"I have a unique opportunity to help an organization. This is a strong organization, so turn-around is not an issue. It's more helping (HRMC) grow ..."

- George Parsley, interim administrator, Hereford Regional Medical Center

Parsley steps in to help out at hospital

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

George Parsley hit the ground running last week, and he doesn't expect to stop until a new administrator is in place at Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Parsley, who serves as vice president of St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock, was named two weeks ago as interim administrator at the Hereford hospital.

And, unlike most interim administrators, Parsley is not a candidate for the Hereford job, preferring to keep the day-to-day operations of HRMC running smoothly and assuring that the new administrator will be able to step in with a minimum of trouble.

"I have a unique opportunity to help an organization," Parsley said. "This is a strong organization, so turn-around is not an issue. It's more helping (HRMC) grow, look for new opportunities and prepare for the next administrator."

He has no idea how long he will be the interim administrator at Hereford, although he is certain the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board hopes his tenure won't be as long as it was at Swisher Memorial Hospital, where he served for more than six months.

Since his arrival in Hereford, Parsley admitted he's been too busy to look around the community.

"I've been trying to get up to speed, trying to find out what are the most urgent (hospital) projects," he said.

"(HRMC) has a great staff. There're a lot of talented people who enjoy their work, so I'm looking forward to working with them."

"I want to be able to give the next person here a list of projects, which are most important and organize the flow of information, both within the organization and outside, so everyone understands what the vision for this hospital is," Parsley said.

He said he intends to provide an "operational tip" list, which will be the result of his planned review/evaluation of every hospital department.

"I want to provide the new administrator with a well-structured operation, sort of a running start," he said.

Parsley has been a hospital vice president since 1997.

A native of Lubbock, he earned a bachelor's degree in marketing from Texas Tech University in 1981 and a master's degree in health organization management in 1990.

He worked for the J.C. Penney Co. in Lubbock for eight years, serving as senior merchandise manager. While enrolled in graduate school at Tech, he and his wife owned and operated a laser cartridge refilling business in the Lubbock area. After completing his graduate studies, he was employed by St. Mary as an administrative resident and sold the business to two couples.

In November 1991, he was named expansion program manager in charge of campus-wide construction projects. In 1993, he was promoted to director of facility planning, an administrative position covering the property management and safety departments. In 1995, he was named assistant vice president, a position he held until being named vice president in 1997.

During his tenure with St. Mary, Parsley had two stints as interim administrator.

In April 1995, he took over administrative management of the 30-bed Swisher Memorial, developing programs such as the zero-based operating budget and three-year capital budget. He also implemented a plan in response to a Medicare survey of the hospital's home health agency. His efforts helped the agency maintain its license. He also was responsible for the consolidation of two rural health clinics into one, which cut costs by about $100,000 per year.

In March 1997, he served for six weeks as interim administrator in Carlsbad, N.M., working with the six doctors and large staff to solidify the structure of the St. Mary Family Healthcare Center.

During the summer of 1997, Parsley conducted the evaluation of a small rural hospital in Van Horn.

Parsley and his wife, Pam, have two children, Elizabeth, 12, and Michael, 11; two dogs, Sparky and Charlie; and a cat, Max.

He also has served as 1997 loan executive for the Lubbock United Way, and is an active member of the Lubbock Lions Club.

Health care: Perception, reality differ

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Perception and reality often differ. The Community Health Improvement Partnership has discovered the difference between perception and reality as they study health care in Deaf Smith County.

Between December 1997 and February 1998, the 23 partners conducted one-on-one interviews with 76 residents. Those interviewed represented a cross section of the community, including senior citizens, educators, religious representatives, employers, minority groups and health providers.

The partners also conducted a survey of local physicians and employers as part of the assessment of the strengths and weaknesses of the health care system in the county.

The data compiled by the group will be reviewed April 14 when the partners, led by community health organizer Pat Stone, meet with Paul McGinnis of McGinnis & Associates, a West Linn, Ore. health care consulting firm.

The information gathered from the interviews, a public meeting and a marathon session earlier this month, has been collated by McGinnis. The information will begin to identify the strengths and weaknesses of the county's health care delivery system, enabling the partners to begin to consider possible recommendations to the hospital district board and the Hereford Regional Medical Center administration.

The informants thought the most important health system problems facing the county's residents are:

- Outmigration: Several respondents said too many residents go to Amarillo or Lubbock for health care services, noting the easy access to a full range of services in those two cities. Some of the respondents said residents don't hold the local services in high regard, and leave for that reason.

- Economic Climate: Many of the informants believe the area economic climate is poor, which they believe is a significant problem for the health care delivery system. They thought a small number of taxpayers are supporting too many of the services.

The recent audit of HRMC's operations indicate some validity to this viewpoint, because the auditors found that more than 80 percent of the hospital's volume are Medicare/Medicaid patients.

Several of those interviewed were concerned about access to services because of a problem in acceptance of certain types of insurance at the local clinics.

- Provider Cooperation: Many respondents said there is a lack of cooperation among the hospital board, physicians, clinics and HRMC administration. Some of the respondents also believed some physicians were "frozen out" or "run off" by the other doctors.

- Available Services: Many respondents believe there are limited resources in the community; however, they also indicated residents need to be better informed about what services are available.

- Specialty care: Many respondents said there needs to be an increased effort to recruit specialists, specifically an allergist and surgeon.

- Lack of Plan: Several respondents believe there is not a long-range plan in place to help give the community and the providers a tool for investing available resources.

When asked what is the most important health problem facing the community, the respondents cited most frequently teen pregnancy and cancer.

A majority of the respondents cited teen pregnancy as the No. 1 health problem in Deaf Smith County.

Cancer also was cited by a majority of those interviewed as a major health problem. The respondents generally believed there is an unusually high cancer mortality rate in the county, and suggested more screening activities to detect cancers at an earlier stage.

Allergies and respiratory problems trailed teen pregnancy and cancer as the leading health problem in the community.

The respondents cited dust from farming, particulates from the feed lots and general poor air quality. A few of those interviewed indicated

GOP wants 'supermajority' for tax hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) - The two House sponsors of a bill to require a "supermajority" before Congress could increase federal income taxes used the Republicans' weekly radio address today to promote the plan.

Reps. John Shadegg of Arizona and Joe Barton of Texas explained that Congress can raise taxes by a simple majority vote of lawmakers. In their measure, however, any increase would require a two-thirds "supermajority" vote.

The Arizona legislature passed such a requirement in 1992, Shadegg said.

Thirteen states besides Arizona have enacted similar legislation, Shadegg said, and compared to the rest of the nation, taxes in those states have increased slower while their economies have grown faster along with employment.

The 13 states are Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota and Washington, he said.

WASHINGTON -- U.S. Rep. Larry Combest has secured a West Trade trade corridor designation within the new federal highway legislation, which will open funding opportunities for improved highway access along U.S. Interstate 27.

The federal designation links ports of entry at the Texas-Mexico border with Denver, Colo.

The Lubbock Republican's efforts on behalf of a "Ports to Plains" trade corridor qualifies the region for federal planning funds for the most promising highway trade routes in portions of the Panhandle, South Plains and West Texas.

Combest said Texas now benefits from an eastern corridor and a central corridor of trade. The "Ports to Plains" designation will benefit planning under way by communities in the Panhandle and West Texas.

SURVEY

more research is needed in this area, while a few said there is no problem.

The respondents also were asked for their perception of the hospital.

Most of the respondents are glad the hospital is in the community and many are confident it will be able to meet their health care needs. However, many of those interviewed said the hospital's quality is just adequate and comparable to other rural facilities.

The respondents generally think the hospital does a good job, praising the nursing staff for courtesy and personal treatment.

However, the respondents who had a good opinion of the hospital also believe the facility has an image problem in the community.

A similar grouping, however, described the hospital staff as uncaring and rude. These respondents also believe the hospital has a poor image in the community.

The respondents were divided on the hospital's physical plant. Some described it as "a dinosaur," while others expressed satisfaction with the facility as it is.

Many respondents said the hospital's range of services are good, although they also added the qualifier "for a town this size."

Epidural services was cited by many of the respondents as a major need.

The respondents also expressed concern about the quality of the staff in the ER. Others said people are going to the emergency room when a clinic would fill the needs adequately.

A majority of the respondents described the physicians as good to excellent providers, but several also said the doctors are overloaded.

Many of the respondents say there are not enough physicians, with some specifically calling for recruiting female physicians and more specialists.

When offering their perception of other community services, a majority of the respondents praised the ambulance service, rating it as good to excellent in quality, access and response times.

However, there was some concern about the amount of expensive equipment, which they saw as increasing costs, and a few respondents thought the ambulance personnel should work out of the hospital.

Most of the respondents have little knowledge about mental health facilities in the community, with several citing improvements.

In other agencies, the majority of the respondents had praise for the senior citizen programs, such as Meals on Wheels and Panhandle Transport. However, the respondents did say these programs need to be expanded to include evenings and weekends.

IRS: Social Security numbers, EIC leading sources or errors

WASHINGTON (AP) - Common stumbling blocks on tax returns this year involve missing or incorrect taxpayer identification numbers, errors on the earned-income credit and the complex new capital-gains rules.

When the April 15 filing deadline approaching, the Internal Revenue Service suggested double-checking returns to ensure taxpayer numbers - Social Security numbers in most cases - are listed for the taxpayer, spouse and dependents.

A mistaken number was the most frequent error on returns filed last year and was the second-most-often mistake on this year's returns filed through February, according to the IRS.

A taxpayer without a Social Security number can file a special IRS form W-7 to receive an IRS-issued taxpayer identification number.

These identification numbers must be listed for children or spouses in order to qualify for certain tax benefits, such as the earned-income credit for low-income families or the child-care credit. A child's name and number must be listed on the child-care-credit form this year.

The IRS cited 2.5 million cases last year in which the taxpayer identification number was missing or didn't match the agency's records. In such cases, the IRS removed the credit or exemption claimed on the tax form, which can lead to a lower refund.

Carol Thompson, a tax specialist in Monterey, Calif., said accuracy of taxpayer numbers is particularly critical for electronically filed returns. Some are being rejected because women failed to notify the Social Security Administration of a name change after marriage.

"People have to be much more careful to be sure things are accurate," Thompson said.

Another problem involves confusion over the new capital-gains rules, said Thompson, an enrolled agent licensed to represent taxpayers before the IRS.

The 1997 tax law cut the maximum capital-gains rate from 28 percent to 20 percent, but tricky transition rules apply. The new lower rates apply for asset sales after May 7, 1997; prior sales are subject to the higher capital-gains rate.

The most common error this year involves the earned-income credit, according to the IRS. This benefit is available to taxpayers whose incomes are under $25,760 and with have one child that qualifies under the rules. For two or more children, the income limit is $29,290.

Nike says 'free shoes' e-mailing is a hoax

BEAVERTON, Ore. (AP) - You can't always believe what you read in cyberspace. Just ask Nike.

The sneaker giant said Friday an e-mail making the rounds that promises a free pair of Nike shoes in exchange for old ones is a hoax.

Since the e-mail began making the rounds last month, Nike has been flooded with hundreds of pairs of worn-out shoes.

"We do not condone these e-mail hoaxes, and are dismayed that well-intentioned people are being duped into wasting their time," Nike spokesman Scott Reames said.

The Internet chain letter - with the headline "FREE NIKE SHOES!!!" - says the company makes fields and playgrounds for underprivileged youngsters from old athletic shoes.

Reames said Nike does have a recycling program in which old shoes are ground up and used to build tracks and playgrounds, but that the company has never offered new shoes in return.

RAFFLES?
Texas has strict rules

Thinking about having a raffle?

Only "qualified organizations" are authorized to conduct raffles or lotteries, according to the Charitable Raffle Enabling Act passed by the Texas Legislature.

The act became effective Jan. 1, 1990, after voters approved a constitutional amendment for regulation of raffles. From time to time, The Hereford Brand receives calls from people wanting information about raffles.

Most of the callers are surprised to learn that it is illegal to promote a raffle by the use of paid advertising. The law permits qualified organizations to hold up to two raffles per calendar year.

A "raffle" is defined as "the awarding of one or more prizes by chance at a single occasion among a single pool or group of persons who have paid or promised to pay a thing of value for a ticket that represents a chance to win a prize."

A "qualified organization" is defined in general as:

(a) A nonprofit organization that has existed for at least three preceding years and is exempt from federal income tax and does not distribute any of its income to members.

(b) A volunteer emergency medical service that does not pay its members other than nominal compensation.

(c) An organization organized primarily for religious purposes that has been in existence in Texas for at least 10 years.

An organization may not offer money as prizes. It may not buy at any price a prize valued at over $25,000. The organization must have each raffle prize in its possession or must post a bond for the full amount of the value with the county clerk.

The organization may not, directly or indirectly, promote the raffle through television, radio, newspaper or other medium by the use of paid advertising.

The act also deals with the subject of raffle tickets. The following must be printed on each raffle ticket sold or offered for sale:

1. The name of the organization conducting the raffle and the address of the organization or of a named officer of the organization;
2. The price of the ticket; and
3. A general description of each prizethat has a value of more than $10 and is to be awarded in the raffle.

A county or district attorney or attorney general may bring action in state court to stop an unauthorized lottery.

Parody has Bush's office singing the blues

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. George W. Bush's office is singing the blues over a tongue-in-cheek "report" that the governor is revoking the pardon of famed musician Leadbelly, who died in 1949.

Leadbelly, whose real name was Huddie Ledbetter, was a blues-folk singer renowned for his skill with a 12-string guitar and composing such songs as "Rock Island Line," "The Midnight Special," and "Goodnight Irene."

But in his early life, Leadbelly also was a tough customer. He was convicted on murder charges in 1918 and sentenced to 30 years in the Texas penitentiary.

In the pen, he penned a song - "If I had you, Gov. Neff, like you got me ... I'd wake up in the mornin' and I'd set you free." It helped persuade then-Gov. Pat Neff to pardon him.

The latest issue of The Texas Observer magazine, which coincides with April Fool's Day, includes a news report parody in which the current governor announces he's taking back Leadbelly's pardon.

"It sent the wrong message to criminals in Texas," the parody quotes Bush as telling a news conference. "We want all Texans to know that if you do the crime, you will do the time - in this life or the hereafter."

The pardon parody also quotes Bush's press secretary, Karen Hughes, as saying, "The governor believes Neff's pardon of such a hardened criminal set a bad example."

Not everyone, it seems, understands the report is pure fiction.

"I don't know whether to laugh or be concerned," the authentic Ms. Hughes said Wednesday after Bush's office began hearing from concerned citizens. "We're getting calls from people asking, 'Why did you say this?'"

Well, they didn't.

And Observer editor Michael King is the first to say so.

"I just got off the phone with somebody who assumed it was absolutely straight," King said. "I said, 'Wait a minute. You understand this really didn't happen?'" King said two events last month sparked the parody, which he said was written by several people.

First, Bush rejected a pardon for pick ax killer Karla Faye Tucker, whose execution received worldwide attention. Later that month, a special 75th anniversary play reenacted Neff's creation of the state park system.

"Someone remembered that he was the same governor who pardoned Leadbelly," King said. "By the time we got done, we had this whole 'report.' We never figured people would think it was true."

Bush to push San Antonio for convention

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. George W. Bush, who many think could be the party's presidential nominee in 2000, said Friday he will urge Republican leaders to stage that year's national party convention in San Antonio.

While again sidestepping questions about his plans for that year, Bush said he believes the Texas city would be the best location for the GOP's big gathering.

"We're a pretty important state, politically. I think it's important to continue to showcase Texas' importance," he said.

Two other recent Republican National Conventions have been held in Texas: Dallas in 1984 and Houston in 1992. Bush's father was on the ticket both times - as vice president in 1984 and president in 1992.

Asked if he would like the San Antonio convention to be the one nominating him, however, the Texas governor repeated that he is focusing only on his re-election this year.

"I haven't made up my mind at this point whether I will or will not seek the presidency," Bush said. Bush is scheduled to speak Saturday to members of the Republican National Committee's site selection panel, who will be visiting San Antonio.

The city this weekend also is hosting the finals of the NCAA college basketball tournament, and Bush said that crowd will show GOP leaders what kind of job San Antonio can do.

First Congress, now academia turns its attention to manners

BALTIMORE (AP) - Kindergarten has long been society's launching pad for teaching people how to make nice with others.

Now, academia is getting into the act.

Johns Hopkins University will hold a symposium on civility this week. Miss Manners author Judith Martin was scheduled to speak along with professors presenting papers on topics such as "Anthropological Perspectives on Manners and Domination."

While some might criticize the gathering as an effete waste of money, Pier Massimo Forni politely begs to differ.

"One can argue a person who has little sensitivity to the well-being of others ... may be more prone to abuse, to violence," said Forni, professor of Italian studies at Johns Hopkins and organizer of the three-day conference that begins Thursday.

