school officials want the public to know.

Superintendent Pat Blankenship said the smaller district "can offer students a number of benefits that larger districts can't. They may have some things we can't offer, but each parent must weigh the benefits and make the decision which will be best for their students."

For all its lack of size, the Adrian School District earns an exemplary rating every year from the Texas Education Agency and is acknowledged for the numbers of students who take the SAT and ACT and then go on to college.

"Most of our students graduate with more than 30 credits," said Blankenship. "We have an eightperiod day and most of the students take something each period.

But now, the district is suffering from the same affliction as many other small rural schools - the loss of student population.

Schools receive much of their state and federal funding based on the number of students enrolled.

According to Blankenship, rural schools began losing students in great numbers about 15 years ago when agriculture started using larger equipment and needing less extra help.

"Our rural schools are all tied to agriculture. With so much land tied up in the CRP (Conservation Reserve Program), we just can't hold onto the students. No one ever comes back," said Blankensh.p

Adrian has about 85 students registered in kindergarten through 12th grade, with a teacher/student ratio of about 1:6.

Blankenship said the school district is trying to attract more students from more populated areas through incentives: free transportation, improved testing results.

"We're not out trying to steal other districts' students," he said. "But, if parents are not seeing the results they would like or if the students are dissatisfied with being just a number in a crowd, we invite them to come talk to us. Come look at what we have to offer."

Blankenship said the community and the parents of the Adrian students work very hard at spreading the attributes of the school and they stay involved with the school and its activities which help make it a success.

Clint Formby, KPAN's Old Philosopher, was roasted, toasted and soaked Tuesday. It was all part of KPAN's 50th birthday celebration Tuesday. and more than 100 people showed up for a special program under, and around, a tent on the station parking lot. The crowd included a number of out-of-town guests. A drought-breaking rainfall created a few problems, but no one complained much about getting wet.

County Judge Tom Simons served as emcee for the special event. Formby received special plaques from Sid Shaw, president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, and Chester Nolen, Hereford city manager. The city plaque included a mayor's resolution from Bob Josserand, who --according to Nolen, "thought so much of this event that he took a trip to Santa Fe. KPAN staff members also presented Clint with a special radio, mounted with a gold plate to note the special occasion.

Other speakers included Pete Laney, Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives; Chip Formby, station manager(and Clint's son); and Wendell Mayes, noted Texas radio owner and friend of Formby. Also tossing in some remarks was Captain Billy -- KPAN deejay, who even Simons, Clint and Chip seemed to have trouble introducing and explaining.

While Formby drew praises for his radio and career and many contributions to community, each speaker also used the occasion to "roast" the honoree who was "delivered" to the event on a fire truck with sirens sounding. Rep. Laney noted that "unless someone more deserving comes along before sundown, Smithee and I will present Clint with the Texas flag that flew over the capitol today."

On a serious note, Laney said the presence of a radio station like KPAN "is more important than most people know." He added that local citizens may not realize how fortunate Hereford is to have both a strong radio and newspaper supporting the community.

Simons said his wife thought it was unusual that he and Clint were friends, because "we both like to talk so much ... "Maybe it's because neither one of us listens to the other."

Formby expressed his thanks for the party, saying that he couldn't adequately thank everyone. "Tomorrow I'll thank of a real good response ... all the things I should have said today.

Hustlin' Hereford...a great place to live, work and play. If you ask residents what makes it a great place, you might hear numerous reasons: pride in our hustling attitude and spirit; enjoying the benefits of small-town life while living in a community with a diversified economy; pride in our schools, churches and civic organizations, and sometimes we even brag talk about good weather.

As we celebrate our 100th birthday and reflect back on the history of the community, there is one over-riding reason that always comes to the top -- the people. We ran across a fable, written by George Autry, that illustrates the point very well:

"It was one of those days when God was creating the Earth. He was working on Texas as darkness fell at the end of the day, and He had to quit. He gave the Great Plains of West Texas a smoothing stroke and said to Himself, 'In the morning, I'll come back and make it pretty like the rest of the world, with lakes and streams and mountains and trees."

"But next morning when He returned, it had hardened like concrete overnight. As He thought about having to tear it all out and make it over, He had a happy thought. 'I know what I'll do,' He said. 'I'll just make some people who like it this way.' And that is how it came about that the people who live in the Panhandle like it this way," Happy Birthday, Hereford!

Heat continues to threaten north Texans

DALLAS (AP) - Balmy weather? Louisiana and 21 in Oklahoma. That's how it felt in Dallas, when folks were happy it was only a muggy 94 degrees after they've sweltered for 29 consecutive days in triple-digit heat.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms rolled through northern Texas on Tuesday, a day after it got its first measurable rain in weeks. No one seemed to mind the gray skies.

"I'm so refreshed," said of four cheerleaders visiting from Cushing, Okla., before their summer break ends. "This is real shopping weather!"

Jay Eagle pronounced the coolish weather delightful. "It feels like springtime," he said.

The rain cooled things considerably in Altus, Okla., where Monday's high reading of 99 degrees marked the first time since July 5 it wasn't as hot as 100. Tuesday's high was a pleasant 78 degrees.

