Youth dies in accident

A car-train wreck Monday near Summerfield claimed the life of a 15-year-old Hereford youth and sent two other Hereford residents to the Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Jamie Martinez was dead at the scene of the accident involving a Burlington Northern/Santa Fe Train and a mid 80s model Buick Riviera. The accident occurred just after 5 p.m. at the Cattle Town railway crossing off U.S. 60.

The car driven by his mother, Carmen Chavira, 40, was traveling south, crossing the tracks when it was hit in front of the rear passenger wheel by the east-bound train.

The driver and 15-year-old Ricky Alvarez sustained injuries and were transported to Hereford Regional Medical Center where they were treated and released.

Further details of the accident were not available. The Hereford office of the Texas Department of Public Safety has not yet completed the investigation.

The railroad crossing has no safety arms or lights. The only markings are the Xes painted on the road.

Funeral arrangements for Jamie Martinez are being handled by Gililand-Watson Funeral Home.

Fatal accident

A 15-year-old Hereford youth, identified as Jamie Martinez, died in the collision of an automobile and a Burlington Northern/Santa Fe train west of Hereford Monday afternoon.

The accident occurred at the Cattle Town crossing of the railway, off U.S. 60, at Summerfield. Two other persons were taken to Hereford Regional Medical Center for treatment, and released.

New charge faces inmate

A 23-year-old inmate in Deaf Smith County jail added to his legal woes Saturday morning when he attempted to escape and, in the process, roughed up a corrections officer.

Fred Gonzales, who was being held on bail jumping and failure to appear and other charges, walked away from a work detail at the jail on July 18 and a felony charge of escape was lodged against him.

Then, Saturday morning, Gonzales attacked Christina Barrera and Jamie Pena, corrections officers, in an aborted escape attempt.

A spokesperson in the office of Sheriff Joe Brown, Sharon Pennington, reported Barrera sustained scrapes and bruises as she and Pena subdued Gonzales.

Barrera was treated at Hereford Regional Medical Center but was not hospitalized.

Pennington said reports on the jail incident have been turned over to Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul to consider filing charges for escape and aggravated assault of a corrections officer against Gonzales.

Gonzales has several convictions on his record, including misdemeanor driving while intoxicated (second offense) and failure to identify.

Law designed to help teacher shortage

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - As Texas schools cope with a shortage of certified teachers, teacher aides may help fill part of the gap under a new law allowing them to pursue their educator certificates without paying college tuition.

"We must find new supplies of certified individuals willing to work in the classroom," Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, sponsor of the scholarship program, said Monday.

At least half of Texas' 241,440 educators are teaching at least one subject outside of the field in which they are certified, according to the State Board of Educator Certification.

In mathematics alone last year, more teachers without their certification in that subject conducted classes (13,994) than did certified teachers (13,938).

"That is not good news for Texas. That might explain why the students are still doing poorly in mathematics," Barrientos, D-Austin, said at a Monday news conference with the Texas Federation of Teachers to promote the teacher aide scholarship program.

The news may get worse, Barrientos said.

In the next eight years, the number of retirees in the Teacher Retirement System is expected to grow by 31 percent, while the student population continues to grow as well, Barrientos said.

Last school year, there were nearly 10,000 more spaces for certified teachers than there were available educators, said certification board spokesman Glenn Greenwood.

With the help of the new law, Austin teacher aide Ann Anderson wants to be part of the solution to the educator shortage problem.

One of more than 43,000 educational aides in Texas, Ms. Anderson said until now, she couldn't afford to pursue her goal of becoming a certified teacher.

The tuition exemption is enough of a boost to allow her to go to Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, where she said she has already been accepted.

The tuition exemption is available for Texas public colleges and universities.

The program will be funded by at least $4 million from the state this year, TFT President John Cole said.

Grant jury returns 16 indictments

The Deaf Smith County grand jury returned 16 indictments Monday, including an indictment against a 29-year-old jail inmate who walked away from a work detail on June 2.

Raymond "Moonie" Sanchez Cervantez, 29, was originally arrested in mid-May and charged with forgery by making. Bond on that charge had been set at $2,500.

Cervantez escaped while on car washing work detail by jumping into a late model car driven by an unidentified person.

Cervantez was recaptured on July 7 in the San Jose area. Bond on the original charge was increased to $250,000 and an additional bond of $150,000 was required on the escape charge.

Cervantez remains in custody.

Ramon Cisneros, 34, 213 Star was indicted for driving while intoxicated. He is free on $1,000 bond.

Jacinto Orsoco, 29, Hereford was indicted for felony driving while intoxicated and a possession of a controlled substance, cocaine. He posted a $2,500 bond for DWI and a $2,000 bond for the possession charge.

Reymundo Ortiz Rodriguez, 29, Hereford was indicted for felony driving while intoxicated and posted $500 bond.

Roger Pickens, 39, Hereford was indicted for forgery by passing. He remains in custody.

Michael Anthony Zuniga, 34, 409 Ave. J was indicted for forgery by making. He is in custody.

Noel Andrade, 28, 613 N. Ave. H was indicted for jumping bail and failure to appear. He is in lieu of bond.

Francisco Flores, 26, 118 Alamo was indicted on two charges of sexual assault. He remains in custody.

Antonio Barrientez, 20, Hereford was indicted for sexual assault. He is in custody.

Francisco Vasquez, 18, 110 Alamo was indicted for sexual assault, and is in lieu of bond.

With the help of the new law, Austin teacher aide Ann Anderson wants to be part of the solution to the educator shortage problem.

One of more than 43,000 educational aides in Texas, Ms. Anderson said until now, she couldn't afford to pursue her goal of becoming a certified teacher.

