Customs official calls for changes in money transfers

By JOSH LEMIEUX Associated Press Writer

McALLEN, Texas (AP) - An indictment accusing two bankers of laundering $30 million for a reputed Mexican drug gang shows a need for new laws to monitor large wire transfers of money, a U.S. Customs official says.

"I think change is on the way," Vince Klink, resident agent in charge of the agency's McAllen office, said Thursday.

Klink said "Operation Choza Rica" - or Rich Shack - has drawn the attention of congressional staffers working on proposals to enact federal reporting requirements for large wire

The government requires banks to report currency transactions of $10,000 or more, but no such law covers wire transfers.

Klink said the continuing case is the largest money laundering investigation involving his agency at

According to the indictment, two employees of an American Express Co. banking subsidiary helped Ricardo Aguirre Villagomez hide about $30 million in profits allegedly belonging to Juan Garcia Abrego, who is considered one of Mexico's biggest drug traffickers.

Abrego, who is wanted in both the United States and Mexico, is accused in a 1990 federal indictment of running a Matamoros-based organization that smuggled multi-ton quantities of cocaine into the United States through ties to Colombian drug

The new indictment, unsealed Monday, alleges that Aguirre - a gas station owner from Matamoros, Mexico - transferred amounts of $1 million or more of Abrego's money on several occasions in 1989, 1990 and 1991.

The indictment alleges the following paper trail:

Aguirre moved the money from exchanges houses and Texas banks to his bank accounts in Switzerland, then to his holding companies in the Cayman Islands. The money then was invested in apparently legitimate businesses in the United States and Mexico to hide its origin as drug profits, the indictment alleges.

president for American Express Bank International's Miami office, and Maria Lourdes Reategui, a former employee of the bank's Los Angeles office, are accused in the indictment of setting up Aguirre's accounts.

Giraldi and Ms. Reategui surrendered to authorities in McAllen on Monday. They each were released on $100,000 bond, and an arraignment was scheduled for Jan. 5.

American Express Bank International is a subsidiary of American Express Co.'s international bank, American Express Bank Ltd.

The indictment alleges that Giraldi and Ms. Reategui made false statements in the bank's records to secure loans for Aguirre, with Aguirre's drug proceeds as collateral. Aguirre used the loan money to invest in businesses, including properties in Harlingen and Rancho Viejo and a Blockbuster Video Store in Houston, the indictment says.

The Customs Service, the lead agency in the investigation, has seized about $30 million in Aguirre American Express Bank International has unsuccessfully tried to persuade U.S. District Judge Filemon B. Vela to unfreeze those assets. The bank said in court papers that it used $29 million of Aguirre's money as collateral for $19 million in loans to companies that Aguirre controlled. The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System has required the bank to list the $19 million in loans as doubtful and charge half their amount against 1993 earnings, the bank's lawyers told the court. Aguirre's family has claimed in court documents that he died in a car accident in Mexico shortly after an earlier U.S. indictment in February. But Judge Vela has ruled that the evidence is unsufficient to prove Aguirre's death. U.S. authorities consider him a fugitive.

As a result of Vela's decision, the $30 million in assets has remained frozen. The new indictment seeks complete forfeiture of the assets to the federal government.

Giraldi and Ms. Reategui are charged with conspiracy to launder monetary instruments, 10 counts of money laundering, two counts of bank fraud and four counts of misapplication of

Also charged with conspiracy and 10 counts of money laundering are Aguirre; his wife, Rosalinda Silva de Aguirre; Fernando Herrera Vasquez; Rogelio Rodriguez Montemayor, and Francisco Castaneda Cantu.

Of those defendants, only Castaneda is in custody, authorities said.

The indictment alleges that Giraldi Antonio Giraldi, a senior vice and Ms. Reategui first began laundering money for Aguirre in June 1989 while they worked for Banker's Trust Co.

When Giraldi and Ms. Reategui resigned from Banker's Trust in June 1990 and took positions with American Express Bank International, Aguirre soon transferred his money to accounts set up by Giraldi and Ms. Reategui at the new bank, the indictment alleges.

Task forces also have been examining school violence, with one Education Board group working in conjunction with juvenile justice

Education officials say they haven't collected information statewide on incidents of school violence, so it's difficult to tell if it's on the rise. The Texas Education Agency is surveying school districts to try to get solid figures, said spokeswoman Della May Moore.

"I think that the solutions will probably be community by community," she said.

Some communities already have taken steps, with the installation of metal detectors, security guards and, in Houston, a policy requiring see-through backpacks.

The Texas Federation of Teachers says several school districts have adopted its "zero tolerance" proposal that includes moving students to an alternative setting if they assault others, bring guns to school or use profane language with teachers.

The group also has asked the board to support such a policy. TEA general counsel Kevin O'Hanlon said, "We're looking at ways to provide essentially more options for kids that have proved themselves essentially population."

There hasn't been a fight in school since the killing, said Peck, who added that schools don't deserve the blame for violence. He said the state should look at the big picture, including the juvenile justice system and conditions that lead to violence.

The actor recreated the Old West look with a vintage photograph. He said the publicity photo he posed for was "amazingly accurate.

Russell, in a recent interview, said he achieved "a much closer look with Wyatt Earp" than he did with Elvis Presley. Russell played Elvis in the TV movie "The King."

Russell's new movie, "Tombstone," about the legendary showdown at the O.K. Corral, opened Saturday.

PREQUALIFYING FOR A LOAN

Most lenders will help prospective buyers get prequalified for a mortgage before they begin house hunting. You can meet with a loan officer, ask any questions, and get their loan application form. After you submit their form, they will report to you, usually n a few days, how much mortgage you can qualify for under their loan options. They will do a credit check to see if there are any questions about your credit rating. If there are, you may be able to work together to straighten them out. If a lender has prequalified you, it makes you more attractive to a seller. When you are looking for the home, occasionally other offers will be made at the same time. If you are competing with other prospective buyers, include a let-ter from your lender, stating that you have already begun the loan application process and appear to be qualified to purchase their home. That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says time cannot diminish Christmas for it belongs to eternity. 000

If, instead of a gem or even a flower, we could cast the gift of a lovely thought into the heart of a friend, that would be giving as the angels gave.--George Macdonald 000

Wouldn't it be great if the child in every one of us came out this Christmas Eve, and then the meaning and the miracle of this holiday remained in our hearts throughout the year?

As Christmas rolls around again, we extend holiday greetings to all our readers, advertisers and the folks we associate with through the year while gathering news.

Hereford is a caring and sharing community, and that fact is illustrated in many way all year long. It is especially evident during this holiday season through the generous donations to the Christmas Stocking Fund, the Red Cross Toy Program, and other holiday charitable efforts.

There are many "stocking fund" efforts in communities across the area, and we'd venture to guess that Hereford has one of the highest per capita rate of giving. We noticed Amarillo had $71,000 this week, compared to $21,000 here. Not bad!

One of our favorite descriptions of Christmas was written many years ago by Henry Van Dyke. We've printed it before, but we think it bears repeating:

"How seldom Christmas comes-only once a year, and how soon it is over--a night and a day! If that is the whole of it, it seems not much more durable than the little toys that one buys of a fakir on the street corner. They run for an hour, and then the spring breaks, and the legs come off, and nothing remains but a contribution to the dust heap.

"But surely that need not and ought not be the whole of Christmas--only from the dull servitude of a selfish year--only a single night of merrymaking, celebrated in the slavequarters of a selfish race!

"If every gift is the token of a personal thought, a friendly feeling, an unselfish interest in the joys of others, then the thought, the feeling, the interest, may remain long after the gift is forgotten." 000

It seems apparent, from recent news announcements, that the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center will be moving to another city.

Most residents hate to lose the Center, if only because of community pride. There are a few critics who are already pointing fingers of blame at individuals or organizations for lack of support. But most folks understand that it will be in the best interests of the museum,

As Margaret Formby, director and founder, explained this week, the board has wrestled with the problems of expansion for several years. They've finally come to grips with the fact that a move is essential for a bigger and better Center.

The reasons have been explained by Formby and by other board members. 'We are operating a mainstream business at the Center, but we're having to do it cave-man style," Formby said this week.

The museum cannot continue to grow in Hereford because of space, staff and financial limitations. And, it will never be seen and appreciated here by the number of visitors who should have the opportunity to do so.

From our point of view, the Cowgirl Hall of Fame has survived here this long primarily due to the dedicated work of Margaret Formby. She has put in untold hours of work on this project and it has come a long

For Margaret, and the many volunteer workers who contributed time, talent and money to the Hall, we extend our thanks, and our wishes that the Hall will continue to flourish a single day of generosity, ransomed and grow, wherever it may be located.

Clinton graded low on foreign policy

Clinton.

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - New man, old problems - that's usually the way it is when there's a shakeup at the top, and President Clinton's change in Pentagon management fits the pattern.

But now there are suggestions that a shift in course, or at least emphasis, ought to accompany the change in faces in one of the most visible of Cabinet posts.

After a year of concentration on domestic economic concerns, some people are calling for Clinton to give higher priority and profile to foreign policy now. "I would tear down the sign that says it's the economy, stupid," says Democratic Sen. Patrick Leahy.

Maybe they shouldn't tear it; Clinton may want to get back to his winning 1992 issue at re-election time. But at this point, foreign policy and defense concerns are bearing down on him.

If confirmed as expected, Bobby Inman takes over as secretary of defense late next month facing the same Pentagon budget gap that figured in the timing of Les Aspin's resignation. At issue is a shortfall of at least $31 billion between administration budget aims for the next five years and the sums the Pentagon deems vital to defense needs.

Aspin wanted the money restored, nd Republicans say that getting it back will be a litmus test of Inman's new leadership. Sen. Sam Nunn, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he agreed with Aspin, and hopes Clinton will decide to put the money into defense.

That would force additional curbs on domestic spending to meet deficit control commitments.

Along with that go national security concerns ranging from the threat of nuclear weapons develop-ment by North Korea, to the unexpected vote for an extreme nationalist in Russian parliamentary elections, to continuing problems like Bosnia, Haiti and Somalia.

