TEXAS VS. TOBACCO Judge delays ruling on settlement

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) - A federal judge overseeing the settlement between Texas and the tobacco industry has yet to finalize the $15.3 billion deal announced last week.

U.S. District Judge David Folsom of Texarkana says he does not want to enter his decision piecemeal. He instead plans to rule on the case, including several related motions, all at once.

Folsom spent Tuesday and Wednesday reviewing details of the settlement. He was expected to release his decision today.

The deal was made public last week by Attorney General Dan Morales, who has come under fire for deciding how to spend the first year's $1.2 billion payment to the state and for negotiating fees with outside attorneys.

Those issues have resulted in several complaints. John Cornyn, a former Texas Supreme Court Justice running for attorney general, on Tuesday filed a lawsuit in state district court to block the 15-percent cut for five private attorneys who had been brought in to help with the case.

Also filed on Tuesday was a motion by Dallas County and the Dallas County Hospital District asking the judge to throw out the allocation of the first-year payout. Neither party is slated to receive funds.

Morales earmarked the 1998 money for a variety of health-care services for all Texans, children's health care, anti-smoking education and enforcement.

The remaining $14.1 billion will be doled out over the next 24 years by the state Legislature.

Morales planned to give details of the settlement to the Senate Health and Human Services Committee today.

"The committee just happens to be meeting at this time, so they asked him to come over and make a statement about it," said Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Morales.

A third issue for Folsom to consider also involves the first-year payout.

A complaint filed by state Rep. Rob Junell and state Sen. Bill Ratliff, heads of the Legislature's budget-writing committees, argues the agreement violates the Legislature's role of setting state spending. Junell and Ratliff met with Morales on Wednesday in a meeting described as amicable. However, they did not resolve their differences.

The lawmakers filed a motion asking to be allowed to intervene in the case. The pair say if Folsom does not allow that to happen, they also will ask the Texas Supreme Court to stop the agreement.

Morales negotiated the contract and filed the lawsuit against the tobacco companies in 1996, alleging violations of federal racketeering, mail fraud and conspiracy.

In a related development, some state chapters of the American Heart Association are urging the group to stop lobbying for the national tobacco deal that gives cigarette makers legal protections, a sign of growing dissension over the proposal.

NEWS in brief

Whitewater prosecutors seeking documents from White House about alleged Clinton affair

WASHINGTON (AP) - Special prosecutors, working in a whirlwind of rumors and speculation, sought White House documents today that could prove or disprove President Clinton's declaration that he did not have a sexual relationship with a White House intern and took no steps to hush it up.

Sources said longtime presidential confidant Vernon Jordan and U.N. Ambassador Bill Richardson arranged job offers for Monica Lewinsky, a young woman who describes in secretly taped conversations that she had an affair with Clinton and then was urged to lie about it.

Lewinsky has sworn in an affidavit in the Paula Jones case that these taped remarks were not true. She will be asked about the conversations again on Friday in a deposition and much of Washington is holding its breath to see if her testimony will square with the president's denials, or if she will refuse to answer questions and seek immunity from any future prosecution.

At this morning's senior staff meeting, Clinton's top deputies did not discuss the simmering crisis, powerless to contribute to its resolution. The discussion was unusually subdued, according to one official. Chief of staffs Erskine Bowles, who presided, left early without explanation.

Officials confirmed there was evidence at the White House showing that Lewinsky, who was an intern in 1995 to Clinton's chief of staff, checked in several times to the Oval Office to visit the president's private secretary after Lewinsky left her White House job and went to the Pentagon. The officials said Lewinsky and the secretary were friends.

Pope, Cuban leader stake out positions

HAVANA (AP) - Pope John Paul II and Fidel Castro wasted no time in making their positions clear as the pontiff, greeted by vast crowds of cheering, hymn-singing Cubans, began a five-day journey to strengthen his long-beleaguered church in Cuba.

The pope called for greater openness in Cuba and took a slap at the U.S. economic embargo. Castro likened his own social concerns to those of the pope and vowed that Cubans would die a thousand times rather than forsake their socialist revolution.

Thousands of journalists had gathered for a confrontation between an anti-communist pope and the communist leader. But both men had other, broader concerns that made pontiff's historic visit possible and created a display of religious exuberance not seen here since 1959.

Hereford EMS captures top honors

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Hereford has an outstanding emergency medical service -- and that's the opinion of its peers.

The Hereford Emergency Medical Service found out this week it had been selected as the recipient of the Public Provider Award, which is presented by the Panhandle Emergency Medical Services organization. The selection as the top EMS in the Panhandle puts the Hereford organization in the running for the state award.

The Hereford EMS was established in December 1979 as a hospital-based service providing pre-hospital care to about 30,000 residents of Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

When it was launched, the Hereford EMS provided basic life support services (BLS) with advanced life support capabilities. Now it provides the city and county with four mobile intensive care ambulances and one special response vehicle. The special response vehicle, which was brought into the HEMS operation about three years ago, carries extra equipment and supplies to the scene of mass casualties.

The Hereford EMS has four basic EMTs, one EMT-I and 10 paramedics. Three of the MIC units are staffed around the clock, seven days a week. The first-out crew remains in-house.

During the past three years, the unit has developed a training program. The program consists of classes from basic EMT to paramedic completion courses, as well as continuing education classes and other specialized classes as requested.

In conjunction with the Hereford Independent School District, the EMS has sponsored a basic EMT course to a select group of high school seniors. It also makes presentations and conducts classes in the elementary schools, and works closely with the Senior Citizens Association in providing flu shots, free glucose checks and blood pressure clinics.

The local EMS also works closely with the Hereford Regional Medical Center's WorkSmart program, which conducts first aid and safety classes for local businesses, as well as offering a flu immunizations.

Analysts say rain helps wheat crops

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - Rain has been good news for wheat in Texas, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

In the South Plains District, Extension director Jett Major of Lubbock said wheat fields have improved due to the recent moisture.

"We've had some moisture here, but we need a whole lot more before the spring," Major said.

He said that most counties have switched to supplemental feeding because there is not enough wheat for grazing.

"Some counties in the northern third of the district have been able to support grazing," Major said. "These counties have better wheat because they have had more snow."

Assistant research scientist Russell Sutton of Dallas said North Texas producers need dry weather to facilitate wheat growth.

"We have had excessive rain lately," Sutton said. "It's too wet to do anything but bog in the mud in some counties."

He said despite delays caused by the heavy rains, wheat fields have endured much stress.

"We have not noticed any insect or disease problems in the wheat fields," Sutton said.

Sutton said that the rain has been beneficial for streams and ponds which had gotten extremely low in the past months. He added that wheat is growing despite excessive moisture.

"All the wheat that was planted on time looks really good," Sutton said.

In West Central Texas, Scott Durham of San Angelo said wheat is responding slightly to recent moisture.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by area district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: soil moisture short to adequate. Range in fair to good condition. Cattle condition good; some supplemental feeding. Cotton, sugar beet harvest under way. Sorghum harvest continues; average to above average yields.

SOUTH PLAINS: soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Livestock good. Cotton harvest continues; chemical applications continue in many fields. Soybean harvest nearing completion. Pumpkin harvest continues.

ROLLING PLAINS: soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges need moisture. Supplementation of cattle continues. Cotton looks fair; chemical applications under way. Wheat being replanted; some insect damage. Peanut harvest nearing completion.

ROE VS. WADE

Abortion case splintered Supreme Court as it divided America

By DEB RIECHMANN
Associated Press Writer

The Roe vs. Wade abortion case that has divided Americans for decades splintered the Supreme Court from the start as well. Pointed memos flew among the justices. Personalities clashed. One justice threatened to go public with the discord, then backed down.

So divided were the justices at the outset that there were "literally not enough columns to mark up an accurate reflection of the voting," Chief Justice Warren Burger wrote to a fellow justice at the time.

The first draft of the decision looked nothing like what would emerge eight months later. The justices even argued over who would write the opinion.

In the eye of the storm was mild-mannered Harry Blackmun, who penned the 1973 decision, which legalized abortion and causes continuing debate as America marks the ruling's 25th anniversary Thursday.

Susie Blackmun, the retired justice's youngest daughter, quotes her father as saying, "The federal bench is no place to win a popularity contest."

The court works in secret, and many questions remain about how the justices reached the landmark decision. But personal papers left by deceased justices William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall offer a peek at their private wrangling.

Roe vs. Wade started in Texas when a pregnant waitress, then known as Jane Roe, sued Henry Wade, the district attorney in Dallas County whose job it was to enforce a state law prohibiting abortion except to save a woman's life.

Two seats were vacant on the Supreme Court in December 1971 when the justices first huddled to discuss their leanings. After the meeting, the seven justices couldn't even agree on how each had voted, an omen of the dissension that lay ahead.

That first tally mattered because the senior justice on the majority side traditionally writes the majority opinion, or assigns the job to a justice of similar persuasion.

Douglas, independent and liberal-minded, thought he was the senior justice among a majority that later would vote to strike down the Texas statute. His notes put Burger in the minority.

