Hamilton wearing many hats

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Paul Hamilton sometimes must think he's seeing himself coming when he's going.

After all, he's an installer-salesman for WT Services, captain of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, a member of the Noon Kiwanis Club - and a volunteer with the Hereford Make-a-Wish Foundation.

Oh, by the way, he also carried a torch for the 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta.

Hamilton, a native of Hereford, became involved in the Make-a-Wish Foundation, a charitable organization that tries to fulfill the wishes of terminally ill youngsters, a few years ago.

"I heard about it and had gone to a function at Amarillo. Some people had talked about a satellite program in Hereford," he said.

There were about a dozen volunteers in Hereford, and they wanted to launch their own chapter.

"Our main goal was to have our own chapter here so we could deposit our money - we wanted our money to stay in Hereford," he said.

"Amarillo was pleased - they said, 'Go for it,'" and the Hereford chapter was chartered, with the restriction that only the Amarillo headquarters is authorized to draw checks on the account.

"We can't touch it, and every cent is double-checked and triple-checked," Hamilton said.

"We're estimating that the Heifers & Bulls (golf) tournament will make about $4,000 (for Make-a-Wish)," Hamilton said, referring to the benefit tournament held last weekend at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course in Amarillo.

City to hold budget meet

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

A proposed $6.8 million budget to operate the City of Hereford for the next year will be examined Monday during a public hearing, at a City Commission workshop and at the regular commission meeting.

The budget proposal, which calls for the city ad valorem tax rate to remain at 42 cents per $100 assessed valuation and which includes a 4 percent pay raise for city workers, will be examined at the work session, set for 5 p.m. Monday in the commission chamber at City Hall, 224 N. Lee.

The public hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m., with the commission's meeting to follow.

The tax rate also will be discussed at the public hearing.

When City Manager Chester Nolen presented the budget package to the commission last month, he pointed out that the total revenue generated by the property tax will increase, although the rate will remain the same, because of increased property values.

Revenue from all sources, including ad valorem taxes, sales taxes and garbage, sewer and water sales, is expected to be about $7.02 million, with a projected surplus of $120,136 at the end of the year.

However, city planners wanted to avoid, as much as possible, increased debt in financing the wastewater treatment plant improvements, so the budget was re-examined, City Manager Chester Nolen said.

In the reworking of the budget, Nolen said some items were deleted entirely, other items were cut back and still others were delayed to another budget year. The budget planners have come up with a package that projects a surplus of about $400,000, Nolen said.

A chunk of that $400,000 will go into the fund to pay for the wastewater treatment facility project, he said.

UW sets luncheon to kick off drive

United Way, the organization which helps many agencies help others, is getting ready for its annual United Way Kickoff Luncheon.

The free luncheon will begin at noon Wednesday at the Hereford Community Center, 100 Ave. C.

The public is invited to hear Larry Barnes, development director of the Golden Spread Council, BSA, discuss work done by United Way-supported agencies. Also, a video, featuring local people and businesses, will be shown.

Lunch is free, but participants are asked to notify the office, so they will know how many to expect.

The United Way only approaches businesses and never solicits door-to-door, so donations are easily made through payroll deductions.

Pledge cards will be distributed at all the participating companies. Pledge cards also may be obtained by calling the United Way office.

Hereford UW director Karen Sherrod said, "Through our agency, we are able to make small individual donations go a long way."

This year's theme is "Make a Dream Come True" and uses the rainbow and the song "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" in its campaign.

The funds help local agencies provide Christmas for the children of needy families, provide services at the health clinics and numerous other organizations.

"This is the best way to make the dream of making our community a better place to become a reality," said Sherrod.

Last year, the top 10 contributing companies gave 39 percent of total campaign funds.

This year's goal is set at $132,000 and all companies and their employees are invited to contribute.

Of the money donated to the Deaf Smith United Way, 99 percent stays here in the community said Sherrod.

The other 1 percent goes to the national organization for the use of the name, logo and benefits which accompany a larger organization.

Thirteen organizations in Deaf Smith County benefit from the collective forces of the United Way.

"I would like to thank the community and everyone who donates. By pulling together, we will be able to make a difference," said Sherrod.

Champion of the poor laid to rest amid the pomp of a state funeral

CALCUTTA, India (AP) - Mother Teresa, the compassionate Christian who ministered to the poor whatever their religion, was laid to rest today with the pomp of a state funeral, the tears of the downtrodden and the prayers of a half-dozen faiths.

Pope John Paul II's envoy bade a final farewell, conveying the thanks of the Roman Catholic Church. The poor in Calcutta who considered her their angel honored her, too: Scores slipped past police to run beside the garlanded carriage that bore her to her funeral, calling "Mother Teresa, you're immortal," and wiping tears from their cheeks.

A Christian in an overwhelmingly Hindu nation, she unrelentingly focused on the world's poorest and built a worldwide network of charities. Her work freely crossed religious boundaries, caught the attention and admiration of world leaders and won her the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize.

"Perhaps the greatest message she has given is the value and dignity of human life," the archbishop of Calcutta, Henry D'Souza, said in his eulogy. "All human life is precious."

Mother Teresa's open, white casket rested on a platform inside the Netaji indoor stadium, her body raised and tilted to afford 12,000 people - poor and sick, presidents and royalty - a last look. A white-and-blue banner stating, "Works of love are works of peace," draped the altar.

Mother Teresa, known here as the saint of the gutters, died Sept. 5 at 87. She appears an ideal candidate for sainthood in the Roman Catholic Church. However, five years must pass before the bishop in Calcutta may begin collecting proof of "heroic virtue and reputation of holiness," which are required for canonization.

Cardinal Angelo Sodano, speaking in the name of the pope, praised Mother Teresa for showing love and compassion to the poor while others simply debated how to help them. Sodano, who celebrated the funeral Mass, is the Vatican secretary of state.

"The poor are still with us," Sodano said, calling on others to continue her work. "At the close of a century that has known terrible extremes of darkness, the light of conscience has not been altogether extinguished. Holiness, goodness, kindness, love are still recognized" because of Mother Teresa.

John Paul watched Mother Teresa's funeral on television from his summer palace in the hills outside Rome, and celebrated a private Mass in her honor, Vatican sources said.

Her three-hour funeral service blended four languages - English, Latin, Bengali and Hindi. A choir of nuns from her Missionaries of Charity sang in Bengali: "Touch me with your inspiration... Make me whole."

Speakers representing the archbishop of Canterbury, the Hindus, the Muslims, the Sikhs, the Buddhists and the Parsi, a tiny religious group in India, paid tribute to Mother Teresa.

After the Mass, first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, who led a U.S. delegation to the funeral, placed a wreath against the base of Mother Teresa's casket.

Stagner fund

Contributions to the Sandy Stagner Memorial Journalism Fund are still being accepted, Brand Publisher Speedy Nieman said Friday.

"Due to my unexpected illness, the legal paperwork to set up the scholarship fund has not been completed," Nieman said.

The publisher added some checks already submitted for the fund have not been deposited.

"We want to make sure the fund is set up correctly, and that should be completed soon. We apologize to those who have already submitted checks that have not cleared the bank yet. We hope this is not an inconvenience," he said.

Mrs. Stagner was a longtime former employee of The Brand. She served a number of years as the Lifestyle editor.

Early out

Hereford schools will dismiss one hour early on Friday, Sept. 19. Buses will run one hour early to allow students and busses the necessary time to travel to Coronado.

CISNEROS' FORMER MISTRESS LOSES IMMUNITY

LUBBOCK (AP) - Prosecutors say the former mistress of ex-U.S. Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros was indicted after she misled the grand jury in the investigation of her relationship with Cisneros.

Linda Jones was indicted Friday on 26 federal counts of conspiracy, bank fraud, money laundering and obstruction of a special counsel's investigation.

The obstruction indictments allege that Jones failed to "live up to her end of the bargain" by lying to FBI special agents, independent counsel David M. Barrett said.

In November 1995, Barrett granted immunity to Jones. But Jones began violating immunity terms "from the outset," Barrett's statement said, causing the investigation to turn against her.

With the completion of work Friday by the Lubbock grand jury, a source told the San Antonio Express-News, the inquiry will shift to focus on Cisneros. He remains the principal target of the probe by a Washington federal grand jury.

UTEP FRAUD PROBE CENTERS ON EX-GRIDDER

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - A former defensive lineman at Texas-El Paso is under investigation as a possible key to alleged links between past and current players and a tax-fraud scheme, the El Paso Times and El Paso Herald-Post have reported.

Brian Burks, 23, is under scrutiny as a possible link between an Internal Revenue Service employee in California and as many as 30 past and current UTEP football players in an alleged plot to inflate income tax refunds, the newspapers reported, citing unidentified sources close to the investigation.

"If I was involved, don't you think I'd be living in a nicer place than this?" Burks told the Times in an interview at his sparsely furnished apartment Friday.

Burks, who is from Los Angeles, he said he knows no one who worked for the IRS.

"I wish I knew someone who worked at the IRS, because, man, I need a federal job or something," Burks said Friday.

COWBOYS' ACCUSER QUESTIONS JUDGE'S HONESTY

DALLAS (AP) - Attorneys say the judge in the Nina Shahravan perjury case warned that he'd have to consider how she "inconvenienced influential people in Dallas" if she is found guilty of lying when she accused two Dallas Cowboys players of raping her.

The Dallas Morning News reported in Saturday's editions that prosecutors and defense attorneys testified at a July 23 hearing that Dallas County Criminal Judge Dan L. Wyde issued the warning.

The newspaper obtained Friday a transcript of a hearing on a defense motion to remove Wyde from the misdemeanor perjury case. Retired state District Judge Pat McDowell, chief judicial administrator for the Dallas County courts, denied the motion.

Wyde has denied making the remark.

In the recusal motion, defense attorney G. David Smith accused Wyde of bias and prejudice against his client. The two prosecutors in Ms. Shahravan's case also testified that they heard the judge say what Smith accused him of saying, according to the transcript.

BOSNIAN ELECTIONS HELD

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - Under international scrutiny, Bosnians started voting today in nationwide elections to choose their own local governments for the first time since the years before their disastrous war.

As polls opened at 7 a.m. (1 a.m. EDT), scores of refugees boarded buses in Sarajevo to travel to their prewar towns to vote, under escort of NATO-led troops.

"I am going to cast a ballot so that I can return home," said Hasim Kaliman, a 64-year-old Muslim who was on his way to his village near Visegrad, now under Bosnian Serb control. "The war is over and this, voting, is the only way we can fight to go home."

International envoys say the foreign-run elections today and Sunday are key to furthering the U.S.-brokered Dayton peace accord, intended to help restore the country's multiethnic character after the devastating 3 1/2-year war.

Still, most Bosnians seem likely to vote along ethnic lines, throwing their support behind either the Muslim-led Party for Democratic Action, the Croatian Democratic Union or the Serb Democratic Party - although some voters hoped this would change.

COALITION HAS SAME TARGETS

ATLANTA (AP) - The Christian Coalition has overhauled its leadership, but its targets for scorn and criticism are unchanged: Bill Clinton, Al Gore and congressional leaders who have "lost their direction."

Founder Pat Robertson and 900 followers paid tribute Friday night to Ralph Reed, the baby-faced political consultant who helped build the coalition from the scraps of Robertson's failed 1988 presidential bid and left recently to found his own political consulting firm.

Third runner up

Joanna Brumley was named first runner up in the senior division of the Junior Fed Beef Challenge recently at WTAMU. Brumley also tied for first place oral interview. Congratulating the winner in Lynn Allen, contest chairman. Students feed a pen of three steers, then compete on the carcass merit of cattle, plus the student's ability in live cattle evaluation, a written exam, oral interview and record keeping.

Clinton hashes out deal

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is hashing out his options for changing the disputed tobacco deal, with the goal of announcing a position before he takes daughter Chelsea to college next week.

The biggest sticking point appeared to be money. Clinton's top tobacco advisers were divided over whether to increase the proposed deal's $368 billion price tag and how to penalize cigarette makers if teen-age smoking is not curtailed.

"We have to make the most of this historic opportunity to protect our children against the dangers of tobacco by passing sweeping legislation that focuses first and foremost on reducing smoking among our young people," Clinton said Friday before a meeting to receive options.

Aides presented the president with a memo detailing "consensus positions" on such issues as strengthening the government's ability to control nicotine in cigarettes, an administration official said.

Aides would not discuss Clinton's reactions after the 45-minute meeting. "He'll take it away and we'll hear from him when he's ready to make an announcement," spokesman Joe Lockhart said.

Where Clinton's own tobacco advisers could not agree was on money - especially how to raise cigarette prices or fine manufacturers enough to significantly lower teen-age smoking. They merely presented him with a range of options.

The tobacco deal crafted by cigarette makers and state attorneys general called for companies to pay $368.5 billion over 25 years to settle dozens of anti-tobacco lawsuits. The money would come from raising the price of cigarettes by an estimated 62 cents a pack.

In addition, cigarette makers would pay fines if youth smoking did not drop to pre-set targets. Critics say neither the price increase nor the fines are high enough.

A $14 billion lawsuit filed by Texas prosecutors is scheduled for trial Sept. 29 in Texarkana federal court.

Hereford. "I have to make a photocopy of every check and send it to Amarillo before we can deposit (the money)."

The Heifers & Bulls tournament was the second tourney held this year at the Hereford course to benefit the foundation. The Hereford Open in the spring netted about $3,000 for Make-a-Wish, Hamilton said.

Since launching the Hereford chapter between two and three years ago, Hamilton said the organization has had several functions, including manning a booth at the Town & Country Jubilee festival. Also, several individuals and civic groups have made donations to Make-a-Wish.

"We've granted wishes to three children from the Hereford area. I had to do the actual interview with a child in Bovina," he said.

"You'd be surprised. One little girl just wanted a new bed with a (canopy) on it and go to Sirlain Stockade.

"Others want to go to Disneyland, sometimes things that aren't practical, but some just want a computer or something to make their lives just a little bit better," he said.

"It (Make-a-Wish) is fulfilling. Anything like that - it's like the fire department, where if we can save your house with only minimal damage - if you have little kids, they can't do anything for themselves and you can help make them feel good, it's a good feeling," he said.

Hamilton was proud of being chosen to carry a torch during the events leading up to the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games. After all, he was chosen because of his role in saving a Hereford couple's lives during a house fire.

Hamilton said other firefighters were just as deserving of the honor, but "I was the one she (the rescued woman) knew best."

His name was submitted to the United Way, the organization selected to help pick the torchbearers, and Hamilton was one of 5,000 community heroes picked to carry the Olympic torch as it wound its way around the U.S. to Atlanta.

Hamilton, who pointed out the participants in the relay did not actually pass the torch, they passed the flame from one torch to the next, carried the flame for 0.7 mile in Grand Prairie. Thanks to donations from his church and others in Hereford, he was able to buy the torch, which he has in his home.

"I'll never forget it," he said. "The hoopla in the Metroplex was huge, and it was a lot of fun."

Hamilton said the Hereford Make-a-Wish chapter doesn't have anything planned for the next few months, although the Amarillo base will hold its annual "Summer Celebration" later this month.

The Texas Plains is selling tickets for certificates of deposit of $50,000, $20,000, $10,000 and $5,000, which will be given away at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 26 at the Grand Plaza, Amarillo Civic Center. For more information about the event, call (806) 358-9943.

Meanwhile, Hamilton said the Hereford organization needs volunteers. Anyone who wants to volunteer to help the Hereford Make-a-Wish should call Hamilton at 364-7311, or Debbie or Bernadette at First American Bank, 364-6921.

New name at an old post

WASHINGTON (AP) - The physician selected by President Clinton to fill the long-vacant post of surgeon general says he will combine the old with the new in trying to improve the health of Americans.

"I want to be the surgeon general who reaches our citizens with cutting-edge technology and plain, old-fashioned straight talk," Dr. David Satcher said Friday at a White House ceremony announcing his nomination.

"Whether we're talking about smoking or poor diet, I want to send messages of good health to our cities and our suburbs, our barrios and reservations, and even our prisons," said Satcher, now director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta.

Satcher led the CDC's immunization campaign that brought preventable childhood diseases to record lows, and he helped start an early-warning system to detect new diseases before they cause epidemics.

But Clinton said Satcher's top priority as surgeon general must be "to free our children from the grip of tobacco." More Americans die of smoking-related diseases than from AIDS, car crashes, murders and suicides combined - and that 90 percent of smokers get hooked in their teens, he said.

This is Clinton's third attempt to fill the key public health position.

Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders left in 1994 after criticism of her frank comments about sex education and masturbation. The nomination of a successor, Dr. Henry Foster, fizzled because of a furor over abortions he performed. Even the acting surgeon general is gone, having left the temporary post July 1.

But Satcher is not expected to face much opposition.

Sen. Jim Jeffords, R-Vt., said his Labor and Human Resources Committee will examine Satcher's nomination quickly. Sen. Bill Frist, R-Tenn., himself a physician, said, "I'm confident that Dr. Satcher will reclaim the integrity historically associated with the position of surgeon general."

Satcher also was nominated to become assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health and Human Services. The two jobs have not been held by the same person since the 1970s.

Home at Last

A Texas man, who died in California, with a wish of having his cremated remains scattered over his home state will finally get his wish.

Clarence Anderson made the request just prior to his death, but an uncle, Norman Buchere, who works as a prune picker couldn't afford to bring the remains home.

Buchere turned the remains over to a friend of Anderson's who said he was going back to Texas.

