Amarillo out of running to get Hall of Fame

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Directors of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Hereford have selected four finalists as potential sites for the home of the museum, it was announced Thursday evening by Margaret Formby, president.

The four finalists, in no particular order, are Fort Worth, Abilene, Granbury and Dodge City, Kan. Six cities had submitted written proposals. Cut from the site list were Amarillo and Kerrville.

The CHOF executive committee will get more specific information from the four cities, study the proposals and hope to make a decision by the end of the month, according to Roger Eades, board chairman.

The executive committee recommended the four finalists and the board unanimously approved the action. On the executive committee are Formby, Eades, vice presidents Hollis Klett and Roland Saul, and secretary Diane Hoelscher.

Hall of Fame officials had announced in December that they were considering a move. Primary reasons given were the need for more visitors and additional display space and staff. Formby confirmed Thursday that the Hall of Fame will definitely be moving and will probably induct its 1994 honorees at the site selected.

Formby said the Amarillo and Kerrville proposals did not measure up to those submitted by the four finalists. Amarillo's offer included land near the American Quarterhorse Heritage Center & Museum and promotional funds of $25,000 over a five-year period, according to Tom Patterson, president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Patterson said he believed Amarillo's proposal was "respectable," and he regretted Amarillo was eliminated as a potential site. In an article in The Amarillo Daily

News today, Patterson was quoted as saying, "I'm not embarrassed by our offer."

Eades said other proposals included a building for the Hall of Fame and other criteria that was more in-depth in their planning.

He added that the Hall received several calls from Amarillo this morning which basically indicated that Amarillo could do more than had been offered. One caller said Amarillo "probably had not been aggressive enough because we didn't want to cause hard feelings by moving the Hall of Fame from Hereford."

Formby said the finalists "have shown ways that the Hall of Fame would have stability and ways we would have community support. They were real specific and, I must say, Amarillo wasn't. Amarillo didn't have the vision of these other communities."

Fort Worth is by far the largest city being considered. Its proposal includes a location in the downtown

Stockyards National Historic District, which already is packed with Western-style shops, restaurants and bars.

Granbury, a community of about 5,000 people, is the smallest potential site. Its proposal includes property, a building, and five years of public relations and marketing benefits. It also offered to pay the hall's relocation expenses and to underwrite the cost of the first year of operation.

Officials from Dodge City said they are proposing to locate the Hall of Fame next to the existing Boot Hill Museum, which boasts 100,000 visitors a year. The museum is willing to pay for the move and assume all expenses of the operation. Abilene officials have declined to release any information about their proposal.

Formby said the board declined to name any of the four as favorites at this time. The Hall of Fame has been in Hereford since it opened in 1975.

Meeting the candidates

Larry Canada, standing at right, returns to his seat after reading a question to county judge candidates at Thursday night's Meet the Candidates forum. Co-moderator Carolyn Waters watches on at right. County candidates in the March 8 primary appeared at the forum to answer questions submitted by the public and to speak to the community. Standing at right on the platform is County Judge Tom Simons. Seated at right is his primary opponent, Trini Gamez.

Candidates air views at forum

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Office-seekers in Deaf Smith County had their moments in the spotlight Thursday night, but the 2 1/2-hour forum was a sedate affair for the audience of about 75 persons as well as the candidates.

The forum is an annual event in preparation for political party primaries, which will be held this year on March 8.

Three of the candidates for Deaf Smith County offices were no-shows. Armando Alaniz and Bernie Griego Jr., who are challenging Lupe Chavez for the Precinct 2 county commissioner post, and Edward Maldonado, seeking the Precinct 4 job now held by Johnny Latham, were not present for the forum.

Democratic candidates appearing were County Judge Tom Simons; Trini Gamez, judge candidate; Justice of Peace Johnnie Turrentine; John Arsula, JP candidate; County Clerk David Ruland; Elizabeth Rodriguez, clerk candidate; Precinct 2 Commissioner Lupe Chavez; Precinct 4 Commissioner Johnny Latham, and treasurer candidates Nan Rogers, Lois Jones and Joyce Skelton.

Candidates unopposed in the Democratic primary, District Judge David Wesley Gulley and District Clerk Lola Faye Veazey, attended the forum. Unable to be present was Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, an unopposed candidate.

Two Republican candidates, Dan Hall, seeking the JP office, and Conny Whitehorn, Precinct 2 commissioner candidate, also took part in the forum.

Sponsors of the event were the legislative affairs committee of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce and Hereford Educators Association. Questions, submitted in advance, were posed by Larry Canada, chairman of the chamber committee, and Carolyn Waters, HEA president.

Candidates for each office were asked the same questions. Here is a sampling of the questions and responses:

What do you consider the most pressing issue of Deaf Smith County? (Asked judge and justice of peace candidates.)

Simons -- Most pressing issue in county government is our county jail.

It's certified for 90 prisoners and on weekends, we have up to 115. It's a problem that won't go away.

Gamez, judge candidate -- The most pressing issue is unemployment. The high rate contributes to many problems. Jobs keep youth off the streets.

Turrentine -- A problem we face is all the people we have on probation. I don't know the answer to that.

Arsola -- Two issues I hear a lot about are economic development and the rise in juvenile crime.

Hall -- Alcohol abuse is an issue and it ties in with juvenile crime.

Other than the constitutional requirement, why do we need a county court? (Asked judge candidates.)

Simons -- I believe the office is the focal point of county business. I'm proud of working relationship with other county officials.

Gamez -- Someone must have responsibility and take care of business.

Judges make decisions on a daily basis. What's the difference between a discretionary and an arbitrary decision and which do you use? (Asked judge and justice of peace candidates.)

Simons -- A decision must be made on the knowledge of the law. There is no one answer. The judge must look at all factors and decided what is fair and just.

Gamez -- A judge has to follow the law, but each case is different. You have to use judgment.

Turrentine -- We have to go by the law but use common sense. We have lives in our hands and have to make judgment and compromise.

Arsola -- I believe the judge should follow law but use some type of discretion.

Hall -- Criteria is based on common sense. Use the law but have some discretion.

What are duties of the justice of the peace? (Asked JP candidates.)

Turrentine -- We handle violations from several state agencies, including Department of Public Safety, Parks and Wildlife, Cosmetology Department and many others. We also work with schools on mandatory attendance cases.

Hereford native travels old Route 66 looking for restaurants and history

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Since her days of growing up in Hereford, Marian Clark has traveled a long and varied road.

Most recently that road has been the famed Route 66.

