School board meeting

A regular scheduled meeting of the Hereford Independent School trustees will be 6 p.m. Monday at the administration building board room, 600 N. 25 Mile Ave.

Items on the agenda include administering the oath of office to the newly appointed member; consideration of Morris Blankenship to the TASB board; consideration of the Alternative campus Rating Report; consideration of a TEA facilities grant.

During closed session, the board may discuss resignations or employment of staff and faculty.

Hospital board

Members of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District will receive a report on the search for a new Hereford Regional Medical Center administrator when they meet at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the board room at the hospital, 801 E. 3rd.

The board has been conducting a search for a hospital administrator to replace Jim Robinson, who resigned in February.

The directors also will receive a report on the interim administrator agreement.

Farmers Market

All vendors interested in selling produce during this year's Hereford Farmers Market, sponsored each year by the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, are encouraged to contact Denise Andrews, market chairman, at 276-5240.

The market has been scheduled to begin operation in early July at the Family Dollar parking lot, 111 W. Park Ave.

The market is open to all vendors, but produce must be home-grown. Planting acreage must be inspected before permits will be issued. Vendor entry fees include a $15 season membership fee and a $5 stall fee.

Census help

The Census Bureau will be administer census enumerator tests every other Tuesday, June 23-Aug. 18, at the Texas Workforce Commission, 1700 25 Mile Ave.

Tests will be administered at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.

For more information, contact the TWC office at 364-8600.

City Wide Garage Sale

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will accept garage sale registrations for the 2nd Annual City Wide Garage Sale through July 13.

The event will be 8 a.m.-5 p.m. July 18.

The registration fee is $10, and each garage sale will be listed on a locator map and furnished with a yard sign. Garage sales are to be registered at the chamber office, 701 N. Main.

Police targeting junked vehicles on city's streets

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

Junk cars, inoperable clunkers and wrecked wheels litter the city of Hereford. But, for the last three months, members of the Hereford Police Department have made a serious dent in the number of clunkers to be seen from the streets.

HPD Officer Rob Roach said at least 80 junked or wrecked cars have been investigated and moved out of public view in only three months.

Besides the 80 which have been moved or made to come up to standard, the city has 48 active cases. Roach said the department is not out to get someone who has a car of sentimental value, but rather just get the hazardous eyesores out of sight and off the streets.

"If someone has ... their grandfather's car and they just want to keep it, we can tell them how to get it up to specs and not targeted as a junk or abandoned vehicle," Roach said.

Officers want to get the message out that tarping a vehicle is no longer an adequate solution to a junk vehicle. Vehicles have to be out of sight from a public roadway.

"They're considered junk or abandoned if they are inoperable, or either the registration or inspection sticker has expired," he said.

Vehicle owners are first notified, in person if possible, then are sent notice by registered mail that they have 10 days to get the vehicle out of sight.

"Don't think that just by not claiming the certified letter, the department is going to forget about it," he said. "We keep records on it. The city can have the car towed five days after the return of the certified letter."

Vehicles on public roads which get listed as abandoned can be towed in only 72 hours.

"Your best bet, if you have an old junk vehicle with a title, call Dearing Wrecking. They'll come pick it up and even give the owner a few dollars. If we have to go through the hassle of issuing a citation and a court order for removal, it's probably going to cost the owner, maybe up to $200."

Roach said that the department is making a concerted effort to rid the city streets of nuisances, as described in the Texas Transportation Code.

"In the last few months we've really made our presence known and we're letting the residents know the junk cars have to go," said Roach.

Golf tourney auction items

The Coors Make-A-Wish Golf Tournament is scheduled July 3-5 in Hereford, and a special benefit auction will be held Friday night, July 3, by the John Pitman Golf Course Association. Bill Brown, JGFECA president, and Debbie Reinart, representing the local Make-A-Wish chapter, display some of the auction items. They include one year's use of a golf cart at Pitman Municipal Golf Course; a "Bushwacker" golf bag made by Belding Sports; a Tom Greenwood western print, "At Work, Day's End"; a pub-quality dart board made in the United Kingdom, and several other items. Non-golfers are welcome for the Friday night meal and auction.

Farmers suffering - again

MONTE ALTO (AP) - Despite the droughts and scorching heat, workers at Rio Farms have been able to keep more than 10,000 acres of citrus, sugar cane, corn, soybeans and other crops wet.

Even though sinking water levels wrecked the livelihood of other Rio Grande Valley growers, the 16,000-acre agricultural research facility always had enough water. Sometimes, there was some left over at the end of the year.

"We were all right until a few minutes ago," general manager Delbert Langford said after learning his water district was cutting back water allocations Thursday.

Rio Farms, which also leases land to 15 tenant farmers, was counting on having enough water left for 3,000 acres at the end of year. If it was too dry, that water could be used for crops next year.

Now, farmers will probably have nothing at the end of 1998.

"I can't imagine a scenario where it won't rain at all," Langford said. "It would be devastating. Farmers would go broke."

That seems like a real possibility lately, with most of Texas in some degree of drought.

Parched fields are catching on fire. Cornfields are yellowing. Soil is turning to dust, casting a pall over highways. Coyotes and opossums are showing up around homes, looking for water from hoses and pet water dishes.

The second drought to hit Texas in three years is leaving farmers in dire straits and taxing the state economy.

The state is projecting agricultural losses of $517 million this year and an overall economic loss of $1.7 billion. As of early Friday, 33 counties had begun applying for a federal disaster declaration.

Animals are heading toward homes in search of something to drink. Opossums, which raid garbage cans and eat almost anything, have been spotted most often. Veterinarians at Oso Creek Animal Hospital in Corpus Christi recently saw a coyote near their doorstep.

In Big Bend National Park, mountain lions, which usually avoid people, have been less shy this year. Park officials are warning visitors.

Hardly any part of the state is safe from drought following the combination of little rain in April and May and triple-digit temperatures earlier than expected. Louisiana is having similar problems, but nothing like Texas.

Sorching heat seen continuing in Texas

By The Associated Press

There's very little relief in sight for the scorching heat that baked Texas on Friday.

Temperatures hit 100 degrees in many parts of North Texas, including the Dallas-Fort Worth metro area. Humidity that arrived on south winds made it feel like 110 and higher across much of the region.

In West Texas, Childress and Wink hit 106 degrees by 4 p.m. Friday. In South Texas, Galveston was a relatively cool 88 degrees at 2 p.m., but the century mark was reached in Del Rio, Ilondo, Cotulla and Alice.

The forecast for North Texas was for mostly sunny skies and highs of 99 to 103 degrees and more of the same Sunday. Heat advisories will continue in much of the region.

In South Texas, the heat advisory will continue through Saturday, with highs expected to reach the mid-100s in many places.

Top readings in West Texas will range from the 90s in the mountains to as high as 108 in most other areas and near 113 along the Rio Grande.

WALKER PARRIS

Past resident named chief of state utility cooperatives

Parris elected president of KEC, Inc.

Former Hereford resident, Walker Parris has been elected president of Kansas Electric Cooperatives, Inc., the statewide association representing rural electric cooperatives which serve in Kansas.

Parris will preside over a board composed of trustee representatives from 30 distribution, two generation and transmission electric cooperatives which serve the state.

Parris had served the association as vice president two years prior to being named as president.

He is the manager of Ninescaw Rural Electric Cooperative Assn., Inc. in Pratt, Kansas.

The 1962 Hereford High School graduate is the son of former residents Lee and Olin Parris who now live in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

'98 surplus still expected

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government ran a $38.8 billion budget deficit in May, but that was down 20 percent from a year earlier and kept the federal treasury on track for a surplus in all of fiscal 1998.

The May shortfall - the difference between spending of $134.1 billion and receipts of $95.3 billion - followed a record one-month surplus of $124.6 billion in April, the Clinton administration reported Friday.

For the first eight months of fiscal 1998, which began last Oct. 1, the government had a $16 billion surplus. During the same period a year earlier, there was a $65.7 billion deficit.

Tax revenue has been flooding into government coffers this year, much of it paid on capital gains from the big stock market boom of the past several years.

Analysts expect monthly surpluses in June and September, with the quarterly payment of income taxes, and deficits in July and August. The administration last month predicted a $39.1 billion surplus for the full fiscal year, but some private economists say it could be double that.

If realized, it would be the first surplus since 1969. Just six years ago, in 1992, the deficit hit a record $290 billion.

PROFILE

Following his marriage, he took a job as a flight instructor at the Clovis Municipal Airport and came to Hereford Municipal Airport in a similar job in 1967.

While student teaching in Hereford, he jumped at the opportunity when he was approached about teaching aerospace science at the high school.

"At one time, there were 72 high schools offering aviation ground school as an elective. A kid for solo for $100 to $120 back then. The price of flying time has long since gone through the roof, and very few students can afford to solo now. We had several kids come through the program who got commercial aviation licenses, and a couple went on to become jet fighter pilots in the military," Claypool said.

He said students in the Hereford program always performed well on their aviation mechanics tests.

"This year (is) the end of the Hereford program -- one of the longest-running aerospace programs in a public school in the state of Texas," he said.

During the 1970's, the Texas Education Agency determined HHS needed a qualified instructor in theater and Claypool, sporting a degree in speech/theater, was persuaded to take up the challenge. He was responsible for both theater arts and operations of the auditorium.

"The theater arts program really grew for a time. I sometimes had two or three theater arts classes, plus aerospace. We got some help from the English department in staging productions," he said.

Claypool has worked full time in theater arts since the 1972-73 school year and helped with a theater production in 1969 as well.

He also has worked for many years with Hereford's Community Concert Association.

"I knew the stage and the auditorium and how to make the facilities here work well for visiting performers," Claypool said.

At the final concert of the 1997-98 season, Helen Langley, president of the Community Concert Association, saluted Claypool for all the assistance he has rendered to the program through the years and observed he will be sorely missed.

Claypool mentored HHS theater technology students in construction of sets and props, and the operation of lighting, sound and other stage equipment.

"Colleges like good theater tech people because they're often in short supply. If they can find a kid with some theater tech ability, they will often start talking scholarships. Our theater tech department had the highest percentage of our seniors offered scholarships of any program in HHS for several years," he said.

Claypool said the University Interscholastic League (UIL) one-act play was his favorite part of the high school theater arts program, and he worked on "21 or 22" one-act plays through the years.

"All of our one-acts have been good - Hereford has never been embarrassed by our offerings. Our district included Randall, Canyon and Dumas, and they always had good plays, too. So, it was tough to advance beyond district - just like in football - because everybody's good. We have always performed excellent productions," he said.

Claypool found this year's one-act adaptation of Shakespeare's "Hamlet" a "very complex" piece of work for its young cast. He also said "The Diviners" and "Arsenic and Old Lace" were his favorite one-act productions at HHS.

"In theater arts, especially one-act plays, kids learn to work together, depend on one another and deliver under pressure - just like athletes do in sports. The one-act play kids work every bit as hard as athletes.

"From their experiences, they derive friendships, appreciation for hard work, self-esteem and success. The kids have done the program proud through the years," Claypool said.

He and his wife, Katie, who has worked as a special education diagnostician for Hereford Independent School District, are relocating to Logan, N.M., where they plan to take a toll of the gamefish population at Ute Lake and spend time on some construction projects this summer.

Claypool said he plans to make trips back to Hereford to attend Community Concert events, among other activities.

Before actually retiring, the Claypools received a "who-cares-what-time-it-is" retirement clock from the cast and crew of the 1997-98 one-act play.

"Kids have been the highlight of this whole experience. They have to be or you couldn't devote the time that this kind of work requires. It has been fun and I have met some neat people among my students," Claypool said.

Y2K

many technology executives say they won't fly commercially on Jan. 1, 2000. Others plan to pull their money from banks and investments just before 2000.

Even if banks don't fail and planes don't collide in mid-air, many experts contend there will be worldwide inconveniences because of the Y2K problem. These experts are predicting disrupted travel schedules, power outages and hampered processing of tax refunds, veterans benefits and employee checks.

A recent survey also found 44 percent of U.S. companies already have had some Y2K problems, primarily because of credit cards with a 2000 expiration date. Also, the Pentagon's Global Command Control system failed a Y2K readiness test last summer.

The Y2K glitch is simple: Many computers cannot recognize a year beginning with "20" instead of "19" because computer programmers had used only the last two digits to refer to a year. When the clock hits midnight, Dec. 31, 1999, thousands of computers around the world will react as if it were the beginning of the 20th century, not the 21st.

To correct the problem, programmers must isolate every computer code referring to a date and correct it to it accept 2000 as a year designation.

The problem is there are thousands of programs and software in the world, with about 600 computer languages available. Also, many of the early programmers created their own styles, using code words to designate a date field. Often the code word had meaning only to the programmer, so a technician trying to determine from the program language which words refer to dates.

The federal Office of Management and Budget has estimated it will cost nearly $5 billion to bring the federal computers into Y2K compliance, although a private consulting corporation has estimated the cost will be at least six times higher.

Maples is quiet; Donald is not

NEW YORK (AP) - Marla Maples was mum when she entered a court to challenge her prenuptial agreement Friday, but her estranged husband Donald Trump had something to say about the deal.

"It's just totally iron clad," Trump said before entering the closed court session.

Maples reportedly wants to up the ante on the $2.5 million deal she signed before she and Trump wed Dec. 20, 1993. The couple, who split up last year, have a daughter, Tiffany.

of beef. That's driven pretty much by our abundant supply.

Although the cost of feed is quite good now, that situation may change with the weather and prolonged drought, he said.

The cost of feed bears watching because if a break doesn't come about soon, he said, many ranchers and feeders could see feed prices overtaking the break-even point.

Even though some of the lots are far from capacity, Rutherford said he hasn't heard of any feedlots closing.

"Most of the facilities are long-term businesses that have been through this type of market situation previously," he said. "They're very labor intensive and would have serious economic impact if they closed - even the small ones."

The controversy about hog-feeding operations in the Panhandle and other states, as well as the cattlemen vs. Oprah Winfrey trial last winter have had little impact on the beef market.

"People are going to continue to buy beef. We're going to continue to export beef and meet the demands of consumers," he said.

Rutherford does not expect this year's livestock market prices to get as low as they did in 1973-74, but he expects it will be bad enough.

Man offers a real deal

FAYETTE, W.Va. (AP) - Isn't West Virginia beautiful? Wouldn't you love to own a lovely piece of property there? Well, step right up.

Don Beals says he'll sell you a square foot of land inside the New River Gorge Canyon just below the famous New River Gorge Bridge. The price: $19.95.

So far, Beals has deeded nearly 500 squares and he expects to sell more, thanks to a huge sign facing the highly traveled New River. It invites passersby to own a piece of the "Grand Canyon of the East" and gives a toll-free phone number for them to call.

Anticipating my retirement soon from the newspaper business, I've been thinking how fortunate I've been to have a job which I really enjoy. Of course there were good times and bad, success and failure, but the mind has a wonderful facility for blunting the painful memories and the good times are remembered.

I have to work hard to recall some of the terrible crises. They seem not to matter so much now. Regrets have faded; resentments are forgotten; bitter confrontations are laughed away, and anger was long ago dismissed. What you remember are the kind, caring and helpful people along the way. Many folks, myself included, forget to pass along the compliments. But you remember the kind words which helped make your life rich and rewarding.

Later this month, I am scheduled to receive a "50-Year Award" from the Texas Press Association. The award recognizes those who have worked in the field of journalism for 50 years -- which in my case started with work on my high school newspaper and includes serving as editor of the Texas Tech Ex-Student Association publications during my last two years of college. Those years also include newspaper experiences in Lamesa, San Angelo, Andrews, Brownfield, Littlefield, Midland, Slaton...and then, the majority of the time spent in Hereford.

This is not the final entry. At that time, I'll have more comment on the people who helped me along the way. If there is a common thread to all of these years in the newspaper business, it could be identified with a single word -- people.

As noted by author Alex Haley, anytime you see a turtle on top of a fence post, you know it needed a lot of help from its friends to get there. I feel very much like that turtle.

Fond memories of Cannery Row

DON COOPER

Reflections

Sunsets seemed more vivid from Cannery Row, a place where even the sun seemed to realize its own beauty and hung low over the horizon and watched the reflections of its rays dancing on the water of Monterey Bay.

Cannery Row was one of my favorite places where I was studying German at the Defense Language Institute at the presidio, which was on top of a bluff overlooking the bay and the city that wound around it.

I had read John Steinbeck's novel "Cannery Row" long before I arrived in Monterey, so it was one of the first places I wanted to visit when I arrived in Monterey.

Now Cannery Row's on the National Trust for Historic Preservation's list of America's Most Endangered Places for 1998.

Cannery Row became the center of the canning industry that earned Monterey the title of "sardine capital of the world" in the first part of the century.

By World War II, the canneries and related businesses occupied about a mile of Oceanview Avenue on the shore of Monterey Bay.