Those are all pieces of a broader issue, the framework for U.S. foreign and defense policies in the era beyond the Cold War, that remains to be

Ironically, as secretary of defense, Aspin absorbed criticism that might otherwise have gone directly at

After the botched Somalia street battle that cost 18 American lives, Aspin took the brunt of blame for failing to approve heavy weapons sought earlier by the U.S. command-

The ill-defined policy that put the Americans at risk was Clinton's, although the whole operation was inherited. But on that and on other problems, the buck stopped short of the White House.

A nationwide poll this month showed that Clinton inspires less confidence as a manager of foreign affairs than on any of 10 other major concerns. That Dec. 6-8 survey by the Tarrance Group and the firm of Mellman, Lazarus, Lake, showed only 31 percent more confident in Clinton than in congressional Republicans on foreign affairs. On that question, 52 percent preferred the GOP. That's the mirror image of attitudes on who best to trust on job creation - Clinton 52 percent, Republicans in Congress 32 percent.

The attitudes reflect Clinton's emphasis. He was, as he has said, elected to deal with economic woes, and things have been looking up since he took over.

It is not coincidence that changes the replacement of Aspin and of the No. 2 man at the State Department a month earlier - were in the national security and foreign affairs specialties that were neither Clinton's strengths nor his major interests.

On the foreign policy side, they may now be doing more. Clinton is oing to summit conferences at NATO and in Moscow early in the new year. Tending to business at home, he limited his foreign travel in 1993 to conferences in three countries. The first year he was president, George Bush went to 15.

There are Democrats who say they hope foreign and defense concerns keep moving higher on the Clinton agenda. Leahy, of Vermont, for

"I think it is now high time to have a lot more concentration by the president and his chief advisors on foreign policy," he said in a CNN interview. "It cannot run itself."

As I read the Christmas story, sure see the manger bed, the animals watching this strange drama played out, the shepherds kneeling before the Infant King, and the star shining bright in the sky.

But at the same time is sadness. since I know how the story will end with a heartbroken Mary standing impotently at the foot of the cross, watching her first-born Son die for the sins of the world.

Did Mary have any idea when Gabriel approached her that night that she would one day feel such pain and sadness? I doubt it. I expect she reacted in faith, knowing that God was in control and His plan would be carried out.

Sometimes I think we all get too caught up in the hustle and bustle of the holidays. We race around, planning vacations, out-spending our budgets on toys the kids really don't need and wasting miles and miles of paper to wrap them in.

We listen to the Christmas carols over store speakers, on rock radio stations and in television commercials so much that we forget the real message of those songs.

Then, when all the decorations are up, all the gifts are opened (don't forget to check the trash, so a real gift doesn't get thrown away by mistake!) and the Christmas turkey is nothing but bones and scraps, we say, "Well, that's it for this year."

And we wonder why we get depressed.

Finally the message of the Christmas story is beginning to seep into my weary brain and my frustration and tension

After all, this is Christmas. It is the time of year to celebrate a glorious birth -- but more importantly, to celebrate the supreme sacrifice made by God Himself.

And so it is in this spirit -- the true spirit of Christmas -- that I can wish you and yours a Very Merry Christmas.

Good night.

'Workfare' needed

BY LARRY COMBEST U.S. Rep., 19th District

Since Congress recessed last month, I have been able to spend time back home here in our part of Texas taking part in discussions with many of you about your concerns for our country's direction. It has always been by strong feeling that when we are not in session voting on legislation, I return home to the people I represent.

the holidays here in our own home, Sharon and I will be able to enjoy a Texas Christmas.

This Christmas season, President Clinton handed a gift-wrapped apology of sorts to former Vice has a package of welfare reform President Dan Quayle about last legislation from conservatives year's family values speech mentioning fictional single mother Murphy Brown. Said Clinton: "I read his whole speech, the Murphy Brown speech. It is certainly true that this country would be better off if our babies were born into two-parent

As our country grapples with the insanity of random mass shootings and the violence of desperation, there is a lot to be said about the stability a lot to be said about the stability is a lot to be said about the stability in the lot to the work ethic promotes self worth, a sense of direction and identity.

Government cannot instill family of the family. The values associated with family-guidance, belonging and self worth-are taught by single parents, grandparents, brothers and sisters. This point about two-parent families is that raising children is difficult enough for two people.

Dan Quayle was saying the entertainment industry should not glorify unwed mothers or single-parenting as an ideal for young people. Everyday, single parents who have no choice are working against the odds to raise their children. They do it, but as I say, it is tough enough for two parents, let alone one. Family values not only need a boost from the entertainment industry, but help from a reform of the outmoded welfare system. The federal government perpetuates a system that does little more than leave a welfare check as the only inheritance for each new generation. That sort of hopelessness, in addition to lack of direction and sense of It is especially nice to be back family, breeds desperation. In its home during the holidays. Spending most terrible of combinations, we have seen unexplainable random violence that cripples and kills.

I have consistently supported "workfare" over welfare. When Congress reconvenes next month, it has a package of welfare reform waiting for action. Our welfare reform plan requires that they work their way off welfare in exchange for incentives. Simply put, they must break a sweat to collect a check.

I believe government assistance should only be given to those who are willing to help themselves. When

The 1993 special Senate election was the first such vote since Sen. Lyndon Johnson became vice president in 1961, and this race had it all - intra-party bickering, a 24-candidate field, some truly unusual advertising.

The jockeying began almost immediately after the November presidential election, when the rumor mill cranked out word that Bentsen, Texas' senior senator, was going to be President Clinton's choice as U.S.

Thousands of Christmas lights reflect woman's hopes, dreams

By DEBORAH DAVIES Greenville Herald Banner

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) - The glimmer on the southern edge of Interstate 30 at night is not just the fluorescent glare from another all-night filling station.

It's the shimmering hopes and dreams of a woman who is certain, somehow, that by throwing the switch on 27,000 Christmas lights, the world will be a better place.

Anita Harral is a little worried that some folks will find her a bit obsessed. After all, her house will have more than a tenth the number of lights as the courthouse in Marshall, a city famous nationally for its holiday lights.

Thousands of people are drawn every year to the lights at the Harral home. And Mrs. Harral works 11 months of the year trying to make sure it's a sight for inspiration and

In February, the 8-foot nutcracker now guarding her driveway was a few scattered, anonymous flower pots resting in a store somewhere. The 4-foot long snow white dove perched in a wisteria shrub was a disjointed pile of feathers. The pristine frozen pond was a nondescript collection of lumber and cloth. The flying angel was a wire tomato vine support.

The outdoor displays started out as a treat for her grandchildren. At some point, she thought, "When I'm dead, what will be my legacy?" she said. Her love for Christmas led her to the answer.

Every character, every scene in Mrs. Harral's yard has its beginnings in a happy memory.

She's always loved Christmas, a disposition she attributes to her Swedish heritage. In fact, a good portion of her home stays decorated for Christmas all year long.

Her bedroom has small angels suspended from the ceiling. In the kitchen, strings of green lights and ornamental red cardinals are entwined in ivy that runs along the top of the wall around the kitchen. Christmas bric-a-brac tumble charmingly on window sills and shelf displays. Each or a memorable event. Next to the kitchen, the cat's cage is decorated with a string of Christmas hearts and lights, and Mrs. Harral blushes just a little over having gone that far with her decorating.

In the front yard, two 6-foot Mrs. Harral wanted the red lights rabbits hold hands as they skate on a to represent Christ's blood shed for frozen pond, leaving sparkling trails. all. Beside the pond, another rabbit is lacing up a pair of skates - the skates Mrs. Harral wore as a child. Nearby, two youngsters sit cross-legged by a glowing fire.

An economist is an expert who will know tomorrow why the things he predicted yesterday didn't happen

The scenes are reminiscent of Mrs. Harral's childhood on the Smokey River in Kansas. After skating trips, her family would stop and roast hot dogs and marshmallows over a bonfire.

A small tunnel for the Christmas Train Express leads visitors to the back yard, where a whimsical train looks ready to pull out, loaded with Pointing out the decorations is not so much a tour as an introduction of friends when Mrs. Harral does it. Two human-size floppy-eared rabbits relax on the front porch of a small house in the back yard. Mrs. Harral weaves a story about them.

'Farmer Brown, you see, was so lonesome," she says in perfect storytelling whisper. "He went to the Ozarks and met his lady love. It was love at first sight. They eloped, and he brought her back. 'Farmer Brown built this house. He knew that rabbit families have lots of babies, and that meant responsibility. So he came up with the idea of giving Christmas hayrides, with the fee being two carrots." Nearby a rabbit-driven wooden wagon looks like its ready to take a load of backyard critters for a Christmas hayride.

Mrs. Harral recalls growing up with fanciful Christmas celebrations. Every year after Christmas dinner, her family contrived the fireplace appearance of Santa, played by an uncle. A series of thumps on the roof, stifled exclamations from the adults in the family, booted footprints in the snow were enough to stoke Mrs. Harral's imagination for a lifetime.

Twenty-seven thousand lights now illuminate many of those cherished memories.

Troubleshooting those thousands of lights is the job taken on by Mrs. Harral's husband, Lee. What amazes Mrs. Harral, she says, is her husband's enduring patience. He not only sees that each of the 27,000 bulbs stays illuminated but has endured innumerable middle-of-the-night "I've got its," and hastily prepared dinners,

A neighbor, Bill James, made many piece reminds her of a family member of the props. He helped hang the 3,500 red lights in the trees that surround an elegant cross display. Mrs. Harral couldn't afford to rent a cherry picker for the work, so they used cane poles they picked themselves to get the reach they needed.

The flock includes, naturally, one black sheep, Mrs. Harral says, "Because, you see, Christ pulls us all in."

The Harrals had added three breaker boxes and a number of plugs to the outside of the house. She worries about bad weather, and in fact does not turn on the lights on wet nights. It's a lot of trouble, she admits. In fact, one of the first years she went to so much trouble, she started to regret the time, money and work. A visit from strangers, a handicapped couple, changed her mind.

"You've made our Christmas," they came to the door and told Mrs.

Harral. "God bless you." What also sustains her is the rush she gets every year when she throws

Mavs get 2nd win over Timberwolves

By The Associated Press

The New York-Atlanta and Denver-Houston games were featured bouts, while the game between NBA doormats Dallas and Minnesota was like matching a pair of aging tankers on the undercard.

