A successful Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show may not have been the reason for Beverly Harder's selection as 1997 Citizen of the Year.

But, it probably didn't hurt when it came time to tally the votes.

Harder, who was received the award from Lions Club President Pete Holcombe, was honored Friday night at the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce meeting.

The Lions Club has sponsored the Citizen of the Year award since 1946.

Harder, who is the family and consumer science agent with the Deaf Smith County Extension Service, has held the position since 1986, moving here from Hemphill County.

She is a Panhandle native and earned her bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

After earning her bachelor's degree from Tech, Harder taught school until 1977, when she left teaching to work with the family agriculture business. In 1982, she began her career as an extension agent in Hemphill County.

In his presentation, Holcombe noted Harder loves music, snow skiing and water skiing, and studies history through visits to old cemeteries.

She is an active member of First Baptist Church in Hereford, a member of several professional organizations, and recipient of several awards through the state extension service.

As recognized at the banquet were Wade Easley, outgoing chamber president; Elvira Enriquez, Woman of the Year; and Mark Andrews, Jeff Brown, Scott Hall and Mrs. Enriquez, outgoing directors.

Sid Shaw took office as 1998 chamber president and challenged the organization to recruit 100 new members this year.

Bush responds to kids' letters during address

Governor keynotes at banquet

Substitute "United States" for "Texas," and Gov. George W. Bush could easily have been delivering a presidential campaign speech instead of addressing the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet.

The governor, whom many Republicans would like to see as their party's presidential nominee in 2000, stressed themes which easily could be emphasized in a presidential campaign: education, responsibility, integrity and values.

Bush quoted liberally from letters written to him by Hereford school children in his speech, saying he had scrapped his "standard chamber of commerce speech" in favor of a "children's forum."

In a light-hearted vein, the governor opened his talk with a question from a student named April, who asked why he chose "to come to Hereford if he had other choices..."

He responded by comparing Hereford's traffic with that of Dallas and Houston, then in a serious note said that Texas governors "need to go to as many cities as possible, not just the big cities."

Several of the students' letters had emphasized the importance of reading, a project of first lady Laura Bush, who accompanied the governor to Hereford.

"Education is the No. 1 priority for our state," Bush said. He emphasized the importance of local control of education, noting the state government must provide as much money as it can and set the goals, but "local control is the best way for children to get the education they need."

As part of his commitment to seeing that all children can read at their grade level, the governor said he will ask the next Legislature for $200 million to fund reading academies or other local programs to ensure the literacy goals are met.

He also denounced social probation, saying it "is a crime... to move children who can't read through the system. You cannot teach a child in high school who's illiterate."

If children can read, many of the other educational problems will be solved, he said.

Bush also said that while crime is down across Texas, the problem of Texas Gov. George W. Bush gestures during his speech Friday night at the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Banquet. Bush, who was accompanied to Hereford by his wife, Laura, and state Sen. gangs and juvenile crime still is a matter that must be addressed.

He noted the state has changed its policy toward juvenile offenders, stressing personal responsibility. He said juveniles must learn responsibility through "discipline and love," something that many do not get until they are in the boot camps.

Bush said the culture of moral ambiguity -- "if it feels good, then do it" -- must be turned around, and young people can be the ones to make a difference.

He cited as goals in this effort: no dropouts, no drug/alcohol abuse, sexual abstinence until marriage.

One of our biggest problems is failure to accept responsibility, he said.

In a challenge to everyone, Bush said, "Each of us can make a difference in one person's life. Help a child read, help a child make the right choices in life."

"The era of responsibility has arrived. Don't look to the government for help, look to each other."

Bush laced his talk with references to his parents, former President and Barbara Bush, and the values they had instilled in him.

He noted his father is an example of how "you can come through the (political) process and leave it with your integrity intact."

He also joked about his daughters, 16-year-old twins Barbara and Jenna, saying they are now driving, and "there's not enough DPS officers in Austin to protect their fellow Texans."

Noting the decision earlier this week by Holly Sugar to shut down its beet processing operation, Bush said Hereford "will prevail." He cited San Antonio, which saw the closure of Kelly Air Force Base, one of the city's major employers. Boeing Corp. has announced plans to utilize the former air base for a plant bringing 2,000-plus jobs to the city.

"The same thing can happen in Hereford," he said. "Wealth isn't created by government, it's through entrepreneurs who are willing to take risks."

Just before leaving to return to Austin, Bush was presented with the Golden Bull Award. The award is

Parson uses an electric chainsaw to sculpt a block of ice

Career 'out of the ordinary'

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Measuring more than 3 feet tall and 5 feet wide, an ice sculpture featuring a design in the shape of the state of Texas contributed to the excellence of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet Friday night.

Creator of the sculpture, Allen D. Parson, is a Hereford native who has chosen to pursue a career which, if not extraordinary, is at the very least "out of the ordinary."

Parson is a certified cook, has earned a certificate for finishing as a chef's apprentice and has been a sous chef at Magic Kingdom and EPCOT at Disneyworld in Orlando, Fla.

And, he sculpts ice with a chain saw.

The sculpture Parson created for the chamber banquet began as three 300-pound blocks of ice. Then using an electric chain saw, he sculpted a portion of the shape of the state into each block and they were stacked together to create the finished piece.

"I traced a map of Texas onto paper and cut it out. Then I used the paper cutout, which will stick to the block of ice, as the pattern," Parson said.

According to Parson, a finished ice sculpture should last about four hours, although detail melts in 1 1/2 hours. So work on a sculpture has to be done within a specific time frame then the block of ice returned to the freezer.

"There is a grain to the ice which can sometimes make details more difficult," he said.

Parson has never done sculpting in any other medium but said he would like to.

"I think wood sculpting would be even more difficult because of the grain," he said.

The progress of Parson's career from high school graduation to his present position as general manager of K-Bob's seems almost surreal.

Following graduation from Hereford High School in 1979, he attended OSU Technical College in Okmulgee, Okla., and graduated as a certified cook.

"With the encouragement of one of my instructors, I went on to Tulsa,

U.N. ambassador drums up support for military option

EL PASO (AP) - Diplomacy has failed as a tool to compel Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to allow United Nations inspectors to search for chemical and biological weapons, U.N. Ambassador Bill Richardson said.

Since October, diplomacy has been tried repeatedly to open up those suspected weapons sites to inspectors, he told about 500 people Friday night at Fort Bliss' Biggs Army Air Field for a fund-raising banquet for the Salvation Army's El Paso chapter.

"We have used diplomacy fully: five resolutions and statements at the United Nations, special envoys from Russia, from the Arab world and Turkey and, today, the secretary general of the United Nations," he said.

"Why? Because here is an individual and a government that threatens our stability in the Middle East, that threatens our energy interests there, that threatens our security interests there, that threatens the security of his neighbors."

The former New Mexico congressman stressed Friday the need for the United States to force Saddam, by any means necessary, to allow U.N. inspectors access to sites suspected of producing or storing chemical and biological weapons.

Cadet gets probation in throat-slashing of fellow student

BROWNSVILLE (AP) - A teen-age military school student convicted in the throat-slashing of a classmate he disliked will serve no time in prison for the attack.

A jury recommended probation Friday for 17-year-old Jeremiah George Jensen after finding him guilty of aggravated assault. Jensen, acquitted of the more serious charge of attempted murder, had faced up to 20 years in prison.

"We're just very thankful that he's going to be home," Jensen's father, Dan Jensen of Vancouver, Wash., said after the punishment was announced.

The terms and length of the probation, which could range from two to 10 years, will be decided by a state district judge March 13. Jensen remains jailed until then.

Bush smokes legal fees

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Texas Gov. George Bush smoked Attorney General Dan Morales over the $2.3 billion in legal fees from the $15 billion tobacco settlement.

Bush, who has gone to court to reduce the contingency fees promised by Morales to five Texas law firms, said Friday night he decided to "examine the deal."

He said Morales' agreement with the attorneys, which has become a bone of contention between the two men, has left "Texans on the hook for $2.3 billion, regardless of what happens in a national settlement."

He pointed out the settlement between the state of Florida and the tobacco companies saw the attorneys' fees reduced when the final settlement was signed; however, in Texas, the legal fees will amount to $2.3 billion, an amount that he described as "absurd."

Bush also said the $15 billion settlement will be reduced because the state must reimburse the federal government for Medicare payments, so the amount of money coming to the state will be less than the agreed settlement.

He also said he wants the court to determine if the attorney general has the constitutional authority to make the contingency arrangement with the law firms, which he said is spending state money -- something only the Legislature is authorized to do.

"The (contingency) deal is independent of the Legislature," he said.

In filing the court action, Bush said the legal fee question has been severed from the general tobacco settlement, so the agreement can stand.

"Either the court looks at the legal fee separately or not at all," he said. He said the tobacco companies have said they don't care who gets the money, but Bush said he believes it should "go to the children of Texas and not to lawyers."

He said the contingency fee arrangement fails the "standard of reasonableness."

Bush made a whirlwind trip through the Panhandle on Friday, making stops at Amarillo, where he touted his administration's efforts at moving Texans from welfare to work; Dumas, where he spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Moore County Chamber of Commerce; and Hereford, where he was the keynote speaker at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce's annual banquet.

Bush was accompanied by his wife, Laura. In Hereford, the Bushes were joined by state Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, and state Rep. John Smithee, R-Amarillo. Both lawmakers' districts include Deaf Smith County.

After receiving a certificate for finishing his apprenticeship, Parson worked for 2 1/2 years for Doubletree Hotels, where he advanced from banquet chef to sous chef.

"A sous chef is not the chef, but is a chef just under the chef," Parson explained.

When his application for a position at Disneyworld was selected from the 254 submitted, it was the start of eight years with the organization.

He worked at the Magic Kingdom theme park, then in a mass production division and finally in the United Kingdom pavilion at EPCOT.

"My plan had always been to come back to Hereford, though," he said. "It was just a matter of good timing that I came back when I did. My dad called with a plan for us to start a new business together and that's when I came back to Hereford."

This new business utilizes skills Parson learned as a chef's apprentice, not only as an ice sculptor but also as a meat cutter.

In the meantime, Parson has unique, impressive skills to contribute to his hometown.

Clinton sets universal health goals

WASHINGTON (AP) - Diabetes strikes three times as many American Indians as whites, prostate cancer twice as many blacks as whites -- two health disparities the Clinton administration wants to eliminate with $400 million and a new public awareness campaign.

President Clinton announced the new goals this morning during his weekly radio broadcast from the Oval Office. He was joined by representatives of the NAACP and other organizations of minorities.

"For the first time in its history, the federal government will set universal, national health goals, ending the practice of setting separate, lower goals for minority communities," Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala said.

The president's initiative - $400 million over five years, combined with private-sector help - would specifically target for elimination by 2010 disparities in six areas where differences between white and minority Americans are most stark.

Some $30 million per year would go to 30 communities that would each focus on one or two health problems in order to develop model strategies, said Surgeon General David Satcher, who is leading the campaign.

"This project will not succeed unless the white community is supportive," Satcher told reporters during an advance briefing with Shalala on Friday. "The American Indian, the African American and Asian, all of these groups have to work together in communities in order for this to be successful."

Satcher said the effort to speed up improvements in minority health would not come at the expense of others. "We're going to improve it for everybody," he said.

The surgeon general and former New York City Health Commissioner Peggy Hamburg also will ask the private sector for help, Shalala said.

Court asked to let veto stand

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Clinton administration is asking the Supreme Court to quickly overturn a federal judge's ruling and clear the way for continued use of the president's line-item veto power.

In the appeal filed Friday, Justice Department lawyers argued that the 1996 law permitting the president to veto specific items in spending bills was not a usurpation of Congress' powers under the Constitution.

U.S. District Judge Thomas F. Hogan of Washington struck down the veto law earlier this month in a blow to what President Clinton and the Republican-run Congress consider a key to fighting wasteful "pork-barrel" projects.

Bush, Mauro aim toward November

'I proudly offer my record to the voters of Texas because I did exactly what I promised I would do.'
George W. Bush, Republican

AUSTIN (AP) - Sure, Republican Gov. George W. Bush leads in fund-raising and opinion polls. Sure, Republicans swept every statewide race two years ago. Democratic gubernatorial candidate Garry Mauro still likes what he sees.

"This is the chance of a lifetime," Mauro said. "Ordinary people don't think anybody in government does anything except for rich and powerful people. There's a real cynicism about government."

So, the four-term land commissioner is making a run at Bush. But there's nothing personal, he says.

"I think George Bush is a nice guy. It's just that we have a different vision for Texas," Mauro says.

His vision includes eliminating the 6.25 percent sales tax on cars and trucks, which he dubs a "tax on people getting to work;" guaranteeing Texans the right to choose their doctors regardless of medical insurance plan; giving teachers a $5,000 pay raise; and spending $2 billion on new school buildings.

"I'm absolutely certain that the plan we put out will have a positive impact on people's lives," Mauro said.

Over in the GOP, Bush says his vision for Texas has been pretty darn good. Even Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock has endorsed him.

Since ousting the popular Ann Richards in 1994, Bush has become a national political figure, frequently mentioned these days as a top Republican presidential prospect in 2000.

Publicly, the governor shies away from such talk. He even called a news conference late last year to announce he had nothing to announce except to say that he wouldn't decide on a White House bid until after this year's elections.

Only the second Republican to hold the job since Reconstruction, Bush is seeking to become the first governor to win a second straight term since Texas shifted from two- to four-year terms in 1974.

Bush says he's delivered on 1994 promises to toughen juvenile crime laws, reduce lawsuit abuse, make welfare work-oriented and reduce the power of the state education bureaucracy.

In 1997, convinced rising school property taxes were a looming crisis, he proposed a $3 billion rearranging of state taxes. It failed, but lawmakers did approve a $1 billion school property tax cut.

"I proudly offer my record to the voters of Texas because I did exactly what I promised I would do," Bush said.

And then, there's the view

by-the-numbers.

Bush's Jan. 15 campaign finance reported showed him with more than $12.7 million cash on hand; Mauro had $345,000.

A Feb. 7 Dallas Morning News-Houston Chronicle poll showed Bush with 65 percent support and Mauro at 23 percent.

In that, Mauro sees light: The poll found majorities agreeing on his positions against using a standardized test to end social promotion in schools and for doctor choice.

Mauro, who's gotten fund-raising help from first lady Hillary Clinton, expects the president to campaign for him as well. He believes he can raise $5 million for a full-fledged television commercial blitz in the campaign's final 30 days.

"Politics is the last sector of the economy where we haven't downsized," he said of big campaign budgets. "Come next October, we're going to be talking about my issues in this campaign."

Poll or no poll, Bush says he's not overconfident.

Unlike Mauro, Bush does face a primary opponent.

R.C. Crawford, 48, a Round Rock contractor, is making his first bid for office on a platform of allowing citizens to sue the state. His motivation, he has said, was a legal fight with the highway department.

"I will bring back accountability in government by returning sovereignty (the right to sue the state) to the people. I will bring accountability to Texas by returning the right to free counsel (loser pays, not the state) in civil suits to the people so that they are on equal footing with the large businesses and the state," says his campaign literature.

'I'm absolutely certain that the plan we put out will have a positive impact on people's lives.'
Garry Mauro, Democrat

After wild '96, Texas facing a breather

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two years ago, Texas was a major battlefield in the war between Democrats and Republicans over control of the U.S. House, fueled by the state's unusually large number of congressional retirements, a crop of competitive races and a redistricting controversy.

This time, the Lone Star State's congressional election picture is more subdued.

Eight incumbents in the 30 House districts have been handed free rides to re-election, drawing no opponents in the March 10 primary or the November general election.

And, no Senate campaign looms on the horizon until 2000, when Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison is up for re-election.

Texas faces only one open House race this year - in San Antonio, where Democratic Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, retiring after 37 years in Congress. It's unlike 1996, when seven House members decided to hang up their spurs.

Both parties acknowledge that 1998 presents only limited opportunities to topple Texas incumbents. Democrats currently hold 17 House seats to the GOP's 13.

The Republicans' top targets are 20-year veteran Charles Stenholm of Stamford and freshman Nick Lampson of Beaumont.

The Democrats have identified Rep. Ron Paul, R-Surfside, as their chief priority and also talk up their chances against freshman GOP Rep. Pete Sessions of Dallas - who faces Democrat Victor Morales and the pickup truck made famous in his 1996 Senate race against Phil Gramm.

Republicans acknowledge one misstep in their Texas strategy: Their failure to field a candidate against eight-year Democratic Rep. Chet Edwards of Waco, whose Central Texas district would appear to be hospitable terrain for the GOP.

Texas GOP Chairwoman Susan Weddington stressed that her party "did not concede" Edwards' district, explaining that the preferred candidate backed out at the last minute, too late for someone else to enter by the Jan. 2 filing deadline.

As for the rest of the state, Ms. Weddington said: "We feel as though we're very competitive."

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, who chairs his party's main House campaign committee, offers similar assessments, pointing in particular to the Paul race.

