Juvenile home manager
 Albert Cervantez, project director for the new Deaf Smith County Juvenile Detention Center, works on some paperwork in the common room of the new facility, located a block away from the Sheriff's Department. The juvenile home opened on Jan. 3 as a holding facility for juvenile boys either awaiting adjudication for criminal offenses or who have been through the court system and been ordered confined for between three months and one year. Residents are screened before being assigned here to eliminate possible violent youths or those needing more secure facilities in Randall or Moore counties.

Detention center lets some offenders serve time here

By GARRY WESNER
 Managing Editor
 It's 5:55 a.m. Suddenly the young men are roused out of bed and given five minutes to make their beds and wash up for the day. After that it's time for morning exercises and 30 minutes of watching world news. Finally, the 30-minute breakfast session starts at 7 a.m., followed by a time of writing in journals at 7:45 a.m. School starts at 8:30 a.m. and continues with periodic bathroom breaks and lunch until 3:45 p.m. During the school day is also a mandatory 30-minute quiet time. This is not the army, nor is it a private military academy. This is the morning schedule of the young men who are residents of the new Deaf Smith County Juvenile Detention Center, which opened its doors this month to as many as 10 teenage boys who are in trouble with the law. An open house will be held at the center from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Jan. 26. The public is invited to stop by the center, located next to KPAN Radio on East Fifth Street, during those hours to tour the facility and see where the residents live and what they wear. Residents will be removed to a different location before the open house. Before this center opened, every juvenile charged or convicted of a crime who was not on probation or released to a parent's care was taken to Moore County or Randall County and locked up in their juvenile facilities. Lovebug strikes here, but marriages don't always last

By GEORGIA TYLER
 Staff Writer
 Judging by the number of marriage licenses issued in Deaf Smith County last year, the month for brides is August, not June, as tradition has it. But, overall for 1993, the lovebug couldn't keep up with the divorce virus. Records kept by the Deaf Smith County clerk's office and the district clerk's office reveal the good and the bad in the marital bliss, or discord, department. During 1993, the county clerk's office issued 171 marriage licenses that were returned after the couple married. Another eight licenses were issued but have not been returned. Four unreturned so far may show up in the mail any day. They were taken in December and the licenses could still be turned in, within the 30-day period allowed. The other four apparently represent couples who got cold feet and didn't follow through on the license purchase. The cost of getting married is not to be sneezed at -- the happy couple must shell out $31 for the privilege of saying their "I do's" before a clergyman or judge. But, the price of undoing the knot is more, by far. Typically, filing the required papers for district court action costs an average of $165. And, that's just to get started. If the divorce is contested and child custody is involved, the cost may escalate. Besides the fees charged for filing official papers, the litigants will have attorney fees which may depend on the circumstances of the case. Once the papers are filed, a 60-day waiting period begins. The speed with which the divorce action moves to court depends on how complicated the case may be and the zeal of the pair seeking the divorce.

Last year, 99 divorce actions were filed in 222nd District Court. The court granted 76 divorce decrees and dismissed 22. The divorces granted last year are not necessarily those that were filed in 1993. Eighteen cases that had been allowed to lay dormant for a year, or so, by the litigants were dismissed in July. Because of the waiting period and the time required for details of a divorce settlement to be determined, several months may elapse before the final decree is issued. Every summer, 222nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley goes through the docket of pending cases of all kinds in his court. Lawyers are notified that unless some action is taken, the cases will be dismissed. Last July, Judge Gulley's procedure had the result of clearing a backlog of divorces -- besides the 18 dismissed, 21 were granted, the highest number in any month during the year. Back to the matter of June brides, now. Five months in 1993 produced more applications for marriage licenses than the 14 in June. August was first, with 20. October, 19; March and December, 18 each, and September, 17, were leading license months. February and July recorded the same number each, as June, 14. In April, 11 licenses were issued and January and May each had nine. (See LOVEBUG, Page 2A)

16.7 percent drop noted 'Baby bust' hits here; youth population dips

Residents of Deaf Smith County may not have noticed, but there were fewer children around this past Christmas season. And the trend is likely to continue, according to information provided by the Census Bureau. Like the rest of the United States, the demographic makeup of the county is experiencing the results of the "Baby Bust" period that followed the "Baby Boom" period from 1946 through 1964. The final report from the 1990 census showed that persons aged 17 or less in Deaf Smith County had declined from 8,118 in 1980 to 6,766 in 1990 -- or by 16.7 percent. Viewed over a 20-year period, the number of children in the county decreased by 17.9 percent. The proportion of children as part of the county's total population also declined. The 17-and-under group represented 38.4 percent of the county population in 1980, and that number fell to 35.3 percent by 1990. Nationally, the number of persons 17 and under fell only slightly -- by less than one percent. But the proportion of children in the total population declined significantly, from 28.2 percent in 1980 to 25.6 percent by 1990. Over a 20-year period, the proportion of children decreased from a third of the national population to slightly more than a fourth. An even more dramatic demographic change in Deaf Smith County was seen in younger children. Those aged 5 or less numbered 2,372 in 1980 and declined to 1,831 by 1990. This age group had fallen by 22.8 percent over the period. Nationally, the number of younger children increased from 16.3 million to 18.4 million the past 10 years. This was a 12.6 percent increase. This was largely due to a higher fertility rate among women in their 30s, according to a study by the Census Bureau. Most of these women are now ending their childbearing years and had fewer children than their mothers. This group makes up most of the elementary and secondary school population in the county. Viewed over a 20-year period, this age group decreased from 6,039 in 1970 to 4,935 in 1990, or by 18.3 percent. The national percentage was 10.9. Another breakdown is for the number of children between 5 and 17. In Deaf Smith County, this group declined from 5,746 in 1980 to 4,935 by 1990 -- or by 14.1 percent. The national percentage was only 4.7.

AGES	0-17	6-16	0-5

Deadline in February to register for primary

Prospective voters in March political primaries have three weeks to register, if they do not have current registration certificates. David Ruland, Deaf Smith County clerk and voter registrar, said applications for registration must be turned in to his office by 5 p.m. on Feb. 4, or postmarked no later than Feb. 7, for eligibility in the March 8 elections. Voter certificates were mailed early in December. Persons who had moved did not receive their cards because the postoffice must not forward the documents. Ruland reported 8,576 persons currently are registered. Since the first of this month, more than 170 registration applications have been received. Ruland also is accepting applications for early ballots by mail from college students, military personnel and other residents who will be out of the county on election day. Persons age 65 and older may request mail ballots, also, Ruland said. They need not be absent from the county on election day to be eligible for mail ballots, Ruland said. Early voting by personal appearance for the primary elections will begin on Feb. 16 and continue through March 4.

New fire officers
 The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department last week elected a new fire chief, assistant chief, secretary and treasurer. David Spain, second from right, was tabbed as fire chief. Paul Hamilton, right, is the new assistant chief. Spain served as assistant chief during 1993 and was named firefighter of the Year last year by the department. New department treasurer is Dean Turney, left, while Carlos Ruiz, second from left, is secretary.

Local Roundup

Projector to be unveiled

The Friends of the Deaf Smith County Library will hold a public unveiling of the library's new video projector, which was recently purchased for the library through public donations. The event will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the Heritage Room. There will be official comments, door prizes, refreshments and a special showing of "Secret of Treasure Mountain," from a video series that the library will feature on future Family Nights. The projector also will be made available to the public. The event is open to the public.

Hospital board meets Tuesday

Directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District will meet in a regular monthly session Tuesday, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the board room at Hereford Regional Medical Center. The board will discuss a bylaws amendment to provide for staggered terms of directors. Other agenda items include the usual reports on operations, financial statement, medical staff, personnel and quality management. Ron Rives, hospital CEO, will discuss proposed renovations at HRMC.

Immunization schedule noted

The Texas Department of Health has announced its January immunization clinic schedule for Hereford. Vaccines against polio, diphtheria, lockjaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps and HIB (hemophilus influenzae type B) will be offered. The Texas Department of Health charges to help with the cost of keeping the clinic open. Charges are based on family income and size and the ability to pay. Regular clinics will be held from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. The clinics will be held on Jan. 20 and 27 in the Health Department offices, 205 W. Fourth St., Suite B.

Bids to be awarded

Bids for a new fairway mower, four pickups, four police cars, water well drilling, construction of a water storage facility and construction of a water pipeline are among items to be considered by the Hereford City Commission at a meeting Monday evening. The commission also will consider a request for assistance on an incinerator project and consider approval of the Parks and Recreation Department concept.

Amarillo College registration here

Amarillo College will hold late registration for Hereford residents from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. Monday in Hereford High School. Also, schedule changes will be offered at the same time. For more information, call Severo Reyna at 364-0606.

DETENTION

separated these young people and their families.

However, with the advent of the new facility, said Juvenile Probation Officer Lou Serrano, young men who are not violent or who committed violent crimes can serve their time here in the home-like atmosphere of the facility.

But don't think this is a day at the country club, Serrano cautioned. The young men -- whether those being held pending a court appearance or those serving three months to a year for a conviction -- are here because they have violated the law.

As a result, their days are strictly regimented, from the 5:55 a.m. wake-up call to the 9:30 p.m. bedtime.

"The whole program is a non-secured juvenile detention facility," he said.

One main difference between the secured facilities in Moore and Randall counties -- which still receive juvenile offenders here who are determined to be unsuitable for enrollment in the center or who have violated center rules -- is that the youth have sleeping rooms more like jail cells in which to sleep, and spend the rest of their days in a common room with other inmates.

Here, residents are issued a bunk when they check in. The front bedroom has four bunks for boys awaiting disposition of their cases, while the back bedroom has six bunks for those serving time.

Potential residents, Serrano said, are carefully screened to make sure they are not likely to do violence to the other residents or to the security personnel working there, or to "upset the program."

On a recent day, there were five youth staying in the home, all awaiting court dates.

Of them, Serrano said, one was charged with theft, one with possession of a stolen vehicle, one with two counts of burglary, two for violation of probation and one for third offense minor in possession of alcohol.

"These are ones out in the community that if they were adults, they would be in jail," he said. Previously, these young people would be released to the custody of a parent and would return to school pending disposition of their cases, at which time they would be taken out of town for incarceration, or would be placed on probation.

The center is only designed to take male offenders, Serrano said, because there are not enough females requiring such services to warrant the work needed to create a co-ed center.

There are strict rules given each resident when he arrives, Serrano said.

"The thing we're holding over their heads is if they hold to the structure we don't have to send them out of town," he said. "They're really more comfortable knowing they're staying in town," where they can stay in contact with parents.

On arrival, all residents are classified as Level 3, meaning they may have a one five-minute phone call per week, plus a Sunday visit with their parents and a bedtime of 9:30 p.m.

As they stay longer, they can be evaluated and moved to Level 2, which expands privileges to include Sunday visits with siblings as well as parents and two five-minute phone calls home each week and a 10 p.m. bedtime.

Finally, residents can attain Level 1, which includes a one-hour, out-of-building visit with family on Sundays, three phone calls, a 10:30 p.m. bedtime and the chance to help more in the kitchen, including such chores as taking the trash out.

All residents must shower daily and change their center-issued T-shirts and sweat pants each day. They must make their beds and are responsible for any damage done to the wooden bunk bed they are issued.

Also, they help set the table for meals and must clean the house daily. On Saturdays, all residents are taken into the community as a group to perform volunteer service such as cleaning trash and working in flower beds.

One rule the staff will not stand for, Serrano said, is disrespect for the staff. He said any boy who curses at a staff member is automatically removed and taken out of town.

Serrano credited Precinct 4 County Commissioner Johnny Latham with helping get the center started.

Although there had been considerable discussion about the center, no action had been taken until Latham presented Serrano with an application for a grant from the Texas Juvenile Probation Commission.

Even though he only had two weeks to complete the work, Serrano submitted the grant and Deaf Smith County was one of 12 agencies statewide to receive money -- in this case $62,000.

Another $50,000 grant from the commission was added to $10,000 local funding to help open the home, which is the former juvenile probation department offices.

Finally, the Hereford Independent School District is hiring a teacher who will be based at the center to work with the students in a self-contained program. Youth taken out of town are enrolled in schools at the facilities

A resting place

One juvenile offender being held in the new Deaf Smith County Juvenile Detention Center rests on his bunk bed at left during a mandatory rest period. The home, which opened this month, has facilities here for six long-term residents, plus another room that holds four teenage boys who are awaiting court dates but who cannot be left in the community.

Ecumenical service set

The public is invited to join as various Christian congregations in Hereford come together for an Ecumenical Celebration on Sunday, Jan. 23.

The service, which will be held in conjunction with the annual "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity," is set for 6 p.m. in San Jose Catholic Church, 735 Brevard.

The Rev. Joe Wood, pastor of First United Methodist Church, will deliver a message titled "One in Heart and Soul," which is taken from Acts 4:23-37. Praise and worship music will be led by the Church of the Nazarene's Children's Choir, directed by Susie Merrick. Special music will be by a San Jose choir.

The "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity" is observed every year around the world to create a better understanding of different faiths in the Body of Christ.

In Hereford it is sponsored by the Hereford Ministerial Alliance.

A nursery will be provided and refreshments will be served after the service.

where they are placed, allowing those districts to claim state funding for the students.

Remodeling of the building from an office to a juvenile detention center cost about $22,000, with some work done by work-release prisoners with the county SPAW program.

All cabinets and drawers in the center -- including the residents' personal lockers -- are locked at all times, and a staffer has the only key. The only interior door is on the bathroom and it has no lock.

There is a glass mirror in the bathroom, but Serrano said residents are told that it will be replaced with stainless steel if it is broken.

There is a color TV with cable as well, but MTV and the movie channels are blocked.

Other than the 30-minute news time in the morning, the only time the TV is on is from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

When a resident checks out, Serrano said, his bed is checked for damage. If it has been scratched, the resident is responsible for sanding the scratch and re-staining before he can leave.

Overall, Serrano said, while the juvenile facility is not a rest stop or recreational facility, it is more comfortable than a secured center.

"They're treated, I think, more like human beings. You lock a dog behind a cage," he said. "We try to take away some of the criminality with the kids," but still let them know they must follow rules or face incarceration.

"We'll be able to deal more with the kids than we have in the past."

LOVEBUG

Slowest month for the year was November when only eight licenses were taken out by prospective wedding couples.

Of the 99 divorce actions filed during '93, 16 were in March. There seems to be no particular rhyme or reason to the divorce cycle, though.

Fourteen were filed in June -- Remember? The same number of marriage licenses were taken out that month -- and 11 were entered on the books in July. January and April each recorded 10. Others were February, two; May and August, five each; September and December, seven each; October, four, and November, eight.

During 1993, 76 divorces were granted.

The Chamber and You

BY MIKE CARR
Executive Vice President

As kick off 1994, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce would like to wish each of you a very successful year.

Throughout the year, our residents are constantly solicited by out-of-town fund-raising groups. Although many of these are legitimate causes, we have many that just don't measure up to the generally accepted standards for reliable charities. Don't be fooled just because the name sounds legitimate. Using the words "American" or "National" doesn't make them okay. Take time to check them out. Ask for a current financial statement. Be informed. All good causes are glad to provide you with information.

The Chamber of Commerce is glad to help you and maintains a listing of major charities with a rating for each. Currently, the March of Dimes is conducting a campaign and they do meet all standards and are doing a legitimate fund raising campaign. Remember, before you give, don't be afraid to find out whom you're supporting.

Mark your calendar for Feb. 17--the date of the next Fun Breakfast, which will help kick off the new year with Hereford Travel Center as our sponsor. Plan now to attend!

A Legislative Forum will be held Feb. 17 at 7 p.m. at Hereford Community Center with all candidates being asked to participate. All local residents are invited to help make this a very successful event by submitting questions to any or all of the candidates. You may bring the questions to the Chamber office, 701 N. Main, or mail them. The forum will be sponsored jointly by the Hereford Educators Association and the Chamber Legislative Affairs Committee.

Thanks to everyone who supported our December Chamber Raffle.

Obituaries

EUNIE WEST Jan. 14, 1993

Eunie Verna West, 90, longtime Deaf Smith County resident, died Friday afternoon at Hereford Care Center. Her home was at 307 Sunset.

Funeral services are set Monday at 2 p.m. in First United Methodist Church with the Rev. Joe Wood, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Mrs. West and her husband, the late Lewis West, moved to Hereford in 1948 from Post. They had married on Jan. 14, 1922 in Gillespie County. Mr. West died in 1977.

Survivors include one son, Bill West of Rt. 4, Hereford; two daughters, Elsie Lloyd of Rt. 4, Hereford, and Odie Rohde of Las Vegas, Nev.; 13 grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. A daughter, Peggy, died in 1942, and a son, Sammy, died in 1971.

