WEEKEND Profile

Retire? Not this couple

By VIRGINIA ARTHO
 Special to The Brand

Some Hereford senior citizens vacate retirement to continue as movers and shakers in the community.

And, according to their employers, a part of the community's wealth is these residents who pursue multiple careers. Besides, from the example of some, it's possible the fountain of youth springs from a life of satisfying work and productivity.

Betty Koelzer thinks so.

She cites statistics showing seniors who choose a sedentary life often die within three years of retirement. She instructed husband Werner that either he has to work until he plays out or the job plays out. There's no love in that dictum than readily seen.

Both of the Koelzers are active in post-retirement careers. Mrs. Koelzer worked as a legal secretary, a photographer for The Hereford Brand, and as owner of her own photography studio before retiring.

"Then in September '91, our youngest daughter, Barb, convinced me (at age 58) to go to college. I had never been," Mrs. Koelzer said.

She graduated from Amarillo College in May 1994, then from West Texas A&M University in May 1996, "and, hopefully, will get my master's degree by the year 2000."

"I started to school as a lark, just for fun. But a Career in Education Planning course led to my becoming more serious and getting into something I could do as an older person, in case I had to support myself or the two of us. That led to social work," she said.

"I did my internship at HRMC (Hereford Regional Medical Center) in the spring semester of 1996 and went on staff April 29, 1996," she said.

Her responsibilities include discharge planning for the OB department, helping families with "Do Not Resuscitate" orders, keeping their orderson hospital record, and getting medications for indigents or others unable to afford them.

She also offers her photography skills and helps produce an in-hospital newsletter.

"We cover new people, good things people do, awards, grandbabies, weddings, coming events -- any kind of congratulations."

"We have an article by administrator Jim Robinson and honor a person or organization within the hospital each time. It's part of the Employee Relations Committee and part of our Interdisciplinary Team that meets once a week to discuss the patients and what they might need and how we're all working on the patients," Mrs. Koelzer said. She's also on the Indigent Care Team helping to revise the hospital's medical plan.

Mrs. Koelzer does public relations work and checks with patients for their evaluation of the hospital's services.

She enjoys the people contact, she said, noting she runs errands, rocks babies and answers the telephone in different departments, especially the OB department.

She also is on hand to refer patients to other agencies.

"That's a very important part when the hospital cannot serve their needs, like emotional needs, mental health needs, alcohol/drug abuse, domestic violence. Whenever I get an opportunity, I encourage education, and I do

Texans going to polls, pick party nominees

By DONALD M. COOPER
 Brand Editor

Ho, hum. Texans likely will stay away from the polls in droves Tuesday as the Democrat and Republican parties hold primary elections.

Most of the major races are uncontested, so there has been little interest this political season.

What interest has been generated has been in the attorney general's race, where the decision by Democratic incumbent Dan Morales not to seek re-election opened up the field.

Six candidates -- three Republicans, three Democrats -- are vying for the nominations.

On the Democratic side, former Attorney General Jim Mattox is running a low-key race against Morris L. Overstreet, an appellate judge, and Gene Kelly.

On the Republican side, the candidates include former state GOP chairman Tom Pauken, Barry Williamson and Supreme Court Justice John Cornyn.

Three Republicans are vying for the land commissioner's post, which is being vacated by Garry Mauro, who is unopposed in his bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The GOP hopefuls are David Dewhurst, state Rep. Jerry Patterson and Don Loucks. Patterson gained statewide attention as author of the state's concealed weapon law.

When incumbent Bob Bullock decided not to seek re-election as lieutenant governor, it opened up two other races, agriculture commissioner and comptroller.

The two candidates to succeed Bullock, incumbent Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, a Republican, and incumbent Comptroller John Sharp, a Democrat, are unopposed in the primaries, setting up a match in November.

Four candidates -- two Democrat, two Republican -- are seeking the nominations for ag commissioner. They are Democrats L.P. "Pete" Patterson and Ernest L. DeLeon and Republicans Susan Combs and Hamp Hodges.

In Deaf Smith County, the only contested race is on the Democratic ballot, where Darla Hale and Gracie Varela are seeking the nomination for district clerk. The position opened up when longtime incumbent Lola Faye Veazey decided not to seek re-election.

Three incumbents are unopposed for re-election, although they switched parties.

Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, County Judge Tom Simons and County Clerk David Ruland were elected as Democrats; however, they are seeking re-election as Republicans.

Robinson quits at HRMC

Board meets
 6:30 p.m.
 Monday

Jim Robinson

Deaf Smith County Hospital directors are expected to accept the resignation of the Hereford Regional Medical Center administrator.

The directors will consider the resignation of Jim Robinson when they meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the HRMC dining room.

Director Chip Guseman said Saturday morning the resignation is related to a conflict between Robinson and the hospital's medical staff which the parties consider to be unresolvable.

Guseman said the board's executive committee met with Robinson and the medical staff, but the two sides appear to be unable to find a way to erase their differences.

In its meeting Monday night, the hospital district board will also consider hiring an interim administrator and set up procedures for finding a permanent administrator.

Robinson was named interim administrator of the hospital in July 1994 following the resignation of Ron Rives. He was named HRMC administrator on Sept. 1, 1994.

Before taking the position at HRMC, Robinson had served nine years as assistant regional director of the American Hospital Association Region 7 office, where he was responsible for coordinating lobbying efforts some educating with the new mothers. I encourage them to get their GEDs and high school education or college degree."

As a social worker, Mrs. Koelzer helps the hospital provide holistic care, not just treating the patients' physical bodies, but dealing with their whole life situation.

"I started the program in Hereford. WTA&MU was very glad to have the hospital as a site for field practice. I am on the Social Work Advisory Committee at WTA&MU, because I am the liaison between the hospital and the university for more students that might be coming in as interns.

"The hospital promotes anything that has to do with education with the university and students. There aren't too many agencies in Hereford other than the DHS (Texas Department of Human Services) Child Protective Services and other regular agencies... where a social worker can get experience. So, if we have another intern, I'll be the contact person," Mrs. Koelzer said.

The master's degree she hopes to gain in the next few years will mean HRMC will rely less on contract social workers.

"In home health, workers have to have a master's degree, and right now our home health is using contract workers to assess the patients (and do chart reviews).

"I'm on my third graduate-level class. I go one night a week for classes, but in the fall I went two mornings a week and went into work late. The hospital supervisors are very accommodating," even allowing her a 35-hour work week, she said.

Robinson, who as HRMC administrator is Mrs. Koelzer's employer, said he admires "Betty for going back to school and pursuing her bachelor's in social work. That's a whole of a challenge to take on later in life when you're up against younger students. That same zeal and enthusiasm is what she brings to us and her clients at HRMC. We're fortunate to have her to add an extra dimension to people using the hospital and clinics."

"With that comes a level of maturity in dealing with issues and situations one not normally has fresh out of college. But Betty has because of her involvement and life experiences. Betty has a real grasp of issues and compassion in dealing with clients' needs. It adds to what the hospital brings to the community.

"Once can have excuses, like 'I can't run with these younger kids,' and 'I have other priorities for my life now.' But Betty is saying, 'My priority is getting an education and making a difference.' The lives she touches are better off because of her assessment of their needs and the programs she can use to help them," Robinson said.

Making her assessment, Mrs. Koelzer said, "All of this wouldn't be possible to the extent it is if our family lived here. If we were being grandparents, I wouldn't have the time to do what I am doing. We just take advantage of that situation, not one we'd choose, but..."

Werner Koelzer has held numerous jobs.

Early on, he worked for Hereford Implement Co., and "from there, I went to a vegetable shed as a field man. I checked crops some and kept location of where the crews were and got them transferred to different fields," he said.

"From there, I went to Suit's Auto Supply," where he worked at least 26 years, first in the parts store and then on the road selling parts to other stores, shops, garages and farm suppliers.

"That was my first retirement. I came of age, I guess.

He spent a year at home in the photography business, then went to work part time for about four years doing house repair on rental units and Community Action homes.

"That got too hard right quick, because it was getting in the attics and under the floors and stuff like that," he said.

That was a tough job Mrs. Koelzer says he didn't give up entirely: "We've lived here 41 years and have added onto the house two or three times."

Mr. Koelzer did everything except the cement floors and the roof.

"I went from there down to C&I Auto Parks, now NAPA Auto Parks," Mr. Koelzer said. "Now, I'm driving the country again, serving a lot of feedyards and sometimes farm businesses, even county precincts.

"I keep an inventory for what they're using and just maintain it," he said. He's been doing this about eight years and "I work probably 12 to 18 hours a week, three days a week.

Cluck Danley, Mr. Koelzer's employer at NAPA Auto Parts, said employing the "retired" man has been "a good experience because Werner brings a lot of knowledge to the business and fills a spot where you can't use a full-time person."

With the flexibility of his job, Mr. Koelzer gets to enjoy activities like group Bible student, attending weekday Masses, going out for breakfast and having lunch at the Hereford Senior Center.

Mr. Koelzer took a trip with his sister to Colorado last year and accompanied his daughter's family on a home-schooling trip to a California gold mine camp, where they dressed worked and ate like the miners.

"I had a good time," he said.

Mrs. Koelzer went with her sister to Hawaii last year and is going to Europe with her this summer.

"Those are some of the perks of later careers," Mrs. Koelzer said.

Both of the Koelzers are avid learners.

"Studies show if you keep learning new things, you can delay the onset of Alzheimer's," she said. The Koelzers took computer classes a while back, and now he creates programs and she enjoys computer art.

"Going to school gave a direction to my life and a self-confidence that I had not found earlier. I take every opportunity I can to encourage others to get an education -- in any area, at any speed they choose," she said.

Wall takes reserve grand ROBINSON

Wall wins at Houston

A local youth, Zack Wall, won Reserve Grand Champion with his Kiania steer at the Houston Livestock show. During the Houston steer show Zack competed against 1,708 other competitors and 16 different breeds. The show judge was from Roanoke, Kansas. The auction was to get under way at noon Saturday. For full show and auction details see the Tuesday, March 10, Hereford Brand.

SPELLER

Following 10 rounds of competition, only two spellers remained from the field of 13. Josefina Zapata, runner-up, and Louder both misspelled the word "edelweiss" before Louder successfully spelled the winning words.

Louder, 12, a seventh-grader at Community Christian School, will advance to the Regional Bee, to be held April 4 on the campus of West Texas A&M University. As the County Champion, she received prizes valued at $100.

Accompanying her to WTA&MU will be Nathan Louder, her brother who won the junior bee Thursday and competed in Friday's senior bee. Nathan is a home school student in the fifth grade. Both are children of Pam and Steve Louder.

Celeste attended the Regional Bee as Deaf Smith County junior champion last year while her older sister, Erin, attended as the senior champion. An older brother, Jantzen, was the junior champion in 1991.

Josefina, 12, is a seventh-grader at Hereford Junior High and the daughter of Martin and Maria Zapata. She received awards valued at $50.

Providing awards were Hereford State Bank, $50 savings bond; Hereford Brand, $25 cash; Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, $25 cash; West Texas Rural Telephone, $25 cash; and KPAN, $25 cash.

Bera Boyd, librarian at West Central School, was the pronouncer for the bee, while Pat Montgomery and Becky Camp served as judges for the two-day event.

Other spellers who participated were Ely Sanchez and Dora Diaz, Shirley Intermediate School; Beth Fuller and Sara Porras, West Central Intermediate School; Bianca Zambrano and Cassandra Sorea, Bluebonnet Intermediate School; Brandi Kriegshauser, St. Anthony's School; Chase Ortiz, Walcott School; Alyssa Hill, Nazarene Christian Academy; and Heather Brown, Hereford Junior High.

Heather Brown, a student at Hereford Junior High School, appears to look upward for divine guidance in spelling a word during Friday's Senior Spelling Bee competition.

SPEEDY NIEMAN

Hereford Bull

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says he married his wife for her looks, but not the ones she's been giving him lately.

Compromise is the art of dividing a pie so that each person believes he got the biggest slice.

Janie Banner, who works in the St. Anthony Church office, went to the post office this week to buy stamps. One of her favorite clerks, Larry Paschel, asked her, "What denomination?" "Good heavens," said Janie, "Have we come to this? Well, then, give me 30 Catholic, 20 Baptist, 10 Lutheran and 40 Presbyterian."

In 1960, the total number of children living in fatherless homes was fewer than eight million. Today, that total has risen to nearly 24 million. Nearly 4 out of 10 children in America are being raised in homes without their fathers and soon it may be 6 out of 10. How did this happen?

Wade F. Horn, president of the National Fatherhood Initiative, says it is because our culture has accepted the idea that fathers are superfluous - in other words, they are not necessary in the "modern" family. Supposedly, says Horn, "Their contributions to the well-being of children can easily be performed by the state, which disburses welfare checks, subsidizes midnight basketball leagues, and establishes child-care facilities."

But ideas have consequences and, says Horn, "The consequences of this idea have been as profound as they have been disastrous. Children living in homes where fathers are absent are far more likely to be expelled from or drop out of school, develop emotional or behavioral problems, commit suicide, and fall victim to child abuse or neglect."

Horn writes that males are also far more likely to become violent criminals, noting that men who grew up without dads currently represent 70 percent of the prison population serving long-term sentences. He adds that the important role parents play in socializing children is widely misunderstood and undervalued.

"Socialization can be defined as the process whereby individuals acquire the behavior, attitudes, and values that are not only regarded as desirable and appropriate by society but that have also stood the test of time," said Horn. "Proper socialization requires delaying or inhibiting 'impulse gratification' in order to abide by the rule of law and the rule of custom. Well-socialized children have learned to obey the directions of legitimate authority figures like parents and teachers; poorly socialized children have not. Well-socialized children have learned not to strike out at others to get what they want; to cooperate and share with others."

"Parents socialize children through two mechanisms. The first is teaching through direct instruction reinforced by a combination of rewards and punishments for acceptable and unacceptable behavior. The second is teaching by example. Of the two, the latter is the more important mechanism since most complex human behavior is acquired through observational learning. Children are much more likely to do as a parent does than as a parent says."

"Please note," says Horn, "that I have not asserted that the state, or village, is necessary for the proper socialization of children. Rather, it is parents who are necessary, and this means a mother and a father. There are, of course, thousands of single mothers who are doing a heroic job of parenting and beating the odds. I do not mean to denigrate their efforts."

But Horn says there is a great deal of hard evidence to suggest that what children need to develop good character is the combination of what mothers and fathers bring to the parenting equation. Decades of research have shown that boys and girls need a high level of nurturing balanced by a high level of control.

Fatherlessness is not solely responsible for the problems of children but it is certainly a major cause, says Horn. "All available evidence suggests that improving the well-being of our children - and ultimately our nation - depends upon finding ways to bring father back into the home. The question is how?"

"First, our culture needs to understand the critical role fathers play in the lives of their children, not just as 'paychecks,' but as disciplinarians, teachers, and moral guides. And fathers must be physically present in the home. Second, we need to convey the importance and sanctity of marriage. Most boys and girls expect to get married and have children, but they need to be taught that marriage comes first and that it is not a trial arrangement that can be abandoned when conflicts arise. Here is where religious and moral instruction can make a huge difference."

"Third, we must make restoring the rights and responsibilities of parents a national priority. Over the past century, child rearing has increasingly come to be viewed as a public rather than a private matter."

"The tide is turning, however. One positive development is the 'pro-family' movement that has grown tremendously in the last few years. What can you do in your own home and your own community? You can start by pledging, 'I will be a good wife and mother,' or 'I will be a good husband and father.' It is a simple promise, to be sure. But it is a promise upon which a good, just, and civil society depends."

Campaign finance bill dies again

WASHINGTON (AP) - Another round, another rejection, and with campaign finance reform buried again, Democrats are going to make a congressional campaign issue of it, against Republicans who figure it is not a topic that turns elections.

So the debate goes on, and the money machine keeps cranking, with new routes around the rules and contribution limits set by law 24 years ago.

The sponsors of an overhaul in the system, actually a modest one by the time the compromised bill came to votes in the Senate, say they'll be back next year. The Republican opponents say they'll be waiting.

There is another installment coming this year, with the House due to debate overhaul proposals in about three weeks, but with scant chance that anything will pass - and with the certainty that if it did, the measure wouldn't survive the Senate anyhow.

The Democrats also talk of pushing the reform issue to later votes by proposing it as an amendment to other Senate bills, but that won't work, either.

Without 60 Senate votes to end the endless filibuster tactics that have stopped campaign overhaul bills before, nothing is going to pass Congress.

Supporters were nine votes short, at 51, in the crucial test last week.

A year ago, the issue was supposed to be taking hold, gaining momentum because of the admitted Democratic fund-raising excesses of 1996, and the Republican investigations that were going to delve into the whole mess.

