Students receive farm safety advice By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE

Staff Writer

VEGA - Farming, ranching and other agricultural pursuits have been cited by experts as some of today's most dangerous occupations, so Tuesday students from Vega, Walcott, Adrian and Wildorado schools converged on the Oldham County Barn to learn what make's agriculture so dangerous and ways to prevent agriculture accidents.

The agricultural safety day, sponsored by the Progressive Farmer, Texas Agricultural Extension Service and other agribusinesses, gave the kindergarten-sixth grade students hands-on or closeup demonstrations of do's and don'ts in the world of agriculture.

Oldham County Family Consumer Science Extension Agent Sherry Harder said the number of agriculture-related accidents remain high primarily because people don't take necessary precautions.

"The response we've had for volunteers had really been tremendous," she said. "Since December, we've had people from lots of agencies come together for the planning and development of this year's Farm Safety

According to Harder, two workers Elaine Brorman and Connie Harwood, have been instrumental in putting the camp together. Brorman and Harwood attended special training in organizing the event, with special emphasis on maintaining volunteer participation. Snakes are a common problem in most ag-related industries: some are harmful and others are not. Students were given a brief lesson on the poisonous and non-poisonous snakes commonly found in the area.

Participants learned the appearance of the non-poisonous hognose snake and the prairie rattler closely resemble one another. They also learned the rattler has a triangular-shaped head, while the hognose's head is relatively

Most farmers and ranchers have guns, which they use for hunting as well as a means of getting rid of coyotes and other unwanted animals. Unfortunately, every year, accidents happen when people get careless or don't know how to handle a gun. Oldham County Sheriff David Merlin demonstrated the proper handling of guns and reviewed what to do when finding a gun. The younger students played a version of hide and seek to prove they knew better than to pick up a gun.. Other demonstrations included a high voltage wagon from SPS, where students viewed a miniature high line wire and were treated to actual effects of voltage going through different objects. Topics included in the safety camp were PTO safety, electrical safety, ATV safety, first aid, fire safety, firearms, 911 usage, grain entrapment, tractor and combine awareness, animal safety and chemical and pesticide

"Farming, ranching and agriculture in general can be a great way of to avoid them or how to correct them before an emergency happens. We hope this is what the students get from today's event."

U.S. producer price index shows increase

WASHINGTON (AP) - Prices charged by factories and other producers rose in April for the first time in seven months, pushed up by jumps in food and tobacco costs. Retail sales rebounded after a lull the month before. The 0.2 percent seasonally adjusted gain in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index - the first since September - was expected as a result of stabilizing world petroleum prices.

just 0.1 percent lower last month after six months of steeper drops, the department said today, and analysts look for them to plateau or drift higher for the rest of the year.

After the price report's release, interest rates ticked up slightly in the inflation-sensitive bond market.

For the first four months of the year, the wholesalers who buy finished goods from producers have enjoyed a rare period of deflation. The index for finished goods fell at a 2.5 percent annual rate. Excluding the volatile food and energy sectors, so-called core prices rose at a scant 0.8 percent annual rate.

THE HEREFORD BRAND News In Brief

Falcon Dam reports lowest level since 1957 drought

McALLEN (AP) - Drought conditions in South Texas have Falcon Dam at its lowest point since 1957, forcing farmers to pick and choose which crops they can afford to irrigate.

We are lower than we've ever been," said Cindy Martinez, Texas National Resource Conservation Commission Rio Grande Water Master. "This year so far is the worst because we haven't had any local rain or any rainfall in the reservoirs.

Current water levels at Falcon Dam are at 248.8 feet above sea level, or 52 feet below what is considered a normal conservation level. This low has been exceeded only in 1957, when levels dipped to 235.12 feet.

Anticipating little rainfall, local growers have already taken measures to conserve what water they have left in their water right accounts, which dictate how much water each holder is entitled to for irrigation purposes.

Growers such as Bob Peterson, president of Starr Produce Company in Rio Grande City, have eliminated some crops to concentrate solely on their cash crops of melons and onions.