JOSIE H. FELTZ Jan. 14, 1994

Josie H. Feltz, 100, of Dumas, grandmother of Georgia Tyler of Hereford, died Friday in Dumas.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the First Presbyterian Church of Dumas with the pastor, the Rev. Vincent Kolb, officiating. Burial will be in Dumas Cemetery, by Morrison Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Feltz was born in Somervell County and moved with her family to Moore County in 1906. She married John H. Feltz, a cattleman and farmer, in 1909. They moved from the family farm to Dumas in the early 1930s. He died in 1965. Mrs. Feltz was a charter member of the First Presbyterian Church of Dumas and was active in the Dumas chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Survivors are two sons, a brother, five granddaughters, 12 great-grandchildren and nine great-great-grandchildren. A daughter, Florence Oliver, preceded her in death.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to the scholarship fund of First Presbyterian Church of Dumas.

The first electric automobile--a tricycle driven by storage batteries--was designed by Philip W. Pratt in 1888.

AUSTIN (AP) - The Lotto Texas Pick 3 winning numbers drawn Friday by the Texas Lottery, in this order:

7-1-8
(seven, one, eight)

Congratulations to all the winners. The grand prize, a trip to Orlando, FL., was won by Sharon Pennington. Winner of the dinner for four at six local restaurants was Mary West. And winners of the $100 in Hereford Bucks were Iris Ray, Cheryl Herrin, Irene Blevins, and Edward Schilling.

The High Plains Vegetable Conference will be held Tuesday, Jan. 18, at Hereford Community Center. The Chamber will be assisting with this event, which will bring more than 200 people to Hereford. Let's all make these folks welcome while they are in town!

Think about it: Education. More Americans (78%) are high school graduates today than at any other time in history. And, 23 percent of U.S. citizens have degrees beyond high school. According to the Census Bureau, average monthly earnings without a high school diploma is $452; with a high school diploma, $921; with a college degree, $1,829; with a doctoral degree, $3,637.

Have a great week, and join your Chamber of Commerce in helping make Hereford hustle!

Clown, elephant manager mourned as victims in circus train derailment

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer
LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) - Ceslee Conkling traded a computer terminal for cotton-candy hair and a grease-paint smile. Ted Svertesky was a kid off the street who loved elephants and ran away to join the circus.

Both performers who followed their dreams to "The Greatest Show on Earth" were killed in the derailment of a Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus train Thursday that injured 14 others.

"Life slapped us in the face," ringmaster Jim Ragona said Friday. "We're trying to get it together. We're talking to each other and dealing with our feelings."

Meanwhile, the show will not go on, at least not yet. Ringling officials canceled three performances in Orlando to give crews time to check the safety of equipment aboard the 53-car train. Sixteen passenger cars jumped the tracks on a foggy morning as the circus moved from St. Petersburg to Orlando.

Federal investigators at the scene Friday said they were looking into reports that a wheel assembly flew off a train car and may have contributed to the wreck.

"Shock would be the best word to describe the circus people right now," said the Rev. Jerry Hogan, a priest who counseled the performers Friday. "They are dealing with the aspect of grief - two people killed. But many of these people have been displaced from their homes. ... We're a city without a zip code."

Conkling, 28, of Azle, Texas, joined the traveling city two years ago when she gave up her job as a municipal data entry clerk and left for the Ringling Clown College in Venice.

Known for her bright white makeup, her piled-high pink hair and a wide smile, the former five-sport high school athlete was an expert at making the daring falls that brought the biggest laughs.

This year, she moved her act up a notch, performing falls while stilt-walking.

"We always worried that she would hurt herself in one of her falls," Bonnie Conkling said after learning of her daughter's death. "She told us many times, 'If I go, don't worry. I'll go happy.'"

"Just making people laugh was what was important to her. She wanted people to see her smile."

"We don't worry about her now," her mother said. "She'd tell everybody to keep smiling and follow your dream."

At 13, Svertesky ran away to join the circus. His parents dragged him home the next day. But it didn't dissuade him. Four years later, he went back to the circus and spent 21 years training elephants. "It's kind of a way of life more than a job," the 39-year-old trainer from Bridgeport, Conn., said in an interview last week before taking his first road trip with the circus.

"It was his dream," said aunt Betty Svertesky. "When he was a boy he built a model of a circus. It was all he talked about."

Svertesky had managed the circus' elephant farm in Williston since its inception in 1985 and oversaw the breeding of Romeo and Juliette, two yearling Asian elephants who are the headliners of the circus' 124th edition.

"I went from the bottom of the circus barrel to the apex of the industry," Svertesky said recently.

HJH geography bee winner

Krista Warren, a seventh grader at Hereford Junior High, recently won first place in the school's annual Geography Bee. With her win in the second annual bee, she qualified to test for a spot in the state competition, which will be held April 8 on the Texas Christian University campus in Fort Worth. Only the top 100 scores on the written test will be allowed into the state competition. This is the sixth year that the National Geographic Bee has been held in the U.S. Other junior high finalists were Jenny Artho, Robin Bell, Heath Henderson and Josh Rowe.

100 scientists should stay on at collider, panel says

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - At least 100 scientists and engineers should be kept on at the super collider laboratory to salvage what remains of the massive science project killed last year by Congress, the National Research Council recommended Friday.

The council, which is the research arm of the congressionally chartered National Academy of Sciences, was asked to evaluate alternate uses for the collider facilities near Waxahachie, Texas.

A committee of council members and staffers toured the sprawling site earlier this month and offered recommendations that were presented Friday to the Texas collider advisory committee created last month by Gov. Ann Richards.

The Texas panel, which is seeking ways to preserve the $2 billion federal and state investment made in the aborted project, met Friday to hear presentations from the NRC and others.

Congress has ordered the Energy Department, which oversees the super collider program, to prepare a report by July outlining potential future uses of the high-energy physics project.

In a letter released Friday by the council, NRC Vice Chairman Robert M. White wrote the chairman of the Texas committee that loss of the lab's highly trained personnel is the "most rapidly wasting asset."

"A failure to maintain a minimum cadre of knowledgeable people will severely limit other actions to exploit the remaining assets of the super collider," White wrote Jess Hay, who is chairing the nine-member Texas panel.

Staffing at the laboratory is dwindling rapidly. The lab's original workforce of 2,100 has been pared to 888 - with further cuts imminent. The fourth wave of pink slips went out Friday.

Q. & A. ABOUT A BREACH IN CONTRACT

Q. We worked out a notarized contract and sold our home to a relative (without using a real estate agent or lawyer) with the understanding they would arrange for financing. Several years have passed and we would like to transfer ownership, but they haven't arranged for financing yet. Now our second mortgage is due and unless they get the financing soon, we cannot pay our second. Is there any way we can get out of this mess?

A. Unfortunately, this is not an uncommon problem when a person does not seek the advice of a professional real estate agent. An agent would have drawn up a legal contract to protect you and the buyer. My suggestion is to contact a real estate lawyer immediately. The attorney can best advise you about the options available. The longer you wait the closer you are to losing your house to foreclosure when the second mortgage comes due.

We are a team of professionals with years of experience and the resources to help you successfully complete your real estate transactions, without all the hassles. Stop in and see us at 803 W. 1st Hwy 60, or call 364-4561.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says some tasks have to be put off dozens of times before they'll slip your mind completely.

"Your have the right to take away my allowance," the little boy complained to his father, "but history has proven that economic sanctions usually don't work!"

Board members of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage visited Abilene Wednesday and were to be in Fort Worth this weekend to check out proposals for housing the museum.

The CHOF has had more than a dozen contacts about the possibility of moving the museum to sites which already draw tourists. Amarillo wants to keep the museum in the Panhandle, and a guest editorial from the chamber president can be found on the Viewpoint page. The Amarillo chamber also placed a page advertisement in today's Brand.

Several of Hereford's biggest public events of the young year are just around the corner. The annual Sugar Beet Banquet is scheduled next Saturday night at the Bull Barn. The annual Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show is on tap the final week of January.

The date of the next Chamber Fun Breakfast has also been announced. It will be held Feb. 17 with Hereford Travel Center as the sponsor.

And, the annual Chamber Banquet has been scheduled for March 3 with John Sharp, Texas Comptroller, as the guest speaker.

Discipline is like cabbage--we not like it, but we know it surely must be good for someone else.

Discipline reminds us of new year's resolutions. Gene Dow, editor down at Seminole, offers 10 suggestions you might consider to help make 1994 a good year:

I. Thou shalt not worry, for worry is the most unproductive of all human activities.

II. Thou shalt not be fearful, for most of the things we fear never come to pass.

III. Thou shalt not cross bridges before you get to them, for no one yet has succeeded in accomplishing this.

IV. Thou shalt face each problem as it comes. You can handle only one at a time anyway.

V. Thou shalt not take problems to bed with you, for they make very poor bedfellows.

VI. Thou shalt not borrow other people's problems. They can take better care of them than you can.

VII. Thou shalt not try to relive yesterday for good or ill--it is gone. Concentrate on what is happening in your life today.

VIII. Thou shalt count thy blessings, never overlooking the small ones, for a lot of small blessings add up to a big one.

IX. Thou shalt be a good listener, for only when you listen do you hear ideas different from your own. It's hard to learn something new when you're talking.

X. Thou shalt not become bogged down by frustrations, for 90 percent is rooted in self pity and it will only interfere with positive actions.

Amarillo C of C makes pitch for Hall of Fame

BY TOM PATTERSON
President, Amarillo C of C

There is no way to adequately describe the monumental decision facing the board of directors for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, Inc. Just imagine the mix of emotion that must be confronting the board as it labors over a decision to leave the community and the people who have nurtured and supported the Center since its inception.

Nevertheless, the board has an overriding responsibility to the organization and to its honorees to plan for its continued operation and growth. The ultimate decision must afford the best possible site and future well being for the Hall of Fame even if it seems that longtime friends and community supporters are being abandoned. We certainly don't envy the board members who must make this difficult decision.

We do, however, recognize that the Cowgirl Hall of Fame has come to a crossroad and choices must be made. Amarillo would like to publicly state our desire to support the efforts of the board of directors. We hope not only to be a friend as this difficult path is traveled, but to become the destination at the end of the journey.

Like many other communities interested in the future of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame, Amarillo has some advantages and disadvantages. We think, though, that we have some formidable strengths to offer.

The future of the Center rests entirely upon tourism. Local visitation is not enough to support this, or any other, community museum. Tourists and travelers from across the state and the entire nation bring the fresh blood that will keep the heartbeat of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame strong.

Location is probably the most important component of attracting those visitors. It is vital that a new home for the Center be situated on or near a major thoroughfare. It must be visible and it should be located in proximity to other similar attractions.

Amarillo fills all those requirements. Major interstate thoroughfares intersect in the city. Potter County's ability to attract visitors is ranked seventh in the state.

The Cowgirl Hall of Fame would fit well into the Amarillo tourism community. We already are working hard to promote the widespread appeal of the old West. The Cowgirl Hall of Fame would be a welcome and appropriate addition to the existing attractions that offer visitors a part of that Western experience.

It would complement the entertainment and educational offerings of the musical drama "TEXAS," the Panhandle Plains Museum, Cowboy Morning, Creekwood Ranch and the American Quarter Horse Museum and Heritage Center.

It's also worth noting that many of those attractions have established themselves as leaders in the state and national race to attract visitors. The Cowgirl Hall of Fame would benefit from the travelers already being drawn to those attractions. It would stand on equal footing with like-minded partners in the local tourism community. The camaraderie and cross-promotion among the area's attractions would also prove beneficial.

Amarillo has reached out with a competitive proposal. The community has expressed its desire to have the Cowgirl Hall of Fame join us. We have committed ourselves to supporting the growth and vitality of this important Panhandle resource.

Again, we certainly don't envy the decision that must be made. Nevertheless, the ultimate success of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center hinges 100 percent on its board of directors.

There is no magic that will come from any community, any location or any site selected by the board as the future home of this important display of Western heritage. The board must make the hope of success a reality.

Amarillo wants to work with the board of directors and to be an integral part of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame's future success.

Out of the Blue

By Carry Wesner

Sit down my friends and I'll tell you a tale, one that will warm your heart and chill your spine.

Once upon a time there was a kind and gentle land known as Vass. Vass was situated between the fair Eastern and Western Seas.

The people of Vass -- known as Vassals -- were a wonderful people.

They cared for their neighbors, they paid their taxes, they went to church every week and they all had smiles on their faces.

The Head Vass was popularly elected by the people and served his people with wisdom and discretion.

He made laws that provided for the general welfare, that created a national defense for the security of the nation and allowed his Vassals to live their lives in peace and harmony.

Time went on and Head Vass after Head Vass took the scepter of office and pledged before God to do his best for the Vassals.

Oh, of course there were Vassals who tried to take advantage of their fellow man, who killed, raped, robbed and cheated, but the good laws made by the Head Vass provided incarceration, correction -- even execution for those infringing on the rights of their fellow citizens.

All in all, life in the kingdom of Vass was good and its people happily went to the polls every 17-1/2 years to elect a Head Vass and the Congery of Vass, which met in the Vasuary to present legislation to the Head Vass for laws of the land.

Outside the land of Vass, things were not so good.

There was the land of Vand and its people, the Vandals -- a surly, warrior race bent on world domination and conquest that were always looking for ways to defeat the Vassals in battle.

While the Vandals always remained a formidable foe for the Vassals, the status quo remained for years.

But alas, this sunny life in Vass began to tarnish when its people became lazy.

They gave the Head Vass and his Congery the authority to run their lives, to dictate their everyday existence.

Before long, a new generation of Vassals grew up who did not care about the rights of their fellow man.

They got themselves elected to Congery and passed laws allowing all manner of crimes to be committed against innocent Vassals.

They took away the rights of Vassals who held beliefs different from theirs.

One day, the contrary Vassals succeeded in having their new leader -- Vass A. Late -- elected Head Vass.

Vass A. Late appointed great numbers of his friends to high government posts and let them have tremendous power over the rights of other Vassals.

There was Joycelyn Vassal, who advocated the use of harmful chemicals, even though she was the nation's No. 1 healer.

There was Les Vassal, who wanted to gut the Vass defense system and turn its great military bases into homeless shelters and mental institutions.

Lloyd Vass wanted to eliminate the Vass economic system and make it into one with the economy of Vand.

And there was Roberta Vass, an activist for her unnatural lifestyle, who was given authority over housing for the entire nation of Vass, to shape as she would please.

Vass A. Late took great trips abroad and allied himself with his childhood friend, Vand A. Lize, with whom he had planned and carried out numerous anti-Vass demonstrations in his youth.

For the people of Vass, life sank to an all-time low.

Crime was rampant and those children whose lives were not taken before birth were subject to the control of the government.

In all, Vass was no longer a kind or gentle nation and its people lived in fear for their lives.

Millions of Vassals took their own lives in despair, believing that to be the only way out. Still others embraced the lifestyle of the Vandals and moved to Vand.

But for the majority, all they could do was sit and wait for the now-inevitable death of Vass.

Is this, my friends, a fairy tale, a proverb, or a portent of things to come? I leave it to you to decide.

An AP news analysis

Clinton had poor 'damage control' on business deal

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Without a misstep missed, President Clinton, his 1992 campaign and his White House let a long-gone Ozark land investment become a cover-up controversy.

So by the time he agreed to an independent investigation, he really had no alternative.

A bad business deal had become bad political business, although as the president observed, the matter already has been investigated and not a soul has said Clinton or his wife did anything wrong.

They'd held out for nearly two years against the release of personal financial records dealing with their investment in Whitewater Development Corp. in 1978. There was ample opportunity to open the books, to close the case and cut the political losses.

Now the controversy is becoming too much of a distraction, George Stephanopoulos said when he announced the White House reversal on the special counsel. He blamed the distraction on Republican "innuendo, political posturing and irresponsible accusations."

But Clinton's side gave them the opening.

Clinton once said he and his wife were entitled to a zone of privacy. They had tried to make this episode as part of it. But the zone narrows at the top, and all but vanishes for presidents.

He said his only wrong move was to make a bad business judgment and lose money on it. The Clintons invested in an Arkansas land development that failed, as partners with a friend who then ran a Little Rock savings and loan that also failed, at a bailout cost of more than $47 million.

Justice Department investigators are trying to determine if savings and loan money was diverted improperly into the land company, or used to help Clinton pay off gubernatorial campaign debts. At the time, Hillary Rodham Clinton's law firm represented the savings and loan.

According to the Clintons, they invested $68,900 in the land development and lost it all.

"Maybe they lost it," said Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican leader. "But if they did, they didn't take it off their taxes."

That's about the extent of the evidence; that and the fact that the Clintons first refused, then grudgingly agreed to turn over their documents on the deal.

But suspicions are enough to cause problems for a president, politically at least, especially on a matter that has been questioned for so long without clear answers. By now, said Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., reality matters less than the perception that the White House has been withholding information.

The perception gave Republicans a target and kept them on the case, until Democrats began seconding their demands for an outside investigator, and the White House finally consented. Dole said that wasn't enough, and proposed the creation of a special congressional committee to investigate.

That's all without accusing Clinton of wrongdoing. "As far as I know, they haven't done anything wrong," Dole said Wednesday. "That's why you have investigations, I assume."

Clinton's presidential campaign dealt with Whitewater questions in March of 1992, after The New York Times reported on the land deal and the savings and loan failure. Then as now he said there was nothing wrong. The campaign paid an accounting firm to review the investment and determine the Clinton loss.

