PUC orders SW Bell to explain discrepancies in ballots

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor
Hereford's been put on hold. The Texas Public Utilities Commission has declared the ballots sent out April 20 by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to its customers for the expanded local calling (ELC) election void. The commission also set a June 22 deadline for the telephone company to resolve the discrepancies between the number of customers who were mailed ballots and the number of access lines. The ballots were sent out after a petition was submitted to the PUC requesting an election to decide if Hereford could expand its local calling area to the Amarillo and Canyon exchanges. Ballots were mailed on April 20, with a postmark deadline of May 5. By April 27, Linda Hymans, the commission's ELC coordinator, began receiving calls from Hereford subscribers who had not received a ballot. Subscribers were asked to send Hymans a letter stating they had not received a ballot and how they would have voted. Seventeen letters were received by the PUC; however, when the PUC staff checked those names with the master list supplied by the telephone company, the names were not on the list of subscribers. The master list was verified with 7,592 access lines, but only 4,620 ballots were mailed. Multiple lines were eliminated, as were SW Bell test lines, leaving about 3,000 subscribers without ballots. The PUC ordered the telephone company to file a written report explaining the discrepancies. Dennis Hicks, owner/operator of Hicks Well Service in Hereford and the organizer of the petition calling for the election, said Friday he doesn't believe the discrepancy was deliberate, saying he believes it was just a mistake by the telephone company.

"No one knows why not everyone got a ballot," Hicks said. "I expect it will be two months before we get new ballots again because there's no new procedure. The PUC will request a master list from Southwestern Bell before the election; the last time, the list wasn't sent until after complaints were received." In its order, the PUC voided the ballots and gave the telephone company a June 22 deadline to "resolve discrepancies between the number of customers who were mailed ballots and the number of access lines, including any information received from subscribers who did not receive ballots."

SW Bell also was given a June 29 deadline to provide a new master list "that accurately represents each subscriber in the Hereford exchange ... and provides a detailed explanation of what actions were taken to resolve the discrepancies." The commission staff also will give a July 3 deadline to file a recommendation on the information received from the community and the telephone company on whether the revised master list is accurate and if the petition should be unabated and a new election schedule established. If a new ELC election is called and

The lack of rainfall in the area is beginning to show at the Aquatic Center Pond as the water is receding, exposing more bank area. The last significant rain to fall in the Hereford area was 0.64 inches on April 27. Because of the dry conditions in the area, the Deaf Smith County commissioners enacted a burn policy and Hereford's annual Fourth of July fireworks display has been postponed.

BURN BAN

Oldham Co. bars fireworks, outdoor burning

From staff and wire reports
Oldham County banned the use of aerial fireworks and outdoor burning, according to County Judge Don Allred. He had declared a no-burn policy Thursday, and commissioners made it official Friday. Around the Panhandle, many counties have already moved to ban both fireworks and outdoor burning, with Deaf Smith County commissioners approving the no-burn policy and fireworks prohibition on June 8. Allred said there is tremendous potential for wildfires. "The grass is so brittle that it would burn like straw. With the wheat harvest coming up, we decided the burning and fireworks ban was in everybody's best interest," Allred said. In a related development, the state fire marshal has urged Texans to use caution and obey the law if they're going to use fireworks during the upcoming July 4 holiday. With the drought, the dangers of fire are running high, Fire Marshal G. Mike Davis said. "Many parts of the state remain dry and susceptible to sparks from fireworks," Davis said. "People using fireworks should be aware of the environment around them so they don't start fires that could lead to injuries and the destruction of property." As of Thursday, 80 counties had banned outdoor burning, which prohibits any open fires outside closed containers. Fireworks go on sale June 24 through July 4 in the state. County commissioners who want to ban certain aerial fireworks must act before Monday. The fire marshal said the safest and least expensive way to enjoy fireworks is to attend a public display. More than 250 are planned this year, he said. Meanwhile, weather forecasters predict thunderstorms promise some relief from the heat baking Texas this weekend. But the relief will be fleeting. Hundred-plus daytime highs recorded Friday will continue through Sunday, forecasters said, and southerly winds returned moisture to areas that enjoyed only a brief respite from humid, muggy conditions. Temperatures Friday ranged from a chilly morning reading of 57 degrees at Dalhart to a toasty afternoon temperature of 110 degrees at Laredo.

HHS grad gets to see Wall Street

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Wall Street. It is the symbol of capitalism, money and power. And, a Hereford native recently got an inside look at how the financial world operates. Brent Marnell, a 1996 graduate of Hereford High School, was among 20 Texas A&M students who spent three weeks on Wall Street, learning from some of the world's most powerful investment managers. Marnell, a finance/accounting major at A&M, went to New York to participate in the university's "Aggies on Wall Street" program, which ran from mid-May until June 5. Following his stint on Wall Street, Marnell is working over the summer break for Ryan & Co., a Dallas-based accounting firm that specializes in oil/gas taxes. Marnell now is in Houston, but he expects his job to take him around the state. Marnell said the trip to Wall Street was eye-opening because the amount of money that is moved among corporations and around the world is staggering. One of the money managers the students met was in control of more than $23 billion, Marnell said. Although as a second-year student, Marnell hasn't seen the volume of finance courses as the upper-level students, he said he saw the difference between classroom theory and Wall Street practice. For example, Marnell said an oil futures trader told the students that his firm "looked for some books, but no books really deal with the subject." "The trip really put things in perspective because a lot of the things haven't been taught," he said, noting most of Wall Street's financial wizards have to learn through experience. And, that experience is the result of many, many hours. "They really have long hours; many investment bankers work 85-90 hours a week. It's a whole different world," he said. "You get a starting salary of around $75,000, which sounds like a lot, but it depends on how much you can save. That's hard because New York is really a very expensive place to live. An apartment that runs about $500 a month in College Station will cost $2,000 a month in New York. "But, still just going up there and playing with the big boys is worth it," he said, adding the experience gained by being on Wall Street will open doors elsewhere. Marnell already is looking to when he finishes his work at Texas A&M, saying he wants "to go somewhere other than Texas for a while -- London, Hong Kong, it doesn't matter. ... I'd be open to almost anywhere," he said. The responsibilities of a financial manager in different locations would change drastically, too, he said. For example, he said the interest rates in Russia are exceptionally high, while in Japan the rates are exceptionally low. Because of the differences, what a money manager does in Moscow varies widely from what is done in Tokyo. But, the trip to Wall Street was not limited to stock brokerages, commodity exchanges and investment banks, the students also were exposed to the culture of New York City, attending Broadway plays and visiting art galleries and museums. "One of the purposes of the (Aggies on Wall Street) program is to expose students to the opportunities there," Donald Fraser, professor and interim head of the university's finance department, said. "Also, we want

Appraiser: Holly loss won't be felt for year

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Planning for the 1999 school, hospital and county budgets will be a bit easier this year, even with the departure of Holly Sugar. Why? Although the No. 1 taxpayer in both Deaf Smith County and Hereford Independent School District has shut down its sugarbeet processing plant, the two taxing entities have seen an expansion in its tax base, an expansion that Chief Appraiser Danny Jones will offset any losses from Holly Sugar. Even with the closure of the sugarbeet processing operation, the Holly Sugar plant is still open and its inventory has gained in value since January. Jones said the loss of Holly Sugar will affect the taxing entities in Fiscal 2000 because the tax base used by budget planners is based on the January figures. Because Holly Sugar was operating in January 1998, the budgets for Fiscal 1999 will be figured as if the company did not have a reduction in operations. In 1997, Holly Sugar paid $322,611 in taxes to the school district, $121,887 to the county and $49,460 to the Deaf Smith County Hospital District. When Holly Sugar announced Feb. 17 it would shut the Hereford plant, the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal

District stated the value of the property to be $23.1 million. At the time, Jones said because the company has not shut down the plant completely, continuing to package and distribute refined sugar products, the taxing entities will continue to collect a substantial amount of money from Holly Sugar, and Jones said this week that the company's value actually has increased by about $3 million because of the inventory. Jones said the tax base has expanded significantly since 1996. In 1996, the appraisal district set the Deaf Smith County tax base at $497 million. That figure grew to $520 million in 1997, rose to $557 million for 1998, and Jones expects it to swell another $20-plus million next year, an increase the appraiser said will offset any loss from revalued Holly Sugar property. For the school district, which last year lost money when the voters approved the 10 percent increase in the homestead exemption, the tax base has risen from $424 million in 1997 to $450 million in 1998. Jones said part of the anticipated gain in the tax base will come from a reappraisal of property in the northwest section of Hereford, as well as rural and industrial property.

Panhandle lawmakers to conduct hearing on issues

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Three Panhandle lawmakers will conduct a public hearing at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Badger Den Room at Amarillo College, 2201 Washington.

The Texas Conservative Coalition (TCC) will serve as co-host for the hearing, which is intended to give the members of the public an opportunity to discuss issues of importance to them with state legislators.

The three lawmakers attending the meeting will be state Reps. John Smith, R-Amarillo; David Swinford, R-Dumas; and Warren Chisum, R-Pampa.

The Amarillo hearing is the final of five the TCC is conducting around the state in preparation for the session of the Texas Legislature, which begins in January 1999. Sessions already have been held in Houston, Garland, McAllen and Austin.

Smith stated the hearing is intended to provide an open forum for the discussion of all public policy concerns. However, the hearing specifically will address rural issues of interest to Panhandle residents.

"Mr. Swinford, Mr. Chisum and I are very pleased to be able to host our colleagues for this special event," Smith said in a press release. "The Panhandle has some very unique and important needs that the Legislature should address. I hope those who have an interest in the workings of state government will attend the hearing and share their opinions and concerns with us."

The TCC is a non-partisan research organization of Texas state legislators, with a membership of 85 state representatives and 10 state senators. The primary focus of the organization is to provide research and background information for legislators on public policy issues affecting the state of Texas.

The president of the organization is state Rep. Robert Turner, D-Coleman. In the House, he is vice chairman of the Land and Resource Management Committee and serves on the Agriculture and Livestock Committee. He also is a member of the Texas Rural Coalition, Legislative Sportsmen's Caucus and the House Veterans Caucus.

A retail merchant, farmer/rancher and retired lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve, Turner also serves as executive director of the Coleman Development Co.

Smith, an attorney who was elected to the Texas House in 1984, is chairman of the House Committee on Insurance and serves on the Energy Resources Committee. He also has served on the Economic Development, Business & Commerce, Government Organization, Judicial Affairs, and Judiciary committees.