"It's definitely a change from the 14-year-old Emily Jo Ahrberg, one last few weeks, I'll tell you," said Dwight Dennis with the Altus office of emergency management.

The heat held on in some areas.

College Station in central Texas marked its 30th straight day of highs over 100.

Residents of Del Rio suffered through triple-digit heat for a 32nd straight day. Laredo has recorded humidity, it felt hotter than 100 100-plus highs for 80 days so far this year, including 14 days of 110-degree heat.

Elementary registration

Elementary registration continues for Hereford students Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3:30 at the Intake Center in the administration building.

As of Aug. 4, 1,881 elementary students had been registered for classes. This is approximately 80 percent of expected enrollment.

Approximate enrollment for HHS and HJHS are 1,300 and 700 respectively, based on last spring's pre-registered student count.

Energy assistance available

The Clinton Administration last Thursday authorized the release of $100 million in funding to help low-income families pay for soaring home energy bills due to the extreme heat wave. This money came through the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, and for the Panhandle area will be administrated by Panhandle Community Services.

Eligible low-income citizens include the elderly, disabled, families with very young children and households with the lowest incomes and highest energy costs. Target population is households with incomes at or below 125 percent of the federal poverty guidelines.

A family of four, for example, must have a family income not exceeding $20,563 to be eligible for payment assistance. An individual must have an income not exceeding $10,063 to be eligible.

In addition to utility payment assistance, Panhandle Community Services will assess the need for an air conditioning unit.

Families can contact the Panhandle Community Services office at 110 N. 25 Mile Avenue, Suite E, Hereford or call Celia Serrano at 364-5631.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a single father who has 18 pictures of his daughter in his bedroom, 13 in the kitchen, 15 in the living room and Lord knows how many at work. He also has all her school drawings from the last seven years on display in every room of the house. She is 12 years old. This man would like to move out of his huge home to a smaller one, but his daughter won't let him. She makes all the decisions about what to do and where to go. She picked out the car he bought because she liked the color. This girl spends an obscene amount of money on clothes, and her father buys her whatever she wants.

PCS earns state award

Panhandle Community Services received the Outstanding Agency award from the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs at the recent Executive Director's Conference in San Antonio.

Phyllis Cook and Pauletta Flores accepted the award on behalf of the Executive Director, Johnny Raymond.

This award has been given four times, and Panhandle Community Services has won it each time. PCS will utilize the $11,240 cash incentive which accompanies the award to enhance its existing programs aimed at assisting clients to become selfsufficient and to transition out of property.

Since the award is based on the case management and overall performance of the staff over the entire 26 county service area of the Panhandle, individual presentations of the award are being made to each center as they share in the award equally.

Raymond made the presentation recently to Celia Serrano, coordinator of the Hereford center.

Motorcyclists scheduled to ride in parade

Members of the Christian Motorcyclists Association from Amarillo will ride in Hereford's Centennial Parade on Saturday.

CMA's purpose is sharing the love of Jesus Christ, one heart at a time.

It is an interdenominational organization, made up of born again believers, who work together in ministering to those who do not normally go to church, primarily to bikers and motorcyclists, but to anyone they come in contact with.

Bo Pearson, a member of CMA with Bo Pearson Ministries in Amarillo, has appeared in Hereford previously and is one of the group expected to ride in the parade.

Following the parade, Pearson and other bikers will be at 519 Star for a program and motorcycle rides.

The program is open to call members of the community. For more information, call Doris Huckert at 364-6078.

goes easy Few added penalties imposed upon Tech

NCAA

By CHRIS NEWTON Associated Press Writer LUBBOCK -- For eight years in nine sports, Texas Tech ran afoul of NCAA rules.

Four teams gave away too much scholarship money. At least 76 athletes were allowed to play even though they were ineligible, including two who skated by for four years. Several players ran up the school's long-distance bill, and a handful of others received free bail from a booster.

On Tuesday, the NCAA condemned Tech for a lack of institutional control and a failure to monitor its programs, but applauded the stiff penalties the school imposed on itself in April and only slightly added to them.

The NCAA placed Tech on a fourth year of probation and took away extra scholarships from the football, baseball and men's and women's basketball teams, but there were no bans on postseason play or television coverage.

Hereford cowboy looking to end slump

By BOB VARMETTE Sports Writer It was a trip Rodey Wilson likely will not forget. Unfortunately, that's not all good. Wilson's sojourn to Gillette, Wyo., for the National High School Finals Rodeo proved valuable in one respect, though. It was a learning experience for the 16-year-old Hereford High School cowboy. And it all comes down to attitude, the junior-to-be related. 'When I went up there, I didn't think at all I had a chance." Wilson said about his first time at the NHSFR. "If I had gone up there and thought that I could've

HISD hires head coach for baseball

By BOB VARMETTE Sports Writer

Hereford High School hired David DePriest Tuesday as the new head baseball coach, according to Hereford boys athletic director Craig Yenzer.

