Science's his 'FORTE'

Steve Knox is shown working on the all-composite satellite at the Los Alamos (N.M.) National Laboratory. Knox, a Hereford native, is the project leader for the FORTE project at the lab.

Hereford native directs project

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor
By his own admission, Steve Knox wasn't an "exemplary" student in high school, but he's certainly made up for any lost time.
The Hereford native heads up the FORTE (Fast On-orbit Recording of Transient Events) project at the U.S. Department of Energy's Los Alamos National Laboratory in Los Alamos, N.M.
The Los Alamos facility, in cooperation with the DOE's Sandia National Laboratories of Albuquerque, saw a concept become a reality Aug. 29 with the launch of the FORTE satellite.
The satellite is the first satellite made of an all-composite structure - graphite-reinforced epoxy. It will test new ways to spot nuclear weapons tests and teach scientists more about lightning and the ionosphere.
The FORTE satellite was launched from an Air Force L-1011 aircraft flying at 40,000 feet above Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. A three-stage Pegasus rocket fired successfully, putting the satellite into an elliptical orbit, from 480 to 506 miles above Earth.
FORTE is a lightweight satellite that has been designed to test technology to monitor possible nuclear tests by measuring and analyzing radio energy arising from the Earth's surface. In a non-military function, the satellite will gather data on the physics of lightning and the ionosphere.
Knox is the man who's responsible for the FORTE project.
"Starting in '92, I was the leader in developing the project's concept" and saw that concept through until it became a real program, Knox said.

"We're classified as a military experiment - using the Air Force's launch capability - although it is a government satellite," he said.
Knox, whose parents, Stan and Ruth Knox, still live in Hereford, is a 1966 graduate of Hereford High School. He later attended Abilene Christian College and West Texas State University (now West Texas A&M University) before earning his bachelor's degree at Texas Tech.
He later would go on to earn his master's degree and doctorate at university in Lubbock.
Knox said he "wasn't an exemplary student in high school and my first few years in college, but I came along."
In high school, Knox said he took all of the science and math courses offered by the school district, so he was among a small group of students who were given an additional science course.

"We studied the scientific approach to the endocrine system - not part of the normal curriculum, but very educational," Knox said.
He said his parents have been very supportive over the years.
"My dad owned a TV and radio shop, repairing radios and TVs, and it was expanded to car stereos," he said.
"I started working in his repair shop when I was about 14, so ... it served well because a lot of what I do is experimental physics. Of course, the satellite system is a lot more complex," he said.
Knox came to Los Alamos by way of Seattle.
He was an assistant professor at the University of Washington for three years, serving on the faculty of the nuclear engineering department.

"I wanted to do more research, so I went to Los Alamos in 1981 - still studying thermonuclear fusion," he said, adding that he became interested in satellite research and joined the LANL project in 1986, later becoming involved in the FORTE project.
The successful launch in August did not culminate the project, he said. Now, the team is working to "teach" the computer system to analyze the data that is being beamed back to Earth from the satellite.
Knox said the satellite is taking about 1,000 "snapshots" of radio and optical frequencies daily, which is more data than a human can analyze properly.
So, the computer is being taught to scan the data and isolate what should be examined by a scientist.

"We have to be careful before supporting one or the other (tax plan), because we need to know what the impact of each one will be. Both will be fully aired in committees ..."
- U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas

Combest sees broad support for IRS reform

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Brand Editor-Publisher
U.S. Rep. Larry Combest says he has received massive support for the IRS Reform Act now being debated in the House, and he believes it is "very likely" that the measure will be approved in November.
In a conference telephone call with West Texas editors and newsmen Friday, the Lubbock Republican noted the Clinton administration has dropped its opposition to GOP plans to reform the Internal Revenue Service.
The bill (HR 2676) contains 28 new provisions to protect taxpayers, including a section to allow a taxpayer to sue the IRS for up to $100,000 for damages resulting from IRS negligence, and making it easier to recover legal fees incurred in disputes with the IRS.
With Congress changing the way IRS does business, plans to change the tax code are already on track, Combest said. He has signed a pledge and is promoting a petition that will abolish the IRS tax code within the next three to four years.
"My pledge is to work for a simpler, fairer tax that will reward work and encourage savings," he said.
Combest, whose 19th Congressional District encompasses Deaf Smith County, noted the current tax code contains 7 million words. The simplest return, the EZ Form 1040, has 33 pages of instructions, while the IRS 1040 form has 76 pages of instructions. He noted that 300,000 trees are cut each year to produce 8 billion pages of paper for these forms and instructions.
Combest said the tax plans are now being discussed - the flat tax and a national retail sales tax. He indicated that his constituents had not expressed a choice between the two.
"We have to be careful before supporting one or the other, because we need to know what the impact of each one will be. Both will be fully aired in committees, probably beginning in January," he said.
Combest told area newsmen that he wants to hear what his constituents think about replacing the income tax code with a "flat tax" or a national "consumption tax."
Combest said he was in the process of getting details of the new tax plans from financial counselors and accountants - those who assess and determine how the tax plans would affect their clients. Both include dramatic changes.
The flat tax, in a bill proposed by House Majority Leader Dick Armey of Texas, would repeal the current income tax and replace it with a low, simple flat tax. Every dollar of income in the economy would be taxed one time at the same rate.
Wage and pension income is collected from individuals, while all other income - including investment income, is collected from businesses. Individuals would fill out a tax return the size of a postcard.
The bill proposes a 17-percent tax rate after subtracting allowances. When phased in, the family allowances will be $11,600 for a single person, $23,200 for a married couple, and $5,300 for each dependent child. The allowances are indexed to inflation. The plan does not affect Social Security and Medicare payroll taxes.
Businesses would pay 17 percent of the difference - if positive - between revenues and expenses. Expenses are defined as purchases of goods and services, capital equipment, structures, land, wages and contributions to employee retirement plans. No deductions are permitted for fringe benefits, interest, or payments to owners.
A National Retail Sales Tax, proposed by U.S. Rep. Billy Tauzin, R-La., would do away with the IRS by the year 2001. Personal and corporate income taxes, estate and gift taxes and all non-trust fund dedicated excise taxes would be repealed.
A tax of 15 percent is imposed on the gross receipts from the sales of any taxable property or service sold in the U.S. The amount of tax paid on every transaction must be disclosed to the consumer (it cannot be hidden in the price of the item).
No tax would be imposed on any good or service purchased for resale, purchased to produce a good or service for resale, or exported from the U.S.
Income going to savings and investments is not taxable until consumed. To ensure that the basic necessities of life remain tax-free, every wage-earner would earn up to the poverty level tax-free.

WINTERLIKE STORM PUMMELS PLAINS, RAIN THREATENING SOUTH

By The Associated Press
A strong storm brought blizzardlike conditions to the Plains today while heavy rain fell on parts of the Southeast. It was cool and fair in the Northeast and mild in the West.
Up to 2 feet of snow and winds gusting to 45 mph were possible in eastern Colorado by tonight, with lesser amounts of snow expected in Wyoming, Nebraska, South Dakota and Kansas. Dozens of accidents were reported and scores of travelers were stranded in Denver.
Ahead of the cold front, rain was likely across southern Nebraska and Kansas before cooler temperatures arrive.
Behind the front, dry and cool conditions were predicted in the northern Rockies and Utah. High pressure was expected across much of the West.
In the South, flash flooding was possible in parts of Florida, Alabama and Georgia as heavy rain moves to the east.
High temperatures today were expected to reach the 20s and 30s in the northern Plains and central Rockies; the 40s in New England and the northern Rockies; the 50s in the Northeast and Northwest; the 60s in the mid-Atlantic states; the 70s across the West; and the 80s in the Southeast.

JUSTICE OPENS INQUIRY INTO REJECTION OF CASINO
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Interior Department agreed to arrange interviews between some of its staff members and the Justice Department, as part of an inquiry into Secretary Bruce Babbitt's rejection of an Indian tribe's casino application.
The Justice Department opened the inquiry Friday into questions surrounding Babbitt's decision to reject a Wisconsin Indian tribe's bid to open a casino.
Babbitt spokesman Mike Gaudin said the department requested permission to interview "a couple of staff members." The department agreed to set up the sessions.

"We will be happy to cooperate with the Justice Department inquiry. We are more interested than anybody else in getting the full story of this out because there has been so much misinformation in the press," Babbitt spokesman Mike Gaudin said.

CHINA VOWS TO END NUCLEAR COOPERATION WITH IRAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. officials are reviewing assurances by the Chinese that they will end their nuclear cooperation with Iran, hoping that President Clinton can approve an atomic energy agreement in time to announce it next week at his summit with China's leader, Jiang Zemin.
Halting China's nuclear assistance to Iran, which U.S. intelligence officials believe is developing atomic weapons, allows Clinton to certify the communist country is cooperating on nonproliferation. This, in turn, would open the way for the U.S. nuclear power industry to sell reactors and materials to China, which is developing alternate energy.
The agreement, which U.S. aides had been negotiating for months, was obtained in a breakthrough Wednesday in Beijing, said two administration officials who spoke Friday on condition of anonymity.

Local Roundup

FCE Council will meet

Deaf Smith County Family Community Education Council will meet at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Heritage Room of the county library. Council delegates, officers and committee chairman are urged to attend this important planning meeting for coming events.

Trip planning meeting

Parents of junior high and senior high school age students who are interested in giving their children an educational experience they will never forget are invited to attend a meeting at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Hereford Junior High. Plans are being made for a tour of Washington, D. C., in June 1998. If you are unable to attend the meeting, but would like more information, call Paula Miller at 364-6316, Susan Perrin at 289-5965 or Linda Mason at 289-5383.

School board meeting

The Hereford Independent School board of trustees will meet for a regular meeting on Oct. 28, 1997 at noon in the administration board room.

Items on the agenda include approval of several local policies; approval of software packages for Stanton and Hereford High; numerous job descriptions and evaluation instruments and standard reports.

The meeting has been moved from its regular time due to the girl's volleyball going into playoff season.

Youth perform in symphony

Two local boys, Javier Alonzo and Kris Hammarback, freshmen at Hereford High School, will perform 4 p.m. Sunday in the Amarillo Youth Orchestra at the Amarillo College Concert Hall-Theater. The string symphony orchestra is composed of 40 members from the Panhandle area. Participants range from the eighth to the twelfth grades. The performance is open to the public and there is no charge for the concert.

Windy and cold

Tonight, very windy and cold with snow ending. North wind 25 to 35 mph, diminishing late. Low in the mid-20s.

Sunday, decreasing cloudiness with a high near 40. North wind diminishing to 10-20 mph.

3 to 5 day forecast

Monday: partly cloudy, low in lower 20s and high near 60.

Tuesday: partly cloudy, low in mid-30s and high in lower 60s.

Wednesday: dry and cooler, low 25-30 and high in lower 50s.

Halloween's coming

Halloween won't be here until Friday, but this house on U.S. Hwy. 60 just west of Dawn already is decorated for any trick-or-treaters who might venture nearby. A moon rises in a tree, a witch hovers nearby and a giant black cat watches passing traffic.

Trees available for windbreaks

By SHELLEY ABENDSCHAN
Special to The Brand

Windbreaks are keeping conservation in sight on the Texas High Plains; a look that benefits the land and Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District.

"The more we can make conservation visible, the better our job is," said James E. Crownover, district conservationist of the Natural Resources Conservation Service in Hereford. "A lot of people don't pay a lot of attention to some of our other agronomic practices simply because they don't show up very much. But your (West Texas Nursery) trees are highly visible."

Since the late 1970s, Tierra Blanca SWCD has sold to its producers evergreen and deciduous trees and shrubs for windbreaks. On an average, the SWCD sells 3,500 to 4,000 seedlings to 35 to 50 customers in Dear Smith County, according to Toddy Flippo, who has been the district secretary for 11 years. "Many are repeat customers," she said. For example, Eldon R. Owens has purchased trees since the program began.

For the SWCD, Flippo said the windbreak program is important because of the money the profits provide for matching funds. Matching funds help the district afford conservation-related activities. But, Flippo added, the trees are beautiful and the SWCD wants to get as many planted in the county as possible.

"Our main goal is to treat the most amount of land that we can with varying combinations of conservation practices," Crownover said. Field, feedlot and farm windbreaks are just a couple of the tools Crownover said they use.

"We look at wind erosion and we look at the quality of life in the Panhandle here," he said. "We like to make the land look a little better, produce a little wildlife habitat and reduce a little wind erosion at the same time."

While homestead windbreaks are the main thrust in Deaf Smith County, Flippo said the district is working to derive windbreak interest among the county's 25-plus feedyards.

"We contacted all of the feedlots," Flippo said. "We told them we would help them with windbreaks, or drip irrigation, just to keep down the dust." Several feedlots responded and bought trees, she said. Others, such as Great Plains Cattle Feeder, northwest of Hereford, have been purchasing the windbreak seedlings every year since the early to mid-1990s to plant near its cattle pens and staff recreation area and homes.

Though the windbreak trees sold by Tierra Blanca SWCD are only 20-30 inches tall when first planted, they are growing up to a living example of conservation in Deaf Smith County. Windbreak seedlings for the 1998 planting season are available for order. For more information, contact Tierra Blanca SWCD at 364-6995.

Rail car shortage worries farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bumper harvests in several farm states have forced elevators to dump grain on the ground, and now a rail car shortage is keeping it there.

Blaming the problem on Union Pacific Railroad's merger with Southern Pacific, Midwestern lawmakers are asking federal officials for priority status for their states' elevators and export stations to allow shipments to port facilities.

"Grain cars are not being delivered, locomotives are in short supply and grain is stuck in various bottlenecks," Kansas Sen. Pat Roberts and Rep. Jerry Moran wrote the U.S. Surface Transportation Board.

"Kansas had a record wheat harvest of 506 million bushels, and 366 million bushels of corn," the lawmakers wrote. "These financial windfalls shrink daily because of the inability to move grain on Union Pacific lines."

Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., has also appealed to the agency, saying the backlog is "especially troubling since the harvest season has barely begun."

Union Pacific has been experiencing severe growing pains in its year-old merger with Southern Pacific, failing to deliver a variety of goods on time.

Southern Pacific had a reputation for less than perfect service and the effort to combine the two giant systems has not eased the situation.

In Missouri, corn farmers are facing a loss of at least $20 million, not including the cost of terminals and elevators dropping cash bids to discourage delivery, the state growers' association said.

Corn is being stored on the ground in Kansas and Nebraska, and next hit will be Missouri, Iowa and Illinois, said Gary Marshall, executive director of the Missouri Corn Growers Association. Farmers nationwide are expected to harvest record soybean and corn crops.

Surface Transportation Board officials have scheduled a public hearing on rail issues for Monday. Agriculture and grain groups from California, Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota and Oklahoma are expected to testify.

Marshall said the crisis was driven by the railroad merger. The Union Pacific merger, coupled with the 1995 merger of Burlington Northern-Santa Fe, gives the two companies control of 90 percent of freight west of the Mississippi River.

COLUMBIA CONSIDERING NAME CHANGE

DALLAS - A massive government investigation into the business practices of Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corp. has prompted the company to consider changing its corporate name, officials say.

"I doubt that, long-term, the Columbia name will be the name of this company," said senior vice president Victor Campbell. He was in Dallas with chairman and chief executive officer Thomas Frist Jr. for speaking engagements and to meet employees at two local hospitals.

Analysts have said Columbia's name has been harmed beyond repair by federal and state investigations into allegations that the company overbilled Medicare.

Columbia has previously denied that a corporate name change was in the works.

Dr. Frist said he wants to decentralize marketing and identity decisions, and he recently gave Columbia's 345 hospitals permission to change their names with local division approval. Soon after Dr. Frist was appointed in July, he abandoned a $100 million campaign to promote the Columbia brand.

EX-CONTRACTS MANAGER ADMITS DEFRAUDING NASA

HOUSTON - A former Lockheed Engineering and Sciences Co. executive in charge of $2.6 billion worth of NASA contracts has pleaded guilty to charges of defrauding the agency of more than $300,000.

John Joseph McGurr, a Lockheed retiree, was accused of using a series of shell companies to hide theft at the Johnson Space Center and Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland.

U.S. District Judge Jim Lake will sentence McGurr in January. He faces more than 20 years in prison and fines of more than $1 million.

The charges in the June indictment stem from subcontracts McGurr supervised from 1989 through 1994.

ROT FUGITIVE TALKS ABOUT LIFE ON LAM

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Richard Keyes really had no plan as he spent months on the run following the Republic of Texas militia standoff.

But the skills he had learned playing in the woods as a child proved invaluable to him as he escaped from an area authorities believed no one could get out of alive, and eluded searchers for four months.

"I really had no idea what I was going to do," Keyes told The Kansas City Star in an interview published Saturday. "Nowhere to go. I had to do something. I was hoping that I would be rescued by somebody."

The St. Marys native was the only member of the Republic of Texas militia group to escape following the siege, that began after Keyes allegedly helped other members take two people hostage April 27.

Clintons join to promote mammograms

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton was joined by his wife today on his weekly radio broadcast to stress the importance of mammograms in detecting breast cancer, a disease that took his mother three years ago.

Clinton said he has made fighting breast cancer a priority since taking office. Funding for research, prevention and treatment has nearly doubled under his administration and the recent discovery of two breast cancer genes hold great promise for finding a cure, he said.

"Until that day, we know that early detection is the most potent weapon we possess in our battle against breast cancer," the president said. "And we know that mammography is the best way to detect breast cancer so that it can be treated before it's too late."

Hillary Rodham Clinton lauded the ongoing work of National Mammography Campaign, which was launched three years ago to increase public awareness about the issue through public service announcements and partnerships with the private sector.

"Mammography can mean the difference between life and death for millions of women," the first lady said. "Yet, I know from my conversations with women around the country, particularly older women, that far too many think they don't need mammograms because they are past their childbearing years."

Others still do not know their health insurance and Medicare cover the test, she said.

Both of the Clintons said the success of the campaign depends on its ability to reach as many women as possible.

"High-quality mammograms can detect the vast majority of breast tumors and, when followed by prompt treatment, can reduce the risk of death by as much as 30 percent," the president said. "Women need and deserve that security."

Clinton pointed to new regulations by the Food and Drug Administration he said "will ensure medical facilities, health providers and detection equipment are all held to the highest possible standards ...."

President makes orchestra 'debut'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton tested the refurbished acoustics of the Kennedy Center Concert Hall by taking to the podium himself and conducting a lively version of "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

It was the second of two encores at the first public performance Friday night by the National Symphony Orchestra after returning from a five-country tour of Europe.