Attorney: Affirmative action ruling will not go unchallenged ODESSA (AP) - The state and the University of Texas' commitment to provide equal educational access for minorities appears to be wavering and even a move to appeal a key affirmative action ruling won't change that, a civil rights attorney says.

An appeal of the Hopwood case can take many forms and won't necessarily pit school officials directly against the decision that led to the dismantling of affirmative action programs at Texas colleges, said Javier Maldonado, attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

This is why it is so disturbing for the Mexican-American and African-American communities, because there is no one from the state coming out and saying we plan to defend the right of a university to decide who to admit and on what basis so that we achieve a student body that reflects our community.

"They haven't come out and said that so we don't know what the university intends to do even if it decides to appeal," Maldonado said Tuesday.

Parents sue district for linking promotion to TAAS scores

WACO (AP) - A McClennan county commissioner and his wife have sued the Waco Independent School District to keep it from implementing a unique new policy that will retain students whose math and reading scores on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills do not average at least 70. County Commissioner Lester Gibson and his wife, Coque, a former school board president, and three other plaintiffs argue that the policy violates student confidentiality and that state lawmakers never intended for TAAS to be used for promotion.

We claim that individual students will be identified through the process of implementation of this policy," plaintiff's attorney Michael Roberts told the Waco Tribune-Herald in a story for today's editions.

The policy leaves about 2,900 elementary and middle school students in Waco in danger of being held back this year because of their projected performances on standardized tests, Superintendent Rosanne Stripling testified Tuesday during a hearing in state district court.

But about half of them would be promoted based on report card grades alone, Stripling said, and a higher percentage of minority students than white students are likely to be retained.

Shapiro heads sexual-predator legislation

AUSTIN (AP) - His crimes include aggravated sexual assault of a child, he's described as seething with anger and physically threatening to others, his prognosis for change is poor - and he's just stepped out of prison. He's the kind of person Sen. Florence Shapiro wants to route into a mental health facility: a violent sexual predator deemed to be a continuing danger to the public and likely to commit additional sex

"This man was recently discharged ... without supervision. He is on the streets in Texas today," Ms. Shapiro said at a Tuesday meeting of the Senate Interim Committee on Sex Offenders, which she heads.

"There is every indication that this offender will re-offend at the very first opportunity," she said.

Ms. Shapiro, R-Plano, described but didn't name the ex-prisoner. She also said she didn't want to "get bogged down in statistics and numbers" in drafting proposed

Just a handful of sex offenders would be sure candidates for the so-called civil commitment process, according to figures presented to her committee Tuesday by Tony Fabelo, executive director of the Criminal Justice Policy Council.

About 23,000 inmates are locked up for sex offenses. Of them, 1,477 are scheduled to be released in fiscal years 2000 and 2001. Psychological tests show 181 of those have a higher potential for additional sexual

Of those, 33 are likely to engage in predatory acts of sexual violence and to have low responsiveness to treatment. Those 33 are the ones that definitely fall within guidelines in a U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding a Kansas civil commitment program, Ms. Shapiro said.

"Those are probably the worst of the worst," Fabelo said.

One estimate presented to the committee said renovating a current prison facility into a 48-bed mental-health center for such inmates and providing treatment would cost $6.2 million over two years, Ms. Shapiro said.

But she said the panel is next going to "really hone in on those numbers" and they could change

Even so, she said, a multi-million-dollar price tag isn't too high to keep such people off the streets and protect Backers include Katherine Schaudt, 22, who testified about being sexually assaulted when she was 15 by a 60-year-old. She said he had committed the offense before.

"It's been seven years now, so I've gotten past this, been through a year and half of therapy. But this is something that shouldn't happen to anybody else," she said. "I feel that this sort of legislation will keep people like him off the streets.

A self-described sex offender identified only as "Bill," spoke on videotape, saying civil commitment would be wrong for some who have served their prison terms. The tape of several sex offenders was presented by Gerald Rogers, who provides treatment to sex offenders in Amarillo.

But the man, who said his most recent sexual offense was against his granddaughter, said it would probably help him to be in a program. He said the offense happened when he "just

"I think that would be okay for cases like mine, because I do need external support," he said.

