Radiology: More than taking x-rays

Claudia Smith's job at Hereford Regional Medical Center is more than just "taking" x-rays.

When she started working at the hospital, the radiology department had two technicians covering 24 hours a day.

There are five different modalities in the department. They are:

DIAGNOSTIC X-RAY

Studies utilizing radiation to produce a single-dimension image. Some routine x-rays are chest, abdomen and extremities. The department averages 600 exams per month.

MAMMOGRAPHY

A low-dosage x-ray procedure films the internal tissues of the breast. Also includes wire placement for precise localizing breast masses before surgery.

The department does self-referred screening mammograms and offers discounted rates during Breast Cancer Awareness Month (October). The department averages 62 exams per month.

DIAGNOSTIC ULTRASOUND

Procedure using sound waves to obtain a very precise image of various organs and tissues, such as blood vessels, uterus or fetus. It also reveals internal motion, such as heart beat and blood flow. The department averages 85 exams per month.

CT SCANNING

CT, or computerized tomography, is an x-ray procedure enhanced by a computer, resulting in a three-dimensional view of a particular part of the body which shows both bones and soft tissues. The department averages 52 exams per month.

NUCLEAR MEDICINE

Uses small amounts of radioactive material that is injected through a vein. The isotope is chemically tagged to go to a specific organ or part of the body.

The body emits radiation picked up by a gamma camera, and a computer is used to produce the image on a screen or film. Nuclear

Smith's position enviable

By DONALD M. COOPER

Claudia Smith's in a position that a lot of people would like to be: She's getting to pick her boss.

Smith, who is director of the radiology department at Hereford Regional Medical Center, also is one of two medical staff representatives on the committee in charge of the search for a new hospital administrator.

Now, the Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors will have the responsibility for actually deciding who will be the new administrator, but Smith will have had a chance to help recommend the final candidates for the job.

However, the selection of a new hospital administrator is not the most pressing item on her list of things to do.

As director of the five-person department, Smith stays busy. In December, when she made an end-of-the-year report to the Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors, the department had performed nearly 4,900 exams, or about 825 per month.

Because of the volume of exams, every member of the staff must be able to do every other person's jobs, something Smith said she prefers.

"If you're not so specialized, like in the big-city hospitals, you don't get stagnant, you don't get bored," she said.

"Even though it's the same thing every day, it's different. I would hate to think I would only do chests all day. I think all the RTs (radiology technicians) think the same way," Smith said.

Smith has been a radiology technician at Hereford Regional Medical Center for 24 years, 22 as director of the radiology department.

In a way, she's always been a part of the hospital. After all, she was born in what was then called Deaf Smith County Hospital.

She also knew what she wanted to do with her life, because she enrolled in the radiology class at St. Anthony's (now Baptist St. Anthony's Health Center) within weeks after graduating from Hereford High School. Two years to the day later, she graduated from

City, county roadways may be smoother

City and county motorists should notice a difference when they drive over some area streets and roads.

The summer sealcoating project got under way during the week, with several thoroughfares targeted for improvements.

Although the city participated last year in the project with several other West Texas cities and counties, this is the first year that Deaf Smith County has participated.

Rick Oller of Lubbock-based Oller Engineering is overseeing the project. The city paid about $73,000 to sealcoat 99,555 square yards of streets.

The streets targeted for rehabilitation this year were:

- Lee (U.S. Hwy. 385 to West 5th);
- Redwood (Park Avenue to Plains);
- Oak Street (Park Avenue to Plains);
- Fir Avenue (Westhaven to Moreman);
- Sunset (Plains to Moreman);
- East 15th (Blackfoot to Whittier);
- Avenue C (Park to Union, and Grand to 13th Street);
- Avenue D (Park to Union, and Grand to 13th Street);
- Avenue H (Park to Union);
- Paloma (13th to 14th streets);
- Apache Drive (15th Street to Cherokee Drive);

- 13th Street (Blevens to Whittier);
- Union Avenue (U.S. 385 to Avenue B);
- George Street (Irving to alley between Bevard and Irving);
- Myrtle (U.S. Hwy. 60 to Whittier);
- Sampson (4th Street to 5th Street);
- 9th Street (U.S. 385 to Park Avenue);
- Clement (U.S. 60 to U.S. 385);
- Bradley (U.S. 385 to Knight);
- Kibbe (Knight to city limits); and
- South Main (Austin Road to James Street).

The county targeted about 15,000 square yards of roadway for sealcoating, costing about $48,000. The county roads being rehabilitated are:

- South Main (city limits to Walnut Road);
- Road GG (Road 5 north, north end around lake, and city limits north);
- Road G (Road 7C to Road 7);
- Road H (Farm Road 2856 to U.S. Hwy. 60 and U.S. south);
- Road I (FM 2856 south and U.S. 60 to M. Hide Plant); and
- Road 12 (Road E to Road DD, and 1 mile east of Road B to 1.2 mile east of Road CC).

Twister hits McLean; two people injured

McLEAN (AP) - More than a dozen businesses and homes are damaged in the Texas Panhandle by what residents say is a twister that injured two people.

A storm survey team will assess damage at McLean, Mobeetie and Shamrock most of today, then determine whether a tornado or strong winds caused the damage.

Preliminary estimates are that 10 to 15 businesses and eight to 10 homes were damaged or destroyed by this storm early Friday, said the Texas Department of Public Safety.

In McLean, several roofs are damaged or blown off, trees are uprooted, trailer houses have been moved three to four feet, power lines are down and no one is being allowed into or out of the city, according to a Gray County dispatcher.

A trailer house was blown over in Mobeetie and a semi truck toppled in Shamrock, with the driver slightly injured. He and another truck driver were treated at Shamrock General hospital and released, said McLean Mayor Charles McClendon.

A spokesman for Southwestern Public Service said there is a crew in McLean to fix damage to electric lines. Wes Reeves, the spokesman, said that the lines were torn from about 200 rooftops.

McLean residents suffered from lack of electrical power and access into or out of the city and school.

Lantz captures top state honors; HHS fares well

Hereford High senior Jared Lantz could probably host his very own syndicated woodworking show -- if he wasn't so busy trying to graduate with the Class of '98.

Lantz led an award-winning crop of Hereford High industrial technology students after his project was named best-in-show during the state meet in Waco, May 8-9.

The single award, which has been given only twice in the last three years and both times to H.H.S. students, seems to set a standard for excellence that other school programs may want to emulate.

"We probably haven't done a very good job of emphasizing the magnitude of these two best-in-show awards," Neal Medlock, H.H.S. woodworking instructor, said. "Those best-in-show awards mean that judges viewed one project as the very best in the entire field of projects, even those beyond woodworking, represented at the state level. You're easily talking about more than 3000 projects."

The top award was first given to Brent Marnell of Hereford in 1996 for a desk that featured a hidden interior compartment, designed to conceal valued rifles and firearms.

"These students start from scratch, without commercial plans," Medlock said. "We tell them as juniors to spend some time during their summer vacations looking for designs or specific details they might be interested in incorporating into a project. When they return in the fall, they take those ideas to the drafting table to make the working plans."

Medlock estimated Lantz invested 600 hours of labor on his prize-winning walnut and cherry 'break-front' china cabinet.

"This was a good year for us. Collectively, it may have been one of the best years we've had, and I think the reason is the amount of individual effort they (students) put in on their projects," Medlock said.

The students, whose work represented a wide variety of woodworking, drafting and computer application projects, competed with others from across the Panhandle area during regional competition held in Amarillo on May 1-2.

Those who advanced from regional were entered at the state level. There,

H.H.S. students garnered more than 40 first place finishes and 20 best-in-state awards.

POW-MIA flags flying at agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Post offices and many other federal facilities are flying the POW-MIA flag today.

Selected agencies are required to display the special flag on six specified days during the year under a provision of the Defense Authorization Act signed by President Clinton last Nov. 18.

Today is Armed Forces Day, the first of those designated days.

Others are Memorial Day, Flag Day, Independence Day, National POW-MIA Recognition Day and Veterans Day.

Required to display the POW-MIA flag are post offices, the Capitol, the White House, the Korean and Vietnam War memorials, national cemeteries, the departments of State, Defense and Veterans Affairs, major military bases, veterans medical centers and the Selective Service System.

Job seminar

Former employees of Holly Sugar's Hereford processing plant can receive advice in finding new jobs next week at a regional seminar.

The job search seminar, which is free and will be sponsored by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, will be conducted in two sessions at the Deaf Smith County Library. The sessions will be 8:30 a.m.-noon and 1:30-5 p.m. Friday.

Representatives from the planning commission will help in the preparation of resumes and offer tips on how to handle an interview with a prospective new employer, as well as provide information about what jobs are available in the area.

A Spanish interpreter also will be present at the seminar. For reservations or more information, call Frankie Wells at 363-7810 during business hours or at 364-5733 during evenings.

Therapist attends course

A physical therapist from Therapy & Rehab Services in Hereford recently attended the American Academy of Orthopedic Medicine's lumbar spine course in Lubbock.

Estela Dy spent three days in specialized training, which encompassed sacroiliac joint pathology and primary disc-related disorders.

The AAOM course was taught by Omer Matthijs, an internationally recognized researcher, practitioner, author and teacher who specializes in orthopedic medicine and manual therapy. Emphasis was placed on manipulation and mobilization of the spine.

Partly cloudy

Tonight, partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms, low 55 to 60.

Sunday, partly cloudy and breezy, high 85 to 90, south wind 15-25 mph with higher gusts. Sunday night, mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms, low near 60.

Extended forecast

Monday through Wednesday, partly cloudy with a slight chance of late afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms, lows 55 to 60, highs around 90.

Friday recap

High, 82; low 43; no precipitation.

City commission

A new commissioner will be sworn in when the Hereford City Commission meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the commission chamber of City Hall, 224 N. Lee.

Angie Alonzo, who was elected to the Place 2 seat on the commission, will join returning incumbents, Place 4 Commissioner Wayne Winget and at-large Commissioners Carey Black and Roger Eades, in taking the oath of office.

In other business, the commissioners will:

- Elect a mayor pro-tem;
- Hold the third reading of the franchise ordinance with Southwestern Bell Telephone;
- Consider a request from the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce for a waiver of the garage sale permit fee for the 1998 City Wide Garage Sale;
- Consider a request to close a portion of Funston Avenue;
- Consider the re-appointment of members to the city's Board of Electrical Examiners;
- Consider approval of an agreement for aerial spraying for mosquito and fly control; and
- Receive a report from the Hereford Economic Development Corp.

Reunion is scheduled

The annual Mid-Plains Reunion Celebration will be May 23 at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn. Registration will start at 9 a.m. and the call to order will be made at 11:30 a.m.

Mid-Plains dues are $5 a person. Each person is requested to bring a covered dish for the luncheon. The meat, bread and drinks will be provided.

Summer Food Program

The Hereford Independent School District and the Texas Department of Human Services will operate a summer food program June 8-July 23 at Shirley and West Central schools.

There is no formal registration. The only requirement is that participants be between the ages of 1 and 18. The menus will resemble school lunches and are free to all children. Lunch will be 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. Monday-Thursday in the school cafeterias.

Deadline extended

The Junior Historians have extended the deadline for entries in the "Design A T-Shirt" contest for the 100th Birthday of Hereford. All entries should be delivered to Hereford Junior High by 4 p.m. Monday, May 18. Prizes are $50 for first place and $25 for second place.

FCE Council will meet

The May meeting of the Family Community Education Council will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library. This month's regular meeting date has been changed due to the Memorial Day observance.

Omitted scholarships

Four scholarship winners were inadvertently omitted in the list of winners published earlier this week in The Hereford Brand. Carrie Herrera, Jeremy Urbanczyk, Crystal Bailey and Andres Del Toro each received a $500 scholarship from the Hereford Regional Medical Center Auxiliary.

The newspaper regrets the omission.

Young craftsmen garner honors

Nielsen receives probation

Testimony ended abruptly Friday in the trial of Janet Gayle Nielsen on theft charges.

Nielsen, who was indicted April 25, 1996, on the first of three charges of theft, changed her plea on the charge to nolo contendere to all three charges.

Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul said Nielsen was sentenced to two years, probated to three years probation and ordered to pay $15,000 restitution.

She received seven years probation in each of the other two cases, he said. The probation terms will be concurrent.

Nielsen, 38, had been charged on two separate counts of theft over $20,000 and one count of theft over $1,500 and under $20,000; however, the trial that ended Friday involved only the latter charge.

The trial began Monday with jury selection, and the case ended Friday with the plea arrangement.

According to information provided by Assistant District Attorney, Jim English, Nielsen worked as book-keeper for Custom Cleaners between 1982 and 1995.

English said that Dorman Smith, owner of Custom Cleaners, suspected problems with the company books and reported it to the police before an official audit could be ordered.

After the police investigation and an audit, Nielsen was arrested.

Nielsen could have drawn a maximum of two years state jail time, probated to five years probation with a maximum fine of $10,000.

In 1979, Nielsen was convicted on theft charges, receiving two years deferred adjudication, which she served out, according to Saul.

Rosie, Oprah win; Lucci snubbed again

NEW YORK (AP) - In honoring Oprah Winfrey for lifetime achievement at the 25th annual Daytime Emmy Awards, comedian Chris Rock joked that the fights on her show were never staged.

Winfrey and Rosie O'Donnell, who shared the Emmy for best talk show host at Friday's ceremony, are about as far away from the fists-flying world of Jerry Springer as you can get.

"We both feel that this is God's work," Winfrey said. "We thank you for allowing us to have this calling."

Daytime TV's most notorious bad luck streak continued at Radio City Music Hall. Susan Lucci went home empty-handed again in her 18th try to win best actress in a soap opera. Cynthia Watros of "Guiding Light" won.

Three actors from ABC's venerable "General Hospital" took home awards, but its three-year winning streak as best drama series was broken by "All My Children."

O'Donnell and Winfrey, who both recently slipped behind Springer in the television ratings, weren't threatened by him during their unprecedented tie. Springer wasn't nominated.

An emotional O'Donnell won the award for best talk show, a category Winfrey has owned nine times, including the past four years in a row.

the hospital's course.

"It was a hospital-based program, rather than a college-based program," Smith said. Although both programs have advantages, she prefers the hospital-based program, which focuses entirely on the work, without the other academic courses as is the case with the program at Amarillo College.

The first three months of the program were "all books," but then the students became "working students," getting on-the-job training in the clinics during the morning and doing classwork in the afternoon.

Smith also has kept abreast of the new technology, learning ultrasonography, mammography and nuclear medicine.

"It was all on-the-job training. The hospital has given me an advantage with equipment to learn on and people to train with," Smith said.

She praised the HRMC equipment, saying her department has state-of-the-art and the hospital directors and administration have tried to keep up with technological changes.

Although the hospital has gone through several directors during her tenure, Smith said all of the administrators have been "very supportive of innovation and technology."