Anderson's ashes were found in a sealed box marked "Do not destroy, Cremated remains of Clarence W. Anderson," in a dumpster at an I-40 reststop in Carson County.

After more than a month's delay, the late Anderson will have his ashes spread over farmland between Hereford and Vega, thanks to Dave Anderson (no relation), owner of Parkside Funeral Chapel.

The chapel owner said that sometime next week he will have a sunrise memorial service on his family farm.

Dave Anderson said that two things caught his attention. First, no one should end up in a dumpster, and two the same last names just made him feel it was the right thing to do.

Clinton's allies press for written proposal on trade

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON - President Clinton's trade allies in Congress have been pressing him for months to deliver in writing the legislation he wants passed this year to give him unfettered authority to negotiate trade deals.

Not quite yet. It's still wait, and then hurry up.
For all the rhetoric on an issue debated for more than two years, the specific terms aren't ready yet. What Clinton seeks is clear: a new lease on the fast-track trade negotiating authority that expired in 1993. That would allow the administration to make trade agreements and put them to Congress as yes-or-no propositions, no amendments permitted.
How Clinton gets there is unclear.

There won't be a detailed proposal before next week, a symptom of the political stresses at work on the issue.

At a White House sendoff on Wednesday, Clinton made fast-track approval sound like the next thing to patriotism. "... If we want to spread prosperity and open trade to support peace and democracy and freedom and free markets, we must do this," the president said.

Congressional Republicans stayed away to protest the lack of a bill. This is traditionally a Republican cause; labor and liberal Democrats always have been at least skeptical about the impact of trade agreements on jobs at home.

"There's nothing complicated here," Gene Sperling, director of the president's National Economic Council, said of the delay, calling it a matter of a few more days for consultation.

There are political complexities. Clinton can't win without a solid Republican majority in Congress to offset opposition among Democrats. So he has to balance Democratic demands that the bill include provisions on labor standards and environmental protection by U.S. trading partners against GOP insistence on terms that don't tie strings to trade.

That's nothing new; the lines were drawn long ago.

"Trade issues have always been hot-button issues for organized labor," said Secretary of Commerce William Daley, who had to tackle that political problem when he was chief lobbyist for Clinton in winning approval of NAFTA, the free trade deal with Mexico, in 1993.

That agreement has not been the trade bonanza advertised at the time, an added burden for the administration now. Labor argues that it has been a job drain, to low-paying Mexican manufacturers. The administration counters that it has had a positive, but modest economic impact.

This trade debate is over umbrella authority to cover future trade agreements. Clinton sought it unsuccessfully in 1995 and shelved it as too sensitive for campaign-year action in 1996. The case for it is that other trading nations won't make agreements with the United States unless they can be assured that Congress won't pick the deals apart with amendments.

Congressional Democrats want labor and environmental conditions set in advance. "The delay in sending up a detailed bill is hopefully a sign that a majority of Democrats and their concerns are being heard," said Rep. Dick Gephardt, the House minority leader.

The Republican counteroffer is to empower presidents to set conditions on environmental and labor standards in future treaties, so long as they apply directly to trade in specific products.

That isn't going to satisfy Gephardt and his allies. The administration needs to find terms that will satisfy enough Democrats to win, knowing that Gephardt and a majority of them will vote no.

Vice President Al Gore will be a leading spokesman for the White House, promising a collision with Gephardt that may preview their likely competition for the 2000 Democratic presidential nomination.

When the administration withheld specific fast track legislation more than three months ago, Democratic Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who supports the authority, complained that the bill was being held up because of political calculations involving Gore.

Not so, the administration said, and there was no campaign logic to it anyhow. It reflected frustration at the delay among fast track supporters, who said even then that if Clinton didn't send Congress a bill, there wouldn't be time to act on one this year and he might not get one in 1998, with a campaign on.

They're waiting, and warning that more lost time, even days, makes it less likely that he will get one in 1997.

Many wait for Chelsea's arrival

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - When Chelsea Clinton becomes the First Freshman at Stanford University next week, her proud and wistful parents will be watching.

And so will reporters and photographers eager to document the start of her new life 3,000 miles away from home.

Chelsea, accompanied by President Clinton and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, will begin her Stanford career with five days of orientation starting Sept. 19th.

She'll move into her dorm, meet her roommate and get to know the sprawling campus 30 miles south of San Francisco before classes start on Sept. 24th.

The Clintons plan to let reporters follow them about campus on the first day of orientation with the idea that the press will get enough pictures and fodder for stories.

"That's the hope," said Marsha Berry, Mrs. Clinton's press representative.

And once she's settled in, Chelsea will not be hounded by the student newspaper, the Stanford Daily. Rather, she'll be treated as "a student, a regular student," not as a celebrity, says the paper's editor, Carolyn Sleeth.

Chelsea was long protected from the glare of the press but has recently become something of a public figure in her own right with increasing public appearances over the past year. The 17-year-old would-be doctor has received high marks for being intelligent, poised and personable.

"I've found inspiration in the effortless grace that a girl half my age has brought to an intimidating challenge," Patti Davis, Ronald Reagan's daughter, wrote in Harper's Bazaar about Chelsea.

"Whatever it is Chelsea does, she's the best person we've ever seen doing it," the Unofficial Chelsea Clinton Fan Club declares on its Web site.

Thousands of people were interested enough in Chelsea to give her some tongue-in-cheek advice in a survey the Internet company Excite! recently ran on its Web site.

"It's like the whole country gets to go to college with her - they get to live vicariously," said Joe Krauss, one of six Stanford grads who founded the company.

Stanford, determined to guard Chelsea's privacy as it would that of any other student, isn't saying much about her life at the university. She'll be just one of its entering 1,660 freshmen who ante up nearly $30,000 in tuition, room and board to study at the campus that sits at the foot of rolling, oak-studded hills.

Celebrities who've attended other prestigious schools have been able to enjoy relatively normal lives on campus.

Amy Carter created a bit of a stir when she visited campuses before choosing Brown University. John F. Kennedy Jr. also attended Brown. Both were treated "just like any other private student," said university spokeswoman Tracie Sweeney.

"Of course, it was a help that their fathers were not sitting presidents when they were in school. That took some of the pressure off," she said.

Artist Parks' first love photography

WASHINGTON (AP) - Painting, sculpture, poetry, music - at age 84, Gordon Parks practices all the old arts. But he gives first place to the newer one he calls his "weapon against poverty and racism" - photography.

Parks has snapped tens of thousands of photos from nudes to fashion shots. He laughs and shakes his head when he's asked to guess how many. He also has written 16 books, five of them autobiographical including a new one: "Half Past Autumn," published today on the opening of a 220-photo retrospective show at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Parks also has directed 11 films and written music for two of them.

He never studied music - he never finished high school, he told reporters Tuesday, but he started playing at age 6. His musical record includes two piano concertos, at least one sonata and a ballet on the life of Martin Luther King Jr., as well as some early experience at the piano of a bordello.

"I had to survive," Parks explained.

Some of his work will be played by members of the National Symphony Orchestra under director Leonard Slatkin on Nov. 21, shortly after his 85th birthday, in one of the daily free concerts at the Kennedy Center. The ballet music can be heard by picking up a pair of earphones at the Corcoran exhibit.

"If I had my druthers and there were only two things I could do, I would possibly say write poetry and compose music," he said.

But his chief claim to fame comes from his photography, which he began in 1938 while working as a dining car waiter on the Northern Pacific Railroad. He paid $7.50 for a Voightlander Brilliant at a pawn shop.

It was "not much of a camera, but a great name to throw around," Parks said.

of the first he took for the Farm Services Administration, an agency of President Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal. It shows a black cleaning woman at a government office with mop and broom, standing before a big American flag. He called it "American Gothic," a takeoff of the famous Grant Wood painting with the same title that depicts an elderly white farm couple in front of their house.

Parks sat by the photo Tuesday as he held forth for the benefit of reporters on a variety of subjects.

The paparazzi, now under siege for their unrelenting pursuit of Princess Diana and other celebrities?

"I understand they need to make a buck," Parks said.

He mused on the time when he could have done so but held back.

It was when Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini were having a famous love affair on the Italian island of Stromboli.

No one deserves to suffer abuse

Growing up in the country, I often saw dogs and puppies and cats of all sorts wander up to the house in search of food, water and a little love. Many times I would see them slinking around the barns, or watching as our animals cleaned out their food bowls and the scrap platters.

After seeing them a couple of times, we would always try to get them to come to us - something that usually took a while.

When we tempted them with a bowl of food, the starving animals would invariably dart in, grab a quick bite and wait for us to leave before taking a second chance.

Many of these animals we were able to befriend and find them good homes, some we kept and loved.

The one thing most of the animals had in common was a natural instinct to be with humans. Unfortunately, many had been so badly frightened by abuse, neglect or abandonment that trusting humans again was a daring charge.

I don't think I'll ever forget when Smokey came to our house. She looked like a fullblood Norwegian Elk hound. Smokey gray (hence the name), with beautiful silver and black markings and what should have been a beautiful plumed tail.

She came to us as a starving bag of bones, with a leather strap cutting into her neck and showing all the signs of having been beaten, badly.

We fed her, took off the would-be leather collar and gave her lots of attention.

After she realized she wasn't going to be hurt anymore, she started meeting us at the back door or as the school bus let us off. She always seemed to be smiling and happy to see us.

One day, some out-of-state friends came to see us. They immediately fell in love with Smokey and, strangely enough, she with them.

When they left, a week later, Smokey left with them and she had a good home for the next 14 years. As close as we can figure, she was between 16 and 17 when she died quietly in her sleep.

When my friends called and told me Smokey had died, I was nearly as sad as if she had lived with me all that time.

I thought of Smokey recently when I met a young woman who had been raised in a terrible household, with a drunken father and a frightened mother.

Carol grew up and married someone worse than her father, but she had learned a hard lesson and got out of the marriage before the abuse could take a further toll on her self-esteem.

She put herself through college and made sure her children knew they need never accept abuse in any form.

She is now married to a gentleman, in every sense of the word, who treats her with all the love and respect due a spouse.

The point of these two stories emphasizes that no one or nothing should ever suffer the indignities of abuse.

I write up police reports nearly every day where someone has reported domestic assault or violence, the problem is too often it is the same set of people involved in the abuse.

I can't help but wonder if getting beaten once is not enough reason to think a life of solitude is not better than the torment of wondering when the next beating will occur.

Thirty years ago, domestic violence wasn't considered much of a crime; today it is. There is help for anyone who is in a bad relationship, but the people being abused needs to be strong enough to take the first step and realize they don't have to take it.

Children need to learn that they cannot abuse others, nor should they let themselves or others be abused.

Abuse diminishes both the abuser and the abused, as well as those who know about and do nothing with the excuse, "It's none of my business. I don't want to get involved."

If we don't all work together to end domestic violence, we may one day find it is our children who are living in a life of fear and degradation.

What Others are Saying

By The Associated Press
Here are excerpts from recent editorials in newspapers in the United States and abroad:

The New York Times, on campaign finance hearings:

We have now heard from Donald Fowler, who seems barely to remember that he ran the Democratic National Committee during the last election cycle. Mr. Fowler would have the country believe that the party suffered from "deficient" vetting of donors and "mistakes of process, not intent," as he told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee yesterday. But D.N.C. and White House documents produced at the hearing made plain that at least in one prominent case of fund-raising abuse, the vetting of a dubious donor was just fine. It was an insatiable appetite for money that drove the campaign to misconduct. ...

The Bellingham (Wash.) Herald, on the Senate campaign finance hearings:

So far it appears more people are tuning in for Nick at Nite reruns than the campaign finance hearings.

The hearings have so little public interest, in fact, that even CNN is only halfheartedly airing them. That spells bad news for people hoping for reform.

Lawmakers have their snouts jammed so deep into the trough of soft money that supports our electoral system that they're highly unlikely to pull their head out of the slot without help from the public.

There's still a real chance that significant reform can be achieved. Unfortunately, most people don't realize it because most people aren't remotely paying attention to the issue.

The point that the nation's lawmakers fail to grasp is that the public's apathy signals only that the circus in Washington, D.C. grows more and more irrelevant to people's lives. It no longer surprises anyone that politicians will stoop to any level to raise campaign funds. Few people question whether policy decisions are influenced by who gives the most money. It's a given and few people care. ...

The Philadelphia Inquirer, on British monarchy and Prime Minister Tony Blair:

When the British monarchy failed to grasp the impact of Princess Diana's death last week, it was Prime Minister Tony Blair who immediately caught the national mood.

It was Mr. Blair who called Diana "the people's princess," and it was he who convinced the monarchy to play a more visible role in the nation's grieving. ... And having helped the monarchy survive the week, Mr. Blair went on to reassure the British public that the much-maligned Prince Charles will one day make an excellent king.

The idea of a Labor party prime minister rescuing the monarchy may seem a bit strange. Even stranger may be the assumption by some pundits that Mr. Blair's guidance will now become essential for steering the hidebound Windsors into the modern age. ...

Sports? Not my bailiwick

I don't know about anyone else, but I was happy to see Bob Varmette take the sports editor's job at The Brand.

If he hadn't come on board, I would have continued to try to handle sports - something that's pretty far out of my bailiwick.

I started my newspaper career as a sports writer, but I bailed out of that job as soon as possible, switching to the news side of newspaper work. In fact, I left the last football game I ever covered at halftime.

I know it was heretical, but I was a sports writer who didn't care that much for sports - or at least I was one who failed to attach any importance to sports.

Don't get me wrong; I know how important sports - especially high school football - is to most communities, and it's very important that the newspaper provide as much coverage as is possible. There'll probably never be enough coverage, at least for some fans, because there are space limitations and most small-town newspapers just don't have the staff to be at every event.

When I was growing up, I did follow the Arkansas Razorbacks every football season. But then I lived in Arkansas and you couldn't avoid following the Razorbacks - there wasn't anything else.

I also spent many nights listening to Harry Caray doing St. Louis Cardinals play-by-play, but I only listened to the Cardinal games because I wanted to get the Boston Red Sox score. Given the quality of the Red Sox teams in those days, I suppose I was really wasting my time, especially since I didn't really like the Cardinals.

I did follow soccer when I was in Germany. I remember standing on the sidewalk outside a department store in Berlin with 50 or 60 other people watching Germany play England for the World Cup. (England won, by the way.) But after coming back to the States, I lost interest in soccer.

I still watch baseball, particularly the All-Star game and the World Series, and I've watched a little basketball. But I haven't watched an NFL game since Ronald Reagan's first term, and I don't intend to watch one anytime soon. I don't even know what teams are in the NFL, and given the way professional franchises move around these days, I sometimes wonder if anyone does.

I do enjoy watching hockey, even though I don't know the rules, and I'm already planning to catch an Amarillo Rattlers game when the minor-league team begins its new season.

Given my lack of knowledge about most sports and my utter lack of interest in learning more about them, no one could have been happier than I when a sports editor came on board.

And, since Bob obviously enjoys sports and covering athletic events, the readers of The Brand should be a lot happier, too.

Autumn hazardous for vice president

WASHINGTON - For Al Gore, this could be a hazardous autumn in the pursuit of the presidency, and he can't control the risks just ahead. Put a special prosecutor on the Democratic fund-raising case, and it probably would haunt him well into campaign year 2000, or longer.

Once installed, special prosecutors in high-profile cases don't hurry. And they can hurt a political figure without bringing charges, with what they say, and simply because their operations can keep a troublesome issue going.

The Iran-Contra counsel, whose final accusations hit George Bush just before the 1992 election, had been at it for seven years.

Gore's problem is in the process Attorney General Janet Reno began on Sept. 3, a preliminary review that may be the first step toward appointment of a special counsel into the political fund-raising calls he made from the White House, seeking Democratic donations for the 1996 elections. At least 46 connected, according to telephone records given Senate investigators early in August.

"On a few occasions, I made some telephone calls from my office in the White House," Gore acknowledged five months earlier, after his role was disclosed.

But the number that counts now is six. Those calls from Gore produced $120,000 in donations the party put into its campaign account, instead of using it for unregulated, party purposes. The Democrats say he wasn't told.

Candidate contributions are limited by law; the unrestricted donations to political parties are exempt.

Gore has said repeatedly that he did no wrong, asked only for lawful donations, and breached no rule by calling from the office because the practice is not forbidden to vice presidents or presidents.

He said he is confident the Justice Department review will find "what I did is legal and appropriate." He said long ago he wouldn't do it again.

Reno has had four special counsels appointed in cases involving top administration officials, most notably Whitewater, although President Clinton actually asked for that one himself. But she has resisted Republican demands for an outside prosecutor to deal with Democratic fund-raising excesses.

In doing so, she told the Senate Judiciary Committee that the Gore calls were not subject to such an inquiry because they were for unregulated "soft money" donations, not the "hard money" that can be spent directly on campaigns.

Consultant: GOP needs his advice

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republican consultant Frank Luntz realized that everybody wasn't taking his advice seriously when, five minutes after he hand-delivered a copy of his GOP strategy memo to a lawmaker, it was found abandoned in a lavatory.

"Another member found it and returned it to me," Luntz said. But Luntz believes his 222-page tome - in which he seeks to teach Republicans how to communicate better - contains vital advice for the party.

"You have suffered through communication disaster after communication disaster, and nothing ever seems to change. Linguistically, you are out of touch with the American people," Luntz wrote.

