Includes public housing cuts, more homeless money

Clinton readying $1.5 trillion budget for '94-'95 fiscal year

By ALAN FRAM

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton will propose cutting more than $2 billion for public housing next year - particularly slashing aid to the elderly, congressional sources said Friday.

At the same time, the administration will call for boosting spending for the homeless by nearly 50 percent and nearly doubling a rent subsidy program for the poor, said congressional aides and lobbyists who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The cuts for public housing construction and renovation are certain to create an uproar among members of Congress and advocacy groups that support those programs. About 5 million families get federal rental assistance or live in dwellings that were built or rehabilitated with federal funds.

"I'm all for increasing funds for the homeless, but if you're really going to address homelessness, you do it through major increases in the stock of assisted housing," said Cushing Dolbear, president of the National Low-Income Housing Coalition, an advocacy group.

Clinton is putting the finishing touches on his $1.5 trillion budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. And though he doesn't plan to unveil it until Feb. 7, details are beginning to emerge. Aides and lobbyists said other proposals include:

- Increases of nearly 3 percent for the departments of Education and Health and Human Services, although some programs within each agency are cut. The huge Chapter I program that provides extra teachers for poor school districts would grow from $6.9 billion this year to $7.6 billion in 1995.

- Shrinking the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's budget slightly from $14.5 billion this year to $14.3 billion next year. The space station would get about the same as the $1.9 billion it got for 1994.

- Increasing the budget for the National Science Foundation, which finances many of the country's research scientists, to $3.2 billion from $3 billion this year.

Holly Sugar president Hill to attend TSBGA meeting, Sugar Beet Banquet

Roger Hill, president of Holly Sugar Corporation, will be guest speaker at the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association (TSBGA) annual meeting Jan. 21 at the Hereford Community Center. He is expected to discuss the strong future for sugar production and processing in the Hereford area.

The business meeting will be held in conjunction with the annual Sugar Beet Banquet, scheduled Jan. 22 at the Bull Barn. Award-winning humorist and columnist James "Doc" Blakely will be the banquet speaker.

The banquet is open to the public, and tickets will soon be on sale. The "Man of the Year in Agriculture" will also be presented at the banquet by The Hereford Brand.

A key part of the TSBGA business meeting on Friday will be the election of new directors. Prospects for new beet seed lines and new developments in disease control will also be meeting topics.

Bill Cleavinger, TSBGA president, says Hill's message will be an important one. He will explain the benefits of improving beet quality in the area.

"Roger is a longtime friend of area beet growers," says Cleavinger. "He is constantly striving to increase the efficiency of the Hereford plant's refining capabilities."

Cleavinger, also chairman of the American Sugarbeet Growers' legislative affairs committee, will review the completed General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

Dennis Printz, Holly Hereford ag manager, will review the ups and downs of the 1993 harvest, which was slowed by unseasonably cold temperatures in October. He will also recognize the most outstanding growers from the area's 11 growing regions.

Another key speaker will be Steve Reynolds of the Holly Seed Division. He will discuss new varieties which are promising for the region. Reynolds will spend several days in the area, working with the joint Holly/Grower Research Committee (See HOLLY, Page 2A)

Top firefighter

David Spain has been fighting fires with the Hereford Fire Department for 21 of his 39 years. He is the assistant chief and was recently named Firefighter of the Year for 1993. The 39-year veteran firefighter said joining the volunteer department came naturally, since his father, Fire Marshal Jay Spain, has been in the firefighting industry for 30 years.

Award second for department veteran Spain honored as city's top fireman

By GARRY WESNER

Managing Editor

Growing up around a firefighter father gave David Spain the motivation he needed to become one himself.

Last month, he was rewarded for nearly 21 years of service to the Hereford Fire Department by being named its Firefighter of the Year.

The honor is the second for Spain, son of Fire Marshal Jay Spain. He also received the department's top award in 1981.

But to hear David Spain talk, his work at the department is as part of a team and all the volunteer firefighters who work here are special.

Time and again Spain comes back to the training the department has received and the skill with which the volunteers do their jobs.

Among volunteers with the department, Spain has the most training of all -- 2,664 hours. Only his father with 3,871 hours of training has more.

In fact, the younger Spain said, he has enough training that, if he was younger than his 39 years, he could walk into any paid department and get a job as a firefighter.

More impressively, he continues, is that there are eight volunteers with the department -- including himself -- who are Class 2 instructors in the State of Texas, which means they can "actually walk into a paid department and teach their courses."

Spain has been fighting fires with the Hereford department since February 1973, shortly before his 19th birthday.

"They had to change the by-laws of the department at that time," he said, because before volunteer firefighters had to be at least 21 years old.

Currently, Spain is assistant chief. That might change this week, when the department holds its annual election to choose a chief and assistant chief.

When recalling his years of service to the department, Spain returned to one of the most recent fires faced by the department, the December fire at the home of Buddy and Alva Lee Peeler.

"That takes care of a lot of the boredom and work," he said, quoting City Councilman Carey Black, who said last month that firefighters fight boredom at regular weekly fire drills held by the department.

Spain was one of five firefighters named "Heroes of the City" for their work on the Peeler house fire. Spain was credited with saving Mrs. Peeler's life after rushing into the burning building and bringing her to safety.

The decision to enter the building was one he made based on his desire to save a life.

"When I went into that house to get Alva Lee out, I broke every safety policy this department has," he said, adding that, had he been hurt or killed, his family would have had no financial compensation.

But, he said, "That's part of being a firefighter" and that the decision to go in rather than wait a few minutes for the fire trucks to arrive was based on the knowledge that she might not have survived those extra minutes.

"I was damn sure going to try" to get her out.

During his time with the department, Spain said, no firefighter has been killed in the line of duty.

That, he said, is a credit to the training they received.

In fact, he continued, "All the injuries we've had through the years have been minor."

"Our philosophy is there is not a building or house in this town that is worth one of your lives. Now if there's people involved, that's different," he said.

Building permit value in 1993 topped $1.7 million mark here

By GEORGIA TYLER

Staff Writer

The economic promise of the first six months of 1993 in Hereford didn't quite carry through the year -- truth to tell, the second half was disappointing -- using the worth of building permits issued by the city as a measuring tool.

Total value of projects for which the city issued permits in 1993 was $1,767,390.

But the bulk of that total came during the first six months of the year when 51 applications for projects worth $1,481,215 were accepted by the city.

Still, the '93 building picture was somewhat rosier than the 1992 amount, $1,480,668, when the figure was boosted by an $800,000 permit for a new nursing home.

Certainly 1993 was a better year than 1991 when permits totaled only $838,614.

During the early part of last year, activity in the North Gate Plaza and Sugarland Mall shopping areas pushed building permits past the $1 million mark. Large projects also were undertaken by a church and an oil company, each worth $200,000.

In January, eight permits were issued with a total value of $112,500.

But February was a banner month of the year -- six permits with a value of $346,550 were taken out by Hereford individuals and businesses.

Contributing heavily to the February total was a new home permit, for $135,000, one of two new residences during the year.

A non-residential permit that month added $200,000 to the amount recorded early in the year.

March saw another $200,000 non-residential permit issue to help the month's total of $301,740.

In April, another non-residential permit, this for $150,000, helped the year's total to rise. For the month, the city issued $244,000 in building permits.

May marked the apex of the year's activity when 10 permits were issued for a total of $452,400. The second new home of the year, a $165,000 structure, and a non-residential improvement project, permitted at $265,000, were responsible for much of the month's good news.

In June, the city issued permits valued at $24,025, most of which was tagged for residential remodeling and repairs.

July came in with permits totaling $19,050; then August rebounded some, with a total of $153,900. Residential remodeling accounted for $129,250 in August.

September's permits were boosted by residential remodeling worth $31,000 in a total permit figure of $41,200.

In October, the city issued permits for $21,600; November, $1,725, and December, $17,700.

Becky Reinart, city building and zoning clerk who maintains all the permit records, reported 101 permits issued by the office during the year.

In the total of $1,767,390, her records show that permits for two new homes accounted for $300,000; one new store, $10,000; two other non-residential, $14,250; 31 residential alterations and repairs, $247,050; 26 non-residential A&R, $1,053,950; 10 garage and carports, $13,700; demolish residence, one permit; demolish non-residence, one for $1,800, and 27 permits for miscellaneous projects that do not fit in other categories, $126,640.

Building permits are considered one measuring stick of the economic health of a community. Hereford has been on a roller coaster for the last 20-plus years.

Best year in history was 1985 when the city issued permits for $11,840,861 in construction. Prior to that year, the best was 1976 when the total was $7,474,850.

After the big year in '85, permits tailed off in 1986, with $2,017,775. But, the next year was the third best ever recorded, $6,117,955.

The next few years were up and down -- $3,419,810 in 1988, $2,208,730 in 1989, $2,553,356 in 1990, $838,614 in 1991 and $1,463,868 in 1992.

Building for new year

Lumber and other building materials are stacked at a Hereford residence in preparation for a remodeling job. The project is one of the first in 1994. In 1993 the City of Hereford issued building permits valued at $1,767,390.

budget. Spending caps included in last year's deficit-reduction package require that total spending for all defense, foreign aid and domestic programs - excluding benefit programs like Medicare - remain at this year's levels. No extra money is allowed to cover the costs of inflation. That means that for every increase Clinton wants, he must cut an equal amount from other programs. The sources said that among housing programs, Clinton will propose: -Slashing the $4.6 billion spent this year to acquire, build and modernize public housing units to about $2.7 billion. -Shrinking the $1.1 billion given to nonprofit groups this year to provide housing for the elderly to less than $200 million. The Section 202 program provides construction grants and rental assistance. The program, which now helps more than 9,000 senior households, may help fewer than 2,000 after the reductions. -Cutting the HOME Investment Partnerships to $1 billion from $1.25 billion. The money goes to state and local governments for construction, improvements and rental assistance. -Increasing Section 8 rental assistance from $1.1 billion to $2 billion. The program, helping 40,000 families this year, would help 80,000 next year. -Boosting the $800 million spent this year for the homeless to perhaps $1.2 billion. This includes money for emergency shelters, temporary housing and renovation of single-room apartments. -Leaving community development bloc grants at this year's level of $4.4 billion. The money goes to local governments for economic development and housing.

and others on better ways to improve Deaf Smith beet quality through better varieties and cultural practices. Two TSBGA directors--Ed Ramaekers of the Nazareth area and Richard Friemel of the Umbarger area--are retiring from the board. Nominated as candidates to fill the two open spots are Floyd Schulte and J.C. Pohlmeyer of the Nazareth area, and Randy Wieck and Joe Grotgeut of the Umbarger-Dawn area. Texas Agricultural Experiment Station beet research projects will be reviewed at the meeting. These projects are made possible by funding from a grower checkoff, says Cleavinger. Tourists scramble in wake of large Puerto Rico spill

By LISA M. HAMM
Associated Press Writer
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - Under the glare of floodlights, crews labored through the night to stabilize a crippled barge that dumped 750,000 gallons into the ocean off San Juan, sending tourists scrambling. The barge ran aground before dawn Friday, hemorrhaging heavy black oil that blackened the turquoise sea and sullied San Juan's golden beaches. Hundreds of tourists in hotels along the palm-lined shore made arrangements to relocate or make the best of the situation. It was the first major spill to hit the island in decades. "We won't be diving around this area for a while," said Alberto Rodriguez, a scuba instructor who surveyed the mess from shore. The pungent spill was limited to a mile-long strip of San Juan's Atlantic coastline, Gov. Pedro Rosello said, adding that he hoped for a quick cleanup to soften the possible economic blow to the island's tourism industry. Puerto Rico attracted 3.5 million visitors in 1991 who spent $1.4 billion, according to the latest figures published by the Caribbean Business Directory. By late Friday, about half the barge's 1.5 million gallons of heavy crude oil had leaked out, U.S. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena said.

department, Spain and his colleagues must work day jobs to provide for their families. Spain has worked for Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative for 17-1/2 years. "They've always worked with me about going to fires," he said. "That's another thing that's really kept this department successful is the employees, because without them we wouldn't be able to exist." Spain said it is understood that the volunteers won't be able to make every fire. For example, he said, if it is a minor fire such as a car or dumpster fire, he might stay at work. "There's times when some of us just flat can't leave," he said, and others will go. But on the other hand, another group entirely will be able to go at another time. Firefighter of the Year is voted on by the firemen themselves. "To me that's part of what it means is because the guys who actually do the work are the ones who vote on it," Spain said. "As far as I'm concerned all these guys do stuff above and beyond what they have to." Voting on Firefighter of the Year, however, is on who "did a little bit extra for the department." Spain said he has no plans to retire from the department -- even when he reaches age 52, which is when a small state pension for volunteer firefighters kicks in. "I'm going to keep doing it as long as I'm able," he said. Of course, Spain said there is one thing that would make it easier to continue his career. "I would say that main thing is --- of course the number one thing is smoke detectors. Every time I've ever been to a fire death or a casualty thing like the Peelers, smoke detectors were not present." Spain said the department is working with children on fire safety, adding that, once the children get interested, they will involve their parents. He said there is evidence that is working, as an open house this year

HBA to elect new directors this Tuesday

New directors will be elected and several other items of business will be on the agenda when Hereford Beautification Alliance holds its annual membership meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center game room. The Alliance will review projects completed in the past year, and members will discuss a proposal to change the dues structure of the organization, according to HBA chairman Tonya Kleuskens. A nominating committee will also be appointed to recommend a new slate of officers. Also to be discussed will be HBA's involvement with the City of Hereford and the Soil Conservation Service to improve the local parks system. January marks the beginning of the annual membership drive. Proposed new directors include Mal Manchec, Jan Weishaar, Joe Lambert, Wayne Winget, Lydia Villanueva, Wade Easley and James McDowell. Holdover directors are Jan Furr, Betty Henson, Nedra Higginbotham, Patrick Hayes, Clint Formby, Ruth Knox, Audine Dettman, Leo Witkowski, Nell Culpepper, Pat Reily, Jeff Brown and Terry Bromlow. Directors retiring from the board will be Rosemary Thomas, Kerrie Steiert, Diane Hoelscher, Ruth McSherry, Joe Hernandez and Tonya Kleuskens.