In looking at her job, Smith said she most enjoys the people, both those with whom she works and the patients.

She also praised the teamwork at the hospital, noting "everybody helps everybody else."

"I want to keep the department abreast of the technology and use it to help the community," she said.

"I also want to educate the people about this hospital and what it can do. If the hospital weren't here, it'd be a tragedy for the community," she said.

The Hereford native is the daughter of the late Ed Loerwald, who was one of the founders of Loerwald Brothers Welding, and Adelaide Loerwald. She is married to her high school sweetheart, Dale Smith, who is a welder for Poarch's.

They have three sons. The oldest sons are twins, with one working for Poarch's and the other in the military at Ft. Hood. The youngest son is an active 13-year-old in the seventh grade. The Smiths also have one grandson, who lives with his parents at Ft. Hood.

Street rehabilitated

Road crews sealcoat Bradley Street, from U.S. Hwy. 385 to Knight Street, Friday as the city's summer street project got under way. Several thoroughfares targeted for improvements. The city paid about $73,000 to sealcoat 99,555 square yards of streets. Deaf Smith County also targeted about 15,000 square yards of roadway for sealcoating.

Farmers Market is planned

All vendors interested in selling produce during this year's Hereford Farmer's Market, sponsored each year by the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, are encouraged to contact Denise Andrews, market chairman, at 276-5240.

The market has been scheduled to begin operation in early July at the Family Dollar parking lot, 111 W. Park Ave.

The market is open to all vendors, but produce must be home-grown. Planting acreage must be inspected before permits will be issued. Vendor entry fees include a $15 season membership fee and a $5 stall fee.

Some Of Our Best Investments Have Nothing To Do With Money.

Every week this past year, a task force from Hereford State Bank made it a point to call on West Central Intermediate School.

Nine conscientious HSB employees made up this group and volunteered their time as mentors for the school's HOSTS (Help One Student To Succeed) program -- a program designed to place caring people throughout our community in a one-on-one tutoring session with individual students each week.

These volunteers included; Reni Mason, Charlene Sanders, Brenda Milam, Debbie Gonzalez, Martina Rojas, Debbie Holmes, Carol Jowell, Steve Gilbert and Wynona Blair. As a result of their efforts, Hereford State Bank received the West Central H.O.S.T. Angel Award this year.

But if you asked these volunteers, they would readily tell you they've been the biggest benefactors of the program. Not because of an award, but because they were able to help someone.

We're proud to have these and the many other employees of our bank who work extra hard to make your banking easy.

All banks say they do this — make your banking easier. Being able to do it better than anyone else is the definition of our success.

I sit in my office thinking about the things I need to do today. Suddenly, I remember a question I need to ask my bookkeeper. Going to the front office, I stop at her desk and look at her for a moment. She senses my blank stare and says, "You forgot what you were going to ask, didn't you? Okay, she's not a mindreader and it wasn't the first time it happened.

This doesn't necessarily mean that I'm a rare bird who is getting old and forgetful. Don't tell me that something like this has not happened to you. The problem is that you and I have so much to remember that we often forget what we're doing. We are victims of Overchoice -- too much to do and too little time. It's a national problem.

When I made that visit to the bookkeeper, my mind was still going over other choices that needed action. This reminded me of a short essay by Roy H. Williams, author of "The Wizard of Ads." He tells the story of getting into an elevator alone. The door closes and he waits and waits, but nothing happens. After a couple of minutes, he realizes he has to push a button.

Williams, a nationally-recognized advertising expert, tells the story to remind advertisers of something they often forget: the customer is seldom paying attention. She simply has too many other things to think about. When exposed to your ad, she knows it's there, the same way he knew the elevator button is there. The problem is that she's not thinking about it.

Craig Smith, president of Hereford State Bank, remarked just recently that he was surprised how many people still don't realize the bank has expanded business hours. The bank is open to 4 p.m. each weekday, and the drive-in windows are open to 6 p.m. on Fridays. If customers are not thinking about banking hours when they read or hear the ad, they sometimes revert to the old habits. Now and then, a customer will call and say they need to make a transaction but can't get to the bank by 3 p.m.

Williams says the skillful use of words is the most impressive of human powers. "When you advertise, you must choose between boredom, shouting, and seduction. Which do you choose?" asks Williams. He chooses seduction, but he's not talking about using sex appeal in ads. "If your goal is to cause the customer to willingly give you her attention, isn't the solution obvious? You must offer her a thought more interesting than the thought that currently occupies her mind," says Williams. "This does not require shouting. It requires art."

--Claiming to have very high winds in his area, a man reported the winds were even higher than usual two years ago. The tomatoes in his garden didn't get ripe because the wind kept blowing the sun off of them.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

In Re: Reflections, May 10, 1998:

I missed reading Part I of your column, "Reflections, Don't Trash the Sixties," but I did read Part II.

With the exception of Civil Rights, trashing the sixties will be easy for me, being 51 years of age. The protestors and the issues which they protested were just that, trash.

The protestors of the sixties are in charge of the decision making in our government today. One can look toward the liberal policies made under our current governmental administration. Doesn't it harken one back to protestors and their issues of the sixties? You can see trash still stinks at age 50.

The college kids at Michigan State who protested the beer issue do have a life, just as you did as a protestor in the sixties.

Dear Editor:

We would like to thank the Hereford post office for sponsoring a food drive to benefit the residents of Deaf Smith County.

A special big thanks to mail carriers who picked up the food items. Due of the overwhelming response from the community, the food drive was a huge success.

On behalf of the Hereford Food Pantry,
Thank you,
Sally Walker, volunteer coordinator

The Hereford Brand welcomes letters to the editor on subjects of interest to our readers. SURPLUS SHUFFLE

GOP facing tough decisions on budget

By ALAN FRAM

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Through two decades of fighting for deficit reduction, Republicans never found it easy agreeing how to do it. With fat budget surpluses emerging this election year, they still are tussling over their course. Pivoting on the year's top budget issue, House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said last week that expected surpluses now look so big that they should be used half for strengthening Social Security and half for tax cuts - not completely on Social Security as he had said before.

Many conservatives loved his shift because using the surplus for tax reductions they will propose this year could make the cuts tens of billions of dollars bigger.

Others, led by House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio-like Gingrich a 2000 GOP presidential hopeful - want tax cuts paid for by cutting federal spending.

They want the surplus used to shore up Social Security and to trim the $5.5 trillion national debt, and worry that using it for tax cuts will remove pressure for shrinking government, one of their big goals.

Still others, including Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and moderate Rep. Michael Castle, R-Del., say some additional spending cuts are fine, but they have little taste for deep reductions.

They say ever-bigger surpluses - now estimated by the Congressional Budget Office at up to $63 billion this year - make it unnecessary for Republicans to embark on a fresh round of slashing federal programs.

"We're a coalition," said conservative Rep. David McIntosh, R-Ind. "When we balanced the budget, people for whom that was a top item had to rethink their priorities. This is a very mature political argument that takes time."

But that argument also describes a party that is divided over legislative goals and the political strategy it should use to retain its House majority in the November congressional elections.

A new internal Republican National Committee poll seemed to provide ammunition for Republicans who say the party's core, conservative voters are depressed and should be motivated by a tax-cutting fight with President Clinton and Democrats if the GOP is to hold the House.

The poll, obtained by The Associated Press, said Republican voters think the country is moving in the wrong direction by a 58 percent-34 percent margin. It also showed public approval of Congress positive by 53 percent to 34 percent - a healthy stamp of approval but 10 points weaker than in February.

Those results could signal low Republican turnout for a 1998 election in which there is no presidential race to pull people to the voting booths. But the same poll also points to tax cuts as the way to excite GOP voters.

Cutting taxes was listed as the most important issue for Congress by 38 percent of Republicans polled, with rebuilding schools finishing second at 28 percent.

Just 9 percent said the top issue is "personal retirement accounts," a Gingrich-Kasich plan to buttress Social Security by dividing the budget surplus among Americans so they can make investments to supplement their retirement incomes.

Yet, Social Security remains an enormously popular program. Public polls have found that Clinton's call early this year to use the surplus to strengthen Social Security has all but won over the public.

Thus, even though Kasich supports using part of the surplus for the personal retirement accounts, he said, "I don't want any of that surplus used for tax cuts. ... We should not let an opportunity get away to truly transform Social Security."

For Kasich, cutting government is key. He has sought colleagues' support for $154 billion in spending cuts over five years, including abolition of the National Endowment for the Arts, the Commerce and Energy departments and the Legal Services Corporation. At last word, lack of votes had pushed his cuts down to $100 billion.

Even cuts of that magnitude were drawing opposition from Castle and other moderates, who told Kasich in a memo Friday that the reductions were excessive at a time of surpluses.

"Members in moderate and swing districts would have to pay the price for cuts that are viewed as unfair," wrote Castle and Reps. Fred Upton, R-Mich., and Nancy Johnson, R-Conn. "We should stay on a fiscally responsible course with good, solid steps toward a smaller, more efficient federal government, but there is no need to try to take a tremendous leap that may result in a political and policy fall."

Reflections

DAY AT THE RACES: I'm the Law arresting

As I drive around the Panhandle, I see beautiful horses grazing in pastures. I'm no horse expert, but I haven't seen any thoroughbreds in these pastures, but if there were a thoroughbred race track near here I'm sure I'd see would-be Secretariats in the pastures.

One of the interesting things about going to college near a race track is what it does to students' scheduling. I went to Henderson State University in Arkadelphia, Ark., about 30 miles south of Oaklawn Race Track in Hot Springs.

During registration for the fall semester, the students pushed and shoved for best spots in line. You had to be early because if you were late, you'd end up with all the 8 a.m. classes.

But when it came time to register for the spring semester, the students were staking out spots in line to grab those 8 a.m. classes. Register late, and you'd wind up with nothing but 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. classes.

Why did the HSU students change their minds about early vs. late classes? Racing season.

The thoroughbred season started in February and ran through April -- spring semester -- and the track hired students for a variety of jobs, from selling mutual tickets to just cleaning up.

Because post time for the first race was 1:30 p.m., students who wanted work at the track (or just go to the races) had to have the early classes.

One of the lucky Henderson students who landed a job at Oaklawn was Dennis Byrd, a good friend of mine who now runs the Little Rock bureau for Donrey Media Group. He threw himself into his job selling tickets, even going so far as to trying to learn how to comprehend the Racing Form, a chore I decided early on I didn't need.

Byrd didn't work every day, so on one of his days off he asked me to go to the track with him.

I went along and listened as he went through the Racing Form, explaining how he decided which horse to bet on in each race.

His explanations were very long and very complex, and he was irritated when I said most of my selections were based on the horse's name.

Simple system: Like the name, bet on the horse; don't like the name; don't bet on the horse. I didn't win a lot of money, but I didn't develop a headache trying to decipher the Racing Form.

Just before the seventh race, Byrd rushed up to me, grabbed my arm and said, "C'mon, we got a sure thing!"

"How do you know?"

"I just know! It's a sure thing!"

I followed him reluctantly to the mutual window.

"What's this sure thing, and how do you know it is?" I asked.

"See that guy over there?" he said and pointed to a well-dressed man standing by a door marked "Private."

I nodded.

"He's the head of the mutual department, and he just put a load on I'm the Law to win."

"Sounds good enough to me." Byrd put about $20 on I'm the Law to win. I figured I was ahead about $8, so I put $8 on I'm the Law to show.

Then we rushed to the rail to watch our horse run to victory.

When the race started, nine horses bolted from the starting gate, while one horse seemed to amble out, confused about all the noise and what he was doing on a track.

It was I'm the Law.

If it had been like the Indy 500, I'm sure all of the other horses would have lapped I'm the Law several times; but as it happened, he just got noted for finishing dead last in the field.

I'm not sure he finished; I think the horse died on the track and was buried near the starting gate.

The day wasn't a total loss, however. As I was going down the stairs on the way out of the track, I spotted a $10 bill on the steps.

I grabbed it, and figured it was a gift from I'm the Law.

Some veterans may be Unknowns, but they're not forgotten

The Tomb of the Unknowns has been opened; the remains of a Vietnam War soldier have been exhumed and - hopefully - through modern, scientific technology, those few remaining bone fragments may at long last be identified.

For the sake of the family who has wondered for all these years, I hope they get the answer they were looking for.

For all those families, though - who with little hope of finding their sons, fathers or brothers - have held a secret belief that it may be their family member, my heart goes out to them.

I was growing up just as the Vietnam conflict was winding down, but I remember the nightly news showing battle scenes in Cambodia and Laos.

As a senior in high school, I wore a copper bracelet, engraved with the name of an Oklahoma sergeant who was listed as missing in action, presumed dead.

In the early '80s some bones were brought home and identified. When the names were released, I sent my bracelet to a woman who would finally bury her son.

As I grew older, I came in close contact with some vets who had served in Southeast Asia.

Some were just friends. Some I dated. Some served outside battle zones; others were right in the thick of battle. Each time I met or got closer to one of the vets, I learned of a new horror they lived through.

And with each new horror, I'm glad to know that I wore that sergeant's name bracelet for all those years. I hope his mother can take some peace from knowing that not everyone forgot those who never returned.

This week I heard a rumor which infuriated me beyond measure, a rumor that said veterans had until Oct. 1, 1998, to register at the nearest V.A. hospital or lose all their medical benefits, which were promised to them with their honorable discharges.

These unknown men and women gave so much that I had to find out the truth.

determine the best spread of funds.

Veterans can register at any time, at any facility and whether they register now or in the future, their benefits remain.

This column might have been better used during the upcoming Memorial Day weekend, but I thought it important to let the vets know they haven't been forgotten, nor will the government let the thousands of vets be lumped together as "Unknown Soldiers."

It's bad enough to know that even one soldier remains listed as MIA or POW, but to think those who returned would be turned away from medical care goes beyond my comprehension.

THE OTHER DOLE

GOP eyes sparkling over Liddy's prospects

By RON FOURNIER
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON - With a lyrical speech about America's "pornographic culture" and "that simple gift" of more innocent times, Elizabeth Dole jolts 700 Republican women to their feet. One of them races to the nearest microphone.

"I sat on the dais with the first woman president of the United States!" bubbles Phyllis Hill Slater, a New York business owner.

Amid this orgy of adulation last month, Mrs. Dole flashes an aw-shucks smile and shakes her head side to side - seeming to dismiss the notion of a White House bid. Yet all the demurring in the world will not slow supporters and star-starved Republicans from dreaming up "Other Dole" scenarios for 2000.

"Elizabeth Dole is one of the brightest stars in the Republican Party constellation," said Ralph Reed, a leading GOP strategist. "There is a tremendous amount of anticipation and buzz at the grassroots about whether she might be considering running for president or potentially being a vice presidential nominee."

Republicans can't forget her show-stopping performance at the 1996 presidential convention, where she wandered among delegates to talk "about the man I love." That man, husband Bob Dole, lost the presidency in an uninspiring campaign that did more for Mrs. Dole's political future than his.