When Steinbeck's novel about the denizens of the area hit the bookstores in 1945, sardine fishing started into a deep decline, which became complete in 1973 when the last cannery closed.

"...artisans and restaurants began to move into Cannery Row and tourism had become the area's main industry. Today two million visitors flock to the Row annually, and intensive development threatens to overwhelm the historic character that many tourists seek," a press release from the National Trust for Historic Preservation stated. "While the city's master plan states that preservation is its primary long-term economic goal, many historic structures have been demolished or significantly altered, and only two buildings have landmark designation. Unless action is taken soon, the last authentic vestiges of the Row's past could go out with the tide."

I can only imagine the changes in the Row since I left Monterey back in the '60s, so it's that past I remember so fondly.

For me, the Row was a refuge, a place to go, to get away from the pressure of trying to learn another language in just six months. It also was a place where I could forget, if only a few hours, about being in the Army.

When I got to Monterey, most of the canneries already had shut down or operated just a few weeks out of the year, so the huge buildings perched on the rocky slopes overlooking the bay stood idle, metal frames beginning to rust, holes in windows and the wood weathered and gray.

At the foot of the Row, probably where "Doc" hung out in the '30s, was the Steinbeck Theater. The theater management cooperated with the language school, frequently showing foreign films so the students could hear "their" language in use.

Cannery Row quickly became my refuge, a quiet place where I could sit on the rocks under an abandoned cannery built on a pier jutting out into the bay.

I would sit for hours on the rocks, watching the water rush in and crash onto the rocks and swirl around just a few feet below me before sliding back out to sea.

After I started my German classes, I would take my textbooks and sit on the rocks and study, accompanied just by the crashing waves, the calls of gulls who would swoop down to see if I had brought any treats for them, and the sea lions who pulled themselves up onto rocks to lie in the sun.

Now and then on the weekend, I'd take a book and head for Cannery Row, stopping at a liquor store on Alvarado where the owner would sell me beer without asking for an ID. I always thought the old guy with all the tattoos and the close-cropped hair must have been a retired sergeant who thought anyone old enough to get shot at in Vietnam certainly is old enough to buy a beer.

I'd sit under the cannery, sipping on my beer, reading my book and enjoying the company of the gulls and sea lions until the sun set, lighting the sky with an explosion of color until, like me, it had to go elsewhere.

'Little things' are better than presents

DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE

The Real World

Today is Father's Day. Hurray! That may sound a bit facetious, but it's with good reason.

This is supposed to be the one day of the year when children honor their fathers with a wide array of nearly useless gifts which supposedly speak of the giver's love for the recipient.

I hate to say this, but most of the "real" dads I know would rather have a sign of true affection every day rather than another 3-foot-long strip of oddly painted cloth. Not only that, but if they need or want clothes, tools, books or gadgets they usually get them for themselves.

I'm not really as averse to the idea of Father's Day as this sounds. I truly believe that all dads should be honored, as should all moms.

But, because of the current breakdown in the family and the number of children living in one-parent households or with stepparents, I can't help but think a common "Parents Day" would be far more suitable.

Just think of all the stepparents who accept another's child and love it as their own and then see that child hunt for the perfect father's/mother's day gift, often for a non-participating parent.

It's a no-win situation. All too often the non-participating parent couldn't care in the least about a card, gift, or spending time with the child; the stepparent is left loving the child and often forgotten; and the child sees only the careless disregard of the biological parent and hurt feelings of the stepparent.

How about all those kids that live solely with one parent and see or know little of the other? They see dads doing cooking, cleaning, and other "mom"-type stuff. They see moms changing the oil, mowing the yard and all the "dad"-type stuff.

Are they supposed to honor the parent who does both the mom and dad-type stuff on only that one particular parent's day or both days?

I remember when my oldest child insisted on calling my day off "mom's day." Some of the ways she greeted me on those days are more memorable than most designated Mother's Day.

Granted, I'm glad she has outgrown waking me by prying open an eyelid at the break of dawn to ask if I'm in there and then trying to force feed me a cold slice of leftover cantaloupe. What a way to wake up! My two little kids, now 9 and 11, have expressed their love differently. A few years ago, I pulled up in the driveway, hot and tired and ready to relax and to my surprise, painted in a giant, though somewhat lop-sided heart, were the words "Mom, we love you."

At first I thought they had used all of their fingerpaints, but I couldn't be that lucky, nope. They used my artist's oil paints. I wonder if it's still in the driveway?

Actually, I don't remember any particular gift I ever gave my father on Father's Day, nor any gift my kids gave their father, but I do remember the little things that screamed I love you louder than any Hallmark card ever could.

I remember the light in their eyes when their little gifts were deposited and their expectant attitudes, waiting to see how the gift would be received.

I don't think these little things have to be far out to get the message across that today and everyday should be parent's day.

Sweep out dad's workshop, wash the car, turn down the radical music

The little things we do -- the extra chores, the help that really isn't always a help, but well intentioned -- will be far more remembered than the material gifts.

For a while, drop in to just say hello. "Actions speak louder than words" is more than just a quaint old saying. It is a very meaningful way to live. The little things we do - the extra chores, the help that really isn't always a help, but well intentioned - will be far more remembered than the material gifts.

More than that, they can be given to parents, stepparents, children or friends with little more expense than our time.

NEWS in brief

Candy cigars called good Dad's Day gift

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) - Stuck for a sweet Father's Day gift this year? Give your old man a sinful box of cigars. Candy cigars, naturally.

The candy company that once brought us edible neckties and hammers is now offering a package of 10 milk chocolate cigars, each sporting paper bands and nestled in a traditional cigar-style box.

"We looked back at what we had before, and it just came to mind. We felt it was a more healthy alternative to the real thing," said Richard Van Doren, vice president of marketing for Sees Candies Inc.

The company, which hawks its confections in 13 western states, has been selling its $15 boxes of "Seegars" for the last two weeks.

Not everyone likes the idea of sugarcoating a bad habit.

"Even in a playful context, it's not going to be helpful," said David Shields, associate director of Americans for Non-Smokers' Rights in Berkeley, Calif.

"But it's mainly to have fun with. We're not promoting anything but having fun with a good piece of candy," he said. "The key is the same with anything else in life - moderation."

Would-be burglar gets stuck in stove vent

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) - Arriving to unlock her restaurant, Jeanne Ray heard a faint voice coming from the empty kitchen: "Help. Help."

Ray, frightened by the sound, called police, who arrived a few minutes later. "I'm up here," the voice said.

Officers found two legs, one bare and one encased in a white sock, dangling from a vent above the stove.

"What happened?" the cops asked the legs.

"I tried to crawl down and I got stuck," the man replied. He said he'd been there all night, jammed 15 feet or so down the greasy exhaust duct.

One of the man's sneakers landed on the grill, the other in a fry basket. Firefighters dropped a rope from the roof and pulled the man out.

Richard Dean Latson Jr., 24, was charged Thursday with second-degree burglary and criminal mischief.

Officers get gimmie: 2 suspects for price of 1

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) - Sometimes, even cops get a gimmie: two suspects for the price of one.

Theodore James, 24, was eating and listening to music in his car around 1 p.m. Thursday when a carjacker suddenly grabbed him by the throat and tried to swipe his car keys.

As the two struggled, James grabbed a 9 mm handgun on the passenger seat and fired a shot that missed, police said.

Police later found the unarmed carjacker hiding in the brush along a river - wet and intoxicated. Roger Holbrook, 34, was arrested on charges of robbery and car theft.

But police weren't finished with James.

"Now that we've cleared up today's shooting, let's talk about the Red Apple," Detective Scott McKee told him.

James matched the description of a man who had stolen a can opener before pulling a gun on two security guards at a Red Apple store on Saturday.

be special, too, because R.J. noted that his dad "takes a shower."

(Hasn't there been a time in all our lives when we thought it would be really special if Dad would just take a shower?)

Dads can expect a variety of gifts this Father's Day, anything from tools - specifically a screwdriver - to new pickups. But we won't reveal which dads should expect which gifts just in case the best-laid plans of 4- and 5-year-olds don't materialize.

Austin: Save water

AUSTIN (AP) - The danger of wildfires is rising like the thermometer, and Texas officials Friday said the longer the state goes without rain the worse it gets.

Since May 1, the state has assisted local fire departments battling 940 fires that have burned more than 128,000 acres, the state's Division of Emergency Management reported.

This week, alone, state fire-fighting teams have helped fight 22 fires that scorched about 2,000 acres, said agency spokeswoman Jo Schweikhard Moss.

Blame the hot weather and the drought.

"Basically, the drier the fuels, the more readily they ignite and the hotter they burn," said Bob Irvine of the Texas Forest Service.

"With little or no rain in Texas for the past three months, high temperatures and low humidity have reduced fuel moistures to 6 to 7 percent. This is drier than kiln-dried lumber found in lumber yards," he said.

Irvine said that the drought also is reducing natural moisture in living plants, including trees, shrubs and grass.

The long the drought lasts, the drier fuels become. The more direct sunlight the fuels receive, the easier it becomes to ignite them," he said.

Gov. George W. Bush last week issued an emergency proclamation for 207 of the state's 254 counties and asked President Clinton for federal help to place fire-fighting equipment and personnel in advance in areas with the greatest risk.

Federal officials still hadn't responded as of Friday, said Debbi Head, spokeswoman for the governor.

As of Wednesday night, 100 counties had burning bans in place, officials said.

Tom Millwee, state coordinator for the Division of Emergency Management, said officials hope to avoid another year like 1996, when state and federal resources and help from 23 other states were needed to combat more than 4,300 wildland fires that burned nearly 500,000 acres.

Arawak Indians, the first people to live in Jamaica, named the island Xaymaca, which means "island of springs."

Machine That Never Stops

You may not know it, but you have a machine that will keep running as long as you live. And that can be a long time, if you take good care of it. The machine? Your body.

The human body is a wonderful machine when it's in good working order. But things can happen to it that throw it out of balance. Poor posture. Muscle strains. A spinal column out of alignment putting unwanted pressure on nerve centers. A general fatigue caused by poor nutrition.

Spinal misalignments can be corrected; so can the spinal stress that results from the misalignment. The nerve centers can be soothed and pressures relieved. The "out of balance" body can be restored to proper balance.

Every machine has a structure designed for smooth operation. Any defect in that structure can cause problems. In the human body, structural defects can cause aches and pains in the back, neck, and other parts of the body. When these aches and pains persist over a period of time that means you need treatment.

Names in the News

JENNIFER JASON LEIGH

NEW YORK (AP) - Jennifer Jason Leigh is replacing Natasha Richardson in the Broadway revival of "Cabaret."

Richardson, 35, won a Tony Award this month for her role as the exotic English chanteuse Sally Bowles. She leaves the show Aug. 2, the same day her husband, Liam Neeson, ends his Broadway run as Oscar Wilde in "The Judas Kiss."

Leigh, 36, takes over for Richardson Aug. 4. It will be her first Broadway musical for Leigh, whose characters have included a panorama of prostitutes, psychos, phone-sex suppliers and junkies in films like "Miami Blues," "Single White Female" and "Short Cuts."

HARRY BELAFONTE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Harry Belafonte, known for singing calypso, is turning his attention to jazz.

The actor-singer became intrigued with this city's 18th and Vine historic jazz district when he made the movie, "Kansas City," here a few years ago. He plans to return Sept. 11-12 to co-host the second annual 18th and Vine Gala with actor Danny Glover.

Belafonte said he will work to restore the district.

"After we've gotten through with the gala, we plan on rolling up our sleeves and will start doing some very serious business," the 71-year-old said in his trademark raspy voice. "I'm deeply committed to it."

Among those scheduled to perform are Ray Charles, George Benson, the Manhattan Transfer, James Ingram and Patti Austin. It will celebrate what would have been the 99th birthday of the late Duke Ellington.

"THE SIMPSONS"

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "The Simpsons" are leaving their mark on Hollywood.

The dysfunctional cartoon family will be inducted into Hollywood's Walk of Fame next year, along with other celebrities like Alex Trebek, Wesley Snipes, Jamie Lee Curtis, Dennis Franz, Samuel Jackson and Reba McEntire.

"Variety is the spice of life and we have it with this year's selections for the Walk of Fame," said Johnny Grant, the honorary mayor of Hollywood and chairman of the committee that chooses recipients.

POLL: Mattox's only Democrat holding a lead

AUSTIN (AP) - An opinion poll published Friday showed attorney general candidate Jim Mattox as the only Democrat leading a race for one of the top statewide offices.

The Republican candidates were ahead in races for state comptroller, railroad commissioner, land commissioner, and agriculture commissioner, according to the survey. The lieutenant governor's race was nearly a statistical dead heat. The Texas Poll found Mattox with 44 percent support to 35 percent for Republican candidate John Cornyn. One percent preferred neither, 18 percent were undecided and 2 percent gave no answer.

The poll, conducted for Scripps Howard by the University of Texas Office of Survey Research, surveyed 1,014 adults June 1-12 and recorded answers from 691 respondents who identified themselves as likely voters. The margin of error was 3.7 percentage points.

The findings were published a day after the same poll showed Republican Gov. George W. Bush with a big lead over Democratic challenger Garry Mauro. The survey gave Bush 70 percent support to 17 percent for Mauro.

In the attorney general's race, both sides told the Austin American-Statesman newspaper that they were pleased with the results. "It shows my message of balanced government and strong law enforcement cuts across party lines," said Mattox, who was attorney general from 1983 to 1991. "I'm especially gratified by our strong showing after being out of government for eight years."

Cornyn's campaign said the poll reflected the Republican's growing popularity and name identification among voters.

GOP disenchant its business allies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional Republicans have managed to antagonize some of their big business contributors by taking stands that make it harder for U.S. companies to trade abroad.

"The plain truth is that many men and women in business do not feel that this Congress is legislating as they were led to expect," Business-Industry Political Action Committee leaders Charles Mack and Bernadette Budde said in a memo to supporters.

Willard Workman, vice president for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's international division, agreed.

"It's no secret that we in the business community have been surprised, especially in the area of international trade, by the kind of anti-business rhetoric that has been coming from our friends," Workman said.

Of course, business still has influence in the Capitol as illustrated by the Senate's effectively killing tobacco legislation this week that was strongly opposed by business groups.

What those in the business community have in mind, though, are such votes as last month's House action to impose economic sanctions on countries that persecute religious minorities. Another vote - popular on the House floor, presumably popular with conservative constituents but not so popular in some American board rooms - was to ban U.S. satellite exports to China.

Next up: Renewal of most-favored-nation trade status to China, allowing the country to sell goods to the United States under the lowest tariffs. President Clinton earlier this month announced his support for a one-year renewal, which will take effect unless Congress votes to block it.

The issue comes against a backdrop of allegations that Clinton approved satellite sales to China in exchange for campaign contributions.

Mayors say growth threatened

RENO, Nev. (AP) - A new study that checks the pulse of American cities warns that poor urban schools and middle-class flight threaten the strongest economic performance cities have witnessed in a decade.

The second annual "State of the Cities" report released by the U.S. Housing and Urban Development Department at the U.S. Conference of Mayors national convention offers both a soothing and sobering picture of the urban landscape.

Simply put, the patient is doing well but disease, in the form of growing concentrated poverty in the inner city, poses significant risks.

Good news for cities abounds in the 75-page report.

The economy has produced 16 million new jobs and record low unemployment. And the number of employed people living in central cities increased by almost 3.7 million people in the past five years.

Unemployment in central cities fell to an average of 5.3 percent early this year from 8.2 percent in 1993.

Downtowns that just 20 years ago more closely resembled ghost towns in Cleveland, Baltimore, St. Louis and Washington have become tourist meccas thanks to sports arenas and arts centers.

Even crime, the age-old bane of city dwelling, has been tamed to a degree. Violent crime fell 19 percent in big cities between 1993 and 1997.

Despite the impressive gains, poor city residents are being left behind by growing numbers of middle-class residents.

Since 1970, nearly 6 million middle-income and affluent families left central cities, according to the report.

Poor schools are one of the most frequently cited reasons for the middle-class flight, according to the study. In 1994 and 1996, 60 percent of children in urban school districts failed to achieve basic competency on standardized reading and math tests.

And in the nation's 20 largest urban school districts, more than half of the students never graduate.

"For millions of urban youth, finishing high school and attending college seem an impossible dream - this in an era demanding high skills for high wages" the report says.

It asks: "If we are not now ready to take on these challenges when the budget is in surplus, unemployment is at record lows and the stock market is at record highs, when will we be ready?"

The South Pole was discovered on December 14, 1911 by Roald Amundsen of Norway. He beat a British expedition led by Robert F. Scott by five weeks.

Business leaders agree: New U.S. tax code needed

NEW YORK (AP) - There's at least one tax issue on which businesses large and small seem to agree, that being the elimination of the present income-tax code. But then things become complicated.

"There is absolutely no doubt that this tax code must be pulled out by its roots and never seen again," says Todd McCracken, president of National Small Business United, which represents various regional business groups.