But Burger assigned the abortion opinion. He gave the pen to Blackmun, a boyhood friend, the best man at his wedding and a fellow Minnesotan. Those who saw Blackmun as a Burger clone called them the "Minnesota Twins."

That perception was about to change. "Roe vs. Wade was the first opinion where people came to perceive Blackmun on his own, not one of the Minnesota Twins," said George Frampton, a onetime clerk for Blackmun who now is Vice President Al Gore's lawyer.

Douglas fumed at the selection. Believing Burger was trying to manipulate the decision by giving the job to someone with a more mainstream voice, he sent a curt memo of protest to the chief justice. Burger wouldn't budge.

In May 1972, Blackmun circulated his first draft. It said the Texas law was unconstitutionally vague but was silent on whether women had a constitutional right to abortion. Douglas and William Brennan, another liberal justice, insisted the court confront constitutional questions.

Brennan "used a kind of Irish charm" to get Blackmun to strengthen the opinion, recalled Geoffrey Stone, a former Brennan law clerk and current provost of the University of Chicago. Blackmun adopted some of Brennan's ideas, rejected others, Stone said.

Then controversy flared anew.

Burger said he needed more time to study the case and urged his colleagues to rehear Roe vs. Wade in the court's next term.

Somewhat reluctantly, Blackmun agreed the case should be reheard after two new justices - William Rehnquist and Lewis Powell Jr. - joined the court. "I believe, on an issue so sensitive and so emotional as this one, the country deserves the conclusion of a nine-man, not a seven-man, court," he wrote at the time to his colleagues.

But Douglas and others wanted to push ahead, believing they had at least four votes - a majority on a seven-man court. They didn't know how the new justices appointed by President Nixon would vote.

Douglas also smelled election-year politics aimed at smoothing the re-election campaign of Nixon, who favored abortion restrictions. He fired off a brusque memo to Burger threatening to expose the burgeoning dissension.

"If the vote ... is to reargue, then I will file a statement telling what is happening to us and the tragedy it entails," Douglas wrote. He never

We admire people who can present eulogies at funeral services for a relative or close friend. Some do it smoothly, others have to struggle to express themselves without losing control. Either way, we appreciate those special tributes.

The funeral service for Wes Fisher Wednesday was a celebration of the good memories of another community leader called from our midst. There was much laughter as Dr. Tom Fuller, Allen Fisher and former Hereford City Manager Darwin McGill shared personal stories about Wes.

Fisher's brother, Allen, recalled sitting on his patio and thinking about Wes after he received the death notice. One of his thoughts was about Wes being a staunch Republican. "Suddenly, I started laughing and laughed until tears were rolling down my cheeks," said Allen.

"What I was thinking, and I hope you can picture this: When Wes gets to Heaven, what if he finds out that God is a Democrat?"

Allen said when he visited with Wes, there were always at least three topics on his mind: his grandchildren, Republican politics, and the strong love and interest he had in his community.

Probably one of the most moving moments of the funeral service was a tribute to Fisher from his granddaughter, Kate Denison. Dr. Fuller read the letter in which Kate praised her grandfather for his support and love.

We knew Wes best from his work as mayor and as chairman of the Hustler organization, the goodwill ambassadors of the chamber of commerce. He continued to work with the Hustler group after he was confined to a wheel chair. Wes was always cheerful and upbeat, although it must have been a challenge for him.

Fisher stood tallest when he was sitting in a wheel chair. He was an asset to our community and we'll miss him.

Health coverage costs American more Loopholes make out-of-pocket health costs rise

WASHINGTON (AP) - One in eight American families spends more than 10 percent of its income on health insurance premiums and other out-of-pocket medical costs, a consumer advocacy group said today. "Health care costs pose a tremendous burden on millions of American families, even families that think they have adequate health insurance coverage," said Gail Shearer, director of health policy analysis for Consumers Union.

The group publishes "Consumer Reports" magazine and supports the idea of universal public health insurance. In its study, Consumers Union used government and private-sector data collected during the past decade to estimate Americans' health care spending habits for 1996. The study's assumption of per capita health care costs of $3,778 for the year is within $19 of actual figures reported by the government last week.

CNAs pinned

earnings, on health insurance premiums not paid for by employers and other out-of-pocket medical costs, Consumers Union said.

More than 2.5 million families spent 30 percent or more of their earnings on health care. And of the 11 million who spent at least 10 percent of their income on medical costs, nearly 9 million families did so despite having insurance for every member.

"What this points to are these huge loopholes that keep those (insurance) policies from adequately protecting families," said Shearer.

Some policies don't cover expensive items such as prescription drugs. Others may not pay fees close enough to what health care providers actually charge, leaving consumers to pick up large balances, Shearer said. Policies that don't pay for all costs once consumers reach a yearly out-of-pocket limit or that set lifetime benefit limits too low also can leave people with big bills, she added.

Families headed by people aged 55 to 64 were twice as likely as younger families to be spending more than a tenth of their incomes on health care, Consumers Union also found.

Because it can be difficult for these potential early retirees to find insurance, President Clinton has proposed letting them buy into Medicare early for $300 to $400 a month. But more than half of all households headed by people over age 65 - and already eligible for Medicare - are also spending more than a tenth of their incomes on health care, the group reported.

"The issue is not just access to a policy, but affordability of coverage," Shearer said.

New Mexico con faces Okla. charges

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) - An ex-convict critically wounded in a shootout with Oklahoma Highway Patrol troopers faces a variety of charges in he survives, prosecutors say.

"I'm not talking to New Mexico about extradition. What he's done here to our troopers is more serious than anything out there," Carter County prosecutor Gary Henry said Wednesday.

Trooper Rocky Northcutt was in fair condition Wednesday at Mercy Memorial Hospital. Suspect Ricky Lee Barnes, 44, was in critical condition. His prognosis was not good, authorities said.

Henry said if Barnes survives, he'll be charged with several felonies, including shooting with intent to kill and possession of a firearm after a felony conviction. No charges were filed Wednesday.

Highway Patrol spokesman Stewart Meyer said Terence Richard Braumley, who also is known as Travis Beeson, died in Tuesday afternoon's gun battle on U.S. 70 along the southern edge of Ardmore.

New Mexico authorities said they had been searching for Braumley and Barnes, ex-cons living in the Albuquerque area, since Jan. 12 when the men allegedly robbed a Bernalillo County deputy sheriff and left him tied to a tree in the mountains east of Albuquerque.

Trooper Kent Martin found the men about 4:45 p.m. Tuesday when he stopped Barnes for speeding. Northcutt was Martin's backup.

Authorities gave this account of what happened:

Martin was writing Barnes a ticket as Barnes, described as cordial, sat in the patrol car. Northcutt came up to the vehicle and asked Martin if he still needed assistance. Martin said he did and asked Northcutt to watch Barnes while Martin went up to check on Barnes' passenger.

Braumley came out of the vehicle with a gun. Martin and Braumley struggled and Northcutt went to Martin's aid. Shots were fired and Barnes came out of the patrol car and began firing. The gun battle lasted 30 to 45 seconds.

Northcutt, who was wearing a protective vest, was shot in the lower left abdomen. Barnes was shot several times in the lower abdomen.

Jim Sturgis, a Carter County sheriff's deputy, was nearby. Sturgis disarmed Barnes before he fired again, Henry said.

Henry said the men had a lot of cash and a lot of weapons in the car, which was stolen in New Mexico. He wouldn't comment on how many weapons were in the vehicle. The vehicle also contained stolen property, he said.

Braumley, armed with a 9 mm pistol and wearing surgical gloves, robbed Liberty Federal Savings Bank in Stillwater three days after the two men allegedly abducted the New Mexico deputy, authorities believe.

A "substantial amount of cash" taken from the bank was recovered at Tuesday's shooting scene in Ardmore, said Stillwater police Lt. Ron Thrasher.

Meyer said investigators were asking law agencies with unsolved crimes in their areas since the middle of January to check with the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation.

Braumley and Barnes were recently paroled from prison. Braumley had served time for robbery and drug convictions. Barnes served time for drug convictions and vehicle theft.

Braumley's criminal record includes arrests for armed robbery, aggravated assault and drug distribution. He was arrested in Sapulpa in 1986 for possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia, authorities said.

Barnes' 20-year record includes arrests for drug violations, burglary and auto theft, authorities said.

Both had been wanted for investigation of robbery, parole violation, false imprisonment and aggravated assault on a police officer in connection with the New Mexico incident, authorities said.

St. Anthony's celebrates Catholic schools week

St. Anthony's School has planned a number of events for students, parents, staff and the general public to coincide with Catholic Schools Week Jan. 25-30.

Dangerous dogs roam West Texas

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) - Jay Capps said he hopes that something good will come out of the serious injury he suffered when he was attacked by two dogs.

"I think people ought to get on the ball about this - there are too many dogs that can get out and do things like this - people just aren't taking responsibility," Capps said Wednesday.

Capps, 72, said he was putting a load of clothes in his car when the two dogs charged him.

