding is planned for March 14, 1998, in San Antonio.

The bride-elect has a master of arts in counseling from St. Mary's University in San Antonio.

Smith attended Schriener College in Kerrville. He is general manager of Insert Medical Molding in Santa Ana, Calif.

The Successful Family

Children depend on those who care for them to provide for their health, safety and emotional well being. When parents and other caregivers are not able to meet this responsibility, the result to children and to society is often tragic.

Abused and neglected children often carry the burden of their experiences into adulthood in the form of substance abuse, depression, physical disabilities, learning difficulties, criminal activity and the continued cycle of abuse.

This cost to the lives of children also means increasing costs to TAXPAYERS for care systems such as child welfare, education, health care, and juvenile justice. Clearly when a child suffers, our community suffers.

It is time to reflect on what we are doing as a community to support children and families. Children don't come with instructions and too many parents face raising their children without the knowledge and support they need and deserve.

We all have opportunities to reach out to parents in our families, neighborhoods, places of worship, and places of employment. Let us make sure all parents know that their hard work is valued, both in what it will mean for the future of their children and the future of our community.

Child abuse and neglect is not only detrimental to the child, but to our society through its long-term effects. Child abuse and neglect have reached epidemic proportions in our state and local community. Preventing child abuse and neglect is the responsibility of every caring community member.

To find out what you can do to help, contact Tili Boozer, counselor and facilitator for THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY program at 364-HELP or 363-7668. Keep in mind the Nurturing Family sessions will begin again Oct. 7 at the HISD Administration building.

KIMBERLY SIMS, PETER IANNELLI

Vows to be exchanged in ceremony in Austin

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sims of Hereford announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kimberly Ann of Austin, to Peter C. Iannelli of McAllen.

PCS

if it is determined they are in need of assistance, they are referred to a specific program based on their needs.

"We can help individuals transition out of poverty who are willing to work and become self-sufficient," Serrano said. "They learn to work and provide for their own welfare so they are not dependent on assistance from others."

Serrano feels this is important because it keeps those involved from being abusive with the programs, which means it is saving the taxpayers money.

Transportation services are another vital function of PCS.

"We provide transportation in Hereford and to medical facilities in Amarillo," Serrano said.

The Hereford office of Panhandle Community Services employs five in addition to Serrano.

Elena Cantu is secretary; Martha Gonzales, housing specialist; Norma Stephens, housing assistant; Sammie Lance, transit driver; and Taryn Zahodnick, transit driver.

"If Panhandle Community Services can assist individuals and families find a road out of poverty into self-sufficiency, then we are truly living up to our motto 'Helping people help themselves,'" Serrano concluded.

Iannelli is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmine Iannelli of Alamo.

The couple plans to be married Sept. 6 in St. David's Episcopal Church in Austin.

The bride-elect is a 1982 Hereford High School graduate. She received a bachelor's degree and master's degree from Texas A&M University where she is currently a doctoral candidate in political science. She is the director of agriculture and conservation policy for Governor Bush.

The prospective bridegroom has a bachelor of business administration from the University of Texas at Austin. He is a certified public accountant and is the owner/operator of Iannelli's Italian Ristorante in McAllen.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Turning Mistakes into Personal Profit

He that has much to do will do something wrong. - Samuel Johnson

Someone once said if we aren't making mistakes we wouldn't be making anything. Unfortunately, there are often negative consequences from making mistakes. For example, an inappropriate remark can end a politician's career. Even a slight error in judgement can cause a plane to crash costing hundreds their lives. A small blunder in business can make a customer end a life-long relationship.

Although some mistakes are irreparable, we can and do recover from most. Still, mistakes are costly. Even minor errors delay work, cause repetition of tasks and lower profits, productivity and efficiency. You can trace many business failures to a sequence of mistakes in judgement and execution.

We do not measure success by how many mistakes we make, but rather by how quickly we recognize and recover from the. The key to turning mistakes into profit is to learn from each mistake. If we're alert, even minor errors can teach a valuable lesson.

The Four Step Method

There are four steps in turning our own mistakes into personal gain. Use them to eliminate errors, minimize the damage from mistakes and move forward toward a more profitable future.

First, don't allow the fear of making a mistake paralyze your progress. I have a talented friend who is a great communicator - one-to-one. He is persuasive and can recall facts and important points during a discussion. He has a strong voice and a ready wit.

However, his career has not progressed as rapidly as it could have because of his fear of public speaking. I asked him why he would never accept speeches or talk in front of a group. He told me he was terrified of making a blunder. He was afraid he would lose his place, say something wrong or just go blank. The fear that he might make a mistake is eliminating many opportunities for personal gain.

The next step is to find the lesson. Once you accept the fact that you will make mistakes, move forward and accept the challenge. You will make errors. Your success now hinges on learning the lesson.

Why did the error occur? What elements were responsible? How can you avoid similar errors in the future?