It did so, although with a disclaimer saying that the record might not be complete. Indeed, as David Gergen, the White House counselor, defended the Clintons saying they had tried to do the right thing, he acknowledged that it remains a murky episode. "The documents are incomplete and ... I don't think anybody knows fully what happened," he said in a Jan. 7 NBC-TV interview.

While the Justice Department was investigating the savings and loan losses, the case was dormant as a political issue well into the Clinton presidency.

It revived with the disclosure that documents involving the Clintons and Whitewater were among the papers of Vincent Foster, the deputy White House counsel who killed himself July 20, and were taken from his office to the Clinton's personal attorney two days later.

With that, the problem worsened. The White House acknowledged on Dec. 20 that the documents had been transferred; three days later, the Clintons relented and agreed to turn them over to the Justice Department. After one aide said it had been done, another said that the papers were being cataloged and that would take a couple of weeks.

Then it turned out that the department had issued a subpoena for the documents at the request of the Clintons' lawyer; that was to keep them secret. The step was routine, but disclosing it 10 days later made it seem otherwise.

Just more ammunition for critics like Dole. "Damage control should have been releasing the papers in the first place," he said.

Student rebels, turns failure into success

BY PAUL HARVEY

Peter Ruplinger was a wild, unbridled youth in Sandy, Utah--the typical rebellious teenager of that time--until he was 17.

At age 17, he shocked his parents with a most bizarre, most audacious act of vandalism. That single wanton act of destruction sobered young Peter as nothing ever had.

Peter had been a dismal student, so dismal that a high school counselor had recommended he drop out of school.

But almost overnight...

And before you attribute this to a "religious experience," let me explain that there is no record of any spiritual transformation, no sudden burst of contrition over what he had done which reversed his downhill life.

Classmates appeared in awe of what he had done, said they "could never do anything like that."

And their attention was further encouragement.

Peter did not drop out of school. He went on to community college--from there to a bachelor's degree and a master's degree from San Diego State.

The onetime near high-school flunkout became a scholar, studied four languages and became technically skilled. The rebuilt his neglected physique with bike riding, regular workouts and a healthful diet.

He began to make frequent trips to Mexico, then to South America, then Europe.

The most frequent question Peter encounters from friends who remember him when is, "How in the world do you find time for all you do?"

Though they know the answer, Peter, indeed, has become skilled as a locksmith--even knows how to crack open safes. He's into wood carving and makes his own fireworks. He paints in water color.

At birthday parties for his growing family, he entertains, making such days fun and exciting for everyone. And somehow Peter Ruplinger has had time to learn scuba diving and sky diving. His insatiable curiosity has taken him into unexplored caves. He taught his son rock climbing.

Indeed, his children are fascinated as he is with exploring new frontiers. Each, a good student, is growing into happy, successful adulthood.

It is significant that you know that since the momentous "happening" of some 30 years ago, Peter and the wife he adores and the children they begat share willingly--and eagerly--in the decision he made in 1963.

The day Peter Ruplinger decided to make the time to live his own life--and left the couch behind.

That was the day at the age of 17 that he trashed his TV set, never to own one again.

Laying WTRT cable

West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative of Hereford has a project underway to lay 40 miles of fiber-optic cable in Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties. Crew members from Brooks Construction Co., of Shawnee, OK., are shown burying some of the cable. When completed, all of WTRT's central offices in the three counties will be linked by the fiber-optic cable.

State board votes to build more prisons

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - State officials Friday passed an emergency resolution to spend $168.7 million to construct prisons within the next six months to house an additional 15,000 inmates.

But a county representative said that wasn't enough to relieve dangerous conditions caused by the backlog of nearly 30,000 convicted felons in county jails.

The action by the Texas Board of Criminal Justice "is similar to mailing a garden hose to someone who has reported a house fire," said James Allison, general counsel of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas.

He said the backlog of state inmates in county jails has increased 60 percent in the last year and resulted in 28 jails exceeding 150 percent of their capacity.

Five violent disturbances have occurred in county jails in the past several months, Allison said. "The critical need for emergency relief continues," he said.

Allison asked the Criminal Justice Board to approve a plan that would allow counties to finance and construct facilities for 16,000 more prison beds, in addition to the 15,000 approved by the board.

Under the county proposal, the lockups would be funded by certificates of obligation that would be repaid from state bonds.

Several board members said they did not like the proposal.

"I'm real skittish about the situation of having counties throw up speculative jails," said Allan Polunsky of San Antonio. "The left hand is not going to know what the right hand is doing."

Board Chairman Carol Vance of Houston said the state was trying to help the counties. About 28,000 prison beds will be added to the system this year. By September 1995, the current 68,000-bed system will increase to 143,000 beds, he said.

"This will give Texas the largest prison system in the world," Vance told Allison.

The additional beds would include 10,800 added to existing units; four 500-bed "boot camps;" 500 beds from the conversion of Chase Field into a "boot camp;" and a 200-bed expansion of the Lubbock Trusty Camp.

WT Rural Telephone to link offices in 3 counties with fiber-optic cable

When an ongoing effort to install some 40 miles of underground cable is wrapped up soon, West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative, Inc., of Hereford will have completed an ambitious project linking its central offices in Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties via fiber-optic cable.

The latest round of fiber installation projects for the cooperative began with a route from the Frio central office to the Summerfield central office in Castro County.

Laying of cable along routes from the Oklahoma Lane central office to the Tharp central office, and the Parmer central office to the Tharp central office in Parmer County has been underway.

Brooks Construction Co., Shawnee, OK., a firm which specializes in cable installation for utilities and which has performed extensive work for WTRT, is the contractor burying the 40 miles of eight-fiber cable to a depth of five feet.

Depending on weather conditions, the cable-burying project could be completed this month. One factor will be the amount of time required to pass through the city of Bovina with the cable route. That portion of the project is expected to be slow work.

WTRT began installing fiber-optic cable in 1987-88 at a time when several of its central offices were being converted to digital switching. Central offices at Westway, Milo Center and Dawn in Deaf Smith; Summerfield in Castro County, and Hub and Tharp in Parmer County have been connected via fiber-optic cable for some years.

Tom Hyer, WTRT general manager, says that completing the fiber link will mean greatly improved carrying capacity for the telephone network serving WTRT customer-members.

Fiber optic technology sends signals streaking at the speed of light via glass filaments that are the size of a human hair. One pair of fibers can carry 32,256 messages simultaneously, without overloading the system. Traditional copper telephone wire, carrying digital signals in radio waves, handles a maximum of only 24 conversations on a pair of copper lines.

Signals carried via fiber have greatly reduced interference from outside noise and static, providing much clearer sound and expanded ability for sending information.

The technology allows making use of two-way interactive video for educational and medical applications, and could also open the way for delivery of cable television programming to rural residents via telephone cables. The technology works with data, alarm and monitoring systems.

"Completing this fiber link will mean more and better service to our members. That improved service could even include video, if the time comes," says Hyer.

Borger sweeps Herd in varsity doubleheader

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford girls' basketball team tried mightily but couldn't overcome an early 27-point Borger lead. The Herd boys stayed right with Borger until a 13-0 run by Borger decided it.

They were exciting and well-played games, close except for a few minutes of Borger domination, but Hereford lost both District 1-4A games played Friday in Whiteface Gym: 63-51 for the girls, 80-65 for the boys.

Borger's girls got their 20th win of the season against only four losses, and they went to 3-0 in district. Hereford dropped to 1-2 and 8-13.

Hereford's boys fell to 6-15 in their district opener, while Borger improved to 15-7.

In the first game of the varsity doubleheader, the Borger girls seemed incapable of missing a shot in the first quarter as they ran up a 27-7 lead. The Borger lead got as high as 34-7 early in second quarter.

Borger's Robbyn Smith was particularly blazing: she had 24 of her game-high 27 points in the first half, 14 in the first quarter.

Hereford coach Eddie Fortenberry was flabbergasted by the sizzling Lady Bulldogs.

"A first quarter like that is hard to explain," he said. "I don't feel like our kids did anything wrong. When they're throwing it up and its going in like that, that's unbelievable...In the first four minutes, we ran every defense we had. That tells you we were trying to do something to stop that run.

"The rest of it was ours, but its hard to come from 20 behind," he said.

After Borger scored the first seven points of the second quarter to make it 34-7, Hereford outscored Borger 44-29. Heather Hodges and Misty Dudley combined for 11 points in a 16-6 Hereford run to close out the half. Borger led 42-25 at the break.

Borger added four points to its lead in the third quarter and ended the period leading 54-33. Hereford scored the first seven points of the fourth quarter, then cut the lead to one-digit at 55-46 on a Stephanie Wilcox three-pointer with 2:50 left.

Borger was able to stop Hereford from that point on, allowing only five free throws, and the Lady Whitefaces never got closer than nine.

"I really think it was a combination of us picking up the intensity and them thinking the ballgame was over," Fortenberry said of the comeback. "Anybody who sat and watched that game knows our kids deserve a lot of credit...If there was ever a chance to quit, they could have."

Wilcox led Hereford with 13 points including three treys. Wilcox was followed by Mindi Davis with 12, Hodges with 11 and Dudley with nine.

Hereford's boys spent much of their game trailing Borger, but the gap was usually 4-6 points in a seesaw battle. The Borger lead never got any higher than 10 until the fourth quarter, when a 13-0 Bulldog run turned a 61-57 game into a 74-57 game with less than two minutes left.

"We got into a little turnover frenzy, and that's exactly what they base their whole game around," Herd coach Randy Dean said, explaining the fateful 13-0 run. He added that he thought Borger pressed the entire game.

"I guess we're just not experienced enough that when we get into spells of turnovers to put a stop to them quickly," he said. "(Borger has) an enormous amount of quickness, and we dealt with it well for most of the night. That's one of those games that we need to be encouraged by, but not settle for it."

The game of spurts started early. Borger scored the first eight points of the game, but Hereford answered with six straight, then tied it at 10-10.

Borger had a 7-0 run in the remainder of the first quarter, then started the second quarter with a 5-0 run for a 22-12. Borger didn't get consecutive baskets for the rest of the half, but Hereford did a few times. Two straight shots by Jay Kendall brought Hereford within two, and moments later an Isaac Walker basket made the Borger lead 35-34.

Hereford was called for a foul with one second left. Borger hit the front end of the one-and-one, then missed the second shot. Hereford's Terance High was fouled on the rebound, then with no time left in the half and nobody else on the floor, he coolly drained two free throws for a 36-36 tie at the break.

Borger scored the first six points of the second half, and Hereford was back in an uphill battle. The Herd got within two or four points several times, including a time early in the fourth when a High basket followed a fallaway jumper by Stacey Sanders. That made the score 61-57 Borger, and the Bulldogs promptly started its 13-0 run.

Both Hereford teams go on the road Tuesday to face Dumas: girls at 6 p.m., boys at 7:30. Dumas' girls are 2-1 and

Cowboys, Packers reverse roles in old rivalry

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) - There was a time in the 1960s when the Green Bay Packers owned the Dallas Cowboys.

They twice kept the Cowboys from the NFL title with agonizing, last-second victories. One was the famous "Ice Bowl" game on Dec. 31, 1967, when Bart Starr sneaked behind the block of Jerry Kramer through Jethro Pugh on the final play for the game-winning touchdown and a 21-17 NFL championship victory in 16-below-zero cold.

There also was the game-ending end zone interception by Tom Brown off Don Meredith for a 34-27 Packers' title victory on Jan. 1, 1967, that deflated the hometown fans at the Cotton Bowl.

Dallas got the tag of "Next Year's Champions." Tom Landry's Cowboys couldn't crack the green-and-gold curtain until Vince Lombardi left.

While time has stood still for the Packers, the Cowboys have gone on to win three Super Bowls.

Dallas stopped Green Bay 37-26 in 1983 in the second round of the NFC playoffs in the first post-season meeting of the two franchises since the '60s.

They meet again Sunday in the divisional playoffs with the Packers two-touchdown underdogs against the Cowboys, who beat them 36-14 in October.

Current Cowboys players aren't too plugged in to the old rivalry.

"All that's kind of ancient history," said running back Emmitt Smith. "We won't be playing any ice bowl in Texas Stadium. This is a different era. The old games don't matter."

Smith, who has a slightly separated shoulder, and the heavily favored Cowboys make a tempting upset target for the wild card Packers, who have been revitalized under new coach Mike Holmgren.

Some are calling Holmgren a young Lombardi.

"We are different men in a different era," Holmgren said. "Lombardi set the standard. Right now we're just trying to bring the Packers some respect."

To do so, the Packers will have to stop Smith, recently named by The Associated Press as the NFL's MVP and the holder of three consecutive rushing titles.

Smith injured his shoulder in a 16-13 overtime victory against the New York Giants that clinched the NFC East title for the Cowboys.

But he'll play on Sunday just like he did in New York. He will wear special shoulder pads with shock-absorbing material under them.

"I'll be a little nervous until I get my first hit," Smith said. "I'll be OK after that."

The Packers' best hope is that the Cowboys will be looking ahead to the NFC title game.

Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin said it won't happen.

"We're in a business mood," Irvin said. "Last year we were headstrong and sometimes dead wrong. At times all we were doing was just running around fast. Now, we run fast but we know what we're doing. We also know where we're going."

The Cowboys, who posted a 12-4 record after losing the first two games without Smith, rested last week, while the Packers survived with a 28-24 victory over Detroit on three touchdown passes from Brett Favre to Sterling Sharpe.

The winner plays the Saturday

New York Giants-San Francisco 49ers survivor. If Dallas wins, the Cowboys will play the NFC title game at home. The Packers will have to travel again if they prevail.

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said trying to repeat as Super Bowl champions has been a long, hard road.

"We've had holdouts, injuries, and a debacle on Thanksgiving but we've persevered," Johnson said.

"With all our problems we're still in a better position than we were last year. We couldn't have been in a better position if we had gone 16-0.

"But without a doubt this season hasn't been much fun."

Holmgren looks at the Cowboys and doesn't see much difference from the club that defeated Buffalo 52-17 in Pasadena.

"They look the same to me, strong and good," Holmgren. "I just hope we can play a better game than we did back in October."

The Packers will have to do it on the field. The Lombardi mystique no longer controls this rivalry.

Oilers need to win Big One

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - By one measure, the Houston Oilers are the NFL's most successful team. No other team has made the playoffs for seven straight years.

By the same measure, the Oilers also failed to even reach the AFC title game in those seven opportunities.

Now Houston is the NFL's hottest team, one of the favorites to reach the Super Bowl. But, first, the Oilers have to get past Joe Montana and the Kansas City Chiefs on Sunday at the Astrodome.

And the Chiefs have a little history problem of their own in this situation.

They are in the playoffs for the fourth straight season but haven't made it to a conference championship game in 24 years, and obtaining Montana has left Kansas City fans expecting nothing less than a Super Bowl.

But, despite the very key addition of Montana and Marcus Allen on offense and the success this season of new defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan's defense, the Oilers still have to prove they can overcome a series of substantial indignities.

It began last January, when they blew a 35-3 lead in a first-round playoff game in Buffalo and lost 41-38 in overtime. That led owner Bud Adams to hire Ryan - without input from head coach Jack Pardee.

Ryan has been the catalyst in this year's drama, which includes:

- An 11-game winning streak after a 1-4 start, the longest such streak entering the playoffs since Miami's two decades ago.

- A running feud between Ryan and offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride, capped by Ryan's swing at Gilbride on national television. That was long after Ryan had referred to Gilbride's run-and-shoot as "a high school offense."

HERD

11-10, while Dumas' boys are 0-1 and 3-16.

Hereford got one win from three sub-varsity games played Friday, as the Hereford boys' junior varsity triumphed 62-53 over Borger. Brian Torres led Hereford with 12 points, and Gregg Kalka chipped in 10. Michael Marquez, Ronald Torres and Todd Dudley each scored eight.

Hereford took a 40-33 loss in the girls' JV game, despite 12 points from Julie Cole and 10 from Deanna McCracken.

Hereford's sophomore boys lost

"BabyGate," the flap over offensive tackle David Williams, who missed the New England game the day after his wife gave birth and was docked a game's pay.

The death of defensive tackle Jeff Alm, who committed suicide after the car he was driving was involved in an accident that killed his best friend.

With all that, the Oilers, who won the AFC Central at 12-4, finally have the respect that their talent over the years should have earned them. That's due in large part to Ryan's unique defense, which sends blitzers at quarterback from every direction.

"I don't think anyone in the league has as much talent," says Kansas City coach Marty Schottenheimer, whose team won the AFC West at 11-5, then beat Pittsburgh 27-24 in overtime last Saturday to advance.

"Not only that, but their offense is unique, their defense is unique, they force you to adapt in ways you're not used to," Schottenheimer said.

The teams met the second week of the regular season. Houston won 30-0 as Montana missed the game with a sore wrist.

In fact, the last time Montana played against a blitzing Ryan defense was Sept. 24, 1989, when he picked himself off the carpet in Philadelphia after nine sacks and threw four fourth-period touchdown passes to beat the Eagles 38-28. He was 24 of 35 for 428 yards in that game.