Sexual offenders can't be kept in prison after serving their sentences. That would be double jeopardy and unconstitutional. Civil commitment of an inmate would require a civil

Dear Ann Landers: I clipped the enclosed article from the Grand Rapids Press because it struck me as a perfect example of what's wrong with our society. Once in a while, we need to do a reality check. Too many people these days are being promoted to their level of incompetence. Lewis scheduled as guest

for Hard Line Ministries

Lewis grew up knowing about Lord Jesus Christ, but began her Christian walk in 1977. Her father is a composer and singer in India. While Lewis was living in India, she was involved in Sunday school, vacation Bible school and in the classical music group "Tabernacles." She was also involved in the crusade ministry as a soloist.

Lewis is currently pursuing a music career as a Christian artist.

"Since I am from India and I am a Christian, I want people in the United States to know that not all Indians are Hindus. The new age movement in the U.S.A. seems to have taken its roots directly from Hinduism. This has really surprised me because we in India think that all Americans are Christians," Lewis

"Through my music ministry I want to reach out to all those out there looking for answers. I know, without a doubt, I can do this through Christ," she concluded.

Not to worry, here is the information. Those stubborn tomato-based stains can be tough, and you usually need plenty of elbow grease to remove them.

Sprinkle some baking soda on a damp sponge and rub on the stains. Let stand for a few minutes or overnight and then wash the container using the hottest water you can use. If the staining is dark or old, you may need to repeat the process several times until the stains are removed. Good luck!

To prevent staining, line the container with plastic wrap first, then add the tomato sauce. — Heloise COPPER CLEANER

In the past two decades, many new asthma treatments have emerged. Today's medicine cabinet is chock-full of control medicines, whether or not an allergy figures into the picture. Inhalers or oral medicines usually can keep asthma in check. Today there's an emphasis on a more or less constant medical program as a preventive measure. Belfour still trying to shake label

The Associated Press

EDMONTON, Alberta -- Ed Belfour says he was cheering hard for Denver Broncos quarter-back John Elway in this year's Super Bowl.

After all, the Dallas Stars goaltender has heard for much of his NHL career what Elway had in his until this January: He can't win the big game.

"That's just the way it is (gauging players by championships), you can't change that," Belfour said. "You can't take anything away from guys who haven't won, they've worked hard their whole careers.

"It takes a team and a lot of good luck and some guys are real fortunate that way and some guys just miss it by a little bit."

Belfour, 33, signed as a free agent with Dallas last July after a brief stop in San Jose following his trade there from Chicago.

"I was real happy to see Elway win this year, he has always been on the underdog side, they always said he couldn't win the big game, Belfour said Tuesday after the Stars practiced the day before Game 4 of the Western Conference semifinal with the Edmonton Oilers. "It was nice to see him win the big game."
On Monday, Belfour was the difference in a big game, making 28 saves for the Stars in a 1-0 overtime win that gave Dallas a 2-1 lead in the

But Belfour credited his defensemen for much of the shutout as they kept the front of the net clear and blocked numerous shots.

The Oilers aren't getting teary eyed about Belfour's Elway-type quest for a championship. Edmonton forward Bill Guerin, who leads the Oilers with six playoff goals but hasn't scored in this series, said the key to beating Belfour is creating havoc in front of him. "If you're going to have any success you have to get him moving around or have people in front," Guerin said. "And Dallas blocks shots better than any other team in the league, it's tough to get shots through and that makes it easier for Eddie.

"And if one does get through, Eddie is there and he's a big-game player, who makes the Belfour got to the Stanley Cup final in 1992 with Chicago, but the Blackhawks were swept in four games by Pittsburgh.

Belfour led all goaltenders in the 1992 playoffs with a 2.42 goals-against average. Coming into this season's postseason he was tops in that at 1.88 and second in wins with 37.

He's on a similar roll in the 1998 playoffs, allowing just 14 goals in nine games.

For all of his big numbers, Belfour was passed over for the Olympic and World Cup teams. He was part of the 1991 Canada Cup team coached by Mike Keenan -- then his boss in Chicago. Belfour isn't bitter because he believes his career numbers speak for themselves.