If you find yourself making the mistake a second time, put the lesson in writing. Write out the answers to the questions above. Post your sheet in a place where it will remind you not to repeat the steps that led to this error.

The third step is to forgive yourself. Some folks carry the guilt of their mistakes for a lifetime. You must forgive yourself and go on with your life.

As a young man, I struck and killed an elderly woman with my car. Although it was an unavoidable accident, I relived that scene in my mind for years. Finally, time and my willingness to forgive myself healed the pain. However, I did learn a valuable lesson. That lesson is step four.

The final step is to anticipate errors and mistakes. When I drive my car today, I drive well ahead of where I am. I try to anticipate the actions of others. Will that person try to cross ahead of me? Will that car pull out in front of me? Would I have time to stop if the person in front of me stopped quickly?

Thinking ahead also works in other aspects of our lives. Carefully consider what may happen with each decision you make. Then discard or modify decisions that may lead to costly errors.

George Bernard Shaw said, "A life spent in making mistakes is not only more honorable but more useful than life spent doing nothing."

Don Taylor is the co-author of "Up Against the Wal-Mart." You may write to him in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, TX 79105.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

With the summer reading programs, The Incredible Dream Machine and Teen Read, drawing to a close, we need to be sure and thank numerous people who helped make them a success.

Diller a Dollar BookStop, Dairy Queen, and The Movies deserve a big "THANK YOU" for their assistance. We appreciate their community spirit and support.

When we looked at our staffing and the personnel needs for the Wonderful Water Park, we realized that there was no way that the library staff could handle nearly 200 children playing water games. We sent out an SOS to 4-H and Community Christian School Thank You Club. What a super group of helpers they were! Thanks girls!

In the beginning stages of planning, we toyed with the idea of having a line dancing class for one of the Incredible Dream Machine activity days. After several phone calls, we connected with Tammy Yenser who called on Holly Bixler and Jill Harrison. These three ladies did a marvelous job of teaching this enormous group of children some classy steps. We can definitely say that a good time was had by all. Thank you ladies for an outstanding job!

Of course, no library program would ever succeed without the wonderful support of our Friends of the Library. They have volunteered on Tuesday mornings to help give out prizes to hoards of eager readers (not an easy job!). There is no way we can keep up with the Thank You's due our Friends group. They are always way out ahead of us thinking of something new to do for the library.

We also appreciate all the parents who took the time and trouble to bring their children to activities, read endless hours to little ones, and in general supported our efforts to strengthen reading skills and create excitement and enthusiasm for reading.

As we have mentioned in this column before, Mrs. Sims' junior high G-T English class has let us have, on loan, items they created for their medieval fair. These have added much to our decorations. However, they will all be taken down in August, so anything that they want to keep needs to be taken home and is available at any time within the next two weeks. We don't want to throw away someone's treasure.

There is still time through the end of July to pick up prizes for reading in the Summer Reading Club. Please come in and pick up the prizes that your children have worked so hard to earn. Also, castles may be taken home at any time.

Having faced a "fortysomething" birthday this week, the book entitled I'm Not As Old As I Used To Be by Frances Weaver caught my eye. The book claims to give guidance on reclaiming your life in the second half. Have I really crossed into the second half of my life? The first half went so fast! Frances Weaver is also the author of The Girls With the Grandmother Faces.

If you maintain any interest in the O.J. case, you may want to read Without A Doubt by Marcia Clark. This is a blow-by-blow account of the whole affair, from Clark's perspective. Whether you thought she was great or you couldn't stand her, you will learn how and why Clark identified so strongly with Nicole Brown Simpson and fought to convict the man, she is convinced, who brutally murdered Nicole and her friend Ronald Goldman.

When Dave Barry asked readers about their least favorite tunes, he thought he was just gathering material for another of his weekly syndicated columns. The response was so overwhelming that he was compelled to compile the results in book form, Dave Barry's Book of Bad Songs. He includes special categories such as Teen Death Songs, Songs That People Always Get Wrong, Song Women Hate, and, of course, Weenie Music.

To find out which song won the honors for Worst Overall and Worst Lyrics, you'll have to come get the book. I will tell you that the song was one that I liked from the seventies. What does that say for my taste in music? Maybe it says more about my age. This Dave Barry fellow looks a little young to me, as I embark on my second half.

New fiction books include Cimarron Rose by James Lee Burke. Texas attorney and former Texas Ranger Billy Bob Holland has many secrets in his dark past. Among them is Vernon Smothers' son Lucas, a now-teenaged boy about whom only Vernon and Billy Bob know the truth. Lucas is really Billy Bob's illegitimate son, and when Lucas is arrested for murder, Billy Bob knows that he has no choice but to confront the past and serve as the boy's criminal attorney.

During Lucas' trial, Billy Bob realizes that he will have to bring injury upon Lucas as well as himself in order to save his son. And, as a result, Billy Bob incurs enemies that are far more dangerous than any he faced as a Texas Ranger.

