'LITTLEST COWBOY'

Trappings of cowpoke not new to 3-year-old

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

Horses, spurs, ropes, boots and a wide-brimmed hat make up the working gear of the Texas cowboy; so much so that few people even think twice about seeing a cowboy dressed in full working gear, moving cattle from one lot to the next.

But, when the cowboy is less than 3 feet tall, and still has to be strapped into a car seat, people take notice.

For 3-year-old Spencer Nicholson, the trappings of a working cowboy is nothing new.

He's been riding his own pony, by himself, for more than two years now. And, not just riding his horse, but working cattle in his father's feedlot every chance he gets.

Even at his young age, Spencer epitomizes the classic, slow-talking, slow-acting cowboy. From the crown of his dusty black hat to the tiniest pair of spurs to ever adorn a cowboy's boot, Spencer is all cowboy.

He says he wants to learn to rope and drive a pickup, but most of all he just likes to ride.

He doesn't say much. Most of his answers are very brief, that is until you ask him about his horse and what he likes to do.

"I like to ride," he said. "Horses are smarter than cows."

His first horse, which was given to him on his first birthday was a gray pony named Joker. Joker died last fall and Spencer had to do without a mount until early this year when a friend found an appropriate replacement. Spencer then named his new,

8-year-old black and white pony C.D. after Carroll Doyle, who found the pony in Louisiana.

Spencer, though he's too small yet to saddle his own mount, knows very well how to make his horse stop and go and do what he wants it to do.

With reins in hand and a leather strap, used to catch the pony's attention, the young cowhand demonstrates the proper method of telling his horse to go. Then with a gentle pull on the reins he said, "This is how you stop."

He doesn't hold with too much standing around just talking, though. He's got work to do and wants to get to it.

As most much older cowboys know, being a cowboy means more than just getting to ride horses, and that's OK with Spencer.

He doesn't limit himself to riding the pens with his father, Jim Nicholson, and the rest of the feedlot cowboys, but is willing to chip in and help wherever he can.

Pushing back his wide-brimmed black hat and wiping the sweat off his fair brow, Spencer tells his father, "I can do that," and bends over to pick up part of a broken foundation from an old building, which his father has dismantled. Then throwing the cement rock in the shovel of a bull dozer, Spencer heads back to get another.

From early morning, 8:30 or so, until late at night (usually it's around dark when his mom calls him in) Spencer does what he likes to do; working, riding and helping where he can.

Jumping from his car seat, into his mom's arms, he gives her a quick hug and a kiss and he's off to help the guys do whatever needs doing.

Spencer Nicholson, 3, may be the littlest cowboy in Deaf Smith County, but he stands tall when it comes to chipping in to help his father around the feedlot.

ROWDY RUNOFF Cornyn supporters allege push polling

AUSTIN (AP) - Several supporters of GOP attorney general candidate John Cornyn said Friday they've been called by people who say they're doing a telephone survey, then impart negative and even false information about Cornyn.

One said the caller suggested Cornyn had accepted "bribe money" while a Texas Supreme Court Justice.

"That crosses the line from half-truths and innuendos to outright, bold lies," said Cornyn spokesman Mark Lehman.

Kent Martin, a spokesman for Cornyn opponent Barry Williamson, said Williamson's campaign isn't behind such a negative campaign tactic, which is called a "push poll."

He said the Cornyn supporter who reported the bribe comment, Kathleen Weed of San Antonio, "lacks credibility because she is affiliated with the Cornyn campaign." Lehman said she isn't affiliated with the campaign, although her husband and Cornyn practiced law together years ago.

Cornyn and Williamson meet in Tuesday runoff for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Lehman said Friday his office had received 47 telephone calls from people reporting they had received a "push-poll" call.

One of them, Mrs. Weed, said the caller identified herself as being with a research company and asked whether she had voted in the Republican primary. The caller then asked if the election were held tomorrow whether she would vote for Williamson or Cornyn, Mrs. Weed said.

"I told her I would vote for John Cornyn, at which time she told me something to the effect of, 'Are you aware there are published reports that Mr. Cornyn had taken bribe money while he was on the bench?'" she said.

Mrs. Weed said, "I said, that is an out-and-out lie. ... I said, 'I know Judge Cornyn personally, and he's one of the most honest men that I know, and as far as Barry Williamson goes, because of this, I would never vote for him.'"

Martin said the Williamson campaign isn't doing a push poll. He said it is using telephone calling only to turn out Williamson's vote for election day.

"The truth of the matter is that this is a smokescreen by John Cornyn's

Panhandle wildfire danger is still high

Special to The Brand
Deaf Smith County and several other Panhandle counties have gotten a break from the surge of grass fires that scorched more than 50,000 acres since the beginning of March.

According to the Texas Forest Service, the area has received a relief from the grass fires in the past two days; however, the wildfire danger remains extremely high because of dry conditions. The extreme fire danger alert issued last week remains in effect.

"The Panhandle has not yet received significant precipitation and the dry grass along roadways and highway medians, and across rangeland, remains extremely vulnerable to fire," Les Rogers, TFS regional fire coordinator in Canyon, said.

Though some of the grass is beginning to green up, a lot of dead grass remains, Boo Walker, TFS section head in Lufkin, said. Walker flew to Amarillo this week to inspect the fire situation. "There's still a high dead fuel component. The grass will still burn," he said.

Partners to prepare list of top health issues

By DONALD M. COOPER

A step closer.

After Tuesday, the members of the Community Health Improvement Partnership (CHIP) will have compiled a list of what they believe to be the most important health issues facing Deaf Smith County.

In a process which began last fall, the 23 partners, directed by community health organizer Pat Stone and assisted by health care consultant Paul McGinnis of McGinnis & Associates of West Linn, Ore., have been examining the health care delivery system in Deaf Smith County.

The partners have conducted one-on-one interviews with residents of the county, surveyed local physicians and other health care professionals, and local employers.

The results of the raw data have shown conflicting perceptions on how the health care system works in the county, the quality of care and the accessibility/availability of care.

The partnership, which sponsored by Hereford Regional Medical Center, has sought to involve as many residents of Deaf Smith County as possible in examining the health care system.

The partners also have sought to expand awareness of the health care services and programs available in Hereford, and show how a strong health care system can impact the local economy.

The partners will meet at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center to go over the information, which has been collated by McGinnis.

"After this meeting, the partners will have prioritized the top issues," Stone said. She said the list of what the partners believe to be the most important issues affecting health care in Deaf Smith County will be made public, so the country's residents will be able to provide some suggestions for possible solutions.

However, the partnership's biggest task is just beginning with the identification of the most important issues affecting county health care. When the list is compiled, the

Hereford native sees the future of health education as a TV sitcom

BY LISA TANNER
Dallas Business Journal
Donny Lauderback has seen the future of health education.

It's a sitcom. To be exact, it's a locally-produced, humorous look at health issues, starring Hollywood talent.

The idea came to Lauderback in the shower, one day about 18 months ago. He reasoned that people might throw away a printed form or newsletter from their health plan, but they'd pop a video in the VCR just to check out its contents.

And, if they found the information entertaining, they'd watch future videos they received from their health plan. "Watching a preventive care video can help keep people out of the emergency room," Lauderback said. "That saves claims dollars."

After months of testing, Lauderback launched his new venture, Managed Care Communications Inc., which he funded himself, with a few outside investors. MCCI, which operates the Home Medical Network, filmed its second episode in March at Dallas. It has already landed its first big deal.

(Editor's note: A former Hereford resident, Donny Lauderback of Dallas, recently had his new business venture featured in a Dallas Business Journal article. Lauderback, the son of Armon and Arvella Lauderback of Hereford, graduated from Hereford High School in 1980. He attended Lubbock Christian University, then moved to Texas Tech University as a walk-on football player. After graduation from Tech, he returned to Hereford and was the first EMT on the local EMS crew. He moved to Dallas in 1989 and worked for a physician recruitment firm before going into private business. The following article was written by Lisa Tanner of the Dallas Business Journal.)

The company will provide health education videos for UniCare Health Plans, a division of Wellpoint Health Networks of Woodland Hills, Cal. They'll ship 50,000 videos in the first mailing, promoting UniCare's seven-day 24-hour medical advice line.

Lauderback was already familiar with UniCare. He and his wife, Katherine Stamper, operate the Managed Care Store, an insurance brokerage. After three years of working with insurance plans, they're tuned to their customers' needs.

Those needs range from programs covering preventive care and healthy lifestyles to managing specific conditions such as diabetes or asthma.

With that in mind, Lauderback has assembled production professionals and on-screen talent. The star of the videos is Edie McClurg, best known for her roles as the wacky principal's secretary in the movie "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," and the quirky neighbor in the TV show "The Hogan Family."

A research study showed that managed care companies could save up to $40 per member per year, after the costs of the program, by using an ongoing video health education program. Individuals were 30 times more likely to watch a video than read a printed mailing, according to the study.

City election

Voters will have contested races for spots on the Hereford City Commission on the May 2 ballot.

Early voting for the municipal election will be April 15-28 in the county clerk's office at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

Four positions, two single-member district and two at-large, are on the city's ballot, with only one incumbent drawing no opposition.

Commissioner Wayne Winget drew no challenge in his bid to keep his Place 4 seat. However, incumbents Eugene Condarco, Place 2, and Roger Eades and Carey Black, both at-large, drew opponents.

In the Place 2 race, Condarco is being challenged by Angie Alonzo. The challengers for the at-large positions are Martha Cavazos Rincon and Alma Delia Gamez.

The polls will be open 7 a.m.-7 p.m. May 2, with voters casting ballots at the Hereford Community Center, 100 Ave. C.

County meeting

Deaf Smith County commissioners will appoint two members to the Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority Advisory Board when they meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the commissioners courtroom at the courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

The commissioners also will approve a line item transfer to provide funding for the seal coating of county roads.

PLN study club meeting

The Promised Land Network is hold its first Southern Plains study club of 1998 at 7 p.m. Thursday at the First State Bank in Canyon.

The meeting includes discussion of Carolyn Merchant's book, "The Death of Nature: Women, Ecology and the Scientific Revolution." The meeting's theme will be "Environmentalism and Agriculture: Do We Have the Same Goal?"

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, contact the PLN office at 364-4445.

College prep summer camp

The West Texas A&M university Upward Bound program is accepting applications for a summer camp, June 1-July 10. The six-week residential academic camp is designed to prepare students for college.

Students will attend math, chemistry, physics, English, Spanish and study skills classes as well as planned opportunities for classes ranging from self-defense to interview preparation.

"Ninety percent of students in Upward Bound participate in post-secondary education," WTAMU Upward Bound director Martin Lopez said. "This program gives the student the tools needed to succeed at the college level."

Camp participants will stay in university residence halls Sunday-Thursday and return home each weekend. WTAMU students serve as camp mentors. There is no cost for tuition, room or board, and students receive approximately a $125 stipend. Transportation is provided to and from area communities.

The camp will conclude with an academic bowl competition and a trip to San Antonio to visit several college campuses.

To apply for consideration, the student must be a freshman, junior, or senior in high school, first generation (neither parent of the student graduated from a college or a university), low income or physically disabled; have an acceptable grade point average; and possess a strong desire to attend college.

For more information, contact the Hereford High School Counselor or WTAMU's Upward Bound at (806) 651-2351.

Horse seminar

A free seminar to help horse owners and enthusiasts learn more about equine nutrition, health, training and management will begin at 5:30 p.m. April 20 at Hereford Riders Club Arena.

The seminar, open to the public, features Craig Cameron is part of a nationwide series being conducted by Purina Mills and its network of local dealers.

"This is part of the largest equine effort in the horse industry, and our meeting will be tailored to the specific interests of horse owners in the area," said Matt Harris, the owner of Foust Feeds. "We hope that breeders, trainers, employees of cattle feeding operations, and people who simply enjoy horses will attend and hear about the training techniques of Craig Cameron."

Admission to the seminar is free, but reservations are recommended. Harris said those attending should be sure to sign up for the drawing of a Sooner Trailer which is to be given away.

Vet honored

Dr. Steve Lewis, managing partner of Hereford Veterinary Clinic, was named Consultant of the Year by the Academy of Veterinary Consultants during the organization's recent meeting in Dallas.

Lewis was selected for his many years of excellence in beef cattle consultation and production medicine practice.

Lewis, a native of Olton and 1979 cum laude graduate of Texas A&M University's College of Veterinary Medicine, began his practice in 1982 in Hereford after three years of practice at the Muleshoe Animal Clinic.

In addition to Lewis and his partner, Dr. Mike Mimms, the Hereford practice today employs Drs. Cris Young, Clay Rollins and Ronda Clark. Lewis and his associates provide health management services to about 1.5 million head of cattle in area feedyards, backgrounding yards, stocker and cow/calf operations.

TORNADO WATCH

Will El Nino change the twisters' path?

FORDLAND, Mo. (AP) - Each spring, with every ugly dark green cloud, Jamey Wright's father would usher the family into a cellar, out of storms' way. Wright professes no fear today, but he learned early to respect the weather.

That may be good, because since 1950 the geographical center of tornado activity in the continental United States is Fordland, about 175 miles southeast of Kansas City.

Nearly five decades of data averaging twister latitudes and longitudes place Wright's property in the middle of the action although no tornado has ever hit his farm.

Perhaps one never will. With tornadoes, the past offers no clue to the future. And statisticians attach little significance to such a finding.

Joe Eagleman, a meteorology professor at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, has plotted a similar "center of activity" on graphs for individual years. Such a spot is usually in central or southern Missouri.

Weather is a favorite topic for farmers here and April keeps the conversation flowing. The big talk this year is El Nino, already blamed for rain and storms in the West and Southeast.

Though Wright insists "you can't outguess the weather," tornado experts are already watching for the funneling winds and guessing about El Nino's impact.

"The atmosphere is chaotic," says Howard Bluestein, meteorology professor at the University of Oklahoma, Norman. "It's very, very slight changes in what happens at the beginning - slight changes in what happens right now - that will affect what happens a week from now tremendously."

A factor or not, El Nino faces tough precedents. The planet's fiercest tornadoes touch down most often in the United States. On average, 836 sightings are reported each year.

From its Storm Prediction Center in Norman, Okla., the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration recorded more than 38,000 segments between 1950 and 1995.

Those storms caused nearly 71,000 injuries and more than 4,100 deaths. That's an average of two injuries per twister, according to data compiled from newspaper accounts and National Weather Service reports.

An Associated Press analysis of that data shows that 75 percent of the tornadoes touched down in 17 states - in the Plains, Midwest and Southeast. These include Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas and Wisconsin.

NEWS in brief

Historic Irish agreement faces Protestant revolt

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Hard-liners within Northern Ireland's biggest political party threatened today to oppose the compromise peace deal accepted by their leader - the first of many expected challenges to the historic accord.

Ulster Unionist chief David Trimble - whose pro-British Protestant party opposes Irish unity and is central to making the agreement work - faced rebellion within his ranks the day after agreeing to the accord aimed at ending 30 years of violence.

Trimble went to the Ulster Unionists' Belfast headquarters early today to sell the settlement to the party's 110-member executive committee. While Northern Ireland would remain part of the United Kingdom with a new assembly, the Protestants and Catholics in this new administration would be required to forge formal links with the rest of Ireland, too.

Cache of drugs seized after agent posed as trucker

SAN ANTONIO - Federal drug agents are trying to determine which international drug cartel was behind the attempted shipping of 1 1/2 tons of cocaine seized last week.

The drugs were seized Wednesday, after drug runners unknowingly hired an undercover agent to sneak the cocaine from Pharr to Houston.

The cache, valued at about $14 million, was wrapped in plastic bundles and stashed in a tractor-trailer rig full of pineapples.

"It's the biggest seizure in at least 10 years" for the Drug Enforcement Administration in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Barry Abbott, head of the DEA field office in McAllen, said by phone.

The next step is finding out which of Mexico and South America's besieged drug cartels was responsible for getting the load to the Valley, Abbott said Friday.

"I don't have a clue. We'd like to know," he said. "In theory, we'd like to trace it back to the lab in Colombia."

Among the clues were letters "M" and "N" marked on the bundles, Abbott said.

Sierra Club may weigh in on immigration

DALLAS - Sierra Club members who argue that immigration has an ill environmental effect on the United States have forwarded a proposal asking the group to take a stand in favor of slowing the flow of immigrants.

The club's 550,000 members nationwide are being asked to vote on a measure called Alternative A, which states that the overpopulation caused by immigration is detrimental.

Members can also vote in favor of Alternative B, which reaffirms a Feb. 24, 1996 vote by the club's board to remain neutral on immigration policy.

The discussion has bitterly divided the 102-year-old environmental advocacy group.

Those who don't want to take a stand on the issue say Alternative A smacks of racist overtones.

THE HEREFORD BRAND Obituaries

BETTY WITT April 9, 1998

AMARILLO - Services for Betty Witt, 65, of Amarillo were to be 2 p.m. Saturday, April 11, 1998, in N.S. Griggs & Sons Funeral Directors Pioneer Chapel with the Rev. Troy Harp, pastor of Freewill Baptist Church officiating. Burial was to be in Llano Cemetery.

Mrs. Witt died April 9, 1998. She was born and raised in Amarillo and graduated from Amarillo High School in 1950.

She married Bill Witt in Amarillo in 1948. The couple owned Phillips Manor Motel of Dumas and she later worked for Holiday Inn in Amarillo, retiring after 20 years as bookkeeper/auditor. She was a member of Freewill Baptist Church and was the church pianist for 30 years.

She was preceded in death in 1989 by her husband.

Survivors include three sons, Bernie Witt and Robert Witt, both of Amarillo, and Randy Witt of Pine Bluff, Ark.; a brother, Bob Hughes of Hereford; a sister, Floy Minor of Ft. Gibson, Okla.; and five grandchildren.

