Fighting the fire

Fire Marshal Jay Spain, standing at left, and firefighter David Spain watch a crew hose down a grass fire west of Hereford Wednesday afternoon. The flames blackened some four to five acres of land just south of the railroad tracks and caused damage to an abandoned building on the property. The two Spains also set some small fires in the dry grass near the roadway to keep the flames from jumping the road and threatening a house. The fire was reported by Augustin Padilla and Bill Urbanczyk at 2:05 p.m. Padilla said the men discovered it and immediately began using tractors to plow under grass along the road near a house. ## Sen. Hutchison re-indicted again

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - A Travis County grand jury today re-indicted U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison on a charge of official misconduct.

The indictment alleges that as state treasurer in 1991 and 1992, Mrs. Hutchison misused state employees and state computer equipment. The charge is a third-degree felony punishable by a maximum of 10 years in prison.

The grand jury has charged her with having two employees alter computer archive tapes by removing files and directories of other Treasury employees.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, has been accused of using the office for personal and political purposes, then destroying records as part of a cover-up. She denies any wrongdoing and contends that the investigation is a conspiracy by Democrats to derail her re-election bid.

Today's indictment came in response to last month's decision by a judge to throw out four of five earlier charges against Mrs. Hutchison because the indictments were too vague.

During a pretrial hearing, visiting Judge John Onion Jr. gave prosecutors 10 days to correct the indictments. The pretrial hearing is scheduled to continue Friday.

Still left pending by the grand jury were indictments that had alleged tampering with governmental records and tampering with evidence. Prosecutors have said they may be able to amend those charges without going through the grand jury.

Mrs. Hutchison served as state treasurer from 1991 until winning the special Senate election last June.

In a related development, lawyers for Mrs. Hutchison have asked a judge to order a newspaper reporter to answer how he obtained records that led to the first news accounts related to ethics charges against her.

The motion filed by defense lawyer Dick DeGuerin says Houston Post reporter Gardner Selby "obtained, in some fashion, documents which had been taken from the Treasury computer system in violation of (the Texas penal code) or from Treasury premises without authorization."

Selby's April 18, 1992, article detailed how Mrs. Hutchison's political records were being kept on a state computer at the Treasury. The article was based on material received from confidential sources, the newspaper reported Wednesday.

Post Vice President and Editor Gerald Garcia said the newspaper would not violate the confidentiality of sources.

"When we give our word to our sources, we don't break it," Garcia said. "Sometimes as part of our gathering of information, we have to extend a pledge of confidentiality to an individual or group. It is very important."

White House gets subpoena to turn over real estate papers

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Under a subpoena negotiated with the Justice Department, the White House will begin today turning over documents detailing the first family's role in an Arkansas real estate venture. Senate Republican leader Bob Dole called the arrangement "almost unbelievable."

"It has gotten out of hand now because the White House is running the investigation, not the Justice Department," Dole said, renewing his call for an independent investigation.

"I think it cries out more than ever now for an independent counsel," he told CBS.

The White House said it would begin turning over the documents that detail the Clintons' half-ownership of Whitewater Development Corp.

Spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said about half of the Clintons' documents will be turned over to federal prosecutors today, including the file found in White House lawyer Vincent Foster's office shortly after he committed suicide in July. The entire collection will fill five or six boxes, she said.

Prosecutors are trying to learn whether funds were illegally diverted from the failed Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan to Whitewater and if depositors' funds were used to help retire Clinton's 1984 gubernatorial campaign debts. Clinton has maintained that he did nothing improper.

Madison was owned by longtime Clinton supporter James McDougal, who, with his wife, Susan, co-owed Whitewater with the Clintons.

White House senior adviser Bruce

Lindsey said the subpoena ensures the privacy of the documents and "the privacy of the process as provided for by federal law." The subpoena also makes it more difficult for others, like members of Congress, to gain access to the materials.

Once records are subpoenaed, the records officially become part of a criminal probe - and those investigations take precedence over requests for the same documents from Congress or other fact-finders.

The president's private counsel, David Kendall, requested the grand jury subpoena Dec. 23 and it was issued the next day.

The White House had said it would take several weeks to deliver the documents, but the administration faces growing publicity and calls from congressional Republicans for appointment of a special prosecutor to look into the matter.

The development came as House Republicans began negotiations with the federal S&L cleanup agency for records related to a failed Arkansas thrift, according to congressional sources familiar with the talks.

Some five boxes of material will be turned over to Justice, Lindsey said in an interview.

While the subpoena calls for all the documents to be submitted by Jan. 18, most of the material will be submitted before then. "We will not wait until 18th," he said.

Meanwhile, congressional sources said the Resolution Trust Corp. is being asked to provide Madison records of money-losing transactions, accounts of those with outstanding loans when the thrift failed and analyses of the thrift's financial health prepared by outside auditors.

In addition, one source said, investigators are seeking an analysis of the thrift's troubles prepared by a Memphis law firm less than 18 months before the thrift's failure in 1989.

That document could provide information about questionable transactions and reveal whether anyone close to Clinton was involved in the months preceding the thrift's demise.

Another crucial question is whether House investigators will gain access to the nine criminal referrals prepared by the RTC in which the Clintons - and others close to them - were named as possible beneficiaries of questionable loan arrangements with Madison.

The referrals were provided to Justice Department officials by RTC investigators in September.

Troops put down Mexican uprising

SAN CRISTOBAL DE LAS CASAS, Mexico (AP) - With a New Year's uprising by Indian peasants nearly quashed, the president sent his top human rights official to the battle zone to investigate possible abuses by the army.

The government also admitted Wednesday it had known the guerrillas had been operating in poverty-stricken Chiapas state since last spring, but it kept the information quiet because of the region's "backwardness" and the history of mistreatment of Indians there.

And it moved to build support among the predominantly Mayan people in Chiapas whose plight the rebels are championing. It announced 20 tons of powdered milk, beans, rice and other food would be flown in today to help those in areas hit by the fighting.

The army solidified its control over the region after completing a series of air attacks Wednesday on rebel positions south of San Cristobal de las Casas, about 450 miles southeast of Mexico City. Heavily armed troops guarded the city's main plaza and blocked major highways today as guerrillas continued their retreat into mountain jungles.

Interior Ministry spokesman Eloy Cantu Segovia said rebels remained active in some remote areas of Chiapas, which borders Guatemala and the Pacific.

The military said 105 people had been killed in the fighting, including seven soldiers and 61 rebels.

The government offered to negotiate but set conditions that would amount to surrender. Authorities demanded the guerrillas first disarm, then identify its leaders, free hostages and surrender 1( tons of stolen dynamite.

When the revolt began Jan. 1, the government said it had never heard of the group calling itself the Zapatista National Liberation Army.

Maldonado to run for commission

EDWARD MALDONADO

Edward Maldonado, 37, announced Monday, the last day to file for office in the March primary elections, that he will seek election in the Democratic primary for the Precinct 4, Deaf Smith County Commission post.

Maldonado will face incumbent Johnny Latham in the March primary election. There are no Republican candidates for the office.

A resident of Hereford for 24 years, Maldonado said this will be his first attempt at seeking a political office. He graduated from high school in Greeley, Col. He is employed as a supervisor with Excel in Friona and has been the Spanish program director at KPAN for 12 years.

Maldonado serves as co-chairman of the Mexican American Democrats in Deaf Smith County. He was named as Hereford's Hispanic Citizen of the Year in 1989.

He and his wife, Sandra, a teacher at Hereford Junior High, have three children--Stephanie, 19; Michael, 5, and Megan, 3. They are members of San Jose Catholic Church, where he and his wife direct the youth choir.

Ex-Speaker O'Neill dies of heart attack

BOSTON (AP) - Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, the snowy-haired Boston pol who rose from Democratic ward leader to speaker of the House on the credo "All politics is local," has died at 81.

With his girth, booming voice, ruddy face and bulbous nose, O'Neill became his party's standard-bearer - and, to the GOP, the embodiment of bloated, tax-and-spend government under the Democrats - during the Reagan years.

O'Neill died Wednesday of a heart attack at Brigham and Women's hospital, where he had gone for a checkup, relatives said.

The son of a bricklayer, O'Neill transformed the House speakership from a political and parliamentary post to a bully pulpit he used in his many battles against President Reagan. He once called Reagan the "least knowledgeable of any president I've ever met, on any subject. He works by 3-by-5 cards."