Of local interest is that the story takes place in a town called Deaf Smith, Texas. The book's publisher actually called the library the other day to see if we have had requests for this book. Although Becky told him, "Not yet!" we do expect the book to circulate well.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters about stupid judges, but I have yet to see a letter about stupid criminals. What I'm about to write are true stories -- so help me. I could never make this stuff up.

A man went to rob a bank. After taking the money, he ran out the door and accidentally dropped his driver's license. How nice and convenient for the police. They knew exactly where to go. They showed up at his home an hour later and arrested him.

's another one: A woman robbed a bank and got away with a sizable sum of money. When she arrived home, she discovered that a dye packet had leaked all over the money. She went back to the same bank and tried to exchange it for money that was in better condition. Needless to say, she was arrested on the spot.

Can you stand one more? A young man was in court because he had expired license plates on his car. When he raised his right hand before the judge, a packet of cocaine fell out of his sleeve. It would have been less trouble to have gotten new license plates. -- Collector of Oddities

Dear Collector: And cheaper, too. Thanks for your input. Please keep reading.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 51 years old, and I have seen many peculiar things in my lifetime, but this is absolutely the most outrageous legal decision I've ever heard of. That judge must be crazy to have paroled this man to the care of his mother. And the mother must be off her rocker for requesting it. -- Stunned Reader

Dear Stunned: Here's an edited version of the Associated Press story. Thanks for sending it.

A man has been paroled after seven months in jail so he can help care for his 85-year-old mother, whom he shot four times last year. The judge sentenced him to seven months to two years in jail for the shooting of his mother. Because the man already has been in jail for seven months to await sentencing, the judge agreed to release him once it is confirmed that he can take the drug Antabuse.

The drug, which the judge ruled must be administered by a law enforcement officer, would make the man violently ill if he drinks alcohol. "If you take one drink or miss one counseling session, you are going to jail because the risk is unacceptable," the judge said.

The mother, who has cancer, told the judge she wanted her son to come home and help her on their farm. She said she has never feared her son and blamed the shooting on his drinking problem and depression aggravated by a breakup with his girlfriend.

"I'd like you to let him come home and help me out," she said.

"This is a very difficult situation. I don't know how much time your mother has left, plus the hardship of her running the farm," the judge said.

The mother had testified that her son put a gun into her ribs and fired because she refused to give him money for beer.

Police charged the son with attempted criminal homicide, aggravated assault and reckless endangerment. He pleaded guilty to the attempted homicide charge, and all others were dropped.

North Plains Ag Day, July 24

Virtually any issue that concerns High Plains growers or impacts production of summer crops will be highlighted during the 1997 North Plains Research Ag Day, day scientists with the Texas Agricultural Research Service, in conjunction with West Texas A&M University Agriculture Division faculty, organizers of the event.

The field day, July 24 at Etter, will take place at Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's North Plains Research Field, nine miles north of Dumas on U.S. Highway 287. Registration starts at 8:30 a.m. with refreshments and opportunities to see a select group of exhibits. Attendance is free and lunch is being sponsored by the Texas Corn Growers Board.

Research and demonstration field tours will begin by 9 a.m. Three continuing education units (CEUs) will be available for commercial, non-commercial, and private applicators needing credits for pesticide applicator recertification.

"We've structured a program to provide growers with the essential information that they need to make better decisions with summer crops production," said Thomas Marek, Field Stations superintendent.

The event, now held once every three years, offers growers the latest information on how to improve crop quality and consistency for irrigated and dryland systems.

Specialized topics include presentations from Leon New, Extension agricultural engineer who will discuss heat unit changes in the North Plains PET Network. Insect modeling validations and insect resistant pre-treated grain sorghum seed for both dryland and irrigation will be featured. Extension entomologist, Carl Patrick, will address biotechnology issues involving transgenic or Bt corn variety trials.

Soybean variety results will be offered by Clay Salisbury, Experiment Station agronomist, who will also address weed control problems in the Panhandle. Extension agronomist, Brent Bean will present results of three major studies regarding limited water production of corn, starter fertilizer assessments on corn and planting date, and maturity and population work with corn yield for the northern panhandle.

County Extension agents will address corn varietal tests using limited sprinkler water and narrow row corn spacing trials. Experiment Station plant pathologist, Charles Rush will discuss current issues involving ergot disease development in grain sorghum.

Grower-subscribers to the North Plains PET Network and anyone interested in this new tool benefiting area production systems can see a high tech demonstration using computers and the internet to obtain data generated by ten weather stations linked around the panhandle.

During lunch, keynote speakers include Amarillo Experiment Station research director, John Sweeten who will describe the new initiatives for agriculture being pursued by units headquartered in the Panhandle.

State representative David Swinford will brief participants on legislative issues directly impacting the Panhandle.