The result of the trip down memory lane is the reason Mrs. Clark is coming back to Hereford on Saturday, too.

She has recently written a cookbook called, appropriately enough, "The Route 66 Cookbook," and she will make a special appearance to sign copies of that book from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in Caryn's Hallmark Shop, 236 N. Main.

Her story begins, though, in a house on Union Street, where she grew up and graduated from Hereford High School.

The story of the Bob and Mable Wilson family starts even before then.

"Daddy came there in 1901. Mother taught school and dad was transportation manager for the school" and later business manager for the hospital.

Mrs. Clark lived a quiet childhood in the family home at 307 Union, graduating from Hereford High School in 1953.

After graduation, she left home and attended Texas Tech University in Lubbock, where she majored in home economics.

She taught school in Fort Worth, Odessa and Midland, where she met her husband, Ken Clark.

They have lived in Tulsa, Okla., for the past 25 years, where he is a petroleum engineer with his own company.

For Mrs. Clark, writing books did not immediately follow her career in teaching.

"I didn't really start to write until both of my children went to college," she said, at which time she sought "a new direction" for her life, as well as a career that would enable her to continue to travel with her husband.

Her first book was "Southwestern Heritage Cookbook."

While the idea of writing a cookbook about Route 66 came from a restaurateur in California, much of the motivation behind that project stemmed from her life in Hereford.

"When I was little, it was a big deal to drive up to Vega," then head east or west on U.S. 66, depending on destination.

In either 1947 or 1948, she said, the family bought a new DeSoto and started out on its first vacation after World War II -- a jaunt west on Route 66.

When she heard the story about Buster Burris, who owned the town of Amboy, Calif., and was trying to sell it, "I thought what a shame to lose the stories of those unique people" -- the men and women who served food up and down Route 66.

"It would be so neat to find the other entrepreneurs, the other people on the road" and learn about their experiences cooing on Route 66.

So, she headed off down the road once more -- even though Route 66 has been nothing but memories for years -- and began looking at the places that served meals from Chicago, Ill., to Los Angeles, Calif.

"There was a unique story at every stop, she said.

"I think meeting the people was the high point" of the project, Mrs. Clark said. "I felt in this story, if I didn't do it, it wouldn't be saved."

The result of her trip was a 237-page trip that reads and looks almost as much like a travel guide as it does a cookbook.

The cookbook is broken down into chapters by state -- Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

Throughout the book are black and white pictures of restaurants, signs, menus, postcards and logos.

There are anecdotes from restaurant owners, directions to find them in today's Interstate 40-dominated society and tales of how the restaurants were born, lived and died.

Deaf Smith County figures somewhat in the book, as Route 66 clipped the northwest corner of the county on its way into New Mexico.

There also is a section that deals with Route 66 through this part of the country, with references to Jesse's Cafe in Adrian and Krahn's Cafe and Truck Stop in Vega.

One anecdote refers to The Bent Door Cafe in Adrian and how it got its name.

Mrs. Clark relates that the Cozy Cafe opened in Adrian in 1937, but burned several years later.

When it reopened, they named it the Old Route 66 Cafe and housed it in a former control tower that was hauled off when Amarillo Air Force Base was dismantled.

The tower featured windows that sloped inward toward the bottom, with a door to match.

Building permits for new sandwich shop, school office issued

Hereford soon will be home to a new sandwich shop and a relocated and expanded ice cream parlor, according to building permits issued recently.

In addition, two permits have been issued for some construction on the new Hereford Independent School District administration building and on Joe's Country Club.

On Wednesday, a permit for $24,000 was issued to Wilburn Construction to tear down some walls in the new administration building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue. That work will not include building new walls or electrical work.

No completion date was indicated on the building permit.

On Feb. 11, Rick's Ice Cream Parlor and Arcade was issued a $1,200 building permit for repairs, alterations and addition of walls to the old Anthony's location in Sugarland Mall.

Rick's Ice Cream Parlor opened in 1993 in North Town Plaza across the street.

The completion date for the work on the new location was listed as March 11.

A building permit in the amount of $41,000 for construction of a new Subway Sandwich Shop was issued to Taylor and Sons Enterprises on Jan. 31.

The sandwich shop will be built in the 1,400-square-foot western portion of the former Taylor and Sons Market at U.S. 385 and Park Avenue.

Listed on the permit as occupants of the location are Jeffery Yates and Blair Rogers, doing business as Subway Sandwich Shop.

Completion date on the permit was listed as March 15.

The only additional requirement for the business on the permit was that it have 14 parking spaces.

Joe's Country Club will add 600-square-feet of space to the 537 Myrtle location.

According to plans attached to the building permit application, Baros Brothers and Skelton Electric will do the work on a 10-foot by 60-foot addition.

The building permit was to add space and rest rooms.

It was issued on Jan. 24, with a completion date of Jan. 24, 1995.

Austin police assure name secrecy

Prostitution ring causing nail-biting among 'clients'

AUSTIN (AP) - Even with assurances of secrecy from police, the nail-biting appears unavoidable by some who fear being linked to a prostitution ring that was allegedly run by a longtime state employee.

On Thursday, telephones were ringing "off the wall" with calls from people wanting to find out if they are among the 400 or so clients named in index cards seized by authorities, said Austin Deputy Police Chief Ken Williams.

"Attorneys will call saying, 'I have a client whose name I won't reveal, but they would like to come in and talk to you,'" Williams said.

Lt. Keith Leach, who heads the Austin Police Department's vice detail, told at least two newspapers that investigators had uncovered the name of a state legislator.

But Williams on Thursday said Leach's comments were taken out of context, declining to confirm any names.

"If there are prominent individuals who have used this service, that's certainly a concern to them," Williams said. "If a politician is involved, that could affect whether or not they get re-elected, but that's not important to us. We are not going to defame or ruin anyone's reputation."

"If there are (state) representatives and senators in this book, it will be the Bob Packwood case of Texas," said one political insider, who spoke on condition of anonymity. Packwood is a U.S. senator from Oregon who has been the subject of sexual harassment allegations.

Another said, "We could have the makings of Heidi Fleiss meets the Texas Legislature." Ms. Fleiss has been charged in California with operating a prostitution ring. She has claimed Hollywood stars were among her clients.

Elected officials in Austin are refusing to comment on the matter. One simply said, "Have a nice day," when asked for a response.

At the center of the controversy is James A. Bunch, 45, a bald, gray-bearded, 23-year Human Services employee who helped evaluate the agency's Medicaid program for mothers and dependent children.