The code, adds Jack Faris, president of the 600,000-member National Federation of Independent Business, "is inefficient, unconscionable and should not be passed on to our children and grandchildren."

And the National Association of Manufacturers, whose members include some of the nation's most powerful industrial companies, states that "the federal tax system as now configured is beyond repair."

Each organization believes the code is a costly abomination, a waste of national assets, a burden on individual citizens and businesses and a hindrance to saving, investing, economic growth and jobs.

JOHN GUNNIFF

Business Mirror

But agreement on the overall issue disguises disagreement on details. Some business groups support the House's 218 to 209 commitment to begin the termination process now. Others want to wait.

And so, before a new tax code is produced, a long, complicated, controversial process lies ahead, with the political battles being only one aspect of a larger conflict. Businesses are divided on details.

The major disharmony at the moment is over the possible confusion that might be created in declaring an end to the existing code at a specific future date without any indication of what might replace it.

Not knowing, asks McCracken, how are owners of small-businesses (500 or fewer workers) to plan for such requisite details as asset depreciation and capital gains? He cites a NSBU poll showing 65 percent of members want an alternative plan first.

"We cannot place America's 23.3 million small businesses in the position of not knowing what rules are for the future," he says. "And that's what we would be doing if we sunset the code."

The NAM agrees. "We defer to no one in our enthusiasm for scrapping the tax code," said senior vice president Paul Huard in a letter to the House leadership, but not until details and a new code have been passed.

The NFIB vigorously disagrees. "The purpose of sunseting the current code on a date certain is to force Congress to get serious about fixing our tax system," Faris said.

To him, the House's decision to sunset the present code by Dec. 31, 2001, is a necessary first step in a campaign launched by the NFIB last September. Now, he said, he'll fight for Senate approval.

The NFIB discounts the confusion argument, claiming that lack of a commitment simply delays progress toward the goal, and that, besides, confusion hardly could be greater than with the present code.

Whatever action is taken by the Senate or by the president, who has promised to veto the measure if passed by Congress, controversial details must still be thrashed out. It could produce some hot arguments.

The most basic of these is the nature of a new code, which could be a flat tax, a sales tax, a blend of both or maybe neither. It will be a hard debate, since proponents closely guard the purity of their versions.

McCracken suggests either would be preferable to the existing code, and said he hopes to make tax discussions central to upcoming election debates.

The NAM most likely will stress the need for "simplicity, elimination of multiple taxation, and stability" as outlined in a resolution on growth and taxes at a board of directors meeting Feb. 10, 1996.

The NFIB says it will push hard for Senate approval of the termination act and continue its campaign to abolish the code. To its logo, "Small Business Works for America," it has added "...and the IRS should too!"

HMO: No to Viagra

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Kaiser Permanente, the nation's largest health maintenance organization, won't cover patients' costs for impotence drug Viagra because it would be too expensive.

Kaiser officials said that limiting patients to 10 pills a month would cost Kaiser more than $100 million a year. That's more than 50 percent higher than what the HMO spent in 1997 for all anti-viral drugs, including protease inhibitors for treatment of HIV.

The company said doctors, ethicists and pharmacists were involved in the decision, which also considered such issues as the medical necessity of sex and the dangers of recreational use.

Some 2 million prescriptions have been written for Pfizer Inc.'s Viagra since it was approved by the Food and Drug Administration in April. The pills retail for up to $10 each.

Earlier this week, Aetna U.S. Healthcare said it wouldn't pay for Viagra and only about half of state-run Medicaid programs provide Viagra benefits.

The Appraisal Review Board Will Meet July 21, 1998.

Property Tax Protest and Appeal Procedures

The law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax appraisals. You may follow these appeal procedures if you have a concern about:

- the market or special appraised value placed on your property
- the unequal appraisal of your property
- the inclusion of your property on the appraisal roll
- any exemptions that may apply to you
- the qualification for an agricultural or timber appraisal
- the taxable status of your property
- the local governments which should be taxing your property
- the ownership of property
- the change of use of and receiving special appraisal
- any action taken by the chief appraiser, appraisal district or appraisal review board that applies to and adversely affected you.

Informal Review

Come by and see Danny or Mark to discuss 1998 appraisal or call 364-0625.

Review by the Appraisal Review Board

If you can't resolve your problem informally with the county appraisal district (CAD) staff, you may have your case heard by the appraisal review board (ARB).

The ARB is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals or other concerns listed above. It has the power to order the CAD to make the necessary changes to solve problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a notice of protest) before the deadline, the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You'll receive written notice of the time, date and place of the hearing. If necessary, you may request a hearing in the evening, Saturday or Sunday. Prior to your hearing, you may ask to review the evidence the CAD will use to uphold their determination. The CAD may ask you for a copy of the evidence you plan to present. The hearing will be informal. You or a designated agent may appear in person to present evidence or you may send notarized evidence for the ARB to review at your hearing. The CAD representative will present evidence about your case. You may cross-examine the CAD representative. The ARB will make this decision based on the evidence presented. The CAD has the burden of establishing the property's value by a preponderance of the evidence presented. You can get a copy of a protest form from the appraisal district office at 140 E. 3rd Street.

Note: You shouldn't try to contact ARB members outside of the hearing. The law requires ARB members to sign an affidavit saying that they haven't talked about your case before the ARB hears it.

Review by the District Court

After it decides your case, the ARB must send you a copy of its order by certified mail. If you're not satisfied with the decision, you have the right to appeal to district court. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 45 days of the date you receive the ARB's order.

Tax Payment

If you appeal and your case is pending, you must pay the lesser of the amount of taxes due on the portion of the taxable value not in dispute or the amount of taxes due on the property under the order from which the appeal is taken.

More Information

You can get more information by contacting your appraisal district at Deaf Smith CAD, P.O. Box 2298, 364-0625. You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the appraisal district or from the State Comptroller's Property Tax Division at P.O. Box 13528, Austin, Texas 78711-3528.

Deadline for Filing Protests with the ARB is July 20, 1998

Usual Deadline

On or before May 31 (or 30 days after a notice of appraised value was mailed to you, whichever is later).

Late protests are allowed if you miss the usual deadline for good cause. Good cause is some reason beyond your control, like a medical emergency. The ARB decides whether you have good cause.

Late protests are due the day before the appraisal review board approves records for the year. Contact your appraisal district for more information.

Special Deadlines

For a change of use (the appraisal district informed you that you are losing agricultural appraisal because you changed the use of your land), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.

For ARB changes (the ARB has informed you of a change that increases your tax liability and the change didn't result from a protest you filed), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of determination was mailed to you.

If you believe the appraisal district or ARB should have sent you a notice and did not, you may file a protest until the day before taxes become delinquent (usually February 1). The ARB decides whether it will hear your case based on evidence about whether a required notice was mailed to you.

Stewart clings to one-stroke lead

THE 98TH U.S. OPEN

By RON SIRAK
AP Golf Writer

SAN FRANCISCO -- The cool breeze off the Pacific Ocean couldn't blow away the suffocating pressure of the U.S. Open on Friday, where one errant shot at The Olympic Club frequently led to disaster.

No one felt that sense of suffocation more than Payne Stewart, who made several important putts but watched helplessly as a short one that missed by inches on the final hole rolled 20 feet away.

Chewing ferociously on his gum and wading almost constantly into the bogey-making rough, Stewart held on for a 71 to take a one-stroke lead over Jeff Maggert and Bob Tway at 3-under-par 137 after 36 holes.

Lee Janzen grabbed a share of the lead with birdies on Nos. 15 and 16, but he went from the rough to the bunker on the 468-yard 17th hole and made a double bogey and still shot a 66. He was at 139 along with 19-year-old amateur Matt Kuchar and 32-year-old journeyman Lee Porter.

On a day in which Casey Martin and his cart made the cut for the weekend rounds, player after player succumbed to the unique demands of a U.S. Open golf course.

Nothing symbolized the frustrations of the day more than the 8-foot birdie putt Stewart had on the final hole.

The ball missed the cup by inches, nearly came to a stop, then gathered speed and rolled 20 feet past the hole while the knickered player stood helplessly with arms folded and watched.

"I really thought I would have about 3 or 4 feet coming back up the hill," Stewart said. "Then all of a sudden it's 20 feet."

He missed the putt coming back for his third bogey in five holes.

"That was borderline ridiculous where they had the pin," he said. "I wasn't really pleased about that."

Stewart's finish was reminiscent of the 1996 U.S. Open when he made

U.S. OPEN AT A GLANCE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- A look at the second round Friday of the U.S. Open, played over the par-70, 6,797-yard Lake Course at The Olympic Club.

Leader: Payne Stewart shot a 71 for 3-under 137.

Lurking: Jeff Maggert (69) and Bob Tway (70) are at 138.

Leaving: Davis Love III, Tom Watson, Steve Jones, Fuzzy Zoeller and Nick Faldo were among those who missed the cut.

Low amateur: Matt Kuchar, who finished 21st in the Masters, shot a 69 and was at one under.

Low legend: Jack Nicklaus (147) made the cut with a 20-foot birdie on the 18th hole. He has made the cut in both majors this year.

Round of the day: Lee Janzen (66), who was six under for the day until a double bogey at No. 17.

Shot of the day: Lee Porter holed a wedge from 112 yards for eagle at No. 18 to get to 1-under 139.

Quoteworthy: "I come to the U.S. Open expecting nothing to be fair." -- Janzen.

Noteworthy: Stewart came back to the field with bogeys on the last two holes. Two years ago at Oakland Hills, he did the same thing by bogeying two of the last three.

Rangers trounce Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) -- Juan Gonzalez homered and drove in five runs to increase his major league-leading RBI total to 86 as the Texas Rangers beat the Anaheim Angels 7-3 Friday night.

Gonzalez took over the RBI lead from Mark McGwire, who has 82, as the Rangers ended Anaheim's four-game winning streak and cut the Angels' division lead to a half-game.

Gonzalez went 3-for-4, including a two-run homer in the ninth off Shigetosi Hasegawa and a three-run double in the seventh that snapped a 2-2 tie. He has 22 homers this season.

Rick Helling (10-3) gave up three runs and nine hits, walked none and struck out five in seven-plus innings. Chuck Finley (7-4) was the victim of four unearned runs.

Rangers Notes: Helling hasn't exactly been overpowering against the Angels either, with a 2-3 mark and 7.96 ERA in five starts prior to this matchup against Finley. ... Helling gave up just two hits in eight innings in his win against Finley last Sunday. Finley gave up the four runs on 13 hits and 6 1-3 innings. ... The Angels outscored Texas 33-16 during the four-game series that wrapped up last Monday.

Cecil Fielder, who hadn't made an error in 40 previous starts at first base this season, made two costly ones for the Angels. His error in the fourth led to Texas' first run, and his miscue in the seventh opened the door for the Rangers' three-run inning.

Finley, a 4-2 loser last Sunday in the Angels' only loss in a four-game series in Texas, was charged with five runs on six hits in 6 2-3 innings in the rematch.

Matt Walbeck's two-out RBI single for Anaheim tied it 2-2 in the sixth. Jim Edmonds and Tim Salmon singled to open the inning for the Angels, then Helling got Fielder on a foul pop and struck out Garret Anderson before Walbeck singled. Helling ended the inning by getting Justin Baughman on a fly to left.

Former Angel Luis Alicea had put the Rangers up by a run with a leadoff homer in the fifth. It was just the third homer of the year for Alicea, who played for Anaheim

Gordon claims Pocono 500 pole

POCONO 500

Location: Long Pond, Pa.

Start Time: 11 a.m. CDT Sunday

Circuit Length: 2.5-mile triangular oval

Purse: $1.5 million

1998 Pole: Jeff Gordon, 168.042 mph

Lap Record: 169.725 mph (Gordon, 1996)

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) -- Jeff Gordon picked a perfect time to run his fastest lap of the day, and showed he wasn't afraid to take a chance with the pole practically a foregone conclusion if he hadn't.

So, when he scraped the wall Friday during his qualifying run at Pocono International Raceway, it served as another reminder to his Winston Cup competitors that he hasn't won two series championships by being timid.

"Right from the start of practice today, the car felt real good and comfortable where you could run aggressive and carry a lot of speed through the corners," Gordon said after turning a lap at 168.042 mph to claim the pole for the Pocono 500.

He was fast from the moment his Chevrolet was unloaded Friday, so quick that he figured as a probable pole winner and major force in the race unless a bad starting position Sunday forced him to play catchup. Still, he came within a few inches of creating that scenario.

And he knew it before he began his run.

"I was sliding around a little bit coming to take the green," he said, recalling the final seconds before his time test. "Then, I put a good lap together."

Perfect, in fact, until the last of the three tight turns on the 2 1/2-mile triangle. Then he hit the wall, harder than he realized or cared to admit.

"I just brushed the wall coming off the last turn, it was very minimal," Gordon said of the run that fell short of his 1996 track record of 169.725. "We really didn't scrub very much speed off it."

That's debatable, but what isn't is that he has the car to beat when he tries to become the only driver to win the race three years running.

"I didn't even look at it," Gordon said of the damage to the car. "When I had the lap, that's all that mattered to me."

Second-fastest was Rusty Wallace, who would like to end the second-worst drought

Stars sweep 2 from Braves

By BOB VARMETTE
Sports Writer

Let's state the obvious. Errors will kill you in baseball.

Just ask the Hereford Stars. They dropped five of their last seven games largely because of defensive miscues.

Friday was their turn.

The Stars capitalized upon 13 errors, 10-run ruling the Amarillo Braves, 13-3 and 10-0, in a West Texas Summer League double-header at Whiteface Field.

And the Stars only committed one error. That makes winning a lot easier.

"Defensively, we've worked real hard during practice," said Hereford coach Johnny Dan Alaniz. "Basically, that's what we've been working on. We've tried some different guys at some different positions and it's worked pretty good."

The Zambrano brothers -- Ram and Hector -- got the wins for the Stars. Ram Zambrano went 3 innings in the first game, shutting out the Braves on one hit. Corey Ortiz worked the final two innings, giving up three runs on four hits.

"We were giving everybody a chance to play ball," Alaniz said. "We wanted to do that considering who we were playing against."

Hector Zambrano went the distance in the second game, tossing a one-hitter and fanning seven.

The hitting wasn't exactly overpowering for Hereford; it was timely. The Stars rapped out 10 hits in the first contest and then nine more in the second game. But what really got the Hereford attack going was the unlucky 13 errors by the Braves.

"You look at these guys (the Braves)," Alaniz said, "they're going to be freshmen next year. It's kind of inevitable."

Hereford kicked off the first game with a run in the bottom of the first inning, then exploded for seven runs in its half of the second. The Stars got five hits, but only three of the runs were earned as Amarillo committed a pair of costly errors in an inning that saw Hereford bat around.

Seth Pietsek led off the inning reaching on an error when Braves center fielder Gerald Carlin dropped a fly ball. Eddie Lacey and Jacob Davis then followed with back-to-back singles up the middle.

Following a double to the gap in right by Joseph Valdez, L.J. Valjejo plated a pair of runs with a single to center. Valjejo went 3-for-3 with three RBI and scored twice in the first game.

Valjejo would later score on a double by Andrew Ramirez, his first of two on the night. Valjejo also had a pair of doubles for Hereford.

The Stars then added three runs in the fifth inning. Valjejo reached on yet another error and Ramirez reached two batters later with his second double. Kyle Artho ended the game on a two-run single to left-center field.

"As young as they are, they're going to make some errors," Alaniz said. "That's just the way the ball bounces."

Anthony Martinez took the loss for the Braves, surrendering eight runs -- only three earned -- on seven hits in four innings.

In the second game, the second inning was again the big inning for the Stars. Taking a 1-0 leading after the one complete, Hereford sent eight batters to the plate in the bottom of the second and five scored.

The Stars needed only three hits as only one of the five runs in the inning was earned. Amarillo committed three errors in the inning.

Ram Zambrano singled to lead off the inning and scored when Pietsek doubled to left field. Jacob Davis and Valjejo reached on consecutive errors that allowed Pietsek to advance and score.

Richard Salinas singled in Valjejo to end the scoring in the second.

The Stars added a run in the third and ended the game with three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. Lacey and Ram Zambrano led off with consecutive singles off Braves starter Mike Hutcherson.

Hendrick apparently staying in touch with team

By JOE MACENKA
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. -- Rick Hendrick's sentence for mail fraud requires him to stay away from his race team, but that hasn't stopped him from talking to key workers and others in Winston Cup racing.

Interviews by The Associated Press show that since he was sentenced Dec. 31, Hendrick has stayed in touch with several prominent people in racing at Hendrick Motorsports and elsewhere.

The list of people Hendrick speaks with regularly includes Jeff Gordon, his top driver, and John Hendrick, the younger brother who has taken over day-to-day operations of the race teams.

Rick Hendrick also played a minor role in the sale of Darrell Waltrip's Winston Cup team, and continues to be featured prominently on Hendrick Motorsports' Web site.