But, as far as the record book is concerned, the 93-89 victory by the Dallas Mavericks over Minnesota's Timberwolves on Thursday night was perhaps the most significant event on a busy schedule.

The win at Minnesota's Target Center snapped the Mavericks' NBA record-tying 20-game losing streak and raised their season record to 23-2, with the only other victory coming you guessed it - against the hapless Timberwolves at the Target Center.

"If we could play and work hard and play Minnesota every night, we'd get a lot of victories," rookie Jamal Mashburn said with a laugh. "But we can't play them every night."

The Mavericks avoided breaking points. the single-season record they share with the Philadelphia 76ers, who lost 20 straight in 1972-73. The league record for consecutive losses, 24, was set over two seasons by the Cleveland Cavaliers in 1981-82 and 1982-83.

In other games, New York beat Atlanta 84-75 in a battle of division leaders, Denver denied Houston a record with a 106-93 victory; and it was Orlando 122, New Jersey 112; Miami 109, the Los Angeles Lakers 92; Charlotte 118, Boston 100; Cleveland 107, Milwaukee 88; Chicago 81, Detroit 72; Dallas 93, Minnesota 89; Utah 96, San Antonio 88; Phoenix 87, Seattle 86; Golden State 141, the Los Angeles Clippers 95; Sacramento 114, Washington 88, and Portland 108, Indiana 96.

While the Mavericks were relieved to finally win, there was little elation in their dressing room.

"I guess the consecutive-loss streak is over, but we've still got to win some games," said Sean Rooks, who had a career-high 26 points.

Jim Jackson led Dallas with 28

Nuggets 106, Rockets 93

Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf scored 24 points and Reggie Williams 23 for Denver, which ended a nine-game road losing streak and kept Houston from matching the best ever one-loss start in NBA history.

The loss was the first in 11 home games this season for Houston, ended ts seven-game winning streak and left the Rockets with a 22-2 record, keeping

Cowboys sign Aikman for record $50 million

By The Associated Press

The NFL is spending more than stars before restrictions limit them next season when the league's new salary cap becomes a reality.

The biggest winner Thursday - the deadline for offering future contracts that won't be counted applied against the cap - was Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman.

He got a record $50 million, eight-year contract. The 27-year-old quarterback will get an $11 million signing bonus and salaries ranging from $1.75 million in 1994 to $7.5 million in 2000.

"They are willing to do what is necessary for us to be competitive winning football team," said Aikman, who led the Cowboys to a $100 million to satisfy some of its Super Bowl victory last year and a playoff berth this season.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said Aikman has a true understanding of the team's goals.

Meanwhile, the news was not good for the Philadelphia Eagles, a team already hurt by player defections prior to this season. The Eagles failed to re-sign defensive stalwarts Clyde Simmons and Seth Joyner.

Dallas also agreed to a three-year extension with tackle Erik Williams. The San Francisco 49ers agreed to deals with nine players.

49ers represent one more obstacle for Oilers

By DENNIS GEORGATOS

AP Sports Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Warren Moon has never been through a season like this and he wouldn't want to go through one like it again. Right now, though, he just doesn't want it

"It's been a season of definite highs and lows," said the Houston quarterback, who'll lead the Oilers (10-4) against the San Francisco 49ers (10-4) in a Christmas Day matchup of division winners.

"It's been a season of a lot of controversy, a lot of personal disappointments, a lot of personal triumphs and just a variety of things.

This is a season you could write a book on, and it'd be a very interesting "We were playing lousy football"

Following a 1-4 start marked by mistake-prone play and hostility between the offensive and defensive players and coaches, Houston recovered to run off a league-best nine straight wins. Last week's 26-17 victory at Pittsburgh secured the AFC Central title for the Oilers, who are bidding for their first Super Bowl appearance.

"They have incredible talent," 49ers center Jesse Sapolu said. "If early in the season and we deserved the criticism we were getting. We deserved to be given up on, which we were by a lot of people," added Moon. "But the thing that really impressed about this team is we hung together."

The Oilers kept their turnaround alive through injuries to key players and the shock of losing teammate Jeff Alm, the defensive lineman who fatally shot himself moments after crashing his car in an accident that killed his best friend.

They've weathered the turmoil over tackle David Williams' decision to miss a game so he could be with his wife on the day she delivered their baby, followed by management's decision to dock him his $111,000 game check.

Even Moon, who came to Houston in 1984 after six seasons in the CFL, found himself in the middle of the tumult when poor play led to his first non-injury benching.

"It was probably the lowest point of my career," said Moon, a five-time Pro Bowler in 10 seasons with the Oilers. "For the first time since I had been here, my ability was being questioned."

Moon was yanked from games against San Diego and Buffalo in which he threw seven interceptions.
Then, Houston coach Jack Pardee started Cody Carlson ahead of him in an Oct. 17 game at New England.

"All of our problems to that point weren't his fault," Pardee said. There were a lot of reasons. But in the meantime, we were turning the ball over too much."

As it turned out, Carlson strained his groin in the second quarter against New England, and Moon came off the bench to rally the Oilers to a 28-14 victory that ignited Houston's longest winning streak since 1961.

"Things have kind of snowballed from there in the right direction," Moon said. "But you know, I'm still the same player. I'm not doing anything different. I just think our team has improved."

Moon, who has all 20 of the Oilers' touchdown passes, remains a big part of the resurgence.

"He got off to a slower start but everything since then has been all positive," San Francisco coach George Seifert said. "He used that negative experience probably to motivate himself that much more.

He's playing extremely well."

"He's putting the ball right on the money," added San Francisco free safety Merton Hanks. "They've still got great receivers all the way across the board. I look at them like our

San Francisco and Houston come into the game ranked 1-2 in scoring this season. The 49ers, behind Steve Young's four touchdown passes, clinched their 10th NFC West title in 13 years with a 55-17 victory at Detroit last week. Houston probably has more at stake than the 49ers, who already have a first-round playoff bye and a home date in the divisional playoffs Jan.

The Oilers want to keep winning to try to get home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. That's something they could have used last year, when they blew a 35-3 lead and lost 41-38 at Buffalo in a wild card game in the biggest collapse in NFL history.

"It's very tough to play on the road in the playoffs," Moon said. "Although we've played pretty good, we've lost the last two years on last-minute field goals on the road. So we feel like if we could play a game or two at our place, it'd make it a lot easier for us."

Alamo Bowl to build sports foundation for San Antonio

By KELLEY SHANNON Associated Press Writer SAN ANTONIO (AP) - To San

Antonio sports boosters, the Alamo Bowl is a ticket to the future. When California and Iowa play New Year's Eve at the Alamodome in the bowl's inaugural game, organizers hope it becomes a foundation for building San Antonio's reputation as a choice college football venue. "We have the opportunity to position ourself to be one of the premiere bowl games in the country," said Russ Bookbinder, an executive committee member of the San Antonio Sports Foundation.

The Alamo Bowl is the newest of the nation's 19 college bowl games. But its promoters promise it won't get lost among the other post-season contests and the distractions of New Year's Eve.

"Right now, I think it's a plus (to play Dec. 31)," said Bob Gennarelli, assistant executive director of the Alamo Bowl. Gennarelli and others said the New Year's Day lineup of marquee games offers a "glut" of bowl games, and said bowl games played earlier in December usually are not taken as seriously.

Besides, organizers say, they are making the most of the Alamo Bowl's 8:30 p.m. start.

You can sell the entertainment factor as well as the football." Gennarelli said, adding that the first two years of the game New Year's Eve is on a Friday and Saturday. The San Antonio Convention and Visitors Bureau has marketed the game as a way to see San Antonio during the football weekend. And downtown hotels are pleasantly surprised to find bookings are brisk, officials say.

'They've heard us talking about what a bowl game does to a city," said Gennarelli, who used to work with the Cotton Bowl. "If you've never been around that, it's hard to imagine the impact.'

Volunteer committees consisting of about 200 civic leaders and business people have planned and publicized the inaugural game.

Alamo Bowl week festivities include a pep rally, a gala the night before the game and a pre-game New Year's Eve party at HemisFair Park.

"San Antonio is known as a Fiesta City," said Bookbinder. "This is a mini-Fiesta."

In local sports circles, a long-term objective is to get San Antonio established as a popular college football site and to take advantage of that position if a college playoff system is created.

"When they start looking at a playoff format, it's going to be geographically spread," said Bookbinder, noting that a number of established bowl games are on the east and west coasts.

Already, San Antonio has been selected a basketball site for the NCAA Final Four in 1998.

Combine that with last summer's Olympic Festival here, upcoming Alamo Bowls and possibly the 1996 NBA All-Star game that the city is vying for, and San Antonio's odds of becoming a college playoff look good, said Bookbinder, who also is chief operating officer of the San Antonio Spurs.

"All these things are starting to give San Antonio a national reputation," Bookbinder said.

Of course, the immediate task is getting things ready for Dec. 31.
Alamo Bowl officials are aiming to sell 50,000 to 52,000 of the Alamodome's 64,000-plus available seats. As Christmas week approached, a little more than 40,000 tickets were sold, Gennarelli said.

In some ways the library has been quieter this week and in some ways busier. There is a definite lack of junior high and high school students. A few have been in to select some holiday reading of their OWN choosing, but most are apparently staying away until coerced by some teacher sometime next year. Moms, and especially grandmas, have been in with the little guys. They aren't admitting it, but I think it's just to get them out of the house for a little while. A few patrons have shared some of thank them for their kindness.

The big physical change at the library this year was the conversion of the Bicentennial Room into a classroom for GED students--in cooperation with PRPC, JTPA, HISD, their holiday goodies with us, and we and probably another acronym or two that doesn't mean anything to most of This has been a busy year for the us. The rationale for putting this in the library. Of course, we continue to library is that it was convenient for probationers, not as intimidating as a public school, our literacy tutors could use the computer lab, and that once the students learned, they would use the library more.

Of course, the heritage Room (the one with the stage) is still available for meetings, and it has been well used this year. Speaking of the Friends..they have had a successful 1993. Some time ago they determined that a library video projector would be a benefit to the community and began a drive to collect enough funds to purchase one. They expected it to take at least two--maybe three--years, but thanks to the generosity of this community, the machine is in our possession as this goes to press. It will be available for checkout to businesses and organizations by the first of 1994, if all goes as planned. The Friends also have purchased a number of videos that we will be using for Family Films before releasing them for checkout. These have public performance rights which makes them cost about four times as much as if we purchased them at a retail store.