DePriest replaces Pete Rodriguez who resigned after five years as head coach to move into administration.

DePriest comes to the Whitefaces from Jasper out of District 19-4A where he was an assistant under Mike Rogers for one year. Prior to Jasper, DePriest was an assistant at Class 4A Brewer for two years.

"I'm really excited. We've got some young kids coming back that are going to be pretty good athletes.... There's some quality base ball played up in this area."

-- David DePriest

DePriest graduated from Clarksville High School in 1987, and is a 1992 graduate of Southern Arkansas University. DePriest played baseball both in high school and college.

"We're excited to get somebody of David's caliber," Yenzer said. "He's been in two highly successful programs. Of course, he has no head coaching experience, but in talking with the coaches he's worked for, they felt like he's ready for this step on his career ladder."

DePriest's only year coaching the Bulldogs was a successful one. Jasper won the district title for the fifth straight year and advanced three rounds deep in the playoffs, losing eventually to Nederland. The Whitefaces, meanwhile, have been slumping. Two years ago, Hereford failed to win a district game, and although last season they were somewhat resurgent, "evenhanded" and said the university will not appeal the decision.

"(The NCAA) was very fair throughout this whole process," Montford said. "Taken together, the sanctions that we imposed on ourselves and the additional sanctions by the NCAA show that both Tech and the NCAA understood the seriousness of the situation."

Football coach Spike Dykes said the announcement means his team can move forward...

"No more clouds, no more uncertainty, no more maybes," Dykes said. "Now we can get on with what we're really here to do and that's play football."

But Tech's sanctions were still not enough to keep the school from needing further admonishment, said Bonnie Slatton, acting chair of the Division I Committee on Infractions.

"I hope that this serves as a warning to all of us that we must be forever vigilant," Slatton said. "We were satisfied that Tech understood the seriousness of the action because of the fact they eliminated themselves from postseason play, but we felt there was need for more because of the duration of the offenses."

Tech's problems began to leak with a March 1995 Houston Chronicle report that the NCAA was looking into questionable correspondence courses taken by athletes at Tech, the University of Texas and the University of Houston.

That summer, the Chronicle began a three-year series of stories detailing irregularities throughout the athletic department, including a report that academically ineligible defensive lineman Stephen Gaines was allowed to play in several games after completing correspondence courses for which coaches provided him the answers.

Reports also surfaced that All-America running back Byron Hanspard, a junior, and senior offensive lineman Casey Jones had 0.00 grade-point averages for the fall 1996 semester and still were allowed to play.

The improprieties led to an internal audit by Tech revealing that 76 athletes in eight sports competed ineligibly since 1991. The NCAA found that the violations occurred in nine sports since 1990. Tech also confirmed violations of scholarship limits in baseball, football, men's golf and

THE PRICE I$ RIGHT Colleges follow pros, put naming rights to facilities up for bidding

By MICHELLE RUSHLO AP Business Writer

NEW YORK -- Goodbye, University Activity Center. Hello, Wells Fargo Arena.

Basketball coach Hec Edmundson is making room for Seafirst Bank. The Ohio State basketball team will shoot hoops in Value City Arena.

Colleges all over the country are rushing to cash in on corporate donations, discarding the tradition of naming sports venues for sports heroes.

Athletic departments now peddle the names of their arenas, locker rooms and soccer fields for the right price.

"As a purist, I'd love to think this is not going to be the wave of the future, but I think this is. In this day and age, we're all fighting for funding," said Arizona athletic director Jim Livengood, president of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

He said athletic programs are under increasing pressure to be financially independent without raising ticket prices, and they are turning to corporations for help.

Arizona State just persuaded Wells Fargo Bank to donate $5 million in exchange for renaming its basketball and volleyball venue Wells Fargo Arena.

Athletic department spokesman Doug Tammaro said the football locker room is available for $1 million. The gymnastics locker room goes for $100,000, and there's more.

"The arena was considered the crown jewel," he said.

The University of Washington plans to re-dub its basketball home because Seafirst Bank promised $5.1 million for renovations.

Instead of Hec Edmundson Pavilion -- named for a coach who spent 27 years leading the Huskies -- the renovated arena will be called Seafirst Arena at Hec Edmundson Pavilion.

Jeff Bechthold, an athletic department spokesman, said while some fans are unhappy with the change, he thinks most are receptive because the corporation has Northwest roots.

At Ohio State, Value City Arena is the school's new basketball facility. However, university officials distinguish it as the name of the seating bowl as opposed to the entire building, called the Jerome Schottenstein Center.

Ohio State agreed to "Value City Arena" after the Schottenstein family, which operates the discount department store chain, donated $12.5 million for the $105 million structure. The name, announced several years ago, kept talk radio lines abuzz, giving rivals new material with which to poke fun at the school.

Paul Krebs, an Ohio State associate athletic director, defends the name. He said it was granted to honor the Schottenstein family's gift.

Such gifts buy corporations the publicity associated with a sports arena without the big league prices, said Rick Burton, director of the Warsaw Sports Marketing Center at the University of Oregon.