Clinton and his wife, Hillary, heard a two-hour concert that included a Mozart motet and a group of spirituals sung by soprano Kathleen Battle, with the Morgan State University Choir of Baltimore. In the president's box were Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Abe Pollin, owner of the Washington Wizards basketball team and Washington Capitals hockey team, and his wife Irene.

When the program ended, Music Director Leonard Slatkin conducted one encore and then introduced "our new assistant conductor, the president of the United States."

LAWYER WANTS TO KNOW WHO'S SUPPORTING JONES

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Revealing the contributors to Paula Jones' legal fund could reveal motives behind her sexual harassment case against President Clinton, his lawyer argued in calling for the release of the names.

Robert Bennett on Friday asked U.S. District Judge Susan Webber Wright to order the former director of the Paula Jones Legal Fund to turn over donor records.

Bennett argued in court papers that the president has a right to explore Mrs. Jones' motives, particularly whether she is seeking to profit from the civil suit and the publicity surrounding it, or to embarrass and attack the president politically.

Bennett also is seeking information about payouts from the fund, especially whether Mrs. Jones is drawing expenses and having other fees paid by contributors.

RIG COUNT UP IN U.S.

HOUSTON (AP) - The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide jumped by 16 to 1,003 this week, according to Baker Hughes Inc.

There were 853 rigs operating in the United States during the same week last year.

Of the rigs running this week, 602 were exploring for natural gas and 397 for oil. Four were listed as miscellaneous.

Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. The tally peaked at 4,500 in December of 1981 during the oil boom. It dropped to a record low of 596 in the summer of 1993, exceeding the previous low of 663 in 1986.

The rig count represents the number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas.

SERVICE BACK TO NORMAL FOR AMERICAN AIRLINES

FORT WORTH (AP) - It was service as usual Saturday for American Airlines, following a computer glitch that caused systemwide delays.

Officials with Fort Worth-based American are trying to track down what caused a malfunction in the mainframe computer Friday afternoon.

The problem involved an area that operates flight systems, such as calculations for fuel levels, plus takeoff and gate information.

It was trickle-down trouble. Once flights were delayed at busy Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and Chicago O'Hare, it affected the rest of the system.

BENTSEN RANCH TO GO ON AUCTION BLOCK

MISSION - Arrowhead Ranch, the 10,000-acre ranch put together by South Texas Democratic patriarch Lloyd Bentsen Sr., is going on the auction block Nov. 20, Bentsen family members say.

The Lower Rio Grande Valley spread has been known over the years for its family gatherings, Democratic Party strategy sessions and hunting by President Lyndon B. Johnson and Texas Gov. John Connally.

Alabama-based National Auction Group Inc. will offer the property next month to any interested party that submits a certified check for $25,000 to qualify for the auction. Prospective bidders will be given tours of the property.

Donald Bentsen, the rancher's son and brother of former Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen Jr., called the auction a "liquidation" that is the only feasible way to divide his father's property among his heirs. Officials did not estimate Friday how much the auction might bring.

"We've enjoyed it very much," he said of the ranch, "but it's the right thing to do."

Hereford Bull

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if you can smile when everything is going wrong, you're either an optimist or a repairman.

One of the hardest things about the business of life is minding your own.

Monday will be the 300th day of this year, according to my desk calendar. That's just one indication that the Christmas shopping season is upon us.

The annual Retail Merchants "Open House" promotion is a traditional curtain raiser on Yuletide shopping in Hereford. It is scheduled Sunday, Nov. 2, from 1 to 5 p.m. C of C Manager Don Cumpton reports that 21 merchants have already signed up for the event. This is also the date for The Hereford Brand's annual Christmas Shopping Edition.

Other events of the season scheduled in November include the Fun Breakfast, Nov. 12, preceded by the Preview Night on Nov. 11, and the annual Festival of Trees at Hereford Senior Citizen Center, Nov. 19-23. Thanksgiving Day is Nov. 27 this year.

The demise of community newspapers, delivering local news to the readership, has been forecast for more than 200 years, but it's not likely to happen.

First it was radio, then television, then cable was supposed to bring about the end of small newspapers. Videotext on TV screens and low-power television were supposed to make community newspapers obsolete, unneeded and unnecessary.

Big dailies were going to deliver the newspaper daily via text on the TV screen and they were buying cable companies, communications groups and gearing up for the ultimate delivery of the news.

Next came the threat of direct mail, where prophets of doom said they would take all the advertising away and local newspapers would fold up. Then came competition from Uncle Sam as the post office offered "marriage mail" where the postman would deliver two or three inserts for the price of one -- and your mailbox overflows with junk mail.

Now the Internet and E-Mail is supposed to put the whammy on community newspapers. But, they've got a tough row to hoe. In 1996, there were 7,915 weekly newspapers with a combined circulation of 81.6 million. Circulation grew 2.4 percent from the previous year. Last year, advertisers spent $4.57 billion on weekly newspapers, up 7.5 percent from 1995.

Why? A recent national survey found Americans are more interested in local community news than any other kind of news. Newspapers are the primary source of local community news in nearly two-thirds of households where community newspapers are distributed.

And small dailies, such as The Hereford Brand, not only tell you about national and world events, but they tell you about your neighbor down the street, the feats of the athlete next door, or the illness of a friend.

And, for most of us, local news continues to be important.

White House knows how to count

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans were gaining an issue, the White House was getting a political headache, and the outcome was ordained: Congress is going to vote overwhelmingly to overhaul the IRS and rein in the tax collectors.

It didn't take an audit to add up the numbers.

Signing on to the inevitable, President Clinton may have blunted the GOP campaign preview that portrayed him as the defender of the government's most unpopular agency, and cast them as the friends of the taxpayer.

None of it is that simple, but that's the way it was playing before the administration scrapped its bill for modest changes at the IRS and endorsed the will-pass measure for a far more drastic overhaul.

And while the political case is Republican, the case for IRS overhaul has Democratic sponsors, too - Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska co-sponsored it and Rep. Dick Gephardt of Missouri, the House minority leader, endorsed it shortly before the White House came around.

It's been less than a month since embittered, wronged taxpayers told the Senate Finance Committee of their woes, and IRS agents testified off-camera, in theatrically disguised voices, about the excesses of their agency. Those three days of televised hearings dramatized a case the Republicans already were pressing. And the bill to change the IRS rolled off the sidetrack and became a streamliner.

House GOP leaders already had it on the agenda for action this year. The Ways and Means Committee approved the measure on Wednesday, 33-4. The dissenters were Democrats.

In the Senate, the IRS issue this fall may center on questioning and confirming a new commissioner, Charles O. Rossotti, a technology executive, to manage an agency more often run by tax attorneys. He is on Republican notice that he will have to display a powerful commitment to IRS reform to get Senate approval.

While the IRS overhaul bill probably could be passed there, too, Sen. William V. Roth, chairman of the Finance Committee, said he'd call hearings but wait until next year for action.

That would reserve another round on the issue for the beginning of the congressional election campaign season.

The bill creates an 11-member board, including eight people from outside government, to oversee the agency; in a compromise with the administration, presidents will continue to choose IRS commissioners instead of yielding that power to the oversight panel.

The measure also guarantees new taxpayer rights and, in some cases, will shift the burden of proof in tax

The Real World

By Dianna F. Dandridge

I read an article earlier this week that really made me want to have a pity party for the individuals who participated in the interviews.

The article dealt with men who have taken on the responsibility of their children and put the needs of the children above the calling of their own careers.

For the most part I truly applaud the efforts of men who think and act in a "family first" manner. After all, they helped create the children.

The ones for whom I want to throw a pity party are the ones who are just now discovering the discriminatory practices which for too long have been foisted onto the women's shoulders.

Speaking as single mom - by force, not choice - making babies takes two and raising babies takes at least that many.

For nearly eight years, I have taken on the role of sole support of my family. Believe it or not, even with a son with a cleft lip, as well as my two daughters, I haven't lost much time on the job, nor have my children suffered from lack of parental care.

Granted, I am sure I have been passed over for promotions for the same reasons single dads are now feeling the bite.

Guys, welcome to the club. It's called parenthood. Not fatherhood, not motherhood, but parenthood.

It seems to me that for too long, our society has accepted the fact that some men were going to either mistreat or abandon their families. (Not that some women don't as well. It's just more common for men.)

Probably everyone today knows at least one family which is supported either solely or primarily on Mom's wages. In this same group, most everyone probably knows of a family where the traditional breadwinner (dear old Dad) just can't seem to hold a job - he's hurt, he's sick, the boss didn't like him from the beginning, the wages and the benefits weren't worth the hassle.

Now as more and more men are taking on the roles of single parenthood, they seem to want some sort of sympathy.

Sympathy for what? For doing the same things women have been doing for untold years? Get real.

Even in traditional two-parent families, Mom still gets most of the calls from the schools, sits in on most Little League games, takes the kids to appointments, gets supper on the table, a load of laundry going, runs the vacuum and holds down a job.

Now men are lamenting the fact they don't get the pay raises and promotions because they have taken on these responsibilities.

Maybe since this form of discrimination has started to affect men, something will change.

Personally, I would love to see the day when single parents actually get paid for what they do at home as well as on the job.

disputes from the individual to the agency.

A congressional commission on the IRS made the recommendations behind the bill three months ago; the administration rejected its proposals, arguing that to empower an outside board to supervise the IRS would invite conflicts of interest. The administration set up a board of senior federal officials to advise and seek to improve IRS operations and management.

Even after the Senate hearings that started the bill rolling, the White House held to that line. Until Tuesday, when Secretary of the Treasury Robert E. Rubin went to the Capitol and changed course.

He said the would support the bill because of changes negotiated during the past week. While he said the administration would like other revisions, he wasn't insisting. "We would sign this bill as currently drafted," he said.

Rep. Charles B. Rangel, the New York Democrat who sponsored the rival administration bill and now has signed on to the Ways and Means measure, told why.

"One of the chief assets that a legislator and certainly the secretary of the Treasury should have is to be able to count, and I think the secretary has counted," Rangel said. "He knows that the Congress is going to move."

Clinton knows it, too. He also knows how to adapt to what's coming.

In this case, it will be the most sweeping IRS reforms in 45 years, not on his terms but ultimately, under his signature.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 30 years.

Well, did these people get the jobs?

A good friend of mine is a literary agent in New York City. In his spare time - which, judging from the number of e-mailings I receive from him, is considerable - he finds oddities to share with his friends.

Sometimes he will send along a page or two of jokes, or stupid headlines that have appeared in newspapers. But the most recent e-mailing was excerpts from actual resumes and/or cover letters, something that he entitled "I don't knead spel check."

Again, these are excerpts from actual resumes or cover letters:

- "I demand a salary commiserate with my extensive experience."
- "I have lurnt World Perfect 6.0 computer and spreadsheet programs."
- "Received a plague for salesperson of the year."
- "Reason for leaving last job: maturity leave."
- "Wholly responsible for two (2) failed financial institutions."
- "Failed bar exam with relatively high grades."
- "It's best for employers that I not work with people."
- "Let's me so you can 'ooh' and 'aah' over my experience."
- "You will want me to be Head Honcho in no time."
- "I am a perfectionist and rarely if ever forget details."
- "I was working for my mom until she decided to move."
- "Marital status: Sng-Unmarried. Uninvolved. No commitments."
- "I have an excellent track record, although I am not a horse."
- "I have become completely paranoid, trusting completely no one and absolutely nothing."
- "My goal is to become a meteorologist. But since I possess no training in meteorology, I suppose I should try stock brokerage."
- "I procrastinate, especially when the task is unpleasant."
- "As indicted, I have over five years of analyzing investments."

Reflections

By Don Cooper

- "Personal interests: donating blood. Fourteen gallons so far."
- "Instrumental in ruining entire operation for a Midwest chain store."
- "Marital status: often. Children: various."
- "Finished eighth in my class of ten."
- "Reason for leaving last job: they insisted that all employees get to work by 8:45 every morning. I could not work under those conditions."
- "The company made me a scapegoat, just like my previous three employers."
- "I am loyal to my employer at all costs. ... Please feel free to respond to my resume on my office voice mail."
- "Note: please do not misconstrue my 14 jobs as job-hopping. I have never quit a job."
- "References: None. I've left a path of destruction behind me."

What Others are Saying

By The Associated Press
Here are excerpts from editorials in newspapers in the United States and abroad:

The Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, on 'fast-track' worries:

House Speaker Newt Gingrich has challenged President Clinton to work for passage of enhanced presidential authority to negotiate trade and investment agreements with other nations.

Gingrich has deftly assessed deteriorating political support for the "fast-track" idea. If Clinton wants authority to negotiate better trade terms with other countries, he'd better help free-trade Republicans and Democrats in this debate. Otherwise, fast-track may be doomed.

Some voices we respect make a strong case that would be just fine, but the nation needs an honest debate about any decision restricting U.S. involvement in the rapidly growing economies of Latin America. ...

Many supporters of more open trade are dubious about giving Bill Clinton such unfettered power. The Oklahoman shares those concerns, but we still believe a serious debate on trade issues is needed. Too many provisions linking trade and nontrade issues could weaken world trade, dampening exports and hurting our economy. ...

The Daily Times, Farmington, N.M., on campaign fund raising:

How much should it cost to elect candidates to office?

The inflation connected to campaign fund raising has brought a crisis to American politics. A crisis every bit as serious as earlier threats to the republic and democracy, including the Civil War, or the Great Depression.

Readers may think that an overstatement, but it is the nature of crisis to go unrecognized until conditions become so severe as to bring about a threat of permanent irrevocable change.

Without our quite realizing it, the electoral process in this nation has become a money contest well beyond whatever limits we have tried to impose on campaign fund raising. ...

Until we choose leaders with the inner courage and character to resist the tremendous pressures associated with elective office and limitless campaign fund-raising, the situation is unlikely to change. We will continue to hear how the "other" party is to blame and is blocking reform efforts. ...

We have a serious crisis on our hands, and the solution will only be found when common folks - average voters - become fully convinced of the dangers the nation faces due to the expense of gaining elective office. This may be the crisis of our times.

Times-West Virginian, Fairmont, on death of John Denver:

While the nation's music lovers mourn the death of popular singer-song writer John Denver, West Virginians have a special reason to be saddened.

It is probably correct to say that Denver was the author of West Virginia's own "national anthem." His "Take Me Home, Country Roads" has certainly been West Virginia's unofficial state song since the country music entertainer introduced it back in the 1970s. He called us "Almost Heaven" and became our adopted son.

The Oregonian, Portland, on James A. Michener:

Of all James Michener's stories, his own life was among the most remarkable.

Michener, who died Oct. 16 at age 90, never knew his birth parents, was raised in poverty by an adoptive mother and became in mid-life one of the world's best-known and most successful novelists. His own memories of privation and gratitude for the help he received in gaining a first-class education made him an unabashed liberal supporter of government assistance to the less fortunate and an active philanthropist. ...

He maintained control of his life to its very end, deciding last week to end the kidney dialysis that had kept him alive for many years. ...

Over the last 50 years, since "Tales of the South Pacific" won a Pulitzer Prize and spurred a hit musical and movie, Michener wrote a remarkable number of books. ...

Trained as an educator as much as a writer, he helped educate generations of readers in the complexities of history. One of the important themes of Michener's writing was his opposition to racial and ethnic bias and he was sensitive, at a time when it wasn't necessarily the norm, to the destruction of native cultures when Europeans arrived. ...

The Post and Courier, Charleston, S.C., on President Clinton and IRS:

President Clinton's new ideas for improving management and reducing abuses at the Internal Revenue Service amount to half measures at best. They should be rejected in favor of the competing approach put forward earlier this year by a bipartisan congressional commission.

IRS reform has become a central political issue since ... Senate hearings on IRS abuses. The White House, the administration of the nation's tax system. ...

The Columbus Dispatch, on 25th anniversary of Clean Water Act:

Air and water are the two most important elements for survival. But almost every human activity dirties one or the other or both to some degree.

For the foreseeable future, the necessity of meeting today's needs will conflict with the goal of preparing for tomorrow's demands. This is clear from any analysis of the impact of the nation's Clean Water Act, which marked its 25th anniversary on Saturday.

Many improvements in Ohio's waterways were triggered by that landmark legislation. Nevertheless, the law's key goal, "to restore and maintain the chemical, physical and biological integrity of the nation's waters," remains out of reach.

In the Clean Water Act's second quarter-century, precise measurements of water quality, the costs of further improvements and careful estimates of economic impact - positive and negative - should guide all pollution-control efforts.

The Bellingham (Wash.) Herald,

on Pete Rose:

Let him in, for Pete's sake. Pete Rose, arguably the best all-around baseball player ever, deserves to be enshrined in the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Keeping him out because he allegedly bet on baseball and served jail time for income-tax evasion is itself a crime.

Not to mention hypocritical. Cooperstown is filled with players of questionable character. ...

The pro football and basketball halls of fame have similarly opened their doors to reprobates. ...

But halls of fame weren't designed to reward good citizenship. Their purpose is to recognize the accomplishments of sports' best players. ...

Rose has paid the price for his mistakes.

His continued banishment from active participation in professional baseball is justified. His exclusion from the Hall of Fame isn't.

Baseball should enshrine "Charlie Hustle" as soon as possible. For Pete's sake. And ours.

Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, on U.S. Justice department action against Microsoft:

Bill Gates has shown that it is possible to control a market and set the technical standards. That's why he poses such a threat. But official intervention can only be an emergency measure. Only competition itself can save a market. Recall that the liberalization of the long locked-up telephone market was only decided by the introduction of cellular phones.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We would like to correct and supplement some of the information regarding salmonella infections which appeared in Oct. 14 issue of The Hereford Brand.

Most diarrhea is not bacterial, but viral and does not require antibiotic therapy. Diarrhea proved by culture to be due to salmonella, other than typhoid, should not be treated with antibiotics unless the child is very ill, less than three months old, immunocompromised, or has evidence of spread outside the colon. Antibiotic therapy does not shorten the duration of the disease and can prolong the carrier state.

Our records show there have only been six positive cultures for salmonella at Hereford Regional Medical Center in the last 12 months. We are all grieved by the death of a child and feel it is important that the community have the above information.

Help arriving for the small investor

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK - With markets volatile and likely to continue so, it's about time small investors learn the fundamentals of the securities in which they've invested so much of their assets.

These are the same folks, after all, who wouldn't buy a refrigerator without checking out the various models and dealers and seeking the advice of their friends.

The dollar assets involved are in the trillions, and represent the entire financial holdings of many people. Yet, some can't even name the stocks held by their mutual funds or cite the fund's performance record.

Blame it on the individual? Of course. Primary responsibility resides with the individual, regardless of efforts to rewrite the rules.

Blame it on education? To an extent, because personal finance courses are glaringly absent from curricula of most primary and secondary schools, and may be taught at all only because of individual teacher effort.

