Mickey Mantle baseball

Policeman prowls for 'Hot Wheels'

A keen interest in miniature cars develops into massive collection

By JACK STEIN
Brand Editor

When law enforcement officers usually talk about a set of wheels that's hot, more often or not they refer to a stolen motor vehicle.

That's not always the case for Bennie Barrick who faces "Hot Wheels" on a daily basis...and it has nothing to do with his duties as a lieutenant for the Hereford Police Department.

The "Hot Wheels" Barrick deals with are part of his massive collection of the miniature replicas of motor vehicles which began life in the 1960s as a toy for young boys.

But they are more than toys today as "Hot Wheels" have become the fastest growing fad for collectors...Bennie Barrick fits the mold.

It all started in 1993 when fellow officer Robin Ruland got Barrick intrigued. It took only one visit to a garage sale and Barrick was hooked. In the four years he's been collecting the "toys" Barrick has amassed approximately 1,500 of the small vehicles. His collecting involves new items, those packaged for collectors and untouched by human hands, and older models.

"I was impressed with the intricate detail they had," Barrick said of the original "Hot Wheels," he purchased. "I buy mostly new but I also buy the old Red Line models if they are in good shape."

"The Red Line models if they are in good shape," Barrick explains. "These date back to the 1960s when they all had red lines."

"That's the hottest collectible on the market right now. I have three," Barrick likes to find the older models which still have their original packaging, but he admits these are difficult to find and when they are located and in good shape, they can cost up to $1,800, "that's what the Volkswagen Beach Bus recently sold for."

"I won't be paying that much for one though," Barrick has been known to give some of the "Hot Wheels" to youngsters who visit the police station for tours. He admits that girls as well as boys like to receive the gifts.

This collector's eyes aren't limited to "Hot Wheels," however. He

Town & Country Jubilee provides fun for the family

A full week of activities for the entire family began this weekend as the Hereford Town and Country Jubilee started its annual run with the newest of many events scheduled this year.

The Spicer Gripp Roping competition moved to Hereford this year after a two-year run in Amarillo. It began Saturday night and continues with an afternoon performance today.

This is only one of dozens of events planned for the week which culminates Saturday, Aug. 9, with the highlight events.

That will involve the annual Jubilee Parade which begins at Hereford High School and winds through town featuring entries from every section of the community.

The parade begins at 10:30 a.m. and will travel from the high school along Ave. F to Park, turning west to Main Street and continuing to Third street.

The day will feature dozens of booths set up at Dameron Park where the entire family can enjoy the food, fellowship and games provided each year at this event sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Another event taking place today is the Hereford Riders Club open play day which begins at 2 p.m.

Another major event of the week's activities will be the Jubilee Fall Style Show sponsored by the Women's Division. It will be Tuesday, Aug. 5, in the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building banquet room.

On Wednesday, Aug. 6, the Farmers Market will be conducted on the parking lot of the Family Dollar Store on Park Ave. This opens at 5 p.m.

The next activities will be Friday, Aug. 8, when the Quilt Show opens at the Senior Center Auditorium, 426 Ranger Drive. This will continue through the next day.

A sidewalk sale will be held a various local merchants on Friday and the Hereford Riders Club will have a saddle roping event at 6 p.m.

The Jubilee of Arts will also open at 4 p.m. at the Community Center.

Looking at Hereford

Chris Trice and Carey Lyles, technicians at Foster Electronics, use a computer to look at a picture of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse which is included on the new internet web site they helped design for the community.

Computer firm introduces new website as community service

Brand Editor

You wouldn't think that people living hundreds, sometimes thousands of miles from the seashore would find time to take part in the fastest growing hobby in the world, surfing, but they do.

Millions of people throughout the world can be found surfing at any time of the day or night, any time of year, be it summer, spring, fall or winter.

And they don't have to leave home to do it.

They aren't surfing on ocean borne waves, however, but on the electronic waves of the Internet, or World Wide Web.

Those smooth electronic waves extend all the way to Hereford via telephone lines and internet service provided by West Texas Rural Telephone.

This and thousands of other similar services throughout the world provide access to web sites which are connected electronically around the globe via the internet. Web sites are those electronic creations in which a variety of information can be displayed for the world to view.

A similar site has recently been opened for the city of Hereford and Deaf Smith County courtesy of Foster Electronics.

Among the dozens of people taking part in this "surfing," a popular term used to describe the actual practice of connecting with the internet, are Hereford residents Boyd Foster and Dan Hall.

They have joined the growing numbers of surfers who not only stay dry, but don't have to expend a lot of physical energy to enjoy this relatively new "sport."

Their uses of the Internet/World Wide Web, or web as it is more commonly called, are varied and widespread. It not only provides entertainment but educational and business opportunities as well.

For Hall, a local real estate agent, the web provides opportunities to look into the real estate market of the Panhandle and West Texas.

On the other hand, Foster likes to find travel information and keep abreast of changes in the stock and commodity markets.

And while Hall also uses the web to keep up with stocks, one of the most useful things he's found is the help it has brought for his son, Michael, who has discovered it is much easier to complete school assignments through use of the web.

"He had a school research paper to do last year," Hall said of his 17-year-old son. "He looked up information on the web to complete the assignment and made a good grade."

Michael has found another use for the family internet connection, sports.

"He looks up all kinds of sports," the older Hall said. "He looks into the Texas Rangers web site and rodeo news, keeping up with Hereford's two outstanding rodeo stars, Steve Purcella and Kirby Kaul."

Hall says he can also browse through the web sites of newspapers from throughout the state, nation, and world, staying abreast of happenings in other parts of the world, as well as the real estate markets in those cities.

For Foster the biggest use is Electronic Mail, more commonly referred to as EMail. This is an Football parents meetings

Parents of Hereford High School football players will get a preview Monday of the upcoming season and the expectations coaches have for the players during the 1997 season. Coach Craig Yenzler and assistant coaches will meet with parents of players in grades 9-12 at 7 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium. At 8 p.m. that day a similar meeting will be held in the same location with parents of seventh and eighth grade players.

High school registration schedule

Registration for new students at Hereford High School will be held this week, Monday through Friday. To register new students, parents must bring a copy of their child's transcript, last report card, social security card and immunization record. Returning students will pick up their schedules on Thursday and Friday, only. Proof of immunizations will be required. Office hours will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. The first day of school for students will be Aug. 18.

Yearbooks are in Hereford High School yearbooks for 1996-1997 are in and can be picked up at the high school from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Room 201. Extra copies are available for $30 each.

Class of '52 reunion

Hereford High School class of 1952 will have a reunion at 4 p.m. Friday at the E.B. Black House. Members of all classes from the early 50's are encouraged to attend.

More of the same

High temperature for Friday was 94 and the overnight low was 66, according to KPAN, much as they have been and are expected to continue. Sunday should be partly cloudy with a less than 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a high temperature in the lower 90s with south winds at 10-20 mph. Sunday night there is a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms, otherwise it will be mostly clear with a low in the mid 60s. The extended forecast calls for more of the same with highs around 90 and a slight chance of late afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms with lows in the mid 60s.

Emergency Services

Activities of law enforcement agencies include:

POLICE DEPARTMENT

- 53-year-old male arrested on East Gracey for driving while intoxicated.
- 35-year-old male arrested on 15th Street for public intoxication.

- Theft was reported in the 2900 block of 1st Street where gasoline was taken.
- Disorderly conduct was reported in the 400 block of Sunset where a gun shot was fired.
- Domestic assault was reported in the 900 block of South McKinley Street. Charges were filed.

- Possession of marijuana was reported in the 400 block of Avenue E after a 16-year-old male was found in violation of curfew.
- Assault was reported in the 100 block of Pine Street.
- One curfew violation citation was issued.
- 31 traffic citations were issued.
- One accident with possible injuries was reported at 4th and McKinley.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

- Responded to vehicle accident at 4th and McKinley. Transported one to Hereford Regional Medical Center.

WEBSITE

electronic method of communication which is faster, cheaper and has a better delivery rate than other methods.

"It's a quick and inexpensive way to communicate with family and friends," Foster exclaims. "I can keep up with my son in Austin without the bother of buying postage stamps or paying for long distance telephone calls.

"I have used it to locate friends from college and others who I've lost track of over the years."

He explains that certain computer software contains devices called "search engines" which are vital to successful "surfing." With these the internet user can simply type in a key word and it will locate web sites which use this key word. Sometimes there are thousands of sites keyed into this one word.

One of Foster's main uses for the search engine is finding hotel, road and restaurant information.

"We usually take a short trip every year and I can find the best routes to travel at certain (web) sites," Foster said. "It will tell about road construction and the best way to get there."

"I have used it to make motel reservations and another neat thing is to contact local chamber of commerce offices in almost any city. They can give you a list of churches, motels, eating and scenic places - use this to plan your itinerary."

He also searches closer to home, going into sites in Amarillo and Lubbock which provide up to the minute weather radar pictures.

"I can see if it's raining in the area and track thunderstorms through the area," he said. "It's very similar to what you see on television, but you can see it when you want."

He has also found that movie reviews are located at various sites and this will help him decide if a certain movie is worth viewing.

"I also follow the stock market," Foster added. "I get a tremendous amount of information on stocks, mutual funds and bonds."

"I have also done a little trading (of stock) which allows me to bypass the broker who sometimes charges big fees. I have paid as little as $10 to trade stock on the internet."

Hall and Foster say they have looked at web sites around the world, in almost any country they want. And both agree use of the internet is "interesting."

To get on the internet all you need is a home computer, modem, telephone line, software, local internet provider and a desire to explore the world. Software is usually supplied free by the provider, the other items must be obtained by the user.

Foster says it doesn't take a really big computer to "surf" the internet. He has an Arche Computer which is seven or eight years old but most computers up to 10 years of age can work.

The monthly price isn't bad either, "about $1 per day," Foster says, "or $30 per month. That's a lot less than paying for long distance telephone calls and postage for mailing letters."

And beyond that the savings with unlimited time allows users to learn more about the world educating their own minds by utilizing a simple electronic connection, one which allows them to explore any of the millions of web sites maintained around the world by large and small businesses, political entities or individuals.

Southwestern Public Service Co., PSC of Colorado complete merger

Two electric utility giants have become one international company Friday as Amarillo-based Southwestern Public Service Co. and Public Service Company of Colorado officially merged.

The two companies will become part of a common holding company: New Century Energies, which is headquartered in Denver, Colorado. As a subsidiary of New Century Energies, SPS will reportedly continue to operate under its own name as a regional electric utility.

The merger, which was first sought two years ago, was approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission, according to SPS officials. The commission oversees corporate acquisitions listed for trading on the nation's stock markets.

The SEC's okay followed other federal and state and federal regulatory approvals including; the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the public utility commissions representing the six states in which the new company will operate - Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Wyoming, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Starting Monday, New Century Energies will trade on the New York Stock Exchange under the "NCE" symbol. SPS will no longer be listed on the stock market.

Under the merger, six directors from SPS's board of directors and eight directors from Public Service Company of Colorado make up the new board of New Century Energies. The former SPS directors include: Bill D. Helton of Amarillo; Coney C. Burgess of Amarillo; Danny H. Conklin of Amarillo; Giles M. Forbes of Lubbock; R.R. Hemminghaus of San Antonio and J. Howard Mock of Albuquerque, N.M.

Subsidiaries of New Century Energies will include: SPS; Public Service Company of Colorado; Cheyenne (Wyo.) Light, Fuel and Power; Quixx Corp.; e prime; Natural Fuels Corp.; Utility Engineering; WestGas Interstate Inc.; and the newest subsidiary, New Century International, which owns a 50 percent interest in the England's Yorkshire Electricity Group.

also has a vast collection of Coca Cola items, baseball cards and other memorabilia.

"I have quite a bit in my Coca Cola collection, but it's nothing like Joe Brown's," he says referring to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff who has an extensive collection from that company.

"I don't have any (Coke) machines but I do have some expensive items and some which are rare."

Other items in his collection include a baseball autographed by the late New York Yankee outfielder, Mickey Mantle and approximately 15,000 baseball cards.

He has some good cards including an original 1962 Mickey Mantle card but most are the regular everyday cards.

These do present a problem however, keeping track of this large collection, though he has a solution for that.

"I have a program for my computer at home to keep them catalogued, but it will probably take 20 years to get all of those cards in there," he says laughing.

His collection is vast, and costly but the most valuable items he keeps in his office which has all four walls and several display cases filled with the fruits of his collection efforts.

"I keep my most valuable items here in the office," Barrick says with a grin. "I figure there are more guns here than anywhere else and the police station is the safest place in town."

JUBILEE

The biggest day is Saturday when several major events are scheduled.

This includes the Greg Black Memorial 10K & 2 Mile runs and 2 Mile walk. Races begin at 8 a.m. at the YMCA on 15th Street.

Jubilee On Stage will also provide live entertainment from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Dameron Park and Hereford Riders Club will have a barbecue at 4:30 followed by a 7 p.m. Rodeo.

The Amarillo Gun Fighters Show will provide a fast draw competition at Dameron Park beginning at 12 noon.

A 3-on-3 basketball tournament for persons ages 8 to 40 will also be conducted throughout the day in gymnasiums at Hereford Junior High School, Hereford High School and Stanton Learning Center.

New location

FBI links suspects to group that terror-bombed Jerusalem

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Two Middle Eastern men who were said to be only hours away from pulling off a suicide bombing at a busy subway station have been linked by the FBI to the radical Muslim group Hamas, a federal law enforcement source told The Associated Press on Friday.

Investigators now are trying to determine "whether they were just fanatics acting alone or were part of a broader plan," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The timing in relation to the bombings in Israel is very suspicious, or it's an incredible coincidence."

Hamas has come under suspicion in Wednesday's suicide bombings at a crowded Jerusalem market that killed 15 people.

The New York suspects, wounded during a raid on their Brooklyn apartment on Thursday, are from the West Bank. One was linked to Hamas by intelligence sources, the other through an immigration document he had filled out in which he said he had been accused in Israel of having been in a terrorist organization. The organization, the source said, was Hamas.

But James Kallstrom, head of the FBI's New York office, said investigators had not yet linked the suspects to Hamas. "We don't know yet, and therefore, it is totally wrong to say we do know," he said.

Gazi Ibrahim Abu Mezer, 23, and Lafi Khalil, 22, were shot in the raid when one of them lunged and pulled at least one of the switches on an explosive device, authorities said. Five nail-studded devices resembling pipe bombs were seized.

Both were charged with conspiracy in bedside arraignments Friday night at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn. About 15 heavily armed FBI agents and U.S. marshals filled the surgical ward where the defendants were the only patients.

Security was so tight that the judge had to show identification before being allowed into the room.

Although the proceedings were translated into Arabic, both suspects answered in English. "I try very hard to answer," said Abu Mezer.

Defense lawyers said Abu Mezer had been shot twice in the right leg, and Khalil had been shot at least five times. No bail was set, and a hearing was scheduled for Aug. 14.

The FBI found a suicide note in the apartment written by Abu Mezer denouncing the persecution of Arabs and expressing support for Hamas, ABC reported Friday. Abu Mezer was arrested in 1990, at the age of 15, during the Palestinian uprising and sent to an Israeli prison camp, where he says he learned how to make bombs from other prisoners, ABC said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Gordon Mehler said Khalil was in the United States on a tourist visa that had expired in December.

NBC reported that Abu Mezer was stopped in Washington state in January trying to enter the country. Mehler said the United States denied him political asylum and tried to deport him to Canada, where he's a resident alien, but Canada refused him entry because he had committed unspecified crimes there.

Abu Mezer then was let go and told to voluntarily leave the United States by the end of this month, Mehler said.

Thursday's early morning raid came after a tip from the men's roommate, who flagged down an officer and told him there were bombs in the tenement on the shabby fringe of Brooklyn's Park Slope section.

Medical residents enjoying rural clinic

By LAURIE WINSLOW
Tulsa World

RAMONA, Okla. (AP) - A 75-year-old patient's complaints of congestion and coughing eventually spill over into talk about fishing for crappie and catfish.

It's just another day in the life of a rural clinic where medical students and doctors listen to the concerns - and stories - of patients who freely share their lives and kindness.

In an easy-to-miss spot, nestled between Tulsa and Bartlesville, is the cozy Caney Valley Medical Clinic that caters to the medical needs of rural patients.

The clinic is the site of a new University of Oklahoma College of Medicine rural residency program started from a grant by the Physician Manpower Training Commission. More recently, the university received a $1 million endowment for its rural health program from the Lorene Cooper Hasbrouck Charitable Trust and the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education State Matching Program.

"The longer you train medical residents in a rural area, the more likely they are to stay in a rural area. It's difficult to train in Tulsa and expect them to go to a rural area," said Dr. Michael Woods, the residency program director.

Woods, who has practiced in the Ramona area for several years, knows firsthand the challenges and blessings of working in a rural setting.

"In a rural community, you are a major part of that community. If you go to your kid's ball games, everyone knows you," he said.

Rural doctors get the chance to handle a plethora of medical mishaps and emergencies uncommon to their urban brethren.

Woods recalled the story of a rancher who suffered a ruptured spleen after he got bucked off his horse in an arena and "busted his head" against some rafters. In another case, a woman got a little bruised - and embarrassed - after her breast got caught in a hay bind.