State tour undertaken to promote tax election

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - Top state Democrats helped Republican Gov. George W. Bush kick off his 17-city tour of Texas to promote the proposed school property tax break on Saturday's ballot.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney aren't traveling with Bush, but they joined him at a Capitol news conference as he started out Monday.

"A billion dollars in property relief ... is certainly not anything to sneeze at," said Bullock.

Early voting ends Tuesday on the proposed constitutional amendment, which would raise the exemption from local school taxes on primary homesteads. The current minimum exemption is $5,000. The amendment would raise the minimum exemption to $15,000.

That means a home assessed at $100,000 would be taxable on up to $85,000 of its value instead of $95,000. Additional exemptions extended by school districts also could decrease the taxable amount.

As early voting in Saturday's homestead tax amendment to the Texas Constitution wound down Tuesday, Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland reported more than 220 ballots cast.

Voters will go to the polls Saturday to decide whether school taxes may be reduced by an increase in homestead exemption from $5,000 to $15,000.

Early voting ended at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Bullock called the election "as much a referendum on Texans' participation in their government, in my opinion, as it is on property tax relief." Laney said he also was concerned about turnout.

Secretary of State Tony Garza, the state's chief elections officer, isn't making a turnout prediction, said his spokeswoman, Lisa Glass. Turnout for constitutional amendment elections usually is around 15 percent and has dipped as low as 7.5 percent, she said.

Bush said if the turnout is low, it will be because August is an unusual time for an election. The date was chosen to give school districts time to plan their budgets.

Sandy Stagner finally lost her battle with cancer. Many of our readers will remember her as a longtime Lifestyle Editor for The Hereford Brand. She was a good'un, and she lives on through her loved ones and her many friends.

Sandy's personality was great in a one-on-one situation, where her concern and love was not only apparent, but came across with a radiant quality.

For a newspaper reporter, however, Sandy had a terrible shortcoming and one that we tried to help cure over the years. She hated to be in a crowd of people, and she was as uncomfortable as a cat on a hot tin roof when she was put in that situation!

She helped make the work place at The Brand more enjoyable for all the staff, but she hated to get outside and report on group meetings, especially in a room with no big windows.

She went to work for us right out of high school, helping Sue Coleman in the Lifestyle department. She was convinced that she was not a writer, per se, but only one who typed down the facts for a story. I made it a personal project to get her to write feature articles and to put her thoughts in a column.

After overcoming a bout with thyroid cancer in 1986, we convinced Sandy it would help others - as well as being good therapy for herself - to write a feature article about that struggle. After all, we told her, "You're a brutally honest person, and your story will be an inspiration to others who have the big C."

The full-page article was headlined "One must cope with trauma of cancer...before, during, after." Sandy was 30 years old at the time. As she left for surgery in Dallas, she waved goodbye to her parents, who were

GOP amassing huge amounts in donations; Gringrich paying off legal fees with money

By KAREN GULLO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Majority Leader Dick Armey have amassed twice as much political money as they did in the first half of 1995, with Gingrich using a good chunk of his contributions to pay lawyers' bills.

According to a six-month report filed by the Friends of Newt Gingrich committee with the Federal Election Commission, the Georgia Republican had collected $1.8 million by June 30 - more than double what the committee raised two years ago.

Armey's committee raised $400,000 for the Texas Republican, compared with $191,000 in the first half of 1995.

Meanwhile, Republican party committees that raise money for House and Senate candidates have taken in more than $23 million in the last six months, more than double the $11 million raised by rival Democratic committees, according to FEC reports.

Political money comes easier to those in power, said Larry Makinson, who studies campaign finance for the nonpartisan Center for Responsive Politics.

"It's an alert to all would-be Democratic challengers that the ante has gone way up," said Makinson. "Money is a wonderful repellent."

Most of the contributions come from individual donors who gave $50, $100 or $250. But special interests also gave generously to lawmakers and party committees.

Gingrich received over $200,000 from political action committees, including those for a pilots association, banks and tobacco companies.

The Georgia Republican used a good part of his campaign contributions to pay legal bills, some stemming from his ethics case. He spent over $500,000 on lawyers in the last six months.

Mike Shields, spokesman for Friends of Newt Gingrich, said he could not provide a breakdown of legal expenses for the ethics case, which involved the use of tax-exempt groups to advance political goals.

The case didn't hurt Gingrich's fund raising, and probably helped him raise money from Republican activists who viewed the ethics case as an attempt by Democrats to topple the speaker, said Shields.

About a third of Armey's money - $137,000 - came from PACs, an FEC report shows.

Democratic leaders have also lined campaign coffers. House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., viewed as a likely presidential contender in 2000, raised $1.4 million, with over $500,000 coming from PACs. Gephardt raised just under $1 million in the first half of 1995.

Most senators' midyear reports are not yet available, but Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., raised $1 million as of June 30. That included $425,000 from PACs.

Republican and Democratic committees raised hundreds of thousands of dollars in "soft money" donations from corporations, unions and wealthy patrons by midyear, even as President Clinton and some lawmakers have called for a ban on such donations.

For example, the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe gave $90,000 to the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee in June. E & J Gallo Winery gave $50,000 to the DSCC. A company owned by Rupert Murdoch gave $50,000 to the National Republican Campaign Committee.

Soft money is exempt from the $25,000-a-year contribution limit for each donor and is supposed to be spent only on party-building activities, such as get-out-the-vote drives, not on promoting individual candidates.

President determined

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton says if the Democratic National Committee accepted illegal foreign donations, "It better never happen again."

"If anybody violated the law, I'm very disappointed ... We checked every check in my presidential campaign," Clinton said in an interview with Fox News Channel on Monday.