More than 26,000 seniors have not passed exit test

AUSTIN (AP) - More than 26,000 Texas seniors have not yet passed the graduation test required for them to get their diplomas, according to figures released Friday by the Texas Education Agency. Of 184,023 students who were scheduled to graduate this year and first took the test as juniors in 1992, 83 percent have passed, according to figures distributed at a State Board of Education meeting. In the latest round of testing last October, 26,647 seniors didn't pass all parts of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills. It includes reading, writing and mathematics. The seniors, who have had four chances to take the test, get one more try before graduation. They can continue trying an unlimited number of times after that. Several thousand other prospective members of the Class of 1994 either have moved out of state, left the public school system or dropped out, said TEA spokeswoman Della May Moore. The 83 percent passing rate is better than that for the Class of 1993 at the same point in the testing program. In the fall of 1992, 81 percent of the previous year's seniors had passed all sections of the test. Juniors this school year also have passed the test at a higher rate than those in past years, according to the agency. Their passing rate is 67 percent, compared with 54 percent in October 1992 and 48 percent in October 1991. This year's juniors were allowed to take the exam for the first time as sophomores. Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno says it's too early to tell whether the higher passing rates are the start of a trend. But he said he expects to see continued improvement, noting that the Education Board has moved to establish higher student standards, and that the state has tried to give local educators more flexibility to improve achievement. Of the seniors who have yet to pass all sections of the graduation test, 16,869 failed only one section and only must re-take that part. Of the rest, 6,628 failed two tests, and 3,150 failed all three.

was attended by more than 1,000 people despite bad weather. "We believe our fire education program is better now than it's ever been," he said. "A lot of volunteer fire departments, they fight fires when they have to," he said. This one is "big time" involved in training and education. "That's what sets us apart from other departments."

Police to host citizens school

The Hereford Police Department will sponsor its second Citizens Police Academy from Feb. 15 through April 19. The academy will meet from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesday. The Citizens Police Academy is designed to give the public a working knowledge of the Hereford Police Department. Several officers from the department will teach the course, which includes such topics as Texas law, drugs, gangs, street survival for police officers and criminal investigations. Applicants must be 21 years of age and live or work within the Hereford city limits. A short application must be filled out and returned. They are available at the police department or city hall, 212 N. Lee St. The academy is a public information service, not a recruitment program for police officers or reserve officers. For more information call Capt. Pat Michael at 364-2323.

Reno, Dole debate control of real estate investigation

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Attorney General Janet Reno denied Republican suggestions Friday that there is political interference in a Justice Department probe of President Clinton's role in an Arkansas real estate venture. She refused once again to appoint a special prosecutor. "Who really is in charge of the Justice Department's investigation? Is it the White House or is it the Justice Department's career prosecutors as you claim?" Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole asked in a letter. Reno fired off a response to Dole, writing: "The answer is that the investigation is being conducted by career prosecutors of the Department of Justice and that as attorney general I have ultimate responsibility for all matters in this department." Reno's defense came as White House counselor David Gergen denied "cannibalism" in the Republican attacks on Clinton, who was co-owner of a real estate company enmeshed in a probe of a failed Arkansas savings and loan operated by a longtime Clinton friend. Gergen took issue with critics' tactics and timing in their suggestions of wrongdoing in the Clintons' investment in Whitewater Development Corp. and its links to Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan. "I just have to tell you ... as the president goes home to bury his mother, to have the political opposition on the warpath, hammering away, raises all sorts of questions about what has happened in this town," Gergen said on NBC's "Today" show. Dole accused Reno of "hiding behind" the lack of a law authorizing a court-appointed independent counsel, and the letter released by his office Friday included a list of seven people he said would be suitable for her to name as special prosecutors. Two of them served as attorney general under President Carter. But Reno replied: "Were I to adopt your suggestion, I would have to appoint such a counsel on my own authority. Any such counsel would not be regarded as truly independent, and would be subject to the same criticisms leveled at special counsel appointed by the previous attorney general." Republicans have criticized the administration for letting Clinton's private attorney, David Kendall, negotiate the subpoena for Whitewater documents, covering many to make it more difficult for Congress and others to obtain them.

Gergen, in a later interview on CNN, said "there is an argument to be made, obviously, for public release of the documents," but that nothing had been decided. He added that there was a question whether the documents, since they are incomplete, "would answer the kind of questions that people are asking." Many of the questions concern the Clintons' relationship with the Arkansas businessman whose savings and loan failed. There have been allegations that some of its funds were diverted in the mid-1980s to help pay personal and political debts of prominent Arkansans, including then-Gov. Clinton. The Clintons were also partners with the S&L owner, James McDougal and his wife in Whitewater.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

The most important asset any human being can have is a good feeling about himself--how you feel about you as a person and how you value yourself.

Teachers and parents can be self-esteem generators. Self-esteem cannot be taught, but we can create the kind of situations where self-esteem can grow.

Sherry Walker generates self-esteem in her classes--I've never been in her class when students were not busy and enjoying being able to express themselves through art. Recently her students had been rewarded with a coke and popcorn party. The students crushed their empty cans "creatively" and then drew the cans with a focus on shape and value. After the drawings were completed, students painted the cans and made "canimals."

Eighth grade history students are fighting the American revolution and preparing to finalize the constitution. All of the classes are staying together, fifteen class groups with three teachers, as they travel through the exciting history of America. Seventh graders are finishing the "road to revolution" and will be experiencing the fight for Texas' independence from Mexico. Due to various projects, seventh grade classes are not "staying together" quite as well as the eighth graders are at this time.

Who would have thought that an Amaryllis bulb would attract so much attention and be enjoyed by so many students? Mrs. Cicero's mother, Mrs. Campbell, while visiting from Charlotte, North Carolina, bought a bulb for Mrs. Cicero's students to plant. Since being planted in late November, the bulb has grown over 30" tall and has four large flowers. Some classes and teachers, and individual students, have stopped by to "watch it grow." Mrs. Campbell stated that she enjoyed her visit to HJH and was so impressed with the attitude of HJH students and teachers. We understand that she's even bragged on us back in Charlotte!

Mrs. Hagar is teaching a newly created pre-algebra class this semester. This class will help those students who need a boost in this area.

The new year has begun with fewer noon study hall assignments. Hopefully, this will be a trend that will last throughout the year.

More students are showing an interest in History Fair. The time for the fair will be here soon, as the local fair must be scheduled in late February or early March. This is an excellent opportunity for students to work individually or in groups to express the importance of geography in history.

Maybe HJH's are gaining self-esteem, or self-worth through the various opportunities afforded them and are learning what Rabelais, in the sixteenth century meant when he stated, "So much is a man worth as he esteems himself."

Irritated federal judge eliminates all bonds because of no-shows

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Let this be clear: U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela is fed up with no-shows.

Vela is fuming because the federal courthouse in Brownsville leads the Southern District of Texas in the number of people who fail to appear in court.

On Thursday, he said he will deny bond to all federal prisoners and he told three tardy lawyers they were going to jail.

"It's getting totally absurd and ridiculous," Vela said.

When two drug defendants failed to show up Thursday morning, Vela said: "All bonds are hereby canceled effective right now. Remember, all prisoners will be held without bond."

However, the federal magistrates at the Brownsville courthouse said they were continuing to release prisoners on bond Friday.

Vela's statements were criticized by Alan Dershowitz, one of the nation's leading constitutional lawyers.

Dershowitz was quoted in Friday's editions of The Brownsville Herald as saying the U.S. Constitution clearly establishes that every bail case must be determined on an individual basis.

"Having a bad day is no excuse," Dershowitz said. "Having a bad day could give somebody a bad life."

Hereford Health Clinic names board, selects Perrin, Birkenfeld as heads

Hereford Health Clinic, which opened in October and received state certification as a rural health center in December, now has its own governing board.

The board elected John Perrin as chairman and Father Darryl Birkenfeld as vice chairman. Mai Manchec is secretary and Paul Fowler and Jo Beth Shackelford are directors.

During its first meeting, the board approved purchase of a computer system which will be installed this month. The board also appointed Fowler as the clinic's financial advisor, and approved policies and procedures.

Hereford Regional Medical Center was awarded a rural Transition Grant in October to begin the rural health center. The $150,000 grant comes in the form of $50,000 a year for three years.

The grant was awarded through the State of Texas Rural Health Initiative Act, which is a state-funded program designed to help small and rural areas develop innovative programs to meet the health care needs of their communities.

"As a rural health clinic center, the Hereford Health Clinic can treat a wide variety of patients, regardless of their insurance status or ability to pay," said Ron Rives, CEO of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

The clinic is staffed by Dr. Jesse Perales and Ron Brock, physician's assistant. The clinic treated 352 patients in October, 460 in November and more than 500 last month. The clinic has expanded hours, seeing patients from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday.

Rives explained that in a rural health clinic, a physician's assistant is used to assess a patient's needs and treat minor illnesses. The physician in charge also sees patients and oversees all treatment plans.

As part of the service of the clinic, EPSDT screenings will be offered for Medicaid patients up to 21 years of age. Early Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment is a federally-funded program that is basically a wellness program for children, based on the idea that prevention is an effective way to help children stay healthy.

The EPSDT screening identifies any problems that need to be treated by a physician. Children also receive routine inoculations, screening for diseases, and assessment of growth.

"We're excited about the rural health clinic because it is another step toward HRMC's goal of offering care for all people in the community," Rives said. "We feel that it is a compassionate, innovative way of solving the problem of access to health care that many of our citizens face."

TV HABITS POINT TO EYE PROBLEMS

Now that kids are indoors more -- doing homework and probable watching more TV -- it's a good idea for parents to keep an eye on them and their viewing habits. Children are usually unaware of any vision problems -- however they see, they think they're supposed to see. It may be the parent who first notices that a child is squinting or frequently rubbing his or her eyes.

If a child complains that he can't read the print on the screen, it may be an indication of nearsightedness. Number confusion -- when an 8 is mixed a 3, or 4's and 5's look alike -- may signal an astigmatism.

Parents serve as the first protectors of their children's vision, the first to notice wandering eyes, excessive blinking, and inability to focus, chronic tearing, red eye or other problems. Any signs of visual problems should be brought to the attention of the optometrist during a complete eye examination.

Q. & A. ABOUT DOCUMENTS & DELAY OF APPROVAL

Q. When I apply for a loan, what documents will I need to provide?

A. You will need to provide a verification of income. This includes recent pay stubs, recent tax returns, bank accounts and details on long term debt (credit cards, child support and auto loans). For those people who are self employed the lender may require a financial statement from their business.

Q. What can delay approval of my loan?

A. If you have provided the lender with accurate and complete information, everything should go smoothly. However, you may face a delay if the lender discovers credit problems. These problems can include a history of late payments, tax liens or nonpayment of debt. The lender may require that you submit additional written explanations to clarify why your payments were late, etc.

It's about time we had a big lottery winner in Deaf Smith County. During the 17 months from the Texas Lottery startup on May 29, 1992, through the end of November, total lottery sales in this county totaled $2,823,627. That includes instant scratch tickets, Lotto and Pick 3 tickets.

That total ranked Deaf Smith County as 131st in the state in lottery sales. However, on a per capita basis, our county didn't rank so high. We averaged about $147 per resident on the lottery tickets over the past 17 months. Lamb County, which ranked 147th in the state, spent an average of $152 per resident.

We didn't find Potter County's total, but Randall was 49th with sales totaling $9,449,609. Hockley County (Levelland) was 108th with sales of $3.7 million, and Hale County, our neighbors down at Plainview, was 99th with sales of $4.1 million.

When you add in the state sales tax, the lottery sales, and a host of other taxes and fees, we're sending a hunk of money to Austin!

A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly." Prov. 18:24

We've run across the following story in several places, and we don't know the original author, but it bears repeating:

A man in the old west was being tried for stealing a horse, which was a grave and serious offense in those days. A person could be hanged if found guilty of such a deed.

It so happened that the man was accused of stealing a horse from another man in that town whom no one liked. The man whose horse had been stolen had always made it a point to get the best of any person with whom he had any dealings. He had never tried to do anything good for anyone other himself. Consequently he didn't have a friend in the entire town.

The case was tried and presented to the jury. The evidence against the accused man was very strong. About 30 minutes of deliberation, the jury returned and the judge asked for their verdict.

"We find the defendant not guilty if he will return the horse."

After the judge silenced the laughter in the courtroom, he admonished the jury. "I cannot accept that verdict. You will have to retire until you reach another verdict," said the judge.

Now, no member of the jury liked the man whose horse has been stolen and, at one time or another, he had gotten the best of each of them. About an hour past before the jury could reach another verdict. They returned to the courtroom and the judge asked for their decision.

The courtroom was totally silent. Everyone eagerly awaited the verdict. The chairman read the decision reached by the 12 good men, tried and true. "We find the defendant not guilty, and he can keep the horse!"

The moral of the story might be that it pays to be interested in people other than yourself. If you spend your life trying to take advantage of others, never caring about them in any way except what you can get from them or what they can do for you, you will end up a loser--like the man who lost his horse.

If you desire a friend, then you had better be a friend. If you desire for other people to help you, then you had better help other people. If you desire justice at the hands of others, then you had better practice justice toward them.

Regardless of what some people think, the old Biblical admonition is true. We do reap what we sow.

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

Look at your calendar and you'll see, clearly written in invisible ink, the season that follows Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years.

The season lasts a different amount of time each year, sometimes just a few weeks and sometimes -- like this year -- it stretches for 11 interminable months.

What, you say, is this season? Why, it is the Political Season. As you know, state politicians have been crawling out of the woodwork, racing to file to run for everything from railroad commission to U.S. Senate.

They are already pledging, promising, pandering and preaching their message about how they are the ideal candidate for the job and why Old So-and-so should be voted out of office in the first place.

For those of us in the newspaper business, it is the time of year we think about unplugging the old fax machine.

Every morning when I get to work, it seems like there is another fax from some politician or other, announcing for office, calling a news conference, slinging mud at an opponent or responding to mud received.

Let me give you a couple of examples (and please, don't think my mentioning these people is an endorsement, advertisement or whatever. At this point, I don't want to take credit or blame for any of them getting elected).

-- Robert Earley, a Democratic candidate for Railroad Commission, announced a news conference (that's the way it was in his fax. I guess to get my attention) to welcome his opponent -- whom he called "Jim 'Tooth Fairy' Nugent" -- to the race.

If that little insult wasn't enough, he said he was going to "display a gift he intends to give Nugent to welcome him into the race. Another page of fax paper told us it was a pair of running shoes.

I don't know about you, but I'm about choking with laughter already.

-- Mike Andrews, who is running for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate against Jim Mattox and Richard Fisher, at least saved fax paper in his attacks.