Occasionally, he might even have to make a house call - like the time he was called to check on a resident who had fallen off his roof onto a porch.

Confidentiality is sometimes difficult in a small community, Woods said. Before the Ramona clinic opened in 1991, Woods and the staff worked out of a two-bedroom house located about a block away. Once when an ambulance arrived at the doorsteps of the house, the rest of the townspeople arrived to fill the front yard.

"It's rare to get phone calls in the middle of the night from a patient who doesn't have a serious medical problem," Woods said. "They don't want to bother you unless it's an emergency."

He compares their reluctance to call during the night to restless urban patients who are much more likely to wake their doctors with questions about coughs, constipation and any number of none-too-serious ailments.

Dr. Frances Horn, who completed her first year of resident training in Tulsa, began training at the Ramona clinic earlier this month.

"I feel at home here. I was raised in small towns in the Midwest. Tulsa, to me, is a very large town. Some people would argue that," she said. "I can relate easier to the people I see here."

Dr. Kerri Williams, like Horn, graduated from the Oklahoma State University College of Osteopathic Medicine and is taking part in the OU family medicine rural residency program.

During the first year of the three-year program, residents complete their training in Tulsa hospitals. The second and third years are completed in the Ramona clinic, which is affiliated with Jane Phillips Medical Center in Bartlesville and St. John Medical Center in Tulsa.

"I'm from rural Oklahoma," Williams said. "Since I'm from that type of heritage, I understand the people. If you can communicate well with patients, you have a better chance of treating them effectively."

If a rancher comes in with a laceration that runs along his arm, there's a good chance that a knife slipped while he was castrating a bull, Williams said.

Doctors and medical students alike comment on the random acts of kindness of their rural patients and their tendency to say "please" and "thank you."

One day, someone dropped by to leave a sack of shiny, home grown tomatoes and cucumbers. Patients also have been known to leave homemade pralines and peanut brittle, pumpkin bread and even a birthday cake in celebration of the clinic's anniversary.

They may even offer to change a flat tire, take a staff member's car in for an oil change or bring hunting and fishing licenses directly to the counter of the clinic for any nurse or doctor who may happen to want one.

Kathy Martin, a licensed practical nurse who lives in a nearby community, often gets calls from patients inviting her to stay at their homes any time a snowstorm threatens.

On this particular day, country music played softly in the clinic. Todd Dunaway, a fourth-year OU medical student, stands in the hallway waiting to go into a patient's room. Although he hasn't made up his mind about what specialty to pursue after he graduates or where he would like to perform his residency training, Dunaway likes the atmosphere of a rural clinic.

"You get to know your patients really well - kind of on a deeper level," he said. "There's a certain intangible benefit, like someone making you a pie, that you won't see in a big clinic."

Pecos depends on rodeo entertainment

By KEVIN SHERRINGTON
The Dallas Morning News

PECOS, Texas - The name of this town frying out here at the bottom of the Panhandle means "crooked."

Residents note it was the river's serpentine path that inspired the name, not the town's character. But, at times, both fit. Clay Allison is buried here. The Gentleman Gunfighter never killed anyone who didn't need it, it reads on his tombstone, and he got around to a dozen or so before he was satisfied.

This also was the place where the Pecos Enterprise won a Pulitzer Prize in the early 1960s when it revealed the owner of the rival paper sold fertilizer tanks that didn't exist.

Over the years, the name of this town has been associated with Pecos Bill and Judge Roy Bean, the law west of the Pecos, even if he held court a couple of hours south of town. The name has come to represent much in Texas and Western lore, but it still means the same thing it did 115 years ago on the Fourth of July.

This is where rodeo was born.

People in Prescott, Ariz., and other places in between will argue that point. Cases are made in sources as proper as the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" and as preppy as Trivial Pursuit. Lawmakers intervened with resolutions, and protests mounted.

But it doesn't seem to matter to cowboys. In their biggest week of the year, when they might make as many as a dozen rodeos over the nine days known as "Cowboy Christmas," they know what Pecos means.

Bryan Whitney, a saddle bronc rider from Burleson, captured the cowboy's attitude when he re-created a typical Cowboy Christmas conversation with his peers.

"Did you rodeo over the Fourth?"
"Yeah, I went to some."
"Did you go to Pecos?"

The best generally do, at one time or another. Of course, it doesn't hurt that the West of the Pecos Rodeo pays nearly a quarter-million dollars, making it among the top 20 or so outdoor rodeos in the country. But some cowboys say they like what it represents, too.

And it's a good thing. Outside its colorful history, much of it preserved in what might be one of the country's best Western museums, Pecos doesn't have much else to recommend it in the way of entertainment. A favorite pastime of the nearly 12,000 residents is to joke about life on the northern edge of the Chihuahuan desert. A native once referred to it as "the outskirts of hell," and that was before the last of the movie theaters closed in the early '90s, along with most of downtown.

Asked what people do for fun

when the rodeo's not in town, Mayor Dot Stafford said, "We watch television, like everyone else."

But the West of the Pecos Rodeo offers more than a diversion, certainly more than just another high-dollar stop on the cowboys' tour.

"These little 'towns are dyin'," said R.C. "Dick" Slack, a former state representative and lifelong resident of Pecos. "You need something to be proud of."

The rodeo provides it, and Slack has more reason to boast than most. His grandfather, Henry Slack, was in the first rodeo in Pecos, in 1883.

Early that year, Henry Slack was one of the cowboys jawing with hands from other ranches as to who was the best roper. They decided to settle the question July 4 in front of the courthouse, back when Pecos was closer to the river. The winners apparently received some small purse and blue ribbons from the trim of a young girl's dress.

Henry Slack didn't win a thing. His rope broke after he looped it around a steer and fell off his horse, knocking him unconscious. A cowboy named Trav Windham won.

A man admired in later life for sitting so straight in the saddle when he led the rodeo parade, Slack couldn't bend the truth. He maintained he had participated in the world's first rodeo, even though no one realized it until 1929.

Hereford Bull

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if life was like a baseball game, forgiveness would have to be a home run.

It's Jubilee time! A week of fun for the entire family has been planned as Hereford holds its annual Town & Country Jubilee. About a third of the population is probably involved in helping man booths and conduct activities, so the rest of us need to get out and help make it a success!

Activities get underway this weekend and continue through the week with many events set for Saturday. See the schedule of events on Page 1.

It may be exaggerated in places, but we recently ran across an interesting "Bill of No Rights" which provides some food for thought about our society. The "bill" raps the thinking by some that "rights" mean an obligation by our government to provide us with a life of luxury regardless of our own efforts.

The original author is unknown. "We, the sensible of the United States, in an attempt to help everyone get along, restore some semblance of justice, avoid any more riots, keep our nation safe, promote positive behavior and secure the blessings of debt-free liberty to ourselves and our great-great-grandchildren, hereby try one more time to ordain and establish some common sense guidelines for the terminally whiny, guilt-ridden delusional, and other liberal, commie, pinko bedwetters.

"We hold these truths to be self evident, that a whole lot of people were confused by the Bill of Rights and are so dim that they require a Bill of No Rights:

ARTICLE I
You do not have the right to a new car, big-screen color TV or any other form of wealth. More power to you if you can legally acquire them, but no one is guaranteeing anything.

ARTICLE II
You do not have the right to never be offended. This country is based on freedom, and that means freedom for everyone - not just you! You may leave the room, turn the channel, express a different opinion, etc., but the world is full of idiots and probably always will be.

ARTICLE III
You do not have the right to be free from harm. If you stick a screwdriver in your eye, learn to be more careful. Do not expect the tool manufacturer to make you and all of your relatives independently wealthy.

ARTICLE IV
You do not have the right to free food and housing. Americans are the most charitable people to be found and will gladly help anyone in need, but we are quickly growing weary of subsidizing generation after generation of professional couch potatoes who achieve nothing more than the creation of another generation of professional couch potatoes.

ARTICLE V
You do not have the right to free health care. That would be nice, but from the looks of public housing, we're just not interested in public health care.

ARTICLE VI
You do not have the right to physically harm other people. If you kidnap, rape, intentionally maim or kill someone, don't be surprised if the rest of us get together and kill you.

ARTICLE VII
You do not have the right to the possessions of others. If you rob, cheat or coerce away the goods and services of other citizens, don't be surprised if the rest of us get together and lock you away in a place where you still won't have the right to a big-screen color TV or a life of leisure.

ARTICLE VIII
You do not have the right to demand that our children risk their lives in foreign wars to soothe your aching conscience. We hate oppressive governments and won't lift a finger to stop you from going to fight if you'd like. However we do not enjoy parenting the entire world and do not want to spend so much of our time battling each and every little tyrant with a military uniform and a funny hat.

ARTICLE IX
You do not have the right to a job. All of us sure want you to have one and will gladly help out in hard times, but we expect you to take advantage of the opportunities in education and vocational training laid before you to make yourself useful.

ARTICLE X
You do not have the right to happiness. Being an American means that you have the right to pursue happiness - which, by the way, is a lot easier if you are unencumbered by an overabundance of idiotic laws created by those around you who are confused by the Bill of Rights.

Little girls, dolls go together

Cockleburrs and Devil's Claws

By Georgia Tyler

Little girls and dolls go together, just like little boys and balls. Now, before someone accuses me of being old-fashioned and traditional as well as sexist, let me say that I've become an authority on this by watching my grandchildren.

No one taught my granddaughters to play with dolls. As they looked through catalogues when they were very, very small, they just naturally gravitated to dolls. Their wish lists at Christmas and birthdays nearly always start with some kind of doll.

The grandsons moved in other directions in the same way. Their ball-playing, if you will, is the cursor on their video games and computer exercises.

That's not to say that the girls don't play on the computer. It's just that their priorities are different.

One of my grandsons is a dyed-in-the-wool Chicago Cubs fan, by virtue of his father's influence. The two of them even made a boys' weekend trip to Chicago a year ago to see the baseball team and Wrigley Field. My son-in-law's reasoning revolved around his belief that Wrigley Field might be a thing of the past before much time goes by.

The truth is, though, he wanted to take his son to see a landmark that may be an icon of the past. At least it was in that category until the management caved in a few years ago and installed lights for night baseball.

My other grandson lately has been on a campaign to get his father on a camping trip. They even have a little tent that folds into a compact unit and a couple chairs that weigh almost nothing. The holdup on this excursion is finding the right time to get away from home.

But, the real fly in the ointment may be that my son-in-law is apprehensive about the boy being able to adjust to semi-primitive conditions.

In other words, he wonders if the youngster understands that he would have to sleep in a sleeping bag in the great out-of-doors. For a kid who prefers his own room and bed, the camping sleeping arrangements may be daunting. We'll see.

These interests are just sidebars, though to their real mania for computer and video.

Many years ago, I marveled at the popularity of a particular doll. I still do. The phenomenon gets bigger and bigger.

Of course, I'm referring to that doll to end dolls, Barbie. And, her many manifestations.

Everytime I think my little granddaughter has all the Barbie dolls, another one appears on the shelves. From the moment the doll is purchased and taken into her hands, the strip begins. The shoes come off. The dress (or similar item) is removed. Jewelry is taken off.

And, from then on, the girl and her family spend many hours searching for the missing items.

Why is it the children think they have to undress dolls? I wish I knew.

A few years ago, my older granddaughter spied a doll in a catalogue that turned into a bonanza for her and a never-ending source of presents for special occasions. There's an old-fashioned appearance to the doll -- clothing and accessories hark back to a bygone era. The articles come from Pleasant Company, a name which fits the products so well.

The dolls mentioned are in stark contrast. One as modern as the day. The other a nostalgia trip.

But the girls don't know that. Only old grandmas pay attention to those differences.

Now, the boys are quite aware of the computer world. That's where they're ahead of the girls. Grandma has little idea what that world is all about.

What bothers me is that either six-year-old knows more than I do about that world.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
This letter is being submitted for thought concerning the spread of noxious weeds in our area. It is also addressed to the Honorable Teel Bivins, State Rep. John Smithee, the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court and the Texas Highway Department.

Several years ago, in an effort to control the spread of noxious weeds in the county, the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau - by a vote of the membership - was directed to work for the establishment of a Noxious Weed District. They were successful in their effort but after several years under the district, we have not experienced a control, or even slowing in the spread of weeds. In fact, there is actually a worsening of the situation.

In my opinion, one of the greatest causes of the spread of these pests is the shredders used to shorten plant material growing in the public right-of-ways in order to make driving on our state and county roads safer. Whenever a shredder passes through an infested area, weed seeds are carried on the equipment, falling off further along the way. All the various materials growing in any given spot are effectively spread in a random way.

For my own protection, and in an effort to be a good steward of the land, I personally shred and treat the noxious weeds along the right-of-ways adjoining the land and property that is in my care. Believing as I do about the state and county shredders spreading the seed, I have requested that these government vehicles stay away from the areas for which I have accepted responsibility and have already cut myself. The county honors my request only if I manage to see them coming and ask each time that they not come onto the property with which I am concerned.

On July 23, 1997, signs were posted by the state that mowers were in operation, and a state employee was driving along the right-of-way picking up trash ahead of the shredder. I personally stopped and made one more appeal that they not enter my ditch areas

They ignored my request! Onto my already mown and spot treated areas they brought their equipment and probably hundreds more seeds. Common sense would dictate that if I already took care of the spread of weeds on my own right-of-way areas, the state would have no need of spending their time and our tax money in those same places.

What I would like to see implemented is some kind of system that would allow those persons working to keep their own right-of-ways clean the opportunity to do so. Not only would it be easier for me, but it would also save the government a little money.

Respectfully,
Ernest D. Flood

Dear Editor:

On the morning of July 16, my husband and I were run off the road AGAIN by a truck on US-385 about five miles north of Boys Ranch. We were driving south when a truck came up behind us, determined to pass even though another truck was coming toward us. The truck driver forced us to take to the shoulder in order to avoid having a headon collision.

Between the point of that incident and the Canadian River bridge, we saw the same truck driver force three other cars off onto the shoulder.

When we came to the junction of US-385 and State Road 1061, the truck turned left onto 1061. As he slowed, we were able to get his license number and saw a Hereford logo on the cab of his truck. We sent the information to the DPS. This is not the first time we've had trouble with trucks on that highway.

Why do trucks feel so free to violate the rules of the road on Hwy. 385? Is it because it is not patrolled as closely as some of the other highways? Hwy. 87 from Amarillo to Dalhart has never caused us such risks. I most sincerely pray that Hereford truck doesn't kill anyone on the highway. And I do hope that the highway patrol can do something to make the highways of the Western Panhandle a little safer.

Mrs. Johnnie Bollinger, Dalhart

So long, farewell, It's been so nice know you

Jack Stein

By the time you read this I should be 738 miles away, back with my family and preparing for a return to my "real" job, but I have a few words to leave with you.

Saying "good bye" is never an easy task for most people, and I'm certainly no exception. When I left the family home in Vidor (that's in the opposite corner of Texas from the Panhandle) nine weeks ago, and pointed the Suburban and travel trailer toward Hereford, it was especially tough telling the wife and two growing children "I'll see you in a couple of months."

Most people would never know it, but I am somewhat of a sentimental person and to be perfectly honest, my eyes were not exactly dry when I headed out to the highway for the long 16 hour drive to Hereford.

The family had never before been separated for that long a period of time, and none of us knew how we would make it through the summer. About the only "sure" thing any of us knew for sure about this summer-long exodus from Vidor was that "Dad will get out of mowing the grass and doing the other yard work this summer."

But isn't that what strapping young high school seniors are good for, especially if they're bigger than Dad?

The trip I was embarking on to take this summer job was an unknown...I had never been to the city which I would call home for the next nine weeks, although its location was no secret.

I was acquainted with a couple of people here at the Brand, Speedy and Mauri, whom I had come to know while working at the newspaper in Wellington oh, so many years ago.

I also had a good idea what the weather would be like, having spent three years in that Texas Panhandle city during my last newspaper assignment. That was before I entered the teaching profession.

Other than that, I only knew that I would have to make a strong effort to "re-learn" the newspaper business from which I had been absent the past seven years. Other than these things, I had no idea how life would treat me during the stay in Hereford.

About the only positive things I knew before this trip was getting away from the hot, humid Gulf Coast summer and not having to mow the grass for at least the next two months...that would be somebody else's job!

I was so unclear in my thinking about the summer ahead that I asked myself many times "Are you sure you know what you're getting yourself into?" In fact, I almost backed out of the deal I had made with Speedy over the telephone, the agreement which eventually brought me to this "great" community.

And when I say "great," I really mean GREAT! I've lived in a lot of Texas cities during my adult life and never, let me repeat that, NEVER, felt so welcome before.

The first person I had contact with was a car salesman who was putting fuel in his car next to my gas-gulping Suburban. He was quick to introduce himself and offered all kinds of assistance. He even told me that offices of the Brand were located on Lee Street, something I had neglected to ask Speedy on the telephone.

Though thankful for the information, I couldn't help but ask myself silently, "Is he trying to set me up for another sale?" The answer was obviously NO because I haven't seen him since and I do feel guilty about having that thought.