In a statement, Reagan said O'Neill was "one of our nation's most distinguished legislators," and remembered their battles almost fondly.

"It is no secret that Tip and I often had differing political views," Reagan said. "But as Tip once said during one of our fierce political battles: 'Don't worry, when five o'clock rolls around, we'll put business aside and just be friends.' I must confess that on more than one occasion, Tip and I found ourselves turning our watches ahead to the five o'clock hour."

A New Deal liberal, O'Neill lived

Democratic politics from the day he was elected to his ward committee in 1936, just before graduating from Boston College, until 1987, when he retired at the end of his 17th term in Congress and fifth as speaker.

His credo, passed onto him by his father, was simple: "Do the best you can for your neighbor. Never forget from where you come. And see if you can improve the lot of your fellow man."

Odor is not dangerous, says Energas

Concerns about gas odors in Hereford and the area were reported to Energas here Wednesday and Thursday, and the company is working to solve the problem, it was reported shortly before noon today.

Classes at Hereford High School were dismissed about an hour early Wednesday because of the gas odor. Energas reported it has received numerous calls.

"Apparently our supplier has over-odorized the gas. As far as we can determine, no danger is involved and we are working to solve the odor problem," said Wayne Keeter, Energas official here.

"We want people to continue to call so we can check all cases until we get the odor back to normal," said Keeter. Natural gas has no odor, so an agent is added to supply the odor.

Waiting around

Kathleen Cooper, editor of the Hereford High School yearbook Round Up, finds a comfortable way to sit while waiting for students to stop by a voting booth at the auditorium on Wednesday. The yearbook is conducting balloting this week for Koobraey, an annual yearbook event where students vote to give their peers numerous honorary titles for the school year, including Miss HHS, Mr. HHS and Cutest Couple.

Heading off the flames

Water is sprayed from a snorkel atop the Hereford Fire Department's 5,000-gallon tanker truck onto an abandoned building that was in the middle of a field that caught fire

GOP candidates withdraw from race

Party left with only one for lieutenant governor

AUSTIN (AP) - The Republican Party's primary for lieutenant governor took two days to settle.

Two of the three Republicans who filed this week to challenge Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock pulled out of the race Wednesday. The withdrawals of Louis Podesta and Randy Staudt will give the GOP nomination to Dallas lawyer Tex Lezar.

"We commend their decision to withdraw and allow the party to focus on our ultimate goal of defeating Bob Bullock," said GOP Chairman Fred Meyer.

Bullock, a Democrat, was elected lieutenant governor in 1990 after several terms as state comptroller.

Lezar is president of the Texas Public Policy Foundation and was an unsuccessful candidate for the 1990 GOP attorney general nomination.

Podesta, a San Antonio businessman, initially campaigned for governor but switched races hours before Monday's filing deadline. Staudt is a Leander city councilman who opposed Apple Computer's domestic partnership policy for same-sex couples when the company sought tax breaks from Williamson County.

Meyer said both men had entered the race to ensure that Republicans fielded an opponent to Bullock.

Elsewhere on the campaign trail Wednesday:

- Dallas businessman Richard Fisher said his bid for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination would be "a little rebellion" against entrenched politicians and special interests.

Fisher, a former adviser to independent presidential candidate Ross Perot, said the time has come for Democrats to try a new approach.

"It is time for our party and our country to move forward. It is time for a little rebellion. It is time for the people in Washington to take their hands out of our pockets and get to work," Fisher said.

"We have too many bureaucracies. We have too little personal security. Our health care system, our welfare system, our Social Security system are all in need of repair," he said.

Fisher said he alone could defeat incumbent Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison. "They marketed her as an outsider, a business person, a reformer. The fact is, she's none of the above," Fisher said.

- One of Fisher's primary election opponents, former Attorney General Jim Mattox, continued his call for placing military troops under civilian control along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"The South Texas and far West Texas border areas are in poverty because Washington refuses to assume the costs of illegal activities, including illegal immigration," he said.

The idea drew criticism from Republican U.S. Senate candidate M. Troy Mata.

"I know the Mexican people. The main reason they cross the border into the U.S. is to obtain a better life for themselves financially. That is why I, as does Gov. Pete Wilson of California, support limiting governmental benefits given to illegal aliens," Mata said.

Mattox also proposed that soldiers be decommissioned from the military, retrained and sent to cities in law enforcement posts.

"Nationwide, our police departments are operating at 50 percent per capita of where they were in the 1970s. They need more resources to fight crime and drugs in our cities. We could do that with any military personnel who might lose their jobs due to (defense) cutbacks," he said.

Mattox said he wasn't certain how many soldiers should be shifted to such jobs or how much the plan would cost.

- Abilene demolition contractor Ray Hollis, who says that in his line of work "I can blow up anything," said his gubernatorial campaign will air a plan to blow up the current tax system and replace it with a 1 percent surcharge on every dollar spent.

Hollis, 68, told a Capitol news conference he decided to run for governor - his first bid for office - out of frustration over the tax system.

He proposed replacing all taxes with a 1 percent surcharge on every transaction, including wholesale and retail sales of goods, services performed, payrolls, and financial transactions such as loans, stocks and bonds.

"If you spend a dollar, you pay a penny," he said. "All other taxes would be eliminated."

Newsman passes checkpoint just before firefight in Mexico

By PHILIP TRUE

San Antonio Express-News
ALTAMIRANO, Mexico - A firefight between Mexican soldiers and a van loaded with armed people broke out at an army roadblock near here late Tuesday afternoon moments after I cleared the checkpoint and began driving away.

It was semiautomatic weapons fire and appeared to come from every direction as soldiers scrambled for cover and began to return the fire.

In the rearview mirror I could see the van pulled to the side of the road. Weapons were pointing in all directions.

I got out of there quickly while the screams of three women hitchhikers I had picked up earlier all but drowned out the noise of the engine of my battered, rented Volkswagen "Beetle."

The firefight came at the end of a day I spent searching Chiapas state for members of the Zapatista Army of National Liberation, who had occupied this town of about 10,000 since storming out of the forests last Saturday as part of a New Year's Day statewide rebellion.

I arrived here to find a stunned, frightened and hungry people just beginning to emerge from their homes where they had hidden over the weekend.

More than 100 Zapatista guerrillas abandoned this town shortly before I reached here. Townspeople told me I was the first outsider in Altamirano since last week.

Residents pleaded with me to get word to the Mexican army to occupy their town in case the guerrillas tried to return.

"Please tell the army to come tonight! We are afraid that they are going to come back," one frightened man said of the guerrillas.

The Zapatistas left the eight-member municipal police officers dead and municipal government buildings in ruins.

The mayor was reported to have been missing since Saturday, and residents said they did not know what happened to him.

Burned-out automobiles lined the highway to the town. A truck belonging to the State Judicial Police contained the charred remains of at least one officer who reportedly was killed by the guerrillas early Saturday before his vehicle was set afire.

Residents said at least two other police officers were buried in shallow graves not far away, and a starving dog could be seen gnawing at what appeared to be a human pelvis on the street.

House-bound residents cautiously emerged from their homes as the guerrillas, members of the previously unknown Zapatista Army of National Liberation, melted into the mountain forests widespread in the state of Chiapas in the southwestern tip of Mexico.

The townspeople began an immediate search for food only to find shops and markets shuttered and deserted.

They reluctantly talked with me, but most insisted on not giving their names out of fear of reprisals later.

"I lived on tortillas and water for three days," one woman said. "I'm out looking now for something to eat maybe some beans," she said as she carried a large, empty tin cup in her hand.

This city about 40 kilometers southwest of Ocosingo and high in a mountain valley was deserted of its government.

The police force was wiped out in the initial assault on the town by the guerrillas, townspeople said.

Reaching here involved detouring around army roadblocks thrown up on the main highways to keep people out of the areas thought to be occupied by the Zapatistas.

Once I got to the town and was told by stunned residents that the guerrillas had left about two hours earlier, I headed into the mountains southeast of the city in search of them.

I finally had to return after finding no trace of them.

Soon after taking over this city Saturday, the guerrillas destroyed the telephone lines, a radio transmitter and other communications equipment linking it with San Cristobal de las Casas, Comitán and other major areas of Chiapas.