President Clinton, who had endorsed reform without really pressing it, urged Congress to act, a position that served as an antidote to the flow of disclosures about the Democrats.

Republican leaders were concerned enough at the prospect that the issue might take off that they set up task forces to work on campaign money ideas for the GOP. It didn't happen, and their alternative boiled down to one measure, to bar the use of union dues for political purposes without the permission of individual workers.

Democrats are never going to buy that crippling limit on one of their political bases. Republicans said there would be no changes in the system without it.

Clinton said delay would be the death of reform, and told Congress to set a deadline of last Fourth of July. Nothing was done. There was a push last fall, but a Republican filibuster threat stalled things then, until GOP leaders agreed to action early this year in order to shelve a dispute that threatened to hold up 1997 adjournment.

'Enchanted Circle' is magic

It's called the "Enchanted Circle," and I have to agree there's something magical about the drive through the mountains of northern New Mexico.

The drive from Taos to Questa and Red River is truly enchanted, especially on a cold, moonlit winter's night.

Annette and I have long been under the magical spell of Taos, but even we weren't prepared for just how enchanting it really is.

It didn't start that way, however. On this visit to Taos, we were part of a ski group. We had a chance to take the trip to the ski resort at Red River, so we signed up to go with a church group from Denison, Texas.

The trip to Red River was an ordeal. The bus broke down and we had to spend a couple of hours in Vernon while the repairs were made.

Also, we were shaken by the screaming, shouting, running up and down the aisles -- and those were the adults; you can only imagine how the kids behaved.

When we got to the lodge, we found out that the private cabin actually meant Annette and I had a room with a door; other people shared the cabin.

One of the others in the cabin was a "mouth-breather" who sacked out on the sofa, and always managed to be the last person up in the morning.

Breakfast was less appetizing when he arose. He would sit for several minutes on the sofa, slack-jawed, tongue hanging out of his mouth, his hair sticking out in all directions.

"What have we gotten ourselves into," I asked Annette.

"Let's get out of here," she said. But she remembered we had seen a sign about a shuttle bus, so we decided to walk down to the office and see where it would take us -- anywhere, just away from the people we came here with.

We were happy to find out the bus -- driven by a young man whom his co-workers called "Miguel the Magnificent" -- made a daily run to the airport in Albuquerque to transport skiers to and from the ski areas at Red River, Angel Fire, Eagle's Nest, Taos and Santa Fe. We could take the shuttle to Taos, spend the day there and catch the shuttle that evening for the trip back to Red River.

The driver let us off near the plaza and said he'd pick us up that evening at Ogilvie's Bar & Grill.

Annette and I spent the day wandering through the galleries and bookstores in Taos until late afternoon when we went to Ogilvie's, where we sat and had a few glasses of wine until the Miguel arrived.

The sun had long since set when we boarded the shuttle for the trip back to Red River. There was only one other passenger, a young man who was heading for the Taos Ski Basin. He certainly would not have been in any condition to drive the crooked mountain roads between Albuquerque and Taos because he had consumed a six pack of beer on the drive from the Albuquerque airport.

After letting the somewhat inebriated passenger off at the Taos Ski Basin, Miguel asked if we wanted to see how beautiful the area is in the winter.

We said yes, and we were in for one of the most pleasant evenings of our lives.

Miguel was an artist, and like so many struggling artists, he had to have a job to make ends meet while hoping to get the breakthrough he needed to become a successful artist.

As he drove over some of the backroads, he pointed out landmarks, telling about the artist who had used a certain rock formation in a painting or commenting

Those little acts of human kindness often are remembered

The holiday season is over, at least for the next several months, but some recent events have led me to believe that some people have not yet learned the lessons taught to Ebenezer Scrooge by three holiday spirits.

In one of my favorite television versions of "A Christmas Carol," the Charles Dickens classic story, Scrooge is made to drink from a cup of the milk of human kindness.

The lessons learned at the brim of that cup are the ones which seem to fall on the roadside.

Simple acts of human kindness, from one person to another go a long way toward making minor emergencies or major traumas easier to accept as a daily part of life.

Often an unexpected kindness from a passing stranger can bring a tear of gratitude or a fond thought of simpler times when doors were left open and an extra place was always set at the table.

My kids are always telling me that someday I will stop to help someone and I'm going to be robbed, beaten and left for dead in a roadside ditch. Well, if it does, then so be it.

I can't say very many good things about my father. Some of the old-timers here may still remember him, probably not favorably.

Of those who can think of anything good about him, most will recall he would help nearly anyone stuck on the side of the road. Sometimes it would be families; sometimes it would be scumbags I'd rather not discuss; and sometimes it was just someone who needed a jumpstart or a pull out of a ditch.

More than once I can remember someone offering him money for the help he offered, and he would tell them to pay him back by passing along the favor.

Maybe that's the legacy he left me. I've stopped to help a lot of people I didn't know and will never see again.

DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE

The Real World

I've offered a jumpstart, a jug of water for an overheated engine, a temporary emergency fan belt, a jack and even my spare tire or a ride somewhere. Granted, there are lots of times I won't stop for someone on the side of the road. I'm not going to stop if the person truly looks objectionable. But I have been known to go to the next phone and call the local sheriff's office or DPS to see if someone could help them.

I will usually stop for a family or someone with children. I'll just about always stop to help the elderly. And, if it is in a busy parking lot, I'll at least offer to help nearly anyone who seems to be having some problems.

You see, I've been in the position of needing help, and usually someone shows up and helps me out of the spot.

At one point, I remember living about 25 miles from town. My car broke down just about halfway between the house and town. I had three kids with me ranging in age from 4 months to 6 years.

When the car broke down, I knew it was beyond my mechanical abilities and began to walk home, carrying the baby and the middle child.

We hadn't gone far, maybe a mile, when I heard a truck slowing down behind us. The driver stopped and asked if we needed a ride somewhere. My middle child didn't like the idea of getting in that big truck, but we finally got everyone in. The driver asked where I lived and said he was going right past my house. When he dropped us off I said thank you and he said, "No problem. If it were my wife and kids, or my daughter and grand kids, I would like someone to do the same for them."

He wouldn't take any money, but I hope I have passed along my father's attitude.

I stopped to help a very nicely dressed older woman change a tire. As it happened, our cars were the same make. Her spare was flat. I offered her the use of my spare, told her where I worked so she could just drop it off.

The spare wasn't much, but it did hold air. I knew I needed a better spare, and was soon to get rid of the car, so it didn't matter if the tire never came back.

Later that week, I was called to the front desk to speak with a visitor. It was a man I had never met. It turned out to be the lady's husband.

He told me he had my spare and would put it in my trunk for me. I walked out to the car and he picked up a nearly new mounted tire.

I told him that wasn't mine and he said he had bought me a better spare when he had the tires on his wife's car fixed. He said he didn't like the idea of me being without a spare or only having one that was in such poor shape.

These are just little instances of where the cup that holds the milk of human kindness can truly runneth over when everyone returns a good deed in kind.

In this life, mortals seldom get a chance to see the path their lives will lead, but we can always look back and see the kindnesses offered by the Fezziwicks of the world and know the kindnesses always get remembered.

Clinton was still pushing, urging in his State of the Union address that Congress act to end "a fund-raising arms race." He was, and is, part of it, raising unrestricted Democratic Party donations that would have been banned under the bill he favored, saying that he couldn't stop until Republicans did, and that wouldn't happen without a law.

When the bill did come up, it was far narrower than the reformers had wanted, after concessions to gain Republican support to go with the solid backing of the 45 Democrats. That served to gain seven GOP supporters, to produce a majority but not the vital 60 votes.

The bill no longer sought to eliminate or limit campaign contributions from political action committees which are, ironically, a byproduct of the earlier reform law. Gone was the provision to set spending limits for candidates willing to abide by them in exchange for free television time and cut-rate postage for campaign mailings.

It would have ended unrestricted, "soft money" donations to political parties, which weren't support to be used for candidates, but for voter education, registration and turnout efforts. That money has, increasingly, been spent for barely-disguised campaign purposes, and those unlimited donations were the ones involved in the White House coffees, the foreign donations and other 1996 operations that got the Democrats into trouble.

The bill also would have restricted another soaring kind of spending, called "issue advocacy," purportedly independent of candidates, in which outside organizations have bankrolled attack ad barrages, with no limits and no disclosure of the real sources of the money required. Any mention of a candidate's name within 60 days of the election would have subjected that kind of spending to the stringent limits applied to candidates, who can't take donations of more than $1,000 from an individual or $5,000 from a PAC, and have to report it all.

Now it is back to square one. More scandals, said Sen. John McCain, the chief Republican sponsor of the reform bill, more investigations, more indictments and convictions.

And more money. Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 30 years.

We were disappointed when the shuttle bus finally pulled to a stop outside our lodge.

We said good night to Miguel and thanked him for the trip, but I don't know if we really conveyed to him how much we really appreciated and enjoyed the moonlit journey, how he showed us how magical the "Enchanted Circle" really is.

KASICH CHOICE

Ohio lawmaker eyes White House run, despite GOP's leadership turmoil

WASHINGTON (AP) - History is not with him. Neither is name recognition. But though he might seem a natural candidate for the House Republican leadership next Congress, Rep. John Kasich says he may try vaulting all the way to the White House instead.

"The country needs some leadership," the high-voltage, rock 'n' roll-loving House Budget Committee chairman said in a recent interview. "I'm confident in my leadership, in my feelings about the role of government, in my feelings that solving society's problems is related to individual achievement. I'm talking about the things that burn in my soul, everywhere I go."

That the 45-year-old Ohio Republican is saying such things and already is traveling widely and raising money reflects the wide-open 2000 GOP nomination. Possible competitors include his friend, House Speaker Newt Gingrich, plus Texas Gov. George W. Bush, publisher Steve Forbes and former Vice President Dan Quayle. At this early stage, none seems a prohibitive favorite.

Kasich's game plan also underlines the realities of life in today's House. GOP rules require that Kasich surrender his chairmanship - his ticket to prominence - after this year anyway. His starring role in the recent budget wars has made his sometimes unkempt haircut as recognizable as that of any Republican House leader, except for the white, blow-dried mane of Gingrich, R-Ga.

As a result, a House leadership job has little attraction for Kasich, even though Gingrich might resign if he runs for president and others like Majority Leader Dick Armey and Majority Whip Tom DeLay, both Texas Republicans, seem vulnerable. The gregarious, gym-rat Kasich is widely respected by colleagues for his budget work, though he has angered some by challenging sacred cows like the B-2 bomber.

"The House leadership is not what I want to do. It's not where my heart is," Kasich said. "I'm not looking for any stepping stone. I've made my assessment - the people who may run - and as a result, I'm thinking about running for president."

Then there is television, which makes it easier than ever for House members, usually an obscure group, to gain national recognition.

TV has given a real boost to Kasich, whose career mostly has been out of the spotlight as a House aide, Ohio state senator and 14 years in the House. A frequent guest on weekend news shows, the postal worker's son exudes a populist appeal, personalizing fiscal issues and avoiding budget-geek language.

Even so, history works against him. Not since 1880 has a sitting House member been elected president - Ohio Republican, James Garfield. Ominously for Gingrich, no sitting House speaker has ever won the White House.

"The House is not normally the place that presidential timber comes out of," said Lewis Gould, a University of Texas history professor.

Kasich rejects suggestions that he merely is positioning himself for the vice presidential nomination or another run in 2004.

But his candidacy does not exactly intimidate rivals. Though no Republican would say so publicly, some wonder if the recently remarried Kasich comes across as too boyish, too animated, too inexperienced for voters.

In addition, he is little known enough that sometimes even congressional colleagues call him "KAY-sitch" instead of the correct "KAY-sick."

Name recognition can grow by raising money and traveling, and Kasich is doing both.

His two political action committees - the Pioneer PAC for his national efforts and another for his own House seat - together raised $1.5 million last year. He visited 38 states in 1997 and four so far this year - including a February trip to New Hampshire, where 2000's first presidential primary will be. He may go next month to Iowa, which features the first presidential caucuses.

For now, he seems to win mixed reviews on the road.

Jonathan Lee, a Brookline, Mass., investor, contributed $5,000 to Kasich last November after meeting him at a luncheon.

But Clark Hubbard, a University of New Hampshire political science professor, dispatched his 20 students to a Kasich appearance there last month and asked afterward for their impressions.

"I was greeted with a fairly long silence," he said.

In retirement planning, you now have more freedom to choose... thanks to the Roth IRA.

With the new Roth IRA initiated through the 1997 Taxpayer Relief Act, Congress has introduced some exciting news and a choice of IRAs for investors planning for their retirement.

- ◆ If you are working, you may contribute up to $2,000 to either the Roth or the traditional IRA for a given year.
- ◆ Unlike contributions made to a traditional IRA, contributions made to a Roth IRA are not deductible. However, distributions taken from a Roth IRA may be tax-free at retirement.
- ◆ While there are age restrictions for making contributions to a traditional IRA, individuals with earned income can continue making contributions after age 70-1/2 to a Roth IRA.
- ◆ The Roth IRA provides greater withdrawal flexibility, including penalty-free withdrawals for qualified first time home buyers.

When it comes to retirement investing, every investor should be aware of his or her alternatives - as well as the drawbacks, including tax consequences when rolling over into a Roth IRA from a traditional IRA.

Bullock quits pro-voucher organization

AUSTIN (AP) - Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, upset with a fund-raising letter that seeks "a Republican majority" in the Texas House and ouster of its Democratic speaker, has resigned as honorary head of a group pushing for school vouchers.

"Since partisanship has been introduced into this effort, I feel I can no longer serve as the group's honorary chairman," Bullock, a Democrat, said in a letter to the chairman of the pro-voucher group Putting Children First.

Vouchers would allow students to transfer to private schools using tax dollars to pay their tuition.

The Dallas Morning News reported that Putting Children First had distributed the letter, seeking to raise $625,000 from a small number of Republican donors nationwide.

Bullock said he had agreed to be honorary chairman of the group four months ago with assurances the effort to promote private school vouchers in Texas would be bipartisan.

Perserverance is not a long race; it is many short races one after another.

U.S. rig count for week declines by three

HOUSTON (AP) - The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide dropped by three to 957 this week, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday.

There were 882 rigs operating in the United States during the same week last year.

Of the rigs running this week, 592 were exploring for natural gas and 360 for oil. Five were listed as miscellaneous.

Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. The tally peaked at 4,500 in December of 1981 during the oil boom. It dropped to a record low of 596 in the summer of 1993, exceeding the previous low of 663 in 1986.

The rig count represents the number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Oklahoma gained the most with eight more.

A Mutual Fund Success Story

The notorious bank robber Willie Sutton said he robbed banks because that's where the money is.

This column often discusses mutual funds for the same reason - because that's where the money is. In fact, one in every four U.S. households owns mutual funds. As of year-end 1996, individuals owned 75 percent of the $3.5 trillion of mutual fund assets.

One reason mutual funds have become so popular is because they offer individuals the benefits of professional management. A study of one of the oldest U.S. mutual funds illustrates the rewards of successful management.

Dating back to 1933, the fund was reconstructed out of a closed-end investment company badly damaged in the stock market collapse that began in 1929 and hit bottom in 1932. A look at the fund's changing portfolio over the years illustrates how its managers moved with the economy.

At the close of 1935, stocks representing the automobile industry made up 17 percent of the fund's portfolio. Ten years later, in December 1945, oil stocks had become the largest industry holding, representing 7 percent of the portfolio.

By 1955, the biggest holdings included many companies providing the raw materials that were in growing demand by consumers, industry and defense. One aluminum and three steel companies together accounted for nearly 7.5 percent of the portfolio.

Prosperity and the Cold War best describe the years 1956 - 1965, and the fund managers went global in this period. Auto and oil companies, once dominant, were replaced by other transportation companies - mainly airlines - as rising incomes and cheaper air travel turned America into a nation of tourists and business travelers.

During 1966 - 1975, with the energy crisis at hand, the fund expanded oil company holdings. There also was a major influx of computer electronics companies. IBM, MCA and others accounted for more than 13 percent of the portfolio.

Inflation and recovery set the scene from 1976 - 1985, with interest rates peaking and then beginning a long period of decline. By 1985, technology, communications, data processing, electronics and telecommunications companies comprised about a fifth of the fund's portfolio.

From 1986 - 1995, there was a strong market with two sharp setbacks. Banking was the major industry, as banks came out of a long period of problems and became an excellent value. Health care also came to be a large part of the portfolio.

The investments in this fund have been anything but static over the past 60 years. Familiar names have come, gone and come again in a changing portfolio. The fund's success, along with the success of hundreds of other mutual funds, attests to the value and necessity of active management of any portfolio of common stocks.