In contrast to my silent question I discovered the people of Hereford are just like that salesman, friendly, courteous and always ready to be helpful.

I visited many stores in the community that first weekend before going to work at the Brand and virtually every person I came in contact with was as friendly as the last...and not a one of them had a clue as to who this stranger was.

Then on that first Monday I walked through the downtown area introducing myself to city, county and chamber of commerce officials and I always found the same friendly, courteous people who, to a person, welcomed me to Hereford, wished for my stay to be enjoyable and offered to help in any way needed.

This experience was something new to me. I've met many friendly people in my lifetime but never has it been on the grand scale found in Hereford.

And all of this goes double for all the people here at the Brand who have really made this, without a doubt, the most enjoyable place I've ever worked. I will definitely miss them.

This friendly attitude in the community and office continued right up to my final day on the job in Hereford and with one exception, this has been one of the most enjoyable experiences of my life. That one exception, the absence of other members of my family.

YOU, my new friends of Hereford, Texas, should be really proud of your community.

Perhaps one day I will be able to make a permanent move to Hereford and finish out my working years, right up until retirement, where the atmosphere is so enjoyable.

I am looking forward, as this is being written, to the reunion with the family.

Meanwhile, I can't guarantee that the old eyes didn't get wet again as I again pulled out onto the highway for that long trip home, leaving behind the many new friends I have in Hereford, Texas.

Texas vote can put money in pocket

By JUAN B. ELIZONDO Jr.
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Texans who remember to vote this month have a chance to put some cash back into homeowners' pockets. But the cost of the rebate could be more than expected.

On a Saturday in the middle of the summer, a low point for voter attention, Texans are being asked to raise the minimum homestead property tax exemption from $5,000 to $15,000.

The election is Aug. 9. Early voting ends Aug. 5.

With the higher exemption, a home assessed at $100,000 in value would be taxed on up to $85,000 of its value instead of $95,000 - a roughly $140 annual savings for most homeowners, regardless of the value of their homes.

It seems like a no-brainer.

But raising the exemption would lower the amount of property tax money flowing to the state's 1,044 school districts by about $1 billion during the two-year state budget that begins Sept. 1.

Skeptics say the $1 billion price tag is only the beginning.

"It's just going to keep going up," said Dick Lavine, an analyst for the Center for Public Policy Priorities.

The center is not taking a position on the election. Lavine said it would be hard for voters to turn down a tax break, adding that lawmakers should have been more careful before offering it.

"It's good news and bad news. The good news is homeowners are going to get a tax break and it is a progressive tax break because its $140 no matter what the value of your home is," Lavine said.

"The bad news is the cost to the state will go up as the (tax) rates go up and the number of homesteads goes up."

If voters approve the measure, $1 billion from the state's 1998-99 budget would replace all the money schools lose. Lawmakers have pledged to continuing making up that lost money in the future.

But Lavine and others say there's no guarantee the money will be available. That means school districts lose, spending on other services decreases or other state and local taxes go up.

"There's no way schools will lose," said Louis Podesta, a San Antonio businessman mounting a one-man, modicum of opposition to the ballot question.

Podesta said school districts, afraid the state won't keep its promise, are likely to turn to bond issues and other tax-raising measures to make up the money themselves. That means all taxpayers, including businesses and renters, will be hit up to pay for a tax break given only to homeowners, he said.

"We'll end up at the same place we were before and the consumer is going to get killed on this thing," Podesta said.

Gov. George W. Bush pushed the local tax cut effort. He's adamant the state will meet its obligation without future spending cuts or tax increases.

The governor has scheduled a statewide, get-out-the-vote tour.

"I'm worried about turnout," the governor said last month. "I'm confident that with a reasonable turnout it will pass. Very few people should be against it."

Some school districts aren't taking chances.

On top of the minimum homestead tax exemption, school districts may offer additional exemptions. In some areas, including Dallas, school districts are making moves to reduce or eliminate their added write-offs.

If that happens, the higher state exemption would amount to fewer or even no savings for homeowners in those districts.

The ballot question is a fallback position lawmakers and Bush took after failing to approve a larger effort meant to lower and cap rising school property tax rates.

In addition to the higher homestead exemption, it also would allow Texans 65 and older to transfer from home to home a proportionate amount of state-guaranteed property tax freezes.

Although Bush insisted property taxes were a looming crisis, a recent opinion poll didn't show it.

Tax reform ranked as the top concern for 9 percent of the Texans polled. That trailed education (37 percent), crime (17 percent), health care (15 percent) and drugs (14 percent), according to the survey conducted by Washington pollster Frank Luntz.

The telephone poll of 500 Texans was conducted July 19-20, with a margin of error of plus or minus 4.6 percentage points.

Asked specifically about taxes and the 1999 Legislature, 14 percent said cutting property taxes is the "most important" issue, while 37 percent called it "very important" and 34 percent "somewhat important."

Only 6 percent said the governor was at fault for the 1997 Legislature's failure to lower and cap local school taxes; 19 percent pointed the finger at lawmakers, 16 percent at lobbyists, 7 percent at the business community and 32 percent at "a lack of public interest."

Disc jockey likes horses

By MARCIA WESTMORLAN
Blytheville Courier News

LUXORA, Ark. (AP) - When Rance Wyrick was an infant the first word out of his mouth was "whoa."

That is what he heard the vegetable cart drivers call out to their horses in the streets of Chicago, and it seemed the word most suitable to use when he made his debut as a talker.

The sometime disc jockey has said a lot of words since then, but his favorites still pertain to horses, more specifically to his little horses.

The retired Illinois Central Railroad engineer has always had a passion for horses. He got his first one when he was a teen-ager.

But he completely lost his heart several years back when he was first introduced to miniature horses.

"I just fell in love with them," Wyrick said.

Today, he owns seven of the tiny equines and dotes on them like a father at his "Rinky Dink Ranch" in Luxora.

"When I'm with them in the cool of the afternoon handing out sugar cubes, I feel super, super contented," Wyrick said.

Wyrick's tiny horses have produced 13 even tinier baby horses in the four years since he began his miniature horse business.

"When I go out and find a brand new foal that is good and healthy, it feels almost as good as when my son was born," Wyrick said.

Miniature horses are generally bought to be pets and serve no other purpose than to love and be loved by their owners. Riding them is discouraged, he said.

They were once used in the United States to pull the coal out of coal mines. In England, royalty bred horses down to miniature size and kept them as special pets or gave them away as royal gifts, Wyrick said.

"They have totally changed my life in many ways," Wyrick said. "They are my life."

His youngest miniature, 5-week-old Pete, already has a fully developed personality. The little fellow can't get enough attention and follows his "daddy" around like a puppy.

"He's real proud of his new teeth," Wyrick says as he playfully disciplines the colt for nipping on his rubber boots.

The miniatures are amazingly affectionate for horses. Horses are generally thought of as aloof and even the affectionate ones have their limits on how much coddling they will allow. The miniatures will let you rub them, hug them, scratch them, or brush them, for as long as you are willing.

"With them it's not take, take, take, it's give and give and give," Wyrick said.

Wyrick claims his horses eat less than his dog and all seven of the horses eat less in a week than his big quarter horse does in one day. He covers his ears in exasperation when asked how his horses differ from ponies.

"Ponies are not built like this," he insists. "These are fabulous horses. They have been bred down to be the size that they are."

Wyrick's horses fall into the "Class A" of miniature horses. Class A miniatures stand 34-inches high or shorter and can be registered with the American Miniature Horse Association.

HORNS Is Here!!

Written by Hereford native, Gerald McCathern, Horns is a historical novel about the ten-year war for control of the huge grasslands of the Texas Panhandle between the Comanche Indians, buffalo hunters, U.S. Army and Texas cattlemen.

If you are a Louis L'Amour fan, you'll love McCathern's non-sense, fast-action style of writing and his ability to blend historical and fictional characters and incidents into a breath-taking novel about early Texas.

First practices set for '97 Herd season

By JACK STEIN

Spring's not quite in the air but that isn't stopping Hereford High School Football Coach Craig Yenzler and staff from getting ready for Texas' most popular sport of the season...football.

With the beginning of August the coaches start bringing together their planning efforts of the past year as they get set to welcome football players in preparation for the season opener, Aug. 29 at Lovington, N.M. "We're real excited about the season," Yenzler exclaimed. "The kids are coming in to see us and they are in good shape. We're ready to go."

Long before that first game, however, there are plenty of preparations to be made during the hottest month of the year, August, a time traditionally set aside for getting ready for that opener.

This includes the infamous twice daily practices which make sure players develop stamina necessary for the long football season.

Yenzler has decided to go with the same schedule developed last year for the two-a-day workouts.

"We will bring the players in at 8 a.m. and practice until 10 a.m.," the coach said. "Then we will rest them for an hour and practice again from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m., then send them home."

"This worked so well last year we decided to do it again."

Before those first practices, which begin Aug. 6, Yenzler and his assistant coaches will have meetings with parents about the upcoming season.

Those meetings are scheduled Monday, Aug. 4, when parents of tenth grade through 12th grade football players are invited to meet with the coaches at 7 p.m. in Whiteface Stadium.

This will be followed with an 8 p.m. meeting of coaches with parents of ninth grade players, also at the stadium.

The official practice sessions for the 1997 season begin Wednesday,

Aug. 6, when players will begin workouts in shorts.

The 10th through 12th grade players must report by 8 a.m. at the field house to prepare for that first practice session.

Later that same day, ninth grade players will meet at 4 p.m. at the Stanton Learning center to check out equipment for their practices.

The first practices in pads are scheduled to begin Monday, Aug. 11.

An intra-squad scrimmage is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 15 on the ninth grade practice field.

Yenzler explained that approximately 120 players will participate in this scrimmage which will be filmed so that coaches may spend the next day evaluating each individual player so they can be placed on the proper team.

"This is a chance for the players to shine," Yenzler said, "and show us what they can do. This will help us determine who plays where."

The first competition against another school is set for Thursday, Aug. 21, when the freshmen, sophomore and junior varsity players meet Plainview in a scrimmage in Hereford.

The freshmen will scrimmage on the east practice field while the sophomore and junior varsity players will scrimmage on the ninth grade practice field.

The action begins at 6:30 p.m.

Varsity players will get into their scrimmage the next day, Friday, Aug. 22, when they travel to Plainview for their first action against someone other than their own teammates.

That scrimmage will also begin at 6:30 p.m.

Saturday, Aug. 23, the Whitefaces will start a new tradition, Yenzler said.

In place of the previous "meet the Whitefaces" program and media day will be conducted to allow all news media from throughout the area to take photos and talk to the Hereford players.

The exact time of that session will be announced later.

Wrestlers head for Junior Olympics

Four members of the Hereford YMCA wrestling team left town Saturday with their sites set on winning some of their biggest matches yet.

Coach Rip Evers and the team headed for Charlotte, N.C., where they will be join 10,000 other young athletes competing in the 31st Annual Junior Olympics.

Many of the athletes competing in this year's summer games will find themselves in the next world wide Summer Olympics to be conducted in Australia.

The summer Junior Olympics features male and female athletes competing in 37 different sports, including wrestling, body building, Tae Kwon Do, baseball, weight lifting, tennis and more.

The Hereford wrestlers will have their official weigh-in for the Junior Olympics Monday morning with the first competition expected to begin at 6 p.m.

"I think we will do well there," Evers said. "The boys have really been working out hard and they deserve to win.

"We also hope success here along with our success in the AAU Grand Nationals last month help convince the schools to start a wrestling program."

Evers would like to see the success of the YMCA program passed on to the school with a junior high wrestling program the first couple of years with this eventually extending into the high school grades.

Traveling with Evers by private car to the Junior Olympics will be wrestlers Jeremia Beltran, Kris Hamerbeck, Kris Cathey and Javier Alonzo.

This will be Cathey's last competition with the YMCA team before he enters the United States Marine Corps on Aug. 25.

"He hopes to wrestle after finishing boot camp with the marines," Evers said. "I think he will do them a good job."

The trip to Charlotte was financed by donations and parents.

Rodeoers place in HPJRA finals

Hereford's Rodey Wilson earned 89 total points to clinch top honors in the (13-15 year-old) division of the High Plains Junior Rodeo Association finals held recently in Clovis.

Wilson claimed the all-around cowboy trophy saddle as a result of the distinction, but he also won bragging rights as the rodeo's fastest calf roper (9.8 sec.) over all age divisions, 3rd place all-around cowboy for the year, a 6th place finish for the year in team roping, 7th in ribbon roping and breakout roping and 9th in calf roping.

Rex Tippy of Hobbs was named reserve champ with 50 points.

Monty Lewis won the 13-15 all-around cowboy saddle for the year with 323 points. J.D. Kibbe was reserve with 315 points. Lewis won first place for the year in both calf roping and ribbon roping. He finished second for the year in breakout roping.

Hereford cowgirl Amanda Norcutt tallied the fastest time in the barrel racing events with a time of 16.6. She placed first in the 1st go-round and fourth in the 2nd go-round and won the barrel racing average for the finals. She finished third for the year in the 13-15 girls barrels.

There were 550 members of the HPJRA this year competing for 24 saddles, 110 buckles, and many more awards. Other cowboys and cowgirls from Hereford who qualified for the finals were; Kip Smith, Curt Smith, Marty Wilson, Chance Miller, Misty Meyer, and Melissa Meyer.

Dallas, Oakland owners are similar but different

AUSTIN (AP) - Just watching Dallas owner Jerry Jones and Oakland owner Al Davis at the Cowboys' training camp this week illuminates the differences in how the men operate.

Jones wears a white Cowboys golf shirt and white shorts. Davis wears a heavy, black warm-up suit in 100-degree heat.

Jones runs around granting interviews and signing autographs. Davis has a scowling entourage that keeps reporters and fans at bay.

Jones smiles even when he's irritated with a reporter's question or another fan's request for him to sign something. Davis shows no emotion, giving off the edginess that he has tried to make the Raiders' trademark.

But the men are kindred spirits when it comes to two things: they both live and breathe their teams and don't hesitate to buck the NFL when they feel their teams' rights are being infringed upon.

"We have achieved success in different ways, but we both believe in states' rights," Jones said. "We believe that the league and the league office works for us."

"We aren't the NFL's boy out in Dallas or the NFL's boy out in Oakland. It really is a central government, state's right issue."

Jones was sued last year by the NFL for violating the league's revenue sharing agreement by taking on endorsement deals through Texas Stadium, which he owns.

The Dallas owner countersued and the NFL blinked, eventually agreeing to drop its suit late last year.

Davis' latest legal battle with the league involves a dispute over the territorial rights to southern California.

The Raiders claim they own the rights to NFL football in the region; the NFL argues the Raiders' rights were forfeited when Davis transferred his franchise back to Oakland in 1995.

"We have the power, and before anything is done there, they have to go through us," Davis told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Does it bother Davis, who proudly boasts that the Raiders have the best record in professional sports over the past 34 years, that his litigious accomplishments might be as recognized as his athletic ones?

"It's part of our lives now," Davis said. "What was reality can't be reality today. Times have changed."

Davis says he respects what Jones has done with the Cowboys and has made the trip with his Raiders to Austin for a week of practice with Dallas five of the past six years.

Jones said the Cowboys may reciprocate by going out to Oakland for a week during camp in the near future.

4H boys win state awards

Ten boys went to State 4-H Trap Skeet and Sporting Clay Competition at the National Gun Club in San Antonio July 23-25. There were 500 participants.

Drew Denison was the State Champ and Junior high individual in International Trap.

Chris Diller placed 5th in International Trap competition.

Daniel Carnahan, Cory Marsh, and Jerry Baird placed 6th in the 3-man senior team competition.

West Texas Heat in tournament

The AAU West Texas Heat Girls 16 and under team qualified to go to Chattanooga, Tenn., for the AAU Nationals Tour, but instead chose to compete in the 104 team What-A-Burger Shoot-out in College Station on July 10-13 which was attended by 300 college coaches.

WT Heat went 2-0 in pool play defeating Team Texas 17's from the Dallas Metro-Plex 72-67.

Julie Rampley of Hereford had 11 points, 11 rebounds, 10 assists, 5 steals and then went on to beat Austin Lady Knights 68-63 where Rampley had 9 points 16 rebounds, 7 assists, and 5 steals. They advanced into the Championship Bracket where they defeated the Tulsa Angles 52-36 where Rampley had 11 points, 9 rebounds, 8 assists, and 1 steal. Then advancing to semi-finals we lost to the Houston Hot Shots 59-54. With Rampley having 8 points, 13 rebounds, 9 assists, and 6 steals that helped them finish in 3rd place.

On July 19-23 the WT Heat played in the 64 team BCI National Tour in Lubbock finishing in the top 8. They defeated Monroe, La Magic 79-67. They played Bakersfield, California and lost at the buzzer 53-51. Then they played Oregon Select and lost 48-40 and won the tiebreaker to make it to the Championship Bracket. Then they defeated Baton Rouge, La., 52-42 and went on to beat Oklahoma Express 53-42. They then lost to San Diego Showcase, who won the tour, 56-53. They then turned around and lost to the Washington Waves, 77-74.