Some of his pointers: Be more friendly, talk in short sound bites and stop referring publicly to House Speaker Newt Gingrich by his first name. The advice from Luntz, who helped draft the 1994 GOP "Contract With America" campaign manifesto, is just part of a barrage of advice coming unsolicited as both parties struggle for a post-budget-deal agenda.

"Don't put all your eggs in the Clinton scandal basket," recommends Ralph Reed, the former Christian Coalition leader who is now an Atlanta-based consultant.

Reed circulated his seven-page memo on GOP tactics this week to key Republicans. It cites the "lack of a coherent Republican agenda" heading into the 1998 elections.

"Vitriolic calls for a special prosecutor only make (Republicans) look mean and partisan," he wrote.

Michael Reagan, son of the former president, even weighed in with his own views on what Republicans must do to shape up.

Making the rounds promoting his new book, "City on a Hill," the younger Reagan asserts that "today's Republican party is rudderless, leaderless and in full retreat from the conservative values and vision of Ronald Reagan."

He said Republican leaders "need to stand up for the people who stood up for the Republican Party all these years."

And it's not only Republicans offering advice to other Republicans. Democrats are getting buffeted too, particularly over the issue that is currently dividing them the most - President Clinton's "fast track" trade legislation.

It would give him expanded trade authority, allowing an expansion of the North American Free Trade Agreement to Chile and, eventually, to other countries in South America.

Capitol Notes

By Tom Raum

The expanded authority is strongly opposed by House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo, a prospective 2000 presidential contender, by labor unions and some environmental groups.

But the moderate Democratic Leadership Council, which Clinton helped form a decade ago, favors the legislation, and has sent Democratic lawmakers a "talking points" kit to prep them for speaking in its favor.

"As every president since FDR has known, expanding trade is essential to creating economic opportunities for ordinary Americans," said Edith R. Wilson, trade project director.

Chip Azano, a spokesman for the DLC, depicted the material as an attempt to counter "the oddball neo-protectionist coalition of organized labor and national isolationists that has sprung up to lead the fight against fast-track."

Are members paying attention to all the unsolicited advice? Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., "loves free advice," said spokeswoman Susan Irby, even though, "some of it doesn't seem to be advice."

Luntz said his sometimes-brash memo, "The Language of the 21st Century," was intended as private advice to GOP members - and not for public dissemination.

"I personally put that document into the hands of over 200 house members and over 40 Republican senators," he said.

"Right now, there's a vacuum. There is no clear picture of the future. And in times like these, the more ideas and the more voices, the better," said Luntz.

It wasn't clear how much of his advice would be heeded, but Gingrich has been sounding some of the same themes over the past few days.

"We are a better substance party than we are a communication party," he told a business audience in Detroit on Monday.

Still, Christina Martin, a Gingrich spokeswoman, asserted Tuesday: "The speaker has not read Mr. Luntz' document."

Albuquerque (N.M.) Journal, on Brady Act:

The vast majority of the 2.6 million commercial handgun transactions went through the Brady Act process in 1996. That slowed down hundreds of thousands of buyers who probably would have preferred to take their purchase home instead of making a second trip to pick it up after the specified time period.

But that inconvenience has to be weighed against this result: Some 70,000 transactions were halted, with more than two-thirds of those involving a buyer either convicted or charged with a felony.

The Brady Act will not impose unilateral disarmament on America's criminal class. But it could make it harder for criminals to get a handgun. That should make any temporary inconvenience suffered by legitimate gun buyers easier to bear.

Star Tribune, Minneapolis, on fixing the IRS:

Millions of Americans have done battle with the 1040 form and come away muttering, "If only I ran the IRS." Well, a similar thought has occurred to members of Congress. This fall, as they consider the most sweeping IRS reform in four decades, lawmakers will take up legislation to detach the revenue agency from its home in the Treasury Department and place it under a board of private-sector executives.

This is a bad idea. The IRS has real problems that justify some of the four dozen other reforms proposed by a congressional commission last summer. But turning IRS governance over to the private sector would compromise functions that belong in the public realm and compound the very distrust that plagues the agency now.

The Gazette, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on Queen Elizabeth's address:

It took just four minutes Friday for Queen Elizabeth II to allay Britons' concern over Royal Family aloofness and to unify everyone in proper commemoration of Diana, Princess of Wales.

The 71-year-old monarch was magnificent. Her televised address at Buckingham Palace may have been carefully crafted. But it came from the heart.

Many thought the Royal Family, in seclusion most of the week, had mishandled the tragedy. The queen quickly dismissed the notion.

Elizabeth's speech sent old-timers' memories spinning back to the war years, when she was a winsome teen-ager enamored of a handsome young lieutenant fighting in the Royal Navy, Prince Philip of Greece. Britons loved her then, loved her when she wed Philip in 1947 and loved her when she was crowned in 1953. Ever since, they have loved her as a steady hand on a wavering monarchy. No wonder. She has always shown honesty, humility, dignity and a strong sense of duty. She showed those qualities again in calming the nation's spirits prior to Princess Diana's funeral.

The Advocate, Baton Rouge, La., on Mother Teresa:

How does one eulogize a saint? Mere words can hardly capture the spirit of the frail little nun from Albania who won worldwide influence and acclaim by the most unlikely path: Toiling to ease the burdens of the most powerless and anonymous people on Earth.

Her work with the dying and the orphaned in the worst slums of Calcutta easily could have gone unnoticed as has the work of other living saints who toil in obscurity.

But Mother Teresa was destined to become, as much as any one person can, the conscience of the world.

For those of us who grew up hearing her name as a synonym for the very highest ideals of humanity, it will be difficult to imagine a world without her.

Perhaps we can eulogize her best, not by praising her life, but by trying, in our own way, to emulate it.

Chillicothe (Ohio) Gazette, on private prisons:

Many services are better provided by businesses than by government but running prisons is not one of them.

Missouri found this out recently when it sent 415 non-violent prisoners to a private correctional institution in Texas because of overcrowding in its own prisons.

A videotape has surfaced of guards beating prisoners at the Brazoria County Detention Center and letting guard dogs attack the inmates. The company that runs the private prison is Capital Correctional Resources Inc.

Imprisoning our citizens in not the job of a private business. Only the government is empowered to accuse and try people for crimes. Only the government should be in charge of their incarceration.

The Guardian, London, on the Middle East:

If there is any certainty in the Middle East, it is that 'more bombs are en route' as Netanyahu himself has said. Mrs. Albright will tell Arafat it is his responsibility to prevent those bombs, but if this is not balanced by a far tougher approach to the Netanyahu government, her intervention is likely to make things worse.

Such an approach cannot confine itself to settlements but ought to include what has never been before made explicit - a declaration that America considers that peace is not attainable without a Palestinian state. Then, and only then, might it be effective to go on to final negotiations.

Such an approach may not be likely, and even if it were, dragging a kicking and screaming Netanyahu along would be a hard thing to do. But the alternative, at best, is another round of insincere negotiations that will stumble along until they are abandoned after another bulldozer clears a new settlement site or, worse, after another bomb clears a Jerusalem street.

Corriere della Sera, Milan, on Princess Diana's veneration:

What would Diana be without the photographers that, so to say, "immortalized" her, next to the bed of a sick child and on board of a luxurious yacht? Without the newspapers that meticulously described her virtues and her entertainments? Without all this Diana would be nothing, for sure. Diana's veneration exploded in such a quick way and in such huge proportions that there must be a great expectation and a very real need at the origin of all this.

Totalitarian regimes have always produced a huge quantity of guiding principles, sanctifications, public ceremonies and monuments. Whereas the democratic regime, for its own nature, hardly produces symbolic events.

"Mass information" needs simple synthetic figures, such as Diana's. But the real values of democracy are discrete and cannot be easily synthesized.

Yomiuri Shimbun, Tokyo, on former House Speaker Thomas Foley's nomination for ambassador to Japan:

The news that Thomas Foley, 68, had been nominated was most welcome in light of the fact that the former speaker has considerable knowledge of Japan, much of which has been gained in his 30-plus visits here.

Japan and the United States currently are experiencing relatively smooth relations in the political and security spheres. There is always the possibility that things could take a downturn on the economic front.

One of the most important challenges Foley will likely have to deal with will be how to keep trade disputes between Japan and the United States to a minimum. A list of potentially thorny issues include Japan's growing trade surplus with the United States, as well as stalled bilateral negotiations over aviation and communications.

Together We Can Build A Better HEREFORD

Disaster, family crisis, domestic violence, youth programs, needs here needs there.

These aren't just front page news stories. They are issues that affect the day-to-day quality of life for ourselves, our children and our neighbors. And trying to solve all the many needs facing our nation today is not an easy task.

That's why there is United Way of Deaf Smith County. It's more than 13 agencies helping over 10,000 local people. It's neighbors helping neighbors, families caring for families and friends helping friends.

It's also a way for you to put your money where your heart is. We hope you'll consider making an investment in your community once more as the 1997 United Way Campaign officially begins Wednesday, September 17 with a kick off luncheon at the Hereford Community Center.

Working together we can meet our community's needs.

Labor Day weekend has come and gone. Teachers and students are settling into the school year. We, at Hereford High School, are continually inspired by the commitment and cooperation of our hometown merchants as we seek to provide a quality education for our students.

Merchants are besieged by requests from teachers and students to contribute to an endless variety of projects. Most are worthy and contribute to improving the quality of our community. Still, the quantity of requests can be overwhelming.

Last year, motivators (fast food coupons) were used to encourage students to accurately complete their daily tasks on time. The coupons encouraged the students and enabled them to experience success. Some for the first time.

We want to thank the merchants who have responded so graciously to our needs again this year. Shannon

Letters

Steelman, B&R Thriftway, John Garth, Mr. Burger, Rick Robillard, McDonald's, Bud Meier, Dairy Queen and Alan Londakos, and Taco Bell have provided coupons for fast food treats to use as motivators for our students. These motivators will enable us to encourage our students to experience success again this year.

Other merchants, such as XIT Cellular, Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative and Southwestern Public Service, have joined together to provide book covers to protect our textbooks. This is a big help when we have to use a textbook about 10 years. All taxpayers should appreciate this kind of protection and extended life for this significant investment.

Thank you, Hereford merchants:

far more damaging.

There are limits on the congressional investigations, the end of this year for the Senate inquiry, which could be extended only with Democratic acquiescence.

Special prosecutors set their own terms. The Whitewater case dates from early 1994, when Clinton yielded to pressure and controversy, and told Reno to appoint a special counsel, although it wasn't Kenneth Starr. He came later.

Their budgets are unlimited. Iran-Contra cost about $48 million.

And while their assignments are spelled out when they are appointed by three-judge panels, one topic leads to another, as surely would happen in a Democratic fund-raising investigation.

All of which points to the political peril for a vice president who will be seeking a promotion.

CITADEL CADETS USED NAZI PARAPHERNALIA

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) - Nazi paraphernalia was used by cadets at The Citadel and appeared in old yearbooks, school investigators say, but the military college has never fostered racism.

The internal report made public Friday found that some seniors had Nazi symbols inside their caps, and a footlocker contained a picture of a Hitler youth.

"Racial incidents have occurred, but they have not been encouraged or condoned by The Citadel," the report said. "The incidents have always been investigated, and the perpetrators of the acts have been punished when caught."

School President John Grinalds said two companies, M and E, will change their nicknames and the college will closely supervise its yearbook staff. The investigation followed a CBS News "60 Minutes" program in June that showed Nazi paraphernalia on campus and in old yearbook pictures.

PAGEANT HOPES FOR BETTER RATINGS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Spontaneous interviews, two-piece swimsuits, a new network - what in the world is going on here? More than ever, the 77th annual Miss America Pageant tonight is about ratings.

Organizers are certainly hoping for a better TV turnout than in 1996, when the pageant drew its worst ratings ever - a 13.1 rating and a 25 share, which means about 12.7 million households tuned in.

That led to a number of changes, starting with NBC's exit after 30 consecutive years of airing the prime-time fixture. Enter ABC, which will make its debut with a pageant theme of "Everything Old is New Again."

That certainly goes for the two-piece swimsuits, which haven't been worn by contestants since 1947.

There are no thongs or teenie-weenie bikinis. Suits must have "full or moderate" bottoms, while tops must be "full coverage," with straps at least a half-inch wide.

AOL REMOVES KILLER PAGES

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) - America Online worked Friday to remove Web pages from its system featuring essays and artwork by serial killers, including one who called his victims "garbage."

The nation's largest Internet provider said the Web pages featuring work by Keith Hunter Jespersen and Danny Rolling would be removed from its system by Saturday.

"We believe in a person's right to speak, but we don't believe individuals have a right to force us to associate with that speech," said AOL spokeswoman Tricia Primrose.

The news was welcomed by Gov. Jim Geringer, who wrote AOL President Steve Case to praise him for the company's action.

"Keith Jespersen represented the worst of humanity with his utter disregard for human life and his mockery of both the victims and the judicial system," he wrote. "Removing his material from the Web site was an act of courage and a statement of conviction."

Jespersen has been convicted of three murders in the Pacific Northwest and faces a fourth murder charge in Wyoming. Rolling is on Florida's death row for the 1990 murders of five Gainesville, Fla., college students.

FIRM REMOVES PAPER'S RACKS OVER STORY

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) - Corning Inc. removed the local newspaper's 10 coin boxes and display racks from its halls and canteens because the company is convinced a story triggered a multibillion-dollar stock drop.

The Leader, a 16,500-circulation daily, reported Tuesday that the company had seriously overestimated demand for optical fiber. "The business Corning Inc. has banked its future on is in a state of emergency," it declared.

The article, mentioned on CNBC, prompted record trading in Corning shares on the New York Stock Exchange. By day's end, the stock had tumbled 8.4 percent - a loss of just over $1 billion in value.

The company, which employs 6,500 people in and around this western New York town of 12,000, responded by dumping the boxes in the newspaper's parking lot.

Chief executive Roger Ackerman complained the article was "filled with inaccuracies, is misleading and is totally irresponsible."

The next day, however, the stock fell 3.3 percent. Then, on Thursday, Corning confirmed that this year's sizzling, 30 percent growth in sales of optical fiber and cable had skidded to 20 percent in the third quarter. It lowered its 1997 earnings forecast by 10 to 15 cents.

BART STRIKE APPARENTLY SETTLED

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - A tentative settlement was announced early today in the often bitter Bay Area Rapid Transit strike that forced some 275,000 commuters to find other ways to get to work in the last week.

The agreement was reached about 2 a.m., after a marathon bargaining session punctuated by a bomb threat and outside intervention.

It will take at least 24 hours to get trains back on track, but the 2,600 employees who walked off the job at midnight Saturday should be back at work in time for Monday's commute, officials said.

"We decided there was no point in moving at a snail's pace. We've got to make a quantum leap," Service Employees International Union Executive Director Paul Varacalli said early this morning.

Gore's image suffers over fund-raising

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Vice President Al Gore's image has been tarnished by revelations about Democratic Party fund-raising, according to a Los Angeles Times Poll. A survey taken two days earlier also showed his integrity has taken a beating.

Only 34 percent of respondents surveyed by the Times reported a "favorable" impression of the vice president, compared with 59 percent for President Clinton, the poll released today said.

More than 40 percent of people who identified themselves as independents said they viewed Gore less favorably because of his role in fund-raising activities.

Seven in 10 Americans hold Clinton responsible for fund-raising excesses, but Gore appears to be paying the price politically. The vice president has been embarrassed by disclosures about his telephone solicitations and participation in a Buddhist temple fund-raiser.

"Even with all the allegations swirling around Clinton, people still like him," said Susan Pinkus, director of The Times Poll. Fund-raising embarrassments, meanwhile, are "chipping away at Gore's image."

The national survey of 1,258 adults was conducted Sept. 6-9.

A poll taken Wednesday for ABC News found just 49 percent of those questioned think Gore has the honesty and integrity to be president, compared to 59 percent in March.

Air Force strafes critics of the B-2

WHITEMAN AIR FORCE BASE, Mo. (AP) - Smartering from a volley of criticism of its B-2 stealth bomber, the Air Force fired back Friday in a public relations offensive. Target: skeptics who doubt the $2 billion warplane is worth its wings.

Reporters and TV crews were given extraordinary access to the B-2 - including a chance to sit in the two-seat cockpit, although the electric power was turned off to hide classified aspects. It was the first time reporters have been allowed in the cockpit, officials said.

"We have a capability today that nobody else has," Brig. Gen. Thomas Goslin said en route to Whiteman from Washington with a group of reporters, photographers and cameramen for an up-close look at the B-2 Spirit, which was developed in the 1970s and '80s as a super-secret Cold War project.

Goslin and the Air Force also have a public relations problem nobody else has.

Designed to dodge enemy radar, the B-2 is attracting domestic flak. At stake is not only the plane's public image but a crucial decision in Congress whether to produce more.

"The public is being led to believe it's not ready to go," Capt. Jeff Long, a B-2 pilot, said as he stood beneath one of the odd-shaped planes whose 178-foot wings make it as wide as a conventional bomber though it is as short as a fighter. "Our whole mission is to go somewhere and not be seen. We're ready to go."

The latest criticism came from the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, which reported in August that the warplanes, which can drop either nuclear or conventional bombs, must be "sheltered or exposed only to the most benign environments - low humidity, no precipitation, moderate temperatures."

Thus was born what the B-2's manufacturer, Northrop Grumman Corp., calls a myth about the world's most expensive airplane: that it's a fair weather weapon that can't get rained on.

