Bodyguard arrested in skater attack

By ANDREW WATERS
Associated Press Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Tonya Harding's bodyguard and another man were jailed in an alleged plot to hobble rival figure skater Nancy Kerrigan, and investigators said two more arrests were expected.

Bodyguard Shawn Eric Eckardt, 26, and Derrick Brian Smith, 29, were charged with conspiracy to commit assault in last week's attack, which bruised Kerrigan's knee and nearly knocked her out of the Olympics.

Harding and her former husband, Jeff Gillooly, remained out of sight amid news reports alleging Gillooly had asked the 350-pound bodyguard to set up the attack. Authorities said there was no indication Harding was involved.

Sheriff's spokesman Bart Whalen said at least two more arrests were expected. He gave no details.

Fox News quoted unidentified law enforcement sources as saying Smith was the getaway driver for the man who clubbed Kerrigan at a Detroit arena Jan. 6. Sheriff's Lt. Jim Turney said he could not confirm that report.

The Oregonian newspaper reported today that police suspect the man who actually carried out the attack was Smith's nephew Shane Stant, 22, of Portland. The newspaper said police were searching for him.

The blow knocked Kerrigan out of last week's U.S. Figure Skating Championships, the qualifying trials for the Olympics next month in Lillehammer, Norway. Kerrigan was named to the team anyway, along with Harding, who won the U.S. championship.

The U.S. Olympic Committee said the 23-year-old Harding would remain on the team as long as she was not implicated in the assault.

There are other issues that must be resolved before questions of sportsmanship and conduct can be answered," said USOC executive director Harvey T. Schiller.

Michelle Kwan, the 13-year-old who finished second to Harding at the U.S. championships but was reduced to an alternate when U.S. skating officials named Kerrigan to the team, continued to practice for the Games just in case.

Eckardt and Smith were ordered held on $20,000 bail each. They could get up to 10 years in prison and a $100,000 fine.

Before his arrest, Eckardt tried to gather evidence against Gillooly, The Detroit Free Press reported today. The newspaper said Eckardt wore a wiretap to talk to Gillooly about the alleged conspiracy, but Gillooly failed to show up.

According to a private investigator in Portland, Gary Crowe, the FBI learned of the alleged plot from a local minister, Eugene Saunders.

Crowe said Saunders came to him for advice after a friend played him a tape recording of men alleged to be Gillooly, Eckardt and Smith discussing disabling Kerrigan. The attack allegedly was carried for a promised $100,000.

Meanwhile, Kerrigan's knee showed improvement after two days of physical therapy, said her agent, Jerry Solomon.

"She's doing great," Solomon said on CNN. "She's in the pool every day. She's doing hydrotherapy. Her range of motion in her knee is almost back to full."

Ready for the auction
Precinct 4 County Commissioner Johnny Latham stands amid the items that will be auctioned off on Saturday at the Bull Barn by the county, city and HISD. The joint auction is the third for the county, second for the city and first for the school district. It is a way for the government entities to dispose of unused, surplus property.

County, city, school auction offers just about something for everyone

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor
So here comes the weekend and it's time to go shopping for, say, a deep fat fryer, a bomb loader, a set of very old windows, some typewriters, or even an outdated school public-address system.

Where, oh where, can you go in Hereford to find all that stuff -- as well as a white pickup, school desk or industrial-strength popcorn popper. Why, you jump in your car Saturday morning, of course, and head over to the Bull Barn for the Deaf Smith County Auction, which will be held all day.

The auction is set to begin at 9:47 a.m. Saturday as the first of hundreds of items go on the blocks for the best possible price.

Why 9:47 a.m.? Precinct 4 Commissioner Johnny Latham, who is heading up the auction, said it is very simple.

"If you say 10 o'clock, they might show up at 10:15 a.m. or whenever," he said with a laugh. With a starting time of 9:47 a.m., everyone knows that is when the calling will begin -- not earlier and not later.

Latham said the Bull Barn will be open until 5 p.m. today for anyone who wants to see what will be available on Saturday.

"We'll probably have the buildings open about 8 or 8:30 Saturday morning" as well, he said. Latham said this is not the first time the county has sold off surplus items at auction.

"Four years ago we had our first county auction, then two years after that we had a county and city auction together," he said.

This year, for the first time, the two governmental bodies will be joined by the Hereford Independent School District, which has cleaned out its warehouses of literally tons of unneeded goods to put up for sale.

Because all three are entities funded with tax dollars, the county, city and school cannot just throw away old and unnecessary items, but must account for their disposal some way.

Thus, the auction, which Latham said is really the only feasible way to clear out warehouse space.

As a result, interested shoppers may browse through the Bull Barn and adjacent Little Bull Barn and opt to bid on recovered but non-returnable stolen bicycles from the police department, outdated school desks, or slightly used gym equipment including a pommel horse and two trampolines.

"A lot of this stuff has been stored under these bleachers for years," Latham said, waving at old dusty furniture, office equipment and two oak desks put into the auction by the county.

School property for sale came from the old Central School, the former Hereford Brand building and the old Bus Barn.

City stuff came from police, fire department and city storerooms.

Along one wall in the Little Bull Barn are several tables that are laden with boxes containing numerous old Hereford Fire Department radios.

Not far away are two old military bomb loaders -- still painted Army green and still marked with their military designations.

No, they are not being auctioned by Defense Secretary Les Aspin. Latham said the county bought those at a surplus sale for use as a type of fork lift.

That's also where the two Army Mules (mechanical, not mammalian) came from.

"We had a spray rig on these mules" and used them to spray bar ditches, he said.

As for comfort of travel, Latham said, they can travel up to 40 mph, or "faster than you want to ride it."

For slightly more comfortable travel, how about the police department's contribution, a 1989 Chrysler New Yorker -- the indirect gift from an unlucky drug dealer.

Back in the Bull Barn, Latham pointed across the room to a spot of color near the north wall.

"Those old blue science tables were from the old High School (now Stanton Educational Support Center) when I was there in the '50s," he said.

When the Hereford Lions Club sponsored wrestling matches in the Bull Barn, Latham said, two grease fryers were used to cook snacks -- now they are up for sale on the auction.