Republicans respect her resume of solid service, including Cabinet positions under presidents Ronald Reagan and George Bush and her current job as president of the American Red Cross.

And Republicans relish the theory that Mrs. Dole is a rare GOP figure who combines high name recognition with potential to bridge the gap between religious and economic conservatives. So they set aside for now all the reasons a successful Dole-2000 campaign is unlikely.

They like to focus instead on what just might happen.

"It might. She could win," said Cindi Williams, a Capitol Hill aide who headed Mrs. Dole's campaign staff. "If Elizabeth Dole ran, it would not only be historic - because she would be the first viable woman to run for president - but I think it would mix up the whole race."

Democrats, who rely on female votes to win the presidency, wonder if she would pull women voters away. "She has a lot of obvious appeal to people who would close the gender gap, and not just because she's a woman," said media consultant Bob Squier, an adviser to presumed 2000 candidate Vice President Al Gore.

But will she run?

Mrs. Dole's friends and political allies are betting no, but they say she might be talked into it. She is highly ambitious and self-confident, yet one close friend said she doesn't have "the fire inside" - at least not yet - for the rigors of a presidential campaign.

As a campaigner, Mrs. Dole would be everything her husband wasn't - warm, disciplined and dynamic on the stump.

Borrowing from her now-cliche convention stroll, Mrs. Dole walked

What works against her?

No female from either party has ever made a serious run for the presidency and she has never run for political office on her own.

She also has a tendency to be thin-skinned and highly controlling. One 1996 campaign adviser, speaking on condition of anonymity, recalled her "obsessing to the nth degree" about a news magazine's depiction of her religious background. "We had to tell her, 'Let it go, Mrs. Dole,'" the aide said.

And her political philosophy is largely unknown.

Do You Understand Common Investment Terms?

Have you ever heard physicians or computer experts speak with each other? Their discussions can sound like a foreign language to the average person.

Sometimes financial professionals take their knowledge for granted, too, forgetting that the average investor doesn't use words like "net asset value" and "12b-1 fee" in everyday conversation.

Understanding investing terms will not only allow you to communicate better with your financial professional, it can also help you interpret information in financial publications. Here are definitions for some of the more common terms:

Asked (or offering) price - The price at which a security can be purchased. For a mutual fund, the asked or offering price is the current net asset value plus any sales charge.

Bid (or redemption) price - The price at which a security can be sold. For a mutual fund, this is the price the fund will pay to redeem your shares; it usually equals the current net asset value.

Capital gain distributions - With mutual funds, payment to shareholders of gains on the sale of the fund's securities. These are generally paid once a year.

Dividend - An amount paid to owners of common stock, preferred stock or mutual funds at the discretion of the board of directors. Dividends are paid from a company's present or past earnings. Many growth companies pay little or no dividend, instead using earnings for future growth and development.

Dollar cost averaging - Buying securities at regular intervals with a fixed dollar amount.

Exchange privilege - Allows mutual fund shareholders to transfer their investment from one fund to another within the same fund family, usually for little or no fee. However, taxes may be due on any capital gains realized from the original fund.

Income dividends - Payments made to mutual fund shareholders that include dividends, interest and short-term capital gains earned on a fund's investments. Payments are made after operating expenses are deducted.

Management fee - The fee paid to an investment manager. It is most frequently associated with a mutual fund, although it applies to any investment manager. For a mutual fund, the fee generally averages about 1/2 of 1 percent of the fund's total net assets per year. This amounts to about $5 for every $1,000 of assets.

Net asset value - A term usually used in connection with investment companies, meaning true value per share. It is common practice for an investment company to compute its assets daily, or even twice daily, by totaling the market value of all securities owned. All liabilities are then subtracted from this total, and the balance is divided by the number of shares outstanding. The resulting figure is the net asset value per share.

Prospectus - The legal document that offers a mutual fund or new issue of securities to the public. It is required under the Securities Act of 1933.

Sales charge - The cost to purchase shares of a mutual fund. Sales charges typically range from 4 percent to 8.5 percent of the initial investment. The charge is added to the net asset value to determine the asked or offering price.

Total return - The price of a mutual fund plus reinvested dividends and capital gain distributions. It is generally expressed as a percentage of the fund's value.

12b-1 fee - A fee charged by some funds, named after the 1980 SEC rule that permits them. Such fees pay for distribution costs such as advertising or commissions paid to brokers. The fund's prospectus details 12b-1 fees if applicable.

Yield - Often referred to as return, yield is calculated by dividing an investment's dividend or interest by its offering price. The resulting percentage is the yield. A $100 investment that pays $5 in income has a yield of 5 percent.

These definitions can help you with the basics, but if your financial professional ever uses a term you don't understand, don't hesitate to ask for an explanation. If he or she is reluctant to explain, it's time to look for a new broker.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Business retention

Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative was recognized recently by the business retention committee of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce for its active business and civic involvement within the community. Sue Hyer, committee chairman, 2nd from left, presented co-op manager Steve Louder with a certificate of appreciation at the meeting. Some of the co-op's employees and representatives of the chamber were also present during the ceremony. The cooperative, currently observing its 60th anniversary of operation, serves its membership in a 3 1/2 county area with 4,088 miles of electric line and 50 employees.

Human capital keeps U.S. expansion going

NEW YORK (AP) - A lot of ink and effort has been expended in describing how the computer and related technology, along with the availability and low cost of investment funds, have energized and prolonged the current economic good times.

But what about the input of working men and women - that is, of human capital, which completes the so-called economic growth triad of men, money and machines?

What about it? This: It has been enormous - and probably insufficiently credited.

Both the number of workers and the quality of their skills has risen during the economic expansion. It may not always seem that way, since employers are complaining about the lack of skills, but that's at least partially a reflection on the increased demand.

The supply, however, has also increased. Young workers have assimilated the new business and technological culture as if by osmosis, and educational institutions have better attuned their curricula to the practical necessities of the workaday world.

As Standard & Poor's economist David Wyss observes, "In the last few years, both the quantity and quality of the nation's human capital have been rising faster than expected." And to that observation you might add something about a better work attitude as well.

In terms of quantity, the work force rose by an unexpectedly high 3.2 million jobs in 1997, surprising in view of the late stage of the economic cycle and the already low jobless rate. Early this year, a record-high 64.1 percent of the over-16 population was at work. The increase has been accomplished in part by a rise in jobholding by older Americans. The rate for women in their 50s and 60s has risen since the mid-1970s, but now it appears older men have joined the trend. The early-retirement trend seems to have been broken.

Quality too seems to have risen, although many an educator and corporate chief might question that assumption. Educators especially are inclined to criticize the decline in a well-round classical education in the effort to produce job-related and lifestyle skills.

Papers laud bill to repeal death tax

WASHINGTON - The National Newspaper Association of America (NAA) applauded the introduction Thursday of the Estate and Gift Tax Rate Reduction Act, which would gradually repeal the death tax.

Under the proposed legislation, estate taxes would be reduced by five percent each year for the next 10 years. Complete repeal of the death tax would occur after Dec. 31, 2008.

"NAA enthusiastically endorses this bipartisan effort by Reps. Jennifer Dunn (R-Wash.) and John Tanner (D-Tenn.) to repeal the estate tax, the single largest challenge facing family-owned newspapers and thousands of small businesses that advertise in newspapers," said John Sturm, NAA president.

"A tax at death - especially one that raises only one percent of the federal government's total revenue - should not be a factor that forces families to sell off their businesses. Ending, not mending, the death tax is a key priority for NAA."

NAA is urging members of Congress to move swiftly in consideration of this legislation. NAA is a nonprofit organization representing the newspaper industry

Oh, My Aching Back

If you're like a lot of people, you may have occasional or persistent back pain and wonder what caused it. You try to think of some incident in which you may have strained your back, and come up with nothing. But there must be some reason why you have back pains. The truth is that even the simplest of incidents may be the cause, such as reaching high on a shelf to get something. Or stooping suddenly to pick up something that has fallen. Or maybe you need some tips on good posture.

Whatever the cause, the problem may be that your spinal column is out of alignment. No pain-killing drug can cure the CAUSE. It can dull the pain for awhile and give you temporary relief. But if your back is out of alignment, the pain will probably not go away unless you get the treatment you need. No symptom can be more depressing than persistent back pain. Don't delay treatment when help is readily available.

CLASS 4A TRACK AND FIELD CHAMPIONSHIPS

Yosten wins 3,200 crown

From staff and wire reports
AUSTIN -- It was a championship night for Hereford freshman Brionne Yosten, while it was a disappointing one for the rest of the Lady Whitefaces.

Yosten won the 3,200 meters in a time of 11:02.48 at the Class 4A Track and Field Championships Friday at Royal-Memorial Stadium. Yosten finished just in front of second-place Lauren Harrison of Highland Park (11:04.55).

"She ran the exact strategy we planned before the race, and it paid off," Hereford head girls coach Ray Baca said. "It wasn't as fast a time as she could've run, because that's all she needed to do, and we were trying to save something for the 800."

Yosten, running only about an hour after the conclusion of the 3,200 meters, didn't fare as well in the 800 meters, but still placed fourth, clocking a 2:17.48.

Baca said the much-talked-about smoke was not a factor in Yosten's performance, or in the meet's performances in general.

"No, it didn't have any effect," Baca said. "It was nothing, it was a little warm, but it wasn't that bad."

Brionne said her stomach was a little upset before (the 800). I think she just had too much water, trying to compensate for the heat."

Jenny Fatheree of Pampa claimed sixth in the 800 meters with a 2:22.83. The event was won by Courtney Darter of Boerne in 2:17.48.

Kristin Fangman, a Hereford junior making a return trip to the Class 4A state meet in the 100-meter Hurdles, finished sixth with a time of 15.27 seconds. In 1997, Fangman finished fourth in 15.41.

"I really couldn't see the race from where I was, but she said she had a real good start," Baca said. "She just ran against some really fast girls."

Teena Clincy of Dallas Roosevelt repeated as the champion in the 100-meter Hurdles with a time of 14.58.

Hereford's 1,600-meter Relay squad turned in a time of 4:01.97, their second fastest of the year, but the clocking was only good enough for seventh place.

"Those girls gave it everything they have," Baca said. "I couldn't ask them to do anything more. . . . It was a good learning experience for us."

Friendswood Clear Brook's 1,600-meter Relay team of Gladys Harvey, Brandy Walker, Natasha Davis and Alicia Emanuel clocked a 4A state meet record time of 3:47.02, replacing the previous best of 3:47.5 set by Brenham in 1984.

"We knew going into the race that it depended on us winning to win the state title," Emanuel said. "It feels great winning the title since it was our last time running as a 4A school."

Clear Brook will move up to 5A next year.

Hereford didn't finish in the Top 10 of the team standings, but Baca wasn't disappointed with how the Lady Whitefaces performed.

"The girls were a little upset earlier," he said, "but it's definitely not the end of the world. Hopefully, the experience will make us better."

Even Mike is talking about Cub phenom

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Even the most famous player on the planet is talking about The Phenom.

"I've heard, just like a lot of people in the city, about his talents and what he's done, his record-setting two games," Michael Jordan was saying a few days ago.

"I think it's great for the Cubs. Everybody's been waiting and waiting and waiting for them to be successful and I think everybody's about to see a promising situation. Kerry's going to be a part of it."

Hard to believe, but right in the middle of the NBA playoffs and the Bulls' run toward another title, Kerry Wood became the biggest name in Chicago.

As if the 20-year-old Texan wants any part of it. He's turned down appearances with Letterman and Leno, and isn't interested in any of the endorsement offers that are pouring in.

"I don't like being on the front page of the paper," Wood says, in earnest. "I don't like being on TV. I'd rather be forgotten about."

Not a chance, kid.

Certainly not after he zoomed past every great strikeout pitcher in history except Roger Clemens, using his 100 mph fastball and Wiffle-ball curve to fan 20 against Houston in just his fifth start in the majors.

Surely not after he set his own big league mark by striking out 33 in consecutive games, though he added, "I didn't even know they had a record like that."

And if he fans 15 more Sunday at Cincinnati, he'll have the record for most strikeouts in three straight games. Going into the game against the Reds, Wood is 4-2 with 58 strikeouts in 34 1-3 innings, and

THE BIG DEAL

Mammoth trade pending between Dodgers, Fish

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- In a stunning trade that would complete Florida's payroll purge, the Marlins were close to a deal Friday that would send Gary Sheffield, Bobby Bonilla and Charles Johnson to Los Angeles for Mike Piazza.

In addition, the World Series champions would give up outfielder Jim Eisenreich and a player to be named, and the Dodgers would give Florida third baseman Todd Zeile.

In all, the players involved have guaranteed contracts calling for $98 million from 1998 through 2003, a record amount for players in one deal.

The only thing holding up the trade was Sheffield's approval, according to Dodgers sources who spoke on the condition they not be identified. The outfielder, in the first season of a $61 million, six-year contract, has a no-trade clause.

Sheffield traveled to Los Angeles on Friday to meet with Dodgers officials. A source close to the negotiations, speaking on the condition he not be identified, said Sheffield was reluctant to leave Florida, which has no state income tax, unless the Dodgers agree to increase his salary. He also wants the Dodgers to guarantee his contract's $11 million option for 2004.

"I am going to make a decision that will be beneficial for the well-being of my family and include all components necessary for the continued growth of my career on and off the field, as well as my personal happiness," Sheffield said in a statement. "Whatever the outcome, I hope my fans will support my decision, as they provide the passion that drives me."

Golf Hall of Fame set to open Monday in Florida

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Sports Writer

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. -- The roof was leaking and the money was lacking. The turnstiles never turned very quickly at golf's Hall of Fame.

Located for 20 years off the beaten path in the golf mecca of Pinehurst, N.C., it wasn't even the prime attraction. Fans didn't make a pilgrimage to Pinehurst to see Nicklaus, Hogan and Jones. They went there to play golf.

So, golf did what any weekend players would do when their first shot strays into the woods: It took a mulligan.

The second shot is a keeper. The World Golf Hall of Fame, the centerpiece of the $350 million World Golf Village, opens Monday when Nick Faldo and Johnny Miller are inducted. The 71 other members, whose shrine has been nothing more than boxes in storage the past four years, will also be ushered into their new home.

"This is long overdue," said Karen Bednarski, director of the World Golf Hall of Fame. "We've got Cooperstown and Canton (Ohio). Now, we have the World Golf Village."

Miller, whose 22 victories worldwide in the 1970s included the U.S. Open and the British Open, was elected in 1996. Faldo, a three-time winner of the Masters and the British Open, was elected on the international ballot in 1997.

Also voted in was Seve Ballesteros of Spain, who has deferred his induction until next year because of prior commitments.

"It's just fantastic that golf has gotten big enough for things like this to happen," said 86-year-old Byron Nelson, who was among the 13 hall of famers inducted at Pinehurst when it opened in 1974.