He was named as one of the 10 Best legislators by the Conservative Coalition in 1985 and 1989. In 1995, he was recognized by Texas Monthly as having a "career year" under the Honorable Mention category of the magazine's 10 Best.

Swinford, president/general manager of the Moore County Grain Handling Co. and marketing specialist for the Dumas Cooperative, was elected to the House in 1990. He serves on the House Agriculture and Livestock, Appropriations, and Local and Consent committees. He recently was named chairman of the Duplication of Services Subcommittee, which will study government efficiency and performance.

He is vice chairman of the Rural Coalition and is a member of the Conservative Caucus and Sportsmen's Caucus.

Chisum was elected to the Legislature in 1988. He is now serving his third term as chairman of the House Committee on Environmental Regulation. He also serves on the House Administration and County Affairs committees. During the past legislative session, he served on the Select Committee on Revenue and Public Education Finance.

He is immediate past chairman of the American Legislative Exchange Council's Task Force on Energy, Environment, Natural Resources and Agriculture. The ALEC is a nonpartisan, national research organization of state legislators.

to get them to the point where they have some contacts there to follow up on and get jobs."

Contacts are made through former Texas A&M students working on Wall Street who arrange meetings with investment managers at firms such as GTE, Goldman Sachs, Morgan Stanley, and JP Morgan. During the meetings, the managers discussed current issues in the field, giving the students insight about what they need to know to begin a career in finance.

During the three weeks in New York, the students made 30 site visits, stopping at Bankers Trust, CNNfn, Swiss Bank Corp., Blackstone Partners, the New York Mercantile Exchange, and the New York Stock Exchange. They also participated in activities involving investment case studies, seminars and simulated trading activities.

Now in its fourth year, the Aggies on Wall Street program already has been beneficial to the students who participate, Fraser said.

"I think in many cases it changes the students' lives. Even if none of the students ever work on Wall Street, they'll take away insights they could never get from a textbook," Fraser said.

'Dr. Hug' dies at 74

GLENBROOK, Nev. (AP) - Self-help author Leo Buscaglia, the bearded, teddy bear-like apostle of love who customarily ended his motivational speeches by giving everyone in the audience a hug, died of a heart attack Friday at 74.

Buscaglia (pronounced Bus-KAL-yuh) died at his home on the shores of Lake Tahoe.

Known as "Dr. Hug," he shook up the University of Southern California in the '70s when he started classes on love, including "Love 101," combining sociology and psychology. His first book, "Love," came out in 1972 and examined the phenomenon of human love as the one unifying force in life.

PBS used his taped lectures during fund-raising drives.

"I've spoken in every state in the union, meeting and hugging the people who later bought my books," he said in 1986. "I spoke to anybody who wanted to hear me, including 1,000 nuns who could pay me only with homemade bread."

Buscaglia wrote more than a dozen books and sold more than 11 million copies in 20 languages. Among them were "Loving Each Other" and "Living, Loving and Learning." At one time, five of his books appeared on The New York Times best-seller list. His most recent book was "Love Cookbook" in 1994.

Another of his books, "The Fall of Freddie the Leaf," was made into a ballet that explored the delicate balance between life and death.

Buscaglia got his start as a supervisor of special education in the Pasadena schools from 1960 to 1965 and was an education professor at the University of Southern California from 1975 to 1984.

Capital Highlights

Quips, quotes and tidbits from the Texas campaign trail:

JUST GOOD FRIENDS

The two candidates for lieutenant governor, Democrat John Sharp and Republican Rick Perry, have several things in common. Chief among those is their alma mater - Texas A&M.

That explains why they're concentrating on the issues, and not personalities. Sharp told an Austin business group during a joint appearance with Perry. "Since we were in the same dormitory together for three years, we could - in the next five minutes - end each other's political careers," Sharp laughed.

FASTER, FASTER

At that appearance, Perry and Sharp both chafed under a two-minute time limit for their opening remarks.

"I got to thinking, obviously, this is a Longhorn ploy here, John. As slow as we talk, we can't get it all out in two minutes," Perry said.

THEY LOVE EL PASO

Often ignored, El Paso is getting lots of attention this election year. According to the El Paso Times, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Garry Mauro says he's working hard to get President Clinton to visit the West Texas city. "I've told the president and the White House that the next major presidential trip they make ought to be El Paso," Mauro said.

Not to be outdone, Republican Gov. George W. Bush is singing the city's praises, too. "Gov. Bush rags us about El Paso all the time," Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, told the newspaper. "He's always telling us, 'You've got to help El Paso.' I'm serious. That's all he talks about is El Paso."

YEP, IT'S HOT

The governor called a Capitol news conference to discuss heat, drought and fire dangers. To accommodate television cameras, the room's rather noisy air conditioner was shut off. As sweat broke out on his brow and others in the room, Bush explained: "We're talking about heat. I wanted you to feel their pain."

PRESIDENT ... WHO?

How quickly things change in public life. Gov. Bush said his father may be suffering a bit of an identity crisis these days as a former president.

It all started, the governor told a group of school principals when his mother was getting her hair done in Houston. The hairdresser said, "I cannot believe that I am doing the hair of the mother of the governor of Texas." "Mother said, 'Yeah, well, how about the hair of the wife of the ex-president?' The guy said, 'Yeah, that too.'"

'Year of Tiger' turns to 'Year of Recession'

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) - The Year of the Tiger, according to Chinese superstition, can bring ferocious upheaval.

Six months into this tiger year, the once-roaring Asian economies have experienced plenty of that. Several have fallen deeper into recession, a half dozen are slumping in that direction.

On Friday, Japan confirmed that it had sunk into recession, announcing that its gross domestic product shrank for a second consecutive quarter. The deflation of Asia's economic role model could push its proteges over the edge.

"The announcement will have a negative impact," predicted Rajeev Malik, an economist at Jardine Fleming International Securities in Singapore. "I think the most immediate is likely to be felt in the currency markets."

Tokyo's announcement came in the wake of Wednesday's sell-off in Asian stock markets and currency markets, which plunged after the U.S. dollar climbed to a seven-year high against the bellwether yen.

Economic confidence in Asia generally suffers when the yen takes a beating, even though regional currencies may not be directly pegged to it.

Thailand - the first of the Asian dominoes to fall - has been in recession since last year, when its economy shrank by 0.4 percent, compared to 5.5 percent growth in 1996.

Next was Indonesia, also in full-blown recession. Even before the deadly student riots last month which led to the fall of President Suharto, analysts were predicting an economic contraction of 10 percent. Some are now forecasting negative growth of 25 percent this year.

Market analysts also put South Korea in recession. The Korean economy is expected to shrink by more than 1 percent this year, which would be the first contraction since 1980.

Hong Kong's economy eroded by 2 percent in the quarter ending in March, the first negative growth in 13 years.

Malaysia and Singapore are both denying that they are heading toward a recession, citing the standard definition of a recession: two consecutive quarters of contracting growth.

Some economists say that yardstick is not always reliable because the growth rates in some countries, such as Malaysia, have been so high.

Malaysia's central bank announced last month that gross domestic product shrank by 1.8 percent in the first quarter, the first quarterly contraction since the mid-1980s.

Chia Yew Boon, research director at Singapore-based Santander Investment Securities, said a policy split within Malaysia's government has created uncertainty that is hurting the country's chances of a quick recovery.

Congress balking on some military funds

TOM RAUM

Inside Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) - When it comes to legislation, what comes out of the broth can be as important as what goes in. When various defense spending bills are taken up in the House and the Senate in the coming days, they may be most remembered for what's missing.

Funds for peacekeeping operations in Bosnia, for one. Authorization for two new rounds of base closings, for another.

Neither the Senate defense appropriations bill nor one making its way to the House floor includes the administration's request for $1.9 billion to keep U.S. forces in Bosnia in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

That guarantees major battles over Bosnia and other peacekeeping operations and how they are paid for in the future.

Last year's balanced-budget agreement sets an overall limit for Pentagon spending of $271 billion. And both House and Senate bills are up against that cap without the Bosnia money.

Senate leaders are not too keen on the administration's strategy of viewing Bosnia as an "emergency" exempt from the spending caps. So something has to give.

Pent-up resentment abounds since a third deadline for bringing troops home - June 1 - has come and gone. "What we need is a timeline," grouched Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., the author of one of three planned amendments designed to establish a framework for a pullout.

About 8,500 U.S. troops are in the NATO-led peacekeeping force in Bosnia.

Pending military bills also ignore the administration's request for authority for two new rounds of base closings, one in 2001 and another in 2005.

Earlier national security legislation removed President Clinton's requests for about $1 billion in back dues owed the United Nations and $18 billion to help replenish International Monetary Fund accounts. The skipped measures reflect dissatisfaction tion in the GOP-led Congress with the administration's national security policy.

"We have serious, serious problems in re-enlistment throughout our services," said Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Stevens and others contend ambitious peacekeeping operations like those in the Persian Gulf and Bosnia, combined with declining defense budgets, are sapping military readiness and troop morale. Adjusting for inflation, the amount set aside for military spending next year is the lowest since before the Korean War.

The Senate must finish work on a bill authorizing money for the Pentagon before taking up the companion bill to appropriate the money. The authorization measure, which could come up later this week, is also expected to be a vehicle for protests of the administration's China policy.

The House last month voted overwhelmingly to ban further satellite-technology transfer to China. A similar attempt is expected in the Senate.

On Bosnia, Stevens said he might seek to raise the defense spending ceiling temporarily or try to cull the money from other programs.

On the House side, Rep. C. W. Bill Young, R-Fla., chairman of the House Appropriations national security subcommittee, told reporters he wants to see a troop deployment plan for Bosnia before discussing how to pay for it.

The Simple Solution to Your Healthcare Needs

The crux of the credit discord: both personal and corporate

NEW YORK (AP) - Most people might be inclined to agree that one way to slow the nearly incredible rise in bankruptcy filings is to stiffen the law, and that one way to do so is to infuse it with a greater measure of personal responsibility.

Personal responsibility, according to credit card companies, bankers and sponsors of a bill to make bankruptcy harder to declare, is all but absent in some filings. The law has gaps, they say, and small debtors have been crawling through them.

As approved by the House, personal responsibility would be enforced by requiring individuals earning at least the median income to file a debt-repayment rather than debt-forgiveness plan, assuming they can repay 20 percent of the debt within five years.