Blame the securities industry? No question. Yes, it has made efforts to educate, and it has succeeded to some degree, but its emphasis is self-serving and almost invariably subordinated to the selling of the product.

The media? It must share blame. Some have made an effort and some have succeeded, but the majority of investing information, even on public radio and TV, is biased right at the source: It originates with sellers.

In short, the information most available to the ordinary investor is hardly impartial and disinterested, and even then a good deal of it is not absorbed because there is no base of understanding.

But help is here.

The National Association of Investors Corp., and its educational affiliate, the Investment Education Institute, have published "Investing For Life," a stunningly handsome, basic guide to investments and finance. It costs $30 for members, $40 for nonmembers.

Never mind that it is a primer, that it proceeds in simple (but profound) steps, and that it is aimed at teen-agers - it's for everyone with a nickel who hopes to grow it to a dollar. It shows you how.

Tom O'Hara, NAIC chairman, recalls telling a young man that if he invested $25 a month in sound stocks he could become a millionaire. Forty years later the man showed him a $1.3 million portfolio.

That's not unusual. Many club members seek stocks that - dividends and appreciation combined - will double every five years. Using the methods described in the book, older club members have built fortunes.

The beauty of the NAIC guide is that it begins at the proper place, not with which stocks to consider, but with setting goals and plans and managing money. That is, it begins with the little appreciated basics.

Nevertheless, the easy steps climb toward the goal of all investors, which is an understanding of the market and the intelligent analysis of companies in which to entrust investment funds. Step by step, none missed.

Appropriately enough, the Boys Scouts and Girl Scouts also are coming to the aid of the marketplace, with assistance from the National Endowment for Financial Education, a Denver-based nonprofit.

Earlier this year, the National Endowment helped the Boys Scouts of America create a revised merit badge pamphlet that includes topics such as investment types and risks, personal budgets and financial institutions.

For the Girl Scouts of the United States of America, the National Endowment helped create "Girl Scouts Money Smarts," a guide for each Cadette and Senior Girl Scout troop to encourage work on personal finance projects.

A little too late to begin understanding the fundamentals? It's never too late. And never too early either. In fact, as the Scouts might say, it's your duty.

The NAIC guide can be ordered by calling (248) 583-6242.

Chiropractic Effective for Cervicogenic Headache

A study recently published in the Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics (JMPT), demonstrates that "spinal manipulation has a significant positive effect in cases of cervicogenic headache."

The study compared 53 subjects who had cervicogenic headaches in accordance with the standards of the International Headache Society. Approximately half of the group (on a randomized basis) received chiropractic manipulation, the other group (soft tissue) received low-level laser and deep friction massage. The care was given in six sessions over three weeks. Each subject was examined prior to treatment and at the five week mark. The analysis of the data was completed by a blinded observer.

While both groups improved with care, the improvement of the soft tissue group was only statistically significant for the number of headache hours per day. The manipulation group's improvements were statistically significant for all three measurement criteria:

- decreased their analgesic use by 36%;
- decreased their headache hours by 69%;
- decreased their headache intensity by 36%.

Comment: Cervical headaches are associated with movement abnormalities in cervical intervertebral segments. The disorder may be located in the joints or ligaments. The abnormal movement may occur in any component of intervertebral movement, and is manifest during either active or passive examination of the movement.

Names in the News

JANET LEIGH

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The shower curtain parts. The knife descends. The blood swirls down the drain.

That scary scene in "Psycho" left Alfred Hitchcock's leading lady, Janet Leigh, a bath enthusiast for life.

"I suddenly said to myself, 'My God, we're so vulnerable and defenseless in the shower,'" the 70-year-old actress said Thursday. "You can't hear because the water's running. You can't see. You're there and you're easy picking."

Leigh, in town for a screening of "Psycho," hasn't taken a shower since madman Norman Bates (Anthony Perkins) attacked her 37 years ago.

Miss Leigh's oldest daughter, Kelly Curtis, refuses to watch the scene. Her youngest daughter, Jamie Lee Curtis, apparently got over it; she starred in "Halloween" and other fright movies.

JOHN F. KENNEDY

NEW YORK (AP) - How did the hunk hurt his hand?

NOT fighting with his wife, a friend of John F. Kennedy Jr. told the New York Post.

Contrary to tabloid reports, Kennedy cut his right hand doing the dishes, said the friend, who wasn't identified in Wednesday's newspaper.

"He's telling family and friends what really happened because the whole thing - you should excuse the phrase - has gotten out of hand," the friend said.

Kennedy and wife Carolyn Bessette were sharing a quiet dinner at home before he left on a week-long trip to India earlier this month. He cut his hand while cleaning the dishes after dinner.

He wrapped the wound himself and left for India the next day without seeking treatment. The hand began bothering him during the trip and he underwent minor nerve surgery when he got home. He is expected to make a full recovery.

Demos hit up Gingrich

WASHINGTON (AP) - The four-page letter signed by President Clinton came addressed to "Newt Gingrich/U.S. Senate" and asked for a contribution to the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

"I'm proud of the role the Democratic Party has played in bringing about all this good news for America," said the letter received this week at the House speaker's office. "You should be proud, too."

The Republican from Georgia was not persuaded by the presidential plea, spokesman Andrew Weinstein said with a laugh.

"In an ongoing quest to shake down anyone with a wallet, the Clinton-Gore campaign has already worked its way through foreign nationals, Buddhist nuns and impoverished tribes," Weinstein said. "I guess Republican leaders were next on the list."

Even White House officials got a kick over the mailing miscue. Spokesman Joe Lockhart said Gingrich "is obviously not a high priority on the donors list."

Southern Africa ready for El Nino

WASHINGTON (AP) - Below normal rains are forecast for southern Africa because of the weather-altering phenomenon called El Nino, but preventive measures should make the impact less severe than five years ago, U.S. officials said Friday.

The lives of up to 25 million southern Africans were at risk in 1991-92 because of El Nino, and only a massive infusion of outside aid, including $800 million from the United States, staved off disaster, the officials said.

Since last spring, when computerized forecasts began picking up signs that a new El Nino was on the way, southern African governments have been making drought preparations.

"Governments are aware of the problem," said Gary Eilerts, a food security specialist at the Agency for International Development. "Governments are holding on to their grain supplies."

In addition, he said, there is improved communications and increased use of drought-resistant crops compared with 1991-92 when parched conditions cost southern Africa an estimated $7 billion.

"We've learned so much since then," Eilerts told a news briefing. "It's a whole new ball game." As a result, he and other AID officials said, a large-scale aid program is not expected to be required.

According to projections, South Africa, Swaziland, Lesotho and southern Mozambique are expected to have below normal rainfall between December and March.

Inside Politics

By Tom Raum

Politics puts items in the '98 session

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some big-ticket items of the current session of Congress, such as campaign finance legislation and the tobacco settlement, are destined to become holdover issues for 1998. Politics is a prime reason why they won't be finished this year.

Politics is also a reason why one late-blooming item - overhauling the Internal Revenue Service - has suddenly moved front and center on both parties' agendas.

"We want to achieve results, not political theater," White House spokesman Mike McCurry asserted Tuesday as Democrats moved to join what had largely been a GOP bandwagon.

With the administration's embrace of a politically appealing proposal for a new private-sector board to oversee the IRS, congressional enactment of such legislation - possibly this fall or early next year - now seems inescapable.

But leftovers will include some big issues, including Congress' response to President Clinton's veto of legislation banning a certain type of late-term abortion. Fast-track trade authority could fall by the wayside as well. There's just too much politics involved for all of these issues to be dealt with in the remaining two or three weeks of the current session.

Now that spending bills to keep the government running in the new fiscal year are making it to the White House, members are talking about calling it quits by Nov. 7 or not long thereafter, for an early slide into the 1998 campaign year.

There's a lot to be said for Congress not stepping on its own twin accomplishments this year - historic legislation to balance the federal budget by 2002 and the biggest tax cut since 1981.

"They're drifting now. There's no imperative to get something done," said James Thurber, a political scientist at American University.

Senate Democratic leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota listed the topics he sees in the remaining weeks: the spending bills, a big highway authorization bill, the fast-track trade legislation, campaign-finance and dozens of languishing Clinton judicial nominations.

But, he told reporters, "at this point, I'd say that it's unclear how we will resolve any of them."

The administration and Democratic leaders still talk about moving campaign-finance reform and "fast track," which expands the president's authority to negotiate free-trade deals.

But supporters of campaign-finance overhaul have been unable to produce the 60 votes needed to overcome a filibuster. Furthermore, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., has used parliamentary moves to make it unlikely it can be attached to other pieces of legislation.

In the House, leaders so far have refused to bring the legislation to the floor.

On fast track, few Democrats support the agreement in the House, and GOP leaders are refusing to bring it to the floor without more Democratic backing.

House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., in fact, is using the measure as one of the high-profile issues on which he differs from Vice President Al Gore, his expected 2000 presidential rival.

To be sure, major fights still loom between the GOP-led Congress and the White House on the remaining spending bills.

One is brewing over Clinton's proposal for national educational testing and another one over methods to be used in conducting the 2000 census.

These and other spending fights "are very difficult," House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, told reporters Tuesday. "And you can get stuck."

But he made it clear he didn't expect to "get stuck" over fast track, campaign finance or any other items on the Democratic agenda.

Joining these earlier hot issues is the relatively new imperative to revamp the IRS - a drive given life by last month's vivid Senate Finance Committee hearings on IRS abuses.

House leaders predict action by year's end. Timing of Senate action on a counterpart proposal by Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr., was less clear.

But the administration's support for the effort - after key sponsors agreed that the IRS commissioner would remain a presidential nominee - could launch the IRS bill onto its own fast track.

It was also a nod to political reality. Overhauling the IRS had become the Republicans' best midterm issue.

And Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin's announcement of administration support on Tuesday came just after another influential Democrat - Gephardt - had jumped on the bandwagon himself.

Moses: Don't tempt the students

AUSTIN (AP) - School districts should make sure they don't tempt students to take "cream-puff" courses in the wake of a law requiring Texas public universities to automatically admit the top 10 percent of high school graduating classes, Education Commissioner Mike Moses said Friday.

Moses said he believes most school districts already give heavier weight to more rigorous courses in determining class rank.

"What I heard was a concern about students that would take ... cream-puff courses, thinking they would be able to move into the top 10 percent, while other students who would take AP (advanced placement) courses and more rigorous courses would not be recognized or rewarded," he said after testifying to the House Higher Education Committee.

"I think school districts are going to need to take a look at their policies to make sure they have some ... weighted grade points in place for those courses. Most already do, but I think that if they don't, they're going to need to do that."

Rep. Carlos Uresti, D-San Antonio, said the committee also has heard concerns that students would transfer from one school to another seeking to make the top 10 percent.

Moses said schools generally require students to attend for a certain length of time to be valedictorian and likely would have a similar requirement for class ranking.

"Should you be able to just move in, say, in March and graduate in May in the top 10 percent? I think you probably shouldn't, but it's up to each local district to say what's the appropriate time for them," he said.

The new law won't guarantee students the ability to stay in college if they aren't academically prepared and can't perform, said Rep. Irma Rangel, the head of the committee and sponsor of the law.

But she said she wants to be sure students are aware that it offers a new opportunity to get into college without having to take entrance exams, for example.

"The intent ... was that we encourage students to try and reach that top 10 percent because we all know that if you're in the top 10 percent, you don't have to take the SAT, you don't have to take the ACT. You are going to be automatically admitted," she said.

Ms. Rangel said education officials should ensure students get the message, which she said she hoped would encourage students to stay in school.

"There is a light out there somewhere that they can reach for," she said.

The measure, which takes effect with the freshman college class of 1998, was prompted by a court case that ended affirmative action in college admissions in Texas.

Moses said the measure might make a difference in the number of students who plan to attend college.

Although high school graduation rates are rising, the percentage of seniors who say they are college bound fell from 71.3 percent in the 1991-92 school year to 65 percent in 1995-96, Moses said. The agency doesn't track students who actually went to college.

The campaign also features another picture of an adult Howard, director of films such as "Apollo 13," "Cocoon" and "Backdraft."

Drought causes harvest failures

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) - The worst drought in half a century has devastated crop harvests by as much as 40 percent, the government said as a choking smoke haze from wildfires worsened over much of Indonesia.

Officials had earlier warned of rice harvest failures in some drought-ravaged areas. Food shortages and disease triggered by drought have been blamed for the deaths of about 500 people in Irian Jaya province, the remote western half of New Guinea.

Agriculture Minister Syarifuddin Baharsyah said coffee production had dropped by about 40 percent, while tea and palm oil harvests were 30 percent below normal.

Quayle criticizes Gore over 'Ellen'

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - In what may be a preview of presidential election campaigning, former Vice President Dan Quayle accused the man who replaced him of "pandering" to homosexuals.

Quayle was referring to a comment by Vice President Al Gore in a speech to the Hollywood Radio and Television Society last week.

Television can "open hearts and minds," Gore said, citing as an example the episode of "Ellen" in which the title character acknowledged to herself and her friends that she is a lesbian.

"When the character Ellen came out, millions of Americans were forced to look at sexual orientation in a more open light," the vice president said.

In an interview with The Union Leader of Manchester, Quayle said, "I think it is wonderful, him pandering to that constituency. Here is the person holding the second highest office in the world talking about a lifestyle such as that in such glowing terms."

Quayle had previously issued a statement criticizing Gore's remark,

IN BRIEF

Frosh double Dumas

From staff reports
Travis Nash connected with Slade Hodges on a pair of touchdown passes to lead the Hereford past Dumas 28-14 in a freshman game Thursday at Whiteface Field.

The duo got the Whitefaces on the scoreboard in the first quarter, hooking up from 45 yards. They again connected in the second quarter, this time from 20 yards.

Gilbert Hernandez scored on a seven-yard run in the third quarter. Hereford added 10 points in the fourth quarter, tallying on a 26-yard field goal by J.P. Holman and a 57-yard touchdown run by Joe Mendoza.

Jeremy Gonzalez got the only interception for the Whitefaces. "We came out flat in the first half," said coach James Salinas. "Dumas has got a good ball club. In the second half, we got our motor running and played a lot better. We made the plays when we had to."

Waldorf leads Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP)--On a day when the wind howled and scores soared, Duffy Waldorf may have been the most surprised golfer in the Las Vegas Invitational.

Make that pleasantly surprised, after a 3-under 69 Friday left Waldorf with a four-shot lead after three rounds of a tournament suddenly turned tippy-turvy by wind gusting to 45 mph that caused scores to balloon.

Playing away from scoreboards and on the Desert Inn Country Club course, the most sheltered of the three courses used in the tournament, Waldorf shot six strokes worse than he did a day earlier. It was still enough to vault him from a tie for the lead to a four-shot margin over Billy Mayfair. Fred Couples was tied with Kevin Sutherland another shot back.

Albert sentenced

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) -- Marv Albert was spared a jail sentence Friday after a grudging courtroom apology to the woman he bit during a sexual romp.

"I'm sorry if she felt she was harmed," the former NBC sportscaster said during sentencing in which he could have gotten a year in jail. Instead, his criminal record will be erased if he stays out of trouble for a year.

Gonzalez may be on trading block

FORT WORTH (AP) -- The New York Mets are interested in Texas outfielder Juan Gonzalez in exchange for a quality starting pitcher like Bobby Jones, Jason Istringhausen or Armando Reynoso, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Friday.

Officials told the newspaper that the Rangers have discussed the possibility of Gonzalez for Jones, outfielder Bernard Gilkey and third baseman Edgardo Alfonzo. The Mets would prefer to trade Gold Glove shortstop Rey Ordenez rather than Alfonzo. The Mets are one of several teams Rangers general manager Doug Melvin says he talked with at the World Series. Melvin confirms Gonzalez's name surfaced, but said, "his name has come up with a lot of clubs." All Melvin's trade talks at the World Series were tentative, he said. Most clubs will probably wait until after the Nov. 18 expansion draft before making major trades, he added. Mets assistant general manager Omar Minaya denied the talks were serious and downplayed the possibility of a trade for the slugger. A Mets spokesman said Friday the team is talking to a lot of clubs and no formal offers have been made. Gonzalez, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1996, missed the first month of the season because of injury.

But the Mets want Gonzalez because All-Star catcher and power hitter Todd Hundley, who had 30 home runs with 86 runs batted in last year, is expected to miss most of the 1998 season after surgery on his elbow. Trade talks began when the Mets inquired about the availability of catcher Jim Leyritz. Despite his injury, Gonzalez hit .296 with 42 home runs and 131 RBI. Officials told the newspaper he is the one player the Rangers could trade and get significant help in return. Melvin returned to Arlington Thursday from Cleveland. But the two sides are expected to talk again during next month's general managers meetings in Phoenix. Starting pitching remains a top Rangers' priority. Jones was 15-9 with 3.63 earned-run average. Istringhausen, one of the Mets' top pitching prospects who has had problems with injuries, was 2-2.

Lufkin knocks off No. 1 John Tyler, 24-14

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer
Just because Tyler John Tyler has lost doesn't necessarily mean District 12-5A will be giving up the No. 1 spot in Class 5A. Tyler's 24-14 loss to Lufkin on Friday night could pave the way for Longview to take over the top spot. The Lobos, 42-3 winners over Nacogdoches, moved into a tie for No. 2 last week and may be ready to move up another notch. However, Longview is tied with Austin Westlake, the reigning 5A Division II champion and a 57-20 winner over Austin Bowie on Friday night. It will be interesting to see which way Associated Press poll voters lean when the new rankings come out Monday. The poll isn't likely to change too much next week as only four ranked teams lost Friday night. Joining John Tyler in defeat were 5A's No. 9 Houston Madison, 14-7 to Houston Lamar, and No. 10 New Braunfels, 17-14 to San Antonio MacArthur; and 4A's No. 8 Brownwood, 31-21 to Stephenville. JT (7-1) took a 7-0 lead on its first drive and seemed ready to hand Lufkin its third straight loss.