"It's not true," said Goslin, who is commander of the 509th Bomb Wing at Whiteman, the only Air Force unit that is flying the B-2. "We know the plane is combat-ready right now. I don't worry about flying through weather to go to combat."

If it suffers at all, it is from too-high public expectations, Goslin said.

"It's like saying, 'How come my fifth grade kid can't do calculus?'" he said.

He and others acknowledged, however, that the Air Force has discovered that maintaining the B-2's stealthy qualities has proven harder than expected. Training the maintenance people also has been slower than once planned.

In a show-and-tell tour Friday, TV news cameras were positioned to film a dark gray B-2 doing "touch-and-goes" on Whiteman's 12,000-foot runway, and reporters were allowed to sit in the cockpit of a B-2 in its high-tech hangar, a climate-controlled building protected by armed security guards. Members of the public normally are not allowed within 20 feet of a B-2.

Goslin acknowledged that as recently as several months ago the B-2 had significant maintenance problems with some of the radar-absorbing materials on its surfaces that give it the ability to evade detection and tracking by enemy forces.

Airline industry looking at record profits in '97

WASHINGTON (AP) - The airline industry seems headed for a year of record profits.

"I am expecting net profits in 1997 of about $4 billion," David Swierenga, chief economist for the Air Transport Association, said Friday.

Falling fuel prices and the lack of a federal airline ticket tax in the first two months of the year are major factors in the healthy bottom line, according to Swierenga, whose group represents the nation's major carriers.

He said "cargo is an exceptionally bright spot" with shipments up 10.9 percent throughout the industry.

"Things are looking up for the industry, and we expect that to continue through '98," he said.

He cautioned: "When we look at 1998 things get a little bit more tough." He said that if there are indications of inflation the Federal Reserve Board would probably raise interest rates, slowing the economy and choking off growth in airline travel.

Swierenga expects next year to be financially strong, with an industrywide profit of $3.3 billion to $3.5 billion.

The industry showed an overall profit of $800 million in the first quarter of 1997, Swierenga said. Airlines rarely make money in the winter quarter, when people don't like to fly. But he said they were pushed into the black by the absence of the 10 percent ticket tax in January and February. Carriers retained at least part of that money, although some prices were lowered.

The positive news continued into the second quarter, with the industry showing $2.2 billion in profits for the first half of the year.

Particularly helpful were falling fuel prices, which dropped from about 75 cents a gallon in the winter to around 62 cents now, he said. He forecast a decline to 57 cents by the end of 1998.

Every penny change in fuel prices translates to $170 million a year in airline spending.

Webb widens lead

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Karrie Webb shot her second 5-under-par 67 on Friday and opened a three-shot lead over Patty Sheehan after two rounds of the $550,000 Safeco Classic.

Webb, the defending champion, had five birdies on her card Friday on the way to completing two rounds at 134. Sheehan, who shot a 68 on Friday, was at 137.

Another stroke back was first-round co-leader Annika Sorenstam.

Tigers blank White

From staff reports
WOLFFORTH — The Wolf-orth Tigers defeated the Hereford Whitefaces White 30-0 Thursday night.

Wolfforth had a 22-0 lead at halftime.

Tony Lopez intercepted a pass and forced a fumble and Joseph Dennett recovered a fumble for the Whitefaces.

The only offensive highlight for Hereford was a 50-yard pass play from Matt Lusk to Jacob Davis.

The White team will see its next action 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Dimmitt.

Lawyer: Rose to apply for reinstatement

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose will apply for reinstatement to baseball after the World Series and before the end of the year, the lawyer for the career hits leader said Friday. "Pete intends on having a petition filed soon, as quickly as is expedient for everyone," lawyer S. Gary Spicer said.

Rose, who agreed to a lifetime ban in August 1989 following a gambling investigation, had been waiting for a new commissioner to take office. But Bud Selig's term as acting commissioner shows no sign of ending soon, and Selig has shown no inclination of lifting the permanent suspension. "He's assuming Mr. Selig is going to be there," Spicer said in a telephone interview.

Rose, who has been denied a place on the Hall of Fame ballot because of the ban, will wait for owners to deal with realignment and for the World Series to be completed before applying, Spicer said.

Any decision to reinstate Rose would be made by the ruling executive council, which currently has nine voting members. There are no rules governing whether the council could approve reinstatement by a mere majority, or the margin would have to be greater.

Spicer and baseball lawyer Robert DuPuy met about two weeks ago and the pair plan to meet again in about two weeks, Spicer said. DuPuy said he merely told Spicer that if Rose has anything he wants the executive council to consider, he should have Spicer forward the material to DuPuy.

Rose insists he did not bet on baseball, and several baseball officials, all speaking on the condition they not be identified, said recently he would have to admit his past actions before they would even entertain the thought of reinstatement.

"I think if you take the overall totality of the evidence, any fair-minded person who looks at it would have to say Pete Rose was betting on baseball," said Fay Vincent, who headed baseball's probe in 1989 as deputy commissioner to

A. Bartlett Giamatti, then became commissioner following the death of his boss.

"The thing that impresses me was all the phone calls to the bookies at a time when there was nothing else to bet on other than baseball," Vincent said Friday. "And the people who were with him said he bet on baseball."

Hereford dumps Dons 27-21 in OT for first win

By BOB VARMETTE
Staff writer

It was a game between winless teams that one of them had to win.

Coming into the game, two teams probably could not have been more evenly matched -- the Hereford Whitefaces and the Amarillo Palo Duro Dons.

It only seemed inevitable the game would come down to overtime.

But after the two teams played to a deadlock after the end of 48 minutes, it took the Whitefaces only one play to get the points they needed to beat the Dons 27-21 in front of 3,000 at Whiteface Stadium Friday night.

"It always feels good to win," said Hereford head coach Craig Yenser after the Whitefaces' first win of the 1997 season. "I'm real proud of these kids. They could've just rolled over and played dead, but they didn't."

With the overtime win, Hereford upped their record to 1-2 on the season while Palo Duro falls to 0-2. Cody Hodges 25-yard pass to Jeremy High on the first play of overtime was the culmination of a most-improbable comeback.

Improbable because it was based on the legs of sophomore L.J. Vallejo. In the span of 1:35 in the fourth quarter, Vallejo returned a kickoff 77 yards for a touchdown and a punt 75 yards for a touchdown, cutting a 21-point deficit to the Dons to just seven points with 8:13 to play in regulation.

"We made some big mistakes in the kicking game," said Palo Duro head coach Steve Culwell. "They took advantage of it. The kid made some great moves and we were out of our coverage lanes."

It was those returns that changed the face of the game, according to Culwell. Statistically, the Dons were trouncing the Whitefaces -- rushing, passing, first downs, you name it.

So it took a special play, a trick play for the Whitefaces to force the overtime period.

Hodges tossed the first of his two touchdown passes on the night after lining up as a receiver and taking a lateral from senior quarterback Jeremy Urbanczyk. On the third and 18-play, Hodges found Jeremy High in the end zone with 3:48 left in the fourth quarter. Jose Martinez's extra point tied the score at 21.

"It was a heckuva play," Culwell said. "It really caught us by surprise. We hadn't seen it before."

"I was worried," said Yenser about the play. He added he thought the Dons might see it coming because the Whitefaces had used the same play the previous week.

Defensively, the Dons may not have left Yenser with much choice, though. Palo Duro dominated the game in the first half, even though the two team went into the lockerroom tied 0-0.

The Dons outgained Hereford 199-54 in total offense and registered nine first downs to the Whitefaces four in the first half. In the second half, it only got worse.

The third quarter and the early minutes of the fourth quarter belonged to the Dons as they scored three unanswered touchdowns to stake themselves to a 21-0 lead. It looked insurmountable.

And the Whitefaces were doing nothing on offense.

"I have to commend coach Culwell and his staff," said Yenser. "They had us stymied. You have to give them

Hereford's Cory Marsh closes in on Amarillo Palo Duro quarterback Aaron Lewis Friday night at Whiteface Stadium. Hereford won 27-21 in overtime, but Marsh suffered an injury to his left leg late in the game -- a broken bone which is expected to sideline the junior stand-out from 4-6 weeks.

Bell's 4 RBI leads Astros over Los Angeles, 10-3

HOUSTON (AP) — Derek Bell is back home and he intends to stay there.

Bell proved he's most productive, batting second instead of fourth with a four-RBI performance Friday night as the Houston Astros knocked the Los Angeles Dodgers out of first place in the NL West with a 10-3 victory.

"I like hitting second," said Bell, who had a two-run double in the third and a two-run homer in the eighth. "As I've always said, I can be more aggressive there and that's my style of play. Hitting between Craig (Biggio) and Jeff (Bagwell) I see more fast balls. That suits my game."

Bell was 3-for-5 against the Dodgers.

"There's been so much talk about Derek hitting second,"

Rangers edge Twins, 6-5

ARLINGTON (AP) — Considered only a backup in spring training, Domingo Cedeño has become a key contributor for the Texas Rangers.

On Friday night, Cedeño singled home the go-ahead run in the eighth inning as Texas beat the Minnesota Twins 6-5, the Rangers' 35th comeback victory of the season and 19th time in their final at-bat.

Cedeño went 2-for-3, reached base three times and scored twice.

"Cedeño will play twice as much as we expected coming out of spring training," manager Johnny Oates said. "What was supposed to be a utility player has become a very valuable member of our team."

Cedeño has been swinging a hot bat, going 6-for-14 in his last four games and hitting safely in 23 of his last 26 starts.

"I tried to see the ball with two strikes and put the ball in play," Cedeño said. "Last year I didn't get to play a lot (with Toronto and the Chicago White Sox), but the more I play, the better I've been hitting."

Juan Gonzalez, who hit his 35th home run, drew a one-out walk from Greg Swindell (7-4) and Lee Stevens grounded a single through the right side. Gonzalez moved to third on a fly out and scored when Cedeño's grounder off Todd Ritchie just eluded second baseman Chuck Knoblauch.

"It's more exciting to win in your last at-bat, but wins are the important thing," Oates said.

Julio Santana (4-5) faced only one batter, striking out pinch-hitter Paul Molitor with runners on first and second to end the eighth, and was the winner. John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his 29th save.

Santana has struggled as a starter, and he was happy to pick up his first victory since May 31.

Cowboys, Eagles renew rivalry Monday

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING — Barry Switzer calls it a must win. Ray Rhodes says it's as big as an early-season game can get.

It's Philadelphia-Dallas, an intense rivalry that sometimes produces unexpected results.

Like last year, Dallas, hanging on the ropes with a 1-3 start, staggered into Veterans Stadium barely clinging to life. Things looked dark for the defending Super Bowl champions in the Monday night game when Philadelphia jumped to a 10-0 lead.

Then Herschel Walker made a big kickoff return and the lifeless

Cowboys survived 23-19 as Emmitt Smith rushed for 92 yards and scored a touchdown and Troy Aikman hit a TD pass.

Dallas won eight of its last 11 games and got into the playoffs.

However, one of those losses was to the Eagles, who beat the Cowboys 31-21 in Texas Stadium.

You might recall the exciting finish. James Willis intercepted Aikman's pass in the end zone and ran 14 yards before lateraling to Troy Vincent, who raced 90 yards for the longest interception return in NFL history.

The Eagles celebrated so long and hard they lost their next three games.

The two NFC East rivals meet again Monday night. They are each 1-1 and have alternately looked like world beaters or the worst team in the NFL.

The Eagles lost 31-17 to the New York Giants, then turned around and beat defending league champion Green Bay 10-9, holding the Packers without a touchdown for the first time in 85 straight games.

Dallas pushed Pittsburgh around 37-7 in the opener before blowing a 15-point lead to lose 25-22 to Arizona.

"It's a crazy year," said Eagles whole life," Santana said. "I threw five pitches and I'm a hero. I realized I was facing a Hall of Fame player, but I didn't feel any pressure. I knew if I made a mistake, he'd hit it out of the park."

The Twins scored three times in the sixth for a 5-4 lead. David Ortiz and Rich Becker singled off starter John Burkett, and Pat Meares hit an RBI single off Matt Whiteside. Todd Walker's two-run double put the Twins in front.

Texas tied it with a run in the seventh. Cedeno led off with a double and scored on Jim Leyritz's pinch-single.

Gonzalez hit a solo homer in the third off Travis Miller. Bill Ripken's hit-and-run RBI double and Damon Buford's run-scoring single put the Rangers ahead 3-0 in the fourth.

The Twins snapped a streak of 15 consecutive scoreless innings in the fourth when Ron Coomer hit a two-run homer, his 10th. The Rangers made it 4-2 in the fifth on Buford's sacrifice fly.

Both of the Rangers' eighth-inning hits barely got through the infield, noted manager Tom Kelly.

"I thought our pitchers did a good job, but they doinked a couple in on us," Kelly said. "We were in the game with a chance to win, which was better than yesterday."

Astros

Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "There's not much logic in it, but on this club chemistry means more. We used him twice at cleanup but now he's back, and we hope we can get the same results."

The Astros, who got off to a good start at home after finishing a 2-6 road trip, kept their 3-game lead over Pittsburgh in the NL Central.

Los Angeles lost its fourth straight and dropped out of first place for the first time since Aug. 22. The Dodgers fell a game behind San Francisco.

"We've got 15 left, you just have to keep put the lineup out there and have meetings and go perform," Dodgers manager Bill Russell said. "We've got to win, it's as simple as that. Our guys know what they can do. I'm just trying to stay positive."

Bell feels the team coming together.

"This is a good one for us," Bell said. "It's one day closer. This was the kind of baseball this team plays, aggressive. We took some extra bases and that's the way we need to play. We have to be aggressive and that's the way we were tonight."

credit. They really shut us down."

But one of the main points of Yenzler's agenda to rebuild the Whiteface program is faith.

Semper fidelis--always faithful. It's painted on the pressbox at Whiteface Stadium as a reminder.

"I'm never going to give up on these kids," Yenzler said. "All the things we were talking about, and believing there is a spirit in this bigger than all of us, it all paid off tonight."

And as uplifting as the victory was for Yenzler and his Whitefaces, it was demoralizing for Culwell and his Dons.

"It was a great football game to watch," Culwell said. "But it was a disappointing game for us."

For Culwell and the Dons, it will be a week replaying all those yards and first downs they had in the first half, but without any points.

Palo Duro got inside Hereford's 20-yard-line three times in the first half. All they had to show for it was an interception, a missed field goal and sure touchdown misfire because of an errant pass from Don's senior quarterback Aaron Lewis.

"Our red zone offense is really what's hurting us," Culwell said. "We're just not getting into the end zone. It hurt us at Plainview and here again tonight. It was like Plainview all over again."

Yenzler knows the old cliché, "Sometimes it's better to be lucky than good." Friday night his Whitefaces lived it.

Palo Duro outgained the Whitefaces 378-144 and by the end of the game had almost three times as many first downs as Hereford, 20-7. But statistics don't win football games.

"We were lucky on the field," Yenzler said. "But dang good in character. I can't say enough about these kids and where we're headed. They've worked hard."

"These kids are unselfish," he added. "It was everybody doing it together."

SMU-Arkansas promoter wonders about crowd

LITTLE ROCK (AP) -- The promoter of the Arkansas-Southern Methodist game at Shreveport, La., says he should know by halftime whether the game will be a money maker.

"It's stressful, but that's the name of the game," David Gardiner said late Friday afternoon. He spoke from the field at Shreveport's Independence Stadium via cellular phone.

Gardiner is vice president of marketing for Russ Potts Promotions Inc. of Winchester, Va.

The company approached SMU about moving the game from Dallas and offered guarantees to both schools. The result could be a game before a half-empty stadium and a bath for the promoter.

"It remains to be seen" whether the game will make money, Gardiner said. "That's the perfect truth. We'll probably know (Saturday) at halftime."

Gardiner would not say how much the schools are guaranteed and the schools have not said.

Ticket sales were at about 18,000 Thursday but Andy Rosenbaum, executive director of the Shreveport Regional Sports Authority, said sales were picking up Friday.

"There's been an end-of-the-week rush and we expect high walkup sales (Saturday)," Rosenbaum said. "That's one reason I'm not nervous."

Tickets cost $30 for reserved chairbacks -- all of which on the Arkansas side are expected to sell out. Other reserved seats are $26.50 and general admission seats are $15.50.

"There are plenty of good seats available," Rosenbaum said. Ticket windows open at 9 a.m. Saturday at the stadium.

Gardiner said that the matchup looked like it would make for a "pretty decent game" and that there are enough fans from both schools to put some people in the seats.

Arkansas fans may be excited about the game but SMU beat the Razorbacks the past two years and the prospect of risking witnessing another early-season downer may not inspire a drive from, say, Fayetteville.

Also, drawing non-partisan northern Louisiana football fans may be tougher than usual. LSU plays Mississippi State in a televised game Saturday night.

Gardiner said a half-full stadium would make him happy, a crowd of 22,000 or more. Rosenbaum said if sales remain strong, attendance could be in the high 20s.

Gardiner said the promotion company puts on exhibition games for professional sports and handles other college games.

"We've still got tickets to sell," Gardiner said. "I mean, that's the business we're in, being promoters."

determination he bet on baseball, Giamatti said the day the deal was announced that he personally believed Rose had bet on his own sport.

Rose, who was manager of the Cincinnati Reds at the time he agreed to the ban, intends to attack the evidence gathered against him by lawyer John Dowd, hired by Vincent to run the investigation. Dowd was criticized within baseball the following year for tactics he used in the investigation of New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

"There are serious flaws, I think, in the credibility in much of the information that was used against Pete, and we will deal with that when we apply," Spicer said.