Nearby is a large popcorn popper and a small soft drink dispenser.

The newly-opened county Juvenile Detention Center even contributed items to the auction, even those it has been operating less than a month.

Latham pointed to two screen doors, several interior doors and a pile of carpet that were taken from that new facility during remodeling and hauled to the auction.

Necessity or nostalgia may lead you to one of several stoves, ovens, cook tops and microwave ovens -- these came out of HISD home economics classes.

The most unusual items? "Oh, lordy, that'd be a good question," Latham said. "(There's an) electric organ. Hair dressing stand from the school," or a Bi-Fi brand projector that had a 16mm film projector in the back of the large cabinet and a television screen in the front, providing a bulky, self-contained theater.

The pictures are in: The Hubble can see

HOUSTON (AP) - Mission accomplished - finally.

A month ago, seven astronauts returned to Earth from the biggest repair job in space history. They completed a record five spacewalks in their quest to fix the blurry Hubble Space Telescope, but they left orbit not knowing if they had succeeded.

They found out Thursday as NASA officials pronounced the $1.6-billion instrument fixed and displayed the first pictures from the refurbished Hubble.

"I'm incredibly pleased," said astronaut Story Musgrave, the mission's chief spacewalker.

"Hubble's my baby." Like a proud but concerned father, Musgrave has checked on the telescope's progress every day even since the mission ended.

"I had a sense it was right," he said. "But you know, it was so complicated. It was a very ambitious thing to do, you just had to hope it would work out."

The telescope was launched in April 1990, but NASA had to confess two months later the instrument had a focusing flaw that could not be repaired from the ground.

"We believe the Hubble is fixed," NASA Administrator Daniel S. Goldin said Thursday during a press conference in Washington when asked if he could unequivocally say the instrument had been restored to full capability.

At the Johnson Space Center in Houston, the seven astronauts assigned to the repair job watched as NASA officials displayed pictures from the improved telescope.

Musgrave said the mood among the crew members and throughout the space center clearly was one of celebration. NASA's image had been battered by a series of recent failures, and the pressure for the Hubble mission to succeed was great.

"I think NASA itself realized it was important, there's no question about it," said Musgrave, the mission's payload commander and chief spacewalker.

The mission's success also should help quiet critics in Congress who have tried to kill funding for the planned space station, he added.

The Endeavour astronauts replaced the wide field planetary camera that carries 50 percent of Hubble's observation burden and outfitted other instruments with corrective optics during the December mission.

They also replaced ailing parts of the spacecraft's power and guidance systems. Goldin called the mission the most difficult NASA has handled since men walked on the moon.

At a national meeting of the American Astronomical Society on Wednesday, astronomers said the telescope soon will be able to conduct an unprecedented search for black holes.

A black hole is thought to be an ancient star, at least three times the size of the sun, that has collapsed into a single point only a few miles across.

Matter is so dense that it creates a powerful gravitational force that draws everything nearby, including stars, into its center.

Clinton, Yeltsin agree to shut down nuclear systems and disarm Ukraine

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent
MOSCOW (AP) - In post-Cold War breakthroughs, President Clinton and Boris Yeltsin signed Kremlin accords today to stop aiming missiles at any nation and to dismantle the nuclear arsenal of Ukraine, third largest in the world.

"We are giving a great boost to the goal of a nuclear disarmament," Yeltsin said.

"For the first time in nearly half a century - virtually since the dawn of the nuclear age - the United States and Russia will not operate nuclear forces, day-to-day, in a manner that presumes they are adversaries," Clinton and Yeltsin said in their Moscow declaration.

Clinton said he and Yeltsin had agreed to take their missiles off target as of May 30.

In a nation gripped by chronic inflation and sagging production, Clinton praised Yeltsin for giving "strong assurances" that he will not retreat from tough economic reforms despite unrest over the hardships they've caused.

Clinton said the lives of Russians should improve this year as "the benefits will begin to flow" from expanded trade.

Clinton and Yeltsin appeared at a joint news conference broadcast across Russia as well as in the United States. Yeltsin was asked point blank if he would slow the pace of economic "shock" therapy. "Nyet," Yeltsin snapped.

The answer was welcome news for Clinton in a nation where ultranationalists and communists are leading a campaign to roll back Yeltsin's reforms.

The arms accords and agreements on trade, protection of human rights and curbs on weapons proliferation completed the main business portion of Clinton's three-day stay in snow-blanketed Moscow.

Accepting the ultimate in Russian hospitality, the president and his family were to sleep overnight within the ancient fortress walls of the Kremlin. Clinton is the first American leader to stay there since Richard Nixon.

Hillary Rodham Clinton and 13-year-old Chelsea landed in Moscow this morning to join the president. Yeltsin offered to have his grandchildren take Chelsea to the famed Moscow circus.

Clinton invited Yeltsin to make a state visit to Washington in the fall; the two leaders also will see each other in July in Naples, Italy, at the annual economic summit of industrialized nations. Yeltsin said he hoped Russia soon would become a full member of the economic summit rather than a guest.

Ukraine's president, Leonid Kravchuk, joined Clinton and Yeltsin in signing the accord to dismantle 1,800 nuclear warheads left in his country after the breakup of the Soviet Union.

Clinton said the agreement reduced chances for "nuclear terrorism and nuclear espionage. ... It's a very good thing for the world and for the United States." However, it still faces opposition in Ukraine's parliament.

The disarmament agreement with Ukraine, when fully implemented, will leave Russia the last of four nuclear powers of the former Soviet republics.

Kazakhstan and Belarus took the pledge earlier. Clinton will salute

Belarus' step by stopping in the capital of Minsk Saturday; Vice President Al Gore visited Kazakhstan in December.

"We have got together this day to put the last dot to the last problem of the Cold War," Yeltsin said. We are giving a great boost to the goal of a nuclear disarmament."

In a statement, the three leaders said all the nuclear warheads in Ukraine should be sent to Russia "in the shortest possible time."

Also, the statement said the 46 SS-24 missiles in Ukraine, the most potent weapons in the world's third largest arsenal, would be deactivated within 10 months by having their 460 warheads removed.