"It probably has a lot to do with who you know," he says.

Dallas coach Ken Hitchcock said Belfour's puck-stopping prowess is an obvious plus for his team and so is his desperate desire to win.

'He brings a competitive edge to the group, Hitchcock said. "Eddie is fiery and the guys like having him around. He means as much to our team as Curtis Joseph does to Edmonton."

Texas takes 5th in a row

ARLINGTON (AP) -- Aaron Sele got a lot of help from his former teammates Tuesday.

The right-hander beat Boston for the first time and the Red Sox left 13 men on base as the Texas Rangers won their fifth straight, 6-3.

"My pitches were an 'F," Sele said, giving himself a failing grade. "It was one of those days when I had to battle and compete. I was able to pitch out of some jams and we made some good defensive plays."

Sele (6-2) had lost his last two starts, including a 5-3 defeat to the Red Sox in Boston on May 1, and was in trouble throughout his 52-3-inning out in Threeder. outing Tuesday.

The Red Sox stranded seven runners over the first four innings, but Sele worked out of the jams, leaving runners on third base in the first and fourth innings.

The Rangers gave Sele a nice cushion when they scored six runs in the second inning, highlighted by Tom Goodwin's two-run homer off the top of the right field fence.
"He struggled with his command," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said of Sele, who was acquired from the Red Sox in an offseason trade and had won his first five starts for the Rangers. "He had a good curveball but wasn't able to spot his fastball. He threw a lot of pitches. But six runs beloed him

Sele allowed three runs and five

Texas sent 10 men to the plate in the second against Brian Rose (1-4). The rookie started the inning by hitting Juan Gonzalez with a pitch, and things went downhill from there.

In addition to Goodwin's two-run homer, his first since last July 19 when he was with Kansas City, the Rangers got RBI doubles from Will Clark and Bill Haselman and run-scoring singles from Lee Stevens and Fernando Tatis.

"I wouldn't look for too many of those," Goodwin said of his rare homer. "We can build on this. The pitchers have done an outstanding job keeping us into games."

In the sixth, Sele issued consecutive walks to Darren Bragg and John Valentin. Bragg advanced to third on a fly ball and then scored on Mark Lemke's infield single.

Sele hit Darren Lewis with a pitch to load the bases, and reliever Scott Bailes threw wildly to third after fielding pinch-hitter Damon Buford's grounder, allowing two more runs to score. Bailes then struck out Mo Vaughn with runners on second and third to preserve the 6-3 lead.

John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his 10th save in as many chances this season and he has converted 22 straight save opportunities.

Associated Press Writer IOWA CITY, Iowa -- Just like there was talk about "Tiger-pro-ofing" Augusta National to keep Tiger Woods in check, there's now talk about "Christian-proofing" the University of Iowa golf course.

Jazz eliminate San Antonio, 87-77

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Karl this season. Malone had 24 points and 13 rebounds as the Utah Jazz advanced to the Western Conference finals for the fourth time in five seasons with an 87-77 victory over the San Antonio Spurs on Tuesday night.

The Jazz, who never trailed and held the Spurs to 38.4 percent shooting, made an 11-4 run early in the fourth quarter to put the game out of reach and clinch the best-of-7 series in five games.

San Antonio's Triple Towers frontcourt of David Robinson, Tim Duncan and Will Perdue managed just 35 points and 31 rebounds, their lowest totals of the series. Utah also outrebounded the Spurs 41-39.

Utah, which holds homecourt advantage throughout the playoffs, eliminated the Spurs from the postseason for the third time in the last five years. The Spurs remained winless in eight postseason games at the Delta Center.

The Jazz will meet the winner of the Seattle SuperSonics-Lakers series, which Los Angeles led 3-1 and could have wrapped up Tuesday night. Should the Lakers win, the conference finals would start Saturday at the Delta Center.