For example, Wells Fargo's $5 million got the company's name on the arena for the life of the building, a fraction of the $50 million Bank One is spending to keep its name on the home of major league baseball's Arizona Diamondbacks.

Marilyn Taylor, a Wells Fargo spokeswoman, said the donation was in response to a request for help on arena renovations.

"The fact that it's named Wells Fargo was just part of it. But we DePriest made the move to the Panhandle because his wife, Keri, recently was hired as an assistant basketball coach at West Texas A&M University in Canyon. Keri DePriest was head girls basketball coach at Jasper.

"He's a man of high moral character, and he brings a great family into our community. Our baseball program will move forward with him at the helm," Yenzer said.

done well, I think I would've." And that's the one thing Wilson intends to change if he gets another trip to the NHSFR -- and he wants to get back badly.

'I wish I had had a little different attitude about it. ... I was more scared because I didn't think I'd have a chance up there. At first, I really and truly didn't think I'd have a chance up there, and that wasn't the attitude to have.' Wilson said.

The importance of attitude was not lost on Wilson, who, during his seven-day stay in the northeast Wyoming city, got to see a lot of other ropers in action. Another thing he learned in Gillette is that the gulf between himself and the top ropers at the NHSFR is not that wide.

"There were some kids up there that I didn't think roped that well," Wilson said. "And there were some kids that were real good that didn't draw well, just had a little bad luck. I think I'm fairly close."

One of only four Texas cowboys representing the state in the calf roping event, Wilson eventually placed 67th out of 141 entrants. Wilson got off to a good start at the NHSFR, finishing seventh in the first go round after winning his rodeo performance with a time of 10.8 seconds.

But then Wilson encountered something athletes are often alltoo-well familiar with -- a slump.

"It was OK there in the first round," Wilson said. "After that, it didn't do very good. I missed my second (calf), but I was happy with my first run."

Wilson recorded a no-time in the second round. It started the slump he still feels he's mired in despite the fact Wilson won the year-end all-around cowboy saddle at the High Plains Junior Rodeo Association finals in Clovis, N.M., July 26.

"I've kind of had some problems, I've missed three calves lately. I just roped them right around the ears. If they'd had horns, it would've worked," Wilson said with a pained laugh.

Wilson took part in a special match roping Sunday against Hereford teammate Monty Lewis sure like it," she added. Taylor said the company has donated large sums to the university before but concedes the arena

"I missed two (Sunday) and got beat in the match because of that," Wilson said. "If I could just catch, I think everything else is going 200d.

It's a mental thing, Wilson said. "I'm just doing stupid stuff," he admitted. "I don't think it's trying too hard, I think it's not trying hard enough. I don't know what the deal is. It's in my mind." Wilson qualified for the NHSFR and also was one of the top ropers on the Tri-State circuit, so a slump is definitely unusual for the Hereford native.

"I went in the high school deals all year without missing a calf," Wilson said. "It's pretty rare for me to miss one. But, it's all me."

Wilson said his nerves didn't bother him in Gillette: he thinks it's more of a lack of focus, especially in that second go round at the NHSFR.

"I think I was kind of out of it more than nerves," he said. "I think I should have been a little nervous, but I wasn't."

But the trip to Gillette wasn't totally a bad trip, Wilson said.

Pirates clobber Rockies, 13-5

PITTSBURGH (AP) -- Kevin Young went 4-for-5 with four RBI and the Pittsburgh Pirates knocked out Darryl Kile in the second inning, beating the Colorado Rockies 13-5 Tuesday night.

Young hit a two-run double in a three-run first, singled home a run in a four-run second, added an RBI There were good moments to go along with the bad.

"It's a really big deal up there," he said. "And the people were friendly. In fact, we got there about 4 o'clock in the morning (July 19). We got us a taxi to a place to eat, and we talked one of the waitresses into taking us to the arena. They're pretty nice."

Somewhere down the line, Wilson hopes college rodeo will be in his plans. He said he's already talked to Western Texas College in Snyder, but would like to go Tarleton State University in Stephenville -- home of one of the better college rodeo programs in the country.

But for now, Wilson is back riding the rodeo. He said he's spent less than two weeks in Hereford this summer, and by this weekend he'll be in Kansas at events in Ulysses and Elkhart. Then Wilson will make his way to Quanah before wrapping up this latest road swing in Melrose, N.M.

"I like (travelling)," Wilson said. "I don't have to do much around the house. I don't do much when I'm here, I need to do a lot more than I do."

Now, that's not a bad attitude to have.

double in the fifth and singled leading off a three-run eighth. Pittsburgh set season highs with the runs and 21 hits, stopping a four-game losing streak and winning for just the second time in nine games. Nine of the hits were doubles. Kile dropped to 7-14 as his ERA rose to 5.97.

Lee Stevens finished with three

RBI and Ivan Rodriguez, Tom Goodwin and Royce Clayton each drove in two runs on a night when 10 different Texas players scored. Texas scored seven unearned runs in the fifth for a 10-3 lead against Chris Carpenter (6-6).