Israelis ignore threats, celebrate Passover

JERUSALEM (AP) - Blocking out bomb threats and frozen peace talks, Israeli families gathered Friday for the ritual Passover meal commemorating the delivery of the ancient Israelites from slavery in Egypt.

Shoppers crowded outdoor markets, buying flowers and the key ingredients for the meal, including carp, wine and dried fruit.

FIRE

While outdoors, the forest service advises:

- Dispose of smoking materials properly. If in a vehicle, dispose of materials in the ash tray. But if outdoors, clear a spot down to bare soil with your foot, then crush all smokes and matches dead out. Then cover the materials with soil;

- If household trash must be burned, use a grid or lid to cover the receptacle or pit to avoid escaping embers. Also, clear at least 10 feet around the burn container or area down to bare soil. Have water and hand tools readily available and never leave the fire unattended;

- Do not burn during periods of high winds, such as between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. when the humidity is lower and winds tend to gust at higher speeds. It is best to burn during a light rain shower;

- If welding or using a cutting torch in the field or along a fence, select an area free of dry grass or other debris, or mow vegetation close to the ground or wet the area around and downwind from the work site. Postpone welding during high or gusty wind conditions;

- Avoid idling or parking a hot vehicle in tall, dry grass. Instead, stop or park in bare areas or sites with short grass. Tall grass, if in contact with a vehicle's hot catalytic converter, can ignite and cause a wildfire that can destroy the vehicle and also spread to other property.

While no one can control the weather, the forest service asks Panhandle residents to do their part in preventing grass fires. For more information, contact local fire departments, sheriff's offices or the forest service at (806) 651-FIRE.

Lehman said the Cornyn campaign isn't doing a push poll.

"We would never resort to this type of campaign tactic," he said.

Robbi Hull of Austin, who worked on Cornyn's campaign, and Cornyn supporter Ray Vaughan of Austin also said they received "push-poll" calls but that they didn't mention the word bribe.

Vaughan said the caller suggested Cornyn had taken hundreds of thousands of dollars in contributions from trial lawyers with cases pending before the Supreme Court. Ms. Hull also said the caller suggested Cornyn had taken hundreds of thousands of dollars from plaintiffs' lawyers.

Lehman said that while a justice, Cornyn "made a major, major effort not to accept campaign contributions from anyone who had a case pending before the Supreme Court."

To the Christian, Easter is the greatest event, the most promising hope in this life - the resurrection of Christ. Some day your dreams and mine shall all come true. For every headache there is a compensating joy. But we must have faith; we must struggle on. We must be as rooted in our belief and stand as steady as the mighty oak in the wind. In times of trial, we must look ahead for the happiness that God has promised.

We recently ran across some excerpts from Myrtle Reed's beautiful "Love Letters of a Musician." They seem appropriate for some Easter thoughts:

"Some day! Ah, all the waiting ones of earth have taken solace from the sound. Some day wet eyes shall shine, but not with tears, and quivering lips shall smile again. Some day the deep lines shall be smoothed from every careworn face, and the knotted, roughened hands made soft once more... For this is the eternal law. For every hour of suffering we are paid with abundant joy; for every surge of our helpless, finite passion there is a returning flow. For every swelling of the heart comes a moment of rest; for every hour of the night there is one of sun..."

Only wait a little time, and what was disappointment shall be seen as a blessing. By some day's magic touch, loss shall become gain... Thou hast only to wait, for light and joy shall surely come on the slow wings of some dear day"

Guest commentary

Focus on the city

If you missed the kids' fishing day on March 21, you really missed one of the more enjoyable activities for our youth in Hereford. We had wonderful cooperation from the Texas Parks and Wildlife and a lot of our local citizens.

A special thanks goes to the Hereford Volunteer Firemen who cooked hot dogs for our children. We plan on having another kids' fishing day this summer, so if you have children or grandchildren who did not participate this time, they'll have another opportunity yet this year.

It's that time of year when we consider who our elected officials will be. Our voter apathy in the past continues to bother me, so I'm writing this special appeal, asking all the citizens of Hereford to exercise their right to vote in this city election.

In visiting with people in Hereford, I have been totally amazed that so many of you do not know that there are contested races for three of the City Commission spots. The incumbents for the two at-large positions as well as the Precinct 2 position will face challengers in this year's election.

The at-large candidates are Roger Eades, Martha Rincon, Carey Black and Alma (Delta) Gamez. The Precinct 2 candidates are Eugene Condarco and Angie Alonzo. It is extremely important to you as citizens of Hereford that you, first of all, know the stands and concerns of your City Commission candidates, as well as that you do get out and cast your vote for your choice of candidates.

Early voting begins April 15 at the Courthouse and ends April 28. Election day is Saturday, May 2. Since we do not have contested races for the hospital board and there are no county or school elections being held at this time, the only election will be for Hereford City Commissioners. If you do not get out and vote, then your city will be represented by candidates not of your choosing. Remember, democracy is only as successful as the voters choose to make it.

As I'm sure you are aware, Hereford will be celebrating a grand and glorious birthday in 1998 - its 100th! Already a group of citizens are working on birthday plans, however, this is certainly a case where the more ideas we have from interested citizens, the more successful Hereford's birthday celebration will be.

Your City Commission has visited with the Hereford Beautification Alliance and together we are working toward Hereford looking its best for the celebration, which is being held in conjunction with the Town & Country Jubilee.

Very soon you will see additional trees being planted downtown, and we hope this project will be ongoing for several years. If you have thoughts about improving Hereford for our birthday party, don't hesitate to give us your ideas. We all can make a difference if we pull together.

Again, let me encourage you to accept your responsibility and get out and vote during this upcoming city election. Let's set a record for participation so that our children know we are serious about maintaining our democracy and freedoms.

As always, if you have suggestions for improvement of your city, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Bob Jossorand is mayor of Hereford.

Lawyer has own courthouse

A well-known East Texas attorney has his own courthouse.

Back in the '70s, Morris County closed the doors on its old courthouse, which was opened in 1881, and moved into a new, more spacious building in Daingerfield. For about 20 years, the Morris County Historical Society, a group of volunteers described as "little old ladies" kept the county's history alive by operating a museum in the old courthouse. But after a coup, in which new members ousted the officers, the museum left its doors. Ultimately, the old courthouse was put on the block and, to no one's surprise, Daingerfield attorney Harold Nix bought the building.

Mr. Nix, who gained his reputation and considerable wealth as the attorney who sued Lone Star Steel and about 300 companies doing business at the steel mill about 8 miles south of Daingerfield, had two things going for him in getting the old county courthouse: (1) The new officers of the historical society wanted Nix to buy the building, and (2) his law firm's office was next door to the courthouse in an old building he had spent about $800,000 renovating.

As Mr. Nix renovates the old courthouse, I can't help but wonder if he will keep a piece of Morris County election history in place.

Elections in Texas used to be less well-regulated than they are these days, with voters reaching out from the grave to cast ballots. I guess when you registered back then, you were a voter for life and afterlife, depending on how much your vote was needed.

As I heard the story, a Morris County judge in the late 1890s was being challenged for re-election. Because the county was "yellow dog," the Democratic primary was the only election that counted. Win the Democratic primary, and the candidate was guaranteed victory in November because a Republican seldom placed his name on the ballot. Even if there were a Republican on the ballot, it wasn't likely that even his relatives would vote for him.

With the judge facing stiff opposition in the primary, he decided he needed to know if any of his backup voters, most likely those in the cemeteries, would have to come to the polls. All of the ballots were cast at the courthouse, so the judge came up with a plan to get an early look at the balloting.

When he went to lunch, the election officials closed the polls and locked the ballot box in the courthouse vault, a large room with a huge metal door, complete with combination lock.

The county judge got one of his friends to hide in the vault. When the ballot box was locked inside the vault, the spy slipped out of his hiding place and opened the ballot box and counted the votes, letting the county judge know if he needed to call on his backup voters.

When the election officials returned from lunch and opened the vault, they found the county judge's friend unconscious, lying on the floor. When the vault had been closed, the oxygen supply was consumed, and the friend passed out. He was nearly dead when the vault was opened.

Although the county judge was re-elected, he decided to make sure that there would never be a repeat of what happened to his "spy." So, at the first meeting of the Morris County Commissioners Court after the election, the commissioners approved a contract to install a window in the vault.

I just wonder if Mr. Nix will keep that piece of county history intact.

oOo

As the day for filing those federal income tax returns approaches (it's Wednesday), this little joke is appropriate.

The local bar was so sure that its bartender was the strongest man around they offered a standing $1,000 bet.

The bartender would squeeze a lemon until all the juice ran into a glass, and hand the lemon to a patron. Anyone who could squeeze one more drop of juice out would win the money.

Many people, from weightlifters to steer wrestlers, had tried over time, but nobody could do it.

One day, a scrawny little man, wearing thick glasses and a polyester suit, came in and said in a tiny, squeaky voice, "I'd like to try the bet."

After the laughter died down, the bartender said OK, grabbed a lemon and squeezed away. Then he handed the wrinkled remains of the rind to the little man.

But the crowd stopped laughing when the little man clenched his fist around the lemon and six drops fell into the glass.

As the crowd cheered, the bartender paid the $1,000 and asked, "What do you do for a living? Are you a lumberjack, a weightlifter, or what?"

The little man replied, "I work for the IRS."

CAMPAIGN FINANCE

Maneuvers enhance cynicism

WASHINGTON (AP) - Once again, Republican opponents of overhauling campaign finance laws have derailed it while trying to cover their tracks.

Once again, reformers say voter outrage will revive the issue and force change.

This is getting to be a habit. There's no denying the cynicism stirred by the high price of political campaigns and the abuses that have resulted. But neither has produced the kind of backlash Congress can't resist.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich said he isn't worried about one.

He probably doesn't need to, despite the bitter protests of Democrats and some of his own Republicans at the way he got the latest House reform bill scuttled, pushing it to foregone rejection with a procedural ploy requiring a two-thirds vote for approval.

The expectation that there will be a reform uprising has yet to be fulfilled, despite fund-raising abuses, investigations, White House excesses and suspicions that what Congress does is influenced by campaign money.

Pollsters find no focus on the issue. When people are asked, they'll say they support reform. But there's no push. And no threat that anybody is going to lose an election over it.

Even Republicans resistant to change once fretted that reform might take hold as a campaign issue, to the point that Gingrich pledged to bring it to action, and Sen. Trent Lott, the majority leader, set up a task force on GOP reform proposals. Senate GOP leaders found the task politically unnecessary.

They also found a majority in the Senate, and the prospect of one in the House, in favor of bills they didn't want passed. So they saw to it that majorities wouldn't suffice.

Filibusters usually are the bane of Senate majority leaders, but Lott promoted one on the campaign finance bill and dropped the measure when its supporters fell short of the 60 votes needed to force action.

There are no filibusters in the House, but Gingrich found another way.

After postponing a promised vote that might have passed the bill the reformers favor, he put the issue up for abbreviated action. But it went before the House as part of a Republican bill with a provision that would effectively curb campaign spending by labor unions, which guaranteed Democratic opposition, and under rules requiring a two-thirds vote to pass anything. Two provisions did pass, against campaign donations by noncitizens and for strengthened disclosure rules.

At issue in all of this is legislation to end unrestricted donations to political parties called soft money, the root of the Democrats' admitted abuses in the 1996 campaign; and to restrict another soaring kind of

The Real World

'A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.'

— Amendment II, U.S. Constitution

Banning of guns isn't answer to the problem

Gun banning is once again in the news.

Every so often something brings the subject to the surface and one more time some politician or some group makes a proposal to ban one or all guns.

There are two problems with these proposals.

The first major concern dates back more than 200 years when the Founding Fathers penned and accepted the Second Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

During the penning of the Constitution, including the first 10 amendments, the guns being used were single-shot, muzzleloaders, usually used for hunting game, or Redcoats if need be. The authors probably never dreamed of the type weapons which are now under fire.

Signers of the Constitution, including George Washington, Ben Franklin and Alexander Hamilton, were among the most forward-thinking men of their time, yet I doubt if any of them ever considered guns would one day be used for other than hunting or self-defense.

More than likely, they never dreamed that guns capable of firing hundreds of rounds per minute would be commonplace or in the hands of the nation's children.

The second problem is more modern and should be more apparent to even the casual observer, and that is that guns don't kill. Guns are not the guilty parties. The people behind the trigger or the owners who fail to keep guns properly secured are at fault.

A gun, even a loaded gun, has never once gone out with the intentions of killing, maiming or injuring someone. Regardless of its type, brand or purpose of use, a gun is an inanimate object without the capability of acting on its own volition.

Sure, there is always the rare possibility of a loaded gun discharging and killing someone. For the most part, though, a gun left in a cabinet or hanging above the mantel doesn't just randomly go out on a killing spree.

I grew up with guns in my house. Rifles, shotguns and handguns were kept in their appropriate places. All the kids were allowed to learn how to handle, load, fire, and clean them.

If we cared to.

I can't remember not knowing that guns were not toys. They had a purpose and that is what they were used for.

My former husband had guns and we often went hunting or just to target practice. Had we stayed together, I have no doubt that my children would have been brought up with guns in the house.

As it is now, I prefer not to have one in my home. Not because I fear my children would misuse it, but because of all the extra kids that come through my doors who might.

I have no use for some of the guns which may be prohibited. There only purpose is mass destruction. They are designed to be fired in a wide area never being aimed at a particular target, which makes them useless for hunting or self-defense.

These guns, versions of AK-47s, I'm sure serve a purpose in a war zone, but has our country become a nation of artillery toting juveniles?

Banning the guns, whether it's a $50 Saturday-night special or a $4,000 super-modified automatic rifle, won't stop the problems.

The problems stem from people of all ages believing that guns can resolve the conflicts in their lives.

Frustrated postal workers; angry, estranged spouses; and gun-wielding students have forced this issue into the nation's thoughts and nightmares.

Banning any gun will not protect any law-abiding citizen. The lawless will continue to acquire, brandish and use the weapons and the streets will only become more dangerous.

Finding sound, tangible solutions to the root problems beleaguering our society would probably prove far more successful.

Until those solutions are found, though, don't look for me to support any gun ban proposal.

As firmly as I believe in the right of freedom of speech, I also firmly believe that banning even the assault weapons would be an infringement of my constitutional rights.

Let's find real solutions, not mask the problems with the latest Band-Aid.

spending, purportedly on issues but actually against candidates. That money usually is behind attack ads late in a campaign, unfettered because it is, purportedly independent of candidates. The bills would make it subject to the stringent limits applied to direct donations to candidates - $1,000 from an individual, $5,000 from a political action committee - when issue ads mention the name of a candidate within 60 days of an election.

Republican leaders have built a barrier with their labor provision, which would require that unions get the written permission of individual members before using dues for political purposes. With that provision in the bill or in the way, the majorities evaporate because Democrats won't accept it.

Arguments like this have been going on since campaign money limits were enacted over Richard M. Nixon's veto in 1971. Three years later, amid the Watergate scandals, a Democratic Congress broadened them. But the Supreme Court knocked out a major feature of that law, ruling that campaign spending can't be limited because that would restrict free speech.

Tax rustlers are caught

When people stop by the gas station for a fillup, they find some good news and some bad news printed right on the pump. The bad news has always been that roughly a third of the price of a gallon of gasoline went to the government in taxes. The good news was that the money went to build roads. The only problem was that the good news hasn't been true in years. Between 25 and 30 cents out of every dollar of gasoline taxes was being siphoned off to pay for anything but roads.

That's about to stop, and Texas drivers are going to benefit.

The Senate has now passed a highway bill which provides $10.866 billion to improve Texas roads. This marks the culmination of nearly two years of hard work in trying to get the federal government to live up to its commitment to use gasoline taxes to build and repair roads.

During the debate, when others said we couldn't make good on our promise because they needed the money for something else, I joked that their situation was a little like a cattle rustler's dilemma.

There is this rustler who has been rustling cattle off the Gramm ranch. We call the sheriff, and the sheriff comes out. The sheriff hunts him down, and he brings him to us. But, we know this guy, he's a neighbor, and we don't want to put him in jail. So the sheriff tells him that he has to quit rustling these cattle. And the rustler says, "But I'm used to eating all this beef! It's easy for you to say, but where am I going to get my beef?" Well, the right answer under this circumstance would be, that ain't my problem.

The rustling will now cease, and that will be a clear victory for the driving public in Texas. It will literally save the lives of people who are dying because of bad roads. With an improved infrastructure, it will mean about 13,000 more jobs, more growth, more opportunity all over the country. People will spend less time in traffic and more time doing productive things with their families or at work.

We have 31,000 miles of substandard highways and tens of thousands of substandard bridges in Texas, and this funding will give us a chance to fix them. The farm-to-market road system was built in the 1930s, and those roads had a life expectancy of about 30 years. We passed that milestone around 1960, yet we are still using those roads today. Moreover, our newest highways, the big interstates, were built in the 1950s and 1960s, and they are deteriorating rapidly.

In addition to Texas' $10 billion share, this bill creates a $450 million trade corridor-border infrastructure fund to finance such programs and the special "NAFTA Highway" designations that are being sought for I-35, the planned I-69 in South and East Texas, and the I-10/I-25 link at El Paso.

Our roadways are vital to the Texas economy, and I have worked hard to keep the federal government honest when it promises that our gasoline tax will go to build and repair them. I'm proud that we're going to keep the promise, and that Texans are going to benefit.

Nate Tate? A (bogus) American legend

NEW YORK (AP) - The art gallery, packed with 400 of Manhattan's rich, famous and fabulous, buzzed as David Bowie detailed the boozy, tortured life of artist Nat Tate.

The rock star knew what the assembled glitterati did not: Nat Tate never existed.

Obscure American abstract impressionist Nathwell "Nat" Tate was the invention of British author William Boyd for his latest book, a pseudo-biography titled "Nat Tate: An American Artist."

"It deals with some rather serious creative issues. What makes something authentic? Where does credulity end and incredulity begin?" Boyd said from London.