At least 200 warheads from these and SS-19 missiles will be transferred to Russia during the 10 months.

Russia will provide Ukraine with fuel assemblies for its nuclear power industry during the same period containing 100 tons of low-enriched uranium.

Clinton and Yeltsin meanwhile reaffirmed a commitment to respect Ukraine's independence, sovereignty and borders.

Texas Ranger describes gun search

Testimony continuing in cult murder trial

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - An investigator who explored the burned out "bunker" of religious leader David Koresh described to jurors his heroic efforts of recovering artillery amidst 43 charred bodies.
"All I smelled was rotten bodies," Texas Ranger Ray Coffman testified Thursday. "It was a horrible smell."
Coffman is one of seven Texas Rangers investigators who have testified in the federal murder trial of 11 Branch Davidians about pulling hundreds of weapons from the ash remains of Koresh's city-block-sized compound.

What they found, everything from guns to grenades, was littered across a 50-foot area of the courtroom Thursday as prosecutors tried to press into jurors' minds the magnitude of an arsenal collected by the doomsday sect.
The eight-woman, four-man jury was introduced to dozens of pistols, shotguns and two Barrett .50-caliber rifles, powerful enough to pierce armor. And the panel stared intently as Coffman held up one of the rifle's 5-inch-long bullets.

After two days of dizzying testimony about gun after gun, one defense attorney acknowledged the weapons exhibition may be making an impression on jurors.

"It's an impressive display," said Dan Cogdell, who represents Branch Davidian Clive Doyle. "The (Barrett) .50 caliber is an impressive looking weapon."
But Cogdell was quick to contend Koresh was the one most responsible for the weapons and controlled access to a concrete-walled bunker in the center of the compound, where Coffman said 133 weapons and about 400,000 rounds of ammunition were found.

"I think the key is not how many weapons were there but who had access," Cogdell said. "(Most) were in a room off-limits to all but Koresh's inner circle."
The 43 bodies found in the bunker represent half of the people who died amidst a blaze that erupted as the FBI launched a tank and tear gas assault on April 19 in hopes of getting Koresh to surrender from a 51-day standoff with authorities.

Defense attorneys have said defendant Paul Fatta and Koresh invested in high-powered artillery in anticipation that much of it would be outlawed, then "triple or quadruple" in price.

Money from sales would then go for the group's living expenses, Fatta's attorney Mike DeGeurin said during opening statements Wednesday.
Asked if he knew of any other religious groups that relied on weapons sales to keep the ministry alive, Cogdell said:

"I don't know too many religions that do a lot of things like the Branch Davidians. They are strange people. We are not saying they are Second Baptist church folks. They are a strange duck. But that doesn't mean they killed ATF agents."

While the charred remains of several guns have been identified by Rangers as military-style assault rifles, such as the AR-15 and M-16, prosecutors have not shown the Davidians had them illegally.

But weapons experts are expected to be called by the government as early as today to testify about "unlawfully manufactured machine guns" and other "unregistered destructive devices" named in a sweeping 10-count indictment against the defendants.

About 100 agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were attempting to arrest Koresh on weapons charges last Feb. 28 when a 45-minute gun battle broke out that left four ATF agents and six Branch Davidians dead.

If convicted, the defendants, who are charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the deaths of the four agents, face life in prison without parole.

Reagan Administration officials stonewalled study on radiation

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Under orders from Congress to document 30 years of Cold War radiation experiments on humans, the Reagan administration in the mid-1980s decided instead to play down the issue, rejecting suggestions for follow-up reviews and compensation, Energy Department papers show.

The department's arguments ranged from there was "no scientific reason" to believe the subjects suffered long-term harm to assertions that follow-up studies would "violate privacy," according to documents obtained by The Associated Press.

Congressional concerns over possible long-term injury to the subjects "appear to have been based on misunderstandings of ... the principles of human experimentation," then-Energy Secretary John Herrington said in a letter to Congress in early 1987.

Police, Sheriff Reports

Friday's law enforcement activity reports contained the following arrests and incident reports:
HEREFORD POLICE

- A report was filed on a subject driving with no license at Avenue A and Park Avenue.
 - Theft was reported in the 500 block of Avenue H.
 - Criminal mischief was reported in the 200 block of Avenue I and in the 600 block of Irving.
 - A report was filed of evading detention in the 600 block of Irving.
 - A dog bite was reported in the 600 block of Irving.
 - An open door was reported in the 200 block of 16th Street.
 - Officers issued 16 citations.
 - There were three minor accidents.
- DEAF SMITH SHERIFF
- A 22-year-old female was arrested for harboring a runaway.
 - A 38-year-old male was arrested for forgery by passing.

Walnut Creek, Calif., defended the department's stand at the time, but acknowledged in a telephone interview Thursday that in 1986 the issue "was not up on the screen" at the department in terms of priorities.

"We're finding out that it's something that needs more scrutiny, and I think it does," Herrington said. But he suggested that Congress also dropped the ball. "If Congress had said no, we want you to do more, we would have done more," he insisted.

But the Reagan administration's response seven years ago differed markedly from that in recent weeks of Clinton administration Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary. She has expressed public outrage that humans may have been used unwittingly in some of the government experiments.

O'Leary has promised full disclosure of all relevant documents, has set up hot lines for victims to call and suggested compensation for those who may have been harmed. And the effort has expanded well beyond the Energy Department into the Veterans Affairs Department, the Pentagon, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the CIA - all of which have been told to check records for human radiation experiments.

Geography bee winner

Tan Nguyen, a sixth-grader at West Central Intermediate School, shows off the world map he was given for winning the schools Geography Bee this week. As winner, Tan qualified to take a written test for possible inclusion in the state competition later this month. Only the top 100 scorers on the state test go to that competition. At West Central, 47 students participated in the bee, which was called by librarian Bera Boyd. Students were asked questions about countries, states, river boundaries, bodies of water and economic boundaries.

Eat pasta, but pass on lasagna, fettucine

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pass the pasta. But skip the lasagna and fettucini Alfredo, if you want to eat healthy.