"They cut the television antenna, so we didn't know what was happening (in San Cristobal)," said one woman who was visiting her family when the guerrillas attacked.

One resident, Alfredo Casteneda,

AUSTIN (AP) - The Lotto Texas Pick 3 winning numbers drawn Wednesday by the Texas Lottery, in this order:

2-7-4 (two, seven, four) said: "They knocked down the municipal radio antenna. People are very scared. Many haven't even left their homes yet. I didn't even know they had attacked San Cristobal."

The road from here to San Cristobal was lined with fallen trees and boulders used as roadblocks, and burned-out cars were a familiar sight.

A municipal bus taken Sunday by the guerrillas as they fled San Cristobal sat alongside the road where it had been abandoned after being riddled with bullets.

Naturalized citizen claims New Year's Day drawing

AUSTIN (AP) - Luis A. Retana never would have imagined that coming to America could be so lucrative.

Retana, 29, who moved to McAllen from Reynosa, Mexico, 10 years ago and became an American citizen on July 4, 1992, claimed a $7.8 million Lotto Texas prize on Wednesday that was drawn on New Year's Day.

"This is the American dream," Retana said in broken English. "I'm living a dream right now. I need to wake up."

Retana and his wife, Mireya, collected the first installment of $288,400.98 and will receive $282,240 on Jan. 15 each of the next 19 years.

When asked if he would continue his job as a draftsman in McAllen, a wide smile crossed Retana's face and he replied, "I don't think so."

Retana said he didn't immediately realize he had become a millionaire because he and his wife were in Mexico at the time of the drawing.

When he returned, he spoke to a co-worker who misquoted one of the six numbers drawn.

"I thought I had five out of six," Retana said. "I didn't realize I had won the drawing until I checked myself."

"I told my wife, but she thought I was kidding," Retana said.

Retana said he already has designed a house he wants to build and is considering drafting some bigger plans now that he has a beefed up bank account.

He said he wants to include a "big garden" for his 1-year-old daughter, Fria.

At least one other person in the McAllen area boasted to local media that they were the lucky winner.

But Retana said he never worried. "I knew I have the winning ticket," Retana said. "I don't have to worry about the ticket because I have the winner."

Retana's winning numbers were 2, 15, 18, 32, 39 and 48. Town & Country No. 1 in McAllen will receive $78,485.57 for selling the winning ticket.

AUSTIN (AP) - Here are results of Lotto Texas winning numbers drawn Wednesday by the Texas Lottery:

(four, twelve, twenty-four, twenty-eight, thirty-eight, forty-two)

Estimated Lotto Texas jackpot: $3 million

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was single, I occasionally went out to dinner and the theater was a married man who worked in the same office. I didn't consider it "dating"--we were just friends. We never actually had an affair, but I must admit I was interested in him. I didn't ask if his wife knew he was taking me out. Perhaps I didn't want the guilt of knowing the answer.

I am now married and recently learned that my husband has been seeing an associate in his firm for over a year. He insists they are just friends. I do not feel comfortable with this friendship, since he has lied to me on several occasions about where he has been and with whom.

I now know how it feels when the shoe is on the other foot. My trust in my husband has been shaken. I didn't give this a thought when I was single and going out "innocently" with a married man. I hope your readers will learn something from my experience. -Alice in Arlington

DEAR ALICE: There are many platonic relationships among co-workers, but I would wonder about the decency of a married man who would take a single colleague to dinner and the theater while his wife sits at home (probably with the kids).

If your husband is "seeing" an associate and lying about his whereabouts, I suggest that you not be so passive. Have a showdown, and clear the air.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the father of two adopted children. We've graced them onto our family tree as securely as if they had been born to us. They have received sustenance and nourishment from my wife and me and our extended family. Their grandparents are my mother and father and my wife's mother and father. Our brothers and sisters and their aunts and uncles. Our nephews and nieces are their cousins.

We signed on to become the parents of our daughter and son, not long term baby sitters. We did not agree to be caretakers until our children could find their "real" parents. My wife and I ARE their real parents.

We are grateful to the birth parents for giving our children life and for their willingness to move out of their lives and give them up. They did a noble thing for those children--and for us.

We very much appreciate the fact that they have made no effort to see the beautiful children they gave up so unselfishly. We are also grateful that our children feel that we are indeed their real parents and have no need to go looking for "their roots." --Fulfilled in Peoria

DEAR PEORIA: Thank you for writing. Your letter has given me the opportunity to attempt once more to set the record straight.

It's perfectly OK with me if adopted children set out to find their birth parents, PROVIDED their birth parents are equally enthusiastic about being found. I am strongly opposed, however, to any adopted child unilaterally tracking down his or her birth mother and disrupting her life.

I am also categorically opposed to birth mothers hunting up the children they agreed to put up for adoption and disrupting their lives.

It is only human for a woman who has given up her child to wonder what the child looks like and how he or she is getting along in life, but unless the adoptive parents and the child are totally agreeable to the reunion, I cannot condone it.

Gem of the Day: The true test of generosity is giving a friend something you like so much, you would enjoy keeping it yourself.

Stretch kids' imagination

Are your kids still enjoying their holiday gifts or have some of the gotta-have, high-tech toys lost their luster?

Now might be the time to offer some low tech, make-believe fun to stir your kids' imaginations in new ways.

Engaging in pretend play is one of the most important components of child development. Make-believe play is a child's way of "practicing for life." Whether clanking pots and pans on the kitchen floor, dressing in grownups' clothes or slopping back and forth through a mud puddle, playing out real and imagined experiences activates a child's curiosity about the world.

Here are some creative activities to fire up your child's imagination.

-Turn a chore into a fantasy game. While doing a task with your child, pretend to be someone else. How would Cinderella act making the bed? Or Goldilocks? Or a prince? While washing dishes, pretend you are royal servants scrubbing the queen's golden goblets or Robinson Crusoe washing his handmade bowls.

-Fill several lunch bags with inexpensive yarn and ends such as bits of yarn, stale marshmallows, twist ties from bread bags, toothpicks, a carrot, buttons, leftover wrapping paper, worn-out playing cards, etc. Put a different mix in each bag. Give each of your kids a bag and let them create something from its contents. This makes a great party activity.

-Draw a picture of a dream home. Encourage one another to make it as fantastic as possible adding details such as an anti-gravity room, giant slide from the roof to the basement, a basketball court or even a huge aquarium!

-At bedtime, read books to stimulate the imagination.

After being "lost" for more than 30 years, the thin-spined porcupine was rediscovered in the tropical forests of eastern Brazil. The species, Chaetomys, was feared extinct. Scientists know so little about the creature, that they are not sure it is a porcupine at all. The nocturnal rodent taxonomically appears to fall somewhere between the porcupine and the spiny rat.

Starting time changed for game at Estacado

The starting time for the Hereford boys basketball team's game Friday in Lubbock has been changed to 6 p.m., coach Randy Dean said.

The Hereford boys, 5-13 on the year, take on Estacado at Estacado High School.

There will be no boys' junior varsity game in Lubbock, because the Herd JV and sophomore teams are hosting tournaments in Hereford, starting at 6 today in two gyms. The Hereford teams both play at 7:30 tonight: the JV plays the Dimmitt JV in Whiteface Gym, and the sophomore team takes on the Dalhart JV in the HHS gym. At 6, the games will be Estacado vs. Pampa (JV) and Borger vs. Palo Duro (soph). At 9, the games will be Borger vs. Frenship (JV) and Tascosa vs. Caprock (soph). The Randall JV and Amarillo High sophomores have first-round byes.

No tournament games will be played Friday. The tournament will conclude Saturday with most teams playing two games. The sophomore championship game will be played at 4 p.m. in the Hereford Junior High gym; the JV championship will be at 5:30 in Whiteface Gym.

The tournament will not play on Friday because the Hereford girls' varsity will host the Lady Raiders of Randall at 7:30 p.m. in Whiteface Gym. The junior varsity games will start at 6. These times have been switched from the way they were on the original schedule.

The Lady Whitefaces are 1-0 in District 1-4A play (7-11 overall) after thrashing Caprock 74-49 on Tuesday. Randall is 1-0 and 9-9 after drilling Pampa 78-23 Tuesday.