Boyd, who insists this was not "a gag or a scam" but an artistic exercise, tells the tale of a painter born in New Jersey and destined to die in New York Harbor.

Tate gets snubbed by Picasso, but fares better with arts patron Peggy Guggenheim. Gore Vidal (who was in on the joke) says in the book that Nat and Peggy shared a six-week affair.

The March 31 party marking

Boyd's book release drew a full house to Jeff Koons' downtown gallery, where the artsy crowd - including artist Julian Schnabel and author Jay McInerney - was greeted by a poster of the book cover for "Tate." Each received a copy of the book.

Later, Bowie entertained the group with a somber reading of a "Tate" excerpt detailing the artist's untimely death - his final ferry ride, his leap into the water.

Of course, his body was never found. And before the suicide, Tate had destroyed 99 percent of his artwork - "I was careful to make sure of that," said Boyd, who also created the lone existing Tate painting ("Portrait of K").

Bowie's interest? He's one of the founders of 21 Publishing, the London company behind Boyd's book.

Party guest David Lister, a reporter who exposed Tate this week in The Independent of London, recalled other attendees speaking as if they knew the artist. Publicist Valerie Shields, who organized the event, said most people just assumed that Tate was an obscure artist yet to register on their radar screens.

New banks popping up

Special to The Brand
DALLAS - Although banking organizations continue to exit the marketplace, de novo, or new, banks have made a recent resurgence into local markets.

The first-quarter 1998 issue of Financial Industry Issues, published by the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank, unravels this paradox by showing that de novo banks are springing up to take advantage of conditions that favor entry.

According to the article, understanding the paradox requires an examination of the market characteristics where de novo banks are emerging. The authors assessed markets for factors that influence bank creation, including competitiveness, small bank presence, small business lending, existing-bank profitability, population growth and general economic conditions.

The article concludes that markets with relatively few competitors and a minimal number of small banks are attractive for de novo entry. New banks are also found in areas with rapid population growth, an improving economy and the potential for small business lending.

It is the diversity of the banking market that allows new banks to be formed while the total number of banks declines, the article says. De novo banks are finding a niche by capitalizing on promising conditions and, in the process, satisfying unmet demands.

The first-quarter issue of Financial Industry Issues is available online at the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas Web site, <http://www.dallasfed.org>.

Act Now to Lower Your '98 Tax Bill

As you get ready to write that check to the IRS, you may be asking yourself, "What was all that excitement over the new Taxpayer Relief Act?"

True, the new tax laws didn't do much for your 1997 tax bill -- but you should see some benefits when you file your return next year. Many of the provisions took effect Jan. 1, 1998, so now is the time to make any changes that could lower your tax bill next year.

Here are some of the benefits of the new law:

IRAs. Starting this year, taxpayers have three IRA options: traditional deductible IRAs, Roth IRAs and non-deductible IRAs.

Deductible IRAs are available for people not covered by employer-sponsored plans, as well as for those covered by such plans but whose adjusted gross income (AGI) falls under certain limits. The new tax law not only raised these limits starting in 1998, but also allows spouses to make fully deductible IRA contributions regardless of whether their spouse has a plan at work, as long as their AGI is below $150,000.

If you can't make a deductible IRA contribution, you may find a Roth IRA more appropriate. Although contributions aren't deductible, withdrawals can generally be taken tax- and penalty-free, as long as the money has been in the account five years and you're 59-1/2 or older or meet certain withdrawal requirements. However, the Roth is available only to couples with total adjusted gross income up to $150,000 ($95,000 for singles).

Those who don't qualify for a deductible or Roth IRA can still enjoy the benefits of a non-deductible IRA -- namely, tax-deferred growth of your savings.

If you're considering switching funds from a traditional to a Roth IRA, you'll owe taxes, but if you convert this year, you can spread your tax liability over the next four years.

Capital gains. The top tax rate on capital gains is now 20 percent for investments you've owned more than 18 months and sold after May 7, 1997 (10 percent for those in the 15 percent bracket). The old top rate of 28 percent still applies to investments held more than a year but not more than 18 months. And gains on investments held less than a year are taxed as ordinary income.

If your portfolio is overweighted with one type of investment or industry, or if you own investments that no longer meet your objectives, the lower tax rates may provide an opportunity to reposition your assets.

Education savings. Starting this year, taxpayers can contribute up to $500 per year after taxes to education savings accounts for each child up to age 18. Earnings in the account grow tax-deferred, and withdrawals are tax-free if taken for qualified education expenses.

If your kids are close to or already in college, the savings account is probably not appropriate, but you do have two new tax credits. The Hope credit can cut your taxes by up to $1,500 a year per student for tuition during the first two years of college. The lifetime learning credit lets you take up to $1,000 a year off your tax bill. It can be claimed for any year in which you don't take the Hope credit for the same student.

Paying off a student loan? You can now deduct student-loan interest in the first five years of a loan payoff, up to $1,000 in 1998. This limit will increase each year, reaching $2,500 in 2001. The deduction, however, is only available to joint filers earning less than $80,000 ($40,000 for singles).

These are just a few of the new tax laws. Other provisions include lower taxes on home-sale profits, an increase in the estate-tax exclusion and child tax credits. Consult your tax adviser today to see how you can take advantage of the new tax laws, and maybe next April 15 will be a little more pleasant.

Chamber, trial lawyers fight it out

JOHN CUNNIFF

Business Mirror

NEW YORK (AP) - This is important turf, worth potentially billions of dollars, so it's no wonder two great institutions should fight over it.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has launched an attack on what it sees as abuses in the legal system, most specifically the filing of frivolous class-action suits that can enrich lawyers but not always their clients.

The Association of Trial Lawyers of America has counterattacked, asking all lawyers, especially those who belong to both organizations, to complain to the national Chamber and its local affiliates. "Help stop this smear campaign against lawyers," it says.

A Chamber spokesman suggests the ATLA reaction is a wonderful ploy for raising funds and a device for uniting all lawyers. An ATLA spokesman says essentially the same about the Chamber's campaign, which was announced last week.

Ploy or no ploy, both sides are arming themselves for battle.

"We're ready for anything," says Carlton Kraus, ATLA's spokesman. "If they attack 800,000 lawyers as first announced they're going to have a revolt among their local members."

He points out that many lawyers are Chamber members.

The Chamber's Lawrence Kraus contends that "the majority of lawyers are embarrassed by the (activities) of a small group of trial lawyers." He points out that he is a lawyer and that so is the son of Chamber Chief, Executive Officer Thomas Donahue.

Kraus will head the U.S. Chamber Institute for Legal Reform, whose mission is "to reduce excessive and frivolous lawsuits while restoring fairness and balance to America's legal system."

He says its goal is simple: "Stop the litigation explosion."

Among initiatives planned is the elimination of incentives for abusive and wasteful litigation by limiting excessive attorney fees that, he says,

Hereford leading supermarkets and grocery stores advertise in the pages of The Hereford Brand. Shop The Brand ads to look for money-saving coupons and to compare prices. Many Hereford housewives use The Brand ads to do their shopping at one of Hereford's fine supermarkets!

leaves less than half of money awarded for plaintiffs.

While fee limitation by itself is sufficient to explain ATLA's call to arms, another planned initiative could provoke open combat. This is the Chamber's intention to involve business in the judicial selection and election processes, primarily at the state level.

According to critics, this process now is something of an old-boys' club, a fraternity in which judges are beholden to lawyers for appointments and in which lawyer contributions play a large role in the election process. Business, too, must be involved, Kraus says.

"Business wants the courts to themselves," says ATLA in one of a series of papers encouraging members to fight the Chamber. It states that the legal "reforms" pushed by the Chamber of Commerce typically cut off only the rights of consumers injured or killed by faulty products.

Kraus argues that consumer rights already are diminished by attorney fees, and that the costs of frivolous suits amount to a tax on every American. The tort lawsuit system, he says, costs consumers and business $160 billion each year, often passed on in fees.

He contends that the Chamber never aimed its guns at the legal profession, of which it is the biggest client - and not even at trial lawyers as an entity - but at a relatively small percentage of the 5,000 or 6,000 trial lawyers, and at a malfunctioning system.

ATLA's Carl indicates that isn't the way the war began. ATLA's initial reaction, he says, was based on media reports that indicated a larger Chamber effort, and that it has since backed off because of criticism, some from its own membership.

Kraus says such media reports "mischaracterized" the Chamber effort, and that the Chamber "never was attacking all layers and not even all trial lawyers." He concedes that ATLA's "disinformation" campaign was effective to some extent.

"What we seek," said Kraus last week, "is a judicial system that is accessible to everyone and provides full and speedy redress for genuine injury, while limiting frivolous lawsuits and outrageous attorneys fees."

Speaking for trial lawyers, ATLA President Richard Hailey stated in the February issue of "ATLA Advocate" that Americans "will not be fooled by this self-serving effort to convince them that profits are more important than the lives and safety of American families."

partners then will have to begin working to develop a list of possible solutions to those problems. The list, complete with recommended solutions, will be presented to the Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors for their consideration.

In forming the partnership, it was determined the health care delivery system of the county needed a thorough examination because the delivery and financing of health care services in rural communities faces an uncertain future.

The threat to the rural health care systems is caused by uncertain economics, health provider shortages, changes in the federal guidelines for the Medicare/Medicaid programs, and rising costs.

The partners (and the fields they represent) are:

- Cindy Simons, educators;
- Margie Daniels, senior services;
- Betty Taylor, manufacturers;

'GOLF IS AN UNFAIR GAME'

Hereford's Dustin Whitaker (right) ponders the vicissitudes of golf as he looks skyward following a missed putt at No. 10 at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course Thursday. Teammate Lindsay Ward (above) stares down her putt on No. 14. Whitaker shot an 82 in the second round of District 1-4A play; Ward shot an 81 for a two-round total of 167, and is tied for third in the medalist chase with Kacey Henderson of Canyon Randall.

Tiger falls four back

By RON SIRAK
AP Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. -- Jack Nicklaus always felt he had to play poorly not to win the Masters. The same might be true for Tiger Woods.

That thought surely has to be somewhere in the back of the minds of Fred Couples, David Duval and Scott Hoch as they go into the weekend at Augusta National Golf Club.

Friday was a multiple club-tossing round for Woods as he pitched irons to the ground after unsatisfactory shots on Nos. 2, 11 and 15, yet there he was a 1-under-par 143 midway through his defense of the green jacket he won last year, lurking just four strokes off the lead set by Couples and Duval.

Woods was nowhere near as dominating as he was when he won by a record 12 strokes, but he played with the patience to take what the course would give him on another windy day at Augusta National.

Not even the distraction of playing in an eagerly awaited threesome with Fuzzy Zoeller and Colin Montgomerie could throw Woods completely off his game.

Zoeller, who made the infamous "fried chicken and collard greens" joke about Woods last year, got a boisterous reception on the first tee. Woods was greeted with only the polite applause that goes to the defending champion.

Still, he scrambled when he had to and stayed away from the big-number holes that brought down so many players. Perfectly symbolic of the way he has played the last two days was the 18-foot putt he made on the final hole, a putt he punctuated with a shout and a pumped fist.

Duval, Hoch and Couples also played with great control. Duval made four birdies in five holes beginning at No. 13 and shot 68 to be at 139.

"I gave up four slots on one hole in Tucson," Duval said. "Don't put too much weight on that right now."

Couples bounced around the most of the leaders, surviving three bogeys on his way to a 70 and a 139 36-hole score.

Hoch had the steadiest round of the day until the last few holes. His first bogey came on No. 16 when he missed a 2-foot putt, the same length he missed in a playoff with Nick Faldo to lose the 1989 Masters.

He then missed a 6-foot par putt on the last hole to shoot a 71 and was at 141, two strokes behind Duval and Couples.

Woods was tied at 143 with Phil Mickelson, who shot a 69, and Jay Haas, who had a 71, Paul Azinger, who had a 72, and Jose Maria Olazabel, who had a 73.

Prep hockey no longer on thin ice

By TERRY WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
ADDISON -- In Texas, where football is king and basketball is the crown prince of high school athletics, ice hockey doesn't even have a spot in the prep kingdom.

But in the fastest-growing suburbs of the state's fastest-growing cities, high school hockey is booming.

A Dallas-area league that began with four teams last year has 20 teams competing in two divisions this season. Houston has two leagues, and others are coming together in Austin and San Antonio.

Next weekend, the two Dallas division winners will take on the champions of the two Houston leagues in Dallas' Reunion Arena in the first-ever Texas high school hockey tournament.

In a way, it's fitting that the game is being played in Reunion Arena because that's also the home of the NHL's Dallas Stars. It was their arrival from Minnesota five years ago that kick-started the Texas hockey boom.

The Stars have made youth hockey a priority of their marketing efforts. Lance Lankford, now the organization's general counsel, was entrusted with developing youth hockey in the virgin territory shortly after the team arrived in Dallas.

"I grew up in Detroit, and I

"I think ideally, down the road, we'd like to see it become an official sport sanctioned by the UIL."

-- Lance Lankford

played high school hockey up there," Lankford said. "I got to play in two state championship games (in Michigan)."

He remains involved today as commissioner of the Dallas-area Southwestern Bell High School Hockey League and he's been instrumental in setting up the state tournament.

"I thought that with the way hockey's growing (in Texas), we'd be able to get it off the ground," he said.

Since the Stars moved to Dallas, professional hockey also has made inroads in Texas. Houston and San Antonio have International Hockey League franchises and the Central Hockey League and Western Professional Hockey League also have teams around the state.

But because hockey in Texas is still a new concept, and because

Baseball's new parks definitely not major league

It's still early in the season, but one thing is clear about Major League Baseball.

The new ballparks are ugly. I haven't actually been to either Phoenix or St. Petersburg, Fla., recently to get the full tour. But you can get a pretty good idea from watching a three-hour game on television.

Especially with new ballparks, TV loves to show off the grounds, the stands, and all the accoutrements of today's architectural statements. Sometimes, there's a lot of time between pitches.

I watched the first (official) game in the new Bank One Ballpark in Phoenix between the Colorado Rockies and the expansion Arizona Diamondbacks. In addition to seeing how badly the expansion Arizonans would play, I was interested in what the park looked like.

The Toy Department

By Bob Varnette

If you were the cruel type, you could say the Diamondbacks and their new ballpark are a match. Neither played well on Opening Day.

The Diamondbacks got spanked by the second-newest team in the National League and the Bank One Ballpark didn't meet the expectations I had, expectations based upon stories and pictures touting the new park as a "baseball-only park."

You know what a "baseball-only park" is -- Camden Yards in Baltimore, Jacobs Field in Cleveland, Coors Field in Denver, The Ballpark in Arlington. Each are pretty good examples, throwbacks to the quirky confines of 1930s and 1940s parks.

That was the idea behind the Bank One Ballpark. But from first appearances, it seems to have more in common with the multi-purpose stadiums built en masse in the 1970s and early 1980s.

First, no "baseball-only" perk would have a roof, ever. It's only a part-time roof.

From the air, the Bank One Ballpark looks like a big hangar. Instead of having big doors on the ground, its big doors are in the roof -- a retractable roof, you know, kind of like Skydome in Toronto.

Of course, they're not worried about rain, too much anyway, in Phoenix. They don't want the players to have to sweat too much in Phoenix's summer heat.

But inside -- and it is inside because it does have a roof, retractable or not -- the Diamondbacks have a grass field. Grass inside, didn't they try that in the Astrodome when it first opened?

Retractable roof or not, it's dubious as to whether the grass (a special shade-resistant zoysia) will be able to survive an 82-game home schedule.

I could go into how the Diamondbacks sold their soul to big business by getting a big bank to offset the costs of their new park, thereby giving the ballpark its name. But here's the worst thing about this ballpark.

It has a pool. It rents out, I am told, at about $4,500 per game, and accommodates something like 20 to 30 people. Now correct me if I'm wrong, but the main reason to go to a ballpark is watch the game, not cavort around in a very expensive pool. Let's move on to St. Petersburg -- the home of the Tampa Bay Devil Rays, 1998's second expansion team, and Tropicana Field. This "new" park is worse than the Bank One Ballpark.

First of all, the Diamondbacks at least had the nerve to try to make a go with grass. Baseball should always be played on grass. Say this over and over, and don't let anyone convince you otherwise.

It should never be played on some synthetic green plastic stuff. Tropicana Field has the plastic stuff, but that's not the worst thing about it.

Tropicana Field is not a "baseball-only park."

Fenway goes dry for home opener

By JEAN McMILLAN
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON -- No beeyah at Fenway Park for the home opener?

What'll they do next? Paint the Green Monster blue?

For the first time since Prohibition, there was no beer served at Fenway for the first Red Sox home game, the result of the opener coinciding with Good Friday and Passover.

Team officials thought it would be in poor taste for fans to be boozing on the holy day.

To those for whom the Red Sox are a secular religion, however, not to have a brew to wash down a Fenway Frank could be considered sacrilegious.

"It doesn't make sense. There was a lot of alcohol consumed in the Bible," said David Corcoran of Haverhill. Corcoran, 32, a health care consultant, was waiting in line to get into the Cask & Flagon bar across the street from Fenway Park. He planned to watch the game at the bar with friends.

"It seems to be a right-wing Moral Majority conspiracy," he laughed.

Fans both for and against the alcohol ban had different theories about the prohibition, many not buying the company line.

Some said the Red Sox had been caught serving to minors last year and had to surrender their license for a day. They figured the Sox picked Opening Day because they would be assured a full house anyway.

But the city's licensing department and the Red Sox denied all that.

Others suggested union distributors refused to deliver beer to the park or that the team was in cahoots with local taverns to ensure them the maximum business.

"If they were going to do anything, they should ban hot dogs," said John Fitzgerald, 50, of Scituate, referring to the Catholic practice of abstaining from meat on Fridays during Lent.

Despite some griping about the ban, most said they would take it in stride and make the necessary adjustments.