To follow up last year's review of Chinese restaurant fare, the Center for Science in the Public Interest sampled the cuisine of 21 Italian restaurants in New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

"The good news is there's a lot of good choices," said Jayne Hurley, the nutritionist who did the survey.

"The bad news is that the worst Italian dishes are in a class by themselves - much worse than Kung Pao chicken," a Chinese dish that was rated one of the highest in fat, she said.

Indeed, a plate of fettuccini Alfredo contains 97 grams of fat. Made with cream, butter, Parmesan cheese and sometimes eggs, it contains more than twice the recommended daily limit of fat, she said. Of its 1,498 calories, 58 percent come from fat.

Hurley likened fettuccini Alfredo to a "heart attack on a plate."

The Chinese-food survey turned up many fatty dishes, shattering myths about the cuisine, she said. Hurley said she expected to find many more fatty foods on the typical menus of Italian restaurants.

"When I think Italian, I often think of the traditional, popular dishes among Americans like lasagna, which is really greasy meat and cheese," Hurley said.

But a number of pasta dishes topped with sauce, even spaghetti with meatballs, made the group's low-fat list, she said.

Spaghetti with tomato sauce made with meat stock had the lowest fat content of 13 entrees surveyed followed by linguini with red clam sauce, spaghetti with meat sauce, linguini with white clam sauce and spaghetti with meat balls.

Even spaghetti with Italian sausage was relatively low in fat. Thirty-four percent of its 1,043 calories came from fat, compared to 30 percent of the 1,155 calories in a plate of spaghetti with meatballs.

The secret is that sauces containing fatty ingredients account for only a small amount of each dish, which is mostly pasta.

The findings were published in the January-February issue of the group's publication called Nutrition Action Health Letter.

But there is a cautionary note to all of this. Most of the Italian dishes were loaded with salt, a tasty ingredient blamed for high blood pressure.

Spaghetti with meatballs has 2,208 milligrams per serving.

Linguini with white or red clam sauce are both low in fat but high in salt.

High-fat Italian dishes, not surprisingly include cheese ravioli, cheese manicotti and eggplant parmigiana.

Intriguing Super matchups abound

By The Associated Press

There are plenty of nifty Super Bowl scenarios still possible, one of the best being Phil Simms vs. Jeff Hostetler in a matchup of quarterbacks who led the New York Giants to Super Bowl victories.

To get that far this time, Simms and Hostetler both need to win Saturday.

Simms, who emerged as the winner in the Giants quarterback controversy, will be in San Francisco to take on the 49ers in an AFC semifinal.

Hostetler, who left New York and signed with the Los Angeles Raiders as a free agent, will be in Buffalo to play the Bills in an AFC semifinal.

Another neat Super Bowl matchup would feature Joe Montana against his old team, the 49ers and quarterback Steve Young.

For that to happen, Montana and the Kansas City Chiefs need to win at Houston on Sunday in the AFC. In the other NFC game, Green Bay is at Dallas.

"What's great is it's worked out for everybody," Simms said. "Joe's in Kansas City playing in the playoffs. Jeff's in Los Angeles; it's worked out good for him. And it's worked out for me here."

"I've gotten to know Steve a little. I want to beat him just as much as I wanted to beat Joe. You don't have to say anything about him after these three years he's put up. Everybody's measuring against him now."

Montana was a three-time MVP in the Super Bowl and won four titles overall. Simms was MVP in the Giants' win over Denver in the 1987 Super Bowl and Hostetler starred in the Giants' victory over Buffalo for the 1991 championship.

Young, meanwhile, is hoping to play in his first title game. Last year, his first as a starter after succeeding Montana, he was the NFL's MVP, but committed six turnovers in two playoff games. He was intercepted twice in San Francisco's 30-20 loss to Dallas in the NFC championship.

This year, he was the league's passing champion.

"You can win MVPs and passing titles, but now there's something more," Young said. "That doesn't take away from those things, but it leaves something to go after. I am excited about trying to do that."

"I think everyone wants to be a Super Bowl quarterback. Joe (Montana) is the classic. Four out of four. We went to the playoffs nine times during that time. You're going to get your shots. You've got to hopefully take them when you can. This is another one."

The 49ers are the league's highest-scoring team, while the Giants allowed the fewest points.

"It's going to be a very close, guarded, efficient-type game," Young said. "Each possession we have to come away with some points. That's going to be a tough chore because their defense plays well. They make you earn it all the way down the field."

The Bills, losers in the last three Super Bowls, begin this season's playoffs at home against the Raiders. Los Angeles was the last team to win in Buffalo, 25-24 on Dec. 5.

Saturday's forecast for Buffalo calls for the coldest weekend of the winter. The temperatures will be around zero, and the wind chill could be 40 below. Snow is predicted, of course.

Herd to host Borger tonight

Hereford's basketball teams will try to stay on a roll against tough Borger teams in a varsity double-header tonight in Whiteface Gym.

The Hereford girls, 8-12 overall, are 1-1 in District 1-4A and have won three of their last four games. They'll face a Borger team (19-4) which is looking for its 20th win at 6 p.m.

Hereford's boys (6-14) go into the 7:30 district-opener coming off a hard-earned win over Petersburg. The Borger boys, at 13-7, own the best non-district record of any boys' team in the district.

Tonight's other 1-4A games are Pampa at Dumas and Caprock at Randall.

Also tonight, Hereford's junior varsity teams host Borger, with the boys playing at 6 p.m. and the girls at 7:30, both in the Hereford Junior High gym. The Hereford sophomore boys will host Borger at 4:30.

Hoop Shoot winners announced

Three boys and three girls won the first round of competition in the Elks Hoop Shoot free throw held Saturday at the Hereford YMCA.

The six local age-group winners will go on to the district-level competition to be held Feb. 12 in Borger.

The local winners were: Shasina

High, 12-13-year-old girls; Leslie Torres, 10-11 girls; Tiffany Tai Mercer, 8-9 girls; Brent Berend, 12-13 boys; Slade Hodges, 10-11 boys; and Bryon Shows, 8-9 boys.

The Elks Hoop Shoot is in its 22nd year of national competition. More than three million boys and girls are expected to participate this year.