"We are addressing issues that appear to be of direct, everyday relevance for the lives of Americans.

It is really a project that is much less abstract than many academic projects."

Road rage, workplace violence and aggressive sales tactics have created the perception of a less civil society, Forni said, citing a 1996 study that found 91 percent of Americans believe the decline of civility contributes to violent behavior.

There are other consequences of a lack of courtesy.

A study last year by a University of Chicago medical professor found manners can affect a doctor's malpractice premiums. Primary care doctors who rush through patient visits are more likely to be accused of malpractice than doctors who spend more time, use humor and encourage patients to talk.

But are Americans near the end of the 20th century really less civil than in the past? Not necessarily.

During the 1830s, prostitutes often worked the balcony level during theater performances and audience members often talked out loud during the performance and threw things to show their disapproval, said John F. Kasson, a University of North Carolina history professor.

Behaving well, even after being given lessons, is not as easy as it may sound - even among national leaders.

Rep. David Skaggs, D-Colo., organized a three-day timeout last year to teach lawmakers to function with less hostility because he found the level of enmity on Capitol Hill so unbearable.

Weeks later, two veteran lawmakers nearly fought on the House floor. After Rep. David Obey accused Republicans of giving lobbyists too much access, House Republican Whip Tom DeLay of Texas pushed the Wisconsin Democrat and used obscene language.

Common Stock Commandments

Throughout history, certain "rules" have been recognized as basic for a successful, happy life - for example, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

As with life in general, investing has a few proven rules, too. Following are some tried-and-true guidelines for common stock investing:

1. Invest in the strong. Most of the companies in your portfolio should be strong financially and have demonstrated consistent earnings and dividend growth over time. Companies with a leadership position in an industry offer many built-in advantages. They didn't get there unless they had a competitive edge such as management strengths or superior products or services. If a company does not command a leadership position, then it should offer other competitive strengths that would allow it to sustain long-term profitability.

2. Invest in companies that honor the shareholder. One way to measure whether management is shareholder-focused is to examine whether companies are able to earn an attractive (or improving) return on invested capital. Make sure that companies are not just earning high returns due to accounting gimmicks or leverage. Companies that have a strong franchise or a special niche often earn attractive returns on invested capital.

3. Pay attention to industries. The company should operate in an industry where the nature of the business is attractive. Companies that "swim with the tide" tend to perform very well over time. Examples of attractive industries include pharmaceuticals, technology, soft drinks, household products, food and financial services. Unattractive industries include those that are overly dependent on robust growth in the economy, are subject to intense competition or are natural targets of regulation, such as utilities or machinery companies.

4. Don't reach for yield. The highest-yielding stock in any industry is typically a poor investment. High yield often means high risk. Since a stock's yield is calculated by dividing dividends per share by price per share, a high-yielding stock can be the result of a declining stock price. A falling stock price is often a warning that the company's prospects have worsened and that a dividend cut may be pending.

5. Avoid the turnaround, for it rarely turns in due time. Some investors search the list of "new 52-week lows" for potential turnaround candidates. Many times these companies are victims of bad management, bad products, a weak balance sheet or some combination thereof. Sometimes they operate in an industry dominated by one or two companies with an insurmountable competitive edge. Or sometimes the business is marked by a pace of change that makes it difficult to keep up. Industries that require large capital investment or have a history of shaky labor relations may be doomed from the start. Ask yourself these questions before you invest: "What is the nature of the business I'm investing in? Am I starting out with the wind at my back, or with two strikes against me?"

These are just a few common stock commandments. They've earned a reputation as commandments because they've proven successful over time, and wise investors usually follow them.

The average man's life consists of 20 years of having his mother ask him where he's going; 50 years of having his wife ask the same question and, at the end, the mourners wondering the same thing.

Wouldn't life be wonderful if more people carefully set the right priorities at an early age and then spent their allotted time enlarging and developing those ideas? Where are we going personally and what our priorities? Those two questions need to be determined early, because those answers have much to say about how we live.

We are lucky in this area of the world to have parents, teachers and preachers who are not only ready, but even eager to help us find these answers. The question of primary importance, we believe, is religious because it deals with not only this life, but life in the here-after.

Next on the priority list might be the choosing of a mate. We see far too many cases where the choice is made for all the wrong reasons, resulting in a miserable existence or divorce. Family life was the first institution formed in this world, and it is still of primary importance.

Our vocation is also very important to our every-day happiness. It's difficult to live one's life enduring a job that you hate to do every day. We're also advised that all work and no play makes for a boring life, so recreation is important to our well being.

Then, we need to think about helping others. Where are we going as a church? We need to love our neighbor. Where are we going as a community? We should give back some of our time for that work. And, we need to take care of responsibilities. We hear many groups complain constantly about "their rights," but we hear very little about our responsibilities.

There was a lot of yesterday, we don't need today, but some of it - like having the right priorities - is worth hanging on to.

You'd better be careful if you use tipping to try and make a statement. Just such a situation backfired on a woman in Costa Mesa, Cal., who was not pleased with her waiter's performance during lunch. She decided to let her feelings be known with a 1-cent tip. When her credit card bill arrived, the tip was inflated into a whopping $10,000.

The waiter was not sure what happened. When he attempted to enter .01 into the computer, he somehow pushed 010000, which was processed as $10,000. The woman got an apology from the restaurant, along with a gift certificate. She said she would leave cash next time.

Waiters and waitresses, like most people who serve the public, earn their money. Consider some of the dumb questions asked in restaurants:

- At a steakhouse: "Do you sell steak?"
- "What is the little green leafy thing...is it supposed to be there?"
- "Can I get guacamole without avocado?"
- "Which is bigger - the half-pound or quarter-pound burger?"
- "What's the difference between the hamburger and the cheeseburger?"
- "Does your Tomato Tortellini soup have tomatoes in it?"
- "Does the veggie burger come with meat?"
- "Can I substitute banana pudding for a vegetable?"
- "How big is your 12-ounce prime rib?"

Perception: County listens to big guys

County Road 4 will be repaired, thanks to action by the Deaf Smith County Commissioners.

That's good for Barrett-Crofoot, which operates a rather large feedyard on the road and which apparently has been pressing Commissioner Wayne Betzen to do something about it.

Of course, it's well within the authority of the county commissioners to approve spending roughly $45,000 to make repairs to the road.

However, it sure looks a lot like the county commission caving in to the big guys. It looks like Barrett-Crofoot snapped its fingers, and the county commission jumped.

At least that's the perception out here. It's easy to arrive at that perception when you can drive all over Deaf Smith County and find many roads in far worse condition than County Road 4. After all, County Road 4 is paved. I acknowledge there are potholes, but the road is in far better condition than quite a few other county roads that aren't due for any significant repairs.

County residents who've been told the county doesn't have enough money to fix their roads can't help but be irritated to see how fast the county was able to dig up the money to fix a road when one of the big boys is doing the asking.

While I'm on my soapbox: My automobile insurance renewal notice arrived in the mail a couple of days ago, and it managed to get my blood boiling.

Another year, another rate increase.

I realize the company was among those that "reduced" rates a while ago; however, who actually saw a reduction is something that's still unclear to me.

It's amazing how often you read about insurance rate reductions, but when you wade through the fine print, you find out there's no reduction at all, your insurance will cost more than it did the year before.

I guess what they mean by "reduction" is the company can't raise your rates by as much as it would like.

What really irritated me when I saw I was going to have to pay more for auto insurance was the knowledge that being a safe driver over the years meant zilch to the insurance company.

In the 13 years I had that company's insurance, I filed exactly one claim, and that was for a minor fender-bender in which the other guy didn't have any insurance.

You would think that the insurance companies would reward people who don't file claims, but they don't.

When all of the state legislatures passed laws requiring motorists to carry insurance, some opponents of the laws expressed concern that while motorists were being required to carry insurance, there were no provisions requiring insurance companies to hold down their rates.

What happened was to put all the burden on the motorists and guarantee big money to the insurance companies. I think there should have been a provision in the mandatory insurance laws requiring insurance companies to give rebates to those motorists who didn't file any claims.

The same holds true for the health insurance companies. Those of us who don't file claims, or who never exceed the deductibles, should have some rewards.

In the last 23 years, Annette and I have exceeded our deductible just three times. Yet, year after year, the cost of the premiums continue to rise.

Part of the problem with the health care premium costs, I suppose, would be people, like my father, who abuse their insurance (and Medicare).

My father drove a truck for Missouri-Pacific for more than 40 years. During that time he had great health insurance. After retiring, he went on Medicare and still had outstanding coverage through the Railroad Retirement system.

Dad's a "doctor junkie." He loves going to the doctor, and finds every excuse he can to go to the doctor.

For the last 10 years, he's had a standing appointment with his doctor. Every month, month in and month out, there he is in the doctor's office for some kind of checkup. If the medical experts recommend a physical once a year, then as best I can figure, my father is running about 75 years ahead.

I keep thinking that when my dad dies, we taxpayers won't have to worry about bailing out Medicare, it'll become solvent on its own.

Meanwhile, the rest of us face ever-rising insurance premiums because of greedy insurance companies -- and people like my father who abuse the system.

Things generally happen for a reason

You can call it fate, or destiny, happenstance or maybe even just coincidence. Regardless of what it is called, I can't help but feel most things happen for a reason.

For good or bad, tiny incidents which seem to make not the slightest ripple in the pond of life can have far-reaching impacts for those involved.

Consider the young man who stopped to change a tire for two elderly ladies. In the back seat of the lady's car was a rather large, shaggy crossbred puppy.

The young man commented on the dog, changed the tire, and gave the ladies his name when asked.

He thought nothing of the incident until three years later when he received a certified letter from a distant attorney.

The letter named him as a lesser heir of one of the ladies he had changed the tire for. His inheritance was not the dog he had commented on, but one of her pups, Mops - less than a year old and full of the love which exudes from most puppies.

He accepted the dog, but didn't really know what to do with it. His fiancée, Karen, took one look at the friendly brown eyes peeping through

DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE

The Real World

the fringe of strawberry-blonde fur and knew it was love.

The couple married and for two years the couple and their dog lived happily. Then one night the young wife collapsed. For many weeks she was in a coma.

The doctors determined her illness and gave little hope for much of a recovery. When she finally regained consciousness, she was completely blind and partially deaf.

Before long she was in a rehab therapy, but the doctors said her road to recovery was still long. They recommended her for a special dog that could act as her eyes and ears.

The little mongrel they had inherited seemed to have every qualification. Mops was nearly 3 years old, smart and easily trainable. Most of all, she was already a part of the family and well loved.

She was shipped off to special school and before long Karen and Mops were reunited to complete their training.

When they went home, Mops took her responsibilities very seriously. She was always at hand to tell Karen when the phone or doorbell was ringing. And even though the leash was different, walks continued to be high points of Mops' days.

For nearly 10 years, Mops carried on. As she got older, Karen located another little mongrel puppy, Scruff, that would be trained to take Mops' place.

In due course, the puppy went to school and learned her duties. When Scruff came home, Mops was officially retired, but continued on as if nothing had happened.

Mops died in her sleep at the age of 16. Even though Scruff had taken over Mops' duties, Karen was heartbroken, for Mops had been so much more than a substitute for her eyes and ears. She had been a friend and companion and loved member of the family for all those years.

And so the simple act of changing another little mongrel puppy, Scruff, the lives of Mops and Karen and the lives of Karen, her husband and their families.

This story actually happened to a family in Wyoming. They are have their third handicap dog and Scruff is nearly 18.

Karen works with other handicapped people who are facing life-changing therapies and her husband scours local pounds and shelters, looking for lovable mutts which fit the handicap dog criteria.

When I started relating this series of events, I planned for it to take a different direction, but now I'll end it here as a tribute to everyone who ever fell in love with a pair of lovely brown eyes and a shaggy muzzle and especially as a tribute to all those wonderful characters behind the eyes and muzzles.

Not one can ever be replaced, and with fond memories they will forever be remembered.

HEREFORD BRAND

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to inform persons that a new ruling discriminates against persons who are 64 years of age or older and on Medicare.

At President Clinton's insistence, a "section" was attached to the Federal Budget Law passed last August and it became effective Jan. 1, 1998.

This section of the law prohibits doctors who have Medicare patients from accepting private pay for a test or procedure that is not approved by Medicare. If the doctor accepts private pay for such a procedure, then he/she is prevented from having any Medicare patients for two years.

This is a part of the insurance/Medicare package that was presented by the Clintons in 1994 and defeated by Congress. So they have now succeeded in attaching this part to a bill that would be passed.

Perhaps you have seen/heard Mr. Clinton touting his plan to put everyone from age 55 to 64 on Medicare. Since he is already rationing Medicare procedures to those of us 64 and over, he now would like to do the same for every one 55 and over...What next?

How many of you know a doctor who does not see Medicare patients? How many of you want some one in Washington, D.C., who could care less about your health, telling your doctor what procedures he/she can do to save your life? I suppose you will twiddle your thumbs while your parents die because the doctor has his hands tied.

I wonder if Congress excluded themselves and family from being classified under this "section" of the law? Or perhaps they can afford to fly overseas to be treated.

Write to U.S. Rep. Larry Combest and Senators Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison and insist - nay, demand - they sponsor a bill to repeal that section of the Federal Budget Law. Do it today!

Limits backers near lame-duck status

WASHINGTON (AP) - A few junior House members are willingly headed toward lame-duck status and legitimately can wonder now whether three is enough.

They are the term limits hard-liners elected to the House in 1994 after promising to serve no more than three two-year terms.

Congress is an institution that moves at glacial speed. Power, for the most part, falls to those who stay the longest. Committee chairmanships usually are determined by seniority.

"You can always say two more years, two more years, then before you know it, you've been here 40," said Rep. Matt Salmon of Arizona, one of the Republicans elected in 1994 in the political tidal wave that gave the GOP control of the House for the first time in 40 years.

Salmon promised the voters he would only serve three terms.

"I'm coming on my last run," said the 40-year-old congressman.

Asked whether six years was enough time to make a dent in the entrenched system, Salmon replied, "You look at productivity in a variety of ways. To me, success is in the overall policy," and the Republicans elected for the first time in 1994 "had more influence" than most freshmen.

One of the most visible of that group was Rep. George Nethercutt of Washington, who defeated then-House Speaker Thomas Foley.

Like Salmon, Nethercutt told voters he would not serve more than three House terms.

"I meant it (in 1994) when I said six years is enough," he said. But his three years in Congress have shown him that many issues are so complicated that "it is probably not enough."

House Majority Leader Dick Arme, R-Texas, said he has changed his mind about term limits. Six years just isn't enough time, he said, and he considers winning enactment of a flat tax, one of his pet projects, a 10-year battle.

"If you're going to have big projects, you're going to have to have more years," Arme said.

Recalling his earlier support for term limits, Arme said: "I'm back to leaving it up to the voters back in the district."

Now that his party is in the majority in the House, Republican National Chairman Jim Nicholson said: "There is merit to term limits, but term limits in the House probably ought to be a little longer."

Nicholson suggested that four or five terms would be a more realistic limit.

"We ought to continue to be a citizen legislature, people who come here should have a life to return to," he said. "Six years is a pretty short period of time to be here, to have an impact and to have a major responsibility."

The concept of the citizen legislator would seem to allow those committed to serving only three terms in the House to leave elective office. Few are willing to buy that interpretation of term limits.

Three House members who accepted the three-term limit are running for the Senate - Reps. Frank Riggs, R-Calif.; Bob Inglis, R-S.C.; and Linda Smith, R-Wash.

Nethercutt also pondered a Senate run but finally decided against it.

Riggs completes his third House term this year and is seeking the GOP nomination to challenge Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

Aide Beau Phillips said Riggs saw no conflict between a Senate race and his belief in term limits. The choice, Phillips said, was "up or out. He decided to try for up."

Salmon said he has no intention of running for the Senate. Of course, the two current Arizona senators are fellow Republicans.

But Salmon said that trying to move from the House to the Senate would not violate the spirit of term limits.

House members have the advantage of incumbency, he said, but when they opt to try for the Senate they generally have little, if any, edge over their rivals.

"All bets are off," he said. Donald M. Rothberg is chief of the AP's congressional staff.

IMPEACHMENT Minority Democrats to be factor

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans would run the show, but Democrats would be decisive in writing the last act should it come to impeachment proceedings against President Clinton.

A majority isn't enough to undo a president.

Two-thirds of the Senate would have to vote to convict on impeachment, which takes a majority in the House. It could be done on party lines in the House, which wouldn't be politically smart. And it would take Democratic votes in the Senate to force the final step.

Beyond that as a practical, political matter, it would take a consensus against Clinton, in and beyond Congress. At this point, there's no such mood.

And to proceed without one would put the Republicans into uncertain and possibly risky territory during the campaign for the off-year congressional elections.

Clinton is still scoring approval ratings in the two-thirds range, although those polls come with majorities also saying they would turn against him were it proven that he lied and tried to obstruct justice.