"I think it will help the younger players. If someone has the ambition of being a great player, a place like this will encourage him."

That's what former PGA commissioner Deane Beman had in mind a decade ago when, aware of the shape of the Pinehurst hall, he suggested a separate shrine for the PGA Tour near its headquarters in Ponte Vedra Beach.

Beman also invited former LPGA commissioner Charlie Mechem to come along, the first domino to fall in what would become the World Golf Village.

It wound up near St. Augustine, the oldest city in America that is now home to a monument honoring one of the oldest sports in the world.

The village is about 30 minutes south of Jacksonville off Interstate 95, where pine trees lining the corridor finally yield a glimpse of a 190-foot spire and a sprawling complex that covers 6,300 acres. It also has a golf course that will be the permanent site of a Senior PGA Tour event; a PGA Tour-sanctioned golf academy; and a hotel and convention center.

Still under construction are stores, restaurants, vacation villas and condominiums. Another golf course is being designed by Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

And linking it all together is the Walk of Champions, a circular, brick path that includes the signature of every hall of famer -- except Willie Anderson and Young Tom Morris -- on a granite slab.

"It's great for golf. We needed this," said two-time U.S. Open champion Ernie Els. "All the other sports have a hall of fame, but I think this is going to be the most spectacular. With a golf course, a hall of fame and museum, everything is right there."

More importantly, everybody is involved.

What makes this truly a World Golf Hall of Fame is that every major golf organization has come on board, from the Royal & Ancient Golf Club in St. Andrews to Augusta National to the PGA of America, which ran the old hall in Pinehurst.

"St. Andrews is still the home of golf," said Michael Bonallack, secretary of the Royal & Ancient.

"However, these days, especially in Florida, second homes are pretty important, too. And I know that golfers coming here from all over the world will appreciate the second home, which will help

Hereford Stars seek donations for team

From staff reports
The Hereford Stars is in its inaugural year in the West Texas Baseball League and seeks donations to help defray start-up costs, according to a release issued Friday by the club.

The league exists to help in the development of high school baseball programs, and consists of teams from Borger, Dumas, Canyon and Amarillo. Fourteen other teams also are in the league.

Players who will be sophomores, juniors and seniors are eligible to participate.

For more information, or to make a contribution, please write Hereford Stars, P.O. Box 1993, Hereford, TX 79045.

Sutton, Damron tied atop Nelson

By RON SIRAK
AP Golf Writer

IRVING -- The day started with the smoky haze clinging to the course at the GTE Byron Nelson Classic making the sun look like a faint 40-watt lightbulb trying to shine through a layer of gauze.

And maybe the eerie light that slowly gave way to sunshine as the day burned on lulled everyone to sleep.

Only Hal Sutton and Robert Damron were able to find anything close to magic in the mist at the Four Seasons Resort on Friday. Both put up a 65 that gave Sutton the lead at 9-under-par 131 and had Damron two strokes back, along with Fred Couples and Bob Friend.

Wedged in between at 132 after 36 holes was Harrison Frazzar, a local boy looking for his first win as a pro.

"I was a little surprised that no one went lower than they did," Sutton said after a round in which he stuck his irons close all day, making five birdie putts inside 15 feet.

Among those who didn't distinguish themselves was Tom Watson, who slipped from his 64 on Thursday to a 70 and was in a knot of players that included Phil Mickelson and John Cook at 134.

Tiger Woods backed off from his 65 with a mediocre 71, but was still only five strokes off the lead at 136, along with Jim Furyk and Mark O'Meara.

While birdies were not plentiful on the TPC and Cottonwood Valley courses, pars were a necessity.

"It seems like if you make bogey in this weather in this tournament you kind of feel like you're getting lapped," Couples said after a 67.

Frazzar, who has finished higher than 30th only once in 10 starts this year, made three birdies on four holes beginning on No. 7 and made his only bogey of the day on the 12th hole when a gust of wind blew his 136-yard approach shot over the green.

"The greens were a little harder, a little faster, and the wind was gusting a little more," Frazzar said after he followed a 64 with a 68. "It was just enough to throw a little bit of doubt into your mind."

On Thursday, 19 players shot 66 or lower, including a 63 by Friend. The second round was entirely different as none of the leaders were able to sprint from the pack. Friend managed only an even-par 70, with one bogey and one birdie.

Sutton and Damron made the best moves, both shooting a 65 without making any bogeys. Fortunately for Frazzar, they made the meat of their moves after he had finished play.

"I saw that no one was making a move," said Frazzar, a 26-year-old who played his high school golf in the Dallas area. "That gave me some confidence."

Woods, the defending champion and coming off a win last week at the BellSouth Classic, was ragged off the tee and not crisp with his irons, but nonetheless was enormously entertaining.

The 385-yard first hole was playing downward and he cut off the dogleg and landed just short of the green with his tee shot, the ball rolling through the group putting and into the rough behind the green.

But Woods chipped poorly, leaving the ball about 10 feet short and missed the birdie putt.

On No. 3, he used a 3-wood for accuracy, but drove into the water on the right side. After a penalty, he knocked it on the green and rolled in a 35-foot putt to save his par.

His only birdie of the day came on the par-5 seventh hole when he hit the green in two on the 533-yard hole and two-putted from 25 feet.

His 20-foot birdie putt on the final hole rolled to the lip of the cup and hung there.

"That was kind of typical of the whole day," Woods said. "It was a minor miracle that I shot 1 over. I didn't have anything today but I made a lot of par putts I needed to make."

Still, Woods' explosive power means he is still very much in contention on a course vulnerable when the wind isn't blowing.

"I need to shoot in the mid to low 60s tomorrow to get back in it," he said.

Rookie Pak leads field at LPGA Championship

ROCKLAND, Del. (AP) -- Maybe it's only a matter of time before the pressure of leading the LPGA Championship gets the best of rookie Se Ri Pak.

Then again, the former sprinter just might be fearless enough to run away with her first tournament title.

Pak shot a 68 Friday for a two-day total of 9-under 133, the lowest 36-hole score in the history of the tournament. It's the first time in more than a decade a player has been alone atop the leaderboard in the LPGA Championship after both the first and second rounds.

Pak, a 20-year-old South Korean, reached the halfway point of the $1.3 million tournament with a two-shot lead over Lisa Walters, who shot a 69.

Lisa Hackney had a 66 for a 136 and Dale Eggeing shot 69 to finish at 137. Donna Andrews, Jane Geddes and Wendy Ward were tied at 138 on a leaderboard that features only one player in the top 14 on this year's money list -- Andrews at No. 2.

If Pak's pursuers expect her to collapse under the strain of holding the lead in only her 10th career LPGA tournament -- and second major -- they might be disappointed.

"I didn't have any pressure. It's just like every tournament, same thing," Pak said. "Maybe this week is more special, because the top players are here, (but) I like top players."

Pak played her first two rounds with a pair of Hall of Fame golfers, Nancy Lopez and JoAnne Carner. Pak repeatedly outthit both of them off the tee while making 12 birdies and only three bogeys.

"Sure the pressure can get to you, but she seems to be real calm right now," Lopez said. "She's a great little player, very aggressive on the greens, and that's what you have to do here. She went right at it every time."

Lopez shot a 71 for a 146 and just made the cut at 4 over.

We had a lot of people from Hereford here, I want to tell them, 'Thanks.' I know the girls appreciated that. These girls had a great year."

Clear Brook won the Class 4A girls team title with 58 points, aided by their state meet record victory in the 1,600-meter Relay and a victory in the 400-meter Relay.

The 4A boys' team title was shared by Houston Forest Brook, winner of the 1,600-meter Relay, and Ennis, winner of the 400-meter Relay. Each had 30 points.

The final events in classes 1A, 2A, 3A and 5A are scheduled for Saturday.

Tory Mitchell of Big Spring equaled the fastest time in the nation by a high school runner in the 100 this year and posted the nation's best time in the 200 this year as he swept both events in Class 4A.

Andrea Taylor of Houston Furr also swept the 100 and 200 meters in Class 4A, while Candi Jones of Bay City repeated as champion in the both the girls' 4A long jump and triple jump.

Jones won both the long jump and triple jump in Class 4A last year and easily repeated this year.

Mitchell, who established records in both the 100 and 200 (10.37 and 20.78) at the Region I-4A meet, was just as impressive on Friday.

"I am undefeated and I came here expecting to win," Mitchell said.

"There are no prelims at state, so it's one shot."

He ran a 10.34 in the 100, equalling the nation's best non-wind-aided high school time this year -- shared by Leonard Hunter of Zachary, La. -- and his 20.72 in the 200 established the nation's fastest time in the 200 by a high school runner this year.

A heated showdown was expected in the 100 and 200 between Mitchell and Tre Gardner of Coppell, who was seeking a rare shot at three golds after easily repeating as champion in the boys' 4A long jump.

But Mitchell's 10.34 was too much for Gardner, who finished in 10.46. In the 200, Mitchell's 20.72 came after pulling away from Olan Coleman of Waco University, who clocked a 21.10. Gardner pulled up with an injury and didn't finish the race.

In Class 2A, Keyuo Craver of Harleton repeated as boys triple jump champion with a state meet record mark of 50-4 1/2, replacing the previous meet record of 49-8 1/4 set by Toya Jones of Refugio in 1993.

In Class 1A, Celeria Washington of Karnack repeated as champion in the girls' triple jump with a mark of 38-0 1/2, ahead of teammate Crystal Carter, who jumped 37-1 1/2.

Associated Press Sports Writer Chip Brown and Hereford Brand Sports Writer Bob Varmette contributed to this report.

his opponents' batting average of .175 is the best in baseball.

So three years after leaving high school, the rookie who grew up idolizing Nolan Ryan -- cherishing his autograph, copying his motion and wearing his No. 34 -- is already in the Hall of Fame.

The cap Wood wore that gray day at Wrigley Field when he struck out 20 is on display at Cooperstown, along with an autographed ball. He saved the ball from his 20th strikeout, however, to give to his mom on Mother's Day.

He was excited, sure. His way of celebrating? A dinner at Bennigan's and a visit to reliever Terry Adams' apartment to play on the Internet. This a regular kid -- he likes to go home to fish, and is looking forward to his girlfriend finishing school in Arizona so she can visit this summer.

Of course, his teammates were not about to treat him any differently. A few days after Wood's record-tying outing, they played an old trick on the new guy. They stole all his clothes and made him wear a red plaid jacket, green plaid pants and blue-and-butterscotch shoes on a four-hour flight from Philadelphia to Arizona.

And Wood, eager to soak up the whole major league experience, loved every minute of the fun.

"Until they make me sit in the bathroom on a bus, I don't realize I'm a rook," he said.

Fans are beginning to realize he's special. In his last start, he got a standing ovation at Arizona after striking out 13 Diamondbacks in seven innings.

At 6-foot-5 and 225 pounds, and still one month shy of his 21st birthday, Wood might someday be the savior for a franchise that has not reached the World Series since 1945. Scout Bill Capps predicted greatness in a 1995 report, written shortly before he signed Wood as the No. 4 overall pick in the draft.

Others see the same thing. "I saw Bob Feller. I saw Sandy Koufax. I saw Roger Clemens. I saw the great Nolan Ryan. Yes sir, I saw all the great burners," said scout Red Murff, who signed Ryan and saw Wood pitch in high school. "Big ol' Kerry Wood has a chance to be right up there with them. He could pitch himself seven no-hitters, if everything stays right for him."

All this about a guy who said he was "a short, little shortstop, a scrappy player" until suddenly growing 6 inches between his sophomore and junior years in high school.

Two days after being drafted, Wood threw 175 pitches and hit a grand slam in a doubleheader sweep that sent Grand Prairie to the state tournament.

Later that summer, he signed a $1,265,000 bonus and began his rapid rise to the majors. He was 21-11 and struck out 340 in 278 1-3 innings in 55 starts in all levels of the minors, yet never had pitched a complete game or fanned more than 14 until blowing away the Astros.

Wood never gave college much consideration. He missed some games in high school because of grade problems, not that he wasn't smart enough to do better.

"I'd bring home a good report card now and then, but then baseball started and it was nothing but baseball," he said. "If baseball wasn't there for me, things probably would have been different in school."

"I was young and didn't have the will to do anything but baseball. I didn't care about anything but baseball," he said. "I knew from the first time I picked up a ball and threw that I was going to take advantage of the chance I was given."

Rockies' slump continues

DENVER (AP) -- Mark Loretta went 3-for-3 with 2 RBI and Dave Nilsson had a pair of RBI doubles as the Milwaukee Brewers made their Coors Field debut with an 8-5 victory over the slumping Colorado Rockies on Friday night.

Steve Woodard (3-1) limited the Rockies to one hit -- Dante Bichette's solo homer -- through five innings. He went 5-2-3 innings, giving up two runs on two hits.

The Rockies had the tying run at the plate with two outs in the ninth, but Mike Myers struck out Larry Walker with runners on second and third for his first save.

Colorado lost its fifth straight and fell to 4-14 at home this season.

The Brewers, in their first visit to Coors Field since playing two exhibition games prior to the 1995 season, scored seven runs in the first six innings off Darryl Kile.

Kile (5-4), a winner in his previous four starts, gave up two runs in the first. Jose Valentin led off with a single, and Jeff Cirillo reached on a third baseman Vinny Castilla's error.

Both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Loretta hit a bloop RBI single, and Nilsson doubled.

Trade

Britto, said the outfielder was reluctant to leave his family in Florida but liked the idea of playing in Los Angeles. The St. Petersburg, Fla., native has two daughters in Florida, but the trade would move him closer to his 4-year-old son in Arizona.

"With the Dodgers, the endorsement opportunities would be absolutely great," Britto said. "He would be a big fish in a big market."

Florida, which got rid of 12 players from its World Series roster during the offseason, would lower its payroll to $24 million, down from $53 million at the end of 1997. Just two position players would remain from the starting lineup in Game 7 of the World Series: shortstop Edgar Renteria and second baseman Craig Counsell.

Piazza, completing a $15 million, two-year deal, clearly isn't a long-term acquisition. The catcher is eligible for free agency after the season and the Marlins would either deal him for prospects or let him leave in the fall.

The Marlins would eliminate $20.6 million in 1998 salary: Sheffield ($10 million); Bonilla ($5.9 million); Johnson ($3.3 million); and Eisenreich ($1.4 million); and take on $11.2 million: Piazza ($8 million); and Zeile ($3.2 million).

If it goes through, the deal would be among baseball's biggest. Bonilla is a six-time All-Star, while Piazza is a five-time selection. Sheffield is a three-time pick and Johnson, a three-time Gold Glove, appeared in his first All-Star game last season.

Piazza broke off negotiations for a long-term deal with the Dodgers last month. The team was said to have offered about $80 million over six years, but the catcher is believed to be asking for more than $100 million over seven seasons.

preserve history and the records of the game."

The Hall of Fame blends traditions with technology in an 18-exhibit, hands-on walk through time.