In Tuesday's other district game, Borger (17-4) edged Dumas (9-10) by a score of 49-48.

The boys open District 1-4A play Jan. 14, when Hereford will host Borger in a girls/boys doubleheader. The Hereford teams will also host Petersburg Tuesday for a non-district doubleheader.

A&M's punishment also hurts SWC

DALLAS (AP)—NCAA sanctions against Texas A&M will mean a loss of prestige and money for the Southwest Conference, but a chance for the Texas Longhorns to emerge as the SWC's marquee program, athletics officials said.

"It's not only going to hurt A&M, it's going to hurt the conference as well if you don't have a team with A&M's national appeal in a bowl game or on TV," Southern Methodist coach Tom Rossley said.

"I think the NCAA has got to do what they think is right. Hopefully they'll never give the death penalty again," said Rossley, whose school was banned from playing football in the late 1980s.

After finding that football players were paid for work that was not performed, the NCAA on Wednesday placed Texas A&M's athletics program on five years' probation and barred its football team from television and bowl appearances for one year.

The sanctions follow a series of troubles that have rocked the conference.

In the past decade, every school currently in the conference except Rice has been investigated by the NCAA for possible infractions in at least one sport.

The most severe troubles occurred in 1986-87, when details of an SMU football scandal emerged and at least two members of the board of governors, including then-Gov. Bill Clements, were accused of condoning payments by athletic boosters to football players.

The revelations led to an NCAA-imposed "death penalty" that kept the school from playing football for two seasons.

While not nearly as stringent as previous sanctions, A&M's penalties will hurt the league, SWC officials and coaches said.

"This is a tough penalty, but we will work through it and move ahead," SWC Commissioner Steve Hatchell said in a prepared statement.

Coaches and officials said the penalties will put additional pressure on the other schools to improve their programs.

"The rest of the conference is trying to fight to get back up to the level that A&M is playing at. When you take our top-notch team out of there, we've all got to fight to get there quicker," Rossley said. "I think (the University of) Texas is really on the verge of coming back into their own."

UT coach John Mackovic was traveling and could not be reached for comment. Bill Little, UT spokesman, said athletic director DeLoss Dodds would not comment.

Texas A&M captured its third consecutive conference title this season, earning a third straight trip to the Cotton Bowl. No. 9 A&M was the only SWC team in the top 25.

This season only two SWC schools - Texas A&M and Texas Tech - met the new NCAA requirement that a team have six victories over Division 1-A opponents to qualify for a bowl game. The conference was represented in the Cotton and John Hancock bowls but had to forfeit its berth in the Alamo Bowl.

Bob Smith, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, said he's discouraged by the sanctions against the Aggies, who have been "good for us the last three years."

"I do think the Southwest Conference is on the upswing, and Texas should have a good team next year and we anticipate the SWC overall being better," Smith said. "However, with A&M out it will certainly make the race less competitive."

In addition to a loss in prestige, the SWC also faces financial harm from the broadcasting fees that will be lost because of the television ban.

Conference officials did not have figures on how much revenue might be lost. However, Texas Tech athletic director Bob Bockrath said the TV ban would mean a cut in revenue to all SWC schools.

"What it does is penalize the conference, to some extent."

Hoop Shoot starts Saturday

Local competition for the 22nd Annual Elks Hoop Shoot, a national free throw contest for children aged 8-13, will be held Saturday at the Hereford YMCA. Registration starts at 8:30 a.m., and competition starts at 9.

Boys and girls compete in one of three age groups--8-9, 10-11 and 12-13--based on the contestants age on April 1 of this year.

Each contestant has 25 free throws. The boys and girls with the best scores in each age group can advance through four tiers of competition, all the way to the national finals April 22-24 in Indianapolis.

Winners of the Hereford competition will advance to the district event Feb. 12 in Borger.

Tech braces for Bam's decision

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP)—Texas Tech football fans braced today for Byron "Bam" Morris' decision on skipping his senior year for the NFL.

Morris, the Doak Walker Award winner and nation's leading scorer, rushed 298 times for 1,752 yards and 22 touchdowns last season.

His yardage broke Earl Campbell's single-season Southwest Conference rushing record of 1,744 yards, set in 1977.

The 6-2, 240-pound Cooper native grew more dominant each game as the Red Raiders rallied from a 1-5 start to finish the season 6-6.

IRVING, Texas (AP)—Emmitt Smith and other Dallas Cowboys players may be acting like Norv Turner is history, but the NFL says the Washington Redskins can't talk to the offensive coordinator about leaving - yet.

National Football League Commissioner Paul Tagliabue told the Cowboys Wednesday that their bitter NFC East foe cannot meet with Turner until after the playoffs, said Cowboys owner Jerry Jones.

Jones said Tagliabue, during a league meeting in Dallas Wednesday, "reminded us there's a rule that as long as a team is playing, another team cannot ask for permission to talk to the team that is playing's coaches, nor can the team give permission."

Tagliabue also said six-figure fines and loss of draft picks were in store for any team that violates the rule, which was implemented in 1990, Jones said.

"Based on that, the Redskins and the Cowboys - and I represent the Cowboys - have agreed that the Redskins wouldn't talk or communicate with Norv Turner until after we're through playing; hopefully, that will be after the Super Bowl," Jones said.

He said the Cowboys ran into the situation last year with former Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt, but it "went pretty smooth. It wasn't as controversial."

Smith said he owes much of his success to Turner, whose offense brought the Cowboys a Super Bowl title and a second consecutive NFC East championship.

"Norv would be a great head coach," The running back said. "He's one of the major reasons for my success. His offense is designed to let the running back succeed."

"I became the running back I wanted to become under him," he said. "He also had confidence in my ability to catch the ball. I think I showed I can catch it, too."

