'Even in the fifth grade, we had to write our own short one-act play, direct and perform it.'

- Amy Gilliland

Gilliland: "in-born need to act"

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Amy Gilliland is so devoted to the theater that she has even resorted to crawling through windows and running across roof tops when necessary to be in the right place at the right time during a production.

"I guess I have an in-born need to act," Gilliland said.

She admits that she was hooked on acting from the time she had to attend auditorium class beginning in fifth grade in Dimmitt Grade School.

"Rosie Bates was the teacher for that class. Even in fifth grade, we had to write our own short one-act play, direct and perform it," she said.

According to Gilliland, her first performance in a "real" play was during her eighth grade year when her class performed "Gettin' Gracie Graduated."

Her interest in live theater was responsible, at least in part, for her marriage to John G. Gilliland.

"He was a sophomore at WT when I was a senior at Dimmitt High and Mr. Bates would take us to see the live productions at the college. I saw John G. in at least two of those college plays before I actually met him," she said.

Their mutual interest in live theater was instrumental in the formation of a theater group in Hereford in 1968.

Oma Link Rowley, one of the founders of Amarillo Little Theatre, addressed a group of area residents interested in starting and carrying on a community theater on June 6, 1968.

Gilliland was the first president of Hereford Community Players and their first production was "Blithe Spirit," a three-act comedy by Noel Coward staged in the Stanton Junior High auditorium on Nov. 21, 1968.

"We (Hereford Community Players) did about three shows a year for seven years," Gilliland said.

Since the theater group did not have a permanent home, plays were staged where space and seating allowed.

"We performed at Stanton, in Sugarland Mall, the Little Bull Barn, La Plata Junior High. We even did 'Barefoot in the Park' in the ballroom of the Jim Hill Hotel," Gilliland said.

The local theater group was inventive when necessary.

"Seed pallets are indispensable for a community theater, she said. "We used seed pallets for all kinds of things, even creating risers to put the audience on to create a 'theater in the round.'"

She blames her arthritic right knee on her "method acting" during rehearsals for "The Glass Menagerie" in the Little Bull Barn.

"I was playing the part of Laura, who is a cripple. Instead of bandaging my right leg to hold it stiff while we were rehearsing, I would just hold it stiff from the time I went into the Bull Barn all the time we were rehearsing. It finally began to actually be stiff from holding it in that position and I've had trouble with it ever since," she said.

After the demise of Hereford Community Players, Gilliland turned her acting skills to Amarillo Little Theatre.

Her first role there was as Big Mama in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

She also performed at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo.

"It was a professional theater and one really big difference in that was the length of rehearsal time. In a community production we would rehearse, mostly in the evenings, for

Wetland project looking for help

Special to The Brand

CANYON - Private landowners are being sought by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department to participate in wetland projects in the High and Rolling Plains.

The state has shared the cost of wetland projects since 1988 when the Playa Lakes Joint Venture (PLJV) was created, according to Jim Ray, migratory bird/wetlands biologist for the High Plains and Rolling Plains.

Ray said the state needs landowners who are interested in improving play lakes for wildlife to participate in the project.

"Since 1988, more than 95 projects have been accomplished in Texas by the PLJV partnership. Most of these are on private land," he said.

Projects typically involve the establishment or management of native grassland surrounding playa lakes and fencing to allow the landowner to manage the site carefully as a separate pasture. We generally strive for at least a two to one or three to one ratio of upland cover to wetland ratio. This is important, to slow down the excessive accumulation of sediment in playa basins, which is severely impacting the natural function of playas and their value to wildlife," Ray said.

Other types of projects, he said, involve management of playa lakes for waterfowl that use irrigation tailwater or other water sources.

The agency will not share the cost of projects involving dirtwork within playa basins, Ray said.

Cost-sharing of up to 100 percent is available through the PLJV for projects, however, the projects score higher in the ranking process of at least 50 percent of the funding already is secured.

"Match sources can include monies from the landowner and those provided through (other) programs ... including the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP), Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP) and Wildlife Habitat Incentive Program (WHIP), as well as the TPWD's Landowner Incentives Program and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Partners for Wildlife Program. We can work with the landowner and other agencies to secure these partnerships," he said.

The PLJV is part of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan, an international effort of federal/state agencies and private interests to improve waterfowl and wetland habitats in Canada, Mexico and the United States. Among the agencies participating in the project are the state wildlife departments of Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

Farmers, ranchers released from CRP

Area farmers and ranchers struggling with a severe drought got some relief, although it wasn't in the form of rain.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman on Friday gave them a temporary release from their Conservation Reserve Program agreements with the government that restricts haying or grazing of their land.

Glickman's decision went into effect immediately and affects farmers and ranchers in 31 Panhandle counties, including Deaf Smith County. CRP land is acreage the government leases from land owners. Under the provisions of the CRP agreement, the land owners will preserve the land's natural state and will not farm or graze on the acreage.

The leases are long term, with the average payment falling in the $40 per acre range. Under the terms released Friday, the land owners can graze up to 75 percent of the acreage or hay up to 50 percent. The CRP payments will be reduced by 25 percent to account for the acreage used by the land owner.

Other counties included in the release are Bailey, Borden, Cameron, part of Concho, Coke, Dawson, Dimmitt, Fisher, Gaines, Glasscock, Hansford, Hockley, Howard, Jones, Lamb, LaSalle, Lubbock, Martin, Mitchell, Moore, Nolan, Oldham, Parmer, Randall, Runnels, Scurry, Sterling, Swisher, Taylor and Willacy.

In a related development, Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, is seeking Senate approval of a resolution that would:

- Instruct the USDA ensure local Farm Service Agency offices in drought-

Researchers say warm water trend part of climate change

WASHINGTON (AP) - Twenty years of warmer water is causing a severe decline in fish, birds, seaweed and mammals all along the West Coast, say researchers who warn that the trend may signal a climate change deeper than just a temporary El Nino effect.

Based on an analysis of temperature measurements taken daily since 1916 along the Pacific coast, "it's clear the entire system has warmed up," said John A. McGowan of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, co-author of a study published in the journal Science.

Rising sea surface temperature, said McGowan, "is not just in California. It is the whole eastern half of the northern Pacific and the Gulf of Alaska."

The warmer waters are linked to declines in some temperate species and the wholesale migration into northern waters of fish and animals that normally live in the tropics, researchers say.

Sea surface temperatures suddenly jumped up in 1977 and the average has remained about two degrees warmer than the previous averages, said McGowan.

"The whole temperature range has shifted upward so the lows are not as low as they used to be and the highs are higher," he said.

The change occurred suddenly, said McGowan, within just 10 months of 1977.

"We didn't know before that such changes could occur that rapidly," he said.

Among the biological changes linked to the warmer water since 1977, McGowan cited these examples:

- A 70 percent decline in zooplankton, the tiny animals that feed on microscopic plants and that are a major link in the natural food chain.

- A 90 percent decline in an important sea bird called the sooty shearwater. "It was once here by the millions and now they are uncommon," said McGowan.

- Warm water fishes and other animals have migrated northward and are now common in places that they once shunned. The short-beaked dolphin, a sea mammal that prefers warm water, had a California population of about 15,000 in 1970, according to the National Marine Fisheries Service. In 1991, the agency estimated the dolphin population at 226,000 and scientists now say the numbers could be as high as 400,000.

- Near-shore species like abalone, sea urchins and kelp plants "have been devastated," said McGowan. A survey has shown a severe reduction in young kelp plants, called "spikes".

- A surge of warm weather in the 1980s is linked

ST. LOUIS (AP) - For 14 years, he was an unnamed hero buried in the Tomb of the Unknowns. Now, Air Force Lt. Michael Blassie is home, still a hero but anonymous no more.

Blassie's remains were brought home Friday for a solemn service befitting a pilot killed in the line of duty.

Local roundup

Donation to charity

Bill Brown presents a $3,000 check for the Make-a-Wish Foundation to Debbie Reinart of First American Bank. The check was generated by last week's 1998 Coors Original Open Partnership golf tournament at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

County commission

Deaf Smith County commissioners will again discuss the distribution of precinct roads when they meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the commissioners courtroom in the courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

The issue has been on the commissioners' agenda for several meetings, since Precinct 1 Commissioner Wayne Betzen contended the roads are not equitably distributed.

- In other business, the commissioners are expected to:
- Appoint county election judges and alternates for the next year;
  - Consider a request to seek sealed bids on a Precinct 4 tractor;
  - Consider a request for a deputy in the auto license department;
  - Consider a request from Edwin Axe to cross a county road with a water line; and
  - Discuss personnel policy.

Coaches scramble

The Whiteface Booster Club will sponsor a Coaches' Golf Scramble later this month at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The nine-hole scramble will start at 5:30 p.m. July 23. Hot dogs and refreshments will be provided for all participants. The scramble will provide an opportunity for golfers to meet Hereford Independent School District coaches. Proceeds will go to the booster club for its support of all HISD sports programs.

Cost will be $17.50 per golfer. The winning foursome will receive $20 per golfer. Awards for second- and third-place teams will be $17.50 and $12.50 per golfer.

Booster club membership will be awarded for the longest drive and closest-to-the-pin winners. Play is limited to the first 60 players to enter.

To enter or for more information, call the golf shop, 363-7139.

Mostly cloudy

Tonight, mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms, low in the upper 60s, wind light and variable.

Sunday, near record high temperature of 100 to 103, partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms, variable wind 5-10 mph.

Extended forecast

Monday through Wednesday, partly cloudy with a chance of thunderstorms each day, highs in the lower to mid-90s, lows in the upper 60s.

Friday recap

High, 96; low, 71; no precipitation.

Senior pictures

Class of 1999 senior pictures will be taken 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. July 15 in the Hereford High School choir room. This may be the last chance to have senior pictures taken without paying a sitting fee or proofs charge. Tuxedos and drapes will be provided. A casual pose can also be taken at this time.

Pictures only take 5-10 minutes. Come by before work, during lunch or after work if the scheduled time is inconvenient.

City-Wide Garage Sale

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will accept garage sale registrations for the 2nd Annual City Wide Garage Sale through Monday.

The event will be 8 a.m.-5 p.m. July 18.

The registration fee is $10, and each garage sale will be listed on a locator map and furnished with a yard sign. Garage sales are to be registered at the chamber office, 701 N. Main.

Back to school time again

Children attending elementary school classes in the Hereford Independent School District during the 1998-99 school year, will register during a two-day period later this month at the HISD Elementary Intake Center.

Kindergarten and pre-kindergarten students will register July 28, and first- through sixth-grade students will register July 29.

School district officials emphasize all elementary registration will be completed on these days and individual campuses will not be open. Students need not be present.

Parents must provide birth certificates, Social Security cards and immunization records at the time of registration.

Shoring up the soil

City parks and recreation department, with some help from county jail trustees, are taking advantage of the hot dry weather which has lowered the level in the Aquatic Center Pond, to shore up the eroding banks of the peninsula-like arm and the banks under the bridge. Workers used railroad ties to maintain the bank stability and shape. The final steps will be to install a drip irrigation system, plant new grass and trees and other beautification work to make the pond more appealing.

News in brief

CDC helping Wyoming find cause of E. coli outbreak

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) - Investigators from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention are helping state health officials seek the source of an E. coli outbreak that has sickened at least 19 people in western Wyoming.

The CDC is coordinating efforts with state health departments in neighboring states and Washington, California, Georgia and Kansas.

By Friday, Wyoming health officials reported 19 confirmed cases of E. coli infection stemming from a single outbreak at Alpine, home to 470 people, in the past two weeks. All of the people reporting symptoms were in the Star Valley area between June 28 and July 3.

Test results are pending on several of the more than 30 Wyoming residents and 40 nonresidents with symptoms that include bloody diarrhea, vomiting and severe fatigue, said Dr. Gayle Miller, the state epidemiologist.

"Our preliminary investigation has failed to show that a recreational water source, a food source or a restaurant source might have been the cause, but we continue to explore that and we are not prepared to implicate any particular source," Miller said.

IRS acknowledges improper seizures of property

WASHINGTON (AP) - The IRS tried to force a severely ill man to sell the home that sheltered his wife and teen-age daughters, backing off only after the man died and a revenue agent concluded the sale would be "bad publicity," the agency said in an internal report on its collection practices.

The Internal Revenue Service acknowledged Friday that it improperly seized property from taxpayers in more than one in four cases studied from the 1997 fiscal year, according to one of two internal audits, totaling 331 pages.

They were the last of four conducted in response to sensational allegations leveled against the tax agency in Senate hearings last year.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., called them "a stunning confession of the sins of the IRS."

The studies were released a day after the Senate voted 96-2 to send President Clinton a bill aimed at remodeling the agency.

Neither Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin nor IRS Commissioner Charles Rossotti offered comment. But both men have said they are committed to ridding the agency of abuses, and Roth said in a statement, "The fact that the agency is owning up to these problems is a refreshing change."

The studies looked at seizure practices in 11 of the IRS' 33 districts and at the use of enforcement statistics in managing and evaluating agency examiners.

British, Irish authorities hold suspects in bombing plot

LONDON (AP) - Police in Britain and Ireland were holding 10 alleged members of IRA splinter groups today after thwarting a bombing attack on the British capital that underscores the Ireland's recent hard-line groups to wreck Northern Ireland's recent landmark peace agreement.

London was "within minutes" of being attacked, said Deputy Assistant Commissioner John Grieve, head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist branch. He gave no details on possible targets or how many explosive devices were found.

The six arrests in London on Friday followed raids by police in Dublin, Wexford and Dundalk, all in the Republic of Ireland, in which four people were taken into custody, authorities said.

The Irish police operation, which had been under way for months, targeted "dissident criminal Irish republican terrorist groups" intent on foiling the April peace accord, said Grieve. Those groups have refused to observe cease-fires called by Northern Ireland's main paramilitaries, including the Irish Republican Army.

Information uncovered during the seizures in Ireland prompted police there to contact British authorities, leading to Friday afternoon's arrests in London.

Grieve said three men arrested near university buildings in the British capital had explosive devices that were ready for use. Witnesses said police descended on the area, south of the River Thames, brandishing guns and arrested two of the men within yards of each other outside a local supermarket.

Oregon man says son's killers lounging on Mexican beach

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - For nearly a year, Frank Nimz has lived with the pain of his son's brutal murder. What turns his anguish to anger is that the suspected killers may be lounging on a Mexican beach.

Some of Oregon's most notorious fugitives are staying a step ahead of the law by vanishing into the barrios and badlands of Mexico, aided by diplomatic red tape and a little help from their friends.

Since last summer, two men suspected of killing a couple in Seaside have eluded capture and are believed to be hiding out in Mexico. Last month, a Portland high school student wanted in a string of armed robberies partied in Mazatlan with classmates who all kept silent on his whereabouts.

"Mexican authorities don't do anything," said Nimz, whose son - also named Frank - was one of the Seaside victims. "These punks are getting the idea that they're home free. They're down there laughing at us. What's going on?"

Since 1980, more than 500 Americans have fled to Mexico to avoid prosecution, said Jorge Ricardo Garcia-Villalobos, West Coast legal attache for the Mexican attorney general. Of those, 212 are still at large, but only 17 were returned to the United States within the last year under extradition treaties.

"Over the past 10 years, the number of American fugitives in Mexico is rising," he said. "Criminals are feeling a lot of pressure on the U.S. side of the border, and they think that on the Mexican side they will be safe."

FBI agent Hadley McCann estimates that there are a couple dozen Oregon fugitives in other countries, but a little of the prominent ones flee to Mexico.

Forecasters see La Nina approaching

WASHINGTON (AP) - La Nina is expected to replace her opposite number in weather phenomena, El Nino, during the next six months and continue through the winter, government weather forecasters say.