Bill Lyons, 41, of Sandwich, was among a group of eight men smoking cigars at a table at the Boston Beer Works. He said the gang goes to the season opener every year and usually abandons the park during the seventh inning stretch for the comfort of a local drinking establishment.

This year, they were planning to stay for only three innings of the game against the Seattle Mariners before heading out.

Bill Ryan of Lynn, dressed in a Red Sox shirt and Three Stooges hat, hurried toward the park as the lineup was being announced.

Ryan mocked the prohibition, saying patrons would have to catch a ball thrown at them as they entered the park as part of a sobriety test.

"If they had done this 12 years ago to Bill Buckner, we would have won a World Series," he said.

But for those concerned about future years, relax. The Red Sox said Good Friday, Passover and Opening Day are not expected to land on the same day again for 200 years.

Rockets crown Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -- Hakeem Olajuwon had 24 points, 11 rebounds and six assists as the Houston Rockets won their third straight game, beating the struggling Sacramento Kings 97-85 Friday night.

After the Kings closed to 90-85 on Anthony Johnson's 3-pointer with 1:37 left, Clyde Drexler made five free throws in the final 1:21 as the Rockets pulled away.

Drexler, held to three points in the first half, finished with 18 points and 10 rebounds.

Corliss Williamson scored 20 points and Anthony Johnson had 19 for the Kings, who have lost 15 of 16 games. Houston has beaten the Kings eight straight times over the past two seasons.

Charles Barkley reaggrieved a groin injury and left the game with 10:38 left in the fourth quarter. He finished with seven points and 11 rebounds in 20 minutes.

The Kings played without star guard Mitch Richmond, who has missed seven of the last nine games with a sore right knee.

Trailing by a point early in the third period, the Rockets went on a 16-4 run to take control. Drexler scored 10 points during the spurt, which helped Houston take a 70-63 lead into the fourth quarter.

Rookie Tariq Abdul-Wahad scored five points as Sacramento went on a 7-2 run in the final minute of the second quarter.

Abdul-Wahad, starting in place of Richmond, had scored nine of his 10 first-half points in the second period when the Kings outscored the Rockets 27-22.

NBA suspends Malone for elbow

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) -- The Utah Jazz and San Antonio Spurs played without their stars on Friday night.

San Antonio center David Robinson missed the Spurs' game against Seattle and won't play again until Monday or later because of a concussion and knee injury. Robinson was elbowed by Jazz forward Karl Malone and rendered unconscious on Wednesday, a move that led the NBA to suspend him Friday.

Utah took on the Los Angeles Clippers in its first-ever game in the Delta Center without Malone in the starting lineup.

Malone met the Jazz at the Salt Lake International Airport late Friday night for their charter flight to Minneapolis, where Utah will take on the Minnesota Timberwolves on Saturday night.

Robinson spent Wednesday night in a Salt Lake City hospital recovering from the blow, which knocked him unconscious for about two minutes. He was released Thursday and returned home to San Antonio. The Spurs say his injury will be evaluated daily.

Malone had started 543 consecutive games. He held the NBA's third-longest consecutive games streak and the longest consecutive starts streak.

He had played in 845 of Utah's last 846 games, missing only the Jazz' Dec. 17, 1991 contest at Charlotte while serving a one-game suspension for hitting Detroit's Isiah Thomas with an elbow. He also missed three games early in his career with injuries.

Robinson, a 7-foot center, toppled to the floor after he was struck and fell on his left side, twisting his left knee. Robinson has a strained left knee capsule, according to tests performed Thursday.

Malone, twice a teammate of Robinson on U.S. Olympic teams, assured him that the elbow was unintentional. Robinson doubted the blow was intended to hurt him, but was uncertain.

Rod Thorn, the NBA's senior vice president, administered the discipline.

"While I do not believe that Malone intentionally elbowed Robinson, players have a responsibility not to recklessly swing their elbows in a manner that could cause injury to another player," Thorn said. Malone was unavailable for comment.

Malone visited Robinson at LDS Hospital after Wednesday night's game.

"My first words to him were, 'I'm sorry,'" the Jazz forward said. "He said, 'Karl, those things happen.'"

"He came in and apologized," Robinson said after returning to San Antonio. "I accepted his apology. That was pretty much it."

Robinson said Malone is known to kick and move his arms a lot.

"I've known him a while," Robinson said. "That's the way he plays on the court. I don't really think he was trying to hurt me, but I don't know."

This was the second straight game in which Malone accidentally injured an opponent. During Utah's 101-99 victory at Golden State on Tuesday, Malone kneed Warriors forward Donyell Marshall, who left the game with a fractured rib.

"It's just circumstance," Malone said earlier of the injuries. "I haven't made a business of doing that in my career. If I've got to start doing things like that, I don't want to play."

Malone scored 88 points in the two games before the suspension. He had 56 against the Warriors and 32 against the Spurs. On Wednesday, he won the Henry P. Iba Citizen Athlete Award for his devotion to children's charities.

Jays defense boots game to Texas, 4-3

ARLINGTON (AP) -- The Toronto Blue Jays learned again the value of defense. It's a lesson the Texas Rangers have already taken to heart.

Texas, playing its sixth straight errorless game, took advantage of an error by Toronto third baseman Ed Sprague to score three times in the seventh inning Friday night and beat the Blue Jays 4-3.

"We can't give up games like that," Toronto manager Tim Lincecum said. "We have to play right."

The Blue Jays had two errors Friday night, giving them nine in nine games. Texas has made but two errors in eight games.

The Rangers, down 2-1, loaded the bases in the seventh against Dan Plesac (0-1) on pinch-hitter Roberto Kelly's double, a walk to Mark McLemore and Rusty Greer's single.

Right-hander Paul Quantrill came in to face Juan Gonzalez, and the move looked to have paid off when the Texas star chopped the ball to third.

But the one-hopper glanced off

Sprague's glove and into foul territory, allowing Kelly and McLemore to score. Gonzalez was credited with an RBI, giving him 13 in eight games.

Greer went to third on the play and scored on Ivan Rodriguez's sacrifice fly for a 4-2 lead.

Texas made several strong plays behind starter Rick Helling (2-0), who allowed six hits in eight innings to beat the Blue Jays for the second time in a week. He struck out four and walked one.

"Our defense is solid, one of the best in the league," Helling said. "When you've got defense like we have, the pitcher wants the hitter to put the ball in play. I didn't feel good out there early, but from the fifth inning on I started to feel better."

"We feel very good about our defense," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said. "The pitchers know that when there's a ground ball, the play will be made, and when there's a fly ball, it's going to be caught."

Spurs win, 99-84

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -- Jaren Jackson scored a career-high 31 points and the San Antonio Spurs, playing without injured center David Robinson, beat Seattle 99-84 on Friday night.

The loss dropped the Sonics 1 1/2 games behind Utah for the best record in the Western Conference.

Rookie Tim Duncan had 28 points and 17 rebounds for San Antonio, which lost Robinson when he was knocked unconscious Wednesday by an elbow thrown by Utah's Karl Malone. The 7-footer is expected to be out at least through the weekend as he recovers from a concussion.

UNL edges A&M

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) -- Donny Starkins hit a two-run single with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning, lifting Nebraska to a 4-3 win over Texas A&M on Friday night.

Matt Schuldt (2-0) went the distance for the Cornhuskers (14-12, 2-5 Big 12), allowing six hits and striking out seven batters.

He outdueled Texas A&M ace Ryan Rupe (7-3), who struck out 14 in eight and one-third innings.

How while the Devil Rays are new, Tropicana Field isn't. True, the name is new, but the stadium has had several past incarnations -- most notably as the Thunderdome.

Tropicana Field is a multi-purpose stadium, and it shares similar characteristics with other hideous multi-purpose stadiums -- The Alamodome in San Antonio, the Kingdome in Seattle, the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis -- blandness, adaptability and a complete lack of respect for the game of baseball and how it was meant to be played.

The name Tropicana Field may still be in the recent portions of your memory, at least if you're a college basketball fan. It wasn't even one month ago Tropicana Field was hosting NCAA men's tournament games.

In the past, ice hockey has been played there, as have football and, I even believe, arena football.

A true baseball park should be for baseball only, with the real green stuff, no roof and no pools. Could you imagine ice hockey being played in Fenway Park, or Tiger Stadium? Or basketball?

A long time ago, before the building of the Pontiac Silverdome, the Detroit Lions used to such few schools have teams, the sport isn't sanctioned by the University Interscholastic League, which governs athletics and other extracurricular activities at state public schools.

"I think ideally, down the road, we'd like to see it become an official sport sanctioned by the UIL," Lankford said.

The Southwestern Bell league will hold its championship this week. The division champions will be decided Tuesday and the league championship game will be Thursday at the Dr Pepper Stars Center in Irving, the NHL's team headquarters.

The two Houston leagues are the Interscholastic Hockey League and the Fort Bend Hockey Club.

"We have a lot of kids, families who have transferred down here," said Bill Justice, president of the IHL. "We've also got a lot of kids who got started playing rollerblade hockey. It's pretty divided, 50-50."

Justice said the rapid expansion of hockey in Texas will produce more competition from around the state, so much so that the state tournament likely will have to expand next year.

"Austin ... (is) going to be part of the state playoffs next year," he said. "Our next center we're starting to work on is San Antonio."

One problem facing Texas hockey players is ice time -- or rather, a lack of it.

Recently, the Coppell High team of the Southwestern Bell league began a practice at 10 p.m. While that may seem late, it's early compared with practice times set by the league's team from Southlake Carroll. They've had practices at 1 a.m. and 5 a.m.

"The rink fees are lower at this hour," says Coppell coach Chris Sharon.

Some play for the love of the game, some are more serious about it.

"They all want to go up and play hockey in college and the pros," said Coppell assistant coach Terry Tchong.

Tcheng's son Jason is the team's captain. He first fell in love with hockey five years ago when his family lived in Los Angeles and he began watching the Los Angeles Kings.

Tcheng hopes to play varsity hockey in college, as does Ken Furphy, Coppell's starting goaltender.

But Furphy has a while to wait -- he's a 15-year-old sophomore.

"All my cousins played hockey," said Furphy, a native of Detroit, which bills itself as "Hockeytown." "I would always be the one stuck with playing goalie."

Tiger

play football in Tiger Stadium.

It can be done, but that doesn't make it right. It's more a matter of convenience than anything else.

Imagine the damage done by playing football on a baseball field. This isn't so much of a problem once the baseball season has concluded; there's plenty of time to re-sod or repair the field before April.

But when the two sports are playing simultaneously, and a baseball game follows a football game, and you add a little moisture, what you have is a recipe for a mess. That's why many of the combined baseball-football stadiums put in artificial turf.

We don't live in a perfect world, and sometimes economy will take precedence over the best interests of sports. But with the staggering amount of money involved in sports today, you would think the only limiting factor keeping every professional team from having its very own place to play would be finding enough space to build their dream home.

And one more thing before I go, no ballpark should ever take the name of a corporate entity. That's what the NBA is for.

To make the historical connection between Woods and Nicklaus complete, the Golden Bear, winner of six green Masters jackets, rolled in a 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole for a 72 and was at 1-over-par 145, just six strokes off the lead going into the weekend.

"I always felt if I played well it was my tournament to lose," Nicklaus said earlier this year, thinking back on his domination of Augusta. "And I felt if I was not playing well I could still win, just not as easily. I never felt that way anywhere else."

He sounded almost as confident after his round Friday.

"If there is one golf course I am going to play well on, it is going to be this one," said Nicklaus, 58, who is playing in his 40th Masters.

"I really should have been better than 72," he said. "In excellent conditions I really am not going to beat the kids, but in bad conditions I'm going to have a chance. Maybe I can scratch it around and scare somebody."

Apparently, anyone who wants to win the Masters over the next 20 years is going to have to be scared of Woods.

He ignored both Zoeller and Montgomerie on the practice green and neither player made an effort to speak with him. Finally on the first tee Zoeller extended his hand, Woods took it and Zoeller patted him on the back.

It took 66-year-old Gay Brewer to break the ice. There was a backup on the second tee and when Brewer hit a good drive Zoeller and Woods made eye contact and laughed.

"He said he was driving the ball well," Woods said.

"About 230," Zoeller said.

"That one was about 280," said Mike "Fluff" Cowan, Woods' caddie.

Zoeller then moved to the opposite side of the tee box and smoked a cigarette. Woods remained cordial but distant with both Zoeller and Montgomerie throughout the round, much as he does with most playing partners.

If there were any jitters, they affected Zoeller on the first hole. Both missed the green -- Montgomerie into the bunker -- and neither could make an up-and-down to save par.

While Woods hung close to the leaders, Zoeller and Montgomerie slipped back, Zoeller shooting a 74 to be at 145, and Montgomerie getting a 75 for a 146 total.

All three excited the massive gallery on No. 6 with some excellent shotmaking on the difficult par-3.

With the pin tucked behind the front left bunker, Montgomerie hit to 3 feet, Woods hit his to within an inch of Montgomerie's ball, and Zoeller knocked his to 10 feet. All three made their birdie putts to go to 1-under par.

Woods then started pulling away, making a birdie on No. 8 -- the fourth time in six tries he had birdied a par-5 in the tournament -- and then hitting his approach to 5 feet for a birdie on No. 9.

That birdie put Woods at 3-under par and he was tied for the lead with Couples and Hoch. Moments later, Couples had a tap-in birdie on No. 8 to move into the lead alone.

But Woods, who played the par-5 holes 13-under par last year in his record 18-under effort, was not able to take advantage of those holes on Friday, making one birdie and one bogey. He was 4-under on them through two rounds.

Woods stayed close with more solid putting, extending his streak of no three-putt greens to 114 holes.

El Paso to try for Cowboys summer site

EL PASO (AP) -- Plans for a $113 million El Paso sports complex, complete with a 20,000-seat stadium, are quietly in the works as the city attempts to lure the Dallas Cowboys' training camp, the El Paso Times reported in Thursday's editions.

City Council members and members of the city's Public Service Board, which owns most of the northwest El Paso land where the proposed 200-acre facility would be built, said they were unaware of the plans. The newspaper obtained a copy of documents outlining the project.

Chamber of Commerce president Wes Jurey has been part of the planning process. He said the idea probably was going to be made public next Wednesday.

The Cowboys currently have a one-year agreement to train in Wichita Falls this summer.

Dodgers slam Houston, 7-2

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- Mike Piazza became the first player to hit grand slams in consecutive games for the Los Angeles Dodgers, highlighting a 7-2 win Friday night over the Houston Astros.

Piazza's seventh career grand slam -- he did not hit one all last season -- came on a 3-0 pitch in the eighth inning from reliever Mike Magnante.

It marked the first time the Dodgers as a team had grand slams in consecutive games since August 1-2, 1986, when Greg Brock and Enos Cabell connected against Cincinnati's Mario Soto and John Franco at Dodger Stadium.

Ramon Martinez (2-1) struck out 10 in eight innings. He gave up two runs and four hits in eight innings.

Martinez hit a two-out double in the sixth and scored on Eric Young's single, tying it at 2. Bob Scanlan relieved Shane Reynolds (1-1), and Todd Hollandsworth hit a triple to put the Dodgers ahead.

Hollandsworth reached over the left-field fence to rob Moises Alou of a leadoff home run in the fifth.

LOUIS GOSSETT JR.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Actor Louis Gossett Jr., who appeared in the TV miniseries "Roots," will join members of Alex Haley's family in dedicating a statue to the late writer. The 13-foot-high, 4,200-pound bronze figure, described as America's largest statue of a black man, depicts Haley sitting with a book in his hand. The Pulitzer Prize-winning author of "Roots" was born in west Tennessee and later lived in Knoxville. He died in 1992. Gossett won an Emmy in 1977 for his portrayal of the slave Fiddler in the TV miniseries based on Haley's novel. The statue was installed in November and will be dedicated April 24. Also expected to show up at the dedication are Haley's relatives, former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander and Robert Guillaume, who starred in the TV series "Benson."

ROBERTO ALAGNA

ANGELA GHEORGHIU
NEW YORK (AP) - Husband-and-wife singers Roberto Alagna and Angela Gheorghiu, who have been feuding with the Metropolitan Opera over one production, have signed a contract to perform in another. Alagna, a tenor, and Ms. Gheorghiu, a soprano, will play the leading roles in Donizetti's "The Elixir of Love" in the 1999-2000 season, Joseph Volpe, the Met's general manager, said Wednesday. Last week, the Met withdrew the couple's contract to perform in a Franco Zeffirelli production of Verdi's "Traviata" next season. Volpe said the couple had wanted to approve the production concept and designs, a right the Met does not give to any singer. But Alagna, who signed CDs and programs Thursday at the Met's gift shop, said the sticking point was that he and his wife were asked to sing eight performances instead of six. "It made this small scandal. I think it is strange," Alagna said. Volpe, who paid a visit to the couple's dressing room after Saturday's performance of "Romeo and Juliet," said he feels the dispute is over. "I think our problems are behind us," he said.

HCCA memberships available at concert

"A Season of Music, A Lifetime of Memories" is the theme for the 1998-1999 Hereford Community Concert Association season.

Memberships in the concert association for the coming season will be available beginning April 14, according to Judy Wall and Sharon Cramer, co-chairmen of the membership drive.

Persons who are interested in purchasing a season membership for the 1998-1999 season are invited to attend the final concert of the current season at 7:30 p.m. on April 24. Amarillo Little Theatre's production of "Smoke on the Mountain" will be held in the Hereford High School auditorium and will be open to concert association members and non-members.

Those who are not currently members of Hereford Community Concert Association will be able to purchase tickets in advance for $7 or $8 at the door.

Created by Connie Ray and Alan Bailey, "Smoke on the Mountain" is an energetic, light-hearted portrayal of a family of singers as they entertain a congregation in a Baptist church in Mount Pleasant, N.C., in 1938.

The show is a celebration of Appalachian gospel and bluegrass music by the Sanders Family Singers as they provide an evening of song and testimony for the church congregation.