Signal whacks heart monitors

DALLAS (AP) - High-definition television is being touted as the next breakthrough in home entertainment, with sharper pictures and brighter colors.

But its digital signal apparently can make other equipment go haywire, as Baylor University Medical Center discovered.

Even though no high-definition television sets are available yet, WFAA-TV in Dallas began broadcasting a new digital signal last Friday.

As soon as the transmitter was turned on, nursing stations at Baylor's A. Webb Roberts Hospital lost signals from the heart monitors for 12 patients who were recovering from heart surgery.

Nurses quickly checked on the patients, and a backup system was rigged while engineers figured out the HDTV was to blame.

WFAA agreed to suspend its digital broadcasts until the hospital installs 30 wireless heart monitors to avoid future interference.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Business, interest groups and labor unions are spending $100 million a month to lobby the federal government, according to the first complete computerized study of disclosure reports.

The players range from giant Philip Morris, which wants to limit its legal liability on cigarettes, to tiny Kane County, Utah (population 5,169), which wants a voice in federal planning for a nearby national monument.

"What used to be the exclusive domain of a small group of people has largely become a free-for-all," said Howard Marlowe, a lobbyist who specializes in securing federal project money for local governments. "What we have seen over the past few years is a steady increase."

Spending for the first half of last year totaled $633 million, according to a computerized Associated Press analysis of lobbying disclosure reports. The database, a joint project with the nonprofit, nonpartisan Center for Responsive Politics, provides the first comprehensive look at lobbying spending since federal disclosures began two years ago.

The total is higher than the $400 million in lobbying spending the AP estimated last year for the first six months of 1996 based on a limited statistical look at the first batch of disclosure forms. And it suggests that Washington's influence game is at least a $1.2 billion-a-year business.

The number includes money spent to pay the salaries and expenses of lobbyists, the costs of running their offices, spending on research used as lobbying ammunition, the costs of privately paid travel for policy-makers and their staffs and the limited meals and other favors permitted under new, restrictive gift rules.

The highest-paid lobbyists - such as Jason Berman, head of the Recording Industry Association of America - can make $1 million a year.

The overall total is conservative since the lobbying reports on which it is based capture only the most notable direct lobbying of Congress and the executive branch. It leaves out much limited or part-time lobbying activity; the selling of "strategic advice" and public relations help; the lobbying of 600 professionals or firms on behalf of foreign interests and the entire field of "grass-roots" lobbying, which has been estimated to generate $400 million or more a year.

It also leaves out special-interest political contributions, which totaled $67 million during the period. Such gifts ease the way for lobbyists.

Topping the list of high-spending interest groups was the American Medical Association, which dispensed $8.5 million for lobbying from January to June. The doctors' lobby is a perennially active player in Washington, and its concerns have been on Congress' front burner of late.

More than two dozen staff lobbyists at AMA worked Congress and federal agencies during the period, pushing the organization's plan to change Medicare reimbursement rules, urging caution on reform of the Food and Drug Administration and watching the progress of bills dealing with late-term abortion, assisted suicide and access to emergency medical care.

"We have a broad range of issues that the Washington office focuses upon," said AMA spokesman James Stacey. "That explains the number of lobbyists we have, and the amount of expense we report."

Rounding out the top five lobbying groups were the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, at $7 million; Philip Morris, $5.9 million; General Motors, $5.2 million, and the Edison Electric Institute, $5 million. The rest of the top-50 list is dotted with prominent oil companies, pharmaceutical makers, trade associations and telecommunications firms.

The analysis showed that the most heavily lobbied issue areas were the federal budget and spending bills, taxes, health care, trade and the environment.

For Sen. Carl Levin, the author of the lobbying disclosure law, the flood of information is welcome. "It's important to shine daylight on these activities. You want the public to know, so that hopefully the activities will be responsible and proper, and so folks on the other sides of issues... have an opportunity to know what the other guy is doing - so that it's a little fairer to all sides."

SARAH FERGUSON

NEW YORK (AP) - The Duchess of York still shares a house with her two daughters and her former husband, Prince Andrew - but she makes herself scarce "if he has a girl over."

"I move out for the night or go away for the weekend," Sarah Ferguson says in the April issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

She also said she's still grieving from the death last year of Princess Diana, who died in a car crash in Paris with her companion, Dodi Fayed.

"I've really been fighting sadness. I've been missing Diana a lot, and I feel very alone. I feel very isolated," said Ferguson.

Ferguson and Prince Andrew live with their daughters Beatrice, 9, and Eugenie, 8, in Sunninghill, a 25-room house 25 miles west of London, which the couple moved into after their 1986 wedding.

After they divorced two years ago, she moved back into the house, apparently to save money while she paid off a huge tax bill. The arrangement doesn't signal a reconciliation, she said.

LIAM GALLAGHER

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) - Liam Gallagher of Oasis was released on bail today after being charged with head-butting a British fan and breaking his nose after the man snapped pictures.

Gallagher, lead singer of the British rock band Oasis, was charged with assault occasioning bodily harm and released on $6,900 bail. No formal plea was required. Brisbane lawyer Terry O'Gorman has said Gallagher vigorously denies the charge and will plead innocent.

The fan, a 19-year-old British tourist, was injured in a scuffle after he snapped pictures outside the band's Brisbane hotel Thursday night.

The band arrived in Brisbane on Thursday and were scheduled to give a concert at the Brisbane Entertainment Center tonight.

PETER PASTREICH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Peter Pastreich will step down next spring after a two-decade run as the executive director of the San Francisco Symphony.

Pastreich, 59, said Wednesday that he wants to write and spend more time with his family in France, where he has a second home.

Pastreich took over the San Francisco post in 1978, overseeing construction of the Louise M. Davies Symphony Hall, hiring music directors Herbert Blomstedt and Michael Tilson Thomas and helping his musicians garner recording contracts with major labels.

He will step down in April 1999 as the longest tenured chief executive of a major U.S. symphony.

"Two Guys" one of two new sitcoms to debut

By FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK - Maybe pizza makes the difference.

In any case, next week marks the arrival of two sitcoms that share a nearly identical premise. And no matter how you slice it, one is funny. One isn't.

"Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place," the funny one, launches next Wednesday on ABC at 8:30 p.m. CST. "House Rules," more aptly named "Two Guys, a Girl and No Pizza Place," bows Monday on NBC at 7:30 p.m. CST.

Catch both these premieres and you'll be reminded that sitcoms, aiming to cultivate rapport with the viewer, generally avoid new, unfamiliar ideas. Another thing: The success of a sitcom depends almost all on execution. That certainly makes the difference here.

In each series, three pals face the world together as young adults. One chap is a lanky slacker-dreamer. The other is a wired-up realist. Both strenuously reject adulthood. (Did we mention Peter Pan? One of the "Two Guys" is even named Pete!) They live in close proximity, but platonically, with the gal.

NBC describes "House Rules" as "a trio of tight childhood friends who, now in their mid-20s, share a house and a life together in Denver." It stars David Newsom as a bumbling medical student, Bradley White as a reporter and Maria Pitiilo as an assistant district attorney whose housemates engage in this sort of dialogue:

"I hate rats! Do you know that there are some super rats that can weigh over nine pounds?"

"Do YOU know that there are some supermodels that weigh UNDER nine pounds?"

"Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place" puts the pieces of the same puzzle together much more artfully. And with more humor:

"Believe me, there's a one. And when you find her, you'll know."

"How will I know?"

"I'll tell you!"

The guys are graduate students who share an apartment in Boston. Berg (played by Ryan Reynolds) is a philosophy major with an easy-does-it outlook who makes extra money by signing up for medical experiments. Richard Ruccolo is Pete, a perpetually fretful would-be architect.

"Pete's my home base," says Berg, explaining their relationship. "I wouldn't get to be me if he wasn't him."

The girl is Sharon, their former college bud and now their upstairs neighbor who mothers them with a wide-screen TV and a well-stocked refrigerator. Played by Traylor Howard, she is a comically irascible minx who earns a big salary selling toxic chemicals. She hates herself for that almost as much as she loves her BMW.

The fellows work part time at a pizzeria, where a certain wacky patron steals scenes with his droll dementia: "Somehow I found myself in Morocco, running a nightclub," coos the film-befuddled Mr. Bauer (David Ogden Stiers), "and she walked back into my life..."

All in all, "Two Guys" is about as funny as you could hope for, considering the absence of a single new idea.

Its second episode has the same story line as the "House Rules" premiere: In each case, the fellows do their part to derail their gal pal's budding romance. But to reiterate, one version is funny; the other isn't.

If you were to take the basic "House"/"Guys" formula, then add another male and a dozen years to everyone's age, you'd have "Seinfeld" ("Three Guys, a Girl and an Upper West Side Diner").

Fox unveils another hour-long romantic comedy next Wednesday at 8 p.m. CST. The first scene of "Significant Others" finds 25-year-old Campbell discovering Henry, his best friend, in bed with Nell, his other best friend.

"When did stuff start to count? I mean, in life," Campbell wonders later on, lamenting his lack of both a job and a relationship. "It didn't used to. Pick the wrong summer job? Get a different job next summer. Pick the wrong girl? Dump her, move to the right girl. I loved that."

Unison starts spinning out sugar for younger fans

By MARIO TARRADELL
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - In Latin music, timing is everything. The phenomena of the past - from Julio Iglesias and Gloria Estefan to Luis Miguel and Selena - have all arrived at precisely the moment when the masses wanted them most.

Unison is next.

The Oak Cliff-based five-part-harmony ensemble's debut album, "Mirame," released Tuesday on EMI Latin, surfaces a year after the disintegration of vocal outfit the Barrio Boyzz, whose pinup image and innocuous pop-soul songs kept female fans in a frenzy for six years.

Under the tutelage of manager

Abraham Quintanilla Jr., Selena's father, the Unison boys (ages 15 to 19) are packaged to appeal to a slightly younger demographic than the Barrio Boyzz. "Mirame" is clearly aimed at female teens, but it strategically avoids the cloying, hip-hop-flavored street beat that frequently infiltrated the Boyzz's albums.

Unison is a bubble-gum group - nothing more, nothing less. Most of the songs on "Mirame" explore the innocent, youthful fascinations of first love. Anchored by the quintet's lush, tight harmonies, the album floats through a combination of synthesized dance rhythms, rap-tinged R&B grooves and keyboard-driven ballads. A soundtrack for high-school-age Latinas.

Such saccharine ear candy could easily turn a sensitive stomach. But there's something about these youngsters. There's a boyish charm in their harmonies, their chicos-down-the-block demeanor.

It also doesn't hurt that the bulk of "Mirame" is extremely catchy stuff. Producer Quintanilla has an unerring ear for radio-ready tunes. The first single, "Quiero Bailar Contigo," a Spanish cover of Leo Sayer's 1976 hit "You Make Me Feel Like Dancing," is a cheesy slice of irresistible urban pop complete with a rap aside and bouncy hooks. Similarly, the title cut's dreamy chorus sticks in your head after only one listen.

Yet the best song on "Mirame" is the old-school disco track "Vuelve." With its mix of club-style beats - there's no resisting the cut's dance-floor allure - the harmonious hook and the brief rap interlude, "Vuelve" is an undeniable pleasure.

Unfortunately, the group couldn't avoid the sanctimonious positive-role-model route. The album's last song, "Suena Tranquila," veers into cliched, Hallmark card sentiments - from "be proud of your heritage" and "love your fellow man" to "the future belongs to the children" - that come off as desperate attempts to give this project depth.

Like the ultrahot Backstreet Boys and New Kids on the Block before them, Unison is an act designed for fleeting enjoyment. They are celebrating an age when frivolity and lightheartedness are mantras. When they're in that feel-good mode, "Mirame" is frothy fun.

IN BRIEF

Texas routs BoSox
 PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) -- Lee Stevens, Fernando Tatis and Joe Hall banged home runs to lead the Texas Rangers to a 9-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox on Friday.

The Rangers (6-3) took a 1-0 lead in the second with a one-out walk to Will Clark, followed by a triple by Ivan Rodriguez.

Texas added two more runs in the fourth on Clark's triple and Steven's third homer of the spring.

The Rangers added three runs each off Boston reliever Peter Munro in the fifth and sixth innings. Tatis' solo homer, a sacrifice fly by Rusty Greer and a single by Roberto Kelly Kelly accounted for three runs in the fifth inning.

Reggie Jefferson hit a double for Boston in the sixth, allowing Darren Bragg to score the Red Sox's only point. Boston fell to 4-3. Pitcher Pedro Martinez, who allowed three hits and three runs in 3.2 innings, picked up the loss.

Texas starter John Burkett won his first game of the season.

CU forfeits wins

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) -- The NCAA has ruled that Colorado must forfeit all five 1997 football victories because an ineligible player participated, the Rocky Mountain News reported Friday.

The NCAA sanction was not as harsh as it could have been because Colorado reported the ineligible player, fullback-linebacker Darren Fisk, and said his use was unintentional.

The newspaper attributed the report to a source it did not identify.

As a result of the decision, Colorado's 1997 record dropped from 5-6 to 0-11. The school has had just one other winless season since a football program was established in 1890.

A telephone message seeking comment from university officials was not returned immediately Friday.

No track meet

TULIA -- The track meet scheduled for Saturday in Tulia has been cancelled, according to Beth Reynolds of the Tulia Independent School District business office.

Hereford High School's boys and girls teams were scheduled to participate in the meet.

The meet was cancelled because the Tulia boys basketball team was playing in the Region 1-3A finals in Lubbock Saturday.

Elder, Zambri share lead at Austin Open

AUSTIN (AP) -- Amateur Brad Elder of the University of Texas shot a course-record, 7-under-par 65 in chilly conditions Friday to tie Chris Zambri for the second-round lead of the Nike Tour's Greater Austin Open.

Elder and Zambri, who shot a 67, were at 9-under-par 135, one shot ahead of Charlie Rymer, who also shot a 65, and former PGA Tour veteran Keith Fergus, who had a second 68 over the Hills of Lakeway course.

Casey Martin, the disabled golfer who won a court fight over the right to ride in a cart, was only three shots behind the leaders after his second 69.

Elder, a finalist in the last U.S. amateur, missed four months because of a disease in his right wrist that kept him from holding a club.

"I had my wrist in a cast for six weeks and didn't know if I would be able to play again," Elder, a senior, said. "It was a scary deal. I'm just happy to be back playing."

Texas boy inspires Martin

AUSTIN (AP) -- Casey Martin's inspiration was in the gallery, a 9-year-old boy with the same physical disability of the Nike Tour golfer.

While Martin battled the 55-degree cold and an erratic game, he took solace every time he looked over and saw Kern Loest of Richland Hills who was riding on the broad shoulders of father, Craig.

"He's the first person I've ever met who had my disease," Martin said. "It was good to see him."

Although his teeth chattered from the cold, young Kern wore an autographed hat courtesy of Martin. He also wore a big smile.

He was there when Martin rallied from two early bogeys to sink a 45-foot putt on his 16th hole to get his round jump-started.

"Casey plays good," young Kern said. "He's nice, too."

Martin, who won a suit against the PGA Tour for the right to be using a golf cart, could have shot 80 and it wouldn't have mattered to the young boy who followed his new hero a 118 holes.

As it was, Martin shot a second consecutive 3-under-par 69 to stay within three shots of the lead held by Brad Elder and Chris Zambri at the Greater Austin Open.

He started poorly with two bogeys on the cool day as the television cameras on The Golf Channel tracked his every move.

"I got a little flustered, because it was tough to play bad with so many people rooting for you," said Martin, who holed a 20-foot putt for birdie on his final hole. "My confidence will be up for tomorrow."

The 45-foot birdie putt on the seventh green got Martin going after

Eye on the ball

Hereford's Lindsay Ward watches her shot Wednesday while practicing on the driving range at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course. The Lady Whitefaces played Friday and Saturday in the Midland Independent School District Invitational.

Nebraska pummels hibernating Baylor

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) -- According to coach Danny Nee, Nebraska now has the third-ranked Kansas Jayhawks where it wants them -- on Saturday's schedule.

The Huskers ran their winning streak to seven straight Friday with a 65-46 victory over cold-shooting Baylor in the second round of the Big 12 tournament. In Saturday's semifinals, Nebraska (20-10) will meet the Jayhawks (32-3), the regular-season Big 12 champs.

"Kansas has been a marquee team and a marquee program in the nation," Nee said. "Any time we get a chance to play them in the postseason, we think it's a great opportunity."

The Huskers, who lost twice to Kansas by scores of 96-76 and 82-71 in the regular season, figure they've already wrapped up an NCAA tournament bid.

"If we play well (against Kansas) it would enhance our seed. If we win, it will absolutely enhance our seed. It's exciting," Nee said.