Bunch has been charged with aggravated promotion of prostitution. Police say he used his office computer and telephone to help operate Aimes Escorts.

He was released from jail Wednesday on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

In a brief interview with The Associated Press on Thursday, Bunch said the case was being overblown. He declined to comment further, referring questions to his attorney Steve Brittain.

Brittain was out of his office and didn't immediately return messages left with a secretary.

Police are following up on evidence that may lead to further charges against Bunch, who purchased Aimes Escorts two years ago, Williams said.

"There is some indication he was using a computer and telephone at his office to conduct some of the business," Williams said. "There is also a possibility that juveniles were involved in his business. Both of those allegations could result in more charges being filed."

Bunch was fired from his $32,000-a-year job after agency investigators conducted their own probe. The investigation was triggered by employees who said they overheard Bunch in "strange" sounding telephone conversations.

Human Services spokesman Mike Jones said agency investigators discovered computer discs with "escort service correspondence" on them and related paperwork in Bunch's work space.

"As far as I know there were never any complaints or indication of problems from Mr. Bunch," Jones said. "You don't always know what people are doing at home."

"But the department looked to see if any other employees were involved, and that was the good news. No other employees were involved," Jones said.

Files seized by police at Bunch's home included a catalogue of index cards that describe clients, including their sexual preferences, the amount of money they would pay and even if they were a "good" or "bad" customer who would hurt the prostitutes, said Senior Sgt. Jack Kelley.

Officers' application for a search warrant included affidavits from two men who said they had paid $50 to Aimes Escorts and $120 and $150 to prostitutes for sex arranged through the escort service.

Another man claimed to have obtained prostitutes through the escort service 50 to 100 times.

"You are talking about a lot of money here," Williams said. "Some of these clients have spent $15,000 over a 12 month period. If there are 400 customers, we are not talking pocket change."

CANDIDATES

is one of the courts in our judicial system. Guidelines are outlined in the code of criminal justice.

Hall -- The justice of peace handles DPS tickets, mandatory school attendance and other civil and criminal matters. It's there to help people solve their problems.

Why do we need a county clerk's office? Could it not be combined with the district clerk? (Asked county clerk candidates.)

Ruland -- There is a vast volume of records and differences in kinds of records handled by the two offices. County clerk also handles voter registration and elections. Combining wouldn't be practical.

Rodriguez -- I don't know about the district clerk's office, but in my opinion they could be combined and be more cost effective.

There is concern that public officials become entrenched in office. Do you support term limitation? (Asked clerk candidates.)

Ruland -- On a local level, I don't support. We have limitation every four years when we run for re-election.

Rodriguez -- No more than three terms.

Taxes continue to rise. Have you an idea on how to sustain or reduce taxes and what are pressing issues? (Asked commissioner candidates.)

Latham -- The jail is a continuing problem but it's the state's problem because we have almost 50 prisoners that should be in state custody. Inflation is a consideration in taxes and we strive to keep increases at a minimum.

Chavez -- Issues we face are a declining tax base and the jail. We're operating the jail at maximum capacity. Fortunately, the state has given us no trouble because so many prisoners are ready for state prisons. I'm against an increase in taxes.

Whitehorn -- I'd try not to raise taxes, but keep at a minimum.

What does a commissioner do to earn salary; what is the salary; are commissioners fulltime employees; how much time should be devoted to the job? (Asked commissioner candidates.)

Latham -- First, the pay is $18,000 per year. We are responsible for maintaining all roads in our precincts, setting county policies on hiring and firing and use of county facilities. We have to take as much time as needed to fulfill the responsibilities.

Chavez -- I take my position and responsibility seriously. I give extra time when I need to. My record speaks for itself. There are some late hours and I'd be conservative in decisions in spending tax dollars.

Whitehorn -- The county commission needs to take care of the county, especially the precincts; see to the needs of the people. It could be fulltime or parttime but at least a third to a half of the time.

Some people want to abolish the county treasurer's office. Why does Deaf Smith County need a treasurer and what the difference between treasurer and auditor? (Asked treasurer candidates.)

Rogers -- It's a checks and balance system of county government. The treasurer and auditor see to the county's investments.

Skelton -- We do need both. The treasurer is to receive and disburse funds and keep records. The auditor ensures safeguarding of public funds.

Jones -- I'm not that familiar with everything, but treasurer makes sure figures are correct.

What suggestions would you give to decrease spending and what role does the treasurer play in budget-making? (Asked treasurer candidates.)

Rogers -- Treasurer plays an important part in counseling on expenditures, providing information to other officials and giving them line item expenditures.

Skelton -- Commissioners' Court makes the budget but the treasurer provides information to the court for curbing expenditures and spending prudently and wisely.

Jones -- I'm not that familiar with the duties, but I would go in to learn.

GOP continues drive for telephone records

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards' staff and Texas Republicans continue crossing wires - and swords - over the governor's long-gone long-distance phone records.

The GOP complained Thursday that the governor's staff was "hiding behind bureaucratic double-talk" and not coming across with enough information about her long-distance records.

The Democratic governor's press secretary said GOP officials could see everything that exists, and those wanting to know more only needed to "read the newspapers. And maybe take notes."

Late last month, gubernatorial chief of staff John Fainter said most of the governor's office long-distance records were destroyed in August 1993.

He apologized for differing versions of events told by Richards' aides, and said the confusion was due to a misunderstanding of record-keeping rules. Fainter said the governor's office now is keeping the records for at least three years.

But Republicans are angry over ethics charges filed against U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, who was found innocent last week. GOP officials have said Richards' handling of phone records showed a double standard for Democrats.

On Thursday, state Republican Chairman Fred Meyer accused Richards' office of not being forthcoming on a GOP request for documents under the state Open Records Act.

The party sought names and titles of those who ordered records destroyed, information about the review Richards aides said was done of the office's paperwork, plus records for state and private phone lines.

In a letter, David Talbot, the governor's general counsel, said there were no records of the names of individuals involved or of the dates documents were destroyed. Talbot also said the governor's office doesn't keep records of the private phone lines, which are paid for with Richards' political funds.

Talbot said the same nine months worth of long distance records already released to news reporters are available to the GOP, along with the official retention schedules for office documents.

Meyer said the answer "essentially says they don't know anything about anything and if they did, they wouldn't make it public ... The governor's story about the destruction of these phone records continues to defy credibility."

But Bill Cryer, Richards' press secretary, said the GOP is trying to make election year hay out of nothing.