We will be closed this Friday through Sunday for the New Year holiday, Becky, Annie, Betty, LaJuan, Nelda, Amy, and I all wish you a very happy New Year, and we look forward to serving you in 1994.

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent-HE KEEP HOLIDAY MEALS HEALTHFUL

Although holidays are special times--they present unique challenges especially for those with special food needs. It is a time when many people may gain unwanted weight thus compromising their health. It may take a holiday meal make-over to enjoy the holidays with no weight gain. Overweight predisposes people to the development of heart disease, diabetes, etc. So keeping your weight within normal limits is important to help prevent these diseases.

If you are hosting a healthy meal, some basic changes you can offer your guests are a variety of lower-fat, lower-calorie foods along with the traditional favorites. Modify recipes using some of the many low-fat choices offered by many of the food processors in response to consumer's concerns about health. For example, dairy products include many low or non-fat choices such as low or nonfat sour cream, skim milk and lower fat cheeses. Use more oils to replace hydrogenated or solid fats. Baste meats with wine, fruit juice, or broth instead of with butter or margarine. Use nonstick spray instead of butter, margarine or shortening on the pan when baking. Two egg whites can be substituted for a whole egg in most recipes to reduce cholesterol content. Replace buttered bread crumbs on tops of casseroles with crushed cereal. You not only reduce the fat, but you also increase complex carbohydrates--a recommendation of the dietary guidelines. Another excellent complex carbohydrate source is special request, lower fat or air popped popcorn. Use a variety of flavored salts to add flavor

Meat processors are offering a variety of lower fat alternatives for holiday fare. Low-fat varieties of cocktail sausages, lower fat beef or turkey sausages, and lower fat cold cuts. Serve these processed meats on top of a variety of whole wheat, rye,

Also add some vegetable dippers such as green peppers, broccoli, cherry tomatoes, radish roses, celery and carrot sticks with low-fat dips to add flavor, nutrition and interest to holiday snacks. Fruit such as apples, pears or grapes served with a special dip made with light cream cheese flavored with brown sugar and vanilla also adds interest and flavor to any holiday meal. Cutting portions for each food group is also important. Select leaner cuts from the (leg/loin) meat group to two 3-ounce portions which is about the size of a deck of cards. A skinless chicken breast is about three ounces also. Choose two or more servings of milk from low-fat choices. One half cup cooked or one cup of raw vegetables is a serving. Try to eat at least three servings of vegetables and two servings of fruit daily.

Introduce new lower fat holiday recipes and start some new family tor the new year.

Watch for holiday stains

For most of us, holidays generate warm feelings of family get-togethers and feasting on traditional foods.

But at the end of a holiday meal come the leftovers, especially those that leave greasy spots and dark stains on the best white tablecloth.

Turkey gravy, cranberry sauce and coffee are tasty parts of a holiday meal--and, with proper treatment, won't create stains that are impossible to remove from table linens.

For most food soils, home economists suggest first rinsing them under running cold water and blotting stained areas with white paper towels. Next, pretreat stains with a heavyduty liquid detergent or a prewash water with an enzyme presoak product for about 30 minutes, then

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Having been a faithful reader for years, I recall more than one instance where a letter writer was concerned about possible expenses should someone donate his or her organs after death. In every response, you said the donor's survivors would NEVER be charged a fee. I hope the enclosed clipping from the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel will shock you as it did me.

Kathy Bass' son Jeffrey was lying brain-dead in Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami after an automobile accident. The hospital asked her if she would agree to allow them to keep Jeffrey alive long enough to harvest his organs to benefit others. Mrs. Bass agreed. The lives of four people were saved as a result of that woman's decision. So now she is being billed $41,000 for expenses incurred while keeping Jeffrey alive. That's not all. The hospital has put a lien on the insurance money from the accident, and Kathy Bass doesn't have enough to pay her son's funeral expenses.

I can hear the hospital's excuses now: "This bill isn't for organ removal.

Celebrities are helping children

More children may get the medical help they need--free of charge-thanks to the efforts of two caring celebrities.

Spreading the word about the good work of Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children are actor Wilford Brimley and baseball legend Ted Williams. Brimley is in the feature movie "The Firm" with Tom Cruise and has many move and television credits. Williams played for the Boston Red Sox in the 1940s and 1950s and is a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Williams' script for the PSA contains an interesting bit of personal information. After telling the audience about the free, expert care available at Shriners Hospitals, Williams added, "How do I know? When my son Josh Henry was 16, he was a patient at a Shriners Burns Institute."

The 30 second television and radio public service spots were sent in May to public service directors at every radio and TV station in the U.S. and Canada. Since their debut, there's been an increase in calls to the Shrine's national toll-free patient referral hotline.

To refer a child to Shriners Hospitals, or for free brochures, call toll-free: 1-800-237-5055.

The monuments of wit survive the monuments of power.

Many Americans are telling their legislators about a plan that could provide health insurance to more people at less cost to taxpayers.

It is for hospital expenses for the care provided after the accident." I have a stamp on y driver's license identifying me as an organ donor, but it does NOT say, "Only if I don't have to pay." Now I am very reluctant to maintain my donor status if it means my wife will go broke because she chose to save the lives of others.

Jackson Memorial is a respectable, well-known teaching hospital. Billing Mrs. Bass is an outrage. Hippocrates would be ashamed .-- Gary in Fort Lauderdale

DEAR GARY: I have received hundreds of letters (with clippings attached) about this incident. Those who wrote were incensed.

We spoke with Les Olson, director of the University of Miami Organ Procurement Organization, and Mark Cohen, director of public affairs at Jackson Memorial Hospital. The facts are as follows:

"That bill for $41,000 never should have been sent. It was an absolute mistake," said Cohen. "We are dreadfully sorry, and we hope to learn something from it."

Kathy Bass was relieved and grateful when she received the word. And there was more good news. Les Olson told her he had reviewed the bill and determined that all but $2,868, the cost of normal emergency care, will be paid by the donor bank. This means Kathy Bass will have to pay no charges whatever, since the insurance should cover the emergency care. Olson said it should be made unmistakably clear that the nation's organ procurement organizations are responsible for ALL expenses incurred in the donation process.

Mrs. Bass said the experience did not embitter her toward organ donation, nor does she want this incident to discourage other potential

And now, dear readers, I hope this unfortunate publicity will not turn you sour on being a donor. Over 30,000 people are currently waiting for a lifesaving organ transplant. More than 2,500 die every year, waiting. And they continue to die at this rate because of superstition and ignorance. You can be a genuine lifesaver by sending for an organ donor card today. The address is: The Living Bank, P.O. Box 6725, Houston, Texas 77265. (A dollar or two to help defray costs would be greatly appreciated.)

Here are some helpful suggestions for homemakers

Many homeowners are surprised to learn their heating and airconditioning systems may be wasting

Here are some of the things you can do to save money on energy bills. -Change the filters. Clogged filters make your system work harder. This in turn uses more energy.

Change them at least twice a year. -Stop the leakage. Sheet metal duct systems waste energy because they leak. After cleaning the duct surface, seal up the joints with a highquality duct tape from the hardware store, then insulate. Wrap the sheetmetal ducts with a two inch thick fiber glass duct wrap blanket insulation following the manufacturer's recommended installation procedures at all times. -When you build or renovate, insist on a fiber glass duct system. These do not use metal and are made from rigid fiber glass insulation board formed into rectangular or round ducts. These duct systems have builtin energy savings and when properly installed, have relatively air-tight joints that eliminate leakage common with sheet metal ducts.

As early as 4,000 B.C., ancient peoples used crude plans consisting of hollow straws or reeds that supported a short column of liquid.

Question/ Answer

By POPULAR MECHANICS

For AP Special Features Q. Our home, built in 1924, has a brick fireplace which has a lever-operated damper. The damper is jammed open. Can you advise us on the best way to fix this?

A. A good solution to your problem is to install a chimney-top damper. This spring-loaded damper is mounted over the flue opening at the top of the chimney. The device has a stainless-steel wire that runs from the damper down the flue into the opening of the fireplace. A pull chain and handle are attached to the wire with a setscrew and clamp.

To close the damper, a person pulls on the wire and fastens the pull chain to a bracket at the top of the fireplace. To open the damper, release the tension on the wire. These dampers cost from $110 to $150, and if you have it professionally installed, it'costs about $225 to $250.

Q. I have a problem with floors that squeak. Can you tell me what makes floors squeak, and what I can do about it?

A. The squeaks are usually caused by the floorboard edges (finish floor, underlayment or subfloor) rubbing. Whether you have oak strip, vinyl or carpeted floors, the best solution is to get under the floor, from rooms below or the basement, then drive screws through the subfloor. The idea is to pull the layers of subfloor against each other or, in the case of oak strip flooring, to pull the finished floor against the subfloor.

If you can't get to the floor framing, you can do the following: With carpeted floors, drive 2-1/2-inch finishing nails through the carpet and underlayment and into the floor joists.
Locating the joists may be difficult, but it can be done by trial and error.
With hardwood floors, the Oak

Flooring Institute recommends you first try a lubricant to eliminate the squeak. Squeeze a liberal amount of liquid wax, talcum powder or powdered graphite between adjacent boards where the noise occurs. If that doesn't work, drive triangular glazier points between the floor strips, and then putty over the points. Or, bore pilot holes through the flooring, and then drive 2 inch-long nails through it and into the floor joists. Set the nailheads, and then putty over them.

Workshops, trade show highlight 1993 conference

A new look in the annual irrigation conference for High Plains growers and equipment dealers is taking on a new look this year.

Leon New, Texas Agricultural Extension Service irrigation specialist and conference chairman, said the reason for the new look is "we're encompassing all of Texas and going out to other states as well."

The conference, a annual event for more than 20 years, will be held at the Amarillo Civic Center on Jan. 10-11. The Texas Agricultural Irrigation Association and TAES are sponsors of the conference and trade show.

The expanded program includes two days of seminars and workshops and a much larger trade show, said Mike Stephens of Lubbock, TAIA president.