The president said it made him "sick at heart" that proper procedures had not been followed in accepting contributions that ultimately were returned by the DNC.

"I was angry that the checking hadn't been in," Clinton said. "I was angry because it gave the party, I think, an unfair image."

"Whether it was done deliberately or not is not the point. The point is that political parties just should protect their contributors from their own exuberance, if nothing else," Clinton said.

Congressional committees and the Justice Department are investigating whether illegal foreign money found its way into the 1996 election. The White House has said there was no reason to suspect that any returned donation was improper.

Clinton reiterated his call for Congress to pass legislation that would ban unlimited "soft money" contributions to political parties and authorize voluntary spending limits for candidates in exchange for reduced broadcast-advertising costs.

UPS managers climb into trucks, sort packages to handle shipping

By KAREN HILL
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) - United Parcel Service managers who worked their way up through company ranks climbed back onto delivery trucks and package sorting lines, and customers made do with limited shipping alternatives.

With no talks scheduled today between the Teamsters union and the nation's largest package delivery service, President Clinton refused to get involved to end the nationwide strike.

"I hope they'll go back to the table, but at this time I don't think any further action by me is appropriate," Clinton said.

Customers who got UPS packages Monday often had to wait for deliveries the company admitted were slower than usual because the drivers were unfamiliar with the routes.

"It's not an easy job for anybody," said Dallas Zander, a striking UPS driver in Des Moines, Iowa. "It's hard if you've got a regular service to keep up."

The UPS managers, traditionally promoted from within the company, delivered about 10 percent of the company's usual packages, spokesman Robert Godlewski said. UPS plans to empty the distribution centers of packages already there before accepting any new shipments.

"You name it," UPS spokesman Ken Shapero said of the substitute drivers, "everyone from accountants to industrial engineers. We may even have a public affairs guy in there."

About 185,000 union workers, two-thirds of the company's 302,000 employees in the United States, walked off the job at midnight Sunday after contract talks between management and the union stalled.

The two sides were unable to reach compromises on pay, pensions and the use of part-time employees.

Although no negotiations were scheduled, a UPS representative met Monday with presidential aides and "made a case for intervention," a White House official told The Associated Press, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The 12 million packages delivered daily by UPS - 80 percent of nation's total package deliveries - represent 6 percent of the nation's gross domestic product. UPS normally does $80 million in business a day but couldn't say how much money it has lost so far.

The Independent Pilots Association, which represents UPS' 2,000 pilots, honored the Teamsters' picket lines. Some management pilots were available to fly, however, and UPS also uses chartered planes for some deliveries.

The strike, however, left companies like Trans-Star Inc. of Atlanta, which ships about 100 packages of car parts daily to mechanics throughout the Southeast, struggling to find alternate carriers.

"One problem is that we're having to use carriers who don't accept cash payments and some of our customers are having to use their personal credit cards to pay for deliveries," said

Andy Lucky, operations and finance director for Trans-Star.

UPS' chief rival, the Postal Service, imposed a limit of four parcels per window customer.

In suburban Pittsburgh, the Diabetes Medical Supply sent a few urgent orders of glucose-test strips via Airborne Express rather than UPS, at about triple the usual $3.50 cost.

"We will have to pay the air rate just to send it local," said manager Jim Gavin. "That's just the way it works. It's the same thing with Federal Express. We're trying only to do it for orders that are urgent."

At the Mount Horeb Mustard Museum, curator Barry Levenson mapped out a route among the Dane County, Wis., post offices to try to sneak around the limit.

"It's kind of a minor crisis for us," said Monica Goldsby, a condiment counselor at the museum, which has a 24-page catalog that sells mustards from around the world.

For FedEx, however, it was Christmas in August. The Memphis, Tenn.-based company expected to surpass its all-time handling record of 4 million packages, set last December.

It made no plans to cancel workers' vacations, said FedEx spokeswoman Darlene Faquin. However, FedEx temporarily ended its money-back guarantee for on-time deliveries and refused to accept new accounts.

Little trouble was reported on picket lines nationwide.

Seven pickets were charged with disorderly conduct - one in Rhode Island and the others in Massachusetts - for blocking trucks as they rolled out of distribution centers.

In Philadelphia, strikers said they allowed about 20 trucks to leave the distribution center because they were carrying important medical supplies.

Dear Ann Landers: You pride yourself on printing both sides of the story. Well, how about printing this one? Sorry it's too late for Mother's Day.

My mother gave me to my paternal grandparents to raise after she found my sister and me eating ant poison. I was 4 years old, and my sister was 2. When we became violently ill, she did not seek help for us, although a medical clinic was only eight blocks away. When my sister died the next day, Mom blamed me for the tragedy because I was older and "should have known better."

Eventually, I moved back home, but I was abused by my mother both physically and emotionally. As a child, I feared her. As an adolescent, I hated her. Where was our father when all this was going on? Drinking, mostly. He always had money for alcohol, but there was never enough money for food, clothes or shoes for us kids.

Mom died at 89, and I don't know where she went. I'm sure it wasn't heaven, and she was so cruel and vicious, even the devil wouldn't have her. I survived my miserable

Dear Ann Landers: I am married to an extremely good-hearted man who is a certified mechanic. He can fix or build absolutely anything. He's an expert at carpentry, welding, motors, plumbing and electronics -- you name it, he can repair it.

The trouble is that family, friends and acquaintances take advantage of him. The minute he gets home from work, the phone starts ringing. Weekends are worse. I don't mind emergency calls, but I do resent it when people lean on him to do routine maintenance stuff. They call us. They beg. They plead. They come over and pound on the door, interrupting our dinner, favorite TV program or lovemaking.

Moving away is out. We love our home, and it's nearly paid for. Maybe if just one person sees him or herself in this letter and backs off, some good will come of it. I don't know anyone who doesn't read your column. -- Shreveport, La.