The first nine exhibits, devoted to the history of golf, includes a replica of the Swilcan Burn Bridge at St. Andrews that was made of stone from a quarry in Scotland. Gutta percha balls and wood-shafted putters are not just on display; you can actually use them on an 1880-styled green.

The back nine honors the modern game -- how a tournament is televised, what a caddy keeps in a bag, even a computer analysis that allows visitors to compare their swing with the pros.

Film about comet makes an impact

By TED ANTHONY
AP National Writer

Pre-millennial Hollywood just loves doing in the world. In the past couple of years alone, filmmakers have besieged us with alien nasties, poured molten lava on our cities, loosed deadly viruses upon our populace, even sent killer tornados to chase Helen Hunt.

In this environment of global self-flagellation, mass destruction by errant comet was probably inevitable. But who expected an expensive disaster movie to be so humanistic and watchable?

"Deep Impact," the latest attempt to kill off humanity (suggested alternate title: "What If the World Ended and MSNBC Covered the Story?"), is top notch sci-fi that also succeeds pretty well as top notch drama - a believable account of a celestial body that fell to Earth. It even has character development.

Seems rising young MSNBC reporter Jenny Lerner (Tea Leoni, venturing into husband David Duchovny's sci-fi balliwick), seeking a White House sex scandal, stumbles onto something even more dangerous than Monica Lewinsky: an ELE, or extinction level event - a comet on a collision course with Earth.

The plot unfolds engagingly, if not unpredictably, from there. But it is the characters who make "Deep Impact" rise above the ordinary Hollywood fare.

There's Spurgeon Tanner (Robert Duvall, in another well-done permutation of his old-man schtick), the astronaut brought out of retirement to head the Atlantis mission to destroy the comet. There's Leo Biederman, the teen-age suburban astronomy buff who's not entirely happy at giving his name to the comet. (Says his young friend: "I think it's really neat. Nobody on our block ever discovered the world was going to end before.")

There's Leoni, trying to juggle the story of a lifetime, a depressed mother (Vanessa Redgrave) and an abandoning father (Maximilian Schell) - not to mention the continuous MSNBC promos thrown at viewers during the film's two hours.

And there's President Beck (Morgan Freeman), presiding over the whole doomsday scenario, agonizing over how to save what America has built while trying to stay compassionate and prepare for the dissolution of his nation.

Finally, there's a plethora of fine smaller roles - unexpected pleasures each, including appearances by James Cromwell ("Babe," "LA Confidential"), Blair Underwood ("LA Law"), Denise Crosby ("Star Trek: The Next Generation"), Laura Innes and Ron Eldard ("ER"), even Bruce Weitz ("Hill Street Blues").

By and by, the comet approaches, and ... well, you'll see. It's fun and unsettling, and the images of the comet and its aftermath - especially the final scene - are "Planet of the Apes" gripping.

Perhaps the most thought-provoking part of "Deep Impact" comes through the use of MSNBC, a real news organization, as the film's virtual tale-teller. Jenny Lerner acts as our own personal reporter, complete with instant analysis. And we as viewers - conditioned by television to seek out TV to make sense of the world - feel right at home watching.

"Deep Impact" is produced by Richard D. Zanuck and David Brown from a screenplay by Bruce Joel Rubin and Michael Tolkin, and is rated PG-13.

It is showing at Moovies 6 in Hereford. Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G - General audiences. All ages admitted.
PG - Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
PG-13 - Special parental guidance strongly suggested for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
R - Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
NC-17 - No one under 17 admitted.

Hereford Beautification Alliance volunteers are joined by youth working on a community service project as they prepare to lay brick in one of the old flower beds on Main Street. HBA and the City of Hereford continue to work on a project which was begun last year to plant 16 trees on Main Street and to brick the 13 old flower beds.

Beautification project on Main St. progresses slower than planned

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Planting a tree is a simple project that only requires digging a hole and placing a tree in it. Right? Wrong -- if that tree is being planted on Main Street in Hereford.

The Main Street Project was begun last year by Hereford Beautification Alliance and the City of Hereford.

The eventual goal of the project, according to Pat Reilly with HBA, is to have a maximum of 16 trees planted on Main Street and to brick the 13 old flower beds to allow easier access from the street to the Main Street businesses.

To date, four trees and their shrub ground cover have been planted and eight of the 13 flower beds have been bricked.

"The number one problem has been finding suitable locations to plant the trees. We have heard costs that have ranged as high as $900 per hole for the excavation of the four holes last year," Reilly said.

Cost of the excavation was due to the fact that sites chosen were sitting on top of about four feet of reinforced concrete and metal and the City had to hire an outside contractor with the equipment able to bang the holes out, according to Reilly.

HBA then spent another $100 per hole to have soil trucked in before the trees could be planted, he continued.

The second major problem is related to the location of the project.

"There is no water available along Main Street except at the Post Office so we have to do a bucket brigade when we plant anything. All excavated material must be hand dug and put in buckets and hauled out. Ditto for hauling anything in, like sand, for the brick beds, concrete, etc.," Reilly said.

Hereford Beautification Alliance and the City are working together to find solutions for these problems.

Plans are for the City to start cutting holes in the sidewalk, probably in June or July, to search for new locations to dig holes for trees. A probe will be placed in the holes to determine what is below the surface.

"If the site looks good, they will cut a four foot hole in the sidewalk and HBA will dig the holes for the trees. I want to stress that HBA is committed to putting the smallest demands possible on City resources. The goal is to use City equipment and labor as it is available for excavation. HBA will provide cash for all the plant and construction materials.

"In addition we will provide all the labor in planting, bricking, etc. The City has agreed to water and maintain the trees after they are planted. We will not be asking the City to do any more excavation like they did last year. If there are only four more suitable locations for trees, then that is all we will plant," Reilly said.

A portion of the funds that are being used for the Main Street Project were donated to HBA by L'Allegria Study Club. Two years ago, the club donated $2,000 from its annual geranium and plant sale to HBA with the stipulation that the money be used on one project, not as operating revenue.

"We anticipate the total cost to be in the neighborhood of $6,000. With the money from L'Allegria and from HBA's annual memberships, we are still about two years away from being able to fund the whole project," Reilly said.

He did say that HBA had enough cash on hand to finish all the brickwork and plant another four trees this year.

The trees are shademaster honey locust. (Hopefully the beardless variety, according to Reilly.) The tree wells will be planted to buffalo juniper and some of the small existing holes at the sidewalk intersections will have flowering perennials planted in them.

"McLains Nursery, Higginbotham Bartlett Lumber and the City have worked with us to haul big items like trees and pallets of brick downtown. The Deaf Smith County Youth Home provides us with a lot of labor to help with digging and hauling. We also think it is very important to let these kids work on a city improvement project -- some of them take a lot of pride in their work on Main Street," Reilly said.

In response to a question about what HBA needs now, Reilly stated that mainly they need adult volunteers to work with the kids that are helping.

"And most of all," he said, "we need a volunteer or two with a pickup that they could bring to a work day. All they have to do is drive it, we can take care of the loading and unloading!"

Seniors are recognized this month

Poppy Day will honor war dead, all veterans

WACO -- For more than 30 years, the President of the United States has designated May as the official month during which we can acknowledge, as a nation, the extraordinary contributions of our 34 million older Americans.

Older Americans Month presents us with the opportunity to draw attention to the remarkable longevity of our population and to the challenges and opportunities which will accompany population aging in the next millennium.

The year's theme, "Living Longer, Growing Stronger in America," highlights the fact that many of us are living longer, fuller, more satisfying lives, and that we are growing stronger in the process.

Back in 1963 when the first Older Americans Month was proclaimed, only 17 million Americans had reached their 65th birthday. Today, our nation is growing older at an unprecedented rate. There are now more than 33 million individuals age 65 or older living in the United States. By the year 2030, it is expected that this age population will exceed 70 million, more than double the present number.

Green Thumb, Inc., a provider of senior employment and training, encourages everyone to set aside the month of May as a special time to pay tribute to older Americans and to affirm our obligation to sustain and improve their quality of life.

As we celebrate their contributions to this great nation, we should also focus upon our senior work force who are skilled, dependable and productive partners in business and industry.

As a Senior Community Service Employment Program contractor, Green Thumb offers older jobseekers the opportunities to upgrade their skills and gain valuable experience for transition back into private sector employment.

For more information regarding the program, contact P.O. Box 7898, Waco, Texas, or call 254-776-4081.

American Legion Auxiliary volunteers will distribute the familiar red, handcrafted poppies honoring America's war dead on Wednesday, May 20, designated as Poppy Day by Auxiliary Unit #192 of Hereford.

Planned to coincide with the Memorial Day holiday, the annual event pays tribute to those veterans who have died in the last 75 years. It also honors the millions of Americans who have willingly served their country in seven decades.

It serves, as well as honors the veteran, with all proceeds from the distribution invested in local programs for the benefit of the veteran and his/her family.

Each nine-piece poppy is made by veterans for veterans in Auxiliary-sponsored Poppy Shops that supplement physical and psychological therapy needed by hospitalized and disabled veterans. The Auxiliary provides the materials and the volunteers. The veterans make the poppies and are paid a small amount for each painstakingly made flower. For some it is their only income.

No matter what the cost of maintaining and supplying the Poppy Shops, the memorial poppy is never sold, but given in exchange for a contribution.

The poppy program has been part of Auxiliary programming for more than 70 years. In Hereford it has been a part of the programming since 1930 when the unit was chartered. It has been estimated that approximately 25 million Americans wear the poppy to honor America's war dead and all veterans, contributing over $2 million for rehabilitation and welfare programs.

Troyce Hanna, left, and Patricia Robinson, members of American Legion Auxiliary Unit #192 in Hereford, prepare canisters for use on Poppy Day, Wednesday. Volunteers will be in several locations around town accepting contributions in exchange for a poppy to honor America's war dead and all veterans.

Veleda Club installs officers

Veleda Study Club met in the home of Juanita Brown for a salad supper and installation of officers.

Frances Crume installed the officers using "Sweet Time" as her theme and presenting each new officer with a candy bar to represent the duties of her office.

Officers for the coming year are Marcella Bradly, president; Juanita Brown, vice president; Mary Dziuk, secretary and Bettie Dickson, treasurer.

Roll call was answered with "Things we don't want to change." Bradly appointed committees for the new year.

Those present were Betty Gilbert, Della Hutto, Clovis Seago, Theda Seiver, Norma Walden, Margaret Zinser, Bradly, Brown, Crume, Dickson and Dziuk.

Anniversary reception honors local couple

Juan and Andrea Pesina were honored on their 55th wedding anniversary with a reception hosted by their children from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday in the Hereford Community Center ballroom.

Pesina married the former Andrea Lozano on May 27, 1921, in Waco, where they lived for 19 years. The couple has lived in Hereford since 1962.

Mr. Pesina is a retired paint contractor and Mrs. Pesina is a housewife. They are members of San Jose Catholic Church.

Children of the couple and their spouses are Andrea and Ed Salinas of San Antonio; John and Mary Pesina and Robert and Beatriz Pesina, of Lubbock; Joe and Iris Pesina of Plano; and Rosa and Francisco Vallejo, Felipe and Janie Pesina, and Raul and Sara Pesina, all of Hereford.

One daughter, Mary, is deceased. The couple has 27 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Though it is nice to be well thought of and respected, don't compromise your own values and ideas just to gain someone else's acceptance.

Even though there are only two weeks of school left, we are trying to keep our students busy and to expose them to as much education as possible. Many are trying to do everything possible to get their grades up, but sadly there are some who have not yet learned good study habits and work ethics.

State History Fair participants Wade McNutt, Wesley Reinart, Brice West, Marcus Smith and Clay McNeely returned with Superior Ratings and did represent HISD well. We feel that each of them will show an interest in next year's fair.

Points of interest visited by the Austin-bound group included Ballinger, Brady, Mason; Fredericksburg; Llano; Austin, where we toured the Capitol; San Angelo and Big Spring. We miss few courthouses and old forts and even read historical markers quite often.

Super Lab had visitors from Dumas Middle School who were interested in our program as they plan to begin a similar one on their campus. Our Super Lab is quite successful and our students benefit daily from the resources there and the one-on-one help.

Algebra students will be taking the end-of-course test on Wednesday. Coach Allen's science classes are studying the circulatory system and the respiratory system.

Texas history students are completing the handbook portion of their text which reviews government and civic responsibilities. They will also be involved in mapwork and a complete review of all they have done throughout the year.

Mrs. Drake's history classes are involved in the California Gold Rush and the adventures on the Oregon Trail, which are both very interesting studies. Besides the written information, they have viewed films and written their own observations of the events and the time period.

Junior Historians who have been active in the organization this semester will have a party on Saturday, May 23. Time will also be spent on plans for the summer and for next year. The group will be involved in Hereford's 100th Birthday activities and are planning a two-to-three day trip along Route 66 from New Mexico to Oklahoma. There will be several planning meetings during the summer. Also, several have expressed an interest in getting started on History Fair activities before the new school year begins. We hope to include some high school students in 1998-1999 History Fair activities.

Learn to get along with people. Loving, caring and sharing are good watchwords for life.

The Convertible Seat Dilemma

Convertible safety seats can be used for rear-facing infants from 5 to 17-32 pounds and can be "converted" to be used forward-facing for children above 20 pounds and one year of age to about 40 pounds. It is important for parents or care givers to always follow the manufacturer's instruction.

A rear-facing child safety seat should be reclined to approximately a 45-degree angle for infants. The harness straps should be in the lowest slots. It is important to never place a rear-facing safety seat in the front seat of a vehicle equipped with a passenger air bag.

Many safety advocates state that it is best to use an infant seat for infants, then graduate to a convertible safety seat when the infant reaches the weight or height limits on the infant seat. An infant seat is smaller and generally fits an infant better than a convertible safety seat.

Recommendations from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, American Academy of Pediatrics and other safety experts emphasize that children should ride rear-facing until at least one year of age. Riding rear-facing best protects a child's head and neck in a crash. A child that is riding forward-facing at too young an age is at risk for cervical spinal injury in a crash.

If you happen to have a baby that is over 20 pounds and still not one year-of-age, there are fewer seats that you can use. As of April 1998, there are five models of convertible safety seats that, according to the manufacturer, can be used rear-facing for children over 20 pounds. These models are the Britax Elite, Britax Freeway, Century Smart Move, Evenflo Horizon and Safeline Sit 'n Stroll. The Safeline model is certified for use to 25 pounds rear-facing, all the other models listed are certified for use to 30 pounds rear-facing.

A forward-facing convertible seat should be in the upright position with the harness straps threaded through the top slots. The seat can be used until the child reaches the upper weight limit (usually 40 pounds) or until the middle of the child's ears are above the top of the safety seat back, or until the child's shoulders are above the top harness slots.

Convertible safety seats will have one of three types of restraint systems: five-point harness, full shield or T-shield.

A five-point harness secures the child at both shoulders, the hips and fastens between the child's legs. Many safety advocates recommend the five-point restraint system; it is the same type of system used by professional race-car drivers.