Texas holds off Toronto

ARLINGTON (AP) -- Carlos Delgado hit three home runs for Toronto, but they were not enough to overcome Todd Stottlemyre's solid debut for the Texas Rangers in an 11-9 victory Tuesday night over the Blue Jays.

Stottlemyre (1-0), traded from St. Louis to Texas on Friday in a four-player deal, struck out eight in 5 2-3 innings.

Stottlemyre gave up two earned runs and six hits, and left with Texas leading 10-3. He tipped his cap when the sellout crowd gave him a standing ovation.

Delgado tied a team record by becoming the seventh player to hit three homers in a game. Darnell Coles last did it in 1994.

Delgado hit a two-run shot to right in the fifth, a solo drive to left in the seventh and a solo homer to center in the eighth. He has 22 home runs this season.

Three unearned runs in the seventh helped the Blue Jays get within 10-8. Delgado homered in the eighth, but John Wetteland got the last four outs for his 29th save.

The Rangers are counting on Stottlemyre to anchor their staff down the stretch as they try holding off Anaheim in the AL West.

Tech

Tech took its biggest hit with the scholarships cuts, which limit the school's ability to lure top athletes.

The NCAA is taking away 18 football scholarships over three years; the school had volunteered to give up 14 over two years. The men's basketball team will lose seven over three years, one more than the school suggested.

Tech offered to lose 7 1/2 baseball scholarships through 2002. but the NCAA bumped that by three. The women's basketball team would have lost one scholarship in 1998-1999 under the school's recommendations, but the NCAA is taking away another in the 1999-2000 season.

Men's track, golf and women's basketball were hit with lighter scholarship self-imposed sanctions.

Dykes said the scholarships would hurt the team, but wouldn't destroy its chance to be competitive. "We knew there could be more punishment but we were hoping that we would still be in a position to give them boys a reason to come out and play for Tech," Dykes said. "Anyone who looks at the situation can see that we co. 'd still put together teams worth playing on."

Tech also forfeited every victory in which an ineligible athlete participated in those six sports as well as men's tennis and women's volleyball.

name brings more visibility. Since Wells Fargo hopes to target university students as customers, a campus presence doesn't hurt, she said. Burton of the marketing center said corporate attachment to college arenas may also help companies turn alumni into customers. College fans, he added. tend to be more loyal than their major league counterparts, giving corporate donors longer to win over customers.

Besides, companies like to associate themselves with prestigious institutions, creating visibility and community goodwill. Burton said.

Livengood of the collegiate athletic directors is aware of those benefits.

"You can fold in a bunch of feel-goods. It's not just a straight, I'm giving money type thing,' Livengood said. "We play on that, too."

Growing news competition widening niche for hoaxes and the start is an

By DAVID BAUDER AP Television Writer NEW YORK - Scrambling to piece together the story of the U.S. Capitol abooting, CNN's Bernard Shaw took an on-air phone call from a man claiming to speak for the hospital where the alleged assailant had have token had been taken.

In somber tones, the caller announced that suspect Russell E. Weston Jr. had died. This was news; Shaw picked up a pen and made a note. Then the caller spoke of the gunman's motivations.

He was upset, the man explained, because "his radio was broken and he couldn't listen to Howard Stern.

Zap! Sterned again. Shaw quickly hung up, apologized to viewers and moved on.

What may be a joke to fans of New York's top shock jock is no laughing matter to network news divisions. These hoaxes annoy viewers and jeopardize the networks' credibility: If a crank call can get on the air, should anything the network says be believed?

News executives say procedures are in place to filter out such calls, and that far more are caught than ever make the air.

Yet today's intensely competitive news environment encourages such mischief. With three all-news cable stations and three network news divisions, there's always a danger the pressure to get information fast can override the pressure to get it right.

Shaw joined a not-so-exclusive club of Stern victims. Larry King is a member. So is ABC's Peter Jennings, caught during live coverage of the O.J. Simpson car chase. MSNBC was snookered in the aftermath of Princess Diana's death. It has even happened on The Weather Channel. During a hurricane, a Stern fan impersonated a state official on air.

A North Carolina official who was impersonated by someone fooling CNN two years ago did some detective work and traced the offending call to an employee at Stern's radio station office in New York, the network said. There was no evidence Stern himself collaborated in that hoax or any other.

After the latest incident with CNN, Stern himself wouldn't talk about it, and his manager, Don Buchwald, pleaded ignorance. "I don't know anything about it," he said.

Although most hoaxes are benign, they can occasionally be dangerous. During a time of heightened tensions between Jews and Palestinians last year, MSNBC broadcast a false report of an explosion in Israel phoned in by someone posing as an NBC producer. When President Bush was taken ill in Tokyo, an impostor claiming to be Bush's doctor called CNN Headline lews to report the president had died. Only an anchor's insistence upon double-checking the information prevented it from getting on the air.

"Whenever you're doing a live broadcast, it's always a problem and you have to have safeguards," said Bob Murphy, ABC's senior vice president for hard news. "We have safeguards that have stopped a lot of these prank calls, but nothing is fail-safe. You just do what you can."