An El Nino event, such as the one that brought severe weather to wide areas in the last year, is characterized by unusually warm water in the eastern Pacific Ocean.

But water in the same area becomes colder than normal in La Nina and temperatures tend to be warmer than normal in the Southeastern states and cooler than normal in the Northwest.

The National Center for Environmental Prediction said the changing conditions in the Pacific "indicate that a cold episode will likely develop during the next six months and continue through the northern 1998-99 winter."

El Nino, which has been blamed for the series of severe storms that battered California, as well as sundry other weather problems, has petered out in recent months.

Because El Nino years tend to have fewer-than-normal hurricanes in the Caribbean Sea and Atlantic Ocean, that raises concerns that more storms may occur this summer.

The warm waters of El Nino generate moist, rising air that can change the patterns of the jet stream, which steers weather.

In La Nina years, ocean temperatures are colder and the air overhead drier since there is less evaporation. This tends to result in weaker wintertime jet streams over the central and eastern Pacific and stronger monsoons over Australia, Southeast Asia, South and Central America and Africa.

The name La Nina, Spanish for little girl, was chosen by researchers to indicate the condition is the opposite of El Nino, which means little boy. That name had been picked by South American fishermen, who tended to notice the change in conditions around Christmastime, and named it after Baby Jesus.

That's right -- more heat

By The Associated Press

Don't expect Texas to cool off anytime soon. More triple-digit temperatures are in store through the weekend, even though storms are possible in several parts of the state.

Early morning skies were clear over North Texas Saturday, with winds up to 15 mph. Temperatures mainly were in the 80s.

A heat advisory is in place for North Texas through Sunday, although there's a chance of isolated thunderstorms. High temperatures should reach 105 degrees, with heat index values up to 115 degrees. Lows should drop around 80 degrees.

West Texas saw early morning clouds Saturday with wind up to 15 mph. Daltart dipped to 68 degrees, while Spur reached 85 degrees at 4 a.m.

Skies should be clear to partly cloudy, with a chance of thunderstorms over the western plains. Highs should range from the mid-90s to about 112 degrees in the Big Bend Valleys. Lows are forecast in the 60s and 70s overnight.

Skies should be mostly sunny this weekend. Highs are forecast from 90 degrees along the coast to the lower 100s for the rest of the region. Lows should dip to the 70s and 80s.

STUDY

to the wholesale death of young among fur seals, sea lions and related animals in Alaska. Those animal populations have yet to recover.

Warm surface waters are blocking the upwelling of nutrient-rich cold waters, said McGowan. As a result, the warmer surface waters lack some of the chemicals that supports plankton, which is at the base of the food chain.

Fish populations have declined about five percent per year since 1986. Karin Forney, a biologist with the National Marine Fisheries Service, said the McGowan study "is a solid paper" and "an important study."

But she cautioned that it is impossible to say with absolute certainty that declines in the population of fish or other sea animals is caused by a single, basic factor, such as temperature.

"There is no doubt that there have been biological changes," said Forney, "but it is not certain what is causing it. There is some evidence that is due to climate change."

McGowan said there is not enough data to say for sure that the warming of the coastal waters is caused by global warming, a planetwide increase in temperature thought to be caused by increased carbon dioxide in the atmosphere.

"It is consistent with global warming, but we can't attribute it to that," he said. "If global warming occurs, it would probably look something like this."

Air Force Base, Ill., near Blassie's hometown of St. Louis.

Members of Blassie's family watched and wept quietly. "All of a sudden, it's as if no time has passed," said Blassie's sister, Pat Blassie. "We're grieving all over again."

Several hundred people - a mix of civilians and members of the military - saluted or held their hands over their hearts during the brief ceremony.

"Because of what has happened, and the significance of who Michael was, the family realized that it wasn't just Michael Blassie coming home to the Blassie family," Pat Blassie said. "We're sharing it with a couple of thousand families whose loved ones haven't come home yet."

The ceremony marked the first of several public memorials planned for Blassie. A memorial Mass was to be celebrated Friday night at St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church in suburban St. Louis, where Blassie's mother is a member.

A graveside service was scheduled for Saturday morning at Jefferson Barracks National Cemetery. An honor guard will fire a 21-gun salute and F-15 Eagle fighters will roar overhead in a "missing man" flyover. Secretary of Defense William Cohen and other top-ranking military personnel were to attend.

For the past year, Pat Blassie had crusaded for the disinterment, convinced evidence that had recently come to light - including Blassie's wallet and dog tags found near the crash site - suggested the remains were those of her brother. In May, the remains were exhumed, 14 years after they were placed in the grave at Arlington National Cemetery.

Last month, DNA tests that were not available 26 years ago confirmed the remains were Blassie's.

State ed board to sell its Disney stock

AUSTIN (AP) - The State Board of Education voted 8-4 to sell $43 million in Walt Disney Co. stock following complaints about sex and violence in films by a Disney subsidiary.

Two of the 15 board members abstained and one was absent for Friday's vote.

The vote means the divestiture of the Disney stock from the $17.65 billion Permanent School Fund.

The action comes after the American Family Association of Texas, which is involved in a Disney boycott, sent board members a videotape of Disney-owned Miramax film excerpts, including scenes from "Pulp Fiction" and "Chasing Amy."

Board Chairman Jack Christie, a Houston Republican, had said he hoped a vote to divest "sends a message to Miramax ... that the public in general has had enough of exposing children to the violence and explicitness in these movies.

"How many more school shootings do you want before we have to do something to reverse that trend?" he said.

Divestiture supporters say such films could make Disney stock less attractive to investors, hurting it as an investment.

Claudia Peters, Disney director of corporate communications, said Texas is the only state she knows of to take such action.

"Investors should make their own decisions based on their own rationales and goals for their investment portfolios. We don't comment on individual investment strategies," she said.

Miramax is "a highly acclaimed film label that has received 110 Academy Award nominations and 30 Academy Awards over the last 10 years," she added. She said film subsidiaries of Disney that produce movies for mature audiences are set up under other names and adhere to the movie rating system.

"The Walt Disney Company produces more family entertainment than any other company in the world, and any products marked with the Disney brand name are always suitable for all ages," she said.

Board members David Bradley of Beaumont and Richard Neill of Fort Worth, both Republicans, said they support divestiture based on recent Disney financial losses.

But divestiture opponents cite a report that since buying Disney shares two years ago, the total return recognized by the school fund's internal portfolio is 108 percent. Disney shares were at $37.87, up 87 cents, in afternoon trading today.

on the New York Stock Exchange.

"The record is quite clear that Disney is a very, very fine productive stock for the public school fund," said board member Will Davis of Austin, a Democrat who tried to stop the issue in a board committee Thursday.

"They've done some rather foolish things with some of their subsidiary investments," Davis said.

As of June 15, 1998. All yields subject to availability.

Hereford State Bank grew up here in Hereford, just as many of our customers did.

Perhaps that's why we know so well what you and the Hereford community want and need from a bank — dedication to hard work, the friendly openness that Hereford people expect from a close neighbor, and commitment to our community.

And as novel as it may seem, especially when compared to most banking situations these days, you'll even find a group of businessmen sitting in our boardroom who still have strong local ties to the Hereford business community.

They bring a unique local perspective to our bank — a perspective which has helped Hereford State Bank provide your family, your business and your community with the banking services you need and want.

Hereford State Bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Yes, it's true. There's no place like home. And here in Hereford, there's no bank like Hereford State Bank.

SPEEDY NIEMAN

Hereford Bull

After months of deliberation and making plans, I'm about ready to retire. Actually, my name was removed from the payroll list June 30 but I didn't want to make an announcement until we were sure that my Social Security, Medicare and supplement insurance were all processed and in place. We should be ready to make a formal announcement next week.

After all these years, I don't know if I can quit "cold turkey." It may take a few months to clean out my office. I may write a guest Bull column now and then. But the time is right; it's time to let go. The years and the deadlines take their toll. Did Speedy Nieman do everything right? Of course not. He might do a few things differently if there was a second time around. You can't make the commitments for sending more than 6,000 issues to press and not make mistakes. Some of them were whoppers but, thankfully, most of them were embarrassing typos rather than errors in fact.

Some of the big decisions are memorable, but it's the little, everyday ones -- especially in small town journalism -- that really challenge the editor and reporter. And they are the ones that make your stomach churn and lead to a good dose of ulcer medicine. Similarly, a summing up focuses on big stories that were covered and presidents and other important people we met that wind up in a newsman's scrapbook.

But in the end it's really a different group of people who matter. All those I worked for and with, and learned from and taught. One of the highest honors is to get a note from someone who writes to say, "You helped." Staff members come and go but they are fondly remembered, not only for their contributions to the newspaper, but for the fact they were friends as well...members of the team.

There is also the image of a thousand faces of people we dealt with in gathering the news and selling advertisements. They were, for the most part, helpful, kind and treated us with courtesy and respect. They are city, county, school and hospital officials, chamber of commerce leaders, Lions Club and Little League, teachers and coaches. They all add their measure to the success of any newspaper career. To the people behind those countless faces, I express my deepest gratitude.

I also see the familiar faces of the people at the Senior Citizen Center, the people working together in a community celebration, the joy of writing about kids' academic and athletic accomplishments - the pride of being the only newspaper to follow them to district and state competition, the thrill of graduation and seeing some students we had been writing about or shooting photos of since kindergarten.

The true constant, of course, is family. My wife and sons only reflect on the good times, but they had to stick it out through some difficult times as well -- making sacrifices for things which may not have directly involved them, but they knew it was important to me. My wife packed up and moved several times when I decided a $5-per-week raise in pay was important to my career. On occasion, they tried to understand battles not of their own making, having faith that their husband and dad was doing what was right.

Looking back over the years, in spite of the demands of the job, I can honestly say I have been fulfilled, both professionally and personally. I feel privileged to have toiled in the field of community journalism, able to interact with the lives of many in a positive, caring way. I am humbled by the opportunities to serve and convinced more than ever that it is the people who make it all worthwhile. It has added up to a rich, full life I never imagined as the son of a janitor in Lamesa.

So help me, I'd do it all over again.

Ike's warning went unheeded

"This conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry is new in the American experience .... In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist."

- President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Farewell address, Jan. 17, 1961

Ike's warning went unheeded. In 1961 when he warned the nation about the military-industrial complex, President Eisenhower could not have imagined how prophetic he was in his final address to the nation.

Congress recently scolded Defense Secretary William Cohen, a former U.S. senator, for suggesting the closure of some unneeded military bases. The Congress also has appropriated billions of dollars for ships and planes that the Pentagon claims it doesn't need or want.

Why? It just happens the planes will be built in a plant in House Speaker Newt Gingrich's district in Georgia; the ships will be built at a shipyard in Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott's home state of Mississippi.

And, a recent study found the United States spent $5.5 TRILLION just on nuclear weapons through 1996.

A prime example of the military-industrial complex in action is the B-1 bomber, a plane with no real mission and which probably couldn't carry out its mission if it indeed had one.

President Carter tried to cancel the B-1, but too many dollars made their way into the pockets of too many members of Congress, and the B-1 survived - to be resurrected almost as soon as Ronald Reagan entered the White House.

The B-1 was supposed to replace the B-52, which has been around for nearly 40 years; however, when the U.S. needed bombers during the Persian

DON COOPER

Reflections

Gulf War, where was the B-1? Sitting on the tarmac at Dyess Air Force in Abilene, Texas; the entire B-1 fleet had been grounded.

Billions of dollars have been turned over to the defense contractors to produce this flying lemon. If the B-1 had been an Edsel, it would have disappeared, but because it was a military aircraft, the great minds in Congress decided to buy even more of the bloody things.

Billions of dollars have been wasted because military strategy and needs have become secondary to economic strategy. Military spending, be it construction projects or weapons, means jobs, so members of Congress who pontificate about budget cuts suddenly fall silent when it comes to the base or the military contractor operating in their districts.

Military spending should be based on the strategic needs of the military, not on the unemployment rate of a congressional district.

The danger of the military-industrial complex had apparently been on Eisenhower's mind throughout his presidency. On April 16, 1953, less than four months after he took office, Ike said:

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies in the final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed. This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the houses of its children."

Inside Politics

Trying to land on the 'right' side

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's been a time of history lessons for President Clinton and Congress. After proclaiming last week that Chinese President Jiang Zemin could put China on the "right side of history," the GOP Senate is trying to teach Clinton he's got some of his history wrong.

The main history lesson the Senate is trying to give Clinton deals with Taiwan, but references to history's "right" and "wrong" sides have surfaced frequently in congressional debate on foreign policy and trade.

Republicans, after first offering grudging respect for Clinton's performances in China, now have seized on his comments last week on Taiwan to pile on fresh criticism.

In an exchange with students in Beijing, Clinton said that when the United States and China formulated the "one China Policy ... we also reached agreement that the unification would occur by peaceful means."

China specialists - and Taiwanese officials - were quick to note that "unification" was never part of that U.S. policy, and that the 1979 Taiwan Relations Act only asserts that the "future relationship" between Taiwan and the mainland should be "determined by peaceful means."

So, to drive home the point, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., introduced a resolution Tuesday to reiterate the major provisions of that 1979 act - and other Republicans stamped to sign on as co-sponsors. Since the 1979 act is still on the books, such a Senate vote would be irrelevant - except as a history lesson.

Clinton critics also pointed to remarks he made in Shanghai laying out what is called the "three nos" policy: no support for an independent Taiwan; no recognition for a separate Taiwanese government; and no backing of Taiwan's entry into international organizations.

Clinton critics suggest that policy is Beijing's policy, not that of Taiwan. Clinton has defended his statement as a simple articulation of existing policy, and other U.S. officials have accused Taiwan - and now Congress - of overreacting.

Clinton, as most presidents, is keenly interested in his place in history - and that of others. At an economic summit in May in Birmingham, England, Clinton told German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, "You are clearly on the right side of history. America honors your vision."

But Clinton can be a switch-hitter when it comes to China's place in history.

"I have told President Jiang that when it comes to human rights and religious freedom, China remains on the wrong side of history," Clinton said in October when Jiang visited Washington.

But at his news conference in Hong Kong last week, Clinton told reporters, "I believe that leaders of vision and imagination and courage will find a way to put China on the right side of history and keep it there."

Clinton's decision to visit China put him "on the wrong side of history," Rep. Christopher Smith, R-N.J., suggested last week.

A little history was in order Tuesday when a Senate Finance subcommittee

With all the real medical woes, why the rush to cover Viagra?

Medical science and research continues to move with incredible leaps and bounds, and not even skeptics like myself can deny the benefits of many new findings or research, but I have to admit that one of the latest "medical boons" has left me a little puzzled.

That "boon" being the questionable (at least to my mind) need for all the research and publicity of the anti-impotence drug Viagra.

I'm quite sure that in some very specific cases the drug is truly a godsend. I realize the sex drive is one of the strongest of all human/animal instincts, but is it really necessary for Medicare and Medicaid, or for that matter private insurance, to provide payment for Viagra when there are so many other serious medical needs not being met?

Every day another group of thousands of women face the diagnosis of breast, uterine or cervical cancer. With this diagnosis comes the hard reality of possible body-altering surgery, pain, chemotherapy and even death.

And, yet, many health insurance policies or HMOs will not cover the cost of a mammogram until a woman has reached a certain age - if then - but it will pay for some 85-year-old-man to perform a non-essential, non-life-threatening task that at best would serve only his ego.

A woman walks around in a bad mood and someone makes a joke about permanent PMS. Little do the jokesters know that she has a prescription for hormone therapy to control the mood swings, but, alas, the insurance calls the treatment non-essential.

I suppose the reasoning for this runs something like "Better a woman in a bad mood, rather than a man with his mind on his animal desires." Yeah!