Tyrone Lue scored 22 points and broke Nebraska's season record for 3-point shooting while leading the Huskers past the Bears, who had their worst-shooting game of year while point guard Patrick Hunter fought the flu.

Lue, who was second in Big 12 scoring this season, averaging almost 22 points, hit 4-of-9 3-pointers and raised his season total to 73, breaking the record set by Jaron Boone in 1994-95.

Baylor center Brian Skinner, who had 27 points against Texas A&M on Thursday, struggled all day along with the rest of the Bears. Hampered by an ankle injury, he was just 2-for-9 in the first half while Nebraska took a 37-25 halftime lead and wound up 4-for-15 with 13 points.

Hereford's Andrew Carr practices his serve Tuesday afternoon at Whiteface Courts. The Hereford boys and girls teams played Friday and Saturday at a tournament in Fort Stockton.

Lady Dons reach 5A title game

AUSTIN (AP) -- Lakishia Harper scored 13 points as Amarillo Palo Duro shot 54 percent from the field and played suffocating defense in a 61-36 victory over Corpus Christi Carroll Friday in the Class 5A semifinals of the girls' state tournament.

Palo Duro, which improved to 32-4 in its first final four trip to Austin, will play in Saturday's title game against Alief Elsik.

Carroll, led by Amber South, the game's leading scorer with 16 points, finished the season 33-6 after making its first state tournament appearance.

Carroll, frustrated by Palo Duro's full-court press the entire game, opened the game 1-of-9 from the field and missed seven straight shots in the first quarter. Carroll finished 30 percent from the field, including 2-of-10 from 3-point range.

Palo Duro, on the other hand, sizzled from the outset.

Sprewell reinstatement poses questions

I don't write very often about the NBA.

In fact, if I had to guess, I'd say I've probably written less than a half-dozen columns on the NBA in the 10 years I've covered sports.

I follow the sport only passively -- osmosis would be a good term for what I know about the league. Just in the normal course of my job, you're bound to come across NBA stories.

I've never had a favorite NBA team, nor do I watch games on TV, even during the NBA Finals. Most of what happens in the NBA, off the court or on, passes to the backcourt of my mind, if at all.

I would guess that most non-NBA fans are pretty much the

The Toy Department

By Bob Varmette

same way. But then something happens that we all take notice of.

Latrell Sprewell. Sprewell had his contract reinstated Wednesday. For those who don't remember, Sprewell attacked Warriors' coach P.J. Carlesimo Dec. 1 at a Golden State practice.

Sprewell was subsequently fired by the Warriors and suspended for a year by NBA commissioner David Stern.

Sprewell will be reinstated effective July 1 by the decision of arbitrator John Feerick. Feerick based his decision in part on his opinion the punishment levied by the NBA and the Warriors was too harsh.

Not having followed the game very closely, I initially thought the punishment was too severe. I based that assessment on my opinion the attack wasn't premeditated, that Sprewell just snapped, and that he was probably provoked by Carlesimo. Carlesimo, reportedly, has a reputation of verbally abusing his players.

No verbal provocation justifies any player attacking his or her coach. But conversely, who is to say how any specific player would react under such alleged verbal duress?

Let's remember something. How a coach coaches his players is up to him. He is responsible for the actions and performances of his players. We shouldn't do anything to infringe upon that responsibility.

But let's remember something else. Sprewell's punishment was two-fold. He had his contract terminated by the Warriors and he was suspended by the NBA.

Sprewell should've been fired for attacking his coach, but the NBA should have withheld levying additional sanctions.

The Warriors have the right to deal with Sprewell, or any other employee, in any manner they see fit. Once that punishment is handed down, the NBA should have stayed out of it.

The incident should be left as an internal matter of the Golden State Warriors. The NBA, by adding to the punishment, made Sprewell a cause celebre, in some circles.

The basis for Stern suspending Sprewell on top of the Warriors terminating his contract was that he didn't want Sprewell to just go to another team.

Committee deciding who will 'dance'

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. -- Syracuse fell. Then Maryland took a tumble. A short time later, UCLA dropped like a rock.

Chaos was threatening to engulf the NCAA tournament.

The reason? Faulty adhesive tape. While choosing, seeding and bracketing the 64-team field every year, the NCAA's selection committee spends a weekend moving teams around on big poster boards, searching with a diamond-cutter's caution for just the right matchups in just the right places at just the right times.

It's all done with such reverence and care that only one person -- known as "the traffic cop" -- is authorized to touch the boards or move the teams.

Former NCAA staffer Dave Cawood recalled the incident 10 years ago when, to the committee's horror, the names suddenly began falling to the floor.

"It was crazy," he said. "Here we were trying so hard to be efficient, and the teams just kept falling off the board."

As the traffic cop, Cawood was the only person authorized to even pick the team names off the floor and stick them back.

The next year, the committee used dependable Velcro.

This year's traffic cop is longtime NCAA staffer Bill Hancock.

"He's the only one who touches that board," said committee chairman C.M. Newton. "We have committee members as well as NCAA staff who make sure our principles are followed, like if somebody had a game in the regular season and we've got them paired off. We're all alert to things like that."

"But when a team is moved on the board, or put up there, or removed, only Bill can do it."

And traffic cop Hancock stands at the intersection of happiness and heartbreak for many fans. From Thursday night until Sunday afternoon, the committee weighs, analyzes and scrutinizes. Decisions are made that spell the difference between a successful season or a bust, between a team having a decent chance or very little hope of reaching the Final Four.

Contrary to popular opinion, the committee's job is not to select the best 64 teams. It's to select the best 34 that did not gain automatic entry by winning one of 30 conference tournaments.

Then they break the 64-team field down to what amounts to four 16-team tournaments: the East, West, Midwest and South Regionals. Each is seeded 1 through 16 -- four No. 1 seeds, four No. 2 seeds, etc.

Throughout the process, the committee, through Hancock, is constantly fiddling with the boards.

On one side of the room is the board with the names of every school considered for an at-large berth. Next to it is the board listing every team that's already captured one of the 30 automatic berths.

On the other side of the room are four boards representing each 16-team bracket, and four that keep track of the seedings, making sure, for example, that a No. 6 seed does not show up on a seventh-seed line.

By 10 p.m. Thursday, the tedious process gets under way when everybody submits two ballots. The first is each committee member's "must-have" list of not more than 17 teams that absolutely have to be there.

Committee members don't vote on their own teams, so there'll be around eight to 12 listed on every ballot, and they will become the first names affixed to the at-large board.

Those teams are now in. No one can remember a team making the first ballot without making the tournament.

Members then take their second Thursday night ballot, listing all other teams they believe merit consideration.

Every team that shows up here, including all winners of regular-season conference titles and teams that didn't get quite make ballot No. 1, go to the nomination board. There are usually around 80.

"Most of the first day the committee devotes to the nomination board," said Hancock. "Then moving teams to the at-large board. Once you're on the at-large board, you're in the tournament, with very few exceptions."

The weekend is a constant process of evaluating and re-evaluating teams against each other.

"It's a laborious process," Hancock said, "but it's never boring."

"When it's all over, there is a noticeable release of tension. The room itself seems to take a sigh and a deep breath. You can almost feel it."

The next weekend, at eight sites around the country, play begins.

And then, as former selection committee member Dave Hart once observed, "Somebody will go out and win the NIT and say that proves we didn't know what the hell we were doing."

Underdog Longhorns upset Cowboys, 65-64

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) -- Brandy Perryman's 3-pointer with 28.9 seconds remaining lifted Texas past No. 25 Oklahoma State 65-64 Friday in the second round of the Big 12 tournament.

Cowboys center Brett Robisch missed a layup just before the buzzer as the underdog Longhorns (14-16) moved into the third round against either Missouri or Oklahoma. Texas is the tournament's 10th seed.

Kris Clack, who twice was hobbled by injuries in the closing minutes, stole the ball from Joe Adkins with just under 50 seconds to play. Clack, who appeared to reinjure a knee that caused him to miss time in January, then drove the lane for a score with about 48 seconds left to get Texas within 64-62.

Oklahoma State (21-6) failed to score on its next possession, and Perryman hit a long 3-pointer from the corner.

Texas played most of the second half without 7-foot center Chris Mihm, who picked up his third foul early in the half, sat out about seven minutes and then fouled out with 4:05 to play.

Clack had scored 28 points in Texas' first-round victory Thursday over Texas Tech.

He finished with 13 points and Mihm and DeJuan Vazquez each had 11.

Peterson finished with 24 and Adkins had 14 for Oklahoma State.

Lady Vols threat to run away from field

By CHUCK SCHOFFNER
AP Sports Writer

The suspense and tension will crackle on college campuses across the country Sunday in those heavy hours before the NCAA releases its bracket for the women's basketball tournament.

Always has been that way, always will. Who'll get in, who'll get left out? Who's going where? Who's getting what seed?

Once the brackets are filled, will any suspense remain? With No. 1-ranked Tennessee so good and so dominant, will this tournament be merely a prelude to the unbeaten Lady Vols' inevitable coronation?

"They're definitely the team to beat," Florida coach Carol Ross said. "But I also think the beauty of the NCAA's is that everybody goes in with no wins and no losses. Everybody looks at it as a whole new season."

That includes Tennessee, which usually is at its best at this time of year regardless of what happened in the regular season. Last year, the Lady Vols entered NCAA play with 10 losses and still won their second straight national championship and fifth overall.

Now look at what coach Pat Summitt brings to this year's tournament: A 33-0 record. An average victory margin of 31 points. Victories over 14 teams ranked in the Top 25 at the time. The best player in the country in Chamique Holdscrow and outstanding players around her in Tamika Catchings, Semeka Randall and Teresa Geter, all freshmen.

And it's not just that the Lady Vols have won that's so impressive, it's how they've won. They beat Vanderbilt by 61 points in the Southeastern Conference tournament. They won at DePaul by 79 points. They beat Florida, the SEC second-place team, by 39.

Tennessee is trying to become the first women's team to win three straight NCAA titles -- Southern Cal is the only other school that has won two in a row -- and the third to finish unbeaten.

Connecticut went unbeaten in winning the 1995 national championship and Texas did the same in 1986. Three teams that were unbeaten going into the tournament failed to win it all: Louisiana Tech in 1990 and Vermont in 1992 and 1993.

That's enough to keep the Lady Vols on their toes.

"We know what our focus is, so we do not discuss other matters," Holdscrow said. "The recognition we have received to this point is great for the sport of women's basketball. However, we have to continue to do things one step at a time and not be swept away by what is said or written by the media."

Tennessee will be a No. 1 seed, of course. Old Dominion and Connecticut also are expected to get No. 1s, along with either Stanford or Texas Tech.

Just as important are the No. 4 seeds. While there's not much difference on paper between a 4 and 5, there's a huge difference in the tournament because a No. 5 seed travels for the first and second rounds and a No. 4 plays at home.

Thomas spurs Lobo rally over TCU, 80-73

LAS VEGAS (AP) -- Kenny Thomas, held to only four points in the first half, scored 18 in the second Friday night as No. 20 New Mexico rallied to beat No. 13 Texas Christian 80-73 in the semifinals of the Western Athletic Conference tournament.

Thomas scored the first four points of a 9-0 run in the last 2:43 that broke open a two-point game and put New Mexico into Saturday's final.

Thomas dominated inside in the second half as New Mexico came back from an 11-point deficit to snap a 16-game winning string by the Horned Frogs and hand TCU its first conference loss.

New Mexico led 71-69 when Thomas hit a pair of free throws, then followed it with a dunk with 2:06 left. By the time Malcolm Johnson hit a layup with 10.6 seconds left, the Lobos had scored nine straight points to put the game out of reach.

New Mexico (23-6) will face the winner of the UNLV-Fresno State game for the conference championship.

TCU led by as many as 11 in the second half and was ahead 58-52 midway through the half when the Lobos went on a 16-5 run. Kevin Henry capped the spurt with a 3-pointer that gave the Lobos a 68-63 lead with 4:20 left before screaming fans that made the UNLV campus arena look more like the Pit in Albuquerque.

UConn advances

NEW YORK (AP) -- Freshman Khalid El-Amin scored 21 points and No. 6 Connecticut reached the finals of the Big East tournament for the third time in four years Friday night, ending Rutgers' magical ride 64-50. Rutgers (14-15) had a terrible shooting night, making just 18 field goals on 65 shots for 27.7 percent. Their leading scorers, Geoff Billet and Rob Hodgson, were non-factors.

Furyk, Woods share Doral lead

MIAMI (AP) -- Jim Furyk made every putt and shot a course record-tying 62 and Tiger Woods missed several short ones on his way to a 69 on Friday as both were at 5-under-par 139 midway through the Doral-Ryder Open; two shots off the lead.

"I started the day trying to make the cut," Furyk said after needing only 24 putts to pull close to leaders Tim Herron, Michael Bradley and John Cook. "I've put myself in contention."

A lot of people were in contention as 18 players were within three shots of the three leaders.

Woods and Furyk played together in the second round and were in a logjam at 139 that included Curtis Strange, who is trying to win for the first time on tour in nine years, and three-time Doral winner Raymond Floyd, who at 54 is trying to become the oldest to win on the PGA Tour.

Scott Hoch, Rocco Mediate and Stewart Cink were one stroke off the lead.

Woods and Furyk clearly fed off each other's good play.

"Jim started out with three straight birdies and couldn't get the tee," said Woods, who looked like he might bolt from the pack when he began his round birdie-birdie-eagle.

But it was Furyk who took control of the day.

Playing the back nine first, the guy with the distinctive outside-in looping swing was five strokes behind Woods after 11 holes when he ran off five consecutive birdies beginning on No. 3 to send murmurs of "course record" through the crowd.

But when a 20-footer on No. 8 stopped on the lip and a 15-footer on the final hole curved away at the last inch, he had to settle for tying the mark set by Greg Norman in 1990 and matched in 1993.

Norman, meanwhile, shot a 73 and missed the cut with a 147.

Herron made his way on the front nine, finishing with two birdies and shooting a 32 before playing the backside with nine consecutive pars.

Bradley played the back nine first and surged into contention when he started his second nine with an eagle and two birdies, the eagle coming on No. 1 when he hit a driver and a 6-iron to 18 feet on the 529-yard hole playing downwind in a 20 mph breeze.

Cook got a share of the lead with a 66.

Furyk shot a 77 on Thursday but a phone call to his father, Mike, who is his coach, turned things around.

"We talked about making a good, solid turn," Furyk said. "Every guy out here has bad habits and tendencies," he said. "I go through a checklist and that's what I did last night with Dad -- go through the checklist."

It was a phone call well worth the long-distance charge.

Furyk's five consecutive birdies included a delicate big-breaking 25-footer on No. 4 and iron shots to 6 feet on No. 5 and 5 feet on the seventh hole.

"My caddie said, 'We're back in it, let's just keep going,'" Furyk said about the encouragement he got from Steve Duplantier after the birdie on No. 5.

"I hit a lot of good putts yesterday that didn't go in," said Furyk, one of the best putters on tour. "Today they went in."

It seemed like they were going in all over the place.

Wright leads Red Raiders to Big 12 win over Texas, 6-3

LUBBOCK (AP) -- Shane Wright scattered 11 hits and three runs, one of them earned, as Texas Tech beat Texas 6-3 as the Longhorns' opened their Big 12 baseball season on the road.

Wright (4-1) gave up all three runs in a rocky third inning as the Red Raiders put together an error and two doubles for three runs.

But Texas Tech (12-7, 2-2 Big 12) began rallying back right away as left fielder Jason Landreth singled in a run in the bottom of the third.

The Red Raiders tied the game in the fourth with two runs on an RBI double by right fielder Miles Durham and an RBI bunt single by center fielder Ryan Ruiz.

Tech went ahead in the fourth as third baseman Kevin Jordan scored when Texas (8-9-1, 0-1) mishandled another Ruiz bunt.

The Red Raiders scored two insurance runs in the eighth on an RBI single by designated hitter Brennan Burns and another Texas error.

two early bogeys caused by a fat iron shot and a hooked tee shot behind a tree.

"I had a lot of people out there rooting for me today," Martin said. "I saw a lot of kids out there and I slapped five with some of them. They got a workout, that's for sure."

Martin shot a 3-under-par 69 over the Hills of Lakeway course on Thursday. He started Friday three shots off the lead of Michael Allen in the third Nike tour event of the season.

A federal magistrate ruled on Feb. 11 that Martin could use a cart because of a right leg defect at birth. The PGA Tour has appealed to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco, but the process could take from 18 months to two years.

The disability that Martin and Kern have is called Klippel-Trenaunay-Weber Syndrome and there is no cure. Martin limps painfully on his right leg and has no idea how long he can play.

Robin Freeman, one of Martin's playing partners, said Martin has proved he is more than a curiosity.