3 Cowboys on HOF ballot

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings, who played in every Super Bowl during the 1970s but one, each placed three players among the 15 finalists announced Thursday for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Running back Tony Dorsett, defensive lineman Randy White and cornerback Mel Renfro represented the Cowboys, who won the 1972 and 1978 Super Bowls and lost Super

The Vikings, who lost Super Bowls in 1970, 1974, 1975 and 1977, had coach Bud Grant, defensive lineman Carl Eller and defensive back Paul Krause among the finalists.

Joining those six were Pittsburgh Steelers wide receivers John Stallworth and Lynn Swann; San Francisco 49ers defensive back

Bullets shoot down Rockets

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

The Washington Bullets have 11 victories this season, and it's pretty easy to categorize them. The first 10 were nothing special; the last one was memorable.

The Bullets shocked the Houston Rockets 120-102 at Landover, Md., Thursday night for only their third victory this season against a team with a winning record.

Houston (28-6) is in first place in the Midwest Division and Washington (11-22) is last in the Atlantic. Still, this game wasn't close.

The Bullets led by 13 after one quarter, 14 after three and 24 early in the fourth. Don MacLean had 30 points and Rex Chapman added 27 as the Bullets won their second straight for the first time since mid-November.

The Midwest Division-leading

Rockets are only 6-5 since starting the season 22-1.

"They're a problem team, I'm telling you," Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich said of the Bullets, whose only other wins over teams with winning records came against Orlando and Charlotte.

"Our team gets a bad rap of being strictly a perimeter jump-shooting team," MacLean said. "We were taking it to the basket tonight, hitting the offensive glass and being real aggressive offensively."

"If we play how we played, we can beat anybody in this league."

Hakeem Olajuwon scored 45 points for Houston and Otis Thorpe added 16.

"Hakeem does so much for our ballclub, but we need to feed off him," Rockets rookie Sam Cassell said. "We didn't do that tonight. It's not good enough for him to score 45 points if no one else helps out."

Michael Adams had 17 points for Washington, and Tom Gugliotta and Mitchell Butler added 16 apiece.

Spurs 107, Suns 88

At San Antonio, it was a close game until the final five minutes.

Danny Ainge tied the game at 84 on a driving bank shot with 4:49 left, but the Spurs outscored Phoenix 23-4 the rest of the way. David Robinson had 27 points and 16 rebounds. Dennis Rodman added 14 rebounds and nine points.

Knicks 94, Pistons 80

At Auburn Hills, Mich., Olden Polynice got hurt in the first quarter and four other big men - Sean Elliott, Greg Anderson, David Wood and Terry Mills - got into foul trouble.

That left the job of guarding Patrick Ewing to bench-warmers

Danny O'Sullivan and Marcus Liberty, and the Knicks center dominated.

Ewing had 42 points and 16 rebounds in his fourth straight game with at least 30 points. Detroit has lost 11 straight, three short of the club record.

Cavaliers 104, Nets 93

At Richfield, Ohio, the Nets started well, hitting 71 percent of their field goal attempts in the first quarter, but finished poorly, scoring only 55 points on 35 percent shooting over the final three periods.

Brad Daugherty led the Cavs with 26. Chris Morris had 20 points for New Jersey.

Jazz 101, Bucks 83

At Milwaukee, the Bucks were hurt by 33 percent field goal shooting and 55 percent free throw shooting as they fell to 0-4 on their five-game homestand.

Jay Humphries and Karl Malone had 14 points apiece for Utah.

Kings 115, Hornets 104

At Sacramento, Calif., Alonzo Mourning returned from a six-game absence due to a sprained ankle, but it didn't help Charlotte.

Mourning had team-high totals of 18 points and 14 rebounds, but the Hornets were hurt by 4-of-20 field goal shooting in the fourth quarter.

Wayman Tisdale had 22 points and Mitch Richmond and Lionel Simmons each added 17 for the Kings.

Black coaches consider options besides boycott

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The Black Coaches Association, frustrated in dealing with the NCAA and poised with a boycott planned for this weekend's college basketball games, has turned to Congress.

Drake coach Rudy Washington, an executive of the BCA, said he was to meet today with the Black Congressional Caucus in hopes of getting an arbitrator to produce satisfactory action regarding athletic scholarships.

"If we don't come to some kind of agreement or get ourselves an arbitrator, then a boycott will happen on Saturday," Washington said Thursday night in Tulsa, Okla., declining to discuss what a boycott would entail.

He fueled the speculation of those who fear major disruptions of this weekend's games and possibly more.

"It is a very unfortunate situation. It's right on the verge of being nuclear," Washington said. "If we can't come to some kind of terms, I'm really afraid of the season itself. It has to be dealt with. We're reasonable men, and I think the NCAA is reasonable. But again, we were made promises that weren't kept."

At this week's NCAA convention, the membership voted down returning a 14th scholarship to men's Division I programs. Washington said the National Association of Basketball Coaches and the BCA "thought we had a deal" with the NCAA regarding that scholarship, one they feel will affect hundreds of minority students.

"We were ready to make concessions about that, and it never happened," he said, adding the scholarship not being restored "broke the camel's back."

A boycott would have "tremendous ramifications," he said.

"If the games don't go on, the ACC loses a million dollars this weekend. Is one scholarship worth that?"

John Thompson of Georgetown, John Chaney of Temple, Nolan Richardson of Arkansas, Clem Haskins of Minnesota and George Raveling of Southern California are among the black head coaches whose teams play Saturday.

Raveling wouldn't tip the organization's hand Thursday night from Seattle.

"I know what we're going to do," he said. When asked if he would provide any details, he said: "Nope."

The BCA initially listed a variety of options, including asking players to participate. It broke off talks with NCAA officials on Wednesday, and on Thursday it appeared the BCA's position softened.

"There's some evidence we're going to be able to reopen dialogue," NCAA executive director Cedric Dempsey said Thursday.

Wake Forest's last-second three spoils Duke's chance at top spot

By The Associated Press

Duke blew a chance to take over the top spot in college basketball.