U.S. Attorney Mark T. Calloway said it's not yet clear whether Hendrick is violating his sentence. The five-page sentencing order contains more than 30 stipulations of what can and cannot be done during three years of probation.

Only one line refers to the one-year restriction placed on Hendrick's involvement in Winston Cup. "Defendant shall not be allowed to participate in the car dealership industry or to participate in the operation or ongoing involvement with his race teams."

Calloway had favored a stricter sentence for Hendrick, whose car dealerships helped him launch what has become the top operation on stock car racing's premier circuit. U.S. District Judge Lacy H. Thornburg, responsible for the wording of the sentencing order, would not discuss the matter.

Also refusing to comment was Hendrick, who has avoided reporters since being indicted in December 1996 for his role in the American Honda Motor Co. bribery and kickback scandal.

Hendrick has acknowledged giving hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash, BMWs and houses to Honda executives, but claims he didn't receive anything in return.

Still, he pleaded guilty to mail fraud last August. In exchange, prosecutors agreed to dismiss a conspiracy charge and 13 counts of money laundering.

Hendrick was fined $250,000, but because he has leukemia, Calloway didn't press for a prison term.

Thornburg ordered Hendrick to stay in his Charlotte home and avoid the car business and his race team for a year. Hendrick's health has improved recently and associates say the leukemia is within 2 percent of total remission.

"It really is a struggle for him. I mean, he loves racing, and taking him away from that is a major thing. I'll talk to him on the phone, and he'll be all excited and stuff, but I know that he's waiting for the day that he can come back."

"Had he not been in poor health, we would not have agreed to home detention," Calloway said. "And since he was confined to his home because of his health, we therefore did not think it was appropriate that he be involved in his car dealerships or racing."

But Gordon, who has won two of the last three Winston Cup championships, says he speaks regularly with Hendrick -- usually after races.

"It really is a struggle for him," Gordon said. "I mean, he loves racing, and taking him away from that is a major thing. I'll talk to him on the phone, and he'll be all excited and stuff, but I know that he's waiting for the day that he can come back."

John Hendrick, who was charged with conspiracy in the Honda case and paid a $120,000 fine, estimated he speaks with his brother as often as three or four times a week.

"I can only tell you it's very hard for him," John Hendrick said. "This racing end of it is his life. He thrives on it."

John Hendrick is overseeing the three-car Hendrick Motorsports contingent, which has produced 27 victories since the start of the 1996 season and the last three championships.

Gordon, who won the title in 1995 and 1997, and teammate Terry Labonte, the 1996 champion, are second and sixth, respectively, this year.

Stars

single up the middle, scoring Lacey and Ram Zambrano. Noland scored the game-ending run on a two-out single to left by Ramirez. A pair of Braves errors also aided the Hereford cause.

The Braves and Stars were opposites in the field. While Amarillo was booting grounders and misplaying fly balls, Hereford's defense was knocking down and catching everything behind starter Hector Zambrano. The Stars went error-less in the second game.

"We didn't make many errors in the games," Alaniz said. "It's what I've been saying all along. I don't think we would've lost those games if we hadn't been making so many errors. If we get things down defensively, it's going to be pretty easy for us."

Hector Zambrano got the win, shutting out the Braves on one hit -- a leadoff double by Nick Rincones in the fourth inning. Hutcherson absorbed the loss for Amarillo, giving up 10 runs -- only three earned. He struck out three.

Open

bogeys on two of the final three holes to let a lead slip to one stroke. He ended up finishing 27th.

While others around him were unraveling -- including Tiger Woods, Colin Montgomerie and Fred Couples -- Stewart, who finished the first round with three consecutive birdies, started Friday with three more.

He then settled into doing what needs to be done to win a U.S. Open -- make a lot of putts to save par, including key ones on Nos. 11, 13 and 16.

But bogeys on Nos. 14, 17 and 18 let a lot of players back into the tournament. One of those was David Duval, who shot a 68 and was lurking at 143, suddenly only six strokes back going into the weekend.

Nine players started the second round under par, but that number dwindled as the day went on and the thick El Nino-fed rough swallowed up shots and the wind-dried greens grew faster by the minute.

Of those nine, only Maggert was able to improve on his score, shooting a 69.

"The style of golf that we play at the U.S. Open suits my game very well," said Maggert, who was in a final-round duel with Montgomerie, Ernie Els and Tom Lehman last year at Congressional before finishing fourth.

"I took a lot away from that tournament," he said. "I am looking forward to getting myself in a position like that again and hopefully I can better my performance than what I did last year."

Maggert rebounded from bogeys three times on Friday and -- in perhaps the key to winning a U.S. Open -- managed to make bogey his worst score on any hole.

Woods was not as lucky. He had a second four-putt green in two days -- this one on No. 6 -- and made his fifth double bogey in his last six U.S.

Open rounds. He shot a 72 and was at 146, nine strokes back.

Defending champion Ernie Els shot a 70 and was at 145.

Perhaps the most surprising player to hang tough -- and in fact gain on the field -- was Kuchar, who shot a 69 to get to 139.

"I'm definitely playing the weekend right?" Kuchar said. "I made my major goal. I wanted to be out here for Father's Day and my birthday," both of which are Sunday.

Sunday will be a special day for Kuchar, whose smile charmed the galleries at Augusta National in April when he finished 21st at the Masters, because his father, Peter, is also his caddie.

Joining Kuchar in making the cut for the weekend rounds was Martin, the 26-year-old Nike Tour player who successfully sued the PGA Tour to be allowed to ride a cart because of a circulatory problem in his right leg.

Martin shot a solid 71 in the second round and was at 5-over-par 145.

"From where I was eight of nine months ago" when his legal status was in doubt, "I am very lucky to be here," Martin said.

Stewart threatened to sprint away from the field when he started Friday with birdies on the first three holes to get to seven under par.

But Olympic is a course where you have to put strokes in the bank when you have the chance because withdrawals from that account can come at an alarming rate.

One of the best examples of how quickly things could go wrong was Justin Leonard.

Leonard had a 25-foot birdie putt on the par-3 15th hole to go to even par but had a four putt, missing twice from 3 feet, and then made consecutive bogeys to finish with a 75 for a 146.

Whoever wins this Open will certainly have to endure more of the same on the weekend.

Rangers

last year and signed as a free agent with Texas over the winter.

Kevin Elster's run-scoring single in the fourth tied the game 1-1. Gonzalez and Will Clark walked with one out, then Ivan Rodriguez reached on Fielder's error to load the bases. Finley struck out Mike Simms, then Elster followed with a single to left. Finley got out of further trouble by getting Fernando Tatis on a fly to right.

Anaheim took a 1-0 lead on Baughman's sacrifice fly in the second inning. Salmon, Anderson and Walbeck singled to load the bases with one out, then Baughman hit a fly to right to score Salmon. Helling got Gary DiSarcina on a groundout to end the inning.

Pocono

of his career at 43 straight losses. He was no threat to Gordon, but wasn't disappointed despite going just 167.436 in his Ford.

"I'm happy with that," he said, noting that he ran when the cars seemed to be slowing. "The temperature was the same, so I was trying to figure out why that was happening ... but it turned out good."

It could have better for Wallace's teammate, series points leader Jeremy Mayfield. But he wound up third on the grid for the $1.5 million race, clocking a lap at 167.187.

Two share lead at Friendly's Classic

AGAWAM, Mass. (AP) -- First-round leader Heather Daly-Donofrio and second-day upstart Marilyn Lovander were tied for the lead near the midway point of the storm-marred LPGA Friendly's Classic on Friday.

Both had 7-under-par 137 totals, although Daly-Donofrio wasn't able to play her final hole because of the heavy rain and electrical storms.

Lovander, with the help of a 30-foot eagle putt on No. 7, had a 68 Friday. Daly-Donofrio carded a 5-under 67 in the first round and was two under Friday going to the 18th tee.

One stroke behind was tour rookie Christy Erb who had a second 69.

Lovander, a 43-year-old who said she didn't pick up a golf club until she was 19 and turned pro at 30, made her surge when she followed the eagle with a birdie on No. 8. She was playing the front nine last.

"My driving actually was pretty poor but I made enough good shots to make up for it," she said.

Daly-Donofrio had two birdies in the first four holes Friday. She was to finish her second round Saturday before playing the third round.

"I'm just tired from hanging around," Daly-Donofrio said after a delay that lasted over an hour before play was finally called for good.

"I'm happy with the way things went. I was able to stay calm and keep my emotions inside," said Erb, who admitted to having attitude problems in the past.

From 14-17 she went birdie, bogey, birdie, bogey.

"If I did lose focus it was on 17 where I hit trees and water. But the key for me was being able to recover," Erb said.

Erb, who finally qualified for the LPGA tour this year on her fifth attempt, finished with five birdies and two bogeys.

Two strokes behind the leaders at 139 were Charlotta Sorenstam, who had a 70, and Val Skinner, who had a 71.

A three-putt on No. 9 was Sorenstam's only mistake in a round which included three birdies.

"I'm pleased with both my chipping and putting," she said. "I had more ups and downs than I normally do."

Things didn't fare too well for Elizabeth Janangelo, a 14-year-old amateur who was playing her first LPGA tour event. Janangelo, from West Hartford, Conn., failed to make the cut after an 82 left her at 168.

Lisa Walters, who tied the LPGA record with her 23-under 265 total in winning the Oldsmobile Classic last week, had a 72 and was at 143.

L.A. edges Colorado, 4-3

DENVER (AP) -- Eric Karros homered with one out in the 10th inning Friday night to lift the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-3 win over the Colorado Rockies.

Karros, who drove in all five runs in a 5-0 victory Thursday night, hit a 422-foot shot to right-center off Jerry Dipoto (2-3). Dipoto had just replaced Chuck McElroy, who had retired all four batters he faced on grounders.

Colorado had rallied from a 3-1 deficit with a pair of runs in the eighth before losing its fourth straight.

Antonio Osuna (3-0) pitched the ninth and 10th for the win.

Gary Sheffield hit a two-run homer and Darren Dreifort handcuffed Colorado on four hits through seven innings, giving the Dodgers a seemingly secure 3-1 lead.

But the Rockies scored two runs in the eighth off relievers Greg McMichael and Scott Radinsky. With two outs, Vinny Castilla singled and Ellis Burks doubled.

Pinch-hitter Greg Colbrunn then greeted Radinsky with a two-run single, breaking an 0-for-17 slump by Colorado pinch-hitters.

Dickinson State, Weber State hold top spots at CNFR

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) -- Dickinson State's Zachary Crane matched West Hills' John Gragnani with a 74 in the third go-round of the saddle bronc competition Friday night, leading the North Dakota school to the team lead in the College National Finals Rodeo.

Dickinson State had 517 points to take a 32-point lead over defending men's champion Panhandle State in Saturday's final round. In the women's competition, defending champion Weber State had 365 points, followed by Lewis-Clark State at 285.

Crane's twin brother, Jeremy, had a 73-point ride to share the overall rodeo lead with Panhandle State's Rance Bray with a three-ride totals of 216 points.

Cody Bequeath of Treasure Valley Community College had Friday's only qualified ride in bull riding with a 71, placing him third in the average. Cory Navare of Southwestern Oklahoma State leads with 197, followed by South Dakota State's Shane Drury with 158.

Jason Havens of Montana State

University took the overall lead in bareback bronc riding with an aggregate 223 points.

Trevor Brazile of West Texas A&M leads the calf roping average with a total time of 29.4 seconds, while Panhandle State's Brian Dunning and Travis Goad top the team roping at 19 seconds.

Penders has parting shot for Dodds

AUSTIN (AP) -- Tom Penders, who resigned under fire as basketball coach at Texas in April, took a parting shot at Longhorns Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds after accepting the head job at George Washington University.

Penders, the winningest men's coach in UT history, was introduced in Washington, D.C. as coach of the Colonials of the Atlantic 10 Conference on Thursday. He replaces Mike Jarvis, who took the job at St. John's.

Penders, 53, is a childhood friend of George Washington Athletic Director Jack Kvacz.

Penders said he thought he lost Dodds' support this year. He referred specifically to the fact that Dodds waited several days to tell Penders about a meeting four players had at Dodds' home the day after the season ended to express concerns about the direction of the program.

"This past year I just felt quite simply that my athletic director was undermining me," Penders said. "... I just felt it was clear to me that I could not work for my athletic director."

"I'm working with an athletic director (Kvacz) that I totally trust. I've lost a lot of weight this year ... and I feel like I lost another 50 pounds when I took the steel plate out of my back when I left Texas," added Penders, making a knife-in-the-back reference. "I don't have to worry about that here. I have people that are going to work with me to bring GW the very, very best."

Dodds declined to respond to Penders' remarks, saying, "We appreciate the good things he did for the university, and we wish him well in his new challenge."

Penders resigned April 2 after a month of controversy that included a player revolt and the release of a player's academic report to an Austin radio station by one of Penders' assistant coaches.

Penders had four years left on a contract that had an annual base salary of $550,000. Penders received a settlement package of roughly $850,000 when he left UT. He is expected to earn somewhere between $450,000 and $500,000, plus incentives, at George Washington.

How You Can Save and Invest More

Today's working Americans are often portrayed as materialistic spend-thrifts. They buy whatever they want and pay for it later — in the process amassing billions of dollars of debt. And in the meantime, any thoughts of saving or investing are long forgotten.

It's true, previous generations often did a better job of saving than today's workers do. According to the Tax Foundation, Americans saved an average of 6.3 percent of their income in 1956; by 1996, that figure had dropped to 4.2 percent.

While savings rates have declined, personal income is on the rise. According to the U.S. Department of Commerce, personal income rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate from $6.73 trillion in January 1997 to $7.03 trillion by year's end.

Are Americans simply frittering away that extra income? On the contrary, some reports say spending is actually declining. In fact, holiday sales last year failed to meet expectations for the third year in a row. America's Research Group reported that, in a survey of 1,000 respondents, 21 percent said they spent less for gifts than they did 10 years ago.

So, if personal income is rising, and people say they're spending less, where's the rest of their money going? A look at a typical family budget reveals some answers.

According to the Tax Foundation, the family budget for transportation (8.4 percent), recreation (4.7 percent) and clothing (3.7 percent) was the same in 1996 as it was in 1956. And the food budget actually declined, from 18.6 percent of income in 1956 to only 9.2 percent in 1996. We're also spending less on house and household expenses (15.1 percent now compared to 18.6 percent then).

But two areas that have taken a dramatically larger chunk of family income over the past 40 years are taxes and medical expenses. Federal, state and local taxes accounted for 27.7 percent of the family budget in 1956. By 1996, that figure had risen to 38.4 percent. In addition to increases in federal payroll taxes, Social Security (FICA) taxes have been raised nine times since 1977. The combined rate for employer and employee has risen nearly 31 percent, from 11.7 percent to 15.3 percent of income.

Part of the increase in Social Security taxes pays for Medicare Part A hospitalization expenses. So does that mean less of the family budget goes to medical care? On the contrary. Medical care amounted to only 3.8 percent of the family budget in 1956. By 1996, it had almost tripled, reaching 10.5 percent.

In spite of these increases, most of today's workers should still be saving and investing more. Longer life expectancies, combined with uncertainty about Social Security's future and dwindling employer-sponsored retirement plans, mean saving for the future is more imperative than ever.

There's not much you can do about taxes, and you may not be able to cut back on medical care. But what about those other expenses? A close examination of your family's spending habits often reveals cash "leaks" that could easily be redirected to savings or investments. If you're spending a lot on consumer debt, cut up your credit cards and pay them off as quickly as possible. Finally, the next time you get a raise, consider allocating all of it to savings or investments.

Setting aside today's wants for your future needs can be difficult, but it can mean the difference between a retirement in poverty or the retirement of your dreams.

Houston church site of evening wedding

Julie Ann White of Lubbock and, John George Malouf of Hereford were married on Saturday evening, June 13 in the Annunciation Greek Orthodox Cathedral in Houston.

The bride is the daughter of Al and Jeanie White of Lubbock. Parents of the bridegroom are George and Yiota Malouf of Hereford.

Reverend Stelios Sitaras of Houston officiated at the ceremony. Bridesmaids were Paige White, Heather White and Katerina Malouf of Lubbock; and Holly Biernecky of Arlington.

Constantine Malouf of Houston, brother of the groom, served as best man. Dr. Richard Malouf of Arlington and Dr. Peter Malouf and David Vermillion of Lubbock served as groomsmen.

Gabrielle White of Lubbock served as flower girl. Joey Bejjani of Houston and Dillon Yosten of Hereford served as ring-bearers.

Pete and Helen Botsonis of Amarillo served as Koumbari (Godparents) for the couple. John Kallas of Lubbock and Mary Zournas of Los Angeles, Calif., served as readers of the Epistle.