An intelligent child goes to school every day and strains to see the words written on the overhead screen, trying to do her best, but failing miserably because she needs an eye exam and glasses. But, because her hardworking parents make too much to qualify for Medicaid, but not enough to pay for insurance, the child goes without the examination and glasses.

For the same reason, a baby cries to sleep with an unrelenting earache. Not to sleep long and peacefully, as babies should, but to sleep the wakeful, fitful, tortured slumber of a child in pain.

Granted, parents should have thought about these costs before conception, but because the children are here, their real medical needs should be considered a much higher priority than satisfying the male libido.

One more teen suddenly makes a habit of wearing big baggy clothes to conceal her increasing girth, scared

DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE

The Real World

to tell her parents of her imminent delivery. Instead she goes to an out-of-the-way spot, delivers the child alone; swaddles it in a cheap plastic bag and disposes of it in a nearby dumpster.

Yes, this is a parent/teen crisis and it should have been prevented before it reached this extreme. Maybe some of the advertising funds spent publicizing Viagra should have gone for education and counseling to have prevented this fiasco?

In a hospital bed, alone and nearly forgotten about, a young diabetic only in his mid-40s is connected to a kidney machine, gasping for breath as his heart and lungs fill with fluid - faster than the machine can remove it.

True, the young man weighs more than 400 pounds and has been told to lose weight since he was a small child, but, hey, maybe he should have just pushed himself away from the table. After all, it shouldn't be the medical community's concern to find answers to chronic obesity, should it?

Now, explain to me again the importance of a man being able to perform sexually. Somehow I've failed to see the how the necessity of Viagra and the things it accomplishes even compares with some of the medical issues which people around the country and the world face daily.

I once heard someone compare life and sex to a frosted cake. They said the cake is made of flour, sugar, eggs, oil and other things, but it is definitely edible without the frosting. Frosting just makes it a little sweeter.

The speaker said life, too, is made up of lots of little things, sex just makes it a little sweeter. Without the flour, eggs, sugar, and oil there would be no need for the frosting. Maybe researchers and marketing bigwigs should consider getting the cake baked before they try to apply the icing.

In my heart of hearts, I firmly doubt if any of the patients above would choose the benefits of Viagra over the necessities that would make their lives so much better.

Keeping an eye on Texas

Kids can feel safe at school

Texas law is clear about the responsibilities of the state's schools to keep children safe while teaching them clear standards for their behavior. As parents are concerned about crime and violence in public schools, a new report, "Keeping Texas Children Safe in School," outlines the roles of teachers, principals and other district personnel. The report, published by the Texas School Performance Review team, is available by calling toll-free 1-800-631-5441, extension 3-4900, or by writing P.O. Box 13528, Austin, TX 78711-3528, and on the Internet at: <http://www.window.state.tx.us/pr/tsp/safe/childsafety.html>.

 considered the administration's bid for a modest expansion of trade and investment with Vietnam.

"We're on the right side of history," Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., said in support.

The same process applies to Vietnam as "most favored nation" policy for China, which is also headed for votes this month. Both countries must obtain waivers from the 1974-75 Jackson-Vanik law restrictions.

Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun, D-Ill., asked Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., for a "little of the history" since "you were around. I wasn't around when Jackson-Vanik passed."

Helms paid tribute to the late Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Beyond that, Helms said, "I don't remember anything that I disagreed with at the time of the consideration of this."

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., not one to miss a chance to instruct, eagerly provided the "historical context," noting Jackson-Vanik originally was intended to tie trade privileges for Russia to levels of emigration, particularly for Jews.

Stanley Roth, assistant secretary of state, then told the panel why the Clinton administration wants to waive the law to expand trade with both Vietnam and China. "History is on our side," he said.

— YOUR EYES —

Sunglasses for Kids

Children are just as affected by the sun as adults, or more; they just don't complain about it. And now that science has shown us the harm the sun's rays can wreak, it seems right that parents offer their children the protection that may save their sight.

Even the youngest children should wear sunglasses at some times, especially when they are in prolonged or intense light -- the same sort of occasions when parents slather on sun block. In fact, children are more at risk than adults, because the lenses of their eyes lack the pigment that could help filter ultraviolet rays.

Buying sunglasses for a toddler, look for testing-institute tag that indicates that the glasses have met standards for impact resistance and that they will block at least 95 percent of ultraviolet rays. Quality matters; be surer that the lenses are not warped, that the frames are flexible, in case of a fall. Remember that darkness alone does not promise protection.

Swing's back with big bands, commercials and zoot suits

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - It's in the clubs, a new singles' scene that time-warps back a half-century when pompadours, zoot suits and full-skirted dresses were the rage.

It's on the radio and in the music stores, where suddenly a growing number of bands - with such names as the Cherry Poppin' Daddies and the Squirrel Nut Zippers - is intent on bringing partner dancing back.

It's a retro movement - in full swing. Swing dancing first showed its national resurgence in the 1996 movie "Swingers." It became an official phenomenon with the Gap's recent commercials featuring khaki-clad couples doing a raucous Lindy hop to Louis Prima's "Jump Jive an' Wail."

Big band swing is embraced by all ages - but, most surprisingly, by those turning the corner on their 20s. Swing kids don't see much romanticism in a mosh pit.

"Dancing with a partner was such a thing of the past. With this, you can just go up to anybody. There's no obligation. There's no pressure. It's like, 'Hey, let's just dance,'" said 25-year-old Craig Lozowick, decked out with a pinstripe suit, skinny tie, slicked back hair and sideburns.

"Everyone in our generation danced separately until this. It has so much energy," said his dancing partner, Stacy Wylls, looking elegant in old-style glasses and a circa 1940s pink dress bought at a vintage clothing shop.

Soon the duo is on the dance floor at Man Ray's, a South Florida club where nearly 300 people were dancing on a recent Wednesday night.

Swing is everywhere - from The Masquerade in Atlanta to The Spanish Ballroom in Washington, where the 16-piece Tom Cunningham Orchestra performs. It's at The Supper Club in New York, The Derby in Hollywood, Calif., and Cafe du Nord in San Francisco. West Coast bars are where the trend really took off.

The West Coast neo-swing movement can be traced to bands like Royal Crown Revue, which started mixing in swing with its punk-influenced ska nearly a decade ago. Former rocker Brian Setzer of the defunct Stray Cats is a current swing guitarist who got his roots in rockabilly.

"What a lot of the swing people are playing right now is jump blues, like Louis Prima or Louis Jordan," said Steve Perry, lead singer of the Cherry Poppin' Daddies. "Real swing is more like Fletcher Henderson, Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman and Glenn Miller. That's what we play."

And, of course, MTV motored the trend when the network put the Cherry Poppin' Daddies' "Zoot Suit Riot" in the rotation and the song became an alternative hit.

"The zoot suiters were considered the punk rockers of their age, because they were very outrageously dressed," said Perry, whose band came out of the grunge scene in the Pacific Northwest.

The eight-piece band isn't the only one making the scene. There's the jump sound of Big Bad Voodoo Daddy, the Western bent of Big Sandy and his Fly-rite Boys or the Dixieland stylings of Squirrel Nut Zippers - who really scored the first neo-swing hit with "Hell."

Many of the big-horn bands dress in natty 1940s attire. Songs about gambling and alcohol - such as the Voodoo Daddy's "You & Me & Bottle Makes 3" feeds into that day-after-Prohibition-ended feeling of the music.

Then there's the dancing. Swing is mainly an American invention, evolving out of ragtime in the '30s and '40s. Unlike a tango or a waltz, swing is more improvisational and comes in all kinds of flavors: the Lindy, boogie woogie, shag, the jitterbug.

At Man Ray's, which offers classes for beginners, a few couples performed highly complicated moves - called acrias - leaving observers to wonder if anyone ever gets hurt.

"Usually, I catch her," said Jeremy Cottrell, 18, in his two-tone bowling shirt.

Many new converts say they became interested in swing after the movie "Swingers," in which the lead character finally meets a girl thanks to knowing how to dance to the house band, which happens to be Big Bad Voodoo Daddy.

With his 1989 hit, "sex, lies and videotape," Steven Soderbergh was hailed as a bright, original filmmaker of exceptional promise. That promise remained unfulfilled with "Kafka," "Schizopolis," "The Underneath" and other films considered too esoteric to attract large audiences.

"Out of Sight" proves that the early predictions were not exaggerated. Soderbergh has converted another Elmore Leonard tale of overambitious lowlifes into a diverting movie filled with outrageous characters.

Crime novels present challenges to filmmakers, since the plots are often too complex to transfer to the screen. Screenwriter Scott Frank has managed to retain the bizarre characters and unexpected turns of "Out of Sight" without requiring a road map for the viewer. But then, he has had practice, having written the script for another Leonard book, "Get Shorty."

Jersey Films - Danny DeVito, Michael Shambert and Stacey Sher - also produced the estimable "Get Shorty."

The central figure of "Out of Sight" is Jack Foley (George Clooney), a career bank robber and habitue of the nation's prisons. He is determined to make one last score and disappear into retirement. First, though, Jack must find a solution to the 30-year sentence he is serving.

Karen Sisco (Jennifer Lopez) toils on the other side of the law, as a deputy federal marshal. While visiting the Florida state prison to serve a summons and complaint, she finds herself in the middle of a prison break.

Arming herself with a shotgun, she apprehends Jack, but is grabbed from behind by his getaway driver, Buddy (Ving Rhames). Jack and Karen end up in the trunk of the car. They become acquainted in a hurry, and she grudgingly admires his gentlemanly - and sexy - manner.

Jack and Buddy escape, and Karen returns to Miami with ambivalent feelings. She is intrigued by the handsome bank robber but driven by her duty as a law enforcer.

The scene shifts to Detroit, where Jack and Buddy aim to relieve a onetime fellow inmate, billionaire Richard Ripley (Albert Brooks), of the uncut diamonds he claims to have in his mansion. Another former inmate, wildman Snoopy Miller (Don Cheadle), has the same idea.

The goings-on are much more complicated than this brief synopsis. Needless to say, the unlikely lovers have their moment of passion.

Soderbergh keeps the proceedings going with speed and style, and some of the techniques he uses have been little seen since the days when Hollywood was enamored with France's New Wave: stop-action, dissolves, quick-cuts. This film definitely signals that Soderbergh is back in the big time.

Clooney's transformation from TV heartthrob to film star has been slow. "Batman and Robin," "One Fine Day" and "The Peacemaker" proved underwhelming. "Out of Sight" should smooth Clooney's departure from "ER" next year. He registers a strong screen presence.

Lopez generates electricity as the federal marshal who has more brains and is just as daring as the crooks with whom she's dealing. Her future in films is unlimited.

The Universal Pictures release carries an R rating for language and violence. Running time: 123 minutes.

"Out of Sight" is playing at Moovies Six, 400 N. 25 Mile Ave. Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

Tabloid to Prince Charles: Quit dilly-dallying

LONDON (AP) - Being heir to the British throne means never having to seek advice.

"Show us you love her," The Sun, Britain's biggest selling tabloid, advised Prince Charles on the newspaper's front page, telling him in a typically blunt editorial to go public with his relationship with longtime companion Camilla Parker Bowles.

"For goodness sake, get on with it," the newspaper said. "Neither of you is getting any younger."

Attempts by Prince Charles, 49, to introduce the British public to Mrs. Parker Bowles, were put on hold when Princess Diana died in a Paris car crash in August. Diana had blamed Mrs. Parker Bowles for the breakup of her royal marriage.

Mrs. Parker Bowles, 50, then disappeared from public view, fearful she would be treated as a scapegoat.

Earlier this week, Prince Charles' spokesman admitted that Mrs. Parker Bowles had met Charles' eldest son, Prince William, 16, and got along with him. Mrs. Parker Bowles has two children of her own from a previous marriage.

The Sun said the time has come for the prince to be seen with Mrs. Parker Bowles in public; support from Britain's powerful tabloid newspapers could be key in successfully making Mrs. Parker Bowles a public figure.

"It is time for Charles to put public opinion to the test," the newspaper said. "Clearly, a love that lasts more than two decades - and survives both marrying someone else along the way - is very, very special," The Sun said.

Pak fires 61 to set LPGA record

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) -- Se Ri Pak, bolstered by her first good night's rest since winning the U.S. Women's Open, posted the lowest LPGA tour score ever with a 10-under-par 61 Friday in the second round of the Jamie Farr Kroger Classic.

The 20-year-old South Korean birdied five holes on each side, wrapping up the historic round with birdies on her last three holes. She capped the round by rolling in a 20-foot birdie putt before a large and loud gallery circling the ninth green.

"Every putt was perfect right to left and left to right," she said. "Everything was perfect."

Seven players have shot 62s in an LPGA event, most recently Kathryn Marshall in the second round of last year's State Farm Rail Classic.

The PGA Tour record is 59, set by Al Geiberger in 1977, and matched by Chip Beck in 1991.

The 61 vaulted Pak, who had an even-par 71 in the opening round at the 6,319-yard Highland Meadows Golf Club, into first place by two strokes over first-round co-leaders Vickie Odegard and Dana Dormann and Hall of Famer Betsy King.

Pak had said after the first round that she was battling fatigue since beating Jenny Chuasiriporn to win the Open in a 20-hole playoff Monday. Pak won on the second sudden death hole after the two were still tied after the original 18-hole playoff.

With her manager preventing calls from getting through, Pak got 9½ hours' sleep Thursday night.

"Last week was a really, really long week," Pak said. "I played eight days, then two holes more. I came here on Tuesday afternoon and played six holes (in a celebrity exhibition). The next day I played 18 holes in the pro-am. Then yesterday, my body felt heavy. Not comfortable."

The record round started without fanfare. Starting on No. 10, she pushed her tee shot into the right rough and hit the ball into the left greenside bunker before blasting out to a foot to salvage par.

On only one other hole did she have trouble. She again avoided trouble in the rough and a bunker at No. 1 before making a 6-foot par putt.

On Nos. 11, 13 and 15, she birdied after hitting 9-irons inside 10 feet. She finished her first nine with consecutive birdies, hitting wedges

Trojans out of tourney

From staff reports
DETROIT -- A team from New Jersey eliminated the Texas Trojans from the championship bracket with a 73-63 win Friday in the National AAU Boys Championships 15 & Under division.

New Jersey rallied from a 38-26 halftime deficit to advance past the Trojans.

Jimmy Woodring led the Trojans with 23 points. Cody Hodges added 15 points.

Texas walks past A's, 1-0

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -- Kevin Elster drew a bases-loaded walk with two out in the ninth as the Texas Rangers beat the Oakland Athletics 1-0 on Friday night for Rick Helling's 12th victory.

Helling (12-4) tied teammate Aaron Sele and three others for the major league lead in victories. The right-hander allowed four hits in eight innings in the Rangers' fourth straight victory.

In the ninth, Bill Taylor (3-7) gave up a leadoff single to Will Clark, a double to Juan Gonzalez, and an intentional walk to Rusty Greer to load the bases. Ivan Rodriguez's grounder forced pinch-runner Luis Alcega at the plate, and Lee Stevens flied to shallow left for the second out.

Elster, who failed in two previous tries to drive in runs, ran the count to 3-0 before taking a strike and then drawing the walk on an inside fastball.

John Wetteland got three outs for his 24th save.

The Rangers let two scoring opportunities slip away against Athletics starter Tom Candiotti.

Greer doubled to lead off the second and went to third on Rodriguez's fly out to deep right, but was left stranded when Stevens struck out and Elster flied out. Singles by Rodriguez and Stevens put runners at the corners with one out in the seventh, but Elster grounded into a double play.

Oakland placed runners in scoring position.