Also working against Rose is Selig's admiration for Giamatti. Selig was the head of the search committee that recommended Giamatti for the commissioner's job, and Selig still speaks of Giamatti glowingly.

Cowboys

quarterback Ty Detmer, who will start against the Cowboys. "We don't look good in our opener, then beat Green Bay. Dallas kills Pittsburgh, then Arizona beats them. I guess you could say there's a lot of parity in the NFL."

Detmer said the Eagles have to be careful not to get too high for the Cowboys, who were nine-point favorites.

"You want to beat Dallas because it gives you a lot of credibility," Detmer said. "Looking back on last year, I think we put too much emphasis on it. Maybe we thought we were better than we were."

Rhodes agreed.

"We were mentally spent after that game last year," Rhodes said of the victory at Dallas. "We were just drained."

Rhodes said he was starting Detmer as a reward for taking the Eagles to the win over the Packers. Rodney Peete will wait on the bench.

"Detmer will be our starting quarterback and I'm not the kind of guy who wants a quick hook on anybody," Rhodes said.

Eagles wide receiver Irving Fryar said the game is a big as it gets for Philadelphia.

"We can make a statement,"

Fryar said. "They've been the Super Bowl champs. We've beaten one Super Bowl champ last week. If you can beat another one, I think it says a lot about our team."

The Eagles haven't won an NFC East title since 1988 under Buddy Ryan.

Dallas is hoping Anthony Miller returns from a hamstring injury to provide another option in the passing game.

"I would love to have Anthony. I would like to have everybody healthy every week," Michael Irvin said. "Unfortunately, that's not reality."

MLB Roundup

Red Sox 4, Brewers 2
MILWAUKEE (AP) -- Nomar Garciaparra hit two home runs, including a leadoff shot on the third pitch of the game, as the Boston Red Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 Friday night.

Troy O'Leary and Scott Hattberg hit consecutive homers.

Jeff Suppan (7-2) allowed four hits in five innings. He walked two and struck out four.

Relievers held the Brewers scoreless for the final four innings.

Boston got to Jeff D'Amico (8-6) right from the start. Garciaparra hit a 1-1 pitch into the left-field seats for his 27th home run.

Indians 9, White Sox 0
CHICAGO (AP) -- Rookie Jaret Wright allowed three hits in seven innings and Jim Thome, Matt Williams and Manny Ramirez homered Friday night as the Cleveland Indians blanked the Chicago White Sox 9-0.

Wright (7-3) gave up a third-inning double to Ray Durham and singles in the fifth and seventh innings to Jorge Fabregas. He walked two and struck out five.

Thome hit his career-best 39th homer to lead off the second. One out later Williams, connected for his 31st off Doug Drabek (10-11).

Yankees 13, Orioles 5
BALTIMORE (AP) -- The New York Yankees handed Scott Erickson his first loss in eight weeks and once again pounded the Baltimore Orioles, getting four hits and two RBIs from Bernie Williams in a 13-5 victory Friday night.

The Orioles' magic number to clinch the AL East title remained at 12. Baltimore has lost four of five and 11 of 17.

Mariners 7, Blue Jays 3
SEATTLE (AP) -- Edgar Martinez, who earlier needed eight stitches after cutting his chin in a home-plate collision, hit a disputed, three-run homer off Roger Clemens in the eighth inning Friday night that sent the Seattle Mariners over Toronto 7-3.

Pinch-hitter Felipe Cresco hit a two-run single off Bobby Ayala (10-4), Seattle's third pitcher of the seventh. Ayala struck out Jose Cruz Jr. and got Joe Carter on a fly ball to end the inning.

Angels 8, Royals 5
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) -- Rickey Henderson scored the go-ahead run on a bases-loaded walk to Jim Edmonds with two outs in the seventh inning and the Anaheim Angels beat the Kansas City Royals 8-5 Friday night.

The Angels remained 5½ games behind Seattle, which defeated Toronto 7-3, in the AL West.

Chad Kreuter hit his first home run in two months, helping Terry Collins record his 300th win as a major league manager -- including 224 with the Houston Astros.

Tigers 7, Athletics 2
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -- Travis Fryman had four hits, including his 20th home run, and the Detroit Tigers defeated the Oakland Athletics 7-2 Friday night.

The Tigers, 8-2 in their last 10 games, broke Oakland's three-game winning streak.

Greg Keagle (2-4) gave up five hits in seven innings, and the only run he allowed came on Scott Spiezio's 13th home run in the fifth. He struck out a career-high nine and walked none.

Dan Miceli got the final four outs for his second save.

The Tigers went ahead 3-0 in the first against Eric Ludwick (1-2). Damion Easley drew a one-out walk and Tony Clark doubled down the right-field line with two outs for a 1-0 lead.

Expos 3, Mets 2, 15 innings
NEW YORK (AP) -- Rondell White's two-out homer in the 15th inning sent the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 win over New York Friday night and prevented the Mets from picking up a game on Florida in the NL wild-card race.

White hit a 1-0 pitch from Joe Crawford (2-2) over the wall in left to end the 4-hour, 21-minute game. It was the fifth game to go 15 innings in the majors this season, and the second involving the Mets.

Jose Panagui (1-2) pitched the 14th for the win, and Ugueth Urbina got three outs for his 26th save.

Reds 4, Phillies 2
PHILADELPHIA (AP) -- Mark Leiter pitched a five-hitter for his third complete game of the season as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Cincinnati Reds 9-1 Friday night for a doubleheader split.

Mike Remlinger won for the first time in nearly a month, leading Cincinnati to a 4-2 victory in the opener.

Leiter (10-15) struck out four and walked one, losing his shutout when Ed Taubensee hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Cardinals 4, Padres 2
ST. LOUIS (AP) -- Mark McGwire stayed stuck at 50 homers, going 0-for-4 as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Diego Padres 4-2 Friday night.

McGwire, who on Wednesday became the first player since Babe Ruth to hit 50 homers in consecutive seasons, struck out twice, grounded out and filed out.

Matt Morris gave up just one run despite getting hit hard, and Ray Lankford homered to lead St. Louis. Royce Clayton drove in two runs for the Cardinals.

Rockies 3, Braves 1
ATLANTA (AP) -- Larry Walker hit a game-tying single and Andres Galarraga hit a two-run double as the Rockies rallied to beat the Atlanta Braves 3-1 Friday night.

Greg Maddux walked none and struck out four, but the bullpen blew a lead for him.

Pirates 3, Cubs 1
PITTSBURGH (AP) -- The Pittsburgh Pirates benefited from nine walks by Chicago starter Miguel Batista in four-plus innings and went on to beat the Cubs 3-1 Friday night.

Batista (0-4) gave up only three hits, but threw 51 balls among his 99 pitches.

While Batista labored to find the plate, Jason Schmidt (9-7) gave up six hits over eight innings. Rich Loiselle finished up for his 26th save.

Chicago's only run came on Lance Johnson's two-out double and Doug Glanville's RBI single in the third.

Giants 1, Marlins 0
MIAMI (AP) -- Jeff Conine's error led to the only run, and the San Francisco Giants handed rookie Livan Hernandez his first loss by beating the slumping Florida Marlins 1-0 Friday night.

Four Giants combined on an eight-hitter, with Rod Beck pitching a perfect ninth for his 37th save. Brian Johnson drove in the Giants' run with a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning.

Kirk Rueter (12-6) pitched five shutout innings. He walked three and allowed six hits.

Hernandez (9-1) allowed five hits in seven innings before he departed for a pinch-hitter trailing 1-0.

San Francisco scored the only run in the fourth. With one out, J.T. Snow walked and Glenallen Hill singled before Conine bobbled a potential double-play grounder for an error to load the bases.

Thompson leads at Boone

AUGUSTA, Mo. (AP) -- Rocky Thompson put a recent short-game lesson to good use in the first round of the Boone Valley Classic.

Thompson, 57, a three-time winner on the Senior PGA Tour, shot a bogey-free 6-under-par 66 on Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Mike McCullough and David Graham in the $1.3 million tournament.

"I've played poorly all this year, mostly because of my irons," Thompson said. "I've had four lessons in the last month from four different people and they have all helped a lot."

Thompson said the instructors have included fellow pros and Grant Thomas, a junior college player in Paris.

"This young man helped me with my pitch shots last week and I pitched one in from the gunk on the 11th hole for a birdie and made three straight birdies after that," Thompson said.

Thompson used a sand wedge from about 25 yards out on the 426-yard par-4 11th to start his birdie streak.

"My driving and putting have been good all year, it's my iron play that's given me trouble," Thompson said. "I didn't have any birdie putts longer than 30 feet, and I'm a pretty good putter."

Texan learns hard way on PGA Tour

By RAUL DOMINGUEZ Jr.
San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO -- Anthony Rodriguez's indoctrination to the PGA Tour has been one filled with highs, lows and many lessons.

Rodriguez tied for 31st at the United Airlines Hawaiian Open on Feb. 16, but missed the cut in 12 of 19 events this year.

It could be labeled a typical rookie season, but it's a year the Churchill High School graduate earned in atypical fashion.

After being named a first-team All-American as a senior at Texas A&M University, Rodriguez qualified for the PGA Tour without the benefit of playing full time on the Nike Tour or any other mini-tour.

The year hasn't gone as Rodriguez hoped, but friends and peers say the lessons he learned will make him an even better golfer.

"I think Anthony needs the right break, but the cream always rises to the top," friend and mentor Chi Chi Rodriguez said. "I think Anthony will be one of the best golfers in the world, it's just a matter of time."

Rodriguez will compete in the La Cantera Texas Open on Sept. 15-21 for the first time as a PGA Tour member. He tied for 54th in 1995 and missed the cut by two strokes last year after receiving sponsor's exemptions.

He is 228th on the money list at $21,889 with eight full-field events remaining on the 1997 schedule.

Rodriguez must finish in the top 125 to keep his PGA Tour playing privileges for 1998.

"I'm living my dream," Rodriguez said. "To stay and keep your dream is another thing. That's what I'm going to go out there and try to do. I feel that I belong. When other players out there (on the PGA Tour) say 'You're going to make it out here,' I think that's the greatest reassurance anyone can give you."

Chi Chi Rodriguez, David Ogrin, Jeff Maggett and Fuzzy Zoeller have all lauded Rodriguez's abilities.

"I think he can be one of the best," his agent Rainy Elias added. "I think he can be like Chi Chi. I think he will be."

"Right now, he skipped right over the Monday qualifier. It's like skipping a grade. He's still in the learning process. Even if he makes a mistake here and there, he uses it as a lesson."

At just 5-foot-8 and 155 pounds, Rodriguez's size and tenacity have drawn comparisons to 14-time PGA Tour winner Corey Pavin.

"(Rodriguez) thinks aggressively, he's technically great. He's not good, he's great," said Ogrin, the defending Texas Open champion and a fellow Aggie.

"I see Anthony struggling," Ogrin said. "Anthony is what, 22? Anthony is a lot younger than I was when I got on the tour, so he's going through what I went through before I got on the tour."

Glasson, Jacobsen tie for Charity Classic lead

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) -- Driving is the key to playing well at Pleasant Valley Country Club, and it showed from the top of the CVS Charity Classic leaderboard to the bottom.

"If you feel good about your drive, you can be aggressive," co-leader Bill Glasson said Friday after shooting a 4-under-par 67 to tie Peter Jacobsen for the second-round lead of the CVS Charity Classic.

John Daly, who barely made the cut, proved how right Glasson was.

Daly, the tour's longest hitter last year, drove past the green of the 371-yard, par-4 15th hole and made birdie. Then, needing an eagle to make the cut at 1-under, he put a 5-iron shot 8 feet from the cup for his second shot on the 583-yard, par-5 18th.

"I just went all out on the drive," he said.

Putting under pressure, the former PGA Championship and British Open winner said, "was a nice feeling to have."

Jacobsen shot a second-round 65 on the 7,110-yard course to join Glasson in the chase for the $216,000 winner's share of the $1.2 million purse.

First-round co-leader Charlie Rymer shot a 70 to drop a stroke back at 134 along with Mike Bradley, Kevin Burton, John Adams and Loren Roberts. Craig Parry, Paul Claxton and Mike Reid were two back at 7-under 135.

Even without Tiger Woods, the event boasted its best field in two decades, including four members of the U.S. Ryder Cup team as well as defending champion John Cook and Daly, the crowd favorite.

But only two of the players who will compete for the Ryder Cup at Valderrama in Spain in two weeks were among the 74 players making the cut.

After Reed: Christian Coalition seems adrift

ATLANTA (AP) - The Christian Coalition has $27 million to burn, nearly 400,000 dues-paying members and one of the most potent mailing lists in politics. What it doesn't have any longer is Ralph Reed.

The baby-faced spokesman for right-wing activism is now a secular political consultant, leaving 900 conservatives gathered Friday for the coalition's "Road to Victory" conference wondering one thing: What now?

"We've been playing with that question ourselves," Arne Owens, spokesman for the Christian Coalition, said with a nervous half-chuckle. "We hope the answer is that we're standing on Ralph's shoulders and taking the coalition to the next level."

Reed, credited with building television evangelist Pat Robertson's band of loyalists into a political force, was being honored at a Friday night dinner. The agenda Saturday, featuring a half-dozen GOP presidential hopefuls and conservative leaders of all stripes, belongs to the coalition's new leadership.

Don Hodel, who held two Cabinet posts under President Reagan, was named coalition president by Robertson in June. Randy Tate, a one-term Republican congressman defeated in 1996, is executive director.

The pair will share communications duties, though neither has shown Reed's media flair. Tate, 31, is the lobbyist, but ethics laws forbid him from lobbying his former congressional colleagues until January. Hodel, 62, a longtime businessman, says he will manage the shop.

Nobody expects Hodel and Tate to tinker with a successful recipe. Reed, who will remain on the board of directors, said, "My sense is the direction of the organization is not going to change in any significant way."

Three months into the job, the new team has barely made a mark. It was almost invisible in Washington until Hodel announced a fall legislative agenda.

Reflecting the new team's goals to broaden its mission beyond abortion and institutionalize Reed's success, the package denounces religious persecution, seeks tax cuts for families and embraces inner-city economic initiatives.

Tate plans to blitz talk radio, a critical conservative conduit. Under Reed, the coalition fed talk radio hosts a steady stream of faxes, but he didn't appear on many shows himself.

"Ralph simply didn't have the time," Hodel said. "We are two people doing his one-man's job."

At times, two men may not seem enough.

The Federal Elections Commission is investigating whether the coalition made illegal corporate contributions to Republican candidates through its voter guides, get-out-the-vote efforts and other activities. The Internal Revenue Service is studying whether the group's actions run against its tax-exempt status.

The coalition also is under investigation by the U.S. attorney in Norfolk, Va. At issue are alleged irregularities in contracts for printing, mailing and fund raising by an outside contractor. U.S. postal authorities also are investigating the group's mailing practices.

Internally, the organization's outreach efforts have failed to attract large numbers of minorities or Catholics. A philosophical split between moral and economic conservatism threatens to widen with the success of an upstart competitor, the Washington-based Family Research Council.

One-third of white evangelicals voted for President Clinton. Still, this is no time to underestimate the Christian Coalition.

"They're still THE force to be reckoned with," said Oliver North, the Virginia-based talk radio host and former GOP Senate candidate. The turnout in Atlanta "discredits the lies that the Christian Coalition is falling part," he said.

Even the coalition's critics refuse to believe Hodel and Tate will miss a step. "Ralph Reed built them up," Conn said. "They have a place at the table in Congress and the Republican Party. The question is whether they can keep a place at the table."

Study: Regimes' killing too costly

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK - Perhaps more people have been killed by their own governments in this century than in all others combined. In all, at least 170 million, and maybe as many as 360 million.

The lesser estimate is almost four times the 42 million deaths from civil and international wars this century. You can't blame only the Nazis and communists; more than 70 nations have been involved.

Appalling as these murders are, there is hope for mankind: The evidence lies in findings by a professor of economics. Yes, this is an unusual story, and it is a reflection on human values too.

Gerald W. Scully, University of Texas economist, began by compiling statistics on the murder of minorities and the killing of the general population.

He then compared his findings with such economic statistics as per capita income, gross national product, and tax revenue, all of which relate to national wealth. He found clear correlations.

He concluded that there comes a point in a poor nation's economic development when it becomes too costly to kill. He explains: "Dead people can't work and produce and pay taxes."

As average worker productivity rises it creates a deterrent. "Even ruthless dictators need tax revenue, and you can't collect taxes from dead people," he says with academic detachment.

The professor's study is being published by the National Center for Policy Analysis, a nonpartisan, nonprofit research institute whose influence ranges from academia to government. It has offices in Dallas and Washington. Scully is a senior fellow.

In his research, Scully examined 31 "killer nations," which he defined as those with 10,000 or more civilian deaths. He found that a 1 percent increase in output reduces killing by 1.4 percent.

He concludes that killer nations just cannot afford to keep liquidating productive citizens. In the past, they might not have known Scully's details, but they sensed it was not cost-effective.

This, he contends, may be the real reason state murders in the Soviet Union ($4.7 million between 1917 and 1987), and China (35.6 million between 1949 and 1987) declined after the deaths of Stalin and Mao Tse-tung.

"The Soviet Union and China reached the point where the governments couldn't afford to kill any more," he says. Killing, that is, became intolerable, if only for economic reasons.