Texas A&M University System Agriculture Program official, Ronald Laceywell of College Station will address the future of irrigation will feature a demonstration of a new generation of water well drilling technology, aided by minicamera videography inside well casings. Water well reclamation issues will also be addressed.

Other organizations actively sponsoring this year's event are the North Plains Ground Water Conservation District No. 2, and the Panhandle Agriculture Advisory Council.

NSF will study genetics of corn

The Senate Appropriations Committee has allocated $40 million to the National Science Foundation (NSF) for a national Plant Genome Initiative that will focus on deciphering the genetics of corn and other economically significant crops.

The $40 million earmark was proposed by Sen. Christopher Bond (R-MO), who has worked closely with the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and the Missouri Corn Growers Association to build congressional support for agricultural biotechnology research.

Genome research is the NCGA's highest research priorities. "Through plant genome mapping, sequencing, and trait identification, we believe that modern biotechnology holds the key to the future of the corn industry and all of U.S. agriculture," said NCGA Vice President Ryland Utlaut, a farmer from Grand Pass, MO.

The mapping of plant genomes will identify the locations of genes that control important traits such as stress tolerance, pest and disease resistance, yield and nutritional value.

These genes can then be incorporated into improved crop varieties to address a diverse range of producer and consumer needs.

The Senate Appropriations Committee emphasized the importance of research focused on the corn genome is of particular importance to the health and well being of the Nation - particularly with respect to agricultural productivity, environmental protection and food and fiber interests.

The committee also approved the 1998 agriculture funding bill yesterday. Sen. Tom Harkin (D-IA) and Sen. Bon secured approval of language to ensure coordination among the U.S. Department of Agriculture and other federal agencies engaged in genome research. The amendment directs USDA's Agricultural Research Service to improve its current corn genome research effort to ensure that it is directed, coordinated and designed to complement the NSF Plant Genome Initiative and any other national genome initiative.

The TDA to host series of informal meetings on trade

Rick Perry
Commissioner of Agriculture
The Texas Department of Agriculture will host a series of informal meetings on Texas-Mexico agricultural trade July 21-23 in Houston, San Antonio and Dallas-Fort Worth. These meetings will feature Norval Francis, agricultural minister-counselor at the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City.

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said Francis will highlight the political and economic situation in Mexico. He will also address questions on the North American Free Trade Agreement and other issues related to agricultural trade.

"With the Mexican economy improving, there is great potential for increased growth in Texas exports to Mexico," Perry said.

Perry said three meetings are planned to reach as many interested parties as possible. The meetings are scheduled for 2 p.m. July 21 at the Greater Houston Partnership, 1200 Smith St., Houston; 1:30 p.m. July 22 at the International Small Business Development Center, Cypress Tower Building, 1222 N. Main, San Antonio; and 1:30 p.m. July 23 at the Greater Dallas Chamber of Commerce, World Trade Center, 2050 Stemmons.

Participants will include representatives of agribusiness and commodity groups, bankers, farmers, ranchers, and city and community leaders. Any one interested in agricultural trade with Mexico is invited. Deadline for reserving space is July 11. There is no fee for attending.

Three Taste of Texas companies took home specialty food awards from the Fancy Food and Confection Show that ended July 2 in New York, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry announced.

Passion Fruit and Red Rose Petal Sorbet from the Out of a Flower, Dallas, and Roasted Raspberry Chipotle Sauce from the Fischer and Weiser Specialty Foods, Fredericksburg, tied for top spot in the outstanding new best seller category for new products.

Sesame Garlic Sass, made by Sisters & Co., Austin, won in the outstanding oil, vinegar and salad dressing category.

Co-sponsors are the Greater Houston Partnership, International Small Business Development Center-University of Texas San Antonio and the Greater Dallas Chamber.

Mexico is Texas' largest trading partner. In 1996, overall trade between Texas and Mexico totaled $27 billion, including $2 billion in agricultural exports.

For more information, call Lowell Randal of TDA Intergovernmental Affairs, (512)475-1625, or Dwight Roberts of TDA International Marketing, (512)463-7636.

The winning companies are members of the Texas Department of Agriculture's Taste of Texas food marketing program.

Companies in the Texas Pavilion, sponsored by the TDA, were All American Snacks Ltd., Midland; Apecka Inc., Dallas; B3R Country Meats, Childress; Bear Creek Kitchens Inc., Streetman; Out of a Flower, Dallas; Parrain's Pantry, Mesquite; Sabre's Inc. Dallas-Fort Worth; Sisters & Co., Austin; Spicy Jones Gourmet Food Products, Houston; and Timpona's Fresh Food Corp., Austin.

Buyers at the show represent specialty stores, upscale supermarkets, mail order and gift basket companies.

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry announced the Texas Department of Agriculture has discontinued the Hay Hotline started last year to help Texas ranchers facing severe hay shortages caused by the drought.

The free telephone service linked ranchers looking for hay with suppliers nationwide willing to donate or sell it.