The Jazz, who are just 9-11 in elimination games over the last six seasons, were in control throughout. Utah has won its last five home playoff games and is 41-6 at home

Two games after the Jazz tied the NBA record for fewest points in a playoff game, the Spurs flirted with the 64-point mark. Vinny Del Negro's 3-pointer with 2:34 to play pushed San Antonio past the magic number, but by then the game was out of reach.

Jeff Hornacek had 19 points and Bryon Russell added 15, including a 3-for-4 effort from 3-point range. The Jazz shot 39.4 percent, including 7-for-21 by Malone, but their defense carried them to the series win.

Robinson led San Antonio with 21 points and 13 rebounds, but 11 of the points came in the fourth quarter after Utah had a comfortable lead. Duncan added 14 points and 11 rebounds, while Del Negro had 17 points.

With 4:34 to play, Robinson hit John Stockton with an elbow that knocked the Utah guard flat and bounced his head off the floor. Stockton was momentarily dazed but stayed in the game.

It was early last month that Malone knocked Robinson unconscious with an elbow and the Utah forward was suspended for one game.

Hornacek, who hit two 3-pointers during a 10-1 run late in the second quarter, scored 14 first-half points by hitting six of his first eight shots. He staked the Jazz to a 43-33 lead at halftime. The Jazz were 5-for-8 on 3-pointers in the first half.

Documentary gets inside story on Hewitt, '60 Minutes'

By FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer

Don Hewitt, 75, who created "60 Minutes" 30 years ago and has logged five decades at CBS News, is profiled in a documentary called "90 Minutes on '60 Minutes.'

Numbers, schmumbers. What it all adds up to is an eye-opening romp, as Hewitt invites "American Masters" to join "60 Minutes" behind the scenes, minute by minute. Tick, tick, tick, tick Airing on PBS at 8 CDT tonight, the film was written and directed by Susan Steinberg ("Paul Simon: Born at the Right Time"), who meets the "60 Minutes" standard for investigating her subject. Or, more accurately, her dual, inextricably intertwined subjects. "It's difficult for me to fathom where I end and '60 Minutes' begins, and vice versa," says Hewitt, during a recent chat.

Despite its tradition of exposing others on TV, "60 Minutes" and its high-spirited, high-pressure editorial process have never before been on the receiving end. Hewitt concedes that the attention is a mixed blessing.

"You walk around with a wireless mike on you." he explains, "and you're never sure you won't say something that, ipso facto, goes on the record. You know: 'I gotta go take a leak.''

Not that he worries much about anything he says. Or needs to. Tough-talking, scrappy and charming, Hewitt was there at the birth of TV news and has playe a commanding role ever since. He is credited with basic innovations like que cards and the term "anchorman." But his biggest breakthrough, of course, was inventing the TV news magazine.

Now "60 Minutes" can look back on a level of success that dwarfs its countless imitators, even the few that have succeeded. On Sunday, viewers can look back, too. The program is throwing itself an anniversary special, ""60 Minutes" at 30," which airs from 6 to 8 p.m. CDT on CBS.

This greatest hits collection does a good job of recapping what the audience has come to expect since the first broadcast in September 1968. By contrast, "Don Hewitt: 90 Minutes on '60 Minutes" prowls the suite of offices where it all comes together, and sheds light on how his reigning sensibility sets "60 Minutes" apart from its rivals

In the film, Hewitt recalls being a child of the movies - and feeling torn between the allure of the Broadway producer in "42nd Street" and the roguish reporter in "The Front Page."

But then, as a young adult, he entered a television studio for the first time and realized that TV news could give him the best of both worlds. Eventually he brought the best of those two worlds to "60 Minutes":

crackerjack storytelling and journalistic rigor.

"I would like to believe that somewhere inside me is a little bit of Sam Goldwyn and Louis B. Mayer and the other early guys who went to Hollywood," says Hewitt. "They had no real education. Some were immigrants; some didn't even speak English. But they had absorbed America through their pores."

So has Hewitt, who seems to have a sixth sense for what continues the follow. Americans. I like learnings.

for what captivates his fellow Americans. Like legendary Columbia Pictures magnate Harry Cohn, who claimed to feel in his backside whether the film he was acreening would click with moviegoers, Hewitt takes an instinctive approach to shaping "60 Minutes" for viewers. All

And he does this without the chronic dumbing-down that characterizes so many rival magazines, which by comparison give "60 Minutes" a high-toned image the program has never even sought.