Hockey fight leads to criminal charges

DETROIT (AP) -- In a rare case of a hockey fight leading to legal action, a Philadelphia Flyers prospect faces criminal charges for swinging his stick and leaving an opponent unconscious and in convulsions.

Jesse Boulerice, a 19-year-old Flyers draft choice, was charged on Wednesday with "assault to do great bodily harm less than murder" -- a felony that carries a jail sentence of up to 10 years and up to a $5,000 fine, prosecutors said Friday.

The Ontario Hockey League has suspended Boulerice for one year. The American Hockey League, to recognize the OHL's suspension, has declared him ineligible to play until Nov. 15.

"I haven't seen anything quite as vicious as what happened on the ice," said AHL spokesman Will Wolper.

Flyers assistant general manager John Blackwell said the team hadn't been officially notified. He said the dispute was between the parties and had no further comment.

Andrew Long, 19, a Florida Panthers prospect, filed a complaint June 4 with Plymouth Township Police against Boulerice, who played for the Plymouth Whalers. Long, a center for the Guelph Storm in Ontario, was injured in an OHL championship series game April 17 in Plymouth Township, about 25 miles west of Detroit.

Long checked Boulerice into the boards behind the Storm net. Boulerice already was wearing a cast because of a broken hand. After a short shoving match, police said Boulerice hit Long across the face with a two-handed "baseball-type swing" of his stick.

Knocked unconscious, Long went into convulsions and was taken to an Ann Arbor hospital with a blood spot on his brain and a broken nose, nasal cavity and cheekbone. Twenty stitches were needed to close the cut from the tip of his nose to his lip.

James Howarth, Boulerice's lawyer, said he plans to meet with his client for the first time Monday. He expected Boulerice, who is at a Flyers camp in Philadelphia, to be arraigned Tuesday.

Police Sgt. Jim Jarvis said he recently visited Long in Ontario, and Long was looking forward to joining the Panthers when training begins in September.

"His spirits are good," Jarvis said Friday. "His rehabilitation is going along real well. I believe he's about ready to get back on the ice for a little practice."

It was not the first time that rough play during a hockey game produced criminal charges.

In 1975, Dave Forbes of the Boston Bruins became the first pro athlete to be indicted for a crime committed during play. His trial ended in a hung jury.

Forbes was indicted for excessive force used on an opponent. His victim was Henry Boucha of the Minnesota North Stars. The prosecution did not seek a retrial.

THE 1998 BRITISH OPEN AT ROYAL BIRKDALE

It's the young guns vs. old guard

By DOUG FERGUSON

AP Sports Writer

SOUTHPORT, England -- If the young guns of golf want to make inroads this year, it will have to start at the game's oldest championship.

When Justin Leonard celebrated his British Open victory last year in Generation X fashion -- sharing a pizza with friends on the 17th green of Royal Troon under the glow of a Scottish night -- it signaled a changing of the guard:

-- Tiger Woods, just three months past the legal drinking age, who was crowned the youngest Masters champion ever.

-- Ernie Els, a two-time U.S. Open winner and still only 27.

-- And Leonard, at 25 playing with the concentration of Ben Hogan in his prime.

One year later, the old guard is fighting back.

"The old guys never went anywhere," said Tom Lehman, the British Open champion and PGA player of the year in 1996, who turns 40 next year. "It's just that the younger guys played a little better last year."

Chalk two up to experience.

Woods put the green jacket on 41-year-old Mark O'Meara at the Masters. At The Olympic Club last month, nine-year veteran Lee Janzen outdueled 41-year-old Payne Stewart at the U.S. Open.

Fred Couples, 38, let the Masters and the Byron Nelson Classic slip away, but still has two PGA Tour victories and is enjoying his best year since 1992.

John Cook and Scott Simpson, both in their 40s, also have won this year. And don't count out Tom Watson, the five-time British Open champion who showed at Colonial that he still has what it takes to win at age 48.

"I still believe that I can swing the golf club and hit the ball straight," Watson said. "I just hope that I can continue to play the way I am playing, and make the decision about whether to play the Senior Tour very difficult."

The juniors have not exactly disappeared. Els, Woods and Leonard have all won this year, but the only 20-something player who has been a threat every time he tees it up is David Duval, a two-time winner who finished a stroke behind O'Meara at the Masters.

"There are so many good players now in the world, and a lot of them happen to be young," O'Meara said. "But the fact is,

"The golf ball is sitting out there on the ground. It really doesn't know how old you are. It just kind of sits there, waiting to be struck. That's what makes this game so special."

-- Mark O'Meara

I've actually played some of my best golf over the last three or four years. Tom Watson has been playing some extremely good golf.

"And I have said this before," he continued. "The golf ball is sitting out there on the ground. It really doesn't know how old you are. It just kind of sits there, waiting to be struck. That's what makes this game so special."

And that's what could make the 127th British Open one for the ages. The Open returns this week to

Royal Birkdale, a course where virtually every hole is framed by sand dunes -- great for the gallery, but grueling for the world's best players trying to gauge the wind blowing in from the Irish Sea.

The fact that 14 players have won the last 14 majors speaks of the depth in golf, especially with the emergence of so many young players. But Generation X has not been as forceful this year -- the 30-and-older set has won 19 of 25 PGA Tour events.

Woods, the first $2 million player, has been in the 60s only 11 times in 36 rounds since the Florida swing began in March. Three of those rounds came at the BellSouth Classic, his lone victory in America this year and the only time he has been in Sunday contention since Bay Hill.

"I've been right there -- haven't been able to get over the hump," Woods said. "I think this second half of the year will be better than it was last year. I'm playing better than I was at this time. So, maybe I can carry that over, because last year I didn't win at all" after the Western Open.

Els was primed for a big year until he hurt his back at the Buick Classic the week before the U.S. Open. He decided not to play Loch

Morgan up by 2 at Senior Players

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) -- Hot putter. Memorable wedge. Gil Morgan used both to forge a two-stroke lead over his biggest rival in the Senior Players Championship on Friday.

Morgan, who eagled the 10th hole, shot an 8-under-par 64 in the second round for a 133. That earned him a third-round pairing with Hale Irwin, who shot 69 for 135 at the TPC of Michigan.

Jack Nicklaus, who designed the 6,876-yard layout in the shadow of sponsor Ford Motor Co.'s world headquarters, shot 70 to tie Jim Albus at 137. Albus shot 69.

"Yesterday, I played at a pretty high level, tee to green," Morgan said. "Today, I played a little better and putted better."

Morgan and Irwin are easily the hottest players on the senior circuit. Each has won three times and they rank 1-2 on the money list. Irwin, who finished second in the State Farm Senior Classic last week, has earned $1.3 million, about $300,000 more than Morgan.

"Usually, if you play with Gil on the weekend, you're playing pretty well," Irwin said. "So, I'm happy to be playing with Gil."

Morgan, who was three strokes off the lead after an opening 69, birdied five of the first eight holes. His only bogey was at No. 9 where he hit a tree with an errant approach, then two-putted from 45 feet.

But he more than made up for that mistake when he holed his approach for an eagle-2 at the next hole.

"I hit an intermediate wedge from 110 yards out," Morgan said. "The ball hit about six feet from the pin, bounced twice and dove in the hole."

Morgan, who has nine top-10 finishes in 13 starts this season, made successive birdies at Nos. 12 and 13 to go 11-under and made it hold up the rest of the way under almost perfect playing conditions.

"It was kind of funny, because I really didn't look at the scoreboard until I made a couple of birdies," Morgan said. "Starting about No. 6, I looked and saw that Jack was still one shot ahead of me. He was going pretty strong.

"So, I thought, 'Just keep plugging along here.'"

Irwin, who shared the first-round lead with John Jacobs at 66, was tied for the lead with Morgan at 9-under through 11 holes. Irwin, who made his first bogey at No. 12, rebounded with an eagle-3 at the 13th.

But the damage was done. Morgan had gone 11-under and Irwin stumbled once more with a bogey at the difficult 17th, a par-5 where players must carry a long pond to a narrow, difficult green.

"I hit it just in the right rough on the left and I played a 4-wood out of there," Irwin said. "I just hit a nice, classic top shot. Went in the water. Stuff happens."

Nicklaus, whose streak of 154 majors will end when he skips the British Open next week, continued his strong play despite an ailing left hip. Nicklaus, at 58, was looking like the Golden Bear of old and shared the lead with Irwin at 8-under after nine holes.

Nicklaus got to 9-under with a birdie at No. 13, but bogeyed Nos. 14 and 16.

"I felt pretty good," Nicklaus said. "But with me, it's compared with what? With me, you never know. So far this week, the hip has been pretty good."

"It certainly never bothered me hitting a golf shot, and that's all you can ask for."

Players who weren't making lots of birdies were losing ground. Jose Maria Canizares, who was two strokes off the lead with an opening 68, was still 4-under but far back at 140 after an even-par 72 Friday.

Jacobs fell out of the lead fast and hard.

Jacobs, who claimed his first pro victory with a one-stroke victory over Irwin in the Nationwide Championship in June, went triple-bogey, double-bogey, bogey to open the second round. He was 40 at the turn and gone from the leader board.

Austin duo leads TGA father-son championship

MARBLE FALLS (AP) -- Austin's John and Jack Wagner shot a better-ball 61, 11-under par 72, to take the first-round lead in the Texas Golf Association's 18th Annual Father-Son Championship.

The contest opened Friday at the Slick Rock Course of the Horseshoe Bay Resort. The Mansfield team of Magnus Liljenberg and stepson Aaron Saint held second place with a 62 after the first day of competition.

Under the better-ball format, the best score by either player in a tandem is counted. Southern Methodist University golfer John Wagner eagled the 540-yard, five-par third hole to jump start the leaders. He then birdied the sixth and seventh holes, putting the Wagners at four under par at the turn.

Their seven-under 29 on the back nine was a mutual effort as Jack Wagner contributed four birdies and John added three more.

The day's best individual effort came from Saint, a collegiate golfer at Arkansas. He was nine-under on his own ball to spur the Liljenberg-Saint team to their 10-under-par score.

Cardinals double up Houston, 6-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) -- Matt Morris was in midseason form, which is pretty remarkable considering it was only his second start.

The St. Louis Cardinals got the first of their three injured starters back from the disabled list Friday night, with Morris throwing six shutout innings in a 6-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

After being sidelined since mid-April by a strained right shoulder, he struck out six, walked none, allowed only three singles and threw a first-pitch strike to the first 17 batters he faced.

"All last year, I don't think I did that well," Morris said. "If you can make a pitch one time, you can make it every time."

The only thing Morris didn't get was a victory after the Cardinals coughed up a 3-0 lead in the eighth. Brian Jordan's RBI single off Jay Powell snapped a 3-3 tie and made a winner of reliever Curtis King (2-0). King got the last two outs in the eighth after giving up a tying two-run single to Craig Biggio.

"It's tough, because right now we ought to be talking about Matt Morris' first win," manager Tony La Russa said. "The lift he gave us tonight was outstanding."

"That's as good as I've ever seen him."

Two other starters, Donovan Osborne and Alan Benes, are still on the disabled list. Osborne, who has shoulder tendinitis, could start a rehab assignment next week. Benes, who had offseason rotator cuff surgery, isn't expected back until September.

"They've lost some guys that are some really great pitchers," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "If they get these guys back, they could put on a run."

Ray Lankford had a three-run home run for the Cardinals, who have won only three of 14 and are 12 1/2 games behind Houston in the NL Central. The Astros lost for the third time in 10 games.

Lankford doubled off C.J. Nitkowski (3-3) to open the eighth for the Cardinals' first hit in five innings. Mark McGwire drew his major league-leading 17th intentional walk before Jordan, with two strikes, lined a single to right off Powell. Willie McGee, who had been 3-for-37, added a two-run single.

"Jordan is pretty good about taking a two-strike approach," Dierker said. "He'll take some pretty wild rips early in the count sometimes to try and hit one out, but he's pretty tough with two strikes."

La Russa batted his pitcher eighth in the starting order for the second straight game in an effort to create more run-producing opportunities for the heart of the order. The ploy worked in the third.

Eli Marrero, who batted ninth behind Morris, singled to start the third and went to second on a single by Royce Clayton before Lankford homered off Mike Hampton on a 0-2 pitch. Lankford had been batting .197 against left-handed pitching with only one home run.

Jones, Lickliter lead at Quad City Classic

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) -- Steve Jones got badly needed help from a drink cooler to rebuild a disintegrating round and grab a share of the 36-hole lead with Frank Lickliter in the Quad City Classic.

Jones shot a 5-under-par 65 and Lickliter a 64 as they tied at 129, 11 under for two rounds. Defending champion David Toms got his second 65 and was at 130.

Jones, the 1996 U.S. Open champion, started as if he was going to humble the 6,762-yard Oakwood Country Club course. He eagled No. 10, his first hole of the day, to get to 8-under, then added birdies on Nos. 14, 15 and 17.

His round began to fall apart, however, when he bogeyed Nos. 18 and 1, failing to get up and down after errant approaches.

"I was a little disgusted with myself," Jones said. "All of a sudden I'm 9 and I'm thinking, 'What am I doing?'"

More trouble appeared imminent as his tee shot on No. 2 veered toward the rough. But the ball smacked off a course marshal's cooler and rolled back into the fairway.

Jones took advantage, lofting a wedge to 18 feet and making the birdie putt, then tapping in after a great wedge to within a foot at No. 3.

He got to 12-under with a birdie at No. 6, but gave the stroke back on the next hole.

Lickliter's round was highlighted by six birdies in his first 11 holes.

"I had a couple 30- or 35-footers out there today," Lickliter said. "It just comes down to making some putts."

Lickliter is in his third year on the PGA Tour, and earned half his career total of $690,836 in the last year. This year he was 17th in the Western Open and 18th in the U.S. Open.

Orioles edge BoSox, 3-2

BALTIMORE (AP) -- Emergency substitute Eric Davis homered off Pedro Martinez in the eighth inning to snap a tie and lift the Baltimore Orioles past the Boston Red Sox 3-2 Friday night.

Davis, who replaced an injured Harold Baines in the sixth, hit a 1-0 pitch over the center-field wall with two outs in the inning. It was his 12th homer of the season and first since June 20.

Mike Bordick also homered for the Orioles, who played in their fifth straight one-run game. Baltimore is 2-3 in that span.

Martinez (11-3), vying for his sixth straight victory, allowed three runs and five hits in eight innings. He has both of Boston's complete games this season.

Jesse Orosco (3-1) pitched 1 1/3 innings and Armando Benitez retired John Valentin for his 11th save, the second in two nights. He closed out Baltimore's 3-2 win over Boston on Thursday.

Baltimore rookie Sidney Ponson allowed two runs and six hits in 6 2/3 innings, walking one and striking out three.

Fish scalp Braves

MIAMI (AP) -- Jesus Sanchez and the Florida Marlins snapped Atlanta's nine-game winning streak Friday night, with the rookie left-hander limiting the Braves to five hits in eight innings in a 3-1 victory.

Dave Berg broke a scoreless tie with an RBI single in the seventh inning to help the Marlins beat outspoken Braves starter Denny Neagle.

Lomond before the British Open to give his back more rest.

Jim Furyk has 21 top-10 finishes in the past 18 months, best on the PGA Tour, but he still hasn't won a tournament since the Hawaiian Open in February 1996. Phil Mickelson has a victory in each of the last six years -- the longest streak on tour -- but hasn't contended in a major since he flamed out at the PGA Championship two years ago.

Leonard, trying to become the first champion to repeat since Watson in 1983 at Royal Birkdale, has only cracked the top five in two tournaments this year, but one of those was a five-stroke comeback at The Players Championship, more proof that he can raise his game at the biggest events.

Except for the U.S. Open, where he has never finished higher than 36th, the last time Leonard finished outside the top 10 in a major was at the 1996 British Open.