JOHN GUNNIFF

This and other measures, it is said, are needed to reduce the number of personal bankruptcies, which have soared for four straight years, reaching 1.35 million last year. For perspective, consider that there were 8,385 personal bankruptcies in 1945.

The broadest explanation is to blame it on a general moral decline. But more specific reasons have been offered: a weak law, aggressive lawyers, legalized gambling, divorce, the convenience of credit, and a feeling everyone should share the good economic times.

But what about corporate morality? What about credit card lenders who last year mailed 3.01 billion solicitations, tease new enrollees with low temporary rates, raise interest charges as their borrowing costs fall, and even target poor risks?

Some of this might be explained as just good marketing, and maybe the solicitors should be commended for their creativity and salesmanship. Lenders are in a highly competitive business, requiring all their ingenuity to remain one short, brief step ahead of each other.

In so doing, says the American Bankers Association, lenders provide people at all income levels access to the credit markets, a contention that has a good deal of merit. It wasn't long ago that lenders wouldn't consider the requests of the poor. Now they lend by mail.

It is at this point that corporate and personal responsibility meet. If borrowers are weak and cannot resist temptation, say critics, then the same judgment applies to lenders who cannot resist the temptation of tapping a market that is enormously profitable.

The Consumer Federation of America claims that between 55 million and 60 million credit cards have a continuing debt balance averaging about $7,000.

Actor-director is accused of assault

NEW YORK (AP) - "Pulp Fiction" director Quentin Tarantino is charged with assault for allegedly punching a woman in the face while taking a swing at another man.

Tarantino, 35, was ordered Thursday to appear in court next week for arraignment. He could get up to a year in jail.

Fashion stylist Leila Mwangi, 25, told police that Tarantino tried to slug her boyfriend at a restaurant May 1. She said she took the punch instead and was cut on the forehead.

The boyfriend, Barron Claiborne, said Tarantino took a swing at him in an argument over how Hollywood portrays blacks.

Civility is the court rule

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - As the Supreme Court starts its often-frantic sprint toward a three-month summer recess, Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg says civility, if not tranquility, reigns.

"Again this year, in line with what may now be the trend, the court's opinions so far have been steadily civil in tone," she recently told a group of federal judges.

Ginsburg admitted to joining a dissenting opinion in which Justice Antonin Scalia commented on a majority opinion's "feebleness" and "utter lack of logic," but she says the opinion's author - Justice Stephen G. Breyer - "is not easily offended, and he enjoys (Scalia's) sparkling wit, as I do."

The court term is expected to end in late June, but the justices first must announce decisions in 20 previously argued cases.

In that speech to federal judges, Ginsburg talked about the court's ruling last month that found most of historic Ellis Island is in New Jersey, not New York. She reported a one-liner that Breyer got off during the decision-making process that never found its way into his published concurring opinion.

"I am forced to conclude that my grandmother did not land in New York, as she likely thought," Breyer said. "She landed in New Jersey, first stop on her way to St. Paul and eventually to San Francisco - in Minnesota and California, respectively, I sincerely hope."

An article in Esquire magazine's July edition focuses on Washington writer Ron Suskind's meeting with Justice Clarence Thomas many months ago while working on his book, "A Hope in the Unseen." The book is about an inner-city youth Thomas previously met and counseled.

Thomas, who has spelled out his opposition to most forms of affirmative action in various speeches and court opinions, summed it up in a paragraph for Suskind. "I'm not saying that scores of black kids don't need help and resources and a huge commitment to get where they need to be to compete," Thomas was quoted as saying. "I'm just saying don't lower the bar. Don't make it so that everything they're working for is meaningless. No one tries if they know at the end of the day they won't get full credit for the victory. No one will fight for something that everyone knows was a gimme."

Richard Carelli covers the Supreme Court and legal issues for The Associated Press.

New sunflower oil eyed for chips

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) - Sunflower growers are seeing gold in a new kind of sunflower oil that federal scientists say means healthier, better-tasting and fresher fried food.

Tests on NuSun sunflower oil by the U.S. Department of Agriculture laboratories here have encouraged sunflower growers who've long been dependent on selling their oil in volatile markets overseas, industry watchers said Friday.

But whether consumers will see NuSun foods on their supermarket shelves anytime soon isn't clear.

Sales of sunflower oil never met expectations after its introduction in the 1970s. However, NuSun's development and news about trans-fatty acids could mean a great demand for NuSun in the United States, said Larry Kleingartner, executive director of the National Sunflower Association, based in Bismarck, N.D.

NuSun is oil crushed from a new hybrid sunflower developed by federal scientists in Fargo, N.D. Tests in the USDA's Peoria lab found that NuSun, already low in saturated fat, has moderate levels of linoleic acid - to bring about the desired flavor of fried food - but much more oleic acid than commercial sunflower oil.

Oleic acid has two advantages, said Ben Hardin, spokesman for the USDA Peoria lab: a diet with high levels of oleic acid lowers cholesterol and the risk of coronary heart disease, and oleic acid keeps the oil from breaking down in commercial fryers.

Many snack-food companies add hydrogen to frying oil to keep it from breaking down.

DUI? Mascara?

FAIRFAX, Va. - A Virginia woman has lost her appeal on charges of driving under the influence - the influence of mascara.

Judge Kathleen H. Mackay ruled Friday that Valerie Nordstrom, 41, wasn't being safe when she applied mascara while driving during a rainy rush-hour commute on Feb. 23.

Trooper Robert Thomas testified that he saw Ms. Nordstrom holding the steering wheel in her left hand and putting on makeup with her right hand while looking in the rearview mirror.

"The trooper had a right to pull this person over," Ms. Mackay said. "He doesn't have to wait until an accident happens."

Defense attorney Mark Yeager had argued there is no state law that prohibits using a cell phone, reading or applying makeup while driving.

"I don't like people using cell phones, applying makeup, eating cereal or whatever," Yeager said, "but that is not reckless driving."

Ms. Nordstrom was originally charged with reckless driving, but was convicted of the lesser charge of improper driving - defined as a wanton or willful disregard for the safety of others.

She will have to pay a $35 fine and will be penalized three points on her driver's license.

Liquid lunch's new meaning

NEW YORK - What do you get when you mix vodka and orange juice?

Not the drink called a screwdriver, but lunch.

At least that's what an overzealous health inspector thought when he handed bartender Noel McCabe a summons for violating the law that requires a hat be worn by anyone working in a bar with food.

The inspector apparently took that to mean mixed drinks.

"This gives the phrase 'liquid lunch' a whole new meaning," joked McCabe, 27.

The summons, which carries a $100 fine, was made under a health code requirement that anyone working with food "minimize contact between hair and hands, food and food-contact surfaces."

"An overzealous inspector who is very new applied a very strict interpretation of the health code," explained Health Department spokesman John Jadd. "Strictly speaking, mixed drinks are food."

Administrative Judge Robert Nisely dismissed the charge Thursday.

For now, Article 81.13 (b) of the city's General Provision codes remains on the books, though Jadd could think of no other instance in which it was ever enforced at a bar.

Joke backfires

OCEAN SPRINGS, Miss. - Thomas James Whalen was paying off part of his loan when he joked to the manager to "give me all your money" and used a lighter as a mock gun.

No one is laughing now. Whalen, 68, was arrested and faces a June 24 date in court to answer to a disorderly conduct charge.

According to a police report, Whalen entered the Title Cash loan shop in Ocean Springs on Tuesday to pay $170 on a $400 loan, manager Carrie Dale Hitchings said.

Hitchings said when she turned her back to place the money in the cash drawer, she heard Whalen say "Give me all your money."

When she turned around, Whalen was pointing what looked like a gun at her. It turned out to be a cigarette lighter, the manager said.

Hitchings said she reached for the cash register. Whalen then laughed and asked, "You were really going to give me all your money?"

Hitchings said she answered "yes."

Hitchings said Whalen turned, walked out of the office and left in his car. No money was taken.

Whalen was released after posting a $190 bond.

It's a dog's life

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. - Summons or not, no dogs are allowed in the McLean County courthouse.

That means a spaniel named Nike can ignore a summons issued for his appearance June 30 in court, Sheriff Steve Brienren said.

The document was issued in a lawsuit filed by Bloomington landlord Larry Knuth, which named Eddie Willan Jr. and Nike. The complaint seeks $1,125 and the eviction of Willan and Nike from an apartment Knuth owns.

The dog was named as a defendant to ensure the animal would be removed from the apartment as soon as possible, said Knuth's attorney, Mark Johnson.

State songs receiving punk treatment on album

CHICAGO (AP) - For everyone who ever thought, "Gee, if only there were a double CD of all 50 state songs, and if only they were performed by punk rock bands like 9 Spine Sückelback, Dead Clown Pile and Pinhead Circus," Jack Ball has just the thing.

The founder of New York City-based Coolidge Records has put together "Coolidge 50," a compilation of punk versions of all 50 state anthems, arranged in order of the states' entry into the Union.

Ball, 27, spent two years lining up 50 bands to donate their talents. He wanted a band from each state, but in a few cases had to settle for having at least one member from the state.

"I let the bands try to be as free as possible as far as performing the songs," Ball said. "I didn't want to be restrictive."

He wasn't, according to Delaware Gov. Thomas Carper, who thought The Crash's rendition of "Our Delaware" was "too edgy" for his taste.

"I wouldn't, however, rule out its use during the inauguration of a new governor - if we ever get around to electing someone with green hair and multiple piercings in curious places," Carper wrote in a thank-you note.

Ball sent a copy of the album to every governor as well as President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore. Gore "didn't respond, so I'm thinking maybe Tipper got hold of it," Ball said.

Coolidge is a small label with a roster that includes such unknowns as the Beatnik Termites, Lancaster County Prison and Meatjack.

Ball said he chose only performers who admired their states. He had to reject a Georgia group after its members told him how much they hated their state and looked forward to mangling "Georgia on My Mind."

The governor of Delaware offered words of encouragement.

"I do look forward to Coolidge's upcoming endeavors - which, I presume, include yodeling the Constitution and gangsta rap versions of our State of the State addresses," he said.

Rangers lose yet again to Halos, 5-1

ARLINGTON (AP) -- The Anaheim Angels dominated the Texas Rangers last year and showed they haven't forgotten how to do it.

Jim Edmonds, Garret Anderson, and Tim Salmon homered and Omar Olivares pitched into the seventh inning as the Angels won for the 12th time in 14 games Friday night, beating the Texas Rangers 5-1.