He used one fax news release to take on the two of them.

First, he assailed Mattox's plan to use federal troops to guard the U.S.-Mexico border by saying, "Same old Jim," then exposed Fisher's horrible sin of giving money to Republican candidates, calling him "Nobody's kind of Democrat."

-- Fisher also sent out a fax -- a five-page tome that "announced" his intention to seek the Senate nomination.

Of course, Fisher, who ran for Senate when Kay Bailey Hutchison won, and who has been a political lackey for H. Ross Perot, has the audacity to start off his "announcement" by saying, "I am not a professional politician."

Geen, then I wonder what it is when a guy spends all his time running around trying to get votes for office? Maybe he calls himself an electoral mendicant (beggar).

I think by the time this campaign is over, I will shudder every time the fax machine rings, because I know it will be from Fisher, Earley, Andrews, George W. Bush, Hutchison, Mattox, or any one of dozens of candidates trying to get me to vote for them and to get me to tell you to vote for them.

Personally, my vote just might go to the guy who doesn't fax me anything between now and November!

Anyway, on to more mundane things.

During the holidays, my family and I, like many of you, traveled to another city for Christmas.

In our case, it was about 4-1/2 to 5 hours on Interstate 40 from here to Albuquerque and Christmas with my parents.

On the way home, my wife and I played a game. We first wrote down the names of all 50 states (a good way to see if you remember anything from junior high geography class), then looked for license plates matching those states.

The funny thing was, my wife said she'd never seen a plate from Hawaii and didn't see much need to put the Aloha State on the list.

Well, a few minutes later a car passed with Hawaii plates!

By the time we pulled off the Interstate at Vega, we'd seen plates from 30 different states and one Indian tribe.

It was an interesting way to pass the time and something you might want to try on your next trip.

Finally, just a short note about skiing.

If any of you like to ski, I saw a story the other day about Vermont skiing.

Seems the December issue of "Out and About," the travel publication for gays and lesbians, has rated Vermont as the top state -- politically speaking -- for skiing.

Vermont, you see, has a gay rights law and Mt. Snow in West Dover offers annual gay ski weekends.

One inn owner near the Stowe ski area says Vermont is "a gay-friendly state."

Anyway, I just thought you'd like to know that.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

A few weeks ago, I was returning to Hereford late in the evening and, due to my inattention, I was driving a little too fast. I was stopped by one of the young men who patrol the highways around Hereford. The experience left me chastened and scolded by my wife and daughter who were also in the car.

While I was sitting in the patrol car, I marveled at the vast array of electronic equipment in use: the radios, scanner, radar gun and other equipment. What was missing was any sort of video equipment.

Our officers patrol solo and have to face the gamut of drivers on the road--average drivers like myself, occasional drunk, a few women, and then we arrive at the weirdo set. I would not like to have that young trooper's job! It takes a lot of courage for those young men to go out night after night and stop those few drivers who break the rules--not knowing what is in the car in the way of a threat.

I find it strange that our Highway Patrol is not equipped with video cameras to stand silent witness to the drivers and their actions. The mere fact that the video is running has to be a major deterrent to any aberrant behavior. It has to make any weirdo think again about using force or violence to avoid a simple traffic ticket.

Having said all this, I challenge the civic clubs--Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary--to get behind a drive to equip all the patrol cars here in Hereford with state-of-the-art video equipment. I don't know what it costs, but if it saves one young trooper a few anxious moments in a tense situation, it's worth it.

We can't afford to lose any one of these brave young men to a foolhardy escape attempt. In making this challenge, I will pledge the first $100 toward the fund. Our troopers deserve nothing less.

After we have the Highway Patrol equipped, we might want to outfit the city and county cars. How about it?

Dear Editor:

I saw the following note in the "letters to the editor" in the Lubbock newspaper. I think it is worth passing on. The letter stated:

"Think this one over. A man was praying. Oh, God, why haven't you sent us some people with cures for cancer, AIDS, world hunger and our social problems?"

"God answered: I did but you aborted them."

W.J. Albracht

Dear Editor:

It is said when Satan is faced with really tough cases--souls too virtuous to be easily lured into sin--the old serpent has a trump card that seldom fails. He simply whispers, "There's still plenty of time."

He must be laughing now. While we bicker in the churches about issues better left to a higher power, the world is going to Hell in a handcart. Christians are wasting precious prayer time interfering with issues God carved in stone a long time ago.

If just a portion of this bickering time would be spent praying together, think of the miracles that could be wrought! Families being torn apart by divorce could be healed; unborn children in danger of being aborted could be saved; those whose lives are ruined by drugs or alcohol could be freed. The violence in our land could stop.

For those who think prayer, fasting, sin, Satan, and the wrath of God are old-fashioned, consider this: AIDS victims are now spreading a new illness, a new strain of tuberculosis. Antibiotics are useless against it and the death rate is 50 percent. Unlike AIDS, this killer is airborne--in other words, we can catch it by breathing.

When are we going to wake up and realize the prophecies of Revelations are all around us? It's time to gather together in prayer as never before. Our mission is clear: to repent of our sins and to pray with all our might, not in fear, but with peaceful hearts, secure in the love of Christ Jesus.

San Angelo Standard-Times on Social Security taxes:

Is a double standard in place? Is Bobby Ray Inman, President Clinton's defense secretary nominee, being treated differently for failing to pay Social Security taxes on a housekeeper, than was Zoe Baird?

Yes, but not because of sexism. That ended with the initial "Nannygate" hanging of attorney general nominee Baird, who, in all likelihood, wouldn't have been asked about paying Social Security taxes on a housekeeper had she been male.

Since then, though, there has been an equal-opportunity scramble, with some 25 Clinton administration officials having had to pay back taxes before serving. Like all the others except Baird and her would-be replacement, Kimba Wood, Inman won't be hung with the tax issue because everyone now realizes that if it becomes an automatic disqualifier, many people will instantly become unfit for office.

The law that requires Social Security taxes to be paid on people who earn $50 in a quarter is antiquated and should be changed. Until then, though, anyone who hopes to serve in government should settle up.

San Antonio Express-News on school violence:

Before a problem can be addressed, let alone solved, it must be defined as precisely as possible. ...

State education officials have only recently begun to study school violence systematically. ...

The State Board of Education's proposed checklist will be a part of that effort. But it's only a part. ...

All state and local education officials can do is work to make Texas schools safer, which is needed. But addressing out-of-school causes of in-school violence is beyond their authority and capacity.

Only when all Texans accept responsibility for identifying and then working to address those larger, out-of-school causes will any meaningful solutions to school violence be possible.

By asking the right questions, the Safe School Checklist will show us just how much work we all face.

The Lufkin Daily News on Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison:

The ethics case against U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, which experienced another setback Tuesday, needs to be settled quickly, both in fairness to her and to voters.

For the second time now, the progress of Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle on this case has been thwarted. The first setback was in September when ethics charges against the senator were dismissed after her attorneys discovered one of the grand jurors who indicted her was ineligible to serve because of a pending theft charge from writing hot checks. Another grand jury indicted Mrs. Hutchison in December.

The second setback came Tuesday when a judge dismissed all but one of the charges against her because Earle didn't do his job thoroughly enough. The judge said the indictments were too vaguely written. Earle was given a choice: rewrite the indictments within 10 days or go to trial on the remaining indictment.

Earle should sharpen his pencil and start rewriting. If the senator is guilty of all charges, it would be a shame to let any of them be dropped, especially if she is acquitted on the one charge that was written correctly. In addition, the more indictments he has against Mrs. Hutchison, the better change he has of making at least one stick.

Too much time has been wasted on this case.

Congressman Combest comments

Bloated bureaucracy

BY LARRY COMBEST
U.S. Rep., 19th District

It now seems that more than deadbeats and welfare cheaters are responsible for the current welfare mess.

A draft report that had to be forced out of Clinton Administration hands reveals that bloated federal welfare bureaucracy is growing twice as fast as the number of welfare recipients. Administrative costs increased by 43 percent while the number on welfare rolls rose just 18 percent in a five-year period, according to an inspector general's report obtained by the Associated Press.

Taxpayers this year will spend $225 billion on 35 million welfare recipients.

The welfare system's bloated bureaucracy focuses its time and your money on rules determining whether each welfare recipient is eligible. However, the all-too-common reports of food stamps for junk food and welfare fraud prove that time and money is not well spent.

Social liberals in Congress have poured money into a welfare system that has ended up ballooning a bureaucratic structure. This isn't helping anyone--not taxpayers, not people on welfare, nor social workers struggling with a complex, bloated system.

Bill Clinton promised to "end welfare as we know it." However, President Clinton's preoccupation with putting all of health care under a federal bureaucracy may take the place of welfare reform this year. I believe we must reform the welfare system, now. The key to reform is personal responsibility.

Mothers must take responsibility to work for welfare and identify the father, who has responsibility to pay child support, whether or not he lives in the home. Government must take responsibility for protecting taxpayers by taking illegal aliens off welfare rolls and cut the cost of welfare.

We conservatives in Congress have a legislative plan of action for welfare reform. The recently disclosed report of bureaucratic costs running way ahead of welfare rolls is a red flag for action.

Recall what Franklin Roosevelt said in 1935 about government welfare programs: "To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit."

Lady Whitefaces turn over win to Lady Raiders

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor
The Lady Whitefaces picked a bad time to have a bad game. After winning Tuesday to start district off 1-0, the Hereford girls' basketball team committed scads of turnovers and lost to perennial district champion Randall on Friday, 53-33. The District 1-4A game was played in Whiteface Gym. Hereford is now 1-1 in district and 7-12 overall, while Randall is 2-0 and 10-9. Randall's mediocre record may have been a sign that Randall was ripe for an upset, but Hereford never got the chance to find out. "We were extremely uptight," Hereford coach Eddie Fortenberry said. "Our kids have never been in a spot like this, never been in a meaningful game, even though it's early in district. They were UP-tight."

Hereford only scored five points in the third quarter, and Randall stretched the lead to 39-17. The Herd got it together enough to score 16 in the fourth quarter, but Randall answered every shot.

Hereford was led by Mindi Davis' 12 points. Randall's Tracy Simms led all scorers with 22.

The turnovers came with amazing frequency. "I would venture to say, without looking at the stats, that we average 12 turnovers a game," Hereford coach Eddie Fortenberry said. "I think we had that in the first quarter. I know we had six in a row."

"(Randall) played good pressure man-to-man defense, and a lot of that caused the turnovers," Fortenberry said. "Offensively, it was probably our worst ball game yet."

In the junior varsity game preceding the varsity, Randall won 24-15.

In Lubbock Friday, the Hereford boys' team bowed to Estacado 81-61 in a non-district game. The Lady Whitefaces stayed with Randall through the first quarter until Randall's Tracy Simms hit a buzzer-beating three-pointer, and the Raiders led 15-8 going into the second quarter.

Fortenberry promised improvement. "We're better than that. We're much better than that, and we'll play better Tuesday night," he said. Petersburg comes to Hereford Tuesday.

Isaac Walker led Hereford with 18 points, with Benton Buckley close behind. Scott Burkhalter added eight points.

Hereford had four points--all free throws--in the entire second quarter. Turnover after turnover fueled an 8-0 Randall run, and the Lady Raiders weren't even hitting many shots. One bright spot for Hereford was that they dominated the defensive boards; when the Lady Raiders missed a shot, they rarely got a second chance.

Estacado raised its record to 15-4.

Ainge leads Suns to victory

By The Associated Press
Kevin Johnson was out with an injured shin. Charles Barkley was gone by halftime with a twisted knee. Dan Majerle's shot was AWOL.

So Phoenix coach Paul Westphal looked down his bench and saw Danny Ainge, a veteran guard averaging less than 10 points per game this season.

Horacek scored 23 points and rookie Shawn Bradley blocked a career-high nine shots for the 76ers.

"I felt it was up to me to try to make things go," Ainge said after scoring 34 points and hitting four of six 3-pointers in the Suns' 110-103 victory over Minnesota on Friday night. Ainge scored 14 points in the fourth quarter. 76ers 103, Mavericks 93 Dana Barros made 10 of 12 shots and scored 10 of his season-high 26 points during a decisive 13-6 fourth-quarter run as Philadelphia dealt Dallas its 15th consecutive home defeat. Clarence Weatherspoon had 25 points and 14 rebounds, Jeff Spurs 84, Nuggets 76 David Robinson had 18 points and 11 rebounds, and San Antonio held Denver scoreless in the final 3:58. The Spurs, who built a 19-point lead in the first half, saw the margin whittled to 79-76 with 3:58 to go, but the Nuggets didn't score again. Dale Ellis hit back-to-back medium-range jumpers to seal the outcome.

Ags' Adams to go pro

HOUSTON (AP) - All-American defensive lineman Sam Adams announced Friday he would skip his senior year at Texas A&M and make himself available for the NFL draft. Adams' announcement followed a similar declaration by running back Greg Hill on Thursday and came in the wake of this week's decision by the NCAA to place the Aggies on five years probation and ban them from bowls and television for one year. Adams said he discussed his options with A&M coach R.C. Slocum, defensive coordinator Bob Davie and his father, Sam Adams, Sr. "We decided that it was the best thing for Sam Adams and it had nothing to do with the school going on probation," Adams said. "If it wasn't good for me to come out, I'd have stayed" regardless of the probation.

Adams said he planned to return during the offseason to complete his degree at Texas A&M. "There was no emotion involved, it was a business decision and that's how you handle it," he said. "I'm proud of Texas A&M but I had to do what's best for me."

Adams was a finalist for the Lombardi Award as the nation's top college lineman. Adams led the Aggies with 78 tackles, 10 12 sacks, and 16 quarterback pressures and became the first defensive lineman to lead the Aggies in tackles since Ray Childress in 1983. Adams finished second with 20 12 career sacks to Childress' 25. Slocum said he expects Adams to be picked high in the NFL draft.

Sam Adams Sr. was an offensive lineman who played professionally for the New England Patriots and New Orleans Saints.

'Horns favored to take men's crown in SWC

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - There's turmoil at Baylor and excitement at Texas and Texas A&M. Houston has struggled under a new coach and defending champion Southern Methodist has been roughed up by some of the nation's best teams.

Welcome to the 1994 Southwest Conference men's basketball season. The season tips off Tuesday and the first key game comes Wednesday when Texas travels to College Station to play Texas A&M.

Don't laugh. In just three seasons, coach Tony Barone has pulled the Aggies from the shame of the Kermit Davis era. With all five starters returning this season, A&M is one of the conference's teams to watch.