He shares the view of O'Meara and Lehman, that more young players simply means they will have more chances to win.

"I don't look at anybody as a young guy or an old guy," Leonard said. "Golf isn't really a sport where age makes a difference. Obviously, a guy who is 40 years old and has won majors is going to have a little more experience than somebody who is 22 or 23. But I think that age is not as big a factor as some people maybe make it out to be." Lehman regards it as one of many cycles in golf. He likes to refer to the beginning of the decade, when Americans were lucky to win two majors in one season.

Just four years ago, Nick Price of South Africa won the British Open and the PGA, Jose Maria Olazabal of Spain won the Masters and Els won the U.S. Open. It was the first year an American failed to win a major since before the Masters was created in 1934.

"The media was writing off the U.S. players, saying there are no good U.S. players," Lehman said.

"Of course, the U.S. players have won almost every major since."

Not quite, but close. Since Price won his consecutive majors to close out 1994, Americans have won 11 of the past 14 majors.

An American victory at Birkdale would give them the last five majors, which would be the longest since 1984.

And Americans are enjoying a new round of success on the British Isles. During an 11-year stretch starting in 1984, international players won every Open except 1989, when Mark Calcavecchia won in a playoff.

Americans have won the last three, and two of those champions -- Leonard and John Daly -- have been in their 20s.

Leija, Nelson set to fight in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -- Their re-match promises to be just as exciting as their first three fights.

And it could finally settle a 5-year-old score between Jesse James Leija and Azumah Nelson, who fight Saturday night in a 12-round lightweight bout at the Alamodome.

"We've had some classic battles," said Leija. "I don't expect the fourth to be any different."

The match will be Nelson's first since he lost the WBC super featherweight title on points to Genaro Hernandez in March 1997. The America Presents promotion is billed as the Festival of Champions.

Among the six fights on the undercard, Gabriel Ruelas, a former WBC super featherweight champion, will fight Troy Dorsey, a former IBF featherweight champ, in a junior lightweight title bout.

There also will be a junior lightweight nontitle match between Goyo Vargas of Mexico, a former WBC featherweight champion, and Tracy Harris Patterson, who held the WBC and IBF super featherweight titles.

The 32-year-old Leija, of San Antonio, and the 38-year-old Nelson, of Ghana, first fought in September 1993 in the Alamodome in a battle surrounded by controversy.

Though Leija took control in the middle rounds to forge a lead over the defending champion, Nelson rallied to win the last four rounds for an apparent victory. But the decision was changed to a draw because a judge's scorecard was incorrectly tabulated. "I feel I won the fight," Nelson said. "The people, they know who won."

Leija dominated the second match in May 1994 in Las Vegas as he realized his dream of winning a world title.

Nelson won the third fight in Las Vegas in June 1996. The referee stopped the fight in the sixth round after Leija suffered a deep cut on his right eyelid.

position just twice against Helling, both times at second base with two outs.

In the eighth, a leadoff walk to Rickey Henderson and a sacrifice bunt by Bip Roberts moved Henderson to second with one out. After Ben Grieve was walked intentionally, Matt Stairs lined into a double play when second baseman Mark McLemore doubled up Grieve at first.

Candiotti lasted eight innings, giving up seven hits and striking out three without a walk.

NCAA OKs sites

SEATTLE (AP) -- The NCAA has approved the recommended sites for Final Four games from 2003 to 2007.

For the Men's Division I Basketball, the Final Four sites are: 2003--New Orleans; 2004--San Antonio; 2005--St. Louis; 2006--Indianapolis; 2007--Atlanta. All games will be played in late March or early April.

The NCAA announced its approval of the selections at a meeting that concluded Friday in Seattle. The sites were recommended by NCAA committees last month.

to eight feet and three feet and rolling in the putts.

She made a 15-footer for birdie at No. 3, a par-4, and followed it up with a pitching wedge to six feet for another birdie.

She hit a wedge to six feet at No. 7, almost holed a 9-iron at No. 8, par-3, before making the 3-foot birdie putt and then dropped her last putt with a gradual right to left break from above the hole.

Before playing partner Meg Mallon stepped up to her own 8-foot birdie putt on No. 9, she offered her putter to Pak while the gallery cracked up.

"Everybody came out to see the U.S. Open champion play and they saw some fabulous golf," Mallon said. "She made every putt inside 15 feet that she needed to."

The 61 was two shots better than Pak's previous low, as an amateur two years ago. It was shot shy of the LPGA record for strokes under par as Vicki Fergon had an 11-under 62 at the San Jose Classic in 1984.

Pak's caddie Jeff "Tree" Cable estimated almost every one of the putts as being longer than Pak did -- sometimes twice as long.

"She just rolled the ball extremely well today," Cable said. "We didn't hit it all that close. This is the best I've ever seen her roll it."

Cable said it was a case of Pak hitting her stride after the grueling five days at the Open.

"She started to come around the last three holes yesterday," he said. "She was lucky to finish with a 71. Today she was the same Se Ri Pak."

Nobody else in the 144-player field shot lower than 67 in the second round.

Rockies snap 5-game skid

DENVER (AP) -- Darryl Kile won at Coors Field for the first time this season, helping the Colorado Rockies end a five-game losing streak with an 11-2 rout of the San Francisco Giants on Friday night.

Kile (6-11) pitched six strong innings, allowing two runs on five hits. Both of the runs scored on double-play groundouts.

Ellis Burks had a two-run homer and Mike Lansing added a two-run double to highlight Colorado's six-run outburst in the fourth inning. Vinny Castilla hit a two-run homer, his 26th, in the sixth.

Burks, Lansing, Castilla, Neifi Perez and Dante Bichette each had three hits for the Rockies, who finished with 19.

Kile, snapping a personal eight-game losing streak that matched his career worst and the Colorado record set by Greg Harris in 1994, gave up back-to-back singles to lead off both the first and sixth innings. But he limited the damage, inducing Barry Bonds and Stan Javier to ground into the run-scoring double plays.

LYLE LOVETT: Making music, making movies

By BRUCE WESTBROOK
Houston Chronicle
HOUSTON - Lyle Lovett doesn't get out much to see movies. He's too busy making them.

Although music remains his first love and his career's driving force, Lovett continues to snare small parts in modest movies with big artistic aspirations.

The latest is "The Opposite of Sex." Lovett appears in the edgy sex comedy along with Christina Ricci, Martin Donovan and Lisa Kudrow.

"I fit in movies between working on music," the Klein resident said during a stop in Houston, one of several cities where he's touting "The Opposite of Sex."

Lovett was accompanied here by his assistant, Vance Knowles, and his girlfriend, April Kimble of San Antonio, who, like Lovett, is a Texas A&M graduate.

Lovett doesn't mind making the publicity rounds. He said "The Opposite of Sex" "is the first time I've been in a movie enough to be asked to go around and do press about it."

Actually, he had a substantial part in 1993's "Short Cuts" by director Robert Altman, for whom Lovett also made 1992's "The Player" and 1994's "Ready to Wear." (It was Altman who also launched former Houstonian Shelley Duvall's film career with 1970's "Brewster McCLOUD.")

But long before movies, Lovett had made his name as a musician. He recorded his first album in 1986, four years after graduating from A&M with degrees in journalism and German.

Lovett's distinctive country blend-mixing jazz, folk, blues and gospel-soon struck a chord. In the past decade he's sold millions of records and won five Grammy awards.

But since breaking into movies, he's also continued dipping his toe into the acting pool.

Since his Altman films, Lovett has appeared in "Bastard Out of Carolina" for Anjelica Huston's directing debut and played cameos in HBO's "Breast Men" and the May theatrical release "Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas."

Now he's back with Altman. Lovett went to Mississippi last week to shoot Altman's murder mystery "Cookie's Fortune."

"I'm excited to get to work with him again," Lovett said. "It's not often a director like Robert Altman asks you to be in a movie."

In "Cookie's Fortune," Lovett plays "the guy who owns the catfish place where Liv Tyler's character works." Glenn Close, Julianne

Moore and Chris O'Donnell also star.

Lovett's scenes should take about a week to film. Then he's off to Los Angeles for more music-making.

Down-time is precious on his home turf around Klein, just northwest of Houston. Lovett grew up there as the only child of Bill and Bernell Lovett, who still live in the area.

He'd love to be at home with his horses and ranch - if not riding his beloved motorcycles - but duty calls. Lovett spent four months in Los Angeles earlier this year recording his next studio album, due Sept. 22.

The two-disc album, "Step Inside This House," will offer remakes of 21 songs by other Texas songwriters, including Michael Martin Murphey and Guy Clark.

When he returns to the West Coast this month, Lovett will do post-production on the album, then start sifting through concert tapes for his first live disc, to be issued next summer.

"For about the last four years, every time we've gone on tour we've recorded a week's worth of shows," Lovett said.

"It's not tons of stuff to go through, but songs do change. When you're on the road you always tell yourself they get better. So I'm gonna find out."

Lovett also recorded a song for the new "Hope Floats" soundtrack, and his latest album, "The Road to Ensenada," continues to sell well.

He says music "is still my favorite thing to do - to go out and play and sing." That's what he'll be doing in the fall, touring to support his new album.

Fans needn't worry that he'll ditch his sounds for the silver screen.

"I don't even go to that many movies," Lovett said. "I'll rent them or watch them when they come on TV. But lately I've gone to a few, including 'The Horse Whisperer.'"

For Lovett, a drawback of film acting is having no audience, "except for the technical people, who are busy doing their own thing."

"When you're onstage live, you can feel out an audience and adjust to it. You can't do that with a movie."

So he tries to bring the focus and energy of the recording process to the filming process.

"Recording is the closest thing I do in real life to working on a movie," Lovett said. "I really do enjoy working in the studio."

He still feels like a bit of an outsider in films, just as he did when he met actress Julia Roberts. After a three-week courtship he married her - five years ago last week.

Tempest in a Chinese teapot

WASHINGTON (AP) - When the Republicans' Taiwan tempest is over, nothing will have changed, a fitting outcome for an odd dispute in which President Clinton and his Senate critics said all they wanted was the policy they already had.

Clinton said they had it, unaltered by his restatement of it in Beijing and Shanghai. GOP critics said not - one accusing him of stabbing Taiwan in the back, another saying he'd sent a wrong and risky message.

So Sen. Trent Lott, the majority leader, produced a resolution to reaffirm U.S. policy, calling it necessary to correct Clinton and repair the damage of his words while saying the measure "does not break new ground."

Lott then complained that Clinton was not ambiguous enough about the U.S. position on the island, which Beijing considers a breakaway province and has since 1949.

Ambiguity has been a purposeful part of U.S. policy toward Taiwan since the shift in relations from Taipei, the old Nationalist stronghold, to the Communist-ruled mainland after Richard M. Nixon went to Beijing in 1972. Diplomatic recognition was shifted to the mainland in 1979.

Ambiguity and diplomatic double talk. It isn't easy to explain a policy that recognizes one China, Beijing's; disowns an independent Taiwan; but also provides, by 1979 law, for the sale of defensive weapons adequate to defend against a Chinese takeover attempt.

Clinton tried to outline the policy in Shanghai on June 30, in discussing his summit with President Jiang Zemin:

"I had a chance to reiterate our

WALTER R. MEARS

Washington Today

Taiwan policy, which is that we don't support independence for Taiwan, or two Chinas, or one Taiwan-one China. And we don't believe that Taiwan should be a member in any organization for which statehood is a requirement. So I think we have a consistent policy.

"Our only policy has been that we think it has to be done peacefully. That is what our law says and we have encouraged the cross-strait dialogue. And I think eventually it will bear fruit if everyone is patient and works hard."

Six sentences that stirred the political rebuke in the GOP Senate.

Clinton said he'd uttered them because he'd been asked publicly about Taiwan and wanted "to simply clarify to both sides that there had been no change in our policy."

It could also have been an effort to revise and amend a statement he'd made while answering student questions at Peking University on June 29; he said then that nothing in U.S. policy would be an obstacle to the peaceful reunification of China and Taiwan. Reunification "is a part of the standard administration wording on the issue."

Then again, he could have gone further, and said that the United States does not challenge the premise that Taiwan is a part of China. That might really have stirred up his GOP critics, unless they recognized the wording of the Shanghai communique Nixon signed in 1972.

Lott's resolution reaffirms the U.S. commitment to Taiwan, to a peaceful resolution of its future, and to providing - selling - arms for defense. The president said so, too.

When China staged military exercises and fired missiles near Taiwan during presidential elections on the island in 1996, the administration sent 100 aircraft carriers to the area, while warning Beijing against force.

At the Beijing summit, Jiang said Taiwan remains "the most sensitive issue" in U.S.-China relations.

Perhaps also the most difficult to resolve. Taiwan is economically potent, and increasingly democratic. The United States sells more exports there than to the mainland. Taiwan fosters ties with Congress; eight House members and 126 staffers reported expense-paid trips there over little more than a year. The Taipei government is among former Sen. Bob Dole's clients.

While Lott complained, the Senate Democratic leader said Clinton's words had not altered policy at all. "Obviously, we want to protect the Taiwanese's rights and ensure that we recognize their unique status in the world," said Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D. "I think that's been done."

Senate votes to reaffirm U.S. policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate underscored the U.S. commitment to Taiwan in a 92-0 vote Friday that Republicans called a "powerful signal" repudiating President Clinton's comments during his China trip.

Democrats said the resolution, repeating a U.S. pledge to help Taiwan "maintain a sufficient self-defense capability," merely reaffirms existing law.

"Our position has been the same before and after the president's trip to China," Senate Democratic leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota said in explaining why Democrats stashed the resolution to support what had originated as a largely GOP slap at Clinton.

During his recent China tour, Clinton publicly stated Washington's opposition to Taiwanese independence, a separate Taiwan government and the island nation's bid to join the United Nations. That brought sharp criticism from Taiwanese leaders, who fear such a public pledge could diminish Taiwan's efforts for more world recognition, and from congressional conservatives.

Clinton also talked about the peaceful "unification" of Taiwan with the Chinese mainland, using a word that does not appear in any U.S. doctrine nor is it part of the U.S. "one China" policy.

Conservatives have argued that Clinton altered the U.S. position on the relationship between the mainland and Taiwan.

NRCS approves temporary emergency CRP forage, grazing

Deaf Smith county livestock producers have the opportunity to take advantage of a United States Department of Agriculture program which allows for emergency grazing of Conservation Reserve Program lands, during the 1998 drought.

CRP participants are allowed to graze or lease CRP fields for a limited time, provided they obtain a grazing plan from the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service.

Approved counties continue to experience a loss of available grazing as the dry conditions persist.

The grazing periods extends through the summer and expires in September. The cost to the producer for grazing the CRP land is five percent of the annual rental payment per month, not to exceed 25 percent of the total payment.

The expense of grazing CRP acres in Deaf Smith County is minimized by many of the existing fences and water supplies which separate the smaller CRP plots from the adjoining larger pastures and fields.

Greenhouse irrigation systems conserve water, time

Plant nurseries and greenhouses - two of the state's largest water consumers - are stepping up and responding to the challenge of conserving water by the use of modified subirrigation methods commonly known as ebb and flood systems.

Greenhouses in Holland are already using subirrigation systems and these are the models for systems being used in local greenhouses.

Ebb and flood subirrigation systems allow plant growers to apply water to a trough or moist mat, that the plant is sitting on or in. The water is then standing for a set time.

Moisture is absorbed from the bottom of the plant; excess water drains out of the tray and is recycled back through the system.

Researchers at Texas A&M are studying fertility and salinity problems that are common with this type of system, but they feel sure that growers can cut water consumption and fertilizer use in half.

Users of this type system need to be aware that recycled water carries additional salts from fertilizers increasing the salinity of the water.