But the Panthers, who had been ranked fifth in the state before losing their last two, tied it on their third possession and hung close until going ahead 21-14 on a 15-yard touchdown run by Aaron Morrison with 1:29 left in the third quarter. The Lions' next two possessions ended with fumbles and David Koch kicked an 18-yard field goal to up Longview's lead to 10 points with just 5:25 to play. It proved to be too much even for mighty John Tyler to overcome. "I think they made some plays, but if we don't miscue on some things and go ahead and score points, the outcome could have been a little bit different," said JT coach Allen Wilson. "You can't have turnovers." Longview was nearly flawless in its demolition of Nacogdoches. Fred Talley ran for 219 yards and three touchdowns on 17 carries, just three yards fewer than his previous week's total against Tyler Lee, while the Lobo defense limited the Dragons to 109 yards, with 61 of it coming on one play. Nacogdoches forced Longview to go three-and-out on its first three series, then took a 3-0 lead on Doug we were thankful to just get out of Hereford with the scare of their season. In a game that saw each team fumble the ball away four times and the Hereford defense completely confound Astolfo Venzor and the Demon offense, Dumas was lucky to come away with their undefeated season intact. And Dumas head coach Brent McCallie knew it. "We were lucky," McCallie said. "Hereford did an outstanding job defensively. Their kids played a great game. They played hard and they stuffed us." Dumas is now 7-0 overall, 4-0 in District 1-4A. Hereford falls to 2-7 and 1-4. The Demons came into the contest averaging 267 yards per game

Peete to start against Dallas

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -- Rodney Peete felt the swing of emotions that any first-time father would: the nervousness before birth, the awe during it and the overwhelming sense of responsibility afterward. With that big moment in his life passed, Peete said he's now ready to concentrate on his job of trying to revive the fortunes of the Philadelphia Eagles, starting with their game against NFC East rival Dallas (4-3) Sunday. Peete's wife, actress Holly Robinson Peete, gave birth to twins hours after the quarterack made up for an otherwise bad game by leading the Eagles (3-4) on two late scoring drives in their 13-10 overtime victory over Arizona last week. "Last week was really tough. As hard as I tried to block it out of my mind, I couldn't," Peete said. "I need to play a lot better. It was not a very good game for me." Before setting up the two Chris Boniol field goals that won the game, Peete, making his first start of the season, didn't exactly validate coach Ray Rhodes' decision to bench Ty Detmer. Up until the two scoring drives, Peete was 15-for-24 for 177 yards, fumbled once, was intercepted twice and was sacked three times. He finished the day 23-for-36 for 298 yards. Rhodes was grateful Peete snapped out of it in time against a Cardinals team that knows how to lose. But the three turnovers also reminded Rhodes of Peete's shortcomings. "That's been a problem of Rodney's," Rhodes said. "We've got to clean up the interceptions. We've got to clean up the fumbles. Those are things that we can't allow. Rodney has to protect the football better." The Eagles can't afford many

Vikes, Bucs to battle for NFC Central lead

By The Associated Press
The winner of Sunday's Minnesota-Tampa Bay game will grab sole possession of first place in the NFC Central -- at least for one day. Both teams are tied for first with Green Bay at 5-2. The defending champion Packers play at New England Monday night. The Buccaneers, who haven't made the playoffs since 1982, are looking forward to their showdown against the Vikings at Tampa Bay. "Nobody wants to play the Washington Cupcakes," Bucs defensive tackle Warren Sapp said. "That's no fun. You want to match big man against big man." A victory would give the Bucs their best start ever through eight games. "This is when it gets fun,"

Palestine debacle teaches lesson

When did we become a nation of whiners? It seems if we don't get exactly what we feel we deserve, we whine. We whine if something's not done exactly the way we want it done. We whine about the trivial and about things over which we have no control. We whine about things we get. We whine about things we don't get. We whine about anything. Look at me; I'm whining. I whining about whiners. What brings this to mind is what has happened recently in Palestine. For those who don't know, Palestine football coach Rick Langley suspended three football players for separate rules violations Sept. 30. Nothing really remarkable about that. But what followed is. A group of parents got together and basically said, "You can't do that to my little darling." They whined to school officials. Palestine ISD officials first turned a deaf ear toward the protests from the involved parents. They denied the adults' request for their sons to be reinstated. The Friday following, the parents, not having gotten their way, tried to block the bus from leaving the school parking lot as the team was leaving for a game at Mabank. Five players stayed in the locker room and three others were kept off the bus by their parents. The situation gets a little more interesting. Now with only 25 players on the team, the school board decided it was time to talk about it. And they talked, and talked, and talked. For 12 hours. Their next school board meeting lasted until 6 a.m. They let everyone who wanted to speak do so.

Basically, they decided to reinstate the players. Apparently the whining paid off. Langley then quits as coach and athletic director, feeling his authority had been undermined for doing his job -- following the rules laid out by the school district. What can we learn from this? Well, in Palestine anyway, if you whine long enough and loud enough, you'll get your way. I don't know what the original three players did to warrant their suspensions from the team. But whatever the action was, Langley felt it was in the best interests of the team to suspend those players in accordance with the rules laid down by Palestine ISD. And I'm sure he didn't enjoy doing it.

The message sent by the board when it reversed the suspension was that if you pressure them, they won't follow their own rules. Not a good message to send. We should all be willing to admit this fact -- it is a privilege, not a right to be on a team. If you engage in conduct detrimental to the team, then the coach must be able to deal with those violations as he sees fit. Not as the parents see fit, not as the school board sees fit, but as he sees fit. It's his team; it's his responsibility. I can understand why a parent would not be happy their son was

Kordell, Brunell ready for battle

PITTSBURGH (AP) -- Mark Brunell is one of the quarterbacks Kordell Stewart likes to study, to see how he confuses defenses and turns missed sacks into first downs.

On Sunday, he'll get to watch him up close. And not only will Stewart be looking to emulate Brunell, he'll be trying to beat him.

"He's one of the guys I like to watch ... guys like him and (John) Elway and, of course, Steve Young, guys who like to move around and make things happen," Stewart said. "But I can't go out there trying to outdo him."

Their improvisational styles, scrambling ability and strong arms are so comparable, Kordell and Brunell might be tempted to get into a game-within-a-game of "Can you top this?" when the Jacksonville Jaguars (5-2) and Pittsburgh Steelers (5-2) meet for the AFC Central lead.

"But this is the Steelers vs. the Jaguars, this isn't one individual player competing against another player," Stewart said. "When I'm on the field, he's on the bench. When he's on the field, I'm on the bench. It's not like we're playing against each other."

But who plays better likely will decide the winner. Neither can win the game by himself, but each is very capable of losing it with an interception, a mental error, a misread of the defense.

Brunell outdid Stewart on Sept. 29, when the Jaguars opened up a 17-7 halftime lead before winning 30-21. The game wasn't decided until the Steelers bungled a potential game-winning field goal on the final play.

Playing his first game since badly injuring a knee during the preseason, Brunell was 24-of-42 for 306 yards and a touchdown, including 10 catches for 164 yards by Jimmy Smith.

But Brunell won't see the same Steelers' secondary, and the Steelers may not see the same Brunell, either.

Brunell insists his knee is 95 percent healed, but his statistics say otherwise. He has only one other 200-yard passing game since making his comeback, and he threw for only 153, 164 and 153 yards in his last three games.

Even more telling are his rushing statistics. The quarterback who ran for 883 yards last season has gained only 39 yards on nine attempts this season. His inability to run has had a negative impact on an offense whose only consistent runner, Natrone Means, has been limping on an injured ankle for two weeks.

Stewart, by contrast, has opened up Pittsburgh's offense by running for 222 yards on only 37 carries, including a 74-yard touchdown run.

Their passing statistics are comparable. Brunell is 89-of-150 for 1,018 yards, seven touchdowns and three interceptions; Stewart is 87-of-157 for 1,149 yards, nine touchdowns and eight interceptions.

"I feel just as mobile as I ever have," Brunell said. "I think the only thing is carrying that (knee) brace around, which is not a lot of fun, but I have to keep that on for protection's sake."

Still, if Brunell can't neutralize the blitz by escaping the pressure and running upfield, he will find it much harder to throw consistently against a reconstructed Steelers secondary. Since losing in Jacksonville, Pittsburgh has switched Pro Bowl safety Carnell Lake to cornerback and moved safety Myron Bell into the lineup.

Last month, Brunell did most of his damage against cornerback Randy Fuller, who most often covered Smith. Fuller has a groin injury and probably won't play.

"They have a lot of guys that are very athletic, very physical and smart, regardless of who they put in," Brunell said. "But it's a chance for us to be on top halfway through the season, and I think we can do it."

Central

Tampa Bay coach Tony Dungy said. "The fans are into it."

Tampa Bay, which beat Minnesota 28-14 Sept. 14, can earn a tiebreaker advantage for the playoffs with a sweep of the season series.

"We have to play considerably better than we did last time," Vikings coach Dennis Green said.

Both teams are rested and ready following a bye week.

"We need to make a move now," Sapp said. "We've had a good start; now it's time to run with it these next nine games. It's going to be the telling point of our season. Either you fall apart or you go into the playoffs with momentum."

Tampa Bay won its first five games, then lost its next two.

In other games Sunday, it's Baltimore at Washington, Cincinnati at the New York Giants, Dallas at Philadelphia, Denver at Buffalo, Kansas City at St. Louis, San Francisco at New Orleans, Chicago at Miami, Tennessee at Arizona, Indianapolis at San Diego, Jacksonville at Pittsburgh, Oakland at Seattle, and Atlanta at Carolina. The Detroit Lions and New York Jets are off.

Denver (6-1) will try and rebound from its first loss of the season when it visits Buffalo (4-3). The Broncos lost to the Oakland Raiders 28-25 last week.

"We're still optimistic," Broncos running back Terrell Davis said. "We understand you're going to lose some games throughout a long season. But you go back and see what you did well and what you did wrong. Our mood is still good."

Davis leads the AFC in rushing with 861 yards and is tied for the conference lead with eight touchdowns. One of his best blockers, fullback Howard Griffith, might not play against Buffalo because of a knee injury. But Bills coach Marv Levy remains wary of Denver's ground game.

"An ice cream sundae is great, and the whipped cream makes it better, but you better have the ice cream," Levy said. "Terrell Davis is the ice cream."

Dumas

rushing. Venzor was the second-leading rusher in the state in Class 4A with 1,260 yards.

It was like they ran into a wall. The Whitefaces, playing inspired defense, limited Venzor to just 79 yards on 35 carries and surrendered only 142 yards of total offense to the Demons. And Hereford made them earn every yard.

"It was the best defensive game we've played in six years," Yenzor said. "Maybe longer than that -- since the glory years of the '80s."

McCallie had few good things to say about his offense, which was ranked second in the district. He couldn't say enough good things about the Hereford defense.

"They had a good scheme," McCallie said. "We never did adjust to it. They had a great game plan. You have to give credit to coach Yenzor and his staff, and to their players. We got our butts kicked."

It was a disappointing loss for Hereford, but Yenzor was visibly proud of how the team fought the 10th-ranked Demons.

"Our kids are disappointed," Yenzor said. "But they never gave up; they never quit. They never stopped believing."

He especially commended the defense.

"We love this Arizona 50 defense," Yenzor said. "We're just now starting to implement it the way it needs to be played. . . . (Dumas) hasn't been attacked like that all year. They haven't been hit like that all year."

The Demon offense, averaging 350 yards per game, was able to come up with only one drive on the night. In the fourth quarter, Dumas got their only offensive points of the night on an eight-play, 62-yard drive capped by an eight-yard touchdown pass from Lucas Evenson to split end Kevin Reynolds. Venzor, who had 17 touchdowns entering the game, was shut out, except for an extra point.

suspended. But we have to recognize, barring some sort of personal vendetta by the coach against these players, which I don't believe was the case, these players screwed up.

Someone has to be in charge of the team, and it should be the coach. Whether we like or dislike the decisions he makes, we must respect those decisions.

I applaud Langley's decision to stand up for his principles and to stand up against the whiners. It takes a lot of courage to give up a job you love in order to take a stand.

At some point, we have to realize we cannot have everything our way. The world is not Burger King.

There will always be valid reasons for protest. No one should ever impinge upon the rights of individuals to do so, even if they choose to do it in the form of whining. It is their right.

But we should exercise self-discipline. We need to choose our battles much more carefully, and we need to exercise self-discipline in the way we choose to protest.

We must also realize a football team, or any other team, is different. It is not a democracy. It can't be.

We have to realize the world does not revolve around us and accept the world the way it is.

We have to respect the decisions made by coaches such as Langley. We have to remind ourselves that the team comes first, not just a few players, no matter how important they, or their parents, are.

"Our defense was on the field for practically the whole game," Yenzor said. Time and time again we called upon them. You can't ask anymore out of your defense."

Dumas took a 2-0 lead into the locker room at halftime. The only points scored in the first half came when Hereford quarterback Pedro Hernandez covered a high snap from center in the end zone.

In the first half, Venzor carried the ball 20 times, and gained only 34 yards. It seemed wherever Venzor went, three or four Hereford defensive players went with him.

His longest gain in the first half was only seven yards. The second half wasn't any better. He managed 45 yards on 15 carries with his longest run only 10 yards. Venzor was averaging 7.2 yards per carry entering the game.

"I'm very happy we won the game, especially the way we played offensively, and the way Hereford played defensively," McCallie said. "We did not play well on offense. We didn't play hard and we flat got outplayed."

As good as the Hereford defense was, Dumas was better. The Demons held the Hereford offense to minus-20 total yards for the game.

"We played well defensively," McCallie said. "We've played well defensively all year long."

They needed to. Not only was their offense unable to establish much of anything, Hereford's hard-hitting defense forced the Demon defense to step up big-time.

In the third quarter, they forced the Whitefaces to settle for field goals twice -- once after Hereford took over the ball on the Dumas five-yard-line, the other possession began on the Dumas 15-yard-line.

"Dumas is a great defensive team," Yenzor said. "They certainly deserve to be as proud of their defense as we are of ours. We could not block them.

We tried everything." Hereford got their first field goal after senior Henry Hernandez blocked a punt by the Demons' Joshua Buchanan and recovered it at the Dumas five.

Three plays netted the Whitefaces no yards and Martinez kicked it through from 22 yards out with 7:00 left in the third quarter.

Their second opportunity came when Buchanan fumbled on the ensuing kickoff return with 6:49 remaining in the third quarter. Hereford took over at the Dumas 15 and got to the seven on their first play when the Demons were flagged for defensive holding.

But the next three plays again netted nothing for the Whitefaces. Martinez then kicked his second field goal of the night, this time from 24 yards with 5:19 left in the third quarter.

Hereford took a 6-2 lead in the fourth quarter, but Dumas went back on top 9-6 with 6:24 left in the game on Reynolds' score. They got their final two points when linebacker Carl Clements tackled Miller in the end zone after he fumbled. That was set up by a Buchanan punt that was downed at the Hereford three-yard-line.

Stars blank Blackhawks, 2-0

CHICAGO (AP) -- Ed Belfour shut out his former Chicago teammates for the second time this season, stopping 22 shots in the Dallas Stars' 2-0 victory over the Blackhawks on Friday night.

Belfour, who beat the Blackhawks 7-0 on Oct. 10 at Dallas, returned to United Center for the first time since Chicago traded him to San Jose late last season. He signed with Dallas, a free agent during the offseason.

Belfour has three shutouts this season and 34 in his career.

Joe Nieuwendyk and Pat Verbeek scored goals in a 48-second span late in the third period for the Stars, who snapped a two-game losing streak.

Nieuwendyk scored with 4:33 remaining after Sergei Zubov's slap shot from the left circle was stopped by goalie Chris Terreri. The puck came out to Nieuwendyk, who beat Terreri for the forward's fourth goal of the season.

Verbeek made it 2-0 on a power play with 3:45 remaining, scoring from close range off an assist from Shawn Chambers.

Chicago, 0-for-6 on the power play, dropped to 2-8-0. The Blackhawks, who won their last two games, have been outscored 12-30 this season.

"I didn't expect it. It's nice to know the fans remember me. It was a good feeling at the end of the game," said Belfour, who shut out his former Chicago teammates for the second time this season, stopping 22 shots.

Peete

turnovers, because they're not generating many, with an NFC-low eight. By contrast, Dallas has protected the ball well, with an NFC-low seven giveaways.

The up-and-down Cowboys come in with some confidence after a 26-22 victory over Jacksonville which came a week after the Jaguars mauled the Eagles 38-21.

Coach Barry Switzer insisted he doesn't put much stock in comparing games against mutual opponents, and he shot down a suggestion the Cowboys might finally be coming together.

"You never turn the corner," he said. "Every game is a struggle, and we finally won one."

Dallas beat the Eagles 21-20 in the third week of the season, but only because of yet another gaffe by Philadelphia's terrible special teams.

In front of a Monday night audience, the Eagles drove to the Cowboys 4 with four seconds left to play, then lined up for what should have been the game-winning field goal.

But holder Tommy Hunter bobbled the snap, then tried to run the ball in, only to fumble when being stopped short of the goal line.

"I don't think we gained any confidence from that game," Switzer said.

Lufkin
 Miller's 29-yard field goal with 4:23 left in the first quarter.
 Then Talley had a 95-yard touchdown run early in the second quarter and the rout was on. Another Talley touchdown, this one just from 1 yard out, gave the Lobos a 14-3 halftime lead, then they scored 28 points in the third quarter.
 Westlake also had to erase an early deficit as Bowie led 6-0 and 12-10. The Chaparrals had a big second quarter to go up 37-12 at halftime, and they wound up winning easily behind 494 yards of total offense.
 The Chaps were without leading rusher Brett Robin for the last three quarters because of a bruised ribcage, but Matt Murphy ran for 208 yards and three touchdowns and Brent Chalmers gained 150 rushing yards.
 There was a bit of irony to MacArthur knocking off New Braunfels. The Unicorns had taken the No. 10 spot in part because MacArthur gave it up following a 14-7 loss to San Antonio Madison last weekend.
 But it wasn't easy. MacArthur scored the game-winning points on a 3-yard touchdown pass from Mike Perkins to Jason Washington with 49 seconds left.
 New Braunfels still had time for one last drive, but Kliff Kingsbury was intercepted for the third time in the game. He had been picked off only twice in the first six weeks.
 "You have 39 seconds to go and a quarterback with a great arm and fantastic receivers," MacArthur coach Van Fuschak said. "Anything could have happened."

NBA poised to sign $2B TV deal

NEW YORK (AP) -- Larry Bird and Magic Johnson took the NBA from tape delay to prime time. Michael Jordan is now leading the league into the television sports stratosphere.

The NBA is poised to make more than $2 billion in its new television deal. That is double the revenue from its current contract with NBC and Turner Sports, which expires at the end of this season, and nearly eight times as much as it made during the prime of Johnson and Bird.

The NBA, whose championship was televised on tape delay as recently as 1980, is now the second most sought after television sports franchise, trailing only the NFL.

"You can count on what the NBA will deliver," said Ron Frederick, a media buyer at J. Walter Thompson. "That's why it is so attractive to networks, because it gives advertisers access to young male viewers that aren't as easily accessible in prime time."

That is especially true in June, when the NBA Finals are played. Networks are showing mostly repeats and ratings are traditionally low, making the NBA even more attractive.