Networks don't like to talk about their protective measures, or how people have evaded them. Not only does it embarrass staffers who've been fooled; they fear it encourages copycats.

"I think we basically feel the less said to anyone the better," said CNN spokesman Steve Haworth, declining to talk about how the faux hospital spokesman got through.

Most newsroom phones are equipped with caller IDs. When someone volunteers news, staffers usually insist upon a telephone number so they can call back. Reverse and electronic directories are used to verify names and affiliations.

NBC refuses to put any unsolicited calls on the air. said Bob Epstein, executive producer of MSNBC daytime programming. People interviewed on the air at ABC have already been pre-interviewed by producers, any one of whom can pull the plug if they doubt a person's veracity, Murphy said.

A couple of the pranksters have proven to be savvy viewers, getting through by impersonating people who have just been on the air.

Whatever the filters, television's increased appetite for live news coverage makes it more vulnerable to hoaxes.

"We're in a different business than we were a few years ago," Epstein said. "The networks were not in the business, unless it was an extraordinary event, of doing live, breaking news on the air."

ABC's Murphy doesn't believe a news organization's credibility is hurt "because some jerk has gotten through with a prank."

Networks are doing things to prevent hoaxes that they might not have thought about in a simpler time.

You want to try to get the right information on the air as carefully as you can to get people to the scene of a story," Epstein said. "You do it as fast as you can, but you've got to be right. We'll be second to be right."

If nothing else, the increased hoax attempts are a reminder to news organizations that speed matters, but double-checking matters more. .

Seinfeld returns to his origin

NEW YORK (AP) - Back in his hometown after years of the sitcom grind, Jerry Seinfeld doesn't seem to be having many second thoughts about pulling the plug on "Seinfeld."

So, what's it like not doing the TV show anymore? "Did you ever take a dog into a park and take his leash off, and he just kind of looks up at you for a second and bolts off like a maniac?" Seinfeld replied Tuesday. "It's something like that."

After nine years of using New York as a comedy backdrop for the sitcom, Seinfeld - who grew up on neighboring Long Island - has come back to the city as a stand-up comic. His 10-show run was to open tonight at the Broadhurst Theater, with Sunday's final show to be televised on HBO.

Seinfeld paused Tuesday for a news conference basically an excuse for a half-hour of jokes in front of reporters too cheap to buy tickets to his act.

Seinfeld riffed on New York's recent crackdown on sex shops ("just my luck"), his ideal woman ("they all seem ideal, that's the problem") and recorded messages in the back of New York taxi cabs that persuade him to buckle up ("only because Judd Hirsch tells me to").

And he couldn't resist a few Monica Lewinsky jokes. What comedian would?

"Everyone lies about sex," he said. "People lie during sex. Truth and sex is not going to happen. Let's give up on that dream.'

Yet Seinfeld turned serious - at least as serious as a comedian gets in public - when he talked about New York, the audience he considers the best for comedy.

"Seinfeld" lost some of its New York sensibility each year it was filmed in Los Angeles because its writers were away from the day-to-day stimulation the city offered, he said.

Participating retail merchants will have a super ball throw on Main Street beginning at 11:30 a.m. A fire truck, with siren blaring, will drive slowly south on Main Street from First Baptist Church. Superballs will be tossed to bystanders and those lucky enough to catch specially marked balls will receive prizes.

A memorable special event is planned for 7 p.m. in Dameron Park. "The Way It Used to Be" will be told by representatives of pioneer families as they tell true stories of growing up in Hereford and reminisce about the way it used to be.

John Gililland and Betty Hagar will serve as coemcees.

Everyone is urged to bring their lawn chairs and blankets, find a spot in the grass and just listen -- or take part.

Free watermelon and popcorn will be served from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

FRIDAY

Historical Heritage Day will feature a variety of happenings.

Participating retail merchants and radio station KPAN will hold a trivia contest from 11:30 a.m. to noon. Trivia questions will be aired and prizes will be awarded to winning listeners. The answers to the questions will be posted daily in the retail stores.

Retail merchants participating in centennial activities include Kid's Alley, Val's Gift Shop, Top Line Fashions, Western Auto, Peddler's Cove, Boots and Saddle, Litho Graphics Printing and Office Supply, Sweet Pea Sandwich Shoppe, CICS, Alco, Caryn's Hallmark, Merle Norman Cosmetics and Gift Garden, Gold Nugget Pawn, Yiota's, The Range, Wishes, Terry's Floral and Design, Manley Furniture and Appliances, Colortyme TV Rentals, Daniel Catalog Sales, Inkahoots, XIT Cellular, West Park Drug, Renee's Repeat Boutique, and Country Store.

Deaf Smith County Museum will bring history to life from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. with activities inside and outside the museum. Local artists, craftsmen and tradesmen will give demonstrations and have displays.

Included will be demonstrations of rope making, horse shoeing, silver working, chuck wagon cooking methods, taffy pulls, butter churning, milk separating, displays of antique tools and woodworking, cowboy poets, a Fourth Cavalry Reenactment and opportunity to meet Mr. Erastus "Deaf" Smith, plus music, entertainment and more.