Dr. Dave Reed, in charge of the research says this system works best for smaller plants - plants that are no greater than six to eight inches high.

Reed reports the biggest drawback is the cost of system installation.

Regardless of the drawbacks, nurserymen like Kevin McGuckin is sold on the system and finds it a great improvement over the days when all the plants were either watered by hand or with drip tubes.

McGuckin first installed a system in a 3,000-square foot greenhouse in 1995 and has since built a newer, larger greenhouse complete with an ebb and flow irrigation system.

"Efficiency and production were the reasons to go with it," said McGuckin. "But, water savings and runoff reduction are added benefits."

His system paid for itself in added production in less than five years.

The USDA-NRCS is currently working with people to assist with stocking rate recommendations, grazing schedules, and other aspects of grazing management.

NRCS reports that most participants are owner/operators who are utilizing the grazing opportunity with their own livestock.

However, some participants are leasing acreage to other producers with the nature of each lease varying greatly. Some have bent let at cost and others are charging for the grazing on a per-head per-month basis.

NRCS officials claim this is a good program all the way around for livestock producers.

Ranchers have the opportunity to rest their heat and water stressed rangeland as well as utilize low-cost emergency forage, which allows range grasses a chance to develop seed for future productivity.

Most grasses used in CRP are well suited for grazing and the controlled grazing of these acres helps to remove thatch, increase tillering, and even allow for additional seedling development over a long-term.

Grazing older CRP fields actually increases plant vigor and rejuvenates the established stand that may be a little decadent from lack of grazing, burning, etc.

USDA-NRCS employees have been kept busy helping producers realize the benefits of CRP grazing and how to avoid the pitfalls of overgrazing.

The NRCS focus is now on assisting producers to maintain adequate grazing heights on their important forage grasses. Available forage has been increased by pulling livestock for a time and allowing CRP fields to recover before another grazing cycle.

Grazing plans are being written to address the Emergency Grazing Provisions and may include such items as the number of animals to be grazed and the length of time grazing may be permitted. At least 25-percent of CRP field must be maintained for wildlife cover.

Producers have two alternatives to maintain this percentage: fence of 25 percent of the field or reduce the stocking rate by 25 percent.

For more information on USDA programs that allow emergency grazing or grazing of CRP land, please contact the local USDA-NRCS office.

Young farm leaders

Three young agricultural leaders, Truett Schlaubs, Terri House, and Craig Campbell were among approximately 350 high school students who recently attended the Texas Farm Bureau's 35th annual citizenship seminar in San Angelo. Attendees had the opportunity to participate in discussion which would help them better understand the American heritage and the capitalistic free enterprise system.

Pest report indicates pest numbers, damage signals, needed controls

Despite the ongoing drought conditions crop pests continue to make themselves known in area fields.

The Panhandle Pest Report, issued by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports that pheromone traps continue to trap southwestern and European corn borer adults.

Experts predict the numbers to decline prior to the second flight, later in July, with first generation infestations are generally light across the area.

Extension entomologist, Carl Patrick said that a 10 percent infestation is the highest number with most reports indicating less than 5 percent infestation.

Corn borers feed on the leaves and the whorl prior to entering the stalk for eventual pupation. Once inside the stalk borers are quite well protected from insecticide control.

Along with corn borers, area producers are seeing a fair number of corn earworm moths.

Corn earworm larvae, like corn borers, can also feed on the plant whorl. Damage is evident by a line of holes across the leaves. Earworm damage at the whorl stage generally does not require an insecticide application.

Spider mite infestations continue to be reported, said Greg Cornholm, Extension agent IPM, in Plainview. He reports primarily thumbnail size colonies on lower surfaces of lower leaves.

Predaceous thrips, minute pirate bugs and scymnus lady beetles are actively feeding on the mites and providing some control.

A few adult corn rootworm beetles were trapped last week and numbers are expected to increase rapidly in the next few weeks.

Beetles main damage is caused by feeding on the corn silks. Eight to 10 beetles per plant are capable of pruning silks to the point of reducing pollination, but seldom do.

The experts recommend close monitoring of beetles during the green silk phase and if numbers exceed more than one per plant, rotation to some crop other than corn in that field is recommended for the next crop year.

If field rotation is not available, insecticidal control will likely be needed next spring.

Sorghum fields are in pretty good shape with a few greenbug colonies and small amounts of damage, but nothing which approaches economic thresholds.

Insecticide applications are recommended from the time of emergence until the plant reaches six inches, or when the plant starts to yellow; from the larger plant to boot stage before any entire leaves are killed; and from heading to hard dough stage when the greenbug numbers are sufficient to cause death of two normal size leaves.

Honeybees will start to congregate in a horseshoe-shaped pattern on the front of the hive three days before they start to swarm.

WASTE WATER AND YOU COULD GET SOAKED.

About 75% of a typical household's indoor water use takes place in the bathroom. Saving water saves you money. Especially hot water, since it takes energy to heat water. So Be Water Smart and

- Take short showers instead of baths; and
- Install low-flow showerheads and low-flow toilets.

The average shower uses 42 gallons of water. A low-flow showerhead can save a family of four almost 35,000 gallons a year. A low-flow toilet can cut indoor water use by an additional 20%.

Practice saving water and Be Water Smart!

- Reduce volume of water in toilet tank by placing a plastic bottle full of water in tank (do not use bricks - they crumble);
- Do not use toilet as a trash can;
- When brushing teeth or shaving, turn water off until it's time to rinse;

Every Drop Makes a Difference.

Drinking in mysteries of agave

By MATT FLORES
San Antonio Express-News
TEQUILA, Mexico - You could say you know you are in Tequila when you gaze into the mountainous horizon and see row after blue-green row of the prickly, spear-leaved agave, whose jumbo pineapple-shaped base is the main ingredient from which the centuries-old spirit is made.

But picture this: You're at a colorful fiesta featuring traditional dancers in flowing dresses. A skilled vaquero performs rope tricks from atop a white horse.

The ancient liquor - sometimes served straight, other times mixed into flavorful concoctions - is flowing freely. Mariachis are performing a rather unflattering version of "Achy Breaky Heart" -- in Spanish. You excuse yourself from your table.

And you begin to line dance. With people you don't even know. That's when you really know you are in Tequila.

But that's not to say that this pueblo in western Mexico - whose namesake spirit long has been associated more with frathouse debauchery than with upscale hob-nobbing - is all about unadulterated fun.

A good portion of it is about business. More precisely, big business. While most liquors have experienced declines in sales over the past two decades, tequila has more than doubled its market share in the United States, industry figures show.

And the history behind the town that tequila built perhaps is as compelling as the recent booming popularity of the spirit itself.

Hundreds of years ago, the Aztecs began producing a drink known as pulque, which was taken from the blue agave plant. The beverage was fermented by sugars taken from the prehistoric plant that grows only on the slopes of an inactive volcano in the Mexican state of Jalisco.

Depending on whom you ask, the word tequila is derived from the Mexican Indian word for "lava hill," or "from the volcano." But everyone agrees it was the volcano that provided the fertile ground that is ideal for growing the blue Weber agave, one of about 80 types of agave plants.

Some say the drink was reserved only for elders and the noblest of warriors. Others caught consuming it could be put to death. It wasn't until after the Spaniards arrived in the 16th century that the distilling process was introduced, which eventually led to the creation of tequila the way we know it today.

Even these days, the plant - sometimes erroneously linked to the cactus, when, in fact, it is related to the lily - has a bit of mysticism about it. Those who harvest it maintain its leaves possess properties that can cure anything from callouses to cancer.

The lush agave fields dominate the horizon in the Tequila region, about 40 kilometers northwest of Guadalajara in the Mexican state of Jalisco. The hourlong trek hardly seems that long because the road meanders through scenic landscape at the periphery of the Sierra Madre mountain range.

Even if you do nothing else while visiting Tequila, population 20,000, it's a must to tour one of the town's many distilleries.

La Rojena, the name given to the distillery run by the makers of Jose Cuervo, who offer a line of the most famous tequilas in Mexico.

John Gililland, left, and Betty Hagar discuss names of potential story tellers for "The Way It Used to Be" program to be held on August 6 in Dameron Park during the Hereford Centennial Celebration. Anyone with a Hereford-related story who would like to participate in this special centennial activity is asked to call the Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333.

Needed: Storytellers for centennial

One of the most important elements of Hereford's Centennial Celebration Aug. 1-8 will be the introduction of representatives of families who were instrumental in the development of this community, its heritage and culture.

These people are needed to participate in the story telling at "The Way It Used to Be" program in Dameron Park on Thursday, Aug. 6.

These representatives will be included in the raising of the 1948 and 1973 time capsules and will represent their families and share their heritage with others by riding on the float of representative families in the Centennial Parade on Saturday.

Organizers of the Centennial story telling event are looking for residents who are interested in participating by recreating and remembering the rich heritage of our community.

Anyone who has memories of our community in years past, whether of swimming and fishing in Tierra Blanca Creek, strolling Main Street on Saturday night in the years when there were so many businesses downtown, or dancing to the music of big bands at the Jim Hill Hotel, your input is needed.

Stories do not necessarily have to be from 75, 50 or even 25 years ago. Any story that relates to an event that has helped shape Hereford's history is welcome.

Any person with memories from any period in the last 100 years who would like to participate in "The Way It Used to Be" is asked to contact the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce at 364-3333 so their name can be included in the story telling and parade marshal activities.

A Brand Review

ALT revue offers 'lots' of Texas

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

From the first notes of "Texas on a Saturday Night" to the closing strains of "God Blessed Texas," Amarillo Little Theatre's musical revue, "Can't Get Enough of Texas," is Texas, Texas and more Texas.

The famous Tulia, Texas twins David and Roger Otwell, Texas-style entertainer Tim Lewis, and special guest artists are featured in this rousing musical tribute to the Lone Star State.

Special guest artists performing for preview night were Tammy Hysmith, known to many area residents for her portrayal of Patsy Cline in ALT's production of "Always...Patsy Cline," and Amber Pennington of Borger in the Rising Star portion of the revue.

Enhancing the musical portions of the show and providing continuity is Tim Lewis as a cowboy poet and homespun philosopher.

The Otwell Twins make the audience feel "right at home" as they share stories of their growing-up years in Tulia and while performing with "The Lawrence Welk Show."

Old songs blend with new songs in program segments that pay tribute to the cowboy and to Bob Wills, and reflect the Spanish and Comanche influences on Texas.

Performances are scheduled for Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings through August 30. Reservations are suggested. Call ALT at 806-355-9991.

MR. AND MRS. BRANDON HORN
...exchange marriage vows

Puerto Rico garden is site of June wedding

Brek Amber Binder and Brandon Horn were united in marriage June 20 in a ceremony in the Caribe Hilton's Tropical Garden in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The bride is the daughter of Bill and Gayle Binder of Hereford. Parents of the bridegroom are Tom and Judy Brown of Cordell, Okla., and the late Larry Horn.

Lori Sanders of Irving was maid of honor. Clifton Bradshaw of Corpus Christi was best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length white gown with a sleeveless, sheer bodice and a chiffon skirt.

Her headpiece was a pearl handband made by her grandmother, Dorothy Binder of Ralls.

The bridal bouquet was a tropical arrangement of anthuriums, bird of paradise, orchids, ginger and eucalyptus.

A reception was held in the garden surrounding the gazebo. The wedding cake was a white cake with strawberry filling, topped with shaved chocolate, chocolate strawberries and blueberries.

Following a Caribbean cruise, the couple will be a home in Portland.

The bride is a 1992 graduate of Hereford High School. She received her BA from Angelo State University in 1996. She taught at Andrews High School from 1996 to 1998 and is currently employed by Gregory-Portland High School.

The groom graduated from Lookaba-Sickles High School in Oklahoma in 1992. He is employed by Nueces Power Equipment of Corpus Christi.

Those attending the wedding and the cruise were Bill and Gayle Binder of Hereford, parents of the bride; Judy Brown of Cordell, Okla., mother of the groom; Charlene Sanders of Hereford; Lori Sanders of Irving; Diana Watson and Beverly Harvey of Sickles, Okla.; and Clifton and Bonnie Bradshaw of Corpus Christi.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Charles Colson, in his commencement address at Geneva College, charged the graduating class to depend more on character than I.Q.; to build and develop character; let "Yes" be "Yes" and "No" be "No" and to keep their word even when it hurts.

All children should be taught these things from the cradle up and the best way for them to learn is by example.

The death of Roy Rogers reminded us once again that many real heroes are growing old and will soon be gone. Our "kids" need role models who exhibit ethics and character and thankfully each community has some of these leaders and role models. Today we should depend on these local heroes rather than on most movie and sports stars.

It was interesting to observe during a recent trip to England, Scotland and Ireland that parents and educators there have the same concerns and problems that we in America have - drugs, low reading scores, pre-marital sex and how to keep our youth involved in worthwhile activities - to name a few!

Junior Historians are taking orders for, and delivering, the Hereford's, 100th Birthday T-Shirts. The price is $9 each or $10 for XXL size or a shirt with class reunion logo. Call Diedra Drake at 364-3213 or Carolyn Waters at 364-0596. The shirts and the Junior Historian Cookbook will also be on sale during Jubilee Week. Proceeds from these sales will help with Junior Historian activities during the coming year.

Much work is being done to improve the appearance of our campuses in preparation for the new year. HJH will have newly painted lockers with installed combination locks on the doors. Many rooms are getting a facelift with paint jobs, desks are being repaired and floors are sporting new wax jobs.

There will be many new faces at HJH besides the new seventh graders. A number of teachers, over a dozen at last count, are making job changes, including transfers within the district and those taking positions with other school districts. We'll miss each of them but will also welcome each new teacher and student.

Sports camps and Vacation Bible Schools are still available for students and many are attending. Also, the county library has numerous opportunities for the improvement of reading skills and the joy of reading. All of these activities provide positive learning experiences for our youth.

"A little thing is a little thing, but faithfulness in a little thing becomes a great thing." -- Plato

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor says I possibly have angina. I am a 73-year-old woman, leading a sedentary life. I find that if I walk a little too fast I get chest pain. The same happens if I hurry up a flight of stairs.

Should I count calories or cut back on fatty foods? — S.L.

ANSWER: There is little doubt in my mind that you do have angina, which develops when one or more of the heart-muscle arteries become clogged with a buildup of fat, cholesterol and calcium. Enough blood reaches the heart when a person is at rest. But when an angina patient taxes the heart by walking faster or climbing stairs, additional blood to sustain the extra demand can't flow through the partially clogged arteries.

The heart lets that be known in no uncertain terms with the chest pain of angina.

If there is doubt about the nature of chest pain, a stress test can differentiate angina from less-serious causes. During the stress test, the heart is monitored while the patient walks on a mechanized treadmill.

If doubt still remains or if the attacks are becoming more frequent, then angiograms — X-ray pictures of heart arteries — can uncover any blockage.

Armed with the angiogram results, a doctor can prescribe medicine or suggest surgery to get more blood flowing to the heart muscle.

A low-fat, low-cholesterol diet prevents further buildup in the clogged arteries. However, as important as diet is, more-pressing concerns need to be addressed soon. You can't afford to dally in limbo about the nature of your chest pain much longer.

I'm sending you my "You Can Control Angina" report, which can give you a better understanding of treatment options. Readers can obtain the report by sending $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope to: Dr. Donohue — No. 1, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter, 18, was on high doses of prednisone for idiopathic thrombocytopenia. She has had her spleen removed and is fine now.

Her face is still full. Will it remain that way?

ANSWER: Prednisone, one of the cortisone drugs, causes a redistribution of fat. The arms and legs thin, and fat shifts to the torso and face.