"Fred Meyer and the Republican Party have been flooding us with open records requests, and we've complied with them the best we can," Cryer said.

"We are giving him everything that we have. The press has covered this so extensively, if he read the newspapers he probably would get the information he's seeking on any other items. This just gets to the point of just trying to make news stories out of nothing," Cryer said.

A person does not have to be a part of this church to obey Jesus in baptism, nor is obligated to become a member after baptism. Please call Pastor Otto at 364-0373 if you wish to be baptized.

Wednesday evenings at 7, Pastor Otto is teaching on the Biblical foundations of praise and worship. A time of praise and worship, then seeking the Lord in prayer follows the lesson each week. Next Wednesday, Pastor Otto will continue the study with the three anointings of David.

Jansen finally wins gold medal

By DAVE CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer
LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP)
- Finally!

Skating for redemption and a gold medal, Dan Jansen got both today with a world record in his final Olympic race after seven failures over a decade of heartbreak.

The world's fastest skater thrust his arms up triumphantly after crossing the finish line in the 1,000-meter race. He put his hands to his head, no doubt as much in relief as in ecstasy. The crowd erupted as the record time flashed on the Viking Ship Hall scoreboard: 1 minute, 12.43 seconds, .11 faster than Canadian Kevin Scott's 2-month-old world record.

After 10 years of agony, Jansen still had to wait for another hour and a half before his long-awaited gold was made official, with three dozen competitors skating behind him.

But unlike his past Olympic letdowns, he'd already triumphed over his toughest foe: himself.

The Wisconsin skater was not flawless even in setting a world record. He skidded twice on a turn and his hand even touched the ice. But this time he recovered.

"I don't know what to say," he said just after finishing as his wife, Robin, wept from joy in the stands. "I don't know what to say. It felt so good. There's so many people here behind me; thank you so much."

Igor Zhelezovsky of Belarus was second in 1:12.72 and Sergei Klevchenya of Russia third in 1:12.85. Both skated in the first pair, three pairs ahead of Jansen. No one skating after Jansen came even close to his time.

On Thursday, it was four other superstars on skates who stumbled out of medal contention - four world champions, three of them gold medalists.

It was a catastrophe on ice for Brian Boitano, Viktor Petrenko, Kurt Browning and Gunda Niemann.

"I don't know what happened," said Boitano, the 1988 Olympic figure-skating champion, after miffing an early jump that killed his dream of a victorious return from the professional ranks. "Maybe I wasn't in the moment."

U.S. lugers, steadily creeping from respectability to medals contention, had their best-ever Olympic placing today. Mark Grimmette of Muskegon, Mich., and Jonathan Edwards of South Weymouth, Mass., finished fourth behind two Italian teams and one from Germany, and Chris Thorpe of Marquette, Mich., and Gordy Sheer of Croton, N.Y., were fifth.

Italy vaulted over Norway into second place in the medals race with the 1-2 finish by Kurt Brugger-Wilfried Huber and Hansjorg Raffl-Norbert Huber. The 1992 gold medalists, Stefan Krauss and Jan Behrendt, took the bronze.

Canada got a gold medal today from Myriam Bedard of Quebec in the women's 15-kilometer biathlon. Anne Briand of France was second and Ursula Disl of Germany third.

Russia, with the speedskating bronze, stayed in front in the medals with 13. Following Italy came Norway with nine, Germany with six and the United States five.

In the jump portion of the Nordic combined, Norway's Fred Borre Lurjberg moved into first place going into Saturday's cross-country ski race that will decide the gold.

U.S. Alpine skiers had no races today, but were still savoring Tommy Moe's second medal of the Games, a silver in the super-G on his 24th birthday Thursday.

None of today's action was likely to be as shocking as the failures of the top men's figure skaters at Hamar Olympic Amphitheater.

Only hours after a horde of media watched a practice where Tonya Harding nailed a few of the triple axel jumps she's known for - among other things - Boitano botched the same leap 50 seconds into his Olympic comeback.

Petrenko, the defending Olympic champion from Ukraine, messed up on two jumps, and both he and Boitano got technical marks dipping below 5, of a possible 6, for the first time in their memories.

When Browning, the four-time defending world champion from Canada, fluffed a triple flip and popped a double axel, his coach put his hands to his cheeks in horror. Any medal hopes were over for the decade's most dominant amateur skater.

Sitting in the "kiss-and-cry" box awaiting his marks, Browning bit his lip, looked into the TV camera and told his absent girlfriend: "I need a hug."

The hasty departure of the Big Three clears the way for a new Olympic champion to be crowned Saturday night following the free skate, which counts for two-thirds of the overall score.

The leader, 20-year-old Alexei Urmanov of Russia, overcame past inconsistency to skate magnificently. Dressed like a minstrel but skating like a magician to music from "Rigoletto," he improved on his third-place showing at last year's world championships.

But the gold could go to any of the next three skaters: Canadian national champion Elvis Stojko, Philippe Candeloro of France or even American champion Scott Davis of Great Falls, Mont. All are younger than the three fallen veterans.

Niemann clipped a lane marker in the women's 3000 and went sprawling on the same turn that victimized Jansen two days earlier. The world record-holder and a two-time Olympic gold medalist had been the overwhelming favorite.

Svetlana Bazhanova of Russia took advantage of Niemann's fall to capture the gold despite a relatively slow time.

"People fall," Bazhanova shrugged. "That's life."

The U.S. hockey team hasn't stamped itself a gold-medal contender by any means, but Todd Marchant's power-play goal with 28 seconds left against Canada, boosted their confidence.

"I think we feel like this was a real good tie," Taylor said. "But we need a win. We need to prove to ourselves that we can beat somebody."

Local boxer loses debut

Hereford's Jaime Herrera was stopped in the second round of his professional boxing debut Thursday night in Fort Worth, said Jaime Ruiz, another pro boxer from Hereford.

Herrera fought Golden Johnson of Virginia, whose record improves to 2-1.

Ruiz will return to the ring Wednesday in Las Vegas, he said. Because of a lack of opponents, he'll move up a weight-class to featherweight from bantamweight.

Ruiz, 3-3 in his pro career, will fight Pat Chavez, 4-7-1.

Sudan gets by Adrian here

The No. 1 ranked Sudan girls pulled away from a scrappy Adrian team in the second half and won a Class A bi-district basketball game 69-35 Thursday in Hereford's Whiteface Gym.

Sudan, ranked first in Class A by the Texas Association of Basketball

Coaches, improves to 29-3, while Adrian finishes at 13-17.