A full shield seat secures the child at both shoulders; and the harness straps are attached to a padded bar of shield. The shield is secured with a strap or other means that is fastened between the child's legs.

A T-shield operates similar to the full shield; the shield is contoured and snaps between the child's legs. Shield versions are not recommended for infants. It is often difficult to achieve a tight fit on the small body of an infant and the infant's head may be directly behind or under the shield.

Janie Harris, Extension Specialist in Passenger Safety, encourages parents to select safety seats which will snugly hold the child in the safety seat, even in an inverted position.

The child should be snugly fitted in the safety seat. The harness straps should be snug; no more than a finger width between the harness straps and the child's body. The harness clip on the five-point harness system (holds the two harness straps together) should rest on the child's chest, lining up with the child's underarms.

The seat should be snugly fitted in the vehicle. After the seat has been installed, test for proper fit by placing your hands on each side of the seat near where the seat belt path is and pull toward the front of the vehicle. There should not be more than 1-inch of movement toward the front. Then, with your hands positioned the same, pull the seat from side-to-side. There should not be more than 1-inch of movement past the anchor points of the seat belt from side-to-side.

There are often compatibility problems with fitting some seats in some vehicle seating positions. Read the instructions for installing a safety seat in the vehicle owner's manual as well as the instructions that come with the safety seat.

The following resources can help a parent or care giver select and use a convertible safety seat properly:

- *Safety seat instructions from the manufacturer
- *Vehicle owner manual
- *National Highway Traffic Safety Administration help line: 1-800-424-9393
- *Texas Department of Health Safe Riders information line: 1-800-252-8255
- *Passenger Safety Office with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service: 409-845-3850.

The Successful Family

LEARNING AND FEELING

Know that for every experience we have, we both learn and feel something about that experience. It really makes no difference what the experience is, we will think and feel something about it during and after the experience is over. You will remember experiences as either good or terrible. In either case, we learn and feel something from every experience, every minute of every day.

When we experience things in our lives that are painful, there is a tendency for many of us to not want to deal with the pain. We avoid dealing with the pain consciously and unconsciously.

Since we do not want to or are unable to deal with the pain, somehow we have to get rid of it (such as death of loved one, breakup of a meaningful relationship, bad investment, or abuse). We will try to forget the experience altogether, or we will attempt to get rid of the painful feelings.

Neither works very well in the long run. The painful feelings do not go away, they are just out of sight -- but there, none-the-less.

As parents we tend to teach our children not to feel pain, not to cry, not to recognize their discomforts because that is what we do and were taught. We learn very early in life not to deal with pain or other feelings of discomfort. This is the beginning of mental health problems such as depression or personality disorders.

Think of experiences that you had in your childhood, or are having now, that have been, or are, very painful. Now, think of the experience as a big spring, the kind you find in box springs and in cushioned chairs and couches.

The natural position of the spring is to be fully extended. To squash the spring, we have to apply a lot of pressure to keep the spring from being fully extended. This is the same kind of energy draining experience we do with our pain.

Think of each painful experience we have that we are unwilling or unable to deal with as a giant spring that we have to keep squashing by stepping on it. Since we don't ever want to feel the pain of the experience, we constantly have to step on the spring.

The moment we let up from stepping on the spring, it becomes fully extended -- just like the painful feeling that comes leaping into our conscious mind. When that happens, we relive the experience again.

The goal for many is to keep stepping on the spring and hiding the painful feelings. Just like money you put in your bank account draws interest and grows, so do the painful feelings. They get bigger and bigger until they are taking up all our energy and we have nothing left for our family or ourselves.

We must learn and model for ourselves and our children how to let go of past pain. Suppressing bad feelings only makes them worse. The very act of letting go of some past pain is often all that is needed to feel better about yourself and others. Take the first BIG step toward becoming a successful family and person.

Join the D.R.E.S.S. Your Family For Success program with other families who are growing stronger and closer as a family unit. The program is at San Jose Community Center every Thursday evening from 6-9 p.m. and offers something for every age group. For more information call Tilli at 364-4357.

More than 900,000 copies of The Hereford Brand were distributed in 1997. If your advertising message was not included in many of these issues, you need to call Mauri Montgomery or Julius Bodner, 364-2030, and let them put together an advertising schedule to fit your budget.

— YOUR EYES —

Twitchy Eyelids

You're sitting at your computer and all of sudden, one eyelid starts fluttering like crazy. It lasts a few seconds but then comes back again a little while later and frequently over the next couple of days. You can't help but imagine something is wrong with your eyes.

Generally, this twitching or quivering is related to fatigue and stress. If it happens, take a look at what's going on in your life. Are you working too much? Are you sitting at your computer for hours and hours? You may need to give your eyes a break for a couple of days. Also, try gently massaging the affected eye. This can relieve the twitch significantly.

Eye twitches are almost always harmless but can be very irritating and distracting. If it persists over time, see your doctor.

Girl Scout News

By LORNA HAWS
Hereford Girl Scouts recently held their year-end "Court of Awards." All troops from Daisy's to Seniors were given the pins, badges, cookie currency and prizes they had earned throughout the year. Special recognition was given to outstanding leaders and volunteers. This has been a great year for all of the girls and they already have lots of plans for this summer and next year.

We are extremely pleased that we met our registration goal and we hope to continue growing during the coming years.

As this year's public relations volunteer, I would like to give a special "thank you" to all the leaders, volunteers, parents and especially the girls for letting me in on all the fun. Hope to see you next year.

Ann Landers

Dear Readers: If you are looking for a laugh today, you won't find it here. What you WILL find is a letter that could make a big difference in the way you think about terminal illness, should you or someone close to you be faced with it. I hope you will find this column informative and helpful.

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago, you were kind enough to print a letter from our organization, Compassion in Dying, regarding our work with the terminally ill and their families. The response was overwhelming. We received more than 9,000 letters of encouragement and many generous donations to help us continue with our work.

Compassion in Dying provides counseling and support related to end-of-life choices. We believe dying individuals should be permitted to make their own end-of-life decisions and terminally ill individuals who request a hastened death should be offered assistance.

Our primary work involves personal counseling, emotional support and assistance to terminally ill adults who wish to end their suffering in a safe, humane, non-violent manner. We continue to follow strict guidelines, and our services are offered at no charge. We have come to see the importance of choice for dying patients and their families. Perhaps I can illustrate how critical this choice is by citing an example:

"Mark" was a 43-year-old man suffering the final stages of cancer. At the advice of his hospice nurse, his wife called our office after Mark begged her to buy a gun so he could end his suffering. Mark was confined to a bed in a small apartment, hooked up to a respirator, a feeding tube and a catheter. Over the next few days, with the cooperation of his personal physician, Mark obtained medications with which to end his suffering if he chose to do so. He never did. Four months later, his wife called to say Mark had died a quiet death that morning in her arms. Through her tears, she asked me to thank our volunteers for their assistance and told me that from the moment Mark was given the power of choice, he never spoke of suicide again.

Please let your readers know of our continuing work to provide end-of-life options for the terminally ill. — John Lee, Compassion in Dying of Washington

Dear John Lee: Thank you for your letter. For readers who are interested in more information, write to: Compassion in Dying of Washington, 410 E. Denny Way, Suite 108, Seattle, Wash. 98122-2172 (www.compassionindying.org).

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about the letter from "Anonymous in Missouri" who wants to commit suicide rather than wind up in a nursing home. I agree with her.

My mother, a sweet little lady of 84, was in a nursing home after my father died unexpectedly. She needed round-the-clock care and supervision. The nursing home was the best we could find, and yet it was exactly as "Anonymous" described. Mom begged me daily to kill her. Once, she tried to do it herself.

Our last conversation went like this: "Please help me. You can do it. We've always loved each other and promised to help each other. I need you." And I said, "Mom, I can't do it. They'll put me in jail." Her bright blue eyes burned holes in my soul. She replied, "Then go to jail." Three days later, she died, not having said another word.

I loved my mother dearly, and we were very close. I ache with sorrow and shame that I could not do the one last thing she asked of me. — Altamonte Springs, Fla.

Dear Altamonte: Take comfort in the fact that you did the best you could, considering the knowledge you had at the time. No one could have done more.

Bippus holds tour meeting

The Bippus Family Community Education Club held its annual tour meeting recently.

The first stop on the tour was the Hughes miniature horse operation. Then the group continued to Amarillo for lunch followed by a stop in Groom to view the giant cross.

Other stops were at the late Charles Goodnight Headquarters, the Goodnight cemetery and the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Higgins in Amarillo to tour the home and flower garden. The final stop was at the Umberger Catholic Church before having refreshments at Mr. Burger in Hereford.

Making the tour were members Sue Thweatt, Kate Bradley, Mariellen Homfeld, Alta Mae Higgins and visitor Mattie Lewis.

For the next meeting, Bippus FCE members will join other county FCE clubs at 2:30 p.m. on May 21 in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library. The program will focus on the new popularity of tea time, presented by Beverly Harder.

Talent show

First graders at Walcott School perform to "Aroha is Love" in the school's annual talent show held Thursday night. The theme for the show was "We're from the Country." All students at the school participated in the show.

Draper installs club officers

Argen Draper conducted installation of officers for La Afflatus Estudio Club during the spring luncheon held recently in the dining room of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Officers for the coming year are Margaret Baxter, president; Aileen Montgomery, vice president; Louise Streun, secretary-treasurer; and Emily Suggs, reporter.

Draper concluded with a reading by 85-year-old Nadina Stair, "If I Had My Life to Live Over Again" and "Chicken Soup for the Soul."

Baxter named committee members for the coming year.

Members present were Virginia Beasley, Merle Boozer, Leola Cook, Virginia Cutsinger, Alberta Higgins, Roxie Phipps, Della Stagner, Mary Williamson, Baxter, Montgomery, Streun and Suggs.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Are Your Listening? Some helpful hints

One of the most difficult skills business owners, executives and professional speakers must develop is the art of listening. Most of these folks are more comfortable talking than listening.

However, if you study those who achieve even a modest level of success in life, you'll often find that over the years they have honed their listening skills. Listening is one of the greatest gifts you can give yourself.

Good listening is a skill anyone can acquire with practice. Here are some tips to get you started.

The SPEAK EZ method

Spend more time listening. If you know how to listen you can profit from someone who speaks poorly. Practice your listening skills.

When you attend a meeting, spend more time listening than talking. Promise yourself you'll keep quiet at all cost. You'll learn more when you listen more. If you aren't spending more than half of your communication time listening, you aren't learning all you could.

Pay attention to the speaker. Maintain eye contact. Put aside other thoughts and give the speaker your undivided attention. If you drift off for a moment, ask the speaker to repeat his or her last words. Become an active listener and it will help you focus on the speaker.

Encourage the speaker. You should give the speaker subtle signs of encouragement from time to time. You can nod, raise your eyebrows and change your facial expressions. Verbally, you can encourage with "mmhms," "ahs" and other affirmative little grunts. Brief interjections such as "interesting," "I didn't know that" and "is that right?" will also embolden the speaker to continue.

Ask good questions. Questions can be both a way to get more information and a method of encouraging and guiding the speaker. Don't be afraid to ask if the speaker can expand on a thought or comment. Questions can help you focus the speaker's comments and clarify concepts you don't fully understand.

Kick the habit of interrupting. A wise communicator once said that people are either talking or getting ready to talk. However, good listeners listen. They resist the tendency to interrupt. They wait until the speaker completes his or her thought before responding. The Bible advises us to be swift to hear and slow to speak. It's great advice when you are trying to kick the habit of interrupting.

Empathize with the speaker. Try to understand not only what the speaker is saying, but why. There is an adage that states you cannot fully understand where someone is coming from until you've walked a few miles in his or her shoes. Feelings and body language may be as important as words. Keep your eyes and ears open. Be a detective and try to discover those underlying emotions and motives.

Zero in on the key concepts. Several weeks ago, I visited with some marketing executives who are with a Fortune 100 company. Three weeks after that meeting I had a phone conversation with the highest ranking person in attendance. He quoted some of the key concepts I mentioned in the meeting. He did not take notes during the meeting, nor was the meeting recorded. He simply focused on the most important points of my discussion, and committed them to memory. I found his recall impressive.

When you really listen to someone you pay them a high compliment. As you improve your listening skills two things will happen: First, you'll have more friends, and second, you'll learn new and worthwhile things.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

As many of you know, I was asked to be a delegate to represent the libraries of the Panhandle during the American Library Association's Legislative Days in Washington, D.C. This being my first trip to Washington, I was excited but plagued with one major question: Should I take winter or summer clothes?

After watching the news channel for two weeks, it became evident that the temperature was as predictable there as it is here. So I packed for both.

When I arrived, it was raining and continued to rain off and on for five days. I was not prepared for the rain or humidity, or how it would affect me.

Sunday was my only day for site seeing, and I was determined to see as much as humanly possible. I saw the American Historical Museum, the Washington Monument, the Viet Nam Memorial, the Korean Memorial, and the Lincoln Monument before the heat and humidity took their toll.

Jaye, a fellow librarian, save my life by getting a cab and taking me back to the bed and breakfast where I spent the remainder of the day.

The next day, visits with Congressmen began. In two days, I visited with five Congressmen, and I am proud to say Mac Thornberry and Larry Combest have maintained their Panhandle hospitality. Combest took 45 minutes to discuss the issues and ask questions.

Some issues we discussed dealt with funding for public and school libraries, the Children's Literacy Initiative, and E-Rate discounts for telecommunication access for school and libraries (this is a discount in phone line charges).

There is also a bill proposed that would require a filtering software to be placed on an internet terminal before a school of library would be eligible for the E-Rate discount. This could adversely affect small libraries that have only one internet terminal.

We proposed that the decision to use, or not to use, filtering software be left up to each individual library and that an internet usage policy be developed to help protect children from "bad things" found on the internet.

There is postal rate* increase proposed that will raise the cost of the Library Rate above that of the Commercial Rate. This will greatly affect interlibrary loan service across the nation.

The copyright laws for electronic media is a very difficult issue. While trying to protect the rights of the author and publisher, we ask that the issue of fair usage be guarded. Some of the legislation now before the House is so vague that access to many databases currently being used in the libraries and on the internet would no longer be free. It would be like coming into the library to use a reference book and not being able to make a copy of a page of information because it would violate the copyright law.

Our Congressmen have some very difficult decisions to make, and I hope our visit helped clarify some of the issues so that those decisions are more easily made.

Well, enough about library issues. Now for the part you have all been waiting for: new books.

As I looked over the possible selection, I noticed Major Washington: A Novel by Michael Kilian, and wondered if this book contained some of the little known facts that I learned while touring the Capitol and the American Historical Museum.

The book covers the period of 1723-1755 as Washington grows and develops, along with the young militia, into the powerful leader of Colonial America. Washington's involvement took him into the Allegheny wilderness where the tactics of battle changed the way war was fought.