Dear Shreveport: I have a feeling that your husband may not be nearly as resentful as you are. In fact, he may even enjoy lending a helpful hand. It could give him a feeling of satisfaction and a sense of pride knowing that he is needed and that his skills are recognized.

People who have a special talent or area of expertise are always leaned on by family, friends and acquaintances. If it's any comfort to you, you're not alone. Read on:

Dear Ann Landers: I am a paralegal. Guess how many calls I get for free advice. Everyone says, "I just want to ask a simple legal question." Just because I work for an attorney, they think I'm supposed to know the law. Well, sometimes, I don't know what I'm talking about, and I might give the wrong information.

Here's what I DO know about the law. Practicing law without a license carries stiff penalties. It's a crime for non-lawyers to give legal advice.

Please, folks, call an attorney if you need legal help. Many lawyers will be happy to give you a free consultation on your first visit. -- No Legal Eagle in N.Y.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Nuggets and Doozies," has everything from the outrageously funny to the poignantly insightful. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $6.25.)

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: In one of your columns you told about the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers offering a free pamphlet with great information that explains all the different types of hosiery available and what is right for your figure and that favorite outfit.

Would you please put this information in your column again. I know that sometimes our paper edits it. -- Marcia Makowski, Roswell, N.M.

You bet your pantyhose I will! Many times individual newspapers will edit my column to fit the space for that day, so here it is again. Tear this out right now!

Send a self-addressed, stamped (32 cents), legal-size envelope to: National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers (NAHM), 200 N. Sharon Amity Road, Charlotte, NC 28211. You can also visit their web site at <http://www.nahm.com>.

When we spoke to NAHM, they had received over 5,000 requests from Heloise readers for the consumer's guide to buying hosiery called "Sheer Personality!"

In their March 1997 newsletter, Hosiery News, they printed that "many sent in three or four envelopes and asked that their friends across the country receive one too. There were even a few men who wrote about being sent to the store to purchase sheer hosiery for their wives only to walk away confused."

So, if you are baffled about the different kinds of hosiery, end the confusion and send for this pamphlet. You'll be glad you did. -- Heloise

FOOD STORAGE

Dear Heloise: As a self-employed management consultant I often find myself carrying office supplies in the kitchen and finding novel uses for them.

The other day I was putting away a half-full box of frozen peas and needed a way to hold the box closed. I had a heavy binder clip in my pocket that worked perfectly. I simply folded the end of the box over twice and snapped the clip on. It also works well for resealing plastic bags.

I now keep a box of clips in the kitchen to use for food storage. -- Morrie Kraemer, Cobb Island, Md.

ODORS

Dear Heloise: I read a letter in your column from a woman who was trying to get the mothball odor out of a chest of drawers.

Stuff the drawers with crumpled newspaper and keep them closed for 24 to 48 hours. Change the newspaper until the odor is gone. It could take a few weeks. -- Chris Davidson, Houston

A good way to reuse newspapers too! -- Heloise

LIGHTING CANDLES

Dear Heloise: It seems I always have trouble lighting tea light and votive candles, even the fireplace.

Instead of singeing my fingers I light an uncooked piece of spaghetti, then light my difficult wick. It works great! -- Mary Anne Czajkowski, Pace, Fla.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Aug. 5, the 217th day of 1997. There are 148 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Aug. 5, 1962, actress Marilyn Monroe, 36, was found dead in her Los Angeles home. Her death was ruled a "probable suicide" from an overdose of sleeping pills.

On this date:
In 1861, the federal government levied an income tax for the first time.

In 1864, during the Civil War, Union Adm. David G. Farragut is said to have given his famous order, "Damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead!" as he led his fleet against Mobile Bay, Ala.

In 1884, the cornerstone for the Statue of Liberty was laid on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor.

In 1914, the first electric traffic lights were installed, in Cleveland.

In 1924, the comic strip "Little Orphan Annie" by Harold Gray made its debut.

In 1957, "American Bandstand," hosted by Dick Clark, made its network debut on ABC-TV.

In 1963, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union signed a treaty in Moscow banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, space and underwater.

In 1969, the U.S. space probe Mariner 7 flew by Mars, sending back photographs and scientific data.

In 1981, the federal government began firing air traffic controllers who had gone out on strike.

In 1984, actor Richard Burton died at a hospital in Geneva, Switzerland, at the age of 58.

Ten years ago: President Reagan announced his administration had reached a "general agreement" with leaders of Congress on a new Central America peace plan. Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega offered to discuss the U.S. proposal.

Five years ago: Federal civil rights charges were filed against four Los Angeles police officers acquitted of state charges in the videotaped beating of Rodney King; two were later convicted. Acting Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger called for a war crimes investigation in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

One year ago: In a bold bid to capture a skeptical public's attention, Republican presidential candidate Bob Dole proposed a $548 billion tax cut. A jury in San Jose, Calif., recommended the death penalty for Richard Allen Davis, convicted of kidnapping and murdering 12-year-old Polly Klaas.

Today's Birthdays: Former astronaut Neil A. Armstrong is 67. Country singer Vern Gosdin is 63. Actor John Saxon is 62. Country singer Sammi Smith is 54. Actress Loni Anderson is 51. Mexican fans cheer Dolphins to victory

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Say this about Mexican football crowds - they don't care when garbage time arrives.

Like the 104,209 fans - third-largest crowd in NFL history - who saw the Miami Dolphins beat the Denver Broncos 38-19 Monday night. They chanted, sang, booed and did the wave the whole game, or well after the first teams had gone to the bench.