Sudan led 15-5 at the end of the first quarter, and a 30-foot shot at the end of the first half helped Adrian stay close at 25-18, but Sudan opened the second half with a 16-0 run to start the rout.

Crowd of 500 watches as Harding, Kerrigan practice

HAMAR, Norway (AP) - Near the end of two tense practice sessions with Nancy Kerrigan, Tonya Harding crashed to the ice, skidded into the wall and clutched her ankle in pain.

Harding had come so far, suing to get here, and suddenly on her first day on the Olympic ice she looked as if she might go no further in these Winter Games.

Yet, within minutes she was up and again trying the one move that no other woman in the Lillehammer Games can match - the triple axel, or 3 1-2 revolutions in the air.

In different ways, Harding and Kerrigan made their points to each other in their first Olympic practice together Thursday, Harding with her triple axels and her toughness, Kerrigan with her choice of costume - the same lacy white outfit she wore the day she was clubbed in the knee.

Though teammates, they never spoke on the ice, and they tracked each other out of the corners of their eyes to keep from bumping while they skated. When one performed, the other turned away.

It was one of the most-watched practices in athletic history: 500 reporters, photographers and TV crew members.

Robinson gets quad-double

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

Almost no statistical oddity is rarer than a quadruple-double.

Nate Thurmond had one in 1974. Alvin Robertson did it 12 years later and Hakeem Olajuwon got one in 1990.

Until Thursday night, that was it. Until David Robinson added his name to the list.

The San Antonio center had 32 points, 10 rebounds, 10 assists and 10 blocked shots in his team's 11th straight victory, a 115-96 decision over the Detroit Pistons that put the Spurs (37-14, .725) into a virtual tie with the Houston Rockets (35-13, .729) for first place in the Midwest Division.

"It's one thing you never know if you're going to get," said Robinson, who almost had a quadruple-double 10 days earlier with 31 points, 14 rebounds, 10 assists and seven blocks against Washington.

"I've been close a number of times, so this is something I wanted to do."

Robinson also had two steals, leaving him eight shy of the NBA's first quintuple-double. Since steals and assists were not tallied prior to 1973-74, no records of previous quadruple-doubles exist.

Robinson had an easy time against overmatched opposing centers Greg Anderson and Charles Jones. The Pistons obtained center Duane Causwell from Sacramento on Wednesday, but he was not able to play Thursday.

In other games, Golden State beat Atlanta 119-115, New York downed Cleveland 102-95, Miami topped Seattle 115-112, New Jersey defeated Boston 117-98, Indiana beat Dallas 84-73 and Washington edged Minnesota 109-105.

Pacers 84, Mavericks 73

At Dallas, the Mavericks had their lowest-scoring game of the season, allowing Indiana to win despite shooting 42 percent from the field. Dallas shot just 33 percent.

Indiana coach Larry Brown felt ill before the game and handed the coaching duties to assistant Bill Blair. The Indianapolis Star said Brown had chest pains and hasn't been feeling well for weeks.

Warriors 119, Hawks 115

At Oakland, Calif., Chris Webber had 21 points and Latrell Sprewell added 20 to lead six Warriors with at least 10 points.

Sprewell stole the ball from Mookie Blaylock with 12 seconds left and then made two free throws to give Golden State a five-point lead that guaranteed the club's fourth straight victory and seventh in nine games.

Dominique Wilkins had 26 of his 38 points in the first half and finished one point shy of his season-high.

Knicks 102, Cavaliers 95

At Richfield, Ohio, John Starks made his last nine shots and scored 32 points - his most since getting 39 on Jan. 4.

"The guys were setting real good picks for me," Starks said. "They were freeing me up for good looks at the basket. I was just squaring up and shooting the basketball."

Clemson upsets Tar Heels; NC-Charlotte shocks Cards

By BERNIE WILSON
AP Sports Writer

The North Carolina Tar Heels can't win when they're No. 1, and now they can't win when they're No. 2.

North Carolina was upset 77-69 at Clemson Thursday night as the bumpy road continued for the nation's top college basketball teams. North Carolina-Charlotte beat No. 5 Louisville 64-62 and Notre Dame beat No. 22 Marquette 68-58.

A different team has taken the No. 1 ranking each of the last seven weeks. The Tar Heels have lost the No. 1 ranking three times this season.

Since Tuesday, Nos. 2 through 5 have all lost. No. 3 Connecticut was defeated by Villanova on Tuesday and No. 4 Kansas lost to Oklahoma State on Wednesday.

Clemson's Jeff Brown, the best 3-point shooter in the Atlantic Coast Conference, sank five from long range and finished with 17 points.

It was the second straight defeat for the Tar Heels (20-5, 8-4 ACC), who lost to Georgia Tech 96-89 Saturday. The Tar Heels, who trail Duke in the league, were previously upset in the ACC by Virginia and Georgia Tech.

"This puts a damper on our hopes for the regular-season ACC title, but everything else is still available to us," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said.

In other Top 25 action Thursday night, No. 8 UCLA beat Arizona State 76-70, No. 15 Arizona routed Southern Cal 94-61 and No. 19 California beat Stanford 80-62.

N.C. Charlotte 64, No. 5 Louisville 62

At Charlotte, freshman Shanderic Downs made all four of his 3-point shots for a career-high 14 points, as North Carolina-Charlotte pulled off its biggest home upset in school history. The 49ers (13-8, 6-3 Metro Conference) had lost five of eight coming in, but slowed Louisville's up-tempo game and won despite not making a field goal in the final five minutes.

Louisville (20-3, 9-2) saw its 10-game winning streak snapped.

The Cardinals could have tied the score with three seconds left, but Clifford Rozier - who shoots 57 percent from the free-throw line - missed his first attempt and Louisville committed a lane violation on the second attempt to turn the ball over.

Rozier led the Cardinals with 22 points and 14 rebounds.

No. 8 UCLA 76, Arizona State 70

At Tempe, Ariz., Cameron Dollar's driving layup with 57.8 seconds remaining helped lift the Bruins past the Sun Devils for the 11th straight time dating to 1989.

Quincy Brewer, who had tied the game at 70 with 1:10 to go, missed a 7-foot jumper with 26 seconds to go. The Bruins (18-2, 11-1 Pacific-10 Conference) converted four free throws to ice the win.

Arizona State (12-9, 7-5) led 36-35 at halftime but missed 9 of 13 shots opening the second half.