According to the blurb, this story "strips away the myths and reveals the man behind the legend."

As I began to read this book, I was reminded of the first Washington Monument that is now housed in the American Historical Museum. The nation wanted to commemorate the Father of Our Country by erecting a statue. So, a committee was appointed and a sculptor was found.

The Italian sculptor took great pride in his work and after many mishaps, the statue arrived in America. The day before the great unveiling, the committee met to view the statue. They were horrified to see a naked draped Greek god body with the head of George Washington. The statue was spirited away and the unveiling was canceled.

Then it struck me. The Italian sculptor saw the leaders of his government as more than human, while Americans knew their leaders as humans having the opportunity of making a difference.

Our first president worked to remind the people that he was no different from them. The only difference was the circumstances in which he found himself and how he faced the challenges set before him.

We Americans sometimes forget to admire those who have the strength to see beyond themselves.

Another person I admire is Christopher Reeve. Now, in his autobiography, Still Me, we have an opportunity to get better acquainted.

As the character Superman, Christopher was often asked, "What is a hero?" His typical answer was "A hero is someone who commits a courageous action without considering the consequences" and other individuals who are slightly larger than life, such as Lindbergh, John Wayne, JFK, and Joe DiMaggio.

Now Christopher says his definition of a hero has changed to "an ordinary individual who finds the strength to persevere and endure in spite of overwhelming obstacles."

Memorial Day, 1995, Christopher was participating in a riding competition. On the third jump Christopher was thrown from the horse and landed head first. The accident resulted in a broken neck that left him unable to move or breathe.

But the man who cannot move has not stopped moving. He has established a charitable foundation to raise awareness and money for research for spinal cord injuries. Christopher remains involved in films by directing an HBO movie entitled "In the Gloaming," which earned him an Emmy nomination.

He has testified before Congress on behalf of health insurance legislation, and increased funding for spinal cord research. Christopher continues his efforts to remain a devoted husband and father while battling to rebuild his life.

Other titles of interest are: Carroll O'Connor: I Think I'm Outa Here, an autobiography by Thomas William Simpson, a suspense novel Kilo Class by Patrick Robinson, a story of espionage A Year and a Day by Virginia Henley, a historical romance.

Seven brucellosis cases keep Texas from "free" status

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

Texas may soon face the stigma of being the last state in the nation to have its bovine herds declared as "free" of the bacterial disease brucellosis.

Within the past few weeks, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has designated Alabama, Georgia, and Florida as "free" of the disease, leaving only Texas and South Dakota with quarantined herds.

South Dakota has only one infected bison herd; Texas counts seven herds.

"That's too many," said Dr. Terry Beals, Texas state veterinarian and head of the Texas Animal Health Commission.

"Considering the U.S. has a goal of zero infected herds by year's end 1998, Texas and South Dakota are the last states fighting the infection," Beals said.

Kansas, Mississippi, Missouri and Oklahoma have had no infection in more than a year and are due to earn "free" status by December.

Even though Texas may not make the 100-percent-free goal date, the state did make history in March when no new herds were put under quarantine.

which pastured in the same field or in proximity also run high risks of infection.

"Today, with the incidence of brucellosis infection so low, we rarely see an infected herd that shows the classic signs of the disease, such as abortions or weak calves," Beals said.

Continued and intensified surveillance is key to disease eradication, said Beals.

Each year, the staff at Texas' state-federal lab runs confirmation tests on nearly 2.5 million blood, milk, and tissue samples collected from adult cattle.

Beals said infected herds are quarantined and owners are offered a buy-out option, composed of state and federal indemnity funds, plus slaughter value.

Slaughter of the animals proves cheaper than repeatedly testing herds and removes the herd from the infected herd list.

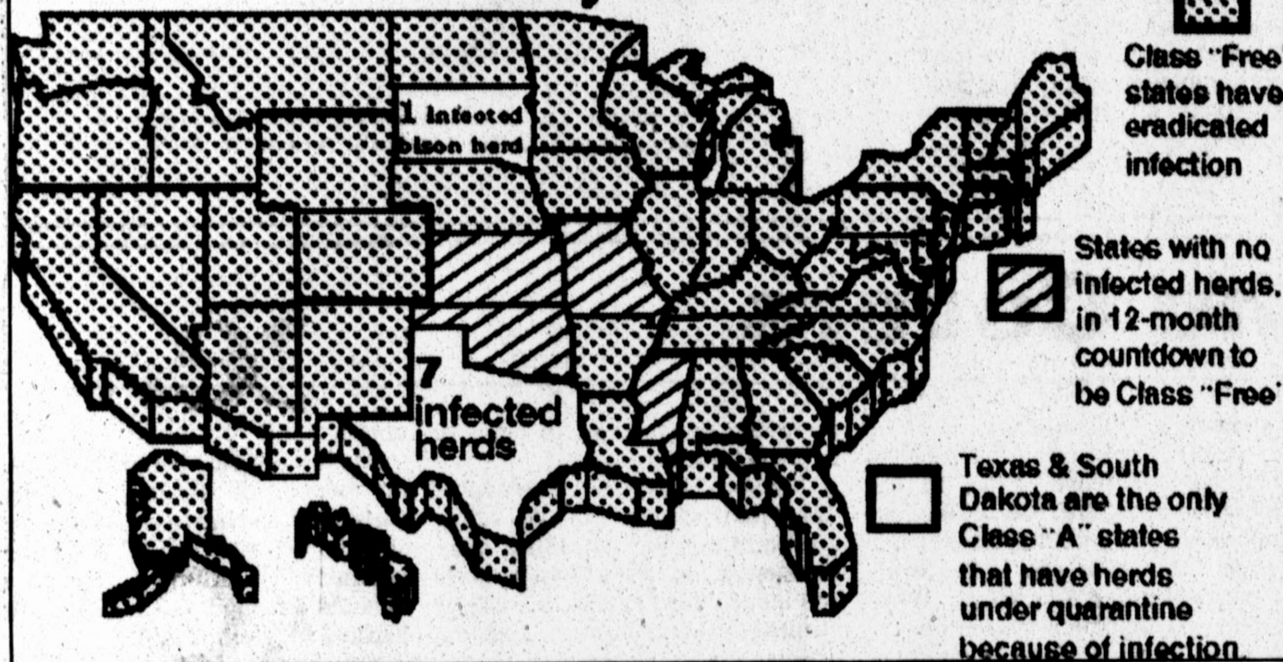

"Properly cooking the meat kills the organisms," Rollins said. "But, people can contract the disease if they drink unpasteurized milk."

Rollins said dairies routinely test their milk for signs of bacteria and if it is present, each animal is retested.

Cattle can now be tested and vaccinated at the age of 18 months, or when they have shed their central deciduous incisor.

This year nearly 30 percent of Texas heifers were vaccinated.

Cattle Brucellosis Status May 1998

"That's the first month in 50 years that we didn't find at least one new infected herd," Beals said.

"Right now the hot spot in the state is in East Texas, out in the Pineywoods area," said Dr. Ron Rollins, a veterinarian with the Hereford Veterinary Clinic. "The problem is there are a bunch of old range animals that only see humans once a year or so, and they make perfect carriers."

The brucellosis issue is more than just a farm or ranch issue. As other states reach a "free" status and other countries strive to eradicate the disease, Texas cattle producers could face restrictions both in this country and abroad.

According to Beals, herds at increased risk of infection would include herds in which untested animals have been introduced, or untested herds where only calves have been sold and the disease has gone undetected.

HPUWD announces Ogallala water levels

Observation well measurements taken this past winter indicate an average annual decline of only 0.34 of a foot in the ground water levels of the Ogallala Aquifer within the 15-county high Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, service area.

"This is very positive news," said Water District Manager Wayne Wyatt. "Three factors probably contributed to the lower average annual change in ground water levels," he said.

"I believe the most significant factor is the amount of precipitation received over much of the area just before and during the growing season."

Wyatt said, timely rains came during the late summer in the northern portion of the District, which helped to reduce the pumpage.

He added that the second factor is the filling-in of cones of depression around wells not pumped for extended periods of time.

The third, and possibly the most important, factor is the implementation of more efficient irrigation practices.

"Producers are continually making upgrades to their methods of irrigation as quickly as they can afford it," he said.

"Low Energy Precision Application center pivot sprinklers, surge valves, drip irrigation and other water conservation techniques help contribute to the reduction in water levels within the district."

More than 11,000 center pivot sprinkler systems are now in operation within the Water District's service area.

According to Water District Assistant Manager Ken Carver, 65 percent of the District's irrigated acreage lies under center pivots.

Use of LEPA center pivot sprinkler systems can help producers achieve irrigation efficiencies of up to 98 percent by reducing water losses associated with wind drift, deep percolation and evaporation.

Technical Division staff members take measurements in a network of 1,209 privately-owned water wells to determine the average annual change in the quantity of water in storage in the Ogallala Aquifer within the District.

These measurements are made annually during the months of January and February to allow the ground water levels to stabilize from the previous irrigation season's pumpage.

At the end of the 1997 irrigation season, three of the 15 counties within the coverage area had an average water decline of less than one foot, while seven counties had water level rises ranging from 0.21 to 0.96 of a foot.

During the 10-year period from 1988 to 1998, ground water levels showed an average annual decline of 1.05 feet. An average annual decline of 1.46 feet was recorded during the five-year period, 1993-1998.

Depth-to-water measurements revealed an average decline of 1.06 feet in 1990; an average decline 0.73 of a foot in 1991; and an average rise of 0.14 of a foot in 1992.

A drought occurred in the area during the next four years, which contributed to greater declines. An average decline of 1.46 feet was recorded in 1993; an average decline of 2.15 feet in 1994; an average decline of 1.91 feet in 1995; and an average decline of 1.49 feet in 1996.

Harder wins scholarship

CINDY HARDER

Cindy Harder, daughter of Norman and Sherry Harder, has won the Edith Lois Wilson Scholarship offered by District 1 Texas Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences.

The scholarship was formally presented during the District 4-H Fashion Show held recently in Pampa.

Harder is the sixth consecutive Deaf Smith County 4-H member to be awarded the scholarship which is presented annually to a high school senior planning to major in home economics.

As a 10-year 4-H'er, Harder has been active in clothing, food and nutrition, public speaking, health and breads projects.

Due to her extensive community service and 4-H leadership, she has received numerous awards including the Gold Star in 1996.

She will graduate from Hereford High later this month and will attend Texas Tech University, majoring in Human Development and Family Studies.

Previous Hereford recipients of the Edith Lois Wilson Scholarship are Jennifer Hicks, 1993, Kinann Campbell, 1994, Karon Harder, 1995, Amanda Sims 1996, and Joanna Brumley, 1997.

The Edith Lois Wilson Scholarship honors the retired District Extension Director for her leadership and dedication to home economics programs.

The $500 award is designed to encourage 4-H members to pursue careers in family and consumer sciences, as well as human sciences.

Recipients must have completed at least three years of 4-H work in District 1, carried home economics projects each year, and rank academically in the top quarter of their graduating class.

BMR100 hits markets

HENDERSON, Nev. - A new type of forage sorghum, BMR 100, is now being on-farm tested and marketed by AgriBio Tech, Inc. BMR 100 contains significantly less cell lignin than conventional forage sorghum varieties.

This new type of forage sorghum is the first commercially acceptable BMR forage sorghum released and offers great opportunities to dairy and beef operators to significantly improve their milk production and cattle weight gains.

While lignin strengthens the forage stalk, it also makes the stalk less digestible. Reducing the amount of lignin in the forage improves digestion and adds value to the hybrid.

Called brown mid-ribbed sorghum, the new forage has been shown to significantly improve ruminant fiber digestion.

Heightened digestibility improves feed efficiency under feedlot conditions and increases milk production in dairy cattle.

"BMR 100 is the first brown mid-ribbed forage sorghum that has been offered commercially," said Ricky Rice, research and production manager at Seed Resource in Tullia. "This new seed technology could revolutionize feed management programs throughout the Midwest and west - or anywhere forage sorghums are grown and fed to cattle."

Brown midribbed forage sorghum may also replace corn silage where corn yields are low or water is a limiting factor.

Nutritionists at the University of Nebraska conducted trials to determine the relative nutritional values of regular sorghum, ABT's advanced BMR 100 forage sorghum, corn silage and alfalfa silage.

Results of the study concluded that ABT's BMR 100 contained a slightly higher crude protein and a substantially lower lignin content than traditional forage sorghum.

As a result, ABT's BMR 100 forage sorghum outperformed the traditional forage sorghum, provided performances equal to or better than the alfalfa silage and performed in a manner similar to or slightly under the performance of corn silage.

Versus conventional forage sorghum lactating dairy cows produced more than 5 pounds of milk per day in the Nebraska study, a huge added value for dairy producers.

Yields of ABT's BMR 100 sorghum are comparable to yields of most other forage sorghum. It will be advantageous when *when a highly digestible product is desired for beef and/or dairy cattle consumption;

*When water limitations either raise production costs or lower yields;

*When the use of corn silage is prohibitively expensive.

"We're looking at BMR as a way to help farmers increase their profits," said Keith Flynn, forage business unit director at ABT. "The increased digestibility available through BMR 100 adds value to each acre planted, that's good news for growers."

Matter of Fact

Local Agriculture Commissioner

What's in a name? When it comes to our food safety, there's more than you might think.

Of course, some words like "Texas" will always evoke feelings of pride and home. Others like "hot chocolate" bring on feelings of warmth. And then there's the term "irradiation." Irradiation is a simple process that reduces the number of dangerous organisms that can cause food spoilage and illness. But the very mention of this word seems to turn some people off. Why? It seems irradiation conjures up images of radiation - which it's not.

In fact, Europeans have been using irradiation successfully for years, but they call it "cold pasteurization." Call it what you like, but the process that eliminates the risk of food-borne illness, extends the shelf life of food and reduces spoilage is important to the production of the country's food supply.

I once read that sales of Chinese gooseberries jumped 200 percent when growers renamed the fruit "kiwi." Maybe we should consider making the same name change move with irradiation.

Center Pivot Spring Maintenance

✓ Check-List

1 Drain condensation out of gearboxes and motors, and refill with genuine Zimmatic gear oil available at your local Zimmatic dealer. At this time the maintenance schedule should include the inspection of all seals to be sure there are no severe oil leaks present.

Inspecting seals for oil leaks.

2 Check tire pressure (recommended pressure for each tire size can be found in the Zimmatic operation manual).
• Check valve stem assembly
• Check rim for dents in bead area
• Check tire for deep weather checks or severe cuts
• Check lug bolts for proper tightness (note: check again after 1 or 2 passes)

Checking for proper tire pressure.

3 Grease pivot head and EII assembly at pivot point.

4 Check main control panel with power off.
• Look for loose wires, winter damage, blown fuses, etc.
• Check to make sure #6 bare copper wire is connected to main panel and ground rod

Cleaning brass rings with power off.