The No. 2 Blue Devils were in line to become the nation's top-ranked team after No. 1 North Carolina lost to Georgia Tech on Wednesday. But Duke was upset by Wake Forest 69-68 Thursday night on Randolph Childress' 3-pointer with 11 seconds left.

"I can't remember a more dramatic win for us in my 4 1/2 years at Wake Forest," coach Dave Odom said.

Although Childress' shot was clearly outside the arc, the closest official didn't signal it was a 3-pointer and the scoreboard at Cameron Indoor Stadium read 68-68 after the ball went through the basket.

So after Grant Hill missed a 15-footer for Duke in the closing seconds and time ran out, Blue Devils coach Mike Krzyzewski thought the game was going into overtime. When he realized Duke had lost, he went to the scorer's table looking for an explanation.

"I was shocked that the game was over," Krzyzewski said. However, he added, "That doesn't take away a bit from the shot that Childress hit or the fact that they outplayed us."

Childress, who finished with 24 points, wasn't sure what play Wake Forest was supposed to run at the end, so he took the game-winning shot over Hill.

"I didn't know what (Odom) wanted to do," said Childress, who leads the Atlantic Coast Conference in scoring. "He had me totally confused."

Wake Forest (11-3, 2-0 ACC) upset Duke (10-1, 2-1) at Cameron for the second straight season.

"I felt we dominated the majority of the game, but they dominated when they needed to, and that was at the end of both halves," said Hill, who scored 23 points.

In other Top 25 games, No. 5 UCLA beat Washington State 81-79, No. 19 California defeated No. 6 Arizona 98-93 in overtime, No. 7 Massachusetts downed No. 23 West Virginia 70-56, No. 10 Michigan beat Ohio State 86-75 in overtime, and No. 15 Louisville topped Virginia Tech 95-76.

No. 5 UCLA 81, Washington St. 79

At Pullman, Tyus Edney made the go-ahead basket and two free throws down the stretch to help UCLA remain undefeated.

Edney's jumper with 1:51 remaining gave the Bruins (10-0, 2-0 Pac-10) the lead for only the second time in the game, 77-76. Edney hit two free throws to make it 79-76 with 28 seconds left, and UCLA's George Zidek added two free throws with 13 seconds remaining before Washington State's Eddie Hill closed out the scoring with a 3-pointer.

Ed O'Bannon led UCLA with 18 points and nine rebounds. Mark Hendrickson and Hill each scored 15 points for Washington State (10-5, 0-3).

No. 19 California 98, No. 6 Arizona 93, OT

At Tucson, Lamond Murray scored 33 points for Cal, including a 3-pointer to force overtime and three free throws in the final minute of the extra period.

Arizona (12-2, 1-1 Pac-10) took a 93-91 lead in overtime on Dylan Rigdon's jumper, but Jason Kidd tied it with 1:33 left on a dunk and Murray hit the go-ahead free throw with 52.3 seconds remaining.

Kidd had 17 points, 11 rebounds, 11 assists and four steals for Cal (10-2, 3-0). Khalid Reeves scored 23 points for Arizona.

No. 7 Massachusetts 70, No. 23 West Virginia 56

At Morgantown, Dana Dingle

scored 17 points and Massachusetts took advantage of sloppy play by West Virginia to take over sole possession of first in the Atlantic 10.

Massachusetts (12-1, 4-0) built a 35-22 halftime lead and led by double digits the entire second half. West Virginia (9-2, 3-1) shot only 27 percent from the field in the first half and had nine turnovers.

No. 10 Michigan 86, Ohio St. 75, OT

At Ann Arbor, Jalen Rose had 28 points and Michigan scored the first nine points in overtime to beat Ohio State.

Michigan (11-2, 3-0 Big Ten) rallied from a 10-point deficit in the second half. Ohio State (8-6, 1-2) tied it at 71.

Jamie Skelton led Ohio State with 20 points.

No. 15 Louisville 95, Virginia Tech 76

At Louisville, DeJuan Wheat scored 22 points, including a couple of key 3-pointers.

After falling behind by 15 points in the second half, Virginia Tech pulled within nine on two baskets by Jim Jackson and a layup by Ace Custis. Wheat then hit a 3-pointer and two free throws as Louisville (11-2, 2-1 Metro Conference) broke it open with a 9-0 run.

Custis topped Virginia Tech (10-2, 1-1) with 18 points.

Now Carlton won't shut up

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) - Finally, after years of silence, Steve Carlton wants to talk. Now he won't shut up.

On the morning after his election to the Hall of Fame, he spent half an hour perched on the podium of a hotel ballroom, eloquently speaking of his 24-year career, mixing memories with wit and philosophy. When a baseball official tried to end the colloquium, baseball's Greta Garbo refused to go along.

"I don't mind," Carlton said. "This is it. It's been a long time. I've got nothing to do."

For much of his career, Carlton was the Sphinx of Broad Street, a mystical mute who won four Cy Young Awards, the most ever. While his left arm was overpowering, his taciturn tongue was puzzling.

"This was interfering with my pitching, or my thinking," Carlton said, recalling the post-game interviews most players endure. "I had to cast it off to make myself better."

Now 49, he lives on a 400-acre farm in Durango, Colo. He's turned his back on baseball, almost as if the pitcher who dominated the 1970s was a different person.

At times, he can be confusing, espousing conspiracy theories and refusing to accept that two plus two equals four. ("How do you know two is two? That's the real question?" he said earlier this week.)

But Thursday, as he stood in front of the cameras in blue jeans and brown cowboy boots, looking very much the affluent rancher, he for once seemed like a regular ballplayer.

Well, not quite regular. After all, he's one of the two or three greatest left-handed pitchers. And he's still not comfortable with - ahem - speaking in public.

"I don't think I'm comfortable accepting awards," he said. "It's not my nature. I don't really like this. Some people like this and end up in Hollywood. That's not me."

Carlton, who received 436 of 455 votes (95.8 percent) in his first year of eligibility, was 329-244 with a 3.22 ERA - No. 9 in victories and No. 2 among left-handers, trailing Warren Spahn's 363. Carlton's 4,136 strikeouts are second to Nolan Ryan's 5,714.