Shon Tarver and Tyus Edney had 18 apiece to lead UCLA. Arizona State's Stevin Smith had 11 of his 25 points in the first half.

Opposites attract

Looking for a way to exercise your children's minds on a long car ride, during a wait at the doctor's office or when conversation is lagging around the dinner table?

Here's a word game recommended by English teacher, David Strand of Coon Rapids, Minn., as mental calisthenics to keep minds sharp. It's fun, too! Although the game is intended for school-age children, you may find that even your preschoolers will perk up and chime in when the game begins.

Here's how:

Choose a category such as television shows, movies or popular songs. Then think of a specific show, movie or song title and say it in the form of antonyms (words that are opposite in meaning). For example, on your television list, "Sad Nights" translates into "Happy Days." Likewise, in the movie category, "Mrs. Dad" is "Mr. Mom."

If you are challenged by a title that uses numbers, double the number in your translation. For example, "Six Women or the Adult" would be the movie, "Three Men and a Baby."

To play, take turns stating aloud a title using antonyms. Other players shout out words until the correct one is stated. Continue creating ad guessing titles.

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) - Think of it as "When the Player Met Sally."

Tim Robbins and Meg Ryan are teaming up in this idyllic college town to film a romantic comedy for Paramount.

Robbins and Ryan are to star in "I.Q.," a fictional tale about Albert Einstein fixing up his niece (Ryan) with a Princeton University security guard (Robbins), published reports said Wednesday.

Robbins starred in "Bob Roberts," "The Player" and "Bull Durham." Ryan has appeared in "Sleepless in Seattle" and "When Harry Met Sally."

Fred Schepisi will direct the picture to be shot this spring. A production office has been set up in nearby South Brunswick.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a world traveler whose hobby is reading English-language newspapers wherever I go. While in Brussels recently, I ran into a Reuters release that had me laughing out loud. I am sending it on to you in case you might want to share it with your readers. Have a happy, healthy 1994, Ann. I enjoy your column immensely. -- Robert in Manhattan

DEAR ROBERT: That Reuters news story should lay to rest for all time the notion that I make up letters. Nothing I might contrive could possibly compare with what is actually happening around the world. Thank you for sending on that "overview of humanity." Here is an abbreviated version:

Let's raise a glass as we usher in the New Year. A great many interesting things occurred in 1993. For example, there was a Brazilian who tried to kill his toothache with a bullet, and there was a stressed-out cop in Thailand who lost it and turned all the stoplights to "Go."

In Miami, a lusty but tiny Chihuahua and a rather large, love-struck Rottweiler "fell in love." The veterinarian declared it a hazardous pregnancy and performed a hysterectomy.

In Guyana, several amazed police officers had to step in and curtail the activities of a monkey who had been breaking into homes, putting on lipstick and condoms and upsetting people with his rude gestures and lewd dancing. No word about where he got the idea.

In Harmony, Texas, an agriculture teacher was fired after he allowed a student to castrate a pig with his teeth. A New Zealand scofflaw bit a police dog's ear when he was being apprehended. In Ottawa, a man learned not to stick his nose into other people's business when a good portion of his was bitten off by an angry passenger when the man tried to stop a fight between the passenger and a taxi driver. Doctors sewed it back on.

Near Buenos Aires, a man died after eating an entire piglet. His family said his eating habits of late had grown out of control.

Then there was the elated South African who thought he had won a $330,000 prize in a fishing competition and was extremely disappointed when he learned the competition had ended three weeks earlier.

Another one who should have checked in advance was the luckless fellow in Texas who was caught trying to sell a camping van while the body of the man he had allegedly killed was still in it.

Then there was the judge whose doodles triggered an appeal from a Death Row inmate. It seems the judge had drawn a happy face on the letter setting the date for the inmate's execution.

The prize for the least observant must surely go to the wife of a Portuguese woman who was charged with fraud after spending 20 years pretending to be a male general in the army--uniform, chauffeur and all. "I never suspected anything," the hapless spouse told the court.

And let us not forget Lorena, who indeed did "Bobbit."

I ask you, dear readers, is truth stranger than fiction or what?

Is alcohol ruining your life or the life of a loved one? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" can turn things around. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here is a copy of a column of yours that gave me the strength to face my troubles and get through the day. When I couldn't sleep at night, I would get up and go out to the kitchen and read it again.

When, at the age of 70, I sold my home to move to beautiful Beaverton, Ore., the first thing I did was put this poem on my refrigerator door. Please run it again, Ann. My original is getting badly frayed.--Faithful Reader in Oregon

DEAR FAITHFUL: Here it is--one of the most frequently requested poems of all. Thank you for asking.

After a While

By Veronica A. Shoffstall

After a while you learn the subtle difference between holding a hand and chaining a soul and you learn that love doesn't mean leaning and company doesn't always mean security.

And you begin to learn that kisses aren't contracts and presents aren't promises and you begin to accept your defeats with your head up and your eyes ahead with the grace of a woman not the grief of a child and you learn to build all your roads on today because tomorrow's ground is too uncertain for plans and futures have a way of falling down in mid-flight

After a while you learn that even sunshine burns if you get too much so you plant your own garden and decorate your own soul instead of waiting for someone to bring you flowers.

And you learn that you really can endure that you really are strong and you really do have worth and you learn and you learn with every goodbye you learn.

Gem of the Day: Drive carefully! Remember--it's not only a car that can be recalled by its maker.

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

History is the witness that testifies to the passing of time: it illumines reality, vitalizes memory, provides guidance in daily life and brings us tidings of antiquity.

Pointers for parents

Doctors say recurring serious infections in children - including pneumonia and ear and sinus infections that are not helped by antibiotics - may be due to a genetic disorder that leaves the body helpless against disease.

Fortunately, information on this disorder - called Primary Immune Deficiency, which affects over 500,000 children nationwide - is available by calling The Jeffrey Modell Foundation (1-800-JEFF-844) at Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York City.

"If not treated as soon as possible, these common problems could become serious ones," says Dr. Charlotte Cunningham-Rundles, immunologist and associate professor of medicine and pediatrics at Mount Sinai. She points to ten warning signs to watch for over the course of a year. These include:

1. More than eight new ear infections.
2. Two or more serious sinus infections.
3. Two or more months on antibiotics with little effect.
4. Two or more bouts of pneumonia.
5. Failure of an infant to gain weight or grow normally.
6. Thrush in mouth or elsewhere on the skin.
7. Deep skin or organ abscesses.
8. Need for intravenous antibiotic to clear infections.
9. Two or more deep-seated infections, such as meningitis, osteomyelitis, cellulitis, sepsis.
10. A family history of the disorder.