The team to beat, however, is Texas. "I think it's going to be a competitive race, but you still have to look at Texas as the favorite," said Texas Tech coach James Dickey.

Although the Longhorns finished seventh in the SWC last year at 4-10, they've reloaded with a healthy and drug-free B.J. Tyler, transfers Tremaine Wingfield, Roderick Anderson and Rick McIver, and freshman Reggie Freeman.

Texas opened the season 6-5 (entering Wednesday's game vs. UTSA), a good record considering UT played No. 4 Kentucky, No. 16 Connecticut, No. 21 Illinois, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Utah, Florida and LSU.

The harsh schedule is typical for Longhorns coach Tom Penders, who tries boosting his chances for an at-large bid into the NCAA tournament by playing non-conference games against teams he expects to be in the tournament.

Judging by the opinions of most SWC coaches, Texas doesn't have to worry about an invitation into the tournament because it will likely get the automatic bid that goes to the league champion.

At least, that's the opinion of most everyone except Penders.

"I don't think it's going to be Texas and a bunch of other teams," he said. "I think we're going to have to play at the level we're at and better."

John Shumate's SMU Mustangs also were severely tested early this season.

Their non-conference schedule is so tough, Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson called it a "fire-the-coach" schedule because of a six-week, nine-game road stretch that included games against the No. 1 Razorbacks, Missouri, Arizona State and two against No. 4 Kansas.

Shumate laughed off Richardson's statement, saying he's looking forward to hosting most of those teams next year. Besides, his team has faced up to the challenge pretty well despite being 2-7 entering Saturday's rematch against the Jayhawks.

"Playing Arkansas prepares us for Kansas and Kansas prepares us for the opening of conference play," Shumate said. "I think all these steps are going to help us in the long-term and will make us a better conference team."

"We've been acquiring mental toughness. We've been competitive. We know what we have to do to get to the level where those teams are."

The Mustangs better learn a lot. Conference coaches picked the defending champs, who have only one returning starter in Chad Allen, to finish last.

The way things have gone so far, that dubious distinction may go to Houston, where first-year coach Alvin Brooks' cast of unknowns began the season 2-8.

"Going into this year, nobody could tell you who was on our roster other than Anthony Goldwire," Brooks said.

The most anonymous team is Baylor, where some of the players don't even know each other. Coach Darrel Johnson recently added a third walk-on just to get up to 10 players, but he insists the addition is "just primarily for practice reasons."

The Bears are missing Nelson Haggerty, who has a knee injury, and four junior college transfers. The juco players have yet to play under a joint agreement by the SWC and the school while allegations into their eligibility are being investigated.

Still, Baylor opened the season 8-2. "I don't know if I've ever been more proud of a group of youngsters," Johnson said. "This is nowhere near the team we planned to put on floor when season started. I'm amazed at how well they've adjusted and handled adversity to play up to their absolute best potential."

Rice coach Willis Wilson wishes he could get that same overachieving effort from his team.

"I think we've made more progress in practice than in games," Willis said. "I think that's what shows up in games later, come March."

Wilson took his first Owls squad to an 18-10 record last year, good enough for second in the SWC and a NIT bid. They lost in the second round and now have only two returning starters.

Texas Tech won the SWC post-season tournament last year to get into the NCAA tourney. Though they were bounced out 85-67 by St. John's, the success was enough to whet Dickey's appetite for success.

"We're working very hard to try improving," said Dickey, who put his team through two workouts a day the week before league play. "We want to make sure we're ready come next Wednesday."

Texas Christian was last in the league last year and may be back there again this season.

Texas Tech should repeat as SWC women's champs

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Anything can happen when Southwest Conference women's basketball teams face off this month.

For drama, the league boasts defending national champions Texas Tech, two first-year head coaches and a long lineup of whiz-bang rookies.

Coaches say they can't count on any opponent because freshmen and sophomores have reshaped virtually every SWC team.

"I think it's going to be the most fun conference race we've had in a long time because there are so many variables and question marks," said Texas coach Jody Conradt.

"On a given night anybody can beat anyone else," concurred Cristy McKinney of Rice.

The Lady Raiders, though, seem likely to keep the conference crown.

Texas Tech climbed into the nation's third highest ranking after beating Vanderbilt and Stanford to start the season. But a 92-82 overtime loss to Minnesota on Dec. 19 ended Tech's 24-game winning streak.

At 11-1, the Lady Raiders were ranked No. 6 nationally and have stifled speculation the team couldn't win without megastar Sheryl Swoopes.

"Texas Tech is the team to beat," McKinney said. "They're playing head and shoulders above everybody in the conference right now."

Key players for Tech include junior college transfer Connie Robinson and returning starter Noel Johnson.

Freshmen are dominating the Lady Longhorns squad, the only SWC team that beat Tech in 1993.

Texas earned its 7-2 record on the backs of sole veteran Nekeshia Henderson and three starting freshmen.

Danielle Vigione, a 5-10 freshman guard, leads the conference in both average scoring per game (21.9 points) and 3-point goals (four). Vigione hit 37 points in Texas' 96-80 victory over California on Dec. 30.

Freshman teammate Amie Smith's average 10.4 rebounds per game also leads the SWC.

"I've done more teaching than I've done probably at any time in my career," said Conradt, at Texas since 1976. "They're just like sponges: They want to know everything."

Conradt said she can't gauge how the conference stacks up because young players are giving most teams a different look. She predicted more precise shooting - especially 3-pointers - and hotter perimeter play throughout the conference.

Don't underestimate anyone in the SWC, she advised.

"It's a critical mistake from our perspective, if we start to talk about Tech and gear toward Tech, then you set yourself up," Conradt said.

Texas opens SWC play Tuesday at Texas A&M. Texas Tech plays host to Baylor on Wednesday, which is when Houston plays at Texas Christian and Southern Methodist plays at Rice.

The Lady Mustangs maintained their momentum from last year's second-place finish in the National Women's Invitational tournament by launching this season 7-0.

Senior forward Leslie Frazier scored 27 points and pulled down 14 rebounds in Southern Methodist's first loss, 99-72 to Oklahoma on Jan. 2.

First-year head coach Shell Robinson faces the task of turning around Texas Christian from its 1-13 SWC finish last year.

Texas Christian returns three starters, as does Rice, where McKinney also is in her first year at the coaching helm.

Rice reached its 6-3 record on the standout play of junior forward Brenda Conaway. The Horned Frogs have started the season 2-6, helped especially by junior guard Stephani Gray.

Baylor got off to a 5-3 start thanks to three returning starters, two of whom are sophomores.

Houston, meanwhile, started 5-5. Senior guard Michelle Harris scored 22 points in the Lady Cougars' 59-44 loss to No. 2 Iowa on Dec. 29.

The roster at Texas A&M (7-3) features 10 freshmen and sophomores. The league's tallest team has four starters back, including 1993 newcomer of the year Lisa Branch.

Aggie coach Lynn Hickey said she sees more parity this year in the conference and more respect from outside because of success by Texas Tech and others.

"Teams used to never say, 'Hey, this is a big win because we beat an SWC team,'" Hickey said. "Now they're saying it."

Cal Hubbard, a pro football lineman and also a major league umpire, is in both the Baseball and Pro Football Hall of Fame.

ISOLATED MASTER BED ROOM

Impressive Ranch Plan With Twin Gables

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

The covered front porch nestled between the twin dormers to the front provides access to a large foyer with open rail stair down to the basement. From this area you can obtain entry to almost every part of the home.

To the right are two bedrooms, each with its own private bath. One of the bathrooms connects to the hall for daytime use. To the left you will find a formal dining room with an octagon shaped tray ceiling. An entry is provided to the kitchen and breakfast areas from the dining room. The kitchen has an abundance of counter top and cabinets. There is also an island with down draft surface unit. The breakfast room is notably marked with a bay window.

From this area a short hall leads to the long laundry room with pantry and double garage access, the enormous screened porch, or the master bedroom suite.

The master bedroom suite is shown with a tray ceiling and triple windows overlooking the back yard. A large walk in closet with bountiful hanging space is provided. The master bath presents a step up garden tub that extends into a bay window, twin vanities, and a separate compartment for shower stall, linen storage and toilet.

The exterior of the home is brick with combined roof styles. Shutters compliment the design of the home.

Plan number 2556 includes 2,523 sq. ft. of heated space and is a computer generated plan drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements.

For further information on plan 2556, write W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc., P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Question/Answer

Q: My 550-gallon heating tank is 28 years old and is buried in front of my house. I've heard that a leaking tank can result in wallet-busting costs, especially if contaminated soil is the result. What is the typical life span of a residential heating oil tank? My oil consumption records contain no evidence of leakage.

The fact that your oil consumption records do not indicate a leak is misleading. Your tank could have started leaking at the rate of 1 gallon a year 15 years ago. A leak that small could easily be overlooked. Nevertheless, there now would be 15 gallons of oil contamination in the soil.

A: What you heard is correct. The cost for excavating, carting and dumping contaminated soil in an EPA-approved site can cost thousands of dollars. Depending on how much soil is contaminated, this can cost in the tens of thousands of dollars and could exceed $100,000.

A professional we know who tests buried oil tanks for leaks has found tanks that leak after only five years, although a steel tank usually lasts 15 to 20 years. Since your tank is 28 years old, you should have it tested for leakage. You might have to make several phone calls to get information on buried oil tanks. First, call your state's environmental agency.

Electrical device reduces dangers

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Special Features

Your best guarantee of safety while using electrical tools outside or in damp areas is to be sure that everything you use is plugged into a ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI). This electrical device instantly detects a hazardous situation and cuts the flow of power before a fatal shock is delivered.

It's true that current electrical codes require outside outlets and those in the bathroom and kitchen or in damp areas to be protected by a GFCI. New homes must have these protective devices, but homes built prior to 1974 have only grounded circuits with a circuit breaker or fuse protector. Neither is as safe as GFCI protection in conjunction with a fuse or circuit breaker.

Also, double-insulated tools and tools with a heavy-duty, three-wire grounded cord offer good protection against shock, but their safety feature can be interrupted by accident or improper use.

GFCI devices are inexpensive and easy to install. It's a simple job to add a GFCI to a three-wire cord. To do this, you replace the receptacle end of the cord with a GFCI receptacle housed in a weatherproof box.

A GFCI device senses current (amps) flowing to and from electrical tools and equipment. Under normal operating conditions, the current flowing to the tools is the same as that returning to the electrical panel. When a ground fault occurs, some of the current is diverted to the ground by a short somewhere in the circuit.

If the short is through you to the ground, you are in for a shocking experience. The GFCI senses current-flow imbalance - as little as 5 milliamps (which can't hurt most people) and shuts off current flow in a fraction of a second.

A GFCI can be added to a metal or plastic box. Metal exterior boxes come threaded for box connectors. Plastic boxes may be threaded, but many brands require an adapter. If you plan to use a plastic box, get the necessary plastic parts so the box can accept a standard clamp-type box connector.

Aside from the GFCI receptacle, you also need the following materials and tools: a 25-foot 14-2 extension cord (14-gauge wire, 2 wires with ground), a weatherproof rectangular outdoor box that accepts dual receptacles, a combination wire cutter and stripper, locking pliers and a screwdriver.

To make the GFCI extension cord, cut off the cord's receptacle, strip about one-half inch of insulation from the ends of the wires. Screw the connector into the end of the box and tighten with locking pliers.

Loosen the clamp on the box connector and pull about a foot of extension cord into the box, and connect the wires to the terminals. If you use a metal box, you have to ground it. To do this, run a short section of wire from the green screw on the GFCI receptacle to the ground screw inside the box. Use wire connectors to join the conductors to the GFCI receptacle if the receptacle is equipped with wire leads instead of terminal screws.

Pull the excess cord out of the box to make room for the GFCI receptacle. Make sure none of the cord's bare or insulated conductors is exposed outside the box. Tighten the screws on the box connector to clamp the cord in place and install the cover.

Water, Wildlife, Wetlands and Waste Worries

- Irrigated area overlying the Texas portion of the Ogallala Aquifer has decreased by more than 24 percent since 1974.
- Texas has 7.6 million to 8.9 million acres of wetlands—estimated at slightly fewer than half of what it had 200 years ago.
- The Endangered Species Act calls for strong measures to protect every species and population of species from extinction.
- Americans produce two pounds of waste per person per day. Most of this goes into landfills. More than half of U.S. cities have used up their existing landfills.

Mommies put time to use by creating children's cookbook

By JARYL YOUNG
Abilene Reporter-News
ABILENE, Texas (AP) - What can you do if you become bored with the everyday routine of being a homemaker?

That was the situation facing Sharon Weber and Les Raymond of Abilene.

An eight-to-five job would take too much time from their families. Both had done volunteer work and did not want to extend that time. They considered starting a business, but decided it would be too time consuming and, in the current economy, too risky.

"We thought and we thought; then late one night, Sharon called and said, 'Let's do a cook book!' I thought that sounded good," Mrs. Raymond said.

Both had collected recipes through the years from friends and relatives and had developed some recipes of their own. Their husbands are also good cooks and contributed some recipes.

Simultaneously they began working on a collection of family recipes and a book of recipes for kids. (Each woman has reared four.) The family cookbook is called "To Stir with Love."

"We started on my kitchen table, but we soon expanded to Les's gameroom covering her pool table and jacuzzi with pages of recipes," Mrs. Weber said.

Doing market research, the friends found there were few cook books designed for children. They wanted to assemble original recipes which were easy to read, simple to follow, and suited to children's tastes. The result was "Mommy Taught Me! A Cookbook for Little Cooks."

Mrs. Weber and Mrs. Raymond included only recipes they tested with their children. Mrs. Weber's daughter, Ashlee, and Raymond's daughter, Beth, helped their mothers remember some of the dishes they prepared together when the girls were younger.

"We targeted a market of children ages 5 to 12," Mrs. Raymond explained.

The language had to be simple and the format appealing. Abilene illustrator Toni Parker provided attractive drawings. The first printing was done in red to capitalize on the Christmas gift market.

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Tom Arnold says he's undisturbed by the revelations from his wife, Roseanne, that she had a lesbian affair, thinks of suicide every day and worked as a prostitute.

"In my own partying days, I paid for sex a couple of times," he said.

The "Roseanne" star made the disclosures in an interview with Vanity Fair Magazine. Her husband told TV Guide that he doesn't think the stories are as awful as they sound.