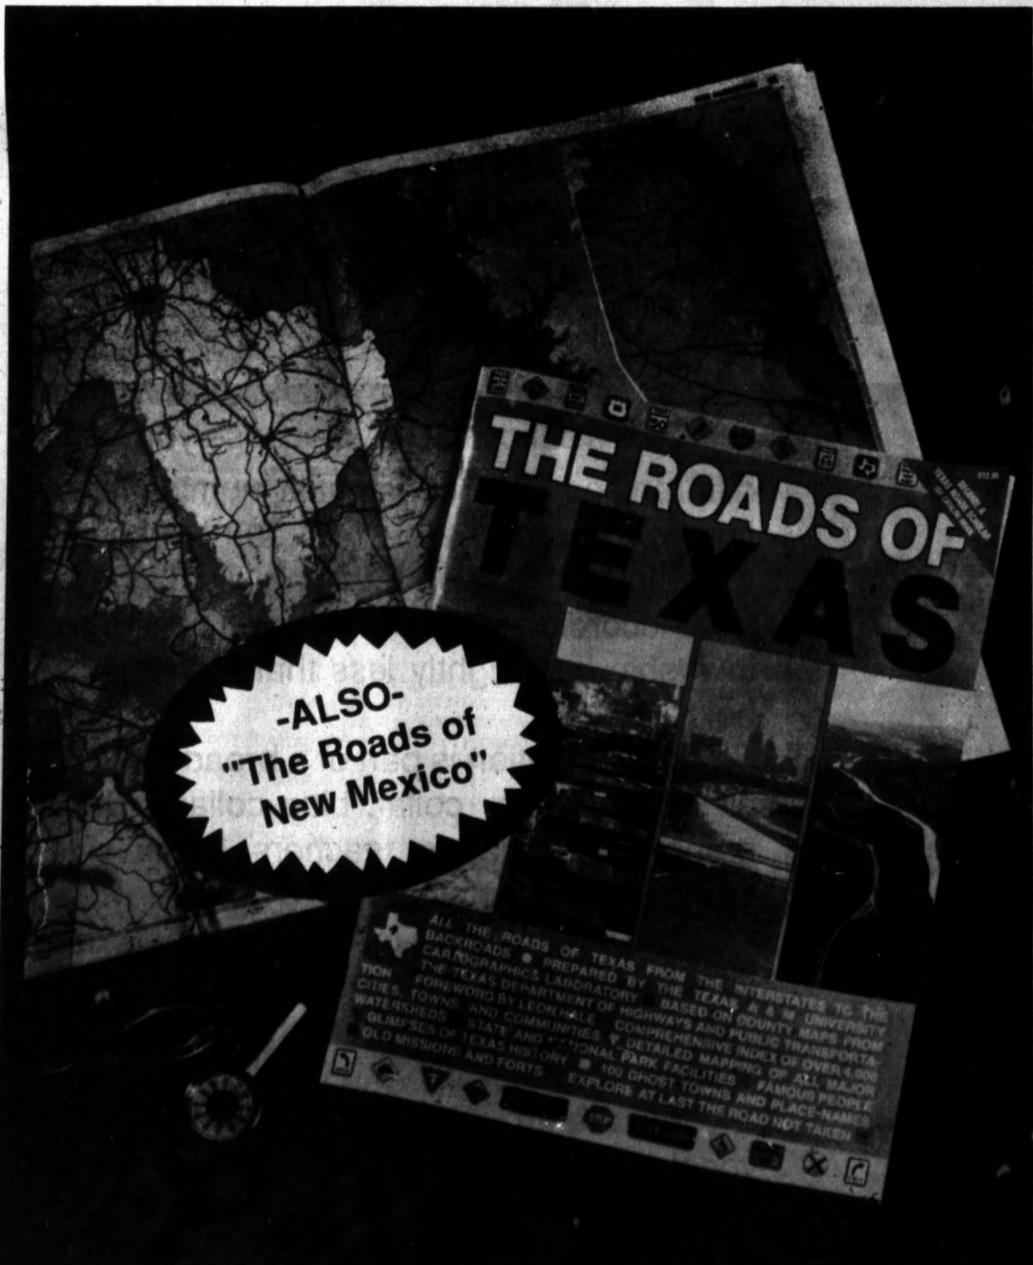

Turner, who until Wednesday afternoon had planned to meet with Redskins officials this week, said it would be tough to leave Dallas and would be an emotional goodbye.

Suns use hot start to blow out Jazz at home

By The Associated Press

The Phoenix Suns had two reasons to worry about traveling to Salt Lake City to play Utah.

For one, the Jazz took a 10-game home winning streak into the game and had a 13-2 record at the Delta Center. For another, the Suns were playing without point guard Kevin Johnson, injured the night before in a loss at Seattle.

Phoenix didn't have to worry for long, however, outscoring Utah 40-16 in the first period on the way to a 107-91 victory Wednesday night.

"It sure wasn't expected for us to come out and score 40 points in the first quarter on them," said Suns coach Paul Westphal, whose team shot 60 percent in the first period to Utah's 29 percent. "They had a nice comeback Sunday night against Portland (from 19 points down) and we were leery of their ability to do that."

Westphal also noted that the Suns have not lost consecutive games this season.

A 30-7 run in the last 7:22 of the first quarter, led by A.C. Green with nine points, put the Suns in control. Green scored 15 of his 19 points in the first period.

Dan Majerle scored 25 points, including 6-for-8 from 3-point range, and Charles Barkley had 23 points and 11 rebounds.

Barkley said the Suns had to play harder because of the absence of Johnson, who has a contusion of his lower right leg.

"I think we all had to step up a little bit, and everybody did a little bit more than they usually do," said Barkley, who held Karl Malone to 13 points and six rebounds.

John Stockton had 17 points and 13 assists, while Jeff Malone scored 16 points for the Jazz.

Rockets 114, Mavericks 102

Hakeem Olajuwon scored 15 of his 37 points during a 28-14 second-quarter surge and also had 14 rebounds as Houston extended Dallas' NBA-record home winless streak to 14 games.

Rookie Jamal Mashburn scored a career-high 37 points for the Mavericks.

SuperSonics 106, Clippers 98
Shawn Kemp had 22 points and tied a season high with 15 rebounds as Seattle won its fourth straight game and improved to 11-2 on the road and 24-3 overall.

Loy Vaught had 20 points and 14 rebounds for Los Angeles, which has dropped three games in a row and seven of nine.

Kings 106, Lakers 98

Sacramento won for the fourth time in five games, defeating Los Angeles despite blowing most of a 15-point lead in the fourth quarter.

Mitch Richmond scored 23 points for the Kings, who led 89-74, their largest margin of the game, on Walt Williams' 3-pointer with 8:25 to go.

Sedale Threatt scored 20 points and Doug Christie 19 for Los Angeles.

Magic 105, Bulls 90

Orlando handed visiting Chicago just its third loss in 18 games behind Anfernee Hardaway's 20 points, 10 assists and four steals and Shaquille O'Neal's 28 points and 12 rebounds.

The Bulls shot 28 percent from the field in the second period and never recovered. Hardaway scored 12 points in the quarter, including 10 straight during a 12-2 run that gave the Magic a 55-40 halftime lead.

Timberwolves 109, Nuggets 95

Minnesota snapped a seven-game losing streak and a five-game home skid as Micheal Williams and Luc Longley sparked a 15-2 third-quarter run after Isaiah Rider was ejected.

Williams finished with 22 points and Longley had 12 points and 10 rebounds for the Timberwolves. Christian Laettner, who didn't start because he missed a practice, came off the bench for the first time in his NBA career and had 20 points and 12 rebounds.

Celtics 101, Cavaliers 96

Boston broke Cleveland's five-game home winning streak and won for just the second time in 10 games behind Dee Brown's 25 points.

The Cavs took their last lead at 94-93 on Gerald Wilkins' 3-pointer with 2:30 to play. Robert Parish, who scored eight points in the final five minutes, answered with a hook that put Boston ahead for good.

Chris Mills scored 21 points and Mark Price 20 for Cleveland.

Bullets 97, Pacers 95

Tom Gugliotta's layup with 1.2 seconds left snapped a tie and lifted Washington past Indiana, ending the Bullets' seven-game home losing streak.

Kevin Duckworth had seven points in an 18-2 fourth-quarter run that brought Washington back from a 12-point deficit.

Dale Davis had a career-high 28 points for the Pacers. Rex Chapman led the Bullets with 25 points.

Bucks 100, Nets 91

Rookie Vin Baker had season highs of 29 points and 12 rebounds and Eric Murdock scored 21 points as Milwaukee won at New Jersey.

The Bucks never lost the lead after making 15 of 23 shots in the first period for a 35-23 lead.

Kevin Edwards scored 19 points for the Nets.

Purdue squeaks by Northwestern

By The Associated Press

Glenn Robinson had praise heaped upon him once again. Northwestern heard good things for the first time in a long, long while.

Robinson, considered the best player in the Big Ten, had 34 points, including the game-winning jumper with nine seconds to play, to lead No. 10 Purdue to a 68-67 victory over Northwestern, the conference doormat for years.

"Basically, it came down to a superstar as good as advertised," Wildcats coach Ricky Byrdsong said. "There were a couple of areas of the game we could have controlled better - rebounding and turnovers - but you can't control Glenn."

Robinson, held scoreless for the game's first 7 1/2 minutes as Purdue fell behind 22-9, never took Northwestern for granted. After all, the Wildcats entered the game unbeaten and had beaten the Boilermakers last season to snap a 60-game road losing streak in the conference.

"We didn't take them lightly," said Robinson, who also had 14 rebounds and two blocks. "They beat us last year and everybody laughed at us. They are going to be laughing a lot at other teams this year."

In other games involving ranked teams Wednesday night, it was: No. 1 Arkansas 87, Mississippi 61; No. 2 North Carolina 88, North Carolina State 58; No. 3 Duke 71, Clemson 65; No. 5 Kansas 90, North Carolina-Asheville 44; No. 9 Arizona 98, Arizona State 81; No. 13 Michigan 75, Michigan State 64; No. 17 Cincinnati 103, Chicago State 49; and No. 25 Marquette 79, Memphis State 67.

A 3-pointer by Robinson gave Purdue (12-0) a 66-61 lead. But Pat Baldwin scored three straight times to give the Wildcats a 67-66 lead with 40 seconds remaining.

Robinson then hit a 10-foot jumper from the right side with three defenders in his face for the win.

Baldwin finished with 18 points.

No. 1 Arkansas 87, Mississippi 61
The Razorbacks (10-0, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) used a 20-0 run to set the defensive tone and cruised again at home as Corliss Williamson had 25 points.

Mississippi (5-4, 0-1) had 20 turnovers by halftime and was never closer than 14 points in the second half. David Johnson led the Rebels with 14 points.