"This is our No. 1 challenge race in the state of Texas," Frost said.

Paul, a one-time GOP congressman turned Libertarian presidential candidate turned Republican again, has amassed a quixotic voting record since returning to Congress in 1996. Frost said. "We think he's way out of the mainstream of both parties."

Ms. Weddington professes no fears about holding onto Paul's seat, which stretches from the outskirts of Austin to the Gulf of Mexico. Four Democrats are vying in the March primary for the right to battle Paul in November.

"I don't think we lose any seat," she said.

Republicans also predict victory over Stenholm, pointing to the conservative lawmaker's narrow re-election in 1996. Stenholm faces a rematch with Republican Rudy Izzard, who ran a highly competitive race two years ago despite being outspent by Stenholm four-to-one.

"I feel very comfortable saying that we'll see Rudy Izzard win his race," Ms. Weddington said.

Democrats expect to hold the San Antonio seat Gonzalez is vacating. The Democrats have a crowded primary field of seven - including Gonzalez's son and a former congressional aide - while two Republicans are seeking the GOP nomination.

Beyond Edwards, seven other incumbents are running without opposition: Republicans Dick Armev of Irving, Sam Johnson of Plano and Lamar Smith of San Antonio; and Democrats Lloyd Doggett of Austin, Gene Green and Sheila Jackson Lee of Houston, and Silvestre Reyes of El Paso.

Hopefuls seeking 4 spots on high court

DALLAS (AP) - One candidate vying for a spot on the Texas Supreme Court thinks he deserves the job because besides being the best qualified, he can "spit further and jump farther than anyone in the world."

Democrat Jerry Scarbrough thinks the court needs a new perspective. And he thinks he's the man to add just it.

"The Supreme Court's job is to enunciate public policy. And you can't try to debate what the public policy is from one position," he said.

"You can't pour a pancake so thin that it doesn't have two sides. When these guys look at the pancakes from one side they aren't going to look at the other side, even if there is one."

Scarbrough wants to make sure Texas' nine-member Supreme Court looks at both sides. He is running for Place 4 against either Republican incumbent Deborah Hankinson or Republican Steve Smith in November. The March 10 primary election will determine which of the two Republicans Scarbrough will face.

Republicans currently control the Supreme Court 7-2.

Four of the court's nine places are up for grabs this November. And all four incumbents want to retain their seats.

Republican Justice Craig T. Enoch wants another 6-year term in the Place 1 seat, while Democrat Mike Westergren says he wants to bring more balance to the Republican-dominated court.

"A court should provide people with more predictability of what the law is," Westergren said. "It should be an even-keeled approach in a traditional court that doesn't make decisions based on which side of the bar you're on, but what precedent is."

Place 2 incumbent Rose Spector, a Democrat, thinks she has been able to provide some of that balance during her first term.

"You have to evaluate and review not only the outcome of this case but the effect it will have in the future in various cases of the law," she said.

"You take them on one by one and use that type of analysis. It's not just who wins or loses. It's the analysis that goes into the judgment that's important."

Two women are trying to capture Ms. Spector's spot. But first, Republicans will have to decide whether they prefer Court of Appeals Judge Harriet O'Neill or Dallas Judge Candace Tyson.

Ms. O'Neill says she thinks voters will ultimately make their decision based on the three women's qualifications.

"I think qualifications are the bottom line," she said. "The quality of Supreme Court judges is the most important thing and voters need to make sure they continue to put well qualified jurists on the bench."

Republican incumbent Greg Abbott said judicial selection is one of the issues he is currently examining. He says judicial ethics is another issue he plans to continue to look at if re-elected to his Place 3 seat.

Abbott says he would like to continue the reforms and improve-

Congratulations to Beverly Harder on being named as Hereford's Citizen of the Year to climax the annual Chamber Banquet Friday night. Beverly does a great job as a county extension agent, but like so many who have earned the coveted award, she goes way above and beyond the call of duty for her community.

Those who know her well report that Beverly puts in a 60-to-80 hour work week. She has been a key factor in making the Deaf Smith County 4-H program one of the best in the state. Her leadership and dedication have earned her statewide recognition in a number of areas, including youth, senior citizen programs and church work. It's easy to understand why she was a popular choice.

The Chamber Banquet was a huge success. Gov. George W. Bush attracted a packed Bull Barn. From table decorations by businesses and organizations to all the program highlights, it was an evening to remember. We overheard many people during the week talking about attending the banquet, and many of them expressed a belief that they might be seeing and listening to the next President of the United States.

And, as chamber leaders pointed out at the banquet, much of the success of the banquet was due to the work of Don Cumpton, "the man who put the hustle back into Hustlin' Hereford!" As the new executive director of the chamber, Cumpton has found a perfect place to put his enthusiasm to work!

Did you hear about the farmer who was unhappy with his automobile dealer? When the dealer decided he wanted to buy a good milk cow, the farmer priced it to him like this: Basic cow $200. Accessories: Two-tone color $45; extra stomach $75; storage compartment $60; four spigots $10 each, genuine cowhide upholstery $125; dual horns $14; automatic fly swatter $35. Total price - $594.

The computer age has ruined some of the good things about telephones, it seems to me. Have you noticed how many times you get a recording when you dial a number? Have you called some agency for information and found it difficult to understand the directions for pressing the right button? We tried to pull a joke on a friend the other day, and Caller ID spoiled our plans.

"Hello, this is Leonard Lumpkin with CNN. We're taking a poll and wanted to get your opinion on President Clinton's alleged sex scandal." "I'm not falling for that, Speedy. I've got Caller ID," my friend responded. And then there are those telephone answering machines. No one ever seems to be at home, but some folks are creative:

--This is you-know-who. We are you-know-where. Leave your you-know-what. This is the nineties, you know what to do.

--Hi. I'm probably home but avoiding somebody I don't like. Leave me a message and if I don't return your call, it's you.

--Hi. John's answering machine is broken. This is his refrigerator. Please speak slowly and I will stick your message to myself with one of those magnets.

--Hello. You are talking to a machine. My owners do not need any aluminum siding, storm windows, insurance policies, and don't have any money to invest. They give to charity at the office and don't want a new long-distance phone service. If you have a message otherwise, leave it now.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Let's don't troll over and play dead on this sugar beet thing! Let's fight back. We need to stand up and be counted on this deal and remember those in the past like Jimmy Witherspoon, Earnest Langley, Ray Cowser and Owen Bybee. Too many hard-earned dollars and hours have gone into getting this plant in operation, and we need to do something fast!

My daddy, H.A.M. White, worked for Holly in Grand Junction, Co., when I was a toddler and he got sugar dust pneumonia working there and almost died. But we all survived and we must make an attempt to survive this crisis.

We lost the "pig plant" deal - which I'm glad for - and we ran DOE off our precious land, so why not do something weird and get this plant under a co-op like the electric co-op or a farmers' co-op?

My oldest son worked a short time at Holly when they first opened the plant. They asked him to move to another plant in Wyoming or California but he stayed here and pumped gas until something else came along. I checked groceries, weeded onions and hauled sugar beets to make an honest dollar. We all need to think back to our roots here.

My oldest sister, the late Atha McIver, worked for The Brand many years and was sort of a Mama Bear to the younger newspaper employees. She'd tell them they would look better with a haircut, or that they needed to dress more professional. They were all her family, just like everyone in Hereford is our family.

I'm now a parttime nurse, taking care of elderly and disabled people, and I know where it all comes from - hard work, honesty and fair play. We need to keep that pile of concrete called the Imperial Holly Sugar Beet Plant from moving away from our "Southwest 40."

Too many farmers have sunk money into beet seed planters; truckers have to make payments on vehicles and homes; plant workers have car payments to make, and right on down the railroad line!

Come on folks - let's fight back and try!

Are heroes 'reel' or 'real'?

HERO (hir o) n. 1. A man noted for his special achievements. 2. The principal male character in a novel, poem, or dramatic work. — he-ro'ic adj. — he-ro'ine fem. n. — he-ro'ic-ism' n.

If things continue on the present course, it's likely the United States soon will be at war with Iraq.

Of course, it won't be called a war because only Congress has the constitutional authority to declare war, so we'll be involved in a "military action" or some other euphemism. But, regardless of what it's called, for all practical purposes, it will be a war, and that means we'll be hearing the term "hero" bandied about loosely.

In recent years, "hero" has just about lost its meaning. That became obvious when I saw an advertisement in a magazine for a full-color figurine of the late John Wayne, dressed for one of his movie roles.

In the ad copy, we were encouraged to purchase the figure of "John Wayne, an American hero."

Now, I liked some of John Wayne's movies, particularly "The Searchers," "Sands of Iwo Jima" and "Sons of Katie Elder," but I wouldn't call John Wayne a "hero." He played heroes, but that's all it was: acting.

Later on, we heard the Sylvester Stallone was a "hero" because he played in all those "Rocky" and "Rambo" movies. But again, he wasn't a hero; he played a hero.

A few years ago, I read about an award being presented to Sally Field for her "courage and heroism" in starring in the movie "Norma Rae."

What about Crystal Lee Sutton, the real "Norma Rae," the woman who led the fight to organize textile workers in a Southern mill town?

DON COOPER

Reflections

She was ignored. While the actress who portrayed her was lionized for her "heroism," the person deserving of the accolades was ignored.

Who is the real hero here? Crystal Lee Sutton, a working woman who risked everything for what she believed in, or Sally Field, an exceptionally well-paid actress who did a good job in a movie?

Professional athletes are hailed as "heroes" simply because they can do something of no benefit to anyone better than anyone else. But is the ability to catch a football, hit the three-pointer from the top of the key, or hit home runs things that merit the term "hero"?

I don't think so. The nine young people who defied the mobs to go to school at Little Rock Central were heroes; Pastor Martin Niemöller who stood up to Adolf Hitler was a hero; Cesar Chavez, who fought for better lives for the people who work in the fields, was a hero; Chief Joseph of the Nez Perce was a hero; the emergency workers -- human and animal -- who risked their lives saving victims of the Oklahoma City bombing were heroes.

Movie stars? No way. I can sit back and enjoy watching Harrison Ford or Denzel Washington save the world in "Air Force" and "Hunt for Red October," but I know what I'm seeing are two "reel" heroes, not "real heroes."

Clinton uses well-worn tactics to sell Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP) - In an era of relative peace and prosperity, President Clinton hasn't had much practice in serving as commander-in-chief, or in preparing the nation for war, even a one-sided one.

Thus, as he seeks to generate public support for possible military action against Iraq, he's been using some of the same interactive techniques he used to sell his domestic and social policy, with varying degrees of past success.

He even borrowed a line from Hillary Rodham Clinton's efforts to observe the millennium: remembering the past and imagining the future.

"That's not a bad slogan for us when we deal with more sober, more difficult, more dangerous matters," Clinton said in Pentagon speech Tuesday. He said those like Iraqi President Saddam Hussein "have neither remembered the past nor imagined the future."

Today's sales installment was a town-hall meeting in Columbus, Ohio, presided over by Secretary of

TOM RAUM

Inside Politics

State Madeleine Albright, Defense Secretary William Cohen and national security adviser Sandy Berger.

Clinton is promising Americans clear answers, but his efforts so far have produced a lot of doubters.

In last month's State of the Union address, he said to Saddam: "You cannot defy the will of the world. You have used weapons of mass destruction before. We are determined to deny you the capacity to use them again."

But Clinton on Tuesday added qualifications: "Let me be clear: A military operation cannot destroy all the weapons of mass destruction capacity." Instead, he said the strikes would leave Saddam "significantly worse off than he is now" and that subsequent raids might be needed.

If that was Clinton's line in the sand, it appears to be a shifting one.

The White House accompanied Clinton's Pentagon speech with a glossy CIA publication, "Iraqi Weapons of Mass Destruction Program," presenting the conclusion that "Iraq maintains a small force of Scud-type missiles, a small stockpile of chemical and biological munitions, and the capability to quickly resurrect biological and chemical weapons production."

But Clinton will have to do more to make an effective case, some of his critics suggest.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said Americans need to be told more clearly why attacks might be needed if diplomacy fails, saying his constituents are "uneasy about air and missile strikes."

Clinton starts with one big disadvantage compared with President Bush: Leading up to the 1991 war, Iraq had invaded Kuwait

U.S. divided over strike against Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP) - "We have a divided house, I think," said one of the White House emissaries seeking to rally Americans behind President Clinton's threatened air attack on Iraq.

And probably a divided Senate too, although Sandy Berger, the White House national security adviser, wasn't talking about Congress.

Berger was describing the mixed and protest-punctuated response he, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and Defense Secretary William Cohen got Wednesday as they explained the case for attacking Iraq at Ohio State University. They said the United States preferred a diplomatic settlement, but insisted that otherwise, there must be attacks.

Albright called the risk of nuclear, chemical or biological attack by a nation such as Iraq "the greatest security threat we face."

The CNN-televised session at the university fieldhouse was part of an orchestrated effort by the Clinton administration to prepare the nation for the air raids Clinton plans unless Iraqi President Saddam Hussein agrees to unrestricted U.N. inspections of suspected chemical and biological weapons sites.

This one was dissonant.

And not only because of the noisy handful of protesters who jeered from seats high above the red-carpeted TV platform on the arena floor. Questions put politely were often sharp, sometimes hostile, on the morality of striking Iraq, the fraying of the anti-Baghdad alliance since the 1991 Persian Gulf War, the magnitude of potential civilian casualties, and the consistency of U.S. foreign policy given abusive regimes elsewhere in the region and the world.

"I really am surprised that people feel it is necessary to defend the rights of Saddam Hussein, when what we ought to be thinking about is how to make sure that he does not use weapons of mass destruction" Albright said.

She said there were other countries with chemical and biological weapons, but they haven't used them "and Saddam Hussein is a repeat offender" who, at the end of the Gulf War, agreed to the U.N. inspections he now is restricting.

Even the hawks, like the white-haired veteran in his campaign cap, and the telephone questioner who wanted to know how many times this has to happen, had misgivings - they wanted to know whether the administration would go all the way this time, and get rid of Saddam for good.

"We do not support that option," Berger replied, saying it would take a major ground war and risk heavy casualties.

Cohen said the Pentagon did not anticipate significant U.S. losses or injuries in air strikes against weapons

Many lawmakers have been hesitant because they fear the conflict could seriously escalate, and they sites. He said they've been spotted, carefully selected and can be hit. And if rebuilt, he said, hit again. The questions about options, civilian casualties, the effectiveness of air strikes and how far to go against Saddam echoed the debate Congress will resume when it reconvenes Monday. While Republican leaders back the president, they delayed Senate action on a resolution saying so, uncertain about the vote.

The administration effort to rally Main Street support is meant for that audience too.

But it is based on repetition of the same message Clinton, Albright and Cohen have been sounding since Iraq balked at full inspections last October.

An intelligence paper was issued by the White House on Tuesday, reporting evidence that Iraq has hidden the forbidden weapons from inspectors and seeks to develop larger missiles that could deliver them beyond the Middle East.

Clinton drew no louder ovation from Congress than when he declared in his State of the Union message that the United States would deny Saddam Hussein the capacity to use weapons of mass destruction. Now he says air strikes would "leave him significantly worse off" in the ability to threaten or attack.

With that revised measurement of success, without a rallying point like the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait that led to the Persian Gulf War, without the fearsome menace at home that was posed by Soviet missiles in Cuba in 1962, the task of persuading Americans to back attacks is far more difficult.

"First you commit the country and then you commit the troops," a skeptical Democrat, then-Speaker Thomas Foley, said before the Gulf War. "I think the country is still confused and concerned."

So it seems now, seven years later. While campus protests are predictable, the performance in Columbus was made for television, and the replays won't help Clinton's effort to gain and cement support for his policy.

"It didn't turn out the way we hoped it would," a senior White House official acknowledged privately.

But, Berger said, "Part of what we fight for as a country is the freedom to argue."

At the same time, part of what the administration is campaigning for is to get past the arguments.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 30 years.

Congestion

Traffic gets congested during the day at the intersection of U.S. Hwys. 385 (25 Mile Avenue) and 60 as work crews replace sections of the roadway. The new concrete lanes will be able to withstand the daily pounding better than the old roadway, according to the Texas Department of Transportation.

question whether such strikes will cause Iraq to yield. Others are not sure what the consequences might be of blowing up arsenals of chemical and biological weapons, and where the winds might carry such contamination.

Retired Gen. Colin Powell, the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has said the "darkest part" of the Persian Gulf War was waiting for reports over whether Iraq had unleashed chemical or biological weapons.

Charles N. Davis, a former analyst with the Defense Intelligence Agency, contends a U.S. air attack would undermine the U.S. position in the Gulf without stopping Saddam from continuing to develop such weapons. "The negative consequences from a U.S. attack also could be disastrous for neighboring countries," he suggests.

Like the president, Clinton's top lieutenants are now using relative terms for the punishment that air strikes would inflict on Saddam. Why the scaled back expectations?