Arnold said that his wife has suicidal thoughts "more than the average person" and that she takes an antidepressant drug. But he said, "If I felt she was going to slit her wrists, I would make sure she was locked up in a hospital."

As for the affair, he said, "She was 12 years old. She had sex with another girl in the neighborhood. I don't know if I would call that a lesbian affair."

His wife went public about her experiences with prostitution so she could tell it in her own words, Arnold said. "There are three people who are writing books about her right now, including her sister Geraldine," he said.

The book is organized in sections, beginning with instructions before you cook and concluding with a certificate to be issued to the young cook when five recipes from the book are successfully completed. Other sections include breakfast recipes, main dishes, beverages, and desserts or snacks.

Entries have such creative names as "Flutter-Nutter" (a peanut butter and marshmallow sandwich), "Winter Tummy Warmer" (a hot fruit drink), and "Ants on a Hill" (rice cakes with raisins).

The ladies were determined that not only would they compile the recipes, but they would also publish the books, copyright them, handle all legal procedures, and market them. They established a business called 20th Street Enterprises, researched legal procedures for starting a business, and used local companies for production. They then selected retail outlets, primarily gift shops and specialty stores, across west and central Texas which they thought would best showcase their books.

"We started our business from the ground up using local resources," Mrs. Weber said. "People would be surprised what can be done in Abilene."

The children's cookbook will shortly go into its second printing. The authors are surprised at some of their customers. They expected young women or their parents to be the primary buyers, but a number of men have shown an interest in the book.

Mrs. Weber's 11-year-old son, Austin, uses the cookbook as does their illustrator's son.

Mrs. Weber says one customer told her, "I'm buying the book for my 21-year-old daughter who doesn't know how to cook yet."

Not only are they business partners, Mrs. Weber and Mrs. Raymond are also close friends. They are planning several other writing projects. They hope their successes will encourage other women to launch out and use their talents creatively in the business world.

Both Mrs. Weber and Mrs. Raymond are convinced that children need to learn such basic household tasks as cooking at an early age.

"We try to teach them the arts, scholastics, and religion; we insist the kids clean up their rooms; but many people try to keep the kids out of the kitchen because they get underfoot," Mrs. Weber said. "Les and I believe that if you start early, let them come in with you and watch; then let them do something simple, it's amazing how soon they are not in the way but they're helping."

Mrs. Raymond added, "Then the kids become very proud of what they can do."

The following recipes are copied verbatim from "Mommy Taught Me" ($10.95).

PEANUT BUTTER POCKETS

What you will need:
1 pita pocket (a special round kind of bread)
Peanut butter (plain works best)
1 banana

1. Slice the pita bread in half so that you have two "pockets"
2. Use a spoon to fill each pocket with about 2 teaspoons of peanut butter
3. Peel the banana and throw away the skin. Slice it into small slices.
4. Put 4 or 5 banana slices into each pita pocket. Lunch is served.

FLUTTER-NUTTER

What you will need:
1 Tablespoon peanut butter
1 Tablespoon marshmallow cream
2 slices bread

1. Spread peanut butter on slice of bread
2. Spread marshmallow cream on top of peanut butter
3. Place the other slice of bread on top.

Makes a yummy Flutter-Nutter sandwich!

WINTER TUMMY WARMER

What you will need:
2 cups prepared orange juice
4 cups apple-cranberry juice cocktail
1 Tablespoon sugar
2 cinnamon sticks

1. Pour the orange juice and apple-cranberry juice into a pan.
2. Add the sugar and cinnamon sticks and mix well (stir slowly).
3. Put the pan over a burner turned on high. Stir and cook until the mixture boils. When it boils, reduce the heat to low and let it simmer for 10 minutes. Stir occasionally.
4. Remove the cinnamon sticks and serve.

BROILED GRAPEFRUITS

What you will need:
1 grapefruit
2 Tablespoons brown sugar
12 teaspoon cinnamon sugar

1. Cut grapefruit in half on a cutting board. To cut properly, find the two spots on each side of the grapefruit. Cut straight down between these spots, not from one spot to the other.
2. Lay each grapefruit half on a broiling pan.
3. Sprinkle 1 Tablespoon brown sugar and 14 teaspoon cinnamon sugar on top of each grapefruit.
4. Place pan under broiler for about 1 minute, or until sugars begin to bubble.

The Hereford Brand—Sunday, January 9, 1994—Page 1B

Banner, Strafuss wed early Saturday night

Wedding vows were exchanged by Angela Raquel Banner and Rodney Carl Strafuss, both of Hereford, during an evening liturgy Saturday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Officiating for the marriage was Monsignor Orville Blum, pastor. Rev. Pat Carathers of St. Ann's Catholic Church in Canyon celebrated the ceremony and provided the couple with the nuptial blessing. Deacon Leroy Behnke of Shallowater served as homilist and Brother Denis Sennett of Garrison, N.Y. was the lector.

The bride is the daughter of Mark and Janie Banner and the bridegroom is the son of Carl and Joan Strafuss, all of Hereford.

The church was decorated in a Christmas setting. The altar was adorned with poinsettias and lighted pine trees, and the pews were decorated with red and green plaid bows. Greenery was hung in the archways and back of church.

Cecilia Reis of Lubbock served as maid of honor and Chad Strafuss, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's sisters, Renee and Melanie Banner, and the bride's aunts, Rhonda Cromey of Grapevine and Melinda Reinart of Irving. Also, serving as bridesmaids were Marty Heflin of Amarillo and Trina Broman of Vega.

Groomsmen were Coby Kriegshauser, John Keating of Wichita, Kan., Dennis Detten, Tony Yosten, Randy Broman of Vega and Mark Paetzold.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brother, Marcus Banner, Kyle Williams of Canyon, Todd Taylor and Brian Paetzold of San Jose, Calif.

The bride's cousins, Abigail and Camille Caperton, were flower girls. They are the daughters of Doug and Nancy Caperton.

Greeting guests were Bill and Linda Dominguez, Ed and Leona Schilling, Ralph and Judy Detten and Lupe and Janie Chavez. As greeters, they distributed wedding programs designed by Mary Rhoades of Bedford.

Registering guests were the bridegroom's nieces, Lauren McNutt and Brionne Yosten.

Photographing the event was the bride's uncle, Jim Banner of Amarillo.

"Friends," "He Has Chosen You for Me," "We Are Called," "City of God," and "I Say Yes My Lord" were vocalized by Laura Schlabs, cousin of the bridegroom, and Bill Sava of Dimmitt. Providing piano accompaniment were Denise Detten and Greg Coplen.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditionally styled Galina gown of polyschantung with lavish details on the ballgown silhouette. Appliques of delicate alonson lace encrusted with sequins and bridal pearls enhanced the rounded neckline and short bishop pearl-edged sleeves. The gown had a basque bodice attached to a graceful chapel-length train.

To complete her attire, the bride chose a pearl and floral half wreath headpiece highlighted with a pouf and two-tiered silk illusion veil.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

In keeping with the bridal tradition, the bride wore as something old, her grandmother's pearls; something new, her dress; and something borrowed, the bridal veil belonging to the groom's sister, Sandra Eady. She also carried a blue sapphire and diamond necklace, a gift from the groom, which was entwined in the bridal bouquet.

Bridal attendants were attired in knee-length, forest green velvet gowns with rounded necklines. Short bishop sleeves were attached to the fitted bodices. They carried single red roses surrounded with greenery and baby's breath, tied with ribbon.

During the marriage celebration and mass, the godchildren of the couple brought flowers to the altar. They included Blake Yosten and Andrew Caperton of Hereford, Alex Albracht of Amarillo and Janna Williams of Boise City, Okla.

Gift bearers were Brenda Yosten, Sandra Eady of Lubbock and Sharon de Bruyn of Madison, N.J. They are sisters of the groom.

Serving as Eucharistic Ministers were the bride's parents, Mark and Janie Banner, Nick and Marian Yosten and Charlotte Strafuss of Vega.

A reception, dinner and dance were held at St. Anthony's School auditorium. The hall was decorated by friends and family of the bride and groom with burgundy and forest green balloons, ribbon and tulle. The head table was adorned with floating candles surrounded by greenery while the guest tables were decorated with burgundy and forest green streamers.

Cake was served by Renee Sublett, Jessica Fulgham, Jill Banner, Kasi Reinart and Jenny Jones.

The all-white bride's cake contained four elevated tiers adorned with pearls and graceful garlands. It was topped by a keepsake gold Chi Rho cross, a symbol of everlasting unity. The three-tiered fountain below was surrounded by an arrangement of fresh flowers with gold ribbons flowing from the arched pillars to the four side cakes. Each of these cakes were topped with mini bouquets and also adorned with pearls and garlands. The bride's table was decorated with forest green, burgundy and white balloons and ribbons, and a white and burgundy lattice was placed behind the table.

The groom's chocolate cake featured a football field and the Dallas Cowboys. It was titled "The Texas Superbowl." The groom's table was decorated with blue and white balloons, Dallas Cowboy stars and a blue and white lattice hung behind the table.

The Grand March was led by Kenny and Suzy Fangman, cousins of the bride.

MRS. RODNEY CARL STRAFUSS
...nee Angela Raquel Banner

The couple left for a honeymoon to Santa Fe, N.M. They will make their home in Hereford.

The bride is a senior mathematics major at West Texas A&M University. The groom farms and ranches north of Hereford.

Wedding guests represented Kansas, Oklahoma, Georgia, New Jersey, New York, Colorado, California, Houston, Dallas, Muenster, Laredo and Midland.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was held Friday evening at K-Bob's Steak House.

One of my chief regrets during my years in the theater is that I couldn't sit in the audience and watch me.-- John Barrymore

"Volunteers" are the eyes, the ears, the hands, and feet of God! For the last nine years our family has witnessed the power and benefits in the lives of others through BB/BS volunteers. Sanders, Blankenship united in marriage

Amarillo residents, Wendy Sanders and Richard Blankenship, were united in marriage Saturday evening, Jan. 1, in the Hereford Church of the Nazarene. The Rev. Ted Taylor of the church officiated. The bride is the daughter of Kit and Judy Sanders of Route 5, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Larry and Karen Blankenship of Borger.

Decorating the church altar were two spiral candelabra, an arch candelabrum with white mums and the traditional unity candle. Two arrangements of white roses were placed at the front of the church and the pews were marked by candles and white bows.

The bride was presented in marriage by her parents.

The bride's sister, Holly Fields of El Paso, served as matron of honor and the groom's father, Larry Blankenship, was best man.

Kari Sanders of Hereford was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Tracy Pitts of Amarillo and Mary Ruth Rogers of Warner Robbins, Ga. Groomsmen were the groom's brother-in-law, Steve McDonald, and Jimmy Chadwick and Randy Kitch, both of Amarillo.

Serving as ushers were Todd Pitts of Amarillo and the bride's brother, Brad Sanders of Hereford.

Flower girl was Sadie Pitts, daughter of Todd Pitts of Amarillo. Ring bearer was Joshua Rogers, son of Richard and Mary Ruth Rogers of Warner Robbins, Ga.

Candles were lit by Sloane, Noelle and Teel Merrick, daughters of Garth and Susie Merrick.

Kathy Burrison, pianist, accompanied Susie Merrick, Randy Burrison, and Melanie Dzierba and Samantha Kitch, both of Amarillo, as they sang "I See Jesus in You" and "Love is the Reason."

The bride wore an elegant designer's gown of white bridal satin. It was fashioned with a V-shaped neckline edged with scalloped lace and a fitted bodice embellished with floral lace and miniature seed pearls. The bouffant sleeves were marked with satin bows and accented with matching lace appliques and seed pearls. The full skirt was marked at the back by a large designer bow and was adorned with lace and satin bows. The skirt swept into a chapel-length train which was also edged with scalloped lace.

In her hair, the bride wore a headpiece accented with pearl sprays and white miniature flowers. The organza veil formed a pouf at the crown.

She carried white roses and greenery and wore her grandmother's gold watch. She also carried a handkerchief which was hand-made by her great-grandmother.

Bridal attendants wore black velvet mid-calf length dresses. The top of the ensembles were fitted and featured scoop necklines at the front and back. The dresses also featured puffy sleeves and wrap bottom skirts marked with white satin bows.

The groom's sisters, Kim Cole of Amarillo and Christy McDonald of Borger, invited guests to register.

The reception and buffet supper were held in the church fellowship hall.

Cake was served by Samantha Kitch of Amarillo, Angie Sauls of Amarillo and Sabre Brownlow of Hereford. Punch and coffee were poured by Amarillo residents, Kelly Welch and Angie Whigham.

The menu for the buffet consisted of shrimp cocktail, brisket, asparagus wrapped with ham, cheese and fruit trays.

The bride's black and white cake was created by three tiers with black and white flowers placed on top of each layer.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Keystone, Colo., the bride wore a two-piece blue velvet dress with beige and pink floral overlays.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride is a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School and attended West Texas A&M University and Amarillo College. She is employed by Boatman's First National Bank in Amarillo.

The groom, a 1986 graduate of Borger High School, graduated from WTA&M in 1990 with a bachelors degree in accounting. He is employed as a CPA with Ault and Associates Accounting Firm in Amarillo.

Out of town wedding guests included J.C. and June Tipton, Laverne Blankenship and Steve and Kristi McDonald, all of Borger; J.W. Jr. and Sue Fields of El Paso; and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Fields and Zach, also of El Paso.

A bridesmaids' luncheon honoring the bride and the bridal party was held Friday prior to the wedding at the Hereford Country Club. The bride's chosen colors of black and white were carried out in the table decorations and favors for the guests.

At the event, the bride was presented with a wedding album created by Mary Ruth Rogers of Warner Robbins, Ga. The luncheon was hosted by Mary Ruth Rogers and Mary Jo Hamman.

Those attending the luncheon were Tracy and Sadie Pitts of Amarillo; Holly Fields of El Paso; Melanie Dzierba of Amarillo; Samantha Kitch and Kim Cole of Amarillo; Kristi McDonald; Laverne Blankenship; June Tipton and Karen Blankenship of Borger; Kari and Judy Sanders; Johnnie Sanders, and Susie, Noelle and Sloane Merrick, all of Hereford; the honoree; and the hostesses.

Calendar facts, fancies

Most people in the Western world use the Gregorian calendar, worked out in the 1580s by Pope Gregory XIII. It has 12 months, 11 of them with 30 or 31 days. The other month, February, normally has 28 days. Every fourth year, called a leap year, has 29 days. In century years that cannot be divided by 400, however, the extra day in February must be dropped.