Why? "It's a type of show that doesn't come too frequently," said Dolphins fan Juan Pablo Troop, 27, who watched the game from one of the suites at Estadio Guillermo Candeo (formerly Azteca Stadium), the city's massive soccer bowl.

And if they're paying up to $50 for a ticket to an exhibition, they might as well have a good time.

Especially the thousands upon thousands of fans who make the Dolphins the second-favorite team in Mexico, behind the Dallas Cowboys.

The fans chanted "Delfines" when their beloved Dolphins did well, and flashbulbs popped even during point-after kicks.

Two guys who didn't have fun were John Elway, who left with a partially torn bicep tendon in his throwing arm, and Miami linebacker Zach Thomas, who broke his left fibula. Both hope to be back by the time the season opens Aug. 31, or not long after.

The Broncos had their share of supporters, but were booed all night, even when lining up for field goals.

The crowd unleashed its loudest hoots and whistles when Mexico City native Marco Martos - whom they cheered earlier - knelt down in the end zone on the kickoff following the final touchdown.

Zack Thomas breaks fibula

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Miami Dolphins linebacker Zach Thomas broke his left fibula on a kickoff return in the first quarter of Monday night's game against the Denver Broncos, but said he expects to be back by the season opener.

The Dolphins, who beat the Broncos 38-19, open the regular season against Indianapolis on Aug. 31.

"I lunged out at someone and pushed him out of the way," said Thomas, who started all 16 games last season as rookie. "I went airborne and my foot got hit while I was in the air, almost like a leg whip. I didn't think anything was wrong until I got up. I tried to walk it off but they told me they were going to take me off on a cart. I'll be back for the Colts."

Said coach Jimmy Johnson: "I'm sick about Zach Thomas breaking his fibula but hopefully we'll have him back in three to four weeks."

Reeling in a steer

Trevor Brazile of Amarillo starts taking up the slack after roping a steer this weekend during the Spicer Gripp Memorial Roping event. Brazile placed in the finals of Saturday's calf roping but was squeezed out of the final average in steer roping. The roping event, held in Hereford for the first time, served as a curtain raiser of the Town & Country Jubilee.

In 3rd annual Spicer Gripp Memorial Lewis, Hodge win roping events

Brent Lewis of Eloy, Arizona, and Jimmy Hodge from Lometa galloped away with the best averages in calf and steer roping during the third annual Spicer Gripp Memorial Roping held this past weekend at Alford Arena in Westway.

The two cowboys were part of a 31-professional roper field that traveled to Hereford for the event, which marked its first appearance here as part of Hereford's Town and Country Jubilee. The two-day event, which was begun in Amarillo two years ago, honors the memory of longtime Hereford cowboy Spicer Gripp. Proceeds from the annual roping fund scholarships to West Texas A & M University in Gripp's name.

One of Hereford's own cowboys, 16-year-old Monty Lewis, earned a little more respect from the more-seasoned competitors after he roped his way into the finals of the calf roping half of the contest.

Lewis paired off against another Hereford rider, Ashley Noland, in the two-head trials and won with a total time of 24.6, over Noland's 63.47.

Lewis then clinched his 2nd round match with a time of 25.83 over Bill Warner's no-time, but wound-out the day behind first place finisher Brent Lewis and Trevor Brazile who claimed 2nd.

In Sunday's steer roping portion of the contest, Jimmy Hodge became the spoiler after he amassed a 49.8 in the time averages. He had earlier claimed the third go round with a time of 10.68.

Twins' hurler notches 12th victory; Rangers lose

By The Associated Press
Make it a dozen wins in a row for Brad Radke, the hottest pitcher the American League has seen in 25 years.

Radke picked up his 12th victory in as many starts Monday night as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 9-3. According to the Elias Sports Bureau, there are only three pitchers who have won 12 consecutive starts since 1950.

Bob Gibson of St. Louis did it in 1968 and Pat Dobson did it with Baltimore in 1971.

"I never really thought I should be there," Radke said of his climb through the record books. "It's nice to be up there. It's nice to be on a streak like this."

In other games, it was: Cleveland 7, Detroit 2; the New York Yankees 5, Kansas City 4; Boston 11, Texas

5; and Milwaukee 5, Anaheim 2. Radke, a 24-year-old right-hander who entered this season with a career major league record of 22-30, allowed two runs - both unearned.

Radke (16-5) tied the Twins record for consecutive wins set by Scott Erickson in 1991. Radke's winning streak is the longest in the majors this season, surpassing Roger Clemens' 11-0 start. The AL record for consecutive wins is 16, held by four players. Schoolboy Rowe was the last to do it in 1934.

The major league record is 19, set by Tim Lincecum in 1888 and matched by Rube Marquard in 1912.

Next on the list for Radke is Ellis Kinder, who won 13 straight starts in 1949. Radke will have to beat the New York Yankees on Saturday night to do that.

Radke allowed five hits, struck out four and walked three as he lowered his ERA during the streak to 1.87. He left after throwing 125 pitches in seven innings.

Greg Colbrunn hit a pinch-hit grand slam off reliever Omar Daal in Minnesota's six-run fifth inning. Chris Carpenter (0-4) walked in the first two runs that inning.

Chuck Knoblauch went 3-for-5 for the Twins with a single, double and triple. Matt Lawton also drove in two runs.

Red Sox 11, Rangers 5

At Arlington, Texas, Troy O'Leary's three-run triple in the eighth inning led Boston over Texas.

With the Red Sox trailing 5-4, John Valentin led off the eighth with a single off Matt Whiteside and Mike Stanley drew a walk off Danny Patterson (7-5). Wil Cordero's infield single loaded the bases and O'Leary's drive off the scoreboard cleared the bases.