No. 2 North Carolina 88, North Carolina State 58

The Tar Heels (11-1, 1-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) won their ninth straight and have defeated the Wolfpack (4-7, 0-1) by an average of 36 points over the last three meetings. North Carolina played its second straight game without leading-scorer Donald Williams (20.6), who is bothered by tendinitis.

No. 3 Duke 71, Clemson 65

The Blue Devils (8-0) opened ACC play with a victory for the seventh straight year as Grant Hill scored 22 points and Clemson (6-4, 0-1) was held to two free throws over the final three minutes. Visiting Duke took the lead for good at 65-63.

Sharone Wright led Clemson with 15 points and 18 rebounds.

No. 5 Kansas 90, N.C.-Asheville 44

Steve Woodberry had 16 points to lead the Jayhawks (14-1) to their 10th straight victory. Kansas coach Roy Williams is a native of Asheville. The Bulldogs (2-6) went 10 minutes without a basket early in the second half.

No. 9 Arizona 98, Arizona State 81

Guards Damon Stoudamire and Khalid Reeves had 30 and 24 points, respectively, as the Wildcats (11-1) opened defense of their Pac-10 title by dominating the boards 59-33. Arizona State (5-4, 0-1) trailed just 37-31 at halftime, but let the Wildcats start the second half with a 21-4 run. Isaac Burton led the visiting Sun Devils with 29 points, 24 in the second half.

No. 13 Michigan 75, Michigan State 64

Jalen Rose had 22 points and Juwan Howard added 17 as the Wolverines (9-2, 1-0 Big Ten) beat the Spartans (9-4, 0-1) for the fourth straight time. Dugan Fife, who had a career-high 13 points, hit two 3-pointers in Michigan's decisive second-half run. Shawn Respert, who had guaranteed a Michigan State victory, finished with 22 points.

No. 17 Cincinnati 103, Chicago State 49

LaZelle Durden had 33 points and matched his school record with eight 3-pointers as the Bearcats (11-2) crushed the Cougars (1-12) for the second straight year.

Oklahoma gets past pesky Baylor Bears

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - Baylor's lack of depth and experience showed up against Oklahoma, although it took awhile.

The Bears, with just nine players including two walk-ons, led by as many as eight points five times in the first half Wednesday night. But an 11-1 run by Oklahoma in the final 2:14, followed by a 10-0 run to start the second half, helped carry the Sooners to a 118-91 victory.

"They played as hard as they could, as long as they could," Baylor coach Darrel Johnson said.

"Really at halftime I noticed we were just huffing and puffing and kind of spent. We didn't come out with the same kind of enthusiasm."

Jeff Webster scored 35 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Oklahoma (8-2), which begins Big Eight Conference play Saturday at home against Oklahoma State.

But coach Billy Tubbs found himself looking for some answers in the first half.

"The way the game was going in the first 10 minutes, I'm wondering if we can stay with them, and that's an unusual feeling when you're sitting on the Sooner bench," Tubbs said.

"I think our guys held up pretty good conditioning-wise. I thought our bench did an excellent job."

Ryan Minor, a starter, scored 24 points for Oklahoma. Ken Conley, playing with a broken finger, came off the bench to score 13 points. Jason Yanish and John Ontjes each scored 8 off the bench.

"They're carrying us," Tubbs said of Webster and Minor, "but I saw in the second half some other guys step forward and hopefully that's a confidence builder."

Webster scored 21 in the first half, when Oklahoma fell behind right away and needed the 11-1 run to take a 51-49 lead. Webster then scored four points in a 10-0 run to start the second half and the Sooners never looked back.

Baylor (8-3) turned the ball over five times and missed its first six shots of the second half. The Bears were not able to get closer than nine after getting blitzed early.

"We came out really hard in the first half and we needed to," said Baylor forward David Hamilton. "I think our depth affected us tonight. It has in the past a little bit, but tonight more so than others."

Webster, who also had 13 rebounds, wound up one point short of his career high and would have had it if not for missing a dunk at the buzzer.

"I tried to hurry up, and the curveball Ryan threw me kind of slipped a little bit," Webster said in explaining his miss.

Oklahoma shot 66.7 percent and was 14 of 14 from the foul line in the second half. Baylor, after hitting 54 percent of its shots in the first half, made only 46 percent after that.

Freshman Jerode Banks scored a career-high 25 points, with Willie Sublett and Jerome Lambert scoring 13 each for Baylor.

The 113 points were the most scored against Baylor since a 133-109 loss to Arkansas in the 1971-72 season.

In other non-conference games involving Southwest Conference teams, Texas and Rice each had victories while Texas A&M lost on the road.

Terrence Rencher scored 26 points to lead the Texas Longhorns to a 91-69 victory over Texas-San Antonio.

B.J. Tyler scored 21 points for Texas (7-5). Texas-San Antonio (3-6) was led by Spencer Rhynes with 15 points.

Torry Andrew scored 23 points to lead the Rice Owls to a 76-64 victory over Dayton.

Rice is now 7-3. Scott Tynes scored 14 for Dayton (4-6).

Hubert Register scored 21 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead Northern Illinois to a 79-66 victory over Texas A&M.

The leading scorer for the Aggies (6-4) was Joe Wilbert with 18 points. Chuck Henderson and Tony McGinnis each scored 12 for the Aggies. Northern Illinois is now 3-4.

Mashburn struggles in early stage of pro career

By BRAD TOWNSEND
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS (AP) - The trials of a rookie, Jamal Mashburn is discovering, never seem to end. No sooner is one lesson learned than another begins.

With the Mavericks' season more than one-third complete, their top pick has played nearly the equivalent of a college season. And there are times when he seems no closer to figuring out life in the NBA than when the season started.

"It's a lot different from college," Mashburn said. "You get frustrated out there at times, and all you can do is go out there and do what you can do."

Mixed with the expected sporadic play (40.6 percent shooting from the field) have been flashes of brilliance.

For instance, having shot 25-of-70 (36 percent) during his previous four games, Mashburn struck for 30 points Sunday at Sacramento. It was his third game of 30 or more points this season. Even against the Kings, Mashburn missed five of his first six shots before making 10 of his last 15 attempts.

Then there was Monday's game at Utah, where Mashburn scored 16 first-half points on 6-of-9 shooting but scored four second-half points. He also had a team-high eight turnovers.

"There's a lot going on for him," Mavericks coach Quinn Buckner said. "He hasn't lost this many games before. It's hard for him. He's trying to carry a team by himself. As much as he wants to do that and had been able to do it in college, he sees increasingly that you can't do it here."

On some nights, Mashburn has looked discouraged on the court. Other nights, especially recently, Mashburn has moved well without the ball and been more involved both offensively and defensively.

"I'm being more aggressive," Mashburn said. "That's part of my game: Go get the ball and be aggressive."

When the losses start getting to him, or when the Mavericks go through one of their quarter or halves or games when nothing goes right, Mashburn admittedly forgets his own advice.

"If I get it down right now, always be aggressive and go get the ball, it'll become routine for me," Mashburn said.

On Dec. 1, Mashburn complained about, among other things, feeling like a "robot" in the Mavericks triple-post offense. But in the past two weeks, the Mavericks seem to have become more reactionary in the offense, recognizing opportunities, getting away quicker shots.

And that seems to have helped Mashburn, whom Buckner says the Mavericks want to get in the open court as often as possible. Mashburn's explosiveness, Buckner said, creates not only shots for himself, but for everyone else.

"I think a lot of it is he's beginning to understand the game," Buckner said. "And we've tried to get him out and running more so we can get him the ball in situations where he can take advantage of his quickness instead of always fighting. (In half-court situations) he attracts not only his man but the balance of the defense."

Buckner said Mashburn also is discovering that as a small forward, "you can't hide defensively" in the NBA. The height he has to expend on defense sometimes hampers his offense.

After Monday's loss at Utah, Mashburn admitted he sometimes finds himself "looking two years down the road," to a time when he believes the Mavericks will have more talent. But to Buckner, the way Mashburn is handling rookie adversity leaves little doubt about a better future.

Mets send Coleman to Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The Kansas City Royals had a big need and took a big chance.

Having worn out his welcome with the New York Mets, Vince Coleman was traded to the Royals for Kevin McReynolds on Wednesday.