WALTER R. MEARS

Washington Today

Polls can plunge, as Richard Nixon's did in Watergate. By early 1973, he had dropped from the kind of numbers Clinton enjoys now to under 30 percent.

The Nixon case is the only modern precedent. And his fate hinged on fellow Republicans, who told him he had to go after disclosure of his own tape-recorded words of Watergate cover-up days after the 1972 break-in.

Until then, he hung on, musing about avoiding conviction and ouster by the Senate even after he knew a House majority would vote to impeach him. But his time was up in 1974 when the Republicans said so, and the minority vote he'd thought might save him in the Senate shrank to a handful of last-line allies.

That was in a Democratic Congress. The House Judiciary Committee voted three articles of impeachment against Nixon, who got only 10 Republican votes and lost them all after the evidence essentially proved the cover-up article.

Republicans began turning against Nixon long before that point in the Watergate case. By the spring of 1974, two Republican senators had said he should resign, a third had forecast that he would, another had suggested that he stand aside temporarily.

Congressional Democrats aren't rallying to defend Clinton in the case of the women and Whitewater, but none has turned openly against him. Instead, they say they'll accept Clinton's denials of the sex and cover-up accusations special prosecutor Kenneth Starr is pursuing, unless there is proof against him.

Watergate unfolded in different circumstances, without the independent counsel law that is Starr's franchise for handling impeachment evidence. The special prosecutor on Nixon's case told the House committee early in 1974 that he would not share his Watergate evidence because it was under grand jury secrecy. That's so in the Starr investigation, too, but the law now instructs him to deliver to the House any evidence of impeachable offenses by the president.

The Republicans have been having their own debate on how to proceed, since House Speaker Newt Gingrich floated the idea of setting up a special committee to handle impeachment instead of assigning it to the Judiciary Committee, the traditional route.

That rankled the chairman, Rep. Henry Hyde of Illinois, who complained that it would be divisive and would risk politicizing the process. Another Republican committee member, Rep. Charles Canady of Florida, was more vehement, protesting publicly that it would be open to attack as a partisan "attempt to stack the deck."

An alternative may be to have a small bipartisan group go first, review the evidence and report to the 35-member Judiciary Committee later. But it all depends on Starr's findings and when he is ready to report them - and he isn't yet saying.

— YOUR EYES —

Puffy Eyes

Waking up with puffy eyes after a fitful night of sleeping is not uncommon. You can also get puffy eyes by crying. But lack of sleep and crying are not the only causes of puffiness. If you're menstruating or you eat salty foods or drink anything -- even water -- less than two hours before you go to bed, you may wake up with puffiness.

If you want to get rid of puffiness before starting your day, apply a cold compress or a cold tea bag wrapped in tissue, for about five minutes. Tea contains tannin, a natural astringent which helps reduce puffiness.

To avoid puffy eyes in the first place, take a good look at your diet. You may be eating too many salty foods. Alcohol can also be a culprit.

Finally, when you got to bed at night, sleep with two or three pillows so your head is raised: That will help keep the fluid from pooling under your eyes.

CYBERHATE

'Net flaps raise issue of free speech, taste

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) - University of Maine sophomore Casey Belanger sat down at the computer in his dorm room and typed a nasty, threatening message to a fellow student he had never met.

Using a slur for homosexuals, he wrote that if he saw the student, "I'm gonna shoot you in the back of the (expletive) head." Inadvertently, he sent the message onto campus computer bulletin boards, including one run by a gay-lesbian group.

A week later, the state attorney general slapped the 19-year-old with a hate crime lawsuit, accusing him of violating the civil rights of homosexuals.

"I don't even know the guy," Belanger said in a telephone interview from the campus in Orono. "I was just mouthing off."

On the Internet and via e-mail, threats and offensive jokes fly through cyberspace between anonymous users, often without repercussions.

But when such expressions appear on college and university computer networks, they can trigger complaints or even criminal investigations. They can also set off a debate pitting First Amendment rights against campus administrators' authority and responsibilities.

"Universities are concerned about libel and slander," said Peter Burke, an attorney in the corporate technology practice group at Powell, Goldstein, Frazer & Murphy, an Atlanta and Washington law firm. "By operating e-mail systems, does the university become responsible for what gets posted there?"

In some cases, Burke said, universities and colleges are walking the tightrope between censorship and free speech.

"Some universities are overreacting. They're treating electronic mail differently than they would treat communications using a pen and paper," said Barry Steinhardt, president of the Electronic Frontier Foundation, a San Francisco-based online civil liberties organization.

Steinhardt said colleges don't appear to care where students send their mail via the U.S. Postal Service, but with e-mail and the Internet there is a trail they can follow.

The University of Maine case is one of many:

- At Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., four freshmen sent a derogatory "joke" about women to their friends through e-mail. The message was sent in 1995 to 20 of the students' friends, who then passed it along to countless Internet e-mail addresses, prompting angry responses from across the country. The four were required to attend rape awareness classes.

- At the University of North Carolina, officials closed an e-mail account belonging to a former student after a racist message from that account was posted on at least 10 Internet news groups. Anyone reading the joke about "why all blacks should go back to Africa" could see that it originated at the university.

- At Virginia Tech, a student was punished for posting a note on the World Wide Web page of a gay organization that suggested gay men be castrated and killed.

- At Bates College in Lewiston, Maine, a student used the computer network to type an obscenity-laced message saying she hated white people. Bates officials called the message "offensive and divisive."

The college's Hate Crimes and Bias Committee said the incident alerted it to other student postings - "sexist, racist, homophobic" - and condemned them all as "inappropriate in any context."

Offensive or not, many would argue such postings are free speech, especially on campus, where ideas are continuously debated, Burke said.

"Do we have people deciding what ideas are good or bad?" he said. "Don't say that, it might offend somebody." "We'd rather you speak good ideas so everyone is happy."

David Merkwitz, a spokesman for the American Council on Education, a Washington-based trade association for 1,800 colleges and universities, said incidents on campus are forcing more and more educators to reassess e-mail and computer use policies.

McConaughey likes covers

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) - Matthew McConaughey likes it just fine on the covers of magazines.

"I actually like walking past a newsstand and seeing my face on the cover of a magazine," he said in the Orange County Register. "Those covers are a measuring stick in this town, and I frankly think it's pretty cool to have my face right there on the cover for the whole month."

McConaughey's latest movie is "The Newton Boys," about a family of Texas bank robbers.

Treatment for Stiff Neck

If you're suffering from a stiff neck, don't wait for it to take care of itself when treatment is available to correct it.

Of all the bones in the spinal column, none are more easily injured or more vulnerable than the seven vertebrae in the neck. None are moved more often. We are constantly turning our heads to look at people and things.

Neck stiffness can have many causes, from sudden and violent accidents to such simple activities as painting a ceiling or just sitting reading a book for a long time. But there's nothing more simple about the pain.

A careful examination will reveal the source of the pain and how best to treat it. Any misaligned vertebrae in the spinal column should be properly adjusted so there will be no abnormal pressure on your nervous system. Treatment may also include exercises for the cervical muscles such as gently rotating your head in all directions. This can help restore muscle strength and tone.

CELINE DION

OTTAWA (AP) - As if wearing the "Titanic" necklace wasn't enough, Celine Dion has a new honor.

The Quebec native will be made an officer in the Order of Canada, Gov. Gen. Romeo LeBlanc said Thursday.

The honor goes to those who exemplify "the highest qualities of citizenship" by making contributions that "enrich the lives of their contemporaries," he said. She will receive the insignia May 1.

The bejeweled Dion sang "My Heart Will Go On" at the Oscars on Monday.

EARL SPENCER

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) - Earl Spencer called land mines an "obscenity" on Thursday and said he will carry on the crusade of his sister, the late Princess Diana, against them.

Spencer's visit to Cambodia, one of the world's most heavily mined countries, follows a wish of Diana's that he journey here with her to make a documentary.

Spencer spoke at the graduation of students who learn to fit artificial limbs. About 300 people are killed or maimed by mines each month in Cambodia.

He said he cared little about mines until Diana "forced me, and many others, to face up to the obscenity that land mines represent."

Diana died last August in a Paris car crash.

GARTH BROOKS WARREN G.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - The battle of the "Gs" is over.

Country star Garth Brooks and rapper Warren G. said Wednesday they're dropping trademark infringement lawsuits against each other over use of the letter in their logos.

Warren G. uses a fattened "G" with "funk music" written inside. Brooks' logo is an unadorned "g" in a circle.

MATT DAMON BEN AFFLECK

FRANKLIN PARK, Pa. (AP) - Fresh from their Oscar win, Matt Damon and Ben Affleck begin shooting a movie about angels on April 1.

The "Good Will Hunting" screenwriting partners play grounded angels trying to get back to heaven in "Bearclaw," directed by Kevin Smith.

The movie will be shot partly in this Pittsburgh suburb.

LEONARDO DICAPRIO

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The July issue of Playgirl magazine may or may not have something special for Leonardo DiCaprio fans. He's working to make sure it doesn't.

DiCaprio, 23, sued Playgirl to prevent it from publishing nude photographs of him. The lawsuit, filed in Los Angeles County Superior Court, claims Playgirl officials have refused to allow DiCaprio to view the pictures or reveal their source.

The suit seeks unspecified damages for invasion of privacy and emotional distress.

CAROL BURNETT

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - Carol Burnett has some advice for aspiring actors: Be yourself.

"Don't try and fill my shoes," she said. "I remember once, I was working with Lucille Ball on her show and this young girl came up to her and said, 'I want to be the second Lucille Ball.' Lucille just looked at her and said, 'Honey, why? Then you'll always be second.'"

Burnett, who lives in Santa Fe, is volunteering as an acting coach for a College of Santa Fe production of "Once Upon a Mattress."

She set the cast at ease with a story about her first encounter with her idol, Jimmy Stewart, in 1958 while he was filming "FBI Story."

"He said, 'Well, well, it's, it's very nice to meet you,'" Burnett said, imitating Stewart. "I could see his lips moving, and I knew he was saying something, but my head is going, 'Dum, dum, dum.' and I couldn't hear anything."

"I told him I knew he wanted to go to lunch, so I turned around and stepped off this platform and stepped right into a bucket of whitewash. I never looked back. I just kept right on walking, dragging this bucket along with me, pretending I did it on purpose."

CARL SAGAN ESTATE

NEW YORK (AP) - Random House sued astronomer Carl Sagan's estate and widow for the return of more than $1.2 million in advances-plus interest - for books he never completed.

Sagan, who died Dec. 20, 1996, at age 62 from a bone marrow disease, was a Cornell University professor whose writings and television shows helped make the heavens a little less mysterious to the public.

Random House said in papers filed in Manhattan's State Supreme Court that the publisher and the Pulitzer Prize-winning star gazer agreed on a $4 million, four-book contract on April 12, 1983.

The first commercially produced antibiotic was tyrothricin, created by Rene Jules Debos in 1939 from soil bacteria.

MIND OVER MATTER

Weishaar looks to improve her 'mental game'

By BOB VARMETTE
Sports Writer

Holly Weishaar is a good tennis player. She's got the strokes, and she readily admits her serve is the strongest aspect of her game. The Hereford High School senior has already won two girls singles titles this year and is gunning for a third at the Beef Capital of the World Tennis Invitational that concludes Saturday.

But... "My mind wanders and I don't focus on every shot," Weishaar said as she tapped the floor pensively with a blue ball-point pen. "I have no clue (what I'm thinking about). I lose a couple of points and I get down on myself."

The problem especially manifests itself in the first set for Weishaar. In Friday's play, she dropped the first sets in both her matches, then came back to beat her opponents convincingly in

Scores soar at blustery Pitman

By BOB VARMETTE
Sports Writer

Oh, yes. That gentle West Texas Spring breeze.

It sure does make March golfing in the Panhandle fun. Well, at least interesting.

The wind picked up Friday during the first round of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Golf Invitational, and the scores went with it at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

"It was windy," Hereford head coach Stacey Bixler said after being buffeted by winds of 30 to 40 miles per hour most of the day. "That's the main quote... It was miserable. We needed to play it on another day, but you can't do that in West Texas."

But what's bad for some is good for others. The Hereford girls again proved to be wind players, shooting a team first-day score of 367, good enough for second place, but 25 shots behind Pampa.

"A lot of times, because of their shot trajectories," Bixler said, "the wind doesn't affect the girls' shots as much. That's not to say the boys can't learn to play in the wind, but the girls often hit it lower."

Shelbie Allison led three Lady Harvesters in the chase for medalist honors, shooting a 78. Melissa Gindorf shot an 82 and Alison Piersall carded an 87, along with Hereford's Amy Killingsworth Friday.

Keshia Witt of Muleshoe was in third place with an 85 Friday, and Sarah Valdez of Amarillo River Road was a shot back in fourth place with an 86.

The Lady Whitefaces' Lindsay Ward and Jacque Bezner each shot an 88 for a share of seventh place after the first round.

Bezner is playing her first competitive golf since returning to the team following an illness.

"She played real steady," Dixler said. "We got her in a cart instead of having her walk. That helped. She was real happy to get back to playing."

Not happy were the boys varsity players. In fact, Hereford's "A" team was tied for sixth after the first day with Canyon Randall and the Hereford "B" team. Each squad shot a 351.

"The varsity kids, none of them had a good day," Bixler said. "The team score's going to reflect that."

Bixler said having his "B" team play as well as his "A" team wasn't exactly what he expected.

"I think you're always a little bit surprised when the "B" team shoots as low as your "A," Bixler said. "The wind equalizes the scores a bit."

Pampa shot 325 as a team for the lead after the first round. Borger was seven strokes back at 332.

Cory Mahaney of Tulia leads the hunt for the individual crown, shooting a 75.

The tournament was scheduled to conclude Saturday.

UT fiasco gives lesson in parental interference

They are the parents from Hell. You know who they are. You've seen them, maybe you're one of them.

At Little League games, they're screaming obscenities at coaches, umpires, opposing players, even their own kids.

By the time their kids are in junior high school, they want to know why their little darling is getting enough PT. By the time their kids are in high school, they're telling coaches what plays need to be run so their little darling pads his or her stats enough to get a full ride to college.

But that's where it stops, right? Wrong. College is no longer immune, if

The Toy Department

By Bob Varmette

it ever was, from the interference of over-zealous parents.

It would be almost impossible to have not heard something of the on-going saga at the University of Texas.

Luke Axtell, the freshman basketball player who needs to get a haircut, has decided he no longer wants to play for coach Tom Penders. There's nothing terribly unusual in that. Players decide to transfer all the time.

This was precipitated by Penders suspending Axtell for academic reasons. It seems Axtell had decided he didn't need to go to classes or meet with his tutors, which, judging by his grades, he really needs to do.

We know this now because someone allegedly violated federal law by releasing Axtell's academic progress report to an Austin radio station. Axtell's parents went ballistic.

Surprise, surprise, they're considering legal action. And we've also heard allegations from Axtell and several other unhappy players that Penders verbally abuses his players, and isn't properly developing his players to the level they think they should be at.

The Associated Press reported Wednesday that a source in Austin says Penders is gone, one way or another. According to another source in Austin, it's less about Axtell's suspension and the subsequent release of his poor grades to the media than it is about Axtell's parents, and other parents, being unhappy about the team's remarkably poor season.

A team that has gone to the NCAA tournament eight of Penders' 10 years at UT was unceremoniously bounced from the Big 12 tournament in the first round. A day after the Longhorns' ouster from the Big 12 tourney, Axtell and three other players, including 7-0 freshman phenom Chris Mihm, went to UT athletic director DeLoss Dodds' house to whine for an hour.

So these four players, reported to also include Gabe Muoneke and Bernard Smith, not only went over the head of Penders, they went behind his back.

Here's why.

My source further informed me that Axtell's and Mihm's parents are apparently behind this whole soap opera. Axtell and Mihm were teammates at Austin Westlake

High School before heading downtown to UT.

If you know anything about Austin geography, this whole farce becomes a lot clearer. The Westlake attendance zone is primarily upper-middle class whites -- the soccer moms and dads, if you will.

Risking generalization, kids of these suburban socialites spoil their kids rotten. They expect Penders to do the same thing. That includes not having to play for a team whose coach leads his team to a losing season when they were picked by most media to finish fourth in the Big 12 and make the NCAA tournament.

Baseball a Hays' family tradition

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK -- When Valley City State agreed to play Texas Tech and Lubbock Christian back-to-back earlier this month, the little North Dakota baseball team received more than a couple of resounding beatings.

It got a taste of family tradition. Larry Hays' Red Raiders applied a 23-2 whipping to Valley City, playing its first game of the year. A bit later on the same Tech field, LCU polished off a 19-3 victory led by coach Daren Hays, Larry's son.

When it comes to college baseball in Lubbock, you're either playing for a Hays or you're not playing.