Nomar Garciaparra went 3-for-5 with his 19th homer and an RBI single for his league-leading 47th multi-hit game. Valentin also went 3-for-5.

Yankees 5, Royals 4

At Kansas City, David Wells came within two outs of getting his third shutout in four starts, Charlie Hayes hit two home runs and New York held on to beat Kansas City.

The victory was the fifth in six games for the Yankees (64-45), who moved a season-high 19 games over .500 and 5½ games behind idle Baltimore in the AL East.

Wells (12-5) took a three-hitter into the ninth but was relieved by Jeff Nelson with one out after allowing a pair of singles and committing a throwing error that allowed Kansas City to score its first run.

Indians 7, Tigers 2

At Detroit, Manny Ramirez homered and drove in four runs, Jim Thome hit his 30th homer and Charles Nagy continued his domination of Detroit.

Nagy (11-7) improved to 12-4 lifetime against the Tigers, his most wins against any club. Nagy, who is 2-1 against the Tigers this season and was 3-0 last year, gave up two runs on seven hits and two walks with seven strikeouts.

Thome's homer in the seventh made him the first Cleveland left-handed hitter to hit 30 homers in successive seasons since Hal Trosky in 1936-37.

Brewers 5, Angels 2

At Anaheim, Calif., Jose Valentin, Dave Nilsson and Jeromy Burnitz all homered in the fourth inning as Milwaukee beat Anaheim for its 10th victory in 12 games.

The loss was only the seventh in 28 games for the Angels, who slipped back into a tie for first place in the AL West with the idle Seattle Mariners.

McGwire off to slow start with Cards; Marlins score 4-1 win over Houston

By The Associated Press
So far, Mark McGwire has flopped in Philadelphia and stumbled at Shea Stadium.

The mighty McGwire was 0-for-4 with two strikeouts - one with John Mabry aboard and no outs in the ninth - as the New York Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 Monday night.

Four games into his first tour of National League parks, McGwire is 1-for-13 with five strikeouts, an infield single and a .077 batting average for the Cardinals.

And this is the same guy who brought his major league-leading 34 home runs with him from Oakland?

"He's got so much talent, he'll make it work," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said. "I'll bet on him finding a way to make it work."

Nothing worked for McGwire against the Mets. He popped out, grounded out, took a called third strike and then whiffed on a 1-2 pitch by John Franco in the ninth.

In other NL games, it was: Florida 4, Houston 1; Philadelphia 7, Colorado 3; San Francisco 9, Cincinnati 1; and Atlanta 6, Pittsburgh 0.

Lance Johnson hit a pair of RBI triples and Rick Reed won his fourth straight start as the Mets overcame a 2-0 deficit in a game delayed by rain for 1 hour, 27 minutes in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Johnson went 3-for-4 and Reed doubled and scored as the Mets opened an eight-game homestand. The Cardinals lost for the sixth time in eight games.

Marlins 4, Astros 1

At Miami, rookie Livan Hernandez (6-0) came through again for Florida, winning his sixth straight game with 7 1/3 strong innings against Houston.

With the Marlins ahead 2-1 in the sixth, Bobby Bonilla hit a two-out, two-run homer and singled home a run in the fourth.

Astros rookie Chris Holtz (7-8) took the loss. Houston had a seven-game road winning streak snapped.

Hernandez became the first pitcher in the Marlins' five-year history to win his first six decisions. He allowed four hits and struck out four before Jay Powell went the final 1 2/3 innings for his second save.

Phillies 7, Rockies 3

At Philadelphia, the Phillies won for the sixth time in their last seven games as Tyler Green (2-1) pitched seven solid innings.

Scott Rolen gave Philadelphia a 4-3 lead with a two-out, two-run homer in the fifth and doubled and scored a run in the fourth.

Braves 6, Pirates 0

John Smoltz (10-9) pitched a four-hitter for his second shutout of the season and Andruw Jones provided the power with a two-run homer at Three Rivers Stadium.

Smoltz did not allow a runner past second until Joe Randa walked to open the seventh and reached third on a double play.

Giants 9, Reds 1

At Cincinnati, J.T. Snow hit two homers and had a career-best five RBIs to lead San Francisco, which moved 1 1/2 games ahead of idle Los Angeles in the NL West - the Giants' biggest margin in eight days.

Snow hit a two-run homer, his 17th, off Richie Lewis to put the Giants ahead 6-1 in the seventh inning. He added a three-run shot in the ninth off Felix Rodriguez, a 431-foot drive into the third deck in right field.

Switzer arrested for carrying pistol

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - When Dallas Cowboys coach Barry Switzer has made mistakes in the past, owner Jerry Jones was always there to defend him.

Not this time. At least not yet.

When asked if Switzer's arrest for carrying a loaded pistol into the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Monday could cost the coach his job, Jones said, "That's not something that I'm going to comment on at this time."

Switzer was detained Monday morning, his .38-caliber weapon was confiscated, and he was released about two hours later on his own recognizance, said airport spokeswoman Angel Biasatti.

Switzer, after returning to Austin to join the team at training camp, said he had inadvertently left the gun in his travel bag after putting it there with the intention of hiding it from three young children who were guests at his home over the weekend.

"I am embarrassed for (Dallas owner) Jerry Jones and the Cowboys organization for an innocent, honest mistake that I made," Switzer said at a news conference.

He was clearly shaken by the incident and refused to take any questions.

"Unless he is hit by a truck or gets shot, he'll be coaching the Dallas Cowboys a long time," Jones has said of Switzer in the past.

That ready support was absent after Jones learned of Monday's incident.

Switzer's arrest came on the heels of months of tireless work by Jones to put players on notice that off-the-field incidents won't be tolerated.