"It's a great way to start our season series," said coach Joe Maddon, the interim manager while Terry Collins serves his eight-game suspension. "Olivares did a wonderful job."

Olivares (4-2) gave up one run and six hits in 6 2/3 innings. He struck out five and walked five. Greg Cadaret pitched 2 1/3 innings for his first save since Aug. 2, 1994, when he was with Detroit.

"To win game one of this four-game series is a big factor," Olivares said. "If we win tomorrow night we're right back in it."

The Angels were 8-4 against Texas last season.

Texas starter John Burkett's wildness got him in trouble in the Greer's homer was first at the Ballpark in Arlington since May 11... Domingo Cedeno singled in the second inning to give him a career-high nine-game hitting streak... Texas' 4-8 record against the Angels was its worst mark against them since a 1-6 record in 1980.

sixth inning when the Angels scored three runs to make it 4-1.

Burkett (4-6) hit Dave Hollins and walked Edmonds before Tim Salmon hit an RBI single. After Cecil Fielder grounded into a double play, Anderson hit his seventh homer.

Salmon's eighth homer of the year in the eighth put the Angels up 5-1.

Burkett allowed five runs and seven hits in 7 2/3 innings.

"I just made three big mistakes and they hit them out," said Burkett. "You have to give them a lot of credit. Olivares pitched a great game and Cadaret did a good job."

Texas manager Johnny Oates said the Texas pitching needs to come around.

"We're getting to the point where I'd like to see some 1s, 2s and 0s instead of 5s, 6s and 7s," Oates said. "I'd like to see some ballgame where we don't have to score 7 or 8 runs to win."

Rusty Greer's homer in the first inning gave the Rangers 1-0 lead, but Edmonds tied it in the fourth with his 12th homer.

NASCAR

It's no accident that Hereford resident Victor Hill (above) keeps his 98-vehicle collection of NASCAR Winston Cup stock cars close to his television. Hill parks in front of the television for every NASCAR Winston Cup race.

SPEED NEED

Hereford man's NASCAR passion yearns for additional garage space

By BOB VARMETTE
Sports Writer
Victor Hill admits it. He started watching NASCAR racing because of the wrecks.

Like many race fans who don't follow the sport on a regular basis, who don't know every detail about a driver's life, or car, or team, he found himself wanting to see action. And at that time, action to Hill meant wrecks.

"What hooked me at first -- it sounds silly -- they had a lot of accidents," Hill said. "I mean, 'wow, look at this, wham, bang' going at 189 miles per hour."

That was 15 years ago, when

Hill's love with NASCAR racing was in its infancy. But as the years have passed, and the number of races the 42-year-old Hereford native has watched has mounted, his viewing preferences have changed.

Gone is the desire of most novice fans -- the desire to see cars careening into each other and into retaining walls at high speeds. Now Hill watches races with a much more discriminating eye.

"I get upset when there's a lot of accidents now. I'd rather see a good, clean race. I just don't care for the accidents anymore. I want to see a good, close race," Hill said.

West Texas not being known as a hotbed of NASCAR interest -- not like the South where NASCAR Winston Cup and Busch fans are as plentiful as kudzu -- one might wonder why Hill chose to make Winston Cup racing his sport of choice.

He owes it all to his late uncle -- Chindo Hill. Hill said his uncle was watching races on television whenever they were on. Visits to his uncle on Sunday afternoon were not for sitting on the porch and watching the world slowly pass by. It was for sitting down on the couch and watching 42 stock cars race by.

Jazz stay alive with 83-81 win

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Basketball Writer

CHICAGO -- Not so fast, Chicago Bulls.

Michael Jordan missed a last-second 3-pointer that would have won the NBA championship Friday night, and Karl Malone made sure the Bulls would have to earn their sixth title away from home.

Malone finally played the kind of dominant game that had been missing this series, scoring 39 points as the Utah Jazz beat the Bulls 83-81 and sent the NBA Finals back to Salt Lake City. The Bulls lead the best-of-7 series 3-2.

Malone shot 17-for-27 from the field and scored 17 points in the third when the Jazz took the lead for good, but the Bulls didn't go quietly or without high drama.

Toni Kukoc flung up a knuckleball 3-pointer that swished through with 5.5 seconds left, making it 82-81, and Utah's Jeff Hornacek missed one of two foul shots with 1.1 seconds left.

The Bulls had one last shot, inbound from midcourt, and the tension only increased as each team called a timeout as the last play was almost set to be run.

John Stockton deflected the first pass out of bounds, and the referees reset the clock from 0.3 to 0.8. Jordan then flung up a 3-pointer that hung high in the air but ended up as an airball.

The United Center crowd left in stunned silence, and the Jazz suddenly had new life.

Still, they'll need two more wins to prevent the Bulls from winning their sixth championship this decade.

"I tried not to think about all that was said," Malone said. "Everybody had us written off. We needed to win a game -- and we did."

"If we continue as a team, we have a chance. We won the game as a team, not as Karl Malone."

As Malone found the touch on his outside shot, the Jazz found another offensive option in Antoine Carr. The 13-year veteran scored 12 points after totaling just four in the first four games. He made two key free throws with 10.4 seconds left, and the Jazz barely hung on.

Jordan finished with 28 points but shot only 1-for-7 in the fourth. Kukoc was the player who carried Chicago offensively, scoring 30 points on 11-for-13 shooting to help make up for a dismal offensive night by Scottie Pippen, who went 2-for-16 before fouling out.

The Bulls dropped to 5-4 in title clinching games. Malone fed Carr for a jumper that made it 74-69 with 4:45 left, and Pippen was then called for an offensive foul. Malone backed in on Dennis Rodman and scored on an underhanded finger-roll -- perhaps his prettiest bucket of the night -- for a 76-69 lead. But the Bulls weren't done.

Jordan's two free throws made it 76-71, and the Bulls had three chances to get even closer. But Jordan missed two jumpers, Pippen missed an easy tip and Carr hit a 17-footer to make it 78-71.

Colonial going all-out to be site for '03 Ryder Cup

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH -- Question: What's Billy Bob's monster honky tonk got to do with Fort Worth's zoo, TCU's football stadium, Ross Perot Jr.'s airport, the Cultural District's glittering museums and the renowned Hogan's Alley?

Not to mention the Dallas Cowboys and Texas Rangers, the sparkling new Bass Performance Hall and the billionaire Bass boys' Sundance Square and Caravan of Dreams?

Answer: They're all part of Colonial Country Club's audio and video pitch for wooing the Ryder Cup in 2003.

Besides the local charms and venues, you can toss in the Texas Gulf Coast, the mountains of Big Bend and personal appeals from Gov. George W. Bush, Byron Nelson and the late Ben Hogan as part of the Fort Worth club's bid to land the series of matches between the world's best golfers.

"Kind of boggles the mind, doesn't it?" says club president Clark Martin, who admits that some World War II battles were fought with less strategy than Colonial is using to capture the cup matches.

And probably fewer dollars. The Colonial scheme, which included a glossy, sophisticated presentation to the PGA of America, even involves a new bridge over the Trinity River.

"If we can't go after it in a first-class way, we're not going to do it," says Colonial Tournament Chairman Phil Thomas. "We felt we had a very good chance, and we made a commitment early on."

The unusual mix of saloons, stadiums and so forth is part of a package aimed at answering Ryder Cup concerns about transportation, parking, crowd control, lodging, entertainment, special ceremonies and corporate chalets for high-rolling sponsors.

Quoting an unnamed source

"If we can't go after it in a first-class way, we're not going to do it. We felt we had a very good chance, and we made a commitment early on."

-- Phil Thomas
Colonial Tournament Chairman

with ties to the PGA of America, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported in May that Ryder representatives were "blown away" by Colonial's formal presentation.

The source described Colonial as a strong contender.

"I'd say we've got at least a 50-50 shot," suggests Martin, who said he believes the famed Pinehurst 2 course in North Carolina is Colonial's major competitor.

Lanny Wadkins, the 1995 U.S. Ryder captain, and Bruce Lietzke, who is helping captain Ben Crenshaw shape America's 1999 team, agree that Pinehurst and Colonial appear to be the frontrunners.

"It would be wonderful to see it at Colonial," Wadkins told a reporter. "It would be a hell of a benefit to our team because we play that course every year."

Some felt the victorious Europeans had a distinct advantage in the 1997 matches at the Valderama Golf Club in Spain because of course familiarity.

Besides Colonial and Pinehurst, other courses under consideration are Medinah in Illinois, Congressional in Maryland and, reportedly, Pebble Beach in California.

A decision is expected in August.

Tom Watson, a member of four Ryder Cup teams and the U.S. captain in 1993, said during the recent tournament here that Colonial could be a great Ryder Cup host course.

"It's already a very fine course," said Watson, who, at age 48, won the MasterCard Colonial last month in his 22nd appearance.

"All this course needs is firm greens and a little bit of rough and it would be a great golf course for any tournament or for a Ryder."

In a decision unrelated to the cup matches, but quite timely, Colonial's board of governors planned a facelift next year that includes upgrading the greens and bunkers and planting and removing trees.

Jim Furyk, the Colonial runner-up, said the course already is one of his favorites.

"It would be super for match play," he said. "There are so many different ways to play a hole, it leaves players so many options. Plus, in the fall when the weather is good, the course would be in great shape."

Maybe. Maybe not. "It would have to go through that summer of stress," Watson pointed out, referring to the torrid Texas heat of June, July and August that often spills over into September, the month of the biennial Ryder matches.

"That's the problem in September here."

Mark Calcavecchia, also in town for the Colonial, said he'd heard concern about the club's

Dodgers slip by Rockies, 2-1

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- Dave Mlicki got his first win with the Dodgers when Eric Young hit a go-ahead homer in the eighth inning Friday night to give Los Angeles a 2-1 win over the Colorado Rockies. Mlicki (2-4), making his second start for the Dodgers after arriving in the trade that sent Hideo Nomo to the New York Mets, gave up one run and five hits in eight innings. He walked none and struck out four. Young, who played with Colorado last season, hit his second homer of the season off Darryl Kile (5-9), who lost his sixth straight start despite allowing just five hits and two runs in eight innings. Raul Mondesi's 15th homer off Kile in the fifth accounted for the Dodgers' other run.

Greg McMichael, also part of the Nomo deal, got the final out for his first save.

The Dodgers, who didn't have a baserunner against Kile through the first 4 1-3 innings, tied it 1-1 on Mondesi's one-out homer.