The chanter for the ceremony was Kulla Markantonis of Houston and the Philoptochos coordinator was Dorothy Petkas of Houston. The organ was played by Niki Jelson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a designer candle-light satin gown embellished with gold and woven in floral patterns with corded trim. The short sleeved bodice, with its draped shoulder, was fitted with a dropped waist and a gold embellished cathedral-length train.

The double layered veil was trimmed with silk cord in a floral design.

The bridal bouquet was studded with cascading white roses, which were interspersed with stephanotis.

Bridal attendants wore princess-waist, iris-colored dresses of flowing chiffon, with matching scarves. They carried round bouquets of pink, red and white roses.

The ceremony for the wedding, which was delivered in three languages, included the traditional exchange of stephana (crowns of orange-blossom), brought from Greece for the occasion.

For a reception, after the wedding, the guests attended a formal dinner to honor the bride and groom, at Cleopatra's Mediterranean Restaurant and Ballroom.

During the reception, the newly married couple was greeted and serenaded by a Greek band, composed of bouzouki and guitar.

The wedding cake resembled a church dome, with its columns and cupola, on an ornately decorated base with flowers and greenery.

After dinner, the internationally famous Lebanese singer, Jabbour, and his band played Mediterranean music varieties, including the "Dabke" ethnic dance, in honor of the couple. Attendees joined in the dance of "Sirtaki and "Zorba," encircling the bride and groom with the repeated echoing of their well wishes.

The bride is a respiratory therapist, currently employed at St. Joseph Hospital in Houston.

The groom is a recent graduate, with a doctorate degree in medicine, from the University of North Texas health Science Center in Fort Worth. He has been accepted into the Ophthalmology Residency Program at the University of Texas in Houston.

Sweny, Sims are wed in gazebo ceremony

Jodi Sweny and Bobby Sims exchanged marriage vows in an evening ceremony Saturday, June 13 in the gazebo of the E.B. Black House.

The bride is the daughter of Beverly King of Amarillo. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sims Jr. of Hereford.

Brother Ellis Parson of Summerfield Baptist Church officiated at the ceremony.

Matron of honor was Stephanie Farris, sister of the bride. Best man was Peter Clark.

Steven Sims, brother of the bride, served as usher.

Flower girl was Baylee Farris, niece of the bride and daughter of Matt and Stephanie Farris of Amarillo.

Vocalist was Jodi Wilburn.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Bobby White, wore a white full length gown of satin and chiffon. The A-line style gown featured a short sleeved, lace jacket adorned with seed pearls.

Her headpiece was a tiara of tiny silk flowers and seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white silk roses.

Her bridal attendant wore a sleeveless, full length, A-line gown of lilac chiffon. She carried a basket of roses.

The couple was honored with a reception in the E.B. Black House.

The wedding cake was a three-tier white cake with white icing decorated with lilac roses.

The bride attends Community Christian School. She is the granddaughter of Dixie White of Summerfield and Joan Sweny of Hereford.

The groom is a graduate of Community Christian School. He is employed by Glazer's in Amarillo.

Shopping for shoes is a depressing experience.

Well, maybe not for everyone, but certainly for someone with a long, narrow foot and a limited budget.

It seems that shoe manufacturers (with the exception of a very few) assume that if ones foot is long, it is wide. And this most assuredly is not always the case.

After recent discussions with several "like-footed" people in this area, I'm led to wonder if we have an unusually high concentration of long, narrow feet in this area or if shoe manufacturers just choose to ignore a large percentage of the population.

Shoe shopping was basically a once-a-year experience when I was a youngster. That one time was just before school started in order to purchase new school shoes -- which had to last for the entire school year.

Even then, finding shoes that actually fit was nearly impossible. Some years, after trying on shoes in virtually every shoe store in town, I would tell my mother that a certain pair fit, even when they didn't. Then I had to live with the discomfort of over-sized shoes for the next nine months.

In those days (when we were barely out of the Dark Ages) ladies shoes were designed for style, not comfort. Toes were pointed and heels were high and spiked.

It appeared these shoes were designed for my size foot, but not so. I don't think they were actually comfortable for anyone, but we all wore what was "stylish" and suffered in silence.

Then came the really ugly styles of the '60s. Those platform shoes were not only ugly, but dangerous. Sprained ankles, caused by "falling off" ones shoe, were not in the least uncommon.

It seems to me ladies shoe styles have become more sensible in the last few years and I really enjoy the fact that "tennis" shoes or "running" shoes or "sport" shoes are considered acceptable footwear for many occasions.

Still, through all the years and all the style changes, shoes in long, narrow sizes have been virtually nonexistent.

But, alas! It is time for new shoes and the hunt begins again. Maybe my sense of adventure will take over and the experience will prove not to be so depressing.

Food and Family

By LAWRENCE HEADLEY

Here are some ideas on ways to trim the fat from home-cooked meals. Many recipes call for butter, shortening or eggs; sour cream; or a can of creamed soup.

These foods add unnecessary fat - and calories -- to our diets. Next time you're in the kitchen, consider some of these low-fat substitutes.

*When a recipe call for a whole egg, try using two egg whites instead.

*A cup of shortening or butter can be replaced with 2/3 cups of vegetable oil.

*Low-fat cottage cheese or yogurt are good substitutes for sour cream.

*If your recipe calls for creamed soup, look for reduced fat brands.

With this little extra care, you can reduce the fat in your diet. Just try replacing some high-fat foods with low-fat substitutes!

Conference scheduled for caregivers

Caregivers and caregiving professionals are invited to participate in "A Caring Community Resources for Eldercare" conference scheduled for June 25 at the Texas A&M Research & Extension Center in Amarillo.

Conference participants will (1) develop a sensitivity to aging; (2) learn how to access caregiving resources and services; and (3) explore techniques for and understand the importance of caring for the caregiver.

Dr. Jan Weaver will lead off the conference at 9:30 a.m. with a session on "Sensitivity to Aging." Dr. Weaver is an adjunct professor and the Associate Director of Education for the Texas Institute for Research and Education on Aging at the University of North Texas.

She will provide insight into how demographic trends affect caregiving practices and attitudes and how patterns of ageism affect people of all ages.

In addition, she will help participants identify caregiving issues and service needs associated with the increase in the older population. Finally, participants will learn methods for successful and/or productive aging.

A panel of resources will focus on local sources of help, assistance, and information for caregivers. The panel will include representatives for the Department of Human Services, Area Agency on Aging, Social Security Administration, Alzheimer's Association, Crown of Texas Hospice, and the Amarillo Police Department.

A special treat is in store for conference participants during lunch hour. Participants will enjoy a box lunch and tour of the Craig Methodist Retirement Community and Windflower Alzheimer's Care Center along with insight into special programs and services provided by the community.

"Caring for the Caregiver" is the lead-off session for the afternoon beginning at 1:45 p.m. Dr. David Freed, with the Department of Neuropsychiatry at the Texas Tech University Health Science Center in Lubbock will be the featured speaker.

His presentation is designed to familiarize caregivers with strategies for ensuring the safety and promoting the well-being of persons with Alzheimer's disease.

James Wester and Ginger Nelson, attorneys with Underwood, Wilson, Berry, Stein, and Johnson will discuss "Estate Planning - What Every Caregiver Needs to Know."

Topics to be included in their session include reasons to plan an estate, planning for death, planning for incapacity, and state and federal legislation of which caregivers should be aware.

Rounding out the conference will be a presentation by Wynon Mayes, retired Randall County Extension Agent, focusing on the value of humor in reducing stress and coping with the challenges of aging.

The conference will begin at 8:30 a.m. with registration and a variety of exhibits and will conclude by 4:45 p.m. There will be a registration fee of $15 per person and $23 if CEU's are desired.

This offering provides 5.4 contact hours for nurses. Amarillo College is approved as a provider of continuing education in nursing by the Texas Nurses Association, which is accredited as an approver of continuing education in nursing by the American Nurses Credentialing Center's Commission on Accreditation.

This approval meets Type I criteria for mandatory continuing education requirements towards relicensure as established by the Board of Nurse Examiners for the State of Texas.

Amarillo College is an approved provider through the Texas State Board of Social Workers and provides 0.45 CEUs for Social Workers.

Amarillo College provides 4.5 contact hours of continuing education (0.45 CEUs) for Licensed Professional Counselors.

The conference is sponsored by the Eldercare Task Force of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service - Panhandle District. Extension programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

For more information, contact Donna Brauchi, District Extension Director for Family and Consumer Sciences at 806-359-5401 or Beverly K. Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent for Family & Consumer Sciences at 806-364-3573.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"A man with one son, living in a hut, is far richer than a lord without sons resting in his castle." -- Old Russian Proverb

With thoughts of Father's Day and its importance, we must remember, also, those mothers who are, or have, served as both father and mother to their children. So, even though we are dedicating this column to fathers, it is also for those who play both roles in their children's lives. (Many grandparents can also be included.)

Simple rules for Dads:

*Time is of the essence -- spend as much time as possible with your child. They will be grown and gone sooner than you think!

*Share your fears and your thoughts -- knowing that you have fears and dreams help them to know that this is OK!

*Look for the good and praise it -- encouragement is so important in any child's life and consistent recognition of a child's strengths is more important than vitamins.

*Do not allow your children to be rude -- teach them how to meet and greet people, teach them about being polite, about others' feelings and how to win and lose with a good attitude.

*Let your children teach you -- they are like little guided tours. They let you know when they are lonely or scared, not just with words, but with feelings or expressions of fatigue, irritability and sadness. Look and listen.

*Value your child for what he is -- they need to know that they are loved for themselves, not for any particular accomplishment. Let them know that they are Number One!

*Being a Daddy, or Parent, is your top priority -- when you put your kids first, you are getting the most value for every hour on earth, and you have made the best decision of your life!

Read Jonathan Decker's entire article, "What Makes a Good Dad?" in the June Readers Digest for the full story!

Dan Valentine's "What Is A Father?" is also an ageless essay to enjoy and worth your time. I have a copy if Speedy doesn't "touch on it!"

And from Valentine's essay... "Fathers enjoy: telling sons how they worked for a dollar a day, walked 10 miles to school, seeing daughters dressed up for their first formal, buying baseball gloves, seeing sons build things, looking at happy youngsters running through the sprinkler...but most of all, Fathers enjoy young, loving arms around their necks when they come home from work..."

Good fathers have the courage to build nations...the wisdom to seek knowledge...the vitality to win wars...he is the greatest man in the world...he's a father!!!

Happy Father's Day!!!

Final results announced for annual Relay for Life

The final donations have been collected and totaled from this year's Relay for Life in Hereford.

"And local volunteers for the American Cancer Society are celebrating," Adam Treff, publicity chairperson for the event, said. "We exceeded our goal of $35,000 by more than $2,000."

More than 400 people attending the event at Whiteface Stadium raised $37,177.49 from donations collected by 40 teams, luminary sales and purchases of Relay gear at the souvenir table.

"And we have very few expenses left, probably around $500 for prizes and supplies," Treff said.

Members of West Texas Rural Telephone/W.T. Services Team #1 may be celebrating more than anyone. They took home awards for the most money collected by a team, and by an individual, thanks in part to Fran Kaluznick.

She received donations of nearly $2,000. That pushed her team total to $2,610 which passed the second place team, "Alexander's Crusaders."

The Crusaders, including last year's individual winner, Annell Holland, raised $2,181.

"But we had a lot of great teams who raised more than $1,000," Treff said. These included St. Anthony's School, Aikman School, H.R.M.C.'s Home Health Team, Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union, Stevens 5-Star Car and Truck Center, the Plains Insurance/McLain's Team, The Tommy Girls, First Baptist Church and both teams from Hereford State Bank.

The W.T.R.T./W.T. Services staff will be treated to a dance/karaoke/pizza party from Treffco Productions. Kaluznick will receive her choice of "incentive" prize, such as a boom-box, 5-inch television or karaoke machine.

Plans are already under way for next year's Relay for Life, which is scheduled for June 4-5, 1999.

Results

Most Money Raised by a Team: $2,610 from W.T.R.T./W.T. Services Team #1.

Most Money Raised by an Individual: $1,936 from Fran Kaluznick.

Most Laps Walked by a Team: (Correction from earlier report) FirstBank Southwest, 500 laps or 125 miles.

Most Laps Walked by an Individual: Clay Brown with the Young Believers team, 200 laps or 50 miles.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter is an eighth-grader at Lincoln Middle School in Park Ridge, Ill. If you are looking for something to run on Father's Day, I hope you will consider this poem she wrote. -- A Mom in Park Ridge, Ill.

Dear Mom: Your eighth-grader is wise beyond her years, and she truly appreciates her dad. Here's her poem -- on Father's Day. A Tree by Eileen Collins

My special tree stands up straight,
Even when we're hanging on the branch.

We jump and swing and climb,
But the tree stands up straight.
Through rain and hail and snow,
Through winter, spring, summer and fall,

Through seasons all and all,
My tree stands up straight.
After all my troubles,
Ups and downs,
My tree stands up straight.
All my life to the end,
Even after the tree is gone,
It stands up straight in my heart.
That tree was always there for me.
For there is no tree.
All along, it was my dad.
My dad was there for me.

Dear Ann Landers: Please run this every Father's Day. It's one of your best. So many readers will see themselves in it. I did. -- Sacramento

Dear Sacramento: Here it is. Thanks for asking. I'll bet others will see themselves, too. My Father

When I was:
Four years old: My daddy can do anything.

Five years old: My daddy knows a whole lot.

Six years old: My dad is smarter than you dad.

Eight years old: My dad doesn't know exactly everything.

10 years old: In the olden days, when my dad grew up, things were sure different.

12 years old: Oh, well, naturally, Dad doesn't know anything about that. He is too old to remember his childhood.

14 years old: Don't pay any attention to my dad. He is so old-fashioned.

21 years old: Him? My Lord, he's hopelessly out of date.

25 years old: Dad knows about it, but then he should, because he has been around so long.

30 years old: Maybe we should ask Dad what he thinks. After all, he's had a lot of experience.

35 years old: I'm not doing a single thing until I talk to Dad.

40 years old: I wonder how Dad would have handled it. He was so wise.

50 years old: I'd give anything if Dad were here now so I could talk this over with him. Too bad I didn't appreciate how smart he was. I could have learned a lot from him.

Dear Ann Landers: Is it possible that dogs cry when they experience sadness? My husband thinks I'm crazy, but I'm certain our poodle, Trixie, cried real tears yesterday.

We entered Trixie in a dog show, and she was the cutest, most adorable, best-groomed dog in the show. She didn't win a thing -- not even an honorable mention. On the way home, she was unusually quiet, and her little face was wet with tears. I say she knew. My husband says I'm crazy. Yes or no? -- Anonymous, Please

Dear A.: Dogs can be sad, but they don't cry when they fail to win a contest. Just give Trixie an extra cuddle. It will make her -- and you -- feel better.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.15.)

Hereford Marine takes part in naval war game

By JASON EMERSON
ABOARD THE USS ESSEX -- Under a gray, foreboding sky, the USS Essex slips quietly into position. The sea rises and falls in small swells around the warship, a fact not lost on the 1,000 plus Marines that will soon pilot their assault craft from the Essex.

Their destination is an island on the horizon, and before the morning is through they will have a foothold on its beaches.

Hereford's Horacio Vasquez took part in this amphibious assault recently staged off the coast of Southern California.

As a Marine in the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), Pfc. Vasquez, the 19-year-old son of Pedro and Maria Vasquez of Hereford, could someday take part in a real assault during a war.

The mock beach assault was the denouement of a complex naval exercise called "Joint Task Force Exercise" (JTTEX). JTTEX is an annual war game in which dozens of warships and thousands of Sailors and Marines hone their war fighting skills.

The exercise is a final rehearsal for ships and crews who deploy to the Arabian Gulf.

Vasquez transports and issues ammunition to the Marines in his platoon. He understands how large-scale naval exercises are needed to prepare Marines and Sailors for war.

"This training has gotten me used to being on the ship and doing different operations," said Vasquez, a 1997 graduate of Hereford High School.

The nearly 2,500 Marines of the 15th MEU deploy aboard three amphibious assault ships, including the Essex.

Equipped with state-of-the-art communication, weapon and radar systems, these warships can send Marines ashore by means of helicopters, landing craft and air-cushioned vehicles.

The Essex and the two other amphibious assault ships it deploys are called and amphibious ready group (ARG).

An ARG's mission while deployed is to preserve peace, keep shipping lanes open and, if necessary, engage in war against belligerent nations.

Vasquez believes in the policy of showing a strong overseas Navy and Marine Corps presence.

"It's important for Marines and ARGs to deploy overseas so we are prepared and ready in case problems arise," said Vasquez, a one-year Marine veteran.

As a Marine, Vasquez is part of one of the most elite fighting forces in the world. His job is always challenging, and each challenge he faces brings rewards.

Amphibious landings are just one aspect of the diverse experience Vasquez has gained during his time in the Marine Corps.

"The most rewarding part of my job is learning new skills and training to become part of the 15th MEU," Vasquez said.