Said White House spokesman Mike McCurry: "As the president has watched the diplomatic discussion wind down ... the precision with which he is addressing the possible use of military force has increased."

And why not set a deadline or draw a new line in the sand?

"It's not about artificial deadlines," McCurry said. "It's about assuring that those things the United States and the world community are insisting upon get achieved."

About a decade ago, the Texas judiciary was the laughing stock of the nation, Abbott said. Now, however, he says the Texas Supreme Court is recognized as one of the best.

"It is more fair, balanced and predictable legal system than we had a decade ago," he said. "Internally at the court we have implemented new rules for how people appeal to the court and we are applying new rules as to how we expedite our work."

Second-guessing part of the scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ordinarily, second-guessing begins after the case unfolds and the story is told. Not this time. Ordinary doesn't apply in the matter of President Clinton and the White House intern.

So the reappraisals are under way, even as new installments of sex and cover-up allegations are reported daily.

The Committee of Concerned Journalists said early coverage of the case raised "basic questions about the standards of American journalism" by blending information with opinion and speculation.

Clinton has second-guessed himself, without acknowledging it, swallowing his initial promise of a full explanation sooner rather than later. Now it's to be much later.

His spokesman, Mike McCurry, confided his personal observations on the record. After they were published Tuesday, he said he'd had a lapse in sanity.

Among the major figures in the case, only special prosecutor Kenneth W. Starr has avoided hindsight misgivings about his pursuit of the allegations that Clinton had a sexual relationship with Monica Lewinsky and tried to get her to lie to cover it up, misconduct the president vehemently denies. Starr did express concern about leaks, while denying they were his.

After Starr got his Whitewater franchise extended to cover the Lewinsky episode, Clinton spoke of legitimate questions that Americans had a right to hear his answers to. "I'd like you to have more rather than less, sooner rather than later," he said on Jan. 22.

Since then, he has only repeated his denials, no explanations. He said he was legally constrained against comment while the case is investigated, but the White House has acknowledged that no such bar to disclosure exists.

Silence was a matter of legal strategy, and subsequently political, since his performance and popularity ratings went up, although the boost produced by his State of the Union message may be ebbing now.

McCurry, the White House press secretary, fended away questions, saying he was double-parked in a no-comment zone and neither had nor wanted the full accounting. To have it would be to invite a Starr subpoena.

He then mused on the case in an interview with The Chicago Tribune, in words he said he regretted. He didn't retract anything. "I just shouldn't have said it," McCurry said.

At his comments about the likely complexity of the story of Clinton's relationship with the intern produced speculation that he'd spoken with a purpose, to take the edge off when there is an explanation from the president.

"Maybe there'll be a simple, innocent explanation," he'd said in the interview. "I don't think so because I think we would have offered that up already."

He also said he has to believe the explanation will be consistent with Clinton's denials, or he couldn't do his job.

At his next White House briefing, he said his comments were speculation and hypothetical, not based on any information. "You know, sometimes being the spokesman means shutting up," McCurry said.

And he did, on that topic.

Ironically, he'd earlier complained in a lecture at Harvard University about speculation in news coverage of the case. "There's an awful lot of commentary out there that's masquerading as fact," McCurry said.

The journalists' committee commissioned a study of first-week coverage that said so, too. Princeton Survey Research Associates assessed reports in five major newspapers, two newsmagazines, network television and Sunday talk shows and found 1,565 statements or allegations about the case. This was their analysis:

- 41 percent of the statements weren't factual reporting but analysis, opinion or speculation.

- 21 percent of the reporting was based on anonymous sources, unavoidably so on stories involving a grand jury investigation and a White House silent save for denials.

In the end, reliability counts, whatever the source. But the study also found that the anonymous sources rarely were described to the point that a reader could weigh possible bias in what they disclosed.

- In the factual reporting, 21 percent of what was printed or broadcast was attributed to other news organizations.

"The picture that emerges is of a news culture that is increasingly involved with disseminating information rather than gathering it," the journalists' committee said.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 30 years.

After 18 years, the Blues Brothers are back

NEW YORK (AP) - The year was 1980 and disco was king.

ABBA and The Bee Gees were hot, and almost everyone was doing "the Freak."

Then along came a quirky little film about two guys dressed in black suits, shades and fedoras. No wide lapels or white polyester suits on these dudes!

The duo said they were on a "mission from God."

And that mission was? To bring back the blues.

Suddenly, disco was in trouble. "The Blues Brothers," directed by John Landis and starring comedians John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd, was an off-the-wall comedy about the title characters - deadpan musical performers introduced on NBC's "Saturday Night Live."

Featuring James Brown, Aretha Franklin, Cab Calloway and The Blues Brothers band, the film grossed over $80 million worldwide and propelled rhythm 'n' blues back to the forefront of pop culture. The film's soundtrack continues to sell about 100,000 units a year.

"No one appreciated John Lee Hooker, James Brown or Aretha Franklin," said Landis. "No one understood the beauty of the blues." Thanks partly to that beauty, Landis was on his way to a career that has spawned more than 17 movies, six of which have grossed over $100 million each.

He is the oddball brain behind "Spies Like Us," "Trading Places," "Coming to America," "Into the Night" and "Three Amigos!" His credits also extend to such cult favorites as "The Kentucky Fried Movie" and "An American Werewolf in London."

He also directed Michael Jackson in his breakthrough videos, "Thriller" and "Black or White." On the small screen, he helped produce "Sliders," "Weird Science" and "Dream On."

Now Landis is back with "Blues Brothers 2000," without Belushi, who died of a drug overdose in 1982.

The film stars Aykroyd, who reprises his role as Elwood Blues of the legendary Chicago-based ensemble, and John Goodman as a strip-joint bartender who loves the blues as much as Elwood does. Hot on the band's trail are a militia organization and the Russian Mafia.

"The first movie was comedy noir. It has a dark edge and also it was made by young guys who were hugely successful," Landis said. "You know, it was like 'let's destroy Chicago!'"

"In this movie, we're middle-aged. Danny (Aykroyd) and I are middle-aged. That's the big difference. We have children. The first picture was R-rated because of language. So in this one we took that out and the plot is softer."

Landis, 47, and Aykroyd, 45, have logged many miles together.

"Well, I've worked with Danny a lot. In fact, I was offered 'Men in Black' and read the script and said, 'Wait a minute. This is Ghostbusters dressed up as The Blues Brothers! Hey, that's Danny's idea! You owe Danny money!'"

At first, finding a replacement for Belushi seemed impossible.

"When John Belushi died, the whole idea of a sequel died with him. But when we thought about it, we knew there was another story to tell. We wanted it to be a new chapter," said Landis.

It was Aykroyd who suggested Goodman.

"I said, 'Can he sing? Do you know him?' And, I swear this is true, at the same time John Goodman was also calling Danny!"

Lawmaker tells single mom to marry

PHOENIX (AP) - When single mother Liz Heron sent her letter to the state Capitol, she hoped it would help persuade lawmakers to improve child care for welfare recipients in school.

Instead, she received a letter from Rep. Mark Anderson suggesting she improve her financial situation by finding another husband.

At first, the divorced mother of three thought it was a joke, but when she realized he was serious, she became livid.

"I'm totally for family values. I didn't just get into marriage lightly. We worked at it before we called it quits. To say that marriage should be reduced to a financial issue was insulting," the 31-year-old nursing student said.

Heron initially wrote her state senator to let him know she thought Arizona should provide more child care assistance for low-income single parents who are trying to complete their education.

Her letter, which explained that she was struggling to pay for day care in her last semester of college, was given to Anderson, a lawmaker who has been heavily involved in the state's welfare reform.

Anderson wrote back to Heron, saying the state didn't have the resources to help everyone.

'Horsemen,' flappers mark '20s stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) - Good manners and great football, the drought of Prohibition and the flappers who flouted it, financial disaster and political inclusion will be among the subjects on new postage stamps commemorating the 1920s.

The Postal Service is issuing a series of collections, 15 stamps each, commemorating the events of each decade in this century.

Stamps for the 1900s and 1910s were released in January, and subjects for the 1920s stamps were announced Thursday. Their release dates and locations were not made public.

The flowering of sports in the 1920s is recalled on two stamps, one for New York Yankee baseball star Babe Ruth and the other of the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame football fame.

The Fighting Irish backfield got its nickname from sports writer Grantland Rice after a 13-7 victory over Army on Oct. 18, 1924.

Wrote Rice: "Outlined against a blue, gray October sky the Four Horsemen rode again."

"In dramatic lore they are known as famine, pestilence, destruction and death. These are only aliases. Their real names are: Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Layden. They formed the crest of the South Bend cyclone before which another fighting Army team was swept over the precipice at the Polo Grounds this afternoon as 55,000 spectators peered down upon the bewildering panorama spread out upon the green plain below."

The four were quarterback Harry Stuhldreher, halfbacks Jim Crowley and Don Miller and fullback Elmer Layden.

In the arts and letters there will be stamps commemorating F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel "The Great Gatsby," American Realism in art and the Art Deco style of design.

On the political front, stamps will recall the attempted enforcement of Prohibition and, more successful, the 19th Amendment granting women the right to vote.

Lifestyles of the era will be recalled with stamps showing flappers doing the Charleston, commemorating the flourishing of jazz music, recalling the popularity of electric toy trains, and remembering the arrival of radio as family entertainment.

Famous personalities included will be Charles Lindbergh, the first person to fly solo across the Atlantic; anthropologist Margaret Mead; and the maven of manners, Emily Post.

Postal officials selected the subjects for the stamps covering the first half of the century and the public is being asked to vote on those for the second 50 years.

Voting is now under way covering the 1950s with ballots available at post offices or through the Internet at <http://stampvote.msn.com>.

TIPPER GORE

NEW YORK (AP) - Tipper Gore wants Americans to get free screenings next week for eating disorders.

"Eating disorders are serious illness," Mrs. Gore told Parade magazine for its Feb. 22 issue. "We almost take them too lightly. Some kids in my daughters' classes went into hospitals for a while."

While she never had an eating disorder herself, Mrs. Gore noted that Princess Diana talked publicly about her bulimia and Ellen I era, the wife of Energy Secretary Federico Pena, went public about her anorexia. "I want to add my voice," Mrs. Gore said.

More than 5 million Americans, mostly women, are affected by eating disorders including anorexia, bulimia and binge-eating. About 80 percent of people affected with the disorders respond well to treatment.

Free anonymous screenings will be offered from Monday through Feb. 28 at hospitals, colleges, and treatment centers, sponsored by the National Eating Disorders Screening Program.

CLINT EASTWOOD

AUSTIN (AP) - No one will ever forget the day Pale Rider came to town, if Clint Eastwood gets his way.

Celis Brewery's latest beer, Pale Rider, was concocted with Eastwood's help and sports a reproduction of his signature on the Southwestern-themed label. Celis unveiled the brew Thursday.

Eastwood, who played the title role in the 1985 film "Pale Rider," commissioned Miller Brewing Co. to develop a beer more than two years ago. Miller, the distributor for Celis, turned the job over to the Austin brewer. And Eastwood signed off on the brew.

"It was important that he love the beer," said brewery President Christine Celis. "He does."

A reproduction of Eastwood's signature is featured on the beer's label below a description of the brew as "rich, full-flavored... with a crisp finish."

Eastwood has said all profits from the beer will go to charity.

Some things defy logic

JOHN GUNNIFF Business Mirror

NEW YORK (AP) - Some things are difficult to understand.

When Richard McKenzie and Dwight Lee wrote a booklet called "Getting Rich in America: A Few Easy Rules to Follow," they were unprepared for some of the comments it produced.

Perhaps it was the booklet's thesis, that for most Americans becoming rich is a matter of choice. Barring tragedies, most Americans with a modest annual income can become rich over the period of a lifetime.

All they need do, the authors suggested, is live modestly, choosing not to waste money on nonessentials, such as an overly expensive car or cigarettes or other "fritters." The other side of the choice is to indulge and spend every available cent.

Take the 21-year-old, two-pack-a-day smoker. Should that individual quit cigarettes and invest the savings at 6 percent he or she would have roughly $150,000 by age 71. Make that an unlikely 15 percent and they'd have more than $3 million.

Another example: Put $2,000 away in a tax-deferred account, be lucky enough to earn 10 percent a year (the 60-year average for stocks is higher than that), and you'd have $194,000 by age 70. Do that every year and you'd have more than $2.1 million.

McKenzie and Lee, college professors, conducted their study and analysis of wealth factors as an academic enterprise for the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University in St. Louis.

But the word got around and requests for the booklet came in. And then came the comments. Lee seemed stunned as he described how much disbelief there is in the chances of getting rich. Some readers even berated him for encouraging such nonsense.

Surprised but not intimidated, the professors now are thinking about enlarging the study for a book aimed at the popular market. Their message, they believe, is too valuable for a limited and sometimes unappreciative audience.

Robert Nozick, professor of philosophy at Harvard University, has been asking a different question in articles published by the Georgia State University Business Press and the Harvard University Press: Why do intellectuals oppose capitalism?

Most recently, his analysis was condensed in the Cato Foundation's "Policy Report," a forum of free-market thinking. In some respects it amounts to an analysis of the mental disposition of those who consider themselves above the marketplace.

"I do not mean all people of intelligence or of a certain level of education," he begins, "but those who, in their vocation, deal with ideas as expressed in words, shaping the word flow others receive."

These wordsmiths, as he calls them, are concentrated in certain occupational sites, such as academia, the media and government bureaucracies, and feel entitled to the highest rewards of society and are resentful when they do not receive them, he says.

They "feel they are the most valuable people, the ones with the highest merit, and that society should reward people in accordance with their value and merit." But a capitalist society does not distribute to each according to their value and merit.

Instead, the market distributes to those who satisfy the perceived market-expressed demands of others, and what and how much it distributes is more in keeping with the laws of supply and demand.

That's only a small part of the explanations offered by Nozick, but it's enough to raise the hackles of hackers in academia, government and media.

Another point to ponder: Considering that it is their money, why is it so difficult to sell the public on the idea of returning unused taxes, sometimes called surplus revenue? The notion is considered in some circles to be preposterous, outrageous, weird, even decadent.

But it is, after all, the taxpayers' money, and nobody denies that. Neither do they deny the fact that taxes are a burden, that for many families taxes consume more of their budget than any other item, and that taxpayers could use the case.

Daniel Mitchell, a senior fellow at The Heritage Foundation, a right-wing think tank, asks the questions after pointing out that since Bill Clinton became president, the tax burden as a percent of gross domestic product has climbed 2.1 percent.

"This may not sound like a large amount," he says, "but 2.1 percent of an $8.461 trillion economy is $177.7 billion." A refund of that size, he points out, would mean the average family of four would receive more than $2,500 in annual tax relief.

Returning it to taxpayers might conceivably be poor politics, but to some in Congress it is more than that: It is incomprehensible to consider putting money back in peoples' pockets. Force financially pressed people to accept their own money?

The very idea!

NAGANO, Japan -- A quick look at the Winter Olympics:

A VERY YOUNG CHAMPION
Tara Lipinski won the women's figure skating gold medal, at 15 years the youngest Olympic figure skater champion. U.S. teammate Michelle Kwan won silver and Lu Chen of China took bronze.

SHAKING THE SNOW
A minor earthquake rattled the Olympic venues, shaking beds and pipes but causing no damage or injuries in Nagano. There was snow on the mountains, clouds in town, with highs around 40.

ALPINE SKIING
Hans-Petter Buraas of Norway won the men's slalom. Alberto Tomba dropped out of the race after a disappointing first run.

BIATHLON
Germany won the men's 30-kilometer relay. Norway was second and Russia third.

BOBSLED
Brian Shimer of the United States was tied for third with one run left in four-man. Christoph Langen of Germany was in the lead.

SPEEDSKATING
Claudia Pechstein of Germany won the women's 5,000-meter gold with a world record.

NAGANO NUGGET
It's OK to look at Japan's emperor and empress if they show up at the Olympics -- just as long as they aren't perched below you. Journalists peeking through the windows of the second-floor news conference room at the Snow Harp cross-country venue were told to stop as the royal couple talked to volunteers at the stadium's entrance.

IN BRIEF

Records fall at SLC

FORT WORTH (AP) -- Nicholls State's Kevin Smelley and McNeese State's Sita Waru set men's and women's meet records in the 5,000 meters Friday at the Southland Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships.

McNeese led women's team scoring after the first day of competition with 38 points, followed by Texas-Arlington with 27. Stephen F. Austin led the men's division with 29 points, followed by Northwestern State with 25.

Texas-San Antonio's distance medley relay topped Texas-Arlington's 1996 meet record of 9 minutes, 59.09 seconds by turning in a 9:46.31.

Individually, Smelley set a meet record with his 5,000-meter time of 14:26.35. Waru ran her record race in 16:55.15.

Competition was to continue on Saturday.

Marlins' Sheffield no-show

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) -- Gary Sheffield claims he can best prepare for the season by skipping the first week of spring training, and the Florida Marlins say they believe him.