Soup guru glad to see show ending

NEW YORK (AP) - Fame came calling for Al Yeganeh and Kenny Kramer in the form of television's most popular comedy, which caricatured them in the name of "Must See TV."

Yeganeh got mad. Kramer got even. Both seem to have profited.

As "Seinfeld" comes to an end Thursday night, Yeganeh - the soup chef branded "The Soup Nazi" in a 1995 episode - and Kramer - the inspiration for the show's "hipster doofus" Cosmo Kramer - represent the yin and yang of those snared by the real-world repercussions of a fictional show.

Kramer embraced his accidental celebrity with a bear hug, frequently calling reporters to let them in on his latest project and encouraging stories about his "shameless attempts" to cash in.

"Only in America," he said. "It takes a guy of my kind of talent and temperament to milk this for all it's worth."

Yeganeh, who runs his International Soup Kitchen out of a midtown Manhattan storefront, lives less comfortably with his depiction as a tyrannical but brilliant chef who yells "No soup for you!" at customers who break his rules.

Yeganeh condemns "that idiot clown" Jerry Seinfeld for branding him with "the n-word" and "taking that word so lightly."

"He used me, he used my reputation, insulting me," Yeganeh said. "Would you like to be called that word?" Kramer, 54, lucked into his fame by living for 10 years across the hall from "Seinfeld" co-creator Larry David in a federally subsidized apartment building for artists in Manhattan's Hell's Kitchen.

David based the TV character played by Michael Richards on his peculiar neighbor, whose employment history included manufacturing disco jewelry, managing a reggae band and performing stand-up comedy.

The real Kramer lacks the finger-in-a-light-socket .
hair of his TV counterpart (he has long salt-and-pepper curls) but both have a blissful, easygoing attitude that's easily mistaken for cluelessness.

In 1996, Kramer started a "Kramer Reality Tour," a bus tour of Manhattan sites featured on "Seinfeld." The tour, of course, became fodder for a "Seinfeld" episode.

Kramer has done radio and TV gigs, too, and there are T-shirts and hats, a stage version of the tour that Kramer takes to college campuses and even a short-lived mayoral campaign last year.

With the show's finale looming, Kramer's been busy. The man who once said he did "anything to keep from having a real job" and who dropped his mayoral race because it was too much work actually hired a full-time assistant to keep up with the flood of interview requests.

He'll be all over New York on Thursday - hanging with a morning radio show at Tom's, the Upper West Side diner whose facade is featured on "Seinfeld," working as a TV correspondent and playing the host at a "Seinfeld" bash at the Comedy Nation club-to run for president. The people of Texas know he's planning to run for president. Why won't George Bush come forward and say so?" asked Mauro spokesman Joe Cutbirth.

Bush said he feels no pressure from polls showing him a presidential favorite. But another Texan familiar with presidential politics said Bush can't escape pressure and will have to make a decision one way or the

""There's no question about that," said George Christian, an Austin consultant who was press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson.

This latest poll shows that the take lightly."

Republicans are looking for some new face, some person they can have confidence in. That mantle seems to have fallen on him.

"I think the more these polls come out, the more pressure it will be for him to make a definitive move sometime in the next year," Christian

The Texas governor, eldest son of the former president, said his decision will turn on his family, wife Laura and their twin daughters.

"I will make up my mind based on personal matters, whether or not it's right for my family," he said. "It's a big decision, and not one I loses bid for governor OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - A tearful Rep. Jon Christensen struggled for words after learning he had been trounced in his bid to win the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Conservative congressman

'Sometimes you learn more from a loss than a win and I'm excited to see what the Lord has in store for us," said Christensen, whose fiancee, former Miss America Tara Holland, was at his side.

Once the front-runner, the 35-year-old Christensen finished third in a five candidate field Tuesday. Lincoln Mayor Mike Johanns easily won the GOP nomination, stunning the conservative two-term congressman who gave up his seat on the powerful House Ways and Means Committee to run for governor.