"They charged me from the street," Capps said. "I kicked the (blue heeler) back and hit at the (rottweiler) several times. I yelled 'get on out of here,' and 'go git go,' and when that didn't work I started cussing."

"I kicked the little one to keep it off my ankles, I turned around and punched the big dog again, it ran, and lunged through the air," he said.

Capps suffered a seven-inch gas on his arm and was taken to the Veterans Administration Medical Center for treatment.

The dogs charged two police cars summoned to the scene and tried to attack paramedics who came to assist Capps, officials said. Firemen prepared to blast the dogs with a high pressure hose at levels strong enough to kill the animals, but they managed to keep out of the way of the hose.

The owners signed papers to have both dogs put to sleep and agreed to pay Capps' ambulance costs, but said they felt someone let their dogs out intentionally.

The dogs were let out as an act of revenge on them for reporting a stolen credit card to the police and complaining about vandalism in the neighborhood, they said.

An animal control officer took the rottweiler away for testing and, according to Capps and his wife, will probably destroy the dog.

"I fought that dog for 15 minutes," Capps said. "I'm nuts about this town, but I think everybody should get together on this, the media, the police, everyone."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I recently attended a business conference in a hotel in Winston-Salem, N.C., where a college debating competition was being held.

These young people, who had reached one of the final rounds of a national event, were from such schools as Harvard, Stanford and the University of Illinois. They were dressed like Third World refugees who had been given access to a Salvation Army reject bin. Their coaches and teachers were distinguishable from the rabble only by a gray hair or two.

These students gathered 10-deep in the corridors and blocked everyone's way. They smoked in no-smoking areas, left beer cans all over the place and sprawled in male-female entwined on the staircase landing and in the alcove off the lobby. One rugged individualist worked on his laptop while sitting on the patio during what appeared to be an approaching cyclone.

When the debates were over, the hotel's newly installed carpets were matted with the remains of fast-food meals, greasy wrappings, wadded napkins, empty cups and assorted debris. If these are our future leaders, God help us. -- North Carolina Couple

Dear N.C.: Somewhere between the reckless carefree years and adulthood, those teenagers manage to shape up. Life demands it, and they respond. The "refugee look" is in at the moment, but that, too, will pass, and before you know it, that young guy who was in the alcove off the lobby will be chairman of the board.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the 25-year-old mother of a beautiful 3-year-old girl. My mom has cared for this child since birth because I was unable to. I am now happily married and ready to take my daughter back and make her part of my family.

The problem is my mom. She does not want to give up the child. She has no legal rights, but I don't want to make something ugly out of this. I love my mother dearly. She was there for me when I needed her, but now, I am able to make a home for my daughter, and I want her back.

Please tell me what to do, Ann. I am -- Between a Rock and a Hard Place in Florida

Dear Florida: Now that you are able to care for your child, she belongs with you. I suggest a gradual transition. Start with weekends at your home, and then, keep adding days. As soon as the child is old enough for preschool, get her enrolled, and the hassle will be over.

Be careful that this does not create a rift between you and your mother. She is an important part of your child's life, and you should not forget it.

Dear Ann Landers: Why do people assume that battered women come from the lower classes? Rich women are battered, too. The wealthy have one advantage, however -- they can hide it better.

After being abused for several years, I gave up an estate in Canada, a country home in the south of France, a farm in Vermont and an apartment in Florida, and left with my two young daughters. No laws protected me, and I settled for very little in order to get a divorce. I traded a life of luxury for my sanity and self-esteem. It has been difficult, but when I see how well my daughters are doing, I am filled with pride and convinced that I made the right choice.

Do I regret leaving? No. Do I believe that rich men don't beat their wives? Absolutely not. The only difference between a rich wife-beater and a poor one is money. -- Struggling But Happier in Montreal

Dear Montreal: Your letter certainly proves the old adage "All is not gold that glitters." Thanks for writing.

Gem of the Day: Oh, blessed are the flexible, for they shall not get bent out of shape.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.55.)

Activity to keep kids aware of latest news

Radio, television, newspapers, magazines, books, the Internet -- information is coming at us in a constant flow, from many different sources. And then there are telephone answering machines, not to mention cell phones and beepers for on-the-road messages.

Create a fun activity this week with your kids to identify your sources of information and determine which methods of communication you rely on for the latest scoop.

First, get a small notebook for each child or keep a big sheet of paper posted on the wall for a log of how you receive information for seven days. Make a checklist grid in the notebook or on the poster by writing the days of the week across the top and various methods of receiving information down the side. Start with the obvious things like books and the radio, then list less obvious forms of communication like "word of mouth."

Each day, check off the sources of your information. At the end of the week, note which forms of communication are top info sources. You might discover different main sources for different types of information.

Look at your checklist and note one of the ways of communication used least. Perhaps you didn't write any letters or cards during the week, or you didn't read any magazines. Was music the only thing listened to on the radio?

Challenge family members to choose something that wasn't used frequently and give it a go next week. Send a postcard to an aunt or uncle in another state. Listen to a radio news broadcast instead of watching a TV program. Read a book that isn't a school assignment.

For fun, encourage your kids to ask grandparents how they received information when growing up. How is their experience the same? In what ways is it different? You'll no doubt have a lively conversation on how new technology has affected the way we receive information today and how we live.

Architectural exhibit

The architectural collections of two prominent architects will be highlighted in the exhibit, "Builders on the Plains: Emmett Rittenberry and Guy Carlander," opening Jan. 20 at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. The Fisk Building, pictured here, was designed by Guy Carlander in 1926 and is still a part of the Amarillo skyline.

CANYON

The architectural collections of two prominent architects will be highlighted in the exhibit, "Builders on the Plains: Emmett Rittenberry and Guy Carlander," opening at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon on Jan. 20 through July 13.

The Panhandle-Plains region has a rich architectural history, in part due to the work of Rittenberry and Carlander, architects who were prolific in the first half of the 20th century. Their styles ranged from the English-Tudor style to the Modern styles of the 1950s. However, both men are recognized by most architectural historians for their designs in the 1930 and the use of art deco or the "pueblo deco" style of the American Southwest.

Many of the familiar and landmark buildings of Amarillo, including the Fisk Building, were designed by Carlander. However, he is probably best known for his art deco buildings on the campus of Amarillo College, including the Auditorium.

Rittenberry was the architect for numerous schools throughout the Panhandle and South Plains region. Along with architect M.O. Carder, he was the designer of the original building of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum which bears a State Antiquities Landmark designation for its unique Art Deco architectural style.

The exhibit will include not only the architectural drawings and sketches of both men, but historical and contemporary photographs of their work, including buildings still in use throughout the Panhandle-Plains region.

The melodrama, written by Bill Johnson, takes place in a small

Connecticut town in the 1890s and tells the twisted tales of Nellie Lovelace, an innocent country girl; Adam Oakhart, the blacksmith's son; Munro Murgatroyd, the big-city villain; and the lives of the people who love, hate and live to hate them.

"Dirty Work at the Crossroads" is the Tulia Chamber of Commerce fund-raising event. Ticket prices are $7.50 for limited reserved table seating and $5 for general admission seating. For more information, contact the Tulia Chamber of Commerce at 806-995-2296.

PANHANDLE

The Square House Museum in Panhandle announces a unique and intriguing exhibition of 57 photographs by Howard Holland of Berger.

Consisting entirely of black-and-white photography, "Poetry Through the Lens" presents a wide variety of techniques within the confines of the medium. Various styles of photography include landscape, wildlife, aquarium and aquatic life, and floral and garden photography. In addition to nature photography, presentations also include pictures of historic, paleontological, and archaeological subjects.

This show is a new collection of work; the pieces have never been formally shown before. It can be viewed in the Hazlewood Arts and Education Building, located in Panhandle at the intersection of Texas Hwy. 207 and Fifth Street. Hours are Monday-Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission to the museum and the exhibition is free. For more information, call 806-537-3524.

There will be an artist's reception in the gallery from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 1.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Do you have any suggestions on how to clean pearls? Mine are very dirty with an accumulation of cosmetics.

I called a jewelry store about having them restrung and cleaned. They charge for cleaning and restringing with knots between each pearl. — Mrs. Mary Mann, W. Terre Haute, Ind.

Pearls are a special favorite of mine and I'm still wearing my mother's that are over 30 years old.

A home-style remedy for cleaning pearls is to fill a small bowl with water and a few drops of mild dishwashing detergent. Mix well and dip a soft cotton cloth in and wring out till just damp. Gently wipe the pearls with the cloth, going in both directions. To remove the soap residue, wipe them with another soft cloth dampened with plain warm water.

DO NOT dip the pearls in water because it could cause the string to stretch or weaken. Let them dry thoroughly before putting them away.

The key to keeping your pearls looking nice is to wipe them off each time you wear them. Use a slightly damp, almost-dry cloth to do this.

Experts recommend that you have pearls restrung at least once a year if you wear them often (two to three times a week). This keeps the thread from breaking due to stretching or weakening from ordinary wear and cosmetics. — Heloise

NO WRINKLES
Dear Heloise: My husband does the laundry in our household and usually does a pretty good job. But sometimes he forgets to take the clothes out of the dryer after the cycle is done and by the time I find them they're all wrinkled.