We are targeting a much wider audience, ranging from the Texas from the Texas agricultural producer and equipment dealer to their counterparts in five neighboring states and with some dealers coming from as far away as Minnesota and North Dakota," said Stephens.

Keynote speaker at a luncheon on Jan. 11, will be Rep. Pete Lane, speaker of the Texas House. Bob Givens, KGNC agribusiness news director will broadcast his noon show live each day of the conference.

Sponsors report that more than 75 industry equipment and service vendors will take part in the trade

New said concurrent sessions will run both days, providing in-depth programs on business management, chemigation, marketing and state and federal regulations.

"On Jan. 11, heavy emphasis will be on six major commodities -- corn, grain sorghum, wheat, peanuts, sugar beets and cotton. Al six commodities are further represented by individual grower associations which co-sponsor this year's conference," said New.

Research scientists will brief producers on current research in short season and dryland corn production, breeding programs, crop physiology, managing production and marketing.

Supporting hosts include KGNC-Radio, Texas Corn Producers, Texas Peanut Producers and Texas Wheat

Producers Boards, Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association, Texas Grain Sorghum Producers and Plains Cotton

Participating in the workshop sessions will be Dennis Newton, Deaf Smith County agricultural extension agent, and Dennis Printz of Holly

"This small amount of drinking quality water should not impact the grain marketing system," he said. By comparison, Parnell continued, an increase of 10 percent relative humidity could increase grain moisture content by 1.2 percent.

He said there are three methods of reducing the concentration of grain dust entrained in air by grain transfer points to less than the minimum explosive concentration -- pneumatic dust control, adding mineral oil and using water.

"Using water would allow for significant savings for the 7,000 country elevators facing compliance with Occupational Safety and Health Administration standards and Environmental Protection Agency regulations.

New federal Clean Air Act amendments will have a major economic impact on small grain elevators and the use of water might allow some of them to comply with air pollution regulations and stay in business.

"It is my view that elevator operators will strive to use water for safety and pollution-regulation compliance while maintaining grain quality," said Parnell. "Quite simply, I believe it would be a mistake to ban water for dust suppression in grain elevators.'

A NEW IDEA

e have an unwritten guideline around our office that says every new idea is worth exactly 17 cents. Now that doesn't make some folks very happy, particularly if they have an idea for a new product that they believe will make them rich.

Let me try to explain how we came up with the value of 17 cents. The world is full of ideas for new products. People have new ideas every day. Most are foolish, some are adequate and one in a million may be brilliant.

The real problem is that often the foolish ones appear brilliant - especially to the creator and his or her immediate family and the brilliant ones may seem foolish. Factor in the failures and the successes and we came up with an average value of 17

I should point out here that I know some of you have elever ideas for new products. I may not recognize your idea as a great one when I see it, but it may be a good one. So, for those of you who may have a current brainstorm, let me try to help you along a bit.

I've visited with several product buyers over the years and they tell me they look for several characteristics in new products. I f you are going to be successful with a consumer product it must have some of the features I've listed below. Success Characteristics

 New products must solve a problem or have a strong, positive emotional appeal. People only buy two things - solutions to problems and good feelings.

 Successful products must be simple and easy to understand. If you have to furnish detailed instructions to educate the consumer, the product may not sell well.

 The benefits of a new product must be obvious. Consumers will ask the "What's in it for me?" questions before every purchase. The positive attributes and advantages must be easy to see or grasp. If the benefits aren't apparent, the consumers will usually pass up the purchase.

 A new product must be made from easy-to-get materials and require a low initial investment.

 Every new product must have a positive image to sell well through traditional retail or service channels. It cannot be harmful to mankind, animals or the environment. It should not put down a race, religion or sex. It should be constructive and safe.

 If you are trying to sell the product from a prototype, the prototype must work. If you cannot build a functional sample, don't try to sell the idea

 Every new product should stand alone. Don't rely on the sale of another product or component to produce sales of your product. It should be independent and sell on its own merit. Some Final Thoughts

Don't assume everyone will buy one. They won't.

 Don't try to create a product that will appeal to everyone. Most likely you'll create something that will appeal to no one. Look for an easily identifiable target for your product.

 Don't send money to companies who promise to market you invention until you have a list of references. Personally, I wouldn't send any money after I'd checked references. I've nevermet anyone who has had one of the "invention marketing companies" make them any money.

 Don't assume that it has to be high-tech to sell well. Simple. but effective is the key. I don't want a faster, more powerful computer. I want one that costs less and is easy to learn to use.

In summary, a new product should be simple, easy to understand and have benefits that the potential buyer can see clearly. Otherwise, it may not be worth millions, it may only be worth 17 cents.

Christmas hard on children of divided homes

By KAREN M. THOMAS

The Dallas Morning News morning, Liz Lee's three children will wake up, open their presents and head over to their father's home.

Like last year, her 7-year-old daughter is worried about leaving her divorced mother all alone on the holiday. The children are all the family that Ms. Lee has here.

"We talked about it, and she said, 'I don't want to go,' " says Ms. Lee, who admits to feeling blue about being alone for the holiday. "I told her that Santa would come over there, too. My ex is active in their lives and I want them to have that."

In a season filled with family DALLAS (AP) - On Christmas expectations, the holidays can be a difficult time for children, according to several Dallas-area psychologists.

With a growing number of families in crisis and experiencing tough economic times, children are showing the signs of depression and anxiety, the experts say.

"Whatever is happening to the parents funnels down to the kids,' says Mary Ann Shaw, a Dallas psychologist who specializes in family issues. "If the parents are under pressure and stress, the kids youngsters to withdraw and become apathetic. Others may become more irritable and easily frustrated. Some have trouble sleeping. Still others try hard to please parents, attempting to solve the problems they see facing the

"The concept of being good for Santa is an extra burden," says Dr. Shaw. "If you're having hard times and are unable to buy all the toys your child wants, the child thinks 'I was good and Santa still didn't bring what I wanted."

The tension, experts say, is worsened by a stream of advertise-formation of new cells of the skin which may be from inherited genes.

Sebum, the oil from skin glands, may also play a role. That may cause the scaly, flaky skin to itch. It is not contagious and is not just a disease of the elderly, occurring at any age, including in babies. It is most often characterized by red, scaly lesions over the forehead, nose, cheeks, the treatment, and your treatment is rather typical of what is recommended. Avoiding oils or anything greasy on the skin is important. And I'm sorry to say you will probably need to follow a continuous program to control the problem. It has nothing to do with cleanliness, but removing images of perfect, loving families.

The television portrays such warm family situations, and you may not have that in your family," Dr. Shaw says. "You continue to see what you don't have."

And stress doesn't attack only families in trouble. Children who don't celebrate Christmas are sometimes confused by the fuss over the holiday. Others come from homes where unrealistic expectations were raised for the holidays.

"I think it's important for parents to sort out their own expectations and fantasies about Christmas," says Wendy Palmer, a Dallas-area family psychologist.

'Sometimes what creates pressure is when parents decide they are going to recoup from their past experience. They think, 'This will be the perfect Christmas because, my God, mine were horrible.' That can set up a level of tension," she says.

Parents may also have a tough time maintaining traditions and myths if they are divorced and the children spend all or part of the holiday with the other parent.

"It's kind of like the kids have deadlines they have to meet," Ms. Lee says about her children during the times they have split the visits between their dad and mom.

This year, Ms. Lee says, she was scheduled to keep her children home for the holiday. But her ex-husband had made plans and asked to have the children at Christmas. She agreed because she felt it important for the children to spend time with their Jewish children and others who do not celebrate Christmas may encounter holiday confusion when parents waffle over how to handle explaining the season for their children.

"It's the parents' responsibility to interpret the time of year for the child, whatever the religious culture," says Dr. Palmer. "It's a wonderful opportunity for parents to teach children about values, period.'

Parents, say both Dr. Palmer and planning their children's schedules with more flexibility, and placing a greater emphasis on giving than receiving.

"Feeling good about the holiday is difficult if you can't afford to bring it into your own home," Dr. Shaw says. That may be a good time to take the children to a soup kitchen, go through the house and see what you can donate or volunteer somewhere else."

For families feeling the financial squeeze or who simply want to move away from the season's materialism, it's also a good idea to string popcorn, make Christmas ornaments or bake cookies.

Dr. Shaw also suggests that parents listen to their children better. While older children can more easily verbalize what they are feeling, younger children may need some help.
"'I wish' is a telltale indicator to what your children think they are missing. Sometimes I tell children that I will grant them five wishes and ask them what they want," she says.

Parents also can help their children write a letter to Santa Claus, which also may help reveal what they are feeling.

With divorced families, sometimes the greatest gift that parents can give their children is easing the visitation schedules. Instead of strictly following the divorce decree, parents should concentrate on helping the child through the holidays.

On the first Christmas after his

The holidays may cause some ments that bombard households with Dr. Shaw, can ease holiday stress by divorce, Chuck Farlow worried about his two children. The breakup had forever changed the family's holiday traditions and he, his ex-wife and children didn't know what to expect. "It was difficult because everything was new and unknown. The kids were having a hard time," Farlow says. The parents eventually decided to set aside their difficulties and spend part of the day together for the children.

They also exchanged small gifts. Now, two years later, they allow their children, 15 and 18, to decide how they will celebrate the holidays.

On Christmas Eve, they will celebrate Christmas with their mother during the day. On Christmas Day, they will celebrate with their father.

"Just to see my parents communicat-ing is nice," says Greg Farlow, 15, who lives with his father. "They are agreeable and don't mind if we come a day before or after the holiday as long as we spend time together. It's a lot better."

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: In one of your columns, you had a short piece on sumatriptan that helps people who suffer from migraine headaches. My husband has had migraines for almost 30 years. Now our youngest son, who is almost 15 years old, has started having migraines too.

I would appreciate any information on this drug or where we can get information.

DEAR READER: By now your doctor can prescribe this rather new treatment for migraine headaches. It was used successfully in England and other countries for quite some time before it was approved by the Food and Drug Administration to treat patients in the United States. It is reported to relieve a migraine headache within minutes in about half of patients who have them. It is not a miracle drug and cannot relieve all migraine attacks in all patients. but its very good results in at least half of migraine patients is encouraging. Ask your doctor about it for your husband and son. It is a prescription item.