Scully found countries that kill their own people are poorer and grow more slowly than countries that do not. This is not conjecture; his statistics are pretty convincing.

In the past, for example, he maintains that killing their own people has cost African nations an average of 24.7 percent of real output per capita, Asian nations an average of 18.6 percent and Latin American nations an average of 18 percent.

Those are averages. Figures for individual nations can be much higher. Killing in Angola between 1975 and 1989 reduced output by 61.6 percent, and in Burundi during 1965-1990 by 54.8 percent.

Thus Scully concludes that as per capita incomes rise with industrialization, the relative incidence of mass murder declines, though not necessarily because of heightened sensibilities.

"Many aspects of life that are immoral are nevertheless explicable by the amoral apparatus of supply and demand," Scully reminds us. A chilling thought, but an acute insight.

It means that at least part of the explanation for mass killings lies in the low monetary value of people. That value rises as they produce goods and services and the economy grows.

The killing rate slows, and people live to pay taxes.

"In 26 years of teaching, I have never seen another pull-out program with these types of results. I can really see a difference.

Doris Cagle
H.O.S.T.S teacher at Northwest

veryone needs a little help at one time or another.

Maybe it's a little extra personal attention, maybe a new viewpoint on a subject, or maybe it's just getting away from the normal routine.

But for whatever reason, schools across the country are looking for a means of providing necessary help.

In Hereford, the school, the school district has adopted the H.O.S.T.S. program.

H.O.S.T.S. stands for "Help One Student to Succeed" and is based on the idea that building up a student's confidence and self-esteem moves the student from an "I can't" attitude to an "I can" attitude.

The program pairs a student, who is having trouble in an area, with a willing community volunteer, for about a half an hour a week in a structured setting to provide the necessary one-on-one instruction.

Corky Lockmiller, HISD assistant superintendent for educational support services, said the district has been using the program for at least six years and some remarkable results have been obtained from the program.

"This is truly a great program, but it can only be as good as the volunteers who make it work," said Lockmiller.

H.O.S.T.S. is available at all levels, but not at all schools, and the same programs are not available at each campus.

Lockmiller acknowledges he initially was very skeptical of the program, the cost of starting it and the long-range effects.

"This program has paid for itself 10 times over," he said. "The positive effects will only benefit our students and our community for years to come."

The program at Shirley Intermediate School focuses on a combined language arts and reading agenda, as does the program at West Central. Bluebonnet's program looks only at math, while the Northwest program zeroes in on reading.

Tierra Blanca and Northwest both feature a Spanish reading transition program.

"One of the best things to come from this program is seeing students realize their potential, develop their self-confidence and their self-esteem, so they know what they can do," he said.

He describes the program in which the students look forward to having a mentor come just to help them."

"We have seen some truly remarkable turnarounds for some of the H.O.S.T.S. students," said Lockmiller. "Not all the accomplishments are great, but each step forward is progress."

Volunteers come from all walks of life and all careers. Local police officers, school counselors, business leaders and homemakers — to name a few — all take an active role in mentoring the students.

"This gives me a break during the day, said Lloyd Ames, an HISD trustee and manager of Hereford Cablevision.

"...But it's not just another coffee break. It's a positive, productive break that brings me great personal satisfaction."

Mentoring sessions include individual help with basic skills, games and personalized lesson plans designed to fit each student's needs.

Students are continually being evaluated and assessed for individual progress and as a gauge for the program's long-term effectiveness.

Doris Cagle, a H.O.S.T.S. teacher at Northwest, said, "In 26 years of teaching, I have never seen another pull-out program with these types of results. I can really see the difference."

Armando Alaniz, a Hereford police officer who has been mentoring for the last four years and who will mentor again this year, said, "It makes me feel good knowing the students want to see me and the time we spend together is productive and worthwhile."

Specialized games encourage students to discover the fun and the challenge of excelling in a difficult class.

According to Lockmiller, the district currently has between 40-50 volunteers who have been with the program since it began, but more volunteers are always needed.

"You can never have too many volunteers. We can always find a child who needs some one-on-one help," he said.

The innovative program's most-critical shortage is fluent bilingual mentors. It also needs new mentors for the new program at the Shirley campus.

Youth prayer events scheduled

Hereford Ministerial Alliance will sponsor the annual "See You at the Pole" youth prayer event at 7 a.m. Wednesday at participating local schools.

Students will gather around the flagpoles for a few minutes of group prayer.

Prior to the annual event on Wednesday, a "Parents at the Pole" prayer event will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday on the lawn of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse giving parents the opportunity to offer prayer for their children, teachers and schools.

The alliance will also once again sponsor a "Saw You at the Pole Rally" at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the HISD Administration Building.

The evening event is a service for the youth who participated in "See You at the Pole" and will include a live band performing praise and worship music, student testimonies and giveaways.

At the pole

Last year Hereford school students gathered at the flagpole to offer prayer for their school, administrators and one another. This year "See You at the Pole" will be held at 7 a.m. Wednesday on the campus of participating schools.

Chorale to sponsor dinner, show

The Texas Plains Chorale is sponsoring a barbecue dinner and country music show at 6 p.m. Oct. 25 in the Bull Barn in Hereford.

Entertainment that is sure to get everyone's toes tappin', hands clappin', bellies laughin' and sing along singin' will be provided by three cowboy musicians, story tellers and singers.

The headliner for the group is David Ligon of Nickel Creek Ranch in the Guadalupe Mountains of Texas. Ligon is well known for furnishing music and being the "cookie" for trail rides all over the world.

He was born and raised in Fort Stockton. By profession, he is a wind miller and rancher. He has played the guitar and sung with many bands and groups since he started out in 1947.

Ligon plays traditional cowboy style, bluegrass, Appalachian style and country/western. He holds an annual "Music Festival" on his ranch that draws people from Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado.

He is well known for his stories, tales, jokes and natural gift for entertaining as well as his musical talents as a guitar player and singer.

Along with Ligon, there will be three other musicians to entertain the audience.

One of these musicians is Vance Sorrells who has entertained audiences with his deep, rich voice and masterful guitar playing for 15 years.

Sorrells has performed with Roberta Flack, Emmy Lou Harris, Gordon Lightfoot, Ian Tyson and Kris

DAVID LIGON

Kristofferson. In addition to performing, he is a composer and theatrical musical director. His own music has been incorporated into various theatrical productions in St. Louis and Washington, D.C.

Sorrells is currently the staff musician at Camp Stewart for Boys in Hunt. When time allows he performs and tours with his fine talent.

Stewart Crawford and his wife will complete the group that will perform in the Bull Barn on Oct. 25. Crawford plays guitar, banjo, dobro and sings. He has performed with Sorrells for a long time and with Ligon for several years.

Crawford's wife will complete the sound by playing the bass fiddle.

Crawford has been performing for 40 years, first on the East Coast during the 1960s, then on the West Coast from 1965 to 1974.

In 1974 he moved to Louisiana where he formed the South Louisiana Bluegrass Association, in which he served as president until 1995.

Currently Crawford resides in Comfort where he has a bluegrass band that has won every contest they have entered.

The Texas Plains Chorale is proud to bring these fine musicians and entertainers to Hereford for a grand evening of good food, fine music and authentic cowboy entertainment. It will be family entertainment at its finest.

The Texas Plains Chorale is sponsoring this event to raise funds for a planned tour of England in June 1998.

The TPC will sing some western-style music after the barbecue dinner and before turning over the remainder of the evening to the cowboy musicians.

Members of TPC will prepare the dinner with all the trimmings and turn the Bull Barn into a western fantasy land.

Cost of tickets for the evening is $15 for adults, $10 for students age 13-18, $7 for senior citizens and children age 12 and under, or $35 for a family of four.

Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce office, KPAN Radio and from any member of the Texas Plains Chorale.

New Arrivals

Alumni sought by 4-H

COLLEGE STATION -- Many role models for today's youth were once proud members of the Texas 4-H program. This list includes such individuals as former Dallas football player Chad Hennings, football legend Don Meredith, country singer George Strait and actress Sissy Spacek.

A "4-H Heritage Search" is on to locate as many former 4-H members and friends as possible to join The 4-H Friends and Alumni Association of Texas. The search will run through Dec. 31.

Dr. Bonnie McGee, assistant to the director of the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, said alumni have shown their consistent support for 4-H in many diverse ways over the years. The 4-H Friends and Alumni Association of Texas is being established to strengthen the Texas 4-H Youth Development Program and recognize alumni.

"Today's Texas 4-H remains the state's largest youth organization with more than 600,000 young people enrolled in the program," McGee said. "It will help 4-H to more concisely coordinate ways to let members know what is transpiring as new developments are made in the state. More importantly, development of the new organization will allow people to maintain support and enable members to help youths learn valuable life skills."

The 4-H Heritage Search will provide young people with the opportunity to assist county agents in locating former members and friends. The project will also allow youths the chance to collect 4-H historical information for their county.

A one-time payment of $500 is required for a lifetime membership in the organization. Charter memberships are available until Dec. 31 for $100. In subsequent years, a charter member pays an annual fee of $25.

Some additional membership types are also available, such as joint, $45; regular, $25; and collegiate, $15. A special category is designated for corporations/organizations as well.

For more information about The 4-H Friends and Alumni Association of Texas, contact your local county Extension agent or the Texas 4-H Foundation at 409-845-1213.

Youth organization plays vital role in shaping life of reporter

"If you enjoy your work, you'll never have to work a day of your life."

My husband repeats this expression often. I'm not sure where it originated, but I do think it is very true.

While I am employed by this newspaper, I can't honestly say I feel that I "work" here because I do enjoy what I am doing.

And it makes my work even more enjoyable to know that my efforts are appreciated. I am referring to the recent honor of being named the 1997 Friend of 4-H.

I want to express by appreciation to the 4-H members of Deaf Smith County for presenting me with this honor.

4-H has a special meaning for me because I was a 4-H'er when I was growing up. There is no doubt in my mind that 4-H contributed greatly to whatever success I have had.

To say that I was shy as a child would be a gross understatement. I often hid behind my mother's skirt, literally. When I first joined 4-H (at the earliest possible age), I was horrified of having to stand in front of a group, not to mention having to talk in front of anyone other than my family.

Participating in club meetings and learning to make motions during a meeting were big steps for me. Actually doing a method demonstration was a terrifying experience the first time. But as I practiced and improved, some of the fear disappeared and when I actually placed in a competition, it was very gratifying.

Being rewarded for doing a job well is one of the things that appeals to me about 4-H. Every youth in the program is recognized for their individual contribution.

Being first is not always the most important thing, but being recognized for what you accomplish is very important.

That is one reason I enjoy putting 4-H news and pictures of the youth in the paper. It's wonderful to be able to report "good news" about any of our young people today.

Being a member of 4-H has also been very beneficial for our daughter. While she did not participate in the variety of different projects that some of the youth do, she found an area that appealed to her - horses - and concentrated on that area. She was able to go to State Roundup and compete in horse judging every year that she was in the senior division.

It has been my pleasure to be able to give back through my job, a little of 4-H has given to me.

MR. AND MRS. PETE CARMICHAEL.
...observe 63rd wedding anniversary

Anniversary reception slated for Carmichaels

Mr. and Mrs. Pete L. Carmichael will celebrate their 63rd wedding anniversary from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 21 with a public reception in the Hereford Senior Citizen Center.

The party will also celebrate Mr. Carmichael's 90th birthday.

Hosts for the event are their children Dr. Bill Carmichael of San Antonio, Kenneth Carmichael of Aurora, Mo., and Shari C. James of Alexandria, La., and friends.

The Carmichaels were married July 14, 1934, in Hereford. They lived in the progressive community during their children's school years and moved to their present home in Hereford in 1962 when he retired from farming.

Mr. Carmichael has served on farm-related business boards, including Hereford Grain, Texas Farm Bureau and Consumers Fuel Co-op.

Mrs. Carmichael is a longtime extension and FCE club member and enjoys flower gardening.

Both are members of the Senior Citizens and bridge clubs.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: You recently had an article about keeping a record available about medicines and previous surgeries.

My hint goes for a sadder and stressful time: after the passing.

Make a list of all assets including real estate, where the papers are, safe-deposit box or boxes, bank accounts, insurance policies, retirement accounts, auto titles, siblings with names and addresses, children and grandchildren if you wish.

The most important thing is where the papers are so that the executor can trace them quickly. My attorney told me this will save him at least two days' work for his staff.

Copies can be left with the spouse, children and your attorney. — James Boardman, Columbus, Ohio

Your hint is one that many people don't think about, but it is an important one. It surely will save a lot of stress, not to mention money.

The more information at hand, the less time spent hunting. — Heloise CAT HAIR

Dear Heloise: I always read your column and learn new stuff every time your great tips are printed in our local paper.

I have six cats, all abandoned or abused, now living very well and I'm their obedient slave!

I have a stack of terry bath towels picked up at garage and estate sales. After I've noticed a favorite spot where kitty likes to lie down, I put a clean towel there.

When people come to visit, I remove the towels and we can all be comfortable without fear of cat hair on that navy-blue wool skirt!

The cats love clean bedding (towels) and always use them. — F. Oliver, Boise, Idaho

Your hint is the cat's meow and is an easy way to keep cat hair off clothing.

Dear Heloise: Quite a few pairs of my earrings have tarnished to the point where I am unable to wear them. Rather than throwing them away, I recycled them using nail polish.

It's very easy. Just polish one side, let dry completely, then do the other side. Once dry, check for any missed spots, if any, and give another coat.

They really came out looking perfect, especially a red pair that matched a red outfit.

My cousin loved them so much that I "polished" a couple of pairs for her. — Robin Miller, San Antonio, Texas

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE.

Thank You

The family of A. Cathy Brock wishes to express heartfelt thanks to everyone that took care of Mom. We want to thank each and everyone of you for your words of comfort. A special thanks to each and everyone that brought over food, to Frio Baptist Church, and those that sent flowers and plants thank you for the remembrance to Mom.

We will miss Mom lots but the memories of her life with us shall live on in our hearts. She has gone Home to be with Dad and our Lord and suffers pain no more. She will be missed by all that came in contact with her. But her spirit lives on in each of us that she touched.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"The real job of education is to entice students into the web of knowledge but if they are not enticed, to drag them in."

English classes taught by Mrs. Allen have begun their exciting journey into the Parts of Speech. YEAH!!!

Seventh grade history classes are beginning their study of weather in Texas. This usually includes an opportunity for students to share their weather stories, as well as some from parents and grandparents. This unit sometimes lasts longer than originally planned!

Red Team and Blue Team science classes taught by Ann Rainey and Lucy Caballero are completing their study of graphing and measurement. The next unit, chemistry, will have many neat activities incorporated into it due to these teachers having attended a WTAMU workshop this summer. Angie Wilhelm's life skills classes prepared bean bags for one of the activities for this study. We doubt that these students will have to be "dragged" to class with this hands-on opportunity!

EPS, (job skills), class members have each chosen a career they would like to pursue. They have made posters depicting each career, to share with the class. This class taught by Betty Cicero will be involved in other interesting activities during the year as they prepare to care for themselves in the future.

Sheri Blankenship's math classes will be working on an Order of Operations project beginning this week.

Advanced English class taught by Jeri Lynn White has begun short essays about heroes in their lives.

As Wilhelm's Resource English class reads Huckleberry Finn they will learn the meaning of slang expressions such as "rascallions", "saphheads" and being "highfullutin'!" (We probably have known people who might fit in those categories!).

Junior Historians have set Sept. 27 for their first and usually the largest field trip, for the number attending, for the new year. We will probably travel Highway 60 to the state line and then north to Shattuck, Okla., to the windmill museum. Approximately 80 students have enrolled in Junior Historians thus far. We will have a few drops, but expect several more to join as soon as travel plans are announced. Members will receive hall passes next week, be assigned to committees and get down to the business of being active Junior Historians. Dues were set at $10 each semester and we may conduct one fund-raiser. This will be determined later.

Couple celebrates anniversary

Earl and Mary Lewis of 400 Westhaven celebrated their 50th anniversary last weekend in Ruidoso, N.M., with a gathering of family and friends. Earl and Mary were married on Sept. 4, 1947, in Fort Sumner, N.M. They have lived in Hereford for 30 years. They have two children, Dan Lewis of Hurst and Terry Lewis of Albuquerque, N.M., and two grandchildren.

Rickman, Romo wed

Amanda Oleta Rickman and Stephen Allen Romo were united in marriage Sept. 6 in the Fellowship of Believers Church in Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Johnny and Martha Rickman of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Raymond L. and Minnie Romo, also of Hereford.

Pastor Nathan Stone, of Fellowship of Believers, officiated at the ceremony.

Susan Rickman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Best man was Raymond Romo, brother of the groom.

Serving as bridesmaid was Lori Paetzold and groomsman was John David Rickman, brother of the bride.

Flower girls were Tiffany Cheyenne Rickman, niece of the bride and daughter of John Rickman and Morgan Brooke Lightsey, niece of the groom and daughter of Troy and Cynthia Lightsey of Amarillo.

Taylor Wade Lightsey, nephew of the groom and son of Troy and Cynthia Lightsey, was ring bearer.

Music was provided by Jane Gully.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of cloque embellished with roses featuring an empire style waist, cap sleeves, and tied with a large satin bow in the back.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of satin roses.

She carried a cascading bouquet of burgundy and white roses, baby's breath and English ivy.