Sheffield failed to show up Friday for the first full-squad workout with the Marlins, who were already short of familiar faces. The team gave Sheffield permission at the last minute to report six days late so he could continue working out at home in St. Petersburg with his personal trainer.

"Gary's not really a concern. We've got a lot more things to take care of."

The unexpected absence of the moody slugger renewed speculation that he's unhappy with the Marlins. Sheffield has been the subject of offseason trade talk, and he has yet to comment publicly on the dismantling of Florida's World Series championship team.

Sheffield skipped the Marlins' trip this week to the White House, and he hasn't spoken to manager Jim Leyland or general manager Dave Dombrowski since November.

Marbury took a career-high 28 field goal attempts, making 12 (42.8 percent). His previous high was 23, earlier this year.

The Rockets failed to match their longest road winning streak of the season at three.

Nagano incident tarnishes image of U.S.

"... Sometimes sports people will not always be sportsmen."

Rene Fasel, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, didn't break any new ground by making that statement in response to vandalism committed by one or more Team USA hockey members hours after their 4-1 loss to the Czech Republic at Nagano.

The vandalism was described as minimal -- broken chairs and a couple of fire extinguishers emptied -- but from me it prompts this question.

Was the play of Team USA on the ice or their behavior off the ice the bigger embarrassment?

The effort is already under way to put the best spin possible on to both -- Team USA's disappointing

The Toy Department

By Bob Varnette

sixth-place finish and the tirade that followed.

The head of the NHL players' union, Bob Goodenow, is already downplaying the vandalism incident. While he didn't excuse the action, he volunteered it was being blown out of proportion.

"This wasn't nearly as bad as people are making it out to be," Goodenow said. "I saw it. Some folding chairs got broken. They were weak and break when you lean back on them. The fire extinguisher -- there's no excuse for that. There's no excuse for any of it. I'm not condoning it, but it wasn't as bad as it appears."

And perhaps that is the case. After all, $3,000 isn't a lot of money when you consider all the money the International Olympic Committee is raking in from TV contracts and corporate sponsorships.

But that really isn't the point, and we all know it isn't. Appearance does matter.

What is the point is one or several American hockey players brought back the image of the "Ugly American."

You may not realize this, but we're generally not well thought of across the globe. The people of most countries see us as arrogant and ethnocentric at best.

And this is not wholly without cause. The incident at Nagano was just another pointed reminder to the rest of the world.

Is this what we want the rest of the world to remember our time in Nagano by, as if the players' dismal play wasn't bad enough?

Is there an answer?

I don't know. But perhaps we should revisit the idea of sending spoiled millionaires to the Olympics. When the original founders of the Games put on the first Olympics some 2,000 years ago, I don't think that was what they had in mind.

And it may not solve this problem. After all, you or I are perhaps as likely to revert to such juvenile behavior.

We can make the case that American amateur hockey players didn't wreck their residence facilities when they didn't win a medal at Sarajevo in 1984, or Calgary in 1988, or Albertville in 1992 or Lillehammer in 1994. But we can't say with any sense of certainty it wouldn't happen in the future.

We Americans deem the incident as minor -- $3,000 isn't that

Italy's Tomba is a bomb-a

NAGANO, Japan (AP) -- La Bomba went out with a whimper, not a bang.

On a morning when a small earthquake rattled Nagano, the ordinarily explosive Alberto Tomba couldn't shake off an injury suffered two days ago during the giant slalom. Tomba, after one mediocre run in the slalom Saturday (Friday night CST), withdrew from the race.

Tomba's decision to watch the rest of his likely final Olympic race on television cleared the way for orange-haired Hans-Petter Buraas of Norway to grab the gold in weather typical for a Nagano Alpine event: stinging sleet and thick fog.

The silver medal went to Buraas' teammate, Ole Christian Furuseth. Austrian Thomas Sykora, the first-run leader and the reigning World Cup slalom champion, finished third.

Tomba's probable last run, after five medals in three games, was only good for 17th place in the slalom. He shook his head in dismay at the bottom of the course.

"He was still troubled by back pain and he has a light groin strain from the spill he took," Robert Brunner, an Italian team official, said after Tomba's uncharacteristic trip down the mountain. Tomba had wiped out in the giant slalom after clipping the eighth gate.

The medals count on the next-to-last day of the Nagano Games: Germany topped the list with 28 (11 gold, 9 silver, 8 bronze). Norway was second with 24 (9-10-5), while Russia (9-5-) had 17.

The U.S. team, boosted by the 1-2 finish of teen figure skaters Tara Lipinski and Michelle Kwan, now has 13 medals -- equaling its best-ever mark set four years ago in Lillehammer. The Americans have two days left to better that total.

BIATHLON: The Germany team of Ricco Gross, Peter Sendel, Sven Fischer and Frank Luck won the Olympic gold medal in the men's 30-kilometer biathlon relay, the Nagano-high 11th gold medal for the Germans.

Norway won the silver and Russia the bronze.

FIGURE SKATING: Lipinski, 15, became the youngest Olympic figure skating champion in history, jumping over fellow teen and U.S. teammate Michelle Kwan to take the gold.

Wilson leads high school rodeo points

From staff reports

Rodey Wilson of Hereford is practicing and getting his horses "tuned up" for the up-coming spring semester of high school rodeo.

After 10 fall rodeos, Wilson is currently in the lead for the All-Around Cowboy Award in the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association.

He leads in Tie-Down Calf Roping event, is third in the Team Roping (heeler), and fourth in the Ribbon Roping.

Wilson won the the All-Around Cowboy title at Dumas, Wheeler, Canadian, and Falls.

Along with these events, Wilson leads the Tie-Down Calf Roping for Region I of the Texas High School Rodeo Association and second for All-Around in that association.

Wilson won the Spicer Gripp Memorial and the Wesley Sims Memorial Junior Calf Roping matches and is the current World Junior Calf Roper of the American Calf-Ropers Association.

During the off-season, he competed in the Oklahoma Rough Riders Youth Rodeos, United States Team Ropings, the World Junior Team Roping, and ACRA Calf Ropings.

NHL looking into Nagano tirade

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

NAGANO, Japan -- The damage is done, and now the NHL intends to find out who did it.
Commissioner Gary Bettman said Friday the league will investigate which U.S. hockey players were involved in damaging their Olympic Village rooms, and, if necessary, discipline them.
Three apartments occupied by USA players were trashed hours after their 4-1 loss to the Czechs on Wednesday, causing $3,000 in damage. The vandalism was minimal -- a few chairs broken, a couple of fire extinguishers emptied -- but it clearly antagonized the team's Japanese hosts.
The league probably won't identify the culprits until NHL teams begin reassembling for the resumption of play next week and USA team members can be interviewed. For now, they are scattered around the country, and some stopped in Hawaii to play golf.

"Under the NHL constitution, I have the power to discipline action that is detrimental to hockey," Bettman said.
"We had less than a handful of people, maybe only one, do something that everybody would agree was wrong," he said. "The damage was not monumental, fortunately. But the conduct was inappropriate and we'll try to find out who was responsible and deal with it."
Bettman, NHL vice president Brian Burke and players' union head

Bob Goodenow viewed the damage, and USOC officials met with the exasperated Nagano organizers. Bettman said the league's security chief would work with USA Hockey on the investigation.
Goodenow agrees the incident is being blown out of proportion.
"This wasn't vandalism or wanton destruction of property," Goodenow said. "This wasn't nearly as bad as people are making it out to be. I saw it. Some folding chairs got broken. They were weak and break when you lean back on them. The fire extinguisher, there's no excuse for that. There's no excuse for any of it. I'm not condoning it, but it wasn't as bad as it appears."
All of the appropriate bodies -- the NHL, USA Hockey and the NHL

Players Association -- swiftly expressed remorse.
Asked if he was happy with the apologies, Ko Yamaguchi, a spokesman for the Nagano Olympic organizing committee, replied: "I'm not happy. It's a very sad incident. It was a very dangerous incident, not in line with the Olympic spirit."
"It's quite regrettable that these things happen. But they should not happen. The Olympic Village should be respected."
"It is not acceptable what they did, but sometimes it is not always avoidable," said Rene Fasel, the president of the governing International Ice Hockey Federation.
"I'm not trying to excuse their behavior, but sometimes sports people will not always be sportsmen."

Incident

much, and how do a few chairs and a couple of fire extinguishers cost that much anyway?
Is our arrogance and narcissism showing when we ask such a question?
The dollar amount of the damage isn't, or shouldn't, be the issue. The damage to the reputation(s) of the member or members involved cannot be quantified in those terms.
Nor can the damage to our image as a country.
We can pass this off by saying it wasn't that big a deal, and that the rest of the world already thinks we're people who do such things. Or, we can try to clean up our image in the international community.
And that's not to say there aren't other countries who have exhibited poor sportsmanship. That, however, is not an excuse.

At the Olympics, we as a nation compete against other nations, but it also one team against another team, one athlete against another athlete. Sportsmanship should still apply.
The Olympics, more than any other sporting venue, is, or should, be about sportsmanship.
The answer lies in our attitude toward the world, and the attitude of the world toward us. Granted, these words will not open the closed mind. But perhaps it will make the majority of us who don't see this as a problem, see this as a problem.
And it may aid the rehabilitation of our national image in areas other than sports.

Hasek, Bure to face off for gold

NAGANO, Japan (AP) -- Hockey's gold medal game comes down to the ultimate showdown -- a hot goalie against a hot shooter with an Olympic championship hanging in the balance.
The goalie is Dominik Hasek of the Czech Republic, who was brilliant in a 2-1 shootout semifinal victory over Canada on Friday. The shooter is Pavel Bure, who scored five goals in Russia's 7-4 victory over Finland.
They clash on the last day of the Olympics with their game shown live Saturday night on CBS starting at 10:35 p.m. CST.

This gold medal game is a reunion of sorts. Russia was the major republic in the former Soviet Union, which won 10 gold medals in 12 Olympics from 1956-1992. Twice, in 1976 and 1984, the Soviets defeated Czechoslovakia for the gold medal. Czechoslovakia split into the Czech Republic and Slovakia in 1993.
By then the exodus of East bloc players headed for the NHL had begun. The impact was immediate. Russia and the Czechs were out of the medal chase in 1994 at Lillehammer. With NHL players admitted to the tournament for the first time this year.

Hasek and Bure changed that in a hurry.
In the semifinals, the goalie and scorer put on hockey clinics, one on defense, the other on offense, in two dramatically different games.
Hasek was immovable in goal for the Czech Republic, shutting out the Canadians until the last moments of regulation, then stopping them throughout a 10-minute overtime and the shootout.
Bure scored on every kind of offensive move imaginable -- breakaways, rebounds, even an empty net -- as Russia eliminated Finland.

SPEEDSKATING: Germany's Gunda Niemann-Stirnemann skated into the record books with a silver in the 5,000 meters, her eighth medal in the last three Winter Olympics. Her three golds, four silvers and a bronze equaled the total compiled by Karin Enke-Kania of East Germany.
The gold went to her teammate Claudia Pechstein, the 5,000-meter winner in Lillehammer four years ago.
HOCKEY: High school kid Lipinski now has something that future Hall of Famer Gretzky must live without: a gold medal. Gretzky and his Canadian hockey team lost a nailbiter to the Czechs, 2-1.

Sheffield

the manager or anybody else," Leyland said. "Gary's not really a concern. We've got a lot more things to take care of. He'll be our right fielder and the star. I'm not worried about that."
Sheffield, who starts a $61 million, six-year contract this season, received permission to remain in St. Petersburg when his agent, Jim Neader, talked Thursday with Dombrowski. Sheffield is focused on a training program to prevent the sort of injuries that nagged him last season, Dombrowski said.
"He is going through the aches and pains associated with those things," Dombrowski said. "He'd like to keep working with his physical fitness trainer one-on-one, and he'd feel better working with him, where he can get more individual attention than he can get here."

Sheffield is now scheduled to report Thursday, the mandatory reporting date for all players under baseball's collective bargaining agreement. The Marlins' first spring training game is Friday.
One teammate said Sheffield may be on the verge of exhausting Leyland's patience, but other players declined to criticize their slugger for his absence.
"It's OK," pitcher Livan Hernandez said. "He'll be back. He'll hit 45 home runs."
Left fielder Cliff Floyd predicted that Sheffield will hit 70 homers.
"This year he's going to be unbelievable," Floyd said. "I wish he was here, because I haven't seen him the whole offseason. But if he has personal business, he has personal business. You can't question the man. He's our star."

This season Sheffield will make $10 million, about 40 percent of the team's projected $25 million payroll. The budget was halved when such 1997 heroes as Kevin Brown, Al Leiter, Moises Alou and Jeff Conine were traded.
"This was a tough day in a lot of ways," said Leyland, who will spend much of the spring assessing talented but unproven young players. "But this organization has a chance to be good again in a hurry."
Two other players missed Friday's workout -- third baseman Bobby Bonilla and right-hander Alex Fernandez. Bonilla is recovering from wrist surgery and hopes to be ready by opening day, while Fernandez might miss the entire season following shoulder surgery.

Florida tried to trade Sheffield during the winter, but he was coming off a disappointing season (.250, 21 homers, 71 RBIs), and no team was willing to take on his contract.
There's little doubt, however, that Sheffield and Bonilla remain on the market.
"I'm approaching it the way I've approached it the last couple of months," Dombrowski said. "To me, Bobby Bonilla and Gary Sheffield will be with us."
Sheffield, 29, was bothered by back, thumb and hamstring injuries last year. Neader said Sheffield is now in good health but still rehabilitating his back, which is why he wanted to spend another week with personal trainer Larry Mayol.

Tucson

Huston for the lowest for 36 holes on tour this year. It also was the second-lowest 36-hole half-way score in tournament history.
First-day leader Justin Leonard and Scott Hoch were seven shots back at 135. Hoch had a 66 in the second round, and Leonard carded a 70.
Steve Pate was eight shots behind, with 1994 winner Andrew Magee and David Toms at 137. Tom Lehman and Mark Calcavecchia were 7-under on the front nine when play was suspended.
Huston, who set a PGA record last week by winning the Hawaiian Open at 28-under, also made a move with a second-round 66 that left him 6-under -- still 10 shots off Duval's pace.
The 72 players who failed to complete the round will finish Saturday morning, and after the cut the third round will begin in early afternoon.
Duval's short game was magical from the start. He birdied the first, sixth, seventh and eighth holes and eagled Nos. 2 and 9 to match this year's best nine-hole score at 8-under 28.
The 26-year-old Floridian, who won his first three championships in his final three starts of 1997, made his only bogey on No. 10, when his second shot went over the green and two-putted after chipping back on.

Temblor hits central Japan

NAGANO, Japan (AP) -- The Nagano Olympics, already disrupted by fog, snow, rain and sleet, were shaken by a moderate earthquake.
People from the ski slopes of Shiga Kogen to the media village at Nagano felt the quake Saturday morning (Friday night CST).
One injury was reported in Niigata state, north of Nagano in central Japan, where the quake was centered: part of a highway was buried by a landslide, and service on Japan's "bullet" train was halted for about two hours.
The quake struck at 9:55 a.m. (6:55 p.m. CST Friday), and was centered about 12 miles underground in Niigata on the Sea of Japan coast, the Meteorological Agency said.
At the slalom course about 18 miles northwest of Nagano, the ground shook for about two seconds, rattling a temporary press room near the finish area, during the middle of the first run.
"We had no competitor who claimed the ground was shaking," said Gian Franco Kasper, secretary general of the international ski federation.
Japan is one of the world's most earthquake-prone nations as it sits atop four tectonic plates, slabs of land that move across the Earth's surface.

Wilson

Wilson has won a number of trophy saddles, belt buckles and more than $10,000 in prize money in 1997.
The spring semester rodeos will begin March 14. The Hereford High School Rodeo Club will host their approved rodeo April 4-5 at the B-S Arena west of Hereford.
More than 300 contestants will compete during the two-day event for All-Around Cowboy and Cowgirl saddles as well as belt buckles for the event winners.
Hereford boys are leading in four of the eight events. Monty Lewis of Hereford is in second place for the All-Around title, just six points behind Wilson.

Ruling expected on Vikes' sale

NEW YORK (AP) -- The Minnesota Vikings' ownership situation might not be settled for another few weeks.

NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue was expected to rule within a week after Thursday's hearing in New York on whether author Tom Clancy or Vikings president Roger Headrick, one of the team's 10 current owners, has a right to buy the team.

That timetable was in question after lawyers representing Headrick and the Vikings' other nine owners stated their cases.

At issue is whether Headrick has a right to match Clancy's $200 million bid to buy the team. Headrick claims that, as one of the owners, he's entitled to match any outside offers.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said the commissioner will not issue a ruling until late next week and possibly not until the following week.

Both Clancy, who did not attend, and Vikings lawyer John Mooney said they remain confident any delay will not jeopardize Clancy's chances of being approved as the Vikings' new owner at the annual NFL meeting March 22-27 in Orlando, Fla.