Idiopathic thrombocytopenia is a deficiency of blood platelets, which normally form clots when a blood vessel breaks. Without a normal platelet supply, life-threatening hemorrhaging can ensue.

Prednisone often stops platelet destruction, as does spleen removal.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, July 12, the 193rd day of 1998. There are 172 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On July 12, 1984, Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale announced he'd chosen U.S. Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro of New York to be his running mate; Ferraro was the first woman to run for vice president on a major party ticket.

On this date:
In 100 B.C., Roman dictator Julius Caesar was born.

In 1543, England's King Henry VIII married his sixth wife, Catherine Parr, who outlived him.

In 1690, Protestant forces led by William of Orange defeated the Roman Catholic army of James II at the Battle of the Boyne in Ireland.

In 1862, Congress authorized the Medal of Honor.

In 1948, 50 years ago, the Democratic national convention opened in Philadelphia.

In 1972, George McGovern won the Democratic presidential nomination at the party's convention in Miami Beach.

In 1974, John Ehrlichman, a former aide to President Nixon, and three others were convicted of conspiring to violate the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's former psychiatrist.

In 1977, President Carter defended Supreme Court decisions limiting government payments for poor women's abortions, saying, "There are many things in life that are not fair."

In 1990, Russian republic president Boris N. Yeltsin shocked the 28th congress of the Soviet Communist Party by announcing he was resigning his party membership.

Ten years ago: Democratic presidential candidate Michael S. Dukakis tapped Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as his running mate. The American League beat the National League 2-1 in the All-Star game played in Cincinnati.

Five years ago: 196 people were killed when an earthquake measuring a magnitude of 7.8 struck northern Japan. In Somalia, a mob avenging a deadly United Nations attack on the compound of Mohamed Farrah Aidid killed an Associated Press photographer and three Reuter employees.

One year ago: In Copenhagen, the last stop of an eight-day European tour, President Clinton said political divisions in Europe were closing. In Spain, kidnapped Basque politician Miguel Angel Blanco was found mortally dead shortly after a deadline set by his militant Basque captors.

The Alliance congratulates these winners for the high standard they are setting.

Red Cross Update

Widespread wildfire relief efforts continue for Northeast Florida. As of July 5, there were 11 Red Cross shelters housing 1,135 people, a total of 76,078 meals had been served, more than 300 homes destroyed, and no deaths had been reported in association with these fires in 26 counties.

Red Cross efforts to serve those affected by these month-long wildfires are now estimated to cost between $500,000 and $1 million.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from the American people. The Red Cross is not a government agency. To help victims of these and other disasters, call 1-800-HELP-NOW (1-800-435-7669) or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish). You may also contribute to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund by sending a check to your local Red Cross chapter or to American Red Cross, P.O. Box 32743, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Internet users can get more information about Red Cross disaster activities and make a secure online credit card contribution by visiting the American Red Cross World Wide Web site at <http://www.redcross.org>. The American Red Cross is dedicated to helping make families and communities safer at home and around the world. For information on local classes and programs, call the office at 806-364-3761 or write to P.O. Box 1371, Hereford, Tx 79045.

The Red Cross is a volunteer-led humanitarian service organization that annually provides almost half of the nation's blood supply, certifies more than 8.5 million people in lifesaving skills, mobilizes relief to victims in more than 68,000 disasters nationwide, provides direct health services to 2.8 million people, assists international disaster and conflict victims in more than 40 countries and transmits more than 14 million emergency messages to members of the Armed Forces and their families.

Tax deductible gifts are received at our local office by mail or in person at 224 South Main between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The Tri County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Chivalry isn't dead, at least not in McMinnville, Ore. I just read about a 17-year-old boy who did the most generous thing. I almost bawled before I finished the article.

Luke Buchheit didn't know whom to invite to the senior prom, so he asked his cousin, "How many girls don't have dates?" When his cousin told him there were seven, Luke decided, "It might be kind of cool to take them all." He made seven phone calls and ordered seven corsages, plus a boutonniere with seven rhinestones for his lapel. The girls joked about "Luke's harem." They were all good friends, and some had known each other since kindergarten.

The papers are full of stories about how kids are bringing guns to school and killing each other. I hope you will find room in your column to print my letter. It would be nice to see something positive about teenagers for a change. -- An Omaha Reader

Dear Omaha: Luke sounds like a sweetheart. I checked, and my column does not appear in McMinnville, Ore. I hope somebody sends this to him.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Lonely and Old in Vancouver," who is waiting for Mr. Right but feels maybe she has been too critical and passed up too many good possibilities. She becomes especially depressed when she sees "happy couples" holding hands in public. I'd like to tell her something. Most of those couples are the same bickering people who live next door.

And what kind of man is "Mr. Right"? Is he that rare husband who will help with the dishes or take you out to eat every so often so you don't have to cook night after night? Will he learn to turn on the washing machine or fold clothes? When you've had a bad day, will he offer to vacuum? Oh, sure. Most of the time, you can't get a man who would take the dog for a walk, let alone feed the poor animal. And take out the garbage? You must be kidding.

"Vancouver" can come and go at will. She doesn't have to be home in time to make dinner, and she can eat whenever she feels like it. If she goes over budget, that's her own problem and not a reason to be read the riot act.

As for missing out on having a family, that's highly overrated. About 10 percent of mothers see their grown children regularly and get phone calls, cards and terrific presents. The other 90 percent dream about the 10 percent. If "Vancouver" wants something warm and cuddly, she should get a pet. If she feels her life is lacking something, she should get a hobby.

I am single and am perfectly happy. I do lots of crafts, and there are not enough hours in the day to do all the things I want to do. I get up every morning excited about what project to start next. My friends with husbands are so worn out from doing the things they HAVE to do, they have no time for hobbies.

I am 66 years old and have no desire to be some man's glorified housekeeper. -- Content in Sevierville, Tenn.

Dear Sevierville: You describe yourself as "content," but I wonder what happened in your life that made you so bitter about men. There must be more to the story than you're telling. Meanwhile, enjoy your hobbies, but I hope the right man comes along and shows you that real love can be more satisfying than arts and crafts.

Dear Ann Landers: Maybe if you print this, people will be more careful when they send stuff to the laundry. A drug dealer in Vero Beach, Fla., took the wrong bag to the laundry and was arrested after a worker found 3 pounds of marijuana inside instead of soiled clothing. Last I heard, he was being held in the county jail. -- Joe in Tyler, Texas

Dear Joe: I wonder what he was smoking when he made that gaffe.

What's the truth about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? "The Lowdown on Dope" has up-to-the-minute information on drugs. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. How to decode the information on food labels
Part 1 of 2

Did you ever wonder what those food labels that manufacturers place on packaged or canned foods really mean?

New-style labels can be found on many foods -- under the heading Nutrition Facts. They law requires that these labels include many different kinds of facts about food products. If you look you'll find the recommended serving sizes -- and calories per serving.

Plus the labels show the total fat, cholesterol, sodium and carbohydrates in the food you're about to eat. They also tell you the amount of dietary fiber, sugar, protein, vitamins and minerals -- and other information.

These labels can help you place that one serving of the food you're about to eat in the context of your total daily diet.

In Part 2...how to tell from food labels how much fat a serving of food really contains.

This information comes from free magazine on nutrition write to the Texas Department of Health, WIC--the Women, Infants and Children Nutrition Program. For a Austin, Tx 78756 or call 1-800-WIC-3678.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Collection Strategies: Speeding Up Slow Paying Customers

The front door to your business is swinging open with increasing frequency. Sales are up more than 17 percent compared to last year. The problem: you still don't have any money.

There is more to cash flow than increasing sales and customer counts. Cash flow is having money when you need it.

When small-business owners come to me with cash flow problems, I start with an analysis of their financial statements. If the business is growing and appears to be generating an adequate profit margin, I examine capital spending and accounts receivable management.

I often find cash flow problems linked to collection policies. As a business grows, accounts receivable grows and many accounts are frequently allowed to collect themselves.

According to collection experts, the average small-business owner waits 47 days for payment. If you make the sale on the first day of the month, and send the invoice on the last day of the month, you can stretch the collection period to 77 days.

Your goal is to shorten the time between selling the product or providing the service and getting paid. Here are some tips for dealing with slow paying customers.

Three Power Points

• First, don't confuse sales with cash. Just because you advertised it, sold it and delivered it, doesn't mean you'll get paid for it. Receivables won't cover your payroll, pay your rent or protect your credit record. You need sales and cash.

• Second, understand the two types of slow paying accounts. They are: Slow pay that's good pay and slow pay that's bad pay. Slow pay/good pay are quality companies or individuals with good credit histories, who have always paid you, but historically have taken 45-60 days. Slow pay/bad pay are troubled companies or individuals with marginal credit history, a record of non-payment and those who never pay without prompting.

• Third, consider positioning your company to move away from open-account credit. Create a policy to accept major credit cards, checks and cash only. Many of the faster growing chains have this policy and it isn't hurting their sales.

Protecting Your Cash Flow

Here are some suggestions for improving cash flow and collection rates.

• Establish a policy. If you have open accounts, establish a written policy and provide it to your customers.

• Check credit. When you open new accounts, do a credit check. Update each active credit file annually.

• Monitor accounts. Once you agree to sell on open account, monitor those accounts closely. An accounts receivable aging statement will allow you to categorize accounts by time periods such as: current, 30 to 60 days, 60-90 days and over 90 days.

• Watch for danger signals. Here are a few: Folks don't abide by agreed to payment terms. An abrupt change in their pattern of payments. Frequently changes of address. Checks coming from different banks. Larger than usual orders. (This may indicate that your customer is stock-piling merchandise because of credit or cash flow problems of their own.)

• Collect quickly. Make an effort to collect all accounts which are more than 30 days old. Even if it is only a "second notice" or a personal letter or call, do something. Don't let slow pay, become no pay.

• Bill frequently. Don't wait until the end of the month to send out bills. Invoice the day you make the sale, provide the service or deliver the product. As a minimum, bill at least twice monthly.

• Don't let the problem get bigger. Don't continue to sell to accounts from which you aren't collecting unless they make payment commitments and keep them.

• Offer discounts for early payment. Be certain your profit margin will stand to decrease.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Tuesday will be the last program day of the Summer Reading Club. Trudy Hanson from West Texas A&M will present the program. This being the "Tale End," each child is to come dressed in their favorite tale or tail. That means it can be an animal tale or a story book or fairy tale. Remember to come to the library Tuesday, July 14, at 10 a.m. and see all the creative tales or tails.

I can hardly wait to see the results of everyone's creative imagination. We have had a great time this summer and a lot of books have been checked out. The children have until the end of July to keep reading and getting their awards. So come on in and join the reading fun.

I hope some of the reading fun has rubbed off on you adults and you have rediscovered the joy of reading.

Sandra Brown's latest book Unspeakeable is finally here. The suspense novel has all the ingredients of a page turner, a psychotic killer, a desperate, beautiful woman who is deaf, a young boy and the stranger who agrees to work as a hired hand.

Carl Herbold in prison for life, escapes the Arkansas penitentiary and heads for Blewer County, Texas bent on revenge. Anna Corbett, widowed and trying to raise her son with only the help from her father-in-law is the beautiful female interest of the book.

To make things just a little harder for the beautiful widow she is hearing impaired, but she is determined to keep and run the ranch until her son is old enough to claim his birthright. Jack Sawyer is the seemingly easy going cowboy who wants the job as hired hand for more than one reason. By working on the ranch Jack may be able to protect Anna and the boy from Carl's evil plan.

Ezzy Hardge retired before he was able to solve the one crime that still haunts him. Every now and then Ezzy still reviews the case just to see if something new will turn up. Ezzy is thinking about the case even more now that Carl has escaped.

A Five Year Plan by Philip Kerr is "an immensely readable, classy caper." Ex-con Dave Delano learned a lot during his five year stay in a Florida prison, and most of it centered on the redistribution of wealth. Many new careers have been developed in the former USSR, but the most lucrative seems to be the money laundering.

It seems that someone is refitting U.S. yachts and transporting money in the hulls of these yachts. Dave thinks some of this money should be his. FBI agent Kate Fury gets a hot tip which means the collar of a lifetime. It seems the Colombians are hauling their cocaine in the hollowed hulls of U.S. yachts.

Boarding the ferry Kate is set to pounce, but she didn't count on Dave Delano and his personal agenda. Hidden identities, misunderstood motives and major mayhem along with plot twists will keep you turning the pages and guessing right to the end.

Reckless Endangerment by Robert Tannenbaum begins with an elderly Jewish shop keeper being murdered in Manhattan. The shop keeper is found lying by a mirror on which a hate message is written in Arabic. The work of the police is hampered because of the racial conflict that has already caused one riot.

Trying to keep this case quiet, Butch Karp, Deputy D.A. for special projects, tries to keep the case from igniting a full-scale ethnic war. Another high-profile case, a cop-killer, may be connected with this one, and if so the ramifications will effect the whole city, including Karp's family.

Where the Sea Used to Be by Ric Bass is located in oil country. Old Dudley, a Texas oil man, continues to search for oil in Swan Valley, Mont.

Dudley's daughter Mel has lived and studied wolves for almost 20 years in Swan Valley, and that is where she met Matthew. Matthew grew up in Swan Valley and is now working as a geologist for Dudley. After drilling 19 dry holes Matthew is burned out.

Connected to the outside world by only one road Swan Valley has its own unique cast of characters: Danny, ex-bronco rider and saloon owner; Amy who has a fondness for beer and Jesus; Colter, Amy's son, who's searching for the wild places; and Joshua the coffin maker.

The Klone and I by Danielle Steel sounds like a very cute little book. Within the 232 pages Stephanie is divorced after 13 years of marriage and raising two kids. After months of the New York wild singles circuit Stephanie gives up and takes a trip to Paris.

There on the left bank Stephanie meets Peter Baker. Stephanie has convinced herself the relationship will never work. Peter is just too perfect. Once home in Long Island, Stephanie is surprised when Peter calls.

Peter was to be away on business when he shows up on her doorstep. At first Stephanie thinks it must be a joke for the shy reserved Peter she met is now wearing Day-Glo satin and rhinestones. Calling himself Peter Klone it suddenly dawns on Stephanie. This is not Peter, it is his Klone.

Girl Scouts from Junior Troop 214 who attended camp in Quartz Mountain State Park learned how to use a compass during a scavenger hunt.

Girl Scout News

By LORNA HAWS

Junior Troop 214 recently returned from a three day-two night camping trip to Quartz Mountain State Park in Oklahoma.

This troop had only recently bridged from Brownie to Junior and this was their first BIG trip. For many, this was their first time to leave the state of Texas.

A total of 43 attended the camp with 26 girls registered. Everyone slept in tents and helped prepare meals.

The girls learned a variety of skills on the trip, things that some of us "older folks" take for granted, like how to operate a hand-held can opener and how to overcome the immodesty of a bathroom with no doors.

There were 26 girls, one shower and one mirror. Talk about logistic nightmares!

The girls also came perilously close to learning how important it is not to scream or run when there are skunks in camp.

They learned how to use a compass and gathered wildflowers and seeds for badge work. They also, got a lesson in first aid when the public relations person, me, got bee stung.

Although they had record-breaking temperatures in Altus, we managed to keep cool and have lots of fun with water balloon fights, miniature gold and a lot of time at the water slides.

Amarillo student chosen for President's Education Award

The President's Education Awards Program has presented to Linden Duggan a certificate in recognition of outstanding academic achievement for 1998. The award consists of a certificate signed by President Bill Clinton and U.S. Secretary of Education Dick Riley, and a lapel pin embossed with the Presidential Seal.

Duggan, a student at Trinity

Fellowship Christian School in Amarillo, was nominated for the award by Chuck Jones, principal of the school.