"Farmers and ranchers have always jumped in to help other producers in time of need," Perry said. "The hotline was a great example of producers helping producers."

During the height of the drought, two or three TDA employees spent eight hours a day answering hotline phones. Calls peaked at 3,683 in May 1996 and averaged 1,957 a month between May and August.

TDA supplied ranchers with a list of hay suppliers broken down by state. Suppliers were also listed on TDA's Internet web site.

Six months ago TDA stopped accepting out-of-state calls on the hotline, limiting the service to in-state hay providers.

Precipitation enhancement program targets larger area

Beginning July 1, the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 precipitation enhancement program target area was expanded to include Curry and southwestern Quay Counties of New Mexico.

Roosevelt County, New Mexico has been included in the cloud seeding target area since operations began May 31.

"Adding this extra area in New Mexico increases the precipitation enhancement target area from 8,440,790 acres to 9,818,500 acres," said A. Wayne Wyatt, High Plains Water District manager. "Residents in Curry County and southwestern Quay County will benefit from any additional rainfall generated as a result of the precipitation enhancement program. Seeding clouds in New Mexico will benefit producers within the High Plains Water District whose farms are close to the Texas-New Mexico line."

Participants pay a pro-rata share of the fixed and reimbursable program costs, based upon total acreage. The High Plains Water District will pay 70 percent of the program cost for its 6,869,910 acre service area. Roosevelt County will pay 16 percent of the cost for its 1,570,880 acre area; Curry County will pay nine percent of the cost for its 897,760 acres; and southwestern Quay County will pay five percent of the cost for its 479,950 acres.

The 75th Texas Legislature provided cost-share funding for precipitation enhancement within the state for the next biennium. As a result, it appears that the High Plains Water District will not have to raise taxes to fund the precipitation enhancement program for the next two years. "The Water District's current tax rate is $0.0084 per $100 valuation. There should be very little variation between the current rate and the proposed 1998 tax rate to be set by the Board of Directors in August," said Wyatt.

The Water District is paying for the program's first year with operating fund reserves.

As of July 9, 1997, Weather Modification Inc. pilots have flown 23 cloud seeding missions in an attempt to increase precipitation within the target area.

The precipitation enhancement program is scheduled to operate from May 15 to September 30, 1997.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

-- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Today in History
 By The Associated Press
 Today is Sunday, July 20, the 201st day of 1997. There are 164 days left in the year.
 Today's Highlight in History:
 On July 20, 1969, Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin became the first men to walk on the moon as they stepped out of their lunar module.
 On this date:
 In 1810, Colombia declared independence from Spain.
 In 1861, the Congress of the Confederate States began holding sessions in Richmond, Va.
 In 1871, British Columbia joined Confederation as a Canadian province.
 In 1881, Sioux Indian leader Sitting Bull, a fugitive since the Battle of the Little Big Horn, surrendered to federal troops.
 In 1917, the draft lottery in World War I went into operation.
 In 1942, the first detachment of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, later known as WACS, began basic training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.
 In 1944, an attempt by a group of German officials to assassinate Adolf Hitler failed as a bomb explosion at Hitler's Rastenburg headquarters only wounded the Nazi leader.
 In 1944, President Roosevelt was nominated for an unprecedented fourth term of office at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.
 In 1951, Jordan's King Abdullah Ibn Hussein was assassinated in Jerusalem.
 In 1976, America's Viking I robot spacecraft made a successful, first-ever landing on Mars.
 In 1977, a flash flood hit Johnstown, Pa., killing 80 people and causing $350 million worth of damage.
 Ten years ago: The UN Security Council voted unanimously to approve a U.S.-sponsored resolution demanding an end to the Persian Gulf war between Iraq and Iran, a move supported by Iraq and dismissed by Iran.
 Five years ago: Vaclav Havel, the playwright who led the Velvet Revolution against communism, formally stepped down as president of Czechoslovakia.
 One year ago: In his weekly radio address, President Clinton paid tribute to America's Olympic athletes at the just-opened Atlanta games, as well as 16 high school students from Montoursville, Pa., who died in the crash of TWA Flight 800. At the Atlanta Olympics, Renata Mauer of Poland won the Games' first gold, in the 10-meter air rifle.

Traditional Home Is Well-designed

G-67

DECORATIVE FRETWORK and a wood louver in the foremost gable, plus eye-catching window and door treatments, accent the facade of this charming one-story home.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures
Plan G-67, by HomeStyles Designers Network, has traditional appeal that is enhanced by a well-designed floor plan. Its compact yet utilitarian layout provides 1,415 square feet of living area.

The entry provides a view of the living room, which features a 12 1/2-ft. ceiling and a striking corner fireplace. A rear porch and patio are visible through French doors.

The bayed dining room shares an eating bar with the U-shaped kitchen. The nearby utility room includes a pantry, a broom closet and laundry facilities.