Since neither of us has much time for ironing, I've found a quick and easy solution to the problem. I simply take a small dish towel, wet it, wring out the excess water and toss it in the dryer with wrinkled clothes. I then run the dryer for 10 to 15 minutes and the clothes come out wrinkle-free and looking great. — E. Ririe, San Antonio

GOODY LIST
Dear Heloise: I'd like to make a suggestion on saving energy from constant opening of your refrigerator by children and adults who are always looking for something to eat.

After every shopping trip, list on a magnet board on the refrigerator door every snack or goody inside, so instead of standing in front of an open door they can see what's inside by glancing at the list. — Sally, Van Nuys, Calif.

Super Bowl historically won through air

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer

SAN DIEGO -- The Broncos brag about Terrell Davis and his power running. The Packers counter with emerging star Dorsey Levens. And how about those pile-pushing linemen!

Hogwash. History shows it's the passers who determine the Super Bowl outcome.

Green Bay and Denver certainly come well equipped for Sunday's game, with three-time league MVP

Brett Favre facing John Elway, the NFL's winningest regular-season quarterback.

Favre guides a passing attack as versatile as those from recent Super Bowl winners from San Francisco, Dallas or Washington -- or even the great Steelers and Raiders teams that played bombs-away offense. Sure, running backs Emmitt Smith, Roger Craig and Franco Harris were focal points for those championship clubs. All were superb runners.

But they also were excellent

SUPER BOWL XXXII

receivers, which always came in handy in their Super Bowls. And, as often as not, the running backs were complements for Lynn Swann and John Stallworth, Jerry Rice and John Taylor, Michael Irvin and Jay Novacek.

"Look at it like this," said Antonio Freeman, Green Bay's leading receiver with 81 catches for 1,243 yards and 12 TDs. "I'm glad I'm not the defensive coordinator for the Denver Broncos. Not that we can't be stopped, but it is a difficult situation."

"Take a guy like Robert," Freeman said, referring to his wideout partner, Robert Brooks (60, 1,010, 7TDs), who returned from reconstructive knee surgery this season. "He's a proven guy who makes plays."

"Then you have a young emerging guy like me and a big tight end who can catch like Mark Chmura and Dorsey coming out of the backfield. Then you throw in Brett, the best quarterback in the game. It's a versatile offense that can do a lot of damage and presents a great challenge to any defense."

As does Denver's strike force, led by Elway, whose quest to win an NFL title after going 0-3 in previous Super Bowls finally might be satisfied because of the talent at his disposal.

IN BRIEF

Hurst, Mallon lead
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) -- Pat Hurst and Meg Mallon shot matching 5-under-par 67s on Wednesday to share the first-round lead in the LPGA Office Depot tournament.

Neither played last year in the first LPGA event at Ibis Country Club but it didn't seem to matter. Hurst had six birdies and a bogey and Mallon made five birdies on the 6,195-yard Heritage, one of two courses being used this week.

Sweden's Helen Alfredsson and Peru's Alicia Dibos were a stroke back after 68s on the Heritage. Wendy Ward and Maggie Halpin were low on the adjacent, 6,277-yard Legend course with 69s.

A team headed by Alfredsson led the pro-am at 18-under 54.

Perdue spurs win over Atlanta, 90-76

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -- With the San Antonio Spurs, the starting lineup keeps changing, but the results remain the same.

Will Perdue, replacing Sean Elliott, tied his career-high with 19 points and had 14 rebounds, leading San Antonio past the Atlanta Hawks 90-76 Wednesday night.

Elliott was placed on the injured list Wednesday with recurring pain in his right knee and additional tendinitis in his left knee.

"We came out with a lot of energy tonight and really took advantage of a team that played two games in two nights," said Perdue, who also blocked two shots. "We got some put-backs and had a lot of points in the paint. That's what can happen with a big lineup out there."

That starting lineup is something we've been toying with off and on in practice. It may not fit our plan every game, but tonight it worked out well.

-- Gregg Popovich

San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich started three 7-footers--Perdue, Tim Duncan and David Robinson. Duncan had 23 points and Robinson had 12 for San Antonio, which won for the 18th time in the last 21 games.

"I always like the way Will plays," Popovich said. "That

Carr guns for 31 as Tech edges Jayhawks, 79-76

LUBBOCK (AP) -- The Texas Tech Red Raiders got just what they needed to end a three-game Big 12 Conference losing streak.

Texas Tech got 31 points from Cory Carr, clutch free throw shooting from Rayford Young down the stretch and a strong second half from Cliff Owens, resulting in a 79-76 victory Wednesday night over Kansas State.

The victory was the first for Texas Tech (8-7, 2-3) since a 66-55 victory over Iowa State on Jan. 3 and, at least for the moment, boosts the morale of a slumping Raider team.

"This is very important for us," said Carr, who scored in double figures for the 36th consecutive game. "Our confidence was low, our self-esteem was low. Some people were pointing fingers. We pulled together tonight. Certainly any game you win at this point is a confidence booster for your team."

Kansas State (11-5, 2-4) suffered its fourth loss in five games.

With Tech leading 75-74, Kansas State fouled Young with 10.8 seconds to play, but he made both ends of a 1-and-1 to put the Red Raiders up by three.

Kansas State's Duane Davis hit two free throws to cut the lead to one point again with 4.7 seconds

Nets edge Rockets, 117-112 OT

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) -- The Houston Rockets were distracted, dismayed and on edge. Surprisingly, they still managed to play a competitive game.

On a day of swirling trade rumors involving a proposed deal that would send Damon Stoudamire to the Rockets, the New Jersey Nets made matters worse for Houston as Jayson Williams had 25 points and 19 rebounds Wednesday night in a 117-112 overtime victory.

"It was like a morgue in here tonight," Charles Barkley said. "It's been a crazy day for the team, the team is kind of in shock. It's a tough situation right now. One of the most difficult situations I've ever had to play in."

He said it was something that could not be put aside.

"They are miserable," Kevin Willis said of the team. "I hate to see that because I give my all, I'm very dedicated, I'm a fighter and a team player and I enjoy this group of guys. Hopefully I'll continue to."

The overtime loss brought a disappointing finish to a day most of the Rockets would rather forget.

Rumors ran rampant that the Rockets were ready to pull the trigger on a trade that would have sent Willis, Mario Elie and another player -- Matt Maloney, Brent Price or Emanuel Davis -- to the Raptors for Stoudamire, Walt Williams and Zan Tabak.

"No question it was very difficult to come out and play," Maloney said. "This has been a long day for a lot of us, there has been a lot of anticipation."

The players sat in their hotel rooms during the afternoon frantically calling their agents and awaiting word of a deal, but none came.

The Rockets didn't announce their starting lineup until just before gametime -- about 20 minutes later than usual. And Elie, who had described before the game how distraught he was over the prospect of being traded, had been replaced by Rodrick Rhodes.

"It's tough to swallow. I've given this team a lot and I don't think I'm being treated with much respect," Elie said.

Elie eventually checked in late in the first quarter, having sat through a barrage of comments from hecklers behind the Rockets bench screaming "Put Stoudamire in, Rudy!"

"This happens every year at this time. Everybody talks," Houston Tabak.

Senior PGA's Gilbert dies from cancer

The Associated Press
Larry Gilbert, who died Wednesday after a brief battle with lung cancer, was the classic Senior PGA Tour success story, a club pro who won less than $20,000 on the regular tour before tapping into the over-50 circuit for $3.2 million in winnings.

Gilbert, 55, was diagnosed with inoperable cancer in September, less than two months after winning the Senior Players Championship, the biggest victory of his career. He died at Samaritan Hospital in Lexington, Ky.

"It's a tragedy to lose a man as fine as Larry Gilbert just as he reached the pinnacle of his career," PGA Tour commissioner Tim Finchem said Wednesday.

"The Ford Senior Players Championship was the level of achievement he had worked for his

NHL ROUNDUP

Sabres 2, Hurricanes 1
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) -- Dominik Hasek stopped 32 shots as Buffalo beat Carolina 2-1 Wednesday night, giving the Sabres four victories in five games this season against the Hurricanes.

Hasek, still looking for his first shutout in January after posting six in December, faced just five shots in the final period as Buffalo handed Carolina its third straight loss.

Curtis Brown and Dixon Ward scored for Buffalo, which was coming off a 3-0 loss to the Philadelphia Flyers on Tuesday night. Jeff O'Neill ended Hasek's shutout bid when he scored in the second period.

With the victory, the Sabres pulled into a tie with the New York Rangers for eighth place in the Eastern Conference. They also moved four points ahead of the last-place Hurricanes in the Northeast Division.

Maple Leafs 3, Red Wings 0
DETROIT (AP) -- Felix Potvin made 28 saves for his second shutout of the season and the Toronto Maple Leafs beat Detroit 3-0 Wednesday, the Red Wings' second loss in as many nights. Igor Korolev, Fredrik Modin and Jason Smith scored the goals for the Maple Leafs, who won for just the second time in their last eight games.