Recipients of the award must maintain an A average in all grades from fifth through eighth, and have a national percentile rank of 85 or above on their achievement test.

He is the son of Gary and Jane Duggan of Hereford.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

The House of the Week

Home Ideal for Enjoying the Outdoors

G-89

THREE DORMERS and a columned front porch accent the facade of this traditional country-style home.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures

Plan G-89, by HomeStyles Designers Network, features a wrap-around porch and an expansive backyard deck, complete with a built-in barbecue and room for a spa. The perfect home to appreciate the great outdoors, it provides 2,299 square feet of living space.

Two living areas frame the side-lighted entry. To the left, the sunny formal dining room is well-suited for entertaining. To the right, the large study provides a quiet place to read or relax.

The great room features a fireplace, and a bank of windows along the back wall floods the space with natural light.

The island kitchen's bayed morning room, an ideal spot to start the day, will allow one a daily view of the rising sun.

Secluded on the main floor, the spacious master bedroom includes a private bath with a large walk-in closet, a dual-sink vanity and a whirlpool tub nestled into a bay window. The first floor features 9-foot-high ceilings.

A paradise for children awaits upstairs. Two large bedrooms have access to a compartmentalized bath, and a playroom will keep the kids happy and occupied.

G-89 STATISTICS

Design G-89 has a great room, dining room, study, kitchen, morning room, playroom, three bedrooms, two and one half baths and a mudroom, totaling 2,299 square feet of living space. This plan includes a standard basement, crawlspace or slab foundation, and 2x4 exterior wall framing. Two storage areas on the upper floor add 112 square feet of space to the plan. The attached, two-car garage and storage area covers 456 square feet of space.

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

BEYOND THE COVERED FRONT PORCH, the entry is flanked by the dining room and the study. Straight ahead is the great room, where a short hallway leads to the master bedroom and private bath. Across the home, the kitchen opens to the morning room. The two-car garage is located beyond the mudroom and half-bath. The covered rear porch and deck can be reached through doors in the great room and mudroom. Upstairs, a playroom connects two secondary bedrooms, which share a full bath.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Remodeling Hints

(NAPS)—Remodeling is one of those rare experiences in which a homeowner can spend money and wind up richer.

With interest rates low and job stability high, it's shaping up to be the busiest remodeling year in at least a decade. This year, throughout the U.S., homeowners are expected to spend almost $131 billion on maintenance, repair and improvements—up $5 billion from last year.

One of the main reasons for the surge in remodeling is that home renovations increase the value of your home. In fact, consumers perceive kitchen and bath remodeling projects as a better value than investing in stocks, a vacation, or a new car. Although do-it-yourselfers are highly motivated, they are often confused about how to get started. For those interested in turning their remodeling effort into a sound investment, consider some of the following top improvement trends:

One of the main reasons for the surge in remodeling is that home renovations increase the value of a home.

• Add value with a kitchen or bath remodel—If you want the most value from a remodel, think the kitchen or bathroom. According to the National Association of Home Builders, updating and remodeling kitchens and baths adds the most value to a home. A complete kitchen or bath remodel has an average of 90 percent return on investment. In some instances, these projects can provide a return of more than 100 percent of the cost if the home is sold within a year.

Quaid takes director's chair for Everything That Rises

Dennis Quaid (right) makes his directorial debut as Montana rancher Jim Clay, who must come to terms with the paralysis of his son, Nathan (Ryan Merriman), after a freak car accident in Everything That Rises, a heartwarming family drama, premiering Sunday on TNT.

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

An unexpected tragedy reconciles an alienated father and son in Everything That Rises, a heartwarming family drama premiering Sunday, July 12, on TNT.

Leading man Dennis Quaid makes his directorial debut with this TV movie co-starring Emmy winner Mare Winningham along with Harve Presnell and Ryan Merriman (both from The Pretender).

Quaid plays Montana rancher Jim Clay, a proud but taciturn husband and father whose upbringing was lacking in tenderness following the early death of his mother.

Clay's patient wife, Kyle (Winningham), has accepted her husband's emotional aloofness, but his young son, Nathan (Merriman), strives to break through his father's reserve.

When a freak driving accident leaves Nathan paralyzed from the waist down, Jim almost shuts down, unable to cope with the tragedy.

As Kyle, with uncharacteristic firmness, tries to force her husband to confront his responsibilities, it falls to veteran ranch hand Garth (Presnell) to devise a strategy to give Nathan a new reason to live.

The climactic reconciliation between father and son is intensely moving in its simplicity, achieving the same level of impact as the final father-and-son scenes in Field of Dreams.

"Yeah, I think this story really hits anyone who ever has been a father or a son," Quaid says. "I hope everyone is as moved as you evidently were."

"I've always wanted to work with Mare Winningham, and she loved the role," he continues. "And Harve has the original father-figure spirit that brought the role of Garth to life."

Quaid, who stars in a remake of The Parent Trap due in theaters this summer, says he looked for a project to direct for some time, but hadn't found the right vehicle.

When he read Everything, he says, he intuitively understood the character of Jim.

"My own father wasn't like Jim Clay," he explains. "Actually, my dad was pretty touchy-feely, although there were some other problems we had to deal with. But I've lived in Montana for about 20 years now, and I've met and known guys just like Jim Clay."

While viewers may be put off by Jim's emotional remoteness in the early scenes, Quaid says it's important to understand the man's internal struggle.

"The thing is, Jim wants to be a good father, but he doesn't know how," he explains. "He never got that from his own father. But he tries. He really, really tries hard."

Quaid didn't set out to cast himself in the lead, but directing himself wasn't that big a deal, he says.

"Even when you are deeply into a scene, there's always that little director in your head that is monitoring how and what you are doing," he explains. "If an actor tells you he completely loses himself in a scene, he's lying - or at least exaggerating."

"Besides, that was one less actor I had to worry about as a director," he adds with a laugh.

A very human drama that plays out against spectacular Montana scenery, Everything That Rises is family television at its best.

Just be sure to get out your handkerchiefs for that ending.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ ★ July 12-18 ★ ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
You have a lot to do this week, so don't get distracted. Keep working hard to get things done. While it will wear you out, your efforts will be appreciated. Things will calm down by the end of the week, giving you time to relax and enjoy yourself. A close friend introduces you to an interesting person. Make a good impression.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Don't keep things bottled up inside, Taurus. Turn to loved ones and friends; they are more than willing to listen to you. They want to help. A business associate has a proposition for you. Look at all of the pros and cons before making a decision. Gemini plays a key role late in the week.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Don't let a surprise at work get you down. Roll with the punches, and make the best of the situation. Besides, you'll soon realize that it's not as bad as you think. An old friend calls you out of the blue. Spend time with him or her and catch up on the gossip. It's sure to be worth the time. Leo plays an important role.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
A close friend confides in you. Keep it to yourself. He or she is trusting you to be helpful and supportive. Don't let him or her down. A business associate needs your help with a problem. Do what you can to rectify the situation. Your efforts will be rewarded by the higher-ups.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Take control of a financial situation. If you don't, you're bound to lose a hefty investment. Watch yourself, or your arrogance will scare off the person whom you've been seeing. He or she is special to you, so keep your ego in check. Scorpio plays a key role late in the week.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
A potential outing has you very excited this week, Virgo. Do what you can to make it happen. However, don't be too aggressive or your efforts could work against you. A close friend asks for your opinion. Be honest; don't just say what you think he or she wants to hear.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
A business accomplishment puts you in the spotlight early in the week. Don't be shy. You should be proud of yourself; everyone else is. A loved one involves you in a family dispute. Don't choose sides. Instead, try to make those who are arguing come to an agreement. It won't be easy for you.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Calm, cool and collected — that's what you should strive to be this week, Scorpio. You have a lot going on at work, and a family problem arises. Don't get stressed. If you remain calm, you can work everything out. That special someone takes you out for a night on the town. Enjoy!

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Your optimism will see you through this week, Sagittarius. There's a lot going on. If you look at the bright side of things, you can keep moving ahead. A close friend is in trouble. Help him or her out, but don't get too involved in the problem. There's much more going on than meets the eye. Aquarius plays a key role.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Don't rebel when a business associate pulls rank. Acting up only will cause you problems. Do your work effectively and efficiently, and you're sure to be rewarded. You run into an old friend at the end of the week. Catch up with him or her. You're sure to discover some interesting things.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Keep your eyes and ears open this week, Aquarius. There's something going on that people aren't telling you about. Try to find out what it is. A loved one needs your help planning a family gathering. While you don't want to help, you know you really should. Don't worry — it will be much more fun than you thought.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't be too stubborn to make up with a close friend early in the week. Neither of you really meant to hurt the other. Be the bigger person, and apologize first. An old flame asks you out. Say yes; it's sure to be interesting.

Lance, Justin, Joey, J.C. and Chris (clockwise from top right) of the musical group 'N Sync perform at Walt Disney World in Florida in 'N Sync In Concert, premiering Saturday on The Disney Channel.

IN FOCUS

Cindy Jackson, a woman who has had her body surgically altered in various ways, is among those featured in Science of the Impossible.

Beginning Sunday, July 12, on the Discovery Channel, the five-part special shows how scientific theories that once seemed like science fiction are closer to becoming a reality. The program continues Monday through Wednesday, July 13-15.

In addition to exploring the future of surgery, the special examines the possibility of alien life and time travel.

Gary Sinise takes a stand as a survivor of a flu epidemic that destroys most of the world's population in Stephen King's The Stand. The four-part miniseries airs Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, July 12, 13, 14 and 16, on ABC.

The plague's survivors go in search of answers after having the same dream of either an old woman pure of spirit or the satanic Randall Flagg (Jamey Sheridan). Molly Ringwald, Laura San Giacomo, Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee also star.

Crazy Horse ★★★ (1996) Michael Greyeyes, Wes Studi. The chief of the Oglala Sioux is forced into battle when his treaty-reserved land in the South Dakota hills is invaded. (In Stereo) (CC) 2:00. July 17 1pm.

TV PIPELINE

Q: In the TV movie The Lottery, I noticed an exciting young actress named Keri Russell. I think I also saw her in a recent TV series set in medieval Ireland. What can you tell me about her background? --Jim via e-mail.

A: The executives at the WB Network hope a lot of other people share your interest, Jim, because the miniseries has signed Russell, 22, to star next season in their Ally McBeal clone, Felicity.

The young actress began her career in 1991 when she joined MMC, the most recent TV incarnation of The Mickey Mouse Club. After leaving that show in 1993, she co-starred in the series Emerald Cove and Daddy's Girls, before landing the prominent role of Chloe Walker in Aaron Spelling's teen soaper Malibu Shores.

She played Claire in the Fox cult hit Roar last summer and will juggle her Felicity duties with a starring role in Mad About Mambo, a drama to be filmed in Ireland, set for release next year. "Keep an eye on this young woman; she's going places."

Q: On Knots Landing, who was the actor who played the husband of Laura? My husband says it was Kevin Spacey, but I say no way. --F.L.S. via e-mail.

A: Laura Avery Sumner, played by Constance McCashin, was married twice during the run of Knots. She divorced her first husband, Richard Avery (John Pleshette), after discovering his affair with Abby Cunningham (Donna Mills).

Later, she married Sen. Gregory Sumner (William Devane) before succumbing to a brain tumor.

Q: My mother insists that Telly Savalas starred in a recent Outer Limits episode called "Re-Generation." I told her that Savalas was dead, and it was Daniel Benzali, who also starred in Murder at 1600. What else can you tell me about Benzali? --R.F.W., Owensboro, Ky.

A: First, you're right on all counts: Savalas died in 1994, and former Murder One star Benzali was in both projects you mention.

A native of Rio de Janeiro, Benzali, 48, was well regarded on the London stage, starring as Juan Peron in Evita and Max the butler in Sunset Boulevard.

The actor currently is in the United Kingdom filming All the Little Animals with Christian Bale and John Hurt. Respect, in which he stars with Helen Baxendale (Friends) and Dudley Moore, also is due out soon.

Q: Did Doug Savant (Godzilla) also star in Major Dad? --Norm Mosher via e-mail.

A: No. Perhaps you are thinking of Matt Mulhern, who played Holowachuk on that sitcom.

Gail Halvorsen, the "Candy Bomber," holds a tiny parachute of candy intended for the children of West Berlin. His story is recalled in The Berlin Airlift, airing Monday on PBS (check local listings).

Berlin Airlift recalls historic mission of mercy

One of the decisive battles of the Cold War was fought with milk, flour, dried beans and Hershey's bars.

The Berlin Airlift, airing Monday, July 13, on PBS (check local listings), recalls Britain and the United States' huge postwar effort to keep West Berlin from falling under the Soviets' sway after the city's sea and land links were cut.

Between June 1948 and September 1949, more than 2 million tons of food, coal and medical supplies were delivered by cargo flights landing at three-minute intervals around the clock. One American pilot was Gail Halvorsen, who came to be known as the "Candy Bomber" for his custom of dropping gum and chocolate bars to the children of Berlin.

Thousands of donated handkerchiefs were filled with treats, and then tied to parachutes by American schoolchildren. Approximately 20 tons of goodies were dropped in 15 months.

To mark the airlift's 50th anniversary, Halvorsen has been flying a restored Douglas C-54 Skymaster named the Spirit of Freedom around Europe. The airlift plane belongs to the Berlin Airlift Historical Foundation in Toms River, N.J.

"This part of the thing," Halvorsen says at a stop in Luxembourg, "is the real adventure: flying this airplane across the ocean, first of all, and then to all these air shows."

Halvorsen, who never expected the Cold War to end in his lifetime, now views the airlift as pivotal.

"Postwar history would have been totally different if that had not succeeded ... certainly West Berlin would have existed no more."

"There were very influential people who proposed at the beginning that we fight our way in. But we gave them so much more by doing it in a humanitarian way."

One man Halvorsen met last month told him of savoring a Hershey's bar for a week after it dropped at his feet.

"But he said, 'It wasn't the candy bar. What it meant to me was hope.' He said, 'Somebody knew I was here; somebody cared.'"

SOAP WORLD

Diamond causes waves on Young and the Restless

By Candace Havens
 ©TVData Features Syndicate

Sexy Brad Carlton (Don Diamond) is back on The Young and the Restless, and the women of Genoa City better watch out.

Brad left town in 1996 because he realized Nikki (Melody Thomas Scott) would never get over Victor (Eric Braeden). Now that he's back, expect plenty of confusion for the Abbotts and the Newmans.

Could it be Ashley and Cole (Shari Shattuck, J. Eddie Peck) are headed for stormy waters? Will Nikki find herself back in Brad's arms after discovering Victor's duplicity?

Dear Candace: Could you please tell me if Days of Our Lives is going to be canceled? I can't believe it would happen, but my friend says it's true. —R.L. in Florida.

Dear Reader: Rumors are flying, so it is difficult to know what the truth is concerning the future of Days.

However, NBC did hire former Days writer James E. Reilly away from the show to develop a new daytime series.

NBC also has launched a nationwide casting call for male and female actors between ages 18 and 25, although the network says the talent search is to fill upcoming roles on their existing daytime shows.

One thing is for sure, Sunset Beach, Another World or Days would have to go to make room for a new series.

Dear Candace: The story line with Erica and Mike Roy (Susan Lucci, Nicolas Surovy) is boring. Thank goodness for fast forward on the VCR so I don't have to watch those scenes. —Mary Weigel, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

Dear Reader: Most All My Children fans liked Mike's return, but it sounds like you would have preferred it if he stayed dead.

Dear Candace: When are the writers of The Bold and the Beautiful going to eliminate Stephanie Forrester (Susan Flannery)? That woman needs to go. —Jean Rogers, Mustang, Okla.

Dear Reader: Stephanie is not going anywhere. Every show has to have a witch, and she is one of the best.