"I kind of grew up in the baseball world in a Hays environment," said Tech pitcher Steve Watkins, who played summer ball under Justin Hays; high school under Shanon Hays; his first collegiate year under Daren; and now for Larry, father of the three. "I kind of got a dose of what kind of baseball they want."

The Hays formula is simple: play aggressive offense, fundamental defense, throw strikes and -- most of all -- win.

Larry Hays racked up most of his 1,100-plus wins at Lubbock Christian, where he restarted the program in 1971 and coached until 1986. His Chaps won an NAIA championship in 1983 and always ranked among the elite in small-school baseball.

"It was the only job I ever wanted. I did it a long time and never intended to leave," said Hays, 53, who moved down the road to Tech in 1987 to jump-start a program that had long lived in LCU's shadow. "The Tech job was a challenge I seemed to be ready for. I feel lucky I got to do both."

Daren Hays played at LCU for one season before his father took over the Raiders. He remained a Chap, however, and anchored their lineup under coach Jimmy Shankle, Larry Hays' longtime assistant.

A twofold Hays coaching dynasty was never the plan. Larry Hays said he was surprised when Shankle, who had local ties and many years of service at LCU, departed for Texas-San Antonio after the 1991 season. Daren Hays, who played two seasons in the Texas Rangers' system and spent a brief stint assisting his father at Tech, was ready to take the reins.

"When I first went to Lubbock Christian, I was a business major," said Daren Hays, who at 32 is already closing in on 300 victories in seven seasons. "But I grew up at the ballpark. It's where I enjoy being. I couldn't see myself wearing a tie and wouldn't be any good at it anyway, so I guess it's a natural deal for me."

What wasn't natural was a Hays-Hays rivalry. Daren beat Larry 8-3 during his first season; dad returned the favor 8-2 in 1993.

"Grandma couldn't take it any more, so we haven't played since then," Daren Hays said. "It's hard to feel good about winning when you know ... it hurts them a lot worse (for NCAA postseason consideration) if they lose than if we get beat, and I sure don't want to get beat."

"It's not a good situation for anybody when we play each other."

That's not to say there's no interaction. For instance, Valley City originally had been scheduled to play only at LCU. When rain swamped the Chaps' field, father and son struck a deal: Larry allowed Daren to play on his turf, while Daren jiggled his schedule to let Tech face Valley City.

"LCU has helped us host (NCAA) regionals in the past," the elder Hays said. "This time, Tech needed a game and LCU's field was wet. We just kind of made a trade."

Watkins and Brandon Toro, a former Raider playing out his eligibility at LCU, say that while the Hayses share coaching philosophies, their personalities are worlds apart.

"Daren's a lot more fiery," Watkins said. "Larry's more laid back. A lot of the stuff, he doesn't get real riled up about it."

The Hayses are deeply rooted in the Church of Christ, a prominent denomination in the Lubbock area and the foundation of LCU. Shanon Hays, who coached Watkins at Lubbock Christian High School, now

Justin Hays, freshly married and teaching living skills at a private prison in nearby Brownfield, is the only Hays not currently devoted to coaching.

Janzen, Ozaki lead Players

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) -- No lead pack ever developed at The Players Championship. No one solved the hard and fast Stadium Course well enough to separate from the field.

And while it would be wrong to say that anyone could win going into Saturday's third round, there were enough big names in contention to make the race for the $720,000 first prize -- the largest on the PGA Tour -- very interesting.

Lee Janzen, who hasn't won on the PGA Tour in nearly three years, and Joe Ozaki, who's never won in the United States, shared the lead at 7-under-par 137 after Friday's second round.

But three dozen players were within a half-dozen strokes of the lead, including Tom Kite, Fred Couples, John Daly, Ernie Els, Tom Lehman and Nick Price -- all major championship winners.

"I think everybody is starting from scratch," Els said. "I think anybody who can get to double figure (under par) can win this golf tournament. And if the wind blows, I don't think you even need to get to double figures to win."

Tiger Woods, who sprayed his driver, was erratic with the putter and hit the water on the island-green 17th hole, shot a 73 and was at 145, eight strokes back.

Janzen, the 1995 winner, shot a 67 on Friday at the Stadium Course. Playing the back nine first, he ran off three consecutive birdies beginning on No. 15 then made nine straight pars before making a birdie on the final hole to complete a bogey-free round.

Penders says he knows who's out to get him

AUSTIN (AP) -- University of Texas basketball coach Tom Penders told a Dallas television station Friday he believes someone is trying to get him fired and he knows who it is.

In an interview with KDFW-TV, Penders blamed the current controversy swirling around his program on a man with unknown motives.

"Somebody's behind this. There's somebody talking to these kids, somebody orchestrating this," Penders said in an interview in his hotel room in San Antonio, where he is attending Final Four games. "I know who this person is, and I hope, in the end, this person will be exposed."

The University of Texas is investigating the release of a basketball player's academic progress report. The release of Luke Axtell's grades occurred after Penders suspended Axtell for academic reasons on March 17, and the freshman guard responded by accusing the coach of verbal abuse, lying and retaliation. Since then, sources have told The Associated Press that Penders is out as coach.

Asked if he thought someone was after his job, Penders said: "I don't think, I know. There is a person, and I'm not even going to say he's affiliated with the university, who is spending time in the dormitories, and he's hanging around the kids and this is something that will come out eventually. I don't want to say names."

Penders said he "absolutely" expects to be back next season.

The university has pushed into next week the findings of its investigation into the release of the academic records.

The official conducting the school's investigation said Friday it is nearly over but a report isn't likely until at least Monday.

Patricia Ohlendorf, vice provost and counsel to the UT president, said earlier in the week that she had hoped Friday would be the day to release the findings.

Commish search slowly drags on

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer
It's become an annual spring staple, just like the "NL Preview" or "Career Milestones."

It's "The Commissioner Search," which began in September 1992 and shows no sign of concluding.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig still says he doesn't want the job. Many teams still want him to take it.

"I truly believe this process is moving to a conclusion," said Colorado Rockies owner Jerry McMorris, head of the search committee.

It's not really a committee, though. The search is being conducted by McMorris, Selig and an outside firm, Heidrick and Struggles. Within baseball, only Selig and McMorris know the names of individuals who have been interviewed.

Not even the rest of the executive council has been told.

"That's the next step," McMorris said. "Those individuals have not yet given permission to have their names disclosed."

Selig, the Milwaukee Brewers owner, has been in charge since owners forced Fay Vincent to resign in September 1992. A search committee recommended Arnold Weber, then the Northwestern University president, and Harvey Schiller, then with the U.S. Olympic Committee, in January 1994, but owners refused to fill the job and stuck with Selig.

This time, McMorris said it will be different. He thinks a decision can be made by the June owners meeting in Seattle. Then again, when McMorris was picked as search committee head in January 1997, he said he thought the process would be complete by the World Series.

Paul Beeston, the former president of the Toronto Blue Jays, became baseball's president and chief operating officer last July under the assumption Selig would remain in power.

Despite McMorris' assurances, it would be a surprise if the Selig-Beeston team is broken up soon. If Selig does step down, NL president Len Coleman and Beeston are thought to be the leading candidates to replace him.

Weishaar

the final two sets of each match. Hereford head coach Ed Coplen said Weishaar brings a good game to the court, including that strong serve, but she does have a problem in the early stages of matches sometimes.

"She's got good control of her serve," he said. "She can hit really hard. But she needs to improve on preparing herself mentally starting the match. As a tennis player, you've got to be mentally prepared to go out and play every match."

"In tennis, it's becoming almost more important than talent. So many tennis players these days play mental games. You've got to be and stay focused. Holly just doesn't get mentally focused sometimes."

Weishaar dropped her first set of the day to Nicole Holguin of Fort Stockton, but then took the next two sets, 6-3, 6-2.

Her second-round match was even more telling. Jordan Hardin of Snyder beat Weishaar 6-3 in the first set, but Weishaar routed the Lady Tiger 6-0, 6-1 in the second and third sets.

"If you're just messing around out there, like I was doing, not thinking... my mind just wanders," Weishaar said. "I think it's that whenever I think the competition isn't as good I find it hard to concentrate on that first set."

Weishaar said she notices when she's having trouble in the early stages of a match it's often because she's playing her opponent's game, rather than her game, which is more aggressive.

"I start playing kind of like them, and not like myself," she said. "If they dink a lot, if they push the ball, I'll push with them. And I have to stop doing that."

"Sometimes the first set, I'm just real slow at getting started, at getting into the match, especially if it's a morning match. I don't even wake up till the second set, usually."

But when she does, she isn't playing, pardon the pun, around anymore. She's all business.

"That's what I do, actually," Weishaar said. "I'm just like, 'OK, no more, none of that. I just start playing.'"

It's fundamentally mental, Weishaar said.

"You have to have the strokes," she said. "(But) a person with good strokes can, if they lose their mental game, they can lose, easily.

"If my strokes are good, my mental game's better. I think it's a combination..."

The cure for a lack of mental readiness? Weishaar isn't sure if there is a cure for this problem that affects every athlete at one time or another, but she has a remedy she uses. Judging by her play, it might be something.

"I just talk to myself," Weishaar said. "Whatever I'm doing on the court, I just talk to myself. If I mess up, I just talk to myself, tell myself what I need to do."

Weishaar grew up playing tennis. She said it was so long ago, she doesn't even remember the first time she had a racket in her hand.

She got encouragement from her parents, Ron and Jan Weishaar, both of whom play. And it didn't hurt that her grandparents -- Ed and Millie Barrett -- have an enclosed tennis court. She calls it the "Tennis Barn."

"I lived next door to her," Coplen said. "I've known her forever. She's been playing tennis as long as I can remember."

Tennis camps and lessons were regular items on her schedule growing up, Weishaar said.

It paid off. Weishaar has won a letter in tennis each year in high school for the Lady Whitefaces and started on the varsity tennis team when she was a freshman.

Weishaar has some goals she wants to accomplish before she graduates and heads off to Southern Methodist University, where she doesn't plan to play tennis.

"My goals are regionals and state," Weishaar said. "That's pretty much the reason I enjoy playing, but most of the reason is just to get better."

Toward that end, Weishaar wants to work on those slow starts, and staying focused during matches. She already knows what she's good at.

"My serve. It's strong," Weishaar said. "It's like my power stroke. I used to work on it a whole lot."

In fact, Weishaar worked on it so much last year, she injured herself -- a stress fracture in her right arm.

She said she doesn't practice so much on her serve anymore.

"I think I've got it down," Weishaar said.

Now, about that mental game.

Weishaar looking for another title

By BOB VARMETTE Sports Writer

Holly Weishaar remained alive in the quest for an individual title after the first day of the Beef Capital of the World Tennis Invitational.

She was the only Hereford single or doubles team that was still alive in the winners bracket.

"Holly's still undefeated," Hereford head coach Ed Coplen said. "Everyone else has been beaten, but that's the caliber of play in this tournament. It's like a mini-regional tournament."

Weishaar beat Nicole Holguin of Fort Stockton in her first-round match, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. She advanced in the winners bracket with a second-round 3-6, 6-0, 6-1 victory over Jordan Hardin of Snyder.

Starting out slow isn't something Weishaar likes to do, but isn't unusual she said.

"Sometimes, I'm just not mentally focused," Weishaar said. "My mind wanders and I don't focus on every shot."

"She needs to improve on properly starting the match," Coplen said. "A lot of that is just as a tennis player being prepared to go out and play."

Weishaar was scheduled to meet Stephanie Lechner of Dumas in the semi-final round Saturday morning.

Leann Bivens was the only other Hereford girl competing in singles. She lost her first-round match to Natalie Alexander of Snyder.

Bivens rebounded to win her second-round consolation bracket match, but fell in the consolation semifinals to Alynn Marquez of Fort Stockton, 4-6, 6-2, 7-6.

In girls doubles, Diana Detten and Amanda Kriegshauser won their first-round match, but fell in the second round. The Lady Whitefaces' other doubles team of Brynne Bryant and Lisa Riley lost in the first round, but bounced back to win their second-round consolation match.

On the boys side, Hereford's Andrew Carr was a surprise second-round victim. Carr easily handled Justin Joyner of Perryton 6-1, 6-1 in the first round, but got stopped by P.J. Haney of Fort Stockton in the second round, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

The Whitefaces other singles player, Brett Berend won his first two matches Friday. Berend then lost in the third round, 7-6, 6-0 to Trent Broach of Midland Lee.

In boys doubles, Hereford split their first-round matches.

Orlando routs Rockets

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) -- Derek Strong scored 20 points and Horace Grant had 19 as the Orlando Magic beat the Houston Rockets 100-75 Friday night to give coach Chuck Daly his 600th career victory.

The triumph gave the Magic a sweep of the two-game season series for the fourth straight season, although Houston dominated the most meaningful games between the team during that stretch by winning four straight over Orlando in the 1995 NBA Finals.

With Nick Anderson sidelined for the third time in four games because of a strained left hamstring, Orlando got balanced scoring from Grant, Strong, Derek Harper and Bo Outlaw, who each had 13 points.

Daly is the 15th coach in NBA history to win 600 regular-season games, and the victory enabled the Magic to get back on track in their three-way race with Washington and New Jersey for the eighth playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Jazz strum Mavs, 99-90

DALLAS (AP) -- Karl Malone had 33 points and 14 rebounds as the Utah Jazz stretched their winning streak to four games and remained the league's hottest team with a 99-90 victory over the Dallas Mavericks on Friday night.

Jeff Hornacek scored 18 points and John Stockton added 12 for the Jazz, who have won 22 of their last 24 games and remained tied in the loss column with Chicago.

A total of nine technical fouls were called, five on Dallas, including a double-technical on Mavericks coach Don Nelson that earned him a fourth-quarter ejection.

Utah completed a five-game season sweep of the Mavericks. Michael Finley and Hubert Davis had 24 points each for Dallas, which had won four of five before Friday.

The Jazz didn't score over the first 4:36 of the final quarter and the Mavericks narrowed the deficit to 80-73 with 6:09 left.

It also includes having little Luke and little Chris being "developed" as players to the level this group of parents deem appropriate.

What these players and parents are trying to do, essentially, is usurp the authority of Penders. And all this is happening at a Division I school.

In Little League, junior high, and even high school, such parental interference is, at the least, often tolerated by coaches, and for the most part understood. But that's not college.

And that doesn't mean parents have free license to badger coaches, players and officials at those levels.

I think it's great that parents get involved with what their kids are doing. I think it's great that they volunteer to help and go to games.

But at some point, parents have to leave the coaching to the coaches. Haranguing coaches for not playing little Johnny or little Janey enough only embarrasses their kids and creates tension with the coaches.

It embarrasses the parents, too.

As a sports writer, I've faced my share of irate parents wondering why I leave little Johnny's or little Janey's name out of the story when they hit a meaningless home run in the last inning of a rout, but have to use their name when their kids strikes out with the bases loaded in a two-run game.

My standard answer is, "When you go to college, take all the classes that I took, and get a job as a sports writer, you can include or leave out your child's name as you see fit. I don't tell you how to do your job, please don't tell me how to do mine."

Penders would be well-advised to say the same thing to the parents of those unhappy players.

REVIEW: 'Newton Boys' enjoyable tale

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
"I rob banks, that's what I do." This is Willis Newton's reply to his lady love's persistent questions about where he gets the money to be a big spender.

He is joined in the bank-robbing enterprise by his three brothers, Joe, Jess and Dock, and an explosives expert named Brentwood Glasscock. Together they relieve heartland banks of their assets during the early 1920s.

These lighthearted bandits actually lived, and their saga is told in "The Newton Boys," a movie in the tradition of "Jesse James" (the Tyrone Power-Henry Fonda version) and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." While it doesn't achieve the classic status of those two, the film is an enjoyable series of capers, enhanced by a young and talented cast. Willis (Matthew McConaughey) returns to his Texas home after a stretch in the penitentiary. Neither he nor his brothers Joe (Skeet Ulrich) and Jess (Ethan Hawke) banker for a life of picking cotton. The same goes for Dock (Vincent D'Onofrio), also released from the pen.

Their future is decided when they encounter the wily Glasscock (Dwight Yoakam), who can measure nitroglycerin with the skill of a hotel bartender. A friendly banker supplies the gang with a list of banks possessing square, easy-to-blow safes.

The intricately planned heists proceed flawlessly, almost baffling local and federal lawmen. Along the way, Willis falls in love with Louise Brown (Julianne Margulies). He rationalizes his profession to her by saying that he and his brothers don't kill anyone and don't hurt the depositors nor the banks, which are compensated by insurance firms.

The Newtons' plans are foiled as banks install round, impregnable safes. So Willis devises his most ambitious plan: robbing a train carrying millions. That proves to be the gang's undoing.

Richard Linklater collaborated on the script with Clark Lee Walker and Claude Stanush, basing it on the latter's book. Linklater directs with careful attention to relationships and to authenticity of the period. The tone is set in the opening credits, designed like those of a silent movie.