NASCAR

"I started just watching a little bit with my uncle," Hill said. "I went to visit him on Sundays, and I'd ask him, 'What are you doing?' and he'd go, 'Oh, I'm watching the race.'"

"I'd sit there and watch with him. I was only watching a little bit, I didn't watch it as much as he did. It took time, but then I really got into it."

Now, he's into it. Really into it. About as into it a fan can get without actually having attended a race.

Hill watches every Winston Cup race. He has schedules so he knows exactly when a race starts so he won't miss a minute of it. He has a VCR and a tape in it ready to go at a moment's notice. Hill, who works at Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home in Hereford, has at times had to use that VCR and tape when he's been called into work. But as soon as he gets home, it's back to racing.

Not much else can red flag his race viewing. He does make one concession to Elisa, his wife of six years, though. He doesn't watch the Busch Grand National races, which usually run on Saturdays. At least not live, anyway.

"She's got to have some time to watch the TV," he said with a smile. It does help to have an understanding wife.

Like many other NASCAR fans, Hill's passion for the sport goes beyond just watching the races on television. He subscribes to several different magazines that concentrate upon Winston Cup racing.

Then there are books that he reads, mostly to get information about his favorite driver -- seven-time Winston Cup champion Dale Earnhardt.

And Hill takes it even a step further. It's a step that takes him back into what some would say is childhood. He collects cars.

Not the real thing, of course. But 1/64 scale model NASCAR Winston Cup cars.

Hill currently has 98 cars on display on top of his television and VCR, and also has four 1/64 scale models of semi-tractor trailers used by racing teams to transport their cars across the country to various racing venues.

"Back in 1996, I went to a place and they had NASCAR (models). When you gassed up, you got a little car, you fill up, you buy a little car for two dollars. So I did that ... and then I went back to fill up again and got me another one."

From such innocent beginnings are often obsessions born. Those two cars were nothing like the cars that are now the first things you notice when you walk into the Hill residence.

They were generic cars, much different than the brightly painted and highly detailed scale models that are beginning to yearn for more garage space. And then there's the price.

From that initial two-car investment of $4, Hill now has a collection of collectables. Flipping through one of the magazines Hill uses to order some of the cars, you can see there's a substantial monetary investment in his collection.

"I was watching the races, and they started advertising, and I said, 'I think I'd like to buy some of these cars.' That's how I basically got started, and then I just couldn't stop," Hill said.

Hill has no plans to stop anytime soon, either. He has four more 1/64 scale semi-tractor trailers and two more cars on the way.

Winston Cup racing has changed dramatically in the last decade. While the fan base has increased almost exponentially, as well as the amount of money involved in the sport, so has driver movement.

Gone are the days when a driver might stay with the same team for his entire racing career and stay with the same car for years. With Ford's decision to pull its now-discontinued Thunderbird came the Taurus. That means the teams that had previously raced Thunderbirds have gone to the Taurus.

And that means more cars to buy for Hill, who strives to keep his collection current.

"I like to show them off," Hill said. "When people see them, they get real excited, and when they get excited, I get excited. Lisa thought I was going to stop, but I'm not ... It's affordable, I like the way the cars look."

"I feel like a little kid. I'm very proud of them."

ability to handle Cup-style crowds -- large concentrations of fans on a handful of holes.

"You know," he said, "20,000 people following four groups would be kind of tough spectating out there."

Did he perceive the problem as insurmountable?

"Oh, I don't know. Pebble Beach isn't great for that, and neither is Pinehurst ... We had the Ryder Cup at Kiawah Island, so we can have the Ryder Cup anywhere."

Martin, the club president, conceded that Colonial is not the perfect site, but maintains that the committee has answered all the PGA's questions.

Thomas, the tournament chairman, confirmed that Colonial would surrender its coveted May PGA Tour date in 2003 if it gets the Cup matches, but only for one year.

"We would do nothing to harm that relationship," he said. "I think it will be win-win for everyone involved. Colonial is very sensitive to its May date ... and I think it's very special for the tour to have one of its courses picked for the Ryder Cup."

Thomas and Martin insist Colonial's vivid history is a selling point as much as its popularity with the touring pros. With 52 tournaments dating back to 1946, Colonial holds the distinction of being the oldest stop on the PGA circuit to be played at the same site.

Referring to the former champions, a tearful Watson said winning Colonial was like winning the Masters.

So did a letter from Hogan himself, written more than a year before his death when Colonial decided to make its bid for the matches.

"Being a former Ryder Cup captain ... I would consider it a personal favor if you would give Colonial's application your serious consideration," he wrote in part.

Wryly, but respectfully, Martin told a reporter last week, "It would be a shame not to grant Ben Hogan's death wish."

Kukoc's third 3-pointer of the night came with 1:48 left, making it a four-point game, and Jordan's two free throws made it 78-76 with 1:13 left.

Malone made his final basket on a corner jumper, restoring the four-point lead. Kukoc was fouled by Malone from 3-point range with 18.9 seconds left, and he made the first two and missed the third.

The Bulls scrambled to foul Carr with 10.4 seconds left, and the journeyman center stepped to the line for the biggest shots of his life.

Good, and good. The two shots made it 82-78, and it ended up being just enough. The series resumes with Game 6 on Sunday night. Game 7 would be Wednesday night if necessary. "We didn't have a chance if we lost this game," Stockton said. "We'll lay everything out and see what happens."

With Malone again scoring almost at will against Luc Longley, it took until Rodman's first appearance of the night for the Bulls to catch up. Rodman entered after the Bulls fell behind 14-8, but they quickly caught up, with Kukoc as their only offensive weapon.

Reds bomb Houston, 8-1

CINCINNATI (AP) -- Barry Larkin spent two hours in the front office talking about his trade request, then singled in a four-run first inning and added a solo homer and a sacrifice fly as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Houston Astros 8-1 Friday night.

With a banner in left field pleading, "Say It Ain't So Barry," the Reds' team captain and last remaining link with the 1990 World Series championship team helped Cincinnati snap out of a five-game losing streak.

The Reds hit five singles in a four-run first off Jose Lima (7-3) to set up only their second victory in 10 games. Larkin had the second of the singles and scored a run.

Larkin also led off the third inning with his fifth homer and his first since May 29. He completed his night with a sacrifice fly in a three-run eighth off Bob Scanlan, who set up the inning with a throwing error.

It was Larkin's first home game since general manager Jim Bowden announced that his agent had requested a trade because the Reds are rebuilding.

Mike Remlinger (4-7) gave up a game-opening homer to Craig Biggio, his 10th, then toughened to get his first victory since May 6. The left-hander held the National League's best-hitting road team to only one more hit, walked two and struck out five in a season-high eight innings.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal ivory gown of Italian de-lustered satin. The sleeveless bodice was overlaid with re-embroidered Alencon lace and featured a pearl-edged jewel neckline and armholes.

Triple pearl trim defined the empire waist, which flowed into a generous A-line skirt. The low square back was enhanced with a bouffant bow and long streamers which draped over the detachable formal train. Her veil of double ivory illusion was gathered onto a pearl encrusted crown.

She carried a bouquet of ivory magnolias and roses on a bed of Boston and Arcacia fern, accented with blue gypsolia, ivory tulle and navy organza French ribbon.

Bridal attendants wore navy blue floor-length satin sheath gowns. They each carried a single magnolia nestled in a bed of ivory tulle and fern, and accented with navy organza French ribbon.

The couple was honored with a reception in St. Anthony School gymnasium.

The reception dinner was provided by Maggie Guerrero and San Jose TYM. Others assisting were Lupe Castillo and Linda Dominguez.

The bride's table was covered with ivory lace and centered with a bouquet of ivory magnolias and roses. The bride's classic ivory four-layer cake was frosted in a basket weave design. The layers, separated with pedestal lifts, were topped with strawberry glaze and an assortment of fresh fruit.

A chocolate layer cake, frosted with chocolate basket weave frosting and topped with fresh fruit served as the groom's cake.

The bride is a 1991 graduate of Hereford High School. She is currently attending West Texas A&M University majoring in secondary education. She is employed by Hereford ISD under the vocational department.

The groom is a 1984 graduate of Hale Center High School and a 1988 graduate of West Texas State University where he lettered in football four years. He is employed by Hereford ISD as the offensive coordinator and high school health teacher.

— YOUR EYES —

Bloodshot Eyes

A smokey room. A windy boat ride. A good cry. An allergic reaction to a cat. Too much to drink. All sorts of things can cause your eyes to become bloodshot.

Often when eyes are bloodshot, they're also dry and itchy and can feel and look uncomfortable. The redness comes from the blood vessels on the surface of your eyeballs which are swollen when irritated.

To get rid of the red, apply a cold compress to your eyes for a good half hour. Or try re-moistening your eyes with artificial tears. Medicated eye drops such as Murine and Visine contain a vasoconstrictive substance that will shrink the blood vessels for about 45 minutes. So if you need to clear up your eyes quickly for an important meeting, consider using them.

Finally, if your eyes remain red after a day or the red is accompanied by pain or vision loss, see your optometrist.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

It's Still A Grand Old Flag

Recently, as I drove through one of the great cities of the Midwest, I saw a huge American Flag flying high in front of a business. It was evening and large spotlights flooded Old Glory with radiance.

My heart swelled with pride as I watched the breeze unfurl "my" flag. Oh, I know the flag doesn't belong to me personally. It is the property of all Americans. However, it doesn't diminish my pride one bit to share my flag with you.

As I continued driving, my thoughts flew back to my early school days. Every morning, from first grade through senior high school, my school day began with prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance to our flag. I know it's not politically correct, but I believe we would have fewer problems in our schools if we still started all school days that way.

Each room in our school contained a flag. We were reminded of it often as we studied history, geography and math. Yes, I said math. You see we had to count those Stars and Bars and know what they stood for.

In recent years, there's been much ado about a few isolated incidents of flag burning. The United State Supreme Court even decided that these radicals have every right to spit on, tread on and burn Old Glory. I even saw one wear my flag as a diaper. Frankly I wanted to change his diaper, but the judges decided it is freedom of speech to do what you will to our flag.

The Court issued a decision that the flag is just a symbol, and that each person gets from a symbol the meaning he puts into it. That be the case, let me tell you what that red, white and blue symbol means to me.

The Symbol of Freedom

My flag stands for freedom. Freedom to do what is right, just and honorable. Freedom to own, to create and freedom to benefit. Freedom to go as I will and do as I see fit, so long as what I do does not infringe upon the rights of others.