The Vikings accepted Clancy's surprise bid on Feb. 3. Eight owners voted unanimously to accept Clancy's offer, with Headrick and Jaye Dyer not voting.

Headrick's original bid of between $180 million and $185 million was the second-highest. A day after Clancy's bid was accepted, Headrick stunned the other owners with the announcement he would match Clancy, citing ownership bylaws he claimed gave him a right of first refusal.

That challenge ruined the already deteriorating relationship between Headrick and the other owners. They voted the following week to set up a four-person committee to oversee Headrick's decisions while the sale is pending. That committee needs approval from Tagliabue, and he did not address it Thursday.

The Vikings appear to be operating as usual despite the ownership harangue. They have re-signed five key players since free agent signings began last week, giving offensive tackle Todd Steussie a $22 million contract and defensive tackle John Randle a $32.5 million deal.

On Thursday, the Vikings signed kicker Gary Anderson, who made 81 percent of his field goals with San Francisco last season.

The Vikings did miss out on free agent cornerback Doug Evans, who left Green Bay for Carolina. Jeff Burris, another free agent cornerback Minnesota liked, left Buffalo for Indianapolis on Wednesday.

Jury sides with Switzer

DALLAS (AP) -- A jury Friday sided with former Dallas Cowboys coach Barry Switzer and declined to award damages in a civil assault trial.

Randy Mayes and Stephen Bolton had accused Switzer of roughing them up and insulting them with racial epithets during a 1994 incident at the Melrose Hotel.

Both plaintiffs are black. Switzer, who's white, denied the allegations.

The plaintiffs initially sought

$900,000, but lowered their request to $400,000 earlier Friday.

Testimony Friday included a police officer who contradicted Mayes' account of the incident. Mayes claims he was punched by Switzer.

Switzer took the stand on Thursday and was in tears as he denied being racist. Switzer also claimed he was just joking around during the exchange in the hotel lobby.

Switzer left the Cowboys last month following a 6-10 season.

Family quarrel may put 49ers on block

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) -- A family quarrel that divides San Francisco 49ers owners Eddie DeBartolo Jr. and his sister, Denise DeBartolo York, is "likely" to lead to the team's sale, the San Jose Mercury News reported Friday.

Citing unnamed sources close to both the National Football League and the 49ers, the newspaper said DeBartolo is not interested in selling the team. But DeBartolo York, who took over the team amid reports that her brother faces a possible indictment in Louisiana, apparently is.

The timing of a possible sale is unclear, the Mercury News reported.

According to the newspaper, observers believe the future of the 49ers will not be settled without resolution of DeBartolo's legal situation or the intervention of NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

"It's going to get ugly," one 49ers employee said.

DeBartolo and 49ers President Carmen Policy declined requests for interviews. DeBartolo York did not return a phone message.

The NFL has not been advised the club is or will be for sale and DeBartolo York last month insisted she would not "personally force a sale."

The newspaper reported that she has not indicated what the board of directors of the DeBartolo Corp. would do, and it seems apparent from what San Francisco Bay area executives and league sources are hearing that the board is considering selling.

"I know for a fact she's not happy that her brother's besmirched the family name by potentially getting in trouble," said one source with another professional franchise. "The last thing she wants to do is make all the football decisions.

"She is neutral or dispassionate about the 49ers. She's living her life in Youngstown and is happy and has no emotional attachment to the 49ers. If it can run along in a smooth way with a minimum of financial risk and some upside, that's fine. But I don't think she's going to find that sort of solution out there, and it's going to force her to sell the team."

If the team is sold, it will not be moved and a group of Bay area investors would take over, the newspaper reported.

Texas gets past Louisiana St., 5-1

AUSTIN (AP) -- Mike Kolbach had two doubles and knocked in two runs and Brett Loeffler went 3-for-4 Friday in Texas' 5-1 victory over Louisiana State.

Texas (5-4-1) took a 2-0 lead in the third as Loeffler led off with a double and scored on a two-out double by Shawn Schumacher. Kolbach doubled the next pitch into right field to drive home Schumacher.

The Longhorns added two runs in the fifth and another in the eighth. Scott Dunn (1-1) gave up a run on four hits through seven innings for Texas. He struck out seven and walked seven.

Brandon Bowe (1-1) suffered the loss for LSU (3-2). He gave up 11 hits and struck out five.

Longhorns lead in Big 12 swimming

AUSTIN (AP) -- Texas won five events and held first place through the second day of the Big 12 women's Swimming and Diving Championships on Friday.

Going into Saturday's finals, the Longhorns led with 592 points. Nebraska was second with 572, followed by Texas A&M with 401.

Erin Maher and Ariadne Legendre set individual Big 12 records for the Longhorns and the Texas relay swam to another.

Maher won the 100-yard backstroke in 53.68 seconds and Legendre won the 400 individual medley in a record time of 4 minutes, 18.57 seconds.

The Longhorns relay of Maher, Ashley Hudler, Shona Kitson and Colleen Lanne finished the 200 medley relay in a record 1:40.46.

NBA ROUNDUP

Cavaliers 108, Nets 95

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) -- Cedric Henderson and Shawn Kemp scored 27 points apiece and the Cleveland Cavaliers held New Jersey to 11 second-half field goals in beating the Nets 109-95 Friday night.

Wesley Person added 23 points as the Cavaliers broke a three-game losing streak and handed the Nets their worst home loss of the season by outscoring them 56-40 in the second half.

Sam Cassell had 28 points to lead the Nets, who dressed just nine players because of an injury to Sherman Douglas (wrist) and the ineligibility of Rony Seikaly and Brian Evans, who were acquired from Orlando on Thursday.

Henderson's 27 points, a career high, came one game after he was held scoreless in 26 minutes at Philadelphia. Kemp nearly had a triple-double with 13 rebounds and a season-high eight assists.

Magic 93, Pacers 91

ORLANDO (AP) -- Nick Anderson had a season-high 37 points and Derek Strong hit the go-ahead jumper with one minute left as the Orlando Magic beat the Indiana Pacers 93-91 Friday night.

Reggie Miller grabbed his own missed free throw and tied it at 91 with a 3-pointer with 1:45 left. Rik Smits missed a short jumper with 33 seconds to go, and Miller missed a wide-open 3-pointer at the buzzer.

Danny Schayes had 18 points and nine rebounds for Orlando, which won its third straight game. Strong had 12 points and seven rebounds in a reserve role.

Smits had 14 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter. Miller had 21 points, and Mark Jackson had 10 points and 10 assists for Indiana, which lost to a sub-.500 team for only the second time this season.

Hawks 115, Grizzlies 92

ATLANTA (AP) -- Steve Smith scored 21 points and the Atlanta Hawks had a season-high 40-point first quarter in defeating the Vancouver Grizzlies 115-92 Friday night.

Tyrone Corbin added 18 points and Alan Henderson had 15 for the Hawks, who improved to 8-1 in games at Georgia Tech and had their highest point total of the season.

The Grizzlies were led by Shareef Abdur-Rahim with 18 points. Abdur-Rahim also had seven of Vancouver's 25 turnovers, which Atlanta converted into 35 points.

Bryant Reeves added 14 points and 11 rebounds, while Michael Smith, making his Grizzlies debut after a trade from Sacramento, scored 14.

Atlanta also had a season-high 31 assists, Smith and Mookie Blaylock leading with eight apiece.

Bucks 94, Raptors 89

MILWAUKEE (AP) -- Armon Gilliam came off the bench to score a season-high 24 points and Glenn Robinson added 22 Friday night as the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the Toronto Raptors 94-89.

Doug Christie led the Raptors with 23 points, but it wasn't enough to stop Toronto from extending its losing streak to six games. The loss kept interim head coach Butch Carter winless in four games.

The retooled Raptors had 10 players in uniform against the Bucks, one more than they had Thursday night when the Chicago Bulls handed them their worst loss of the season, 123-86.

Gilliam sparked the Bucks with 10 points in the fourth quarter, including a key rebound basket that stopped the Raptors from regaining the lead with under two minutes left.

The rest of the Bucks' bench players combined for only five points.

Marcus Camby, who had 14 points and 10 rebounds, made two free throws to pull the Raptors to 83-82 with 2:04 left, but Gilliam answered with a rebound basket and two free throws to keep the Bucks ahead for good.

Ray Allen had 17 points and seven assists for Milwaukee.

John Wallace had 14 points and nine rebounds for Toronto.

Celtics 106, SuperSonics 96

SEATTLE (AP) -- Kenny Anderson, in his first game with the Celtics, scored eight of his 19 points in the final four minutes Friday night to lead Boston to a 106-96 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Anderson, dealt from Portland to Toronto on February 13 and traded again five days later, hit consecutive jumpers for a 93-85 lead with 3:05 left.

With the Sonics forced to foul, Anderson -- playing for the first time since Feb. 13 -- connected on four of six free throw attempts for a 99-90 lead with 55 seconds left.

Ron Mercer had 17 points, Antoine Walker added 16 and ex-Sonic Dana Barros scored seven key points for the Celtics in the fourth period.

The victory was Boston's first in Seattle since December 27, 1991.

Vin Baker had 25 points and 10 rebounds and Gary Payton added 23 points and 10 assists for the Sonics.

Knicks 98, Trail Blazers 89

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) -- Allan Houston made 16 of 20 field-goal attempts and scored 34 points as the New York Knicks rallied in the third quarter to beat the Portland Trail Blazers 98-89 Friday night.

Houston sank 9 of 10 field goal attempts in the second half, including six straight in the third quarter when the Knicks outscored the Blazers by 10 points to take an eight-point lead into the fourth.

Houston set a career high with 16 field goals and his 34 points matched his season high. He made five straight points after the Blazers had cut the lead to six points, putting the Knicks ahead 86-77 with 3:27 left in the game.

Larry Johnson added 25 for the Knicks, including 12 in the fourth quarter.

Heat 91, Kings 77

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -- Alonzo Mourning had 26 points and 15 rebounds Friday night as the Miami Heat won their fifth straight game, 91-77 over the Sacramento Kings on Friday night.

Mourning and P.J. Brown dominated the inside in ending Sacramento's four-game winning streak. Mourning had 20 points in the first half, and Brown finished with 16 points and 13 rebounds. Tim Hardaway had 21 points.

Mitch Richmond scored 22 points for the Kings, who had won 11 of their last 13 at home.

Dormann's 'wild' round puts her in Hawaiian lead

KAPOLEI, Hawaii (AP) -- Dana Dormann shot a 6-under-par 66 to reach the 36-hole mark of the Hawaiian Ladies Open at a record 132 and open a two-stroke lead Friday over Wendy Ward.

Dormann, who started the day a stroke behind Ward, was among the early starters and put together four consecutive birdies going out. She made the return in 2-under, despite her lone bogey in two days.

After an up-and-down start, Ward recorded three birdies over the final five holes to hold second place at 10-under. Dale Eggeling, last week's winner at Los Angeles, picked up five strokes and was alone in third at 135.

Annika Sorenstam and Meg Mallon, the last two HLO winners,

Laura Davies, Tracy Hanson and Lisa Hackney were at 8-under with Hiromi Kobayashi of the Japan LPGA at 137.

Her score might have been nice, but Dormann described her round as "wild."

Two of her birdies were from 45 and 25 feet, and she also chipped in from 35 feet.

Not only that, for the second day in a row, a fluke shot played a major role in the round. On Thursday, Ward posted a birdie after her approach bounced off a boulder and rolled onto the fairway.

In topping Sorenstam's year-old record of 133 for 36 holes, Dormann confessed she was hitting the ball "all over the place."

Badu's all wrapped up in music

By The Associated Press
Erykah Badu began her musical education early - very early.

"From the womb, I heard soul music," says the singer-songwriter who has taken the Billboard charts by storm. "My mother listened to Stevie Wonder, Chaka Khan, James Brown."

Her debut album, "Baduizm," has earned the young singer comparisons to the legendary Billie Holiday. The album, a mixture of hip-hop and jazz with lyrics that explore social issues, was shipped to record stores platinum, an unusual feat for a new artist. Her intoxicating first single, "On & On," reached gold status virtually overnight.

Badu, who turns 27 on Feb. 26, was raised as Erica Wright, the oldest of three children, by her mother, Kolleen, an actress, in Dallas. She studied theater at Louisiana's Grambling State University.

While as an opening act for the young soul singer D'Angelo in 1995, Badu's style caught the attention of D'Angelo's manager, who was setting up his own record company. Badu rode the ensuing buzz to become what Time magazine has called "the most thrilling voice in pop."

"Music today is so cold," says singer Mary J. Blige. "But with Erykah, whatever she's singing, you can feel the warmth."

Shut out of the major categories of song, record and album of the year, Badu, known for her towering head wraps, will compete for best new artist at this year's Grammy Awards.

She was recently named favorite soul/rhythm and blues new artist at the 20th American Music Awards. In accepting the award, Badu said, "I'd like to thank the creator for giving me this gift to share with y'all. I represent the unheard artists, the artists that don't get a chance."

Opening soon

Work on new Burger King restaurant located near the intersection of 25 Mile Avenue and Park Avenue is nearing completion. If all goes as planned, the restaurant should be open for business by the middle of the week.

Grit, Guts & Heart

Skarke will be speaker at Monday's luncheon

"Grit, Guts and Heart" will be the keynote address to be presented at noon Monday during the annual FCE Appreciation Luncheon in the Community Center banquet room.

Lana Skarke, Rural Research Coordinator for WTAMU Division of Nursing, will honor the courage and ingenuity of early-day Texas settlers in her presentation.

"The pioneers who came to Texas faced considerable obstacles in settling an untamed land where the ceaseless wind, wide empty spaces and weather extremes continuously tested their mettle," she said. "But they survived through grit, guts and heart."

Mrs. Skarke is a specialist in rural research, gerontology, cardiology and health assessment. In addition to being rural research coordinator at WT, she is an instructor in gerontology. She has been employed by the university since 1992.

Mrs. Skarke came to WT from St. Anthony's Hospital, where she was Director of Education. From 1986-91, the Registered Nurse worked in physician services, surgical intensive care and cardiology and renal patient care.

She is currently active in the Safe Kids Coalition of Randall and Potter County. Mrs. Skarke is a member of Randall County Extension Services Development Program Board and Sigma Theta Tau International (Honor Society of Nursing).

Her research work at WT is funded by the Department of Health and Human Services and the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health. Mrs. Skarke is a past recipient of the Killgore Research Grant.

She makes her home in Umbarger, where she and her husband have a farm and ranch. They have two children and are expecting a third.

Kimball Art Museum

Renoir comes to Texas

FORT WORTH, Texas - Although many of his best-loved works helped transform the art of portrait painting, numerous critics nonetheless consider Pierre-Auguste Renoir a painter of sugar and schmaltz, of weak drawing and cute subjects.

And "Renoir's Portraits: Impressions of an Age," on view at the Kimball Art Museum, probably won't change their minds. Instead, it will likely strike them as a loss leader, the kind of crowd-pleasing show that the museum mounts to offset shows with less popular appeal.

Featuring 64 works, including "Camille Monet Reading" (circa 1873), "Madame Georges Charpentier and Her Children" (1878) and "The Two Sisters (On the Terrace)" (1881), the exhibition definitely will attract the masses. But, like "Monet and the Mediterranean," presented by the Kimball last summer, "Renoir's Portraits" takes a focused look at works historically overlooked by the scholarly set. And it finds in them ample food for immediate thought, as well as grist for long-term reconsideration of precisely what constitutes a portrait.

The exhibition was conceived and assembled by former Kimball senior curator Colin Bailey. Starting with an idea for a wide-ranging portrait show, Bailey narrowed the focus to Renoir, in part because Renoir was the most important impressionist portraitist so much so that his colleagues disparaged his commercialism.

But Bailey had a personal motive, as well. "I love Renoir," says Bailey, now chief curator for the National Gallery of Art in Ottawa, Canada. "When he's really good, he's as good as any painter working in the 19th century." When he moved to Ottawa in late '94, Bailey took the idea with him - all along planning to share the show with Fort Worth. "The groundwork was laid in Fort Worth, but the actual organizing was done in Ottawa," he says. "For two years, we worked very hard to beg and borrow pictures, and to work on the catalog."

It would be boring if Renoir always had used the same pose for his subjects, Bailey adds. "But there's such variety," he says. "And some of his greatest pictures stand somewhere between portraits and visual fictions."

Another thing that pleased Bailey about the project is that Renoir painted portraits from the beginning to the end of his long career. Thus, Bailey says, it was possible to survey Renoir within this genre and come up with the best pictures he ever made.

The exhibition features 64 paintings, spanning 1862 to 1914, five years before Renoir died. The early works generally are darker and more severe than you might expect from Renoir. Most of the later pictures - many of family and friends in everyday situations - are superior to Renoir's classically inspired nudes from about the same period.

But, if the selection includes a few feeble paintings, it reflects Renoir's brilliant, abstract manipulation of color; his insights into the special challenges of representing children; and his innovative, impressionist-influenced application of outdoor light to indoor pictures.