"I haven't seen that film, but I know what Joe Montana can do," said Houston cornerback Cris Dishman. "We're playing against a legend. We have to be a little more careful with our blitzing because we know he can pick it up."

The Chiefs are also frustrated by their lack of playoff success in recent years. But those previous teams had an offense that featured the run and a tight defense.

The defense remains, but they brought in Paul Hackett to install a San Francisco-style offense, traded for Montana to operate it and signed Allen to anchor it.

Against Pittsburgh, they did what they could rarely do in the past, come back from 10 points down at halftime to win. Montana tied the game on a fourth down, seven-yard TD pass to Tim Barnett.

The Oilers, who had a bye last week, are viewed as a nation divided, with offense and defense on opposite sides and Pardee in the middle.

"We all think of ourselves as a family," said Chiefs defensive end Neil Smith. "When you have bad blood in families, something's going to give." The Oilers don't buy that theory.

Direct marketing strategies to be afternoon topic Vegetable conference set Tuesday

Vegetable growers will have an opportunity to explore ways of adding value to their crops during the annual High Plains Vegetable Conference Tuesday in Hereford.

Beginning with registration at 8:30 a.m., the day's program will highlight the conference theme, "Preparing for Change." A $25 registration fee will include lunch.

The program has been approved by Texas Department of Agriculture for five continuing education units for private, commercial and non-commercial pesticide applicators.

The morning session will begin with instruction for complying with the TDA regulation. Latest information on chemical registrations also will be provided.

During the afternoon, growers interested in direct marketing to the consumer will be given a copy of a handbook by Dr. Charles Hall, Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist. A new handbook on marketing Texas vegetables, also written by Hall, will be distributed, too.

Dr. Hall will discuss basics to create opportunities in direct marketing. Others on the program will offer practical experiences in the field. Speakers will be Dr. Dean McCraw of Oklahoma State University; Sue Malamen, direct marketing specialist with M&W Carrot, Inc., of Hereford, and Willie Wieck of Wieck Farms, Dumas.

Speaking at the noon luncheon will be directors of the South Plains Food Bank and Breedlove Dehydrated Foods, discussing a new food dehydration plant. Two members of Deaf Smith 4-H, Karon Harder and Cady Auckerman, will present their award-winning method demonstration on pumpkin uses.

The afternoon session will provide participants in the latest production strategies and in the field of biotechnology. Another topic will be irrigation, multiple harvest crops to assure top quality, yield and water conservation.

Crop insurance may be overhauled

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department wants to overhaul crop insurance to bring more farmers in and encourage Congress to hand out disaster assistance less freely.

The plan will be a key part of the 1995 budget proposal for the Agriculture Department.

By making available a system of free "catastrophic coverage," the plan aims at reforming the two-track system through which farmers get help when floods, hail, drought and other perils wipe out their crops.

The government has a crop insurance program that is poorly used, in part because of high premiums. Less than 40 percent of eligible acres are covered, and the government has been paying out $1.40 for every $1 in premiums, the General Accounting Office has said.

But farmers also know that Congress readily approves disaster aid each year. Even farmers who don't buy insurance collect something.

Together, the government has averaged $1.5 billion to $1.6 billion in combined crop insurance and disaster payments each year, according to Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., a top congressional advocate of reform.

Although the catastrophic coverage would be low, it would be enough to protect farmers from total losses.

Also, farmers who get the free coverage would be brought into the system and given the option of buying more coverage at a cheaper rate than now. A larger pool should spread out the risk and lower costs to the government and private companies that write the government-subsidized policies.

Politically, the system is designed to give Congress the will if not the mandate to refuse disaster payments.

"It allows people in Congress to say with a straight face, 'This is free, don't expect any more of a handout. If you want better coverage, then you ought to think about assessing your own risk and buying insurance,'" Kerrey said.

Although there are crop disasters of varying sizes every year, disaster spending doesn't count against the deficit, again making it easy for Congress to spend freely. The rationale is that disasters cannot be foreseen and therefore not budgeted for.

But as a result of the proposed changes, costs will have to be added to the budget, forcing lawmakers to look for cuts elsewhere.

"From a budget viewpoint it's tricky, but from a policy viewpoint it's essential," said Rep. Richard J. Durbin, D-Ill., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on agriculture.

Durbin, though not yet briefed on the administration proposal, is another leading advocate of crop insurance reform. His subcommittee plans to continue steps taking in the 1994 spending bill to make people who habitually claim losses pay more for coverage.

Though details are scanty, the concept of the administration plan resembles one drafted last year by former Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla.

That plan called for offering free coverage of all catastrophic losses - those in excess of 65 percent of normal yields. Additional coverage could be purchased but would not be subsidized. Still, some premiums would end up being cheaper than the subsidized ones are now.

Dry spell threatening crops in West Texas

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
OWENS, Texas (AP) - Crosby County farmer Joe Rankin remembers precisely the Oct. 13 rainfall on his wheat crop.

It hasn't rained since. Rankin, 64, stood under a cloudless sky one recent afternoon and pointed across to his neighbor's land, usually lush and grazed by cattle. There, too, the wheat was puny, thin-rooted - and above all, dry.

"Only fools and newcomers predict the weather in West Texas," he mused.

A prolonged dry spell across much of the state has parched winter crops and already threatened spring planting.

Agriculture experts say the lack of moisture and high winds are stunting grain crops. Livestock, with no wheat to graze, are being fed hay instead.

"You could fly over the Panhandle and not tell the difference between wheat fields and plowed fields," said Bill Nelson, executive vice president of the Texas Wheat Producers Association in Amarillo.

The statewide wheat outlook is down 58 percent of normal, Nelson said.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports very short soil moisture in the Rolling Plains and Central Texas. Soil moisture is short, the state service says, in the Panhandle, South Plains, Far West Texas, East Texas and South Texas.

Rainfall totals from 1993 were an average 3.5 inches below normal across the agriculture-dependent Lubbock region, the National Weather Service said.

Lubbock itself received 12.75 inches in 1993, down from the yearly 18.65-inch average, said Larry Toombs, NWS meteorological technician. The last "significant" shower was one-quarter inch Dec. 12, he said.

"Prior to that," Toombs paused, "Oh my gosh ... in November only 30 hundredths."

He had to search back to June to find the South Plains' last good soaking. That month, Lubbock recorded 3.78 inches, 3.4 inches of it pouring down June 30.

The current dry spell bodes even worse for the future.

Cotton and other spring-planted crops need generous sub-soil moisture to endure through August, ag experts say. Snow and winter rains usually provide that deep dampness.

Wayne Wyatt, manager of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District, said he worries about the level of the Ogallala Aquifer next year, after farmers irrigate heavily through 1994.

And Steve Newton, who manages the Owens Co-op Gin near Rankin's fields, warned of spring dust blizzards if no rain falls to help anchor the soil.

"Everyone is hoping and praying for rain," Newton said.

Wilhelmina was crowned queen of the Netherlands in 1898.

Laney given special honor

SAN ANTONIO - A national organization has honored Pete Laney of Abemathy, speaker of the Texas House, with a "Friend of Extension" award.

During a meeting in San Antonio, Epsilon Sigma Phi, the national honorary fraternity of extension professionals, cited Laney for his activities during 40 years' association with extension.

He was cited for his efforts in extension since he joined a 4-H club in Hale County in 1951. Through the years, he and his wife, Nelda, have served as 4-H volunteer leaders and he has served on extension committees.

He is chairman of the board of High Plains Research Foundation and has been the recipient of honors from the state Epsilon Sigma Phi organization Texas Association of Extension Home Economists. As an adult, he has received the 4-H Alumni Award and the 4-H Spur Clip award.

COURTYARD ENTRANCE TO LARGE RANCH HOME

Immeasurably Large Great Room

FEATURE HOMES

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

A stucco courtyard wall leads guests to the front entrance to this home. Upon entering the front door, the eyes are greeted with a room of enormous proportions. The ceiling is sloped with laminated beams. A fireplace flanked by book cases rounds out the room which leads to the rear terrace secluded by the two wings of the home.

A kitchen with breakfast and sitting areas are immediately adjacent to the great room. The kitchen includes a wet bar, surface unit, trash compactor, sink, double oven and pantry. The visual delight of the breakfast/sitting area is a large bow window and a prefab fireplace. To the front of this area is a library or dining room which is encompassed with cabinets and book cases. To the rear of the kitchen is a large laundry room with provisions for a sewing cabinet, laundry tub, washer and dryer and freezer. Pantry space is provided as well.

A hall leads to the family's game room, with sliding glass doors to both the rear of the home and the central terrace. A shower bath is adjacent and a covered porch leads to the double garage with shop and storage space.

The left wing of the home encompasses the bedrooms. The two center bedrooms are equally sized, one having a private bath. The front bedroom is larger and has an interconnecting bath. The master suite is at the rear of the hall and is sized for comfort. The garden bath includes double vanity, corner whirlpool tub, and a separate compartment for shower and toilet. Litter storage is provided and an oversized L-shaped closet is denoted here as well.

The stucco exterior includes multiple hip roofs, matching chimneys and a standing seam metal roof.

Plan number 4006 includes 4,027 square feet of heated space and is furnished on a crawl space foundation.

For further information on this plan write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Question/Answer

Q: What causes a section of concrete driveway to fail after only eight years? The apron - between the street and sidewalk - remains strong without any pitting at all. However, the section between the sidewalk and the house is crumbling to stone, sand and powder. Both sections were poured the same day, but from different truckloads. Both were exposed to the same salt from city streets, but I applied no salt to either section myself.

A: It is possible that the concrete mix in the trucks was different even though the mix came from the same supplier. Concrete with too much water and/or not enough cement is likely to be too weak to withstand an automobile load. You didn't mention whether or not the deteriorating driveway section collects water run-off from a side yard or downspouts. Water that puddles, and then freezes and thaws, can shorten the lifespan of concrete.

If you park your car on this section it's also possible that de-icing salts from the city streets that accumulate on the undercarriage drip off onto the driveway, causing surface deterioration. According to the American Concrete Institute, de-icers containing ammonium salts such as sulfate, nitrate or chlorine should, as much as possible, be avoided on concrete.

Since the deteriorated section is beyond rehabilitation, it will have to be replaced. This time, make sure the concrete mix contains an air-entraining admixture, which is required if the concrete is exposed to freezing and thawing.

Dallas puts on good face for World Cup audience

By DAVID JACKSON
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS (AP) - When the World Cup calls on Dallas this summer, soccer won't be the only game in town.

Self-promotion is also on the schedule. As are wheeling and dealing.

Local corporations already are planning their capitalist offensive, using the world's most popular sport to woo international clients.

City officials, meanwhile, will play a more defensive contest, trying to make sure nothing goes wrong as fans and dignitaries from as many as 10 countries head to Fair Park for the games at the Cotton Bowl.

Above all, institutions public and private will play the image game. With hundreds of international broadcasters based at Fair Park, the World Cup provides a sporting opportunity for a municipality that fancies itself an international city.

"This really is Dallas' first chance to show itself to the world," said Bill Stroube, Dallas venue executive director for World Cup USA. "We need to do something over and beyond just putting on six soccer games."

Opportunity also creates anxiety, especially over security for a sport that has been known to trigger riots and even wars. In 1969, nearly 5,000 people died when El Salvador and Honduras engaged in a "soccer war" following a World Cup qualifying match. (Honduras lost the match but won the war.)

For now, city officials say their biggest worry is the unknown.

Soccer, the world's most popular pastime, never has caught on as a major spectator sport here. Yet the United States will play host to 23 nations in soccer's ultimate extravaganza, a world championship tournament played once every four years.

"It's not like a political convention, where you can go back and see what other cities did," said Levi Davis, a Dallas assistant city manager. "This is the first time we've held it in this country."

Now that tournament schedules are set, Dallas and eight other American cities are preparing in earnest for the one-month tournament that starts June 17. Boosters say they expect the event to pump $265 million into the local economy.

The Dallas office of World Cup USA plans to double its workforce by the end of this month to 40 full-time employees. Stroube's office also needs 2,500 volunteers and is accepting applications through January.

The local venue of World Cup USA, which is responsible for supervising the six games in Dallas, is trying to arrange hotel and travel schedules for the six countries scheduled to play here: Germany, Spain, Argentina, Bulgaria, Nigeria and South Korea.

Those six teams are involved in four first-round games to be played between June 17 and 30. Dallas may wind up welcoming as many as four more countries for its round-of-16 game July 3 and quarterfinal match July 9.

The World Cup championship match is July 16 at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. The 1990 World Cup final, won by West Germany, drew a worldwide television audience of 1.06 billion or 250 million more people than watched the Dallas Cowboys win the most recent Super Bowl.

Internationally, the World Cup fan and media hoopla tend to make the Super Bowl look like just another game.

"There's nothing like it, I can tell you that," said City Council member Glenn Box, part of a Dallas delegation that toured Italy as it hosted the tournament four years ago. "And I've been to a few Super Bowls as well."

World Cup USA is one of three Dallas organizations making game plans. The others are the city government, which is largely responsible for security and maintenance of facilities, and the Dallas Host Committee, which is essentially in charge of local image.

"We are preparing for the hosting of international visitors," said Jim Graham, a co-chairman of the host committee. "Heads of state are expected here. We want to do all we can to make sure Dallas shines for the world when the games are held."

Shining costs money. The host committee plans to raise cash by selling

"premiere ticket packages," which provide entry to the six Dallas games plus other special events the scope of which will be determined by the number of packages sold.

"We're going all out to sell the most tickets we can sell, and that will determine our activities," said William Schilling, the host committee's finance chairman.

Planned events include a kickoff dinner hosted by Mayor Steve Bartlett, a VIP reception hosted by former Mayor Annette Strauss, and a "Texas fiesta" for the contingent of international broadcasters.

The host committee also wants to raise money for inner-city youth soccer programs.

This league is not cheap. Premiere ticket packages range from $725 to $3,900, depending on how many events you want to attend.

The $3,900 package includes the above-mentioned receptions, pre- and post-game parties at the Dallas Civic Garden Center at Fair Park and a "special commemorative gift" with the World Cup logo.

At these prices, the host committee is doing most of its selling to corporations, who in turn are developing World Cup strategies of their own.

In most cases, they are less interested in who wins the Germany-South Korea match than in whether they can score with German and Korean business people.

"It's not just entertainment; we will also want to feature our business acumen," said Jim Oberwetter, vice president of public affairs for Hunt Oil Co. "To build good client relations, there's nothing quite like soccer on an international scale. It's a big draw."

Some local companies have a bigger-than-average stake in the World Cup. Electronic Data Systems is "the official information technology provider for World Cup 1994," providing a national computer network for media and security people.

"We're going to be showcasing our technology," said Gary Fernandes, an EDS senior vice president who also heads the marketing effort for the Dallas host committee. "It gives us an opportunity to bring in clients from all over the world and show them what we do."

Dallas and its businesses are looking for assists from local immigrants, for whom soccer stirs nostalgic memories the way baseball and football do for other Americans.

Mariana Djinov, assistant manager of a clothing store, recalls attending games with her father in Sofia, Bulgaria.

"I grew up with him at the soccer stadium," Ms. Djinov said. "This will be one of the greatest events I have ever seen."

Ms. Djinov said she's the only native Bulgarian she knows in Dallas. I.K. Kim, a local investor, said the 30,000-member Korean community is planning special events to welcome their countrymen.

"They'll be looking for some Asian food," Kim said. "It will be a good opportunity to talk to people about investing in the Dallas area. I can explain to them what Dallas is about."

Kim and others born outside the United States also can explain to Dallas what soccer is all about. For many, the sport is a lifelong passion.

"Almost every kid in Nigeria plays soccer," said Andrew Adeniji, a Dallas real estate agent born in Lagos. "I'm talking like from three years old. We play in the streets, we play in the parks, we play in the bedroom. We play everywhere."

David Balyeat, a native of Argentina who coaches soccer at Dallas Baptist University, said the sport's appeal is simple: It's cheap, easy to play and accessible to anyone, regardless of physical size or material wealth.

"It's the sport of the masses," he said.

Dallas will try to appeal to some of those masses through the International Broadcast Center at Fair Park. The city is spending up to $865,000 to fix up the automobile and centennial buildings, with construction scheduled to start in mid-February.

About 120 television networks from across the world will build temporary studios, anchoring their coverage of the entire tournament from Fair Park.

The broadcasters of pre-game and halftime shows for American football nearly always mention that they are reporting from New York; city boosters hope soccer announcers do the same for Dallas, spreading the word to as many 190 nations.

"Everything that's broadcast about these games worldwide is going to come out of Dallas, so Dallas will always be in the background," said Renee Riggs, acting executive director of the Dallas Host Committee. "You just can't buy that."

The broadcast center will include a specially built village of restaurants, banks, shops and travel agencies to serve an estimated 3,000 broadcasters and technicians.

The International Broadcast Center probably will be more closely guarded than the Dallas Cowboys' Super Bowl trophies.

Deputy Police Chief Rick Hatler, who has been coordinating Dallas' World Cup security plans since spring 1992, said he and his staff have studied the way other countries have policed major soccer games.

In addition to the specter of international terrorism, Chief Hatler said the city is worried about crowd control inside the Cotton Bowl and within Fair Park.