Memberships for the coming year will be available in the foyer of the auditorium during "Smoke on the Mountain." Memberships are $20 for adults, $10 for students and $50 for a family.

The 1998-1999 concert season will include the Rajko Song and Dance Ensemble of Europe, The Side Street Strutters Jazz Band, and soprano Mary Burt who will, in addition to her concert performance, conduct a master voice class.

Community Concerts have given people in the United States the opportunity to experience live, professional music and dance entertainment for nearly 100 years.

For further information about membership in Hereford Community Concert Association or about the performance of "Smoke on the Mountain," call 364-3486 or 364-5584.

Making plans for observance of the Week of the Young Child, April 19-25, are Marilyn Bell, seated, director of King's Manor Childcare, and Beverly Harrison, director of Hereford Day Care. A reception honoring early childhood professional caregivers will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at King's Manor Childcare.

Week of Young Child begins with reception

A reception honoring early childhood professional caregivers will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at King's Manor Childcare.

The reception and seminar which follows from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. are planned to increase awareness of April 19-25 as the Week of the Young Child.

The Panhandle Association for the Education of Young Children (PAEYC), of which King's Manor Childcare, Hereford Day Care and First Baptist Kindergarten are local members, has joined the national association in the observance of this special week.

The purpose of the week is to promote the needs of young children and their families and to recognize the high quality early childhood programs that serve them.

The National Association for the Education of Young Children established the Week of the Young Child in 1971, recognizing that the early childhood years -- birth through age 8 -- lay the foundation for children's success in school and in later life. "Keep It Simple Sweetheart" is the theme for the seminar for education/care givers which follows the public reception Tuesday.

The program will be presented by Carol Hale, director of Creative Care's Early Childhood Center in Amarillo.

PAEYC and local childcare givers suggest some things that parents can do to spend quality time with their children, not only during the Week of the Young Child, but on a regular basis.

These include read a book with a child, cook something together, play a game with a child, worship together, do something special with another child, tell the child a story about yourself, tell the child a story about him/herself, make something together, visit a library or museum, take a walk together.

Free fun activities for children ages 2-6 will conclude the Week of the Young Child on Saturday, April 25 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Western Plaza in Amarillo.

Military Muster

Marine Pfc. Andy V. Brown, son of Janet Johnson of Hereford, recently reported for duty with 2nd Battalion, 4th Marine, 1st Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Brown's rotation to a new duty station exemplified the worldwide assignability of Marines and Sailors.

This flexibility allows our naval forces to protect U.S. national interests by serving as the principal enforcers of peacetime engagement, deterrence and crisis response around the world.

The 1997 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Marine Corps in August 1997.

Included in the cast of Amarillo Little Theatre's production of "Smoke on the Mountain" are, from left, David D. McKnight Jr., Gary Graham and Sally Braschler. The show will be presented to association members and non-members as the final concert of the current Hereford Community Concert Association season at 7:30 p.m. April 24 in Hereford High School auditorium. Non-members can purchase tickets in advance or at the door.

- *Ms. Susan Green and Family.

We are glad you're here and hope that you enjoy our community spirit. If you have moved to Hereford recently and we have overlooked welcoming you properly, please call 364-7721.

Hints from Heloise

TRAVELING WITH PETS

Dear Heloise: When we took our dog on a cross-country trip I had four tags made.

For the first half of the trip she had a tag with our neighbor's phone number. Don't let them wear the tag with your number because nobody's home!

When we reached our destination I had tags for the three families we stayed with. This way she always had a local name and phone number.

— Adele Payerle, Salem, Ore.

Wow, that's one well-traveled and -identified dog. Good thinking. — Heloise

SHIPPING COOKIES

Dear Heloise: When I was stationed in Korea, my mother would send me cookies. The thing was, she shipped them in popped popcorn. The cookies arrived with not one cookie broken and we got to eat the popcorn.

J. Marshall, Yourstown,

Dear Heloise: Lots of things you usually throw out can be donated to day-care centers or schools or could be used by your children for art projects.

1. Paper-towel and toilet-paper rolls can be made into telescopes and binoculars. Cover the end of the tube with colored cellophane and a rubber band to make a rosy filter to view your world.

2. Plastic strawberry baskets have a variety of bottoms and can be used to print patterns on paper.

3. Spice containers or other empty food containers can be placed in the play-kitchen area or become groceries for "pretend" shopping.

Children's imaginations are limitless when it comes to inventing new uses for these items. — Deborah Cox, Rochester, N.Y.

You are so nice to pass things on and take the time to write to us too. It is wonderful to reuse things and, especially, to be able to donate them to schools.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"When times get tough, you can adjust, or...you can adjust." -- Lady Bird Johnson

HISD students enjoyed an extra day of Easter break due to teacher in-service on Thursday. HJH teachers Kim Hofferichter, Susan Perrin, Jerry Miracle and I were in in-service on Wednesday, also, as we attended the Family Educator Training with several other HISD teachers.

Mr. Farr showed slides of Andrew Jackson's home, the Hermitage, for enrichment during the class study of the Jacksonian era.

Seventh grade history students, Yellow and Green teams, have created "remedies" for medicinal problems in the 1850's. They have made posters to advertise their remedy which may heal everything from snake bite to plain ole meanness!

History day students who are preparing for state competition in May will have much to do before the end of April. Brice West and Marcus Smith, who are entering individual projects, will have project boards finished by the 22nd. All reports and bibliographies are to be finished no later than May 5. Wesley Reinart and Wade McNutt are practicing their performance script. Clay McNeely has already entered his paper in the state competition.

The seventh grade honor band and the eighth grade honor band performed a pre-contest concert Thursday, April 2, at the HHS auditorium and were critiqued by Bryant Harris and Jon Strother of Canyon. Each band received many helpful suggestions and had the experience of performing in a new location. The Mighty Maroon Band Boosters' president, Ted Goldsmith, presented the HJH band with a banner to display in the band hall and for use in parades.

Life Skills classes are measuring wood to be used for tables for the greenhouse that is to be built. They plan to begin cutting the wood this week.

Special Education is in the process of testing students and the spring ARDs have begun.

Seventh grade history classes will begin the unit on the Civil War this week. Some of the eighth graders will be in the same unit very soon.

Teams are contacting parents about students who are in danger of failing two or more classes. Conferences with parents about this situation have begun, also.

Seventh graders will be attending eight periods of classes next year while eighth graders will have seven periods and a "study hall" type period at the end of the day. This is due to all seventh graders being in reading classes.

"If we are to see our way through the final years of this difficult century, we must create an education that drives our young people to give as much thought to art as to technology, as much thought to ethics as to economics, as much thought to civil rights as to economic competition abroad." -- Keith Geiger

Teel, Wagner to wed in August ceremony

Jerry and Denise Teel of Hereford announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Shelia Dee, to David Lynn Wagner Jr.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of David Wagner and Pam Wagner, both of Hereford.

The wedding is planned for Aug. 1 in the First Baptist Church of Hereford.

The bride-elect is a 1994 graduate of Hereford High School. She is a candidate for May graduation from Texas A&M University in College Station with a Bachelor of Science in Agribusiness.

Wagner is also a 1994 HHS graduate. He attended West Texas A&M University in Canyon. He is employed by Scott Seed Company of Hereford.

Nazarene Church is site of June wedding

Terry and Jeanette Hardy of Hereford announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Terra Marie, to Richard Jasson Lara of Canyon.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Kathy and Dennis Walker of Canyon.

The couple will be married June 6 in Hereford Church of the Nazarene.

The bride-elect is a pre-med student at West Texas A&M University. She is the granddaughter of Louis and Darlene Lee of Hereford.

Lara is employed at Affiliated Food in Amarillo. He is the grandson of Dean Adams of Umbarger and Minnie and Marshall Padgett of Hereford.

Paetzold, Railey to be united in matrimony

Larry and Martha Paetzold of Hereford announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lori Ann, to Ian Alan Railey of Norfolk, Va.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Louise Crawford of Hereford and Ronnie Armstrong of Seminole.

The couple will be married Aug. 22 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Hereford.

The bride-elect graduated from Hereford High School in 1997. She attends Amarillo College as a dental hygiene major. She is employed at Texas Tech Medical Clinic in Amarillo. Her grandparents are Teresa Paetzold of Hereford and the late Bud Paetzold, Robert and Ruth Choate of Cedar Edge, Colo., and Alice Miesner of Beaverton, Ore.

Railey is a 1996 graduate of Hereford High School. He is enlisted in the U.S. Navy, stationed at Little Creek Naval Base in Norfolk, Va. He is the grandson of Robbie and Pat Traylor of Canyon.

Becky's Camp Site

Do they still make Easter eggs? If you grew up in the years immediately after World War II, you know the kind I mean.

Not the chocolate-covered creme filled candies in an egg shape. And not the solid milk chocolate eggs. Or jelly beans. Or various other assorted candies wrapped in pastel Easter colors.

But Easter eggs. The horrendously sweet candy in the shape of a flat-sided egg with a white almost-pure sugar center.

These were the only kind of store-bought Easter eggs we had when I was growing up and they were available only at Easter.

I remember as a very young child, under the age of 5, my parents hiding these candy eggs in the yard on Easter morning. But they were not individually wrapped in those days, so my sister and I had to "hunt fast" in order to find the eggs before our family dog (who had a sweet tooth) found them.

One of the best things about these candy eggs was that they were durable. They didn't melt if you held one in your hand too long or if the sun got too hot before you found them.

And this meant they were ideal for re-hiding. My sister and I would spend Easter Sunday afternoon taking turns hiding all the eggs, then whoever was not the "hider" was the "seeker."

I really don't remember actually eating very many of these candy eggs. They were just lots of fun to play with.

Now my father, on the other hand, really enjoyed eating them. And I think he's one of the few people I ever knew who actually liked the overly sweet candy eggs.

We usually bought one package of Easter eggs just for Dad and he would eat them at the rate of two or three a night (as a bedtime snack) until the entire package was gone.

He never seemed to want to eat the ones that we collected in our Easter baskets and I didn't understand why at the time.

My sister and I seldom decorated hard-boiled eggs and looking back on it now I realize that the reasons for this were probably directly related to finances.

While we raised chickens and gathered the eggs, they were not just for our own consumption. My mother sold them to the local grocery store to supplement a rather meager farm income during the drought years of the early 1950s.

And food coloring to decorate the eggs was a luxury item that I'm sure my mother didn't want to spend her budgeted grocery money on.

But it actually pleased my sister and me that we had the store-bought eggs. They were a rare treat.

Zachary Taylor refused to be inaugurated as President on March 4, 1849 because it was a Sunday. Since that left the Presidency vacant, many historians say president pro tempore of the Senate David Atchison served as President for that day.

Thank You

The families of Larue Blackwell and Elizabeth "Granny" Hix wish to express our appreciation for the many acts of kindness provided to us during our times of sorrow. A special thank you to Baptist St. Anthony's Hospice, Deaf Smith Home Health and Avenue Baptist Church.

Thank You!

We will miss our precious Nedra so much. Words are not adequate to express the gratitude we feel toward the pastor and congregation of First Methodist Church and the people of Hereford for your overwhelming love and support during these last few days.

You've expressed your love for her in the love and caring you've poured out on us: in visits, phone calls, cards, food, flowers, hugs and tears. We appreciate each one more than we can say.

It comforts our hearts to know that she'll remain in your memory, just as she'll continue to be a part of our hearts and lives forever.

New officers installed by Delta Xi

Delta Xi of Delta Kappa Gamma International celebrated the 42nd anniversary of the founding of the chapter and installed officers for the new biennium during its recent meeting.

The chapter was founded April 21, 1956, in Hereford. Three charter members who are still active members were honored for their leadership and inspiration in the field of education and for the difference they made in children's lives.

Della Stagner, who taught school 37 years; Floise McDougal, 23 years; and Margaret Ann Durham, 27 years, were presented with red roses and honored with brief biographies of their lives given by Sue Inmon, Donna Warrick and Rosemary Shook.

Together the women have contributed 145 years of service to Delta Xi.

During a candlelight initiation ceremony directed by Eloise McDougal, officers installed were Kris Dollar, president; Barbara Yavornik, first vice president; Donna Warrick, second vice president; Jeanie Conway, recording secretary; Margot Sims, corresponding secretary; and Brenda Campbell, treasurer.

As a part of the anniversary celebration three former presidents, Della Stagner, Betty Mercer and Bera Boyd, reminisced about their terms of office.

Marilyn Leasure, junior high administrator, was presented the April Achievement Award for being elected vice president of the Texas Middle School Association. Delores Foster also received a certificate for her many contributions to the chapter.

Membership chairman, Francie Farr, recognized those having birthdays and presented each with a gift. Those having perfect attendance were presented with carnations.

Diabetes Conference set May 6

Health care professionals and health educators are invited to attend a Diabetes Conference May 6 at Frank Phillips College in Borger.

The conference is sponsored by the Family and Youth Development Initiative of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAES).

Cost to attend will be $20 per person, including seven hours of Type 2 Continuing Education Units (CEUs); or $10 per person (No CEUs). Lunch will be provided.

Conference topics will include "Diabetes in Layperson's Terms" by Dr. Carol Rice, TAES health specialist; "Preventing Complications from Diabetes" by Billie Welty, Northwest Texas Health Care Systems; "Working with Hispanic Clientele" by various County Extension Agents; "The Importance of Diabetes Support Groups" by a discussion panel; and "Nutritious Meal Planning for Diabetes" by Deana Shields, registered dietician.

The event also will offer a review of diabetes resources and how to develop a diabetes education plan for use in a county, business or organization.

For a registration form or for further information, contact the Deaf Smith County Extension Service, 364-3573. Extension programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Tension Headache

If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of the skull, you may be suffering from tension headache. Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called the suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal pressure or dysfunction of the neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension headaches.

normal balance so they can function properly again. Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other pain-killers may give you temporary relief - but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get relief you need.

Junior Historians attend Geography Bee, meeting

Fifteen Junior Historians from Hereford attended the Junior Historian Annual Meeting in San Antonio after their meeting in Fort Worth for the Geography Bee. Justin Kerr competed in the state Geography Bee competition.

After the Junior Historian Awards Assembly, where the chapter received a First Place Trophy for this year's work, members attended the IMAX theater for the Alamo presentation. They then toured the Alamo and walked along San Antonio's River Walk. After dinner at a riverside restaurant, the trip was highlighted by a boat ride on the river.

While going to and coming from San Antonio, many stops were made to observe historical markers, buildings and other sites of historical interest. In Breckenridge, the group visited briefly with former Hereford residents, Bobby and Sharla Moudy, Jim, Joe and Jake. Jim was a charter member of Hereford's Junior Historians and Sharla was one of the sponsors.

Members who attended the annual meeting were Angela Morris, Lacy Avery, Jessica Weishaar, Melissa Warren, Krista Warren, Glenn Kahlich, Wesley Reinart, Brody McBride, Clay McNeely, Jacob Murray, Aaron Landers, Philip Curtis, Trey Lusk, Justin Kerr and Dusty Clark.

Sponsors were Kim Hofferichter, Diedra Drake and Carolyn Waters.

EASTER EGGS AND EGGS IN GENERAL
Play It Safe

The Easter season brings to mind Easter eggs and egg hunts, a holiday tradition. With current concerns regarding safety of foods such as eggs, follow these suggestions for selection, preparation and storage of eggs to contribute to a happy, healthy holiday.

When purchasing eggs, check to be sure that eggs are clean and not cracked. Cracks give microorganisms a chance to enter and contaminate the egg. If a cracked egg is accidentally purchased, do not eat it.

Refrigerate purchased eggs as soon as possible. Store them in the cartons in which they were purchased, on a shelf in the refrigerator. The egg slots on a refrigerator door are not the best place to store eggs, because the temperature fluctuates in this area as the door opens and closes. Eggs need to be stored at constant refrigerator temperature to maintain safety.

When preparing hard cooked eggs, place them in water in a pan and cover. Bring water to a boil. Do not stack eggs as this prevents even cooking. When the water comes to a boil, take the pan off the heat and let it sit for 20 minutes. Pour off hot water and cool the eggs under cold running water.

Hard cooked eggs are perishable, so store the cooked eggs in the refrigerator until ready to eat, or store decorated eggs in the refrigerator until time for the hunt. Plan the Easter egg hunt from start to finish to reflect a two hour time limit. This time limit is the recommended maximum for foods to be left out from under refrigeration. Room temperature promotes the growth of bacteria and hot sun shining on "hidden" eggs raises the temperature more quickly.

Caution children to hunt the eggs only and not to eat the eggs. After an afternoon of hunting eggs, it is wise for parents to destroy the eggs, and replace the eggs with individually wrapped candy eggs.

Extra caution should be taken with all perishable foods with a protein content. Cleanliness is very important in handling these foods in order to prevent contamination by bacteria that can cause food-borne illness. The very young, older adults, pregnant women and those with chronic diseases and weakened immune systems, are in a potentially life-threatening state when exposed to bacteria.

Raw eggs should never be eaten. Avoid the taste of raw cookie dough, avoid partially or undercooked egg products or dishes.

Extra caution should mean and safe and HAPPY EASTER.

SOME TIPS ON HOW TO CUT BACK SALT IN YOUR DIET
Part 2 of 2

If you frequent fast food restaurants or eat a lot of canned and processed foods, then your body is probably getting much more salt than it needs.

That's why it's important to read food labels -- and to avoid eating foods that contain more than 480 milligrams of sodium per serving.

You can also cut down on salt if your diet with these simple cooking tips.

Start by using flavorful herbs and spices in place of salt.

Use unsalted broth and bouillon cubes, and look for low-sodium crackers, sauces, soups and lunch meats.

Instead of onion and garlic salt, season with onion and garlic powder.

And always buy fresh, frozen or low-sodium canned vegetables. Enjoy the taste of food more with a lot less salt!