"Baseball, or sports in general, is about numbers," Carlton said. "It's competing against the past and your peers. That's why you want to continue to play, to put more numbers up."

With Gus Hoefling, then the Phillies' strength and flexibility instructor, Carlton developed unusual training methods, such as soaking his arm in a vat of rice and walking through a rice trench that was built near the team's clubhouse. Carlton, who readied himself to pitch in a "mood room," is willing to teach his technique, but only to a point.

"A lot of people don't want to work that hard," he said. "I would like to apply it sometime. I don't know if I'd like to spend eight months touring with a team. I don't know if I'd like to change my lifestyle."

Carlton's method was to ignore the batter and concentrate on the glove of his catcher, usually Tim Lincecum. "It wasn't adding things, it was casting things off," Carlton said. "I started not looking at the hitter. Pretty soon, I could block him out. I never saw him. Pretty soon - the glove, if I could get the ball to the glove, that was success. It evolved into that. It was very successful."

HOF BALLOT

Jimmy Johnson; offensive linemen Dan Dierdorf of the St. Louis Cardinals and Tom Mack of the Los Angeles Rams; wide receiver Charlie Joiner of the Houston Oilers, Cincinnati Bengals and San Diego Chargers; Chargers tight end Kellen Winslow; tight end Jackie Smith, who played with St. Louis and Dallas; and seniors nominee Leroy Kelly, a running back with the Cleveland Browns.

hall's 34-member board of selectors. The board will meet Jan. 29 at Atlanta to elect the class of 1994. Kelly was nominated by a special committee that selects one player each year who has been passed over for induction. Ten of the 15 finalists spent their entire careers with one team and three others played all but one season for the same team. In addition to the Vikings, Krause also played for the Washington Redskins.

Dorsett spent the bulk of his career with the Cowboys, but closed it out with one season with the Denver Broncos. Eller played 15 years with the Vikings and one with the Seattle Seahawks, and Smith spent his first 15 seasons with the Cardinals before bowing out with a year in Dallas.

If elected, Dorsett, Renfro or White would join only four long-time Dallas Cowboys who have been enshrined in Canton: Bob Lilly, Roger Staubach, Tom Landry and Tex Schramm.

Only two long-time Vikings - Fran Tarkenton and Alan Page - are enshrined in the hall.

For only the second time since 1973, the list of finalists does not include a quarterback.

Enshrinement will take place at the hall on July 30.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE BEAST OF BURDEN

THE BIBLE NAMES THE DOMESTIC ASS AS THE MOST COMMON BEAST OF BURDEN. THIS ANIMAL WAS KNOWN FOR ITS OBSTINACY BUT ON THE OTHER HAND THE ASS WAS STRONG, EASILY FED, PATIENT AND FORGIVING. ITS FAULTS WERE MAINLY PRODUCED BY THE CRUEL BONDAGE IMPOSED ON IT BY HUMAN TASKMASTERS. THIS ANIMAL WAS ONE OF THE FIRST TO BE DOMESTICATED. ABRAHAM HAD MANY SPECIES OF THE ASS (GEN. 12:16) ON WHICH HE RODE AND CARRIED HIS TENTS AND OTHER BELONGINGS. BESIDES BEING USED FOR BEARING BURDENS THEY WERE USED FOR PLOWING AND OTHER FARM CHORES.

"...THE WOMAN RIDES ACROSS THE WILD COUNTRYSIDE, WITH THE YOUNG MAN URGING HIS BEAST ON IN THE FASTEST PACE POSSIBLE OVER THIS RUGGED LAND!"

Clinton's popularity said to be on upswing in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - State Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle says President Clinton's popularity in Texas is on the upswing.

"I have a poll sitting on my desk right now that was finished in the middle of December that shows Clinton's approval rating in Texas at 51 percent," Slagle said Thursday after a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee meeting. Slagle announced that Clinton will visit Houston next month for a high-dollar political fund-raising event.

The event at the Wortham Center on Feb. 6 will cost $1,000 per person and $10,000 per table, he said.

He said 15 percent of the funds will go toward the state Democratic Party and the remainder will be used by the Democratic National Committee.

Slagle said he hoped to be able to arrange another fund-raising visit from Clinton this year for a less expensive event.

In other business, the State Democratic Executive Committee recommended San Antonio as the site of the 1996 Democratic National Convention.

Party officials also adopted a resolution welcoming state Rep. Bernard Erickson of Burleson who recently switched from the Republican Party.

In other political developments: Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Jim Mattox, campaigning Thursday in Houston at an inner-city black Baptist church, picked up the endorsement of the Baptist Ministers Association of Houston, one of the largest black ministers groups in the state.

Mattox swore in the officers of the association at a rousing service that featured energetic gospel singing and preaching.

"I represent that Jesus Christ that took the whip and chased the money changers out of the temple," Mattox told several hundred people attending the session. "Sometimes I am charged with getting after folks. But ... there are some folks who really deserve to be gotten after."

Mattox faces Dallas businessman Richard Fisher and U.S. Rep. Mike Andrews of Houston in the March 8 primary.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 22-year-old male virgin. I'm currently dating a beautiful girl. The problem is, I'm afraid she's not a virgin.

I know this might sound narrow-minded to some of your readers, but it saddens me that I will not be the first man in her life.

During my teen years, I came very close to losing my virginity several times, but I'm glad I didn't cross that line. Sexually transmitted diseases, unwanted pregnancies and emotional and psychological problems are the cost for having sex before marriage. It was the fear of those things rather than my high standards of morality that kept me from going all the way.

I believe many problems in America, such as the high crime rate, suicides and economic crisis, are partly due to the breakdown of the family. Unfortunately, television, movies, books and music glorify sex. I'm afraid this is not reality. I have seen too many of my friends break up after their relationships turned physical. The emotional wreckage is horrendous because they already shared something so powerful. When you use sex too early, it will block other means of communicating love and can stunt the balanced growth of a relationship.

Many teenage girls feel they can use sex to get love. As a guy, I can tell them this is a big mistake. Sign me—Faithful Reader in Canada

DEAR CANADA: What you have written contains a great deal of wisdom. Coming from a guy, it has a stronger impact than if a female had written it.