The AAU West Texas Heat Girls 16-and-under basketball team qualified to go to Chattanooga, Tenn., for the AAU Nationals Tour, but instead chose to compete in the 104 team What-A-Burger Shoot-out held July 10-13 at College Station. The tournament was expected to draw more 300 college coaches.

In the opening rounds, the WT Heat went 2-0 in pool play, first defeating Team Texas 17's from the Dallas Metro-Plex 72-67.

Hereford's Julie Rampley turned in 11 points, 11 rebounds, 10 assists, 5 steals in the victory.

The cagers then went on to beat Austin Lady Knights 68-63 where Rampley had 9 points 16 rebounds, 7 assists, and 5 steals.

The squad advanced into the championship bracket where they took an opening round win over the Tulsa Angles 52-36. Rampley netted 11 points, 9 rebounds, 8 assists, and 1 steal to pace the Heat in that tilt, but the squad had to settle for a third place finish in the tourney after suffering a 59-54 loss in a semi-final round against the Houston HotShots. Rampley added 8 points, 13 rebounds, 9 assists, and 6 steals in that concluding round.

Still eager for more game experience, the WT Heat traveled to play against a 64-team field in the BCI National Tour in Lubbock -- finishing as one of the tournament's top eight teams.

The Heat defeated Monroe, La Magic 79-67 in the opening round; lost 53-51 in the final seconds of their game with Bakersfield, California, were defeated by Oregon Select 48-40 and won the tiebreaker to advance to the tourney's Championship Bracket.

In championship play the team defeated Baton Rouge, La., 52-42, blasted Oklahoma Express 53-42, but met a brick wall in remaining play as the Heat lost 56-53 to the eventual tournament champions -- San Diego Showcase, and lost in a final tilt to the Washington Waves, 77-74.

Injuries to cornerbacks result in good news/bad news for Cowboys

AUSTIN (AP) - The good news is Kevin Smith, the high-dollar cornerback for the Dallas Cowboys, is OK.

The bad news is the two cornerbacks vying to back up Smith and Deion Sanders are not.

Second-year cornerback Wendell Davis underwent surgery Friday to repair torn cartilage in his left knee.

Team trainers had feared finding damage also to his anterior cruciate ligament, but the surgery turned up no other problems and Davis was given two to three weeks to return. Initially, trainers had feared him being out up to seven weeks.

Kenny Wheaton, a rookie corner who had impressed coaches and was challenging for the third spot with Davis, was expected to miss from four to six weeks with a separated right shoulder.

Wheaton was injured while tackling 235-pound Chad Levitt of Oakland in Thursday night's scrimmage, a 12-6 Raiders' victory.

Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said the injury occurred because Wheaton used bad technique.

"Instead of tackling with his head up and his chest, he put the point of his shoulder into a guy who outweighs him by at least 40 pounds," Switzer said. "When he came off the field, I said, 'Son, that's not the way to do it.'"

Smith also sprained his right ankle in the scrimmage but will be fine, according to team trainers. However, Smith probably won't play in Sunday night's preseason game against Oakland at Texas Stadium.

That leaves rookie Montrell Williams, Artis Houston and safety Charlie Williams to play cornerback for the Cowboys in Sunday's game and in training camp practices. Houston suffered a thigh bruise in Thursday's scrimmage.

"We are trying to find guys to bring to camp," said scouting director Larry Laceywell. "Cornerbacks are hard to find. We're calling players who are now working at banks and things like that."

In the long term, the Cowboys should be fine, considering Smith and Sanders will be healthy for the season opener against Pittsburgh on Aug. 31.

But the injuries will cripple severely the team's ability to have effective training camp workouts.

"It hurts the defense in terms of building familiarity and experience," said Dallas defensive back coach Mike Zimmer. "The few guys we have can't go for 80 plays straight, and then if the receivers don't have quality guys to go up against, it starts to hurt the offense's ability to evaluate talent and game plans."

Everyone is expecting Oakland to load up its vertical passing game Sunday night.

"I'm sure they'll take a few shots deep," said Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Campo.

Cornerback Alundis Brice is rehabbing from offseason knee surgery and isn't expected to begin practicing in drills with the team until after next week, Zimmer said.

Rookie linebacker Pat Fitzgerald, who had his right hand X-rayed after the scrimmage, said Friday he was fine and would be ready to go Sunday night.

ROOKIE MAKES AN IMPRESSION: Coaches were down about the injuries to the secondary after Thursday night's scrimmage against the Raiders, but they were high on rookie linebacker Dexter Coakley. "He's a little short, but he'll hit you pretty good for a small guy," Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Campo said.

Coakley, a 5-foot-10, 215-pound rookie out of Appalachian State, led the team with four tackles and, more importantly, made the right reads in pass coverage.

"He was making plays out there and because of his speed, he can chase people down from sideline to sideline," Campo said.

Coakley is clearly the coaches favorite to start at the weakside linebacker position, even though Alan Campos has played well and is fighting for the starting spot.

"Right now, I would feel comfortable with Coakley opening the season in the lineup," said linebacker coach Jim Bates.

Bates said criticism that Coakley will be an easy target for linemen to pancake isn't true.

"Every linebacker gets taken out by a lineman once in a while," Bates said. "That was true of Darrin Smith, too. But Dexter is so quick, I don't think a lineman will get a clean shot at him."

Coakley is seeking to replace Smith, who signed with Philadelphia as a free agent.

Bates said Coakley's size also works to his advantage.

"When he hits you, he is already at an impact angle because he doesn't have to bend down and lower himself to get leverage," Bates said.

MILLER TIME: Dallas receiver Anthony Miller, rehabbing from offseason knee surgery, put on pads and ran offense-only drills Friday for the first time.

Miller caught about 20 passes, many of them from Troy Aikman. He then ran sprints with team trainers in which they attached an elastic band to Miller and forced him to run with resistance.

"There's a little soreness, but that's about it. No swelling," Miller said. "I'm past the mental thing. I'm just trying to run the routes and get the timing with the quarterback."

Miller said he's "somewhere around 85 to 90 percent" and hoped to play his first preseason game at New England on Aug. 8.

When asked if Miller saw the light at the end of the tunnel, he said, "It's still dark. Lots of work ahead."

Cook's single burns Braves

Florida reliever Dennis Cook won a key game for the Marlins without going anywhere near the mound.

Cook delivered a pinch-hit RBI single in the 12th inning Friday night to give Florida a 3-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the second game of their crucial NL East series.

"It was just lucky," Cook said. "I'm not that good of a hitter. ... I just wanted to see the ball and hit it."

Cook might be underestimating his own ability. He homered in St. Louis last week, and the hit off Mike Cather (0-2) improved Cook to 4-for-4 this season and 28-for-100 lifetime.

The Marlins have taken the first two games of the four-game series, moving within 5 1/2 games of the NL East-leading Braves. The series has been billed in Florida as the most crucial in the Marlins' five-year history.

Because of several switches in the long game, along with Moises Alou's ejection, Marlins manager Jim Leyland had few choices. And instead of handing Cook the ball, he told him to grab a bat.

"We were both down to nothing, that's the way it is," Leyland said. "Cookie came through for the big hit."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was: Philadelphia 4, St. Louis 1; San Diego 8, Montreal 2; Colorado 7, Pittsburgh 6; San Francisco 8, Cincinnati 7; New York 8, Houston 5 in 10 innings; and Los Angeles 13, Chicago 9.

Cook pitched in the American League the past six seasons, and was 1-for-5 as a pinch-hitter in 1990 when he played for Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

"You don't like to give up a hit like that against another pitcher," said Cather. "It was a sinker away, but it came down the middle and that's all it took."

Mets 8, Astros 5, 10 innings
At Houston, Edgardo Alfonzo, whose throwing error with two outs in the ninth inning allowed Houston to tie it, hit a two-run double in the 10th.

Both teams took turns blowing leads until the Mets scored four times in the 10th. Bill Spiers hit an RBI single in the 10th for Houston, but Brad Ausmus flied out with two runners on to end the game.

The Mets loaded the bases in the 10th off Jose Lima (1-5), and Todd Hundley hit an RBI single off Jose Cabrera before Alfonzo doubled home two more. Jason Hardtke's sacrifice fly capped the burst.

John Franco (3-1) got the victory after blowing a save in the ninth.

Longtime Cal Farley superintendent retires

Lamont Waldrip, wife, have spent entire married life on ranch

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
CAL FARLEY'S BOYS RANCH, Texas (AP) - It seems as if they've been hanging onto Lamont Waldrip's shirttail forever.

"He's been out here 42 years, so you've got to be a strong person to stick it out that long through all kinds of different changes," said Daniel Hays, 17, one of the current crop of changed lives at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

Waldrip and his wife, Frances, will leave the place they've spent their entire married life on Friday when he retires as campus superintendent.
With them go one of the last links to Farley, who founded this renowned outpost for wayward boys in 1939.

For ranchers willing to work hard, study and live by Christian values, Farley and his staff promised in return "a shirttail to hang onto."

"It would be hard to describe or put into words what he actually thought, saw and wanted," said
Waldrip of Farley, who died during a Boys Ranch church service in 1967, 12 years into Waldrip's tenure. "I have a pretty good feel we're headed where we're headed and what he wanted to do."

To be sure, this desolate Oldham County tract an hour northwest of Amarillo barely resembles the ranch Farley established at the abandoned courthouse in what once was the lawless Old West cattle town of Tascosa.

Landowner Julian Bivins donated 120 acres along the Canadian River to fuel the dreams of Farley, an Amarillo businessman and former wrestler. The old film "Boys Ranch" immortalized the place for moviegoers nationwide.

Other than some funding for the public school on campus, the ranch receives no government money.
Neither is it tied to a religious denomination, a choice Farley made to keep his ranch free to choose its own paths.

A foundation fueled by private philanthropy keeps Boys Ranch running; there is no fee to send children to the ranch.

The campus has expanded continuously over the years. In 1961, the last boys were moved out of the courthouse, now the Julian Bivins Museum. The facility's best-known product would graduate six years later.

"Mr. Waldrip was one of the first people to give me a spanking when I was there," said former U.S. Rep.
Bill Sarpalus, who escaped poverty and homelessness on the streets of Houston when he was 10. "He's a godsend. He was somebody that had the same type of vision Cal Farley had. He dedicated his life to helping boys, he and his wife and his brother

Corporal punishment faded from the ranchers' disciplined lifestyle last year. It wasn't uncommon for misdeeds to be remedied with sore bottoms until then.

"That proves to me he remembered it (the spanking)," said Waldrip, who added that he doesn't regret the elimination of swats. "I never gave a lot of spankings, but when I did I gave pretty good ones.
I wanted them to be remembered."

Spanking continues in the Paul Thorade home, though only for his two natural children. For Thorade, who with his wife cares for 14 ranchers, the elimination of corporal punishment was only one sign that things might be changing too fast here.

He opposes the unilateral use of a prescription parenting technique being installed by ranch president
Wes Taylor. Used rigidly, Thorade said STEP, or Systematic Training for Effective Parenting, flies in the face of Farley's ideals of "affectionate discipline."

"According to Mr. Taylor, we've been told to work within the STEP program, but also to use common sense when you get in a situation where a child is totally disrespectful and disobedient," said Thorade, who arrived here last summer. "STEP is not the problem. It's when you say it strictly has to be STEP, that's the problem."

The basic idea of STEP, a method originally laid out in the early 1970s, is that discipline is best accomplished through natural consequences. For instance, a child who refuses to eat should go hungry, or a child who breaks another's bicycle should have it fixed.

Taylor said the program is an advancement of Farley's ideals, not a deviation from them.

"We're teaching people how to employ STEP in accordance with what we want to preserve and accomplish through the Cal Farley model of care," said Taylor.

Taylor, speaking from his office at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch and Affiliates headquarters in Amarillo, also oversees the all-female Girlstown
U.S.A. west of Lubbock and Cal Farley's Family Program, for pre-adolescent children, near Borger.

Thorade, a career military man and prison guard in North Carolina, said God inspired him to write a lengthy column in the Amarillo Globe-News criticizing STEP. He was asked to resign but has chosen to stay, he said.

A 300-member alumni group yanked its support for Taylor's administration over the squabble, though the board of directors has given him a vote of confidence.

Despite coming from Farley's "old school," Waldrip said he hasn't hindered Taylor's new ideas.

"We've gone through changes since day one," said Waldrip, the ranch superintendent since 1976. "Mr.
Farley's philosophy was, 'Let's try it, let's make it work. He wanted to stay out of the government business so as not to get tied in where he couldn't make changes, because change is good.'"

Waldrip refuses to dwell on the controversy in the days before he and Frances move 75 miles down the road to Canyon. Besides, he said, the STEP brouhaha is nothing compared to going coed in 1991.

"Girls didn't create much of a difference," said Waldrip, who leaves a campus with 22 boys' homes and three for girls. "If anything, it helped by making (Boys Ranch) a more normal situation."

The difference between the times can best be expressed by comparing current rancher Hays to Sarpalus, who came in the 1960s, Waldrip said.

While Hays saw examples of substance abuse and violence all around him - his best friend is on Death Row - Sarpalus came from a far more impoverished background. He and two younger brothers essentially were homeless when their grandfather made a phone call on Christmas Day, 1960.

On the other end was an old wrestling acquaintance, Cal Farley.
"The government began to get more involved with homeless kids, or kids that have been abused," said Sarpalus, a Democrat who served three terms in Congress after eight in the Texas Senate. "Back when I was a kid, there were no programs like that available."

Neither were the drugs and weapons that Hays saw in Harris County, though Sarpalus added that wayward children in his time would have partaken in those vices had they had access to them.

While Sarpalus credits his grandfather for pointing him here,
Hays thanks his condemned friend.

"He wrote me a letter telling me to change and to stay out of jail, stay away from alcohol and drugs," said Hays, a five-year ranch veteran who plans to join the Marine Corps next year and pursue his dream of boxing in the Olympics.

Not all of Hays' counterparts are as enthusiastic. Like many other children faced with long days packed with manual labor and studying, some ranchers complain about chores, the hardships of rural life and homesickness.

"Who out here wouldn't rather be home?" said rancher Cameron Tigg in a newspaper interview last year. "I know this is the best place for me. If I wasn't here, I'd probably be in jail

When school is in, boys at the Thorade home start the day with house tasks before classes begin.
Afterward, it's usually time for work, dinner and studying. The ranch's television sets are rarely aglow.

The houses very much resemble typical suburban homes. Typically, a large living area is flanked by the house parents' living quarters. Two hallways on either side of the living room lead to the boys' rooms, which are expected to remain pristine at all times.

House parents routinely work
18-hour days for a combined income starting at less than $30,000 annually.
Of course, housing is provided and food at the cafeteria is free.

On days off, the Thorades and others invariably cart their own children to Amarillo.

"You need that time alone whether it's just to take the kids roller-skating, go to the park or do Putt-Putt golf," said Thorade, adding that his children have meshed with the ranchers very well.

The Waldrips raised two sons and two daughters here.

"It was the greatest thing I ever did," Lamont Waldrip said. "My kids received things here I couldn't have given them anywhere else. They got pushed back (attention-wise) a few times, but learned how to share."

Sarpalius' first of thousands of public speaking appearances was a sermon he gave here on Feb. 19, 1967. It was on that Sunday that an ailing Farley died on the back pew.

"That was the turning point of my life," said Sarpalus. "I made up my mind that day I wanted to do something to help people."

As Waldrip and his wife prepare to live elsewhere for the first time since 1955, he happily says he has no regrets.

"These boys came from broken homes and real difficult backgrounds," he said. "We wanted them to see a normal family, which my wife and I tried to have. Maybe we didn't - it's not necessarily normal to have 36 kids - and it doesn't mean we didn't disagree sometimes. But we usually did a pretty good job with it."

Alternative medicine tried for cancer

By LAURIE SMITH ANDERSON
The Advocate

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - At least 50 percent of the cancer patients in this country are trying some form of alternative medical therapies - usually without informing their regular physicians.

Running the gamut from eating special diets and taking vitamins to consuming shark cartilage, wearing magnets and undergoing coffee enemas, some of the treatments may be worthwhile, others at least cause no harm and still others might be classified as dangerous quackery, according to medical oncologist Dr. Gerard Milello.

Addressing a symposium at Mary Bird Perkins Cancer Center, the Baton Rouge physician was joined by a clinical social worker and chaplain to talk about some of the treatments patients seek outside of the realm of conventional medicine.

Alternative therapies might be classified under several general categories, Milello said, including: diet and nutrition, mind/body connection, bioelectromagnetics, folk medicine, pharmacological and biological treatments, manual healing and herbal medicines.

Many insurance companies already offer compensation for some alternative care therapies in their plans; one recent survey showed that 40 percent of HMOs offer some form of alternative therapy, with chiropractic and acupuncture at the top of the list.

Sherry Smelley, a social worker in private practice in Baton Rouge, said she encourages cancer patients she works with to express their emotions through activities such as journals and art therapy. As a complement to traditional therapies, such techniques can be helpful in improving patients' outlooks and are beginning to be embraced in mainstream medicine, she said.

The healing power of humor has long been touted as a tool to relieve stress, reduce pain and even bolster the immune system, she said. Relaxation and guided imagery techniques can also be quite helpful, she said, although some therapists abuse their powers when they accuse patients of "not doing it right" if they don't get well.