The Republic of Texas approved a constitution in 1836.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A WOMAN OF UNDERSTANDING---BEAUTIFUL ABIGAIL!

ABIGAIL WAS THE WIFE OF NABAL, A WEALTHY OWNER OF SHEEP AND GOATS IN CARMEL. IF NABAL WAS A CHURLISH AND EVIL MAN, THEN ABIGAIL WAS THE COMPLETE OPPOSITE, BEING KNOWN FOR HER BEAUTY OF FACE AND INTELLIGENCE. WHEN DAVID'S MEN WERE TURNED DOWN BY NABAL, OVER A SIMPLE REQUEST FOR FOOD FOR HIS TROOPS, IT WAS ABIGAIL WHO PLACATED DAVID'S ANGER AND THUS SAVED NABAL'S LIFE. WHEN NABAL DIED, SHORTLY THEREAFTER, ABIGAIL BECAME ONE OF DAVID'S WIVES. AFTER THE AMALEKITES CAPTURED ZIKLAG, THEY TOOK ABIGAIL CAPTIVE, WHILE DAVID AND HIS MEN WERE OUT CAMPAIGNING IN THE WILDERNESS. BUT SHE WAS SPEEDILY RESCUED BY DAVID WHEN HE ROUTED THE AMALEKITES. ABIGAIL BORE ONE SON TO DAVID AND NAMED HIM CHILEAB (2 SAMUEL 3:3).

IN THESE ANCIENT TIMES, THE ONLY PLACE OF HONOR A WOMAN CAN HOLD IS AS A MAN'S WIFE - TO BE UNMARRIED OR A WIDOW PLACES A WOMAN IN A LOWLY STATE OF LIFE; THUS DAVID'S ACT OF TAKING ABIGAIL AS HIS WIFE IS A VERY KIND AND REWARDING DEED, ALL OF WHICH IS RECORDED IN I SAMUEL: CHAP. 25

The Newspaper BIBLE

"OVERWHELMING VICTORY IS OURS"

Who dares accuse us whom God has chosen for His own? Will God? He is the one who has forgiven us and given us right standing with Himself.

Who then will condemn us? Will Christ? NO! For He is the one who died for us and came back to life again for us and is sitting at the place of highest honor next to God, pleading for us there in heaven.

Who then can ever keep Christ's love from us? When we have trouble or calamity, when we are hunted down or destroyed, is it because He doesn't love us anymore? And if we are hungry, or penniless, or in danger, or threatened with death, has God deserted us?

No, for the Scriptures tell us that for His sake we must be ready to face death at every moment of the day--we are like sheep awaiting slaughter; but despite all this, overwhelming victory is ours through Christ who loved us enough to die for us.

For I am convinced that nothing can ever separate us from His love. Death can't, and life can't. The angels won't, and all the powers of hell itself cannot keep God's love away. Our fears for today, our worries about tomorrow, or where we are--high above the sky, or in the deepest ocean--nothing will ever be able to separate us from the love of God demonstrated by our Lord Jesus Christ when He died for us. Romans 8:33-39

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Who ever heard of laundering a dishcloth every day? Well, maybe I don't every day, but I wash mine more often than I run the washing machine.

Here's how: After I load the dishwasher, I spread the dishcloth over the dishes on the top shelf and it washes right along with them.

I use the reusable cleaning cloths that come three to a package, and this idea works just great. There's always a fresh dishcloth. — Shirley Harrell, Springfield, Mo.

Good idea. Just be absolutely sure to attach the cloth securely to the shelf so it doesn't fly around and get tangled up in the bottom of the dishwasher or stop up a drain line. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: I recently bought a blueberry-muffin mix. As I removed the ingredients from the box, I noticed that the directions said to drain the berries before adding them to the mix. Why is this? — Deidre Hollis, Philadelphia, Pa.

The first newspaper edited for and by blacks - Freedom's Journal - was published in 1827 in New York.

study again points out the link between diet and health.

"In terms of whether everybody should eat a lot of fish, I think there's probably better ways people can control their stroke risk - cigarette smoking, exercise and, probably most important, control of blood pressure because that's the No. 1 risk factor for stroke," Barsan said.

The researchers say that eating certain polyunsaturated fatty acids in fish leads to changes in the blood and blood vessel wall that might protect against stroke. Those changes may reduce the risk that blood vessels supplying the brain will become blocked by a clot.

About 80 percent of all strokes are caused by blood clots.

"Evidence is accumulating that the consumption of at least one portion of fish per week may have a protective effect" against cardiovascular disease, the scientists say in the study published in the February issue of "Stroke," an American Heart Association scientific journal.

However, fish consumption has been linked with prolonged bleeding, so eating large amounts might increase the chance of a stroke involving blood vessels bursting or hemorrhaging in the brain, the researchers said.

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) - Actor Martin Sheen joined about 20 anti-war activists who stood up in federal court, turned their backs on the judge, recited the Lord's Prayer and sang "We Shall Overcome."

Tuesday's disruption came at the trial of veteran peace activist Philip Berrigan and three co-defendants charged with pouring blood over and hammering on a jet at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base last December.

The defendants admitted the protest, but accused the judge, government and military of high crimes.

Sheen, 53, left when U.S. District Judge Terrence Boyle threatened to hold the demonstrators in contempt. The judge then declared a mistrial and swiftly sentenced six of the disrupters who refused to leave to six months in prison.

"These people are modern-day prophets," Sheen said of the defendants. "They have called us to witness. As far as the military-industrial complex is concerned, our country is being complacent."

Sheen, whose film credits include "Gettysburg" and "Apocalypse Now," regularly participates in anti-war demonstrations.

Davidians appear confident after testimony concludes

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Eleven Branch Davidians smiled and their lawyers voiced optimism after the defense closed its short case in a federal murder trial and looked ahead to jury arguments.

Today prosecutors and defense attorneys meet before U.S. District Judge Walter Smith to mull over the instructions the judge will read to jurors before deliberations begin next week.

Self-defense is a key issue. "I believe that a self-defense charge has been raised in the courtroom," said defense attorney Steven "Rocket" Rosen. "That, I believe, is the most crucial part of it."

Government attorneys repeatedly have declined to comment on the case.

Prosecutors contend the Davidians were cold-blooded killers who murdered four agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms as the federal officers raided David Koresh's prairie compound near Waco on Feb. 28, 1993.