"A lot of people came to see this kid beat the PGA, but what they are seeing is someone who can play golf," Freeman said.

Mike Sullivan, Martin's other playing partner, said, "Casey is a good putter and hits it longer than I thought he could. He can play."

Martin looked relieved to make the cut. He missed the cut in his last Nike tournament after winning at Lakeland in the first event of the year.

"Everything is mental in golf, and now I've got the first two days behind me," Martin said.

Bears

The Bears (14-14) hit a season-low 27 percent while Nebraska shot 43 percent.

Baylor never got closer than 11 points in the second half and coach Harry Miller called the effort "somewhat embarrassing."

"Believe it or not, ladies and gentlemen, we are a better basketball team than you saw today," Miller said.

Hunter, who averaged almost 15 points and five assists all year, had been taking medication intravenously as late as Thursday. He played 19 minutes and had four points. With about 14 minutes left in the second half, he asked to be taken out and went to the bench and buried his face in his hands. He returned about seven minutes later.

"I just went out and did my best to try to help us win," he said. "I kind of felt uncoordinated and slow out there."

Chad Johnson and Cookie Belcher each had 11 points for Nebraska. Kish Lewis and Rodrick Miller each had nine for Baylor.

Dons

Harper scored nine points, including seven straight; as Palo Duro took a 19-4 lead after the first quarter.

At one point, the Lady Dons hit nine straight shots without a miss as the lead increased to 25-6 with 5:51 left in the second quarter.

Monica Trimble, Geronica Tucker and Casey Jackson each had 10 points for Palo Duro, which shot 56 percent in the second half.

Harper, a junior who is already drawing attention from college recruiters, seemed able to score at will by penetrating the defense with crossover dribbles and spin moves.

But even though she was 6-of-9 from the field, she frequently passed to teammates despite having an open shot. She finished with four assists.

South was 6-of-13 from the field and the only Carroll player to finish in double figures.

Sabrina Mitchell finished with eight points and nine rebounds for Carroll.

TCU beats New Mexico, 9-4

FORT WORTH (AP) -- Matt Howe drove in four runs on two hits as Texas Christian beat New Mexico 9-4 in their Western Athletic Conference opener Friday.

The leftfielder struck a single and a double to star in a 10-hit attack for the Horned Frogs (12-6, 1-0 WAC).

Third baseman Royce Huffman added a two-run double and scored twice in two runs and scored one himself to give unbeaten TCU starter Heath Collins all the support he needed.

Collins (4-0) scattered 12 hits and four runs, three of them earned, in eight innings of work. He struck out five and walked nobody.

Scott Candelaria led the charge for New Mexico (10-13, 0-4) with a double, a homer and two RBI.

But it wasn't Lobos starter Jim Serrano's day. Serrano (3-2) gave up all nine runs, five of them earned, on nine hits and five walks. He struck out six.

Sprewell

And there was the added motivation of deterrence.

Here's a look at it in more practical terms. If you were to attack your boss, the chances are pretty good you would get fired, possibly even face prosecution.

But it is highly unlikely that you would be suspended from working anywhere in your field for a year.

As for deterrence, would knowing you will receive such a penalty prevent you from committing the act if that act is committed without malice of forethought? Capital punishment doesn't deter unpremeditated capital murder.

The Warriors were completely justified by firing Sprewell, and they would've been justified in filing assault charges against him. Sprewell does deserve to be punished for what he did. But the sanctions go too far when they prohibit him from working anywhere at all.

Feerick's decision was probably based, in part, on that. In announcing his decision, Feerick wrote, "I find that a penalty of 68 games is commensurate with the severity of the misconduct, addresses the wrong done to the head coach, and conveys a message that violence in the NBA will be dealt with severely but always with due regard to principles of fairness."

I don't know enough about Sprewell to say whether he is a good person or a bad person. And that does make a difference in how you perceive his initial punishment and the arbitrator's decision to reinstate.

Whether you believe the NBA should have suspended Sprewell in addition to his termination rests largely on whether you believe his attack was provoked and unpremeditated. It also depends on whether you believe, if in fact you believe the attack was unpremeditated, that it should be a mitigating factor.

Sprewell deserves the benefit of the doubt. We have a problem with violence in sports, and Sprewell is part of the problem, but to what extent we do not know.

On its face, the incident seems to be a "crime of passion." If that is indeed the case, we need to ask ourselves how we might have reacted in a similar situation.

It's easy enough for me to say I would never do such a thing because I never have. However, I don't know to what extent Carlesimo provoked Sprewell, if in fact he did so at all.

I wasn't at the Warriors' practice Dec. 1. Were you?

Aggie pitcher goes distance to beat Tigers

COLLEGE STATION (AP) -- Ryan Rupe went the distance, striking out 11 batters in nine innings as Texas A&M beat Missouri 9-2 on Friday.

Rupe (4-1) allowed only four hits, two of them solo home runs by Ryan Fry and Nick Schwieder.

The Aggies (15-4, 3-1 Big 12) erupted for a seven-run third inning off of Jeremy Callier (2-1), who started for the Tigers (8-4, 3-1).

Sean Heaney opened the inning with a single, followed by Steve Scarborough's triple.

Later in the inning, Craig Kuzmic hit a three-run homer to left field before Callier recorded his first out of the inning. Then, Chad Hudson, Daylan Holt and Scott Sandusky all singled.

NEW BATTLEFRONT
America is faring poorly in economic intelligence

NEW YORK (AP) - While the United States has managed to shrink its military budget and still defend itself, it's faring poorly in protecting its intellectual property.

The toll is worse in some ways than a sneak military attack: $300 billion a year in the theft of such things as customer lists, chemical formulas and other proprietary data by nation's claiming to be our allies, such as the United Kingdom, Japan and France.

The White House Office of Science and Technology Policy estimated that from 1990 to 1996, the United States lost the equivalent of 6 million jobs due solely to economic espionage.

And it's on the rise. In 1982, the International Trade Commission put the United States' annual cost from economic espionage at about $6 billion and $8 billion, and job loss at about 131,000 jobs, mere fractions of today's totals.

Economic espionage is the new battlefield, and the United States, the main target, is defending itself poorly. A new report from the American Society for Industrial Security suggests only 63 percent of Fortune 1000 firms have formal safeguard programs.

In some cases it hardly matters since the United States, owner of the world's largest and most innovative economy, is an open society believing in the free flow of information, even from government agencies like the Census Bureau and the Environmental Protection Agency.

In fact, the EPA reportedly has plans to make much of its vast data base available on the Internet, in effect allowing foreign information gatherers (spies) to do their jobs while sitting in armchairs.

"In 'Economic Espionage,' subtitled 'The Looting of America's Economic Security in the Information Age,' the Chemical Manufacturers Association says the EPA appears to be unaware of the damage that would cause.

What especially scares the chemical industry, which accounts for 10 percent of American exports, is that the EPA talks about releasing sensitive data on what is known as the Toxic Release Inventory, which contains reports from 26,000 companies.

According to the CMA, the EPA wants these companies to reveal not just how much of more than 600 chemicals they emit to the air, land and water, "but also to reveal detailed and sensitive production information."

Simply by using conventional information already available, the association claims it is possible for foreign or domestic spies to build a profile of a chemical production facility.

The association commissioned a study by Kline & Co., an intelligence gathering concern based in Fairfield, N.J., to study the effects of an expansion of the Toxic Release Inventory as proposed by the EPA.

The result, the CMA states, would be to give foreign competitors access "to information that, in wartime, would be the equivalent of having the United States voluntarily turn over its code book to enemies."

That includes a company's manufacturing costs, probable technical advances the company has made, specific chemistries it uses to make its products, expansion plans, its economic breakpoints, and more.

This is the new battlefield, and it involves more than just the protection of American companies and American know-how. It involves U.S. relations with traditional military allies who are not always economic allies, and sometimes even enemies.

It involves American jobs, and the trade balance and the whole U.S. economy, and equally disconcerting, the free flow of information that helped produce all that innovation others want to steal.

Dixie Chicks: Texas country music trio confronting fame

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - The Dixie Chicks have a definite aura these days - a mix of elation, wariness and fatigue that comes with newfound fame.

Their spunky first single, "I Can Love You Better," is in the Top 20 of country music charts, and the group has been besieged by requests for performances and interviews. They're doing their best to accommodate everyone, while trying to guard against being overwhelmed.

It's too early to tell if the blonde Texas trio named for a Little Feat song, "Dixie Chicken," are at the beginning of a long string of hits or having their one shot of glory.

"We still don't get recognized very much - maybe if we're together," said Emily Erwin, 25.

But they have noticed some changes.

"The shows are a lot better and bigger," she said. "Our crowds have quadrupled. And a lot of it is fans our age that we feel like we want to relate to and can relate to."

The Dixie Chicks are not overnight sensations. Erwin and her sister, Martie Seidel, 28, played everything from street corners to clubs to David Letterman's lobby for nine years, trying to get noticed. Their fortunes changed when lead singer Natalie Maines quit college and agreed to join the group in 1995.

Erwin and Seidel formed the Dixie Chicks with vocalists Robin Macy and Laura Lynch in 1989. They started out wearing Western outfits and singing campy cowboy music.

Once, they drove from Dallas to New York City, determined to catch Letterman's attention.

"We played on the street all day to get enough money to pay for the hotel room that night," Seidel said. "Then we took our instruments and played in David Letterman's lobby, because we wanted to be on the David Letterman show. That's how we thought you did it. "Little did we know we'd get thrown out," she said, as the other Chicks laughed. "It's that way of doing things that I think has gotten us where we are. It made us stick with it. It's an adventure. It's not a job to us."

They recorded two more albums before asking Maines to replace Macy and Lynch.

Maines is the daughter of noted Texas steel guitarist and producer Lloyd Maines, who had an unsuccessful foray into the Nashville music business in the 1980s with The Maines Brothers Band.

"My dad played on their second two albums," said Maines, 23, "so I heard their albums."

"I'd go to their shows. The most interesting thing to watch was these two girls (Erwin and Seidel) tearing up their instruments like any man out there, you know?"

The band had regional success in the Southwest, playing about 150 shows a year. After Maines arrived, the band decided to try for the big time in Nashville.

"We'd visited Nashville before, but it was never really an active dream," Seidel said. "When Natalie joined the group, it was very obvious to us that it could really be a commercial success."

Maines was the charismatic lead singer Seidel and Erwin needed to complement their prowess as harmony vocalists and musicians. Seidel plays fiddle and mandolin, while Erwin specializes in banjo and dobro guitar.

The Dixie Chicks have put their cowboy music and bluegrass roots on the back burner and shifted toward mainstream country. Sony signed the band last year as the first act on the revived Monument Records. In its heyday the label put out records by Kris Kristofferson, Roy Orbison and Dolly Parton.

"Because we already could make a living on our own, there were certain things that we were able to be adamant about," Maines said. Foremost was that Seidel and Erwin not be replaced on their album by Nashville musicians.

"We came in thinking, 'They're not going to let us, we're going to fight them the whole way,'" Maines said. "It wasn't like that."

Nashville producers Paul Worley and Blake Chancey did get the Chicks to try more sophisticated harmony arrangements, and convinced them that they didn't have to crowd lots of hot instrumental licks into every song.

Library family

Dick and Pat Montgomery were honored as the Library Family of the Year at the Friends of the Deaf Smith County Library Open House Monday night. Rebecca Walls presented them with a plaque that will be displayed in the library.

Boys, Girls State delegates named by American Legion, Auxiliary

Boys State delegates were named by American Legion Post 192 and Girls State nominees were guests of the Auxiliary at the recent meetings of both organizations at the Post Home.

Jess Robinson, Post Commander, presided for the Post business session. Plans were completed for sending Carey Lyles and Dewayne Dotson as delegates to Boys State on June 6-12 at the University of Texas, Austin.

Lyles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyles. Dotson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Dotson.

The American Legion 79th birthday dinner will be held at 7 p. March 19 in the Post Home. Following the dinner, Guy Warren, of the National Guard of Friona, who served in the Occupational Forces in Bosnia from 1995 to 1997, will discuss the conditions and his experiences in Bosnia.

Following the program, a brief Zone Meeting will be held with members attending from posts in Tulia, Friona, Dimmitt, Nazareth, Hart and Hereford.

Patricia Robinson, president of the Auxiliary, presided for the Auxiliary business. Girls State nominees were guests of the Auxiliary and reported on their school activities and plans for the future. Selected as delegate to Girls State was Meredith McGowan, daughter of Jim and Lucy McGowan and selected as alternate was Laurie Gilbert, daughter of Steve and Connie Gilbert.

Troyce Hanna and Ruth King were appointed to up-date the history of the American Legion Auxiliary for inclusion in the centennial edition of The Hereford Brand in August.

Plans were completed for the 79th birthday dinner which will be preceded by a work day beginning at 9 a.m. March 18.

All members are encouraged to attend this special dinner.

The 18th District Convention will be held April 25-26 in Amarillo with Post 54 serving as host.

Hostesses for the meeting were Ella Caudle, King and Hanna.

The next meeting of the Post and Auxiliary will be April 7 in the Post Home.

Ann Landers

Pledges must refuse to take part in order to stop hazing tragedies

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to respond to the letter from Rita Saucier, whose son died as a result of fraternity hazing. I am a 19-year-old college sophomore and very active in my fraternity, Delta Upsilon, at the University of Louisville. I am proud to say my chapter has managed to eliminate all forms of hazing. Unfortunately, we are a minority. Hazing is still going on in a great many fraternities around the country.

The only way to stop hazing tragedies is for the pledges to refuse to take part in any activity they consider hazardous. They should say flat out, "What you are asking me to do is foolish and dangerous, and I am not going to do it." If that answer is not acceptable to the fraternity members, the pledge's response should be, "Sorry, I'm going to have to find another fraternity."

Being a member of a fraternity can be a very rewarding experience. It can forge a bond that will last a lifetime. The initiation process should be rational and safe. If you are told to run naked in freezing weather or chug-a-lug alcohol, simply refuse to do it. Others will follow your lead, and dangerous hazing practices will disappear. -- A.D., Louisville, Ky.

Dear A.D.: What a sane and sensible young man you are. How good it would be if others followed your example. Keep reading for more on this subject:

Dear Ann: There are about 10,000 fraternity chapters on American campuses today. During my college days, I was a member of Delta Chi. At 21, I was an ensign U.S. Naval Reserve on active duty. By 25, I was the commanding officer of a Navy supply ship, responsible for 220 crew members and up to 200 passengers. My ship received a "well done" from Fleet Adm. King for rescuing a merchant ship from the Arctic ice pack.

Delta Chi helped me grow up and assume responsibility at an early age. Sadly, when a few fraternity members do foolish things, it gets in the papers. The many good things accomplished are not newsworthy.

The English used to say their leaders grew up "on the playing fields of Eton." I believe a great many young American men have grown up in their fraternities. I am one of them. -- Fred R. Brooks, Santa Monica, Calif.

Dear Fred Brooks: My "well done" isn't in the same league as the one you received from Adm. King, but here it is anyway. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I see you are back on the subject of fraternity hazing. I say, "Good for you." Not nearly enough has been said about this senseless, barbaric practice.

I am still unable to get out of my mind the face of that handsome young man who was pledged to a fraternity at MIT last fall and died (I should say "was killed") during the hazing process.

What more has to happen before all hazing, everywhere, stops? Please print my letter with a two-word response, "I agree" or "I disagree." -- Northwestern U. in Evanston, Ill.

Dear Northwestern: I agree.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing this from the Cook County jail, waiting to go to the state prison for 16 months. My crime? Driving my neighbor's car without his permission. What do you think of a government that treats respectable citizens this way? -- No Name, Please, Just Illinois

Dear No Name: When you drive a vehicle without the owner's permission, it is commonly known as grand theft auto. In Illinois, this is a Class One felony. After you have served your time, I hope you will never again "borrow" a car.

Week pays tribute to older worker

"Hire the Older Worker Week", sponsored by Green Thumb, Inc., is being observed in Hereford from March 8-14, according to Mary Ann Resch, field operations coordinator.

For more than 30 years, Green Thumb, Inc. has operated the Senior Community Service Employment Program which provides our nation's senior citizens with part-time employment and training opportunities.

Through their participation, these senior workers maintain their dignity and remain as productive members of their communities.

Each year Hire the Older Worker

Week spotlights the contributions our seniors bring to the labor force and encourages employers to profit from their skills, abilities, and experience.

According to Diane Cowan, Green Thumb director, "During this important week, let us recognize and highlight the work force contributions of our seniors while we strengthen our commitment to assuring that we invest in their talents and resourcefulness as productive partners in tomorrow's future."

Operating primarily in the rural areas of 132 Texas counties, include Deaf Smith County, Green Thumb has given older, economically-disadvantaged jobseekers the opportunity of sharing their years of experience, hard work and dedication through local community service employment and training projects.