Religion and science have been perceived as being on opposite sides of the fence in the past, although many practitioners are changing their views today, said the Rev. George Goodbout, who manages pastoral care at Our Lady of the Lake Regional Medical Center in Baton Rouge.

Faith can be an important part of the healing process and a complement to conventional medicine for those patients who believe, he said.

Goodbout said he does believe in miracles, but thinks they are rare. He also believes in the power of prayer, but believes that prayer generally has more to do with changing the attitude of the individual than the course of the disease.

Most patients probably try alternative therapies because they want some sense of control over a disease that may not have an acceptable prognosis through conventional treatments, Milello said. Many get on the Internet to do their own research, although there's a lot of misinformation there too, he warned.

Many of those patients do not inform their doctors of their actions because they fear recrimination, but that is not a sound approach, he said. Some treatments can be dangerous and, without information, the doctor can make a wrong decision in the patient's care.

For example, large doses of some vitamins can be toxic and cause liver problems. If the doctor doesn't know about the vitamins, he or she may assume the disease is causing the problem. On the other hand, it certainly can't hurt for a patient to change the way he or she eats and embrace the principles of good nutrition; mama's chicken soup is good comfort food.

There are charlatans who prey on sick people, take their money and give them false hope, sometimes convincing patients to abandon or delay conventional treatments.

"I want my patients to feel comfortable to talk to me about what they're doing. I try to discuss it objectively without being judgmental," he said. "If I know that the therapy may be harmful, then I will tell them so."

"If I think it is benign but makes the patient feel better," then I won't tell them not to try it. If it gives them a sense of hope, if it contributes to their emotional well being and reduces their stress levels, then that is worthwhile."

Rio Grande crossing preserved on canvas in series of drawings

By SARAH KESSINGER
The Monitor (McAllen)

McALLEN, Texas - The hand-pulled ferry at Los Ebanos crossing on the Rio Grande continues to thrive as a reminder of life in this region of bridges, mixed cultures and multi-national history.

Mission artist E.E. Nichols has put the local site on canvas in a series of drawings, paintings and prints titled "Los Ebanos: Theme and Variations."

"I wanted to do something that was basically a landscape idea that related to the area," Nichols said. "I also wanted to include some of the ideas that are expressed by the theory of crossing over."

Indeed, the series, completed early this year, offers a studied view of the crossing point, which is part of the Caminos Del Rio historical trail.

"It's a cultural link, a link of trade, connector between people," he said recently while surveying his work at his home.

The art professor at the University of Texas-Pan American, who has painted area scenes in the past, was intrigued by Los Ebanos' symbolism.

"I'm very interested in how the river affects us," Nichols said. "Crossing the river is one of the main things we do around here."

Nichols is a Chicago native educated in the Midwest. He studied at the University of Kansas under well-known landscape artist Robert Sudlow.

In the Los Ebanos landscapes, softened colors reflect the muted lighting during early morning and evening hours in some works. Others play up the reflections of the river's flow and shade cast by trees along the banks. Some of the paintings feature the light and heavy haze of river fog.

"Water offers the opportunity to introduce color that's reflected from the sky."

Nichols said he first saw the spot as "picture postcard" material. But after studying it, he came to see much more. Los Ebanos Ferry offered a metaphor for crossings within peoples' lives.

"In health, we want to move to a healthier state and a state of understanding, from not knowing to knowing."

"And there's a deep historical reference. Even before the ferry was there, it was a crossing spot for Spanish traders and smugglers."

Nichols said when he works with students on a project they try to move through different levels of meaning.

"I guess I was trying to take my own advice," he said.

The paintings, which were displayed in the university's Clark Gallery earlier this year, now grace the walls of his home. A painting on a six-panel folding screen on his living room wall was a unique project in the series.

While Nichols used the screen in part because of his fondness for Oriental art, it also allows for different shadows to play on the Los Ebanos Ferry scene when the panels fold at varying angles.

The work also had a technical difference. Frequently in creating artwork, Nichols will enlarge or shrink his sketches on a computer. As he enlarged this sketch of the ferry, he noted the computer's dot pattern offered something new. The print pattern gave a dappled lighting to the scene and Nichols worked from there.

He took super enlargements and stabilized them in acrylic baths. Then he overpainted the sketch.

"Using the technology to enlarge the drawings, then painted and set up in an Oriental fashion - it was the most ancient and most modern of things coming together and blending with the cultural scene."

While the series was on exhibit, it drew some viewers who had some link to Los Ebanos, residents of the area or those related to the family who runs the ferry. But the works attest also to the links all residents of this border region thrive upon.

"People who come across, they're not empty headed, they come filled with things," he said. "Living next to Mexico, we have all these wonderful flow of images."

— YOUR EYES —

Peripheral Vision

What do you see? More than the object directly in front of you. Peripheral vision enables you to be aware of the picture off to the side. We use central vision consciously when we read, watch TV or work at a computer, but it is peripheral vision that tells us where we are in our world. Peripheral vision - what we see almost without realizing it - makes it possible to walk down a flight of stairs, drive a car, follow a performance.

Your optometrist's professional examination will check both central and peripheral vision. An uncorrectable loss of either vision is usually a signal of disease, which may be treatable if found in time. That's an especially important reason for regular examinations. Uncontrolled glaucoma, for instance, can damage peripheral vision; prompt treatment can save it. Central vision is affected by the retinal damage of macular degeneration. Other diseases less common may also affect the eyes.

Weatherization program assists in making life more comfortable

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

It was worth the wait, according to Alice Lindell.

What she was referring to were repairs to her home done under the auspices of Panhandle Community Services weatherization program.

Mrs. Lindell had been on the waiting list for four years before the needed repairs were done to her home.

But in May 1996, a crew came to her house and performed allowable repairs which included a new roof, water heater to replace the old leaking appliance, new atrium door sealed and made weather right, door replacing an inoperable back exit door, minor electrical repairs and storm windows.

In addition, handicapped accessibility was provided in the home for

Mrs. Lindell's son, Keith, who is challenged physically with Cerebral Palsy.

The weatherization program is supported by various pockets of state and corporate funding through Panhandle Community Services. Most of these sources stipulate the practice of leveraging with other existing funds for squeezing the most of the dollar, which has long been a PCS policy.

Energy efficiency is the goal, thereby reducing utility bills and allowing families to live in a more comfortable, healthier and safer environment. Targeting homes from eligible applicants and matching allowable repairs with program qualifications can often be very frustrating for weatherization staff, as needs are sometimes greater than funds.

Applications are judged on a point system, according to Celia Serrano, coordinator in the Hereford PCS office.

"Points are based on disability, elderly and low income so we know who to assist first," she said. "Then as funds are available, we make the necessary repairs to make the home more comfortable for the family, in winter as well as summer."

A similar program which relates to energy efficiency is the Comprehensive Energy Assistance Program (CEAP).

"There are four components to this program," Serrano explained. "These are the elderly, co-pay, energy crisis and appliance."

Under each component, funds are made available to the applicants to

Weatherized home

The home of Alice Lindell and her son Keith received extensive repairs under the weatherization program of Panhandle Community Services. The most notable improvement was the new roof and eave boards. Mrs. Lindell poses with Celia Serrano, local PCS coordinator.

Leaders are key to 80-year success of Red Cross

By Jim Stelert

From its original charter as the Deaf Smith County Chapter in 1917 to its current, re-chartered status as the Tri-County Chapter serving Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties, the local unit of the American Red Cross has been extending humanitarian assistance to area residents for 80 years.

Those 80 years of accomplishment are being celebrated today (Sunday) with a reception and displays from 2-5 p.m. and a formal program at 3 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

The local chapter has served through two world wars, conflicts in Korea,

Viet Nam, and Saudi Arabia, and an array of local domestic disasters that have included fires, floods, and tornadoes. Guiding principles through it all have been to extend assistance without judgment, to remain above the turmoil, and to "do the work that the preachers preach about."

In its early years, the local Red Cross primarily extended assistance to military personnel and their families.

That's still an important function, but the mission of today's Tri-County Chapter has taken on a much-broader scope.

The local chapter also handles wants of the needy and the homeless, and addresses health and safety issues. Red Cross efforts are much more geared toward assisting the civilian populace in coping with domestic disasters.

Success of the Deaf Smith County/Tri-County Chapter over eight decades is due in no small part to a succession of fine executive secretaries/chapter managers. (Red Cross national headquarters changed the position title to chapter manager.)

Four women, the late Dyalthia Bradly, the late Corinne Neely, Genevieve Miller, and Betty Henson, have served at the helm for the bulk of the local chapter's existence. Their tenure spans a period dating from World War II to the present. Each dealt effectively with unique challenges that accompanied their periods of service.

Whether they were called executive secretary or chapter manager, each labored round-the-clock, seven-days-a-week for slim pay, and left their distinctive mark upon the local Red Cross chapter.

Through the decades, chapter activities and successes have reflected the personality, concern, and enthusiasm of these women.

Dyalthia Bradly became executive secretary of the Deaf Smith County Chapter in 1943. She effectively managed both her responsibilities as county welfare officer, and Red Cross executive secretary, from a single office.

Mrs. Pauline (Loerwald) Howard who was secretary and staff aide to Mrs. Bradly during her Red Cross tenure, and also a Red Cross Home Service Volunteer, recalls service with both Mrs. Bradly and Mrs. Neely. "Dy had a feel for the needs of

& Skilled Nursing & Compassionate Care In Your Home

Hereford Home Health Care, Inc. takes a great measure of pride in the professionals employed with this agency. We attribute our success and strength as a home health care provider to each of them for the job they do.

This week, we proudly offer an employee profile on Heather Hicks, who began her career as a field nurse for our agency in 1996. She moved to Hereford from Wichita, Kansas with her husband Jeff.

Heather graduated from Angelo State University in 1990 and then moved to Knoxville, Tennessee while her husband finished his MBA at the University of Tennessee. She and her husband, Jeff, have two daughters, Morgan, age 2 and Claire who is four months old.

She chose home health care to practice nursing after six years of full time professional experience in three major regional hospitals. Although oncology is an area of nursing she misses very much, home health care has proven to be a rewarding and refreshing change. Her flexible schedule and continuity of care with her patients are among the many benefits of home health care.

Heather's professional experience includes five years hematological and gynecological oncology, six years general medical/surgical patient care, one year experience on an extended day surgery floor with concentration on surgical, GI and unmonitored post heart oath care.

Vows exchanged in evening ceremony

MRS. BRODY DANIEL LIPPERMAN
...nee Leslie Marlynn Billingsley

Leslie Marlynn Billingsley and Brody Daniel Lipperman exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening at Woodhaven Presbyterian Church in Irving.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Gary D. Billingsley of Hereford.

Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel D. Lipperman of Lake Kiowa.

The Rev. W. Douglas Hood, Jr. officiated at the ceremony.

Candles flanked each side of the altar arrangement of navy larkspurs, navy cosmos, orchids, burgundy hydrangeas, sprays of berries, and English and oak leaf ivy. A smaller arrangement of the same flowers decorated a table in the foyer of the church where Aristotle Sunio of Dallas attended the bride's registry. White satin pew bows with English and oak leaf ivy lined the center aisle of the sanctuary.

Georgia Billingsley of Dallas, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Bridget Baker and Teresa Baker, both of Irving; Jennifer Costello of Clear Lake; Nicole Lipperman, sister of the groom, of Dallas; and Teri Watson of Austin.

Merrill Frank of Austin was the best man. Groomsmen were Bill Greving, Sam Lowe, and Jason Morris, all of Duncanville; Chad Magistro, cousin of the groom, of Bellaire, Ohio; and Scott Plake of Irving.

Russell Billingsley of Dallas, brother of the bride, and Matthew Watson of Austin served as ushers. Penny Lowe of Duncanville and Rhessa Browning of Austin read scripture selections from Corinthians and Ephesians.

Jennifer Barlow of Fort Worth and Derek McCollum of Austin were soloists, and Layne Littlejohn of Irving was the organist.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a crepe gown featuring a Basque waistline and a bodice trimmed with lace and pearls. Three roses adorned the back waist. Scallop accented with pearls outlined the V-neckline, short sleeves, and hemline. The full skirt ended in a chapel-length train.

Layers of tulle flowed from two rows of hand-beaded pearls on the band of the bride's veil.

The bride's attendants wore navy blue sleeveless dresses of crepe. Bows topped the keyhole openings at the back of the neck.

The bride carried a bouquet of six calla lilies accented with baby's breath and greenery. The bride's attendants carried smaller versions of the bride's bouquet.

Special guest at the ceremony was the bride's grandmother, Kathryn Billingsley of Seminole. Out-of-town guests attended from Hereford, Leander, Keller, Austin, Fort Worth, Dallas, Duncanville, O'Donnell, and Lake Kiowa in Texas; Washington, DC; Bellaire, Bridgeport, Columbus, and Martins Ferry in Ohio; and Saint Louis, Mo.

A dinner reception at DFW Marriot honoring the couple followed the wedding ceremony. Fresh flowers and greenery decorated the bride's three-tiered amaretto cake. Strawberries dipped in chocolate circled the groom's chocolate cake.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will be at home in Irving.

The bride, a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School, received a bachelor of science degree in applied learning and development in 1995 from The University of Texas at Austin. She taught third-grade reading at Atwood Elementary in Fort Worth last year, and this school year she will teach reading and coach volleyball and track at Bowie Middle School in Irving.

The groom, a 1992 graduate of Duncanville High School, received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics in 1996 from the University of Texas at Austin. He is an actuary for Southwestern Financial Services in Dallas.

Family fall fashions

Lunch will be catered by Mary Beth Messer. Cost is $8 per person.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

There are souls in this world who have the gift of finding joy everywhere and of leaving it behind when they go.

As we prepare for the new school year, the following family activities for success in school might prove helpful for all ages. Practice with these activities will have families ready when August 18 gets here. (These are from Success-N-School by Molsinger Associates).

1. Read, read, read to your children and listen, listen, listen to them read to you.
2. Tell the children about their grandparents, uncles, aunts, and other family members.
3. Enjoy their homework with them.
4. At bedtime or evening meal time, for all ages: Listen to their day's activities and ask about tomorrow's goals.
5. Talk about what they will do after graduation and expect them to graduate.
6. Speak to them with good grammar.
7. Feed them healthy meals in a friendly home.
8. Participate in school activities.
9. Visit with your child's teachers at least three times per year.
10. Conduct a self-improvement program for your family.

As one of the old ads stated, "Try it, you'll like it!" Again, we would like to encourage you to read to your children and encourage them to read. Check out books from the library about things they are interested in -- sports, hobbies, mystery books -- whatever will "get their heads in a book!" You will see improvement in all subjects as you see an improvement in reading habits. It will also help if they see their parents reading.

A big thank you goes to Carolyn Maupin, president of A.O. Thompson Abstract Company for the maps of Deaf Smith County which we will use in our study of the county and also in a presentation at the Texas Council for the Social Studies in Corpus in September. The one we were using was a 1985 edition, so we are finally up-to-date. We have locations of the 65 plus schools, ghost towns, land formations and many other facts about the county spotted on the map. This has proved to be a good hands-on activity for students.

Style show set Tuesday

The annual fall and back-to-school style show sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday in the HISD Administration Building.

Lunch will be catered by Mary Beth Messer. Cost for the style show and luncheon is $8 per person.

Tickets need to be purchased from the Chamber office by noon Monday.

Hereford merchants presenting fashions will include Boots and Saddle, Inkahoots, Pants Cage, Yiota's, Top Line Fashions, Kid's Alley, The Range, Renee's Repeat Boutique, Alco, J.C. Penney, Elis Store, Sew and Tell and White Rose Rentals.

"There will be a special treat for anyone attending the style show," advised Donna West, committee chairman. "Participating merchants will offer specials, effective for Tuesday afternoon only, to those attending the style show."

During the show, a special presentation will be made to Elizabeth Witherspoon on behalf of the Women's Division.

In addition, numerous door prize drawings will be held.

"This is a great way to see what the merchants of Hereford are offering for the coming season and to show our support for local businesses," West said.

MRS. BRENT RAY GLENN
...nee Dawna Marie Wall

June ceremony unites couple in The Colony

Dawna Marie Wall and Brent Ray Glenn, both of The Colony, were married June 21 in Lakeway Baptist Church in The Colony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Robert Parsons and Mrs. Johnny Santiago, both of Sweetwater.

Parents of the groom are Ken and Opal Glenn of Hereford.

The church was decorated with spring floral arrangements in shades of peach and teal.

Maid of honor was Diane Parsons, sister of the bride, of Austin. Serving as best man was Kevin Glenn, brother of the groom, of Hereford.

Groomsmen were Greg Ward of Silverton, Colo., Steve Clabaugh of Carrollton, and Thame Chapman of Plainview.

Guests were seated by Randall Parsons of Chicago, Ill., and Edward Santiago of San Angelo, both brothers of the bride.

Ring Bearer was Edward Ross Santiago, son of Edward and Cathy Santiago of San Angelo.

Candle lighters were the mother

The couple was honored with a reception in the church following the ceremony.

Lynda Glenn of Hereford presided at the registry.

Servers were Linda Clabaugh, Lynn Parker, and Lety Lewis.