The Jubilce of Arts will begin at 4 p.m. in Hereford Community Center.

The dedication of the Ruby K. Sears Garden, adjacent to the museum, will be held at 6:30 p.m.

Focal point will then shift to the lawn of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse for the raising and opening of the 1948 time capsule and viewing of the contents.

For those who cannot attend the raising ceremony, contents of the capsule will be displayed by Friends. of the Deaf Smith County Library at library on Saturday. SATURDAY

A full slate of activities are on tap, starting at 8 a.m. with the annual Greg Black Memorial 10K Fun Run to the centennial-ending fireworks show at 9:45 p.m. in Veterans Park.

The Jubilee of Arts continues in the community center and Hereford Seniors Citizens will host a quilt

Clinton credibility gap up; impeachment isn't

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Monica Lewinsky controversy is heating up again, but a new poll suggests that close public interest is not.

That's good news for the president, said Andrew Kohut, director of the Pew Research Center for the People & the Press.

The evidence is quite clear that the American public looked past it," he said of the latest developments such as Ms. Lewinsky reaching an immunity deal and the president agreeing to testify for the grand jury. "If they were more interested, it would be bad news for him."

A poll released Tuesday by the Pew Research Center indicated about 29 percent of the people are closely following the investigation of President Clinton and the former White House intern. That's about the same level from April and June.

JOHN CUNNIFF Business Mirror

Confidence down! Hurrah!

NEW YORK (AP) - The latest monthly Conference Board survey indicates a decline in consumer confidence during July, and some economists wouldn't be at all unhappy if it fell further in August.

To some folks, such views might sound almost unpatriotic, accustomed as they've been to hearing nothing but praise for the bounty bestowed by this year's economy, and prayers for its continuance.

As the worry warts view the economy, however, you can have too much of a good thing before it begins to lose its luster, sort of like a beautiful spell of gorgeous weather that evolves into a drought.

Already, they see signs of erosion, such as the report showing household savings as a percentage of after-tax income fell to an all-time low of 0.6 percent in the year's second three months.

The opposite of saving is spending, of course, and Americans during that period spent almost all their take-home pay, in spite of a slowdown in the economy and the beginning of doubts about the future.

Oddly, one of the biggest developing doubts concerns future job prospects, even as companies vie for workers with information and computer skills, and retailers post signs in their windows for part-time help.

Declining optimism about jobs hardly coincides with spending increases and savings declines, but consumers in the past have been instinctive about other things. Maybe they sense something.

Strange as it might seem, an economy has within itself the seeds of its own denouement. With unemployment falling toward only 4 percent, there are indications of wage pressures beginning to build.

In the past, upward pressure on wages has generally been viewed as the precursor of upward pressure on prices. You don't have to await the affirmation of official statistics - the help-wanted ads attest to it.

Generally, with a shortage of help comes a decline in the rate of productivity growth. Stated more simply, as wages rise and work-force quality erodes, production costs rise, and price rises could follow.

Any such deterioration is less visible than the effect of job pressures, but don't be surprised if the official statistics, scheduled for release August 11, don't show a decline in productivity growth.

Since inflation seems to remain the bigger danger to those in a position to do something about it, most importantly Alan Greenspan, the Federal Reserve chairman, a confidence decline might ease price pressure.

In that sense, the appearance of a frown on the confidence index is not the worst news to confront the expansion. It can, as the Fed has indicated, forestall more painful action, such as higher interest rates.

Still, you can't be certain about what consumers might do or think in their search for the better th After declining in January, the monthly index has alternated between pluses and minuses. Were that string to be maintained, August would be a plus month.

GM to cut 1,000 jobs

DETROIT (AP) - In a major reorganization of its North American sales, service and marketing operation, General Motors Corp. will eliminate up to 1,000 jobs and make other changes expected to save up to $300 million a year

The biggest change will be the creation of regional sales, service and marketing teams to replace duplicate teams at each of five divisions.

The effort is part of GM's continuing drive to cut costs by streamlining its bureaucracy. The announcement Tuesday came one day after GM said it plans to sell off its Delphi Automotive Systems parts subsidiary by late next year.

" "This is a big step," said Ron Zarrella, GM vice president and marketing chief. "Is it the last step? Probably not show at the Senior Center, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. The special centennial edition of the annual Town and Country Jubilee parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. with more than 40 entries.

Raising and opening of the 1973 time capsule at Hereford Community Center will take place at 11:30 a.m. immediately following the parade. Contents of this capsule will be added to the display at the library by Friends of the Library.

Stock market takes beating

NEW YORK (AP) - Less than three weeks after jumping to record highs, the stock market is reeling from its worst beating since last October.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 299.43 points on Tuesday to finish at 8,487.31 in the second busiest day in history. Only the 554.26-point loss of Oct. 27, 1997 and the 508.00-point fall of Oct. 19, 1987 were bigger. But in percentage terms, the drop was not close to a record.

Volume totaled a hefty 1.007 billion shares, only the second time more than 1 billion New York Stock Exchange-listed shares changed hands.