Funded through the U.S. Department of Labor, the program's emphasis upon training allows participants to transition back into private sector employment.

Green Thumb encourages employers to utilize the skills and abilities of seniors for their job openings not only during Hire the Older Worker Week, March 8-14, but every other week.

Gulley recognized

David Wesley Gulley, judge of the 222nd District Court, was among attorneys recognized by the State Bar College as new or maintaining members.

The members of the bar organization account for less than 8 percent of the 63,500 attorneys licensed to practice in Texas.

The college was created in 1982 by the Supreme Court of Texas to recognize members of the Texas Bar Association who voluntarily attain continuing education credits each year.

To qualify for membership, an attorney must complete 80 hours of continuing legal education (CLE) within a three-year period or 45 hours during the current year. To maintain membership, an attorney must complete at least 30 hours of CLE annually, twice the number of hours required of all lawyers in Texas.

EMILY FUSTON, CAMERON BETZEN

Fuston, Betzen will wed

John and Joan Fuston of Hereford announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Emily Elizabeth, to Patrick Cameron Betzen.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Pat and Jan Betzen, also of Hereford.

The couple has chosen a June 5 wedding date.

The bride-elect is a 1993 graduate of Hereford High School. She graduated from West Texas A&M University in December 1997 with a degree in interdisciplinary studies and is employed by Walcott Independent School District.

Betzen graduated from IHHS in 1994. He is a senior agri-business major at WTAMU and is a candidate for graduation in December 1998. He farms in Deaf Smith and Castro counties.

Music memorial fund will honor long-time teacher

Friends of the late Kathlee Sihler Palmer have set up a memorial fund for music and music education at the Deaf Smith County Library in appreciation of all the things Mrs. Palmer contributed to the community.

A reception and memorial fund dedication will be held at 7 p.m. March 9 at the county library.

Mrs. Palmer was a voice teacher who came to Hereford from North Dakota in the early 1960s. She taught voice in Hereford, Friona and Bovina and had students from Amarillo, Farwell, Canyon, Vega and Dawn.

She was associated with the Music Study Club, Calliopean Club, Amarillo Symphony and Hereford Community Concert Association. She was instrumental in founding the Concerts of the Community Concert Association.

Mrs. Palmer died Oct. 9, 1997. The reception and memorial fund dedication are open to all members of the community who wish to pay tribute to Mrs. Palmer.

Food and Family

By LAWRENCE HEADLEY R.D., L.D.

UNDERSTANDING THE ROLE OF FIBER IN THE DIET

One of the most important parts of the food we eat isn't digested by the body. Fiber doesn't contribute any calories, essential vitamins or minerals to the body -- but it does help move food through the digestive tract.

And that's important to good health.

Eating high fiber foods has been found to decrease the risk of colon cancer, help control weight, and it provides many other benefits. You get fiber only from plant products. Good sources include whole grain breads and cereals, wheat bran, fresh fruits and vegetable, peas, beans, nuts, seeds, oats, popcorn, barley and brown rice.

For good nutrition, try to eat a lot of fiber every day.

This information comes from WIC -- the Women, Infants and Children Nutrition Program at the Texas Department of Health. If you'd like to receive our free nutrition magazine, give us a call at 1-800-WIC-3678.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"The world is governed more by appearance than by realities, so that it is fully as necessary to seem to know something as it is to know it." Daniel Webster

Junior Historians have begun their advance sales for cookbooks. All copy, which will include 350 plus recipes, will be mailed by March 13. The books will sell for $8 with proceeds to be used for student activities and community service. We appreciate your help with this project.

Yellow and Green Team science classes are working on their "self-paced" study of the human body.

All math students on the Yellow Team are working on geometry and the many ways that geometry is used in today's world.

After spring break, the Yellow Team English classes will write and illustrate a children's book. The subject will be a family story. This assignment will be a cumulative review of all the work done so far this year - writing, grammar, parts of speech and sentence structure. This has always been an interesting unit which most of the students enjoy.

Green and Yellow Team history classes are beginning "Life On The Frontier" and will be engaged in some parent-student activities. This is the period in Texas history between 1845, when Texas became a state and 1860, on the eve of the Civil War.

TAAS, on Tuesday, was a successful, although tiring day. The students worked hard and adapted well to "self-contained" rooms for the day. The students were in the same room all day and even had lunch together with their teacher at the table with them!

March 9-11 are dates for sixth graders to register for their seventh grade year. This will be done on the intermediate school campuses.

Red Team will be on a field trip on Friday, March 13. Requirements for going on the trip were no more than two absences, no more than one Noon Study Hall, no ISS or Primetime and passing grades in all subjects. They will go to the Discovery Center and then to Mr. Gattis' for lunch.

Cassandra Morris, who is a member of the Kwahidi Indian Dancers, joined that group for their last scheduled winter performance at Camp Don Harrington on Saturday. Her brother, Landon, and Tyson Foerster are former HJHers who were members of this elite group, also.

We are on the countdown for the school year and attendance is very important. Too many students are absent too many days and most do not ask for work before being gone and/or are late completing what they are assigned. Parents, help your children to realize the importance of good attendance and do not let them miss class unless it is absolutely necessary!

"'Tis education forms the common mind. Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined." Alexander Pope.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: After four months of visits to three doctors, I was finally diagnosed as having a "connective tissue" disease.

I have moved to a new town and am unable to find a doctor who treats this disease.

What is a connective tissue disease? Is it curable? — M.G.

ANSWER: There are dozens of connective tissue diseases.

Connective tissues act like scaffolding, giving the body and its organs support. They also cushion the body's organs, like packing material stuffed in a box for mailing.

Bone, skin, blood vessels, ligaments and cartilage are connective tissues.

Collagen, a thick protein fiber, is the main component of connective tissues. Most connective tissue diseases result from defective collagen fibers, so the large group of illnesses sometimes goes by another name: "collagen vascular diseases" — a term that draws attention to the two principal actors in the cast of characters of connective tissue disorders.

An example of an inherited connective tissue disorder is Marfan syndrome. Patients with Marfan syndrome have long, thin arms and legs and elongated, spidery fingers. Defective collagen accounts for the changes. It also accounts for a weakness in the aorta, the body's largest artery. Defective aortic collagen places the aorta at risk of rupturing, leading to a catastrophic hemorrhage.

You're probably not interested in the inherited illnesses, though. You're probably interested in the more-common connective tissue diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis, lupus and scleroderma. Rheumatoid arthritis, the most common, is characterized by painful inflammation of joints accompanied by spasms in adjacent muscles. Lupus affects skin, joints and internal organs. Scleroderma is a hardening and thickening of the skin. Not all connective tissue diseases are curable. Most are controllable, though.

Rheumatologists are experts in such diseases.

I've touched on the subject only in general terms. Do you know the name of your specific illness? I can give you more details if you drop me a line with that information.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You recommended Coumadin and aspirin to lessen the risk of a stroke. I recently had a stroke, and my doctor prescribed Coumadin. He warned me not to take aspirin. Your comment would be appreciated. — D.B.

ANSWER: Your doctor is right. A person taking both Coumadin and aspirin sets the stage for serious bleeding. Both thin the blood.

As a preventive measure for stroke, patients who have atrial fibrillation, a heart rhythm abnormality, take Coumadin.

On the other hand, patients whose arteries feeding the brain are becoming blocked up generally take aspirin.

After a stroke, Coumadin is the drug most often used for preventing a second stroke.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: While drinking water, I burp and belch. It never happens during meals. Would like your thoughts on this matter. — D.K.

ANSWER: I'm willing to bet the farm on this one.

When you drink water, you are unintentionally swallowing air, which leads to a gas bubble in the stomach.

Don't gulp down liquids. Don't use a straw. Don't chew gum. Don't suck on hard candy. All can cause air buildup in the stomach.

CELEBRATE EDUCATION

It's Texas Public Schools Week, and there's no better time to find out what's happening in your local schools. Through PTA meetings, open houses or musical extravaganzas, local schools are opening their doors for a week-long celebration. It's free. It's fun. And it's your chance to observe how your tax dollars are being used. Anytime is a good time to visit your child's school, but this week marks the perfect chance to observe the outstanding learning activities in our Texas Public Schools.

A CLASS ACT SCHOOL MEALS:

MELINDA COLLINS, CODY WHITFILL

Abilene is site selected for wedding ceremony

Melinda Collins and Cody Whitfill, both of Abilene, plan to be married May 9 in Broadview Baptist Church in Abilene.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Ronald J. and Sherri Collins of Abilene.

Parents of the prospective groom are Gary and Melinda Whitfill of Hereford and Alan and Suzanne Morris of Abilene.

Miss Collins graduated from Abilene High School in 1993 and from Hardin-Simmons University in December 1997 with a bachelor of science in speech/language pathology. She is employed by Pioneer Drive Baptist Church in Abilene.

Whitfill graduated from Hereford High School in May 1992. He is a candidate for May graduation from Hardin-Simmons. He plans to attend Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth in the fall.

MAKE SCHOOLS AND COMMUNITIES SAFE, DISCIPLINED AND DRUG FREE: A PRECONDITION FOR LEARNING AND FAMILY STRENGTH.

*Talk to children about the dangers of alcohol, tobacco and drug use. These conversations could literally save their lives.

*Join PTA, the church of your choice, and work to form community support that will work in and around your schools, community, and your family to discourage alcohol abuse and ward off unwanted intruders.

*Build partnerships with the local law enforcement.

ENCOURAGE PARENT AND FAMILY INVOLVEMENT IN SCHOOL, CHURCH, COMMUNITY

*Get involved with your children's school, teachers, and church activities. Find out whether the school is setting high enough academic standards for your child and whether the school is offering your child the educational opportunities he or she needs to meet the highest standards available in other schools and states. Get Together with other families, teachers, community groups, school district staff, and the school's principal to begin to make improvements in your child's school.

TV, KIDS, AND FAMILY

*Studies show that academic achievement drops sharply for children who watch more than two hours of TV a day. Help children select the right program for their age. Contact your TV manufacturer to determine the availability of a V-chip which can block out certain programming.

*Monitor your children's TV viewing as a family. Use TV to stimulate learning and bring the family together. Develop a home library of good programs to watch as a family on VCR's.

THE SUCCESSFUL FAMILY program has its last night this Tuesday, March 10 at the HISD building at 5:30-8. There will be a grand prize drawing of a TV and VCR you will want to be present to win. Transportation and a free meal will be provided. Join us for this last family session and celebrate our success. For more information contact Debbie Canoe at 363-7668.

D.R.E.S.S. YOUR FAMILY FOR SUCCESS is held every Thursday evening at San Jose Community Center from 6-9 p.m. The program provides developing understanding, rehabilitating the family, education for all skills for life, and support for everyone. Family hope and a support system are established. Topics on courage to cope with today's issues and survival techniques for the family are addressed. For more information contact Tili Boozer at Texas Panhandle mental Health Authority 364-6111.

Military Muster

Marine Pfc. Richard Sierra, son of Maria T. and Richard Sierra Sr. of Hereford, recently reported for duty with 2nd Battalion, 7th Marine, Twentynine Palms, Calif.

Sierra's rotation to a new duty station exemplifies the worldwide assignability of Marines and Sailors. This flexibility allows our naval forces to protect U.S. National interests by serving as the principal enforcers of peacetime engagement, deterrence and crisis response around the world.

Sierra joined the Marine Corps in June 1997.

Marcus N. Banner has joined the United States Army under the Delayed Entry Program at the U.S.

Army Recruiting Station, Amarillo.

The program gives young men and women the opportunity to delay entering active duty for up to one year.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $40,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

Banner, a student at Hereford High School, will report to Fort Leonard Wood, Waynesville, Mo., for basic training June 17. By enlisting, Banner qualified for a $5,000 bonus.

He is the son of Mark A. and Janie L. Banner of Hereford.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent/FCS

Lowering sugar consumption, using artificial sweetener and altering a recipe for those purposes can be a challenge. At least 21 different forms of simple carbohydrates are identified as sugars. All provide calories but few nutrients. Sugar is a necessary ingredient in many products because it provides sweetness and bulk.

What health concerns are related to sugar?

Health concerns about sugar consumption are not as strong as they were 20 years ago. The only health problem strongly linked to sugar is tooth decay. Other health concerns arise for those with diabetes. Studies have found that most people consume about the right proportion of sugar for a healthful diet.

Sugar is not "bad" in terms of being harmful. But its use should be monitored because it contains more calories than nutrients. Eating too many sugary foods can cause individuals to bypass more nutritious foods or take in more calories than needed and thus lead to weight gain.

Weight gain and/or obesity lead to degenerative diseases such as cardiovascular disease, diabetes, hypertension, and may aggravate other diseases such as arthritis.

What about sugar substitutes?

Sugar substitutes make the food sweeter with fewer calories and no nutrients. They don't have the functional properties of sugar and some are adversely affected by heat.

The three alternate sweeteners, approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, on the market today are saccharin, aspartame, and acesulfame-K.

Fruit juices, honey and molasses are offered as sugar substitutes for baking and cooking. However, the sugar they provide is no more nutritious than other forms of sugar. The amounts used are seldom enough to provide meaningful vitamins or minerals.

To reduce sugar:

*To cut down on sugar, try new recipes or adjust old ones by using one-third less. To add flavor, use more vanilla or spices.

*Satisfy your longing for something sweet with fruits for snacks and desserts. Eat baked sweets and candies less frequently and/or in smaller portions.

*Read labels of commercially-prepared products; many are high in sugar. Whenever possible, substitute home-prepared items made with less sugar.

*Recognize that the following are names of sugars: sucrose, corn syrup, fructose, dextrose, lactose, sorbitol, glucose, mannitol, maltose, maple syrup, high-fructose corn syrup, molasses and honey.

If you are trying to lose weight and/or have diabetes, then select alternate sweeteners, such as saccharin, aspartame, or acesulfame-K. Either saccharin or acesulfame-K can be used for cooking because they are not destroyed by heat. Aspartame is a protein-derivative and is destroyed by heat, losing its flavor.

Hidden sugar in food

Many people are surprised when they see the teaspoons of sugar that are hidden in foods. For example: a 12-ounce cola drink contains 9 teaspoons of sugar. Put this in perspective. Would you add 9 teaspoons of sugar to your glass of iced tea? Consider that:

- ▶ 1 glazed donut = 6 teaspoons of sugar
- ▶ 1 ice cream cone = 5 ½ teaspoons sugar
- ▶ ½ cup of sherbet = 9 teaspoons sugar
- ▶ 1 tablespoon of strawberry jam = 4 teaspoons sugar
- ▶ ½ cup of Jello = 4 ½ teaspoons sugar
- ▶ 1 stick of chewing gum = ½ teaspoon sugar

FMS support meeting set

A support group meeting for sufferers of Fibromyalgia Syndrome (FMS) will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at the First Presbyterian Church, 710 Lee.

FMS is a disorder that is characterized by widespread pain, fatigue and stiffness in the muscles. The pain comes from the connective tissues, such as the muscles, tendons and ligaments. FMS does not involve the joints as does rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis.

Anyone who has been diagnosed with FMS, or who suffers from such symptoms or members of their families are encouraged to attend this meeting.

For more information, call Sue at 289-5275.

— YOUR EYES —

Women and Contact Lens Problems

Everyone who wears contact lens has experienced the dryness, redness, irritation and even blurry vision that comes from grit getting caught under a lens, but for women, there are additional causes for contact lens discomfort.

Very often hair sprays and cosmetics can cause discomfort and blurry vision. Some have ingredients that can stray into lens-covered eyes and cause infections.

If you find yourself having discomfort with your contact lenses, give them a good cleaning with a sterile saline solution. Once you put them back in, if you still have discomfort or your vision is still blurry, double check that you've put them in correctly. And if you still have trouble after you've completed these steps, you may need a new pair. There could be protein deposits that accumulate over time. If any pain or discomfort does not subside within half an hour, make an appointment with your optometrist.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Numbers won't replace your customers

It was a little past the unusual lunch rush hour, but the line at the fast-food counter was at least 10 people deep. As I waited in line, I overheard a conversation between an obviously harried manager and the owner of the business.

"What is it?" the owner asked. The manager worked his calculator and replied, "24 percent."

"You know we can't live with that. Send somebody home. You won't have a job and I won't have a store if we keep this up. We've got to stay below 22 percent. We've been over this before," the owner growled.

The manager frowned. "Ok, but I really need everyone right now." The owner shook his head and turned away. The conversation was not loud, nor was it intended for others to hear. However, without even trying I heard every word. I could tell from the tone of this conversation that the focus of this business owner was on managing the numbers, not on taking care of customers.