The bride graduated from Sweetwater High School in 1980. She attended Cisco Junior College and is employed at Universal American Mortgage Company in Dallas.

The groom graduated from Hereford High School in 1982 and from Texas Tech University in 1986 with a bachelor's degree in marketing. He has been employed by the Sherwin Williams Company for 10 years and is currently commercial coatings representative in Dallas.

The bride and groom are both active members of The Colony Church of Christ.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: It happened again, this time in Minneapolis. A man killed his wife after ignoring a restraining order. He kicked in the door, with their children in the home. They witnessed the entire scene. The abuse had been going on for a long time, and the wife was legally separated from the man after having spent many nights in a shelter for battered women.

How can judges let these guys go, time and time again, on the condition that they stay away from the women? They never do -- they always return, more enraged than ever. Why is domestic abuse almost always considered only a misdemeanor? If the same assault occurred on the street or in the workplace, would it still be classified as a misdemeanor?

Why is this crime not considered a felony? Until the law views domestic violence as a serious crime,

The real issue here is power and control. Until society refuses to tolerate violence in the home and next door, abusers will continue to beat up on their victims and even kill them.

Perhaps we need a national forum, such as your column, to get a handle on this problem. Wife beating does not belong in the misdemeanor category. For many, it is a matter of life and death. Please, Ann, talk about this horrendous problem. It needs national exposure. -- Alexandria, Minn.

Dear Alexandria: I have dealt with the subject of domestic violence in this space on a regular basis for many years, and I will continue to do so. Meanwhile, rest assured that I am in total agreement with you. Domestic violence should indeed be taken out of the misdemeanor category and labeled a felony.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's another one for your crazy-lawsuit file. As an apartment manager in a small community in Florida, I've had to evict people for non-payment of rent. I don't enjoy doing this, but it's part of my job, and the owner expects me to handle these evictions properly.

Not long ago, one of the tenants was behind in her rent. She told me her check bounced because she was suing the government for $1 million and claimed there was some sort of conspiracy against her. She insisted that she would not have to pay any additional or past-due rent because the government would be responsible for it. After two more months without any payment, we started eviction proceedings.

She then sued our complex. The lawsuit claimed we were conspiring with the federal government, local grocery stores and utility services to deny her basic living necessities. When the judge threw out her case, she named him as a co-conspirator in her lawsuit.

It's sad the courts are backlogged with cases that should never see the light of day. It gives our justice system a bad name. I think this woman needs medical help, and I hope she gets it soon. -- Evictor

Dear Evictor: In a democratic country such as ours, not only is freedom of speech guaranteed, but anybody can sue anybody for anything. No matter how "goofy," there is a lawyer somewhere who will handle the case.

Gem of the Day (pardon the immodesty, but credit Ann Landers): Some people believe holding on and hanging in there are signs of great strength. However, there are times when it takes much more strength to know when to let go and then do it.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. It's right here!

Paris, that is, Isaul Chavarria, Deacon Jessie Guerrero and Naomi DeLaCerde will leave Aug. 16 for World Youth Day '97 in Paris. They will be joined by three youths from Amarillo in representing the Diocese of Amarillo at the gathering of youths.

Two youths venture to Paris

AMARILLO -- A group of five youths, including two from Hereford, and a sponsor, also from Hereford, will leave from Amarillo International Airport at 10 a.m. Aug. 16 for World Youth Day '97 in Paris.

Representing the Diocese of Amarillo at the gathering of youths will be Isaul Chavarria, 20, of San Jose Church, Hereford; Naomi DeLaCerde, 17, San Jose Church, Hereford; Cara Doak, 17, St. Joseph's Church, Amarillo; Joshua Hoadley, 17, Blessed Sacrament Church, Amarillo; and Amanda Silva, 17, Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, Amarillo.

Accompanying the group as its sponsor will be Deacon Jessie Guerrero, diocesan director of Youth Ministry, of San Jose Church in Hereford.

The group is expected to travel to Lourdes before returning to Amarillo on Aug. 27.

The five youths were chosen to make the trip to Paris because of their leadership among their peers in the diocese, according to Deacon Guerrero. The five represented the diocese at last year's Region X Youth Conference in Austin, he said.

What does Deacon Guerrero hope the youth get out of their attendance at World Youth Day?

"My main concern is that they learn to be better evangelizers and help other teenagers to have a close relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ," he said. "They're already doing that in the diocese and in their parishes. I hope they leave with a greater commitment and strengthen their relationship with the Lord. Maybe in the future they will be instrumental in teaching others our faith."

What does he hope to get out of the trip as sponsor?

"For me, it will be a continuing education," Deacon Guerrero said. "I think it will be a bigger experience than Denver was in 1993."

"I'm also looking forward to getting to know the French culture. It is very important for me to learn other people's culture. I hope to learn about their history as well."

Two of the youths making the trip to Paris also attended World Youth Day 1993 in Denver, Doak and DeLaCerde.

"I hope that Paris just opens my mind and heart into doing what Jesus wants me to do and what I'm supposed to be doing," Doak said.

For DeLaCerde, she looks forward to hearing what message the pope will bring to Paris.

"I'm looking forward to hearing what he has to say to us," she said. "Denver in some way, prepared me for this World Youth Day, but I think it will be different than it was four years ago."

Chavarria is 20, the oldest "youth" of the five making the trip to Paris.

"I'm excited because it is a first-time experience for me," he said. "If there was one thing I hope to get out of my experience in Paris, I hope it's to never let go, to keep trying in whatever I do."

Silva did not get to go to Denver in 1993, but after hearing her friends and peers relate their experiences, she said, "I'm looking forward to being able to share with so many teenagers, united in our love for Jesus Christ."

Hoadley said he was shocked to be chosen to go to Paris.

"I'm really looking forward to seeing the Holy Father," he said. "Just the whole experience of World Youth Day is something I'm looking forward to."

Tencel is the first new fiber in 30 years! What is it? In April 1996, the Federal Trade Commission approved lyocell as a generic fiber type.

Tencel is the trade name for the lyocell fiber produced by Courtauld Fibers, Inc. It is a natural fiber produced from cellulose found in trees grown especially for this purpose on managed tree farms.

The fiber is produced by using a non-toxic dissolving agent and spinning process referred to as solvent spinning. Due to this process, the Tencel fiber is 100 percent biodegradable and more environmentally friendly than many other man-made fibers.

Tencel looks and acts very much like rayon, however, it is a much stronger fiber, wet or dry, and is machine washable. This strength allows for longer-lasting garments. Tencel is an extremely versatile fiber.

It is naturally soft and smooth, yet due to its strength, a variety of finishing techniques can be used to produce unique surface effects in a wide range of fabrics.

The drapability of Tencel allows the fiber to flow and move in a way that expresses grace and elegance. Tencel readily absorbs dye, producing deep, rich colors whether dark or pastel hues.

A wide range of fabrics can be created with this fiber. Knitted/woven fabrics, such as crepes, twills, and chambray, can be designed by using either 100 percent or blended Tencel. Garments made from Tencel are typically high price garments and can be found in department and specialty stores.

Items made from lyocell must use that generic name on fiber identification and care labels. Brand names may be used in addition to the generic name if the manufacturer so chooses.

Courtauld Fibers, Inc. was the first company to enter the U.S. lyocell market with Tencel and will allow use of the Tencel name only on items containing at least 50 percent of the fiber. Fabrics must be certified by Courtauld.

Gray Ladies

Mrs. Bradley's successor, Corinne Joel Jennings Neely, began working with Red Cross under Dy, and "learned the ropes." Corinne had assisted Mrs. Bradley with Home Service, and was well-qualified for the position when she became executive secretary in 1953. She held the post for 12 years.

Under Corinne Neely's Red Cross leadership, 1,800 youngsters were taught to swim after the City of Hereford constructed a municipal pool. An active Red Cross youth program was also launched. Corinne emphasized development of leadership among youngsters.

"Service is the rent you pay for the space that you occupy," she often told her young charges.

"Corinne worked prior to the time that Red Cross was a United Way agency. She had to conduct fund drives every March. She organized workers to go door-to-door to raise the whole year's funds for the chapter," says Mrs. Howard.

"Dy and Corinne had personalities very much alike. They were concerned, and interested in helping people. It showed. They understood people's needs, and they tried to help them if they could."

Upon her retirement in 1965, Corinne Neely recommended Mrs. Genevieve Miller as her successor. Mrs. Miller stepped into the post and held it until January of 1977.

Mrs. Miller's watch came during a contentious period in the nation's history--the dark days of the Viet Nam War. Despite the political unrest that prevailed in the country due to the controversy over the war, Mrs. Miller says the Deaf Smith Chapter remained "above the turmoil."

The Deaf Smith County Chapter carried on with its duties of being of service to the men and women of the military, particularly in providing a link with home and family.

"We worked hard making and filling ditty bags for the servicemen in Viet Nam. They were a little piece of home that we wanted our boys to have. Church groups, service clubs, individual volunteers, all pitched-in. They sewed ditty bags and filled them with soap and razors, hard candy, pocket games, stationery, nuts, packs of playing cards--simple things that could be shipped and would bring a message of caring to our soldiers."

"We'd make arrangements with local merchants in June and July and get yards and yards of red material, and we'd make up bags that had a drawstring, then load them up. I remember the late Mrs. A.O. Thompson bringing in three ditty bags. They were stuffed--absolutely stuffed with bursting, with goodies. She was going to take good care of her soldiers."

"We had to have those ditty bags ready to ship at the post office in October, in order for them to reach the soldiers in the field by Christmas."

Mrs. Miller was chapter executive secretary during the flooding of Finlan Lake at the Hereford labor camp in June of 1965, and during the Hereford tornado in 1971.

"My work with the military during Viet Nam, during the flood, and the tornado; all involved a lot of wee hours of the morning stuff. You had to take the call at any hour, and deal with the matter immediately. That's the way it is with Red Cross. You were on call 24-hours-a-day and seven-days-a-week. In those days, we called on church groups to bring food for emergency workers. Things were taken care-of pretty smoothly."

"People know that they can come to the Red Cross. I think that fact speaks to the character of the organization," says Mrs. Miller.

Well-versed in the history of the local chapter, Mrs. Miller can reel off the names of dozens of volunteers and board members who have worked with various Red Cross efforts through the years. Her recollections are a litany of the volunteer labors of the Deaf Smith County chapter.

When Mrs. Miller resigned to take a position with the U.S. Postal Service in January of 1977, she recommended Mrs. Betty Henson as her successor.

Mrs. Henson was quickly approved by the board and the book was opened on a story of major accomplishment in local Red Cross history that carries into the present.

Betty Henson logged 20 years of service as executive secretary/chapter manager, and has a total of 35-years-and-counting of volunteer and full-time Red Cross work.

To many people in Deaf Smith County and the surrounding region who have experienced her compassion, practicality in problem-solving, and generosity of spirit, Betty Henson is the Red Cross.

Her effectiveness as executive secretary/chapter manager is attested to by the fact that in 1985 she was presented the Tiffany Award, the highest recognition bestowed by the American National Red Cross.

Betty's workload as chapter manager included enhanced responsibilities in health and safety programs such as water safety, lifeguard training, CPR, first-aid, AIDS awareness, baby sitting and child care instruction. She organized a clothing program at the local office that benefits needy residents and recycles literally tons of clothing in the area.

When national headquarters dictated that the Deaf Smith County chapter must incorporate Parmer and Castro County Red Cross activities, she was instrumental in re-chartering the Tri-County Chapter.

Betty "retired" as chapter manager in July of 1995, but continues to serve as a full-time Red Cross volunteer, and probably spends as much time at the local Red Cross office today as she ever did.

"Corinne Neely and Betty Henson are among the outstanding performers in the history of the local chapter. They set very high standards of accomplishment," comments Mrs. Miller of her fellow Red Cross leaders.

Pauline Howard also credits Mrs. Henson with steering an effective course for Red Cross here.

"Betty has contributed as much as anybody to bringing the help of Red Cross to our community. Our local Red Cross chapter has been active in all kinds of community activities over the years and Betty has made it attentive to the needs of the people."

Betty says that the rewards of her job have included working with volunteers and helping people to learn life-saving skills.

"One of the big highlights of my time as chapter manager was when the chapter, as a beneficiary of a

The Tri-County chapter goes on with its daily mission, teaching health and safety capabilities, distributing food and clothing to those who need it, continuing to provide service to the military. Its quietly efficient function--largely to be credited to those who have served so effectively at the top--doesn't draw a lot of attention. "People aren't very aware of the Red Cross--until they're in need of its help. We're always there," says Mrs. Miller.

Jim Steiert serves as secretary of the board of directors of the Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

CHIROPRACTIC For Better Health

Dr. J. Todd Gray, D.C.

Lumbar Instability

Do you know why people tend to get shorter as they grow older? Because the cushiony, shock-absorbing discs between the vertebrae tend to flatten and wear away over the years. A millimeter here, a millimeter there, and pretty soon the individual is an inch or two shorter. And probably more uncomfortable, too.

Without the protection of the intervertebral discs, there may be segmental instability in one or more parts of the lower back and a back that "goes out" now then. The pain may be felt at the point of instability, or it may be referred to the buttocks. Worst is when the muscles trying to hold the spine in place go into spasm. In addition, as the discs deteriorate, there may be bony spurs on the vertebrae that cause pain.

The chiropractor's gentle spinal manipulation is ideal to restore vertebral alignment and ease discomfort without dangerous drugs. Spinal supports may be prescribed as well.

SANDIE FREED

Hereford Flame Fellowship will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Community Center.

Guest speaker will be Sandie Freed, ordained with a five-fold ministry gift of prophecy.

Freed has traveled nationally and internationally, prophesying and imparting life through the gifts of the Holy Spirit. Recently she has been traveling and ministering in the revelation of interpreting dreams and visions.

She and her husband, Mickey, pastor together at Zion Family Church in Bedford. They are ordained by Christian International and are the Mid-Southwestern Regional Directors of Christian International Networking of Churches.

Everyone is welcome to attend the meetings of Hereford Flame Fellowship.

PROGRAM

help pay utility bills. For the elderly who qualify, CEAP will pay the four highest utility bills.

The co-pay component targets low income families with minor children and will pay the bill on a declining balance for six consecutive months. However, under this program, recipients must attend energy conservation classes during the entire six month period or assistance will be terminated.

Panhandle Community Services works with the county Extension office in conducting the energy conservation classes.

"Beverly Harder, extension agent for family and consumer sciences, conducted the classes last year. Of 17 families who qualified, 14 completed the entire course," said Serrano.

During an energy crisis, this component of the program will help pay any amount of a utility bill in excess of the normal bill.

Appliances under CEAP are targeted for the elderly and disabled to help keep them warm in the winter with a heater or cool in the summer with an air conditioner.

PCS operates on a fiscal year beginning August 1. According to Serrano, applications are now being accepted for the coming fiscal year.

Food and Family

By LAWRENCE HEADLEY R.D./L.D.

"An apple a day" promotes good nutrition.

Fruit is naturally sweet and loaded with vitamins and minerals--like Vitamin A, Vitamin C and potassium. It's also a good source of fiber.

In fact, recent studies show that people who eat lots of fruits and vegetables have a lower risk of getting some kinds of cancer.

If you use the Food Guide Pyramid to plan your diet, you'll see that two to four servings of fruit are recommended each day. That's not much, if you consider that one serving is equal to a medium-sized piece of fresh fruit or 1/2 cup of canned fruit.

If you drink juice with breakfast and eat an apple for your morning snack, you'll already have two servings before lunch.

This information comes from WIC--the Women, Infants and Children Nutrition Program at the Texas Department of Health. For free magazine on nutrition, call 1-800-WIC-3678.

Military Muster

Thomas H. Kirkeby has joined the United States Army under the Delayed Entry Program at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station, Amarillo, Texas.

The program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $40,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

Kirkeby, a 1997 graduate of Hereford High School, will report to Fort Jackson, Columbia, S.C., for military basic training on August 14, 1997.

He is the son of Denise Kirkeby of Hereford.

The only person, so far, born outside the British Isles to serve as prime minister of Great Britain was Andrew Bonar Law of Canada in 1922.

Free seminar on pesticides

The Texas Department of Agriculture is providing a free seminar for farm worker and pesticide handlers on how to safely work around pesticides at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 5, in Hereford.

The training will be held at the Texas Migrant Council Head Start Center, 215 Norton.

This training provides farm workers and other pesticide handlers the information they need to work safely around chemicals and treated areas. Topics covered in the sessions include, the Texas Agricultural Hazard Communication Act, more commonly known as the Right-to-Know law, and the federal Worker Protection Standard requirements.

Agricultural employers who use pesticides are encouraged to send their employees to these sessions. After completing the course, participants receive U.S. Environmental Protection Agency cards verifying that the trainee has received both Worker Protection Standard and Right To Know training.

For more information, contact TDA in Austin at (512) 463-7622.

Champion angus female

OCC Louann 5729 was the reserve senior yearling bred-and-owned champion female at the 1997 National Junior Angus show in Perry, Ga. She was exhibited by Sy Olson, Hereford. The event was held July 14-19. Olson was also recognized during the show as one of the top five applicants to receive scholarships from the American Angus Auxiliary.