The botched raid erupted into a shootout that killed agents Steven Willis, Robert Williams, Conway LeBleu and Todd McKeenan. Six Davidians died.

The 11 Davidians on trial could face up to life in prison if convicted of the murder and murder conspiracy charges against them.

Smith's proposed jury directions contain instructions about a self-defense claim and about possible findings of voluntary manslaughter. Closing arguments are scheduled for Tuesday, then the case goes to the jury.

The final day of testimony began after Judge Smith summoned both sides into his chambers to discuss possible jury tampering. A letter was mailed to eight members of the jury in what appeared to be fake envelopes from the Texas comptroller's office, unidentified court sources told The Dallas Morning News.

The letters, on fake district attorney's stationery, were critical of the government's case and said the trial was crucial to the right to bear arms.

The letters also defended the sect members and criticized Judge Smith, the paper said in Friday's editions. It is the second time that jurors have received mail during the trial. Last month, a jury advocacy group sent letters on jurors rights, and the letters were handed over to the court unread.

Both sides refused comment on the matter Thursday.

Defense lawyers began their case Wednesday and closed Thursday after calling only 11 witnesses. None of the defendants testified.

"There is no need to put your defendant on the witness stand unless you want to prove something," Rosen said. "When you are accused of a crime in this country you are under no burden of proof."

The attorneys attempted to build much of their self-defense case through cross-examination of more than 120 prosecution witnesses.

"They put on a lot of the witnesses we would have called," said defense attorney Douglas Tinker.

The defense began with the playing of a 911 emergency call placed from the compound as the gun battle began.

"There are 75 men around our building and they're shooting at us at Mount Carmel," Koresh aide Wayne Martin told the McLennan County Sheriff's Department in the call.

Just before the defense finished, attorney Mike DeGeurin announced defense and government attorneys agreed to stipulate several statements gun dealer Henry McMahon would make if he had testified.

McMahon, who was in business with doomsday prophet Koresh, would testify Koresh gave him business records to provide to ATF agents the August before the raid while the federal agency was investigating Koresh.

Also, McMahon would testify ATF agents were at McMahon's home once when Koresh was on the telephone.

Japanese lawmakers want action on trade regulations

TOKYO (AP) - Lawmakers jittery over the prospect of a trade war with the United States urged their prime minister today to move quickly to cut Japan's trade surplus.

Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa agreed Thursday to offer some measures to open Japan's markets to more foreign goods. But an intense session of the Japanese Parliament's lower house budget committee today was dominated by calls for more dramatic action.

"The easygoing approach we've taken so far just won't work," said Socialist lawmaker Shigeru Goto. "Japan should take drastic action to open markets and ease regulations."

Economists say freeing up Japan's complex distribution systems and bureaucratic bottlenecks that favor local firms would also help Japan recover from its worst recession in decades.

Talks on reducing Japan's growing trade surplus with the United States collapsed last week. Hosokawa returned from a summit with President Clinton saying Washington was pushing Japan to move too fast.

Fears of a trade war with the United States, by far Japan's biggest market, have since goaded Hosokawa into action.

U.S. Ambassador to Japan Walter F. Mondale today called Japan "a closed market."

"We cannot sustain these current account imbalances. The rest of the world cannot," Mondale said.

Hosokawa's government promised economic reforms when it took office in August but political reforms and other matters got in the way.

The plan announced Thursday covers four key U.S. complaints: imports and foreign investment, deregulation, anti-monopoly enforcement, and fairer government purchasing.

Chief government spokesman Masayoshi Takemura said the plan will be the basis for reforms that would change the "style and structure of the entire Japanese economy."

But the new trade package is unlikely to resolve the sticking point of last week's summit: a U.S. demand for numerical benchmarks to measure the success of trade agreements.

Japan contends specific goals would require too much interference in business decisions.

Mondale said the United States would be satisfied if Japan fully opened its markets and trade figures reflected that change.

"In those parts of the Japanese market that are open, you don't hear any complaints," Mondale said.

Takemura said the government might be able to put a package together before finance officials from the Group of Seven richest industrial nations meet Feb. 26.

Once the package is ready, Japan may send an emissary to Washington to explain it, he said.

The United States announced Thursday the trade deficit with Japan shot up nearly 24 percent last year to a record $59.3 billion, surpassing the $56.3 billion set in 1987.

U.S., Mexico officials agree on customs crossing needs

HIDALGO, Texas (AP) - New bridges aren't necessarily the answer to congestion problems on the U.S.-Mexico border, the Customs chiefs for both countries agree.

"I think we have to deal with the deck that we are currently dealt," U.S. Customs Commissioner George Weise said Thursday during a tour of the busy international bridge linking Hidalgo to Reynosa, Mexico.

"We have to do everything in our power to make the existing facilities work as effectively as possible," Weise said.

His Mexican counterpart, Luis Manuel Gutierrez Levy, generally echoed that sentiment.

Asked about long truck lines at the bridge, Gutierrez Levy said: "I can show you bridges a few kilometers away where there's nobody. So, we have to look for other options that already exist."

That wasn't good news to Mike Allen, president of the McAllen Economic Development Corp., who is lobbying for the proposed Anzalduas Bridge south of Mission.

"We absolutely need Anzalduas. It's not a question of politics. It's a question of business. These decisions need to be business-driven," Allen said.

But Weise said the Customs agency is neutral about where to local new crossings. But budget constraints make the prospect for several new bridges unrealistic, he said.

Weise said the recently built Columbia-Solidarity Bridge north of Laredo is the nation's most modern, but few people use it.

"The traffic isn't there for whole lot of reasons. But one of the reasons is that the infrastructure on the Mexican side - the roads haven't been appropriately built," Weise said.

"We need to make sure that we work a lot smarter in the future, that we take into account the infrastructure on both sides of the border before we make the kind of financial commitment to new structures," he said.

Early traffic counts also have been slow at the new Free Trade Bridge south of Harlingen.

Weise, on his second visit to the Texas-Mexico border since taking the top Customs job in May 1993, said his agency's focus is to make current crossings more efficient.

But Allen said the agency fails to foresee an increase in traffic under the North American Free Trade Agreement.

"You can't provide jobs if you can't attract industry and you can't attract industry if you can't move trucks," Allen said.

The United States and Mexican governments already are constructing a new bridge east of McAllen between Pharr and Reynosa.

U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, said he supported new bridge proposals because of the growing populations in Mexico and the border area.

"That's why we are trying to get the crossings in place before you need them," de la Garza said.

San Francisco's first cable car went into operation 1873.