My flag symbolizes my freedom to pursue happiness. It does not guarantee my happiness. It does not symbolize a government who is going to finance my happiness. It simply grants me the privilege of choosing a course in life that will bring happiness.

My flag reminds me that the "Republic for which it stands" is a great one. Never in the history of civilization has there been a greater nation. America, with all her faults, is still the best this earth has to offer.

My flag serves as a constant reminder that many men and women have given their lives so that we who live might continue to enjoy our freedom. And while we enjoy the blessings and protection our flag offers, may we remember both the cost and responsibility that come with them.

My flag is a symbol of all those who have the personal courage to stand up for their convictions even when their stand is unpopular. I can assure you that Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Franklin were not popular in England. Yet these men and many others wanted what was the best for colonial America.

As we enjoy Flag Day this year may we be reminded of all our flag stands for. Years ago I read a toast to America. I don't recall it completely, but what I can remember I offer as a Flag Day Salute. "May we enjoy addition to our friends, subtraction from our wants and needs, multiplication of our riches and blessings and division among our enemies."

Don Taylor is the co-author of "Up Against the Wal-Marts." You may write to him in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, TX 79105.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Have you noticed that after being out of town for a week there seems to be six times as much work to do when you return?

At the end of the first week I was sure 1,000 children had been in to register for the Summer Reading Club, but once the cards were counted there were only 440. Maybe it is because each of those 440 children have visited the library two or three times this week.

We have changed the program and everyone likes it a lot better, even Moms. We have developed a READO game which is a lot like bingo. Instead of a number in each square there is an activity. As the child performs the activity the square is marked off.

The activities include reading a book of your choice, read for 20 minutes, help a friend find a book, and good library behavior. Prizes are given as the four corner, five in a row, Texas T and black are crossed off.

It isn't too late to get started, so come on in.

Many of the kids have challenged their parents to read more this summer. Well, how about it parents, grandparents, or child care provider? Are you up for the challenge? This could be a great family activity.

We even have a good selection of new books to choose from. Andrew M. Greeley's new book Contract with an Angel is a modern and refreshing twist on the ancient legend of Faust.

Though he never took time to notice, Raymond Neenan has damaged a lot of lives which makes him hated or feared by everyone he has ever met.

On a flight headed toward Chicago's O'Hare airport the man sitting beside Neenan looks a lot like Michael Jordan. The Jordan look-alike introduces himself as the archangel Michael (not Mike or Mickey but Michael).

Michael is there on a mission to save Neenan's soul. "The scenario says you don't have much longer to live. You'd better straighten out the mess you've made of your life."

Neenan has to sign the contract for his soul or be damned. He isn't interested unless money is involved and he isn't falling for this angel bit.

Then the air turbulence sends the plane earthward which causes Neenan to reconsider. He doesn't believe it, but what could it hurt to sign?

According to the contract, Neenan must now make amends to all those in his personal and business life. This proves to be no easy task. With Michael as his mentor, Neenan is able to help some of the people he has ruined, and discovers he enjoys it. There may be hope for him after all.

Blood Artist is Chuck Hogan's second novel and gives evidence of a true suspense writer. The story begins in the Congo with the opening of a uranium cave which has housed and nurtured a deadly virus for centuries.

Doctor Stephen Pearse and Peter Maryk are called to the mining camp where the virus has killed everyone within its reach. To stop it they order the area bombed to reveal the cave.

Two years later the same disease appears in a small New England town of Plainville. As head of the Bureau of Disease Control, Pearse is called, along with Maryk who runs the bureau's special pathogens section of the disease detectives. As the two follow the new outbreak it becomes clear that the virus is being spread by one particular human host.

The last survivor of the Plainville outbreak, now immune to the virus, is the source of serum for life, making her a critical target. Pearse and Maryk must keep her safe, while formulating a plan to capture the one who brought the virus from Africa.

Galilee by Clive Barker is about the war between two American dynasties, the Gearys and the Barbarossas. The battle is on between human and divine, natural and supernatural.

Rachel Pallenberg never dreamed she would meet, much less marry, America's most eligible bachelor. Rachel falls madly in love with Mitchell Geary which results in a most romantic engagement and wedding.

Then the nightmare of married life begins when Rachel discovers the dark family secret. The war with the Barbarossa family is a fight in an intense exchange of flesh and soul.

The Abduction by James Grippando is a story centered around the American political process. Allison Leahy is the U.S. Attorney General, the most renowned lawyer in America and one of the top Democratic nominees for President.

Allison is happily married and living the picture of the ideal 21st century American couple. African American, Lincoln Howe is a retired four-star general, grandfather and another top presidential nominee candidate.

Allison and Lincoln are neck and neck in the presidential race and each one is looking for the one thing that will put them in the winners circle. The unthinkable happens. Lincoln's 12-year-old granddaughter is kidnapped.

The nation is outraged and Attorney General Leahy launches a massive manhunt. Each side claims the other is manipulating the investigation to gain the political advantage.

The truth that is driving Allison is far more personal. Years before, Allison's adopted daughter was stolen from her home, never to be found. Allison realizes she must remove herself from the campaign if she wants to save the life of the innocent child. The culprit remains just out of reach and seems to be linked to the highest office in America.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: If I could get my hands on the guy who invented Viagra, the newly concocted pill that restores "life" to old geezers who are over the hill, I would wear his neck.

I am 62 years old and the mother of six grown children, and I was thrilled when my 64-year-old husband began to slow down (if you catch my drift) about two years ago. I never was crazy about sex, but being from the old school, I listened to my mother. She said a woman should never refuse her husband because if he isn't taken care of at home, he will look elsewhere.

It was bad enough last December when our children gave us a trip to Hawaii for our 40th wedding anniversary. The romantic setting really gave my husband a boost. We had more sex on that trip than we'd had in the previous 10 years. When we got home, I needed a vacation. Thank heavens, after that his sex drive almost disappeared completely, which was fine with me.

So now what happens? A pill called Viagra is invented, and the old goat is back in the saddle again. I do love my husband, Ann, but I believe I have earned a rest. Besides, these pills cost $10 apiece. Last week, he took four. If you have any views on this subject, I would like to hear them, and I'll bet thousands of other women would, too. Thank you, Ann. -- Nameless in Ohio

Dear Nameless: I have already received a ton of mail about Viagra. Most of the readers are calling it a "godsend," while about one-fourth of those writing say they wish their husbands had never heard of the drug.

According to an Associated Press story, a urologist in Atlanta developed writer's cramp from filling out prescriptions -- 500 in two weeks. Now, he is using a rubber stamp. Until this discovery, potency drugs had to be injected with a needle or inserted in the urinary tract. Small wonder that Viagra, a pill, is enjoying such wide acceptance.

And now, a word of warning: According to reports in the Chicago Tribune, at higher doses, Viagra can cause severe headaches. Also, men who are on medication for heart trouble or hypertension should know that Viagra could cause blackouts or fainting due to a drop in blood pressure. Dr. Michael Marmor, a professor of ophthalmology at Stanford University, said that FDA clinical trials of the drug showed that at higher doses, Viagra can cause retinal dysfunction and adversely affect vision for hours. It is obvious that this miracle drug may have some drawbacks, so, my friends, beware.

Dear Ann Landers: Something is bothering me, but I don't want to talk about it with anyone close to me because I might come off sounding petty or small-minded. I know I can depend on you for an honest, straight-from-the-shoulder answer.

I am the godmother to three children. How long are godmothers expected to buy gifts for birthdays, Christmas, first communion and so on? My oldest godchild is now 14. He has his mother telephone me two weeks before his birthday to remind me that "the special day" is coming up. I also am given several suggestions on what I might buy for him.

It seems to me that when kids just assume they are entitled to something, it is no longer a gift, and maybe I should put a stop to it. What do you think, Ann? -- Port Huron, Mich.

Dear Port Huron: It sounds as if you finally woke up and smelled the coffee. Congratulations. That phone call is more than a "reminder" -- it's a shakedown. Ignore it.

Water planners make conservation push

State water planners predict that by the year 2030 water demand could exceed water supply in some areas of the state. For that reason planners are making a major push to protect its greatest natural resource.

"We're in the middle of a planning process for how we'll meet future demands," said Dr. Bruce Lesikar, agricultural engineering program leader for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "The state has been divided into regions, and each region will decide how to meet future demands in its area."

The planning results from Senate Bill 1, a law passed by the legislature that made major changes to Texas water policy.

Senate Bill 1 came about in response to the 1996 drought which caused millions of dollars in damage to crops and livestock in Texas.

The legislation called for the first statewide water plan to cope with drought, population growth and environmental issues.

With the state's population expected to double to 36.5 million by 2050, a new water plan must account for this growth.

Several state agencies have partnered together to educate citizens about how they can be good water managers.

The educational effort aims, among other things, to inform farmers about new irrigation technologies, industry about water recycling and homeowners about saving water inside and outside the home.

Options to meet future demands include developing additional water capturing systems or additional treatment processes - options which may carry a price tag for citizen drinking water, Lesikar said.

The cheaper alternative is water conservation which promotes efficient use of water, he said. A good conservation program would lower the water consumption usage, and the difference would go to meet future demands.

Such a program includes low pressure showerheads, low-flow toilets, drip irrigation and xeriscape gardening. Xeriscape gardens use native plants, which are better adapted to local conditions, and thus require less water and maintenance.

The Texas Water Development Board, the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department will work together to expand educational efforts across the state.

For a list of area staff members contact Dr. Bruce Lesikar at (409) 845-7453.

TAES schedules water seminar

AMARILLO - Rangelands provide more than just grazing for area livestock, according to Dr. Ted McCollum, area beef specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Amarillo and an organizer of the upcoming June 30 conference on water enhancement on the High Plains rangelands.

"Rangeland watersheds are a primary source of water in the playas, lakes, and streams in the Panhandle," said McCollum.

Ag operators and residents rely on rangelands to provide water for daily consumption, wildlife habitat, boating, fishing, and other recreational activities.

"A better understanding of the rangeland watershed function will aid the development of management plans by ranchers and land managers," he added.

The conference begins at 8:45 a.m. at the Amarillo Garden Center. Anyone interested in watershed management and water conservation is encouraged to attend.

Many aspects of rangeland water enhancement and management will be discussed throughout the day.

Speakers will include Dr. Ron Lacewell, current and future water demands; John Williams, dilemmas for municipal water supplies; Dr. Ernest Fish, rangeland watershed function; Dr. Bill Pinchak, grazing management and others.