In the past three years, the Cowboys have had five players suspended for violating the NFL's substance abuse policy, including two of their biggest stars, wide receiver Michael Irvin and defensive tackle Leon Lett.

Of Switzer's transgression, Jones said: "It's a very serious matter. This is not something that Barry intended to do. However, the oversight cannot be ignored."

"It's a very disappointing mistake on Barry's part relative to what we are trying to accomplish."

Carrying a weapon into an airport is a third-degree felony, punishable by two to 10 years in jail and up to a $10,000 fine.

The Wizard of Id By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How do you detect ovarian cancer? My wife died last week. She had a physical every year. — M.W.

ANSWER: Please accept my heartfelt condolences.

Ovarian cancer is as furtive as a cat burglar. Its early signs are so few and so easily ascribed to innocent conditions that the cancer is almost never detected until its late stages, when it has spread and when treatment is less successful.

Early on, a woman might complain of gas or bloating, symptoms so common that the thought of cancer never enters her mind. There might be vague abdominal pressure of such insignificance that it is waved off without a second thought.

For most women, a yearly exam is the best way to detect ovarian cancer. Even though your wife had annual exams, cancer was not discovered. Such are the vagaries of ovarian cancer.

Women whose mothers, sisters or daughters have had ovarian cancer are at high risk and merit special testing. For them, a blood test (CA 125) and a picture of the ovaries taken with a device inserted into the vagina (transvaginal ultrasound) are valuable detection tools.

Genetic testing, which is being employed more and more, holds great promise.

Why not use the tests on every woman? For the average woman the tests are unreliable, erroneously suggesting cancer when it is not there. The tests' reliability for women with a family history of ovarian cancer, however, is trustworthy.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: The PSA test for prostate cancer has been in existence now for several years. Now urologists are talking about a new test called "free PSA."

What is this, and how accurate is it? I am sure many other men would appreciate learning more about this test. — C.G.

ANSWER: The free PSA test is a refinement of the standard PSA test.

Prostate-specific antigen is a substance made by the prostate gland and made in excess amounts when there are cancer cells in the gland.

The PSA test is neither sensitive nor specific. Although it is a valuable tool, doctors are looking for more certain ways of detecting cancer-caused PSA elevations.

PSA circulates in the blood in two guises. PSA that becomes glued to proteins floating in the blood is called "bound PSA." The remaining fraction of PSA in the blood is called "free PSA."

When free PSA levels are low, the chances of prostate cancer rise.

We'll have to wait and see how well the free PSA test fares.

Readers can find answers to most prostate questions in my 26th report. For a copy, write to: Dr. Donohue — No. 26, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope and $3.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I was bewildered by your column comparing osteoporosis and Paget's disease.

You indicate that alendronate and calcitonin are medicines of choice for Paget's bone disease. You indicate that estrogen is the only recommended treatment for osteoporosis.

I have been taking alendronate along with calcium and exercise, and they have improved my osteoporosis. Can you comment? — C.V.

ANSWER: I did not mean to convey that estrogen is the only osteoporosis treatment. Calcitonin and the newer alendronate produce excellent results for osteoporosis patients. They are especially useful for women with osteoporosis who choose not to take estrogen or who cannot take it for one reason or another.

Alendronate and calcitonin are also employed for Paget's bone disease. Estrogen is not. That was my intended message.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him at P.O. Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

Tokyo tops list of expensive cities

GENEVA (AP) - Tokyo's still at the top, but high housing costs and a strong yen against the dollar have made Hong Kong the second most expensive city for foreigners spending dollars to live, according to a survey published today.

Eight of the 10 priciest cities for expatriates are in Asia, including No. 4 Osaka, Japan, and fifth-ranked Beijing. The only European city in the top five was Moscow - No. 3 because of the high cost of western-style amenities.

The study was conducted by a private Geneva-based firm, Corporate Resources Group. It compared the costs of more than 200 items relevant to foreigners living abroad, including housing, food, clothing, cars, drink and entertainment.

New York, with an index of 100, was used as the starting point, and was the most expensive American city on the list. The twice-yearly survey was carried out in the first week of March, with exchange rates dating from that period.

Tokyo had a rating of 169 points, while Osaka - traditionally in second place behind the Japanese capital - dropped to fourth with 148. A weakened yen against the dollar weakened both about 15 points from last year.

The strong dollar also meant that European cities became comparatively cheaper. For instance, all German cities ranked below New York while the traditionally expensive Swiss cities of Geneva and Zurich dropped out of the top ten for the first time.

London, by contrast, rose 14 slots to be ranked 14th, largely because of the strength of sterling and housing costs.

In international terms, North American cities became slightly more expensive than one year ago because of the dollar. For instance New York, ranked 38th last year, moved up to 31st.

Miami was the second-priciest American city on the list, ranking 57th, just two slots higher than Los Angeles. Portland, Ore., was the least expensive American city included, ranking 139th with a rating of 67.

Close ties to the dollar also influenced trends in South America. Sao Paulo, the most expensive city in the region, jumped to 15th place from 21st. In Africa, cities tied to the French Franc dropped in the rankings. Cairo, which tied the New York index of 100, was deemed the most expensive African city for expatriates.

And where do expats get the best bang for their American buck?

The Indian city of Madras was at the bottom of the list, with Johannesburg just one notch up.

'Oldest' title now up for grabs

By KARYN HUNT
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The title of world's oldest living person is up for grabs and there is no shortage of senior citizens vying for the honor.

The title became vacant Monday when 122-year-old Jeanne Calment died in Arles, France. Her death produced competing claims by nursing home administrators that they house the oldest known person.

The folks at a Pensacola, Fla., nursing home insist they can claim the title and plan to throw their most senior patient a 121st birthday party on Aug. 15 - complete with cake and candles - to prove it.