The owner wanted to hold labor costs below 22 percent of sales. On this day the numbers were coming in at 24 percent and the owner wanted to cut his labor expense. The numbers said there were too many warm bodies standing around.

None of my business

I was traveling in a large city and had stopped to grab a quick bite before going on. This little scene was none of my professional business. However, I did want to take both the owner and manager aside for a little chat.

You see as a customer, I didn't want anyone sent home. I wanted both the owner and manager to pitch in behind the counter and speed up the service. The line was long and moving slowly. I was willing to increase sales in return for food and drink.

Unfortunately, this owner was so obsessed with his numbers that he had forgotten where the numbers came from in the first place. Now don't get me wrong. I believe in knowing your numbers and using information to make good decisions. I believe in management based on facts not feelings.

I also know that for many fast-food franchises controlling labor costs is critical for survival. This is true for most businesses.

Typically, labor expense (salaries, wages, benefits, etc.) is the highest category among operating expenses.

No, I'm not saying to ignore your numbers. Rather, I want you to understand the importance of managing priorities. Taking care of customers must come first.

An unwanted by-product

In a recent customer service seminar, I asked the business owners to define the term "customer." I got the usual answers: "people who come to us with needs," "people who buy," "anyone who comes into my store," and "everybody."

I even had a bright owner who defined customers as "the only reason I'm in business." He did get a laugh from the other owners.

I don't know whether this owner was serious or not. However, I've seen a few businesses who treated their customers in just that manner. Usually, when customers feel they aren't a high priority, they take their business elsewhere.

If it had been appropriate, I would have encouraged the owner and manager to jump in and help serve customers. Sales would increase, labor costs as a percentage of sales would go down and most importantly, customers would be happier. Keep your customers happy and the numbers may not require as much managing.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALL

This week while doing some sewing I had the pleasure of listening to three books on tape, or what we call "Talking Books". By the end of the day I was pleased to have a new jacket and had listened to three books.

One of the books that I had really enjoyed was by Jayne Ann Krentz. I was then pleasantly surprised to find this author has a new book "Sharp Edges" available this week.

In this book Eugenia Swift, the director of the Leabrook Glass Museum, has been asked to catalog an important collection of art glass belonging to the late Adam Daventry.

A young woman of "singular sensibilities and a connoisseur of beauty", Eugenia isn't afraid to tackle the most difficult task alone.

However because of the speculation and rumors surrounding Daventry's death the museum insists that Eugenia be accompanied by Cyrus Chandler Colfax, a private investigator whose taste in glass pertains only to its possible liquid contents.

Eugenia has another reason for wanting to travel to Frog Cove Island. Her good friend, Nellie Grant, who just happened to be Daventry's lover, is missing.

Colfax has his own reasons for the trip, and in an effort to keep the personal agenda secret, he proposes that he and Eugenia should pose as a couple. Even though Eugenia isn't carried away with the idea she does see some logic in masquerading as a couple.

While Eugenia intends to keep a safe distance from her pretend partner, it soon becomes clear that their very lives depend on them being an "utterly convincing couple."

Barbara Parker's book Suspicion of Deceit begins with attorney Gail Connor turning down an opportunity for a partnership in a Miami law firm to open her own practice.

Gail is engaged to Anthony Quintana, a top criminal defense lawyer. Gail finds Anthony's passion, brilliance and unpredictability the things she likes most about him. However, the ever increasing shadows of secrecy and distrust make Gail question and doubt the man she loves.

Gail's new client, the Miami Opera, has a visiting singer with ties to a Cuban revolutionary movement. Anthony's past secrets, and the present, seem to be on a collision course that could easily destroy his entire family and ruin Gail's future.

Determined to find the truth, Gail discovers Anthony's involvement in a conspiracy that binds him to silence and shame, and a damning secret that someone will kill to keep buried.

In Murder Under Blue Skies, top weatherman Stanley Waters is looking forward to semi-retirement. He is leaving the public life to open a bed and breakfast in Higgins, Virginia.

It promises to be a sunny future until one of the guests drops dead in full view of the television cameras that just happen to be covering the "Grand Opening Gala."

The victim, Belinda Grimsley, appears to have been poisoned, the suspected food being the special salsa dip prepared by the Inn's chef.

Higgins' chief of police, Marilyn Tunney, begins the investigation only to discover the new owner is the same Stanley Waters she dated in high school. Unmasking the cunning killer becomes more difficult and dangerous with each passing day.

Hit Man by Lawrence Block is about a hit man. Surprise! Surprise!

Known to his therapist as a "corporate troubleshooter," Keller lives the life of a well-paid, but lonely, businessman. Born in New York, Keller dreams of the good life in the country away from the pressures and complexities of his profession.

He may be a "crack killer" but it becomes abundantly clear that Keller is also an intelligent, clever, and witty human being.

The Starship Titanic by Terry Jones is based on the story of Douglas Adam, the author of Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy. It is the saga of the ship that cannot possibly go wrong.

It is the launching of the greatest, most gorgeous and most technologically advanced starship ever built.

Leovinus has spent the last 20 years creating the Starship, and the night before it is to be launched, Leovinus gives it one last examination. With mounting alarm he discovers things are not right.

There are cyber systems that are not working correctly, with robots running into doors. How could his have happened without his knowledge?

Tomorrow the Starship Titanic will leave the construction dock under an autopilot, and, a few days later will pick up passengers for its maiden voyage.

All of this is to be staged for the media. In reality, the ship is to be deserted during its first flight.

As it eases away from the construction dock, it picks up speed, sways, wobbles, veers wildly and then under goes SMEF (Spontaneous Massive Existence Failure). The voyage has lasted 10 seconds and the story has just begun.

Mark your calendars for the family Film Far From Home: The Adventures of Yellow Dog on March 19 at 7 p.m. Sewing classes are March 9 and 23.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I am going on vacation and only want to take one large suitcase. Is there any way to pack a dress in a regular suitcase without having to take two bags? — Anonymous, Fort Wayne, Ind.

I'll tell you one of my favorite tricks that helps minimize wrinkles and at the same time gets more clothes in the suitcase. It should work for you too. Start saving all your plastic dry-cleaning bags.

Before packing, make sure buttons are buttoned and zippers are zipped. Now, neatly put each piece of clothing inside a plastic dry-cleaning bag. Fold the garment in half vertically and fold in the sleeves.

Starting at the top of the garment, begin rolling it, along with the plastic, forming a cylinder. Make sure each garment is covered completely in plastic.

Then carefully put each roll in the suitcase in layered rows. This should work with your dress. Just make sure to unroll it and hang it up as soon as you get to your destination.

Dear Heloise: Throughout our house and studio, we have nine different remote control units. When it becomes necessary to mute one of the electronic systems, one must locate that feature on the remote unit being used in that area.

To save time (nanoseconds count on obnoxious ads), we have painted the mute button on every remote gold. After all, silence is golden! — Norman Yoss, Springfield, Mo.

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: Many restaurants and stores fail to provide some sort of step in their bathrooms to help small children reach the sink to wash their hands after going to the bathroom.

It is sad that the vast majority of places I shop do not think about the needs of young children and their families. — No Name, Houston, Texas

Farm & Ranch

As Nebraska farmers age, TFB leaders discuss ag's future Legislature encourages young

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Fewer and fewer young Nebraskans are launching careers as farmers. For one thing, they say, it is hard to get someone to lease agricultural operations to a beginner.

Those concerns are drawing the attention of the Legislature, and a bill on which the Revenue Committee conducted a hearing Wednesday attempts to provide some relief.

The proposal would not give tax breaks directly to young farmers but would offer three years of income tax credits to landowners who lease operations to new farmers and ranchers. To qualify, the net worth of the beginning farmers could not exceed $100,000, and their families could not be in a position to give them a start.

"With the age of our farmers these days, they're getting older and older and we need to get some new ones started," said Sen. Stan Schellpeper of Stanton, the bill's author.

The tax credit would be based on the assessed value of the property leased to the new farmer. The legislation would create a board to determine eligibility and offer counsel to help the new farmers get started.

The hearing offered a public opportunity for advocates to campaign for efforts to increase the number of young families operating Nebraska farms, but Schellpeper said it is too late in the session for the bill to win passage this year.

He said he would seek authority to conduct a between-sessions study of the issues and offer another bill in the 1999 Legislature.

"This issue deserves to have more study," he said.

The Nebraska Agricultural Statistics Service cites trends that show the average age of the state's farm owners is higher than in the past. In 1880, as the state was being settled, the average farmer was not quite 40 years old; in 1992, the average age was 53.3 years. Less than a quarter of Nebraska's farms are owned by people 35 years old and younger.

John Hansen, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union, said the Schellpeper bill has its roots in discussions by a beginning-farmer committee established by former Gov. Bob Kerrey, who is now a U.S. senator. Hansen said the committee members were looking for steps that would lower the bar for young farmers confronting land and capital challenges.

One of the suggestions was to provide a tax break for those willing to take a chance on a beginner, rather than leasing only to operators with established reputations.

The 1984 Legislature considered a bill similar to Schellpeper's current proposal, but despite 11 co-sponsors, it stalled.

County Farm Bureau leader Dennis Detten joined the Texas Farm Bureau National Affairs delegation to Washington D.C. March 1-4, the annual trip to the organization's national legislative program.

Texas Farm Bureau President, Bob Stallman, said international trade, estate tax repeal, the Endangered Species Act and the future of agricultural policy were among the issues the Farm Bureau leaders discussed with their elected officials.

"It is very important for our elected leaders to know how farmers and ranchers stand on these issues," said Detten. "They decide these issues based on the information they receive from their constituents."

"Repeal of the estate tax is a top priority for Farm Bureau this year," Detten said. "It is becoming very difficult to pass our farms and ranches to succeeding generations."

Stallman said the estate tax is "double taxation" since an estate is built with after tax dollars and then taxed again when the principal owner dies.

The Farm Bureau leaders also asked for relief from the Endangered Species Act. The loss of property rights due to ESA is a major concern, Detten said.

Farm Bureau delegates visited Washington at an unusual time. A new law mandates a balanced federal budget by the year 2002. The federal budget has not been balanced in more than 30 years, but the strong economy, however could push the budget into balance much sooner.

"We were told that the budget might be balanced this year," said Stallman. "This, of course, has stirred debate over what to do with the budget surplus. The options include spending on new programs, a tax cut or paying down the national debt."

Paying down the national debt would take some pressure off Social Security, an idea that met with favor from the Farm Bureau leaders.

"Reducing the debt to save Social Security is one of the things we can do for our children and grandchildren," Detten said.

Among other items discussed was the future of the agriculture policy. Four members of the commission on the 21st Century Production Agriculture addressed the group and answered questions. Stallman, as a member of the commission, is charged with studying farm policy and farm income and reporting their findings to Congress.

"With farm programs ending in 2002, we are concerned about the future of our family farms and national food security," Detten said.

Farmers seek smaller eradication zone Department seeks public comments

The Texas Department of Agriculture is accepting public comment until April 13, on a proposal to create a new, smaller boll weevil eradication zone from the existing statutory Northern High Plains zone.

The proposed zone, the Northwest Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Zone, would consist of about 450,000 acres of cotton in Bailey, Castro, Deaf Smith, Lamb, and Parmer counties.

Those wishing to submit written comment can send them to Katie Dickie Stavinoha, special assistant for Producer Relations, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711. Written comments must be received by April 13.

Comment on the proposed zone will also be accepted at a public hearing beginning at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, April 2, at the Earth

City Hall, corner of First and Birch Street in Earth.

Under legislation passed this year, the Texas Agriculture Commissioner was given the authority to change zone boundaries. Commissioner Rick Perry is considering the smaller zone at the request of 82 cotton producers representing more than 30 gins in the five-county area. Producers spearheading the request have asked that a more compact zone be created to allow eradication on a smaller scale.

If the smaller zone is created, an advisory committee will be seated to gauge whether there is interest in pursuing a comprehensive boll weevil eradication program within the new zone.

For more information on the proposal, call Katie Dickie Stavinoha at (512)463-7593.

Senate votes on dairy bill

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - The New York state Senate wants to allow state dairy farmers to enter a New England coalition designed to get producers higher prices for their milk.

The Republican-controlled Senate approved New York's participation in the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact on a 35-18 vote Tuesday.

The chief sponsor of the bill, Republican Sen. John Kuhl Jr. of Steuben County, said the dairy compact represents a rescue effort for milk producers beleaguered by a price plunge in the past year. For a time in 1997, wholesale prices slipped to levels similar to what farmers were getting in the late 1970s.

"This bill is about a way of life," Kuhl said. "This bill is about an industry under attack."

Kuhl predicted that if thousands of dairy farms are allowed to die because of the pricing crisis, New York consumers will pay more for milk because it will have to be trucked in from faraway farms, even west of the Mississippi.

But Sen. Richard Dollinger, a Rochester Democrat, argued that the problem facing New York's milk industry is that the demand for dairy products has simply not increased enough to keep prices high in an age of improving productivity. He said competition from soft drinks, fruit juices, bottled water and other beverages has prevented farmers from enjoying the benefits and stability of an ever-expanding market.

"It's a very harsh world in which we live," Dollinger said. "The world creates markets and takes them away. ... It's only by creating greater demand that we will solve the problem of New York's dairy farmers."

Opponents of New York joining the compact claim it would drive up the cost of a gallon of milk by up to 20 cents; proponents say the increase will be a nickel or less.

In Georgia, meanwhile, farmers gathered at the Capitol to lobby House lawmakers as a powerful Democrat voiced reservations about having the state join a Southern dairy compact.

"I hate for the General Assembly to get in the price-fixing business," said Rep. Bill Lee, D-Forest Park, who chairs the House Rules Committee. "Letting some group we create establish prices, that concerns me a little."

Critics contend the measure would result in higher costs to consumers at a time when the dairy industry has been struggling to fight slumping milk sales.

But dairy farmers say the compact could save them from going out of business, as 121 Georgia dairies have since 1995.

For farmers in New England, the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact in 1997 required milk bottlers to pay $16.94 per hundred pounds of fluid milk, or about $1.46 a gallon. Without the compact, bottlers would have paid $14.99 per hundred pounds, or $1.29 per gallon.

The question remains whether compact supporters can get the state Assembly, dominated by New York City and Democrats, to follow the Senate's lead.

The speaker of the Assembly, Manhattan Democrat Sheldon Silver, has not made a decision on the issue, his spokeswoman Patricia Lynch said Tuesday.

A mule leads the march against discrimination

Black farmers march on Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) - Accompanied by a mule they say symbolizes their determination, a group of black farmers marched up Pennsylvania Avenue to call attention to their continuing fight over claims of government discrimination.

John Boyd, a farmer from Baskerville, Va., and president of the National Black Farmers Association, said his mule was named "Struggle" to demonstrate what the farmers want.

"I've got my mule. I need my 40 acres," Boyd said, making reference to the post-Civil War hopes of freed slaves.

The march of about 250 farmers from the federal courthouse to the Capitol followed a hearing Thursday before U.S. District Judge Paul Friedman. He set a Feb. 1, 1999, trial date for a $2 billion lawsuit filed by 350 farmers hoping to force action on their complaints.

The Agriculture Department has acknowledged past discrimination and is trying to resolve a backlog of about 900 complaints from farmers over denial of loans and other benefits. The lawsuit seeks to represent all black farmers who made claims between 1983 and 1997, which lawyers estimate at about 2,500.

At the hearing, the farmers' attorneys told Friedman that government lawyers were using the statute of limitations to block cash payments for claims made before 1994 - which represent about three-fourths of the total - even though many were lost or thrown away. They asked the judge to rule on that action.

"It is creating another form of injustice," said Alexander Pires, the plaintiffs' lead lawyer.

In the coming weeks, Friedman will decide that issue and whether the case is a class action involving all farmers with discrimination complaints. He set the trial date at the request of the farmers' attorneys, who said it might speed up a mediation process the judge previously ordered as an alternative to trial.

Government lawyers, meanwhile, contended the statute of limitations must be observed and said President Clinton and Agriculture Secretary

Dan Glickman are committed to settling as many cases as possible without a court battle.

"We remain convinced that mediation is the most appropriate method," said Justice Department lawyer Michael Sitcov.

Pires, however, said little progress has been made in the first month of mediation, with no settlements reached among eight initial cases. The Agriculture Department's own civil rights process has produced just 15 cash settlements in over a year.

"The only thing the government likes about mediation is it takes a long time. It never comes to an end," Pires said.

But Friedman said he believed Clinton and Glickman were sincere about resolving complaints and said mediation should get another chance.

Joining the march was former Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy, who is facing trial on charges he took illegal gratuities from companies he regulated when he headed the department and then tried to cover it up.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc: Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The House of the Week

Traditional Exterior, Dramatic Interior

A STATELY COMBINATION of brick and wood siding accents the exterior of this home. Dormers, dentils and a columned front porch set it apart.