5 Check main panel with power on and water off.

• To use the system analyzer, a series of lights can assist in determining what part of the system may need repair. To use these lights, you must energize the main control panel. While the panel is energized, always keep the inner door closed and never override the latch and open the door. Once the part of the system to be checked has been identified, shut the main power disconnect off, lock and tag it off while working on the system.
• Check voltage using the Zimmatic volt meter in the main control panel (the volt meter and light "A" will check all 3 phases at approximately 480 volts).
• Check magnetic starters, forward and reverse for proper operation
• Check all circuits using system analyzer (see owner manual)
• Check percent timer
• Check tower read out meter (optional equipment)
• Check center drive and gearboxes for unusual noise.

Checking the tower control box for loose wires.

6 Check collector ring with power off.
• Clean and polish brass rings with emery cloth and spray with LPS #1 only or leave dry. Do not use contract cleaner.
• Check for loose wires
• Check brushes and brush holder

7 Check tower control box with power off.
• Check magnetic starter for loose screws
• Check for loose wires
• Check CAM for free movement
• Check alignments linkage for proper adjustment and that all parts should operate freely
• Check safety switch and adjust accordingly
• Be sure tower panel shield is in place and latched properly.

8 Check main panel with water on.
• Flush system and replace sand trap
• Check tower couplers for leaks
• Check sprinkler heads for proper operation - be sure to check for leaks
• Check main line pipe for leaks
• Check quick drain valve at each tower
• Check and adjust low pressure shutdown
• Check that the pump shutdown circuit is operational (pump stops when pivot stops)

9 Other items to check.
• Check for loose bolts throughout system
• Check automatic endgun valve operation
• Check all pivot tie down bolts to be sure they are drawn up tight
• Check to see that all span cables are secured to the pipeline
• Field obstructions should be removed or checked to make certain the system will have proper clearance

REMEMBER - Safety Comes First. Follow all safety statements published in your Zimmatic operational manual when operating your Zimmatic system.

Your Zimmatic dealer has factory trained service technicians to assist your detail service requirements.

Let us handle all your parts & service needs!

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Financing, Down Payments, Price negotiations. Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home.

But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent.

An expert agent can coach you smoothly through the entire home buying process. From using the sophisticated multiple listing service to find the home that fits your needs and your budget. To tackling financing options. Setting up and monitoring inspections. Negotiating price. And even maneuvering you through closing.

So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field--a real estate agent.

Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities.

Getting the right coaching now could mean the difference between confusion and closing.

High-Profile Contemporary

G-88

WITH ITS UNIQUE LOOK and contemporary highlights, this angled one-story design is a high-profile addition to any neighborhood.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN

AP Newsfeatures
Plan G-88, by HomeStyles Designers Network, utilizes space and puts emphasis on quality rather than size. This high-profile-contemporary design provides 1,340 square feet of living space.

The angled floor plan minimizes hall space and creates smooth traffic flow with architectural appeal. The roof framing is square, however, to allow for economical construction.

The spectacular living and dining rooms share a 16-foot-high cathedral ceiling and a fireplace. Both rooms have lots of glass that overlook an angled rear terrace. The dining room includes a glass-filled alcove and sliding patio doors topped by transom windows. Tall windows frame the living room fireplace and set off the slope of the ceiling.

A pass-through joins the dining room to the combination kitchen and family room, which features a snack bar and a clerestory window. The mudroom and a half-bath are located nearby.

The sleeping wing has a master suite, which features a skylighted dressing area and a luxurious bath with a whirlpool tub. The third bedroom can be converted into a den if desired; it shares a second full bath with another bedroom that offers a 14-foot-high sloped ceiling.

Cher's Sonny & Me a nostalgia trip for fans

Academy Award-winning actress Cher discusses her personal and professional relationship with her ex-husband, Sonny Bono, in Sonny & Me: Cher Remembers. Airing Wednesday on CBS, the hourlong special features clips highlighting their life together from their early days in music to their successful TV series.

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

An Oscar-winning actress and pop icon pays tribute to her former partner in both marriage and career when Sonny & Me: Cher Remembers premieres Wednesday, May 20, on CBS.

The hourlong special is a very personal project, says Cher, who hopes the program will offer new perspective on the late Sonny Bono and some smiles and tears to fans of the duo's hit 1970s series The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour.

"It's a retrospective with elements of the Sonny and Cher shows, photographs that have never been seen (by the public), me telling stories about our early meetings and how we got started," Cher says. "We've got some mementos that both he and I have been keeping. It goes from him being small to the end of The Sonny and Cher Show."

The actress and singer says she started thinking of the project only a few weeks after Bono's January death in a skiing accident, when she noticed several accounts of his life contained both inaccuracies and misimpressions.

"I felt that people really needed to see a much more rounded view of him," she explains. "They saw the public person, but I don't think that they knew as much as there was to know."

"I saw an A&E (Network) Biography on him, and everyone in the room who knew him really well thought there were a lot of inaccuracies in it. I also think that people forget. It's been a long time since the Sonny and Cher shows were in the top five."

The couple's 1974 divorce brought down the curtain on CBS' The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour, which had been a top-10 hit up to that point. Two years later, they tried to recapture that success in The Sonny and Cher Show, but one staple of their act — Cher's caustic put-downs of Sonny — no longer rang funny to audiences. The new show lasted less than two years.

While Cher embarked on a successful movie career, winning a best actress Oscar for Moonstruck in 1988, Bono found little hope of continuing Cher-less in show business. He ran an Italian restaurant in Palm Springs, Calif., for 15 years, remarrying twice during that period.

In a surprising turn of events, he was elected mayor of Palm Springs in 1988. At the time of his death, he was serving his second term as a Republican U.S. representative.

While Bono and his famous ex-wife remained close after their divorce, Cher says she never really got a handle on Bono's new political career.

"His politics seemed so strange to me. He was always a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat," she says. "He changed from the person that I had been close to. The haircut, the suits, the politics — this was a person that I didn't know so well."

Many viewers will vividly remember the touching and teary eulogy Cher delivered at Bono's Palm Springs funeral on Jan. 9.

"I kept saying to my family, 'I don't know if I can do this,'" she recalls. "Right before it, I said to Chas(tity Bono, her daughter with Sonny), 'What if I can't get through this?'"

"She said, 'Mom, when you go up there, your professionalism will kick in and you'll be able to do it.'"

"I took two steps up and (started) crying, and I thought, 'Well, so much for professionalism.'"

Fans may be well advised to bring their own hankies to this special.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ ★ May 17-23 ★ ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Don't disregard a problem at work. Aries. If ignored, it only will become more serious and hinder your professional progress. A loved one asks for your advice about romance. Don't let your feelings cloud your judgment. Be honest and helpful. Sagittarius plays an important role late in the week.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Your phone isn't ringing off the hook this week and that's just fine with you. It gives you a chance to get some well-deserved rest. Pamper yourself as much as possible. A close friend needs a big favor from you. Do what you can, because he or she always has been there for you in the past.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
You have to be patient early in the week, Gemini. You're waiting to learn about an important decision that affects you, but you don't have any control over when that decision will come. Don't fret; just relax. Things will work out in your favor. That special someone turns to you in a time of need. Be supportive.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
This is your week to shine, Cancer. Everything is going your way, and you're making progress in all that you do. Loved ones and friends are impressed with your efforts. A relative surprises you at a family gathering. Don't let this throw you. Instead, enjoy the news and share it with others. Scorpio plays an important role.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Voicing your opinion puts you in the spotlight this week. Enjoy the attention, but don't let it go to your head. You're not the only person who has something to say. Running into an old friend brings back memories. Enjoy the reminiscing, but keep moving forward. Leave the past behind you.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
You have a lot of people depending on you, Virgo. Don't let them down by ignoring your responsibility. Stay determined, and you can get everything done. That special someone finally says yes. Enjoy a fabulous evening out, and be prepared for a long relationship. Things are going well.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
While you prefer to be the one in charge, that's not the case this week, Libra. Don't get upset. Just work hard, and your efforts will be rewarded. A family gathering holds a lot of potential. Your loved ones are looking out for you and want to help you better yourself. Show them your appreciation.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
When it comes to your career, don't let your ego get the best of you this week. You are not the only capable person on the job. Just remember that a little determination goes a long way when trying to impress those around you. That special someone has a question for you. Think about what you want before answering.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Try to relax when it comes to an important meeting early in the week. If you get nervous, you're sure to stick your foot in your mouth and make the situation awkward. Stay focused and breathe deeply. A friend of a friend wants to see you. Be prepared to be asked for a favor.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Be realistic when you're writing out your to-do list, Capricorn. There's a lot you want to accomplish, but you can't do it all at once. You have to pace yourself. Take it one step at a time. A loved one gets you involved in a family disagreement. Don't say too much until you know the facts.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
You're on your own this week, Aquarius, and that's just the way you like it. You can do what you want when you want without anyone bossing you around. Enjoy yourself, because things won't be the same by the end of the week. Sagittarius plays a key role on Thursday.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't let your anger at a business associate keep you from helping him or her in a time of crisis. Your knowledge is just what he or she needs to solve a problem. Be supportive. A loved one drops by unexpectedly late in the week. Listen to what he or she has to say.

TV PIPELINE

Q: What TV shows did Jayne Brook star in before playing Dr. Grad on Chicago Hope? --Bill and Charlene Huff via e-mail.

A: Before finding Hope, Brook played Sarah Berkezkuk on the syndicated Sirens and Ann Hudson in the CBS drama WIOU (1990-91).

Q: What can you tell me about a TV show called My World and Welcome to It? --Denise via e-mail.

A: William Windom starred as writer-cartoonist John Monroe in this lovely 1969-70 NBC sitcom loosely based on the writings of James Thurber. Animated sequences in Thurber's distinctive drawing style illustrated John's daydreams. Joan Hotchkis co-starred as John's wife, Ellen, and Lisa Gerritsen played their daughter, Lydia.

Q: In a recent TV movie I noticed the actor Zack Ward, who looked familiar. What else has he done? Also, did the leading ladies of Profiler and The Pretender ever star in a TV soap opera? --Dawn via e-mail.

A: Since your e-mail address is Canadian, you may remember Ward from the 1994 series Boogie's Diner or his appearances as Moody Spurgeon in both Anne of Green Gables and Anne of Avonlea. His feature film credits include A Christmas Story and Wild America.

A: Andrea Parker of The Pretender was never on a soap, but Ally Walker of Profiler played Andrea Bedford on NBC's Santa Barbara a decade ago.

Q: We are a group of legal studies students in Daytona Beach, Fla., and we have been trying to locate information on the old series The Paper Chase. We'd really like to see it again, but it's not on video. What can we do? We've called all the local TV stations. --Thanks from 32 salivating legal studies students.

Jayne Brook

A: Sorry, but you've already done everything I can suggest. Chase doesn't air anywhere in the United States, but it does air abroad. There are two factors that may account for the fact that it's rarely seen here.

First, this outstanding series, in which John Houseman re-created his Oscar-winning role of Professor Kingsfield, is cerebral and complex, which unfortunately may draw too small an audience to make it attractive for many station managers.

Second, most successful syndicated shows have a minimum of 100 episodes, while Chase has only 62. Perhaps Nick at Nite's TV Land will someday give it a second life.

Q: Where is Peta Wilson of La Femme Nikita from? She has an unusual accent. --J.K. via e-mail.

A: Wilson, 27, hails from Australia. Off-camera, her Aussie accent is far more recognizable.

HIGHLIGHTS

Guest star Bette Midler (right) joins Candice Bergen for the series finale of Murphy Brown. The acclaimed sitcom ends its 10-year run Monday on CBS.

In a time of nothing, Murphy had something to say

By Mark Costello

Murphy Brown's law: If there is the possibility for something to go wrong, it will go comically wrong.

For the past 10 years, this has been the guiding precept of Murphy Brown, which airs its series finale, "Never Can Say Goodbye," Monday, May 18, on CBS.

Plenty has gone right for Murphy - two Emmys for best comedy, five for star Candice Bergen - because it has never been afraid to broach subjects that society has decreed should be discussed seriously and discreetly. It is from these taboos, such as this season's cancer story line, that much of the show's humor has originated.

The first episode clearly set the tone: The elevator doors opened at FYI, setting loose a TV journalist with a volcanic temperament who was spin-cycle dry from a stay at the Betty Ford Center.

Murphy steadily built a large, devoted audience, and the buzz about the series was never higher than in 1992, when Vice President Dan Quayle made the unwed, pregnant Murphy part of the national dialogue. It transformed a fictional look at the news business into all-too-real front-page news and op-ed fodder.

"It was certainly a good thing to happen to the show, in a historical sense," Bergen says. "We had so much attention on us."

At that time, Murphy was a sitcom that refused to sit down and keep quiet. But eventually it lost its seriocomic voice, becoming "dismal," in Bergen's opinion.

As for the 10th season, she says, "Our hope was really to bring the show back to its beginning. To bring the show back to what it had in its best four years - the first four years."

That meant getting back to the comedy of friction, rubbing the expected with the abrasive unexpected. Thus, viewers heard the words that were as scary for Murphy as they would be for any woman: "You have breast cancer."

In the celebrity-filled last episode, Murphy undergoes major surgery. It is God's way of saying, "Ha!" But Murphy, whether she lives or dies, will undoubtedly get the last laugh.

SOAP WORLD

Francis checks back into General Hospital

Genie Francis (Laura, General Hospital) makes her much-anticipated return on Wednesday, May 20. Francis has been on maternity leave for more than a year.

Laura returns to Port Charles after a surprise visit from Nikolas (Tyler Christopher). She arrives the night of Stefan and Katherine's (Stephen Nichols, Mary Beth Evans) engagement ball.

In other news: Michael Zaslow (ex-Roger, Guiding Light) has returned to the role of David Renaldi on One Life to Live. He will be appearing in several episodes.

Fans were outraged when the popular actor was let go from his role on GL because of an illness. Last year, Zaslow was diagnosed with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a degenerative disease that attacks the nerve cells.

The powers at ABC had wanted Zaslow for several months but had to wait for the legal battles with his former soap to be settled.

Zaslow says he could not be happier about returning to acting.

"Executive producer Jill Farren Phelps and head writer Pamela K. Long are brave, trusting and are exhibiting tremendous social responsibility in writing David's return with ALS," Zaslow says. "They are giving hope to all people with physical and emotional challenges, and that embraces the majority of people in the world today."

ALS has left Zaslow unable to speak, but he communicates through a voice synthesizer.

Dear Candace: I would like to know when Ridge (Ron Moss) on The Bold and the Beautiful is going to get a spine. He is a very attractive man, but he needs to stick to his guns.

Ridge promised to love Brooke (Katherine Kelly Lang) for better or worse. Now, at the first sign of trouble, he is out of there. —Jennifer Bayne, Douglas, Wyo.

Dear Readers: Ridge may have decided to live with Taylor (Hunter Tylo), but Brooke is not out of the picture.