But that isn't enough for the people at the Guinness Book of Records. They refuse to list Agusta Watts because she has only Social Security records as evidence of her age and they don't consider that adequate proof, research manager John Hansen said.

So a San Rafael, Calif., nursing home insists that one of its patients, Christian Mortensen, can claim the honor. Mortensen will turn 115 the day after Watts' birthday - on Aug. 16.

His caretakers say they have proof.

University of California, Berkeley, demographer John Wilmoth has confirmed that Mortensen was born in Denmark in 1882 and, at age 21 in 1903, came to the United States in historical fashion - through New York's Ellis Island. Wilmoth had researchers in Denmark dig up a birth certificate, immigration records and even census documents as evidence.

Guinness isn't convinced. Officials are trying to confirm at least one other claim in Britain and several others around the world, Hansen said. Guinness usually requires a birth certificate, census records, school records or family Bibles to verify age.

The nurses who have cared for Watts at the Magnolia Nursing Home since 1993 don't know much about her background.

"We just know that it's a blessing she's still around, able to sit up and mumble," said social services director Deborah Robinson. "She does say a few words, verbalizes some."

Mortensen, on the other hand, is still quite spry - although he is hard of hearing and legally blind, according to nurses at the Aldersly Retirement Community. He showed up there 24 years ago on a tricycle and boldly told the staff, "I'm Danish and I'm here to stay."

He was only 90 then. More than two decades later, he still watches baseball, converses with fellow patients and goes outside to smoke a cigar at least once a week, they said.

State officials, teachers push amendment election

AUSTIN — Gov. George W. Bush and Secretary of State Tony Garza are touring the state, urging Texans to the polls Aug. 9 for the constitutional amendment election.

The proposed amendment, if passed, will reduce school property taxes by an average $140 a year and increase the homestead exemption from $5,000 to $15,000.

The amendment also could free up funding for a 5 percent pay raise for about 60,000 of the state's 240,000 teachers.

Texas' largest teacher group, the Texas State Teachers Association, is mounting its own effort to urge teachers to the polls. The group, which has 90,000 members, plans to operate phone banks in the state's five largest metropolitan areas.

"Texas teachers rank 37th in the nation in pay," said Annette Cootes of TSTA. "We want our teachers' pay increased at least to the national average so we can recruit and maintain quality teachers."

In May, the Texas Legislature rejected a plan endorsed by Gov. Bush that would have substantially cut school property taxes. Lawmakers instead opted for a scaled-down $1 billion tax relief proposal that would give property owners an added $10,000 tax exemption.

Sharp Stumps for Military Bases
State Comptroller John Sharp called on Texas to develop a strategy for keeping its military bases to ward off contemplated closures and cutbacks by the federal government.

"About 167,000 Texans work directly for the military," Sharp said last week. "By contrast, the top 10 corporations in Texas employ 123,000 people. But if any one of those businesses decided to pack up and move, we would shower them with abatement offers or other reasons to stay. ..."

Sharp said Texas should work to be viewed by the Pentagon as the most military-friendly state in the nation. And, he made proposals toward that goal, including:

- Improve roads and railways running from bases to seaports and airports to reduce deployment time.

- Offer state incentives to builders of affordable housing near military bases and to businesses that locate near bases and employ military spouses and other family members.

- Designate military bases as wholesale electricity customers, freeing them to negotiate for lower rates for power.

- Provide affordable higher education opportunities to military personnel and their families.

Bullock: Bush Unbeatable

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock predicted last week that no Democrat — not even four term Land Commissioner Garry Mauro — would be able to unseat Republican Gov. George W. Bush in the 1998 election.

A day after Bullock spoke to the Houston Chronicle, Mauro, who announced in mid-July he was contemplating a run for governor, said, "As I listen to people around the state, nobody talks about George Bush being unbeatable. 'If I made the decision today, I would be inclined to run.'"

Bullock, Texas' highest-ranking Democrat, said, "(Mauro's) a fine man, but he can't win that race. He can't do it."

Mauro said, however, he has "learned a lot from Bob Bullock, but the last time he told me a guy named Bush couldn't be beaten was when I asked him to help elect my friend Bill Clinton president."

Mauro said he would announce his decision whether to run or not in the fall.

Patterson Seeks Ag Post
State Rep. L.P. "Pete" Patterson, a 20-year House veteran, last week became the first Democratic contender for the state agriculture post being vacated by Republican Rick Perry.

A four-term chairman of the House Agriculture and Livestock Committee, Patterson said he wants to continue finding ways to make sure young people and small farmers keep a place in agriculture.

"From the time I chopped cotton on my family's farm to today I have believed agriculture is the backbone of our society," said Patterson, who lives and farms in Brookston in Northeast Texas.

Other Capital Highlights

- State law says Lt. Gov. Bullock will have six years to parcel out his unspent campaign funds. The 68-year-old Bullock, who has decided not to seek re-election, will leave office in January 1999. Ethics Commission files show about $3 million in the senior statesman's campaign coffer.

- Comptroller Sharp has announced that the Texas Tomorrow Fund, the state's prepaid tuition plan that allows families to lock in the cost of their children's future college tuition, will be offered beginning in October by agents who market life and health insurance in Texas.

- A federal lawsuit filed last week in Austin challenges a new law that bars state employees from giving advice and serving as expert witnesses in suits against the state. A federal district judge granted a temporary restraining order to stop the law, which was to take effect Sept. 1.

- Lt. Gov. Bullock suggested last week that state Board of Education candidates run on a non-partisan ballot. The 15-member board has nine Republicans and six Democrats. Board Chairman Jack Christie of Houston, a Republican, said Bullock's proposal is "not a bad idea."