Although team hotels, training sites and tourist attractions are other top priorities, Chief Hatler was reluctant to discuss specifics about his security plan such as how many police officers he plans to use.

"That's one of the things we're holding real close to the vest," he said. "Traditionally, international soccer play had involved some violent confrontations. That's the kind of thing we're preparing for."

The city's security budget is $2.8 million, although it is hoping for some reimbursement by World Cup USA.

Dallas' other major expense has been $14 million in improvements to the Cotton Bowl. The work included a new stadium facade and the removal of seats to make room for the wider soccer field. The city also replaced its artificial turf with a grass field, another World Cup requirement.

Dave Whitney, president of the Dallas Convention & Visitor's Bureau, described the World Cup as a "once-in-a-lifetime" happening that will generate at least 300,000 overnight hotel stays.

Whitney said he isn't sure the people of Dallas realize the scope of the event. "I think there's some education that needs to be done," he said.

The most important lesson, officials say, is winning the city international recognition. "It's different from anything we've ever seen," Stroube said. "Differences create anxiety and apprehension. They also create opportunities."

— YOUR EYES —

GLAUCOMA

Glaucoma is a serious eye condition in which there is an increase of pressure inside the eye. It cannot be cured, but it can be controlled. And if it is caught early enough, damage to the eye -- especially to that part of the eye that gives clear side vision -- can be avoided.

In its early stages, glaucoma may not cause any symptoms at all. However, there is a simple test of inter-ocular pressure which is usually part of a complete eye examination for anyone over 35. That is how most cases of glaucoma are found, in time for successful treatment. Most at risk are people over 65, the severely near-sighted, diabetics or those with a family history of glaucoma. Your optometrist may recommend more-frequent examinations if you are at risk.

If there is a decrease in side vision, blurred images or any other change in the way you see, see your optometrist promptly.

Enger, Holcombe wed in evening ceremony

Lubbock residents, Camie Enger and Jay Holcombe, were married Friday evening, Jan. 7, in Trinity Church in Lubbock. Officiating for the marriage was Pastor Kevin Evans of Louisville.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Enger of Lubbock and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Holcombe of 206 16th St.

The church was decorated with pine greenery and garlands with white lights. The pulpit was adorned with a multitude of candles forming an arch and spiral design. Pews were marked with magnolia blossoms and satin streamers.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father.

Bonnie Eckles served as matron of honor and James Bartlett was best man.

Bridesmaids were Stephanie Gray, Gina Gray and Courtney Hohenborger. Groomsmen were Wade Holcombe, Brandon Holcombe and Darin Box.

Guests were escorted by Clay Enger, Brad Cole and Jimmy Burns.

Amanda Murray of Yuma, Ariz. sang "He Is Faithful" and "Lord, We Want to Know You More" accompanied by Jim Jordan of Lubbock.

The bride wore an elegant designer's sheath of ivory satin and schiffli lace. The bodice, encrusted with pearls and sequins, featured a Sabrina neckline and Renaissance sleeves. The sheath was fashioned with a detachable chapel-length train highlighted with beaded lace appliques.

To complete her attire, the bride chose a floral half wreath with pearl sprays, double silk illusion pouf and two-tiered fingertip veiling. She carried an arm bouquet created by three cymbidium orchids, sweetheart roses and a large stargazer lily placed in the center.

The bridesmaids and matron of honor wore identical two-piece formal-length dresses of raspberry floral embossed faille. The bodices featured princess seaming with sweetheart necklines. The jacket hemlines were tapered across the backs below the waistlines. The sleeves were short and puffed with each designed with a soft folded wrap around forming a shawl effect. Pearl and gold buttons accented the bodices. The ankle-length straight skirts with vent pleats of matching faille completed their attire. Also, each attendant wore matching raspberry shoes and pearl earrings and carried arm bouquets of greenery and stargazer lilies with long satin streamers.

Registering guests at the reception held in the church were April Bell and Laura Erklitz.

The bride's cake was served by Tracey Box, Tiffany Pope, Tammy Byrd and Christy Bobavec. The groom's cake was served by Heather Womack and Michelle Bartlett. Punch and coffee were poured by Kim Harris, Heather Baker and Rhonda Cox. All servers reside in Lubbock.

The bride's table was covered with an ivory lace cloth designed with a ruffle skirting. The four-layer Italian cream cake was decorated with calla lilies cascading down the front. Also, placed on the table were silver appointments.

The groom's table was covered with an ivory lace cloth and skirting and featured pink candles in brass and crystal holders and a silk bouquet of flowers in hunter green and cranberry. The two-layered chocolate butter cream cake with slivered almonds was iced with chocolate drizzles.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Telluride, Colo. They will make their home in Lubbock.

The bride attends Texas Tech University majoring in home economics education. She is employed by Creative Educational Videos.

The groom also attends Texas Tech University and is majoring in industrial engineering. He is employed by Agnew and Associates.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Leon Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray and Amanda Murray, all of Yuma, Ariz.

Sorority chapter meets recently in Bixler home

"It's Amazing What You Can Do When Unaware of the Obstacles!" was the program led by Holly Bixler at the recent meeting of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

The meeting, held in the Bixlers' home at 305 Cherokee, featured group participation in a "quality circle," enabling members to get to know each other better. Those present included Bixler, Linda Arellano, Charla Edwards, Melinda Henson, Peggy Hyer, Carol Kelley, Ruby Lee, Connie Matthews, Susan Shaw, Melinda Whitfill and Kay Williams.

During the business meeting, President Arellano led the opening ritual. Also, thank yous were extended to secret sisters for holiday gifts by everyone present. Lee read a selection on "meetings" from the Book of Beta Sigma Phi.

Arellano said that the International Office has also established a Disaster Fund and members voted to contribute to it. The chapter also approved three selections for the Endowment Fund which included Ranch Hope for Boys, Bay Area Lupus Foundation and Arthritis Society of British Columbia.

In a report from City Council, Lee said an auction will be held March 5 and will feature a meal of Irish stew and cornbread with guests welcome to attend. Although there will be no admission charge, each member should bring a wrapped gift to be auctioned. Proceeds will benefit the Hereford Outreach Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center.

President Arellano noted that the Sweetheart Brunch will be held at 11 a.m. Feb. 12 at the Hereford Country Club. The Valentine Ball will be held Feb. 26 with dinner commencing at 7 p.m. followed by the dance at 8 p.m.

Service Committee Chairman

Shaw noted that January and February are designated as the months for the Video Drive to benefit Deaf Smith County Library. Children's videos (new or used) may be donated for the purpose of being checked out.

Program and yearbook chairman, Henson, said the next chapter meeting will be held Jan. 18. It will be a social with Alpha Alpha Chapter, featuring a salad supper in the Southwestern Public Service Room at 7 p.m. Each XEA member is to furnish a salad and entertainment is planned as games and prizes will be offered.

Arellano noted that Feb. 1 is the deadline for BSP Scholarship applications. Williams reminded members to get Legacy applicants signed up as there will be a party for them combined with the chapter's 30th anniversary celebration.

Following adjournment, closing ritual and Mizpah were repeated. Refreshments consisted of fruit salad, cookies, coffee and tea and were served by Bixler and co-hostess Edwards.

The first hat factory in the United States was established in 1780 by Zadoc Benedict, a craft worker, in Danbury, Connecticut.

Auditions for Chamber Singers planned today

Auditions for additional members to the Hereford Chamber Singers will be held at 2 p.m. today, Sunday, in the choir room of the First United Methodist Church.

Interested persons may contact Bobby Boyd at 364-5345 or Dee Anne Trotter at 364-1172.

The community choir was formed in 1974 and has performed in Austin, San Antonio, Seminole, Lubbock, Amarillo, Borger, Canyon, Brisbane, Australia and the country of Romania. It was organized to give adults an opportunity to sing outside of a church choir and to provide entertainment for its listeners.

This year marks the group's 20th anniversary.

Your questions about home maintenance can be answered by the experts on a home inspection company's technical staff.

REBECCA REED, JOHN CORNELIUS

Wedding date set

Rebecca Anne Reed of Santa Barbara, CA. and former Hereford resident, John Ernest Cornelius of Los Angeles, CA. plan to wed March 26 at Trinity Church in Lubbock.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Fred and Pat Reed of Carrollton and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Donnie and Darlene Cornelius of 202 Fir St.

Miss Reed graduated cum laud in 1993 from Texas Tech University where she received her B.A. degree in photocommunications. She is currently seeking a master's degree from Brooks Institute of Photography in Santa Barbara. She has been the sole proprietor of Master Image Photography since 1990.

Cornelius is currently a senior at the University of Southern California where he is seeking a bachelor of architecture degree with a specialization in computer animation. He attended Texas Tech University for three years and is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School.

Pharmacist presents informative program

John Thames, a local pharmacist, presented an informative program titled "Taking Medicine Wisely" when members of the Hereford Retired School Employees Association met Jan. 10 for their regular monthly meeting.

The speaker stressed that patients should take medications as directed and read labels and material that accompanies the prescription. He also emphasized that you shouldn't assume that your doctor is aware of all of your allergies and/or reactions. He said, "Don't self-prescribe. Medications today are very potent."

NEW YORK (AP) - Maria Maples Trump's former publicist admitted stashing a pair of her boots but denied stealing her high heels, sneakers and underwear.

Chuck Jones is charged with burglary and possession of property stolen from the model's apartment.

Jones testified Tuesday at a hearing on whether his statements and items found during a search of his office should be admitted as evidence at his trial next week.

Police in 1992 found more than 40 pairs of Maples' shoes and boots and her underwear in Jones' office.

Jones acknowledged only that Mrs. Trump's boots were in his office closet.

It is very important to communicate with your doctor and pharmacist when you are uneasy about your medication."

Thames also noted that you should take a good vitamin and postmenopausal women need to take daily calcium supplements.

Margaret Bell called the meeting to order and Elizabeth DeKoster gave the invocation. Bobby Boyd led a sing along and the minutes of the December meeting were read by Marie Stringer. Billie McDowell gave the treasurer's report.

Committee reports were heard from Mary Dziuk, Betty Mercer, Leona Schilling and Audrey Powell. Schilling was given a special appreciation award for extra volunteer services.

The HRSE members made plans to honor active Hereford employees on Valentine's Day.

Carol McGilvary, Sue Inman, Bobby Boyd and Mary Duvall (alternate) were elected to the nominating committee.

Bell told members they were invited to an open house at the home of Wilma Brady in Umbarger to view her paintings.

HRSE Association members meet at 11:30 a.m. the second Monday of each month at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. All retired school employees are invited to attend.

Monday evening Jan. 17th at 7:00 pm the Library is featuring a special film "Secret of Treasure Mountain." The special occasion is the arrival of our new video projector. Everyone is invited to come view the latest in video technology and judge for yourself the picture and sound quality. All of us at the Deaf Smith County Library would like to express our appreciation for your support and gifts which made this purchase a possibility. Thank you all.

There will also be another group of new books available that day, such as Murdering Mr. Monti: A Merry Little Tale of Sex and Violence by Judith Viorst. "I am not the murdering kind, but I am planning to kill Mr. Monti because he is doing harm to my family," the story begins. Brenda Kovner, a middle-aged, middle-class married woman is not the murdering kind. Brenda isn't the kind to sleep with 3 different men within twenty four hours, but she did, so who knows maybe she can kill Mr. Monti. Mr. Monti's daughter Josephine had announced her engagement to Wally Kovner, Brenda's younger son. The announcement was met with such opposition that Josephine is now on the verge of having a nervous breakdown and Wally is being accused of stealing a hundred and fifty thousand dollars from Mr. Monti's safe. "I know you didn't do it," Brenda says to Wally in her most reassuring maternal supportive voice, "But could you just explain how a hundred and fifty thousand dollars happened to be in the trunk of your Chevrolet?" Wally tells the long story to his mother, kisses her goodbye and disappears. Murdering Mr. Monti promises to be witty, wise, and wonderfully entertaining from beginning to end.

The political thriller for the week is Shadow over Babylon by David Mason. This assassination plot is planned by the most powerful men in government, manned by the most savage death team, and armed with the most advanced weapons and technology. Each step is ingeniously engineered and perfectly calculated to by pass the defense of its target, President

Saddam Hussein. As the countdown begins the assassin moves step by step, and moment by moment until the target moves into the gun sights and the trigger is carefully squeezed. This carefully crafted plot is sure to keep you on the edge of your seat until the very end.

Kate Green has written another spine chilling, fast-paced, absorbing mystery, Black Dreams. July 4th weekend is coming up when Theresa Fortunato, a professional psychic, is awakened by powerful psychic messages from an abducted child. Theresa calls detective Lieutenant Oliver Jardine of the LAPD in an attempt to identify the missing child, but none of the reports match. Ellen Carlin contacts Theresa a few days later and describes her ten year old daughter Troy, who was taken from a Los Angeles hospital. During their initial meeting Theresa learns that Troy suffers from an immune disorder that requires close medical supervision. Theresa and Lieutenant Jardine begin their search and race against the clock to find a murderer, the abductor and a very seriously ill little girl.

Winter warming suggestions

Whether you're riding in your car, or lounging in your home, taking these tips to heart can help keep you warm this winter:

-For your car, a heated blanket has been developed that plugs into a cigarette lighter. In your RV it will plug into a 12-volt battery outlet. The special blanket is equipped with a long cord making it excellent for keeping children comfortable if they fall asleep on a long trip.

-For the bedroom, the same automatic blanket company offers a blanket with a brain that automatically responds to changes in body, bed and room temperatures.

ATTENTION REGISTERED VOTERS

In early December, new voter registration cards were mailed to all persons registered to vote in Deaf Smith County.

State voter registration laws require that the post office return any voter card which does not have the correct mailing address.

Approximately 900 voter registration cards were returned because of an incorrect mailing address. This is due to one of the following circumstances:

- The voter has moved to a new address.
- The voter still lives at the same address, but changed the manner in which mail is delivered (i.e., the mail is now delivered to the home rather than to a post office box or vice versa).
- The voter files in the Voter Registrar's office are in error.

If you are a registered voter and have not received a new yellow voter registration card, please contact the Deaf Smith County Clerk's Office. Your cooperation in making address changes will be appreciated. State voter registration laws also require that registered voters provide written confirmation of any address change.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER

One of the most important tasks parents face is teaching kids the skills they'll need to manage money effectively.

Count yourself fortunate if your children attend a school where they have an opportunity to learn basic money management. But that is not always the case.

Parents worry if their children will make it financially in the decades ahead. The economy may be unpredictable, but youngsters who know how to make good financial decisions and exercise discipline will be leagues ahead of those who don't.

A study conducted by Dr. Jerry Mason, associate professor of financial planning at Texas Tech University and Extension family economics specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service found that high school students know less today about financial topics than did high schoolers 30 years ago.

Money Magazine recently interviewed financial experts for their ideas on age-appropriate rules parents can follow in developing kids' financial management skills. These are the recommendations:

Grade School and Younger. Become a model money manager; set an example worth following. Give your child a regular allowance; allowances are tools for learning to budget and save; allowances are not prizes for star performance or punishment for inappropriate behavior. Encourage the habit of saving money; by age eight or nine, children should be saving a part of their allowance. Find opportunities to describe how money works; talk about cost comparisons and how a desired item may cost as much as much as a family's food bill.

Teens. Gradually give your teen a larger allowance and a greater rein on spending; a monthly instead of a weekly allowance is recommended because it requires more careful planning. Teach basic investing concepts; buying a share in a company whose product or service is well known can promote interest in learning how the stock market works. Help kids to broaden their experience base and work habits through summer jobs, travel and part-time after school work. Discuss how the family will pay college bills; by the junior year, the whole family should be planning together.

College Age. Arrange for your child to receive money from you; discuss expectations for handling finances, especially if a credit card is part of the deal. Be aware that kids are most likely to drop out of school during the freshman year, so requiring kids to work long hours that first year may not be wise. Encourage kids to explore career possibilities during college through internship or cooperative programs and other arrangements.

Boomerangs. Boomerangs are the ones who come back. This is a growing phenomenon, with about 43 percent of 20 to 24 year olds still living at home. It is important to set ground rules; decide who pays for what and what the adult child's financial contribution to the maintenance of the household will be.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Hereford Toastmasters meet for recent banquet

The Hereford Toastmasters Club recently held its semi-annual officer installation banquet and spaghetti supper.

Incoming officers were installed. They included Rick Jackson, president; Wayne Winget, vice president of education; Sharon Cramer, vice president of membership; Dave Kimmel, vice president of public relations; Dec Hamilton, secretary; Linda Minchew, treasurer; and Charles Minchew, sargent of arms.

Chris Leonard was given special recognition for completing his CTM and Jigger Rowland was cited for completing his DTM, the highest award in Toastmasters. Also, Rowland and Kimmel were announced as having perfect club attendance for the past six months.

Fuston, Hicks awarded scholarships at Tech

Sherry Lynn Fuston and Jennifer Susan Hicks have received scholarships for 1993-94 at Texas Tech University.

Fuston, who is a freshman and daughter of John and Joan Fuston of Hereford, has been awarded the Laverne McWhirter Permenter Scholarship.