Throughout the summer and fall, Vasquez and the 15th MEU will patrol the Pacific and Indian oceans, and the Arabian Gulf.

When a ship and its Marines are in the Gulf, they are said to be "at the tip of the spear" because of the potential for conflict. Due to the JTTEX, Vasquez and his fellow Marines are now prepared for any situation they will encounter.

The 15th MEU is headquartered in Camp Pendleton, Calif., 30 miles north of San Diego. They will depart on a six-month-long deployment aboard the Essex ARG beginning in June.

Welcome to the World

The merchants and health care providers of Hereford wish to recognize these new babies recently born to Hereford parents.

This week's recipients of a free, commemorative baby plate:

*Brandy Celiste Pesina born May 27 to Nick Garcia and Lupita Pesina.

*Frank Carlo Delgado born May 28 to Cornelio Delgado and Rose Mary Longoria

*Rachel Anne White born June 4 to Tracy and Eveline White.

Congratulations upon the arrival of your new born. If you have been blessed with a new baby, but we have not adequately congratulated you, please contact us at 364-7721.

Military Muster

Navy Fireman Chad M. Stephens, son of Dennis L. and Dianne L. Stephens of Hereford, recently participated in the 11th annual Fleet Week 1998 Celebration in New York, while assigned aboard multi-purpose amphibious assault ship USS Kearsarge, homeported in Norfolk, Va.

Stephens was one of 10,000 military servicemembers who participated in one of the largest public salutes to the sea services. This four-day event was held to honor the men and women of the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard and to show the city's appreciation for their contributions to the nation.

The Parade of Ships included a total of 16 vessels, 13 from the U.S. Navy and U.S. Coast Guard combined as well as three ships from foreign navies. Other activities enjoyed by nearly 500,000 citizens included family-oriented activities; boat rides, concerts and fireworks.

The 1995 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Navy in July 1995.

Marine Pfc. Andy V. Brown, son of Janet Johnson of Hereford, recently was promoted to his present rank while serving with the 2nd Battalion, 4th Marines, 1st Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Brown was promoted based on sustained superior job performance and proficiency in his designated specialty.

The 1997 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Marine Corps in August, 1997.

— YOUR EYES —

Aging and Dry Eyes

We're always hearing about what starts to go when we age. Our eyesight. Our hearing. Our bones. You name it. Well, here's another concern to be aware of: dry eyes. As we age, we produce fewer moistening tears, which often results in dry, uncomfortable eyes. For menopausal women, the dryness is even greater because of a drop in estrogen production.

Fortunately, there are some easy remedies. When your eyes are dry, simply splash some water in them (not if you wear contact lens, however). Or take a few minutes to sit with a cold wet washcloth on your eyes. Over-the-counter artificial tears, or rewetting drops for those who wear contact lenses, work immediately to lubricate eyes.

You might also make an effort to cut down on dry-eye culprits in your environment, including smoke, dry air (get a humidifier), and alcohol consumption.

Toastmasters meeting held at Ranch House Restaurant

Hereford Toastmasters held its regular Thursday morning meeting at the Ranch House Restaurant with Dan Hall as presiding officer.

Sharon Cramer led the pledge and Wayne Winget gave the invocation.

Hall served as toastmaster, Andrews as timer, Dr. Milton Adams as AH counter and grammarian and Winget as wordmaster. He introduced the word "pensive."

Andrews was topicmaster and topic speakers and their topics were Winget: "Little known facts about politics"; Oscar Barrera: "Little known facts about meter reading"; and Hall: "Little known facts about the Ogallala Aquifer."

Cramer was the lone speaker at the meeting. Her topic was "Herbs that Heal" and her evaluator was Winget.

Hall gave the reading and Barrera served as general evaluator.

Women missionaries wear white in observance of Fifth Sunday

By VALLI HERMAN
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS - In white dresses, white shoes, stockings and even hats, the women missionaries of the New Mount Moriah Baptist Church in South Dallas are observing Fifth Sunday.

On those few Sundays each year - whenever a month has five Sundays in it - the women wear white to show solidarity, purity and their devotion to Christ. Fifth Sunday, or Mission Sunday, as the day has also come to be known, has been a long-standing tradition in African-American churches of many denominations.

On that day, church services are given over to the women missionaries, who may conduct a special program, says the Rev. Gerald Britt of New Mount Moriah.

The tradition is mostly Baptist and primarily in the South, but it has been going on for "as long as I can remember," says Earnestine Fleming, president of the Missionary Society at True Lee Baptist Church in Dallas. "At one time, we used to wear uniforms."

True Lee Pastor Donald Parish also wears a white robe on Fifth Sunday.

Area churchgoers say they recall at least four generations of women wearing white on Fifth Sunday.

The missionary women generally wear their special white attire to church services, not while they're performing their duties, such as tending to the ill, feeding the homeless or conducting food and clothing drives.

On May 31, the most recent Fifth Sunday, the women at New Mount Moriah were wearing white dresses, white skirts and jackets, and a few white hats.

"We wear white because it represents the pureness of Christ," says Lela Morgan, president of the Senior Mission Society at New Mount Moriah. "White is clean and pure. You can tell it's white even on a dark day."

The women at her church wore a yellow corsage, which also has symbolic meaning. "Each mission can have a corsage. It can be yellow or red," she says. "Yellow represents brightness. Red represents Christ's blood."

Britt says, though, that Fifth Sunday practices have been changing. "It's not quite the tradition that it used to be. Some of the younger missionary groups got away from wearing white and wear various-color uniforms. It really varies from church to church." The junior mission at his church wears green, he says.

"Times have changed," says Ms. Morgan. "We can wear a little ivory." But not pants. Don't mention Fifth Sunday pants to her: In her mind, it's not an option.

Hat wearing, however, seems to be a point of debate.

"We cover our head most of the time, but on Fifth Sunday, we do not," says Ms. Morgan. Yet several women added white or straw hats to their ensembles.

Dallas-based designer Anthony Mark Hankins recalls that his mother could wear only the purest of white on Fifth Sunday - not a straw hat, not a dress in ivory, not in off-white.

"She had to wear white. White--white, pure as snow," says Hankins, who has designed a Fifth Sunday collection of dresses and separates for the past six years. It's sold in his Anthony Mark Hankins collection at Sears.

"I grew up around Fifth Sunday," says Hankins. "I come from a family of women who were always in the missionary organizations in their church."

"The missionaries are the heartbeat of the church. To have them wearing your clothes is the highest form of a compliment."

Designing clothes for the occasion requires finesse, Hankins says.

"You don't want them to look like they're at a fashion show - they're the pillars of the community. You have to give them the best - the best fabrics, the best design," he says.

Other dress companies such as Studio 1 and Maggy London have acknowledged the tradition and make sure that white dresses are available, particularly to stores in the South.

Fifth Sunday attire has been modernized by young designers such as Hankins, however. His spring collection at Sears includes a light touch of sheer fabrics, embroidery, fringe and even an ivory ensemble.

"Most people just make a white dress and call it a day," says Hankins, who says he tries to honor the work of the women missionaries by making them look and feel special.

He has fond memories of his mother's missionary group on Fifth Sunday, he says.

"They look like angels when they come down the aisle."

The Successful Family

By MATILDA J. BOOZER

At different times in our lives, from infancy to adulthood, we are capable of doing certain things. Developmental stages actually serve as rough guides for giving parents an idea when children may be capable of performing desired behaviors.

These stages do not serve as the final word on children's ability. Not all children are capable of performing a behavior just because a stage says they should. General knowledge of developmental stages gives parents a good idea what children may be capable of doing.

When we learn about developmental stages, it makes the life of being a parent, an infant and a young child easier and happier. Being an infant is not always that pleasant. There are very few things infants can do by themselves besides sleep, cry, wet and soil themselves, and burp.

They even have to learn to turn over once they are lying on their backs. It's not simple. Life gets easier as infants get older because they can do more things independently.

Imagine if parents didn't know what infants or children were capable of doing at different times in their lives. Childhood would be a frustrating experience. We might ask small infants to feed themselves. We might expect young children to set the table, cook meals, or do dishes. When we place such inappropriate expectations on children, the children can't complete the task, and they begin to feel bad about themselves.

When we complete a task, no matter how large or small, we usually feel as if we accomplished something. People often notice our accomplishments and usually praise us for our efforts. The praise we receive helps build in us a positive feeling about ourselves or a positive self-concept.

Trouble begins to occur when we constantly fail to accomplish something. No one recognizes our efforts and we don't receive any praise. In fact, we often receive just the opposite--criticism about how we can't do anything or how bad we are. When this happens often, we begin to believe we can't do anything and begin to feel bad about ourselves. A negative self-concept grows.

The importance of developmental and self-concept is extremely critical in the growth of children. A self-concept begins very early in life based on how capable we feel we are in pleasing our parents.

After all, children want to please the very people they are dependant upon. When the expectations placed on children or infants are inappropriate, that is, they can't complete the task or do the activity because they are too young and don't have the skills, children see themselves as failures.

Failures are children who can't seem to please mom and dad no matter how hard they try. When mom and dad are not pleased, they don't offer any praise. Without praise from mom and dad, it is nearly impossible for children to feel good about themselves and develop positive self-concepts.

Without positive self-concepts, the chances of children trying new tasks or being successful are slim. This failure carries over to school where children will often see themselves as incapable and less bright than the other children.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, June 21, the 172nd day of 1998. There are 193 days left in the year. This is Father's Day, as well as the first day of summer, which arrives at 10:03 a.m. EDT.

Today's Highlight in History: On June 21, 1788, the U.S. Constitution went into effect as New Hampshire became the ninth state to ratify it.

On this date: In 1834, Cyrus Hall McCormick received a patent for his reaping machine.

In 1932, heavyweight Max Schmeling lost a title fight by decision to Jack Sharkey, prompting Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs, to exclaim: "We was robbed!"

In 1948, the Republican national convention opened in Philadelphia.

In 1963, Cardinal Giovanni Battista Montini was chosen to succeed the late Pope John XXIII; the new pope took the name Paul VI.

In 1964, civil rights workers Michael H. Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James E. Chaney disappeared in Philadelphia, Miss.; their bodies were found buried in an earthen dam six weeks later.

In 1973, the Supreme Court ruled that states may ban materials found to be obscene according to local standards.

In 1977, Menachem Begin became Israel's sixth prime minister.

In 1978, the musical play "Evita," written by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice, and starring Elaine Paige, opened in London.

In 1982, a jury in Washington, D.C., found John Hinckley Jr. innocent by reason of insanity in the shootings of President Reagan and three other men.

In 1985, scientists announced that skeletal remains exhumed in Brazil were those of Nazi war criminal Josef Mengele.

Ten years ago: Leaders of the world's seven richest nations concluded their three-day summit in Toronto. The Los Angeles Lakers repeated as NBA champions as they beat the Detroit Pistons, 108-105.

Five years ago: The Supreme Court ruled that Haitian boat people could be stopped at sea and returned home without asylum hearings.

One year ago: Summit leaders meeting in Denver wrestled with a list of global challenges. The WNBA made its debut as the New York Liberty defeated the Los Angeles Sparks 67-57.

Impoverished Cuban-Jewish community fights for survival

By CECILE S. HOLMES
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON - Five years ago in Havana, Cuba, Lourdes Albo, 44, converted to Judaism, seeking to fill her spiritually empty soul.

The daughter of communists, she had been baptized Catholic. Yet Fidel Castro's 1959 revolution and ensuing dictatorship meant communism was what she knew best. She found it offered no solace when her mother died.

"I was only 5 years old in 1959. My childhood, my schooling, was very secular. When my mother died, I was very spiritually depressed. I went back to church. At that time, I needed something, but church was not enough," said Albo, whose father was Jewish.

One Yom Kippur, the Jewish high holy day, Albo went to the Patronato, a Conservative synagogue and Jewish community center in Havana. Worshipping there assuaged her grief. Soon her daughter, also named Lourdes, began accompanying her. Both converted a few months later, joining a growing renewal of Cuba's small, impoverished Jewish community.

That renaissance continues, thanks in large measure to tireless assistance from American Jews, including Houston's Jewish community. Houston lay leader Frieda Dow made her third trip to Cuba this spring, returning once more amazed by the courage and persistence of the Caribbean faithful.

"They need the support of the Jewish people throughout the world, to know that we are there for them," Ms. Dow said. "They need to know we want to bring them back into the mainstream."

Before the 1959 revolution, an estimated 15,000 Jews made their home in Cuba, an island 90 miles south of Florida. Thousands fled when Castro took over. Those who remained faced near extinction in the 1980s. Havana's three synagogues barely survived, rarely able to attract more than a minyan, the 10 Jewish men required to hold a service.

Elsewhere on the island, organized Jewish activity was scarce-to-non-existent. Until the last several years, most Jewish youngsters had never seen a Jewish wedding or a bar or bat mitzvah, according to a report from the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the New York-based agency that coordinates most stateside outreach to Cuba.

Poor conditions in Cuba persisted as the United States continued its trade embargo, isolating the island's Jews from world Jewry and their North American brethren. Up until 1991, Cuba's government discouraged religious practice and forbade many religious gatherings. After revisions to the island's constitution in 1992, some restrictions were relaxed and world Judaism began reaching out to Cuba.

A leader in that effort was Rabbi Schmel Sztajnender, who now lives in Santiago, Chile, and previously resided in Guadalajara, Mexico. For several years, Sztajnender made four trips a year to Cuba, conducting holiday services, performing weddings and ritual circumcisions and handling conversions of children of Jewish fathers. (Under Jewish tradition, one is considered a Jew if born of a Jewish mother.)

Visitors were dismayed at the hardships suffered by Cuban Jews. Wages averaged $15 a month. Soap, cooking oil, gasoline and other staples were rationed. Medicines, from antibiotics to basic over-the-counter drugs such as Tylenol and Tagamet, were hard to obtain. Worship and community facilities were in disrepair.

The January visit of Pope John Paul II to Cuba focused an international spotlight on the island's woes - especially the travails of its religious groups - for the first time in four decades. During the papal visit, observers expressed cautious hope that conditions would improve. Recent visitors to the island see some progress, but they worry it is coming much too slowly.

Late last month, the ongoing paradox of being Jewish in Cuba once again made news after Jack Rosen, president of the American Jewish Congress in the United States, met for six hours with Fidel Castro.

"Even as life is getting better for Cuba's Jews, it is getting worse," Rosen said.

Like other foreign visitors, he saw some relaxations in government restrictions. But Rosen said that the embargo so negatively influences Cuban life that many young people leave the island, further winnowing Judaism's slim ranks.

"The remaining community inevitably is increasingly elderly and infirm. Lifting restrictions on humanitarian relief is absolutely necessary if the community is to be sustained," he said.

Dr. Jose Miller, a surgeon and Patronato president, laments the obstacles facing Cuban Jews, but admits problems are similar across the island.

In Cuba, nothing is simple. Necessities are so scarce that middle-class families welcome extra soap, shampoo and notebooks spirited in by generous visitors or sent by relatives in the United States. While there is some building, much housing is substandard, with several generations crowding into three- and four-room apartments with peeling paint and vintage furniture.

"Jews are not any different than any other citizens in this country," Miller said. "What other people need, Jews need."

"Jews don't need matzoh; we receive that from the Canadian Jewish Congress every year at Passover. We have been going through many hard things for many years. This is not a paradise, but today we have much more liberty and freedom."

Jews who have visited Cuba said the Jewish community needs almost everything and is particularly vulnerable because it is so small.

"The total number (of Jews in Cuba) is only twice the number of Jews who live in Bellaire," said Houston attorney Michael Rubenstein. "There are shortages of almost everything. Few Cubans own cars, and the public transportation system is in shambles."

And although there are plenty of doctors and hospitals, medical care is awful due to the incredible shortages of essential supplies."

Rubenstein, part of the 18-member Houston group that went to Cuba in late spring, said Cuban society operates by two simple precepts:

"Rule No. 1: Nobody gets anything. Rule No. 2: Rule No. 1 doesn't apply to foreign visitors," he said. As with other visitors, tourists who stay in four-star hotels and dine at luxurious buffets will see only one side of Cuba - not the one most Cubans hassle with day after day.

To address the shortages, Americans may ask tourists to take envelopes of American dollars - always useful - to relatives in Cuba. Most visitors go in with just a few clothes, stuffing their suitcases with medications, toiletries, books, even condoms.

Those gifts may mean the difference between good health and long bouts of sickness for many Jews, says Adele Dworkin, who works at the Patronato.

And the visitors who bring them are reminders to the community's aging leadership that the Cubans are not alone. Dworkin has lived in Cuba since 1924. She was a child when her family emigrated from Russia fearing another series of pogroms against Jews. The Jews most active in Havana today often are middle-aged people and youths, newcomers to Jewish life. Their presence offers hope to the few who remained faithful during those years when religious practice was much harder to maintain.

"More and more young people are active today," said Dworkin.