The event is sponsored by Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University system, and the Texas section of Society for Range Management.

For more information contact Dr. Ted McCollum (806) 359-5401 or the local county agent.

Brumley awarded 4-H Salute to Excellence

COLLEGE STATION - Janice Brumley of Hereford has been awarded the Texas 4-H Salute to Excellence award in recognition of her hard work and years of service to the 4-H club.

Brumley has been an active Deaf Smith County 4-H leader for 14 years and her youth programs have facilitated communication between 4-H youths and adults.

Brumley has served as a county and district judge for youth events and as a sponsor and coordinator for 4-H's state contest, Roundup, for five years.

She volunteers on various Texas Agricultural Extension Service committees and is currently serving as the secretary/treasurer of the Deaf Smith County 4-H parents Association. Brumley tirelessly recruits young people and adults to participate in many different aspects of the Citizens 4-H Club and the Deaf Smith 4-H club.

She has taught countless numbers of adults to become project leaders and encouraged their volunteer participation and leadership.

Beverly Hardee, Deaf Smith County Extension Agents, said Brumley has been instrumental in leading her club in a pilot project on Smokeless Tobacco Awareness among the youth, health and safety programs, good citizenship and county government education.

"Through her leadership, numerous youth have learned, grown and enjoyed the 4-H program in development of their 4-H careers," Hardee said.

Wheat farmers change strategies

Hoping to get a little extra mileage out of their crops, some wheat farmers are venturing into the milling business.

"We raise the wheat. We ought to get the margin from milling the wheat, the next process," said Kevin Day, general manager of the Farmers Cooperative Association in Hobart, Okla.

Thirteen southwest Oklahoma cooperatives have joined to form Southwest Grain Marketers LLC to invest in a $16 million flour mill in Saginaw, Texas.

Country Home Milling Co. is expected next year to start milling, using spring and winter wheat to produce the high-quality flours.

Hoppers feel effects of less pesticides

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) - Control of grasshoppers has been primarily an all or nothing deal for farmers and ranchers. Either pour on the poison or try to ignore the damage done by the irksome insects - until now.

Experiments last year in southwestern South Dakota and southeastern Wyoming showed that use of less pesticide than normal can still provide enough of a knockout punch to take the economic bite out of marauding hoppers.

"It looks extremely promising," said Nelson Foster, an animal plant and health inspection service entomologist from Phoenix who has spent more than two decades researching control of rangeland grasshoppers.

"This is the most exciting thing in terms of potential cost reduction that I've seen in a long time," he said of the new experiments.

Foster will again set up shop later this month in carefully selected hopper-infested areas of South Dakota and Wyoming to continue his research.

"We are finding that you no longer need maximum mortality as a goal in grasshopper control," he said. "You may be able to live with, say 80 percent mortality, and still show a profit."

Foster's experiments use less pesticide than normal and treat alternating swaths of land instead of an entire parcel.

"If you settle for a 15 percent reduction in the mortality over what you might expect with normal treatment, you might cut pesticide costs by 60 to 70 percent and cut application costs by 20 to 50 percent," he said.

Malathion and carbaryl are Foster's pesticides of choice for hoppers.

The University of Wyoming and state agriculture department in South Dakota are assisting with the experiments.

A STYLE ALL IT'S OWN

Open Family Style Kitchen

© BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

This home designed by W. D. Farmer includes a lot of livability on one floor. It demonstrates that elegance and wise use of space go hand in hand.

The design offers pleasures for the whole family. The two family bedrooms are located so as to afford privacy for the master bedroom, but still encompass all the bedrooms in a sleeping wing. Each includes a walk-in closet, and additional linen storage is provided in the central hall, which also provides access to a full bath.

The large great room is almost square, thus providing greater wall placement for furniture. A fireplace is indicated, to warm up those chilly nights.

The expansive island kitchen serves as a back drop for family gatherings, and is meant to be appreciated. There is a breakfast room with bay window and a door to the covered porch is provided. Also indicated is a stair up to the bonus room, which can adapt to many uses, and maximizes the space of the home. Under this stair is a storage closet or pantry, and access to the double garage is adjacent.

The master suite is shown with a tray ceiling, and the unexpected luxury of his and hers walk-in closets. A glorious bath with garden tub, separate shower, linen storage and twin lavatories provides creature comforts for the homeowners.

There are multiple gable roofs over horizontal siding, along with a front porch meant to be enjoyed on summer evenings. Plan number Z-612 includes 1,639 square feet of heated space and is furnished with a crawl space and a foundation. The optional bonus room includes 318 square feet of space, and could be finished at a later date, as family needs require. All W. D. Farmer plans include construction details for substituting brick, frame or stucco exterior finish.

WASTE WATER AND YOU COULD GET SOAKED.

About 75% of a typical household's indoor water use takes place in the bathroom. Saving water saves you money. Especially hot water, since it takes energy to heat water. So Be Water Smart and

- Take short showers instead of baths; and
- Install low-flow showerheads and low-flow toilets.

The average shower uses 42 gallons of water. A low-flow showerhead can save a family of four almost 35,000 gallons a year. A low-flow toilet can cut indoor water use by an additional 20%.

Practice saving water and Be Water Smart

• Reduce volume of water in toilet tank by placing a plastic bottle full of water in tank (do not use bricks - they crumble);

• Do not use toilet as a trash can;

• When brushing teeth or shaving, turn water off until it's time to rinse;

Every Drop Makes a Difference.

Writing Want Ads that really sell! Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints: --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price. --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition. --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations. -- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Boiling is by far the most reliable method to make water of uncertain purity safe.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS
 Humor is the great thing, the saving thing. The minute it crops up, all our irritations and resentments slip away and a sunny spirit takes their place. -- Mark Twain
 Dorothy Sargent, who is retiring from the administration building, quite often shared her humor with others. Having taught her grandchildren makes us have more in common, and she shared the following with me. If you have, have had, or know a teenager, you should enjoy the comparison.

I just realized that while children are dogs -- loyal and affectionate -- teenagers are cats. It's so easy to be a dog owner. You feed it, train it, boss it around. It puts its head on your knees and gazes at you as if you were a Rembrandt painting. It bounds indoors with enthusiasm when you call it.

Then, around the age of 13, your adorable little puppy turns into a big old cat! When you tell it to come inside, it looks amazed, as if wondering who died and made you emperor. Instead of dogging your footsteps, it disappears. You won't see it again until it gets hungry -- then it pauses on its sprint through the kitchen to turn its nose up at whatever you are serving.

When you reach out to ruffle its head, in that old affectionate gesture, it twists away from you, then gives you that blank stare as if trying to remember where it has seen you before.

You, not realizing that the dog is now a cat, think something must be desperately wrong with it. It seems so anti-social, so distant, sort of depressed. It won't go, willingly, on family outings.

Since you are the one who raised it, taught it to fetch and stay and sit on command, you assume that you did something wrong. Flooded with guilt and fear, you redouble your efforts to make your pet behave. Only now you are dealing with a cat, so everything that worked before, now produces the opposite result. Tell it to sit and it jumps on the counter. Call it and it runs away. The more you go toward it, wringing your hands, the more it moves away.

Instead of continuing to act like a dog owner, you have to learn to behave like a cat owner. Put a dish of food near the door and let it come to you. But remember that a cat needs your help and affection, too. Sit still and it will come, seeking the warm, comfortable lap it has not entirely forgotten. Be there to open the door for it.

One day, your grown-up child will walk into the kitchen, give you a big hug and kiss and say, "You've been on your feet all day. Let me get those dishes for you."

Then you will realize your cat is a dog again!

 DEVELOPMENTAL STAGES AND AGES
 Developmental stages are periods of time children grow and learn new behaviors. At each stage, children are capable of doing only certain things because of their size, age and maturity. The four general kinds of developmental stages are:

1. Physical development means that as children get older they usually get bigger. Usually when they get older and bigger, their gross motor and fine motor skills increase. Gross motor means activities like running, throwing, jumping, crawling, etc. Fine motor means activities like writing, holding a fork and knife, using scissors, etc. Physical development is important for helping children not only increase their skills but also organize their behaviors.

2. Intellectual development means that children learn more the older they get. They learn to recognize shapes and colors, recite the alphabet, figure out problems, and many other things. These intellectual abilities continue to increase as children continue to grow.

3. Language development means that as children grow older their communication skills increase. Their ability to use words, phrases and sentences in writing and in conversation help them gain mastery of their environment by expressing their needs and understanding the needs of others. Language expands from a few simple sounds during the first year of life to the use of thousands of words in their teen years.

4. Social and emotional development go hand in hand. The way we treat children and the care they receive affect the way they mature and are capable of interacting with others. Children's emotional growth goes from an early stage of dependence and taking to the later stage of independence and giving.

Everyone goes through stages of growth as they grow and mature into adults. In fact, developmental stages continue right into old age. We all go through stages, some of us faster than others, and some of us more thoroughly than others.

A word of caution. No child is "average" in all areas of growth. Children are unique. Some are better at doing certain tasks than others. The experiences and opportunities children have, as well as the abilities they are born with, influence their development. Children learn to do certain skills at different ages. Knowing what to expect from your child will lead to success. Establishing a strong attachment with your child helps the family succeed during every developmental stage.

For more information on the developmental stages of children, teens and adults, come and be a part of the DRESS YOUR FAMILY FOR SUCCESS program at San Jose Community Center on Thursday evenings from 6-9 p.m. Drop-ins are welcome. Child care is provided if you call ahead so we can make sure we have enough child care workers. You may call ahead or call for information about the program to Tili Boozer 364-4357.

IRON WOMAN
 This is Food and Family, on iron-rich foods to stay healthy.

Women need more iron than men, especially when they are pregnant, breast feeding or during the first six months after a baby is born. Iron-rich foods also keep kids from getting sick as often -- and help them learn better.

Many foods contain iron -- for example, whole grains and dried legumes and fruits -- and it's good to eat many different sources of iron every day.

Also, it's true that cooking with an iron skillet can help you get more iron. That's because, when you cook in an iron pan, a little iron rubs off on your food.

And when you're eating a food rich in iron, also eat or drink something high in vitamin C -- like orange juice, strawberries or cantaloupe. The vitamin C will help your body absorb the iron.