Aphid-killing pesticide could put dent in cotton production

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas officials are concerned that new federal restrictions on a powerful aphid-killing pesticide could put a dent in cotton production.

"The Texas Department of Agriculture certainly understands and shares concern about pesticide safety, especially when our children are involved," said Agriculture

Commissioner Rick Perry. "However, EPA's decision in this matter virtually assures more pesticide use in Texas cotton fields, not less."

The Environmental Protection Agency decided in July to bar cotton growers in Texas and five other states from using liquid carbaryl, sold under the brand name Furadan 4F. The EPA had given emergency exemptions since 1993 so cotton growers could use the poison against pests.

Aphids tend to attack toward the end of cotton season, which wraps up between summertime and early winter, depending on the region. The tiny bugs cause cotton fiber to become sticky, creating problems for mills.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Appropriative Marketing: Sometimes it's OK to steal

How do you grow your business when the number of competitors increases? How can you increase profits when there are fewer customers each year? The answer is appropriative marketing.

Defined, appropriative marketing means taking business away from other businesses. When the market segment you serve is shrinking, or more businesses are competing for a slice of your pie, you need to change your marketing style.

Appropriative marketing is an aggressive strategy, specifically aimed at stealing customers from others. A competitive market calls for a "survival of the fittest" approach.

If you aren't constantly improving your customer care, not only are you likely to see little growth, but also your own best customers may be at risk. It could be that a sharp competitor is analyzing your customer base as you read this. Therefore, a prerequisite to stealing customers from others is to first safeguard your own customer base.

To strengthen your defenses at home, you must focus on satisfying your biggest and most profitable customers. To keep them happy, you must know who they are, what their long-term value is to your business and what motivates them to do business with you.

When product offerings are similar, people often make the difference. Customers return to businesses where owners and employees treat them well. Business is personal, and everyone enjoys recognition and special care.

The five-step plan

There are five steps in appropriative marketing. Follow these steps and you can generate new customers for your business.

1) Learn who your competitor's key customers are. It is very likely that you know some of them already. Identifying others may require some research.

One creative business owner hired a college student to record all vehicles that stopped at her competitors. Since the customers were contractors, many could be identified by their company names on their pickups or vans. Others were recorded by vehicle type, color and license number.

The owner discovered two key items with this inexpensive research. First, the competitors' most frequent users, and second that some of her best customers were also doing business with the competition.

2) Learn why your competitor's key customers do business there. You may wish to hire a market research professional or just ask some thoughtful questions yourself.

One women's clothier hired a university professor to conduct focus group studies with a competitor's customers. The studies revealed that customers preferred the competitor for the following reasons: 1) They liked the brighter lighting in the competitor's store. 2) Several commented on the cleanliness of the dressing rooms. 3) Most were members of a frequent-buyer's club which gave them early notice of new merchandise and a 10 percent discount.

3) Use what you learn. Attack your competitor's strengths with aggressive action. The clothier mentioned earlier upgraded his store's lighting, redecorated the dressing rooms and implemented a frequent-buyer's program.

4) Make them a special offer. It may take a strong appeal to get a regular customer of your competitors to try your business. One rental company offered a free day's rental with a value of more than $100 to a competitor's top 25 customers.

Another business created a special three-month, deep-discount program for new customers. An automobile dealer offered free service for a year. Whatever your offer, it must be good to change a customer's buying patterns.

5) Become a better choice. You must appeal to customers two main motivations: the need for value and the desire for personal respect. Use special incentives, discounts and added services to create value. Train your people to build personal relationships. With a little effort you can appropriate some of your competitor's best customers and make them yours.

Vacations are running out. School will be starting soon. Summer Reading Club is over. The annual family reunion is now history. Now is our time for planning the new program year.

We are looking at revamping the Summer Reading Club. Don't get too excited one way or the other. It is just in the beginnings of the planning stage. We are also reassessing our other longstanding programs. Our goal is to meet the changing needs of the community.

There were several new programs added this last year. Some were short-lived, and some have endured to be improved for the new year.

Are there changes you would like to see in our programming? Is there a need in the community that you believe can be met through your county library? Call us. We would like to know what you think.

There are many things, including the U.S. Cavalry, that have been given credit for having won the west, but according to Juddi Morris it was someone else who civilized it. The Harvey Girls: The Women Who Civilized the West chronicles the history of 100,000 women who left home and families back east to become waitresses in Fred Harvey's chain of high-quality restaurants along the Santa Fe Railroad. The Harvey Girls made the Santa Fe very popular and left an indelible mark on the Wild West.

While most of the recipes in High Plains Country Cooking by Beverly G. Barbour are not as exotic as the deep-fried rattlesnake recipe, you are sure to find some interesting and different approaches to cooking common foods.

Do you find yourself reading lips and not being able to understand what someone is saying to you unless you can see their faces? Is there someone in your household for whom you must repeat everything you say to them?

Hear: Solutions, Skill, and Sources for People with Hearing Loss by Anne Pope not only explains the anatomy of the ear and what can go wrong, but also gives valuable advice on choosing a hearing aid or other assistive listening devices, stress management, and legal matters.

The book contains strategies for dealing with everyday situations, skills such as speech-reading and auditory training, and provides helpful information for families and friends, as well as dealing with the emotional impact of hearing loss.

The Calling of Katie Makanya: A Memoir of South Africa by Margaret McCord is the true story of a black South African woman born at the height of colonialism. Her life was shaped by epochal historical change, turbulent social transition, and profound political and cultural upheavals, through which Katie's courage and determination gave her the strength and will to overcome poverty and hardship.

Turning her back on the promises of wealth and fame available to her as part of the Jubilee Singers, she returned home from England to marry and raise a family.

Back in South Africa life had its share of bitterness and personal tragedy. Katie left behind the cities of Durban and Johannesburg because "I don't want to live among white people any longer," seeking peace in the country where she met the McCords. Katie became an interpreter for this doctor who had come to treat the Zulus and thus found her calling. Before her death, Katie related the remarkable story of her life to Dr. McCord's daughter Margaret.

Terri Blackstock fans will enjoy the last book of the Sun Coast Chronicles series, Presumption of Guilt. Not only are you reacquainted with characters from her previous books, but you meet more of the flawed Christians she writes about who, in crisis, find God's provision for their mistakes and wrong choices. They sound like real people just like us. These books are packed with legal drama and fast-paced action, a diversion from the romance/historical fiction that, while they are a good read, dominate the Christian fiction genre.

Patricia Cornwell's latest Kay Scarpetta book, Unnatural Exposure, is on the new fiction shelf this week. Some have expressed dislike for her last book, Hornet's Nest, because it wasn't a Kay Scarpetta story, but Kay is back in this one. The end of the book leaves open the possibility of another in the series. I've read this one and can look forward to the possibility of the next one.

In Off the Face of the Earth by Alijean Harmetz, David Greene gets mad at his mom and runs away. He's done it before, but this time he doesn't come back. Denver, the abductor, masks a deeply confused and dangerous mind with his "friendly stranger" facade.

Drew's emotions escalate from anger at her son's disobedience to fear, to stunned disbelief when she realizes David is not with his father and friends. He's gone. When the Sherwood police charge a local schizophrenic with David's murder and declare the case closed, Drew's acute instinct that her son is still alive drives her to appeal to her disjointed family and a maverick police officer. Together they launch their own full-scale search.

The story alternates between Drew's frantic hunt for her son and the boy's brave struggle to survive by leaving clever hints of his presence, even as Denver retreats further and further into insanity.

Red Cross Update

A FREE clothing giveaway is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in front of the Red Cross building, weather permitting.

Aug. 5--CPR renewal class at 7:30 p.m. in the Red Cross building, Hereford. Betty Henson instructor.

Aug. 7--Adult CPR, Child and Infant CPR and First Aid at First United Methodist Fellowship Hall. Each class is approximately 3 hours, 8 a.m.-6 p.m.

Aug. 9--In Adrian, for the Golden Spread Foster Parents. Instructor Cindy Hall.

Aug. 19--In Vega, for the Golden Plains Foster Family Association. Instructor Rick Whitehorn.

Aug. 20--In Friona, for the Rural Medical Health Clinic. Instructor Jannis Auburg.

Sept. 4 & 11--In Hereford, for the Girl Scouts. Instructor Betty Henson.

We will also be scheduling classes for Far Better Feeds, St. Anthony's teachers, and Southwest Feed Yard. Most of these organizations will be more than happy to open these classes to the public. Call 364-3761 for more information about these classes.

Red Cross is here 24 hours a day, offering classes in emergency preparedness and disaster services, water safety, and health education and much more. We serve the community in many ways with assistance after disasters or fires, providing food, clothing and shelter and sometimes, counseling, to help people get over the shock of being caught in a disaster and begin again.

Come see us Sunday at the Community Center from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and learn more about what we have done, what we are doing, and what we plan to do. We are celebrating our 80th anniversary of our Congressional charter which allows us to function as part of the American Red Cross.

Chapter manager, Johnnie Meeks, has submitted his resignation effective July 31 and will no longer be working at the Red Cross building in Hereford. However, he is a certified instructor for the Red Cross and intends to continue as a volunteer in that capacity. He said, "I would like to commend and thank all of you for your support of this humanitarian effort."

All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from the American people.

The Red Cross is not a government agency. To help victims of disasters, call 806-364-3761, or 1-800-HELP NOW (800-435-7669), or 800-257-7575 (Spanish).

The Red Cross is a United Way affiliate.

The Successful Family

Shaken Baby Syndrome

Vigorously shaking a child can cause irreversible brain damage, blindness, and even death. It is a condition called Shaken Baby Syndrome.

Children up to age five are susceptible to this because their neck muscles are weak in relation to the size of their heads and cannot resist the force of shaking. When a child is shaken, their brain slams back and forth inside the skull and causes bleeding. Because the damage is internal, there may be no outward signs of abuse.

The effects of shaking a child, however, can be devastating. They include hearing impairment, learning disabilities, Attention Deficit Disorder, Cerebral Palsy, severe motor dysfunction, mental retardation and death.

Shaking is often a response to the frustrations of caring for a crying infant. Some parents and caregivers may even think that shaking 'ba' or small child is less harmful than striking the child.

There is no one type of person who will shake a child. There are cases in which parents, grandparents, health professionals, boyfriends, and babysitters have done it. Many people are not aware of Shaken Baby Syndrome.

For more suggestions on promoting awareness of child abuse and family development, contact Tilly Boozer at 364-HELP or 363-7668. THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY program will be starting the Nurturing Family Sessions again October 7 - November 18 from 5:30-8 p.m. at the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building. Meals will be provided and children must be accompanied by parents.

Jack Hazlewood, Attorney At Law

Board Certified In Civil Trial Law & Personal Injury Law

A sudden and serious injury or accident may have unexpected long-term effects. Injury victims may have high medical bills, permanent or partial disability and the financial burden of loss of income. Often, such an injury or accident occurs through no fault of the injured party.

Jack Hazlewood, conveniently located in Amarillo at 500 Taylor Street in the Amarillo National Plaza II, Suite 100, concentrates in providing legal representation in personal injury, wrongful death and Workers' Compensation claims. The firm represents clients in insurance negotiations and in the state and federal courts helping to recover fair and just compensation for their clients. It is the policy of Jack Hazlewood to offer a free, no-obligation consultation to prepare a claim evaluation and give advice concerning legal rights. This attorney handles injury cases on a contingent or percentage fee basis, which means there is no attorney fee unless they recover compensation for you.

When you are accidentally injured, not being properly represented can be just as devastating as the injury itself. If you or a family member have been injured as a result of a vehicular, work-related or consumer product accident, Jack Hazlewood invites your inquiries. You may call the office at 1-888-376-6372 for a free legal consultation.

Hinckley & Schmitt Bottled Water Company

The Pure Water Professionals

Golden Spread Siding Company

In The Same Location For 20 Years

House painting is not an activity that most homeowners look forward to with any pleasure—especially on sunny days when a fishing pole or golf club would fit the hand much better than a paintbrush. Siding can allow you to enjoy your free time. Beautify, insulate and weatherproof your home with maintenance-free siding from Golden Spread Siding Company, a lifetime member of the Better Business Bureau, located in Amarillo at 613 Northeast 4th Avenue, phone 374-0274 or toll-free 1-800-245-0274.

Siding rejuvenates an older home and increases its value. The marketability of new homes is increased with the addition of low-maintenance siding. Golden Spread Siding Company provides and professionally installs nationally known siding. They can also assist owners of brick homes or commercial buildings in decreasing their maintenance costs with custom trim work. Their services also include energy-saving storm doors and windows, and thermal replacement windows including bow and bay windows and sliders. Free estimates are offered.

They are licensed and insured for your complete protection, and local references are furnished upon request. This year, put down that paintbrush forever and start enjoying your free time. If you're interested in improving your home with maintenance-free siding, call Golden Spread Siding Company.

Brooke Vinyl Fence Guy Brooke, Owner

A new generation of fencing is available from Brooke Vinyl Fence, located at Hereford on East Highway 60, phone 364-3501. Vinyl fencing is a cost-effective and environmentally conscious alternative to wooden fencing. Even an expensive cedar fence is subject to rot and insect damage and must be replaced every 12 to 15 years which plays a part in the deforestation that is plaguing our environment.

White vinyl board fencing and round component fencing is available in a variety of styles and heights including picket, basket-weave, privacy and semiprivate. Pool enclosures are another specialty at Brooke Vinyl Fence and add an attractive accent to any landscape. Post and rail fences in 2, 3, or 4 rail formats have been used for horse farms for quite some time and have just recently become available for residential use. Vinyl fencing doesn't warp like wood tends to do with various weather conditions. There is no chipping or peeling paint to mar the beauty of your property and vinyl fencing is comparably priced to good cedar fencing.

Brooke Vinyl Fence invites you to contact them to discuss your fencing needs and the benefits that vinyl fencing can provide in terms of the beauty, definition and privacy of your property. They also invite you to investigate the terms of the generous warranty that will ensure your maximum and continuing satisfaction from your investment in vinyl fencing. Cost estimates and expert installation are provided.

The management of Cruz Construction will gladly sit down with you to discuss your project, work out all the details and present you with an accurate estimate of the cost of the materials and labor. Their experience and proper equipment enables them to tackle any contracting job and complete it on time with expert craftsmanship. They will handle any part of your project or take care of the entire construction job.

Call them when you need a contractor for any reason. If you are contemplating any type of building project, you'll be more than pleased with the work of Cruz Construction.

Trinity Motors, Inc.

For many years, automobile dealers considered "used cars" as a sideline to the business of selling new models. Things have changed in recent years, and one of the big reasons is the kind of business operated by Trinity Motors. They believe that the used car buyer is just as important as the new car buyer and are determined to give each customer the finest quality and the best possible price.

The smart way to buy a used car is to purchase it from Trinity Motors, located in Amarillo at 4496 Canyon Drive, phone 353-9358, where each and every car is checked by an expert mechanic before it is put on the lot. You can feel assured that all of the cars they sell are in excellent condition and have many miles of driving left in them. Financing can also be arranged for your convenience.

Trinity Motors has a large "family" of customers who return because they know that integrity, service and assurance of quality are passwords here. If you're in the market for a good buy on a clean, reconditioned previously owned car, stop in soon. They are sure to have just what you're looking for.

Foster Electronics "Computers Made Easy"

Almost everybody these days is willing to sell you a computer, but not everyone has the expertise to help you understand the options available today or how to apply them to your needs. Located in Hereford in the Sugarland Mall, phone 364-4882, these computer specialists can custom design and install a system which is right for your business or personal needs. Their equipment can be ordered with any features required including network, multimedia and multi-user systems. They feature easy expansion, quick installation and competitive pricing, and lease arrangements are available. Foster Electronics understands that when you're moving up, you can't afford a system that goes down. Reliability, maximum flexibility and high performance are hallmarks of their systems, and they will maintain and support that system for as long as you own it. They repair all hardware and peripheral devices.

If your computer doesn't meet your needs, contact Foster Electronics. They can upgrade and enhance your system or train you in the use of a new system. They have the experience you can rely on. Call 364-4882 to learn about their quality computers and solid support.

Dent Busters Barry Fassauer, Owner

How many times have you gotten out of your car and the door bumped the car next to you? These parking lot mishaps can leave small dents, nicks in the paint and scratches, and over a period of time can ruin the "new look" of your car.

When you're looking for a quality shop to give your vehicle a facelift, visit Dent Busters, located in Amarillo at 4438 Canyon Drive, phone 353-2456. They offer free estimates for dent removal and chipped paint repair. These professionals can restore that "new car" look to your vehicle while you wait in most cases. Using the latest repair techniques, Dent Busters can repair hail damage, door dings, hood scratches or any small dent without repainting. If you plan to sell or trade your car for a newer model, Dent Busters can help increase the value with their expert service for only a few dollars. Fleet work for car and truck dealerships is always available.

Dent Busters is committed to being the area's number one small dent repair facility. They invite you to visit them soon and take advantage of their repair service. You will feel better, and your car will look newer when you visit.