Sumatriptan has also been reported to be effective in many cases of cluster headaches. This form of headache is sometimes considered a severe variant of migraine headaches, causing really severe pain, tearing from the eye on the affected side and running nose on that side as well. The headaches are particularly difficult to treat and tend to occur regularly, as at 2 a.m. each night for days, weeks or even a month, then the cluster of attacks stop.

I have discussed measures to treat migraines and other headaches in Special Report 85, Headache and Facial Pain, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), selfaddressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/85, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537, Migraine headaches do have a familia! tendency.

DEAR DR. LAMB: At age 90, I developed a terrible itch in my eyebrows, face, scalp and down the back of my neck. A nurse practitioner told me I have seborrheic dermatitis. How did I get this? Is it contagious? I'm a very clean person. What can I do to keep it from coming back when it finally goes away? I am using ketoconazole (Nizoral) and Neutrogena T/Gel Scalp Solution. I use no oils on my scalp. The itching is relieved temporarily with the use of these products. The itching has kept me awake three hours at a time, scratching like crazy at night. Is this a disease of old people? I have never had dandruff until this, which is said to be a severe dandruff. It certainly is severe!

DEAR READER: Yes, it is considered as a more severe variant of the same disorder that causes dandruff. The problem is an excessively rapid Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas died on May 13, 1971. A decade earlier, Please tell me the truth, is there she had reaffirmed her belief in the Santa Claus spirit, saying it "stands hard times, only to rebound into was 8 years old, and some of her for love and sharing, the joy of giving and the extension of it to all people.'

> But at the time of her death, her childhood home already had been vacant for about five years, recalls Jeanne L. Beatty, president of the West 95th Street Development Corp., which holds the house's title.

And now Santa himself probably couldn't find Virginia's house - the street numbers are missing. Chicken wire blocks the entrance.

Someone has scrawled "AIDS Housing Now" in red on the door. Not long ago, a human body was drawn on the sidewalk out front, with the caption: "Homeless people are freezing to death and this building stands vacant." Much has changed since Virginia wrote her letter, but Ms. Beatty insisted the Christmas spirit lives on West 95th Street.

Margie's Notes

This is one of the most beautiful times of the year and I wanted to wish all of you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. It's usually one of the most exciting times, getting together with family and friends, but sometimes we have something happen that dulls the excitement of all the parties and activities. Of course, this is the time we have to really stop and remind ourselves what Christmas is all about.

In the last two weeks, we have lost two of our very active volunteers and participants at the Center. When we lose our friends, there is an emptiness and a void that no one can fill. Here we have to just fill in the gap and go ahead and help each other to accomplish the mission of our organization.

Elroy Artho and Homer Garrison were both very good and caring friends to all of us. For years, Elroy helped deliver meals to the homebound. You could always depend on him to be here, usually coming in every morning about 9 a.m. to visit, deliver meals, and play dominoes. He had a sense of humor that really brightened our day.

I met Homer in November of 1978. He sang in a quartet with Cecil and Eunice Boyer and J.B. Noland. They sang at the first Thanksgiving party we had at the old center, after I began working with Senior Citizens. I remember he had to sit down and rest after a song or two. He was not in good health then but kept doing what he loved-singing being with people. He became president of Hereford Senior Citizens Association in July, 1982, and served in that capacity until June, 1987. He put in many long hours leading us through the building project. Each day he loved playing dominoes with his friends, which he did until Friday, Dec. 17, when he had to go back to the hospital.

I guess what really stands out in the lives o both of these men is they really knew what Christmas is all about. They knew the Christ of Christmas and they both lived the life of love and caring for people in a way a lot of people never do. They put others ahead o their own needs.

We are thankful for the influence both of these men left in each of our lives and that we had them as our friends.

The Braschlers from Branson

Braschler Music Show to perform in Hereford

The Braschler Music Show from Branson, MO., will preform at Hereford Senior Citizen Center on Friday, March 11, 1994.

There will be two shows. The Gospel Show begins at 6 p.m, and the Variety Show is scheduled at 8:30 p.m. Both shows will be completely different. Tickets are $10 a person for one show, or $18 for both shows. Tickets should be purchased in advance.

Sandwiches or beef stew, and dessert, will be served in the dining room of the Center from 5 to 9 p.m. All you can eat for $4. Advance tickets are not required.

Many people from this area have enjoyed the Braschlers in Branson. With this show's wide variety, there is something of enjoyment for everyone. There are country and gospel tunes, featuring solos and quartets, a trio called "Pride of the Ozarks," and even some five-part harmony.

The Braschlers have been featured on the Nashville Network's premier show, "Nashville Now," are considered one of the top attractions for family entertainment in Branson.

The group's band includes drums, piano, guitar, fiddle, mandolin and banjo, but a fast-paced-instrumental features the somewhat unique additions of harmonica, trumpet, saxophone and even the kazoo!

Homer Lee, the comedian for the group, has appeared on the nationally-syndicated TV show, "Hee-Haw." The mixture of country, gospel, patriotic, bluegrass and comedy, is a winning combination for the entire family. Their show is bound to linger in your memory long after the last note is sung!

Send for tickets to the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, P.O. Box 270, Hereford, TX., or call 364-5681. The Center is located at 426 Ranger in

Depressed may need help to get help

Low self-esteem, exhaustion, social withdrawal, feelings of guild and helplessness...these common symptoms often prevent people with depression from recognizing that they have a treatable illness.

In fact, nearly two-thirds of those affected do not seek treatment. This underscores the national Institute of Mental Health's message that depressed people sometimes need help to get help. And the good news is that current treatments are effective, up to 80 percent of the time

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

● I am a new Supplemental Security Income (SSI) recipient. When I looked at my calendar, I saw that January 1, 1994, the date I should get my check, is Saturday. Will I get my check on Friday or Monday?

A: Because Friday, December 31 is a legal holiday, you will get your check on Thursday, December 30. As a general rule, if the first of the month falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, you'll get your check on the banking day before. This general rule holds whether you receive your benefits by mail or you have them deposited directly in your bank account.

Q: My neighbor, who is retired, told me that the income he receives from his part-time job has given him an increase in his benefit, in addition to his annual cost-of-living increase. Is this

A: Yes, Individuals who return to work after they start receiving benefits may be able to receive a higher benefit based on those earnings. Social Security automatically recalculated the benefit amount after the additional earnings are credit to the individual's earnings record.

Q: I think I could do better financially if you let me invest the Social Security taxes I pay into an IRA or some other investment plan. What do you think?

A: Maybe you could--but then again, maybe your investments wouldn't work out. Remember these facts:

 your Social Security taxes pay for potential disability and survivors benefits as well as for retirement benefits; Social Security incorporates social goals--such as giving more protection to families and to low income work ers that are not part of private pension plans; and * Social Security benefits are adjusted yearly for in creases in the cost-of-living--a feature not present in many private plans.

Q: My mother will be moving in January. What does she need to do to make sure she won't miss any of her Social Security checks?

er needs to inform Social Security of her new address and phone number as soon as she knows them. She can make a telephone report by calling Social Security's toll free number, 1:800-772-1213, or she can write or visit the nearest Social Security office. Her report should include her Social Security number. Your mother also needs to file a change of address form with the post office.

Information provided from cold specialist

BY JAY GROSSMAN, M.D.

Q: When one person in my office has a cold, we all seem to catch it no matter how careful we are. Is there some way to prevent this?

A: There are at least 200 different viruses known to cause colds which is why it is impossible for a vaccine to be developed. About 30 percent of these viruses belong to one family of rhinoviruses, which attack the upper passage of the nose. Rhinoviruses can live about two hours outside of the human body, making it easy to catch colds by picking up viruses from doorknobs, handshakes and mass transit straps.

Q: Is one time of day better than another to take a cold medication?

A: Yes. While some products are clearly marked and specifically designed for day or nighttime use, it's also important to read the label on all products to determine common side effects such as mild drowsiness or excitability. You should also consider the hours of duration for your cold product (six, eight, 12 or 24 hours) because, if you miss the recommended time for repeat doses, your cold symptoms may come back. Long-acting cold medications require only one dose during the day which may make following recommended dose requirements easier. This is especially helpful for people with hectic schedules.

Q: My cold symptoms always seem worse in the morning, making it difficult to start the day. Is there something I can do to hand this?

A: You are not alone! Research has suggested that normal sleep positions and circadian rhythms, or your body's internal clock, can cause your cold symptoms to worsen in the morning. If cold symptoms are usually at their worst when you wake up-precisely when many short acting cold medications taken at bedtime lose effectiveness, one answer may be to take a 24-hour cold medication which is taken once daily and will provide round-the-clock relief.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK

In reviewing a recent article in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, several interesting facts were reviewed on the eating habits of the senior citizens.

There seems to be a relationship of emotional motivator for eating and body fatness among elderly retired individuals. The elderly, a heterogeneous group composed of individuals aged 60 through 90 years or older, can not be a measure of nutritional wellbeing when we consider actual chronological ages. Dietary investigations indicate a relatively high incidence of obesity even though the majority of abase elderly reported caloric intakes below recommended daily levels.

elderly persons consuming deficient diets underscores the need for eating behaviors that make adequate adjustments for decreased energy requirements associated with sedentary life-styles. Factors identified as influences on eating behavior and thus on the ultimate nutritional status and well being of older persons include health, gender, socio-economic status convenience, and taste as well as psychosocial conditions such as loneliness, social isolation, and widowhood. What has been missing on factors influencing eating behavior among the elderly is the impact of emotional motivations.

Social Security

People who are planning to apply for Social Security disability benefits should be aware that their benefit may be reduced by the amount of workers' compensation and/or public disability benefits they receive.

Too many people find out too late that they can't receive a full Social Security disability benefit if they are receiving disability benefits from other public sources," stated Jim Talbot, manger of the Amarillo district office.

He said that a family's Social Security disability benefit is reduced so that the combined disability benefits received from all public sources is not more than 80 percent of the pay a worker received before becoming disabled.

"Prior to this rule, some people were receiving more in disability benefits than they were when they were working," Talbot said.

While workers' compensation payments are made to a worker because of a job-related injury of illness, other public disability payments that may affect Social Security benefits are those paid under a Federal, State or local government plan that pays for conditions that are not usually job-related. Example are federal civil service disability benefits, military disability benefits,and state or local government retirement benefits based on disability.