"Women of all ages are the most active."

Their participation means life will get better, said service leader Luis Chanivecky, 70, adding: "We are having many visitors. And many Cubans are starting to come back."

At Hanukkah last winter, an estimated 300 turned out for observances. Other Jewish community programs include a youth club, Sunday School, Israeli Dance Group, women's club and other communal holiday celebrations. Havana's Jewish leaders continue to seek out younger Jews, bringing back sons and daughters born into interfaith marriages or raised with no philosophy but communism.

Exact figures vary, but leaders estimate about 2,000 Jews live in Cuba today. Most reside in Havana, but smaller communities exist in several outlying areas.

Most Jews who do leave emigrate for economic reasons. Anti-Semitism has never been a major problem in Cuba. Although one famous boatload of refugees was turned away in the early 1940s, Cuba offered sanctuary to many fleeing Adolf Hitler's Third Reich during the World War II era.

Younger Cuban Jews would celebrate such solidarity with the rest of the world. Jose Zaak, 29, travels by bus for more than seven hours once a month from Camaguey to Havana. The trip is expensive for a struggling student, but worth it to Zaak, who arrives on Fridays in time for Sabbath services and departs the next day. Judaism is reviving and he wants to be part of its renewal.

"Twenty years ago, it was (like) a blackout," Zaak said. "Now the light is coming back."

Red Cross Update

Hi, this is Kelly Auel the new chapter manager. I am so pleased to be a part of this organization and ready to serve our Tri County area.

I am excited and eager to serve the community with my skills and feel I will learn quite a bit more in the process. If you would like to give back to our community in any way, would you please come on by and talk with me?

The annual membership meeting will be held Tuesday, June 30 at the Hereford Community Center. Hamburgers will be served, volunteers honored, and the new board members selected. All volunteers and friends of the Red Cross are invited.

The American Red Cross is dedicated to helping make families and communities safer at home and around the world.

The Red Cross is a volunteer-led humanitarian service organization that annually provides almost half of the nation's blood supply, certifies more than 8.5 million people in lifesaving skills, mobilizes relief victims in more than 68,000 disasters nationwide, and provides direct health services to 2.8 million people.

Also assists international disaster and conflict victims in more than 40 countries, and transmits more than 14 million emergency messages to members of the Armed Forces and their families.

For information on local classes and programs, call the office at 806-364-3761 or you may write to P.O. Box 1371, Hereford, TX 79045.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from the American people. The Red Cross is not a government agency.

Tax deductible gifts are received at our local office by mail or in person, office hours are 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM. Checks may also be mailed to American Red Cross, PO Box 32743, Washington, DC 20013.

When money circulates, it acts as the lifeblood nourishing our local economy. For example, when you deposit your paycheck at a bank, it flows out in the form of a loan.

But to whom? And Where? To us, these are very important questions because the dollar you deposit at Hereford State Bank is loaned to a person or business right here in the area. Not to someone halfway across the country.

That loan could be the seed money for a business that employs the person - who buys the vacant house on your street - which boosts the value of your house and makes your street safer.

Staying Organized: The Five P's of Paperwork

According to time-management consultants, some people spend up to 25 percent of their workday searching for written documents they can't find. Most of us have been there, done that and have a tee-shirt to prove it.

I often accuse everyone in my office of moving, hiding or taking my important letters, papers and records. Of course, the lost items usually turn up just where I left them.

Obviously, searching for misplaced documents is costly in time, money and productivity. It is often a sign of a deeper problem: poor organizational skills.

Being disorganized not only wastes time and money, but also causes stress. Deadlines come and go, phone messages pile up and we often find ourselves falling short of our goals. All the while, we're still searching for our lost items and the pressure builds.

The good news is if you really want to become more organized you can. And, if you have the want to, I have the way to.

The Five P's of Paperwork

PITCH IT. I often find myself going through piles of information a second or third time and invariably I'll pitch something I've looked at several times before. Indecision is the culprit in this case.

You should handle paper only one at a time. Take a few moments to look at each piece of paperwork carefully the first time. Make a decision right then. If you need to save the item or do something about it, take one of the actions listed below. When in doubt, pitch it out.

PASS IT. You should never pass paperwork unless it is better handled by someone else. If your company needs to answer a letter or memo, and you can delegate effectively, do it. However, never pass paperwork or projects just to clean your desk temporarily.

Paperwork often acts like a boomerang: You can throw it, but it comes right back. Be certain if you pass work on to others that they will take appropriate action. Again, your goal is to only handle paperwork once.

PILE IT. We often do not have time to deal with all the paperwork we see every day. When that happens, make three orderly piles of: 1) things to do, 2) items to file or 3) articles to read.

Only pile when you have higher priorities. The mail can wait until you finish an important project. Don't let your piles gather dust.

PUSH IT AWAY. There is no better method for keeping track of important paperwork than a well planned, and consistently used filing system. Here are some good tips for filing: 1) Have adequate filing space. Purge files regularly to free up space. Invest in additional units when needed; 2) Take the time to file regularly and accurately; 3) When you start a new project, create a new file for all related papers; 4) Staple related material. Paper clips can come off or tangle other items; 5) Anything that goes in a file should have a date, source, filename and a "destroy after" date.

Carefully planned files will keep your workplace uncluttered, your efforts focused and your time your own. If you know you'll need it later, put it away.

PUSH IT THROUGH. Don't delay action. One of the most deadly time wasters is procrastination. The adage "Do it now" is certainly appropriate for paperwork.

Gather any support material you need, then push it through. Answer the letter, outline the project or finish that sales tax report. Follow through until you're finished. Then check it off your "to do" list and go on to the next highest priority.

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

The library has been busy this week. Seems like every family in town has been in. That's good! If you haven't been in to register your child, it's time now. The program is flying by. By the time you read this, we will be into our third week, almost half way through.

The kids, and parents, seem to be enjoying the changes we have made in the program. Instead of reading a certain amount of minutes, the kids are playing READO, a bingo-like game. So instead of working so hard for prizes, they can play a game and win prizes, and, in the process, keep those reading skills they have worked so hard for in school.

On Tuesday mornings from 10 to 11 the kids can come to the library for Tale Times. Last Tuesday, Darla Bracken, librarian from Friona, told an Irish folk tale, adapted from "Sleeping Ugly," a tale by Jane Yolen. Darla does the story complete with costume and Irish brogue. She does a really good job with the Irish brogue. I think I would get my tongue tangled and in a cramp if I tried to do that. The children really enjoyed it and got a taste of a good, and funny, folk tale.

This week will be campfire tales told by Deaf Smith County Library staff. You can always count on Becky for a great story.

Next week Joe Weaver will return to Hereford to tell his Johnny Appleseed tale. Joe is well known around town for his living history presentations. The first time I saw him in costume, I was teaching at Nazarene Christian Academy. I stepped out into the hall for something and saw a tall, scruffy-looking man walking down the hall barefoot, wearing a pot on his head. My first thought was to call 911, to get this strange character out of the building and away from the children. On closer inspection I saw Joe underneath that pot. Was I relieved!

Becky always says that a person who does not like to read has just not found the right book yet. It is our hope that the variety of tales will draw the children into the fun and excitement of the story, and thus interest them in seeking out stories to read on their own.

A Patchwork Planet by Anne Tyler is on the New York Times Bestseller list. Barnaby Gaitlin, of the "old" Baltimore Gaitlins, has been in trouble since he was a teenager breaking into other people's homes. He didn't break in to get the big loot. He just wanted to read their mail, pore over their family photo albums, and appropriate a few of their precious mementos.

For 11 years now he has been working steadily for Rent-a-Back, doing odd jobs for old folks and shut-ins. At last his life seems to be on an even keel.

Still, his family cannot forget the price they paid for buying off his former victims. His ex-wife would just as soon he not show up to see their daughter, Opal. Even the nice, steady woman who seems to care about him doesn't trust him when the chips are down. It looks as though his world may fall apart again.

I read Nathan's Run by John Gilstrap a year or two ago and enjoyed it very much. Gilstrap has written another good one, At All Costs. The Brightons, Jake and Carolyn, are a typical American family with a typical 13-year-old son, Travis. They work hard, abide by every law, pay their taxes, and successfully blend in with their surroundings.

Then one day, through a freak false arrest, authorities discover who they really are, or at least who the FBI says they are. Fourteen years ago their name was Donovan and they were accused of slaughtering 16 of their co-workers and creating an ecodisaster of unprecedented proportions. The chase is on and the FBI will stop at nothing.

The day they have prepared for and dreaded has finally come. Jake and Carolyn are not sure they have the stamina to renew their flight and don't know what the outcome will be for Travis. Travis, jerked out of his school by his frantic, gun-toting father, has no idea that his parents are on the top of America's most wanted list.

To clear themselves they must change their plan to hide, but elude the massive manhunt and return to the original scene of the crime -- a toxic hell that just may contain the evidence that will set them free.

Do you remember Where the Heart Is by Billie Letts? It is the story of a young pregnant girl abandoned at a small-town Wal-Mart. She hid in the Wal-Mart and lived there for a time undetected by the store's employees. Letts has written another book of small town Oklahoma.

The Honk and Holler Opening Soon is the story of a battered and beaten cafe on a little-traveled highway outside Sequoyah, Okla. The characters who drift in and out of the cafe don't change much -- their lives predictable until the arrival of a Crow Indian woman on a quest and a Vietnamese refugee looking for a home.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I would always try to write down an address from the TV, but it was over before I got much down on paper. My son saw that I was a little upset over this. So he went out and bought a hand-held tape recorder and extra batteries for me. I must say it is a great gift for older people. It has been handy in many ways. Now, to get an address, I just read it into the tape recorder.

I gave four tape recorders to my older friends for Christmas gifts. They loved them. — Eva White, Tomball, Texas

You are certainly right! There are so many uses for those small tape recorders, and it is not just limited to older people. Everyone can use them — for shopping lists, children's reminder of homework projects, important things about wills. — Heloise

DOG LOVES TV

Dear Heloise: My dog, Charley, watches TV and we enjoy the animal programs, so he sits on my lap or at my feet and watches too. When he sees the animals running or just sitting, he gets all excited and runs to the TV, sits on his hind legs and barks, hoping for them to come and play with him. When they are running toward his room, he thinks they are in there and runs with them. — Florence Bambas, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Who says animals don't watch TV! Wouldn't you just love to know what they are thinking. — Heloise

FLOWER VASE

Dear Readers: Do you have a clear vase that is stained and discolored? Tried soap and water with no luck? Here's a hint: Put some hot water and dishwasher powder in it, swish around to dissolve the detergent and fill the rest of the way with hot water. Let it sit for a while or overnight. Pour out and rinse well with hot water. You just may be surprised at the results. — Heloise

STOVE BURNER

Dear Heloise: Not using a stove burner? Place a strip of colored tape over the top of the knob just to make sure you don't open the burner. I keep my ceramic pot with utensils on one of the burners. — Bea Yrsako, Belle Chasse, La.

SQUIRREL TROUBLE

Dear Heloise: I have a bird feeder in my back yard. Occasionally, a squirrel climbs up the pole and gets into the bird feeder. I have nothing against squirrels, but I don't like them eating the food that was meant for the birds.

To solve this problem, I took a regular paper plate, cut a circular hole in it and attached it to the bird feeder. Now the birds are happy and so am I. — K.F., Waynesboro, Pa.

Delta cotton farmers win $1.94 million Pesticide ready seed faulted for losses

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - State arbitrators have awarded almost $2 million to three Mississippi Delta farmers who claimed cotton seed touted as resistant to a popular herbicide wasn't.

The Mississippi Seed Arbitration Council determined earlier this month that four types of "Roundup Ready" cotton, grown from seed genetically altered to withstand application of Roundup Ultra, were damaged by the pesticide.

"The Council finds that the subject varieties were not resistant or tolerant to Roundup Ultra, and that the seeds failed to produce or perform as represented by the labels attached to the seeds," the ruling says.

Arbitrators awarded a total of $1.94 million to the three farms, all located in Coahoma County, for losses of 1997 crops. The judgment was entered against Monsanto Co. and two subsidiaries, Paymaster Technology Corp. and seed supplier Delta and Pine Land Co., based in Bolivar County.

Neither spokesmen for Monsanto nor Delta and Pine Land Co. could be reached for comment Tuesday.

Steve Cox, a Clarksdale attorney who represented 10 farmers in the case, said seven settled their claims on the eve of the May 4 hearings.

He said the Roundup Ultra actually caused some plants to shed bolls or develop deformed bolls that produced no cotton.

"What it ended up doing was it sterilized part of the fruit," Cox said.

The brand names of seeds involved in the case are Paymaster 1244 Bollgard Roundup Ready, Paymaster 1330 Bollgard Roundup Ready, Paymaster 1215 Roundup Ready and Paymaster 1244 Roundup Ready.

To develop the seeds, a gene has been injected into the chromosomes to make the plants resistant to Roundup Ultra when applied as recommended.

"The intended benefit to the farmer is that less total herbicide and fewer applications will be required to control weeds than with a conventional herbicide program," the Council report says.

The report noted that the same types of Roundup Ready seed, planted at a testing station near Tunica but not treated with the herbicide, suffered no loss or deformation of bolls.

Jane Rissler, a plant pathologist with the Washington-based Union of Concerned Scientists, said her organization is concerned that genetically engineered seeds may cause unexpected environmental problems as well as have unexpected production problems.

Rissler said research should be focused on other ways to increase farming yields and lower costs.

"We think biotech is not going to help farmers in the long run," she said. "It's going to be just like pesticides and produce some short-term solutions."

Producers wait on EPA

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) - Washington and Idaho potato farmers still are awaiting an answer from the Environmental Protection Agency on their request to use a disease-fighting chemical on their crops.

The EPA is reviewing why potato farmers have been kept on hold for seven months on their emergency plea to use chlorine dioxide on stored potatoes.

The nation's top two potato states submitted their petition in December 1997.

"We thought we would have heard something several months ago one way or the other," said George Robinson, who heads the pesticide registration program for Idaho's Department of Agriculture. "I am not sure why this is taking so long."

Pat Boss of the Washington

Potato Commission said a disease called late blight "wreaked havoc" on 30 storage houses last fall and winter.

"If we can't control late blight in storage, we face the risk of losing a lot of potatoes," Robinson said.

At the request of state politicians, Lynn Goldman, head of EPA's pesticide registration program, visited the state in late May. She listened to farmers air their concerns about the federal government's sweeping laws designed to reduce human exposure to farm chemicals.

Rep. Doc Hastings, R-Wash., said the agency is reviewing delays in the emergency approval process.

"Our potato growers have waited far too long for a decision on this," said Hastings.

Growers consider kenaf as alternate crop

BOONEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - The blooms are very similar to a hibiscus and range in color from violet to white. The plant is a relative of cotton and okra and could become an additional source of income for Arkansas growers.

It's called kenaf.

"Kenaf will do anything that you can do with hemp and it's legal to grow," says Billy Moore, area extension agent for alternative agriculture. "It will grow anywhere in the state."

Imported to the U.S. during the 1940s as a fiber plant, Kenaf's stem has a bark and a core. Both contain long fibers which are used to make yarn. Shorter fibers from the core are used to make animal bedding.

"It's like a lot of alternative crops. You have to develop a market for it," Moore said.

He said kenaf began in this country as specialty paper for books and then evolved as a forage crop. Researchers have looked at making pellets from the material and then shipping the pellets overseas as a source of protein.

Researchers at Mississippi State have found kenaf to be a superior bedding for horses and it has the ability to sop up oil from oil-contaminated soil. One manufacturer in Georgia has even made cat litter from kenaf.

Kenaf also makes an absorbent yarn, he said.

Mary Warnock, professor of clothing and textiles at the University of Arkansas, has done research on kenaf's use in textiles.

"You can process it by hand. I have taken the raw fiber and processed it, separating the fiber from the core. Being able to do it by hand is important so the home and cottage industry people can do it on their own," she said.

Ms. Warnock, along with Peggy Hoffman at the university's anthropology department, have made rope baskets, crocheted items and spun yarn from the material.

"It dyes beautifully," she said. "We can be competitive in the floral and horticulture craft areas."

Moore said the technology for growing kenaf is well developed and that old cotton gins could be restored and converted to kenaf use.

Earth friendly biopesticides possible

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) - By drying viruses and bacteria in a mix of water and cornstarch, scientists say they have discovered a way to make earth-friendly biopesticides that farmers more easily can handle.

For a decade, scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture laboratories here tried to encapsulate microscopic bacteria and viruses that are natural enemies of crop pests. The announcement this week of their success soon may mean farmers can turn to safer, reliable biopesticides as an alternative to chemicals.

Pests such as caterpillars are responsible for millions of dollars in crop damage every year.

Farmers spend millions annually to control them with pesticides, raising questions about whether spreading chemicals on crops and water sources threatens public health.