McConaughey, whose career has not quite caught fire, does his best work as the canny mastermind. Other standouts: Ethan Hawke, the erratic young brother; Vincent D'Onofrio, the gang's strongman; country singer Dwight Yoakam, the munitions expert.

The filmmakers stress that the events in "The Newton Boys" actually happened. Lengthy titles explain the later years of the principal figures (the brothers lived to old age).

The 20th Century Fox release was produced by Anne Walker-McBay. Rated PG-13 for mild profanity, lawlessness, gunfights. Running time: 122 minutes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G - General audiences. All ages admitted.

PG - Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

PG-13 - Special parental guidance strongly suggested for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

R - Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

Noami Judd praises doctor who aided her

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Naomi Judd on Friday sang the praises of the doctor she credits with curing her liver disease.

Ms. Judd shows no signs of the hepatitis C virus that forced her to break up her singing duo with daughter Wynonna, Dr. Bruce R. Bacon said.

"This is my new duet partner," Ms. Judd, 52, said as she hugged Bacon at a news conference at Saint Louis University Hospital.

In 1990, Ms. Judd was diagnosed with the disease that she believed she contracted years earlier while working as a nurse. She was told she would probably die within three years. Bacon gave Ms. Judd the drug interferon and she took it for a year, ending last May.

The doctor cautioned that she won't be considered cured until years of tests show no signs of hepatitis.

Ms. Judd said she hasn't decided whether to resume her singing career. She is in demand as a motivational speaker and plans to release a series of motivational tapes in May.

"Now, I feel joy," she said. "I'm aware every minute of the day how blessed I am."

HRMC honors physicians on 'Doctor's Day' Monday

On March 30, 1842, famous Georgia physician Crawford W. Long first used ether as an anesthetic agent in a surgical operation, providing mankind with freedom from pain and suffering during surgery.

To honor that achievement and the services performed by all medical doctors, March 30 has been designated for the past several years as "Doctor's Day."

"The professionalism, integrity and hard work of physicians provide the cornerstone for medical services in our community," George Parsley, interim administrator at Hereford Regional Medical Center, noted Saturday.

"Physicians have the expertise to help us maintain our good health and to cure our illnesses, but they are also the key members of a major industry in Hereford," said Parsley. He emphasized that none of the services that provide health care - the hospital, pharmacies, home health agencies, nursing homes - could operate without physicians.

"The doctor is the director of all health care services the patient receives. Especially in this time of uncertainty and uproar about health care reform, it is important for us to remember what a vital role the physician plays in our good health."

Hereford and the area is served by both a core staff of resident physicians and dentists, and several visiting specialists. The community is served by 22 physicians, representing several specialties, including family practice, surgery, cardiology, pediatrics, pulmonology, pathology, obstetrics/gynecology, podiatry and internal medicine.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Parents are their child's first teachers and the home is the child's first school. One of the most important things parents can do to help their children succeed in school is to read to them early and often." -- Barbara Bush
Kim Hofferichter and I represented HJH and HISD at the Barbara Bush Family Literacy meeting in Amarillo on Wednesday. Barbara Bush, former first lady, was the keynote speaker.

Red Team members have met the HJH goal of $67,000 of Homeland receipts. The contest ends on April 11 and the team hopes to add at least $20,000 more to their total. Thanks to all parents and students who have helped the team to achieve this goal. Team teachers are very proud of their team members!

Mr. Joe Saucedo from the employment commission visited the EPS classes to discuss with them interview preparation. Included in this discussion was appropriate appearance and attitude for job interviews. He critiqued their clothing as they discussed appearances. We appreciate Saucedo's yearly visit with the class.

A law passed by the state legislature in 1983 requires that all students be screened for spinal deformities by the sixth and eighth grades. Early detection of abnormal spinal curvature can prevent serious health problems. This problem may begin during the early adolescent year, from 10 to 14, with an estimated one in 10 adolescents having some degree of abnormal curvature. Problems that are detected early may only require periodic observation by a specialist. Moderate curves may require the wearing of a brace, which is usually supervised by an orthopedic specialist. In most cases, the need for major surgery for this deformity can be eliminated through early detection.

Students will be screened for two types of spinal deformities, scoliosis and kyphosis. Scoliosis is a condition in which the spine is twisted, causing misalignment of the upper body or lower back. This condition can worsen and lead to much pain, as well as complications of the heart and lungs. Kyphosis is an exaggerated rounding of the spine. Again, progression of these two conditions can often be arrested by early detection.

Spinal screening for eighth graders has been scheduled to begin the first week of April. (Parents and grandparents, now you know why your parents made you stand against the wall "so you would grow straight and not have problems when you're older.")

"Reading is one of my greatest joys and I learned to love to read at home, as my children and grandchildren have. I could wish nothing better for you and your family." -- Barbara Bush

Many Thanks

I wanted to take this opportunity to extend my sincere thanks to Mr. James Owens and the home health nurses from Baptist/St. Anthonys who all went beyond the call of duty recently, braving a muddy and almost impassable dirt road five straight days in cold inclement weather, to provide me with needed nursing care. The concern each of you showed toward me will not be forgotten for a long time.

During the deployment, their unit participated in Operation Southern Watch in the Arabian Gulf, enforcing U.N. sanctions levied against Iraq after the Gulf War in 1991. The MEU also participated in Exercise Eager Mace, an amphibious, ground, air and naval training exercise with Kuwaiti armed forces demonstrating U.S. resolve and commitment to the region.

Ramirez and Ortiz visited liberty ports, including Australia, Bahrain, Guam, India, Indonesia, Singapore, Thailand and the United Arab Emirates. While in port, the Marines participated in several community relations projects and enjoyed the diversity the cultures represented.

MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, an aircraft squadron, a support group and a command element. With the combination of these teams, Ramirez and Ortiz's unit supplies and sustains itself for either quick mission accomplishment or clearing the way for follow-on forces.

Ramirez, son of Benigno and Aurora Ramirez, graduated from Hereford High School in 1994 and joined the Marine Corps in June of that year.

Ortiz is a 1995 graduate of HHS. The son of Benito and Ernestina Ortiz joined the Marine Corps in July 1995.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent/FCS

Despite differences in cuisines, dining habits and health practices, the concept of balance and moderation exists as a general dietary guideline throughout many cultures.

In China, the concept of "yin" and "yang" encourages the balance of foods classified as "yin" - items that are typically raw, soothing, cooked at low temperatures, white or light green in color -- with those classified as "yang" - most high-calorie foods, foods, cooked in high heat, spicy or red-orange in color.

Some foods, such as boiled rice, are believed to be neutral and therefore are considered staple foods. The Chinese are advised to keep a balance of these two opposing forces and avoid the extreme of both.

Aspects of the "yin-yang" diet theory are also found in many other Asian cultures. A similar system of balance focused on a "hot" and "cold" classification of foods is practiced in the Middle East and in parts of Latin America.

In Mexico and other Latin American countries, foods are characterized as "hot" and "cold", independent of their temperature of physical properties and used therapeutically to restore the "natural balance" of the body.

"Cold" foods include most vegetables, tropical fruits, and dairy products. Foods that are considered "hot" are meats, most grains, garlic, chili peppers, oils and alcohol.

In the United States, current dietary recommendations embrace similar principles to achieve balanced nutrition. The Food Guide Pyramid is the framework that balances the types and amounts of foods that contribute to a healthful eating style.

"Regardless of one's cultural background, moderation and balance are key to a healthful eating plan," Polly Fitz, Registered Dietitian, ADA president said. "This means balancing out a variety of food selections over the course of a few days and eating moderate amounts of many different types of foods."

Portion control is another important tool for achieving good nutrition. In addition to using the Food Guide Pyramid to figure out the types and serving sizes of food one should eat, Fitz recommends American use the following images as a guide to keep portion size in check:

- *One ounce of meat - match box
- *Three ounces of meat - a deck of cards or a bar of soap
- *Eight ounces of meat - a thin paperback book
- *A medium apple or orange - a tennis ball
- *A medium potato - a computer mouse
- *One cup of lettuce - four green leaves
- *A slice of bread - a cassette tape
- *An average size bagel - a hockey puck
- *One ounce of cheese - four dice
- *One cup of fruit - a baseball.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This is a question I'll bet you've never been asked before. Can animals get drunk? There is no one else I can ask without raising some suspicion.

Our terrier, "Prince," was staggering around the house last night, bumping into things and acting very strangely. After a while, he fell asleep in the kitchen but not in his usual place. It was like he passed out. The snoring was so loud, I was afraid it would disturb our upstairs neighbors.

I could not figure out what caused this peculiar behavior until I checked Prince's water bowl. Sure enough, the water had been spiked with a generous amount of bourbon. I immediately asked my husband, "Who could have done such a cruel thing?" He replied, "I did. It was a scientific experiment. I wanted to see if booze affects animals the same way it affects people."

Ann, I wouldn't feel comfortable talking to our vet about this, but I really need to know -- how harmful is it? It would not surprise me one bit if my husband did it again. He got such a kick out of it. Many thanks for your help. -- Married to an Oddball in Ohio

Dear Ohio: Alcohol affects animals the same way it affects humans. Prince was intoxicated. Getting an animal drunk is not amusing. It is abuse. If this were reported to the humane society, Prince could be taken away. Please make this clear to your husband. The man has either a screw loose or a serious mean streak. Either way, he bears watching.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son, "Elliot," and his wife, "Jane," have been married for many years. We have always had a close and loving relationship. In order to visit them, which we enjoy immensely, we must drive quite a distance. No matter how long we are at their home, usually through lunch or dinner, they never offer us anything to eat.

We have frequently taken Elliot and Jane to a restaurant or brought fast food to eat while we are visiting. However, on the few occasions that we failed to do this, they did not offer us so much as a glass of water. We don't expect a big meal, Ann. Just a sandwich or a small salad would be appreciated. Whenever they visit in our home, we treat them very well and give them three meals a day or offer breakfast, lunch or dinner at a restaurant.

I am becoming increasingly baffled by this and am beginning to dread our visits because of it. Elliot and Jane are very considerate of us in every other way, and I am at a loss to understand the reason for this peculiar and ungracious behavior.

How can we let them know how much this bothers us without hurting their feelings or damaging the relationship? -- Wisconsin

Dear Wisconsin: It has probably never occurred to Elliot and Jane to offer you something to eat on arrival because they assume you have stopped for something en route.

Next time, before you head their way, I suggest that you make a phone call and ask, "Will you have a snack for us when we arrive, or should we stop at a restaurant before coming over?"

As always, the best way to deal with a dilemma of this kind is straight talk. I am sure it will be greatly appreciated.

Gem of the Day (Credit Marlene Dietrich): The average man is far more interested in a woman who is interested in him than he is in a woman who has beautiful legs.

Cutting Back on Sugar
Cutting sugar from your diet is easier than you think.

Here are some tips on how to eat less sugar. Everyone knows that too much sugar is bad for your health and figure.

But you don't have to give up your favorite dessert to reduce the overall sugar in your diet. It's easy if you know what you're eating.

First -- read the labels and choose sugar-free products. Make it a habit not to buy sweets, and never use cookies or candy as a reward.

Always purchase unsweetened cereal and add fruits, raisins or cinnamon for flavor.

And when you're thirsty, try a low-sugar drink.

Most important, set a limit -- like 100 to 150 "sweet calories" a day. You don't have to give up your favorite dessert. Just save it for special occasions!

The Successful Family

By MATILDA BOOZER-MED, EC SEC, CSAE, LPC, NCC, A. PSYC. Children-Our Most Valuable Natural Resource

Most Texans underestimate the number of children who suffer from abuse and neglect in our state. Yet a recent survey commissioned by the Children's Trust Fund reports that one in four Texans have witnessed the abuse or neglect of a child.

More than 50,000 Texas children are confirmed victims of abuse and neglect each year. This number does not include the many unreported incidents of child abuse and neglect.

The impact of this tragedy on children and the state of Texas demands our utmost attention. Abused and neglected children are more likely to suffer from learning disabilities and chronic health problems, to drop out of school, participate in delinquent activity, and become drop out teenage parents.

Child abuse and neglect increases the need for costly care systems including child welfare, foster care, criminal justice, special education and health care. When our children suffer, WE ALL SUFFER.

Prevention comes from an awareness of the existence and consequences of the problem, knowledge that abuse and neglect of our children can be prevented, and understanding of what an individual can do to make a difference.

Social attitudes and practices that tolerate and even promote violence toward children will change only when public and private sector prevention policies are established and prevention programs are in place.

Today most parents have many fears for their children. To help prevent abuse, parents must turn that fear into action, and the needed action is communication. Parents must begin talking when children are very young and continue the discussions through adolescence.

Talking to a child about abuse, particularly sexual abuse, is a frightening proposition for many parents. Moms and dads are worried that they will frighten their children, corrupt their innocence and trust, and actually harm them, instead of helping children cope.

While this fear is understandable it does not have to be true. There are a number of ways parents can talk to children, even very young children, that will help them feel safer and more confident rather than fearful and distrusting.

A future in which children grow to responsible and productive adulthood free of threats to their physical safety and emotional well-being is the goal of the DRESS YOUR FAMILY FOR SUCCESS program. This is a family program where everyone, every age may participate.

The family will work together on communication skills, negotiation skills, anger management, and coping skills.

The program is every Thursday evening from 6-9 p.m. at San Jose Community Center. For more information on the program contact Tilli Boozer at 364-4357. Walk-ins are welcome. Child care is available. Teens encouraged and celebrated.

When money circulates, it acts as the lifeblood nourishing our local economy. For example, when you deposit your paycheck at a bank, it flows out in the form of a loan.

But to whom? And where? To us, these are very important questions because the dollar you deposit at Hereford State Bank is loaned to a person or business right here in the area. Not to someone halfway across the country.

That loan could be the seed money for a business that employs the person — who buys the vacant house on your street — which boosts the value of your house and makes your street safer.

FORT TICONDEROGA, THE UNIQUE FORT By Laura Rebecca Fry

Fort Ticonderoga was an important fort in the early history of the American colonies. As the mighty gate of this great fort, I witnessed the construction of the fort by the French when it was originally named Fort Carillon to the capture of the fort by the British and then the Americans. I was the protective gate of the fort and I saw all the activities of many people. Fort Ticonderoga, or as it was commonly called Fort Ti, was not a typical fort, but an effective and significant fort in the American Revolutionary War.

The British built a fort on the south end of Lake George which caused the French to build a fort on the north end of the lake. Located in New York where Lake George and Lake Champlain meet at the Canadian border, Fort Ti sat upon a strategic place for controlling the waterways in war and peace.

Built from plans by the gifted French military architect, Marshall Sebastian Vauban, the fort was named Fort Carillon. It was named Carillon, which in French means bells or chimes, by the builder Sieur de Lotbiniere because of the musical rapids of the stream that fell nearby.

The fort, built in 1755, stood on high ground. The protective walls of the star-shaped fort were made from earth, timber, and stone. My gate doors were not far from the water's edge.

Outside the fort's walls were the support buildings such as the storage buildings, bake ovens, a blacksmith shop, brick kiln, and brewery. Near the tip of the peninsula was the hospital.

To the north and south were wharves for docking and unloading supplies. On the Le Chute River sawmills cut lumber for the buildings. Inside the walls there were barracks where drills were performed by the soldiers.

Four protected buildings inside the fort stored all the usual needs of life during an attack. The northeast building was a bakery where the ovens were so huge that bread could be baked for an entire army.

The southeast building held the gun powder and an ice storage room. The southwest building was secure and could act as a prison if needed. The water storage or cistern, located in the northwest building, still serves its original purpose to this day.

As the main gate of Fort Ti, I witnessed many important battles, including the first major battle in 1758. This battle took place when the French army of 3,100 men led by Marquis de Montcalm defended themselves from the invasion of 14,000 English men led by Major General James Abercrombie in one of the bloodiest encounters of the colonial wars.

The following year, British General Jeffrey Amherst forced the French to surrender the fort and the French were never able to recapture it.

The fort became the property of the British with the signing of the peace treaty in 1763. In May 1775, at the beginning of the Revolutionary War, Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys with Benedict Arnold captured Fort Ti from the British.

At dawn, the Americans stormed the fort, surprising the sleeping British troops. In this battle the British cannons and mortar were captured. The cannons were taken back to Boston. This was very important because these cannons were a major part in forcing the British to leave Boston that summer.

As the gate, I monitored the events of the fort that was an essential and important part of the Revolutionary War.

Fort Ticonderoga, built by the French, captured by the British, and finally held by the Americans was a key to the victory by the Patriots.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Every spring we are invaded by crickets. Not only do they cause damage to woolen clothing, they also keep us up at night. What can we use to rid ourselves of these pests, either permanently or at least to discourage them from returning? — Richard B. (Internet, no city or state)

You're right, they are annoying and they damage things like book-bindings as well as silk, woolen and cotton materials.