Early on, as a student and beginning professional, Renoir practiced on acquaintances. During the middle of his career, Renoir worked as an immensely successful society portraitist. He turned out client-pleasing likenesses that also, frequently, advanced the course of modern painting - if for no other reason than, like the art of Whistler, they also exist as abstract symphonies of color.

Late in life, Renoir created an expansive visual diary of his family life, painting portraits of his wife and children individually and together. By then he was so racked with arthritis that he sat in a wheelchair, with

"Club Woman of Year" to be recognized at annual FCE Appreciation Luncheon

The Family Community Education (FCE) Club "Woman of the Year" will be named Monday during the annual Appreciation Luncheon to be held at noon in the Hereford Community Center banquet room.

This year's FCE nominees are Loretta Urbanczyk, Ford FCE Club; Shirley Brown, Wyche FCE Club; Perry Keyes, Cultural FCE Club; Sue Thweatt, Bippus FCE Club; and Tonia Vaughn, Draper FCE Club. The award recipient will be announced by Becky Camp, Lifestyles Editor from The Hereford Brand, long-time sponsor of the honor.

The luncheon will also acknowledge the support of Deaf Smith County officials and various accomplishments of FCE club members during 1997.

The keynote address will be "Grit, Guts and Heart," a salute to pioneer women, given by Lana Skarke, Rural Research Coordinator from West Texas A&M University School of Nursing.

Profiles of the "Woman of the Year" nominees follow.

Lou Lewis. Her hobbies include quilting, copper tooling, sewing, crocheting, knitting, gardening, baking and canning.

PERRY KEYES
Cultural FCE Club

Perry Keyes is currently serving as president of Cultural FCE Club and is secretary on the County Council. A club member for nine years, Mrs. Keyes was club reporter, council delegate and on the recreation and program committee for 1997.

She represented her club at the District meeting and attended all leader trainings. Mrs. Keyes was involved with a variety of FCE activities, including the 1997 Appreciation Luncheon, Tasting Bee and Westway Bazaar.

She has filled several FCE Council positions, including recording secretary, Council delegate, recreation committee and nominating committee.

Mrs. Keyes is a member of Avenue Baptist Church, where she is involved in Sunday School, youth fund-raisers, meals for bereaved families, prayer chain and visits to shut-ins.

She and her husband are semi-retired and have two sons and three daughters. Her hobbies include sewing, cooking, making jellies, crafts, quilting and "last but not least, my family."

SHIRLEY M. BROWN
Wyche FCE Club

Shirley M. Brown is currently serving as president of Wyche FCE Club and is active on the Council's education committee. A local FCE member of 11 years, Mrs. Brown has supported her club's fund-raising efforts, including a food auction and a quilt raffle.

As chairman of her club's education committee, Mrs. Brown has worked to keep the public informed about her club's programs and brushes strapped to his hands: His assistants would wheel him to the canvas to make a stroke, then wheel him back so he could observe its effect.

Renoir's reason for continuing to paint - and for painting numerous and monumental canvases, no less - when so painfully crippled are clear in a quote that could summarize the impetus for his entire career: "Painting is a happy occupation," he wrote in 1910 to a protege, "since it is capable of maintaining our illusions and bringing us joy."

At the same time, Renoir's words reflect one of the reasons he has been dismissed by 20th-century American historians and critics: With our puritanical penchant for difficult ideas and rigorous execution, Renoir's generally buoyant canvases have been labeled as fluff.

Then there's our American take on modernism - more or less defined by New York's Museum of Modern Art,

After 18 years of involvement with extension club work, Tonia Vaughn lists FCE work as her favorite hobby.

Mrs. Vaughn joined the Draper Club in 1980 and is currently serving as chapter president and reporter. This past year, she has attended all leader training sessions and was part of the local delegation sent to the District I conference in Perryton. She has been active in social services and volunteered to assist with a birthday party at Westgate Nursing Home.

As a member of the FCE Council, Mrs. Vaughn is acting as reporter and serves on the finance committee. She was chairman of the FCE concession stand during the Westway Bazaar and was a member of the Council auditing committee. Mrs. Vaughn represented the local council at the State FCE Meeting. She also chaired the nominating committee which presented the slate of 1998 officers. Other FCE projects she supports include the Tasting Bee, where she sold tickets and cookbooks.

Raised on her grandparents' farm at Harlingen, Mrs. Vaughn was active in the 4-H program as a child.

Mrs. Vaughn is a member of Christ's Church Fellowship. She is a member of Hereford Senior Citizens Association and visits patients at Golden Plains Nursing Home. She and her husband, Jim, who is now retired, raised seven children. The Vaughns are involved in their grandchildren's activities.

progress. She grew up in the Lynn County 4-H program and has supported her sons in their 4-H activities. She was active in extension club work in Lubbock County before moving to Hereford.

Mrs. Brown, a retired licensed vocational nurse, is a long-time member of the Baptist church, where she is active in Sunday School and the Women's Mission Union. She sings in her church choir and the Senior Citizens Choir. Mrs. Brown is a member and past officer of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Brown has three sons. Her hobbies include ceramics, line dancing, exercising, sewing and making quilts.

LORETTA URBANCZYK
Ford FCE Club

A long-time resident of Deaf Smith County, Loretta Urbanczyk has served as president of Ford FCE Club for the past two years. She has been active in fund-raising projects, including her chapter's quilt raffle, and as FCE Council treasurer and finance committee chairman. She joined the FCE club program five years ago.

Mrs. Urbanczyk supports youth work and has served as a judge for 4-H Fashion Show. She is a member of the Family Living Committee and the Fall Cooking Extravaganza committee.

As an active member of St. Anthony's Church, Mrs. Urbanczyk participates on the Parish Organization and Advisory Council. She is a member of Christian Mothers and does volunteer work for Crown of Texas Hospice.

Mrs. Urbanczyk and her husband, Tony, have six children and seven grandchildren. The couple farms and ranches in the Frio Community.

Her hobbies include quilting, cooking, sewing, gardening, canning, reading and "helping out with the grandchildren."

which generally credits cubism as the source of the century's important artworks.

The other definition was formed by Albert C. Barnes' collection of colorful works by Matisse, Soutine, Cezanne and, of course, Renoir, notes Kimball chief curator Charles Stuckey. Barnes bought hundreds of pictures including some 180 Renoirs - and MoMA founding director Alfred Barr bought what Barnes did not.

But Barnes' ideas about modern art never got the time of day from scholars and their ilk, because the irascible collector literally slammed his door in their faces - leaving them nowhere to turn but MoMA. In addition, few portraits, period, find their way into serious collections of modern art.

That's because portraits are perceived as art for the client's sake, not art for art's sake.

Parent-child sessions offered at San Jose

San Jose Community Center is offering two new programs which will start at 7 p.m. Feb. 24 and Feb. 26. These are a Father-Son program and a Mother-Daughter program, geared for youths in fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

These programs are identical in purpose and sessions, and are designed to enable parent and child to come together and build relationship skills with one another and also with their community.

The programs consist of five sessions, meeting once every two weeks.

Session one is an introduction and information about the program. Session one for Father-Son will meet on Tuesday and session one for Mother-Daughter will meet on Thursday. Refreshments will be served.

Session two is a classroom education session designed to teach goal planning for the youth with the help of parent input. It will also offer awareness on the benefits of a good parent-child relationship.

The third session will be a trip to Amarillo College with both parent and child to offer the youth a chance to feel or experience campus life.

Session four will be another classroom education session focusing mainly on intimate relationships and the dangers of bad decision-making within those relationships.

A dinner to celebrate the completion of the program will make up the fifth session and will provide the opportunity for the youth to pledge chastity and a commitment to making good decisions with a chastity ring.

For additional information, call Tony Martinez at 364-1064.

Gililand to appear in play on Amarillo stage

AMY GILLILLAND

Amy Gililand of Hereford appears in the cast of Amarillo Little Theatre's production of "The Cemetery Club," by Ivan Menchell from March 5-13.

"The Cemetery Club" is the story of three widows, long-time friends, who meet monthly for tea before going to visit their husbands' graves together. The script sparkled with humor and poignancy as it deals with lessons in life, death and rebirth.

Shirley F. Fancher portrays the central character of Ida. Shirley A. Greener, as Lucille, is the feisty embodiment of the girl who wants to have fun. As Doris, Jo Ellen Moses is priggish and judgmental. Tom Halliday plays Sam, Ida's romantic interest. Gililand is Mildred, also a widow, how joins Lucille and Doris in bringing complications to the budding relationship between Sam and Ida.

"The Cemetery Club" will preview on the ALT stage at 8 p.m. March 5 as two-for-one admissions discount night. Additional performances are March 6-7 and March 11-13 at 8 p.m. A matinee performance is scheduled for 2 p.m. March 8.

Tickets to the general public will go on sale Monday at the ALT Box Office. Call 806-355-9991.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"What we want is to see the child in pursuit of knowledge, and not knowledge in pursuit of the child." -- George Bernard Shaw

Several seventh grade students worked hard to complete History Fair entries for the area meet in Canyon yesterday. Some who, for one reason or another, could not meet deadlines, had to "drop out" before the meet. Results will be reported this week.

One of Catherine Cortez' English classes field-tested the writing portion of the TAAS. Students' writing was impressive and this was good practice for them.

Reading classes for all students are being considered for HJH. Reading, as everyone should know, is very essential for a successful future and too many of our students are lacking in good reading skills.

Mr. Brazell, math teacher, spent his last week at HJH this past week. He has accepted a position in Ohio as the director of a planetarium. Sharon Fangman will be finishing the year with us.

Builders' Club sponsored a dance Friday night with more than 100 well-behaved students reported in attendance. Jose Reece, Ruby Crox, Gilbert Zepeda and Vanessa Cantu were selected by their peers as Valentine favorites. The dance was well-chaperoned by teachers and parents. The attractive decorations will be enjoyed by all students for several more days.

Junior Historians finished their scrapbook and chapter report which were mailed to Austin on Friday. Reports and scrapbooks are entered in competition. HJH chapter has earned a trophy each year for its work. Jessica Weishaar, Angela Morris and Lacey Avery were most helpful in getting this job finished.

This past week marked the end of the fourth six weeks period and report cards will go out this week. Many students will find that they must work harder in order to pass by the end of the semester while others will find that their grades have improved. In most cases, with a little more effort and taking on some responsibility, all of our students could improve on a daily basis. To be prepared for the future, they must do this!!

If you would like to order one of the Junior Historian cookbooks, you will have the opportunity as members will be taking advance orders beginning this week. This will be a major fund-raiser for the chapter, so we do appreciate your support.

COMMERCIAL BABY FOOD Shopping tips for when you walk down the aisle marked "baby"

Here are a few tips on how to buy and use commercially-prepared baby food. Although making your own baby food is easy and inexpensive, commercially-prepared foods are nutritious alternatives for the busy mom.

When shopping, it's best to select single-ingredient foods that have no added salt or sugar. If refrigeration isn't available at feeding time, buy the smallest size and always discard the leftover. Never buy a sticky or stained jar - or one with a rusty lid. And be sure to wash the jar before opening it. If the vacuum seal hasn't been broken, you'll hear a pop or "whoosh."

Be sure to examine the food as you transfer it to a bowl and never return uneaten food to the jar.

These simple steps will insure that your baby is getting the best of care.

Keyes speaks to Cultural FCE

The Cultural Family Community Education Club members answered roll call at the recent meeting with "The biggest thing I see in children today" and a report of their volunteer hours.

President Perry Keyes presided at the meeting held in the Hereford Community Center.

Edna Marnell led the pledges and the FCE prayer. Keyes read "Indispensable" as the opening exercise.

The main item discussed during the business meeting was the Appreciation Luncheon which will be held at noon Monday in the community center.

Keyes gave the program on grandparents in parenting roles.

Following a valentine gift exchange, refreshments were served to Toni Vaughn, Marilyn Smith, Vernis Parsons, Fannie Townsend, Wilma Goetsch, Keyes and Marnell.

— YOUR EYES —

Are you at risk for glaucoma?

In the United States, chronic glaucoma is one of the leading causes of blindness. If detected and treated early, it need not cause blindness or even severe loss of vision. Unfortunately, most people do not notice any symptoms (a gradual loss of peripheral vision is the biggest sign) of chronic glaucoma until there is permanent damage. For this reason, it's important to be aware of the following risk factors:

- Age. After the age of 40, your chances of developing glaucoma increase.
- Family History. Glaucoma runs in families.
- Diabetes. Diabetics are at greater risk of developing glaucoma.
- Ethnicity. Certain ethnic groups have a greater chance of developing glaucoma. Be sure to check.

If you have any or several of these risk factors, be sure to get an annual eye exam after the age of 35.

We Can Explain Why You Need An IRA In Two Words:

Social Security.

If you're going up the hump, not over the hill, then you've probably realized by now that Social Security isn't going to be quite as secure as you once believed.

An Individual Retirement Account at Hereford State Bank is a very smart investment toward your future because it's a personal savings plan that provides a substantial retirement fund, and also allows you to defer taxes on the principal as well as the accrued interest each year.

Because your earnings on an IRA investment are tax-deferred, they build much faster than many comparable investments.

Of course, the sooner you start the better off you'll be. After all, you're getting close enough to see the top of the hill. Which leads us to our final two words.

Don't delay.

The Successful Family

GET INVOLVED IN...

Making our schools, safe, disciplined and drug-free

In order for students to learn well at school, they must be disciplined and safe. While most schools are already safe and drug-free, a growing number of schools in all types of communities -- urban, suburban and rural -- are experiencing problems with violence and with alcohol and drug use.

With creative solution, from school uniforms to strict discipline codes, from training teachers to deal with violence to after-school programs that keep kids productive and safe, disciplined and drug-free conditions they need and should expect to find in school.

Are you doing your part? How can you find out what to do? Read on...

Supporting parent and family involvement

Any effort to improve education should focus especially on increased family involvement; 30 years of research clearly shows that family involvement is critical for children's success in school and in the rest of their life.

However, families in which both parents work and those which are headed by single parents often face a time crunch that can affect their ability to develop strong relationships with their children's teachers.

Help will need to come from everyone within local communities, schools, employers, community organizations and religious groups to ensure that our society is family friendly for children's learning.

How involved are you? What can you do? Read on...

The Successful Family program at the Hereford Independent School District Administration building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue, offers some of the answers to this dilemma. Every Tuesday evening from 5:30-8 until March 10, you can meet with other parents and children of all ages to find out some way to make our community and families stronger.

Transportation and meals are provided. There are activities for all ages. It is a great night for family learning, bonding, and fun. For more information contact Debbie Canode at 363-7668.

All across America there are communities which are pulling together to strengthen education and families. Parents, teachers, community leaders, business leaders, churches, and educators in every part of our country are starting to work together to improve teaching and learning and to improve student learning and family support system.

American can attain the goal of stronger families, nurtured children and adults, and a more secure future.

D.R.E.S.S. Your Family for Success program meets on Thursday evenings from 6-9. For information on this program contact Tilli Boozer, Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority Director at 364-6111.

Give your family sources for strength and growth that will enhance bonding for a life time. Do not wait until crisis happens.

Lindley, Griffith united in marriage

Nicki Kyanne Lindley and Stony Lynn Griffith exchanged wedding vows Feb. 14 in a ceremony in Hereford Church of the Nazarene.

The bride is the daughter of Loyd and Pam Lindley of Hereford. Parents of the bridegroom are Lue Griffith of Dimmitt and Randy Griffith of Shawnee, Okla.

Rev. Ted Taylor of the church officiated at the ceremony. Maid of honor was Sarita Whitmire of Boise, Idaho. Best man was Todd McDaniel of Hereford.

Bridesmaids were Kara Sandoval of Lubbock and Stacy Griffith of Shawnee, sister of the groom.

Serving as groomsmen were Randy Griffith of Shawnee, brother of the groom and Shandy Lindley of Canyon, brother of the bride.

Guests were seated by Robert Pope Jr. of Midland, uncle of the bride and Shandy Lindley.

McKenzie Griffith, daughter of the groom, was flower girl.

Jeremy Simpson, son of James and Vea Simpson of Dimmitt, was ring bearer.

Candle lighters were Kathleen Collier of Hereford and Katrina Armes of Lubbock.

Linda Davis of Hereford was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white regal satin designer gown with a sabrina neckline and bishop sleeves. The bodice was crowned with clusters of jeweled flowers and molded medallions.

The waistline was elongated with a sheath styled slim skirt featuring Venice lace medallions and crystallized hand-beaded designs. The back of the gown plunged to a low back, centered with a designer bow, showed a runner of pearl buttons and featured a keyhole bodice.

The chapel length train was all satin, accented with European lace cut-outs and studded with pearls and jewels featuring teardrop pearled medallions.

The bride wore a white felt cattleman cowboy wedding hat with a 24-inch veil. She carried a bouquet of white silk roses with red trim, entwined with a brown rope and two pearl-beaded hearts attached.