— YOUR EYES —

Your Eyes And The Elements

If you spend a lot of time outdoors in the sun and wind, on the water or in the snow, paying attention to what kind of sunglasses you wear is very important. Glare can be the biggest nuisance. When shopping for sunglasses, keep in mind that it's important to make the distinction between the amount of light cut out and the amount of glare cut out. Sunglasses can be very dark, but not remove enough glare. Look for polarized lenses, which are very effective in reducing glare as well as blocking 100% of dangerous ultraviolet light.

In addition to sun protection, sunglasses are necessary to protect the eyes from the wind. Continuous wind against the cornea dries up moisture in the eyes, making them very itchy.

If you're very active outdoors, it makes good sense to get polycarbonate lenses, rather than glass. These are lightweight and shatter-resistant.

Lab workers contribute to health care delivery

Hereford Regional Medical Center will observe National Laboratory Week, April 12-17, according to George Parsley, interim administrator.

"Although we should do it more often, this is the one week of the year that we officially recognize and appreciate the important contributions the lab makes to health care delivery," Parsley said.

Carol Jackson, MT, ASCP, and director of the laboratory at HRMC, explained that an accurate diagnosis is the key to effective treatment for patients.

"The laboratory becomes one of the first tools for the physician to use when making a diagnosis," Jackson said.

According to Jackson, the hospital's laboratory must pass a rigorous inspection by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals to be fully certified.

"To be certified, our lab must conduct a certain number of blind studies and perform rigidly scheduled maintenance checks on the equipment," she said.

"The paperwork required to operate a lab has increased significantly during the last few years. Quality assurance, Medicare and Medicaid requirements, state and federal guidelines all require careful documentation," she said. "But the increase in the amount of time spent on paperwork has been offset somewhat by the time new technology has saved us."

The laboratory uses body fluids and smears to perform several tests, including chemical profiles, coagulation studies and electrolyte studies.

"We're really proud of the high-tech equipment that we have available to us in the lab," Jackson said.

None of the equipment could be utilized properly, however, without the highly trained personnel in the lab.

Jackson, a medical technician for 24 years, has been head of the department at HRMC since September 1992. She received her MT (Medical Technology) from St. Joseph's Hospital in Wichita, Kan., and a Bachelor of Science degree from Fort Hays State University in Hays, Kan. The initials ASCP after her name indicate that she is certified by the American Society of Clinical Pathology.

In addition to Jackson, there are six medical lab technicians (MALT), three medical technicians (MT), and 4 phlebotomists who work in the HRMC laboratory.

Staying Alive - A little driving advice

(First of two parts)

When it comes to cars, only two varieties of people are possible - cowards and fools. Russell Baker

I glanced quickly over my left shoulder. There was the opening I needed to blend in smoothly with the freeway traffic. Then suddenly the driver of the car in front of me slammed on her brakes. She had run out of nerve at the end of the freeway on ramp and was afraid to merge into the rapidly flowing traffic.

I used all of my computer regulated, automatic braking system to scrub off speed and avoid a collision. Just as I relaxed, knowing that I'd flirted with disaster, I glanced in my rear-view mirror. There, approaching at speed, was the biggest sports utility vehicle I'd ever seen.

The driver was checking the freeway traffic flow over his left shoulder. He was talking on the phone at the same time. So, there I was between the coward and the fool. I slipped down in the seat and said, "Lord, I'm coming home."

I guess the fact that you're reading about this tells you I survived. Somehow the driver of the SUV jumped the median and avoided hitting us. When I last saw him, he had both hands on the wheel and the phone was no where to be seen. I vowed to write this column right then. I hope it will save a few lives and reduce injuries.

Some bad driving habits

Watch out for these drivers. (And, don't be one of them.)

• Left-Lane Larry - Larry loves the left-hand lane of four-lane highways. He drives there all the time. He often runs 45 m.p.h. speed zones, or 60 in the 70 zones. The fact that he impedes smooth traffic flow and frustrates other drivers hasn't occurred to him. Larry needs to learn to drive in the right-hand hand lane and use the left-hand lane to pass slower traffic.

• Lane-Jumping Judy - Judy often runs a little late. To make up time, she darts back and forth between lanes trying to get ahead. She accelerates quickly and dives into an opening into the other lane. Then she hits the brakes because she is going faster than other traffic. Soon she'll dart back to the other lane. She doesn't dart back to the other lane. She doesn't signal. She just jumps from lane to lane trying to pass other cars. Judy needs to be patient. The price of impatience is often an accident.

• Rubber-Necking Randy - Randy is curious about everything. Is that a new house over there? Look at that gal in the white shorts! Is that a '63 Nash? There's a new sign! Randy sees it all. All except the road, that is. Randy needs to pay attention to traffic and road conditions. Otherwise, he may get to check out the latest equipment in the emergency room.

• Telephone-Talking Trisha - Trisha just got a new car phone. It included 100 free minutes of airtime. She was so excited she couldn't wait to call her friends. In the first 3 minutes she crossed the center line twice and nearly sideswiped the guard rail. At least she can call 911 if she's still conscious after the crash. Cellular phones are wonderful tools to use when the car is stopped.

My hope is that if you see yourself in some of these driving situations you will take action to correct bad driving habits. Next week in part two, I'll tell you about some other drivers to watch out for. Don't miss Staying Alive part two.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL.

San Antonio is a great place for a convention. Rebecca and I spent last week in San Antonio at the Texas Library Association Conference. I know. It's a tough job, but someone has to do it.

Not only is the Henry B. Gonzales Convention Center a very well equipped, well maintained, and spacious facility, there are numerous hotels, and a BIG mall surrounding it.

Let's you think we spent all our time in the mall, let me tell you that most of the conference sessions started by 8 a.m. and were over by 4 or 5 p.m. Evening sessions were mainly fun things like receptions and storytelling concerts, so there was plenty of evening time to shop and sightsee on the River Walk that is also very close to hotels and the convention center.

I know that all of this was by design as the city of San Antonio is smart enough to cash in on tourism and conventions, but it was impressive to this small town girl from rural Oklahoma.

Last year the Conference was in Fort Worth, where we were also able to walk around the downtown area at night. I don't know if I will ever get used to that. I would not be comfortable walking down Main Street Hereford at night, or even my hometown of Okemah, Okla., population 2,500. Sa-lute!

In fact, in Okemah, if you walked downtown at night, the police would probably stop you and ask you what you were doing there. Now, if you were dragging Main, (driving up and down Main Street, honking at everyone you know and making a U-turn at each end), they wouldn't think anything of it.

As nice as it is to go to these places, it's always nice to come home. The feedlots almost smelled good as we drove in Sunday evening. ALMOST!

So, you ask, what was the mission of this trip? What constructive purpose was served? Well, do you have a week, or two? Besides being great fun, it was a great time to learn of better ways to do the things we do, and get ideas for new programs and services. We also find that we are doing some things right, and doing them well. Of course, Summer Reading Club is always a hot topic at Conference, and there are an abundance of ideas and resources for the summer program there. It's profitable just to get out and realize that we are not the only ones in the world.

Dan Rather was a keynote speaker. While I suspect that his politics and mine are at opposite ends of the pole, I enjoyed him very much. He was very gracious, and of course, articulate. Politics aside, we share a love of libraries, books, and learning, which has the power to bring together widely divergent populations to a common ground. He was also very complimentary of his wife, Jean, calling her the person he most admired in all of history. I appreciate a man who does not make his wife the butt of jokes, but rather honors her as his other half.

One session we attended was a report on a study done by Glen Holt and the St. Louis Public Library. They obtained grants to determine the economic value of libraries and information, not an easy thing to pin down. I will spare you the details of their methodology. I probably don't understand it well enough to explain it, anyway.

Using a carefully constructed survey, scientifically and statistically designed to minimize bias, they found that for every tax dollar paid, each taxpayer get back $10 worth of services, largely in reference and readers' advisory, from their public library. Not a bad return on the investment, huh?

When asked what they would take in terms of return of tax dollars to close the library, 20 percent of those surveyed said that they would have to have at least $7 returned to them for every tax dollar they had paid. Eighty percent of the respondents said that there was no price high enough to cause them to approve the closing of the library. Many of that 80 percent became irate at the thought of the closing of their public library. (Good for them!)

One conclusion reached from this information is that people perceive that they are receiving a very high benefit for their tax dollars. The study is not over. They plan to apply for more grants and continue to explore other areas of value including services to the business community. I really hope they publish the results. It is an interesting study.

Oh, yes, we do have new books this week. Among them are:

The Decorative Egg Book by Deborah Schneebeli-Morrell, a little late for Easter, but still very useful for permanent displays of decorated eggs.

Cancer Free: The Comprehensive Cancer Prevention Program by Sidney J. Winaver and Moshe Shike, both physicians at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

The World's Dumbest Criminals by Daniel Butler and Alan Ray, based on true stories from law enforcement officials around the world.

Miracle on the Mountain by Mike and Mary Couillard, the true story of a man and his son lost for 10 days on a frigid snow-covered mountain.

Twanged by Carol Higgins Clark, the long-awaited Regan Reilly mystery by the daughter of Mary Higgins Clark.

The Eye of the Hawk, a western by P.A. Beckho.

Home Port by Nora Roberts. The Good Children by Kate Wilhelm, the story of the amazing McNair family who will do anything to stay together - including lies, love, insanity, and possibly murder.

Daughter of Joy by JoAnn Levy, a novel based on the life of the Chinese woman, Ah Toy, who achieved wealth and fame in gold rush San Francisco.

Los Ciboleros receives awards

Los Ciboleros Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution has received 29 Certificates of Merit from the Texas Society Daughters of the American Revolution for exceptional work toward National Society projects in 1997.

The awards were presented at the State Convention which met in Houston in March.

Los Ciboleros received nine awards that were directly attributable to excellent support from The Hereford Brand and Hereford Cablevision.

The chapter was Texas Division I winners for the total number of print inches submitted and the number of television spots reported. Television spots in commemoration of Constitution Week were run numerous times on the local Community Bulletin Board channel.

The Commemorative Events

Award was attributed to Constitution Week coverage by The Hereford Brand, and to the timely article about Mary Williamson which ran on Nov. 11, Veteran's Day.

A Certificate of Merit in Tributes to DAR Members included the biography of Nell Norvell in The Brand, as well as the Williamson feature.

Certificates of Merit for American History, Patriotism, and the American Heritage program were also well supported by Brand articles on the American History Essay Contest and the DAR Good Citizen Award.

A Certificate of Merit was received for service for veteran patients.

Individual awards went to Ruth Newsom, Los Ciboleros Chapter regent, in recognition of leadership and outstanding service to the Texas Society as chapter regent; to Nell Norvell, as well as the Chapter, for submitting proposed DAR Resolutions; and to Jayne Brainard for serving as State Chairman, Bylaws.

In addition, the Chapter received a blue ribbon for its yearbook. The Chapter was also commended for its support of Junior American Citizens, and received first and second place ties for chapters its size in financial support of Berry College and Kate Duncan Smith DAR School.

The State Librarian commended the group for excellence in library work of the contributions of books to local libraries. Members merited the Literacy Challenge Award as school volunteers.

On the national level, Certificates of Merit were received for financial participation in the President General's Project, the restoration of NSDAR Constitution Hall; in advertising in the DAR magazine; and for Jayne Brainard's work in the development of a TSDAR web site.

Looking over Certificates of Merit recently received by Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR are, from left, Lloyd Ames with Hereford Cablevision; Jean Beene, Los Ciboleros member; and Becky Camp with The Hereford Brand. Nine of the certificates received by Los Ciboleros from the Texas Society Daughters of the American Revolution were directly attributable to support from Hereford Cablevision and The Hereford Brand.

Ag department designates $13 million to fund EQIP

The United States Department of Agriculture has allocated more than $13 million to provide financial assistance for Texas agricultural producers wishing to participate in the 1998 Environmental Quality Incentives Program.

"There is a strong demand for voluntary conservation efforts and EQIP helps farmers and ranchers meet that demand with financial, technical and educational assistance, as well as incentives," said Mike White of the Natural Resource Conservation Services office.

"This is a voluntary program," stresses White. "The producer is in control. Producers choose who will develop their plan and who will apply the conservation practices. EQIP is one program tool that can solve resource problems which are identified on a conservation plan."

The USDA will make funds available to producers choosing to participate in EQIP conservation plans.

"Resource management planning for your farm will give producers a better handle on managing valuable natural resources," said White. "A single plan can be developed that will apply to some or all federal and state natural resource programs and law."

This program is open predominantly to farmers and ranchers, but under certain conditions, organizations such as districts with taxing authority, sporting clubs, scout troops, and cooperative grazing associations and districts are eligible.

All land in the program must be identified as a priority or have a state identified priority natural resource concern, such as water quantity in Deaf Smith County. Land in the program must be either cropland, pasture, hayland, forestland, or other lands on which crops or livestock are produced.

The program is not open to state and local governments, school districts or state supported schools.

Producers need to have a NRCS approved conservation plan which becomes a basis for a 5-10 year contract. The conservation plan can be developed at the producers cost, by non-NRCS sources, but all practices must meet NRCS standards.

EQIP applications will be accepted throughout the year, but the ranking and selecting of producers offers will occur periodically during designated times.

The initial ranking period will be open May 4-29. Applications submitted prior to May 29, will be ranked. Offers which provide the greatest environmental benefits, with the least cost will be funded. Additional ranking periods will be conducted until all funds are obligated.

Payment rates and percentages are not fixed. Offering to accept a lower percentage of cost-share or incentive payment will likely improve an application's ranking.

For more information regarding participation in the EQIP program contact the local NRCS office at 364-6995 or the Farms Service Agency at 364-0530.

Conservation at work

Conservation efforts of the nation's natural resources, including soil, water, and wildlife habitat can all be improved with practical applications of conservation efforts such as EQIP.

Gore issues pesticide safety outlines

WASHINGTON (AP) - Responding to fears among farmers and the food industry that important pesticides could soon be banned, Vice President Al Gore issued assurances the government will protect agriculture as it assesses risk to children.

"President Clinton and I will not waver in our commitment to protecting children's health. Nor are we willing to sacrifice the strength and competitiveness of our agricultural communities," Gore said in a statement Wednesday.

In a four-page memo to Carol Browner, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, and Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman, Gore outlined ground rules for the review of risks posed by the pesticides under a 1996 law aimed at ensuring food is safe.

EPA has made a widely used class known as organophosphates the top priority for re-examination because of evidence that low-level exposure could affect brain development in a fetus or young child.

These chemicals are used to kill insects on millions of acres of fruit, vegetables and field crops and even in homes. Estimates of losses to farmers range as high as $2 billion a year if they were banned.

In the memo, Gore set out four principles for EPA to use in reaching its decisions: that they be based on sound science; that farmers and other affected people be aware every step of the way; that there be a transition period and alternatives made available if any chemicals are banned; and that the public be consulted.

Gore also said in the memo that EPA "does not intend any significant use cancellations this growing season" for pesticides.

"If this should change based on new information, there should be immediate consultation with USDA and affected constituencies," Gore said.

Farm groups and the food industry - which have mounted a heavy lobbying effort against any immediate bans - welcomed the memo, but said the administration now must live up to it.

"This is an extremely serious situation for American agriculture and the food processing industry which demands immediate action, not promises," said Steven Anderson, head of the American Frozen Food Institute. "Today, we simply heard promises."

Stephen Ziller, science chief for the Grocery Manufacturers of America, said EPA must allow enough time for full scientific review of the pesticides and their impact.

"Alarmist hype should never replace quality scientific review and risk assessment," he said.

Northcutt enrolls in AQHA riding program

Amy Northcutt, of Hereford, recently enrolled in the American Quarter Horse Association Horseback Riding program. The program provides AQHA members recognition for time spent riding or driving American Quarter Horses.

A unique aspect of the program is its simplicity. Current AQHA members complete a program application and pay a one-time enrollment fee. Each enrollee receives an official AQHA log sheet to record their hours driving or riding their American Quarter Horse. Participants need not own their own horse, but all official hours must be accrued with a registered American Quarter Horse.

The first award, a program recognition patch, is given after only 50 hours have been logged and verified. Patches and nine subsequent awards are presented at 100 to 5,000 hour levels and range from merchandise gift certificates from Drysdale's Western Store to a Montana Silversmith trophy belt buckle at the highest level.

"The Horseback Riding Program is a unique opportunity to earn rewards outside of traditional competition. In some cases the program rewards people who already spend many hours riding American Quarter Horses. For others, the Horseback Riding Program is an incentive to get out and ride," said

Jim Brett Campbell, AQHA manager of the Horseback Riding Program.

Horseback riding provides good exercise. According to the U.S. Department of the Interior, more than 27 million people participate in horseback riding nationally.

AQHA actively encourages horseback riding as a relaxing recreational activity that can be enjoyed alone or shared with family and friends.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I want to thank you for printing my letter telling how I met my husband. When I wrote to you, I was sitting by his bedside, praying for his recovery from triple bypass surgery. You wanted me to let you know what happened.

I'm sorry to tell you that my husband had a stroke soon after I wrote that letter, and he never regained consciousness. My children and I spent seven anguished weeks by his side, watching him struggle to live, but he never made it.

He was the light and love of my life. When I read my letter in your column, I cried a bucket of tears. My daughter put a copy of your column in a plastic envelope, went to the cemetery and anchored it on her father's grave.

I shall live on 51 years of memories for the rest of my life. Thank you for caring. It meant a great deal to me. -- Bettye in West Warwick, R.I.

Dear Bettye: I'm so sorry your beloved life's partner didn't make it. It must have taken a great deal of effort to write to me, and I am deeply grateful.

Fifty-one years of wonderful memories should be a great comfort to you. More than half a century with the man of your dreams is quite a gift. Cherish the memories, dear Bettye. You are in my thoughts and my prayers.

Dear Ann Landers: I need an unbiased opinion, and I hope you can help me put things in proper perspective.