Most crickets lay eggs in the soil and then come springtime they hatch, but there is something you can do about them.

Commercial bait used to kill crickets and other insects is available at your local nursery. It can be sprinkled around the house, the crickets eat it and they die. Be sure to read the directions carefully, especially if you have small children or pets, to make sure the product is safe.

Dear Heloise: This hint is helpful when hanging wallpaper border by yourself.

I was bordering an 8-foot-high room. I soaked the border like it said to do, climbed the ladder and started in the corner of the room. I smoothed it out with a damp sponge. Then I realized I had to climb down to move the ladder. Not knowing that the wallpaper wouldn't stay, it came down the wall and onto me! I was frantic!

I found some pushpins to help hold the paper at the top in the corner. I smoothed it out again, about a foot or so, and used another pin toward the top to hold it in place. Gently, I let the paper hang down while I climbed down to move the ladder. I repeated this process until I had it up. Then I went back and took out the pins.

Hope this idea can help someone else. — Rena Kamp, Logansport, Ind.

Oscar's Winners: Words of Wisdom XX

From the time he was a young seaman in World War II, Oscar Self has enjoyed his hobby of collecting words of wisdom. He began writing down wise sayings, tidbits of humor and thoughtful quotes while he was aboard the USS Charleston in the summer of 1943. He has added to his collection - which numbers several thousand entries - steadily over the past 55 years.

Oscar is a retired school teacher and counselor, and a friend of mine from church. He recently invited me over to view the collection. I found some real gems of wisdom that Saturday afternoon. Read on and I think you'll see why I call them "Oscar's Winners."

A 55 year collection

- It is all right to be content with what you have, but never with what you are.
- When you take responsibility on your shoulders, there isn't much room left for chips.
- A rumor is about as hard to unspeak as butter.
- Some people fail because they never begin. More people fail because they never finish.
- The man who thinks he knows it all merely stopped thinking.
- Worry is like a rocking chair; it will give you something to do, but it won't get you anywhere.
- You can't tell me worry doesn't do any good because most of the things I worry about never happen.
- Those who worry pull tomorrow's clouds over today's sunshine.
- To you that talk the talk, this proverb will appeal "The steam that blows the whistle will never turn the wheel."
- Character is right thinking becoming a habit.
- There is always room at the top - just under a man's hat.
- Man has two ends; a thinking end and a sitting end. His success depends on which he uses most; heads he wins, tails he loses.
- Man has twelve billion brain cells, just to give you an idea of the unemployment situation.
- When a person is temperamental, it is usually 80 percent temper and about 20 percent mental.

- Too many people are like blisters - they show up after the work is done.
- There are two kinds of people who never amount to much; those who cannot do as they are told and those who can do nothing else.
- In any kind of argument, the best weapon to hold is your tongue.
- Early to bed, early to rise - 'til you make enough cash to do otherwise.
- It's hard to climb the ladder of success with your hands in your pockets.
- It does a man no good to sit up and take notice if he keeps on sitting.

Some thoughts on politics

- The political promises of today are the taxes of tomorrow.
- We need thinking by the people - not for the people.
- No man becomes a conservative until he has something to lose.
- It isn't what you earn, it's what you don't spend.
- He who gets his palm greased is liable to lose his grip.
- Bad officials are elected by good citizens who don't vote.
- You get out of life what you put into it - minus taxes.
- Democracy is the art of disciplining oneself so that one need not be disciplined by others.
- Good government is no substitute for self-government.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

Do you have a great collection of something? It really doesn't matter whether it's matchbook covers, doorknobs or precious gems. And, don't think that no one will be interested in it. You'd be surprised what people are interested in. Just go to a flea market or hang out at the library and watch what people check out.

If you are interested in something, surely you are not the only one on the planet. Who knows? Your collection might be the inspiration for someone else to collect some unusual item, or even something ordinary.

If you are unaware, we like to display collections and art work at the library to spotlight local talent and promote cultural awareness. It's really great fun, and attracts lots of attention from library patrons.

We would love to display your collection or artwork. All you need to do is call 364-1206 and ask for Sue. Or, you may know someone who has a collection, a craft, or works of art that should be shared with the world (or at least Deaf Smith County). Call us.

Remember when you were in school and you had to read great works of literature and find great symbolism and deep meaning on every page? Then you had to make sure you had it all in your head so that you could pass that test. Made you really enjoy the book and want to read more, didn't it? Well, not really. Now that you are not in school anymore, have you thought about going back to some of those older books and actually enjoying them this time?

High school students from Community Christian School have been in lately looking for some of the classic books to fulfill a book report assignment. Most of the books on their list are familiar to me, but I have realized how few of them I have actually read. My son asked me about Ivanhoe. I told him that it was about an Indian. Wrong! It's a knights and castles thing. How embarrassing! What's the book about the Indian? I know there is one!

When you have read all of the current popular fiction, or you are just tired of the formula plot, take a look at the classics. Without the pressure of grades and classroom discussions you can be free to unearth the complex symbolism and levels of meaning in these classics, as well as rediscover the pleasure of reading. Oh, don't forget that wonderful musty smell of old books.

There will never be a romance to equal Jane Eyre in my estimation. Well, having said all of that, let's look at what is new and available at the library this week.

In Anna Quindlen's Black and Blue, Fran Benedetto tells us the story of how, at 19, she fell in love with Bobby Benedetto, how their marriage became a nightmare, they she stayed, and what happened the night she left with her 10-year-old son. She went to Florida, changed her name, and started a new life.

Living in fear, but gradually gaining in confidence, freedom, and hope, Fran unravels the complex threads of family, identity, and desire that shape a woman's life. She almost believes that she has escaped the past, and that Bobby Benedetto will not find her.

Terrell McCaleb, in Blood Work by Michael Connelly, has retired from the FBI, is recovering from a heart transplant, and has no other goal than to finish restoring the fishing boat that is now his home in Los Angeles Harbor. Of course, the former head of serial killing investigations cannot remain retired when he is confronted with the unsolved murder of Graciela Rivers' sister.

Details of the crime force him to look at it from a radically unsettling point of view. Terry is on the trail of a killer whose crimes are more baffling and horrifying than anything he has ever encountered. It is a mind-bending case that takes Terry into the darkest place he's ever known, unsure whether he even wants to survive his own investigation.

Other new fiction includes:

Murder in the Map Room by Elliot Roosevelt

Someplace to Be Flying by Charles deLint

A Child's Night Dream by Oliver Stone

Thrill! by Jackie Collins

Kissing the Beehive by Jonathan Carroll

The X-Files: Antibodies by Kevin J. Anderson

Just in case you don't have an elementary-age child in your home, we have The World's All Time Best Collection of Good Clean Jokes by Bob Phillips. It's just full of those one or two liners that your kids love to pull on you. Example: Question: Why do elephants have wrinkles? Answer: Have you ever tried to iron one?

OK, they're a little corny, but guaranteed safe for all audiences, and arranged alphabetically by subject from Above Average to Zoo. If you do have a kid at your house, you might want to get this book to help you keep up their brand of wit.

You Got to Dance with Them What Brung You: Politics in the Clinton Years is a shoot-from-the-hip commentary and collection of hilarious anecdotes by the outspoken and irreverent Molly Ivins. She covers politics from her native Texas to the Oval Office, exposing the ludicrous and hypocritical at all levels of public life.

New nonfiction also includes: Substantial Evidence: A Whistle-Blowers True Tale of Corruption, Death and Justice by Bill Hubbard.

The New Doll's House Do-It-Yourself Book by Venus and martin Dodge.

Old Ways of Working Wood by Alex W. Bealer.

The History Highway: A Guide to Internet Resources by Dennis A. Trinkle.

Bluebonnet School students Brandon Gresham, Marcos Escamilla, Becca Gallardo and John Cardenas earned first place medals.

Thomas Langford and Zack Ambold, West Central School students, earned first place trophies. Matthew Collier, Hereford Junior High student, earned a first place trophy.

Farm & Ranch

Farmers fund eradication plan with proposed bonds

HOUSTON (AP) - Some Texas cotton farmers who lack cash to participate in the statewide boll weevil eradication program are proposing a bond sale to fund it. Investors who buy the proposed low-interest, state-backed "boll weevil bonds" would be paid back through crop assessments charged to farmers, the Texas Journal of the Wall Street Journal reported Wednesday.

The idea was drawn up by farmer Don Parrish, who is among those wanting to join the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation program but unable to afford it. Banks, spooked by massive losses from defaults on weevil loans in 1996, are nervous about lending the estimated $320 million needed to wage an all-out war against the cotton-eating pest. "It's going to be really tough" for farmers to obtain loans, says Mike Wright, senior vice president of the American Bank of Commerce in Wolforth, near Lubbock. Lubbock-- area growers voted down the program last year, many citing the high cost per acre. Farmers in the Abilene and San Angelo areas are paying for eradication in their area, however. Lindy Patton, executive director of the foundation, says it will take some "creative financing" to underwrite spraying for weevils around Lubbock, the nation's top cotton producing area. Under the bond proposal, the Legislature would authorize either the eradication foundation or a corporate entity set up by farmers and managed by a local bank to issue state-backed bonds. The issues would likely have a term of eight or 10 years. Investors would get their money back in lump-sum payments at the end of the term, plus interest of about 3 percent. Parrish acknowledges that it isn't exactly "the biggest interest rate" compared to more attractive investments, but farmers are hoping that merchants who rely on the cotton industry directly or indirectly will invest as a way to help themselves. "Everyone realizes we have to do something," said Chris Snodgrass, co-owner of B.E. Implement Inc., a John Deere dealership in Lubbock. "Most of the merchants around here would support it. Our incomes depend on it." Besides bonds, there are other money-raising ideas under discussion. Some farmers support a special tax on cotton stored in area warehouses; others want the Legislature to appropriate emergency aid money. Last week, state Sen. Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock, went to Washington to lobby for federal aid. But Parrish, whose cotton farm is near Plains, thinks bonds are the best bet. "The whole economy up here is based on cotton," he says. "A lot of car dealers up here know where their money comes from, so I think they'd be happy to help us out."

Chicken feed changes eggs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - It isn't just chicken feed. Louisiana State University says a recently patented additive is something to squawk about: Hens that eat it lay eggs with nearly one-third less cholesterol and saturated fat than your average egg, and 40 percent more protein.

Not only that, the eggs are bigger. There are more of them. They taste fresh longer. And the hens eat less.

It is not the first designer egg. Several others are already on the market, each with its own individual health claim.

Many experts now believe that most healthy people can eat an egg or two a day, as long as their cholesterol levels are OK and heart disease doesn't run in their families. Some nutrition experts, however, recommend only four eggs a week, and on that scale, the LSU reduction in fat and cholesterol would be enough to add only about one egg a week.

"At least these researchers are tackling the right problem," said Bonnie Liebman, director of nutrition for the Center for Science in the Public Interest. She said any major cut in a yolk's cholesterol is a step forward.

Eggland's Best, which feeds its hens a vegetarian diet, agreed to a $100,000 fine last year to settle claims that it advertised its eggs as lower in cholesterol after it had agreed not to do so.

Eggstasy, marketed by Century Acres Eggs of Port Washington, Wis., is advertised as the first reduced-fat egg. EggsPlus, from Pilgrims Pride in Dallas, boasts extra omega-3 and omega-6 fatty acids - compounds that may cut the risk of heart disease - from a diet boosted with flax seed and fish oil. Omega Eggs, developed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, are laid by hens fed 15 percent flax seed to boost omega-3 fatty acids. The eggs also are more than 25 percent lower in saturated fats and 17 percent lower in total fats. This, in turn, increases the protein concentration in the yolk, which Meier said keeps the eggs tasting fresh longer.

"Just from a nutritional standpoint, those would appear to be wonderful changes," said Olivia Wood, an associate professor of nutrition at Purdue University and director of its dietetic program.

Agreement replaces import fee U.S. apples head to Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. apple exporters will resume shipments to their largest market, Mexico, under an agreement that replaces a huge Mexican import fee with a fixed minimum price for U.S. apples.

Mexico agreed to drop the 101 percent tariff that doubled the price of apples and effectively shut down U.S. trade there. In return, U.S. exporters will stick to a minimum price that will make Mexican-grown apples more competitive, an industry spokesman said Friday.

"The good news is this agreement immediately restores our access to our industry's No. 1 export market," said Kraig Naasz, vice president of the Northwest Horticultural Council, based in Yakima, Wash.

"The bad news is it precludes our ability to offer Mexico's consumers the full range of products we produce and potentially provides our competitors around the world with an opportunity to undercut our prices," Naasz said in a telephone interview from a flight out of Mexico City.

U.S. exporters sold an estimated $100 million worth of apples in Mexico last year. Washington state makes up 95 percent of that market. Oregon and Idaho also are licensed to export apples to Mexico.

The five-year agreement requires a minimum price of $13.72 per 42-pound carton of apples exported to Mexico, Naasz said.

That represents the average price of U.S. apples sold there over the past three years. About half were priced below that, and those smaller, lower-grade apples likely will still be kept out of Mexico, Naasz said.

Mexican Embassy spokesman Jose Antonio Zabalgoitia called the agreement "a compromise solution that suits the interests both of the U.S. apple exporters and of Mexican home growers."

Mexico launched an anti-dumping investigation last March and levied the 101 percent fee on U.S. apples Sept. 1.

"Hopefully this settlement will allow the industry to recoup some of the devastating losses incurred because of Mexico's protectionist behavior," said Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash.

Rep. Doc Hastings, R-Wash., who represents the Yakima Valley where many of the apples are grown, said, "I guess some access is better than no access, but frankly I think our growers deserve better."

Naasz said the U.S. industry proved no dumping had occurred, but feared Mexico was likely to maintain a prohibitively high tariff without some U.S. concessions.

He said the appeals process under the North American Free Trade Agreement would have taken at least a year.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Real Estate

The House of the Week

Briggsdale has slender profile, roomy interior

By Associated Designs

The compact Briggsdale has a narrow footprint. Only 47 feet wide, this home fits comfortably on a narrow lot. Inside, it's bright, spacious and packed with contemporary amenities. This single-level plan is equally well-suited to the needs of young families and empty nesters.

Family room and kitchen flow together, creating what will surely be the most popular room in the house. Light washes in through large sliders that also provide patio access for outdoor dining. When skies are gray you can enjoy the warmth and flames of the fireplace no matter where you stand or sit.

Cabinets wrap around three sides of a kitchen that's outfitted with a dishwasher as well as a built-in range and oven. A long pantry provides convenient food storage.

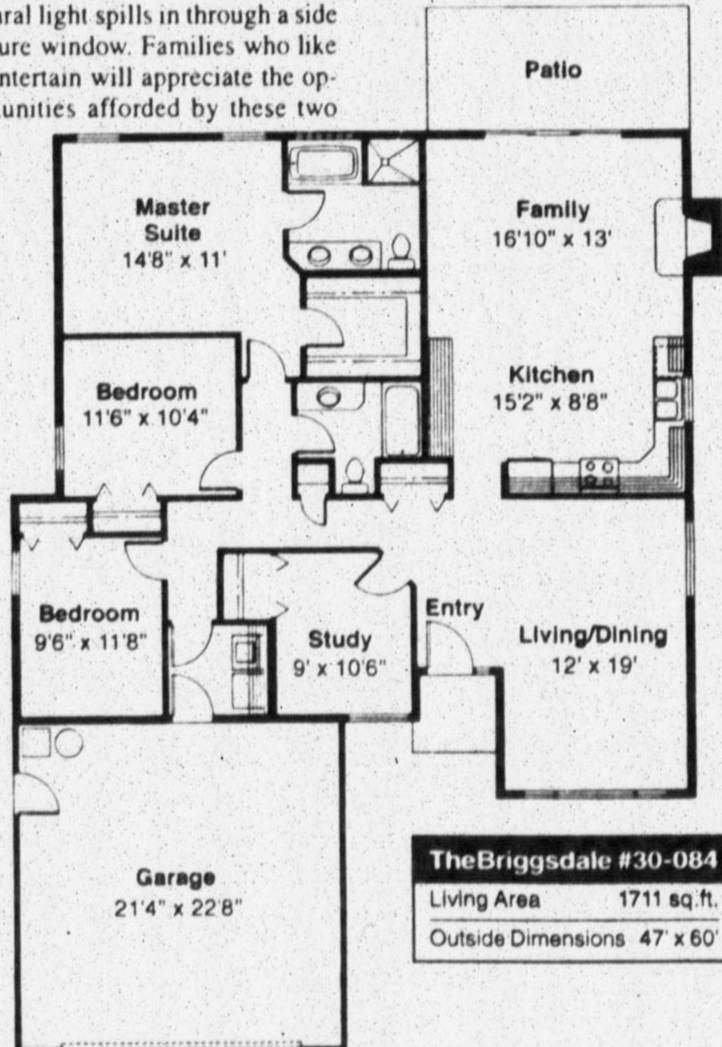

The combination living/dining room is every bit as bright as the family room. Multipaned windows fill most of the front wall, and more natural light spills in through a side picture window. Families who like to entertain will appreciate the opportunities afforded by these two large open areas. Kids can congregate in the family room, allowing adults the luxury of quiet conversation in the living room.