Coleman pleaded guilty Nov. 5 to a misdemeanor charge that stemmed from his throwing a powerful firecracker into a crowd at the Dodger Stadium parking lot last July. Two little girls and a woman were injured in the incident.

It was a contrite Coleman who appeared at Kauffman Stadium, although he still seems to dispute the idea that he had done anything wrong the night of July 24 in Los Angeles.

You could almost sense the sigh of relief from Coleman, who was looking at an early end to a high-paying career.

Coleman was given a one-year suspended jail term and three years' probation on the condition he perform 200 hours of community service, and was fined $1,000 after pleading guilty to a charge of possession of an explosive device.

The Royals feel Coleman at 32 should be the base-stealing, switch-hitting leadoff hitter they have craved since they decided Willie Wilson was past his prime.

The Mets, caught up in a myriad of troubles, had told Coleman he would never play for them again.

Of all the teams in baseball, it surely is surprising that a team that prides itself on its squeaky-clean image and family atmosphere at the ballpark would be the one to go after Coleman. But that's exactly what happened.

"We had a conversation with two other American League teams, one of whom said if he were released they might be interested in signing him," said Mets general manager Joe McIlvaine said. "They (the Royals) are the ones who proposed it to us."

They were the ones who proposed it."

The deal apparently was finalized two days before it was announced, but on a contingent basis. Coleman was asked to come to Kansas City to be checked out.

"We've spent a lot of time with Vince," Royals general manager Herk Robinson said. "We're convinced Vince can be a solid citizen on the field and make a contribution in the community. We strongly believe he deserves an opportunity, and the Royals are going to give him that opportunity."

It was an easy call for the Mets. Owner Fred Wilpon would never again play for the team. It was expected that Coleman would be released and get picked up by somebody for a smidgeon of his salary.

Here are some water pollution solutions

Where does the majority of water pollution in this country come from?

If you said discharge from factories or municipal treatment plants you would be wrong. While these places are most often blamed for pollution because they are easiest to identify and control, the fact is more than 50 percent of water pollution comes from non-point source pollution.

What is non-point source pollution? Non-point source pollution is caused when runoff from rainfall or snowmelt moves across the earth picking up natural and manmade pollutants, depositing them in lakes, rivers, wetlands, groundwater and coastal waters.

How is it relevant to me? Simply referred to by many as "runoff," non-point source pollution in your community is the spilled paint from a painting project, the detergent that dribbled down the street after you washed your car, the old motor oil spilled after changing the oil in your car, the fertilizers used in treating your lawn and much, much more.

It also is caused by agricultural runoff, mining waste, timber harvesting and leakage from hazardous wastes.

Basically, from mining sites and farmlands to suburban lawns and city streets, Americans use the land in ways that cause non-point source pollution. It is the result of all of our everyday activities. It is something we create—and fortunately something we can control.

What can I do? There are two initial steps consumers can take to help reduce the effects of runoff. The first is to keep runoff clean and the second is to reduce surface runoff from your property. Here are some tips to help you accomplish both:

-Use and dispose of household chemicals with caution; never flush them down the drain or pour them on the ground.

-Use pesticides and fertilizers according to directions and only when needed.

-Seed or mulch areas where soil can wash away.

-Encourage your community to establish waste collection sites for paints, pesticides and oils.

-Dispose of your motor oil at a service station that collects it.

-Properly maintain your septic tank.

-Limit the amount of water you apply to lawn and gardens.

-Limit the amount of paved surface on your property.

-If installing a driveway or sidewalk, use bricks, gravel or crushed stones.

-Use a bucket instead of a hose to wash your car.

Try reading instructions

What's the first thing you do when your new range or washer refuses your command to do its thing?

According to home economists, if you said "pull my hair," "gnash my teeth" or "call service," you're being very hard on both your body and your purse.

There's a simpler way. When an appliance puzzles you, pull its Use and Care Guide from the kitchen junk drawer and read it. The solutions to most appliance-use problems are right there in those instructions.

It's especially important to read the list of things to check before calling for service.

Many owners of a new appliance don't realize that a service call to instruct them on how to use the product isn't covered by the warranty.

That can be a very expensive lesson when the problem is something as simple as moving the oven control from automatic back to its normal manual setting.

While the operating guide for a new appliance seems to be an obvious place to look for answers to a user's questions, few consumers bother to read instructions. Their reason? "This is the third range I've owned. I know how to use it."

But products change greatly in the 20-30 year intervals between purchases. Operating new designs and features may require referring to instructions.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Tammy Wynette, suffering from a bile duct infection, could be out of intensive care this week, her spokeswoman says.

The 51-year-old country star remained in critical condition Monday, but she was improving and was removed from a respirator Sunday, Evelyn Shriver said. The singer was admitted to Baptist Hospital on Dec. 28.

Wynette has received get-well calls and visits from Elton John, Smokey Robinson, Reba McEntire, Garth Brooks and Sting. Her former husband and singing partner, George Jones, also visited.

Resident's grandson honored

Matthew Quisenberry, son of Tom and Ruth Quisenberry of Big Spring, and grandson of June Koelzer of Hereford, was recently chosen to participate in the Symphonic Winds Christmas Band from Runnels Junior High School in Big Spring.

Quisenberry, a first chair saxophone player, was only one of 24 musicians performing for elementary schools, post office workers, school administration officials and the Evening Lions' Club during the Christmas holidays.

Band Director Tim Allhouse chose the group making up this special community band from his eighth grade students.

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Now that she's conquered her stage fright, things might be the way they were for Barbra Streisand, who is considering going on tour.

Streisand ended a 22-year break from paid stage appearances with two concerts over the weekend.

"She said before coming over here if she enjoyed the experience, she would consider more concerts," her manager, Marty Erlichman, said Monday.

Erlichman said the singer would decide within 10 days whether to "go back on the road."

Streisand gave two well-received performances at the MGM Grand Garden on New Year's Eve and New Year's night. She wound up her New Year's Eve show by shouting to the audience: "I did it, I did it, I did it!"

She has said she stopped performing because of stage fright.

BEAUFORT, S.C. (AP) - A little literary advice from President Clinton: Don't believe everything you read - especially in Rush Limbaugh's new book.

When a sergeant based at the Beaufort Marine Air Station asked the president on Sunday to sign Limbaugh's "See, I Told You So," Clinton handed it back with this inscription: "Don't Believe it All! Bill Clinton. 1-2-94."

The book by the conservative radio host has several chapters about the Clinton administration. One is titled "Lies, Lies, Lies."

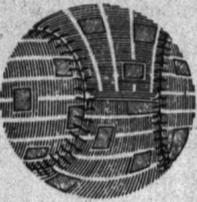

NEW YORK (AP) - Steven Spielberg went 2-for-2 with the National Society of Film Critics.

He was named best director, and his "Schindler's List" was chosen best picture Monday. Other awards went to Holly Hunter for best actress for "The Piano." David Thewlis was named best actor for "Naked."

Last month, the New York Film Critics Circle, the Los Angeles Film Critics Association and the National Board of Review all picked "Schindler's List" as best picture. But the first two groups chose Jane Campion as best director for "The Piano," and the National Board picked Martin Scorsese for his "The Age of Innocence."

Spielberg has never won an Academy Award for best director despite three nominations but is considered a strong contender this year because of the acclaimed Holocaust drama.

THE HEREFORD BRAND

Since earliest times men have seen the earth and sky and all God made, and have known of His existence and great eternal power. So they will have no excuse when they stand before God at Judgment Day. Yes, they knew about Him all right, but they wouldn't admit it or worship Him or even thank Him for all His daily care. And after awhile they began to think up silly ideas of what God was like and what He wanted them to do. The result was that their foolish minds became dark and confused. Claiming themselves to be wise without God, they became utter fools instead. And then, instead of worshipping the glorious, ever-living God, they took wood and stone and made idols for themselves, carving them to look like mere birds and animals and snakes and puny men.

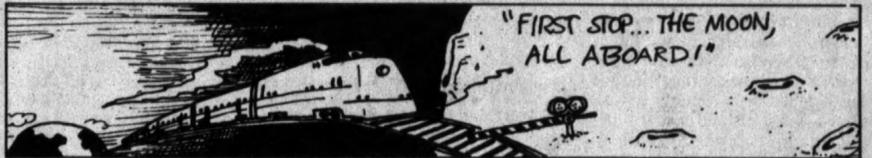

So God let them go ahead into every sort of sex sin, and do whatever they wanted to—yes, vile and sinful things with each other's bodies. Instead of believing what they knew was the truth about God, they deliberately chose to believe lies. So they prayed to the things God made, but wouldn't obey the blessed God who made these things.