Hicks, a sophomore and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hicks of Hereford, is a food and nutrition major and was awarded the Clara McPherson Scholarship.

Each year the College of Human Sciences at Texas Tech University awards over $140,000 in scholarships to worthy young men and women who wish to prepare for careers. Awards range from $200 to $1,000 for each recipient. Majors represented include: merchandising, family financial planning, family studies, fashion design, interior design, early childhood education, restaurant hotel and institutional management and graduate degree programs.

Fall 1993 enrollment figures for the College of Human Sciences were 2,003 undergraduates and 173 graduate students. The college is among the fourth largest in the nation in undergraduate enrollment.

Hereford area prospective students interested in studying in the college are encouraged to apply for a scholarship. Applications may be requested from the Office of the Dean, College of Human Sciences, Texas Tech University, P.O. Box 41162, Lubbock, Texas 79409-1162. Applications are due Feb. 15.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - Someday "Patriot Games" may be more than just a best seller and a movie to Tom Clancy.

The author is heading a partnership interested in buying the New England Patriots and moving the pro football team to Hartford, said John J.C. Herndon, head of the Connecticut Development Authority. Herndon said the agency agreed Wednesday to back a bid by Clancy's group to buy the team with state bonds.

The Boston Herald reported Thursday that the investment group also includes actors Tom Selleck and Paul Newman and former Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton.

Clancy declined to comment. Meanwhile, Massachusetts lawmakers are scrambling for a plan to build a new stadium and keep the team in the state. NFL officials have said that the Patriots stadium in Foxboro, Mass., near Boston is outdated.

Public invited to ceremony

The public is invited to a special unveiling ceremony for a new video projector at 7 p.m. Monday in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. The event culminates a year of raising funds by the Friends of the Library. The video was purchased in December 1993 from funds which were also acquired from various local organizations, businesses and individuals. During the presentation Monday evening, there will be comments by county and library officials. Also, door prizes will be presented and refreshments served by members of the Friends of the Library. A video presentation, "Secret of Treasure Mountain," an adventure movie, will cap off the event. Displaying the new projector is Friends of the Library President Bobby Boyd and Deaf Smith County Librarian Rebecca Walls.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is 2 o'clock in the morning. Sleeping pills don't help me anymore. Counseling hasn't helped either. I dread the night. I walk the floors. My mind won't turn off. I can't drive my car because I am unable to concentrate and am afraid I will have an accident. I have no desire to be with family or friends. I don't care about eating. It would be fine with me if tomorrow never came.

Two years ago, my lovely daughter committed suicide. In one moment, she left me for the rest of my life. Part of me will always be missing. Oh God, I miss her so much, and the pain never stops. I don't believe anyone in the world can help me, but I had to write anyway.--A Heartbroken Mother in Van Nuys, Calif.

DEAR MOTHER: For two years, you've been suffering, and counseling did nothing for you? Was chemical help suggested? If not, it should have been. Please call your family doctor today and ask for the name of a psychiatrist who will put you on

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Michael Jackson said all along the girl was his. A jury has backed him up.

Jurors said Wednesday the pop star did not steal the hits "Thriller," "The Girl is Mine" and "We Are the World" from two other songwriters.

Reynaud Jones and Robert Smith, childhood neighbors of the Jackson family, had alleged that parts of their songs were pirated for the three hits.

"I'm just very happy that all my clients' innocence has been reaffirmed by the jury," Jackson lawyer Robert Rotstein said. "We always thought that there was absolutely no merit to the suit."

Jackson, plagued by allegations of child molestation, did not attend the three-week trial, testifying instead on videotape.

medication. It will make an enormous difference in your life. Trust me.

Meanwhile, write to The Compassionate Friends. This organization is for parents whose children have died. They do a wonderful job. Please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to The Compassionate Friends, P.O. Box 3696, Oak Brook, Ill. 60522-3696. (A dollar or two to help defray costs would be greatly appreciated.)

Let me hear from you. I want to know how you are doing. God bless.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I recently went to great expense to move our child to another school district, which we had heard provided better opportunities for learning. I am beginning to wonder if there is such a place. Our child is not challenged. The teachers keep emphasizing "fun" and encourage the use of calculators for simple math "so it won't be too hard."

I recently asked if there would be a spelling bee and was told such activities were discouraged because they weren't fair to the children who weren't good spellers. I was also told that spelling bees only teach kids how to memorize words. When I asked if sports were going to be eliminated because our child isn't good at any of them, the school administrators didn't think it was funny.

This "dumbing down" of our schools is what is wrong with education today. Our child is dyslexic and will never star in a spelling bee, but she has other talents. We don't expect the school to eliminate such events because they are difficult for her. Good grief. What is going on?--Muddled Mom in Michigan

DEAR MUDDLED IN MICHIGAN: I agree that too many schools are softening the curriculum to accommodate the less-motivated students. It is imperative that standards be kept high because children won't make the effort if they know they can slide by. Bravo for your interest, Mom. Too many parents today are not paying enough attention.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 32-year-old receptionist and sometime model. To put it honestly, I look striking and get hit on a lot.

Two weeks ago, I met a gorgeous guy through a friend. We liked each other right away. The chemistry was great. We had a few drinks before dinner and champagne with the meal. He then invited me to his apartment to spend the night.

The next morning, he was gone before I got up. I haven't heard from him since. We got along beautifully. I can't figure it out. Can you?--G.R. in N.Y.

DEAR G.R.: The sample was ample.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Big style hair back in fashion

Among the well-dressed and the well-tressed, what's new these days is what's old.

The bell-bottoms, fringe, mesh, clogs and studded denim of the seventies are seen again on fashionable women today.

What's more, the "big hair" styles of that era grace the covers of today's top fashion magazines.

To help you make it big with hair fashion, here are some tips:

-The proper retro-look begins with the right hair cut. Take the time to talk to your stylist and make sure he or she knows just what you want.

-For the big, soft, loose romantic curves and waves that look like they flowed in with the tide and are key to achieving the retro-look, you'll need velcro rollers and an oxidizing lotion. Dry them under a hooded dryer. A hand-held dryer can wash out those waves.

-Once it's dry, style your hair with a styling lotion or alcohol-free gel. Don't use a mousse which may dry out your hair. Always style with your finger, never a pick or vent brush.

-To bring out the retro-look even more, add a little color. Highlights can accentuate your look without stressing your hair. Stay with shades of your own hair color, however, to keep your hair more manageable.

Keep these tips in mind and you can keep your hair in style with the trend toward the past.

Amid negative news, America still hopes

EDITOR'S NOTE - So much has changed: our families, economy, neighborhoods and towns, our dreams and expectations of what the future might hold. When people feel lost, they look for home. And many are finding it in the old notion of community, the covenant citizens share with one another. In each other lie both answers and the crucial questions: Who are we as a nation - and who will we become?

By LESLIE DREYFOUS
AP National Writer
PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) - A guy named Stubby starts off: "America's a mess," he says. And quickly the rest join in.

Just look at the headlines. Haven't you seen Geraldo or Oprah lately? What about Washington? Useless. The media? Out of touch. The economy? Sour. The social fabric? Frayed, perhaps beyond repair. Kids don't have values today. Parents don't care for their kids. I'm not to blame, but someone is. Not you or me, maybe. But someone.

It's about 9 a.m. and the roundtable regulars at Roy Trimble's place, the Little Castle, are at work assessing the world. The smells of biscuits and gravy, which Roy has been prepping since 3:30 a.m., drift off his griddle like a whiff of home. Outside, the parking lot is jammed with assorted police cruisers, pickups and American cars.

Dick McNeil has come in a little late this morning, but quickly catches up with the discussion, offering a theory he calls "coming of age."

A few of the older roundtable regulars roll their eyes.

"I'm 39 and people my age and younger are maturing," he persists. "We're becoming citizens. What happened in the 'I want it all for me and the hell with you' years when we were younger can't work in America today. We're growing up."

"The question people have started asking is: Are we going to take the bull by the horns or not? Are we going to turn things around, or sit and watch the country die?"

Pick up the Formica table at Roy's diner and drop it just about anywhere in America: Conversations like this one go on everywhere. But the voices are isolated, separate pieces of an enormous quilt stitched with frustration and despair.

In each of these small squares, though, lies hope. For all the horror to be seen on the 11 o'clock news, for all the apathy each election year highlights, for all the negativism and anxiety, the great majority of Americans still hold in them the most vital ingredient of all.

They care. Wittingly or not, and regardless of the unfolding of his political career, Ross Perot tapped into a very real energy. He seemed to offer a point of entry to citizens who felt locked out by a system at once too small to embrace them and too big to hold.

"He touched something. You're seeing a renewed interest, a commitment among people to address problems in their area. And I think it's a feeling out across the country. But the state and federal governments are not in tune. At every turn there's something ... saying no," McNeil says. "You've got to ignore the institutions. And I think people are ready to do that."

A county commissioner, city fire marshal and father of two young kids, McNeil has both political and personal stakes in Paducah's state of affairs and the affairs of the nation. He's got a union background and voted for Bill Clinton mainly in hopes of change. But like a lot of Americans, he's come to doubt that the big political players can really serve him, the taxpayer.

"The average person in this country is too busy these days trying to earn a living and support a family to be concerned with what's going on in Washington, D.C.," he says, putting down his cup of coffee. "But that's not entirely bad. People blame the government, blame society, for the majority of their problems. But who is society? People are realizing the answer now."

Listen closely. There are many, many voices, millions of people in big cities, small towns and bedroom communities. They aren't special people. They may be your neighbors. They may be you.

Listen closer still. Can you hear the rumbling?

Five years. That's the number that keeps coming up. It was about five years ago that people started realizing not much was trickling down, and that a beautiful body didn't necessarily have soul. It was about five years ago that people started chafing against a certain nameless emptiness.

"One of the problems is that we've lost the language to describe what we yearn for," says Richard Louv, a family columnist and author of "Father Love" and "101 Things You Can Do For Our Children's Future."

"Community," Louv says, resignedly. "The blood has been sucked out of the word. If I talk about community, people's eyes glaze over. The word has been bureaucratized."

To be a good citizen. The way it rolls around in your mouth, it sounds almost corny. But the longing for connections is articulated everywhere in an ever more fragmented society. In gangs, on talk radio, at the doors of day care centers, over the computer superhighway and barbells at the gym, in the crowds that gather for sports events and stroll malls on sunny days in search of that perfect something.

"People are more ready for change than they know," says Louv, who has spoken with thousands of Americans already engaged in changing their corners of the nation. "I get accused a lot of times of being overly idealistic in the face of reality. My answer to that is: How can you not be idealistic in the face of reality? What's the option?"

Louv is no Pollyanna. There is in this nation a secret underbelly, the most powerful force around, short of nuclear arms. It's all the stuff we forget to talk about. The quiet stuff that, when added up, means a lot. And when overlooked, begins to mean nothing at all.

But there it is, easy to find in an extended zigzag tour of the nation's small towns and city streets: A vast network of people with heart and commitment. They are small people making small inroads in their small communities, whether on a block in Harlem or on a street in suburbia.

Their efforts don't make the front page as extraordinary efforts do. When the Persian Gulf War, Hurricane Andrew or last summer's Midwestern floods stir people to do great and generous things, the nation applauds itself.

But such dramas are the exception, and do not tell the whole story.

Well over a million volunteer and community service organizations exist in America today. Some 16 million citizens belong to 20,000 neighborhood crime watch programs. Hundreds of thousands of support groups for every kind of problem from joblessness to fear of flying gather regularly. Some $124 billion, most of it donated by individuals, goes to charity each year.

Travel any distance on the nation's highways and you'll find long stretches adopted by citizens who keep them pruned and free of trash. On the sign welcoming you to just about any town, you'll find the logos of Kiwanis, Lions, Moose clubs, the VFW, the 4H, churches of every denomination. And from block to block, whether in the smallest hamlet or the largest urban hub, countless soup kitchens are run for the poor, Little Leagues for kids, hospices for the elderly, walkathons for the sick, bake sales for a local jungle gym, parades for hometown pride.

There is no "news" in this. But it is significant, even exciting.

"We've met so many citizens who are understanding that it's not an option just to vote every few years and pray you've elected somebody clean. It's an ongoing role for public service," says author Frances Moore Lappe.

"What we're talking about is a redefinition of democracy, the active engagement of us all in every aspect of our lives outside our living rooms and bedrooms," adds Paul DuBois, her husband and co-founder of the Center for Living Democracy, a nonpartisan clearinghouse for community activism.

The couple, whose base is Brattleboro, Vt., has spent much of the last year talking with thousands of people about grassroots efforts, many of which will be highlighted in their forthcoming book, "The Quickening of America: Rebuilding Our Nation, Remaking Our Lives."

"Beneath all the dire headlines and all the indices of decline, there is in fact a great deal of exciting learning and coming together," Lappe says. "But when people are invisible," says DuBois, "they can't serve as sources of hope, or teach lessons about what works."

Just imagine if the nation waged a war against social decay at home as determinedly as we once stood against Nazism abroad. Just imagine a peer pressure that made apathy as undesirable as smoking and community involvement as much a status symbol as a hot new car. Just imagine if public service were as cool as rap or as macho as Wrestlingmania, and everyday heroes were covered like Hollywood stars.

"For anyone to stand out in the community - well, doing good things is looked down upon. I think about getting involved, but I'm afraid there would be no one standing behind me," says Allison Tatters, 22, who had hoped to be styling hair by now.

Instead, she has settled for a night clerk's job at a motel in Torrington, Conn., which in this economy will do, but is still disappointing.

"The more I hear and see how the world is turning out, the more I think I don't want to bring a child into this world," she says glumly. "You never hear anything good anymore."

Does she volunteer? Is she involved in this community she says is more and more terrorized by drugs and gangs? After a brief silence, she offers: "Eventually the people who really do care about what's going on will stop it, and get America back to where it should be."

Then, as if detached from the equation, she adds: "I don't know who those people will be."

Rugged individualism, the right of every citizen to pursue his or her dream unimpeded, has been behind the nation's greatest strides, from the creation of the Bill of Rights to the trail west that Lewis and Clark blazed to that first walk on the moon.

But the balance between individual rights and the responsibilities individuals have to the good of all is delicate. The scales tip easily, and a growing number of people fear they have tipped too far in the wrong direction.

More and more citizens have begun to ask: What about the rights of communities as a whole? What about the rights of children to a future full of the promise offered generations past? And, most of all, what are our responsibilities to one another?

These are old questions, questions so huge, so crucial and so fundamental that they begin to seem brain-numbingly abstract.

They have to do with big business and small jobs, taxes and welfare, jails and housing, guns and drugs, tolerance and fear, the state of our families and schools, our churches, federal government, environment, the privileges of wealth and the price of poverty, the cost of living, and the debt of participation all members of a democracy ultimately owe.

A nucleus of hardcore volunteers, social activists who would not necessarily label themselves as such, has always thrived in America. But more and more people are wondering now whether they can afford any longer to be exempt from this circle.

President Clinton and his administration have brought a new, old language to Washington, sounding themes of community and responsibility again and again.

A new sense of obligation has imposed itself on even the most disaffected of citizens, whose level of volunteerism has surged in recent years. Longtime activists are enlivened. They say the readiness is palpable, the network in place, the ethic as old as the Golden Rule.

Now it's for Americans, one by one, to determine their part.

People in the news

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Fired? Me? Nah. "I quit," Shannen Doherty says in her version of why she left "Beverly Hills, 90210."

"I feel no sadness. Who wants to get up at 5 a.m. and leave the arms of your husband and go work for 12 hours in a job in which you're miserable?" she said in an interview in TV Guide's Jan. 23 issue.

Doherty said it was a mutual decision by her and producer Aaron Spelling.

"We backed each other against the wall," Doherty said.

Spelling, whose daughter, Tori, also stars in the TV show, said only that "Shannen knows why she will not be on the show next year."

Doherty said she's working on a movie, "Blindfold." She said she also wants to turn her attention to her husband, Ashley Hamilton, the son of bronzed actor George Hamilton.

"When I started the show, all I cared about was my career," she said. "Now I care about being with my husband. I take my marriage seriously."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - John Hartman, the drummer for the original Doobie Brothers, won't be pounding a beat for the Petaluma police.

Hartman sued the police department, saying its refusal to hire him over his drug use during his rock 'n' roll days amounted to discrimination against a disabled person.

But a federal judge ruled that Hartman was turned down because he gave different versions of the level of his drug use.

Hartman was a founding member of the Doobies - slang for a marijuana cigarette - in 1971. He admitted using drugs until 1975, when other band members told him his music was suffering.

After Hartman left the band in 1979, he worked as a firefighter, then - admitting his past drug use - got a part-time job as a reserve Petaluma policeman in 1988. When he applied in 1991 for a full-time job, he said he had used more drugs than he previously admitted.

The 1860 Republican Party convention in Chicago nominated Abraham Lincoln for president.

Dr. Keith Norvell, D.C.

Welcome to HUSTLIN' HEREFORD!