Even Jordan's retirement is not scaring off the bidders, despite the fact that ratings fell during his brief attempt at a baseball career.

"I don't believe there will be a precipitous fall in ratings because of one or two individuals," said Kevin O'Malley, head of programming at TNT. "You can't make television deals for billions of dollars based on one player."

Industry sources said that NBC has already offered to pay $1.5 billion over four years, double its current contract. NBC spokesman Ed Markey denies that an offer has been made.

"We're talking," Markey said, "but that's all that is going on at this point."

Industry analysts have speculated that Turner, which pays $350 million over four years, will also double its contract.

"I think NBC and Turner are going to move heaven and earth to renew their agreements and prevent any dilution of the package with another package or lose the negotiating position they have," said Neal Pilson, former president of CBS Sports and now the head of a sports consulting firm in New York.

"To do that, they're probably going to have to make a very significant increase in rights fees, up to 100 percent."

Along with negotiating a new television deal, NBC will welcome a new voice of the NBA on NBC this season. Marv Albert, NBC's lead announcer for seven years, has been fired from the network following his guilty plea to assault charges. NBC, which doesn't broadcast its first game until Christmas Day, is not expected to name Albert's replacement until sometime next month.

Initial speculation on Albert's replacement has focused on Tom Hammond, Greg Gumbel and Mike Breen, who already do NBA play-by-play for NBC, and Dick Enberg and Bob Costas.

The NBA has grown dramatically in popularity under NBC's stewardship. Media watchers said that commissioner David Stern is loyal to NBC Sports president Dick Ebersol and will stay with NBC as long as the network makes a fair market offer.

Also in NBC's favor is that the other three major broadcast networks have filled much of their second-quarter schedule with other sporting events. CBS, which analysts say desperately wants to get back into the professional sports arena, has golf tournaments scheduled for six of the first seven weekends of the NBA playoffs.

Bakst birdies 18th to win U.S. Mid-Amateur title

DALLAS (AP) -- Ken Bakst birdied the 18th hole Friday with a seven-iron shot to within four feet of the cup to defeat Rick Stimmel and win the 1997 U.S. Mid-Amateur championship at the Dallas Athletic Club.

Bakst, 39, of New York rallied from a two-hole deficit at the turn by shooting 4-under par for the last 11 holes. The two golfers came to the last hole tied and both put their drives in the fairway. Bakst went first from 153 yards and knocked his shot four feet below the hole. Stimmel was 25 feet out and when he missed his birdie try, Bakst had only a short tap-in for victory.

"How about that," Bakst said after hugging his caddie, Stimmel and two rules officials. "I just told myself, 'Keep playing, keep making good swings.'"

It was the first national amateur victory for Bakst, a real estate developer, who captained the 1980 Stanford University golf team. He won the Robert T. Jones Memorial Trophy and a likely invitation to play in the 1998 Masters golf tournament in Augusta, Ga.

Stimmel, 30, owns a window cleaning company in his hometown of Allison Park, Pa.

Twins' owner offers $111M to new stadium

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) -- Minnesota Twins owner Carl Pohlad would contribute $111 million cash toward a new baseball stadium, he said today in his first public appearance at the Capitol this year before key lawmakers.

Pohlad said that would bring his contribution to the baseball team to $220 million, a number that includes operating losses since he bought the team in 1984.

"That's a heckuva a lot of money. That's a heckuva a lot of money to put into a baseball team," he said.

The amount was the same number recommended by a legislative task force, which also said the state should come up with $250 million.

Twins president Jerry Bell said the team wanted no user fees or ticket taxes. Those proposals have been the most palatable to lawmakers trying to find a way for the state to help build a ballpark.

"Clearly it affects the ability to contribute up front," Bell said.

The plan would be contingent on the team selling 22,000 season tickets by opening day in 2002 and 10,000 in 1998, Bell said.

In his short statement, Pohlad also spoke from the heart about the team and the World Series wins in 1987 and 1991.

"It is ironic that baseball brought us all together back then and has divided us now," he said.

Pohlad's long-awaited appearance came at the request of legislative leaders who sent him a letter Thursday asking that he speak at a special meeting of the House Rules and Senate Tax committees to discuss the $400 million-plus retractable roof ballpark.

His appearance came on the second day of a special session on the stadium. Lawmakers are expected to take votes, possibly as soon as Tuesday, on the state's contribution.

Pohlad has signed a pact with a North Carolina group that would send the team to that state if lawmakers refuse to help build a stadium by Nov. 30.

NHL Oilers reportedly sold to Houston Rockets' owner

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) -- The Edmonton Oilers hockey team has been sold to the owner of the NBA's Houston Rockets and will stay in Edmonton for at least three years, the Edmonton Journal reported Friday.

Peter Pocklington, who put the NHL team up for sale four months ago, met with Leslie Alexander in Denver on Wednesday.

The NHL will also have to approve the deal.

SKETCHES

A flickering light,
 A brightened night,
 A light of old,
 Oh, so bold,
 Glows anew,
 For all to view.

For centuries a flickering flame from a single candle wick has lighted the way during the cold hours prior to dawn; kept silent vigil during times of sickness and death; and bathed lovers faces in a romantic glow.

But only in the last few decades have the simple taper candles found their way into the hands of enthusiastic entrepreneurs.

Entrepreneurs like Sonya Torbert, who by day works in the family insurance business, but by night (or off hours or holidays or whenever the mood may strike) concocts beautifully shaped and colored, aromatic figures of wax.

Sonya says she started making candles about a year ago and with the help of candle-making friend found suppliers to meet her needs.

Sonya says she probably spent a week just making calls and finding exactly the right supplies.

"I spent hours in the library just looking into fragrances and oils," she said.

"Mostly I like to pour candles into glass or tinware," she said. "But my favorite is blueberry. It's sweet and purple and just makes me feel good."

Candles were originally made by repeatedly dipping strands of wicking into bubbling hot tallow (natural, hard fat from animals). The candles were then cooled, wicks trimmed and the candles stored for later use.

The early candles, though functional were smoky and always put off the odor of burning fat.

Later, bee-keepers devised ways of melting beeswax to make candles. This was an improvement over tallow candles, but beeswax is more expensive than tallow and harder store, as it must be kept at cooler temperatures.

Both methods had the desired effect of producing a light source, but both were also hot, back breaking acts of labor which could only be performed during certain times of the year. Times when the candlemakers, usually the women, were already overloaded with other work.

As time went on candlemaking became a profession, but it was still hot tiring work and the end results were far to expensive for many.

Today candlemaking hobbyists and enthusiasts use a purified paraffin which can be colored, scented and easily melted.

"I just use a couple of Fry Daddy's and use it just like I'm making a stew. I can stir in the colors and fragrance and get it just the way I want it," said Sonya.

Sonya uses fragrances and tins which are season appropriate.

"Last year, when I got started it was close to Christmas time and I used a lot of cinnamon and pine. I've used lots of flowers and fruits. Vanillas and musks are real popular."

"That's what makes everyone's candles different. We all use different recipes and formulas," she said.

Sonya wholesales her candles in Clarendon, San Angelo and a few other towns. Locally her candles can be found at Peddler's Cove and a number of hair shops.

"I started doing it simply to have a little extra income. Now, even though I don't get to spend as much time as I would like, it has gone way past a hobby."

Sonya often finds herself rushing to complete an order and even though she doesn't find it as relaxing as it was at first she still enjoys the creativity of making candles.

Resident persists in tracing family genealogy

By JEAN BEENE
A recent phone call to Mrs. Norvell goes like this:
"Hello, Nell, how are you?"
"I'm mulling," Mrs. Norvell replies.
"Mulling?"
"Yes, I'm mulling over how Henry Holdcroft Norvell is kin to Holdcroft Henry Norvell. You see, Mary Norvell is the daughter of Holdcroft Henry Norvell, and the wife of Henry Holdcroft Norvell. The father of Mary, Holdcroft Henry Norvell, had sons John and George. Henry Holdcroft Norvell had brothers John and George. Holdcroft Henry Norvell and his sons, John and George, were in the Revolutionary War, as were Henry Holdcroft Norvell and his brothers, John and George Norvell."

NELL NORVELL

Though she has puzzled over this line for several years, Mrs. Norvell is not at all convinced it is unsolvable. The key is somewhere back in the Virginia area where they all lived.
"It's the chase," she said, "that keeps me going. How am I going to find that next record that I have to have to establish the line?"
Having been disciplined by DAR standards of proof, she does not accept as fact any lineage for which there is no documentation. Every family leaves a paper trail, and "the chase" is to find it.

The tracing of family genealogy has become one of the top three hobbies in the United States. Mrs. Norvell's latest major adventure in the field is the editing of a book, Reeb Roots in Europe and America, compiled by John V. Reeb of California, a distant cousin of her late husband, Luther Norvell.
Mrs. Norvell agreed to the editorship because she knew that John Reeb had been to Germany, had taught himself to read the old German script, and had verified all data. Members of their family were in the area where many of the battle of the European Thirty Years Wars (1618-1648) were waged. Some branches of the family are verified to the 1400s.

The book has been accepted by the Librarian General NSDAR to be placed in the National DAR Library in Washington, D.C. It was a gift to the Library through Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR of Hereford.

Reeb Roots in Europe and America is actually a sequel to a two-inch thick tome, The Rape Family Tree, compiled by Mrs. Norvell and published in 1983. This book traces the three sons of the original immigrant to America in the paternal line of Nell Norvell's mother-in-law. This book is also in the National DAR Library, as well as in the Latter Day Saints Library in Salt Lake City, and in several state and county libraries around the United States.

The sequel, compiled by John Reeb, connects with the first Reeb/Rape immigrant to America in Norvell's book, and follows the family farther back into history.

Mrs. Norvell gives insight into how such a work as her own book was accomplished. It took a year for her to go through the data already gathered, comparing it with data contributed by John V. Reeb and others.

Where gaps were found, everything went on hold until documentation such as birth and death records, or battle field records, etc., could be found or submitted by contributors. The most often missing records were for the current generation.

Then she spend a year writing the manuscript in longhand, followed by another year of typing.

Mrs. Norvell tells an anecdote about printing on a card three different spellings of the word "Reeb," all found in the same document. She asked a neighbor born in Germany to read the words. In each case she was amazed to hear the vowel sound change to a long "a," and the final "b" soften to a "p" sound. The resulting name, Rape, was very close to what the ears of the English-speaking customs agents heard from the Reeb immigrants.

The immigrants were anxious to be American in every way, hence accepted the American spelling. This accounts for the variety of spelling of Reeb/Rape surnames in America. Upon learning about this, John V. Reeb and several others changed the spelling of their surname to the original Reeb.

Nell Taylor Norvell began genealogical researching in April (See GENEALOGY, Page 4B)

Public speaking project presentation set Sunday

County Roundup for Deaf Smith County 4-H will be presented on Sunday at the Community Center. The contest will include 20 different entries that range from Agromony to Share-the-Fun. The Roundup activity involves skills in public speaking and presentation to audiences. 4-Hers research, prepare short informational speeches, and present visuals to teach others about different subject matter areas. The Share-the-Fun activities include comedian, poetry, vocal and musical selections, drama and skits to celebrate 4-H.

The presentations will begin at 2:00 in the ballroom, banquet room west and east sides, and will conclude about 4:00. The public is invited to attend the activities.

Love consists in this, that two solitudes protect and touch and greet each other.

New Arrivals

Ruben "Pudgy" and Deanna Vargas of Vernon are the proud parents of a son, Tanner Blake, born Oct. 10 in Wichita Falls.

He weighed 7 pounds, 9 ounces and was 19-1/4 inches long.

Grandparents are Lale and Pedro Vargas Sr. of Hereford and Jim and Maxine Hughes of Perry, Okla.

Ancestor's marker

Nell Norvell had this marker placed in Wesley Chapel Cemetery on Potters Road outside Monroe, Union County, N.C., in 1983, behind the original stone of native slate which contained the name of her ancestor and his death date. Mrs. Norvell has compiled two books, one which traces from Peter Rape Sr. to the present and one which traces his genealogy back in history.

In Appreciation for all she contributed to our community!

Kathlee Sihler Palmer,

was a graduate of Bryn Mawr College where she studied voice under Mildred Fass and drama and theatre under Otis Skinner. She continued her musical studies in Europe at the Paris Conservatoire in voice, piano, organ and spent two years at the Royal Academy of Music in London. While in London, she was twice gold and silver medalist in the London Festival of Music (voice) and winner of the President's Challenge Cup, highest festival award.

Back in New York, Mrs. Palmer won a Juillard Scholarship and stuffed with Nadeline Walther for three years. She was soloist at the Paramount theatre, a member of the Knickerbocker Light Opera Company and served as music director at Echo Hill in New York for two summers. She was the New York representative to the National Federation of Settlements where her original musical plays and sketches were on display.

In addition Mrs. Palmer attended workshops by Robert Shaw, Fred Waring and Paul Christenson. She headed the voice and choral department of Olivet College in Michigan for three years and was a member of the National Association of Teachers of Singing.

Food and Family

Physical Activity for Moms
If you're a mother, then you know how hard it is to find time - and energy - for regular exercise. But adding physical activity to your day can be easy--and it'll help you feel better and stay healthy.

Here are a few suggestions. Push your baby in a stroller every day, or walk or bike to the market instead of driving. Whenever you can, take the stairs instead of the elevator--and walk your child to school. If you want more time for activity, consider trading babysitting time with another mom.

Any light activity, like gardening or vacuuming can help you get in shape. Just start at your own pace and find an activity you enjoy. Make time for exercise. You'll enjoy life more.

Food and Family comes from WIC - the Women, Infants and Children Nutrition Program at the Texas Department of Health. For a free magazine, call 1-800-WIC-3678.

Welcome to the World

This week's recipients of a free, commemorative baby plate:

*Matthew Brett and Michelle Daun born Jan. 27 to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rieves, Jr.

*Eric James born Oct. 8 to Mr. and Mrs. Saturnino Martinez.

*Cassandra Lorena Duran born Oct. 10 to Ms. Sandra Mendez.

*Tiffany Shayne Jesko born Oct. 6 to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Jesko.

Congratulations upon the arrival of your new born. If you have been blessed with a new baby, but we have not adequately congratulated you, please contact us at 364-7721.

Product knocks out many tough odors

Spraying a common deodorizer on a loaded cat box is like putting square tires on a car.

You're not going very far with either.

Nok-Out, a non-toxic spray made by Amazing Concepts, LLC in Beaverton Michigan, kills odors so obnoxious that only fifth-grade boys talk about them.

"Any odor that a human being comes in contact with Nok-Out can get rid of it," says company spokesman, Brian Gay.

"Feces, skunk infestation, hospital smells, cigarette smoke, even dead bodies."

Dead bodies? "We're talking with a couple of coroners' offices," he says.

A clear, non-odorous liquid, Nok-Out breaks down chemical elements of the source.

And rather than masking a bad smell as many household sprays do, Nok-Out leaves no tell-tale trace of the product or the offending smell.

The stuff works so well that promoters of this year's Houston Livestock show report that for the first time in years the smell of animal dung didn't have its usual affect on the people passing through the gates.

Donyelle Venson, an employee with Summit Services in Oakland County, Michigan, says her firm uses Nok-Out to eliminate strong nursing home odors.

"When you sanitize the room and curtains, the smell disappears, I guess that's why we use it."

Sherrie Byers, in Austin, Texas, says she sprays down her air conditioning filter to eliminate cigarette smoke and smell in her house from her husband's cigarettes.

Trish Foreman, in Lewisville, Texas, says she adds a gallon to her carpet cleaner when she shampoos the carpet to eliminate any odors in the carpet as well as the house.

Nok-Out is available by calling Hunter Ag Services at 1-806-346-7686.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH PACKARD
...celebrate golden anniversary

Anniversary reception will honor local couple

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Packard will be honored on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary with a public reception from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Nov. 1 at Hereford Senior Citizen Center.

Hosting the celebration will be their children and grandchildren.

Packard and Nola Jane Clark were married Nov. 2, 1947, in Springlake. They lived in Springlake, Huntsville, Ark., and Tulsa before moving to Hereford where they have lived for 42 years.

Mr. Packard is a retired carpenter and welder. Mrs. Packard has owned Jane's Quilting Shop for 30 years.

Memberships include Texas Motorcycle Association and Retreads, (Rock Hound Club) and Laborerite Club of Hereford. She is a member of the Church of Christ.

Children of the couple are Charlotte Wimberley of Amarillo, Cecilia Watson of Longview and Cherri Kerr of Amarillo. They have five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"So much of our happiness, or the lack thereof, depends on what we chose to focus on."

Seventh graders received their travel plans this past week and most have written to the Chamber of Commerce of their destination to hopefully gain information about the area to which they will be "traveling." They will report on their trip in various ways and will receive credit in at least four classes.

Yellow and Green Team students are completing their unit on Indians and are turning in interesting projects. Yellow Team projects are due Wednesday, while Green Team members are already nearing completion of theirs. These mini-projects will be helpful in preparing for the History and Science Fairs.

Progress reports were mailed last week and we are asking for parents to help us. Many times low grades are due to assignments being late or not turned in at all. Students must learn that to be successful, they must become responsible for their actions. In most cases, there is no reason that a student's grades cannot be better. Too many are not doing their best.

Teachers are concentrating on preparing students for the TAAS practice in November and for the "real" TAAS in the spring. If we can only prepare them for life after TAAS we will be even happier! (Surely having passed TAAS won't be a requirement for entering the Pearly Gates!!)

Due to our PA system, that's only thirty years old, having died a miserable death, we have had announcements by live TV. Students are leading the pledge to the flag via TV, also. We have no bells, or tones, so we have all had to learn to tell time. Students prompt the teachers when classes are due to change, lest we forget!

Research, research and more research!!! The HJH library has become a very busy place for many of our students as they learn how to research. Mrs. Solomon, our librarian, has been helping Blue Team members on Science Fair information, Purple Team with Indian Legends and the Yellow Team on the use of various reference books. Learning "how to" is so very important in research. Naturally, one can't know everything, but knowing how and where to find information about "everything" will be a valuable lesson. We expect every student to be knowledgeable about the library in some fashion before school is over in the spring!

"Lots of things in life we have no control over, but we alone can decide how we think and act and feel."

--Gene Shelburne

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 21-year-old Harvard University junior who is writing to respectfully disagree with your advice. You said parents of different religious faiths should bring up their children in one faith or the other, instead of raising them in both faiths and letting them decide which faith to follow when they are older.

I am very grateful that my parents took the other route. They raised me in both faiths and frequently bragged that when we were younger, my brother and I did not know which of them was Catholic and which was Jewish. I admit that I have not chosen one or the other because I have seen no need to make a choice.