Two years ago, my father passed away, and one year later, my mother remarried. Mom has now sold the house my parents owned for over 25 years. She will clear at least $100,000 from the sale and has hinted that this money is for her and her husband's retirement. They are currently living in my stepfather's house, which is paid off. They also have two pensions, so they are financially secure.

My sister and I feel that some of the proceeds from the sale of the house should be considered our inheritance since Dad died without a will. My sister and I are both divorced, raising two kids each and struggling financially. I know we don't have any legal rights, but don't you think sharing the money would be the proper thing to do? -- Hurt and Poor in San Diego

Dear Hurt and Poor: I know nothing about the relationship you and your sister have with your mom. Are you close? Were you supportive when your father was ill? Yes, it would be nice if Mom shared the proceeds with you and your sister, but she is under no obligation to do so.

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago, my wife of more than 50 years passed away. I have talked with family and friends about the proper procedure for wearing my wedding band. Several opinions were offered but no real useful advice.

I am considering taking my wedding band to a jeweler and asking him to cut a small groove around the circumference of the ring and fill it in with black paint. The black band would signify a death. All would know I was once married but am now a widower.

I may start a trend. What do you think? -- John in Florida

Dear John: I think it's a creative idea, but no one would interpret the black band as you intended it. People would assume it was merely ornamental. Also, no respectable jeweler would fill it in with paint. He would probably suggest onyx, which is a black stone and would look quite handsome. Please let me know how it turns out.

Gem of the Day: Have you noticed what a huge gap there is between advice and real help, especially if the problem is financial? Next time you are in a tight spot, notice.

Volunteers recognized

"Hospital volunteers are special people," George Parsley, interim administrator at Hereford Regional Medical Center, said.

"They perform an important job without pay because they enjoy their work and because they like helping others. They exemplify the highest ideals of our society."

The volunteers at Hereford Regional Medical Center are honored this week during National Volunteer Week, when hospitals across the nation pay tribute to their volunteers.

Volunteers perform a variety of functions at the hospital, Parsley said. "They run the gift shop, assist with guest services and help with special business office activities and community mailings. Their willingness and assistance to our patients and their families, and their upbeat, positive attitudes are their biggest contribution to the hospital," Parsley said. During the last year, the volunteer organization at Hereford Regional Medical Center and the Hereford Women and Children's Crisis Center donated hundreds of volunteer hours to the hospital district.

"Our volunteers also make a significant financial contribution to the hospital through money collected from a very progressive fund-raising program," Parsley added. "Through these and other projects, HRMC volunteers continue to enrich the quality of health care in our community."

Although the HRMC volunteer program is open to all adults, Parsley explained that many HRMC volunteers have retired from business or teaching and want to find new ways of making a difference.

"Our volunteers are very important members of the health care team at Hereford Regional Medical Center," Parsley added. "We are all very appreciative of their generous time and talent."

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
-- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

ORDINANCE NO. 1378

AN ORDINANCE DECLARING THE POLICY OF THE CITY OF HEREFORD DEFINING TERMS; PROHIBITING DISCRIMINATION IN THE SALE OR RENTAL OF HOUSING; PROHIBITING DISCRIMINATION IN THE FINANCING OF HOUSING; PROHIBITING DISCRIMINATION IN THE PROVISION OF BROKERAGE SERVICES; PROVIDING FOR CERTAIN EXEMPTIONS AND EXCLUSIONS; PROVIDING FOR THE POSITION OF FAIR HOUSING ADMINISTRATOR; PROVIDING FOR THE RECEIPT, INVESTIGATION AND CONCILIATION OF COMPLAINTS ALLEGING DISCRIMINATION IN HOUSING; AUTHORIZING THE CITY ATTORNEY TO INSTITUTE LEGAL PROCEEDINGS; FORBIDDING INTIMIDATION; PROVIDING FOR COOPERATION WITH THE SECRETARY OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT; PROVIDING FOR EDUCATION AND PUBLIC INFORMATION; PROVIDING A PENALTY; AND PROVIDING A SEVERABILITY CLAUSE.

WHEREAS, it is hereby declared to be the policy of the City of Hereford to bring about, through fair, orderly and lawful procedures, the opportunity for each person to obtain housing without regard to his race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age, and,

WHEREAS, it is further declared that the policy is based upon a recognition of the right of every person to have access to adequate housing of his own choice without regard to race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age, and, further, that the denial of such right through considerations based on race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age is detrimental to the health, safety and welfare of the inhabitants of the City of Hereford and constitutes an unjust denial or deprivation of such rights which is within the power and proper responsibility of government to prevent,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF HEREFORD AS FOLLOWS, TO WIT:

SECTION 1. DEFINITIONS

For the purpose of this section, the following terms, phrases, words and their derivations shall have the meanings given herein. When not inconsistent with the context, words so used in the present tense include the future, words in the masculine gender include the feminine, words in the plural number include the singular, and words in the singular number include the plural.

- A. "Discriminatory housing practice" means an act that is unlawful under sections 3, 4, or 5 of this ordinance.
- B. "Age" means the calendar age of an individual eighteen (18) years of age or over.
- C. "Creed" means any set of principles, rules, opinions and precepts formally expressed and seriously adhered to or maintained by a person.
- D. "Dwelling" means any building, structure or portion thereof which is occupied as, or designed and intended for occupancy as, a residence by one or more families or any vacant land which is offered for sale or lease for the construction or location thereon of any such building, structure or portion thereof.
- E. "Family" includes a single individual or a group of individuals living together under one common roof.
- F. "Major life activities" means functions such as, but not limited to, caring for one's self, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning and working.
- G. "Marital status" means an individual's status as a single, married, divorced, widowed or separated person.
- H. "Parenthood" means a person's status as a parent of legal guardian of a child or children under the age of eighteen (18).
- I. "Person" includes one or more individuals, corporations, partnerships, associations, labor organizations, legal representatives, mutual companies, joint stock companies, trusts, unincorporated organizations, trustees, fiduciaries, and any other organization or entity of whatever character.
- J. "Physical or mental disability" means any physical or mental impairment which substantially limits one or more major life activities. "Physical or mental impairment" shall include:
- (1) Any physiological disorder or condition, cosmetic disfigurement or anatomical loss affecting one or more of the following body systems: neurological; musculoskeletal; special sense organs; respiratory, including speech organs; cardiovascular; reproductive; digestive; genitourinary; hemic and lymphatic; skin; and endocrine; or,
 - (2) Any mental or psychological disorder, such as mental retardation, organic brain syndrome, emotional or mental illness, and specific learning disabilities
- K. "To rent" includes to lease, to sublease, to let, and otherwise to grant for a consideration the right to occupy premises not owned by the occupant.
- L. "Senior adult" means a person fifty-five (55) years of age or older.

SECTION 2. INTERPRETATION AND EFFECT

This ordinance shall in no way be interpreted as creating a judicial right or remedy which is the same or substantially equivalent to the remedies provided under Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, as amended, or the Federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act (15 U.S.C. 1691). All aggrieved parties shall retain the rights granted to them by Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, as amended, and the Federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act. In construing this ordinance, it is the intent of the City Commission that the courts shall be guided by Federal Court interpretations of Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, as amended, and the Federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act, where appropriate.

SECTION 3. DISCRIMINATION IN THE SALE OR RENTAL OF HOUSING

Except as exempted by Section 6, it shall be unlawful for any person to:

- A. Refuse to sell or rent, after the making of a bona fide offer, or to refuse to negotiate for the sale or rental of, or otherwise make unavailable or deny, a dwelling to any person because of race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age.
- B. Discriminate against any person in the terms, conditions, or privileges of sale or rental of a dwelling, or in the provision of services or facilities in connection therewith, because of race, color, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age.
- C. Make, print, publish, or cause to be made, printed or published any notice, statement or advertisement regarding the sale or rental of a dwelling that indicates any preference, limitation or discrimination based on race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age, or any intention to make any such preference, limitation or discrimination.
- D. Represent to any person because of race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age that any dwelling is not available for inspection, sale or rental when such dwelling is in fact so available.
- E. For profit or with the hope or expectation of profit, induce or attempt to induce any person to sell or rent any dwelling by representations regarding the entry or prospective entry into the neighborhood of a person or persons of a particular race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age.
- F. For profit or with the hope or expectations of profit to influence or attempt to influence, by any words, acts, or failure to act, any seller, purchaser, landlord or tenant of a dwelling so as to promote the maintenance of racially segregated housing or so as to retard, obstruct, or discourage racially integrated housing.

SECTION 4. DISCRIMINATION IN THE FINANCING OF HOUSING

It shall be unlawful for any bank, building and loan association, insurance company or other corporation, association, firm or enterprise whose business consists in whole or in part of the making of commercial or residential real estate loans, to deny a loan or other financial assistance to a person applying therefore for the purpose of purchasing, constructing, improving, repairing or maintaining a dwelling, or to discriminate against any such person in the fixing of the amount, interest rate, brokerage points, duration, or other terms or conditions of such loan or their financial assistance, because of:

- A. The race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age of such person or of any person associated with him in connection with such loan or other financial assistance; or

- B. The race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age of the present or prospective owner, lessee, tenants, or occupants of the dwelling or dwellings for which such a loan or other financial assistance is to be made or given.

SECTION 5. DISCRIMINATION IN THE PROVISION OF BROKERAGE SERVICES

It shall be unlawful for any person to deny access to or membership or participation in any multiple listing service, real estate brokers' organization or other service, organization or facility relating to the business of selling or renting dwellings, or to discriminate in the terms or conditions of such access, membership or participation, on account of race, color, creed, sex, religion or national origin, physical or mental disability, marital status, parenthood or age.

SECTION 6. EXEMPTIONS AND EXCLUSIONS

- A. There shall be exempted from the application of Section 3 hereof all transactions involving:

1. The rental of units in dwellings containing living quarters occupied or intended to be occupied by no more than four families living independently of each other if the owner actually maintains and occupies one of such units as his resident.
2. The rental of a single room in a dwelling containing living quarters occupied or intended to be occupied by no more than one family if the person offering such room for rental actually maintains and occupies the remainder of such dwelling as his residence and not more than four such rooms are offered.
3. The sale or rental of any single house by a private individual who owns such house, provided that:
 - (a) The sale or rental is made without the use in any manner of the sales or rental facilities or the sales or rental services of any real estate broker, agent or salesman, or of such facilities or services of any person in the business of selling or renting dwellings or of any employee or agent of any such broker, agent, salesman, or person; and
 - (b) The sale is made without the publication, posting or mailing of any advertisement or written notice in violation of this ordinance (this shall not prohibit the use of attorneys, escrow agents, abstractors, title companies, and other such professional assistance as necessary to perfect or transfer the title); and
 - (c) The owners does not own more than three single family houses at the time of the sale; and
 - (d) The owners does not own any interest in, nor is there owned or reserved on his behalf, under any express or voluntary agreement, title to or any right to all or any portion of the proceeds from the sale or rental of more than three such single family houses any one time.
 - (e) If the owners does not reside in the house at the time of sale or was not the most recent resident of such house prior to the sale, the exemption granted by this subsection shall apply only with respect to one such sale within any twenty-four month period.

- B. Nothing in this ordinance shall prohibit a religious organization, association, or society or any non-profit institution or organization operated, supervised, or controlled by or in conjunction with a religious association, or society from limiting the sale, rental, or occupancy of dwellings which it owns or operates for other than a commercial purpose to persons of the same religion, or from giving preference to such persons, unless membership in such religion is restricted on account of race, color, national origin, sex, mental or physical disability, marital status, parenthood or age.

- C. Nothing in this ordinance shall prohibit a bona fide private club, not in fact open to the public, which as an incident to its primary purpose, provides lodging which it owns or operates for other than a commercial purpose from limiting the rental or occupancy of such lodgings to its members or from giving preference to its members.

- D. Nothing in this ordinance shall bar any person from owning and operating a housing accommodation in which a room or rooms are leased, subleased or rented only to persons of the same sex, when such housing accommodation contains common lavatory, kitchen or similar facilities available for the use of all persons occupying such housing accommodation.

- E. Nothing in this ordinance shall prohibit the sale, rental, lease or occupancy of any dwelling designed and operated exclusively for senior adults and their spouses, unless the sale, rental, lease or occupancy is further restricted on account of race, color, creed, religion, sex, national origin, physical or mental handicap and marital status.

- F. Nothing in this ordinance shall bar a person who owns, operates or controls rental dwellings, whether located on the same property or on one or more contiguous parcels of property, from reserving any grouping of dwellings for the rental or lease to tenants with a minor child or children, provided however, in the event that said reserved area is completely leased or rented, the person owning, operating or controlling said rental dwelling may not refuse to rent or lease any other available dwelling to the prospective tenant on the basis of the tenant's status as parent or any other of the protected classifications set forth in this ordinance.

SECTION 7. FAIR HOUSING ADMINISTRATOR

The Mayor shall appoint and the Commission shall confirm a Fair Housing Administrator (hereinafter referred to as "Administrator"), who shall have the responsibility for implementing this ordinance. The Administrator may delegate his authority to investigate and conciliate complaints to any city employees under his direction.

SECTION 8. COMPLAINTS

- A. Only the person who claims to have been injured by a discriminatory housing practice who believes he will be irrevocably injured by a discriminatory housing practice that has occurred or is occurring (hereinafter referred to as "person aggrieved") may file a complaint with the Administrator. Such complaints shall be in writing and shall identify the person alleged to have committed or alleged to be committing a discriminatory housing practice and shall state the facts upon which the allegations of a discriminatory housing practice are based. The Administrator shall prepare complaint forms and furnish them without charge to any person, upon request.

- B. A copy of all complaints filed with the City shall also be forwarded to the Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity Division of the Region VI Office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

- C. The Administrator shall provide for free administrative counseling to those complainants who wish to file a private suit for relief in the local, state, or federal court.

- D. If at any time the Administrator shall receive or discover credible evidence and shall have probable cause to believe that any person or persons have committed, or are committing a discriminatory housing practice as to which no complaint has been filed, the Administrator may prepare and file a complaint upon his own motion and in his own name and such complaint shall thereafter be treated in the same manner as a complaint filed by a person aggrieved.

- E. The Administrator shall receive and accept notification and referral complaints from the U.S. Attorney General and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development pursuant to the provisions of Title VIII, Fair Housing Act of 1968, Public Law 90-284, and shall treat such complaints hereunder in the same manner as complaints filed pursuant to Paragraph A of this Section.

- F. All complaints shall be filed within sixty (60) days following the occurrence of an alleged discriminatory housing practice. Upon the filing or referral of any complaint, the Administrator shall provide notice of the complaint by furnishing a copy of such complaint to the persons named therein who allegedly committed or were threatening to commit an alleged discriminatory housing practice. The accused may file an answer to the complaint within fifteen (15) days of receipt of the written complaint.

- G. All complaints and answers shall be subscribed and sworn to before an officer authorized to administer oaths.

SECTION 9. INVESTIGATION

- A. Upon the filing or referral of a complaint as herein provided, the Administrator shall cause to be made a prompt and full investigation of the matter stated in the complaint.

- B. If the Administrator determines that there is not probable cause to believe that a particular alleged discriminatory housing practice has been committed, the Administrator shall take no further action with respect to that alleged offense.

- C. During or after the investigation, but subsequent to the mailing of the notice of complaints, the Administrator shall, if it appears that a discriminatory housing practice has occurred or is threatening to occur, attempt by informal endeavors to effect conciliation, including voluntary discontinuance of the discriminatory housing practice and adequate assurance of future voluntary compliance with the provisions of this ordinance. Nothing said or done in the course of such informal endeavors may be made public by the Administrator, by the complainant or by any other party to the proceedings without the written consent of all persons concerned.

- D. Upon completion of the investigation and informal endeavors at conciliation by the Administrator, but within thirty (30) days of the filing of the complaint with the Administrator, if the efforts of the Administrator to secure voluntary compliance have been unsuccessful, and if the Administrator has made a determination that a discriminatory housing practice has in fact occurred, the Administrator shall recommend to the City Attorney that such violations be prosecuted in the Municipal Court. With such recommendations, the Administrator shall refer his entire file to the City Attorney. The City Attorney shall, within thirty (30) days after such referral, make a determination as to whether to proceed with prosecution of such complaint in Municipal Court. If the City Attorney determines to prosecute, he shall institute a complaint and prosecute same to conclusion within thirty (30) days after such determination or as soon thereafter as practicable.

SECTION 10. CUMULATIVE LEGAL EFFECT

This ordinance is cumulative in its legal effect and is not in lieu of any and all other legal remedies which the person aggrieved may pursue.

SECTION 11. UNLAWFUL INTIMIDATION

It shall be unlawful for any person to harass, threaten, harm, damage or otherwise penalize any individual, group or business because he or they have complied with the provisions of this ordinance, because he or they have exercised his or their rights under this ordinance, or enjoyed the benefits of this ordinance, or because he or they have made a charge, testified or assisted in any investigation, or in any proceeding hereunder or have made any report to the Administrator.

SECTION 12. COOPERATION WITH THE SECRETARY OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

The Administrator and the City Attorney are authorized to cooperate with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the U.S. Attorney General pursuant to the provisions of Title VII, Fair Housing Act of 1968, Public Law 90-284, and may render such service to the Secretary as they shall deem appropriate to further the policies of this ordinance.

SECTION 13. EDUCATION AND PUBLIC INFORMATION

In order to further the objectives of this ordinance, the Administrator may conduct educational and public information programs.

SECTION 14. PENALTY

Any person, firm, or corporation violating any provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be fined a sum not to exceed Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) for each violation. Each day a violation continues after passage of seventy-five (75) days from date of the filing of the initial complaint with the Administrator shall constitute a separate and distinct offense.

Any person, firm, or corporation violating any provision of this ordinance may be enjoined by order of a court of competent jurisdiction, and this remedy is in addition to any other penalty provision.