A spacious sleeping chamber, a private bath with a dual-sink vanity, and a large walk-in closet with built-in shelves are features of the master suite.

On the other side of the home, double doors close off the two secondary bedrooms from the living areas. A full bath services this wing.

Home is where the show is: Bob Vila talks how-to TV

By Roberta Nelson
©TVData Features Syndicate

Catching up with home improvement guru Bob Vila isn't easy. For a man so closely associated with home, he's hardly ever there.

In May, Vila flew to Europe, where he traced the influence of 16th-century Italian architect Andrea Palladio for his Guide to Historic Homes series airing on A&E.

This month he travels to California, where the Bob Vila's Home Again crew is finishing the renovation of a 1922 Sears Arts and Crafts house for Home Again's upcoming season.

In between trips, Vila was in New York looking at dummies for the next issue of Bob Vila's American Home, his glossy home-improvement magazine, which debuted last September.

The original host of PBS's This Old House talked from his home in Cambridge, Mass., about the recent proliferation of how-to shows.

"I think you're going to have whole channels — there already is Home & Garden — where you can spend the whole day just kind of watching people fix stuff," Vila says. "You name it, somebody is going to go out there and do a show."

The current range of home how-to programs includes Home Again, This Old House, and syndicated Your New House and This Old House episodes from previous seasons.

Among the most prolific new home how-to shows are those about gardening. Again, PBS takes the prize with Victory Garden. The popular series airs new programs on PBS, and previous seasons' episodes are syndicated on Home & Garden Television.

Cable networks and advertisers got the message that gardening is America's fastest growing hobby, with gardeners spending $26 billion annually. Rebecca's Garden and Over the Hedge are two new shows catering to them.

While Rebecca's Garden is good, solid gardening how-to, Over the Hedge offers regional segments, lasting about five minutes in each half-hour episode, plus a bimonthly magazine coordinated with the program.

Haven, hosted by Joy (Mrs. Regis) Philbin, is a newcomer on the home decorating scene. It resembles an infomercial, with toll-free numbers for ordering products. But the show is redeemed by interviews with high-end decorators who show their work and their own homes.

Shows for "nesters" will likely increase in number and category. The nation's 76 million baby boomers are turning 50, finding themselves with more leisure time and money as their children leave home.

Andi Sporokin of Eyemark Entertainment in L.A. can't believe somebody hasn't produced a how-to show about cars: how to take care of one, what makes them work, traveling to classic car shows, making tailgate picnics.

And Vila says a how-to show about boats is worth consideration.

"I've been approached by many people over the years who want to do a This Old Boat show. And there is, in fact, an interest in restoring antique wooden boats and sailboats," he says.

But one show you definitely won't see is Bob and Martha, pairing Vila with Martha Stewart, the home diva both admired and reviled for her fastidious advice.

"Oh, please," Vila protests, while conceding Stewart has a lot of good ideas and acknowledging her show beat his for a daytime Emmy.

"I don't think Martha and I are going to show up as a married couple — that I guar-an-tee."

Telegenic handyman Bob Vila is at the center of a how-to renaissance. He parlayed his 10 seasons as host of PBS' seminal This Old House into a booming home-show empire. Vila's not home alone: Many other shows vie for the hearts and wallets of viewers.

ARIES -- March 21/April 20

The end of the month seems to bring the end of your good mood. Don't get discouraged; you feel happier by the week's end. A co-worker asks for your advice on a project. Be honest even if you think your opinion will not be appreciated. A loved one comes to you for help. Don't let him or her down.

TAURUS -- April 21/May 21

Even though you may want to, don't lock yourself in the house this week. There's more to life than just work and sleep. Go out on the town; you'll meet interesting people who can turn into good friends. A romance even may bloom. Another Taurus figures prominently in your life late in the week.

GEMINI -- May 22/June 21

Don't let a co-worker talk you out of something that you truly want to do. You know what you are capable of, and you shouldn't let anyone stop you. When it comes to your love life, you have the time of your life this weekend. A close friend reveals his or her true feelings for you, and you are flattered.

CANCER -- June 22/July 22

A superior at work trusts you with a company secret; don't let him or her down by telling others. Your loyalty wins you praise and will benefit you in the future. A loved one asks you to help with a friend. While you feel out of place, your input is truly needed and will be taken seriously.

LEO -- July 23/August 23

You are the center of attention wherever you go this week, whether at work or at play. Your manager puts you in the spotlight when you create a plan that will serve the company well. Your outgoing nature wins praise from your friends and loved ones. Capricorn plays a key role early in the week.

VIRGO -- Aug 24/Sept 22

You aren't able to sit still at work, because co-workers and managers continually give you more work to do. Don't get overwhelmed. If you remain calm, you can handle it all. As for loved ones, they have you jumping through hoops to get a family matter taken care of. While it's frustrating, everything works out in the end.