I grew up seeing firsthand that good people can believe in different faiths. I have attended Presbyterian and Episcopal services and studied Hinduism. I have a Christian friend who attended the Passover seder I hosted at school, and he told me later that it had completely changed the way he thought about the Jewish religion.

Good people can emerge from multireligious upbringings, with a firm belief in tolerance and a strong sense of morality. Saying that children must be raised in one faith or the other seems to suggest that you can be truly religious only if you have been brainwashed into accepting a specific denomination.

This premise I reject absolutely. Certainly, single-faith backgrounds produce good people, especially when parents encourage their children to take an active, questioning role. But it is not the only way. Religion should be a search for spiritual answers, not a commitment to dogma. --Grateful to My Parents

Dear Grateful: Thanks for a thoughtful letter. Keep reading for another point of view:

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to the interfaith couple about choosing a religion for their unborn child was absolutely correct and sound. You said they should study one another's religions and then select one or the other.

In a recent 20-year study of 300 interfaith couples involving 500 children, the results indicated that children raised in either a no-religion or a two-religion home made the decision to choose no religion for themselves. They did not want to offend either parent by choosing to follow the religion of the other, so they chose neither and remained agnostic.

Only those children raised in a home where a single religion was practiced remained dedicated to their religious conviction. Thank you for your clear and sensible advice. --Joseph N. Feinstein, universal rabbi, Sherman Oaks, Calif.

Dear Rabbi Feinstein: I appreciate your letter of support. I had only my gut feelings to go on, but you came through with statistics -- and convincing ones, at that. It was good of you to write.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell me why two people plan for months to have a perfect wedding, spend a fortune for a gown and tuxedo, order magnificent flowers, provide lovely music and then spoil it all by smashing cake into one another's faces -- ruining their clothes and destroying the beauty of the moment?

I've asked several people about this, and they don't know the answer. Who started this craziness? --Cleveland

Dear Cleveland: I don't know who started the craziness, but I wish they would stop it. The custom of smearing one another's faces with cake is, in my opinion, coarse, vulgar and appalling. I have always felt that underneath the hilarity must be some deep-seated hostility.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.)

Cooking for fall is featured

Fall Cooking Extravaganza will be presented by the Family Living Committee members of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the banquet room of the Hereford Community Center.

The hour-long program will feature a selection of "tried and delicious" recipes by members of the Family Living Committee. Fall table decoration ideas will also be featured. Those attending will be provided a recipe sheet, will be able to taste the recipes featured in the program and will be presented hints and ideas for holiday cookery.

Recipes presented will focus on fast and easy preparation as well as delicious to eat dishes. The recipes chosen to be presented are those Family Living members use regularly in their holiday fare.

Family Living committee members presenting during the program will include Emily Knight, Linda Perry, Gayle Carter, Jo Lee, Maudette Smith, Loretta Urbanczyk, Rosie Valdez, and Beverly Harder, County Extension Agent.

Reservations are not required and the program will be free of charge. More information may be obtained by calling the County Extension Office at 364-3573.

Testing the recipe

Emily Knight is assisted by her son, Richard, as they test and taste a delicious beverage. This recipe and others will be presented at the Fall Cooking Extravaganza at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the banquet room of Hereford Community Center. The Family Living Committee members of the Deaf Smith County Extension Office will present the program.

Frost on the Pumpkin?

Pumpkins will be popular and visible during the next week.

The origins of the great golden globe were rooted in early Greece where the word "pumpkin" was derived from the Greek word "pepon" which meant cooked by the sun.

The golden globe was also recorded in China history and folklore where it was a highly prized food thought to bring long life and prosperity upon the family that ate pumpkin.

Today, pumpkins occupy a place on the American table in desserts, soups, relishes, vegetable dishes, and even served in stews and oriental cookery.

Pumpkin is packed with nutrition. A 1/2 cup serving contains 40 calories, 2.5 milligrams of sodium, 245 milligrams of potassium, ample fiber and 300 percent of the Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance of beta carotene or Vitamin A.

While pumpkins are popular as a food, they can be carved -- no not just into the familiar Jack-O-Lantern, but can become baskets to hold a center piece of fall fruits, can be decorated to grace a porch or table top, arranged in wreaths or other arrangements, and can be scooped and cleaned in order to become a soup tureen or individual soup bowl.

The weekend cooler temperatures may have left "frost upon the pumpkin." If so, the pumpkin will probably not last long so it is wise to clean the cavity of the pumpkin (retaining the seeds). Cut the pumpkin in half and bake flesh down in a baking dish at 400 degrees until tender. Add enough water to cover the bottom of the baking dish. Additional water may need to be added throughout the cooking process to provide steam to keep the pumpkin flesh tender and moist.

Pumpkin puree is best if frozen. Freeze cooked puree in recipe portion amounts. Canning pumpkin is not recommended unless one is going to can cubed pumpkin. It has been discovered that canning puree does not produce an internal jar temperature high enough to insure a safe, bacteria free product.

Pumpkin seeds can be washed, air dried, then roasted in an oven until golden brown. The seeds may be sprayed or brushed with a light vegetable oil and lightly salted prior to roasting. Seeds should be cooled then may be stored in plastic bags and even frozen to preserve freshness.

If garden pumpkins can be salvaged before a really hard freeze, be sure to leave the stem on the pumpkin. The pumpkin will ruin faster if this stem is removed.

Above all, enjoy this versatile golden globe in your culinary delights, to grace your home with a harvest theme, or to provide the seasons bright smiling face from the window.

Military Muster

On Oct. 10 in an establishment and designation ceremony at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., Lt. Cmdr. Gary E. Murray of the United States Navy was designated as First Officer in Charge of the Naval Air Maintenance Training Group Detachment.

Lt. Cmdr. Murray will command the Unmanned Aerial Vehicle (UAV) training at Fort Huachuca. The training on the Pioneer, a single-engine intelligence gathering drone, will be given to Sailors and Marines during the year to teach them to fly and maintain the UAVs.

Murray is the son of Bob and Shirley Murray of Hereford. He and his wife Diane reside in Sierra Vista, Ariz. They have one daughter Olivia who is attending Johnson and Wales University in Miami, Fla.

LT. CMDR. AND MRS. MURRAY

ANTONITA PINO, THOMAS FREDERICK GREEN

Engagement announced

Dolorita G. Pino of Zia Pueblo, northwest of Albuquerque, N.M., announces the engagement of her daughter, Antonita Pino to Thomas Frederick Green of Hereford.

The couple plans to be married Nov. 28 in the Central Church of Christ in Hereford.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Pino and the late Juan D. Pino. She is a 1987 graduate of the Santa Fe Indian Boarding School in Santa Fe, N.M. She recently moved to Hereford from Fairbanks, Alaska. She graduated from the Alaska Computer Institute as a business communication associate. She is presently employed at HISD.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Donnie and Karen Fangman of Hereford and the late Tom Green. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Walker of Hereford. He is a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School, attended South Plains College in Levelland and is a 1989 graduate of Job Corps in Roswell, N.M. He is currently employed by Dawn Cattle Feeders.

Following their wedding, the couple plans to make their home in Hereford.

1963 when she made her first research trip to the Amarillo Public Library. At that visit she had her first experience with reading microfilm.

By the time she saw the notice placed in The Hereford Brand by Patricia Robinson, announcing a meeting for those who were interested in forming a local DAR chapter, she already knew that she had at least one Revolutionary ancestor. Mrs. Robinson, who was already a DAR member, was organizing regent when Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR was organized on April 18, 1970. Mrs. Norvell was one of the organizing members.

She has seven DAR ancestor bars on her blue and white DAR ribbon, which means that she has traced her lineage back to seven different soldiers and patriots who supported the American struggle for independence. She has two other ancestral lines ready to submit.

Mrs. Norvell has served Los Ciboleros Chapter four years as chapter regent. She has served in various other capacities and currently serves as librarian, genealogical records chairman and parliamentarian.

In serving the Texas Society, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, she has been Texas Division I Chairman, Genealogical Records Chairman, State Lineage Chairman and State Chairman of Tellers, each for a three-year term.

She has also been president of the Texas State Regent's Club. In 1982, she was appointed by the State Regent to assist in the organization of the Buffalo Grass Chapter NSDAR in Floydada.

Mrs. Norvell is also a member of National Society Colonial Dames XVII Century, and Daughters of the Republic of Texas. She is an organizing member of the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society and an organizing member of Roy Wederbrook VFW Post 4818 Auxiliary of Hereford.

Since 1985, Mrs. Norvell's chief objective has been to compile a book on the Norvell family. However in the early 1990s, she took time out to research for Dr. Duffy McBryer's application to the Court of Lord Lyon King of Arms in Scotland. The notice of his acceptance included the statement that it was the first application received from America that was done right the first time.

Nell Taylor became the wife of the last Luther W. Norvell in 1946. They moved to Hereford in 1947 to farm. She has two sons, State of Hereford and Tilford of Alaska. She has three grandsons and one granddaughter.

Successful families

Attendance at THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY nurturing program sessions continues to be good. The sessions, sponsored by HISD and funded by the Children's Trust Fund of Texas, are held from 5:30 p.m.-8 p.m. Tuesdays in the HISD Administration Building. Meals are served following each session. For the month of October, meals have been provided by San Jose Catholic Church.

- * PROVIDE A STRUCTURED HOME ENVIRONMENT and model self-discipline.

This is easy to say, but hard to do. Self-discipline is a daily, minute by minute task everyone has to endure in order to succeed in work, family, or individual activities. Priorities sometimes become confused and demands on us become overwhelming. It is something all of us have to continually work at in order to improve and grow as individuals and families. It is something we must model for our children if we expect them to make good choices and problem solve in their own lives.

This is not an easy task. It sometimes becomes very heavy and we grow very tired. HOW DO YOU SPELL RELIEF? THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY PROGRAM at the HISD building-601 25 Mile-can help you. Every Tuesday evening until November 18 at 5:30-8:00 p.m. You will find a crowd of caring people who will reach out to you and help you find some relief. Free meals for your whole family, door prizes, and a nurturing program for every family member awaits you.

— YOUR EYES —

Can You Prevent Cataracts?

For many years, it seemed that cataracts were inevitable. If a person lived long enough, he or she would eventually suffer the impaired vision that comes with cloudy or opaque lenses. Recent researchers indicate that good health habits can prevent cataracts, or at least delay them.

Sun exposure over a period of years has been shown to be a key to developing cataracts. Smart move: wear quality sunglasses that protect against both ultraviolet A and ultraviolet B. Wear them whenever the light is bright enough to make you squint, even on cloudy days and most especially at high elevations.

Smoking is another culprit. The risk of cataracts rises with the number of cigarettes smoked. Smokers are at least twice as likely to develop cataracts as nonsmokers. On the plus side, there is some evidence that vitamin-rich diets high in vitamins C and E and beta carotene may forestall or prevent cataracts.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Personal Selling A powerful part of marketing

Often in workshops and seminars I ask business owners to define the term "marketing." One of the most common answers I get is "selling." While selling is certainly a very important part of marketing, it is only one part.

To define marketing as selling is a little like describing an automobile as an engine. Yes, autos have engines, but there is much more. An engine alone does not make an automobile. However, the engine does provide the power for that automobile.

I believe personal selling provides the "go power" in a marketing program. Selling is a function that is critical to every element of the marketing mix. Personal selling is a skill that every business person can benefit from developing.

Everyone lives by selling something

Robert Lois Stevenson said, "Everyone lives by selling something." Stevenson was right. A teacher lives by selling ideas and sound educational principles. A business consultant lives by selling solutions to difficult problems. An automobile dealer lives by selling dependable transportation and status. A welder lives by selling mechanical skills.

Unfortunately, few workers today realize how important selling is to their livelihood. Most do not understand how their only job security come from a healthy economy where businesses are selling their products and services at a profit. Even if you work for the government, business profits and taxable wages paid by those businesses generate the salary you receive.

Some Selling Thoughts and Tips

- Selling is a process of creating value. You must justify your price by showing the buyer the benefits.
- Buyers do not wish to be sold; they wish to buy. Show them the value and they will buy.
- Buyers need help frequently to make sound buying decisions. If you become a support person to help them, and if they feel they can trust you, they will buy from you.
- Trust in any selling situation is founded on truth and built on knowledge of products and services. Complete trust comes when the seller becomes more concerned about the buyer's needs than selling something.
- Closing a sale is not a technique or gimmick. It is providing the confirmation a buyer needs to help him or her make a more comfortable buying decision.

Never confuse the features of a product or service with the benefits a buyer will receive. Features are important, but the benefits are the results a buyer must understand before becoming comfortable with a purchasing commitment.

Use a transition statement to move from features to benefits. For example, "what this means to you is....," "the value you get is...." and "how this would work for you...." are all transition statements. A car salesperson would use a transition statement in this manner. "This model comes with a V-6, fuel-injection engine (features). What this means to you is quick acceleration and great fuel economy (benefits).

Don't ignore the "I'm ready to buy signals." When a customer asks, "Which of these two models do you think is best?," the salesperson should confirm the best value for the customer's needs and offer to write up the deal.

In selling, good things come to those who wait. However, the best things go to those who hustle.

Never argue with a potential customer. Winning the argument will almost always cost you the sale.

The selling process doesn't end when you get the money. This sale is only step one in building a life-time customer relationship. Follow-up after the sale and you'll sell your customers again and again.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

As I write this, LaJuan is on the phone with a gentleman who is interpreting for an Italian woman who speaks no English. She is inquiring about the POW camp where Italian prisoners were held during World War II. This call is from Italy. I just love this job! When I come to work in the morning I never know what I will encounter before the day is over. That sounds sort of ominous, but usually it's something challenging and very interesting.

In Shadow Woman by Thomas Perry, Jane Whitefield, a "guide" who leads desperate people away from danger into safe places and gives them new identities, designs a harrowing escape for Pete Hatcher, a Las Vegas casino executive whose suspicious employers are about to kill him.

Once Pete is safe, Jane makes herself vanish and retires from her dangerous profession to marry the man she loves. But the risky business she left behind returns with terrible urgency on the night she receives Pete Hatcher's call for help.

Using all the courage, fortitude, and intelligence of her Native American heritage, Jane must defeat the man and woman assassination team who have found Pete's hiding place and seek to take his life.

The jacket describes Meg by Steve Alten as a "Novel of Deep Terror." Jonas Taylor, the only survivor of a top-secret dive into the Pacific Ocean's deepest canyon, is haunted by what he saw there but cannot prove exists -- Carcharodon megalodon -- the massive mother of the great white shark.

Although written off as a crackpot, Taylor, with a Ph.D. in paleontology, spends years theorizing, lecturing, and writing about the possibility that Meg still feeds at the deepest levels of the sea. However, it takes an old friend in need and a hotshot female submarine pilot to get him back into a high-tech miniature sub.

Diving deeper than he ever has before, Taylor will face terror like he's never imagined, and what he finds could turn the tides bloody red until the end of time.

Sandra Scofield's A Chance to See. Egypt, is about Tom Riley, "tilting, out of balance" right after the death of his wife. He travels to Mexico, where they honeymooned, as a pilgrimage to love's memory. An American writer, herself an expatriate escaping from her painful past, befriends him, sensing that he has a story to tell. "Change the plot," she advises. "Introduce new characters."

Enter a Mexican woman and her daughter, who defy the stereotypes of the passive peasant. Strong willed and mystical, Consalata Arispe runs a small cafe and plans her children's survival. Divina, the most beautiful girl in town, dreams of white horses and sings American songs. Their mystery and beauty enchant Riley and draw him into the life of their village. There, fates converge, secrets are revealed, and open hearts are filled.

If you like a little humor, you might enjoy Straight Man by Richard Russo. William Henry Deveraux, Jr. spiritually suited to playing left field but forced by a bad hamstring to try first base, is the unlikely chairman of the English department at West Central Pennsylvania University.

Over the course of a single convoluted week, he threatens to execute a goose, has his nose slashed by a feminist poet, discovers that his secretary writes better fiction than he does, suspects his wife of having an affair with his dean, and finally confronts his philandering elderly father, the one-time king of American Literary Theory, at an abandoned amusement park.

And you thought YOU had a bad week!
Other new fiction includes:

In the Rogue Blood by James Carlos Blake.

Another amusing (?) book is Dave Barry Is From Mars and Venus. Of course, this one is nonfiction (or is it?). At any rate, it is another in the long line of volumes by Dave Barry.

Got World Series fever? Or are you weary of baseball? If not, and you wish to dream about the Rangers being in the World Series next year, you will be interested in Texas Rangers: The Authorized History by Eric Nadel. This book has lots of good pictures and plenty of the detailed statistics that baseball fans are so fond of.

The 7 Habits of Highly Effective Families by Stephen R. Covey addresses such issues as: How can you discipline without punishing? How do you create a spirit of fun, adventure, and excitement in the family? How can you rebuild a broken relationship when the feeling is no longer there?

Peggy Claude-Pierre has developed her unique insights into eating disorders through successfully treating her own two anorexic daughters and hundreds of acutely ill patients at the world-renowned Montreux Clinic in Victoria, Canada. In The Secret Language of Eating Disorders, Claude-Pierre details her theories on the true causes of anorexia and bulimia and lays out the basis of the Montreux program, which is astonishingly successful.

Edward Shirley was obsessed with Persian culture from the time he was a boy growing up in the Midwest. However, his service in the CIA did not give him the opportunity to go into Iran, a lifelong dream. Know Thine Enemy: A Spy's Journey Into Revolutionary Iran is the gripping and wry account of smuggling himself into the land of Khomenei.

Farm and Ranch

Micro-cheese plants offset falling Texas milk prices

AUSTIN (AP) - Armed with a federal grant, the Texas Farmers Union hopes farmer-owned cooperatives making gourmet Mexican cheeses will help offset falling milk prices.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has awarded the group $54,000 for market research and developmental work on cheeses that the cooperatives could sell in Texas and elsewhere, officials said Wednesday.

"We've been interested in helping farmers help themselves. We think this is an excellent way of doing it," said Therese Tuttle, director of cooperative and economic development for the National Farmers Union.

Wes Sims, Texas Farmers Union

president and a dairy producer from Sweetwater, said his fellow dairy farmers are struggling. Finding a new market for milk, and sharing in the profits of a successful manufacturing operation, would be a big help, he said.

"Plummeting milk prices have pushed Texas dairy farmers to their financial limits over the past year," Sims said.

"If Texas is to retain its dairy industry, producers must be able to retain a greater share of the consumer food dollar by forming processing and marketing cooperatives such as the one proposed by this project," he said.