Detroit, which lost 3-1 Tuesday at New Jersey, dropped games on consecutive days for the first time this season. The Stanley Cup champion Red Wings have lost two in a row for just the second time.

Potvin's shutout was the ninth of his career and just the second against Detroit this year. Colorado's Craig Billington beat the Red Wings 2-0 on Nov. 11.

Canadiens 4, Bruins 2
MONTREAL (AP) -- Patrick Poulin, playing first game since being acquired from Tampa Bay, scored the winner as the Montreal Canadiens beat the Boston Bruins 4-2 Wednesday night.

Poulin, who came to the Habs last week with Igor Ulanov and Mick Vukota, broke a 2-2 tie late in the second period when he one-timed Vincent Damphousse's centering pass behind Boston goalie Byron Dafoe.

Damphousse stripped Boston's Dmitri Khristich of the puck on a Bruins' power play before setting up Poulin for just his third goal. It also was the first shorthanded goal allowed by Boston this season.

Martin Rucinsky then added an insurance goal in the third period. Dafoe made the original stop on Rucinsky before the puck deflected in off Boston defenseman Don Sweeney.

Capitals 3, Lightning 2, OT
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) -- Kelly Miller scored with 1:28 left in overtime and Peter Bondra added two goals as the Washington Capitals sent the Tampa Bay Lightning to their seventh straight loss, 3-2 Wednesday night. Miller's wrist shot from the slot gave Washington its third straight triumph.

Bondra, who has scored 18 times in 21 career games against Tampa Bay, became the fourth NHL player to reach 30 goals this season.

Bondra scored at 16:13 of the second period to pull the Capitals to 2-1, then tied it with a backhander 36 seconds into the third period.

Sharks 7, Flames 1
SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) -- Tony Granato scored two goals and assisted on two and five other Sharks had goals as San Jose beat the Calgary Flames 7-1 Wednesday night.

Marcus Ragnarsson, Jeff Friesen, Mike Rathje, John MacLean and Mike Ricci also scored for the Sharks, who set a season high for goals in a game while handing the Flames their worst loss of the season.

The victory was only the Sharks' fourth in 20 meetings against the Flames at San Jose. It also gave Sharks coach Darryl Sutter a win against his brother, Brian Sutter, whose Flames took the first meeting between the teams 3-2 in overtime in December.

Goaltender Mike Vernon stopped 31 of Calgary's 32 shots.

Coyotes 6, Canucks 1
VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) -- Mike Garner had two goals and an assist as the Phoenix Coyotes beat Vancouver 6-1 in a fight-filled game Wednesday night, extending the Canucks' winless streak to seven.

Keith Tkachuk, Dallas Drake and Cliff Ronning each had a goal and an assist for Phoenix. The Canucks are 0-5-2 in their last seven games.

The Coyotes and Canucks combined for 205 minutes in penalties. Coming off last Thursday's 6-2 loss in Buffalo which included two third-period brawls, 217 penalty minutes and $60,000 in league fines, the Canucks got battling early in their first game after the NHL All-Star break.

With Vancouver trailing 2-0, a major brawl broke out 8:19 into the game when Vancouver's Scott Walker bumped Michel Petit, who had just chased down the puck for an icing call.

Mighty Ducks 8, Panthers 3
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) -- Paul Kariya capped his third career hat trick with a penalty shot in the second period and the Anaheim Mighty Ducks set a team record for goals, beating the Florida Panthers 8-3 Wednesday night.

Kariya has 12 goals and 11 assists in 17 games since ending a 32-game holdout on Dec. 11. He tied his own team record with a four-point first period.

All-Star MVP Teemu Selanne ended a five-game goal-scoring drought with two goals, raising his league-leading total to 35. Joe Sacco and Warren Rychel also scored and Matt Cullen got his first NHL goal, helping the Ducks win for only the fifth time in their last 22 games.

Radek Dvorak, Ed Jovanovski and Scott Mellanby scored for the Panthers, winless in their last eight games (0-4-4).

Air

Davis led the AFC in rushing, which opens things for the passing game, of which Davis (42 catches) is a key part. Rod Smith had a breakthrough year with 70 catches for 1,180 yards and 12 TDs, and Ed McCaffrey is an outstanding possession receiver. Shannon Sharpe, like Davis an All-Pro, is the best pass-catching tight end in the business and had 72 catches for a career-high 15.4-yard average.

"I think it's tough when you have Terrell Davis and you are the No. 1 rushing offense in the league to get those guys the appreciation that they really deserve," Elway said. "Those guys have been there week in and week out, and they've made big, big plays for us. They're big, strong targets and they can really catch the ball well. I'm really glad they're on the ends."

The outcome of most Super Bowls has ridden on pass production. Four of San Francisco's five wins were the result of the 49ers moving swiftly through the air and their defense generally shutting down Elway, Dan Marino, Ken Anderson and Stan Humphries. The final two titles in Pittsburgh's unprecedented 1970s run featured wide-open approaches starring Terry Bradshaw throwing to Swann and Stallworth.

The Raiders won two of their three titles with aerial extravaganzas. Phil Simms broke open a Super Bowl with his arm. So did Doug Williams, Jim Plunkett and Steve Young.

Star receivers such as Rice and Michael Irvin, Otis Taylor and Cliff Branch, Swann and Stallworth were catalysts to super victories.

Certainly Favre and Elway and their receivers are capable of such feats. The group that performs those heroics likely will be celebrating Sunday night.

"If they win that matchup, or we win it, that's true," Broncos cornerback Ray Crockett said. "It's a concern that their receivers can catch a short pass and break it all the way. But every week you step on the field, that's a concern."

"What they do is run good routes and run well with the ball, but they're not just real fast receivers. They really know what to do once they catch it. They throw so many short routes you're not going to stop them from catching balls. You have to stop them from getting extra yards."

Perdue

starting lineup is something we've been toying with off and on in practice. It may not fit our plan every game, but tonight it worked out well."

Eldridge Recasner scored 16 points off of the bench to lead the cold-shooting Hawks, who shot only 35.1 percent from the field. Steve Smith added 13 points, but was only 4 of 12 shooting.

"The large lineup didn't do anything to change our game," Atlanta coach Lenny Wilkens said. "We just didn't shoot well, didn't rotate on defense."

The Spurs scored on their first five possessions for a 10-0 lead and never trailed in the game. Duncan had 11 of his points in the first quarter as San Antonio built the lead to 27-12 after the first.

Atlanta was 11-for-37 from the field in the first half, as San Antonio jumped out to a 50-30 halftime lead.

Perdue scored seven of his points in the third quarter helping San Antonio build its biggest lead of the game, 74-44, with 1:33 remaining in the third quarter on two Perdue free throws.

Trailing 76-46 entering the fourth quarter, Atlanta went on a 22-4 run to start the quarter to draw within 80-68 with 4:07 to play.

San Antonio survived the run as Monty Williams had eight fourth-quarter points.

Gilbert

entire life and he spoke often of how gratifying it was for him to play against the best and prevail."

Gilbert was one of four senior team members diagnosed with cancer in 1997, joining Arnold Palmer and Jim Colbert, who each had prostate surgery, and Bruce Devlin, who had his right kidney removed. Gilbert was the only one of the four whose condition could not be treated.

Doctors discovered a small tumor on Gilbert's lung during a routine physical and believed it was in the early stages, but further exams found the cancer had spread through the bloodstream and reached his shoulder and ribs.

Gilbert, born Nov. 19, 1942, in Fort Knox, Ky., was the NCAA college division champion at Middle Tennessee State in 1965.

Gilbert is survived by his wife, Brenda, and two adult children, Allen and Chris.

Tech

remaining, and the Wildcats fouled Young immediately. The sophomore guard iced the game by hitting two more foul shots with 3.9 seconds to play.

"We just didn't make the plays down the stretch when we needed to," Wildcats coach Tom Asbury said. "We have to stop doing dumb things. We had our opportunities, and we didn't make any plays, and we didn't have an answer for Carr."

Aaron Swartzendruber led Kansas State with 21 points, Shawn Rhodes added 15 points, and Davis and Manny Dies added 13 points apiece.

Dies, the Big 12 player of the week, did not start because of disciplinary reasons, having arrived late for practice Monday.

Texas Tech struggled through the first half, shooting 35 percent. A 15-4 run midway through the second half finally lifted the Raiders, who shot 67 percent after halftime.

"I'm very proud of our team, especially in the second half," Tech coach James Dickey said. "Our team really responded, made some big plays, did a great job defensively, and played with confidence. We shot the ball well in the second half, and that makes a big difference in the ballgame."

coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "We made it our policy to keep our mouths shut and do it behind closed doors. "I don't know where this (rumor) came from, but it's counterproductive and very disruptive. It's causing a lot of bad feelings."

Maloney and Willis were in their customary spots in the starting five, and Maloney showed no concern as he launched seven shots in the first quarter and made five to score 13 points -- almost six more than his average.

The Rockets went ahead by 11 points early on, the Nets came back and led by as many as eight, and the teams went into the fourth quarter tied 81-81.