The last two sentences should be clipped from the paper and taped to the mirrors of every washroom in every junior and senior school of every city that prints this column. Start clipping, girls.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Preaching to young people doesn't work. They tune you out. Maybe this letter will help get the message across. Please print it.

DEAR TEENAGERS: Here is what alcohol and drugs will get you:

- Accidents
- Wheelchairs
- Jail
- Hospitalization
- Doctor bills
- Youth court
- Fights
- The judge's chambers
- A funeral home

The grave.
Maybe some teenager will think of these consequences before he or she takes that drink or a snort of coke.—Natchez, Miss.

DEAR NATCHEZ: They have heard it all before, but laying it out so clearly could make a difference. Thank you for trying.

Gem of the Day (written by Ogden Nash 25 years ago):

If you should happen after dark,
To find yourself in Central Park,
Ignore the paths that beckon you,
And hurry, hurry, to the zoo.
Then creep into the tiger's lair,
For you will be much safer there.
Planning a wedding? What's right?
What's right? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your readers have said it in valentines again for our hospitalized veterans. In 1933 alone, your Ann Landers-Valentine Vet program encouraging readers to send valentines to their nearest Veterans Affairs hospital resulted in every one of our 171 VA hospitals receiving an average of 3,000 valentines from your readers, schoolchildren and teachers. Another 600,000 were sent to the Hines VA

Hospital in Chicago and were redistributed to other VA hospitals.

We are rounding off last year's total at 1.5 million valentines for a five-year total of 10 million valentines for grateful veterans. Your readers are tremendous—caring and patriotic.

As in past years, the responses came from all over the world. Valentines were received from Guam, Germany and places in between. A valentine came from a school for the deaf in Buffalo, N.Y., in the form of a video in sign language. Many veterans watched it on their television screens.

Veterans and their care are our mission in life. We have embarked on a mission to put veterans first—in care, in our concerns and in benefits. We are also committed to meeting the ever-changing needs of our veterans, from the doughboy of World War I to the Persian Gulf and Somali soldiers, and to the women who have served and still serve their country in uniform. Many of the 84,000 veterans hospitalized on any given day are women. Please remember them as a grateful nation does.

Thank you, Ann, for the first 10 million valentines for hospitalized veterans. If you and your readers are ready to start on the second 10 million, so are we.—Jesse Brown, Secretary, Department of Veterans Affairs.

DEAR JESSE BROWN: I've always known that my readers are the most warmhearted, responsive people in the world. When I ask them to do something, they come through like champions.

Now, dear readers, it's time once again to let our veterans know we appreciate them. It won't cost much, and it's sure to bring enormous pleasure to our vets, to whom we owe so much.

As Secretary Brown said, there are approximately 84,000 veterans hospitalized in 171 Department of Veterans Affairs medical centers nationwide. These men and women served in World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam and the war in the Persian Gulf. They represent every race, color and creed. We can never repay these valiant vets for the sacrifices they have made, but we can do something to cheer them up and let them know we appreciate them and that they have not been forgotten.

Teachers, I'm depending on you once more to make this a class project. Those handmade valentines are real heart-warmers. Please encourage your students to be creative and let them learn firsthand the satisfaction that comes from doing something for others.

The North Shore Hilton in Skokie, Ill., once again will be baking a huge cake for the veterans and having guests sign a 5-foot valentine.

The veterans would be thrilled if you could drop off your valentines in person at your local VA hospital. If there isn't one nearby, send them to: Ann Landers-Valentines Vet, Hines VA Hospital, Hines, Ill. 60141-1489.

I know of nothing you can do that would cost so little and bring so much happiness to those who deserve to be remembered. Thank you and God bless—Ann Landers

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Help! My husband left his stereo turntable on top of our new entertainment center for three weeks. When he finally removed it, I found that the rubber feet on the turntable had left black circles on the wood.

How can I safely remove them?—Cynthia Lynch, Spring, Texas
We checked with our favorite wood-care specialist and the suggestion was to first try removing the marks with a good-quality wood cleaner (which can be found at most hardware or home-supply warehouses). Follow the label directions exactly.

If the marks don't come off using the cleaner, then the only other thing you may want to do is lightly sand the area, using the finest sandpaper. The bad news is that this will mar the area and make it lighter than the rest of the wood and the only way to fix that is to have the piece refinished.—Heloise

SWITCHPLATE INFORMATION
Dear Heloise: All the information about painting a room can be stored under any switchplate or outlet plate in that room.

It can be written right on the wall under the plate, or on paper, then tucked in and it won't get lost. These areas are also great for storing small items of great value.—Eleanor Beyer, Lancaster, Calif.

HANDY SPRAY BOTTLE
Dear Heloise: I am single, so I don't dirty too many dishes at a time. I keep a spray bottle under the kitchen sink with water and dish soap in it.

It saves using the dishwasher all the time.—Marilyn Tilford, Katy, Texas
An energy-saving hint—yours and Mother Nature's. Thank you for writing.—Heloise

There's new cancer pain medication now available

A new non-narcotic medication designed to help control the pain of cancer that has spread or metastasized to bone is now available in the United States.

Metastron is a radiopharmaceutical that provides pain relief for an average of up to six months and is administered in a single out-patient injection.

A substantial number of patients with prostate or breast cancer will eventually develop bone metastases, a condition sometimes resulting in unremitting pain. The American Cancer Society estimates that one in 10 men will eventually have prostate cancer, the second most common cancer afflicting men. One in nine women will develop breast cancer at some point in their lives.

Some people with advanced metastatic lesions experience continuous toothache-like pain so severe they usually require high doses of morphine or other narcotics, leaving them sedated or immobile. Metastron offers a new approach to managing this pain.

Medical experts say Metastron is a significant advance for the patient whose primary cancer has metastasized to the bone.

Approximately 75 to 80 percent of individuals treated with Metastron have responded, enabling many patients to reduce their reliance on narcotics, improving their quality of life, while potentially reducing the cost of therapy and nursing care.

Ask your doctor about his new non-narcotic medication.