LIBRA -- Sept 23/Oct 23

Try not to be gullible this week, because co-workers try to take advantage of you. Stand your ground, and don't make any quick decisions. That special someone whom you've been dating wants to step up the relationship. Think about what you really want before saying yes. Leo and Cancer are involved later in the week.

SCORPIO -- Oct 24/Nov 22

Stand tough at work early in the week. It seems as if nothing is going your way. Yet, don't get depressed, because things get back to normal soon. A friend introduces you to an interesting stranger. Don't be shy; get to know him or her.

SAGITTARIUS -- Nov 23/Dec 21

Your gregarious nature is challenged during the middle of the week when a loved one blames you for a family problem. Don't immediately get on the defensive. You know you are not at fault, but yelling will not remedy the situation. Remain calm, and be rational. Leo plays a key role.

CAPRICORN -- Dec 22/Jan 20

You have a well-deserved week of rest, Capricorn. All of the hard work you've been putting in at your job and with family members finally pays off. Take some time for yourself; just relax. Do the things you normally don't have time to do. You'll thank yourself for it.

AQUARIUS -- Jan 21/Feb 18

It's a good thing that you are a tranquil person, Aquarius, because you have a trying week in front of you. Things at work seem to backfire, and for every step forward, you take two steps back. Family members also demand a lot of you this week. No matter what you do, it doesn't seem to be enough. Things get better by the week's end.

PISCES -- Feb 19/March 20

You gain a sense of freedom this week. Everything that was holding you back at work seems to disappear.

With no barriers in front of you, you make great strides and get noticed by the higher-ups. That special someone surprises you with a romantic evening. Enjoy it to its fullest.

IN FOCUS

Nancy McKeon braves the wild frontier as Abbie Deal, a pioneer who sacrifices personal ambition for love, in A Mother's Gift Sunday, July 20, on CBS.

Abbie always dreamed of studying singing in New York. She gets the chance when a wealthy medical student proposes, but refuses him in favor of her childhood sweetheart, Will (Adrian Pasdar).

When Will gets land in the West, Abbie puts her dream on hold to start a new life with him.

Tom Berenger delivers a high-commanding performance as Theodore Roosevelt in Rough Riders. The TNT original movie premieres Sunday, July 20, and concludes Monday, July 21.

The dramatic film follows the story of how Roosevelt, while second in command of the 1st U.S. Volunteer Cavalry Regiment, enthusiastically gathered together 560 soldiers to fight under himself and Col. Leonard Wood.

Directed by John Milius, the movie also features Sam Elliott, Gary Bussey, Chris Noth and Brian Keith.

Q: Several posters to the Sliders Usenet group say they have heard that the USA Network is picking up 22 episodes of Sliders. True? -Steve via e-mail.

A: That's not quite right. It's USA's sister service, the Sci-Fi Channel, that has ordered 22 new episodes of Sliders (Jerry O'Connell and the rest of the cast resume filming soon), which will premiere in January 1998 on the cable channel. There are no changes being contemplated, says Sci-Fi media relations manager Karen Reynolds.

The cable channel also has picked up all 48 hours of the show's previous episodes, including the two-hour pilot. Reynolds says Sci-Fi hopes to be home to Sliders for a long time to come.

Q: Is it true that Joe Lando is leaving Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman? If so, will he be replaced or will his character be killed off, never to return? -Sherri via e-mail.

A: CBS Dr. Quinn publicist Pam Gorode says she is aware of the rumors surrounding Lando, but they are completely false. He will return to Dr. Quinn next season.

In the spirit of the recent cliffhanger ending, however, Gorode declines to reveal exactly how he will return.

Q: I enjoyed watching Orleans with Larry Hagman. Will it be back next fall? -Pat in Florida.

A: No. CBS was not happy with the numbers it drew during its spring trial run. The show was not renewed.

Q: What happened to Laurie Hibberd of the morning show Fox After Breakfast? I enjoyed her, but she just seemed to disappear one day. -Gary via e-mail.

A: She did. Host Tom Bergeron, who used to share that posh Manhattan loft production set with co-host Hibberd, says both she and Bob the puppet (puppeteer Al Rosenberg) were casualties of changes made in the show by Fox executives after it moved to the network from the FX cable channel. For the record, Bergeron didn't sound too happy about it, either.

Jerry O'Connell

Q: What was the name of the character played by Eric Close (Dark Skies) on Santa Barbara? -Suzy Dominguez, Phoenix.

A: Back in the mid-'80s, Close played a character named Sawyer Walker on that now-defunct daytime serial.

Q: Has Quentin Tarantino ever written or directed an episode of ER? -T. Mezler via e-mail.

A: Yes. Tarantino, who won an Oscar™ for co-writing Pulp Fiction, directed a 1995 episode titled "Motherhood."

Q: Is actress Liv Tyler the daughter of rock musician Steven Tyler of Aerosmith? -E. Brown, Flint, Mich.