Arbitrator reinstates Miss Colorado

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) - Regina Flores' reign as Miss Colorado isn't over after all.

Miss Flores, 22, was reinstated and awarded $153,000 on Tuesday by arbitrator Harold Reed. The retired Denver judge found the pageant "intentionally inflicted emotional harm on distress" on the beauty

The ruling was the latest chapter in a case that included allegations of racism, telephone taps and snooping by pageant officials at a national

Miss Flores was stripped of her crown Dec. 30 in a dispute with pageant officials, who said she violated her contract when she got a part-time job at a department store without approval, got her mother to book her appearances and missed one appearance.

Media challenge anonymity of Unabomber jury

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) _ A news media challenge to the anonymous Unabomber jury got little sympathy from an appeals court panel, with two members suggesting such secrecy might be good in all infamous cases.

The most encouraging note for the media during Tuesday's hearing was Judge Donald Lay's assertion that the court should declare the case moot without writing guidelines for future

A lawyer for news organizations argued that U.S. District Judge Garland Burrell Jr. had no evidence of danger to the jury when he refused to identify potential jurors during pretrial questioning in the Theodore Kaczynski case last fall.

Mother of Danish baby sues city for $20 million NEW YORK (AP) - A Danish woman who ended up in jail briefly for leaving her baby girl unattended in a stroller outside a restaurant while she dined inside has filed a $20 million lawsuit against the city.

Anette Sorensen's lawsuit accuses the city and unidentified police officers of falsely arresting and maliciously prosecuting her, causing her "profound humiliation, degradation and embarrassment.'

The lawsuit, filed on Monday in U.S. District Court, also alleges the city deprived Ms. Sorensen of custody of her daughter, Liv, for four days. The girl was 14 months old at Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/ products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

-- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no

-- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condi-

-- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

AAA pushes limit on teen driving

WASHINGTON (AP) - A national campaign to limit teen driving is working, according to a survey released today that found nearly half the states in the country have tightened laws for young drivers.

The progress report issued by the American Automobile Association measured the number of states that have adopted a graduated licensing system, which increases driving privileges as experience grows.

AAA reported that eight states have enacted such programs, 13 have adopted partial graduated laws and three others have increased restrictions on teen drivers.

KATE SHINDLE

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) -Miss America Kate Shindle had to wait for the boos to die down before she could finish talking to high school students about safe sex.

Miss Shindle told students at Jefferson Davis High School that the AIDS virus can be avoided through education and avoiding unprotected sex and intravenous drug use.

She told teen-agers that if they were sexually active, they should use latex condoms. "It doesn't mean that you don't trust someone; it means that you're concerned about your health," she said.

Then she was asked whether she practices abstinence or safe sex.

"I don't get into my own sexual experience," she replied, prompting loud boos.

Miss Shindle, 21, waited for the ruckus to die down, and then continued her speech Monday.

'No matter what I say, some of you will not be able to relate to it, but what I will say is that I practice what I preach," she said.

WAYNE NEWTON

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) -Wayne Newton has gone to court over a Branson theater deal he says struck a sour note.

Newton claims in a $5 million lawsuit that Shenandoah South Inc. and its owners mismanaged the now-closed Wayne Newton Theatre and failed to pay him much of the money he was promised.

But a lawyer for Shenandoah told jurors Tuesday that within months of the opening in 1993, Newton became suspicious that he was being cheated out of huge sums of money.

He began bullying the partners, threatening the son of shareholder Eugene Bicknell on one occasion, Shenandoah lawyer Vince O'Flaherty told jurors.

Bicknell and co-shareholders Gary Snadon and Richard Gallagher have filed a counterclaim accusing Newton of damaging their reputations.

After Newton's music hall closed, he performed at Tony Orlando's Yellow Ribbon Theatre, which has gone bankrupt. The two now take turns headlining at their new Talk of the Town theater.

GENE SISKEL

NEW YORK (AP) - Gene Siskel is recuperating from surgery for a growth on his brain. A spokesman for the film critic gave few details about the operation.