Working with researchers from Mexico, USDA scientists in Peoria discovered that drying a mix of microbes, water and cornstarch entraps the biopesticides in tiny protective particles. The particles can be packaged, much like a bag of sand, and handled easily.

Farmers later add water and spread the biopesticides, using the same sprayers they now use for chemicals.

"I think it needs to be stressed that these (biopesticides) are very specific agents," said Michael McGuire, the USDA entomologist who led the study. "These things will only kill insects and, in some cases, only specific insects."

News of an easily spread biopesticide got a tepid welcome from the Pesticide Action Network North America, based in San Francisco. The group advocates ecological means of bug control, like crop rotation, and less use of chemical bug sprays.

"Biopesticides are certainly better than chemical pesticides," said Marcia Ishii-Eiteman, a staff scientist for the action network. "But there are still questions that we need to raise, the public needs to raise, the manufacturers and the farmers need to raise."

While biopesticides use naturally found viruses and bacteria, Ishii-Eiteman said introducing them in high quantities for pest control could wreak havoc on an ecosystem's food chain.

Still, it will be some time before cornstarch-wrapped micro-organisms are in farmers' hands. The USDA lab in Peoria needs to find an industrial partner to try manufacturing biopesticides on a larger scale, a process that could take months if not longer.

"This is still very much in the research mode," McGuire said. "It's not a finished product, and there's not a company to market it."

Rain continues to hurt strawberry crop

DOVER, N.H. (AP) - As though the rain hasn't caused enough trouble flooding roads and basements, it now threatens New England's strawberry crop.

Stephen Taylor, state agriculture commissioner, said strawberries are ripe and ready to be picked, but finding people to pick them could be a challenge.

"This is really going to hurt the pick-your-own places," he said. "Most consumers aren't going to get down on their hands and knees in the mud to pick their own strawberries."

The weather could cause trouble for all crops, but strawberries will be the hardest hit. The berries are in the middle of the picking season, making them more susceptible to rotting.

"The strawberries are starting to burst because they're getting so much water," said Peter Fabian, manager at Tuttle's Red Barn farm in Dover.

Farm workers at Tuttle's are scrambling to pick strawberries in the rain, trying to save what they can as soil around the plants erodes.

If the ground stays saturated, the plants and vegetables could have trouble getting oxygen, said Cal Schroeder, spokesman for the University of New Hampshire Cooperative Extension.

"It's not good," said Brad Towle, co-owner of Emery Farm in Durham. "We just started picking on Wednesday."

Randy Warren, owner of Warren Farm in Barrington, said enough berries already have been harvested to save his crop.

"We have more than enough if the rain continues," Warren said. "The problem is, we could lose crops if it warms up and we get mold out there."

The good news is that even if the crop is lost, consumers probably won't feel it in the wallet, said Jack McKenzie, owner of McKenzie Farm in Milton.

"We're such a small part of the market, it won't make any difference," he said.

Officials help farmers work through drought

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry says U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman has "vowed" to work with state officials to help farmers and ranchers struggling with persistent drought conditions.

"It's time to put the lessons learned from the drought of 1996 into play for 1998," Perry said in a news release issued Thursday, a day after he briefed Glickman in Washington on the drought conditions.

"Secretary Glickman is now well aware of the serious situation we're facing in Texas and he has vowed to work with me and our congressional delegation to help our farmers and ranchers during this rough time," Perry added.

The drought has cost the Texas economy $1.7 billion with a loss of $517 million in crops, according to estimates by Texas A&M extension program economists.

If conditions persist, the ag economists said in a report this week, the 1998 drought could be more costly than the one two years ago - which cost the state some $5 billion.

Perry said he urged Glickman to streamline the disaster declaration process. In 1996, some Texas applications for disaster declarations took four months to process, he said.

The House of the Week Classic Country Flavor

CLASSIC COUNTRY FEATURES, including a railed wraparound porch, shuttered windows and a gabled roof, accent the exterior of this two-story home.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN

AP Newsfeatures
The classic country flavor of plan G-84, by HomeStyles Designers Network, is assured by its shuttered windows, wrap-around porch and gabled roof. Its living area covers 2,144 square feet of space.

Accented by a sidelighted front door, the roomy foyer is flanked by elegant formal areas. The living room is brightened by windows that overlook the front porch. A racetrack ceiling is a distinctive feature of the formal dining room.

Casual areas stretch across the rear of the home. A fireplace and a set of windows highlight the family room. The well-designed kitchen includes an island worktop, a built-in menu desk, a nearby pantry closet and an adjoining dinette with sliding-glass-door access to the backyard.

A half-bath and a large laundry room are just off the kitchen, and offer access to the three-car garage.

Upstairs, a soaring vaulted ceiling crowns the master suite, a perfect retreat at the end of the day. This room includes a spacious walk-in closet and a private bath with a linen closet.

Three additional bedrooms share a full bath, completing the floor plan.

Upper Level

G-84

BEYOND THE COVERED FRONT PORCH and foyer are the living room to the left and the dining room, which has easy access to the kitchen, to the right. The family room, dinette and kitchen are all open to each other, and the dinette has sliding glass doors to the backyard. A short hallway leads to the laundry room and out to the three-car garage. Upstairs, the master suite has its own bath. Three secondary bedrooms have easy access to another full bath.

G-84 STATISTICS

Design G-84 has a foyer, living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, dinette, four bedrooms, two-and-one-half baths and a laundry room, totaling 2,144 square feet of living space. The plan includes a standard basement or crawl-space foundation, and 2x6 exterior wall framing. The attached three-car garage adds 926 square feet to the plan.

USA's 'family' reunites for An Unexpected Life

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Stockard Channing, Stephen Collins and the other principal cast members of An Unexpected Family reunite to continue the story in An Unexpected Life, a new comedy-drama premiering Wednesday, June 24, on USA Network.

Family was last season's "little movie that could" for USA, garnering critical acclaim for its witty and honest story of driven career woman Barbara Whitney (Channing), who finds her life turned upside down when her irresponsible sister, Ruth (Christine Ebersole), drops off her two children (Noah Fleiss, Chelsea Russo) and takes what turns out to be an extended leave of absence.

During the course of the movie, which earned Channing an Emmy nomination, Barbara comes to terms with her new maternal role, supported by her best friend and eventual lover, Sam (Collins).

By the final scene, Barbara has won permanent custody of the children, leaving Ruth to get her own life back in order.

As An Unexpected Life opens, Barbara and Sam have moved to the country in search of a more suitable life for the children, Matt and Megan. Almost immediately, Barbara realizes she is a city person to the core, and her mood doesn't improve when she makes a stunning discovery: She is pregnant.

While Sam is thrilled by the news, Barbara only reluctantly agrees to have the baby, after which she plunges into a bleak postpartum depression. Complicating matters, Ruth has decided she wants her children back, and Sam's dragon mother (Elaine Stritch) is arriving for a visit.

Like An Unexpected Family, the new

USA movie tells its story with wit and style. But An Unexpected Life cuts much closer to the bone in its dramatic scenes, which lay bare some of Barbara's deepest fears as she begins to feel overwhelmed by the changes in her life.

"It's in the trying that you've succeeded," the character eventually realizes. "You just put one foot in front of the other ... and pray you don't trip."

Channing says it was this study in resilience that pulled her back to Barbara.

"I can't say that I have a lot of affection for the character, but I have a lot of affection for her situation," the actress says. "This seems like an angle on a story that people don't talk about very much. A lot of women are having babies in their 40s, and it's not always blissful."

"(Executive producer and writer) Lee Rose likes to write about the patterns that really happen in the world. You know, the phone rings and your favorite aunt has got cancer, and then there's a car wreck that same afternoon. That's what we deal with in life, and there's no real reason for it ... but somehow you get through it."

With characters this rich and a cast this seamless, An Unexpected Life easily measures up to the high standards of its predecessor. If quality translates again into good ratings for USA, another reunion wouldn't be, well, unexpected.

"Lee is talking about doing a third one and making it a trilogy," Channing says. "She's got something up her sleeve. I think being in one's 40s or early 50s is a very interesting time of life. It's nothing like we expected. There never have been people of our age who are able to do as many things as we do, to look the way that we do, and that makes for tremendously complex situations."

ARIES -- March 21/April 20

When it comes to your professional life this week, you're in control, Aries. You have the chance to make some important decisions and impress your superiors. However, don't let your power go to your head. A loved one introduces you to an interesting person. Get to know him or her better. Gemini plays a key role.

TAURUS -- April 21/May 21

While there is nothing that you would enjoy more than to stay home this week, it is the one thing that you won't be able to do. You have several social engagements that keep you out and about. Try to enjoy them. You'll be able to relax during the weekend. You learn something interesting about a close friend. Keep it to yourself.

GEMINI -- May 22/June 21

Life is anything but boring early in the week, Gemini. Every time that you think you've finished something, a problem arises. Don't get upset. You can handle everything if you keep your cool. That special someone has a surprise for you. Enjoy yourself -- you deserve it. Aries plays a role.

CANCER -- June 22/July 22

A business associate shares confidential information with you. Keep it to yourself -- even though you think others should know about it. It is not your place to tell them. A close friend visits you unexpectedly. Don't be fooled by his or her calm demeanor; something is wrong. Do all that you can to help.

LEO -- July 23/August 23

You help resolve a serious business problem and are put in the spotlight at work. Stand tall; you deserve it. The higher-ups are impressed with your efforts and will reward you. A close friend needs to talk with you. Don't shut him or her out because there is trouble brewing. Virgo plays a role.

VIRGO -- Aug 24/Sept 22

An impending announcement has you on the edge of your seat. Virgo. Try to stay calm, and focus on what you have to do. You can't make the news come any faster by thinking about it. A close friend takes you out to celebrate his or her promotion. Enjoy yourself.

LIBRA -- Sept 23/Oct 23

Try to keep yourself busy this week, Libra. If you don't, you are sure to be bored. Friends and loved ones seem to be busy with their own problems. Take some time for yourself -- you haven't been able to do that in a while. Things will be back to normal next week. Leo plays a role on Friday.

SCORPIO -- Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't give in to the temptation to lie when you get caught in a difficult situation during the middle of the week. Telling the truth is the only way to get yourself out of this mess. You run into an old friend over the weekend. Catch up with him or her. Sagittarius plays an important role.

SAGITTARIUS -- Nov 23/Dec 21

While you only mean to help a business situation, your efforts cause a serious problem. Don't worry; no one is upset with you. Just do what you can to help rectify the problem. A loved one asks for your opinion. Be honest. He or she wants to hear what you have to say.

CAPRICORN -- Dec 22/Jan 20

Don't desert a business associate in a time of need. You know that he or she needs your help to solve an important problem. Be supportive. Your efforts will be rewarded. That special someone has an important question to ask you. Don't get nervous; it's not what you think. Taurus plays a role.

AQUARIUS -- Jan 21/Feb 18

Even though it isn't what you were expecting, you are on your own this week, Aquarius. Coworkers and loved ones have their own work to do and don't spend a lot of time with you. Enjoy this peace while you can. Your phone will be ringing off the hook before you know it.

PISCES -- Feb 19/March 20

You truly are motivated early in the week, Pisces. Go after what you want. With determination, you are sure to get it. Loved ones and friends are behind you 100 percent. An old friend wants to meet with you. Find out what he or she wants before saying yes. There is more to this than meets the eye.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Will CBS be bringing back George & Leo next season? -Darryl L. via e-mail.

A: No. To my shock, CBS wielded the ax with a very heavy hand at the end of this season, dropping ALL of its freshman shows, including the promising Michael Hayes, George & Leo and Brooklyn South.

Jane Seymour reportedly is devastated by the cancellation of Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman. CBS is moving Early Edition into that Saturday time slot starting next fall. Sandwiched between Edition and Walker, Texas Ranger will be Martial Law, starring Chinese action star Sammo Hung as a Los Angeles crimefighter.

Also gone, and not unexpectedly: Cybill, Style & Substance, The Closer and Family Matters, which lost more than a third of its audience when it moved to CBS from ABC.

Don't shoot the messenger, folks. To vent, write to CBS Audience Services, c/o CBS Entertainment, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90036. There is also a "Save Dr. Quinn" campaign online at www.destiny.com/drquinn.

Q: Fox had a half-hour Sunday show that consisted of two 15-minute stories. One was The Searcher, which I think starred one of the actors on The Drew Carey Show. What was it? -Blake via e-mail.

A: Hosted by Robert Vaughn, Danger Theatre was a parody series that ran for just over a month in the summer of 1993. Diedrich Bader (Oswald on Drew Carey) starred as The Searcher in a spoof of Knight Rider and similar shows.

The second 15 minutes was filled with Tropical Punch, a sendup of Hawaii Five-0, starring Adam West. During the last week of the show's run, Punch was replaced with a 77

Jane Seymour

Sunset Strip parody called 357 Marina Del Rey, with Todd Field.

Q: I was so disappointed that they didn't bring Miles back for the finale of Murphy Brown. Why? -Shirlee Hedges, Avon Lake, Ohio.

A: Murphy star Candice Bergen, who considers actor Grant Shaud a dear friend, told me last January that she personally invited him to appear, but she didn't really expect him to come.

"I think he's quite pleased to have put some distance between who he is and who Miles Silverberg is," she said. "I'm not sure that was a marriage he was always very happy with, being sort of identified as this neurotic sort of nerd - sort of understandable."

Q: What was the sitcom Juliette Lewis starred in a few years ago? -EMSANTA via e-mail.

A: She's done two, both flops: I Married Dora, with Daniel Hugh Kelly and Elizabeth Pena (ABC 1987-88), and A Family for Joe, with Robert Mitchum (NBC 1990).

Prime-time television faces animated Invasion

By Glenn Teichman
©TVData Features Syndicate

Animation, a respectable form of storytelling in Japan, has long been relegated to the status of after-school and Saturday-morning kiddie fare in the United States. In recent years, Fox's The Simpsons and King of the Hill, both comedies, have shown the viability of prime-time animation.

Now The WB Network has entered the fray with an animated drama, Invasion America.

The series, which is now at its mid-way point, airs its next two episodes on consecutive Tuesdays, June 23 and 30, before airing its 90-minute finale on Sunday, July 5.

Created and developed by filmmakers Steven Spielberg (E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial, Schindler's List) and Harve Bennett (Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, A Woman Called Golda), the science-fiction series tells the story of David Carter (voice of Mikey Kelley), a 17-year-old boy who discovers he is the deposed prince of an alien race.

In the premiere episode, viewers learn of the Tyrusians and the schism between ruler Calé Oosha (voice of Lorenzo Lamas) and his uncle, the Dragit (voice of Tony Jay).

Cale travels to Earth to learn of the culture but soon discovers the Dragit has plans for world conquest. Cale flees and is befriended by a human woman (voice of Kath Soucie), with whom he falls in love.

The product of their short-lived union is David, who is initially unaware of his alien heritage.

But soon he is drawn into an epic battle to save the only world he has ever considered home.

"This is a tale of nobility," Bennett says. "This is a tale of heroism, and it's a tale that dares to say our life is worth fighting for; our world is a good place to live."

Blending cel animation with computer-generated images, Invasion America is an ambitious project that attempts to duplicate Japan's success with anime. And Bennett says there is the possibility of continuing the tale in a second season.

So if Invasion America takes the nation by storm, expect Earth to be a target again next year.

SOAP WORLD

Heskin hits shores as new Caitlin on Sunset Beach

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

In a surprising move, popular actress Vanessa Dorman (Caitlin) has been replaced on Sunset Beach. Kam Heskin will take over the role. The producers say the change was made because the story line was going in a different direction.

The story of how Heskin learned she got the job reads like an old Hollywood tale.

After flying in from New York to audition, Heskin was on board her return flight. As the plane was about to taxi to the runway, she heard an announcement that said, "Passenger Heskin, please press the attendant-call button."

Heskin's call-button was broken, but she was able to flag down one of the flight attendants. The attendant yelled across the plane that Heskin got the role and needed to get off the plane.

The network set Heskin up with a hotel room, clothes (it was too late to get her baggage off the plane) and scripts for Monday's episodes.

And, in true soap opera style, her first scene was a lovemaking montage with Eddie Cibrian (Cole). Now that is one way to start a new job.

Dear Candace: Are Nick and Sharon (Joshua Morrow, Sharon Case) on The Young and the Restless ever going to reunite? Also, is Guiding Light going to give the Reva-clone story a rest? —R.W., Green Bay, Wis.

Dear Reader: I wish I could give you good news about Nick and Sharon, but their problems are far from over. As for GL, the Reva-clone story is going to get interesting soon.

Dear Candace: I am so upset over the cancellation of the soap opera Port Charles. I love that soap. About two weeks ago, it was moved to a late-night time slot, but I still taped it. Now it is gone. I called our local station and they said it had been canceled. —Judy Payne in Idaho.

Dear Reader: It may have been taken off the air in your local market, but Port Charles has not been canceled. You were misled by your local affiliate. The show is celebrating its one-year anniversary.