A: Yes.

Olympic swimmer Duke Paoa Kahanamoku hangs ten off the coast of Hawaii in Liquid Stage: The Lure of Surfing, airing Wednesday on PBS (check local listings).

Liquid Stage: Lure of Surfing carries viewers away, dude

By Suzanne Gill

A surfer hunches under the white crest of a wave and lets his playful fingers break drops from the wall of water rising next to him.

In a moment, the water's force could topple him and send his board spinning. But if he's lucky, he'll come shooting across the wave just ahead of the curl, slowly let down on a free ride that is never twice the same.

Liquid Stage: The Lure of Surfing takes viewers to the offshore world of the wave worshiper to find the elusive synthesis of a surfer, a piece of floating sculpture and the updraft of a wave. The special, airing Wednesday, July 23, on PBS (check local listings), begins with surfing's birth on the Hawaiian Islands, where it was proof of athletic strength in the "aloha spirit."

Modern surfing began with Duke Paoa Kahanamoku, a 1912 and 1920 Olympic swimming champion, who rode the waves on a heavy redwood board. In interviews with surfing's leather-faced disciples, Liquid Stage recalls the many changes in the sport. When surfing reached the mainland, it spawned a counterculture lifestyle. Lighter boards were developed, surfing surged into popular culture through music and movies, and some beach bums turned professional, earning a living in corporate-sponsored competitions.

The special is packed with footage of great waves and wipeouts, including much color film from the 1950s. On-camera surfing celebrities range from young Brad Gerlach to octogenarian Woody Brown. Greg Noll and Mickey Munoz, who made history on the waves of Hawaii's infamous Waimea Bay, also appear.

Putting themselves in nature's grasp, surfers see their sport as a form of self-expression.

"Surfing is a dance form on a liquid stage," says The Surfer's Journal publisher Steve Pezman.

With the power of the wave beneath him, the surfer dares to push back, in a pas de deux with a restless planet.

Catch a wave, a poet once said, and you're sittin' on top of the world.

SOAP WORLD

Mother was right; In love with love

Remember when your mother told you, "Be careful what you say, you never know when your words might come back to haunt you"?

In December, I was sitting in the hair and makeup room of a soon-to-be-canceled soap opera dishing with some actors. They were talking about what they were going to do after the show went off the air.

Some were heading West to try their luck in prime-time series and movies, others were staying in New York.

One actress talked about working on another soap. She said there was one soap in particular she would never do. "The writing is awful and has been for years," she said. "Those people need some help. And the acting—oh please, don't get me started."

But she changed her tune after losing out in countless auditions. She recently accepted a short-term role on the same show she put down six months earlier.

In other news, things didn't work out for Susan Batten on As the World Turns. Batten took over the role of Connor after executives fired Allyson Rice-Taylor, who played the role for several years.

Fans never gave Batten a chance because they were furious over the treatment of Rice-Taylor. But don't look for her to return. She is starring in the new prime-time series Timecop.

Dear Candace: I truly have loved the great love scenes between Sonny and Brenda (Maurice Bernard, Vanessa Marcil) the past few weeks on General Hospital.

I want to let the writers know how grateful I am. They have done Sonny and Brenda proud. I can only hope they let them ride off into the sunset and give them and us the fairy-tale ending we deserve. —Anissa on the Internet.

Dear Reader: There was a collective sigh when Sonny and Brenda finally got together. The writers are working on several endings, as Marcil will fulfill the rest of her contract but Bernard will leave the show.

It was 25 years ago that the producers and writers of Another World decided to take the character Rachel in a different direction.

They hired a young actress, Victoria Wyndham, and began to change the character from a villainess to a vindicated heroine.

Little did they know Wyndham would be the cornerstone of the show 25 years later.

On Monday, July 14, the actress celebrates her 25th anniversary with the show—a landmark that seems to have snuck up on her.

"I've been a little busy raising children and having a life," Wyndham says. "You don't think about those things; you are just grateful you have a job. An actor never imagines something would last this long. If a gig lasts a year, you think you are fortunate."

Wyndham knew what she was getting into all those years ago. She also knew exactly what the producers and writers were looking for.

But no one had a clue that the love of Rachel's life, MacKenzie (Douglass Watson), would join the show that year.

"Rachel changed and progressed through the love of a good man, Mac," Wyndham says. "Once someone gets what they want in life, there's no reason for anti-social behavior anymore."

"She was a woman with a great deal of energy, drive and dreams. And she knew that if she could fulfill them, she would settle down and be a very positive force in society."

"Mac fulfilled all the requirements her soul needed. He guided her to a better way of life. She finally had the missing piece in her life."

Wyndham says her character has come full circle.

"Now she is trying to be for Carl (Charles Keating) what Mac was for her. She is filling Carl's soul."

Wyndham believes she has been twice blessed in being able to work with Watson and Keating.

"It's like having a great love in your life," she explains.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