Siskel was recovering Tuesday at a New York hospital, where doctors have given him a good prognosis, said the spokeswoman for "Siskel & Ebert," the Chicago-based syndicated television show starring Siskel and fellow critic Roger Ebert.

The spokeswoman refused to give her name or details of the surgery.

Siskel, 52, expects to resume taping the show when Ebert returns later this month from the Cannes Film Festival in southern France, the spokeswoman said. Siskel also writes reviews for the Chicago Tribune.

GINGER BAKER

KIOWA, Colo. (AP) - In the past year, rock star Ginger Baker scrapped with immigration officials, lost a beloved polo pony and suffered injuries that threaten his drumming.

"A year ago I was the happiest guy in America," said Baker, who together with Eric Clapton and Jack Bruce formed the 1960s rock group Cream. "Today I'm a very sad fellow. Extremely sad."

The transplanted Brit is giving up his beloved horse farm near Denver and looking for a new country to call home. Baker said in Tuesday's Rocky Mountain News that he has narrowed his search to Italy or Ireland.

At 58, Baker thought the routine of caring for his horses and his ranch would last a lifetime. But things began to unravel last June when his horse caretaker, a fellow Briton, was deported in a green card controversy. Baker said he was fined $2,000 for employing the caretaker.

Two weeks ago, Baker received word that his own visa was extended to April 2000, but his stay is linked to keeping a record deal threatened by horse-related shoulder and rib

"It seems like I've done it all for nothing," Baker said.

R.E.M.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) - It may not be a Grammy, but R.E.M. has earned an award for its concern for historic buildings in Athens.

The Student Historic Preservation Organization of the University of Georgia presented bassist Mike Mills with a plaque Monday. The award includes a piece of plaster molding from the school's Demonsthenian Hall, built in 1824.

The band members have restored several historic buildings in Athens, where Mills has lived for 20 years. They have also tried to prevent the destruction of historic homes and contributed to studies for a downtown warehouse district.

Sally Walker, volunteer coordinator at the Hereford Food Bank, accepts delivery of donated food items from letter carriers Leon Trevino (left) and Robert Gallegos. The Hereford mail carriers collected nearly 5,000 pounds of non-perishable food items Saturday while making their rounds. The food was turned over to the food bank on Tuesday.

GOP targeting tobacco bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - A key conservative senator is joining the movement to kill Congress' leading tobacco bill because, he says, it contradicts the conservative principles on which the GOP won control of Congress.

"This bill is nothing more than a big government boondoggle cloaked in the language of 'protecting children," Sen. John Ashcroft, D-Mo., said in a statement Tuesday.

Ashcroft's announcement, expected today, was the latest in a series of increasing attacks on the bill, which passed the Senate Commerce Committee 19-1 on April 1. Sponsored by Chairman John McCain, R-Ariz., the measure would charge the tobacco industry $516 billion and approve vast new power to the Food and Drug Administration.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott plans to bring the issue to the Senate floor on Monday.

Many conservative Republicans say the bill simply means higher taxes and bigger government bureaucracy, anathema to the GOP message as the party defends its majority in this election year.

Fortier sentencing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) -Michael Fortier's attorneys called their client "the mailman who delivered the evidence" in the Oklahoma City bombing trials of Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols.

That wasn't enough for a federal udge to go easy on Fortier, saying the 168 deaths that resulted from the April 19, 1995 bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Building can be considered in determining his sentence.

Senate votes to restore food stamps for aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) - Food stamp benefits would be restored to 250,000 legal immigrants under legislation passed by the Senate, which brushed aside arguments that it would reverse the 1996 welfare

The five-year, $1.9 billion bill, sent to the House on a 92-8 vote Tuesday, also would provide new financial guarantees for crop insurance and set aside new money for agricultural research in what supporters said was a balance intended to appeal to both urban anti-hunger forces and farm advocates.

"This is a carefully crafted compromise," said Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa.

On a 77-23 vote, the Senate defeated an attempt by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, to send the bill back to committee, which would have effectively killed it.