Clyde Drexler, activated from the injured list early in the day, led Houston with 26 points. But he missed the potential winning basket late in regulation, forcing an off-balance 3-pointer with about two seconds left.

Keith Van Horn added 19 points for New Jersey, Cassell and Gill had 17 each and David Benoit a season-high 14.

MICHAEL CRICHTON

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Michael Crichton says he and his wife acted out the plot turns in their "Twister" screenplay while they were writing it.

Crichton and Anne-Marie Martin used several sources, including books and videos about tornado chasers, to create the screenplay, he testified Wednesday in a lawsuit alleging he stole the screenplay for the hit movie.

Stephen Kessler contends in his 1996 lawsuit that some of the biggest names in Hollywood - including Steven Spielberg - ripped off his script "Catch the Wind" to make "Twister." Kessler seeks the entire multimillion-dollar profit from "Twister."

Crichton said he and Ms. Martin had never heard of Kessler or his screenplay before he filed the lawsuit.

They got the idea to write a screenplay after seeing a TV documentary about storm chasers, Crichton testified. They decided to make theirs "a zany and screwball comedy" with a touch of drama, based on the 1940s comedy "My Girl Friday," he said.

Crichton, who also wrote the novel Jurassic Park and helped create the hit TV show "ER," said Ms. Martin came up with "Twister" plot and dialogue ideas while he typed them. "We basically acted it out," Crichton said.

CALISTA FLOCKHART

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (AP) - "Ally McBeal" suits Calista Flockhart just fine, say her parents.

"We can see a lot of things that sort of look like her," her father, Ronald Flockhart, told the Citizen Tribune this week. "She uses the phrase, 'Excuse me, please?' She's used that since she was a kid."

"Ally McBeal," her irreverent show on Fox about a young Boston lawyer, beat out "Seinfeld" and other heavy hitters to win a Golden Globe award this week as the best TV comedy. And the 33-year-old Flockhart won best actress in the category.

The Flockharts, who moved to Morristown from Buffalo, N.Y., in 1995, are among the biggest fans of "Ally."

"Of course, I love the show," Kay Flockhart said. "But I'm her mother."

PAUL NEWMAN

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - Paul Newman is pouring some of his salad dressing profits into a favorite cause: land preservation.

The actor wants the state to set aside more money to preserve land, and on Wednesday he pledged $500,000 from sale of his "Newman's Own" food products to help preserve the Trout Brook Valley near his Westport home.

The valley includes a 700-acre parcel owned by a water company and slated for a $14 million sale so that a golf course and 100 homes can be built.

"Spaghetti sauce and salad dressing are useful sometimes," Newman joked at a news conference by the nonprofit Trust for Public Land.

Rep. Jessie Stratton, co-chairwoman of the General Assembly's Environment Committee, said lawmakers plan to change regulations, seek tax benefits and come up with other ways for more water company land to be preserved instead of developed.

Newman, star of such films as "Cool Hand Luke" and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," also donates profits from his food line to charity.

JACQUELINE STALLONE

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Sylvester Stallone's mother underwent angioplasty after a heart attack that left her unconscious at her home.

Jacqueline Stallone was recovering well Wednesday from the surgery to clear clogged heart arteries, said hospital spokeswoman Lindi Funston.

The actor's mother was moved to a private room at St. John's Hospital and Medical Center and could go home as soon as Friday. "She's actually doing great," Ms. Funston said.

Ms. Stallone, who has no history of heart problems, was found unconscious in her home Monday. She said she had been working out last week for a guest appearance on the trapeze with Cirque du Soleil.

EMBETH DAVIDTZ

NEW YORK (AP) - At 32, Embeth Davidtz figures she's too old for that hungry look she has in "The Gingerbread Man."

"When you're 20, it's fine to look like Kate Moss," the actress told Parade magazine for its Jan. 25 issue. "I'm not 20 anymore."

The South African actress, who bares it all in Robert Altman's latest film, said she didn't like how skinny she looked in her nude scenes.

"I didn't mind when I was doing it, but it bothered me when I saw the film because I was in a room with other people, and when the lights came up, I'd have to shake their hands," she said.

Davidtz, who also had nude scenes in "Schindler's List," said it's not the baring-it-all that bothered her.

"In 'Gingerbread Man,' I looked quite frail, bony and odd. There's something that appeals to men in some dark way about a creature like that," said Davidtz, who has since gained 10 pounds.

'Hawaii Five-O' star dead at 77

HONOLULU (AP) - Jack Lord, the no-nonsense "Hawaii Five-O" detective whose "Book 'em, Danno!" ended most episodes of TV's longest-running crime show, died of heart failure at age 77.

Lord died Wednesday evening at his Honolulu home with his wife, Marie, at his side.

"Jack loved acting and he loved these islands," Mrs. Lord said in a statement. "Through all his years he was blessed with kindness, affection and support of many fans and friends. He always appreciated that and never forgot it."

Lord portrayed Steve McGarrett, the gruff head of a fictitious Hawaii police force known as Five-O, for 12 years. It ended in 1980 amid declining ratings when McGarrett busted his bitter enemy, crime boss Wo Fat.

Actor James MacArthur played his ubiquitous sidekick, Danny "Danno" Williams. Many of the 284 episodes ended with McGarrett collaring the criminals and saying to Williams, "Book 'em, Danno!" "Hawaii Five-O" initially faced local opposition because of its depiction of crime in paradise. But its combination of adventure in the natural beauty of Hawaii proved popular. The CBS series was seen in 80 countries with a weekly audience estimated at more than 300 million.

"It really was an excellent marketing program to promote Hawaii as a vacation destination," said Stanley W. Hong, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Hawaii. "People who have never been to Hawaii have only seen Hawaii through that program."

Shot entirely on location in Hawaii, "Five-O" was the forerunner of other island shows, including "Magnum, P.I."

Lord produced and sometimes directed "Five-O." Kam Fong, who played Detective Chin Ho Kelly, described Lord as a "real hard taskmaster" but said he learned a lot from him.

Clinton touts agenda while the GOP fumes

WASHINGTON (AP) - To the chronic frustration of the opposition party, the president, every president, has a built-in advantage in putting his proposals at the head of the agenda.

That's why President Clinton is one up, or better, as he and now the long recessed Republican Congress present competing ideas for action in 1998.

The Republicans shouldn't take it personally. The same scenario has played the other way in prior rounds, when they held the White House and Democrats ran Congress.

The uneven rivalry is never more evident than in the weeks leading up to the State of the Union address; Clinton will deliver his Tuesday night to Congress and an every-network television audience.

Then the Republicans get their TV response time, separate and not close to equal. The out-party has been trying for two decades to find formats that will make their quasi-State of the Union talks into more than routine replies.

It hasn't worked yet, after the drama, setting and audience of the president's major speech of the year.

The Republicans have been trying to catch up in advance, with tax, budget and education plans to counter Clinton's succession of proposals, essentially previewing his Jan. 27 address.

The long congressional recess, 2 1/2 months, worsened their disadvantage by yielding the Washington stage to Clinton. With 535 lawmakers scattered for the holiday, and some GOP factions differing with others on what to do, the White House edge widened.

The practice of delivering, or more often leaking, State of the Union proposals in advance has been standard procedure for Republican as well as Democratic presidents. But Clinton has made an art of preemptive proposals, and of shifting his stance when the opposition found an issue too potent to withstand.

He did so to endorse legislation to rein in the Internal Revenue Service, passed by the House, soon to become a Senate Republican boasting point, at about tax time in an election year.

He boasts of balancing the budget, and he began the process with his politically distasteful economic plan of 1993, enacted over unanimous GOP opposition. But in 1995, he resisted the Republican plan for a five-year timetable to end deficit spending, and later revised his own budget to embrace the 2001 deadline. That's moot now that a surging economy has the budget approaching balance ahead of that schedule.

"Everybody is talking about what to do with the surplus," he told a Democratic fund-raising dinner Tuesday night. "You know, nobody else would talk like this. ... So, it may be old fashioned, but if I might modestly suggest, let us balance the budget first."

He does want to spend more on day care, education, college student aid, expanding the Peace Corps, and other items in his succession of pre-State of the Union proposals.

The most sweeping of them is his call to open Medicare to people under 65 for the first time - 62 for retirees, 55 for people who lose their jobs and their insurance - with premiums the White House said would cover most of the cost.

Clinton said his plan "will not increase the deficit or wreck the Medicare trust fund," which will have to be shored up anyway, GOP critics say it would add unmanageable numbers and expenses to a program already facing financial trouble.

"It is the right thing to do," Clinton said. "It's a Democratic program, within the constraints of fiscal discipline, and I hope you'll support that." Republicans, meanwhile, were proposing tax cuts, in varying versions. One plan would reduce taxes by about $200 billion over the next 10 years, and pay down the national debt by another $200 billion, using the budget surpluses now projected.

Another outbids that idea, seeking a trillion dollar tax cut. There are GOP plans for education tax breaks and the conversion of programmed federal aid into grants to the states. There's a House GOP proposal to hire 100,000 new teachers with federal aid, cost to be covered by cutting other programs.