Private disability pensions or insurance benefits do no effaced Social Security benefits. Other types of payments that do not affect benefits are: Supplemental Security Income(SSI) payments; Veterans Administration benefits; and federal, state or local government benefits if the work was almost always covered by Social Security.

To avoid receiving an overpayment from Social Security (which the law require to be repaid) you must report that you receive workers; compensation and/or public disability payments when you apply for Social Security. You should also report when there is a change in the payment, or if it stops. If your workers' compensation and /or public disability payment stops, you Social Security benefit usually will increase. If you need more information abut how your Social Security disability payments may be affected by other benefits call Social Security and ask for a special leaflet--How Other Disability Benefits May Affect Your Social Security Benefit. The toll-free number is 1-800-722-1213 and representatives can be reached from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. business days.

Bones are framework for healthy living

It may come as a surprise, but your bones do more for you than you realize. The don't just stand around holding you up.

Bone is one of the most active tissues of the body. It cleanses the blood of harmful substances, stores minerals such as calcium, fluoride, phosphorus and sodium and contains the marrow from which new red blood cells are made.

If you want to have healthy bones, it's wise to take good care of them all your life. Here are some bonechilling statistics that show you why:

-More than 25 million Americans are affected by osteoporosis, a disease which leads to excessive loss of bone tissue and an increased susceptibility to fractures.

The estimated health care costs of osteoporosis is $10 billion a year.

-The National Institutes of Health have cited osteoporosis as one of the three deadliest diseases affecting women, along with cardiovascular disease and breast cancer.

Almost half of all women over age 50 can expect to suffer a fracture related to osteoporosis. Fractures generally occur in the hip, spine and

 Since osteoporosis is symptomless, the first sign of it is often a

The people most likely to be at risk are women of Caucasian or Asian descent. Other risk factors include early menopause, small bones and a slim build, inactivity and a diet low in calcium. Women who smoke and drink alcohol excessively have added risk factors.

Fortunately, according to nutritionists at the National Diary Council, there are a number of things you can do to protect yourself from osteoporosis.

It's never too soon to start protecting your bones. Says one researcher: "Osteoporosis is a geriatric disease that begins in adolescence.'

Drinking milk and consuming other calcium-rich foods during the growth years is very important. A recent study found increasing calcium intake from 80 percent to 110 percent of the RDA of 1,200 mg. per day during adolescence may decrease the risk of osteoporosis. Twelve-year-old girls who consumed one extra glass of milk a day for 18 months, in addition to the recommended three 8 oz. glasses for this age group, developed higher total spine density than those who did not.

Even in later years, studies suggest, an increased calcium intake can reduce age-related bone loss by one-third to one-half in several bones, including the legs and spine. Regular exercise is also essential to bone health.

Early diagnosis and medical treatment can slow bone loss and improve the quality of life. Treatment programs generally include estrogen therapy (for post-menopaus-al women), a balanced diet rich in calcium and lifestyle modifications, including an exercise regimen.

Now, however, the Centers for Desease Control suggests that even simple, everyday activity can provide a sueful level of exercise.

Just 30 minutes a day of mild activity such as gardening,r aking leaves, taking short walks or climbing the stairs is all you need. You don't even have to do it all at one itme. Intead you can scatter your workout throughout the day. Take a 15-minute walk at lunch, psend 10 minutes raking leaves and five minutes vacuuming.

There's good news for heart patients

There could be some heartening news for millions of Americans. Scientists have come up with a new treatment for the leading cause of death in the U.S.: Cardiovascular

The new procedure has proven successful in safely treating coronary artery plaque that obstructs the arteries and can lead to heart attack and chest pain.

The procedure is called excimer laser coronary angioplasty or ELCA. It uses an ultraviolet laser known as an excimer to literally vaporize the clogging plaque. This plaque is reduced to tiny particles which are easily carried off by the bloodstream. It's fully FDA-approved and has already successfully treated thousands of people.

ELCA delivers laser energy to the blockage through a fiberoptic catheter. The tiny catheter is inserted through a small incision in a patient's arm or leg and then moved over a guidewire to the coronary blockage. When the tip of the catheter reaches the blockage the doctor activates the laser to vaporize the plaque.

On average, ELCA patients have a shorter hospital stay than those receiving other coronary blockage treatments such as balloon angioplasty or coronary bypass operations because of the less invasive nature of the treatment.

The excimer laser is much different from and considered safer than the types used in the past. The pulsed excimer laser produces minimal thermal energy and does not burn healthy tissue the way earlier, continuous wave lasers could.

Patients considering ELCA should discuss the procedure in more detail with their doctor.

It could amount to a lot of trouble at tax time if you've paid for something with cash and can't find the receipt. Perhaps the best way to avoid that happening is to pay by credit card. Even if you lose the receipt, you can always get a copy of the transaction from the card issuer.

For those taxpayers worried about losing a credit card (statistics show about 20,000 are lost or stolen a day), there are ways to protect yourself against the possible unauthorized charges and inconvenience this would cause. There are credit card protec-tion services available in which you may register all your credit and debit cards issued by banks, stores, oil companies and the like, plus cash-machine cards.

What should you do when one passes away

The death of a family member or close personal friend is a difficult subject for almost everyone.

The tendency is to postpone dealing with it until the time comes. Unfortunately, when it does, survivors are expected to make many crucial financial and legal decisions. For a grieving and unprepared person, the pressure to make these decisions can seem overwhelming. It need not be

CONTACT A FUNERAL DIRECTOR

Following the death of a loved one, families usually rely upon the funeral director or guidance. It is important that this person be involved immediately because he or she can begin to help you make arrangements for funeral services and burials.

CONTACT YOUR LIFE INSURANCE AGENT

You should also contact the deceased's life insurance agent. In most cases life insurance companies require only two forms to establish proof of claim: a claimant's statement and a death certificate or attending physician's statement. The claimant's statement must be completed by the beneficiary.

If you are the beneficiary, you'll be facing crucial decisions about how best to move forward with money matters. Unfortunately, this comes at a time when you may be least prepared to make sound financial decisions. To add to the burden, the amount of money involved may be very large. For this reason, many companies offer an interest-bearing money market-type account that allows you to write checks against your benefit proceeds the same day you receive your checkbook.

This provides immediate access to and complete control of your proceeds, while they earn a competitive rate of interest and a guarantee of principal by the insurer. It gives you the time you need to evaluate your changed financial situation.

MAKE A LEGAL CONTACT

When a loved one dies, you should seek legal advice on such matters as rerecording property deeds and the disposition of stocks, bonds and savings. Also, the disbursement of the insured's business and estate assets and the drawing up of a will for the widow or widower will require immediate attention.

LOCATE IMPORTANT PAPERS

Aside from any insurance policies, remember to think about safe deposit boxes, business agreements, bankbooks and securities certificates; real estate deeds; wills; recent copies of income tax return forms, W-2 forms and other records of earning; Social Security number; marriage and birth certificates; military discharge papers, Veterans Administration claim number; automobile registration; and installment payment books.

The death certificate is the basic document you will be working with. You'll need a number of copies so you can establish claims under life insurance policies and file for Social Security and Veterans benefits. In many cases, the funeral director can secure certified copies.

CONTACT SOCIAL SECURITY OFFICE

If the deceased was covered under Social Security, you may be eligible for a lump-sum death benefit. It is usually paid to the surviving spouse, but it can be paid to others under certain circumstances.

CONTACT EMPLOYER

Since most people are covered by group insurance where they work, inquire about the benefit due you an dhow to file a claim. Also, ask about pension fund benefits, accrued vacation and sick pay, terminal pay allowances, disability income and credit union balances. Pay special attention to the deceased's hospital, surgical and disability coverages to see whether you and your dependents are still eligible for benefits.

CONTACT ORGANIZATIONS

Contact union, service organizations, or professional organizations the deceased belonged to in order to find out whether you are eligible for any benefits. Many such groups offer life insurance policies at group rates.

GATHER ALL CURRENT BILLS

Many installment loans, service contracts and credit card accounts are covered by credit life insurance, which pays off the account balance in the event of the death of a customer. Make a prompt request for release to each bank in which the deceased and you held a joint account. This is preliminary to your withdrawing funds from that account. Property-casualty insurance policies should be updated to reflect change in ownership.

MEET ADVISORS

Now is the time to secure the services of professional financial advisors who will make sure that your records are in order and see that your wishes are met. The best time to make contact with a lawyer is now. That's because the best time to prepare a will is now. Your insurance agent can help in settling your claims, including planning for future monthly income needs and education, business, and retirement planning. Also, he can assist you with your estate planning, so that you will derive maximum-benefit from your estate while you are still living.

To treat your facts with imagination is one thing, but to imagine your facts is another.

Kennedy Center honors performing artists

Influential artists are recognized for their achievements as CBS airs "The Kennedy Center Honors: A Celebration of the Performing Arts" on Wednesday. Honoress include (clockwise from upper left) Johnny Carson, Stephen Sondheim, Merion Williams, Sir Georg Solti and Arthur Mitchell (not pictured).

It is a night for power to pay tribute to poetry, explains Walter Cronkite at the opening of the 16th annual "The Kennedy Center Honors: A Celebration of the Performing Arts" airing

Wednesday, Dec. 29, on CBS.

The Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts has been recognizing the achievements of influential artists since 1978. This year they honor entertainer Johnny Carson, dancer Arthur Mitchell, conductor Sir Georg Solti, composer Stephen Sondheim, and gospel singer Marion Williams. Walter Cronkite hosts the event for the 12th consecutive year.

"It was absolutely stunning," says producer George Stevens Jr., who returns for the 16th consecutive year.

"It was really so moving, so beautiful and surprising. It was an incredible theatrical experience."

The show features filmed segments devoted to each of the honorees along with celebrity presentations and musical performances.

"It is a wonderful, wonderful honor to receive," Mitchell says. "All artists are so involved in the process of doing our art and we would like recognition, but many times when it does come, it catches you off guard. When it does happen, you feel very honored, very special. (Being honored by the Kennedy Center) gives you the worldwide visibility so that people know what you're doing."