That is why God let go of them and let them do all these evil things, so that even their women turned against God's natural plan for them and indulged in sex sin with each other. And the men, instead of having normal sex relationship with women, brought lust for each other, men doing shameful things with their own souls with the penalty they so richly deserved.

So it was that when they gave God up and would not even acknowledge Him, God gave them up to doing everything their evil minds could think of. Their lives became full of every kind of wickedness and sin, of greed and hate, envy, murder, fighting, lying, bitterness, and gossip. They were backbiters, haters of God, insolent, proud braggarts, always thinking of new ways of sinning and continually being disobedient to their parents. They tried to misunderstand, broke their promises, and were heartless—without pity. They were fully aware of God's death penalty for these crimes, yet they went right ahead and did them anyway, and encouraged others to do them, too.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Winterproof your skin

Old man winter has it in for your skin and cold weather isn't the only culprit.

Indoor heat can rob your skin of moisture and the sun's damaging rays are out there no matter what the thermometer says. But there are preventive measures to help your skin make it right through to spring and beyond.

Here are some following suggestions:

-Cleanse gently and moisturize regularly--Avoid scrubbing your face and don't use hot water because it tends to dry out the skin. Tepid water, a soft wash cloth and a gentle skin cleanser are all you need. Apply the moisturizer after cleansing in the mornings and evenings.

-A special treat--Since your skin is especially thirsty this time of year, why not treat it to a sauna or steam bath? Either one provides a moisture infusion that "plumps" up your skin and makes it feel great.

-Use make-up with built-in care--Look for foundation, eye shadow, lipstick and blush products that have special skin nurturing ingredients.

-Don't overlook lips or lashes--Because your delicate lip skin is particularly vulnerable to everything winter dishes out: cold air, wind and sun, it should be protected every day. You can safeguard and beautify your lips with lipstick with SPF-15. To keep your lashes healthy, use a good mascara formulated with skin conditioners.

Give your skin the care it craves and get out and enjoy the beauty of winter.

Composer Gustav Mahler died in 1911 in Vienna, Austria.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I'm writing about my second attack of shingles. I'm 91 years old. I had them about 15 years ago, but only for one month. I have been sick with shingles for three months. The first month I was in terrible pain and got red spots on the left side of my waist. What pain I had! The pains seem to grab my waistline and felt like I had a belt around my waist. I still have some pain and sore spots.

The doctor gave me pain killers. Then I quit taking the pills as the pain decreased. I took Motrin, the same as I use for arthritis. It seems to help. I feel weak and can't do much. I get tired. Is there any cure? I would like to get well. What caused me to get shingles the second time?

DEAR READER: Over half of people who live to age 80 have had at least one attack of shingles. You are in the 4 to 5 percent of victims who have more than one attack.

The disease is caused by the chickenpox virus which remains dormant all those years in a portion of nerve cells. The activated virus begins to multiply and migrates down the nerve to the surface of the skin it supplies. That is commonly around half of the chest or halfway around the abdomen. It can be on the face, the ear and even into the eye. It may also occur on the leg — literally any place on the body.

When the virus reaches the surface of the skin, it multiplies and causes the typical red, painful lesions. Blisters develop that are really the same as the original chickenpox blisters. They contain the live viruses that have been formed from multiplication. As the blisters become scabs, there are no more live viruses on the surface of the skin.

The viruses in the nerves become dormant again, but if they are activated once more, you will have a second attack.

The increased incidence of shingles (herpes zoster) with increasing age suggests that the body's immune mechanisms are no longer able to suppress the virus. Between ages 20 and 40 there is only one case per 1,000 persons in the United States, but by age 80 there are 10 cases per 1,000 a year.

I'm sending you Special Report 118, Shingles: The Chickenpox Disease, to update you on this dreadful disease. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/118, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. You still have the virus.

In patients over 60, the pain usually subsides within two months. In an unfortunate 3 percent, severe pain persists a year or even longer in a condition called postherpetic neuralgia.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My son, age 19, has had an enlarged breast since 13 or 14 years of age. Several doctors have said it would go away with time, but this doesn't seem to be true in his case. He had a mammogram about a year ago, which found nothing wrong. What is your opinion regarding what to do next? This matter worries him a great deal.

DEAR READER: Many teen-age boys develop knots, usually under the nipple area, at the onset of puberty. And most of them do go away. These are perfectly harmless and are related to stimulation of breast tissue from the sudden surge in sex hormones.

Others develop a fat pad of the breast area. These may persist. If there are no other indications of a medical problem or hormone imbalance, often the best thing to do is have the excess tissue removed surgically. It is a simple procedure and can prevent a lifetime of needless embarrassment. Such fat pads usually will not go away with weight loss.

DEAR DR. LAMB: A family member, male, 68 years old, needs major heart surgery. He needs a new aortic valve and a triple bypass. He also has constrictive pericarditis which will make the operation more difficult. Exactly what complications does constrictive pericarditis present during surgery? Are all heart hospitals qualified to perform this surgery, or is it so rare that only special hospitals should be considered?

DEAR READER: Heart valve replacement and coronary bypass operations are now relatively common. But constrictive pericarditis is uncommon. The pericardium is the sac around (peri) the heart (cardium). When it is scarred from an inflammation, it may shrink and constrict the heart's ability to relax to fill so it can pump enough blood.

How difficult the surgery depends on how adherent the pericardium is to the heart. That could make doing the coronary bypass more difficult. All hospitals that do heart surgery are not equal and with that complex an operation, if there is an option, go for a large university heart center. The pericardium can be removed entirely without causing any harm.

How to safely change your car's antifreeze

Below freezing temperatures can damage your car's radiator or engine unless you have properly installed effective antifreeze and coolant.

Antifreeze helps protect your car three ways. First, it helps prevent freeze-ups in very cold weather. Second, antifreeze helps discharge heat when the car is running in any weather conditions. The hard-working fluid's third, but less well-known, role is to prevent corrosion that can lead to engine damage.

Cold weather can cause the fluid in your car's cooling system to freeze, expand and crack the radiator or engine block. The proper ratio of antifreeze and water prevents both liquids from freezing.

Antifreeze corrosion inhibitors become less effective with extended use. Therefore, experts recommend that car owners change their antifreeze annually or every 24,000 miles to protect a car's cooling system and to neutralize the acid-producing corrosive by-products of engine operation. Just as a single antacid tablet can absorb only so much acid in your stomach, the inhibitors in antifreeze can neutralize only so much acid in your car.

Here are some tips for changing your car's antifreeze.

-Carefully drain the cooling system, collect the used coolant in a labeled container and dispose of it properly. Remember not to remove the radiator cap when the engine is hot.

-Flush the cooling system completely by filling the radiator with water and radiator flush. Then, run the engine for 30 minutes with the heater on. Drain the cooling system again and dispose of this fluid safely.

Remember to take care with hot fluids.

-Inspect your cooling system for signs of wear; tighten clamps and replace hoses if necessary.

-Refill the system with the proper mix of antifreeze and water. A 50/50 blend of antifreeze and water has a freezing point of -26 degrees F. Increase the concentration of antifreeze to protect the engine in lower temperatures.

-Dispose of all automotive chemicals safely. Environmental authorities recommend recycling used antifreeze. Check with local governmental environmental authorities such as the Environmental Protection Agency before disposing of antifreeze in your sewerage system and for more details regarding proper disposal.

-Keep antifreeze away from children and pets and wipe up any conventional EG antifreeze spills. If ingested, conventional antifreeze can be hazardous to children and fatal to pets.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - "Roseanne" star John Goodman will play Huey Long in a TNT cable movie about the populist governor and U.S. senator.

The film about Long, who was assassinated in 1935, is being written by "Peyton Place" producer Paul Monash, who also wrote an Emmy-winning screenplay about Josef Stalin. "Huey Long" will air sometime in 1994, TNT said.

Filming is expected to begin in the Baton Rouge area this spring after production on "Roseanne" wraps for the season.