A&R Mechanical Services Andy Bigham & Rodney Weaver, Owners

Have you looked into the advantages of central heating and air conditioning? Perhaps cost has scared you away, but the fact is, a central heat and air system can pay for itself and then begin saving you money in a matter of years. For your home, office or business, A&R Mechanical Services, located in Amarillo at 811 South Lamar Street, phone 372-1572, is the company to call for heating and air conditioning system repair, servicing or installation. These professionals are experts in the heating and cooling field, and have had years of experience in this line of work.

Whether you need a unit repaired or want a complete system installed for your home or business, these licensed professionals are fully competent to do the work. When it comes to new installations, they will be more than happy to look over your particular needs and design an economical system that will save you money in energy usage over the years.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
-- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

The House of the Week

Adaptable and Comfortable

A COVERED FRONT PORCH offers traditional charm, while large paned windows and quaint dormers give the exterior another look.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures

Plan G-37 by HomeStyles Designers Network, offers the freedom to adapt every inch of its 2,088 square feet of living space to fit the lifestyle and taste of its occupants.

The large, covered front porch is complemented by a more formal spacious living room.

The two-car garage is a short walk to the adjoining kitchen, which features an island. An efficient pantry shares a hallway with a laundry room.

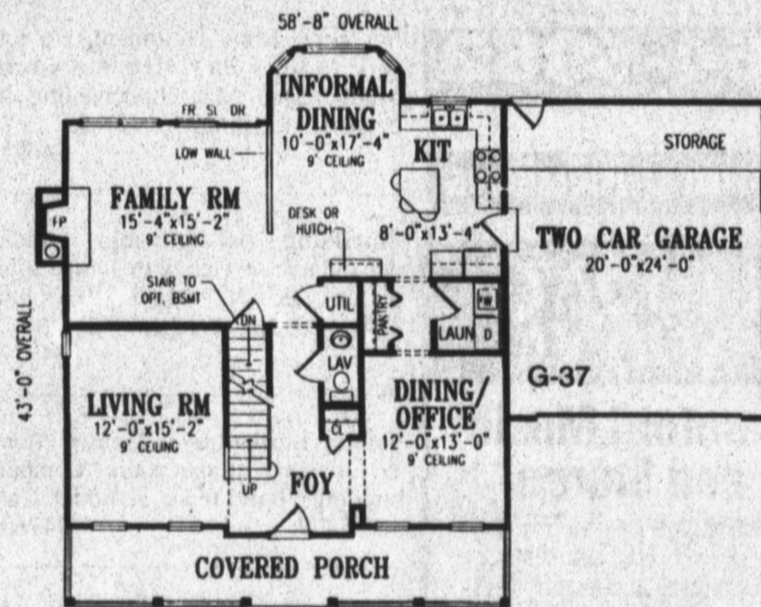

A fireplace is the centerpiece of a family room that offers many options. The addition of an informal dining area makes it possible to convert the formal dining room to an office or den.

Comfort and space are featured in the large upper-floor master bedroom, just around the corner from the stairway. The entrance to a huge walk-in closet splits dual vanities in the master bath.

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

BEYOND THE HUGE FRONT PORCH, a long foyer branches out to the formal living room, adaptable dining room or master bedroom and bath upstairs. Down the hall are a full bath and two spacious bedrooms. An L-shaped kitchen features a work island and has a sunny, bayed informal dining nook on one side and a two-car garage on the other. The laundry room is just steps from the kitchen, and shares a hallway with a double-doored pantry.

G-37 STATISTICS

Design G-37 has a living room, foyer, kitchen, dining room, family room, three bedrooms, two and one-half baths, laundry room and a utility room, totaling 2,088 square feet of living space. This plan includes a standard basement, crawlspace or slab foundation, and offers 2x4 exterior wall framing. Its two-car garage provides 502 square feet of space.

USA courts morning viewers with new teen comedy

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

The longtime home of Murder, She Wrote and Wings reruns is trying something new in the morning.

Beginning Monday, Aug. 4, the USA Network is targeting viewers with ages in the low double digits with a new weekday "teen block." The live-action hour consists of a new high-school comedy, USA High, paired with episodes of Saved by the Bell: The New Class that originally aired on NBC.

"We felt if we could provide fresh, original shows combined with kind of a trademark show," USA President Rod Perth says, "we would have a very solid block that has the potential to perform (in the ratings).

"And USA High is really a smart show directed right at that 10-year-old to younger-teen audience."

High is the brainchild of executive producer Peter Engel, creator of Bell, Hang Time and California Dreams, all for NBC's Saturday morning lineup.

"I always wanted to do a series set at the American School in Paris," Engel says. "The idea was to have a bunch of kids living away from home during senior year because their parents are living in Europe or traveling with unusual jobs."

Based on the huge success of his series both at home and in dozens of countries worldwide, Engel persuaded NBC to be his production partner for 75 episodes of High. Taping began a year ago on a pace of four episodes every five weeks. In November, he closed the deal with USA.

Since then, advance sales of advertising have gone "through the roof," Perth says. "It's been unbelievably successful with advertisers that we've never been able to attract to the network before, (such as) soft drink companies and some candy companies."

All this euphoria is based on the belief that the combination of Bell and High will attract millions of adolescents to the tube.

So what will they find when they get there? A drop-dead gorgeous cast (all at least 20-something) and plenty of sexual innuendo. By a cozy chance, the main characters occupy a coed suite of rooms guaranteed to test even the most platonic of friendships.

Josh Holland stars as ringleader Jackson Green, a blond Luke Perry accessorized by a surfboard. Elena Lyons plays weight-conscious Lauren Fontaine. Marquita Terry portrays jargon-spouting, high-fiving Winnie Barnes, the token minority character.

Thomas Magiar plays pumped-up German transfer student Christian Mueller, whose favorite English phrase is "group hug." Blond Kristen Miller plays Ashley Elliott, daughter of the headmaster (Nicholas Guest); her favorite English phrase is "Sorry, Daddy!" And James Madio has the role of class clown Bobby Lazzarini. Bobby worships teacher Gabrielle Dupre (Angela Visser), who in turn has eyes for the headmaster.

Unlike Engel's NBC hits, High escapes the FCC rule requiring educational or pro-social content.

"The idea is to start with the message on our (NBC) Saturday morning shows," Engel says. "And on USA High, which just is fun, we don't have the same constraints."

Engel exercises his creative freedom with pubescent glee, giving the actors skintight costumes and lines such as "I have a Ferrari to start - Giuseppi Ferrari." If anything is being modeled here, it's the clothes, not the roles.

The best that can be said for USA High is that for juvenile entertainment, it's a great advertising vehicle.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES - March 21/April 20

This week tries your patience, Aries. Try to stay calm; getting upset only will make matters worse. Ask responsible co-workers for assistance. Things are easier when it comes to your personal life. That special someone you've been interested in finally agrees to go out with you. Now's your chance to shine.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Don't be too stubborn to accept change at work this week. A company reorganization seems to give you less chance to advance your career, but don't be fooled. Now, you have an even better chance to get ahead. Make your move. You meet an interesting person when out with friends. Don't be shy!

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

It's a tough week at work for you, Gemini. However, your fast thinking solves a serious problem late in the week and wins you praise from superiors. That special someone wants to take a break. Don't get discouraged. You two just need some time apart.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Your sense of humor during a stressful work situation wins you a higher-up's approval. This opens a lot of doors when it comes to your future. A close friend confides in you. Don't let him or her down by betraying this confidence. By keeping it to yourself, you can bring the two of you closer.

LEO - July 23/August 23

While the workweek goes by without a hitch, your personal life hits a snag. Just as you are starting to build a relationship with that special someone, loved ones need a lot of your time to handle a family problem. By explaining the situation to your significant other, you can keep the relationship going.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Don't be too critical of yourself when it comes to work early in the week. A serious problem that arises is not your fault, and your practicality actually saves the day by Friday. Superiors are really impressed. An old friend you haven't seen in a long time returns. Enjoy the catching up.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Co-workers try to prey on your naivete this week. Don't automatically believe what they say; think practically. It could mean losing a promotion. As for your love life, it goes smoothly. That intriguing person you've been seeing wants to see more of you. Say yes!

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let your ego get the better of you this week, Scorpio. Deep down inside, you know your abilities and limitations; don't lose sight of them. A loved one invites you on a group outing. While you aren't excited to go, you should be. There's a special surprise in store for you.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

There are a lot of rumors spreading around your office. Don't believe everything you hear, and don't let gossip dampen your spirits. You know whom you can trust at work, so turn to those people for more information. Your personal life moves into the fast lane when you meet an old friend at a party.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

You're on cloud nine this week, Capricorn. Everything works out for you at work. You finish an important project before deadline and catch the attention of the higher-ups. As for your love life, you meet someone who is really interested in you. Make your move!

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

You're full of surprises early in the week, Aquarius. You come up with a bold idea at work and win a major account, which impresses your superiors. Loved ones are pleasantly surprised when you plan a get-together for the whole family.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

Don't shy away from a commitment with a close friend just because you're afraid of being tied down. You certainly can help your friend without losing control of your life. Don't forget that, Pisces. An interesting person enters your life. Be cautious, but don't be afraid to take a chance.

Tom Bosley

Q: I remember a show I used to watch when I was a kid called Wait Till Your Father Gets Home, but I can't remember exactly what it was about. Can you help? -J. Arnold via e-mail.

A: This animated series, an attempt to ride the All in the Family gravy train, ran only in syndication from 1972-74. Tom Bosley provided the voice of archconservative Harry Boyle, who was constantly clashing with his hippie son, Chet, and his free-spirited daughter, Alice, while wife Irma tried to keep the peace.

Q: When did Gilligan's Island premiere and when did it end? -Angie U. in New York.

A: The castaways came to their CBS island on Sept. 26, 1964. Gilligan's Island sailed off the air as a weekly series on Sept. 4, 1967.

Q: My friend says that Captain Kangaroo is Ted Nugent's dad. I say he isn't. Who is right? Tammy Wrase, Appleton, Wis.

A: You are.

Q: In your column recently you stated that James MacArthur created the role of Danny in Hawaii Five-O. I recently saw the pilot and another actor was playing the role. -Thomas Garner, Wadsworth, Ohio.

A: Thanks for pointing out a detail that I missed. MacArthur did play Danny from the beginning of the weekly series, but the movie pilot the producers used to sell the show featured an actor named Tim O'Kelley in the role.

Q: Are George Clooney (ER) and Nick Clooney of American Movie Classics related? How about John Cusack (Con Air) and Ann Cusack (The Jeff Foxworthy Show)? -Ramona Gerard, Reedsport, Ore.

A: Yes on both counts. Nick Clooney is George's father. And John Cusack gave roles in his hit comedy Grosse Pointe Blank to all three of his acting siblings, Ann, Joan and Bill.

Q: What other movies and shows did Richard Long star in besides The Big Valley and Nanny and the Professor? Was he married when he died? -M.L.P., Jackson, Mich.

A: In addition to the two series you mentioned, Long co-starred with Julie Harris in a short-lived sitcom called Thicker Than Water and starred as Rex Randolph on two different but related dramas: Bourbon Street Beat and 77 Sunset Strip. I can't list all 20 of his (mostly minor) movie roles, but they include Death Cruise, Follow the Boys and Tokyo After Dark. It's also worth noting that he played Tom Kettle in The Egg and I and three Ma and Pa Kettle sequels.

Long was married to actress Mara Corday, his second wife, at the time of his death at age 47 on Dec. 21, 1974.

American takes unpaved road trip through Vietnam

For the seven-month trip, she brought $4,000, a backpack, a language text, a copy of The Lonely Planet and a Hi-8 video camera.

When she arrived, she had to call a friend to ask how to operate the camera; when she wanted footage of herself, she handed the camera to another tourist or one of the local people. Until she returned to the United States, she had no way of knowing whether the little canisters stowed in her backpack held any images at all.

"If somebody had told me on the plane that this would be a PBS documentary, I would have laughed," she says.

But the result, Hitchhiking Vietnam: Letters From the Trail, airing Tuesday, Aug. 5, on PBS (check local listings), is an inspiring and memorable adventure.

"Hitchhiking" is the term Muller uses for "opportunistic travel, which is lots of contact with the locals, putting yourself sort of below (them) and learning the language."

Muller traveled around Vietnam by foot, train, motorbike, oxcart and army truck. Never once, she says, did she fear for her safety.

As beautiful as she found the country's mountains, harbors and paddies, she insists "the people were more beautiful than the land."

And the land is beautiful, even in the grainy, hand-held images of the documentary.

Muller and her camera created a flurry of interest everywhere they went. She often was forced to draw a line in the ground with her toe and ask onlookers to stay behind it so she could work.

Muller even caught the attention of the Communist police: She was arrested several times, but learned to find ways around the regulations.

"Everything is illegal in Vietnam, but many things are possible," she says.

Muller will make her next trip with a laptop computer and post stories on a Website. She believes the electronic up-link is a mixed blessing.

"I make a living getting lost," she says with a laugh. "I'll never be lost again."

Fight for Justice: The Nancy Conn Story (1995) Marlu Henner, Doug Savant. A woman who survived a brutal attack launches a dangerous crusade to put her vengeful assailant back behind bars. 2:00. August 9 7pm.

SOAP WORLD

Bad boy Born joins All My Children

Roscoe Born, last seen rocking viewers' worlds in The City, has landed himself a new role. The man who has made a career out of playing bad boys joins the cast of All My Children.

The affable and charming actor's new role is Laura's (Lauren Roman) father. And he definitely is a man with an agenda - one that is going to cause serious trouble.

But getting into trouble is nothing new for Born's characters. As Mitch Laurence on One Life to Live, he messed with Tina's mind and wreaked havoc all over Llanview. During his stay in Santa Barbara, he played devilish twin Quinn Armitage. Rounding out the list of scoundrels he has portrayed are mobster Joe Novak on Ryan's Hope and rock star Nick Rivers on The City.

Also joining the AMC cast is Emmy winner Helen Gallagher. The actress is best known for her role as Maeve Ryan on Ryan's Hope.

In other news: Frank Dicopoulos (Frank Cooper, Guiding Light) and his wife, Teja Anderson, welcomed a new addition to their family on June 24. Olivia Anderson Dicopoulos weighed in at 8 pounds, 4 ounces.

Dear Candace: I've watched The Young and the Restless for years, and it is the sorriest it has ever been.

I'm so sick of Victor and Nikki (Eric Braeden, Melody Thomas Scott) always trying to get back together while they are with other people. They need to just get a life.

The plot where Grace (Jennifer Gareis) finds Sharon's (Sharon Case) daughter and then doesn't tell Sharon is ridiculous.

I'd like to know how the ratings system works for television. I have a hard time believing that something as stupid as Y&R has been No. 1 for so many years. -Nina Jacobs, New Castle, Ind.

Dear Reader: Y&R fans are loyal and stick with it through the good and bad. I can just imagine how you feel about Nick (Joshua Morrow), Sharon's husband, sleeping with Grace.

CHITTER CHATTER

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Makers of a new movie are promoting Sylvester Stallone as one of its stars and Stallone doesn't like it.

Stallone is suing DEM Productions Inc., producers of "The Good Life," claiming he performed a six-minute monologue for the picture and is falsely being promoted as one of its stars. Now he's suing for $20 million, saying that's what he would normally charge for a leading role.

"Had defendants requested the unfettered right to use Stallone's name, photograph and likeness in all advertising, artwork and promotion for the motion picture, he would have requested compensation of no less than a $20 million fee," said the lawsuit filed Thursday.

Stallone did the monologue as a cameo for minimal compensation in exchange for DEM's agreement to limit the use of his name and likeness in screen credits and publicity, said his lawyer, Martin D. Singer.

Instead, the lawsuit said, Stallone appears in almost one-third of one promotional reel and he is given more prominent credit than other cast members.

NEW YORK (AP) - Jennifer Aniston is learning the ups and downs of being a television star.

After making it quick and big on the hit series "Friends," Aniston said she was shocked when all of a sudden there was a backlash.

"It had great success, and we were thrilled. Then it got bigger and bigger, and then out of nowhere one day you're reading that people are really annoyed," Aniston said.

She couldn't put the criticism out of her mind, she told USA Weekend, until Steven Spielberg offered her this advice: "This happens to everybody. Don't think you're so special."

These days she's waiting to see if audiences will buy her on the big screen. Her new film, "Picture Perfect," opens this week.

"I don't know what it is, why some people will make it in movies and some won't," she said. "When does your time run out? I'm hoping you get to a place when you are comfortable enough in your body of work that you can look behind you and go, 'This is what I want to do. This feels close to me.'"

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Actress Debra Paget says the King of Rock 'n' Roll wanted her to be his queen, but her parents wouldn't allow it.

Paget, who starred opposite Elvis Presley in his 1956 movie debut "Love Me Tender," said he proposed to her but she declined because her parents objected.

"Elvis was really a sweet young man," she said in an interview Sunday in The Tennessean. "I had worked with him on 'The Milton Berle Show' about three months before we did that film."

"He used to come over to our house and have dinner and just go around with my family. He called me from El Paso and asked me to marry him. My mother and daddy were not for my getting involved. I probably would have married him," Paget said. Presley wed Priscilla Beaulieu in 1967.

The average big-screen movie costs $40 million to produce. Studios spend an additional $20 million for advertising.