Bridal attendants wore empire style dresses with satin bodices and crepe skirts. The maid of honor was attired in hunter green while the bridesmaid wore burgundy.

The couple was honored with a reception at Hereford Community Center following the ceremony.

Assisting with the reception were Pruda Fults and Nancy Buchanan.

The bride's five-tiered white cake was decorated with rows of ruffles on the sides of classic round tiers and adorned with burgundy roses and baby's breath between tiers. It was topped with a traditional bride and groom.

The groom's cake was a turtle cheesecake. Both were made by Daria Rodriguez, cousin of the bride, of Hereford.

The bride is a 1997 graduate of Hereford High School. She is employed as a certified nurses aide at Hereford Care Center.

The groom graduated from Hereford High School in 1995 and is attending West Texas A&M University. He is employed by Hereford Regional Medical Center.

More on Milk

Did you know cow's milk should never be fed to infants?

Why shouldn't you give cow's milk to an infant? Most adults and children eat a variety of foods, but newborns rely on milk for all their nutritional needs. That's why the milk we drink for breakfast isn't suitable for a baby. Cow's milk is great for baby cows. But it's very different in nutritional content from either mother's milk or formula.

It has less iron and smaller amounts of vitamins C and E -- and it has more sodium, potassium and protein. The proteins in cow's milk are difficult for a baby to digest. They may cause allergic reactions.

Cow's milk also has less fat -- which babies need for energy and growth. For optimum nutrition, we recommend mother's milk. The only other option for a baby is baby formula.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I recently bought a house we love. One of the main selling points was a spacious, secluded back yard with a high fence. The previous owner pointed out that it would afford us the opportunity to sunbathe in the nude. While my husband and I don't do much sunbathing, we do enjoy skinny-dipping and relaxing unclothed in the hot tub. Occasionally, we nap nude in the shaded hammock on a Sunday afternoon.

Our problem is a neighbor boy who climbs a tree at the far end of his yard and peers at us with binoculars. We have asked his parents nicely to see that their son stops this spying, but they said that they can't possibly watch him 24 hours a day and that if we are uncomfortable about the boy seeing us naked, we should put some clothes on.

We feel that it is our right to be naked in our own back yard if we want to. It is not our intent to be exhibitionists, Ann, and we do not appreciate these prying eyes. I think this boy needs some discipline and these neighbors are being extremely uncooperative. Please tell us what can be done about this. -- Sticky Situation in Santa Clarita, Calif.

Dear Santa Clarita: The boy is not violating any law so there is no way you can stop him from training his binoculars on you. Eventually, the novelty of being a peeping Tom should wear off. In the meantime, your only recourse is to build a fence that is higher than the tree.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently, you published a couple of letters about the way some single fathers treat their daughters. One of your correspondents complained that the man she was dating "roughhoused" with his young daughter in a provocative way. Another said when she was a young child, her father used to crawl into bed with her at night, just to snuggle. Apparently, the women who wrote were not happy with the men's parenting skills. You were absolutely right to say, "It is the father's responsibility to set the boundaries." I became a single father through divorce when "Laura" was 18 months old. She is now 24. I didn't remarry until she was 16. I often felt inadequate, but Laura assured me that I did just fine. She used to give me cards on both Father's Day and Mother's Day.

I set boundaries. When I got Laura ready for bed, I would lie beside her and read to her for 15 minutes every night. The only time I let Laura get into bed with me was when she was upset about something or when she was ill. When she fell asleep, I would carry her to her own bed.

When Laura was 6, we had a nightly routine -- a kiss, a hug and "I love you." One night, Laura put her hand on the back of my neck and gave me a long kiss. I thought, "What's going on?" The next night, when she did it again, I told her, "Laura, you kissed me like a man and a woman kiss. You are not a woman, and I am your father. Don't ever try to kiss me like that again." She never did.

I set another boundary I thought was important. When I was newly divorced, I told my family and friends that not one word of criticism would be spoken about Laura's mother in Laura's presence. They all respected my wishes.

I am proud of the way I raised my daughter. If you think my letter will help other single fathers, please feel free to print it. Do not print my name, please, just -- A Minnesota Dad

Dear Minnesota: Laura was lucky to have had a dad like you. And it sounds like she knows it.

Gem of the Day: It may be lonely at the top, but you meet more interesting people up there, and you eat better, too.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.15.)

No matter how hectic, enjoy the gift of family

Every day, no matter how hectic the schedule, take time to enjoy the gift of family. Time spent together is when bonds are forged, making relationships count now and in later years. These moments don't have to be ordinary, even if they are part of daily routines. Make them slightly askew, funny, out of the norm! Remember, whatever you enjoy or tackle together will be special to your children because you were part of the sharing.

Here are some ideas to start off the fall season. They won't break the bank account, but they will be worth a good belly laugh, a hug or a secret smile.

* Stage a "Remember our summer" evening and have a wacky, not-so-typical dinner to boot. Use your picnic blanket as a tablecloth, put paper umbrellas in drinks and serve hamburgers, potato salad and chips. Recall the events your family shared such as, "Can you believe Dad ate five ears of corn at the state fair?" or "Remember while catching sunfish, Peter called his 'the whale'?" and "Who can forget the bear stealing our cooler overnight!"

* Play encyclopedia and learn funny and interesting tidbits. Assign someone to close his or her eyes, open an encyclopedia or dictionary to any page and point to a spot. Open eyes and read about the found subject. Anyone know what a smaragdite is? Why do red robins lay blue eggs? Did you know some women dressed like men in the Civil War so they could be soldiers?

* Update mom and dad's wallet photos by replacing old baby pictures of the kids with new snapshots. Send replacements to proud aunts, uncles and grandparents.

* Turn family story time into a real adventure. Pick out favorite books, find the coziest corner, turn out the lights and read with a flashlight. Let the kids take turns pointing the light to words and illustrations.

YOUR EYES

Older Eyes Need More Light

The cavemen probably could see fairly well. Well enough, at least, to tend the fire in the cave and hunt a woolly mammoth. Life was short, and our ancient forebears rarely had to cope with the eye effects of aging: smaller pupils that permit less light to enter the eye and strike the retina or cataracts that cloud the eye.

Fortunately, now a days we live longer, and have learned to compensate for our visual limits. The easiest way to get more light to see by, for instance, is to increase the intensity of room illumination or to move its source closer. Place a lamp from six to within two feet of the printed. This increases light on the page making it nine times as bright. For best results, place the light so that it shines over the left shoulder of a right-handed person, or the right shoulder of a lefty, to avoid glare and shadows.

Also important for older eyes: regular optometric examinations to identify and treat any eye problems.

The Successful Family

Helping Your Child Build Self-Esteem

Children believe what they hear from parents, teachers, and other adults in their lives. If they hear they are worthless and can do nothing right, they will believe this about themselves. If they hear they are valued and have the ability to become whatever they dream, they will!

Here are some tips for building a child's positive self-esteem:

1. Listen to your child and respect their thoughts and feelings. They won't always be right, but they are learning, and they need to know that their opinions count.
2. Praise your child's accomplishments, no matter how small. Let them know they are special and that you value their unique gifts and talents.
3. Make sure your children know you love them when they make mistakes. No one is perfect. Help them learn how to handle failure as a part of life and growth.
4. When you discipline a child, focus on their behaviors. Don't tell the child they are bad; let them know specifically what they did wrong.
5. Sometimes children need to handle problems on their own. Offer your support and let them know you are there, but allow them to make their own decisions. This helps them learn responsibility.

6. Be a good role model. Children learn from your actions as well as your words. They watch how you handle anger and confront problems and challenges in your own life.

7. Take care of you own self-esteem. You will be amazed how much your children will benefit when you feel confident in your abilities as a parent, role model and person.

Self-esteem can be torn down with incredible swiftness. Think about what you say to your children. Make sure it reflects how much you love them.

Being a good parent isn't always easy, but it's worth it!

For more information about THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY nurturing program contact Tilli Boozer, counselor and facilitator at 363-7668 or 364-HELP. The sessions will begin Oct. 7 through Nov. 18. They will be every Tuesday evening from 5:30 to 8. Meals will be provided. The sessions are for the entire family. Parents must accompany their children.

Names in the news

MARSHFIELD, Wis. (AP) - Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is used to traveling the world in limousines and jets. Late Thursday, he got to see a stretch of rural Wisconsin from a pickup truck.

Kissinger's limousine hit a deer during the 25-mile trip from the Central Wisconsin Airport in Mosinee to Marshfield, in central Wisconsin.

"I was greeted by a limousine that was longer than my airplanes," Kissinger said. "They really know how to treat me. Then, about 10 miles from the airport we hit a deer and it wrecked the car and I had to go the rest of the way in a pickup truck."

Kissinger was in town to attend the dedication of the Melvin Laird Center at the Marshfield Clinic, named for the former defense secretary from Marshfield.

Laird was a Wisconsin congressman from 1952 to 1969 before taking the cabinet post under President Nixon. Kissinger served under both Nixon and President Ford, the scheduled keynote speaker at the dedication.

High-quality child care: Luxury or standard equipment?

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent/FCS
We may be able to forgo luxury options when buying a car, deciding against cruise control or an expensive stereo system. But what about choosing an early childhood program? Shouldn't all characteristics of high-quality care and education be standard features in every program and center?

In her article in the January issue of Young Children, Deborah Koshansky reminds us that "option packages" do not exist when it comes to a high-quality early childhood education.

To ensure all children receive the kind of care and education they need to thrive, early childhood programs and centers must fully meet criteria of high quality. A "stripped down" model of a car may get us safely from place to place, but a "stripped down" model of child care and education means that children's learning and development will be compromised. How can any of these options be considered a "luxury" when it comes to high-quality care?

Warranty -- License and/or accreditation for the program.

Seat belts and air bags -- Health and safety guidelines to protect the child from illness and accidents.

Fuel injection system -- Nutritious meals and snacks.

Responsive handling -- Small groups and teacher-child ratios to allow prompt and appropriate attention to the child's needs.

Shock absorbers -- Teachers' sensitive assistance as the child encounters rough places on the road to maturity.

Preventive maintenance agreement -- Teachers' knowledge of child development and early childhood education for recognizing problems and addressing them early.

Steering mechanism -- Developmentally appropriate curriculum to guide the child's curiosity, creativity and problem-solving skills.

Automatic transmission -- Teachers' ability to change gears to meet the child's changing interests.

Comfortable interiors -- Teachers' smiles, hugs, and appreciation that provide a cushion for the child's self-esteem.

Cruise-control -- Appropriate limit setting and strategies to assist the child in learning self-control.

Maneuverability -- Opportunities for children to interact with each other and develop social skills.

Choice of color and style -- Environment in which each child feels special and unique.

Radio, directional signals, horn, hazard lights -- Opportunities for children to learn to communicate effectively.

Air conditioning -- Opportunities for outdoor play and physical development.

Reliability -- Good working conditions and an equitable pay scale to reduce teacher turnover, thus ensuring greater consistency of care.

Customer satisfaction -- Parents involved in their child's program and seen by teachers as partners in a child's growth.

In high-quality early childhood programs and centers, all of the above are standard features. But like all quality features, they cost money. No child's learning and development should be compromised because her parents cannot afford a high-quality early childhood program. Only by continuing our efforts to find alternate resources will we ensure that no child has to settle for a "stripped down" model of child care.

When all children receive high-quality education and care, we will yield children equipped with the skills necessary for life in the 21st century. And that's an investment that won't depreciate.

THANK YOU!

I would like to thank the following people for their help to my family and I, during our time of trouble and sorrow on the passing of my mother, Pauline Bridges. Thanks to Hereford Care Center and it's employees. Pastor John Gaston and all the ladies at First Assembly of God for their love and friendship. Thank you to Harlan Resch and family for their help. A very special thanks to Mike and Connie Bridges for opening their home to us. And to Opal Glenn for the extremely high level of professional care, the love and concern that she showed to my mother in the last days of her life.

Thanks to all ... Loyd Wayne Bridges

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Do you run your business or does it run you?

(Last of two parts)

Last week, in part one of this series, I discussed how business owners become trapped in their businesses. What started as a fun idea often becomes an all-consuming monster of stress.

Every entrepreneur is actually three-people-in-one: the creator, the organizer and the skilled technician. These three personalities cause stress for the owner. The creator wants to create and innovate, the organizer wants routine order and low stress and the technician wants to be left alone to do the work and make money. Soon, it seems that the business is running the owner, not the other way around.

The R.E.G.A.I.N.® system

A system is a set of actions, steps or ideas that lead to a desired result. In this case, the system will help you regain control of your business.

R - Recognize the problem. The first step in taking control of your business is to recognize and admit that you have a problem. The creator side of your personality wants to deny the existence of problems and believes that things will be better tomorrow. Unfortunately, you can't continue to do business in the same old way and expect different results.

Once you've reached the crisis stage - "I can't take this one more day" - it may seem easier to sell or close than change. However, all too often there is little of value to sell, and closing would leave you with debt and no income to repay it. Therefore, we'll focus on working out the problems.

E - Evaluate your present situation. What is actually happening, compared to what you want to happen? At this point, you must start working on your business instead of in it.

Analyzing your present situation is the first step in good planning. Creating a plan to get control of your business is the next step.

G - Generate a plan. Putting a plan together is like taking a step in the right direction. It is only a start, but you are on your way.

Your plan should encompass both strategic and operational objectives. The strategic portion of your plan details your mission and purpose. The operational portion describes the systems, activities, procedures and policies needed to accomplish the long-term strategy.

A - Ask for help. It may help to have an outside, objective opinion at this point. You may want to contact a small business development center, a qualified business consultant or visit a successful business owner.

Creating a workable business plan is difficult. However, with proper guidance, a good plan pays big dividends for the time invested.

I - Invest the time. The reason any business owners struggle is because they spend more time working in business than on the business. Steps three and four do require an investment of your time, but you will find few short cuts. You must devote the time to it.

Investing time now to plan and create your operating systems, frees up much more time for future use. The creator will have time to dream, the organizer will have lower stress and the technician will work less and get more done.

N - Never, give up. Success comes to those who try and try and keep trying. Running a small business has never been easy. It will never be easy. If it were, everyone would be a big success in their own business. Don't quit too soon.

I'd like to send you a free copy of the complete system, including a business planning guide. Just send me a self-addressed envelope with 2 stamps on it to R.E.G.A.I.N.®, c/o Don Taylor, PO Box 67, Amarillo, TX 79105.

Don Taylor is the co-author of "Up Against the Wal-Marts." You may write to him in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, TX 79105.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

Is it at your house the way it is at ours? Occasionally (?) the money runs out before the month runs out. Well, it's that way at the library, too. The book budget has run out before the fiscal year ran out. Fortunately, the new fiscal year will begin Oct. 1, so we don't have long to wait.

The point is, we usually put out eight new fiction and eight new nonfiction books every week. When we don't have the books, we can't put them out, and for the next few weeks, we may or may not have that many new books to share with you.

Making money stretch out over a whole year of book purchases is not easy, especially when you have to balance expenditures over fiction and nonfiction, children and adults, reference and popular loan books.

Actually, we did much better this year than last. We ran out of book money sometime in July last year, and had to depend totally on Baker and Taylor lease books for the new book shelf for two whole months.

We contract with Baker and Taylor to lease a basic collection of about 180 books and order and receive 15 new books per month. The fee is paid at the beginning of each fiscal year out of funds that come to us through membership in the Texas Panhandle Library System.

This guarantees that we will have new popular fiction and nonfiction titles coming in throughout the year. These are chosen from a pre-publication catalog, ordered from B&T, and received, a few at a time, as they are published.

It is my responsibility to order and account for this program and is one of my favorite duties. Every month I look forward to receiving the catalog of new titles. The first thing I do is scan the short summaries of each book, looking for popular authors. These I know we will order. Then I go back and carefully read each summary, especially the nonfiction books.

One of the beauties of the lease system is that you can lease and not purchase books that might have fleeting popularity. Books about current events and personalities might be hot for a while, but often are not in demand after the crisis or election is over.

Two or three times a year, we send back titles that do not circulate well or become outdated. For every five books we send back, they allow us to keep one book of our choice for free.

Then in November, they usually throw a big sale and offer any book in our lease collection for purchase at $3 per title. It really appeals to my garage sale mentality to get a book that originally sells for $25-$30 for a mere three bucks.

The lease system allows us to provide, at a lower cost, a consistent and varied supply of popular books. It sure helps at the end of the fiscal year.

Membership in the Texas Panhandle Library System also allows us to take advantage of a hefty discount from another book distributor. Ingram Book Distributors gives TPLS members the discount because of the large volume of buying we do as a group. What would we do without TPLS? We'd buy a lot fewer books for one thing!

The Man Who Listens to Horses is the true story of a man, badly abused as a child, who has learned through experience with horses, that there are other than verbal ways to communicate. He has used his expertise in business, with parent and child, with abuser and abused, and with horses. He can take a wild, high-strung horse who has never before been handled and persuade that horse to accept a bridle, saddle, and rider in 30 minutes.

Roberts started riding at the age of 2, and at the age of 13 he went alone into the high deserts of Nevada to study mustangs in the wild. In contrast to his abusive father's violent and harsh ways with horses, Roberts developed a style of "gentling" horses rather than "breaking" them, derived, in part, from what he observed in the lead mare in the mustang herd and how she handled an ill-mannered colt.

My husband reads horse and cattle magazines and market papers from cover to cover, but seldom finds a book that will hold his interest to the end. This one not only held his interest, but consumed his every spare moment for a while. This is high praise, and a good recommendation.