Bridal attendants wore red broomstick skirts accented with silver nail heads, white lace concho tops, black western leather belts with heart conchos, and black ropers. They carried bouquets of red and white roses, baby's breath and a leather leaf tied with red ribbon and brown rope.

The couple was honored with a reception and dance following the ceremony at Johnny P's.

Those assisting with the reception were Kim Middleton, Rona Collier, Amy Collier, and Kathleen Collier.

The bride's table was covered with a white tablecloth with a red lace overlay. The three-tiered heart-shaped white cake trimmed in red was topped with a Western Sweetheart topper. Red and white roses filled two glass cowboy boots and accented the punch bowl.

The groom's table was covered with a white tablecloth. The chocolate horseshoe-shaped cake was accented with cactus shaped cookies. Decorations of a small bale of hay, a rope, a black cowboy hat and a ceramic steer skull completed the western theme.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: In your response to "A Witness in N.J.," you asked for comments from doctors about the problem of overworked resident physicians. As executive director of the Association for Responsible Medicine, a non-profit patient-rights group, I would like to present the patient's point of view.

The patient is the one who pays the price for a doctor's exhaustion. Studies show that error rates at teaching hospitals are more than 400 percent higher than at other hospitals. Patients believe the attending physician is performing the surgery while the resident looks on. In reality, it is the other way around.

The other consequence of overworking residents is that it sends them the wrong message about their own fallibility. Doctors who believe they are capable of giving a patient their best effort no matter how tired they are will eventually believe they can perform delicate operations throughout their careers, regardless of their diminished physical or mental capacity and the increased risk to the patient.

Airline pilots, train engineers and even bus drivers have standards for the number of hours they are allowed to work. The medical profession has no such standards with regard to patient safety. That is why more than 1 million people are killed or injured by medical mistakes every year. -- Ray McEachern, Association for Responsible Medicine, Tampa, Fla. (www.a-r-m.org)

Dear Ray McEachern: Your letter is enough to scare the living daylights out of all us "consumers." It also makes us want to stay away from teaching hospitals, which I always thought were the best. Keep reading for another point of view:

Dear Ann Landers: Back in the 1950s, my training in surgery was at Bellevue Hospital in New York City, where an ambulance arrived every 30 seconds. We worked every day and every other night for five years. When our chief took pity on us and lightened our "on call" to every three days, the residents circulated a petition demanding to go back to every other night so we could keep up with our patients.

There is no time when one feels more alive or awake than at 2 a.m., trying to stop the bleeding from a duodenal ulcer or when treating victims in a bad car crash. I stand in awe of doctors who went to Vietnam and Korea and operated 24 hours a day.

Money was never a factor. We were there for training. The most I ever made was $65 a month as a fifth-year resident. Massachusetts General and Harvard paid nothing.

I agree that this profession is in crisis. It's too late to go back to the time before government, insurance companies and HMO bureaucrats interposed themselves between a doctor and his patient. I cherish those days in training. -- Raymond O. Frederick, M.D., St. Louis

Dear Dr. Frederick: Thank you for your experience-laden perspective. Here's more:

Dear Ann: Any profession that requires constant overtime with little or no days off makes for cranky people who do not do good work. I believe the rudeness and lack of concern we encounter these days has to do with the fact that we are all overextended and exhausted. -- Passing Out in Pasadena

Dear Ann: "Witness in N.J." is right when she says the unreasonable hours worked by resident physicians are better for the hospital's bottom line than for the training of young doctors. I always said the first 24 hours on call were not a problem. It was the next 12 that were the killer. -- Ob/Gyn in North Carolina

Dear Ob/Gyn and all who wrote: After reading my mail, one might wonder why anyone would want to be a doctor, but thank God so many do. Sad to say, many of the top-tier medical schools in the United States are turning away applicants because they simply cannot accommodate them.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Good advertising is truth well told

There are several factors you should consider as you work on your next advertising campaign. The world of small business is becoming more complex. Competitors are growing rapidly and becoming more diverse. New competition is emerging every day. No niche market is completely protected from fresh, new competitors.

Along with a changing competitive front, small-business owners face a changing customer base. In today's super-charged world, consumers spend less time shopping, studying advertising and finding new businesses.

Today's customer is more likely to buy from any low-priced competitor if they aren't adequately informed to make a better buy. Therefore, it is important for all of you who depend on advertising to get more out of each advertising dollar you spend.

Your short-term success depends in part on how well you attract new customers to your business. Your long-term success depends on your advertising integrity. That is, telling the truth and telling it well. You may lure a potential customer into doing business with you one time with false advertising. However, if they find out that you have misrepresented the product or service offered, you can lose that customer forever.

Here are some tips for telling the truth in the most appealing way.

Essential of Advertising

Remember the three R's. Advertising's three R's are getting the right message, to the right persons at the right time.

The right message. What do you want potential customers to know about you, your business and your products and services? The right message spells out the benefits and advantages of dealing with your store or firm. Highlight what you offer that no one else does.

The right person. You must identify your target customers before you can focus on them with your message. What type of person - or business - is more likely to want or need what you sell?

The right time. When is your prospect most likely to need or want what you have? At what time of week, month or year can they afford the purchase?

The right sound. If you're using radio or television, your ads need clear, simple messages with the sound of quality. Although radio and TV announcers are known for their clear, distinctive voices, I prefer a less known voice so your ads won't sound like ongoing programming.

The right words. Sell the benefits. All readers or listeners want to know one thing: How will they benefit? So point out the benefits and advantages they receive when they buy from you.

Use power words and phrases. Some of the best persuaders have been around a long time. Words such as "new," "easy," "proven," "guaranteed," "quality" and "value," still carry punch. However, you must back up all claims of "proven," "improved" etc. with facts.

Certain phrases carry more impact than others. Phrases such as "the truth about," "you will receive" and "save money, time, etc." still have pulling power.

Keep it simple. Ads should be easy to read and interesting to look at. Use short words, sentences and paragraphs. A tasteful amount of white space helps in print ads, newsletters and flyers.

Use the active voice. Say, "We guarantee..." instead of "It is guaranteed." Use "You will love..." instead of "Many have loved..."

Inspire action. Every ad should make the reader/listener/watcher want to act. When you call for action you encourage your potential customer to "do it now."

Make honesty your only policy. Avoid spin, lies and misrepresentation. False advertising will always come back to haunt you.

Commit these tips to practice. I know good advertising can help your business. Tell the truth and tell it well.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

During these difficult times, I often think it would be wise to reflect on our nation's history. Our Sacred Honor, edited by William J. Bennett, is a collection of words of advice from the founders in stories, letters, poems and speeches.

In this collection you will find advice on "the good" which grows into good government, good relations between individuals and nations, and what it means to live the good life. At the beginning of each statement it gives the author's name, date and a brief background history.

In George Washington's letter to Samuel Langdon, he captures the feeling which was so much a part of the new nation. His words are "The man must be bad indeed who can look upon the events of the American Revolution without feeling the warmest gratitude toward the great Author of the Universe whose divine interposition was so frequently manifested in our behalf. And it is my earnest prayer that we may so conduct ourselves as to merit a continuance of these blessings with which we have hitherto been favored..."

The book covers subjects such as patriotism, love and courtship, civility and friendship, education, industry, justice and piety. This one is an inspiration to read.

Conversation with God by Neale Donald Walsch was a book I noticed by accident. I was looking for possible memorable books when this statement caught my attention.

"Suppose you could ask God the most puzzling questions...suppose God provided clear, understandable answers." Neale Walsch says it has happened to him.

In the beginning of the book Neale writes, "For Anne M. Walsch, who not only taught me that God exists but opened my mind to the wondrous truth that God is my best friend; and who was far more than a mother to me, but gave birth in me to a longing for and a love of God, and all that is good. Mom was my first meeting with an angel."

Some of the questions Neale answers are: How does God talk, and to whom? Does God answer prayer? Why is the world in the shape it's in?

I encourage you to read this book and see if your questions of God are answered or even discussed. Tell me what you think.

Elmore Leonard's new book Cuba Libre is set on the eve of the Spanish-American War. Three days after the sinking of the battleship "Maine" in the Havana harbor, Ben Tyler rides into town with a string of horses to sell.

Ben's horse selling venture is a cover for a boatload of guns he plans to sell to the Cuban insurgents. His first day ashore, Ben is able to sell the horses to an American planter, Roland Boudreaux. While making delivery, Ben is introduced to Roland's mistress, Amelia Brown, and it is love at first sight.

That same day Ben makes an enemy of Tavalera, a Guardia Civil officer; makes a friend of a mysterious old Cuban named Victor Fuentes; gets involved in a gunfight; and is thrown into prison.

Tavalera wants to execute Ben for being a spy. Ben knows he must escape and get out of Cuba fast or he is a dead man. With help from a very unexpected source Ben is able to escape and finds himself on a train riding across Cuba with Amelia. In this story, no one can be trusted, and everyone is a schemer.

Bess Grady has honed her skills as a photo-journalist in the roughest spots of the world. But even the horrors of Somalia and Sarajevo did not prepare her for what awaits in the small-town paradise. And Then You Die... by Iris Johansen begins with what Bess Grady classifies as an easy assignment.

Sunlight bathes the town square of Tenajo and the balmy breeze is even pleasant, but that is where it ends. Something unimaginable has happened, and Bess Grady and her sister Emily are caught in the chaos and confusion.

Emily disappears, and Bess is kidnapped. When help comes, Bess is totally unprepared for the chilling truth. Tenajo was the first stage in a twisted game designed to spread terror, no matter the number of innocent lives it cost. The next target may be the heartland of the U.S.

Joining forces with the intimidating stranger who helped her escape

Tenajo, Bess is willing to risk everything to find her sister, keep her family safe, and stop the conspirators from completing their plan of destruction.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

LEGAL NOTICES

ADVERTISEMENT OF INVITATION FOR BIDS

Sealed proposals addressed to the Administrator, Hereford Regional Medical Center will be received at 801 East 3rd Street, Hereford, Texas 79045 until March 4, 1998, at 2:00 p.m., for construction of Parking and Drainage Improvements including all labor, material and equipment and performing all work required for construction. Please mark outside of Bid, "New Hospital Paving".

Immediately following the closing time for receipt of bids, proposals will be publicly opened and read aloud. Any bid received after closing time will be returned unopened. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids and to waive any informality in bids received. Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions.

Bidders must submit a Cashier's or Certified Check issued by a bank satisfactory to the Owner, or a Proposal Bond from a reliable Surety Company, payable without recourse to the order of the Hereford Regional Medical Center in an amount not less than five percent (5%) of the maximum bid submitted as a guaranty that the Bidder will enter into a contract and execute bonds and guaranty in the forms provided within fifteen (15) days after notice of award of contract to him. Bids without the required check or Proposal Bond will not be considered.

If the contract is over $25,000 the successful Bidder will be required to furnish a Performance Bond and a Payment Bond, each in the amount of the contract, written by a responsible Surety Company, authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and satisfactory to the Owner, as required by Article 5160, V.A.T.C.S. as amended by H.B. 344, passed by the 56th Legislature. Regular Session 1959 and Experience Record.

Bid documents are on file at Wilburn Investments, 801 East 2nd St., Hereford, Texas, (806) 364-7190 and at the Office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc. Engineers-Architects-Planners.

Copies of the bid documents may be secured at the office of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc. Engineers-Architects-Planners, 801 S. Fillmore, Suite 300, Amarillo, Texas, 79101 (Phone (806) 376-8600) for the deposit of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) for each set of plans and specifications. Upon return, in good condition and within ten (10) days after the bids have been opened, of each set of documents, the entire deposit will be refunded.

Not less than the general prevailing rates of wages established by the Secretary of Labor must be paid on this project. Bidders on this work will be required to comply with the President's Executive Order No. 11256, as amended for Equal Opportunity in Employment.

The House of the Week

Windows Make for Sunny Spaces

G-59
WITH ITS STATELY BRICK FACADE and arched windows, this two-story home has real curb appeal.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
 AP Newsfeatures

Elegant arched windows in plan G-59, by HomeStyles Designers Network, provide a glimpse of the sun-splashed spaces found inside this distinctive two-story home. Its living space totals 2,686 square feet.

A dramatic 21-foot-high reception area leads to the well-designed living areas.

Sunshine will enter the living room through large windows by day, while a cozy fireplace will warm the space during the cool season.

The possibilities for family fun are endless at the rear of the home. The large island kitchen is open to the family room and the bayed dinette, making for easy conversation between the spaces. The family room features a fireplace and sliding glass doors to a backyard terrace — an ideal spot for a spot of tea.

A picturesque stairway leads to the upper floor where a balcony overlooks the reception area.

The master suite offers a variety of amenities: a 15-foot cathedral ceiling, two walk-in closets and a private bath complete with dual sinks and a whirlpool tub.

Three additional bedrooms share a compartmentalized bath.

G-59 STATISTICS

Design G-59 has a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, dinette, four bedrooms, two and one half baths and a mudroom, totaling 2,686 square feet of living space. This plan includes a standard basement or slab foundation, and 2x4 or 2x6 exterior wall framing. The two-car garage includes storage space, and provides an area of 480 square feet.

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

DOUBLE DOORS introduce the two-story reception area, which flows smoothly into the living areas. The living and dining rooms are combined, to the left of the foyer. The island kitchen is adjacent to the bayed dinette, which opens to the family room. A nearby mudroom provides access to a service entry and the two-car garage. The master suite shares the upper floor with a balcony hall, three additional bedrooms and a compartmentalized bath.

THE HOME TEAM ADVANTAGE

Excellence is what XIT is all about!

When we opened our doors at 1009 West Park Avenue on Monday morning, December 16, 1991, we really didn't know what to expect from the Hereford market. At that time, we served the area with one cell site located approximately 6 miles north of Hereford. It didn't take us long to figure out that handheld coverage wasn't what it should be – so we added a cell site at our business office on Park Avenue. This site will be moved to our new location at 809 S. 25-Mile Avenue in the very near future. Our Walcott and Hereford West sites were added based on customers' requests for better coverage in these areas.

Thank you Hereford! Your excellent response – and the growth that we have experienced – has enabled us to provide you with EXCELLENCE in technology, EXCELLENCE in service and EXCELLENCE in community involvement.

Give us a call or come by and find out for yourself why we are continuing a tradition of EXCELLENCE...

E.V.P. COMMENTS

This past year was a very exciting and eventful year for Deaf Smith County. Many new businesses opened in our community, new industry was added, and new quality of life facilities became a part of our great city. Entities in our county are working together to make 1998 a better and more exciting year. With the Governor making a personal appearance tonight, and with our centennial celebration on the horizon, 1998 has begun as a great year. New businesses and industry continue to explore possibilities in our county and we will continue to grow and prosper. Thanks to all for your support and assistance with the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. We are the best, and with unity and hard work we can become even better!

— George W. Bush —

- Elected in 1994 as the 46th Governor of the State of Texas.
- Has been instrumental in forming bipartisan legislative efforts to reform public schools, put welfare recipients to work, curb frivolous lawsuits and strengthen criminal justice laws.
- Has been a staunch advocate for improving education in Texas — specifically to increase the state's share of funding for Texas public schools, to give parents greater choice of schools and to foster competition and creativity through charter schools and an expanded menu of educational opportunities.
- Has championed a Texas goal to ensure every child will learn to read by the third grade, and that every child will continue to read at grade level or better throughout public school.
- Was born July 6, 1946 and grew up in Midland and Houston.
- Received a bachelor's degree from Yale University and an MBS from Harvard Business School, and worked in the oil and gas industry for 11 years before moving to Washington to help in his father's presidential campaign.
- Has served as an F-102 pilot for the Texas National Guard.
- Served as managing general partner of the Texas Rangers after forming a group to purchase the franchise in 1989. Later, the group built the Ranger's new home, the Ballpark at Arlington.

Lady Whitefaces make it 'de já vu all over again

Looking down the road

Head volleyball coach Brenda Kitten, watched her troops in pre-season workouts earlier this year.

Squad earns second state 4A volleyball crown in two years

From staff reports
Once is good, but twice is very nice.

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces successfully defended their 1996 Class 4A volleyball championship, winning the crown for the second straight year. And they did it by beating the same team they beat in the 1996 finals -- Magnolia.

Hereford capped a 29-6 season Nov. 22 in Austin with a decisive 15-1, 15-7 victory over Magnolia.

While the end result was the same as the 1996 team, the teams claimed their titles in different ways.

The 1996 title team was dominant, losing only one match -- to District 1-4A rival Dumas. The 1997 team, on the other hand, showed they were human.

During the 1997 season, the Lady Whitefaces lost to Dumas at home, then lost to Canyon Randall on the road.

But in the last match of the district schedule, Hereford got redemption. The Lady Whitefaces won at Dumas and earned a share of the District 1-4A title with Dumas and Randall.

The tie necessitated a seeding tournament, which the Lady Whitefaces won by beating Randall, and then Dumas.