Features in the master suite include a large walk-in closet, and a private bathroom with double vanity, separate tub and shower. Parents of young children will like having their bedroom within easy earshot of the secondary bedrooms. The other two bedrooms share the main bathroom.

Utilities nestle in a pass-through space that connects the interior to the Briggsdale's garage.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, Ore. 97402. Please specify the Briggsdale 30-084 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring over 250 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

Mother and son battle bottle in No Laughing Matter

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

A teen-ager fights to save his alcoholic mother from her life-threatening condition even as his own dreams collapse around him in No Laughing Matter, an original USA Network movie premiering Wednesday, April 1.

Suzanne Somers, who has written eloquently about her own early years in an alcoholic household, stars as Emma, whose dependence on alcohol has steadily increased since her policeman husband was killed in the line of duty several years before.

Her son, 17-year-old Charlie (newcomer Chad Christ), has raised himself, running the house and covering up his mother's drinking. Now, as he seems headed for Yale Law School, he learns that his girlfriend, Lauren (Selma Blair), is pregnant.

As his own life veers into confusion, Charlie confronts his mother and forces her to quit drinking, cold turkey. He stays by her through her harrowing withdrawal, but her newfound sobriety taps the deep well-spring of resentment Charlie has built up over the years.

The teleplay by Ted Kristian and Michael Elias is a little uneven — certainly the teen pregnancy aspect of the story covers familiar ground — but the scenes involving Emma's alcoholism and its effects on Charlie have a real sting, and both Somers and Christ rise to the challenge.

The actors say this TV movie presents the issue of alcoholism in a new light.

"Normally, (TV movies are) focused on the alcoholic," Somers explains. "This time, we're focused on the relationship between the child and the mother, and her desire to be a good mother."

"Chad and I had a really incredible experience together, (exploring) how much shame is involved," she says. "I think people watching this movie ... will see (maybe for the first time) how painful it is to live as a child of this disease."

Christ adds that he felt a strong personal identification with his character as well.

"I don't think I really need to go into it too much, but my father had a lot of problems," he says. "He was a Vietnam vet. ... But I've always loved my father, and I never, in a sense, held (his problems) against him. There was never a wall there (blocking) my love for him."

"That's something else that was different about this movie. Charlie didn't shut off, he didn't stray away from his mother, but he continued to push, and continued to give love, and continued to endure in the relationship."

Portions of No Laughing Matter are not easy to watch, especially the extended sequence depicting Emma's weekend of withdrawal hell. The very graphic nature of this scene points out two minor areas of "cheating" in which the movie indulges.

We see Emma drinking on a near-lethal level — a concerned friend calls Charlie at one point and asks him to check his mother's breathing while she is passed out — yet Somers for the most part looks fit and trim. No bloating here!

Her hangovers manifest themselves as simply very bad headaches, although it seems hard to believe Emma would have any motor skills at all after some of the binges we witness.

In fact, it seems hard to believe Emma would not have wound up in the hospital after going off alcohol completely. But these are mainly technical issues. In other respects, No Laughing Matter is a sobering TV drama that deserves to be taken seriously.

Suzanne Somers explores a subject painfully close to home when she stars as a mother whose debilitating reliance on alcohol takes a terrible toll on her relationship with her son. No Laughing Matter airs Wednesday on USA.

★ ★ March 29-April 4 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Don't take things so literally early in the week, Aries, or you'll misunderstand what many people are saying to you. Just relax, and look at the bright side of things. An old friend turns to you in a time of need. Don't leave him or her stranded. Virgo plays a key role on Thursday.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
You face several obstacles this week. Every time you get close to finishing something, someone throws you a curveball. Keep your temper in check, and try to make the best of what you've got. A loved one says some harsh words to you at the end of the week. While it makes you angry, listen to what he or she is saying.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
You're on the go early in the week, Gemini. Not only do you have a lot of things to do for yourself, but several others need your help. Set your priorities and do what you can. Don't take that special someone for granted. He or she is always there for you and needs to hear you say thank you.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Don't let everyone know what you're thinking, Cancer. There is a lot going on with a business project, and you don't see eye to eye with the others involved. However, you don't want to create any problems. Just explain your position rationally; they are sure to understand your point of view. Leo plays a key role.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Pay close attention to what is going on around you this week. Business associates try to pull a fast one. Don't let them get away with it. A family member asks for your opinion. Be honest — even though he or she might not want to hear what you have to say. It needs to be said, and no one else is going to do it.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Be selective when it comes to revealing your true feelings, Virgo. Everyone is not on your side. Telling the wrong thing to the wrong person can get you in a lot of trouble. That special someone shows up at your door unexpectedly late in the week. Be warm and welcoming, because he or she really needs you.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Don't let discord among friends put you in a bad mood early in the week, Libra. Try to help them understand each other, but don't get too involved. You can't always be the peacemaker. A family gathering brings you and your loved ones closer together. Enjoy it. Sagittarius plays an important role.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
You need to stay focused on the task at hand, Scorpio. You have several important things to get done this week, and no one can help you with them. Don't let family affairs distract you. You meet an interesting person during the weekend. Be yourself, and you're sure to make a good impression.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Don't regret past mistakes. Wipe the slate clean and move on from here. No one is perfect. You just have to learn from your mistakes and work toward a better future. You run into an old friend late in the week. Don't let those old feelings take control. Leave the past behind you.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
You've got a stubborn streak in you, Capricorn, and you really show it during the middle of the week. However, don't shut other people out. Listen to what they have to say. You'll find that they actually are agreeing with you. A loved one asks a favor of you. Do the best that you can to help him or her.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Be practical this week. Don't let your grand ideas take control of your life. There is only so much that you can do — don't forget that. That special someone takes you out for a romantic evening late in the week. Enjoy yourself, and tell him or her how you feel. Cancer plays a key role on Tuesday.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
You always are willing to help others, but you have to help yourself this week, Pisces. You have a lot on your plate. It's time to do what you need to do, instead of what others want you to do. Don't worry; they will understand. A close friend has a surprise for you late in the week.

HIGHLIGHTS

Bill Moyers delves into his own painful family experience to present Moyers on Addiction: Close to Home, a miniseries airing Sunday through Tuesday on PBS (check local listings).

Addiction is Close to Home for Moyers family

"I don't think journalists should become the story, or use television to tell their stories," says TV journalist Bill Moyers. Yet there is no denying personal experience provided valuable insight into the topic of his most recent series. Ten years after Moyers and his wife, producer Judith Davidson Moyers, discovered their son had a drug problem, they share what they have learned in Moyers on Addiction: Close to Home, a miniseries airing Sunday, March 29, through Tuesday, March 31, on PBS (check local listings). Defining addiction to alcohol or illegal drugs as "a chronic, relapsing disease," Moyers notes that "something like 88 million Americans either are chemically addicted or live in a relationship with someone who is." He also points out that most drug abusers are white, and 70 percent are employed. "The impact of addiction on the American corporation is huge," Judith Moyers says. Yet the general public is poorly educated on preventive measures, such as knowing family history and risk factors. "There are many paths to addiction," Bill Moyers says. "Each life is a particular life." As a result, Close to Home focuses on individuals, with each segment addressing a different aspect of addiction. The first hour puts a face on the disease with firsthand accounts of how addiction begins, builds and, if caught, is arrested. The next installment shows how high-tech medicine is used to study the disease's effects on the brain, giving hope of new treatment. The remaining segments of the miniseries look at leading treatment programs for adult addicts and the too-rare intervention plans that minister to at-risk minors, and examine how changes in public policy can improve prevention and treatment. Full of lively, pertinent and occasionally technical information, the series is tempered by the Moyerses' empathy for their distressed subjects. Close to Home is a report from the battlefield by veterans of a war that continues to claim new victims every day.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Please help me remember the name of a horror film from a few years back that co-starred Amanda Barse from Married ... With Children. I am a big fan of hers and would like to try to find it on video. And what happened to her TV show? --Fred Setting, Novato, Calif.

A: Barse and another former Fox comedy star, William Ragsdale of Herman's Head, teamed up with vampire hunter Roddy McDowall to vanquish a bloodsucking Chris Sarandon in Fright Night, a title you should be able to find in almost any video store.

Married ... With Children ended its TV run of more than 10 years at the end of last season.

Q: Did Kathy Griffin (Suddenly Susan) ever make a guest appearance on NewsRadio, or is my memory playing tricks on me? --Angel via e-mail.

A: Apparently the latter. Griffin's list of credits mentions no such appearance, nor does the lengthy list of guest stars on NewsRadio include her name.

Such an appearance might be a little uncomfortable since some people view Griffin's Susan character as a pale rip-off of Vicki Lewis' character on NewsRadio, a far more sophisticated sitcom on all counts.

Q: I recently saw the movie Eddie and the Cruisers and am wondering whatever happened to the leading man, Michael Pare. Wasn't he in a television series at one time? --Debbie Johnston via e-mail.

A: Pare, now 38, has been in two TV series: The Greatest American Hero and Houston Knights.

While he rarely enjoys the high-profile film work he got back when he made Eddie and the Cruisers in 1983, he has made more than 30 movies since then, including Streets of Fire,

Amanda Barse

The Philadelphia Experiment, a 1989 Eddie sequel, the remake of Village of the Damned and the werewolf movie Bad Moon.

Among his films coming out in 1998 is Hope Floats, a romantic comedy from Forest Whitaker, in which Pare co-stars with Sandra Bullock, Gena Rowlands and Harry Connick Jr.

Q: Were Paula Abdul and Emilio Estevez really married? If so, for how long? --Diana McKeag and Nicole Oglivie, Largo, Fla.

A: The two married in April 1992. They divorced in May 1994.

Q: Is the man playing Mr. Elliot on USA High the same actor who played the yuppie neighbor in National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation? --Dan Bateman via e-mail.

A: Yes, Nicholas Guest of USA High also played Todd Chester in that Vacation movie.

By the way, Nicholas is Christopher Guest's (This Is Spinal Tap, Waiting for Guffman) brother.

Frantz's career hitting new highs

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Life is full of surprises for Adrienne Frantz, who portrays the slightly wicked Amber on The Bold and the Beautiful.

She recently took home the award for best female vocalist at the 1997 Los Angeles Music Awards after giving out a demo tape at a party.

Frantz, who writes her own music, says she was shocked when she discovered she was nominated. She was even more surprised when she won.

"Can you imagine winning an award like that with just a demo tape? It was an amazing feeling," she says.

There are similarities between Frantz's experiences and Amber's career on B&B, although producer Bradley Bell had no idea Frantz could sing until he read about her in a magazine.

"He called me into his office and asked me to sing for him," Frantz says.

"I did it, and he seemed to like it. The next thing I knew I was singing on the show."

Frantz's music is an eclectic blend of sounds. "I was heavily influenced by the music of the '60s," she says. "If I go to buy a CD, it's usually something like the Doors or Janis Joplin. And that music is a big part of my sound."

Frantz has been busy recently taping a song for Meg Ryan's upcoming film, City of Angels. It was another one of those things that just happened.

"My friend, who's producing the soundtrack, just called out of the blue," she explains.

The actress-singer is certain she can pursue her career as a singer and keep her day job on B&B. "I think if I hit it big and begin touring with my music, that Amber will just have to go on tour, too," she says.

Frantz has played characters on the move before. She began her soap opera career on Sunset Beach playing Tiffany, a troubled young runaway.

"There was a lot of confusion. ... It wasn't always a happy place," she says diplomatically. "Working on The Bold and the Beautiful is a whole different world. It's corny, but it really is like a family."

Supplement to The Hereford Brand

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels, HSCA Executive Director

When I got home from church Sunday evening I had received a message that one of our faithful volunteers had just died. She was at the Center on Friday doing her work. I was so shocked. Yesterday afternoon, after Opal Elliston's funeral, I was on my way to Amarillo to check on our Seniors in the Amarillo hospitals, and came upon the wreck where a friend had just been killed. I was reminded once again that we never know how much time we have left with our friends and family. For this reasons we need to always show and tell our friends and families how much we love and appreciate them.

The week of April 19-25 is designated as National Volunteer Week. We are making plans to recognize our volunteers with a reception and a program on Friday, April 24 at 7 p.m. We want all who volunteer at the Senior Center and our Seniors who volunteer for other organizations in our community to attend. We also want anyone who wants to attend to come and help us honor the volunteers. You can show your appreciation for what a volunteer has done for you or your organization along with us.

Our program for the reception will be Monty Smith with his band and singers. He has a wonderful program and I know everyone will enjoy it. He and his group will be volunteering to honor other volunteers.

I remind myself that we make a living by what we get -- we make a life by what we give.

Enjoy the beautiful spring weather we are having.
See you at the Center.

President's Corner

By Norma Thurston, HSCA President

Hello!

How about this weather. Can you believe that we were seeing snow just a week ago? Maybe it is finally going to be spring! I am ready for it since I am not much of a winter person.

Well, we will miss another smiling fact at the Center. Opal Elliston certainly will be missed by all who knew her. She was such a dependable volunteer and a sweet person.

We don't say thank you to all of the volunteers and employees for all the work they do everyday. They are a great bunch. I would like to say a "big thanks" to the kitchen crew for the very appetizing meals they prepare for us every day.

As usual, several activities are planned at the Center during this month. April's schedule will begin with a TRIAD meeting on April 3 at noon. Hope to see you there and at other events that are planned!

Love, Norma

Delivering meals

Susan Adams, George Arntt, and Ervin Robinson, shown from left, are among the faithful volunteers who deliver meals to homebound Hereford citizens five days a week. They are an integral part of Hereford Senior Citizens Center's homebound meals program. Susan and George are two of our wonderful drivers. Ervin is among those that deliver meals into the homes; he has been commended by Hereford residents for this caring and understanding attitude when he makes the deliveries. Anyone else wishing to volunteer for such an effort may call the Center at 364-5681.

Test to detect Alzheimer's disease needs more study, researchers say

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some researchers say a new quick screening test to detect memory-robbing Alzheimer's disease needs more study before it is ready for widespread use.

The seven-minute word-and-picture test is 90 percent accurate in identifying patients with early Alzheimer's, which often is difficult to diagnose, researchers reported Thursday.

The screening exam uses four separate recall and thinking quizzes that are scored together to separate people with normal aging memory from those who might have serious problems, said Paul Solomon, co-director of the Southwestern Vermont Medical Center memory clinic.

"The judgment we can make is that someone is performing in a way that is entirely normal or that they have a dementia characteristic of Alzheimer's disease," said Solomon, a psychologist on the faculty of Williams College in Williamstown, Mass.

The results of a study of the Alzheimer's test given to 120 people are published this month in the Archives of Neurology.

The test can be administered by a trained technician in 7 minutes, 42 seconds, giving quick reassurance to worried patients and identifying those who need a full-scale Alzheimer's workup, Solomon said.

"It would be something extremely useful to have," said Zaven Khachaturian, director of the Reagan Research Institute of the Alzheimer's Association.

But Khachaturian cautioned the test "is not ready yet for prime time."

"It needs research in a larger population to be validated," he said. "It needs to be repeated with much larger samples (of patients) to determine its strengths and weaknesses."

In the published study, the test was 90 percent accurate in identifying which of 120 people had Alzheimer's disease and which didn't. For example, it identified 13 of 13 people known to have early Alzheimer's.

The study involved 60 patients who had been referred to the Vermont memory clinic because of a suspected problem, and 60 people with no known memory problems. The

Nation's oldest known worker is 102

WASHINGTON (AP) - Engineer Milton Garland could have left the workplace 37 years ago. He did not even think about it. Now he is 102 and the nation's oldest known worker.

Garland says he does not worry, believes every problem has a solution, thinks common sense will handle most difficulties, eats almost anything but cannot stand sauerkraut.

He also could not dally in Washington after a whirlwind day that included a banquet honoring older American workers and a meeting with first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. He had to teach an engineering class in the morning.

Garland has worked for the same Pennsylvania engineering firm since 1920, so long that he thinks life and work are about the same thing.

"I don't think age has anything to do with your desire to work," Garland told a news conference at the National Press Club on Thursday. He said he was in charge when his company installed the building's refrigeration equipment in the late 1920s.

Question: "Where would you be if you had retired 37 years ago at age 65?"

Answer: "I'd be in my grave."

At 102, Garland is not only not in his grave, he is the new symbol of older working adults across the country. He was chosen for the role by an organization called Green Thumb, which champions older workers. The qualifications were simple. Work at least 20 hours a week and have the earliest birth date Green Thumb could find.

"I love the work I am doing," Garland said, leaning forward in his vested, dark pinstripe suit. "My advice is to go into something and stay with it until you like it. You can't like it until you obtain expertise in that work. Once you are an expert, it's a pleasure. And once you like what you do, you don't like to quit doing it."