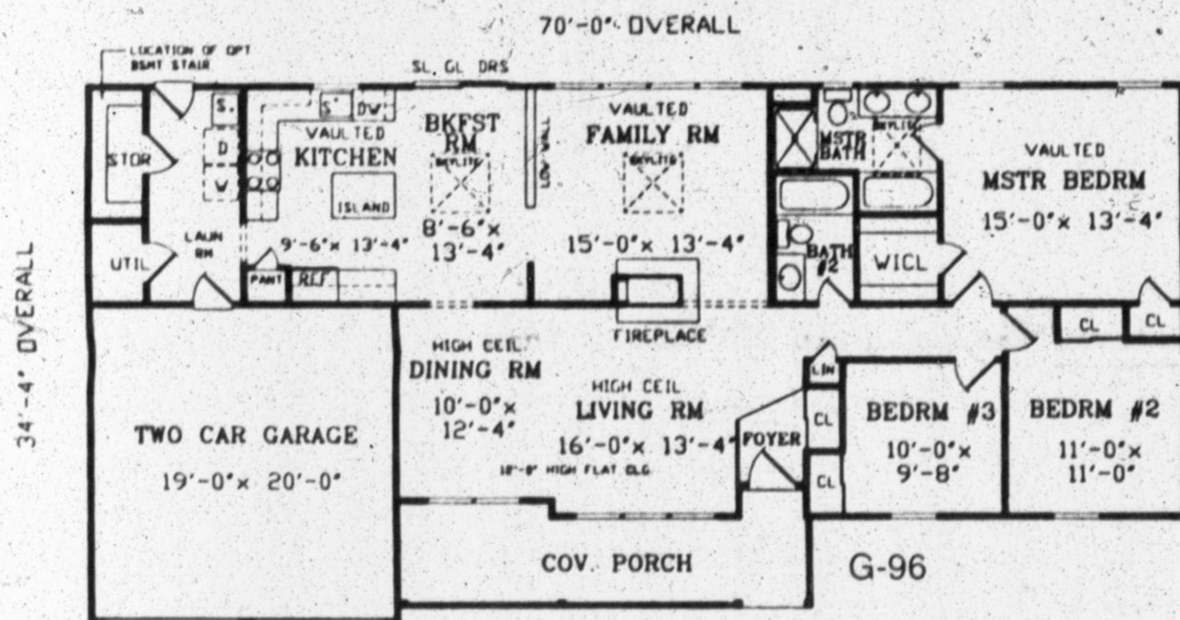

By BRUCE A. NATHAN

AP New Features
The traditional exterior of plan G-96 by HomeStyles Designers Network surrounds a dramatic, contemporary interior. The plan provides 1,667 square feet of well-conceived living space. The columned, covered front porch, the central portion of an attractive facade, is an ideal perch for entertaining or relaxing. Inside, the foyer opens to a spa-

rious combined formal area. Topped by a 12 foot ceiling, this space has a variety of applications. A three-sided fireplace separates the formal areas from the family room. Brightened by a skylight and a wall of windows, the family room provides a cheery retreat. Designed with the family in mind, the kitchen includes ample cupboard and counter space, a handy island work station and an adjoining breakfast room. The breakfast room, which features a skylight and sliding glass doors to the backyard, is separated from the family room by a half-wall. These casual living spaces have a 16-foot vaulted ceiling. A laundry room is located near the kitchen and offers access to the two-car garage. Across the home to the right, the bedrooms are clustered for privacy. The master bedroom has a 14-foot-9-inch vaulted ceiling, a large walk-in closet and a skylighted, dual-sink bath. Two good-sized secondary bedrooms share another full bath, completing the floor plan. (For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $5 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

THE COVERED FRONT PORCH leads to the foyer, which, in turn, opens to the living and dining rooms. A hallway to the right leads to the sleeping wing, where three bedrooms share two baths. The family room, breakfast room and kitchen stretch along the back of the home. A laundry room is in the rear corner and offers access to the two-car garage.

G-96 STATISTICS

Design G-96 has a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, breakfast room, three bedrooms, two baths and a laundry room, totaling 1,667 square feet of living space. This plan includes a daylight basement, standard basement, crawlspace or slab foundation, and 2x4 exterior wall framing. The attached two-car garage adds 396 square feet to the plan.

Maria Pitillo Rules in evolving NBC sitcom

David Newsom (Homefront), Maria Pitillo (Partners) and Bradley White (from left) are wrapped up in NBC's new sitcom House Rules, which premieres Monday. The smart series brings welcome laughs to the network's Monday lineup.

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Prime time gets noticeably more delightful as winsome actress Maria Pitillo (Partners) returns in a new sitcom called House Rules.

The series, which also stars David Newsom (Homefront) and Bradley White (the man who kissed Jamie on Mad About You), begins a seven-week trial run on NBC Monday, March 9.

Rules focuses on a trio of childhood pals, now adult roommates sharing a large house in Denver. The initial concept of the sitcom is that the characters — attorney Casey Farrell (Pitillo), medical student William McCusky (Newsom) and reporter Thomas Riley III (White) — have become so emotionally joined at the hip after 20 years of friendship that they subconsciously torpedo outside romances that threaten their unity.

The role of Casey is first cousin to Pitillo's sexy but smart character on Partners, a Fox sitcom that ran only one season but ignited a kind of bidding war for her talents after its cancellation. The actress selected Rules on NBC and helped put together the rest of the deal.

Chris Thompson, creator of the cult hit Bosom Buddies and the original, superior format of The Naked Truth, was called in to punch up some jokes in the pilot. NBC turned the show over to him halfway through the pilot week.

"I came into this four days into the pilot," he recalls. "The pilot wasn't quite going where they wanted it to go ... and we essentially (redid) the show in three days. I wrote 90 percent of a new script. ... I mean, this was really born in flames and hot cinders."

White recalls that the original script cast him and Newsom as a pair of odd-couple roommates who suddenly get a lovely blonde as a new roomie.

Thompson saw a major problem there because the setup invited a leering Three's Company situation, which would not play to Pitillo's unusual combination of assets.

"Maria is that rare thing, a 'smart, hot chick,'" Thompson explains. "She's absolutely beautiful, but she also projects a very strong intelligence and commands respect. I didn't want to do a Three's Company thing where the guys are snickering, 'Hey, let's go peek at her in the shower!'"

Instead, he came up with a far fresher notion focusing on the intense emotional bond among the three main characters.

"I treat all the stories as a domestic comedy," Thompson explains. "Here's this relationship (that's) intricately woven together. What can I bring in that will threaten the status quo, to make them band together?"

"They're in love with each other, really, but they can't really spoil the idyllic friendship they have by acting on it, because one's going to be out in the cold there. If a relationship starts between two of them, the most special relationship in their lives ends. 'Doomed Romantics' was one of the titles I wanted to call this."

He acknowledges erring in one scene of the pilot, which shows McCusky and Riley turning into slavering dogs over a beautiful visitor (guest star Lisa Rinna).

"You live and learn," Thompson shrugs. "You won't see that again. We've done seven shows and I think each is better than the previous one."

He's right. The second episode finds the sitcom firing on all cylinders, with guest star Patrick Warburton (Seinfeld) as a supermacho cop.

It's laugh-out loud funny, something NBC desperately needs on its otherwise limp Must See TV Monday lineup.

HOROSCOPES

★★ March 8-14 ★★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
You're on the go early in the week, Aries. Don't run yourself ragged. Take some time for yourself, and relax a little. You need it. A close friend wants to take you out. Say yes - you're sure to have a good time. A loved one gets into trouble and needs your help. Do what you can.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
A problem at work has everyone upset. Your steady nature will help ease the situation. Try to help others understand what is going on. Superiors notice your efforts. A family friend spends some time with you. While it gets to be burdensome after a while, keep quiet. He or she really needs this time with you.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
You know where you stand on an important family issue, so don't let others sway your opinion. Be strong, even if loved ones don't agree with you. That special someone wants to talk to you. You know what's coming, but don't let it get you down. He or she wasn't the one for you anyway. Capricorn plays a key role this weekend.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Don't let the stress at work get to you this week, Cancer. Just organize your schedule, and do what you can. Superiors understand the pressure that you're under. An old friend calls you. Don't be angry that you haven't talked in so long; just catch up on all that has happened. Leo plays a key role.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Keep your eyes and ears open early in the week, Leo. It seems as if friends and loved ones are hiding something from you. Try to get to the bottom of the situation without being too pushy. A date you've been looking forward to goes well. This could be the beginning of a lasting relationship.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Stay in control when it comes to a financial matter. Others are counting on you to make the right decisions. Don't let the pressure get to you; just do what you think is right. A friend has an important question for you. Give him or her an honest answer. Sagittarius and Libra play key roles.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
The week is going to fly by, Libra. You've got a lot to do, and with a little diligence, you can accomplish it all. Take some time for yourself at the end of the week. You deserve it. A loved one sends you some interesting mail. Don't leave it sitting on the counter; open it right away. What's inside will surprise you.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Don't be overly possessive this week, Scorpio. You can share your responsibilities with others without looking incompetent. Actually, getting help will give you much more time to spend with that special someone. The relationship progresses nicely at the end of the week. Aries plays a key role on Friday.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Don't get upset with business associates when they are honest about some of your work. Take it as constructive criticism; they're only trying to help you. A family dinner that you've been dreading turns out to be a good time. It gives you a chance to get close to your loved ones. Enjoy it.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
You can't be in control of every situation, Capricorn, and Monday makes you realize this. Do what you're told, and work hard. Your efforts will be rewarded. A close friend needs some advice about his or her love life. Be honest, but don't hurt his or her feelings. The situation calls for tact. Pisces plays an important role.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
You're on your own this week, and you're loving it. You get to work at your own pace and do what you want to do. Enjoy it while you can, because things are going to get hectic soon. That special someone splurges on you. Before you accept everything, think about what you really want.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't make a rash decision when it comes to your living arrangements.

Find out all of the facts before making any change. Things aren't always as good as they appear. An old friend needs your help. Be supportive of him or her, and do what you can.

HIGHLIGHTS

Days are sure to be short for botched blue-collar sitcom

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Exactly how desperate is third-place ABC for a hit series these days?

Pretty darn desperate, it appears, based on the horrifying evidence of These Are the Days, a sitcom premiering Tuesday, March 10.

Created by former Roseanne writer-producer Eric Gilliland, Days stars stand-up comic Gerry Red Wilson as Mike, a supermarket butcher who wants nothing more than to be lord of his domestic castle, with wife Patty (Kellie Overbey) by his side.

In the premiere episode, Mike is giddily anticipating turning the upstairs apartment in his home into "Guy Town," where only beer, comfortable couches and football matter.

Enter Patty's snobbish sister Catherine (Nadia Dajani, Ned and Stacey) and her weird little boy, Kieran (Michael Charles Roman). Catherine's husband has disappeared after losing all their money, and she reluctantly turns to Patty for help. Patty, of course, invites her sister and nephew to move in upstairs, and it's adios Guy Town.

Though not the most promising of setups, the main reason this blue-collar comedy is not funny is because of Wilson's awful performance.

His work here easily rivals that of Tom Rhodes, another stand-up comic, who embarrassed himself on NBC's Mr. Rhodes.

Rhodes, at least, was merely wooden, while Wilson is aggressively terrible. Waving his arms and banging out every other word, Wilson bellows his way through the pilot.

It's as if he thinks he still is in a smoky comedy club playing to a roomful of drunks, which, come to think of it, could well be this show's target audience.

Overbey may be a charming actress, but can't really register amid all this bluster. The same goes for most of the other performers, which include Pauley Perrette as Patty's younger sister, and Ron Livingston as Mike's buddy. Dajani scores some points, but her role is a bald retreat of her Ned and Stacey character.

As a more famous blue-collar TV character surely would say: "Bang! Zoom! To the moon, Wilson!"

TV PIPELINE

Q: I think The Love Letter was the best Hallmark Hall of Fame film ever, but I don't think I ever have seen leading man Campbell Scott before. Who is he? Please tell me a little about him. --Amalia A. Anderson via e-mail.

Campbell Scott

A: The versatile Scott, 35, is walking evidence that talent can be hereditary. He is the son of Oscar-winning actor George C. Scott (Patton) and the dearly missed Colleen Dewhurst, who is perhaps best known to the masses as the flamboyant mother of Murphy Brown.

Like many of Hollywood's best actors, Scott comes to film with a solid grounding in classical theater.

In fact, he once told me that one of his favorite memories was co-starring with his mother and her frequent colleague Jason Robards in Broadway productions of Eugene O'Neill's Long Day's Journey Into Night and Ah, Wilderness!

If you are looking for a Scott video sampler, I would suggest his first big movie role, Longtime Companion, in which he gives a heartbreaking portrayal of a young gay man in the early days of AIDS; Bernardo Bertolucci's The Sheltering Sky, which paired him with John Malkovich and Debra Winger; Dying Young, the Julia Roberts bomb in which Scott was very good and Dewhurst gave her last screen performance; and Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle, in which Scott first worked with his friend and Love Letter co-star Jennifer Jason Leigh.

Q: I love Suddenly Susan. Where might I have seen the new cast member who plays Maddy? --Kayla Crumley via e-mail.

A: Andrea Bendewald previously starred as Libby on the little-seen WB series Simon, but is probably better known for two guest appearances. On a 1997 episode of Seinfeld, she played Celia, George's "perfect woman." Later that year, she guest starred on Ellen as a potential roommate whom Ellen mistook for a prospective girlfriend.

Q: Is John Payne dead? If so, how and when did he die? --C.G. via e-mail.

A: Payne died of a heart ailment on Dec. 6, 1989, in Malibu, Calif. He was 77.

Q: Did Denzel Washington play a doctor on St. Elsewhere? --Julie Rosen via e-mail.

A: Yes, Washington played Dr. Phillip Chandler on that NBC drama.

Q: Who was the foxy young lady who played Dixie Cousins on The Adventures of Brisco County, Jr.? I would bet she's in her mid-30s. --R.B. via e-mail.

A: I'll thank you, sir, not to speak too ungallantly of lovely Kelly Rutherford of Melrose Place, who was born Nov. 6, 1968, in Elizabethtown, Ky.

SOAP WORLD

Young and the Restless aging with grace

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

It isn't easy being No. 1 in the world of daytime television, but The Young and the Restless has done just that since 1989. For a show that produces 250 episodes a year, it is an amazing feat.

On Tuesday, March 10, Y&R celebrates its extraordinary 25-year run with a prime-time special on CBS. The bonus episode is a continuation of the story told earlier in the day in which several of the running story lines will culminate.

Look for dramatic events to take place involving several characters. For fans of the series, it's a payoff that is long overdue.

William J. Bell, creator, executive producer and head writer, is well aware of the criticism: "at his series sometimes moves a bit too slowly."

"No one gets bored quicker by a boring story than I do," Bell says. "But when you get into these rich story lines, like Cassie's story, you begin to dig deeper into these characters, and you discover very exciting facets and relationships that surprise you."

Bell explains why he thinks Y&R has been so successful.

"I've really dedicated myself to developing characters and good stories and fulfilling these to the best of my ability," he says.

Bell and his team of writers have never shied away from taboo subjects. Y&R was among the first soaps to cover such controversial topics as AIDS, abortion and sexual harassment.

Bell says the show is enhanced by the talents of the cast and crew.

"These are artistic and sharp people starting with our executive producer Ed Scott and (producer) David Shaughnessy to the directors and cast," he says.

"You go on instinct when you are hiring these people. I look at a person and know if they will work. Once in a while I'm wrong ... but generally speaking I'm on target."

Bell obviously knows his target well, because he has been hitting his mark for a quarter century.

Explore the roads of Oklahoma for $16.95

From dirt roads to interstate, The Roads of Oklahoma has more information on Oklahoma than any other road atlas. Shearer Publishing has worked diligently researching and adapting information from U.S. Geological Survey maps, U.S. Bureau of Land Management maps, U.S. Forest Service maps, and Oklahoma Department of Transportation maps. With a large format of 11 1/8 x 15 3/8 inches and a scale of one inch=2.5 miles, the atlas has 108 full-color map pages that show township and range, latitude and longitude, topography, all watersheds, forests, grasslands, wildlife areas, state resort and park areas, roadside parks and picnic areas, power substations, gravel pits, and many more details. All communities are noted -- whether there are three residents or 300,000. Cemeteries, schools, post offices, churches and other cultural features are shown in rural areas.

In addition to the detailed maps, The Roads of Oklahoma has information and illustrations that capture some of the unique qualities of the state. Specific listings offer a wealth of travel information that covers everything from Oklahoma's roadside attractions to its history to helpful phone numbers for travelers.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.