Mitchell is being honored for his important role in the world of dance, which includes the creation of The Dance Theater of Harlem. Many consider him to be the Jackie Robinson of dance. His tribute in the program includes a performance by young children and professional dancers from The Dance Theater of Harlem.

Carson is recognized for his role in the entertainment industry, particularly his long stint as host of "The Tonight Show." Ted Koppel and David Letterman (with a special "Top 10 List") head his salute.

Solti's contributions to American music, namely his directing The Chicago Symphony Orchestra for 22 years, is saluted by his successor, Daniel Barenboim, and members of the orchestra.

Angela Lansbury leads the tribute to Sondheim, composer of such musicals as "A Little Night Music" and "Sweeney Todd." She is joined for a musical performance by Bernadette Peters, Jason Alexander and Scott Bakula.

National Endowment for the Arts Chairwoman Jane Alexander leads the salute to Williams, which includes Little Richard, Billy Preston and Aretha Franklin in a huge musical performance. Stevens notes that this is "the first time that gospel music is recognized by the Kennedy Center."

"I thought that the range of the evening was phenomenal," says Mitchell, "To go from Stephen Sondheim to Sir Georg Solti to Marion Williams to Dance Theater of Harlem to Johnny Carson, you covered every aspect of theater, opera and ballet in one evening!

"I found that each of us, even though we're working in different fields, feel the same about what we're doing. That sort of very intense drive to be successful, to be the best, is the common thread among all of us."

Continuity is a theme of the event, with a performance of a collaboration between Sondheim and past honoree Leonard Bernstein, and by welcoming President Clinton to the honors tradition.

'Broken Promises' cause trouble on CBS; San Francisco earthquake produces heroes

BY SARA BENNETT

"Broken Promises: Taking Emily Back," airing Sunday on CBS, brings to light the difficulties of adoption for both parents and children.

Cheryl Ladd and Robert Desiderio portray Pam and Sean Chaney, a childless couple who want to adopt. They bypass the red-tape approach and hire an attorney to help them privately adopt. When they find the right child, her parents (played by Ted Levine and Kathleen Wilhoite) place unreasonable demands on the Chaneys to ease their own financial situation. The fact-based movie also stars Polly Draper.

In a week full of network rebroadcasts, NBC dusts off "Miracle on I-880," featuring events that transpired after the 1989 San Francisco earthquake. Ruben Blades, David Morse, Sandy Duncan and Len Cariou star in the film based on the real-life heroes who helped rescue motorists from the rubble of the collapsed double-decker Interstate 880 freeway. Monday, Anthony Perkins stars in his last film role as a detective working overtime to catch a serial killer in NBC's "In the Deep Woods." Rosanna Arquette portrays Joanna Warren, the only person who may be able to point the detective in the right direction. The film first aired in 1992.

Dick Van Dyke and Suzanne Pleshette play old classmates, Dr. Mark Sloan and Dr. Rachel Walters, in Friday's CBS replay of "A Twist of the Knife." Rachel is accused of murder after a medical demonstration goes awry. Van Dyke's reprises his previous role as the unconventional physician. Dr. Sloan first appeared in an episode of "Jake and the Fatman," and then in the NBC movies "Diagnosis of Murder" and "The House on Sycamore Street"

Saturday, TBS airs both parts of "Voice of the Heart," starring Lindsay Wagner, Victoria Tennant and James Brolin in a story of two socialites and the men who walk in and out of their lives over a 23-year period.

LET'S TALK

A young sailor is shot and his 'corpse' mysteriously vanishes, for the moment

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: There was a movie I saw many years ago. I do not even remember if it was in color or black and white. The title was "Moment to Moment," a sad love story about a young sailor who fell in love with a married Navy officer's wife. What can you tell me about this movie? Who played the young sailor? Is it available on home video? —Sandy Kennedy, Nesquehoning, Pa.

A: "Moment to Moment" was produced in 1966 and is in color. It starred Jean Seberg, Honor Blackman and Sean Garrison. Garrison played the role of the young sailor who fell in love with Jean Seberg's character. When his love interest's husband becomes suspicious, Seberg's character shoots the young sailor and attempts to dispose of the body. After she makes an anonymous call to the police, the "corpse" is nowhere to be found. Unbeknownst to her, the wound is not fatal and the young sailor is struck with amnesia. The film is not available on home video.

Q: Is Alan Rickman who played the villain in the first "Die Hard" movie the same person who plays the villain in "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves?" -Rebecca Brandonreich, London, Mont.

A: Yes, Rickman did indeed play the sinister Sheriff of Nottingham.

Q: My husband and I disagree on the name of the actress who played Dr. Quinn's mother on the two-hour episode of "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" that aired recently. I need to know if she is the same woman who played Mrs. Roper on "Three's Company." –Judy Toler, New Bern, N.C.

A: Georganna Johnson played the role. You may be somewhat confused here, because earlier in the scries, Jane Wyman also played the part of Dr. Quinn's mother. However, neither actress should be confused with Audra Lindley, who played Mrs. Roper.

Q: "The Adventures of Brisco-County, Jr." is a great show and I hope it stays on the air. I like all of the characters on the show, but my favorite is the villain John Bly. Do you have any information on the actor who plays him. What else has he been in? -Linda, Vancouver,

Billy Drago

A: Actor Billy Drago plays the devious Bly. Drago is a native of Hugoton, Texas. He has starred in such feature films as "Pale Rider," "Vamp," "Delta Force II" and "The Untouchables,"

His television credits include gueststarring roles on the series "Moonlighting," "Hunter," "Hill Street Blues," "Trapper John, M.D." and "The Fall Guy."

Drago is married and lives in Los

Q: Did the actress who played Dr. Pulaski on "Star Trek: The Next Generation" ever appear on the original series? If so, which episode was it.—Bob Bewley, Roswell, N.M.

A: Diana Muldaur, who played Dr. Pulaski on only the second season of "Next Generation" did indeed appear on the original "Star Trek" series. In fact she was in two episodes, "Return to Tomorrow" and "Is There in Truth No Beauty?"

Q: A movie about the life of the man who dropped the bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, titled "Above and Away," was recently on television. Who stars in this movie and is it available on video tape?—Milton Love, Arab, Ala.

A: The movie you are referring to is actually entitled "Above and Beyond."
It was made in 1952 and starred Robert Taylor as Col. Paul Tibbets, the American pilot who flew the plane that dropped the first atomic bomb. The movie is not available on video.

Interracial romance meets with anger, suspicion in Stone-produced 'Zebrahead'

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

In one way, racism is almost obscene in its utter, wrongheaded simplicity; it is unreasoned, anti-intellectual, morally indefensible and completely unproductive in any positive way.

But the effects of bigotry are anything but simple, affecting many more people than just the objects of a specific prejudice. Friendships, professional alliances, artistic unions, political coalitions and even romantic couplings can be destroyed by the effects of racism; it diminishes everyone.

This is the message of "Zebrahead," a memorable, effective 1992 drama written and directed by Anthony Drazan. Despite the box-office clout of executive producer Oliver Stone (whose name was featured prominently in the ads), Drazan's well-executed tale barely caused a ripple in its theatrical release. Here's hoping the film finds, on home video, the audience it deserves.

Michael Rapaport (Christian Slater's would-be actor friend in this summer's "True Romance") stars as a white,

Jewish senior in a predominantly black Detroit high school. For many, his race is immaterial; he has pals in each of his classes, and his best friend (De-Shonn Castle) is a popular athlete. And the transplanted teen (he moved from New York after the death of his mother) has adapted well to his environment; his speech and mannerisms are identical to those of his African-American counterparts. He's even developed a sort of cottage industry, mixing up his own hip-hop tapes and selling them out of his locker. In short, he has learned to fit in, over the objections of his more radicalized, race-conscious

But things change when he starts dating a pretty new transfer student, played by N'bushe Wright. Their interracial romance is met with anger and suspicion. A line has clearly been crossed and the young lovers are unprepared for the consequences.

The performances are fine, and Drazan's insightful script and brisk direction are right on target.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

Never be hungry, flabby again with Food Network, Cable Health Club

For those wondering what the coming 500-channel cable universe will hold, here's one more answer; the Cable Health Club. Affiliated with The Family Channel, CHC signed on earlier this month with a 24-hour wheel of exercise and healthy lifestyle programs, plus related infomercials. Jake Steinfeld, fitness trainer to the stars and the star himself of "Big Brother Jake," is a principle partner in CHC, which made it easy for him to get the twin jobs of network anchor and head of programming. Steinfeld's own "Body by Jake" exercise show is a cornerstone of the network, which is available via satellite, on a growing number of cable lineups and each morning on The Family Channel.

All that exercise can sharpen the appetite, so now there's The Television Food Network, too. It's a 24-hour feast of how-to cooking shows, food news and shopping hints, plus a nightly call-in show anchored by a nutritionist, and something called "Robin Leach: Talking Food."

"Robin Leach: Talking Food."
Y'all drawl: A decade ago Timothy Dalton played Jane Eyre's Mr. Rochester for the BBC; now the once and future James Bond is signed to play Southern scallywag Rhett Butler in CBS' production of "Scarlett," its eight-hour sequel to "Gone With the Wind." Adding Dalton to the cast, which includes Ann-Margret, John Gielgud, Julie Harris, Paul Winfield, Stephen Collins, Esther Rolle and

Fitness titan Jake Steinfeld

star Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, seems to have gone to the network's head. Its press announcement describes the miniseries as "the epic drama based on (Scarlett author) Alexandra Ripley's Gone With the Wind." Doesn't anybody remember Margaret Mitchell?

Soap opera widowers can do their Valentine's Day shopping in January (and save the embarrassment of faking amnesia when they come up empty-handed): ABC has announced the immanent release of "One Life to Live: The Best of Love," a collection of 10 songs heard on the daytime drama. Appropriately, selections include "Soul and Inspiration," performed by Bill Medley and Darlene Love.

HIGHLIGHTS

The Sesame Street Gang goes international for "Sesame Street Stays Up Late! A Monster New Year's Eve Party," airing Wednesday, Dec. 29, on PBS (check local listings).

The hourlong special features segments filmed in Japan, Norway, Portugal, Israel, Mexico and Germany with original songs and music that highlight New Year's Eve traditions in each country.

Children and Muppets learn that within the world's rich diversities, there are also similarities.