The Hebrew calendar, according to tradition, was supposed to have started with the Creation, at a moment 3,760 years and three months before the beginning of the Christian era. To find the year in the Hebrew calendar, add 3,760 to the date in the Gregorian calendar.

Hereford Chamber Singers forming a 'reunion' choir

Members of the Hereford Chamber Singers are beginning a year of events to celebrate their 20th anniversary. All former and present members of the group will form a "reunion" choir to sing for the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Banquet scheduled March 3.

First practices for the choir will be held at 8 p.m. today, Sunday, in the Hereford High School choir room. The reunion choir will practice for the first hour of the rehearsals, and the second hour will be used by the remainder of the group to practice music for a spring concert to be given later. All former members of the Chamber Singers are encouraged to come and be a part of this special group.

This community choir was formed in 1974 with Bill Devers as the director. Initial encouragement and sponsorship was given by Bud Eades, Berta Otlesen, and Bill Albright, who was serving as the executive director of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Members include persons from diverse occupations and musical abilities.

The Chamber Singers has represented Hereford in Austin, San Antonio, Seminole, Lubbock, Amarillo, Borger, Canyon, Brisbane, Australia and in the country of Romania. It was formed to give adults an opportunity to sing outside of a church choir and to provide entertainment for its listeners.

Bill Devers will again be directing the group for its special anniversary and Dee Anne Trotter will be the piano accompanist. Bobby Boyd serves as president of the board of directors.

Auditions for additional members to the Chamber Singers will be held at 2 p.m. Jan. 16 in the choir room of First United Methodist Church.

Do your part when recycling

Across the nation, everyone is recycling to help preserve our natural resources and keep our environment clean.

Car batteries are the most recycled product in our country. Nearly 97 percent of all lead car batteries are recycled every year.

The widespread recycling of lead batteries is encouraged by laws in 42 states that make recycling mandatory. Retailers play an important role by recycling all used car batteries brought in by consumers to be replaced. If you replace your own car battery, make sure you drop it off at any service station or retailer that sells car batteries to guarantee your battery becomes part of the recycling stream.

Be sure to follow these safety tips when handling your old battery:

-Keep sparks and flames away from the battery and don't smoke nearby.

-Never place metal objects on top of the battery. Remove rings, chains and other metallic items before handling.

-Wear safety glasses or goggles when working with lead batteries.

-Keep the battery right-side-up and carry in a non-metallic, leak-proof container.

-Do not place excessive pressure on the ends of the battery. Use a battery carrier or lift the battery carefully, with your hands placed on opposite corners.

When following these safety tips, recycling lead batteries couldn't be safer or easier.

Two bureaus of the U.S. Department of the Treasury manufacture currency. The Bureau of the Mint makes coins and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing produces paper money.

-Thank You-

I would like to thank 911 & the Fire Department for their quick response to my grease fire, back in June.

Thanks a Million!

Sincerely,

June Henderson

Mejia, Aguilar vows spoken at St. Anthony's

Wedding vows were exchanged by Cynthia Mejia and Jess (J.J.) Aguilar Jr., both of Hereford, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 26, 1993, in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Deacon Jonny Cloud of the church officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Patricio and Diane Mejia of 214 Ave. J. and the bridegroom is the son of Edward and Sara Gallagher of 709 Baltimore and Mr. and Mrs. Jess

Quisenberry auditions for all-region

Big Spring High School student, Jacob Quisenberry, son of Tom and Ruth Quisenberry of Big Spring, and grandson of June Koelzer of Hereford, auditioned recently in Odessa for All-Region Band. He earned 12th chair French horn out of 27.

Approximately 130 students, as many as make up Big Spring High School's band, are in All-Region Band. The region encompasses the Permian Basin, stretching as far west as Pecos. Big Spring is in the eastern border of the region.

Ten other students from BSHS auditioned but did not make the cut. Band Director Steve Hankins said the students were competing not only against other Division 4A schools but also against 5A schools such as Midland Lee.

While taking private lessons, Quisenberry used college or professional level music to begin preparing for the All-Region Band. He is a sophomore and plans to audition again next year.

Handwriting tips offered

There is nothing like a personal note to spread warmth.

However, sloppy handwriting can turn writing cards and letters into a dreaded chore. Zaner-Bloser, the world's leading publisher of handwriting textbooks, offers these tips to make correspondence more legible and more enjoyable.

-Experiment with several different pens to find the one that best complements your script.

-Don't hold your pen or pencil in a death grip. Hold it firmly, but gently.

-Hold your pen or pencil at least one inch up from the tip. You'll have more control and better line formation.

-Let your arm guide your hand—not the other way around. Use your arm to make larger, smoother strokes.

-Lefties: Try slanting the page so that the lower right-hand corner is in front of your midsection. Writing at this angle will keep your wrist from covering what you've just written and prevents you from having to hook your left hand to reveal the lines.

-Having trouble keeping your lines straight? Use a ruler to help keep handwriting uniform and legible.

-Try making letters a little larger. Bigger strokes open up your writing, making it easier to read.

Thomas Edison opened up his first workshop in Newark, N.J. when he was just 23 years old.

In 1869, Ulysses S. Grant was sworn in as president, the last stake was driven in the transcontinental railroad and a business formed in Camden, NJ that would one day serve as a symbol of Americana: Campbell Soup Co.

Aguilar Sr. of Andrews.

The church altar was decorated with poinsettias and candelabra flanked the plants. Also, adorning the church were Christmas trees placed around a manger scene.

The bride's father presented his daughter in marriage.

The groom's sister, Malena Aguilar, served as maid of honor and Gabriel Medrano was best man.

Serving as bridesmaids were Annie Ledezma, the groom's aunt; Rosie Medrano; Ruth Marie Aguilar, the groom's sister; Mary Cortez, the groom's aunt; Jennifer Mejia, the bride's sister; Crystal Mejia, the bride's sister; and Monica Don Juan.

Groomsmen were Ysabel Ledezma, the groom's uncle; Gabriel Medrano; Ken Courville; Tony Cortez, the groom's uncle; Elias Reyna, Marcelo Perez and Quirino Mariscal.

Guests were escorted by Mark Kuper and Stacey Sanders.

Junior attendants were Raquel Guzman and Louie Alejandre.

Flower girl was Patricia Mejia, daughter of Patricio and Diane Mejia, and ring bearer was Taylor Medrano, son of Gabriel and Rosie Medrano.

Candles were lit by the bridal couple's mothers.

Raul Guerrero, accompanied by pianist Edward Gallagher, sang "Here I Am."

The bride wore a gown of white satin decorated with pearls and sequins set upon corded lace. The decor began at the shoulder line and traveled down to the natural waistline. The gown was fashioned with puffed sleeves that were decorated with lace and limited sequins and pearls, and the center of the sleeves were enhanced with cascading pearl strands. The back bodice was designed with lace, sequins and pearls down to a candy box bow that was adorned with pearls and sequins. The skirt was trimmed with lace appliques and pearls and lace and limited pearls and sequins encircled the cathedral-length train.

In her hair, the bride wore a delicate crown headpiece designed with cascading pearls and sequins. She carried white roses, miniature blue roses and miniature pearls.

The bride also carried the groom's grandmother's blue linen handkerchief.

Bridal attendants were attired in midnight blue satin dresses with falling white ruffled collars. Mary Gallagher of Clayton, N.M. provided the flowers.

The groom's sister, Malena Aguilar, invited guests to register at the reception held in St. Anthony's School gym. It was decorated with three eight-foot balloon hearts and small white balloons.

Teresa Munoz and Gracie Gamez served cake, and punch was poured by Maria Ontiveros.

Others assisting at the reception were Rose Nava, T.D. Davila, Mari Gamez and Gabriela Gamez.

The table was covered with a white linen cloth and decorated by three blue bows with a six-foot balloon heart placed in the background. The white cake was decorated with blue roses and was placed over a fountain. The cake was topped by two hearts.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Amarillo.

The bride is a 1993 Hereford High School graduate and is employed in the nursery at the Church of the Nazarene.

The groom, also a 1993 HHS graduate, is a private in the United States Marine Corp. He will attend MCT School at Camp Pendleton in San Diego, Calif.

Wedding guests included Lozero Ledezma of Brady; Emma Bosquez of San Antonio; Alice Ledezma of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Ramirez of Amarillo; Rebecca Ledezma of Austin, Ysabel Ledezma Jr. of San Marcos; and Michelle Patrick of Big Spring.

By JOE WEAVER

A new year. A new month. We have some new and exciting things for you in January. For starters, as usual with a new month, we have new displays. Since this is playoff time, Seth Pietssek is displaying part of his collection of Dallas Cowboys paraphernalia. Seth is a rabid Cowboy fan, as one would have to be to wear an inflatable helmet such as he is. The son of Charlene Pietssek, he is a sixth-grader at West Central, and is active in YMCA sports and at First Baptist Church. His "big brother" is Tommy Rosson and he has just about the best uncle in the world.

Our other displayer is Robin Barrick who, with her sister, began collecting (or is it accumulating?) Legos for 6 or 7 years. I have never seen most of these set-ups, and I find the resort particularly interesting (have you ever seen Lego monkeys?) Robin is the daughter of Rick and Melody Barrick (who I'll bet have stepped on a few Legos in their day, if personal experience is any indication.) and is a fifth-grader at West Central. If memory serves me correctly, she likes to read any good fiction.

We are excited to have an art display this month. Beverly Wilson has been working in oils for almost four years and is exhibiting some of her Southwestern scenes and landscapes.

Another regular feature is our Family Film, this month a Roy Rogers Marathon, featuring two half-hour episodes starring the King of the Cowboys, plus some cartoons and comedy shorts.

Our big news for January is our Video Projector. We will introduce the projector to the community in a ceremony and screening on January 17. There will be refreshments compliments of the Friends of the Library, some comments, and a showing of a new family video entitled Secret of Treasure Mountain, a "Buttercream Gang" adventure for the whole family. The public is invited to attend this event.

Of course you're wanting to know what books are in for 1994. Here is a look at a few of this week's entries: Stuart Woods, author of L.A. Times and Santa Fe Rules uses the public's current fixation with stalking as a basis for Dead Eyes his current thriller. Actress Chris Callway's "Admirer" switches from sending her roses to more macabre offerings, and efforts to unmask the villain prove frustrating to cops and other interested parties.

Death of the Office Witch. A Halloween tale? A secret wish? More than that, it's the title of a new mystery by Marlys Millhiser. It seems that the dead, sharp-tongued receptionist really WAS the office WITCH. If you know what I mean. Sort of a Halloween tale--secret wish--mystery story all rolled into one.

There has been a resurgence in the Addams Family since the movies have reproduced them, but most have forgotten that it was the cartoons by Charles Addams, rather than the TV show of the '60s that spawned them. Some of Addams more bizarre cartoons have been republished in a collection called My Crowd.

For you home fix-it types we have a set of three "All Thumbs Guides To..." do-it-yourself books: one for home wiring, one for repairing major appliances, and one for plumbing. Now you have no excuse for not installing that electric toilet you got for Christmas!

And what would a new year be without a book like this, On This Day is sort of a book of days, only more interesting than any I have seen. It is "a collection of over 8,000 events for every day of the year, including trivia, quotations, news in brief, anniversaries, and birthdays." I'm a little suspicious of its reliability, however--there was no listing of any birthdays on April 29 past 1936. They obviously overlooked the most important one nearly fort--I mean, several years ago.

It's going to be a good year and...oh, yes...Happy Birthday, Matthew Baird!

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Howard Stern's raunchy New Year's Eve bash may have been the most profitable pay-per-view entertainment event ever, but Stern may end up paying a high price for his success.

The "Miss Howard Stern New Year's Eve Pageant" reportedly has given Fox Broadcasting Co. second thoughts about installing radio's "shock jock" as its new late-night talk show host.

Stern's show - featuring nudity and profanity - outdrew the 1990 New Kids on the Block concert that had ranked No. 1 among pay-per-view entertainment shows, the show's producer said.

NEW YORK (AP) - Bruce Springsteen says he agreed to write the opening song to "Philadelphia" to help the movie's message of tolerance reach a broad audience.

In the movie, directed by Jonathan Demme, Tom Hanks plays a high-powered lawyer who is fired when his employer learns he has AIDS. It is Hollywood's first major movie about the disease.

"Demme called me and said, 'I made this picture and I want it to play in the malls,'" Springsteen said Wednesday. "I'm some salt on the steak."

The first stanza of Springsteen's "Streets of Philadelphia" ends, "Oh brother, are you gonna leave me wasting away on the streets of Philadelphia?"

ADVERTISING AND ECO-MARKETING

Advertising, among other things, influences our wants and "creates" needs. While it provides information about new and improved products, it is also often very successful at getting us to buy things we don't really need.

Advertisers rely on a few current themes--happiness, youth, status, success, luxury or convenience and beauty. The convenience theme is especially prevalent in marketing products. One example is toilet bowl cleaners that hang inside the toilet. A second example is "time saving" instant/microwaveable meals (many of which also include a non-reusable microwave dish), which are becoming more common on the grocery shelves. Besides time-saving products, disposable products, from a marketing point of view, are golden apples. It ties the act of using with the act of using up. In this society then, waste results as an inherent part of the consumption process.

The goal of some eco-marketing campaigns is to market products, but they often have little bearing on the environmental soundness of the product's packaging. Common eco-marketing terms for products and packaging include the following:

- Biodegradable
- Environment Friendly
- CFC-free
- 100 percent recyclable
- Earth Friendly
- Bio-green
- Made of recycled content

So-called "green products" grew 20 times faster than other packaged goods from 1985 to 1990. In 1990, Advertising Age reported that 82 percent of those surveyed had changed their buying decisions because of environmental claims regarding the products. Another survey showed that two of the most popular products selected as better for the environment were "degradable" plastic bags and "CFC-free" personal care products.

Degradability has been recent eco-marketing theme for plastic bags, disposable diapers, paper bags and a variety of paper and plastic packaging. Yet, whether or not a product degrades has little impact on our solid waste problems.

First, the term "degradable" is meaningless, as there is no established standard that industry must meet to label a product or package "degradable." As with the term "natural food" in food product labeling, the term "degradable" has no bearing on the content of the product or package.