Garland is an expert in what he does, although he now works about 20 hours a week. He holds 40 patents, mostly involving innovations in refrigeration technology. He helped perfect the production of synthetic rubber during World War II.

At the news conference, Garland had no problem fielding questions. Does he have a special diet?

"I eat anything but sauerkraut," he replied, a definite edge in his deliberately raised voice.

He stays away from most desserts, has made doing things "correctly" a golden rule and never loses sleep from worry.

"I don't worry about anything," Garland said. "Worry never solved any problem. If the problem is there, you'll find the answer. You just have to keep working on it."

Milton W. Garland was born in Harrisburg, Pa., on Aug. 23, 1895. He graduated from high school in 1915, interrupted his education to serve in the Navy in World War I, and joined the Frick Co. of Waynesboro, Pa., in 1920, rising to vice president for education.

Garland has worked for Frick for 78 years. His current duties are coordinating international patents and giving training classes.

But even for Garland there is more to life than work. He was accompanied to the news conference by his wife, Alice. Sponsors said he has two children, seven grandchildren, seven great grandchildren and one great, great grandson.

ESTELLE WARE WITH SUNSHINE

'Kitty' shower honors new family member

Hereford Senior Citizens Center has a wide range of activities happening daily, such as a recent "kitty" shower.

Estelle Ware is shown with Sunshine, a new addition to her family. The calico feline was guest of honor when the Sugar Ants' Quilting Club (HSCA's quilting group) hosted the event.

Gifts of toys and treats were presented to the kitten and her new human "mother" while guests enjoyed a decorated cake.

Special guests present at the shower included Mrs. Ware's daughter and granddaughter, Merle Clark and Ronda Clark, respectively.

Meet Your Board

Alvin "Swede" Schmucker is a recent addition to the Center's board of directors, having served since October 1997. He has lived in Hereford since 1951.

Born in Nazareth, Schmucker was raised on a farm. He became known as "Swede" one day when an older, neighborhood boy did not show up for work. One of the men present lifted the young Schmucker and put him in the wagon and said, "Then this is Swede!"

Schmucker opened a garage with a filling station and specialized in auto repair in 1939. He attended Hudson Auto School in Detroit, Mich., in 1950, then worked at Warren Motor Co. in Hereford. He opened Schmucker Garage in Hereford and ran it until 1978, when he retired.

Schmucker married Rosemary Bates in 1940 and they had 10 children, seven of which are still living. Robert Schmucker of Hereford is among those children; others live in Dallas, South Dakota, Groom, Possum Kingdom and Amarillo. Seventeen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren complete the family.

Rosemary Schmucker died in 1994. In 1996, Swede married Josie

ALVIN "SWEDE" SCHMUCKER

Schulte, whose two children, nine grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren added to the family.

A member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Schmucker is a lifetime member of the Knights of Columbus and belongs to the Golden K Kiwanis and Hereford Senior Citizens Center. He has performed in various melodramas at the Center and still enjoys dancing. He was once a band member, playing the fiddle and organ, "for his own amazement", he said.

Welcome to our Board, Swede!

SALT group meeting set at Senior Center

The local SALT group of the Hereford Senior Citizens is meeting Friday, April 3 at noon in the Senior Center.

All members of the community are welcome to join in a Dutch treat lunch at 11:30 a.m. and then to join with the SALT group to hear Sgt. Urbanczyk of the State Troopers present a program on "The Rules of the Road."

Many changes have been made in the laws governing our driving on Texas highways. Many of us violate a law when we drive to Braums for that delicious dessert. Come visit on April 3 to find out what this new law is.

May 8 the SALT will meet for a program presented by Officer Robin Ruland of the Hereford Police Department on crime prevention.

SALT is an acronym for Seniors and Law Enforcement working Together. The local group is presenting programs to help us enjoy our senior years a little more by being more informed about our law enforcement agencies and the rules that they have to work by.

See you Friday, April 3.

We Can Explain Why You Need An IRA In Two Words:

Social Security.

If you're going up the hump, not over the hill, then you've probably realized by now that Social Security isn't going to be quite as secure as you once believed.

An Individual Retirement Account at Hereford State Bank is a very smart investment toward your future because it's a personal savings plan that provides a substantial retirement fund, and also allows you to defer taxes on the principal as well as the accrued interest each year.

Because your earnings on an IRA investment are tax-deferred, they build much faster than many comparable investments.

Of course, the sooner you start the better off you'll be. After all, you're getting close enough to see the top of the hill. Which leads us to our final two words.

Don't delay.

examiners who gave the test did not know which patients had memory problems.

Further studies on another 800 people were consistent with the findings of the small study, but those results have not yet been published, Solomon said.

The four quizzes probe a patient's ability to recall words and images seen moments before, along with finding a solution to a simple clock problem.

The first test asks a patient to state the current year, month, date, day of the week and approximate time.

The next quiz involves flash cards, shown in sets of four, that picture ordinary objects in 16 different categories. After viewing the cards, the patient is asked to recall the picture sets. Reminder words are provided if needed.

Few people can recall all of the categories, but a normal person will benefit from the reminder words, Solomon said. The reminders give no help to a person with Alzheimer's.

In the clock problem, a patient is given pencil and paper and asked to draw a clock face, with 12 numbers in the proper place, and to arrange the hands to show the time of 20 minutes to four.

People with memory problems will leave out numbers, arrange the hands wrong or put the numbers in the wrong position on the clock face.

In the final quiz, a patient has one minute to name as many objects as possible in a single category, such as "vegetables" or "furniture." People with normal memories will easily come up with 12 or more, said Solomon.

An examiner can score the test immediately and compare the results to standard calculations. Solomon said the test identifies those with normal memories, those with a low probability of Alzheimer's and those with a high probability.

But Khachaturian said it is not clear if the test can tell the difference between people with Alzheimer's and those who have memory problems caused by other disorders.

That is important, he said, because some types of dementia can be corrected with aggressive treatment, while there is very little therapy that can significantly affect the course of Alzheimer's.

Solomon said his team is distributing the test to selected clinics with the goal of determining if it can differentiate between those with Alzheimer's and those with other types of memory disorders.

"We hope to have this test available for widespread use by late summer or early fall," he said.

Nutrition Update

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD
SEASONINGS:
USE OF DRIED HERBS AND SPICES

Food is one of life's great pleasures. Around the world, across all cultures and ages, people love to eat. While many factors influence the types of food we eat, taste dominates all other reasons for how we make food choices.

And, contrary to popular belief, delicious foods can also be healthy. The explosion of flavors in dishes today can be credited to the large variety of herbs, spices and seasonings that are now widely available.

From familiar to exotic, these seasonings can enhance the flavor of foods so you can enjoy them without guilt. And, these flavors are as close as your spice cabinet!

Nutritious and Delicious

With the right combination of dried herbs, spices and seasonings, healthful foods can be as delicious as they are nutritious. Following are some helpful hints for adding flavor to some of your favorite dishes:

*Over time, herbs and spices lose strength and color. Give your herbs and spices an annual "sniff test" by sprinkling a small amount into your hand and crushing it. If a rich aroma doesn't immediately rise up to greet you, it's past its prime. Seal containers such as glass jars lock in freshness best.

*Keep dried seasoning blends handy for easy, instant flavor enhancement of everything from steamed fish fillets to fresh cooked vegetables or roasted new potatoes.

Enhancing the flavor of foods

While herbs, spices and seasonings serve as flavor enhancers in food, their common characteristic is that they are either low in sodium or sodium-free and fat-free.

Thus, they are ideal for individuals who need to limit sodium and/or fat intake but want added flavor.

1. Herbs

Herbs provide color and a range of distinctive flavors. Examples of herbs: basil, bay leaf, garlic, oregano, rosemary, thyme.

2. Spices

Spices enhance the natural sweetness of foods and are an important part of the complex flavors of ethnic cuisines. Examples of spices: cinnamon, ginger, cumin, nutmeg.

3. Seasoning blends

Perfect blends of complementary seasonings provide unique, complex flavors all in one. Examples of seasoning blends: chili powder, curry powder.

Here are some healthful snacking ideas using dried herbs, spices and seasonings:

*Pizza craving: Spread a roasted English muffin, bagel half, or pita bread half with a spoonful of canned diced tomatoes in puree. Sprinkle with garlic powder, oregano leaves, grated fat-free or low-fat cheese, and a slice of reduced-fat pepperoni or diced Canadian bacon. Broil until cheese bubbles.

*Roll-up with cinnamon cream: Warm a small four tortilla in a non-stick skillet or microwave. Mix a tablespoon each of low-fat ricotta, plain yogurt, and cottage cheese with a teaspoon of fruit preserves; sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg. Roll up.

*Gingered wonton crisps: Cut wonton skins into triangles and place on a baking sheet. Brush with a mixture of 1 tablespoon water, 1 tablespoon sesame oil, 1 teaspoon ground ginger, and 1/2 teaspoon onion powder. Bake at 375 degrees until crisp and golden.

*Chickpea poppers: Drain a 15 ounces can garbanzo beans (chick peas); add 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar, garlic powder, crumbled rosemary, basil or marjoram, and a touch of olive oil. Blend in a food processor until creamy, adding more balsamic vinegar for desired consistency. Serve with warmed pita triangles.

Ethnic seasonings

Ethnic cuisines high in flavor yet low in fat, calories, and sodium offer the opportunity to explore new tastes. Turn everyday fare into international treats with these flavors from around the world:

Mexican: cayenne pepper, chili powder, cilantro, cinnamon, cumin, garlic powder, jalapeno peppers.

Italian: anise, basil, crushed red pepper, fennel, garlic powder, oregano, rosemary, sage.

Chinese: Chinese five-spice crushed red pepper, garlic powder, ground ginger, sesame seed, white pepper, whole red chillies.

Thai: basil, cilantro, cinnamon, crushed red pepper, garlic powder, mint, turmeric, whole red chillies.

Greek: cinnamon, dill weed, garlic powder, mint, onion powder, oregano, paprika.

Congressional committee looks at lenders who swindle elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is taking a look at lending practices that target the elderly, hoping to help seniors like 76-year-old Helen Ferguson keep their homes.

Ferguson and other senior citizens on Monday told the Senate Special Committee on Aging how loans from unscrupulous lenders put them in danger of becoming homeless.

She recounted for the senators how she signed for a $25,000 loan in 1991 from a lender that advertised low interest rates and closing fees to retire past debt and make repairs on her District of Columbia home.

But as her financial situation worsened, the Social Security recipient signed for another loan and then another until she got a fifth loan in December 1995 for $85,000.

Ferguson said she had no idea that high fees and variable interest rates were included. She also said she didn't know the agreements granted an interest in her home to her sister.

"They all acted like they were on my side and interested in my well-being," Ferguson said of the unidentified lenders she is now suing. "I trusted them."

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, the chairman, said he was considering legislation to require financial counseling to avoid practices by "subprime" lenders who target the elderly, minorities and people with low incomes, many of whom don't realize they're being swindled.

Grassley also said he would send letters to the Department of Justice, the FBI and the 50 governors alerting them to the problem.

The subprime market makes loans to high-risk borrowers, including those with bad credit histories or limited income. It has grown dramatically in recent years, with more than 90 percent of all subprime mortgage loans made in or after 1993, according to the Federal Trade Commission.

Officials say elderly homeowners are a prime target because they generally are "equity rich and cash poor" - living on fixed incomes with little ready cash, but with high equity because their mortgages are paid off.

More than 23 million Americans have no mortgage debt, Grassley said. Their average age is 64 years old; their collective equity ranges from $600 billion to more than $1 trillion, he added.

Grassley and Sen. John Breaux of Louisiana, the panel's top Democrat, criticized several lending practices. In "stripping," loans are made based upon the equity in the borrower's home instead of the individual's income and their ability to repay it. Default typically leads to foreclosure.

In "flipping," a borrower is pressured to refinance prior loans, each time boosting the lender's profits through prepayment penalties, new points, origination fees, an ever-increasing loan balance and other charges. "Packing" is the practice by which the cost of unnecessary credit and other forms of insurance are included in the loan, boosting its overall cost.

Grassley and Jodie Bernstein, the FTC's chief of consumer protection, said consumers need to be aware and should contract authorities if they suspect a problem. They also should:

- Investigate all options before signing for a loan.

- Beware of salesmen who knock on their door and make unsolicited offers.

- Ask questions and never sign documents without understanding them or ones that are blank or contain blank spaces.

- Remember they have three days to get out of any contract for any reason.

Ferguson said she didn't know details of her loans because lenders mailed the signed papers to her after she had cashed the checks and paid for her repairs. She also said they came after the three-day period for canceling such agreements had expired.

"If I had been told the true terms of these loans from the beginning, I would not have signed the papers," she said. "If I would have known all the terms of the loan in time, I would have canceled."

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: My living room carpet has a couple of cigarette burns in it from the previous owners. The carpet is a very light beige, so the dark burn marks really show up. Do you have any suggestions for covering them up? I'd appreciate any help you can give. — Barbara Turner, Seattle

There is a simple solution! First, try using an emery board and see if you can "file" away the burned part.

Second, if it is a small hole, carefully cut away the burned fibers, put some white glue in the hole and fill with fibers from another area.

Third, cut away the burned portion and, if it is a large hole, cut a piece of carpeting from an inconspicuous spot, such as a closet.

Fourth, put some wax paper over the area and place a heavy book on top for 24 hours. Remove the book and fluff the fibers. — Heloise

TREE STUMP

Dear Readers: Here is a cute hint to use come springtime from Ruth DesCamp from Phelps, N.Y.

If you cut down a tree and keep the stump, make some holes in it to plant flowers. Just fill the holes with dirt, plant flowers and water daily.

Another idea that is nice and easy is to put potted plants on top of a tree stump. Either pretty vines or flowers really dress it up. — Heloise

Memories take a ride on King's Manor RR

Recalling memories of the past, a display with two model trains occupies a corner of the Lamar Room at King's Manor Methodist Home.

The trains were donated to King's Manor about 20 years ago by a supporter of the home. A display utilizing one of the trains was set up a year ago in the Country Store.

But with the store open only one or two days a week, residents, family members and children were limited to when they could see it.

Recently the decision was made to move the display to the Lamar Room where all could view it.

A new scene was built and more track laid for the rest of the Lionel train. The buildings, farm house, ranch house, accessories and livestock were purchased by funds raised through bake sales held by King's Manor dietary staff.

Displayed on the ledge of the display enclosure is an American Flyer train donated by Ms. Mary Fraser, a resident of King's Manor.

50-year-old couple is looking for adventure

NACOGDOCHES, Texas - In some dialects, the name Kilimanjaro means "that which cannot be conquered," but Bruce Walker and his wife, Kathryn, set out to do just that.

The Walkers, her brother and cousin set out to climb Africa's highest mountain a few days after Christmas.

Bruce Walker says the trip to Tanzania was something he will never forget.

"My wife and I have been married for 30 years and we're both turning 50 this year," he said. "We wanted to do something adventurous while we still could. It was all my wife's idea."

To prepare for the journey, the couple began training a year in advance by working out at a health club at least three times a week. Over Memorial Day weekend last year, they climbed Guadalupe Peak in West Texas for practice.

"My brother-in-law, David, said he trained by not taking a golf cart for two weeks before the trip," Walker said. "He didn't make it to the top of the mountain."

In fact, Bruce Walker was the only one from his group who did reach the top of the mountain.

The round-trip climb takes five days and begins at the base of the mountain in the rain forest, he said.

"There is more than one summit. I climbed to Gilman's Peak which is about 18,500 feet high," he said.

The four people in Walker's group met up with a man from Australia and three guides.

"They say climbing Mount Kilimanjaro is 30 percent physical and 70 percent mental," he said, "and I really think that's true now that I've done it."

Walker said the rain forest was beautiful because it was filled with waterfalls, creeks and monkeys.

"Whenever I saw pictures of Kilimanjaro, it was always brown," he said, "but when we were there, everything was a lush, beautiful green."

While Walker was proud that he made it to the summit and plans to go back to Africa, he said the next time it won't be to climb.

"The trip was about more than the climb. It's the scenery," he said. "And you're in Africa; it's not like climbing mountains in West Texas."

Ernest Hemingway would probably agree. After seeing Kilimanjaro, he wrote, "As wide as all the world, great, high and unbelievably white in the sun, was the square top of Mount Kilimanjaro."

In the tradition of a Hemingway short story, the group continued its African experience with a safari across the Serengeti in a Landrover.

After that, Walker got to the part of the trip that originally caught his interest - a hot air balloon ride.

At the end of the flight, the group drank champagne and ate lunch at a table set up in the middle of the Serengeti, complete with guards stationed at various distances from the table with guns in case a wild animal got hungry.

The United States did not issue any stamps until 1847. The first stamps had portraits of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin, the first postmaster.