Food and Family comes from WIC -- the Women, Infants and Children Nutrition Program at the Texas Department of Health. For free nutrition counseling, call 1-800-WIC-3678.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: We received the following fax a while back and just discovered it recently. It is a fantastic hint and I want to share it with you:

In order to keep our two 6-year-old grandchildren entertained and involved in their grandfather's 75th birthday party, I bought each of them a disposable camera. I gave each one half the guest list, then practiced showing them how to use the camera along with the following dialogue: "Excuse me, is your name on my list?" If yes, then, "May I take your picture?" If no, then, "Please see my cousin."

I made a headband "Press" sign for each to wear. When their pictures were developed, I presented each with an album of pictures (lopped-off heads, pictures of the waist, chandeliers, etc.) as a memento of their first reporting assignment. They thoroughly enjoyed themselves and, what's more, our guests enjoyed them. -- Estelle Jacobs, Bethesda, Md.

Budding reporters have to start somewhere, and this sure sounds like the place. Your idea would be fun at almost any party. Thanks for writing. -- Heloise

POTPOURRI
 Dear Heloise: A friend gave me potpourri as a gift. The smell didn't last too long, so I emptied a small perfume sample into each bowl. They smell wonderful. -- Marion Klein, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHING INSTRUCTIONS
 Dear Heloise: I enjoy your column and want to pass along this hint. When I clip washing instructions out of clothing or from rugs or bedspreads, I tape them in a notebook, which I keep on a shelf in the laundry room. -- A reader

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

WASTE WATER AND YOU COULD GET SOAKED.

- About 75% of a typical household's indoor water use takes place in the bathroom. Saving water saves you money. Especially hot water, since it takes energy to heat water. So Be Water Smart and
- Take short showers instead of baths; and
- Install low-flow showerheads and low-flow toilets.
- The average shower uses 42 gallons of water. A low-flow showerhead can save a family of four almost 35,000 gallons a year. A low-flow toilet can cut indoor water use by an additional 20%.
- Reduce volume of water in toilet tank by placing a plastic bottle full of water in tank (do not use bricks - they crumble);
- Do not use toilet as a trash can;
- When brushing teeth or shaving, turn water off until it's time to rinse;

Special counts down the '100 best American films'

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Movie buffs may want to have pencil and paper handy when they sit down to watch AFI's 100 Years ... 100 Movies on CBS. The three-hour event, airing Tuesday, June 16, is a countdown of films representing 10 decades of moviemaking.

The selections will be announced in reverse order, from 100 to 1, by hosts Jodie Foster, Richard Gere and Sally Field. Also featured during the evening are interviews with celebrities who share reminiscences of their favorite films.

The event continues the following day with the publication of a special edition of Newsweek magazine and the release of all the top 100 movies on videotape. Special stickers, to be pasted on after the show airs, will identify the boxes.

The list has been a closely guarded secret for six months, ever since the ballots came back from 1,500 hand-picked voters. Among those with a say in the matter are hundreds of industry leaders, plus two dozen or so critics (yes, including Gene Siskel and Roger Ebert) and some distinguished amateurs, such as President Bill Clinton and Vice President Al Gore.

The countdown is a project of the American Film Institute, famous for its Lifetime Achievement Awards and for its efforts to preserve old films. As a nonprofit arts organization, the AFI stays above the fray of studio warfare and movieland hype. But it's certainly not above creating a big-screen brouhaha.

"We know this is subjective and these choices are going to cause some controversy," AFI Director Jean Picker Firstenberg says. "We expect that, because it's such a personal decision."

Certainly there's something more than a little bit cheeky about making a list of the 100 best American films of the past 100 years. But that doesn't make it any less tempting.

Each juror was handed a list of 400 movies from which to choose. The list, compiled by a blue-ribbon panel of historians and curators, included all the Oscar-winning best pictures and most of the best acting performances through 1996, except where winners were not American.

Culled from approximately 75,000 American movies, the 400 representatives include The Birth of a Nation, Citizen Kane, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, High Noon, E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial and Pulp Fiction, plus such surprising choices as Animal House and Reds.

Jurors were instructed to make their choices on the combined basis of awards and critical recognition, popularity over time, historical significance and cultural impact.

"What we've been told, and I certainly know I experienced, was that when everyone sat down to make these choices, it took a long time," Firstenberg says. "Because you really went through those 400. Immediately you got rid of a few, and then all of a sudden you were still left with 150 or 200."

So is The Jazz Singer more of a landmark than Citizen Kane? What about Top Hat vs. The Sound of Music? Is it too soon to judge GoodFellas against The Grapes of Wrath? And is a sentimental favorite like Gone With the Wind a shoo-in for No. 1?

There are some surprises among the winners, Firstenberg promises, and even she may be disappointed if one of her favorites isn't selected.

"But that's good," she insists, "because it just shows the depth of interest in American movies."

Actress Jodie Foster, who is no stranger to fine films (Taxi Driver and The Silence of the Lambs are eligible for consideration), co-hosts AFI's 100 Years ... 100 Movies. Sally Field and Richard Gere join her for the three-hour event, which airs Tuesday on CBS.

Face of Russia offers insight on complex culture

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

From Dostoevski's dark view of humanity to Tchaikovsky's fairy-tale melodies, from the primitive mysticism of church icons to the colorless communist era, Russia often seems remote and inscrutable to outsiders, a monolith of fragments.

The Face of Russia, a three-part documentary beginning Wednesday, June 17, on PBS (check local listings), is one man's attempt to explain the enigma.

Series host James H. Billington presents Russian art and cultural history as a key to the national psyche. Now head of the Library of Congress, he has studied Russia for 40 years.

Billington wastes no time on introductory remarks, as his subject defies generalities. Instead, he leaps quickly into a rewarding segment on the nation's passion for overwhelming size. Texans, with their love of the large, look like pikers compared to the Russians. One of their earlier projects was to build a huge public building. If the structure had been completed, it would have crushed the very ground it stood upon. The brief essay reveals a fatal flaw: a national tendency toward the impractical.

Billington spends the balance of his first hour, "The Face on the Firewood," on the expression of the Russian spirit in the sacred art of iconography. And he shows how, once communism discredited the church, iconic formality was co-opted by party leaders.

On subsequent Wednesdays, the second and third hours take on the czarist legacy, with its love-hate relationship with Western Europe, and the emerging forms of literature, opera and film, which frequently express unresolved and sometimes immobilizing feelings of guilt, sadness and human perfidy.

Part 2, "The Facade of Power," follows the art of adornment as it moved from churches to palaces, masking the hardships of the peasant majority. Part 3, "Facing the Future," shows how the fine arts were used for Soviet disinformation, yet may now provide the elements for healing and an invigorating vision of the future.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
 ©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Whatever happened to Lee Horsley of Matt Houston? I know he did a couple of busted series, but it seems that he has fallen off the face of the Earth. —Art K., Austin, Texas.

A: Horsley turned to theater after his TV fortunes went south, appearing to great acclaim in productions of the musicals Mack and Mabel and Annie Get Your Gun.

The good news for TV fans is that Horsley stars this fall with Bo Derek in Wind and Water, an NBC drama about feuding families in Hawaii. Hmmm — Bo Derek, drama — better catch this one while you can, unless the show's creators have something original up their sleeves.

Q: Shortly after Full House went off the air, I could have sworn I read that Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen had a sitcom in development. What ever happened to it? —J. Burleson via e-mail.

A: The unaccountably popular Olsen twins have made a series of successful TV movies and will star in an ABC series this fall called Two of a Kind, which is expected to anchor the network's TGIF lineup.

Q: Back in the late '60s or early '70s, there was a comedy on TV about a scientist who made a pill that gave him superpowers. I believe it was called Mr. Fantastic. Who was in it, and when was it on? —John in Albany, Ga.

A: You're thinking of Mr. Terrific, a CBS flop that ran from January to August 1967. Stephen Strimpell played mild-mannered Stanley Beamish, who turned into a caped crusader after taking a pill. (This was at the height of the Batman TV mania.)

Veteran comedy actors Richard Gautier and John McGiver were in the supporting cast, but the most interesting trivia item is that leading man Strimpell previously auditioned unsuccessfully for the role of Captain Nice, an equally big NBC flop starring William Daniels, now of Boy Meets World.

Q: Are Dana Delaney (China Beach) and Kim Delaney (NYPD Blue) sisters? —Rachel Paul, Port Arthur, Texas.

A: They're not related. Dana's last name is "Delany," not "Delaney."

Q: What happened to actor Stephen Boyd? —Curious in Saint John, N.B., Canada.

A: Although the picture of health, Boyd died on June 6, 1977, of a heart attack. The native of Belfast, Northern Ireland, was only 49.

Q: Did Jason Alexander (Seinfeld) play Radar on *M*A*S*H*? —Helen Cookemaster, Grand Blanc, Mich.

A: No. Gary Burghoff, now 58, played Cpl. Walter "Radar" O'Reilly on the long-running CBS sitcom. Alexander is only 38.

SOAP WORLD

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

After more than four decades of writing soap operas, William J. Bell is stepping down from his head writing duties on The Young and the Restless.

"After 42 consecutive years of writing and creating serials, the most exciting challenge imaginable, I've decided the time has come to slow down a bit, catch my breath," Bell says. "I will continue to function as senior executive producer and executive story consultant."

Bell will pass his duties to co-head writer Kay Alden. She has been a Y&R writer for 10 years and has won two Emmys as a part of the writing team.

Fans needn't worry about the story lines changing too drastically, as Bell will still be actively involved.

Dear Candace: I was so happy to see Michael Zaslow (David Renaldi) on One Life to Live again. I would like to know where to write him. —Stephanie Cooper, South Paris, Maine.

Dear Reader: So many of you have commented on your need to show Zaslow your support. He is an amazing man and will appreciate your good wishes.

You may write Zaslow c/o One Life to Live, ABC-TV, 77 West 66th St., New York, NY 10023.

Dear Candace: I want to send in my protest to Another World. It is the only soap I have ever watched, but it has declined dramatically this past year. The firing of Charles Keating (Carl) was the last straw. The show needs to get its act together. —D.L. Fargo N.D.

Dear Reader: There were several rumors floating around that the show would be canceled soon, but that is a bit premature. So far, NBC has offered its continued support of the low-rated drama.

Dear Candace: I am a big fan of Days of Our Lives, but I didn't like when LeAnn Rimes appeared on the show as a homeless girl. I don't think it is fair that she can just get a role because it is her favorite show. —Dorothy Hobbs, Reed, Ky.

Dear Reader: It was the producers' idea to bring Rimes on. She just went along with it.