Very little of our garbage degrades in today's modern landfills. Current standards require that landfills be built and operated so that the ingredients needed for biodegradation (air and water) are almost absent. Recently excavated landfills have yielded 40-year-old newspapers with legible print. Even paper, a product that breaks down easily in the backyard compost pile, barely degrades in modern landfills.

Third, even if some garbage does degrade in a landfill, is degradability a goal we should be striving for in designing products and packaging? Not according to our national and state legislatures, which have adopted waste reduction and recycling as the highest priorities for solid waste management. Considering this, we should design our packages and products to reduce waste in production and manufacturing, to be reusable and to be recyclable. This reduces waste and saves limited energy and natural resources.

Finally, "degradable plastic" hinders efforts to recycle various plastics. Because the resin in degradable plastics are mixed with other ingredients, such as corn starch, degradable plastics are not compatible with many types of plastics being collected for recycling.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

MR. AND MRS. N.D. BARTLETT

Reception scheduled for former residents

Former Hereford residents, N.D. and Ruth Bartlett, who have residences in Kingsland and Canyon, will be honored at a reception from 2-4 p.m. today, Sunday, at the home of their children, Doug and Mary Bartlett, 129 Kingwood. The couple will be observing their 60th wedding anniversary.

All friends are invited to the reception.

The former Ruth Elizabeth Tunnell and N.D. Bartlett, Jr. were married

Jan. 6, 1934, in Lovington, N.M. They resided in Hobbs, N.M. where N.D. started the Dr. Pepper Bottling Co. In 1944, the couple moved to Deaf Smith County where they were engaged in farming and ranching. In 1947, N.D. established a construction business in Hereford. He later was a land developer in Hereford and Amarillo.

The Bartletts are members of the Church of Christ in Canyon. They moved from Hereford in 1984.

How to help a grieving friend

For many people, expressing sympathy and helping friends and family through the grieving period is awkward at best. It doesn't have to be. Just remember that people who have lost a loved one need to know that they're still loved and cared for and that they have someone to talk to about their loss.

Florist experts have helped people express their emotions for many years, in good times as well as bad. The florist professionals say that there are many floral options available these days to express sympathy, including the personalized floral tribute. They encourage family members to reminisce about the deceased, bring in mementos of their loved one and discuss his or her favorite colors, flowers and hobbies.

Flowers serve as a symbol of caring and provide invaluable comfort to the family. They honor the departed and provide a symbol of new life for the living. Heartwarming floral arrangements and blooming plants sent to the bereaved family's home instead of, or in addition to, the funeral home are especially welcome and appreciated.

Here are some additional actions you might consider to help a friend or relative through the grieving process:

-Don't be afraid to mention the deceased's name--it's important to reassure the bereaved that you haven't and won't forget their loved one.

-Remember anniversaries, birthdays and special occasions. A phone call, card or floral delivery will certainly brighten up the day.

-Help them through Mondays--the toughest day of the week. A single rose, a blooming plant or a bunch of daisies is certain to cheer him or her up.

-Invite them over for a meal or take them out--loss of appetite is common during the grieving period and a change of scenery and some company might be the perfect stimulant.

-Offer to help with chores--trips to the grocery store or dry cleaners can be overwhelming.

-Include them in holiday celebrations. Many people who are grieving don't feel like celebrating, but being alone during a holiday can be even more depressing.

Began some 35 years ago and largely completed by the late 1970s, these 42,000 miles of four-lane and six-lane roads provide us with quick, comfortable access to major holiday locations. We can reach our destinations in rapid time and then veer off to the "scenic byways."

As remarkable as it may seem, the cost of gasoline (adjusted for inflation) is less today than it was 30 or so years ago.

Thank You

I would like to take this time to thank God, Dr. Khurt & his wonderful staff for bringing me thru my double surgery. Thanks to the Nurses for their great care. Thanks to my loving family & friends for their prayers, moral support, flowers and cards.

Sincerely,
June Henderson

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best.

You can show it. Describe it.

Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

Innovative approach addresses root of homeless problem

Did you know that 750,000 people are without a place to sleep tonight? Experts say almost two million people drift in and out of homelessness every year.

For most Americans, the problem is traumatic. What we don't often realize is that homelessness is also self-perpetuating. How? Once homeless, an "aura" of undesirability prevents individuals from finding reasonable work, housing or medical treatment.

A number of government efforts have been launched with the intent of reducing the daily hardships faced by the homeless. Once proposed bill, H.R. 697, calls for emergency supply appropriations for the homeless, as authorized in the Stewart McKinney Homeless Assistance Act.

On the corporate front, a growing number of companies have launched programs tailored to local homeless needs. Fannie Mae, in conjunction with 50 metropolitan Washington, D.C., companies, raised more than $400,000 during the 1992 "Help the Homeless Week," and dozens of other businesses have engaged in efforts to combat the homeless problem in their regions.

Bell Atlantic Mobile, a national cellular service provider, is another example of a corporation reaching out to serve the homeless on a national level. Bell Atlantic Mobile has teamed with non-profit homeless outreach organizations such as the Salvation Army and Travellers Aid to institute a nationwide program entitled Bell Atlantic HopeLine.

Designed to break the cycle of homelessness, HopeLine helps job seekers get back on their feet. The region-by-region effort teams the homeless and their case workers with free access to voice mailboxes.

How does this service address the problems of being homeless. Since the homeless are not only without a home and address, but also without a telephone number, they have no means to contact, or be contacted by, a potential employer, landlord or doctor.

HopeLine is designed to help the homeless develop "audio resumes," respond to messages from potential employers and landlords, and get tips on how to cinch jobs and find affordable housing. Homeless job seekers consult with case workers every week to develop job skills and hone their interview tactics. The case workers oversee the entire process until their "clients" are placed.

Since its inception this summer, HopeLine has been successful in helping dozens of homeless job seekers find employment and housing in cities throughout the country. One of HopeLine's committed proponents, Francine Leahy of the Travellers Aid Society of Rhode Island says, "By placing people in jobs--instead of donating money--HopeLine offers a more permanent solution to homelessness."

HopeLine is currently available in areas of Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, South Carolina and Washington, D.C. Soon, the service will be offered in all of Bell Atlantic Mobile's cellular service regions including areas in Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Connecticut and North Carolina.

TORI IRLBECK, TODD MARNELL

Wedding date set

Tulia residents, Tori Gae Irlbeck and Todd Alan Marnell, plan to wed March 12 in First Presbyterian Church in Tulia.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Albert and Jan Irlbeck of Tulia and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Jim and Christine Marnell of Route 1, Hereford.

Miss Irlbeck graduated from Tulia High School in 1988. She graduated summa cum laude from Texas Tech University in 1992 with a B.A. degree in biochemistry. She is involved in Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority and is currently a second year medical student at U.T. Southwestern Medical School in Dallas.

Marnell is a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School and graduated from West Texas A&M University in 1990 with a B.S. degree in agricultural business and economics. He is currently the manager of Goodpasture, Inc. in Tulia.

We are no longer condemned to suffer the uneven programming of local radio stations as we drive throughout the country. We now simply slip in a cassette or CD to enjoy our favorite music or listen to the reading of a great book.

Stringent emissions controls on cars and greater regulation of our smoke-producing industries have brought a measure of relief from the worsening condition of our roadside air first noticed some 35 years ago. There is, of course, much remaining to do in this area.

Consolidate those credit cards

If your family holds a number of different credit cards, you may want to think about consolidating them. This will simplify your record keeping, reduce the number of bills you pay each month and save you money by eliminating paying annual fees on several cards.

In choosing a card look for extra benefits, such as frequent flyer miles which can earn you miles toward free travel with each purchase.

One that could fit this bill is the new VISA card from The Chase Manhattan Bank (USA) in conjunction with British Airways. Designed specially for travelers, the card offers low fees and rates, all the traditional VISA services and benefits as well as frequent flyer mileage credits for each purchase.

Frequent flyer miles can also be earned by flying on British Airways, USAir or Alaska Airlines, by staying at participating hotels, by renting a car from Hertz or by using currency exchange at Travelex. The Chase/British Airways VISA also has two special features:

-Householding. This means that up to four people living in the same household can have the miles they earn credited to one frequent flyer account, even if they have separate Chase/British Airways VISA accounts. This allows awards to be earned faster.

-Awards on more than one airline. The free travel awards are not limited to British Airways. They can be used on USAir, American Airlines and Alaska Airlines as well. This means you can fly to 150 destinations in 71 countries and over 200 cities throughout the US and the Americas.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

THE NUMBERS GAME

Steven's business has shown steady sales increases for the last three years. Each year as his accountant figures his taxes, Steven hopes that this will be a big year for personal income. However, though sales increased again, net income is much lower than last year. Steven is frustrated and wonders how his business can continue to grow and yet produce less profit. He finds all of this financial stuff confusing.

Carey's venture, though only 18 months old, has more than doubled in size. When she went to the bank to get a small loan to purchase larger equipment, her banker asked several questions she couldn't answer.

Later, she quizzed her brother who had taken an accounting class in college. "What is a 'PNL' and a 'balance statement?'" she asked. Her brother couldn't remember.

Lou and Barbara just bought a retail store. The previous owner told them that he used a multiplier of 1.45 to set prices. Lou wants to know what percentage markup that represents, and Barbara wonders if their prices are too high. The big discount store down the street sells several of the same items for less.

The real world

Welcome to the real world of financial management. Defined simply, financial management is a process where the manager of a business uses the numbers generated by the business to make operational decisions.

We've worked with nearly 2,000 small business clients at West Texas A&M University's Small Business Development Center. We know financial management is an area that many business owners and managers struggle with. Profit and loss statements (P and L's), balance sheets and cash flow statements remain a mystery to many entrepreneurs.

Understanding the numbers game does not require an advanced degree in rocket science or calculus. It does require mastering a few business principles and learning how to use your financial information for making decisions.

Financial Basics

All the numbers used for making financial decisions come from your accounting and record keeping system. Good record keeping is the foundation of, and a prerequisite to good financial management.

Your accounting system should include the following records as a minimum: a sales journal, an expense journal, accounts receivable and payable records, a payroll journal, a schedule of fixed assets (a record of property and equipment owned by the business), an owner's journal (a record of monies the owner has put into or taken from the business), a notes payable schedule and a listing of inventory. You can use these records to create income and cash flow statements and balance sheets.

We recommend that you create monthly income and cash flow statements and balance sheets. As a small business owner or financial manager, you must have regular access to this information. You cannot manage numbers you don't have, and you can't make good decisions from bad numbers.

Once you are getting good information in a timely manner, you can employ several management procedures. For example, you can compare your sales and expense data with data from previous months or years. In addition, you can compare your financial performance with other similar-sized businesses in your industry.

You can glean other important management information from your statements as well. Tracking and comparing expenses by category, managing inventory levels and turnover, calculating cash break-even points and monitoring profit margins are examples.

If you would like more information on winning the numbers game, we'll send you our free guide. Send a self-addressed envelope with 52 cents postage to: The Numbers Game, c/o Minding Your Own Business, P.O. Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105. Please note that we will only honor requests that include an envelope with postage.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

Housing project offers tenants way to get off public assistance

By JAMES ROBINSON

Houston Chronicle
HOUSTON (AP) - Elaine Pliier hopes to type her way out of a public housing project.

"As soon as I'm typing 35 words per minute, I'm gone," said the resident of Houston's Irvinton Village housing project.

Ms. Pliier, 41, spoke during a break from a typing class offered by her landlord - the city's housing authority. Its Housing Training Institute helps public housing residents learn office skills, get jobs, and, in many instances, move out of the projects.

Not that the authority is worried about losing tenants. It has 10,000 families on a waiting list.

The institute can help public housing fulfill its original purpose as short-term shelter for people getting back on their feet.

Pliier literally had to get back on her feet.

After she fell down some stairs and was injured four years ago, she lost her job and her apartment and wound up in a homeless shelter. Later, with her 8- and 9-year-old children, she moved into Irvinton.

Now, she wants out.

So did Patricia Allen, who left Kelly Village two years ago.

"It was a war zone," she recalled of her year at the Fifth Ward housing project. "There were shootings, and we were broken into twice, once on New Year's Day and that was the last straw."

Thanks to the housing institute, Allen learned word processing, got off Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments and food stamps, and she found a job with the Texas Department of Human Services.

When people like Allen get off the dole, a little money - the institute has a budget of about $250,000 - ends up saving taxpayers more in the long run.

Janice Luckey, 34, a mother of two, didn't have to go farther than the housing authority to find a job. She's an administrative assistant with the training institute but no longer a public housing tenant.

"I wanted a better environment for myself and my children" than that offered at Irvinton, which she said is plagued by drugs.

Ms. Luckey moved to an apartment in southwest Houston, so it now takes her an hour to commute by bus to the training institute, tucked away in the administration building of the mostly vacant Allen Parkway Village near downtown.

Before she got her job, Ms. Luckey had virtually no income, so she paid monthly rent of $31 at Irvinton Village.

But federal rules require public housing tenants to pay one-third of their incomes on rent. So when tenants become gainfully employed, their rents went up.

"When I got a job, I got a letter saying my rent was going up to $383," Ms. Luckey said. "Then I got another one saying it was going to $508. So I decided it was time to go."

U.S. Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros has proposed giving tenants 18 months before they are penalized for earning more, allowing them to save money to buy a house, for example.

Now, Ms. Luckey spends $475 month for an apartment with air conditioning and a dishwasher, luxuries not supplied in public housing. It's also a safer place to live, she said.

But Ms. Luckey is grateful to the authority. "They gave me a roof and have now given me a job and an education. And I feel good about helping these people, because I'm one of them."

There's no shortage of housing authority tenants eager to help themselves. For every 50 slots available for the 16-week program, there are 80 qualified applicants, said director Terry Parker.

To qualify for the office-skills course, tenants must have a high school diploma or general equivalency diploma.

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Financing, Down Payments, Price negotiations. Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home.

But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent.

An expert agent can coach you smoothly through the entire home buying process. From using the sophisticated multiple listing service to find the home that fits your needs and your budget. To tackling financing options. Setting up and monitoring inspections. Negotiating price. And even maneuvering you through closing.

So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field--a real estate agent.

Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities.

Getting the right coaching now could mean the difference between confusion and closing.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The other day, there was a letter in your column from a reader who wanted to thank a man for saving his life. I want to thank someone who saved mine, but I never knew his name.

I was discharged from the Army in 1945. I looked everywhere for a job, but no one was hiring. One of my friends suggested that since I was single, I might consider going into the merchant marines. I went to Port Arthur, Texas, and soon found myself at the union hall waiting to ship out.