Republican National Chairman Jim Nicholson complains that GOP proposals are being virtually ignored by "the elite news media" which has given extensive coverage to Clinton's plans.

That's not elite, it's inevitable. The president has the platform now. Republicans can reclaim theirs when Congress reconvenes Jan. 27. They've got the votes to counter, charge or scrap what Clinton's been offering.

Mauro wants pay increases for teachers

DALLAS (AP) - Democratic gubernatorial candidate Garry Mauro touted his plan to end social promotion Wednesday, proposing a $5,000 raise for certified teachers and blasting Gov. George W. Bush's proposal to pass students based largely on standardized test scores.

Mauro spoke to teachers in Dallas as he toured the state to push his education reform ideas. He said his plan doesn't offer a direct solution to social promotion, but attacks the root of the problem - poor conditions for teachers and classroom overcrowding.

Social promotion is the passing of students to the next grade even though it's not warranted by their academic performance, with the goal of keeping them with their age group.

"Social promotion exists in Texas because we aren't giving teachers and local districts the tools they need to identify and correct problems where they begin: in the classroom," Mauro said. "We need more first-rate teachers, and we need to keep them here."

In addition to the raise, Mauro said he wants to offer a $5,000 signing bonus to new teachers when they receive their certification and commit to teach in Texas for three years.

"What do they do at McDonald's when they need better people to flip burgers? They raise the salary," Mauro said.

To pay for his plan, which Mauro said would cost the state $2.8 billion, the candidate wants to double the mixed beverage, liquor, cigarette, cigar and tobacco tax.

He also wants to use $2 billion from the Permanent School Fund, a state trust fund, to expand schools that have overcrowding problems.

"It's outrageous for six- and seven-year-olds to be stuffed into portable classrooms where they have to walk across a cold playground to get a drink of water," he said.

Bush's social promotion proposal would require third-graders to pass the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills reading exam to go on to fourth grade.

Fifth-graders would have to pass the reading and math TAAS, and eighth-graders would have to pass reading, math and writing.

It would take effect beginning with students in the 1999 kindergarten class.

Mauro said Bush's plan would take control away from teachers.

"If a third-grade teacher isn't qualified to decide who should advance to the fourth grade, what are they qualified for?" Mauro asked.

Bush spokeswoman Karen Hughes defended the Republican governor's plan.

She said Bush wants parents and teachers to measure students' progress in kindergarten through second grade and correct problems early "so they are fully prepared to take the TAAS test when they reach the third grade."

Mauro's plan seems to settle for the status quo, she said.

State law already says students may be promoted only on the basis of academic achievement or demonstrated proficiency. But there's no state standard to ensure students aren't passed without demonstrating knowledge.

The Texas Federation of Teachers estimated in 1996 that 150,000 Texas students of 3.7 million are promoted every year without passing their courses.

ROE vs. WADE—

made good on the threat.
Douglas wasn't the only agitated justice.

In June 1972, Brennan penciled a memo to Douglas that said: "At lunch today, Potter (Justice Potter Stewart) expressed his outrage at the highhanded way things are going, particularly the assumption that a single justice - if CJ (chief justice) - can order things his own way. ... Maybe fur will fly this afternoon."

Blackmun labored over the decision that summer at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where he had been general counsel for years.

In his second draft, circulated in November 1972, the nine-month pregnancy was broken into trimesters. The opinion said a woman's decision to have an abortion during the first three months of pregnancy must be left to her and her doctor, but states could impose restrictions and regulate abortions after that.

Two months later, after revisions within Blackmun's framework, the court handed down its final 7-2 decision, legalizing abortion nationwide. Justices Rehnquist and Byron White dissented.

Blackmun received more than 50,000 letters about the decision. Now 89 and retired, he still gets mail about it today.

Gingrich crafts 2000 agenda

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - In a 17-state dash for cash and attention, House Speaker Newt Gingrich is tracing the outlines of a political agenda that he may carry beyond November's midterm elections and into a 2000 presidential campaign.

He promises to reduce drugs and crime, reshape the "overall tone" of America's schools, make government customer-driven and explore private-sector options to Social Security.

"We must start talking about the next generation," Gingrich said this week at a town hall meeting in neighboring North Carolina. "We must capitalize on this magic moment."

Gingrich is raising money for the Republican Party and its candidates, cementing his standing as the GOP's top money magnet and testing his viability as a presidential candidate.

The speaker told his hometown newspaper last month that if a list of 20 potential candidates was compiled, "I am on the list." But he said he would wait until after Labor Day 1999 to decide whether to run.

"I don't see any reason why he can't do it," said Beatrice Clark of Charlotte, N.C. She stood with hundreds of supporters in a line that snaked the length of a downtown auditorium and spilled into a hallway Tuesday night; one after another, Clark and her fellow Republicans posed for pictures with Gingrich.

Yet many Republican officials believe the speaker's high negative poll ratings make a presidential race doubtful. South Carolina Gov. David Beasley, a Gingrich enthusiast, said even winning the GOP primary would be difficult.

"Don't underestimate the guy, but I do think he's a longshot," Beasley said.

Microsoft, government agree to settle dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) - Microsoft Corp and the Justice Department today settled a contempt of court complaint today concerning its Internet software distribution practices. But the heart of the government's antitrust suit remained intact.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson signed the settlement in a brief hearing today in federal court. Attorney Richard J. Urowsky said the agreement "settles a dispute on the compliance" a Dec. 11 court order.

The order which required the company not to force computer makers to install Internet Explorer software as a condition of licensing the Windows 95 operating system.

Urowsky said said the order did not settle other issues in the overall antitrust dispute.

Housing starts slip to closing good year

WASHINGTON (AP) - Housing starts slipped 0.8 percent in December, ending an otherwise good year for builders, who were helped by low mortgage rates and a thriving economy.

The December decline to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.52 million units followed three consecutive monthly gains, the Commerce Department said today.

The Labor Department said the number of applications for unemployment benefits fell by 13,000 last week to a seasonally adjusted 326,000. The unexpectedly sharp drop followed three consecutive increases that some economists had said was a sign the labor market was cooling off a bit.

Indonesian currency's fall batters markets

HONG KONG (AP) - Asian stock markets fell today amid fears that the collapse of Indonesia's currency could trigger further economic instability across the region.

Hong Kong's main stock index shed 3.9 percent over concerns about the Indonesian rupiah, the shaky health of Hong Kong's brokerage industry and a 1 percent overnight fall on Wall Street.

Taiwan's main stock index dropped 0.1 percent, while Sydney's index fell 0.9 percent. Malaysia's index also shed 2.6 percent as investors reacted to the downturn on other Asian markets.

Indonesia's rupiah collapsed to another record low today amid fears about huge private sector debt and the nation's political future.

The currency crashed to 16,300 rupiah against the U.S. dollar in a panicky trading shortly after opening before recovering to 12,000 in late trading-off about 5 percent from the previous day.

"Mad cow" fear hits Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) - Nearly 110 patients in Hong Kong were given a fluid suspected to have been contaminated with a human variant of "mad cow disease," hospital authorities said today.

The suspected contamination came to light after a patient in Britain who was given the fluid died of the brain-wasting Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease, Hong Kong radio reported.

Ko Wing-man, deputy director of the Hospital Authority, said 108 patients in six Hong Kong hospitals were injected with the fluid between July and December, the radio said.

He said chances that the patients would develop the disease were "extremely remote."

The fluid was given to patients before lung and stomach scans, the radio reported. Authorities did not immediately say what the fluid was, exactly what its purpose was, or how it might have become contaminated.

Every third condom in Germany is shoplifted

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) - Sunbathing in the nude raises hardly an eyebrow and soft-core porn is shown on national television, but Germans apparently are still shy when it comes to one sex-related matter: buying condoms.

A study on shoplifting released Wednesday by the Association of German Retailers found that prophylactics are one of the most commonly stolen products.

Thirty-eight percent of condoms leave the store without being paid for, the survey found. It cited "feelings of embarrassment" about the purchase as the most likely reason.

Other frequently filched items are batteries, expensive cosmetics and compact discs. More than $5 billion worth of goods are stolen from German stores each year, the report said.

The number of reported shoplifting cases rose 6.8 percent in 1996 to almost 660,000, the report said.

Thousands expected for pro-choice, anti-abortion rallies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Activists on both sides of the abortion debate are observing the 25th anniversary of legalized abortion with candlelight vigils, luncheons, noisy demonstrations and the annual march to the Supreme Court by opponents of the court's landmark ruling.

Thousands of abortion foes planned to rally today near the White House to make it clear, they said, that they won't give up - not even a quarter-century after the nation's highest court said a woman's access to abortion was covered by the constitutional right to privacy.

Afterward, they planned to walk to the Supreme Court chanting and carrying placards as they have every year since the ruling to protest the court's decision in Roe vs. Wade.

"In 1973, it seemed that feminists (and) abortionists expected pro-lifers to grumble a bit over Roe vs. Wade and then go away," said Nellie Gray, president of the fund that sponsors the annual March for Life. "We have endured for a quarter of a century. Pro-lifers will never go away."