This week, join us in welcoming Keith Norvell who moved here earlier this month from Gainesville, Texas to become an associate of Cross Chiropractic Clinic at 711 S. 25 Mile Ave. Norvell has been practicing chiropractic for five years and is a native of Irving, Texas. When he's not straightening the kinks out of his patient's lives he enjoys spending time with his "beautiful" 4-year-old daughter Taylor Morgan, fishing and bicycle racing during warmer summer months.

Natural gas prices are stable

Natural gas will remain the consumer's best energy value in 1994, according to the American Gas Association, even though changes in federal regulations and other factors may cause prices to edge up in some areas.

"Even with some increases in natural gas prices, many residential customers across the country will be paying less for their natural gas service than they did 10 years ago," says A.G.A. President Michael Baly. "Customers like natural gas for its convenience and cleanliness, but they especially like its economy."

The U.S. Department of Energy also rates natural gas as the residential customer's best buy. DOE estimates that the price of natural gas for residential customers during the first six months of 1993 was $5.71 per million Btu, compared with $6.69 for heating oil and $23.74 for electricity.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Pop singer Richard Marx and his actress wife, Cynthia Rhodes, are the parents of a new baby boy.

Eight-pound Jesse was born Tuesday, Marx's publicist said Friday.

Marx is known for the 1980s hits "Hold On to the Nights" and "Don't Mean Nothing." Rhodes co-starred in "Flashdance" and "Dirty Dancing."

Program on Indians given for study club

A program on the history of Indians was presented for members of the Lone Star Study Club by Donna Brockman, executive director of Deaf Smith County Historical Museum. The women met recently in the home of Betty Jo Carlson.

Brockman explained that at one time there were five Indian tribes located in the Texas Panhandle. She said that the tribe women did all of the domestic work and the men hunted buffalo, deer, bear and fish. She also noted that all parts of the animals were used for food, clothing, etc. Brockman displayed several items to enhance her program.

In the absence of the club president, Vice President Carlson called the meeting to order. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and members read the club collect.

Marie Harris was welcomed as a new member and Ursalee Jacobsen was welcomed back after a long absence.

Roll call was answered by "what I know about Indians."

The hostess and co-hostess, Gladys Willoughby, served refreshments to Margaret Ann Durham, Byrdie Fellers, Mildred Fuhrmann, Wilma Goetsch, Naomi Hare, Birdene Huff, Ursalee Jacobsen, Verna Sowell, Ruby Stevenson, Marie Harris and Donna Brockman.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 8 in the Durham home.

Veleda members hear program on Shakers

"Shakers at Pleasant Hill" was the program presented by Juanita Brown when the Veleda Study Club met Wednesday in her home.

Brown showed a video on Shaker Hill and explained that the village consists of 2,200 acres and has been restored by the Shakers. She said that the Shakers never marry and have children. Life for them is religion and the Mennennial Law which was written in 1821. Many people today are familiar with the Shakers only through the beautiful boxes, chairs and other hand-crafted objects they create.

Brown said that the group left behind poems, sayings and songs that reflect their dedication to friendship and humility.

During the business meeting which was called to order by Frances Crume, thank you notes were read from the Texas Department of Human Services for the Christmas gifts donated by the club. Also, plans were made for the group's husbands' party scheduled in February.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Tom Arnold just couldn't keep it quiet: His new CBS series, "Tom," is taking over the time slot held by "Hearts Afire."

"Tom Arnold sort of jumped the gun," said "Hearts" producer Harry Thomason. "He sent the guys at CBS into shock."

The "Hearts Afire" mid-April shift from 8:30 p.m. EST Wednesday to 9:30 p.m. EST Monday was supposed to be announced later, Thomason said.

Arnold made his comments Wednesday during a tour by TV critics. Thomason spoke to Arnold later and said there were no hard feelings.

"Hearts Afire," which stars John Ritter and Markie Post, will replace "Love & War," which the network intends to bring back at another time.

If you should put even a little on a little and should do this often, soon this too would become big.--Hesiod

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My lower stomach has been swollen and very bloated for over seven months. In all this time, I have had alternating diarrhea, constipation and stomach cramps.

I have had pelvic and lower stomach sonograms and CT scans, upper GI, bowel studies, endoscopy and colonoscopy tests. I have been checked for parasites. I have also been tested for ovarian cancer. All of the tests were normal.

My doctor feels I have irritable bowel syndrome. If this were the case, I think my stomach would fluctuate with different food reactions. My stomach has remained bloated for the past seven months. I hope you can offer some suggestions as to why my stomach could be so swollen. At times I feel at the end of my rope and am very scared.

DEAR READER: With all those tests you should feel reassured that you don't have any of the life-threatening illnesses such as intestinal obstruction or cancer.

The diagnosis of irritable bowel syndrome is one of exclusion: what is left after ruling out other causes. That doesn't mean there is not a cause, just that the cause was not identified.

Very often the problem is food intolerance. Since there are so many things a person consumes that might cause such reactions, it is a long search to find out what the real cause is.

If you can stand it, try to fast for an entire day, drinking only water. The next day you might eat a small amount of lean meat, broiled, and perhaps a small amount of rice or boiled potato, without adding spices, butter or other items. If your bloating begins to disappear you are on to something. The next step is to gradually add one at a time your normal foods. Such an elimination diet, if followed carefully, may identify any foods or beverages that may be causing your problem.

I have discussed how to do this in more detail along with other measures that help to control such symp-ptoms in my new Special Report 140, Update on Irritable Bowel and Constipation. I'm sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/140, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

Many of the foods that provide bulk also cause gas, which may make symptoms worse. But others find that increasing bulk improves bowel function. If you happen to be overweight, do your best to lose those pounds. The decreased pressure from fat inside the abdomen often makes a person feel better.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read in your column about a woman having air noises coming from her vagina. You said she probably had a pin-sized hole between the vagina and the rectum. My problem is similar, but it is not air. Whenever I have my menses and a bowel movement at the same time, I have blood coming from the vagina and the rectum. This only happens when I am having my period. There is blood on the toilet tissue. This has been occurring for several years. Should I be alarmed?

DEAR READER: You will need a pelvic examination to be sure what the problem is, and you may need to have it done when you are menstruating. I would doubt you have a hole between the vagina and rectum. But I would be suspicious that you may have endometriosis, with endometrial tissue, which is the source of bleeding actually in the wall of the lower colon or rectum. Displaced endometrial tissue from the uterus bleeds at the time of menstruation. That has even caused bleeding from the lungs.

Normally I think everyone who has unexplained bleeding from the rectum needs an examination.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES ARE GOING UP.

Under the new tax law, millions of retirees are going to pay more taxes on their Social Security benefits. If you're among them, you could be taxed on as much as 85 percent of your Social Security income.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Our heritage of American family values has taken a beating the past half century and the destructive processes attacking our children are accelerating. Teachers at HJH, as well as those in our other schools, stress values in our everyday teaching to our students. This happens in all areas of teaching from art classes to the playing field.

Ceramics classes at HJH are taught by Marion Goodin. Her Ceramics I classes are beginning the basic pottery project-pinch pots and slab pots, while Ceramics II classes are beginning self-portraits. If these students will learn to enjoy expressing themselves through art-even to a small degree of how their teacher enjoys it, they will have attained much.

Builders Club is involved in an effort to recycle paper at HJH. Each room has had a recycle box placed in it and club members have volunteered to empty the boxes. Students on this committee are April Simons, Lisa Beavers, Kris Friel, Erica DelGado, Merchele Gonzales, Yvonne Hernandez, Nick Chand, Candie Holmes, Willie Rhyne and Nicole McWhorter.

Math Students had an opportunity recently to become involved in a Math-A-Thon to raise money for St. Jude Research Hospital. Students obtained sponsors for the math work they completed and earned a total of $566.70. Students raising $75.00+ and receiving a certificate, T-shirt and tote bag were Carey Lyles, Amber Huckins and Lance Pennington. Those raising $30.00+ and receiving a certificate and T-shirt Emily Fry, John McWhorter, Josh Rowe, Jaime Steiert, Tara Mays, Rodney Rhyne and Willie Rhyne. Receiving certificates and raising just less than $30.00 were Eric Williams and Stephanie Taylor. Congratulations to each of these young people.

Due to my being with my daughter while she is undergoing hip surgery, Sue Morris will be helping with our HJH Roundup for the next two columns. Several teachers have volunteered to share the news from their classes with her so that she may share them with you.

It is not what happens to us yesterday that makes the difference in our values, attitudes and behavior. It is the result of years past. We have no idea how rooted our beliefs, thoughts and behavior patterns are in childhood. Since it is the childhood influence that holds the key, we must remember that today is our children's past.

The first U.S. Transcontinental Railroad System was completed at Promontory, Utah on May 10, 1869.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

THESE THINGS ARE TRUE

The real advantage which truth has, consists in this, that when an opinion is true, it may be extinguished once, twice, or many times, but in the course of ages there will generally be found persons to rediscover it. - John Stuart Mill

Here is a column devoted to truth. Perhaps these truisms were once extinguished, but now they are rediscovered. Some truisms in this collection are original while others are not. Some are serious while others are whimsical. The one element they all have in common is that they are true.

Business Truisms

- The shortest line at the check out counter always requires the longest wait.
- There is little correlation between the lowest price and the best value.
- Competition discourages mediocrity and encourages quality.
- Quality never goes out of style. Neither do good manners, smiles and the truth.

- Alcohol doesn't mix any better with business than it does with driving.
- Three things you shouldn't believe when you're in business: 1) The check's in the mail; 2) I'm with the IRS and I'm here to help; and 3) It won't cost much.
- The customer who complains the loudest usually spends the least.
- Remembering your customer's name is more important than remembering your own.
- We would waste less time in business if all prices were rounded up to the nearest quarter.
- Most first class mail isn't, and most third class mail is.
- The pile of paperwork you're required to deal with when you return from vacation always increases by the square of the number of days you took off.
- When a pushy sales clerk says, "Oh Honey, that's just your size" (color, style, etc.) don't buy it.
- Disappearing business breaks include lucky breaks, tax breaks, coffee breaks, smoke breaks and lunch breaks.
- The level of expenses always rises to exceed the level of income.
- A lot of things that other people say will be good for your business, aren't worth the space they take up.
- Political correctness adds smooth sounding terms to business definitions. For example, I used to be broke, now I'm financially challenged; I used to be short of cash, now I'm suffering from Liquid Asset Deficiency Syndrome (LADS).

Truth in Government

- Three greatest barriers to free enterprise are Federal government, State government and local government.
- Free enterprise is doggone expensive.

- The customer giveth, the government taketh away.
- We would waste less money at the government without growth in taxes.
- Downsizing in the private sector eliminates jobs and waste; downsizing in government adds jobs and increase taxes.
- In every country where the tax rate has exceeded 30%, the government has failed. Speeches made by government leaders remind me of listening to an old record with the phonograph needle stuck in one groove.

Miscellaneous Truths

- The good stuff in a buffet line starts showing up after you have your plate full.
- Children never have to go to the bathroom until after you're back on the interstate.
- We still use the expression "the phone is ringing" when most phones chime, chink, tinkle, cheep or chirp.
- Two things happen when you turn 40. First, your memory goes - you can't even remember simple things. Second, uh-h-h-I don't remember what it was now.

Capitol renovation getting help from donations

By MIKE WARD
Austin American-Statesman
AUSTIN (AP) - As a young boy growing up in Austin, B.L. Westlund was fascinated by the Capitol. Thirty years ago, the adult Westlund bought an old chair from the statehouse for a few dollars at an antique shop. It was something with which he could remember the grand old building.

Now, with a $187.6 million project to restore the Capitol about a year from completion, Westlund has donated the chair to the state so it can be returned to its original place in a legislative chamber.

"I kind of hated to part with it. But, you know, I kind of took a little pride in the fact that it was going back where it came from," said Westlund, 66. "It just kind of gives me a good feeling."

He is not alone. From across Texas, out of dusty attics and dingy storage rooms, people are returning an assortment of Capitol furniture and artifacts - each one contributing its own piece to the historic project.

Austinite Helen Eby Craig, 81, who recently donated a walnut Senate chair, matter-of-factly explained why:

"They're restoring the Capitol. I wanted them to have it."

Bonnie Campbell, the Capitol curator, attributes the interest to Texans' affection for the building.

"We are doing a very thorough restoration of the building and its contents," she said. "As people see that, even though they're very attached to some of these (furniture) items, it seems like the right thing to do is to give it back to the Capitol where it will be cared for and preserved forever."

Campbell said Westlund's swivel chair was one of more than 100 used in the House chamber from 1889 until the 1940s. Since then, most had been disposed of and only a few remained in state possession, she said.

It was made by the Milwaukee Chair Co., one of three chair makers who helped furnish the pink-granite Capitol after it was completed in 1888.

One arm had been broken off Westlund's oak chair years ago, but he kept the pieces, always intending to restore it. Campbell said it will be refurbished to its original condition, complete with leather seat and backrest.

"We're planning on putting a few of these chairs back in the House chamber for an interpretative display so the tour guides can explain what things looked like," Campbell said. "It's important that people, schoolchildren, understand what this period of history was like for Texas."

The Capitol is being restored to a period from 1888 to 1915. Because the building remains a working seat of government, only 10 areas are to be fully refurbished.

Some Capitol furniture that has turned up is aiding the restoration another way.

A Fort Worth-area family discovered that an old swivel chair they owned was one of three originally used by the state Court of Appeal, which later became the Court of Criminal Appeals. Until then, Campbell said, restorers had only photos to rely upon in trying to have replicas built.

"We didn't know about the decoration on the base, and we weren't quite right about the detailing of the carvings," she said. "And we couldn't have known about the rosettes."

But now, thanks to the chair owners, the state can make accurate replicas.

In recent weeks, other chairs and an oak double-pedestal desk have been located. That has added to an assortment of newly found items, ranging from etched-glass transoms and a wood shutter to brass door hardware.

A priority is to find some of the more than 1,400 opera seats that originally filled the House and Senate galleries.

The folding seats, which officials believe were replaced with modern theater-style seats in the 1950s or 1960s, had decorative cast-iron sides and a back rail bearing a floral design.

Old photos and catalogs from the 1880s show the seats had small arms protruding from the legs, which were designed to hold an umbrella or cane. Undereath the wooden seats were wire racks to hold men's hats.

"I'm sure somebody salvaged a lot of them ... because they broke out in sections," said Darlene Marwitz, a State Preservation Board historian and manager of the Capitol historic furnishings project.

If enough of the seats can be found, Campbell and Marwitz said, they could be reinstalled in the House chamber. There, a small gallery area is to be restored so "people can have some idea of what was there."

The cost of the historic furnishings is being paid with a fund-raising drive launched last month. Officials want to raise $5 million to refinish and replicate authentic Capitol furnishings, to restore the building's grounds and for other related projects.

The four-year restoration is scheduled for completion in 1995.

Campbell and Marwitz said they are interested in finding other old Capitol items - from porcelain and metal water coolers to typewriters to decorative pen and ink stands to the curving brass wall sconces that once illuminated the Rotunda.

Obituaries take on personal air at small-town newspaper

By JAY REEVES
Associated Press Writer
GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (AP) - Not many newspapers would begin an obituary by recalling that the dear departed once shoved a piece of fruit up his nose.

But The Advertiser-Gleam isn't like most newspapers.

In fact, it might not be like any other newspaper when it comes to death notices.

The family-owned, twice-weekly paper puts a lot more than funeral arrangements and survivors in its obituaries. The back-page blurbs include the kind of gossip you'd hear in hushed tones on the porch of a small-town home.

Take the opening paragraph of a December obituary for Homer "Frenchie" McSherry, 68:

"He pushed a little green peach up his nose when he was 2 years old. They put him to sleep to try to get it out, but couldn't. It stayed there until it popped out a long time later."

And there are more, all printed in the past year:

"Two days before what would have been her 100th birthday, Mrs. Jim Griffith was cleaning a box where she kept her pet chicken when she had a stroke, fell down the back steps of her home in Browns Valley and died almost immediately."

Simon Lang, 78, fell on hard times after his father died. Lang was only 9 at the time, the paper explained, but he was determined: "Simon had done farm work almost ever since he could remember and he felt sure he could make a crop on his own, but he had a hard time finding anybody who would rent him a farm. He finally did, and after he made his first crop, he didn't have any more trouble finding a place to rent."

The Gleam recounted how Doris Lucille McCollum, 61, was taken ill for the last time: "She got sick Christmas night with what they thought was inner ear trouble. It turned out to be leukemia."

The slice-of-life obits are the work of 90-year-old Porter Harvey, who came to northeastern Alabama on a bus in 1941 and founded The Gleam. Harvey bought out The Guntersville Advertiser in 1944 and combined the papers, but many locals continue to refer to it as the Gleam.

As in the early days, Harvey bangs out his stories on an old manual typewriter. The staff of nine includes his son, editor Sam Harvey, who is president of the Alabama Press Association, and son-in-law Don Woodward, who is general manager of the paper.

The Advertiser-Gleam has a circulation of 12,300, the largest for any non-daily paper in Alabama. That's not bad considering Guntersville has only 7,000 residents and is on a tear-shaped peninsula in the middle of the Tennessee River.