Other nonfiction books new this week are:

The Complete Idiot's Guide to The Perfect Marriage by Hilary Rich and Helaina Laks Kravitz, M.D.

Crime in Texas by Ken Anderson.

The Anti-Aging Hormones by Ruth Winter, M.S.

Good Intentions: The Nine Unconscious Mistakes of Nice People by Duke Robinson.

American Scripture: Making the Declaration of Independence by Pauline Maier.

Baseball Uniforms of the 20th Century by Marc Okkonen.

New fiction books include:

Double Take by Judy Mercer.

Indigo Slam by Robert Crais.

Exchange Alley by Michael Walsh.

Dark Homecoming by Eric Lustbader.

Blind Pursuit by Matthew F. Jones.

Everyone and No One by Mark Jacobson.

Vegas Sunrise by Fern Michaels.

The Presence by John Saul.

Weatherford produces fourth winner since Lotto Texas began

AUSTIN (AP) - Weatherford has done it again.

The town of roughly 18,000 just west of Fort Worth, has produced its fourth Lotto Texas winner since the game's inception in 1992.

On Friday, John Rhode of Weatherford claimed the $10 million jackpot winning Sept. 3.

His winning ticket follows those of Weatherford residents: Leah and Rodney Riedel, who won $32.3 million in 1995; Christopher M. Tull, who won $26.9 million in 1995; and waitress Diane Leiding, who won $20.2 million in 1994.

Rhode's winning ticket was a Quick Pick with the numbers 8, 13, 18, 29, 39 and 46.

"I've been telling my wife since I started buying lotto tickets several years ago that winning the jackpot was my destiny," Rhode said. "She didn't believe me, and it hasn't quite sunk in yet for either of us that we won."

Rhode said he and his wife, Beverly, talked long and hard about preventing any radical lifestyle changes.

"We enjoy the life we have," Mrs. Rhode said. "We're probably going to devote more time to the things we each love. For me, it's horses and for John it's construction."

The 45-year-old Rhode is a foreman for a Fort Worth-area construction company. Mrs. Rhode buys and sells horses.

"About the only thing we're going to buy is a shiny, new turnpike cruiser for my wife, and I'm going to keep her car," Rhode said. "We haven't really stopped working, either, so there won't be other big changes."

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have had dry eyes and dry mouth for about two years. During the night my mouth gets so dry I must drink water all night.

Have there been any other inquiries on this problem? Is there any aid I can look forward to? — M.P.

ANSWER: Hardly a week goes by without inquiries on dry mouth and dry eyes. You share a distressing problem with thousands of others. It's name is Sjögren's (SHOW-grens) syndrome.

For some perverse and unknown reason, some of your body's white blood cells, the lymphocytes, have infiltrated your salivary and tear glands, putting them out of commission.

The eyes feel gritty. The mouth becomes desert-dry.

You must keep your mouth moistened. Without the cleansing flow of saliva, teeth succumb to cavities. Carry a plastic squeeze bottle filled with water in your purse. Don't hesitate to use it often.

Schedule dental checkups every four months.

Chewing sugarless gum and letting sugarless lemon drops melt in your mouth enhance saliva production.

At night, when you have your worst problems, coat the inside of your mouth with cocoa butter, mineral oil or olive oil.

Moisten your eyes with artificial tears, which you can find in drugstores. Liquifilm tears and 0.5 percent methylcellulose are a couple of the many options out there.

Sjögren's syndrome does not always appear as a solo pest. Rheumatoid arthritis and lupus are two illnesses that can lurk in the background. Your doctor probably will check you for such ills.

The Sjögren's Syndrome Foundation can field questions and provide up-to-date treatment news. The foundation's toll-free phone number is (800) 475-6473.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I just had a colonoscopy and am very alarmed at the report. My gastroenterologist diagnosed the condition as "melanosis coli."

He told me to stop using the laxative I had been using for quite some time.

Please give me your comments. This is a miserable situation. — K.H.

ANSWER: Melanosis coli is condition whose bark is far worse than its bite. The name conjures up a grim illness, but that's far from the truth.

Laxatives containing cascara sagrada, senna, aloe or frangula can leave a black discoloration on the colon lining: melanosis coli. The view presents a startling picture for the doctor. But it really amounts to nothing. Stopping the laxative reverses the process in a year.

You have not damaged your colon. You do not face any serious consequences.

You have, however, gotten into the laxative habit, one not easily broken.

Take the fiber route for nature's own constipation remedy. Drink plenty of water when you do. Fiber holds water in the undigested food, facilitating elimination without straining.

I'm sending you my "The Way to Stop Constipation" report. Readers can obtain a copy by writing to: Dr. Donohue — No. 7, Box 5539 River-ton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (53 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have fibrocystic breast disease. My doctor suggested taking evening primrose oil. When reading in my herb books, it is suggested for premenstrual syndrome, anxiety, high blood pressure and cholesterol.

Is evening primrose a wonder herb? — J.F.

ANSWER: Some fans look on the evening primrose as a wonder. They use the plant not only for the conditions you mention but also for arthritis, eczema and even mental illness.

There is a dash of science behind the plant's use. It's a source of prostaglandins, substances that act much like body hormones.

I am a primrose oil agnostic, but that's my natural inclination for anything that claims to be effective for so many ills.

It won't hurt you. You might even make me a believer.

Outstanding teachers

Pictured are outstanding Sunday school teachers which were selected based on nominations submitted to the Hereford Ministerial Alliance.

Anita Ramirez of New Hope Church of the Nazarene is a sweet teacher with the children. Not only is she sweet but she loves the Lord and is very compassionate; however, she is very bold in teaching the doctrine of Jesus Christ. She is also very dependable, punctual and reliable. From her very first day of teaching

Sunday school children, JoAnn Mondragon has demonstrated a love and dedication that has not wavered. She is truly a gift from the Lord. A children's teacher/worker is not a position but a calling and she fills this proudly as a part of the ministry team of Good News Church.

The outstanding teachers were named as a part of the alliance's campaign to get "Every Child in Sunday School."

In ancient Egypt, it was fashionable for women to shave their heads and wear wigs made of palm-leaf fibers.

A welcome addition to our team.

Emerson fits living grace in tiny space

By Associated Designs

The Emerson #30-108

Living Area 1331 sq.ft.
Outside Dimensions 24' x 32'

The two-story Emerson is as compact as they come, for a three-bedroom, 2 1/2 bathroom home.

Not only is it small (1331 square feet), but it also has an absolutely tiny footprint—24 feet by 32 feet—and is cute to boot. Multipaned windows give the plan a yesteryear charm, while the lattice-crowned porch and end-detailed gables add even more personality.

Inside, the floorplan is not the least bit old-fashioned. The main floor is totally open, each area flowing naturally into the next. It even has a foyer with coat closet, a feature often missing in small homes.

Half-walls capped by posts provide a cased opening between the living room and dining room. Atrium doors in the dining room open onto a covered patio. Wide windows span the front and back, and narrow windows break up the remaining outside wall, so the entire family living space is naturally bright.

A work island adds to the counter space in the kitchen, and a powder room is mere steps away, hidden behind a pocket door. Sink, work island and range cluster together in a tight triangle for maximum efficiency. And the designers made excellent use of what could have been wasted space under the stairs, outfitting it as a walk-in pantry.

Bedrooms are all on the second level. The master suite, with two windows facing the front, has a walk-in closet, a second closet, and a private bathroom with oversized shower. The two other bedrooms share a bathroom with a tub.

Utilities and linen storage are also upstairs in the Emerson, close to the sources of most dirty laundry.

Bob no more. Newhart is back with George & Leo

Comedic greats Bob Newhart (left) and Judd Hirsch return to series television as a pair of mismatched in-laws who have to learn to live with each other in George & Leo. Premiering Monday on CBS, the sitcom also stars Jason Bateman (not pictured).

Bob Newhart insists he isn't selling out with the title of his new CBS sitcom, George & Leo, which premieres Monday, Sept. 15. "Legally, I'm George Robert Newhart," he says, "so I'm still using my name."

The actor, whose eponymous shows have included The Bob Newhart Show, Newhart and Bob, stars as a mild-mannered, button-down, retired mutual-fund manager, who now owns a bookstore on the island of Martha's Vineyard, located off Massachusetts.

Enter Leo (played by Taxi veteran Judd Hirsch), the soon-to-be father-in-law of George's son. Leo is the anti-George: While working for the mob in Las Vegas, he stole $25,000 from a drop he was supposed to have made. Now he's on Martha's Vineyard for his estranged daughter's wedding, as a gift from George's son to his bride. The trouble is, she doesn't want to see her father in the first place.

Newhart credits the chemistry between himself and Hirsch for much of the show's humor. "We had the reading, and we knew there was a chemistry and it was going to work," he says. "I mean, this was (the show's) very first sit-down."

Newhart thought he would retire from television after his previous show, Bob, but found he was bored not working. "I tried playing golf for a while and one day said to my wife, 'I can't do this for the rest of my life, I'm going to go nuts.' I mean, if the only thing I have to show for all day is (a score of) 84, it's not a very productive day," he says.

Unknown to Newhart, George & Leo executive producers Dan Staley and Rob Long were already working on a script for him. "We sat down to create a Bob Newhart show," Staley says, "which, in retrospect, was sort of an odd thing to do, since Bob didn't know we were doing that."

But when the script for the pilot showed up, Newhart was pleased. "I was most impressed with (the fact that) they had found my voice," he says. "They had found my way of speaking."

Now they had to find an actor to play Leo. "I think we realized that Leo was critical to the success of this show and we had to have someone really strong and good," Newhart says. "And we have."

"Always at the top of our wish list for the other role was Judd Hirsch," Staley says.

Hirsch says he really hadn't intended to take offers from television since his last show, Dear John, went off the air. Then the script for George & Leo came around. "This guy, Jimmy Burrows, called me and said, 'What about that?'" Hirsch says. "And I said, 'It's just good. It's just wonderful. I'll see you in Los Angeles.'"

Casting the other roles wasn't as easy. The original pilot featured Patrick Breen as George's son. But after filming, it was decided the chemistry just wasn't there. Jason Bateman was recast in the role and the pilot was reshot.

"It was the nicest call I've ever gotten," Bateman says.

Working with Newhart and Hirsch is great, he admits. "It's like I've graduated college and gone on to grad school, and I'm studying under the two most respected professors in the business."

Long says he is amazed by the cast members of George & Leo, and how his and Staley's vision of the show has turned out so perfectly.

"I expect to wake up with Suzie Pleshette at some point," he says.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ September 14-20 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

You're so full of energy this week, Aries, that your dreams really may come true. Everything is going your way, and you make progress in all that you do. Friends and loved ones support you and help you with your tasks. You meet an interesting person on Thursday. Make a good impression.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

You're a person with a mission this week. You set a goal for yourself, and you're determined to achieve it. However, don't do it alone. Turn to a close friend for help. He or she can provide the last bit of effort you need to make it. Gemini and Libra play important roles later in the week.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

You're in for a relaxing week, Gemini. The hustle and bustle of the past few weeks is finally over, and you have time to yourself. Enjoy it. Do something special for yourself, and splurge a little. You're worth it! An old friend re-enters your life and wants to pick up where you left off. This could be the start of something special.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

This week, you've got the perfect opportunity to shine, Cancer. A business venture lets you show off your talent, making an impact on all those involved. A loved one asks you for advice. Before you give a response, learn the facts. Virgo plays an important role midweek.

LEO - July 23/August 23

You're under a lot of pressure early in the week. Try to keep your cool when co-workers and superiors continually demand your attention. Things get back to normal by the end of the week. A close friend takes you on a surprise outing. Enjoy yourself, and relax.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

You just can't seem to sit still this week, Virgo. You have so many things that you want to do and not enough time to get them all done. Don't push yourself too hard; your health is more important. Set your priorities, and finish as much as you can. The rest can get done next week.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Questions, questions, questions — that's what you have a lot of later in the week. However, you can't seem to get any answers. Don't get discouraged. Do the best that you can with what little information you can learn. That special someone sends you a gift. Your positive response can make the relationship stronger.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

While you feel very possessive this week, Scorpio, it only can lead to problems for you. Let that special someone do what he or she really wants to do. Taking control only will drive him or her away. It is going to be difficult, but you'll enjoy the results. Cancer plays a key role later in the week.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Stick to the task at hand. Don't let others distract you from what you need to do, whether it be at work or at home. People are counting on you; don't let them down. An interesting stranger introduces himself or herself to you. You're in store for a fun weekend.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Boredom takes over late in the week, Capricorn. Even though you have a lot to get done, nothing interests you, and you have no motivation. Loved ones try to get you moving. Don't resist their encouragement! A close friend reveals a long-hidden secret. It takes you by surprise.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Early in the week, you learn some interesting information that you can't wait to share with friends and family. However, it's not your place to spread the news. Keep quiet, and let those primarily involved tell others. Virgo plays an important role.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

You're full of ambition as the week progresses, Pisces. Take advantage of it. Work towards a personal goal that you really haven't had time to focus on lately. You're sure to feel better about yourself if you do. That special someone turns to you in a time of need. Be supportive.

News anchor Bryant Gumbel hosts The 49th Annual Emmy Awards, airing Sunday on CBS. For the third consecutive year, the drama ER received the most nominations.

49th Emmy Awards - deja vu all over again

By Suzanne Gill

©TVData Features Syndicate

So you've seen one Emmy Awards ceremony and you think you've seen 'em all. Well, if last year's show was the one you watched, you may be right.

The 49th Annual Emmy Awards, airing Sunday, Sept. 14, is on a different channel (CBS) and has a different host (Bryant Gumbel), but most of the nominees are the same.

In fact, last year's picks for best comedy series were read by mistake at this year's announcement ceremony, and no one noticed until later. (There was just one change: 3rd Rock From the Sun replaced Friends for best comedy series.)

Previous winners back for more this year include ER (22 nods), The Larry Sanders Show (16), The X-Files (12), NYPD Blue (11), Frasier (9), Seinfeld (9), Mad About You (5) and Law & Order (6). New wrinkles include first-time lead actor pick David Duchovny (X-Files) and a category switch by third-year nominee Julianna Margulies (ER), from supporting actress to lead.

Against these strong veterans, freshman shows are all but frozen out of the acting categories. Spin City has one nod, for star and previous Emmy winner Michael J. Fox, but the season-long buzz around supporting player Michael Boatman was for naught. Suddenly Susan has a guest-acting nod, while newcomers including 7th Heaven, Cosby, Relativity, and Buffy the Vampire Slayer only managed to score in craft categories. Critical darling EZ Streets snared one nomination: for theme music.

Fox's Golden Globe winner, Party of Five, also was passed over by Emmy. Likewise, Andre Braugher of Homicide: Life on the Street will have to content himself with his recent Television Critics' Award.

A category of unexpected interest is choreography, where Drew Carey and 3rd Rock landed this year. In the writing contest, the "coming out" episode of Ellen is a contender.

Thanks to strength in movie categories (Miss Evers' Boys), HBO came out on top among all channels, grabbing 90 total nominations to beat second-best NBC (89), as well as CBS (60), ABC (47) and Fox (19). So Emmy is learning what viewers already know: A lot of the good stuff is on cable.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Did the actress who plays Scully on The X-Files also play Kit in the movie A League of Their Own? -Ashley Hignell in Canada.

A: No. Lori Petty, who played Kit Keller in League, did somewhat resemble Gillian Anderson of The X-Files at the time Petty filmed that 1992 comedy directed by Penny Marshall.

Petty also starred in the short-lived 1996 Fox sitcom Lush Life.

Q: Whatever happened to actor Adam Wylie, who played Zachary on Picket Fences? -Jerry B. via e-mail.

A: Wylie, 13, continues to work at a pace most actors would envy, though none of his recent roles has been as high-profile as the one he played on Picket.

Last season he co-starred in Love and Marriage, a sitcom that had a brief run on Fox before it was canceled along with the network's other new sitcoms, Party Girl and Lush Life.

Wylie also played Chip (the teacup-boy) in the West Coast stage production of Disney's Beauty and the Beast, appeared this past January in an episode of High Incident, co-starred in the Hulk Hogan movie Santa With Muscles and provided a voice for the animated All Dogs Go to Heaven 2.

Blessed with a level head and a healthy sense of humor about himself, Wylie should have a long career.

Q: What is the name of the '40s drama starring Ronald Reagan and Ann Sheridan? In the movie, a doctor cuts off Reagan's character's leg because he wanted to marry the doctor's daughter. Is it available on video? -T. Mayes, Sweetwater, Texas.

A: You're thinking of King's Row (1941), in which Reagan gave his best Hollywood performance. It is available on video.

Q: How - if in any way - are Garry and Penny Marshall related? Are those their real names? -Pauline Ames, Lexington, N.C.

A: Garry, who is Penny's older brother, gave his sister her first big break when he hired her for a recurring role in his hit TV sitcom The Odd Couple. She played Oscar Madison's (Jack Klugman) secretary, Myrna Turner.

Their first names are their given ones, but their real last name is Marsciarelli (also spelled Masciarelli in some sources).

Q: In the season finale of Mad About You, did Jamie give birth to a son or a daughter? I can't remember. -J. Allison, Louisville, Ohio.

A: Paul and Jamie Buchman have a new daughter, who is awaiting a name.

Expect the naming process to spark lots of laughs when the sitcom returns Tuesday, Sept. 23, on NBC.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