The project will seek to identify varieties of high-quality Mexican cheeses, test consumer acceptance and produce a business plan aimed at giving milk producers a head start in forming a cheese-processing cooperative.

Assisting will be a Wisconsin-based cheese marketing company, Dan Carter Inc., which works with a number of small cheese makers.

Timothy M. Omer, president of the company, said there is a growing market for Mexican cheeses. California leads the nation, with Texas second, he said.

"We know in talking with retailers down here that there is a market for more Mexican cheeses," Omer said.

"We see an opportunity in Texas to have some small, micro-cheese plants operate."

In addition to selling in the United States, he said there are opportunities to export cheese to Mexico, where demand is outstripping supply.

"There is a good export opportunity. If you make it here, it's a natural to sell it across the border," Omer said.

Steve Carriker, USDA rural development director for Texas, said the cheese-making project could help both farmers and others living in small towns, since that's likely where a manufacturing plant would be located.

Generally, he said, farmers receive only about 15 percent of the value of groceries sold by retailers. So having farmers involved in processing commodities can keep more money on the farm.

"Far and away the lion's share (of profits) is on the other end, away from the farm gate," Carriker said. "And obviously, a cheese plant - if this project results in one or more cheese factories - is going to be staffed not by farmers but by people in small, rural communities."

Study shows farmers have reason to be stressed-out

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) - American farmers are a stressed-out lot, worrying about the weather, market pricing, government intervention and money, a study concludes.

Chris Hurt, a professor of agricultural economics at Purdue University, said the study of more than 2,000 farmers by DuPont Agricultural Products paints a fairly accurate picture.

"This is a business that is very stressful, both time-wise and uncertainty-wise," Hurt said. "During certain times of the year it's stressful because of outside influences they have no control over."

Fred Reichert, who grows corn and soybeans south of Lafayette, Ind., notes weather could be a big problem in any year.

"It just takes a certain amount of rain to raise a crop and a certain amount of heat," he said. "It's a concern, but what do you do? How do you change the weather?"

The biggest weather story in recent months has been El Nino, the weather pattern that warms the waters of the Pacific and causes weather problems all over the globe.

"The El Nino talk is bringing up a lot of bad memories for us," said Randy Miller, a corn, soybean and popcorn farmer in Brookston, Ind. "The last time we had an intense El Nino was 1983, and it made a pretty disastrous crop for us."

Grain prices have been fairly constant for the last few years, and corn has remained around $2.50 a bushel.

New laws impact Louisiana economy

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A new federal farm program intended to make agriculture more responsive to the laws of economics is having an effect on Louisiana cotton, and on other parts of the state's economy.

The law encourages farmers to base their crop decisions on the market rather than on government subsidies and price supports. As a result, many farmers are turning away from cotton and planting corn and soybeans, said David Ruppenicker, president of the Louisiana Cotton Association.

"The prices for these two crops are more favorable than cotton right now," he said. Besides, "Corn and soybeans are also easier to grow than cotton is."

Thus, Louisiana is looking at its lowest cotton acreage since 1989 - 625,000 acres. That is down nearly 30 percent from last year's 890,000 acres.

As a result, four cotton gins have not reopened in northeastern Louisiana this year. At least one of them, Bayou Gin of Ouachita Parish, will not reopen, Ruppenicker said.

Corey Cotton Gin in Caldwell Parish has managed to stay open this season, but company President Charlie Rowland said he could not be sure if it will open next year.

"We're hoping we can survive," Rowland said. "What we do this year will determine what we will do next year."

Rowland said his business must gin at least 10,000 bales to guarantee it will operate next year. About 7,200 bales had been ginned as of Thursday.

"I feel pretty sure we'll gin the remaining 2,800 bales before this season is over," Rowland said. "We lost a lot of acres to grains, but the acres cotton is planted on is good for the crop. Yields are up and I believe we'll be all right."

The transportation industry also is suffering. Tommy Wells of Bastrop got accustomed to the money he made hauling cotton seed in his 18-wheel trucks.

"I've been hauling cotton seed for the past 10 years," Wells said. "With talk that the cotton crop isn't that big this year, I'm probably going to haul more wood chips."

Wells said the loss of revenue from not hauling cotton seed will not shut his business down, but it will cost him about $250,000.

Farmers are looking at prices.

If the price is right, Boyd Holley of Bastrop said cotton will probably be his main crop next year. Holley, who has grown cotton for 18 years, planted 1,450 acres this year.

"We did well this year," he said. "Who knows? If we can get a good price for cotton next year, I'll probably lean more toward cotton than any other crop. It all depends on the price of the different commodities."

While the outlook for cotton may look glum now, Ruppenicker predicts it will get better.

"I believe cotton will always remain a staple crop in northeastern Louisiana," he said. "I believe cotton will come back with a strong vengeance once changes are made that are going to be needed because of this evolution currently taking place in the cotton industry."

TAM 110 WITH GREENBUG RESISTANCE

Late planted wheat is susceptible to greenbugs in April and TAM 110 is resistant to these infestations. If you have not planted wheat, but plan to double crop behind corn, cotton, or sorghum, TAM 110 is best suited for this practice. Late planted, ungrazed wheat is more susceptible to greenbugs and Tam 110 is resistant. Lush wheat being fresh young and tender, makes it very vulnerable to heavy greenbug infestations in April. TAM 110 has also topped yield trails for both irrigated and dryland production.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

—Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

—Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

—Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

—Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Camille centers on vaulted great room

By Associated Designs

A vaulted great room is at the heart of the Camille. This contemporary floor plan is designed for families who prefer a relaxed lifestyle.

Multipaned windows overarch the front door and span its right side.

All this light combines with a vaulted ceiling to create a striking first impression in the formal entry. On the exterior, the high arched gable and massive column detailing transform a small front porch into a dramatic, classic-looking portico.

Two or three cooks can work together without bumping elbows in the spacious kitchen. The wall behind the stove provides a modicum of separation between the kitchen and the great room, but the rest of the kitchen is open. Sliders in the dining room open onto a large screened porch.

And in this home, you can take your pick of places to eat. The dining room is available for festive occasions and formal meals, the bayed nook invites you to linger over coffee and conversation, and the eating bar is handy for quick snacks. Utilities are close by, in a pass-through space to the garage. Both the utility room and the garage have built-in storage space.

A long closet lines the hallway that leads to the sleeping quarters. The master suite has a generous walk-in closet and a bathroom designed to allow two people to use it at once without getting in each other's way. Toilet and shower are separately enclosed, providing steam containment as well as privacy.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, Ore. 97402. Please specify the Camille 11-031 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring over 170 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

Heaton brings home the new reality

Patricia Heaton, Meredith Baxter, Anna Chlumsky and Della Reese (clockwise from upper left) star in Miracle in the Woods, airing Sunday on CBS. Heaton filmed the drama while on break from Everybody Loves Raymond, the sitcom she stars in that airs Mondays on CBS.

In the past, television sitcom wives generally were cast as one of two types: peevish shrew or smiling, matronly bore.

But these are enlightened times, and with them comes the realization that roles occasionally need to be reversed.

Enter Patricia Heaton.

The actress who plays Debra Barone, the wife of sportswriter Ray Barone (comic Ray Romano) in CBS' Everybody Loves Raymond, has joined Helen Hunt (Mad About You) and Patricia Richardson (Home Improvement) — among others — to create a more contemporary, realistic incarnation of prime-time TV sitcom wives.

Raymond, now in its second season, focuses on the couple's struggles to raise a family in peace despite frequent invasions by Ray's distinctly odd relatives, and Heaton was eager to make a positive statement in her role.

"We've given Ray and Debra a wonderful relationship where she's allowed to express her frustration with him and his family without being a nag," Heaton says. "She can have her own weaknesses, she can make mistakes and be quirky — (like) a grown-up woman."

Raymond, now airing Mondays, has improved its ratings since CBS moved it out of the Friday "death slot" in which the series aired during its first season. The sitcom's clever writing and first-rate acting have earned praise from critics, and Heaton believes audiences are drawn to Raymond for reasons similar to her own: The series mirrors real-life family experiences.

As a wife and mother, Heaton enjoys playing a character who is a warm and attentive parent but also has a wry wit and a strong sense of independence.

"In playing this part, it really reflects so much of what I go through day to day," she says. "People ask me, 'How did you prepare for your role?' And I say, 'Well, I just go home.' At home, my husband and the kids and I either do the things I just did at work or I go in the next week and I find they've written a script about the very thing I was struggling with the previous week. Not much research has to be done."

Heaton has appeared on Broadway, in feature films and on other TV series (Women of the House and thirtysomething), but she finds sitcom work especially gratifying.

"I feel that a sitcom is a real particular kind of art form," she says. "It's really enjoyable to do a sort of miniplay each week from beginning to end and have an immediate response from the audience, like live theater. And comedy is a pleasure to do. It's really good for your health."

Despite her affection for comedy, Heaton enjoys a change of pace. So while Raymond was not in production during the summer, she co-starred in the drama Miracle in the Woods, which airs Sunday, Oct. 26, on CBS.

Miracle is about two estranged sisters (Heaton and Meredith Baxter) who are reconciled through their relationships with an older woman (Della Reese) who lives in a ramshackle house in a forest.

"Why did I want to do the movie? I had just had my third baby, my third boy, and I wanted to get out of the house," Heaton says. "I read the script and it was really nice to see a network movie that wasn't a disease movie or some 'I slept with the baby sitter' movie. It's about sisters and forgiveness, and it's really well-written. It came together really well, and I think it's going to be really moving."

Sounds substantial, but for an actress like Heaton, that's to be expected.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES - March 21/April 20
You're under the gun this week, Aries. You have to complete an important project, or else you will let yourself and a lot of others down. So, get right to the point — that's the only way you'll get the answers you need. An interesting stranger introduces himself or herself to you. Don't shy away; this can lead to a serious relationship.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
This is a week of confusion for you. You're not sure whom to believe or whom to trust. Don't just speak your mind to anyone, Taurus. Talk to a close relative; anyone else may spread your secrets. An old friend calls you out of the blue. Take the time to see him or her. Libra plays a key role.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
There's so much to do and so little time. What you need to do to keep your sanity is ask your friends for help. They won't think that you're weak or in over your head. They'll understand the pressures that you face. That special someone needs to talk. Don't get nervous; things will be OK once you two share your feelings.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Keep yourself busy early in the week, Cancer. If you don't, you'll just upset yourself thinking about a family problem. Unfortunately, there is nothing you can do right now to help your loved ones. They need to work out the situation by themselves. Sagittarius plays an important role at the end of the week.

LEO - July 23/August 23
A friend turns to you in a time of need. You must be supportive even though you're in a jam yourself, Leo. He or she really needs you; don't let him or her down. A friend introduces you to someone who has the same interests as you. While this won't work out romantically, don't discount his or her ability to be a close friend. Taurus plays a key role.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
You are bombarded with questions from co-workers, friends and relatives. Try to answer all of them calmly — even though you feel like running away. They all have your best interest at heart. You have to break plans with a friend late in the week. Don't feel guilty; he or she understands.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
While you like to take charge of any situation, you have to relinquish control when a problem arises early in the week. You know you're not fully equipped to deal with the situation. A loved one needs your advice about a romantic relationship. Be honest, but kind. Virgo plays an important role.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
You've got to be determined this week, Scorpio. There's too much going on for you to get distracted. Between business ventures and family matters, you don't know which way to turn. Set your priorities. By the end of the week, you will have almost everything taken care of. The person you've been dating doesn't call a lot. Don't get discouraged.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
You're in the driver's seat on Tuesday. You finish everything on your to-do list and actually have some free time to pamper yourself. Do something just for yourself — you never know when you'll have another chance to splurge like this. A loved one reveals a long-hidden secret. Keep it to yourself.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Don't be stubborn early in the week, Capricorn. You can't always get everything that you want. You've got to give a little when it comes to a business venture. Be supportive of a friend who is in trouble. He or she needs a shoulder to cry on. Gemini and Aries play key roles during the weekend.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
You feel like you're swimming against the current this week, Aquarius. Each time you try to get ahead, someone stands in your way. Don't get discouraged. You'll start to make some progress by the week's end. An intriguing person enters your life on Wednesday. Don't let him or her slip away.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
You're in the money this week. You get an unexpected windfall. However, don't be frivolous. Save a good portion of it, because you'll need it soon. A close friend is having family problems. Try to help him or her out, but don't butt in where you don't belong.

IN FOCUS

Hulk Hogan wrestles with the role of Mike McBride, a retired Navy SEAL who is brought out of retirement to rescue a kidnapped gymnastics team, in Assault on Devil's Island, premiering Tuesday, Oct. 28, on TNT. When a South American drug cartel kidnaps the team to protest the arrest of a drug lord, Mike is called in to lead the special commando unit set up to save them. He is joined by his right-hand man, Roy Brown (Carl Weathers), and a DEA operative (Shannon Tweed).

Bruce Greenwood stars as Dr. Nathan Bradford, a neurophysiologist who dreams up the idea for an institute devoted to the study of dreams in Sleepwalkers. The new NBC drama premieres Saturday, Nov. 1, as part of the network's Thrillology lineup. With the help of advanced technology, Nathan and his team of dedicated scientists are able to enter other people's dreams to help them deal with subconscious issues. Abraham Benrubi, Naomi Watts and Jeffrey D. Sams also star.

Conan the Destroyer ★★ (1984) Arnold Schwarzenegger, Grace Jones. Robert E. Howard's barbarian hero accompanies a teen-age princess on a quest to retrieve a sacred religious artifact. 2:30. (11) November 1 1pm, 9pm.

Confidential Agent ★★★ (1945) Charles Boyer, Lauren Bacall. During the Spanish Civil War, an agent on a mission to purchase coal meets with murder and counterespionage. 2:00. (11) November 1 3am.

HIGHLIGHTS

Tara Fitzgerald and Toby Stephens star in The Tenant of Wildfell Hall, a Masterpiece Theatre adaptation of the novel by Anne Bronte airing Sunday on PBS (check local listings).

Another battling Bronte tells her side of story in Tenant

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

The Rev. and Mrs. Bronte had six children: five girls and one boy. Two of the girls died of childhood tuberculosis; the remaining daughters went on to become acclaimed novelists.

The boy was another story. A youthful profligate who abused alcohol and drugs and became mentally unbalanced, Patrick Branwell Bronte evidently served as an inspiration for his sisters to write passionately about young women who fall in love with difficult men.

Wuthering Heights and Jane Eyre, by Bronte sisters Emily and Charlotte, respectively, are well-known works. These hefty Gothic romances have remained in print, and been flattered with torrid, elegant screen adaptations.

The youngest Bronte sister, Anne, wrote only two novels before she died of tuberculosis at the age of 34. On Sunday, Oct. 26, PBS' Masterpiece Theatre presents a film adaptation of her novel The Tenant of Wildfell Hall (check local listings).

Tara Fitzgerald (Brassed Off) stars as the mysterious title character, Helen. Obsessed with privacy, she moves quietly with her young son into Wildfell Hall, where she informs her neighbors she is a widow of meager income.

But one neighbor, a bachelor farmer (Toby Stephens), takes a more personal interest in the diffident Helen.

As they fall in love, she decides to explain her past by giving him her diary to read. A flashback reveals the youthful high spirits that led her to marry a cad (Rupert Graves) whose belittling cruelty prompted her to do the unthinkable: leave him.

Tenant was denounced almost universally when it was published in 1848; even Charlotte later called the subject a "mistake."

Anne did not write "purely romantic heroes and heroines," Fitzgerald explains. "They're flawed individuals and therefore more difficult to stomach."

The film is dark and rugged, as Helen struggles to do what is right, and almost out of control, as director Mike Barker seems to put the camera on roller skates. But it is definitely Bronte: rich, opinionated and disturbing.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: I enjoyed watching The Pretender last season, but am concerned that it has not returned. Michael T. Weiss is very talented, and I enjoy the story lines involving him and Miss Parker. -Helaine Hecht, New Windsor, NY

A: The Pretender, which leads NBC's Thrillology lineup that includes Sleepwalkers and Profiler, returns Saturday, Nov. 1, with an episode in which Jarod (Weiss) is haunted by bad dreams and Miss Parker (Andrea Parker) attempts to find out what the Centre did with her father.

NBC delayed the premieres because of its 1997 World Series coverage.

Q: A few weeks ago, you wrote about the sitcom Dusty's Trail with Bob Denver. I saw it on sale recently for about $10. I enjoyed it the first time around, too. -Harold F., Hudson, Fla.

A: Harold, you just convinced me that if you wait long enough, anything will be released on video.

Q: I am certain that I remember a late-night sitcom that aired about 20 years ago in which the men stayed home and kept house while the women went to the office and hit on male secretaries. Everyone thinks I'm nuts. Please help me. -Earl Warner via e-mail.

A: The success of Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman inspired Norman Lear to create the syndicated late-night satire All That Glitters, which ran from April to July 1975. The cast included Lois Nettleton, Chuck McCann, Anita Gillette and Linda Gray.

Q: Please settle an argument. Whom did Kirk Cameron marry? I say he married Catherine Bach, who played Daisy Duke on The Dukes of Hazzard. My husband says she's too old. -D. Pine, Kelseyville, Calif.

E
Ed Wood ★★★ (1994) Johnny Depp, Martin Landau. Tim Burton's affectionate tribute to the transvestite director of such cult turkeys as "Plan 9 From Outer Space." 3:00. October 26 12pm; 28 2am.

Escape From Fort Bravo ★★½ (1953) William Holden, Eleanor Parker. Confederate sympathizers find themselves surrounded by hostile Indians after rescuing prisoners from a Union fort. 2:00. October 30 12:05pm.

The Exorcist III ★★½ (1990) George C. Scott, Jason Miller. A murder investigation leads a detective to the cell of a presumed-dead priest who performed an exorcism years earlier. (In Stereo) 2:00. October 26 3am.

Eyes in the Night ★★½ (1942) Edward Arnold, Ann Harding. When an actor is found murdered, a sightless sleuth uncovers an espionage plot in the course of his investigation. 1:30. October 30 3:30am.

F
The Face on the Milk Carton (1995) Kellie Martin, Jill Clayburgh. A teen-age girl searches for the truth after discovering she has been separated from her original family for 13 years. (In Stereo) (CC) 2:00. October 26 4pm.

Field of Dreams ★★½ (1989) Kevin Costner, Amy Madigan. Despite the dismay of friends and family, a farmer obeys a spiritual request to build a ballpark in his cornfield. (In Stereo) (CC) 2:30. October 26 12pm.

Fire Birds ★★ (1990) Nicolas Cage, Tommy Lee Jones. An Army helicopter pilot undergoes rigorous training for a confrontation with South American drug dealers. (In Stereo) 2:00. October 30 7pm.