Jim Oakley, a journalism instructor at the University of Alabama, said the Harveys' paper is a throwback to the old days of journalism, with its letter-from-home style. A 1993 issue is virtually identical to one from the 1950s.

"Some people would say we ought to hold it up and say, 'This is the way you shouldn't do it,'" Oakley said. "But I would never do that because you can't argue with their success."

Shatner's 'Tek War' is action in the future, with a future

Greg Evigan (right) plays a former policeman out to battle illegal traders of an electronic mind stimulant in "TekWar," airing in syndication this week (check local listings). The futuristic action-adventure is the first of four films based on William Shatner's "Tek" novels. Shatner (left) directs and also is a recurring guest star.

BY TED KUSIO

William Shatner's popular "Tek" novels are coming to television. And although they aren't likely to spawn a generation of "tekkers," the first film, "TekWars," does provide plenty of action with some great special effects.

"TekWar" is the first of four two-hour films based on Shatner's books. It airs in syndication during the week of Jan. 16 - 22 (check local listings for time, date and channel). The next film, "TekWar: TekLords," airs two weeks later. If the films do well, they may even lead to a weekly "Tek" series.

"TekWar" is part of a large undertaking by Universal Television and MCA TV called "Action Pack": 24 original action-adventure films to air in syndication throughout the year. Executive producers of upcoming films include John Landis and Sam Raimi.

In "TekWar," Greg Evigan plays Jake Cardigan, a former policeman in the year 2044. He is released from a cryogenic prison, where he was sent after being convicted of a crime he says that he didn't commit, to continue his fight against illegal dealers of Tek, an addictive electronic mind stimulant. Shatner guest stars as the owner of a detective agency that hires Jake.

The film rises above other futuristic television films, mostly due to high-quality special effects.

"If the effects aren't good, but the things around you are going to make it look like a higher budget movie, you know that you could be in trouble," Evigan says.

"There's nothing worse than standing there when you're acting and waving your arms at nothing or talking to nobody and then hoping that (the special effects people) save my butt," Evigan jokes. Recalling an earlier film where poor effects may have limited its success, he says, "I did a movie one time where nobody was in love with the monster; they called it Buffy."

"We decided very early on to try to achieve a look that was credible for 50 years from now," says co-producer and production designer Stephen Roloff. "We didn't want to go so far into science fiction that it felt like another universe."

Although the budget was generous for a television movie, it wasn't high enough to create the world 200 years in the future, as described in Shatner's "Tek" novels. So the films only take place 50 years in the future.

The special effects also add to the pretty basic crime-based good vs. evil tale; Jake is part private detective, spy and policeman as well as, seemingly, a wrongly accused man.

Shatner, as writer of the books and director of the first film, had specific ideas about Jake, but Evigan also brought his own ideas to the role.

"In the books (Jake) was more of an angry character," Evigan says, "and I think you can keep the edge to him; he does have a Tek problem. But I don't think you want to watch this angry, angry person through the entire film."

Evigan fleshes out his character by going beyond a typical action hero who shoots first with a big gun and asks questions later. Besides, Jake's gun is non-lethal due to parole limitations.

The concept of Tek also adds interest to the film by combining an addictive drug with technology.

"It would give you the big thrill," Evigan says, "It's past virtual reality."

"TekWar" is a solid action-adventure film with some wonderful special effects. By tweaking and mixing elements from James Bond and "Lethal Weapon" types of films, it offers nothing really new, but it is fun.

HIGHLIGHTS

Kelly McGillis stars in "Bitter Blood," a four-hour miniseries about divorce and its deadly aftermath, airing on CBS Sunday, Jan. 16, and Tuesday, Jan. 18.

Unable to accept the failure of her marriage, Susie Sharp Newsom (McGillis) uses her children as weapons against her husband. She then begins an obsessive affair with her cousin, a brooding survivalist with a taste for guns.

Their volatile, forbidden chemistry feeds Susie's growing rage against her ex-husband.

In an episode of CBS' "Green Acres," Lisa's infamous (and inedible) pancake batter was used to seal a gasket on the Douglas' truck.

Trivia is just a thing called Joe

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Questions:

1. Name the baseball great (he played for the Yankees) who was briefly married to one of America's best-known movie sex symbols.
2. Humphrey Bogart stars in this 1949 drama about an American expatriate who gets involved in smuggling and blackmail.
3. This actor frequently gives voice to the words of writer David Mamet on stage and screen. (Hint: He also appears in "The Godfather, Part III.")

Jason Bateman's character says he's a killer in "Confessions: Two Faces of Evil," Monday on NBC.

4. Identify the Oscar-winning actor who makes an unbilled appearance at the end of last year's "A Bronx Tale."

5. Spencer Tracy plays a pilot whose ghost briefly returns to Earth in this 1943 tear-jerker. Name the movie and (Bonus!) its 1989 remake directed by Steven Spielberg.

6. This screenwriter hit pay dirt with his script for 1992's "Basic Instinct"; the same can't be said for his "Sliver."

7. Name the no-nonsense character played by Jack Webb in "Dragnet."

- Answers:
1. Joe DiMaggio, the "Yankee Clipper," was wed to Marilyn Monroe.
 2. Tokyo Joe.
 3. Joe Mantegna.
 4. Joe Pesci.
 5. Tracy starred in "A Guy Named Joe"; Richard Dreyfuss reprised the role in "Always."
 6. Joe Eszterhas.
 7. Sgt. Joe Friday.

TRIVIA

1977's "Carter Country," named for then-President Jimmy Carter, was set in the sleepy Georgia hamlet of Clinton Corners.

David Janssen starred in television's "Richard Diamond" in the late '50s. Mary Tyler Moore played his secretary, Sam.

CABLE

The life of silent movie star Charlie Chaplin is dramatized in "Chaplin," premiering Wednesday on The Movie Channel. Robert Downey Jr. plays the man who helped define early American cinema.

Years before "Mannix," Mike Connors starred in 1957's "Tightrope." Public outcry over the series' violence drove it from the air.

Akira Kurosawa's "Throne of Blood" transplanted the drama of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" to the time of the Samurais.

Ross on shaky ground in network film debut; January continues as Cinemax premiere month

BY SARA BENNETT

Diana Ross makes her network film debut in "Out of Darkness," Sunday, Jan. 16, on ABC, as Paulie Cooper, a paranoid schizophrenic who tries to release herself from a hellish physical and emotional existence. With the help of an experimental drug, Cooper does her best while dealing with familial relationships throughout. Ann Weldon, Rhonda Stubbins White and Carl Lumbly also star.

On NBC, "The Russia House," starring Sean Connery and Michelle Pfeiffer, comes to the small screen for the first time. Connery portrays Barley Blair, a British publisher who falls for Katya (Pfeiffer), a Soviet woman he encounters while trying to carry out a task for the Secret Service.

Monday features two new network films hot on the murder trail. "Confessions: Two Faces of Evil," on NBC, stars Jason Bateman, James Wilder and James Earl Jones in a real-life story of a bizarre murder case. The district attorney (Jones) must determine who of the confessors (Bateman, Wilder) actually committed a Christmas Eve killing.

ABC offers "Betrayed by Love," another tangled murder story, featuring Mare Winningham as a woman who thinks she knows who killed her sister. After an FBI informant (Patricia Arquette) disappears, her sister (Winningham) enlists the help of authorities, despite the potential outcome.

Feature films make their Cinemax debuts every day during January. Most days offer a different genre, including comedy, drama and non-traditional releases. Sunday's 1943 film, "Edge of Darkness," falls under the heading of classics, Monday's comedy is "Crocodile Dundee II" and Tuesday's suspense film is "Traces of Red." Wednesday is cutting-edge night with "Flirting," and "Wind" provides the drama for Thursday. "Knight Moves," wraps up the workweek Friday; Saturday's action flick is "Conflict of Interest."

Jan. 16 - Jan. 22 HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
Focus on future travel plans. Use your imagination in matters of the heart. Don't worry about the things you cannot control.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
You will have to keep an open mind when discussing an unusual subject with a friend. Your creative powers will impress those around you.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Things never seem to go quite the way you planned, but it all works out in the end. Show your appreciation of friends and loved ones.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
You may have to seek an outside source for help with financial matters. Using a budget is a good idea, but only if you really follow it.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
When going into a new situation it would be to your benefit to put your insecurities aside. You may not have as much control as you would like.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
You must be direct but tactful with a loved one. Outdoor activities should probably be put on hold for a while. Watch your tone with a friend.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
You should probably take a second look at a problem you thought was solved. Someone may not be as truthful as you originally thought.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
It will not get any easier for you for a while, but these tough times will lead to something quite wonderful in the end. Remember to count your blessings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
Financial matters will finally take a turn for the better, and it is not a minute too soon. Good news involving family is on the way.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
You may have to adjust your schedule to accommodate others. Don't worry; it may seem inconvenient right now, but it will turn out well.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
A long-standing debt needs to be taken seriously. Look at the many positive aspects of yourself and work on the things that are not up to par.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
It is time for you to get rid of the old baggage you have been carrying around. You are a worthwhile person with a purpose. Do something about it.

LET'S TALK
What does teen idol Luke Perry like to do when not in 'Beverly Hills'?

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Luke Perry

Q: I am interested in knowing a little about Luke Perry from "Beverly Hills, 90210" and "Buffy the Vampire Slayer." Where is his home town? Could you tell me his interests? What other programs and movies has he been in? Is there an address where I can write to him? I am a big fan of his. -Samantha Shilling, Kerrville, Texas.

A: Perry grew up in Fredricktown, Ohio, where he realized at the age of 12 that he wanted to be an actor. Determined to make that dream a reality, he moved to Los Angeles to study acting after completing high school. He continued his training in New York while also performing in various stage productions and television commercials.

Perry's first break in television was the role of Ned Bates in the ABC daytime drama "Loving." He also played the recurring role of Kenny on "Another World," an NBC daytime drama.

Besides television, Luke has worked on two feature films in addition to "Buffy"; "Terminal Bliss" and "Scorchers."

Some of his interests include fishing, woodwork, basketball and cooking.

You can write to him C/O Fox Broadcasting Company, 102201 W. Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.

of 8 as a human mannequin in a San Francisco department store. Soon afterward he appeared as a catalog model and in commercials, which took him to Los Angeles.

"I was hired for my first commercial on Friday the 13th and now it's become my lucky day," Diamond says.

He made his television series debut as a guest star on "It's a Living," followed by a starring role on "Good Morning, Miss Bliss." He also has made guest appearances on "The Wonder Years" and "Hollywood Close-Ups."

His movie credits include "The Monster Squad," "The Price of Life," "Big Top Pee-Wee," "Purple People Eater" and "She's Out of Control." On stage he has performed in productions of "Sleeping Beauty," "The Nutcracker" and "The Magi: Carousel."

You can write to him C/O "Saved By the Bell: The College Years," Sunset-Gower Studios, 1438 N. Gower, Box 27, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Q: A few years ago there was a TV miniseries about the takeover of America by a foreign country (Russia, I think). One of the stars was Kris Kristofferson and I think Christine Lahti was in it also. What was the name of the miniseries? Who were the other stars? Is it available on videotape? -D.R., High Point, N.C.

A: The miniseries in question is "Amerika." It aired in seven parts in 1989 and starred Kristofferson and Lahti as well as Robert Ulrich and Cindy Pickett. The series is not available on video.

Q: While I was hospitalized in 1991, one of the cable channels I was watching advertised a movie called "Cold Sassy Tree." Could you tell me who starred in this film and if it is available on video? -Lorraine Hill, Bowler, Wis.

A: "Cold Sassy Tree" was made for cable TV in 1989. It starred Faye Dunaway, Richard Widmark, Neil Patrick Harris and Frances Fisher and is available on video.

Q: I am a big fan of "Saved By the Bell: The College Years." I especially like Dustin Diamond who plays Screech. Where is he from? What other things has he been in? Where can I write to him? -J.P., Sioux City, Iowa.

A: Diamond is a native of San Jose, Calif., and began performing at the age

HOME BIJOU

Myrna Loy left lively legacy on film, including six 'Thin Man' movies

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Myrna Loy, who died last month at the age of 88, made her film debut in silent pictures (including 1927's historic "The Jazz Singer") but hit her stride with 1933's "Topaze," playing a naive schoolteacher in France who becomes the unwitting dupe in the scheme of a wily businessman, played by John Barrymore. She played Ann Harding's romantic rival in "When Ladies Meet" and a gangster's moll opposite Max Baer's love-struck pugilist in "The Prizefighter and the Lady." She acted twice with Clark Gable in 1934: in acting teacher Richard Boleslawski's stern but effective "Men in White" and in the energetic "Manhattan Melodrama," a film most famous as the movie watched by John Dillinger just before he was gunned down in Chicago.

But it was with 1934's "The Thin Man" and its sequels that Loy made her lasting mark in the movies. As Nick and Nora Charles, William Powell and Loy were the picture of urbane sophistication, and their breezy banter was as much a part of the movies' appeal as the mysteries being solved. There are six "Thin Man" films, and each is a pleasure to watch. James Stewart is a suspect in "Another Thin Man," and the Charles visit several cool jazz clubs in 1947's "Song of the Thin Man," the series' final entry.

Loy defends husband Gables against the advances of predatory employee Jean Harlow in 1936's "Wife vs. Secretary," co-stars with Spencer Tracy in "Libeled Lady" and is part of the fine ensemble in William Wyler's Oscar-winning gem, "The Best Years of Our Lives." A moving film about America adjusting to life after World War II, the movie also features Fredric March, Dana Andrews, Teresa Wright and Harold Russell.

Other fine Loy efforts include "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House," "Cheaper by the Dozen," and "Lonelyhearts." Her last appearance came in 1980's "Just Tell Me What You Want."

Comic George Carlin returns to his old New York neighborhood, where his first network show takes place, to share his philosophies on life. "The George Carlin Show" premieres Sunday on Fox.

Carlin still has something to say, and Fox is listening

BY SARA BENNETT

"I finally learned how to do this stand-up stuff about five years ago," says comic George Carlin, who has been in the business for more than 30 years.

"I proved to the world that I wasn't just somebody who got hot in the '70s and hung on by his fingernails, but that I had good strong things to say in my mid-50s as well."

Carlin's latest endeavor provides him with an even greater forum for his opinions, both as star and executive producer. "The George Carlin Show," airing Sundays on Fox beginning Jan. 16, is his first shot at sitcom stardom, which may indeed come his way.

George O'Grady, Carlin's character, is a sometimes-cab driver on New York's Upper West Side who freely dispenses advice at the neighborhood tavern. The setting is far from glamorous, but true to the New York neighborhood it's modeled after. And, the O'Grady name is the maiden name of his grandmother.

So how much do O'Grady and Carlin have in common?

"This (O'Grady) is me if I had had all my verbal skills and my opinions, but had never left my neighborhood and had never had an ambition to go on the stage," Carlin says. "Because he's an anti-authoritarian, he doesn't fit into jobs easily, and he has stood up for his principles, foolishly sometimes, over the years."

"There he is in an autonomous setting, driving his cab, but we don't see much of the cab in the show. (But) here's a man who, in spite of his inflexibility, knows when to back off, which I think is an interesting little character quirk."

O'Grady hangs out with tavern bartender Jack Donahue (Anthony Starke), Sydney the waitress (Paige French) and Dr. Neil Beck (Christopher Rich). Perhaps the most developed character after O'Grady is his bookie-best friend (Alex Rocco).

With creator Sam Simon ("Simpsons," "Cheers") anchoring another project that has the right star in place, "The George Carlin Show" gives Fox's Sunday lineup a much-needed humor injection.

SATURDAY

Lucci, Gellar make the best of a tough story

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I have watched "All My Children" since the day it began. I really enjoyed it until they brought the character Kendall (Sarah Michelle Gellar) on to the show. I think the whole story line about Erica's rape is awful.

The rape supposedly took place before Erica (Susan Lucci) was even brought onto "AMC." It doesn't make any sense. The story line has really ruined the integrity of the show. —M.A. Brenton, Cranbrook, British Columbia.

Dear Reader: Many "AMC" fans were outraged by Erica's rape. Viewers have also noticed the many inconsistencies in the story, including the fact that one week Kendall was 17 and the next she was 23.

Rape is never a comfortable thing to deal with, but for the most part, Lucci has done a wonderful job with what she has been given.

Gellar has taken the task of portraying the complicated and manipulative Kendall to the hilt. This expressive young actress could someday be a diva to be reckoned with.

Dear Candace: Are the Bells out to lunch? Or do the writers of the "The Bold and the Beautiful" really believe that all viewers belong to the Dense and Dull Club? Square-jawed willowy witch Sheila has done her dirty deed on every victim to cross her path. She even hates her own mother. Am I supposed to believe that now she has a soft side, a capacity for human love? She does not deserve my understanding, compassion or forgiveness.

And then we have Lauren Fenmore, a floor-pacing, determined, tight-lipped, tongue-tied, wimpy example of a heroine. Pity the poor Forrester family for this faint-hearted friend. Get real!

The message of this story line is that sick, manipulative women can and do become rich and powerful by bringing other people down. I remember when "B&B" was worth running home from work on my lunch break. ... Not much longer, I'm afraid. —Rian O'Connor.