The agent told me there was a tanker loaded with butane gas getting ready to go to Long Beach. I said, "OK. Sign me up." A few minutes later, a young man about my age came up to me and said, "You've got to be crazy, man. That could be a very dangerous job." Something told me to listen to him. I immediately turned around and took my name off the list.

Two days later, I went out on another ship to Long Beach. A short while before pulling into port, we could see a cloud of black smoke. The butane tanker I'd first signed up for had blown up. Seven men jumped overboard and were swimming to safety. They were the only survivors.

I am a non-swimmer, so I am sure that the man who tipped me off saved my life. To this gentleman, I want to say, 48 years later, "Thanks a million."--Lafayette, La.

DEAR LAFAYETTE: What a story! Keep reading for another:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few years ago, I committed a crime (a misdemeanor). I was arrested and charged. Since I had never been in trouble before, my lawyer had my record expunged.

Will this show up on a police background check? I'm looking for a job and want to be sure my prospective employers won't find out about it. --Apprehensive in Ohio

DEAR OHIO: "Expunged" means obliterated--struck out, removed from the record. You are home free with a clean slate. Keep it that way.

What's the truth about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? "The Lowdown on Dope" has up-to-the-minute information on drugs. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Kramer of 'thirtysomething' adapts 'Tales of the City'

BY JOHN CROOK

Nearly 20 years after it first saw life as a newspaper column, Armistead Maupin's popular novel "Tales of the City" comes to TV as part of PBS' "American Playhouse" series. Richard Kramer, who adapted the novel for television, feels as if he's been connected with the project almost that long himself.

The six-hour miniseries airs Monday through Wednesday, Jan. 10-12 (check local listings), with a cast headed by Oscar winner Olympia Dukakis and cameos by celebrities as diverse as Sir Ian McKellen, Edie Adams, Karen Black, Michael Jeter, Rod Steiger and designer Bob Mackie.

Kramer, the lead writer and producer of "thirtysomething," was first approached about 12 years ago to write a pilot of "Tales" for HBO, which considered turning the book into a half-hour limited series. That project was scrubbed, as had been similar "Tales of the City" projects at other American networks. Then fortune took a turn in the form of an incredible coincidence.

"Years later," Kramer recalls, "I was out to dinner with some friends, and somebody from Propaganda (Films, a cutting-edge English production company) was there and said, 'You know, we just acquired the rights to 'Tales of the City.' And I said, 'I worked on that 11 years ago. It was such heartbreak for all of us.' And he said, 'Well, why don't you do it?' When (London's) Channel Four got involved and there were no restrictions, I felt that they needed me. It was serendipity, one of those wonderful things that actually has a conclusion."

"Tales of the City" first appeared in May 1976 as a daily column in the San Francisco Chronicle. Maupin's funny and racy stories about the lives of wildly diverse Bay Area residents were an immediate hit, and were published as a novel in 1978. Five more books followed, until "Sure of You" drew the curtain on the beloved characters in 1989.

The "American Playhouse" miniseries, entitled "Armistead Maupin's Tales of the City," focuses mainly on events as viewed by Mary Ann Singleton (Laura Linney), a pretty blonde who has just arrived in San Francisco from Cleveland. In short order she meets an eclectic cast of characters including: her marijuana-growing landlady, Anna Madrigal (Dukakis); footloose neighbor Mona Ramsey (Chloe Webb) and her gay roommate, Michael Tolliver (Marcus D'Amico); and her new boss, Edgar Halcyon (Donald Moffat), who is secretly dying.

The TV production was a huge success when it aired last September in Great Britain, where Maupin's books frequently appear on classroom reading lists. Kramer rankles at the fact that "pigeonholing" has helped deny the author much of the credit he deserves.

"I think that Armistead in this country doesn't get the rep he deserves," he says firmly. "I think he is a major comic novelist. I know that he bristles at being always put on 'the gay shelf' — not because he's homophobic, of course, but because I think the size of his vision is larger than (a single) target audience. It's for everybody, and that's what attracted me to doing the series and what I tried to accomplish in the adaptation."

"It was wonderful material to play with, and so rich. It was just a question of how to present it. It was about designing the velvet box to present the diamond ring in — which was the diamond ring of the book."

HIGHLIGHTS

Neil Patrick Harris and Kelli Williams portray a couple stranded in the Nevada wilderness in "Snowbound: The Jim and Jennifer Stolpa Story" on CBS, Sunday, Jan. 9.

Based on actual events, Jim, Jennifer and their 5-month-old baby, Clay, are on their way to Idaho to attend Jim's grandmother's funeral when they find their route blocked by snowdrifts. Taking an alternate route, they become stranded and must walk miles to find help. With their food supply dwindling and a blizzard approaching, time is running out.

Murder overshadows all else on networks; Jim and Jennifer Stolpa's survival story told

BY SARA BENNETT

Murder is on network minds this week as numerous mysteries on the subject premiere.

Monday, Jan. 10, NBC, "Murder Between Friends" stars Timothy Busfield ("thirtysomething") and Stephen Lang in the fact-based story of one of New Orleans' most sensational murder trials. Busfield portrays the assistant district attorney, who is convinced that a woman's murder is more complex than it appears.

A harrowing real-life tale of survival is recounted in "Snowbound: The Jim and Jennifer Stolpa Story," on CBS. Neil Patrick Harris ("Doogie Howser, M.D.") and Kelli Williams portray the Stolpas, whose drive from their home in San Francisco to his mother's house in Idaho is halted by a blizzard, which strands them in a remote area of Nevada for eight days. Leaving Jennifer and their 5-month-old baby in a small cave for protection, Jim makes a 70-mile trek to get help after their small food supply runs out.

ABC offers "Columbo: Butterfly in Shades of Grey," featuring William Shatner as Columbo's adversary, a radio talk show host with enemies of his own. Peter Falk is back to play Columbo, who must prove that Shatner's character, Fielding Chase, has hatched a murder plot.

Sunday, Jan. 9, NBC presents another murder story, "Secret Sins of the Father," about a man (Beau Bridges) who believes his father (Beau's real-life dad Lloyd Bridges) is somehow responsible for the seemingly accidental death of his mother (Lloyd's wife, Dorothy Dean). And as chief of police, Beau's character, Tom Thielman, can charge him with murder, if the clues add up.

Justine Bateman ("Family Ties"), Matt Mulhern and Joe Penny star in CBS' "Terror in the Night" on Tuesday, Jan. 11. The film chronicles the events of a camping trip gone awry in which Bateman and Mulhern must defend themselves from a murderer who threatens them at every turn.

LET'S TALK

How does Norris Tang Soo Do it in his role as 'Walker, Texas Ranger'?

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Chuck Norris

Q: I need to get a thank-you letter to Chuck Norris of "Walker, Texas Ranger." Could you please supply me with his address and any information you have on him? -D.G., Portland, Ore.

A: Chuck Norris was born Carlos Ray in Ryan, Okla. The oldest of three children, he helped his mother raise two younger brothers in Torrance, Calif., where the family moved when he was 12.

After graduating from high school, Norris joined the Air Force, and during a stint in Korea, began studying the Asian martial art of Tang Soo Do. After returning home, he worked for Northrop Aviation and moonlighted as a karate instructor.

Within two years he was teaching full time and running a number of martial arts schools where his students included Steve McQueen, Priscilla Presley and the Osmonds.

By the time he was 34, Norris had established 32 karate schools and had been the world professional middleweight karate champion for six years. Following the advice of friend Steve McQueen, Norris turned to acting.

His film credits include "The Hitman," "The Delta Force," "Missing in Action" and its sequels, "Firewalker," "Sidekicks" and many others.

You can write to him C/O CBS Media Relations, Television City, 7500 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036.

Q: I was wondering about the syndicated series "Time Trax." Is it filmed here in the United States or in Australia? Also, could you give me any information on Dale Midkiff who plays the main character on the show? What else has he been in? Where can I write to him? -P.M., Chicago, Ill.

A: "Time Trax" is filmed in Queensland, Australia.

Dale Midkiff, who plays Darien Lambert on the show, ventured into acting as a means to communicate and rid himself of his shyness. Midkiff's first major break came in 1985 when he was cast in the telefilm "Dallas: The Early Years" as the young Jock Ewing. Numerous roles followed, including his portrayal of Elvis Presley. Midkiff's other television work includes the critically acclaimed telefilms "The Tracey Thurman Story," "Sins of the Mother," "The Marla Hanson Story" as well as the series "Dream Street." In feature films, Midkiff starred in Stephen King's "Pet Semetary" and "Love Potion No. 9."

You can write to him C/O Lorimar Television, 300 South Lorimar Plaza, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Q: Is Peter Donat, who plays Dr. Mordicai Sahmbi on "Time Trax," any relation to actor Robert Donat who starred in Alfred Hitchcock's "The 39 Steps"?

A: The two actors are indeed related; Robert Donat is Peter's father.

Q: For years I have been trying to remember a Christmas cartoon I watched as a child. All I can remember are songs sung by characters named Mr. Freeze Miser and Mr. Heat Miser. I loved this cartoon. Could you please tell me its name and where I may be able to find it? -Tracy J., Fairview, Ore.

A: Sorry I didn't receive your letter in time to answer it before Christmas. The special is titled "The Year Without a Santa Claus" and is available on home video.

If you can't find it at your local video store, you can try writing to the distributor: Warner Bros. Video, 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif. 91522.

Few powerful films about AIDS available as Hollywood slow to mention epidemic on screen

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Reports of a strange new disease began dotting the nation's newspapers in 1980.

By 1983, that disease had a name - AIDS - and a wealth of dark predictions about its future.

AIDS has touched almost every facet of American life, and nowhere more immediately than the arts. Yet Hollywood has been slow to even mention the epidemic on screen. Only now, with the release of Jonathan Demme's "Philadelphia," has a major film studio (in this case, TriStar) offered a dramatic treatment of the disease. But there are a few, powerful predecessors to Demme's work. The following are available on home video.

"An Early Frost" (1985)

Whatever the limits of made-for-TV movies (and there are many), television reliably takes on the tough subjects a lot faster than feature films. NBC led the way with this well-executed effort starring Aidan Quinn as a young attorney unable to tell his parents he's gay; now he must confront them with a far grimmer truth. Quinn's portrayal is serviceable if not outstanding, but Gena Rowlands and Ben Gazzara are terrific as his anguished parents. Sylvia Sidney shines as Quinn's grandmother, and John Glover and Christopher Bradley lend strong performances as fellow patients.

"Longtime Companion" (1990)

Bruce Davison received an Oscar nomination for his turn as a man bidding his lover goodbye in this deftly woven drama directed by Norman René. Produced by PBS' "American Playhouse," the film follows a group of friends throughout the 1980s. Also starring are Campbell Scott, Mary-Louise Parker and Dermot Mulrooney.

"The Living End" (1992)

Greg Araki wrote, directed, photographed and edited this low-budget gem about two HIV-positive men who set out on a blackly comic road trip. Serious and realistic, the film is still upbeat, largely thanks to stars Mike Dytri and Craig Gilmore.

San Simeon, newspaper mogul William Randolph Hearst's castle by the sea, is featured in "America's Castles," a two-hour tour of the opulent homes of the rich and famous, airing Sunday on A&E.

'America's Castles' a tour of democracy's fantasy life

BY SUZANNE GILL

"America's Castles," airing Sunday, Jan. 9, on A&E, has the languid air of a trip down some European waterway, where, indeed, many of that continent's castles are to be found. America's castles can be found at the seaport resorts of Rhode Island, in the rolling hills of New York and North Carolina and along the coast of California. They have names like Marble House, Lyndhurst, San Simeon and The Breakers.

The mansions were built by the titans of industry - Vanderbilt, Carnegie and Ford - during what Mark Twain called The Gilded Age. The houses were made of marble and mahogany and furnished with tapestry, crystal and gold leaf. They required dozens of servants and were often open just a few weeks of the year; their owners migrated, like birds, with the seasons.

Host Jack Perkins conducts the two-hour tour of these playgrounds of the rich and famous, many of which are now museums open to the public. The camera pans across libraries, dining rooms, ballrooms and boudoirs - all pristine and static. Occasional photographs and home movies of the houses in use help dispel the mausoleum mood. An interview with Vanderbilt descendent Countess Anthony Szapary is the highlight of the program. With a catch in her voice, the countess recalls growing up at The Breakers with "lots of love." Suddenly, this house looks more like a home.

The two-hour span of the program is awkward; noteworthy homes, including Henry Ford's Hywett Hall and John D. Rockefeller's Whitehall, are omitted, yet there is so much grandeur that the script shows the strain of too many superlatives and often repeats itself from one house to the next.

"America's Castles" might have been better off as a series of half-hour programs. Running nearly that long is the visit to William Randolph Hearst's San Simeon. The producers are deferential to their benefactors at the Hearst Corporation, which owns a share in A&E. At one point, a slide of the Hearst logo is emblazoned across a portrait of the late publisher. It's an unbecoming interruption in this mid-winter night's daydream.

Ashford leaves co-star with angry fans

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: Please tell me if there is any chance Matthew Ashford (ex-Jack, "Days of Our Lives") will return to the show. It is unbelievable to me that he was fired.

Don't the producers or sponsors care about what the viewing public likes? He is very popular, very talented and as far as this viewer is concerned the only actor to play the part of Jack. The show will never be the same without him.

Please tell the producers to come to their senses. --Furious in Arizona.

Dear Reader: Your views are shared by many "Days" fans, but there is little chance the actor will return any time soon.

I talked with Ashford's co-star, Melissa Reeves, recently and here is what she had to say about the situation: "Matthew knew he was going to be fired, and he had had a feeling for a long time that it was going to happen."

"He kept telling me that we were in a rut and were basically only working with each other, so there was no real room for growth. He said that eventually either he or I would be asked to leave the show. I told him that he was crazy, the fans loved us, and there was no way anything was going to happen. Boy, was I naive."

"I couldn't believe it when he came in and told me that he had been fired. I was in shock," Reeves says. "In fact, I think he took it better than anyone, because he just knew it was going to happen."

"He is happy and he is moving on to other things. I hope they don't push Jennifer into a relationship with another character too soon. I don't think the fans would be too accepting of that."

Reeves received hate mail for the first time in her career after Ashford left. Fans felt she should try to do something to get him back or quit her job in protest.

"I love my fans, but they have to understand that this is a job, and I have to support my family like anyone else," Reeves says. "Believe me, nobody misses Matt more than I do."