Fire Over England ★★½ (1937) Laurence Olivier, Vivien Leigh. A British officer volunteers to spy on the Spanish and foil King Philip's plans to launch his armada. 2:00. October 26 5am.

Firestarter ★★½ (1984) David Keith, Drew Barrymore. The father of a girl endowed with the ability to ignite anything at will fights to protect her from government agents. (In Stereo) 2:00. November 1 3pm.

The Floradora Girl ★★★ (1930) Marion Davies, Lawrence Gray. An 1890s flapper holds out for true love while her gold-hunting friends marry for money. 1:30. October 26 5am.

Andrea Parker

A: Cameron, 27, is married to Chelsea Noble, 33, who co-starred with him on Growing Pains and Kirk Bach, 43, is married to Peter Lopez.

Q: Anne Archer of Fatal Attraction has a famous parent, but I can't remember who it is. Can you help me? -Luana Sheadel, Longview, Wash.

A: Archer is the daughter of Marjorie Lord, best known as Kathy Williams, the long-suffering second wife of nightclub entertainer Danny Williams (Danny Thomas) on the long-running sitcom The Danny Thomas Show.

She reprised that character in the short-lived 1970 sequel Make Room for Granddaddy.

Q: Last summer, my husband and I visited Edinburgh, Scotland, and visited the grave of Greyfriars Bobby. Is the Disney film about this famous, faithful little dog available on video? -P.M.C., Holiday, Fla.

A: Yes, it is available from Walt Disney Home Video.

SOAP WORLD

There has never been a better time for King

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

He's made the move from daytime to prime time; now T.W. King (ex-Danny, The City) is jumping through time.

The former soap actor stars in Timecop, airing Mondays on ABC.

In the series, which is based on the Jean-Claude Van Damme film of the same name, King plays Jack Logan, a police officer from the year 2007, who protects history by traveling through time to catch fellow travelers who are trying to change the past.

King says his character is far from perfect.

"Every great hero has a tragic flaw, and I think that Jack Logan probably has more than one," he says. "There will be foibles that just make him more human. That's something I would like to inject in the character - don't want him to be someone that people can't identify with, particularly myself. He's good at what he does, but he doesn't take himself too seriously."

Executive producer Robert Singer agrees. "The character does have one flaw in that while he knows he's supposed to preserve history just as it is, he's a sucker for someone in dire trouble," he says. "But that's the kind of humanist quality that we want to put into the character."

It wasn't required for the role, but King's background in martial arts saved him the trouble of having to learn the fighting technique on the job.

"I studied something called muay thai, which is Thai kickboxing," he says. "It's the national sport of Thailand."

With the concept of traveling through history, story ideas for Timecop are limitless. King says sitcom stars have even offered ideas.

"We were at the affiliates' meeting in Orlando, and Drew Carey had a suggestion that maybe we have an episode where I go back to 1991 and push Jerry Seinfeld off a cliff," he recalls with a laugh.

There also are no plans at present for the timecop to travel back in time to save The City from certain death. But you never know.

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

"Festival of Trees" time is here again. We hope all of you can endure the change it makes around the center while we are involved with this project. It is our major annual fund-raiser and there is no way we could make it financially without it or some other project equal to it. We enjoy this particular project because of the involvement with the community. The interaction with the school children is a great challenge and we enjoy them so much. Without them, our festival wouldn't be the same.

We have another festival meeting at 9 a.m. Monday. All volunteers please be here. A lot of work has been going on and we need to report.

Clara and Alice, co-chairmen of the bazaar, have a lot of baskets, wreaths and small trees ready. They are asking for all who can donate some hand-crafted items, please bring them as soon as possible.

Eunice Boyer needs all who can bring items for the bake sale to let her know. She would like to know what you are donating and what day you will bring it.

Trees will be set up Friday, Nov. 7, in the afternoon and decorating will start on Monday, Nov. 10 in the early a.m. All trees must be finished by Monday, the 17th - late.

This year we changed the day of the Gala/Auction to Friday. The style

Annual fund-raising festival will be held at Hereford Senior Center

The annual Festival of Trees will be Nov. 19-23 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger.

The Festival of Trees marks the beginning of the holiday season at the center.

The main feature of the event is the display of beautifully decorated trees for the residents of the community and visitors to the area to enjoy during five days of entertainment and activities for people of all ages.

This display, within a festival setting, is a major community involvement and fund-raising project for the Hereford Senior Citizens Association. In 1996, approximately 5,000 people attended the display and took part in festival activities.

The event is made possible by business organizations, institutions and individuals through advertising, sponsorship of tree display and festival cost, voluntary tree designing and decoration, and donated entertainment and time.

The decorated trees are sold at auction during the festival and delivered to the buyers the week following Thanksgiving.

The proceeds of the auction and other festival activities are used by the center to provide services to senior citizens during the following year.

Activities which are continuous throughout the festival include the Herd Restaurant, Bake Shop, tree display, children's shopping, children's crafts, Memorial Tree, Holiday Bazaar, Lionel trains display, children's programs and best tree selection.

These activities begin at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19. The Preview of Trees is from 5 p.m.-8 p.m. that same day.

There is no admission charge for the continuous festival activities, the preview or the tree auction.

For festival activities which include refreshments or a meal, there is a charge and reservations are required. There is a charge for the Holiday Turkey Buffet but reservations are not required.

One popular activity of the festival is the Lionel train display provided by the Nolan Henson family of Happy. Youngsters from Hereford area schools are eager to see the display and the changes made in it from year to year.

The community is encouraged to view the trees and enjoy all the activities of the Festival of Trees.

Employee Spotlight

ROSEMARY SMITHERS

Rosemary first started working at the Senior Center Nov. 15, 1978, as a receptionist and driver. At that time we were in the old Central School building. In 1980 she married Leroy, whom she says is the most fantastic husband, and resigned from her position with HSCA.

In 1983 Rosemary returned to full-time employment with us as a faithful employee.

Rosemary has a son, Chris, and three grandchildren. She says they are the greatest.

She loves working at the center and with our Senior Citizens. She says they are more like family and the best people in the world.

Rosemary has been quite ill lately and the concern of our seniors is of great encouragement to her.

Thanks to you, Rosemary, for all you do for us!

MARGIE

a tremendous success. On Saturday evening we will again present a wonderful melodrama. More fun!!

We will look forward to seeing all of you at the festival.

We wish all a happy and safe Thanksgiving. It is a time to count our blessings and express our appreciation to our families, friends, community and wonderful country, The United States of America!

See you at the Center!

President's Corner

By Norma Thurston, HSCA President

Dear Friends,

Another month has come and gone. The Festival of Trees is just around the corner. Everyone is working to get things done before the last minute.

We went to New Mexico last week. There were no aspen but the colors were still very pretty.

I had a little hard luck just before dinner on Saturday. I fell and broke my arm. It certainly has been inconvenient, to say the least.

At our recent general meeting, three new board members were elected: Alvin Schmucker, Mildred Betzen and Carol McGilvary. Carol had been on the board to fill out Rubin's term, but she was put back on for her own term. There will be two members going off the board, Cecil Boyer and Clara Reinart. They will be missed.

Love,
Norma

"Assistant District Manager"

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: I read that if everyone received his or her Social Security benefits by direct deposit that it would save the government $8.4 millions month. There's no way this can be true—can it?

A: Yes, besides direct deposit being safer and more convenient for beneficiaries, direct deposit it more efficient and saves money for the government because it's cheaper than preparing and mailing monthly checks. The government saves 40 cents each time someone uses direct deposit instead of a check. It costs 42 cents deposit. And yes, if everyone signed up for direct deposit, it would save the government $8.4 millions a month!

Q: My neighbor will start cleaning my house two times a month. I'll be paying her $80 a month. Do I need to report this to Social Security?

A: If you pay your household worker $1,000 or more in cash wages during a year, you are responsible for reporting the household worker's wages. Since you'll be paying less than $1,000 ($960) for the year, you do not have to report your household worker's wages. For more information about household employees, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, and ask for the factsheet, "Household Workers."

Q: I am receiving Social Security disability benefits. I've heard that you can continue to receive benefits while you attempt to work, but I'm afraid to ask my Social Security office because they might think I'm not disabled. Can you tell me about this?

A: There are a number of special rules, called "work incentives," which may make it possible for you to continue to receive disability benefits while you work. These work incentives may also help with your work expenses, medical bills and rehabilitation and vocational training. They are designed to eliminate that risk of losing benefits while you attempt to work. Social Security encourages people to use work incentives. You should contact your local Social Security office or call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213 and ask for the leaflet, "Working While Disabled...How Social Security Can Help."

Q: Is it true that the retirement age is going up?

A: Yes. Because of longer life expectancies, the full retirement age will be increased in gradual steps until it reaches age 67. This change starts in the year 2000 and affects people born in 1938 and later. No matter what your "full" retirement age is, you may start receiving a reduced retirement benefit as early as age 62. If you'd like more information about retirement, call Social Security at 1-800-772-1213 and ask for the booklet, "Retirement."

Q: Will I automatically start getting Social Security benefits when I turn age 65?

A: No, Social Security does not start automatically. You've got to apply for it. If you're nearing retirement, you should know that it's best to contact Social Security several months ... even a year ... before your planned retirement date. Then you can be sure that you start your Social Security when it's best for you.

If you wish to have your questions answered in this column, please write to: Byron Sansom, District Manager, Senior Scene, Social Security Administration, 3501 W. 45th, Suite E., Amarillo, Texas 79106.

Extract slows Alzheimer's, study finds

AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some Alzheimer's disease patients are helped slightly by ginkgo biloba extract, a compound used in traditional Chinese medicine for thousands of years, according to a study published recently.

Researchers report in the Journal of the American Medical Association that about a third of the dementia patients treated with ginkgo extract showed some improvement after 52 weeks when compared with a similar group of patients who took a placebo.

Benefits from ginkgo were called modest by Dr. Pierre L. LeBars of the New York Institute for Medical Research, lead author of the study. He said the effects were apparent only after about six months of taking the extract.

"The study is the source of more questions than answers," said LeBars. He said ginkgo's effects on the brain are not understood but may be related to antioxidants, compounds that neutralize a destructive form of oxygen.

The ginkgo extract used in the study, called EGb 761, has been approved for medical use in Germany, but not in the United

Nutrition Notes

Charlotte R. Clark
MS RD/LD
THE NUTRIENT MINERAL-CALCIUM

Three out of every adult women fail to meet the current recommended daily intake for calcium. This mineral is essential for building and maintaining strong bones. It also helps muscle contact and the heart beat, and regulates nerve function.

HOW MUCH IS ENOUGH?
Getting enough calcium is always important, NO MATTER WHAT YOUR AGE. Calcium needs vary throughout life, becoming more critical for certain age groups. Calcium needs are greatest during childhood and adolescence to meet the demands of rapid growth. Pregnant and breast-feeding women also have increased calcium needs. In later years, post-menopausal women have high calcium requirements to minimize bone loss.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR ME?
Over time, getting enough calcium can help prevent the development of osteoporosis, a bone-thinning disease affecting millions of Americans, both men and women. Osteoporosis weakens bones, making them silent until a bone breaks.

GETTING AT THE SOURCE
Dairy products such as milk, yogurt, and cheese are primary sources of calcium. To cut down on fat, choose reduced-fat, low-fat or fat free dairy products for adults and children over the age two. Other sources of calcium include dark-green leafy vegetables such as broccoli, kale and bok choy; sardines and salmon with bones, calcium-fortified foods such as fruit juices, soy milk, breakfast cereals, and breakfast bars; and tofu made with calcium.

To get the most from the calcium-rich foods you eat, you also need vitamin D from fortified foods and sunshine. Milk, some cereals, and juices are examples of foods and fortified with vitamin D. Vitamin D helps your body absorb the calcium, in food and deposit it in bones and teeth.

Weight-bearing physical activity also helps strengthen bone. Regular physical activity such as walking, running, dancing, tennis, golf (without the cart) and even gardening will help keep bones strong.

MORE TO FOOD THAN JUST FAT AND CALORIES

When shopping, read food labels and select foods that provide greater amounts of vitamins and minerals for comparable amounts of calories. In the case of calcium, look for foods that contain 10 % or more of the Daily Value (DV) for calcium. Foods high in calcium may be labeled as "calcium-rich" or "excellent source of calcium."

CLOSING THE CALCIUM GAP

To boost the calcium of your meals and snacks:

*Try yogurt topped with crunchy breakfast cereals for a snack.

*Look for products labeled "calcium-rich" or "excellent source of calcium."

*Pack a calcium-fortified breakfast bar in our briefcase, backpack, or purse for an easy, portable source of calcium.

If you're lactose intolerant (have trouble digesting the sugar found in milk), look for lactose-free milk or try yogurt or hard cheese that are low in lactose. In addition to lots of leafy green vegetables, choose calcium-fortified foods, fruit juices, soy milk, breakfast cereals, and breakfast bars.

TEST YOUR CALCIUM INTAKE

Do you include two or more servings of milk, yogurt, cheese, or other calcium-rich foods every day?
 Yes  No

Do you choose calcium-fortified products such as breakfast cereals, fruit juices, or breakfast bars?
 Yes  No

While shopping, do you make it a priority to check labels for foods that are high in calcium?

 Yes  No

Does your physical activity plan include weight-bearing activities?
 Yes  No

Do you regularly include fish with edible bones, tofu processed with calcium, and green leafy vegetables in your eating plan?

SCORE YOURSELF

If most of your answers were "Yes" you're well on your way to meeting your calcium needs. Keep up the great work!

If the majority of your answers were "No", it's likely you're short-changing yourself on calcium. Use the tips in this update to boost your daily calcium intake -- it's easier than you think.

States. LeBars said it is uncertain if the herb sold as a diet supplement in this country would have the same effect as EGb 761.

Zavern Khachaturian of the Alzheimer's Association said the study of ginkgo "shows something is working a little bit for some people," but more studies are needed "before we can begin to draw any conclusions" about use of the extract for Alzheimer's patients.

LeBars, who discussed the study at an AMA conference Tuesday, said the ginkgo extract used was a highly refined compound produced in Europe from the leaves, nuts and branches of the ginkgo biloba tree. He said it differs from the ginkgo extract commonly available in health food stores in the United States.

A total of 327 dementia patients were initially enrolled in the study, but only 137 were included in the final results. The others were excluded or dropped out for various

THANKSGIVING

Dear Lord, on this Thanksgiving Day
With grateful hearts we bow and pray
For blessings given from our birth
Exceeding way beyond our worth—
For friends who've proven to be true;
For pets, which count as friendships too;
For home and country, health and love—
All sent to us from Heaven above.
Lord, please continue to be near
And guide us through another year.

Lord, let me not be boastful of
Some good that I have done,
But keep me ever mindful that
From You my blessings come.

I do not ask for riches grand,
Nor skies forever fair;
A Closer walk with You, dear Lord,
This is my daily prayer.

Quilt give-away

This "Star" quilt will be given away on Nov. 23 at the conclusion of the Festival of Trees. The top was pieced by Estelle Ware and quilting was done by the Sugar Ants Quilters at the Senior Center. Tickets are available for $1 donation. Quilters pictured are, from left, Ruth Fortenberry, Marvin Mathis, Merle Boozer, Margaret Baxter and Estelle Ware.

STUDY

reasons, including death.

All the patients had dementia, a progressive mental decline, with 251 patients diagnosed with Alzheimer's. The rest had suffered strokes. At the start, all the patients were evaluated using standard tests measuring reasoning, memory and behavior.

The patients were divided, with about half taking the ginkgo extract and half taking a sugar pill. Neither patients nor their caregivers knew who got the extract or the placebo.

At the end of 52 weeks, the study found that 27 percent of the patients taking ginkgo achieved a four-point improvement on the Alzheimer's Disease Assessment Scale, one of the standard tests. About 14 percent of the placebo patients showed a similar improvement.

On a test based on the evaluation of caregivers, 37 percent of the ginkgo patients were considered improved, vs. 23 percent of those on placebo.

No difference was found in a third test.

There also was little difference between the ginkgo patients and the placebo patients in the side effects observed during the study.

Sixteen percent of the patients on ginkgo reported adverse side effects that were linked to the drug, compared to 12 percent of the placebo group. Among the ginkgo patients, there were 12 adverse reactions considered to be of "severe intensity," while there were nine such events among those on placebo.

Ginkgo is thought to contain compounds that can cause blood thinning. Some people taking the herb also experience gastrointestinal reactions.

Some forms of ginkgo have been a part of traditional medicine for thousands of years in China, where the herb is said to be beneficial for a variety of ailments, from arthritis to emotional depression.

Look for the ridiculous in everything and you will find it.

Medication: What You Should Know

(NAPS)—What can you do to make sure your medicine remains effective?

The answers to some commonly asked questions can help protect your medicine:

Q: What changes the stability and strength of medicines?

A: Two factors are environmental extremes and aging. Heat, cold, dryness, humidity, and/or direct exposure to light or moisture can affect the stability and strength of medicines. Storing medicines on a kitchen window sill, in a bathroom medicine cabinet, or in a car, where they may be exposed to freezing window panes, sunlight, warm stoves, wet kitchen counters, humid bathrooms, or hot glove compartments may be convenient but can cause your medicines to be less effective.

Just as fresh foods lose nutrients over time, the ingredients in some medicines can lose their potency over time. If you pay attention to the expiration dates on your medicine containers you will know when your medicines may have lost the strength needed to be effective against an illness or symptom.

Hints from Heloise

COMFORTER

Dear Heloise: I recently purchased a queen-size comforter. When I took it out of the bag and put it on my bed, it looked terrible because it was wrinkled from being folded into quarters.

Because of the size and bulk of it, I could not put it on the ironing board, so I ironed it on the bed! It worked perfectly, and I was even able to iron the sides. The mattress cover and sheets were a better pad than the one on my ironing board! — Marge Moore, Bulverde, Texas

OLD LAUNDRY BASKET

Dear Heloise: My old rectangular laundry baskets were cracked and broken at the top, making them difficult to carry.

I recycled them by putting them in the trunk of my car to hold grocery bags. This keeps paper bags from tipping over and keeps the contents of a plastic bag from sliding everywhere. — J.J., Canandaigua, N.Y.

SHELF LINER

Dear Heloise: I found a much better alternative to sticky, hard-to-use shelf paper.

I use no-wax, self-adhesive vinyl floor tile. This is the same material used on bathroom and kitchen floors. I simply peel the paper off and line the shelf, a square foot at a time. I cut the tile with a linoleum knife, score it and bend it until the tile snaps. I found an old, dull paper cutter speeds up the process considerably.