SECTION 15. SEVERABILITY

If any provision, section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this ordinance, or the application of same to any person or set of circumstances is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, void or invalid (or for any reason unenforceable), the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance or their application to other persons or sets of circumstances shall not be affected thereby if being the intent of the City Commission of the City of Hereford in adopting, and of the Mayor in approving this ordinance, that no portion hereof or provision or regulation contained herein shall become inoperative or fail by reason of any unconstitutionality or invalidity of any other portion, provision or regulation, and to this end all provisions of this ordinance are declared to be severable.

PASSED and APPROVED this 6th day of April, A.D., 1998.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

Novice Cattle Company, Inc. has applied to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) for issuance of Air Quality Permit No. 37880 to authorize construction of a Beef Cattle Feedlot located 17 miles north of Hereford on U.S. Highway 385, Deaf Smith County, Texas. The proposed facility will emit the following air contaminants emitted from the proposed facility may request a hearing.

If the applicant demonstrates the proposed facility will comply with all applicable air quality requirements, the applicant will qualify for issuance of a permit. The subject of a hearing would be limited to applicable air quality requirements, which do not include issues such as water quality, noise, traffic safety, or zoning. If a hearing is held, it will be a legal proceeding similar to civil trials in state district court.

To request a hearing, you must submit the following: (1) your name (or for a group or association, an official representative), mailing address, daytime phone number, and fax number, if any; (2) the applicant's name and permit number; (3) the statement "I/we request a public hearing;" (4) a brief, specific statement of how and why emissions from the proposed facility would adversely affect you in a way not common to members of the general public; and (5) the location of your property relative to the proposed facility.

Hearing requests or comments on the application must be received in writing at the Chief Clerk's Office, MC-105, TNRCC, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087, within 30 days after the second publication of this notice. This notice is to be published on April 8th and April 9th.

The application and the TNRCC's preliminary analysis are available for review and reproduction at the TNRCC Office of Air Quality, 12124 Park 35 Circle, Building C, Austin, Texas 78753. Application documents, a compliance file if any exists, and further information may be obtained from the TNRCC Amarillo Regional Office, Air Program located at 3912 Canyon Drive, Amarillo, Texas 79109-4996, telephone (806) 353-9251. Individual members of the public who wish to inquire about the information contained in this notice, or to inquire about other agency permit applications or permitting processes, should call the TNRCC Office of Public Assistance, toll free, at 1-800-687-4040.

The House of the Week

Windows Provide Panoramic View

G-64

WITH ITS LARGE WINDOWS and dramatic prow-shaped design, this home stands ready to impress.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures
The glass-filled, prow-gable home of plan G-64, by HomeStyles Designers Network, is as spectacular from without as is the panoramic view from within. This unusual home has 1,711 square feet of living space. French doors open from the large front deck into the dining room, a cozy space ideal for both formal and casual meals. A stunning window wall allows an abundance of natural light into the adjoining living room, which features a 20-foot-high cathedral ceiling. The open corner kitchen is perfectly positioned to serve the dining room and the family room, while offering views of the front and rear decks. A pair of garden windows above the sink add appeal. The large family room provides additional space for entertaining, and leads to the rear deck by means of sliding glass doors. Completing the main floor are two nice-sized bedrooms that share a full bath, and a utility room that opens to the rear deck. A dramatic open-railed staircase leads up to the secluded master bedroom, which is distinguished by a dressing room and a private bath with a dual-sink vanity and a separate tub and shower.

A WIDE FRONT DECK leads to the entrance of the home, which opens directly into the dining area. The island kitchen and the family room are to the right and ahead of the dining area. The family room features sliding glass doors to the rear deck. A utility room is nearby. The large living room is steps away, and provides access to the two secondary bedrooms, a full bath and an open-railed staircase to the upper floor. The upper floor houses the master bedroom, which has a dressing area and a full, private bath.

G-64 STATISTICS

Design G-64 has a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, three bedrooms, two baths and a utility room, totaling 1,711 square feet of living space. This plan includes a crawlspace foundation and 2x6 exterior wall framing.

Pleasant Indoor Climate Is A Breeze

(NAPS)—Here are some cold hard facts: Air-conditioners and heat pumps are considered vital equipment for more than 50 million American households.

A few basic tips from expert technicians may help save you money while keeping your home energy efficient and comfortable:
• Don't try to cool or heat the outside. Keep windows and doors closed when the equipment is running. Pull drapes and shades over windows to keep out the hot summer sun.

• Caulk and weatherstrip around the windows and elsewhere to close air gaps and insulate, especially in the attic.

• Check the air filter every 30 days during periods of heavy use.

• If your air-conditioner or heat pump (which is used for cooling in warm weather) are not working properly, you may want to call a qualified contractor or service representative. Most consumers prefer a certified technician to service their systems.

The Staircase is more twisted than uplifting

By Suzanne Gill

©TVData Features Syndicate

Roughly halfway through The Staircase, someone comes by night and smashes the titular spiral, which is under construction. As the Sisters of Loretto survey the splintered remains, one of them asks woefully, "Who could be so angry?"

In this movie? Everybody. From the church contractor to an Apache lad, the architect to the mother superior, every shoulder has a chip on it. But if anyone deserves to shake an indignant fist, it is history — and the viewers.

Airing Sunday, April 12, on CBS, the film is extrapolated from the story of the "miracle staircase," a 120-year-old wooden spiral in the Loretto Chapel in Santa Fe, N.M. Legend has it that when the Gothic sanctuary was built in the 1870s, a means of access to the choir loft was somehow omitted. In the limited space, no conventional solution was satisfactory.

The nuns said a novena to St. Joseph the carpenter. At the conclusion of their prayers, a stranger appeared at their door. He built a spiral staircase without a center post, some say in a single night. There is no record of where he obtained the wood, and he disappeared before he could be paid.

Today the staircase attracts streams of awestruck tourists. The lucky few who ascend it report a spring action underfoot and say the hair on their necks tingles. In a desert city whose name means "holy faith," this is one of the tangible fruits of the spirit.

When screenwriter Christopher Lofton (True Women) heard the legend 20 years ago, he was intrigued. But he did not believe an audience would sit still for the story of an inanimate object, so he constructed a flock of characters and a swarm of conflicts around the scant facts.

Thanks to the success of the Sunday lead-in series Touched by an Angel, Lofton says he believes "the time is right" at last for his movie.

Hopelessly miscast as a pioneer bride of Christ, Barbara Hershey stars as the terminally ill and tempestuous Mother Madalyn, with Diane Ladd as her oft-provoked assistant. William Petersen plays Joad, the mysterious itinerant. David Clennon (thirtysomething) portrays the pinch-faced builder, with Justin Louis as the trigger-happy architect.

In making up his story, Lofton has run roughshod over history. A gratuitous appearance by Apache chief Geronimo is completely spurious: The warrior and his party were in Mexico, not New Mexico, at the time. Besides, it was Comanches, not Apaches, who figured in the nuns' story. And, as Lofton admits, none of the women was ever attacked. But it is hardly a surprise that Lofton got it so wrong, since in all of 20 years he never visited Santa Fe or the chapel.

The true stars of The Staircase are the set and setting, which includes panoramas of Georgia O'Keeffe's Ghost Ranch. The chapel used for filming was a condemned structure in nearby San Juan Pueblo, restored as part of the production. Despite the human histrionics, the dramatic centerpiece is the replica staircase, built by set designer Fred Harpman and crew.

"The crew was excited about the movie," Petersen says, "because it was about something that they do. Normally we use a set only as a backdrop."

As for Lofton, filming finally brought him to the Loretto Chapel. Climbing the stairs, he says, "I felt whoever had built this was not only powerful physically but had some enormous will, like a bull."

Thank goodness it is the sort of power that can withstand a battering by fools.

Barbara Hershey and William Petersen star in The Staircase, which airs Sunday on CBS. The TV movie takes place in the 1870s and is based on the legend of the "miracle staircase" of the Sisters of Loretto Chapel in Santa Fe, N.M. Diane Ladd, David Clennon and Justin Louis also star.

The Solar System

There are nine planets in the solar system. The following information can help you learn more about each of them.

MERCURY

The planet nearest to the sun, Mercury has a cratered surface and almost no atmosphere. It is the smallest of the inner planets and has no known satellites. It revolves around the sun in about 88 days.

VENUS

This is the second planet from the sun, and its atmosphere is mainly composed of carbon dioxide. It revolves around the sun in 224.7 days. The entire surface of the planet is covered by a dense layer of clouds.

EARTH

Earth, the fifth largest planet in the solar system, is the only one known to support life. It revolves around the sun in about 365 days. Estimated to be 4.5 billion to 5 billion years old, this planet has one natural satellite, the moon.

MARS

The next planet out from Earth, Mars revolves around the sun in about 687 days. It has many volcanoes, including the largest in the solar system, Olympus Mons.

JUPITER

Jupiter is the largest and most massive of the nine planets. It is the fifth planet away from the sun and has 16 known natural satellites.

SATURN

Revolving around the sun in about 29.5 years, Saturn is the second largest planet. Its most remarkable feature is its ring system, which is composed of billions of water-ice particles.

URANUS

This is the seventh planet from the sun, revolving around it about every 84 years. It was the first planet discovered in modern times with the aid of a telescope.

NEPTUNE

Almost 3 billion miles from the sun, Neptune revolves around the sun every 164.8 years. Its mass is 17.2 times that of Earth.

PLUTO

Pluto, with a rather elliptical orbit around the sun, has a diameter of less than half that of Earth. Its surface consists mainly of frozen nitrogen. It has one known satellite, Charon.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ ★ April 12-18 ★ ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
You get yourself into a pretty difficult situation at the beginning of the week, Aries. Don't try to lie; people will see right through you. Just be honest, and try to work out a solution. Turn to loved ones for help. They can offer you good advice. A close friend needs to talk. Be there for him or her.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Be persistent when it comes to what you want, Taurus. If you don't go after it, no one else will do it for you. You've got the talent and the knowledge to be successful. An acquaintance reveals his or her true feelings for you. Think about what you really want before responding to his or her advances.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Be patient when it comes to a business situation this week. You've done all that you can; now, you just have to wait for others to make a decision. Even though it's difficult, there's nothing else that you can do. Romance is in the air when you meet an intriguing stranger late in the week. Don't let him or her get away. Aries plays a key role.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
You're the center of attention, Cancer, but this isn't necessarily a good thing. A problem is placed in your lap. Do your best to come up with a solution. Others are counting on you: A loved one asks for your help with a family event. Do what you can, but don't take on more than you can handle.

LEO - July 23/August 23
You are given total control when it comes to a business venture. Do your best and use sound judgment. This is your chance to shine. If you do well, a lot of doors will be open to you. That special someone wants to step up the relationship. Say yes — you know that this is what you really want.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
An important personal relationship has you worried early in the week, Virgo. You want everything to work out, but don't know if it will. Don't stress about it. Just be yourself, and everything will work out for the best. A loved one needs your advice. Be as supportive as you can.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
You're restless, Libra. No matter what you try to do, nothing feels right. Take some time for yourself. Relax, and pamper yourself. This is sure to set you back on the right track. An old friend calls you out of the blue. Don't be too eager to get back into a relationship with him or her. Remember why you two haven't spoken in a long time.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Don't let a problem at the beginning of the week get to you. Try to stay in control, Scorpio. That's the only way to work things out. The person you've been seeing stops calling. Don't get discouraged. He or she wasn't the one for you anyway. Cancer plays a key role on Wednesday.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
You have a difficult week ahead of you. There is a lot to get done and no one to help you. Stay focused, and don't let those around you set you off on tangents. With a little organization, you can get it all accomplished. A close friend needs your help with a relationship. Give him or her sound advice. Leo plays an important role.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Your shyness actually helps you get ahead this week, Capricorn. An influential person is touched by your personality and makes you a great business offer. Take it. A family member turns to you in a time of need. Be there for him or her and do what you can.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Don't let yourself get pinned down early in the week. Someone wants you to take on a great amount of responsibility. While you could handle it, you have too much of your own work to do. Put your foot down and say no. You meet an intriguing person while running errands late in the week. He or she returns your interest.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
All is right with the world, Pisces. Everything is going your way, and you make great progress in professional and personal relationships. You also get a financial windfall at the end of the week. However, don't spend it all in one place. You're going to need it soon.

Khalil Kain (Love Jones) swings for the green as golfing sensation Tiger Woods in the Showtime original film The Tiger Woods Story, premiering Sunday.

Burton's Tiger Woods Story geared to family audiences

By John Crook

On what is scheduled to be the last day of the Masters Tournament, Showtime profiles last year's golfing phenom in The Tiger Woods Story, premiering Sunday, April 12.

LeVar Burton (Roots) directs the family-friendly film, which stars Keith David (An Eye for an Eye), Khalil Kain (Love Jones) and Freda Foh Shen (The Glimmer Man).

Presented under the premium channel's new banner, Showtime Original Pictures for All Ages, Tiger Woods begins its story during the Vietnam War, when Lt. Col. Earl Woods (David) vows to name his first child after Vuong Dang "Tiger" Phong, a Vietnamese ally who saves his life.

After his tour of duty, Woods accepts a government job in Thailand, where he meets and falls in love with a secretary named Tida (Shen). They marry and, in 1975, move to Southern California, where their son, Eldrick "Tiger" Woods, soon is born.

A golf prodigy, little Tiger beats a club's golf professional at age 3, and his father quickly begins encouraging him to pursue the sport. But Tiger's mother becomes concerned that he may miss the simple pleasures of childhood.

The rest of the film chronicles Tiger's swift but often upsetting rise to superstardom as he grapples with his own sense of racial identity in a world where he catches flak from whites, blacks and Asians.

Burton and scriptwriter Takashi Buford don't shrink from the issue of racism. The emotionally charged subject is used to paint a picture of a close-knit family that survives times of crisis because of its strength and courage.

That this warmth emerges as wholly credible and not Hollywood-synthetic is due mainly to the fine trio of leading actors. As the senior Woods, David walks a cautious line between stern father and martinet, while Shen is a delightful Tida. As Tiger, young Kain captures both the strength and insecurity of the reluctant mecha star.

In short, Tiger is a hole in one for Showtime.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I noticed a new person is playing the role of Harriette Winslow on Family Matters. What happened to the "old" Harriette? —B. Bigler, New Glarus, Wis.

A: After more than a decade of playing Harriette — a role she created on Perfect Strangers two seasons before Family Matters premiered in 1989 — JoMarie Payton-Noble told the Matters producers that she wanted to do something besides simply acting on the show.

When her efforts to write or direct an episode were met with little encouragement, she decided to move on to other things.

Q: There is a girl named Suzanne Cupito in the movie Yours, Mine and Ours.

Is this the actress we now know as Morgan Brittany? —"O'Neal" via e-mail.

A: Indeed it is. Brittany, now 46, was born Suzanne Cupito. According to her credits in the Internet Movie Database, Yours, Mine and Ours marked the last time she used her real name. She then assumed the name by which she is best known from her appearances as Katherine Wentworth on Dallas and many other roles.

Q: Please translate the last line of the All in the Family theme song before "those were the days." It sounds like "Gee are all the sour red great." —R.A.O. via e-mail.

A: Many people can't make out this line, because they don't know or remember an old car called the LaSalle. Once you know that, it becomes easier to hear "Gee, our old LaSalle ran great" in those last lines.

Q: My son was watching Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles III and there was an actor who looked a lot like the guy who plays Dr. Anspaugh on

JoMarie Payton-Noble

ER. Is it really the same actor? —Lydia Edwards via e-mail.

A: Yes. Before joining ER as Dr. Donald Anspaugh, actor John Aylward played Niles in the 1992 Turtles sequel.

Q: Has singer-songwriter Elton John ever appeared in any movies? —Jennifer McKinney via e-mail.

A: Yes, but nearly always as himself. John played the Pinball Wizard in both Ken Russell's 1975 Tommy and in 1989's The Who Live, Featuring the Rock Opera Tommy. As himself, he has appeared in Born to Boogie, The Return of Bruno, Spice World and Tantrums & Tiaras.

Q: Are Jerry O'Connell and Jason Bateman related? The resemblance is remarkable. —Josh via e-mail.

A: No, but if you think O'Connell and Bateman look alike, wait till you see O'Connell's real-life brother, Charlie, when he joins the Sliders cast in new episodes starting June 8 on the Sci-Fi Channel.

SOAP WORLD

Down and other stars welcome new arrivals

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

After more than 11 hours of labor, Lesley-Anne Down (Olivia, Sunset Beach) gave birth to a healthy baby boy, George Edward Fauntleroy, on March 11. Little George weighed 6 pounds.

Down and her husband, Don Fauntleroy, are still on cloud nine. "I thank God for this total miracle. This is the best birthday present I could ever hope for," says Down, whose birthday was March 17.

It seems that Feb. 24 was a popular day for babies to be born to soap opera moms.

Nancy Lee Grahn (Alexis, General Hospital) gave birth to daughter Kate. Kimberlin Brown (Sheila, The Bold and the Beautiful) gave birth to son Nicholas James. She and husband Gary Pelzer have a 3-year-old daughter, Alexes.

Actor John Viscardi (ex-Tony, One Life to Live) and Fiona Hutchison (Jenna, Guiding Light) welcomed their new son, Trevor Westmickott Viscardi. The baby was named after Hutchison's great-grandfather.

There is a good chance that Trevor will play Jenna's baby when Hutchison returns to the show from her maternity leave. That would enable mother and baby to be close while she works. The details are still being worked out with producers.

Dear Candace: Was it just me or was the prime-time special for The Young and the Restless a real let-down? I was so disappointed.

Instead of just doing a regular episode, the writers and producers should have done a real special like GH did for its anniversary.

If I wanted to attract new viewers to the show, I wouldn't have done something so boring. —Bethany on the Internet.

Dear Reader: You aren't the first to comment on the Y&R special, and you are right; they should have done something a bit more creative. A location shot in Hawaii or Europe would have been better.

Baked beans, which were an American Indian dish, became a standard New England Sunday dish because Pilgrims were not allowed to cook on the Sabbath. Beans could be slow cooked overnight on Saturday.