Abortion rights supporters also were digging in their heels. "The pro-choice movement is going to be speaking up and speaking out," Gloria Feldt, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, said in an interview before a breakfast rally Tuesday. "To those who oppose abortion, my message is, 'Join with us to prevent the need for abortion.'"

Clinton trying to set up Arafat-Netanyahu meet

WASHINGTON (AP) - Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, declaring he is "not asking for the moon," hopes to line up President Clinton to push Israel off more of the West Bank. But he could face tough questions on his spotty record in stopping terrorism.

"I am asking for what was signed at the White House," Arafat said before calling on Clinton today. Referring to an interim agreement he reached with Israel in 1995, Arafat is insisting on a big pullback of Israeli forces.

He told reporters Wednesday before dining with Secretary of State Madeleine Albright that Israel must carry out the agreement "accurately and honestly."

Israel already has given Arafat's Palestinian Authority all of Gaza and 27 percent of the West Bank. Getting more - and the agreement does not specify how much - depends on tougher measures against terrorists and the Palestine National Council publicly annulling calls for Israel's destruction, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said during his own pilgrimage here.

Newspaper publishes name, photo of sex offender

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Under Megan's Law, authorities may go door-to-door to tell residents about sex offenders moving into their neighborhood.

Now two newspapers have printed stories quoting information from a "sex offender release notice," angering authorities who meant it only for neighbors' eyes and alarming those who fear such notices can lead to vigilante action.

The Home News & Tribune of East Brunswick ran a front-page story Wednesday, including two mug shots from the notice naming Ronald Terpak.

The flier was distributed to residents of Union and Middlesex counties with a warning that it "may not be released beyond your immediate household, given to the press, or posted anywhere."

The newspaper omitted Terpak's address, but the article and a front-page map identified the streets of his neighborhood.

Clinton reportedly admits affair with Flowers

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton has acknowledged for the first time last Saturday that he had an affair with Gennifer Flowers during the 1970s, according to a published report.

The Washington Post says in today's editions that the statement came during the president's six-hour deposition in the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit. The Post quoted unidentified sources familiar with his testimony.

During the 1992 presidential campaign, Clinton denied Ms. Flowers' statements that he was romantically involved with her but admitted having caused pain in his marriage.

Bad weather ruins part of unsold tobacco crop

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Adverse weather conditions during the tobacco growing or curing season may have ruined 25 percent or more of the unsold 1997 crop.

"We would need at least two weeks of summer weather to help growers salvage what they can, and that's not going to happen," Gary Palmer, a tobacco specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said Wednesday.

The past year was a "bad one from start to finish for the tobacco grower. Some told me they've never seen anything like it," said Palmer, who was attending a meeting of directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association in Lexington, Ky.

Tom Norvell, senior vice president of Universal Leaf North America, reported findings from a survey of tobacco warehouses.

"If there is a market for this tobacco, we don't know where it is," Norvell said.

S.C. lawmakers urged to ban video gambling

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - Gov. David Beasley urged lawmakers to ban video gambling in South Carolina, an industry praised for its jobs and profits but criticized as fatally addictive.

Beasley said he expected tighter restrictions on the $2 billion-a-year industry if not an outright ban. He has even eliminated $61 million in anticipated gambling revenue from his proposed budget.

"Studies show that every dollar spent on gambling actually costs us another $3 to pay for its consequences," Beasley told legislators in his State of the State address Wednesday night. "Ban it - once and for all."

Hallmark launches suicide sympathy card

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Hallmark Cards Inc. is making a sympathy card for those who lose someone to suicide, expanding the company's collection of death- and illness-related cards.

The card, the first in a possible line, is to be released in April. Hallmark's Lifesong collection, which includes the card, celebrates all experiences, beautiful and painful, company spokeswoman Rachel Bolton said Wednesday.

"There was a resounding response for this kind of card, cards that deal with death and dying and spirituality," she said.

Hallmark tested the idea for a suicide condolences card in at least six cities and received an overwhelmingly positive response, she said. One woman said none of the cards she received after her husband's suicide showed that people knew or understood the loss.

"What these cards do is they open the door to communication," Bolton said. "The challenge is to educate people about what it means to lose someone like this."

Cleveland area police arrested on corruption charges

CLEVELAND (AP) - The dealer promised up to $3,700 for protection while he bought and sold drugs, an offer the FBI says 44 police officers, sheriff's deputies and prison guards gladly accepted.

The dealer, it turned out, was an undercover FBI agent making bogus sales. In a huge bust Wednesday, authorities arrested the officers and charged them all with conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years to life in prison. "Today has been a very difficult day in law enforcement," said Van Harp, the agent in charge of the FBI's Cleveland office. The probe "really turned back on law enforcement itself."

Those arrested include police from Cleveland, East Cleveland, Cleveland Heights and Brooklyn, plus one deputy, 24 corrections officers and a former corrections officer from Cuyahoga County.

Each took part in at least one of 16 staged deals between November 1996 and this month, the FBI said. An East Cleveland officer was late to one deal because he was giving an anti-drug presentation.

Gotti Jr. indicted on variety of charges

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) - John Gotti Jr. sat on a padded chair in a jury box, put on his glasses and calmly thumbed through an indictment that accused him of racketeering, extortion and other organized-crime offenses that could send him to prison for 20 years.

Nearby, half a dozen other alleged mobsters waiting their turn before a judge for arraignment. And two floors below, other courtrooms and judges were similarly occupied.

Indictments were announced Wednesday against 40 men on charges that include racketeering, extortion, murder conspiracy, money laundering, fraud and gambling.

Chief among them was Gotti, 33, who according to the indictment was among those who ascended to the top of the Gambino crime family after John Gotti went to jail for life in 1992.

"Whether it be Paul Castellano, John Gotti or Junior Gotti, it doesn't pay to be No. 1," said Lewis Schiliro of the FBI.

Gotti was not among five people charged with plotting revenge murders against two men who allegedly killed a bouncer and a waiter in 1996.

Logging road plan exempts Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Forest Service has settled on a new plan to temporarily protect millions of acres of national forests currently open to logging, but will exclude from the strategy some of the most controversial, centuries-old groves in Alaska.

Lobbyists for the timber industry and environmental groups said late Wednesday national forests in western Oregon and western Washington likely would win a similar exemption from the new logging and road-building plan expected to be made public as early as today.

That would please the industry, but draw strong criticism from conservationists.

TI reports loss in fourth quarter

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Instruments Inc. lost $285 million for the final three months of 1997 after recording the costs tied to its purchase of Amati Communications Corp., but the company's profit would have more than doubled if not for a series of one-time charges.

The loss amounted to 73 cents per diluted share, up from the year-earlier loss of $29 million, or 8 cents per diluted share. The 1996 results included $208 million worth of special charges.

Not counting the one-time charges, Texas Instruments would have had a profit of $219 million, up from $95 million a year earlier. Revenues were $2.43 billion, down from $2.46 billion in the fourth quarter of 1996.

The company's stock rose sharply on the New York Stock Exchange, up $1.81 share to $48.06.

For the year, Texas Instruments earned $1.81 billion, or $4.54 per share, up from $63 million, or 17 cents per share. Revenues were $9.75 billion, down from $9.94 billion.

Safety agency probes Ford wheel complaints

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government's highway safety agency is investigating complaints of wheels falling off some Ford pickup trucks and sport utility vehicles.

There are 36 complaints from vehicle owners that the wheels separated from 1997 F-150 trucks and Expedition sport utility vehicles, according to a monthly report Wednesday by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Nine crashes and one injury were reported.

There are more than 700,000 of the popular 1997 F-150 pickups on the road and more than 200,000 Expeditions.

Carey takes stand in Teamsters investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Denying involvement in an illegal contribution-swap scheme, Teamsters President Ron Carey defended his reputation as a reformer before a panel deciding whether to expel him from the union.

Carey told the federally appointed Independent Review Board on Wednesday that he was unaware of efforts by his campaign manager, Jere Nash, to swap Teamsters contributions for donations to his 1996 re-election campaign.

"If Jere Nash had said to me, 'Look, if we rub someone's back, they'll massage our backs,' I would have known something was wrong," Carey said.

Brain area linked to ear ringing

NEW YORK (AP) - Brain scans of people with ringing in the ears have found a clue to what causes the buzzing, roaring, whistling and other phantom noise affecting some 50 million Americans.

One expert called the work a breakthrough toward finding the cause of the problem, called tinnitus, and perhaps better treatments. The scans found abnormally high activity in a pecan-sized area that helps the brain process sounds.

Within that area, "there may be one spot that's triggering off all that activity," said Dr. Alan Lockwood of the State University of New York at Buffalo and the Veterans Affairs Medical Center in that city.

He and others report the work in January's issue of Neurology. For most people, tinnitus is just annoying. But an estimated 12 million Americans have it bad enough to seek medical help or to be considered disabled, according to the American Tinnitus Association.

No cure is known. Patients can learn to cope and use noise-producing devices to distract them or cover their phantom sound.