It wouldn't be the last time the three teams saw each other. All advanced in the playoffs, before Hereford eliminated the Lady Raiders.

Hereford and Dumas met in their fifth match of the season in the Region I finals. The match lasted 1 hour and 45 minutes before the Lady Whitefaces dispatched the Demonettes for their third consecutive trip to the Class 4A semifinals in Austin.

In the semifinals against Austin McCallum, the Lady Whitefaces got behind 8-0 in the first game, but rallied to win the first, and then the second game to advance to a championship rematch with Magnolia.

Chamber committees set momentum...

AGRIBUSINESS Chris Leonard

Coordinate efforts with Economic Development to help initiate and promote new or expanded growth.
Work toward increasing active membership recruitment among farmers, ranchers and agricultural industries.
Coordinate and combine activities of Agribusiness Committee and Water Committee in order to better represent membership.
Support Ag in classrooms.
Establish and maintain liaison with state and national leaders and inform them of local agriculture situations.
Attend, support and promote the Deaf Smith County Livestock Show.

BUSINESS RETENTION Chairman: Sue Hyer

Develop an active team to assist and work with local existing firms in an effort to offer advice or help with plans to expand or strengthen their business.
Create a network of support for local firms to encourage as much business with one another as possible.
Coordinate efforts in community to work together with all entities involved in industrial and economic development.
Maintain liaison with other industrial development agencies.
Continue efforts to participate in the High Ground of Texas program which is the cooperative effort of towns in our area to promote economic development.

Working Together!

HUSTLERS

Chairman: Mark Andrews
Continue efforts to visit local industry management and plan visits to headquarter office when possible.
Act as official host for Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.
Work toward increasing the membership of the Hustler organization during 1998.
Assist in special projects for the community.
Visit all new business and professional offices as soon as possible.
Assist Membership Committee in sustained campaign for new members and help conduct membership drives.
Provide greeters for conventions and meetings held in Hereford.
Continue conduction "ribbon cuttings" and welcome for new business members in Hereford.
Promote and maintain a positive attitude in the community as we let people know that "Hereford Means Business".

LEGISLATIVE AFFAIRS Chairman: Wade Easley

Create a new local awareness of the importance of the legislative system. Encourage more involvement in the candidate process by promoting a "Write Your Congressman" campaign.
Monitor local, state and national issues which have an effect on the local economy and recommend policy positions on legislative issues.
Conduct such activities as voter registration and "Get-Out-And-Vote" campaigns.
Represent the Chamber membership in communication with local, state and national officials in matters pertaining to legislation.
Provide an open forum for local candidates to discuss issues and answer questions.

Working Together!

FUN BREAKFAST Co-Chairmen: John Stagner-Tom Simons

Support and produce quarterly Fun Breakfast for Chamber members, guests and friends.

Coordinate the Breakfast not only as membership meetings, but also as a means of promoting Hereford. Use the Breakfast as a means of increasing involvement in community activities.

We're with you all the way.

That's the type of attitude you'll find at FirstBank Southwest of Hereford. And you'll see it demonstrated by FirstBank Southwest employees who volunteer their personal time to help Hereford be all it can be.

Our employers bring the same "winning attitude" to our business that they offer our community as civic volunteers.

We're very proud of the many FirstBank Southwest employees who share a belief that our bank's role in this community extends beyond our mission of providing quality banking services to our customers. These employees are joining your efforts in many areas such as; the Chamber of Commerce, the United Way, civic clubs, church groups, school organizations, etc. They're chipping-in to make things better for all of us.

"We're with you all the way," isn't just a convenient slogan. It has been an attitude worn by many generations of Hereford people...people like the ones at FirstBank who greet you with a smile everyday.

The spirit lives on.

SPORTS

Chairman: Paul Mason

Develop a complete recreational plan for the area and encourage city, school and county cooperation and involvement in programs.

Work on development of a Chamber of Commerce Sports Calendar to help promote all sports programs.

Coordinate all activities with the Hereford Booster Club whenever possible.

Assist other sports and recreational groups when aid is needed.

Provide assistance for any play-off games.

Sponsor the Annual Super Sports Weekends in March.

MEMBERSHIP:

Board of Directors

Seek to increase involvement of all present members in adding to membership by promoting a more active involvement of individuals.

Conduct a vigorous sustained campaign to enroll every reputable individual, firm or corporation in Deaf Smith County's program of quality growth.

Develop and implement a systematic program to contact prospects and to maintain communications and good relations with members.

Review annually the membership support of each member to identify those members whose business growth would indicate their ability to increase their fair share investment in the Chamber.

FARMER'S MARKET

Chairman: Denise Andrews

Coordinate the Farmer's Market which is sponsored by the Chamber. Work with any individual or group wishing to participate in the county's Farmer's Market.

Evaluate other markets for ways we can improve and make our Farmer's Market the very best.

JULY 4TH CELEBRATION

Chairman: Diane Beavers

This committee will be responsible for coordinating and implementing the July 4th Celebration for Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

TOWN & COUNTRY CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Dee Hamilton

Organize and oversee activities for the county's Town & Country Centennial including Centennial Celebration on Saturday.

Coordinate the week of Jubilee activities, and listen to different ideas from people throughout the community.

RETAIL BUSINESS

Co-Chairmen:

Andra Schlabs-Carolyn McDonald

Actively support a program to improve courtesy and customer service.

Evaluate other towns to determine new ways to improve our shopping strengths and weakness.

Unite all local retail areas to promote Hereford as regional retail center.

Assist in coordinating retail promotions in Deaf Smith County.

Work to improve city with additional Christmas decorations.

Conduct seminars on various aspects for all local businesses

Some of the BEST things in life are FREE!

Unfortunately, some are not.

Retirement can be one of the most active times of your life ... and one of the most expensive. You'll want to vacation, play some golf or maybe even purchase a second home. But, unless you take the time now to plan ahead, you may have to skimp on your lifestyle when you retire.

Whether you're 30 years, 30 months or 30 days from retirement, reviewing your financial goals and developing a sound investment plan is always a good idea.

Fortunately, one of the best things in life is free - an initial consultation with us. For your free consultation - and a plan designed to help you reach the kind of retirement you'll enjoy - please call today.

Dr. Quinn returns - literally - with a bang

By Glenn Teichman
OTVData Features Syndicate

Two months after being sent out to pasture, the CBS Western drama series Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman saddles up again.

Welcome back, Dr. Mike (Jane Seymour), and here's a bullet for your troubles.

Yes, the beloved and much-missed title heroine gets shot when the series returns Saturday, Feb. 28, with "Point Blank."

Following the death of his wife, a crazed man (Jon Simmons) vows revenge against the medical profession and goes gunning for Dr. Mike at the clinic. After the man opens fire and badly injures her, Andrew (Brandon Douglas) must save her life.

Dr. Mike survives surgery but faces an even greater challenge: The shooting haunts her and prevents her from returning to the clinic.

While the story line might sound like a drastic departure for the show, Executive Producer Carl Binder says it simply exemplifies the qualities of Dr. Quinn. It also gives Seymour a chance to really shine.

"What it allows Jane is to do some of the finest work she has ever done on the show as far as her acting," he says. "It really takes her character to the bottom and (has her) having to work back up emotionally."

While Dr. Mike has overcome many obstacles in her life, the shooting might be the biggest one yet.

"(The episode explores) her emotional recovery from (the shooting) and how it ... becomes worse to the point where she becomes phobic," Binder explains.

"At first, it's a fear of going back to the clinic, because that's where this horrible event happened ... and it gradually evolves to a point where she can't even leave the house, actually considering giving up her career as a doctor."

As Dr. Mike struggles through the ordeal, her husband, Sully (Joe Lando), is there to support her.

Since the series' debut, their relationship has been strong enough to get them through some tough times. At the beginning of this season, however, their marriage was strained when Sully became an outlaw.

But their love remained strong, and Sully isn't going anywhere.

"(Sully) always has been and always will be an important part of the show," Binder says. "We just reached an agreement with Joe to take down his workload to allow him to go off and pursue other things. He'll be back for next year."

If there is a next year. Even though the show is a ratings winner for CBS, the network pulled the show in January to test the new series The Magnificent Seven. The sudden disappearance of Dr. Quinn caused much speculation about its fate.

"We were surprised by it, but CBS assured us - and we have no reason to think otherwise - that the reason they chose to try out The Magnificent Seven in our time slot is because we have a very loyal fan base that watches our show regularly," Binder says, "and they felt that out of all the shows, they could pull us for five weeks and not worry about us losing our audience."

But the series may be under the gun.

"We have every intention of coming back (for another season), but a lot of it is going to be on the audience," Binder says.

"Our numbers are going to be watched closely, so if we do well when we come back, then the seventh season is pretty much assured."

Joe Lando and Jane Seymour star as Sully and Dr. Mike in Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman, airing Saturdays on CBS. The series, which chronicles the life of a female physician practicing on the American frontier, returns after a two-month absence with "Point Blank," in which Dr. Mike must overcome post-traumatic stress disorder.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ February 22-28 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

You're on the go early in the week, Aries. Not only do you have a lot of things to do, but others need your help too. Do all that you can to get things done. You'll be rewarded with a relaxing weekend. An old friend calls you for advice. Don't be surprised by the call; just try to help.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

A family problem takes up most of your time this week. This is important, so rearrange your plans and help your loved ones out as much as you can. Your efforts will be appreciated. The person you've been dating wants to step up the relationship. Is this really what you want? Think before saying yes.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

You're very moody this week, Gemini. One minute, you're happy; the next minute, you're angry. Try to relax, and turn to your loved ones for help. They are always there for you. A close friend wants your input on a business idea. Be honest, and don't get involved if you don't believe it can work. Cancer plays a key role.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Things go well for you throughout the week. You impress your superiors at work, and that special someone finally says yes. Enjoy yourself. A close friend has a problem and needs your help. Be supportive. Help him or her as much as you can — even if it means canceling plans. He or she always has been there for you.

LEO - July 23/August 23

You make great strides at work when you come up with an idea that saves the company money. Your efforts will be rewarded. A loved one brings you into a family disagreement. Keep quiet — you don't want to get involved. Scorpio and Pisces play important roles early in the week.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

You take control when a personal problem overwhelms everyone else involved. Be strong, and do what you think is best for everyone. However, don't let your power go to your head. You run into an old flame over the weekend. Don't be bitter. Leo plays a key role later in the week.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

You need to think fast on your feet when a family member gets into trouble. Do what you can to help him or her, but don't get in over your head. That special someone needs to see you at the end of the week. Don't get nervous; everything will work out for the best. He or she just wants to talk to you.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

It's a hectic week for you when it comes to business dealings. You have a lot of plans to make, because a great opportunity is knocking on your door. Don't let it slip away. A loved one needs your advice. You have to tell him or her the truth — even though it is going to be difficult.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

While you've been putting it off for a long time, you have to make an important personal decision. Think about what you really want and how getting it will affect your future, then decide. If you need advice, turn to your loved ones. They are there to help you. Capricorn plays a key role.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

You feel rushed early in the week as you try to finish an important project. However, after it is done, you are free to do as you please. Splurge on yourself; you deserve it. Go out with friends you haven't seen in a long time. A loved one has something to tell you. Don't worry — it's not bad news.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

A close friend asks to borrow money from you. Even though you may want to say yes, think about how quickly you'll be paid back. You're going to need a lot of money soon. A family member invites you to dinner. Enjoy yourself; it's going to be a good time. Virgo plays a key role on Wednesday.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

You feel like you're going crazy this week. Everyone is either asking you a question or giving you work to do. Don't get angry. Instead, spend some time alone to collect your thoughts. This will calm you down and get you ready to face the world again. That special someone has a surprise for you.

Bob Dylan, a towering figure in American rock music, may finally get his due at the 40th annual Grammy Awards, signaling a welcome change in the awards' focus, from commercial success to artistic merit.

Kelsey Grammer (Frasier) hosts the telecast, airing Wednesday, Feb. 25, on CBS from Radio City Music Hall in New York.

To the distress of serious music fans and journalists, Dylan's landmark albums of the 1960s - even The Times They Are A-Changin' - were passed over by the Grammy voters, who have been roundly criticized over the years for favoring mainstream best sellers over more substantial music.

Dylan's only previous win was as a performer on The Concert for Bangladesh.

This year, Dylan's 43rd album, Time Out of Mind, is nominated for album of the year, and the singer is up for best male rock vocalist for the single "Cold Irons Bound."

Coincidentally, there may be two

Dylans on the awards podium: The Wallflowers songwriter Jakob Dylan, Bob's son, has two compositions up for best rock song.

But if Dylan is the focal point of this Grammy telecast, his win is far from a foregone conclusion.

In addition to Paul McCartney (Flaming Pie), Paula Cole (This Fire) and Radiohead (OK Computer), the album of the year competition includes Babyface (The Day), who leads the Grammy field with eight nominations.

Many believe Babyface was unjustly robbed of a Grammy last year for his stunning production work on Waiting to Exhale, and an attempt to right that wrong could upset the Dylan bandwagon.

Other multiple nominees include Cole and Puff Daddy, with seven each; R. Kelly with five; and Erykah Badu and Kirk Franklin with four each.

Regardless of the individual races' outcomes, there is widespread hope that this year the Grammys have come of age and acquired real stature.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels

Q: What happened to Unsolved Mysteries? Has Robert Stack retired? -Linda Ridinger, Kent, Ohio.

A: NBC canceled Mysteries last season, but CBS picked it up as a midseason replacement. It will return in the near future, possibly by the time this column is printed.

Q: Was Dr. Quinn: Medicine Woman canceled? If not, when will it return? -Dozens of concerned fans.

A: Jane Seymour returns as Dr. Quinn on Saturday, Feb. 28, as CBS had planned.

As networks always do this time of the year, CBS pulled Quinn for a few weeks to give a new series, The Magnificent Seven, a trial run. No word as to the fate of that series.

Q: I am a huge fan of the British comedy series Red Dwarf. Is there going to be a Red Dwarf movie? -Jason MacLeod, Truro, Nova Scotia, Canada.

A: An eighth series of Red Dwarf, cast intact, begins filming at Shepperton Studios in June for a British TV premiere in 1998. Canadian viewers may see it soon after that, American fans probably at a later date on PBS.

I haven't found any evidence of a movie in the works yet, but I suggest you check out Red Dwarf World (www.geocities.com/TelevisionCity/2139/), a news Website updated every month.

Red Dwarf will be filming some of its new episodes before a live studio audience, and Red Dwarf World will provide ticket information as it becomes available. You also will find useful fan convention information there.

Q: Now that e-mail allows us to communicate worldwide, why don't the TV networks ask us to send our opinions on TV programs directly to them instead of relying on the small number of people in the Nielsen ratings? -Troy McElfresh via e-mail.

A: For the same reason you can't volunteer to become one of the Nielsen participants, who are randomly selected from the population at large and, according to research, are representative of the population in terms of age, economic level and other demographics.

Letter writing, however, tends to be done by viewers who either love or hate a show, and their comments don't necessarily reflect a clear larger picture.

Advertisers don't simply want to know how many people are watching a show; they want to know who is watching it to determine whether the audience is a likely candidate to consume their products.

Despite controversy and accusations of ballot stuffing, the show must go on. The 14th annual Soap Opera Awards airs as scheduled Friday, Feb. 27, on NBC.

The network threatened to cancel the awards show when allegations of voting irregularities were presented in January. To ensure the sanctity of the event, the original ballots were tossed, and Soap Opera Digest subscribers were sent a new ballot to vote for their favorite daytime stars.

Talk show host Leeza Gibbons and Days of Our Lives star Drake Hogestyn host the awards program.

Here are the nominees in selected categories:

Outstanding lead actor: John Callahan (All My Children), Tom Eplin (Another World), Kin Shriner (Port Charles).

Outstanding lead actress: Eileen Davidson (Days), Vanessa Marcil (General Hospital), Kim Zimmer (Guiding Light).

Outstanding supporting actor: Michael E. Knight (AMC), John McCook (The Bold and the Beautiful), Robert Newman (GL).

Outstanding supporting actress: Tricia Cast (The Young and the Restless), Judi Evans Luciano (AW), Kelley Menighan-Hensley (As the World Turns).

Hottest male star: Shemar Moore (Y&R), Ronn Moss (B&B), Ingo Rademacher (GH).

Hottest female star: Jensen Buchanan (AW), Sharon Case (Y&R), Kassie DePaiva (One Life to Live).

Hottest romance: Mateo and Hayley (AMC), Mark Consuelos and Kelly Ripa), Holden and Lily (ATWT), Jon Hensley and Martha Byrne), John and Marlena (Days, Hogestyn and Deidre Hall).

Outstanding villain: Sam Behrens (Sunset Beach), Roger Howarth (OLTL), Michael Nader (AMC).

Outstanding villainess: Sarah Buxton (Sun), Alison Sweeney (Days), Cynthia Watros (GL).

THE BUCK STARTS HERE.

Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information.

Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.

Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live.

Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise.

It's an integral part of our lives.

Newspaper. It delivers.