Investment pros are divided over whether the market is mired in one of its frequent post-rally downturns, popularly known as a correction, or caught in the throes of something far more severe.

Though the Dow is still up 7.3 percent so far this year, it has fallen 850 points in just 12 sessions since it closed at a record 9,337.97. That's a 9.1 percent drop.

But in percentage terms the 3.4 percent decline on Tuesday isn't anywhere near the worst ever. The plunge last October - the biggest point drop - amounted to a decline of 7.18 percent. And the 1987 drop, known as Black Monday, was a 22.6 percent plunge.

Asian markets followed Wall Street, with Tokyo's Nikkei average closing at just under 16,000, down 31 points from Tuesday. Markets in Taiwan fell today to their lowest level in almost two months, while shares were down more than 3 percent in South Korea, and dropped moderately in Australia and New Zealand.

Lewinsky prepares for grand jury appearance

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rehearsing for the biggest role of her life, Monica Lewinsky has spent much of the past week with prosecutors preparing for a grand jury appearance that potentially could undermine a presidency.

By the time she is driven to the courthouse door and takes an elevator to the third floor grand jury room, she'll know virtually every subject to be covered.

Prosecutors, who provide direction for grand jurors not usually steeped in the law, often debrief their main grand jury witnesses, using tactics ranging from hostility to gentle coaxing. Sometimes, they hold a practice question and answer session.

Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's staff appears to have taken the low-key approach with Ms. Lewinsky, who became a cooperating witness in exchange for blanket immunity from prosecution in Starr's investigation of an alleged presidential affair and cover-up.

'Very professional and congenial" is the way one of her lawyers, Plato Cacheris, described the debriefing sessions for testimony that may help determine the future of Clinton's presidency.

Ms. Lewinsky, 25, reportedly is ready to testify that she and Clinton had the sexual affair that both of them denied in the Paula Jones civil lawsuit against the president. She also provided prosecutors with a dress containing a stain that could be evidence of a sexual encounter.

Nancy Luque, a defense attorney and former federal prosecutor, said Starr not only needs to learn facts but also nuances from Ms. Lewinsky.

Du Bois' dream finally being realized

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - At the turn of the century, W.E.B. Du Bois proposed an ambitious project: the creation of an Encyclopedia Africana, a comprehensive history of Africa and people of African descent throughout the world.

Du Bois, a black intellectual and civil rights pioneer, believed a compendium of black knowledge would help defeat racism by cataloging blacks' contributions to civilization. He was never able to raise the funds for his project.

Nearly 90 years later, Du Bois' dream is about to become a reality, both in print and on CD-ROM.

Clinton to give OK to credit union bill

Clinton says he will sign a bill that allows more people to join credit unions.

Clinton said after Tuesday's voice vote in the House that he would sign the measure even though it lacks a provision sought by his administration that would require credit unions to abide by fair-lending rules that banks already must follow. The Senate had overwhelmingly approved the bill last week.

Those community lending rules, long championed by Democrats and attacked by conservative Republicans, require banks to serve low-income people and minorities in their communities.

The overall bill will make it easier for credit unions "to expand where appropriate" and "ensures that consumers continue to have a broad array of choices in financial services," Clinton said in a statement.

Under the legislation, all current credit union members would be allowed to remain with their institutions. That gives credit unions a boost in their competition with smaller community banks to attract customers.

The legislation overrides a 5-month-old Supreme Court ruling by allowing federally chartered credit unions to continue to include more than one occupational group in their memberships, as long as each group doesn't exceed 3,000 people.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President rates for their members. They contend they are the best source of help for people of modest means. But the banking industry has bitterly protested credit unions' exemption from federal taxes, which is retained by the legislation.

"I would say it was a victory of David over Goliath," Rep. Paul Kanjorski, D-Pa., one of the bill's original sponsors, said before the vote.

Dan Mica, president and CEO of the Credit Union National Association, called the vote a "tremendous victory for consumers across the country ... who want the door open to low-cost credit union service." He said some 62 million employees of small businesses, who were rendered ineligible by the high court ruling, now would be able to join an existing credit union.

The legislation also tightens rules governing cash reserves and other internal controls for credit unions changes that Clinton said would help put them "on sounder footing" and could "pay enormous dividends in more difficult times."

For months, a feverish lobbying campaign has pitted the banking industry - which brought the lawsuit that reached the high court - against the 70 million-member credit union industry.

"There's never been anything like this before, a comprehensive encyclopedia of the entire black world," said Gates.

While other researchers have chronicled different aspects of African and African-American history, there has never been a catalogue of this scope, Appiah said.

The two professors have tried for years to get financial backing for the encyclopedia. They began to move ahead on the project three years ago.

Pigeons leaving mark on desert city

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. (AP) - The warm morning breeze wafting in over the Mohave Mountains brings a chalky stench into Roxanne Heyl's yard.

On a small rise overlooking Heyl's house, the red roof of a neighbor's home is covered this morning with a flock of about 30 pigeons that contentedly coo, strut and - inevitably - make waste that scents the air.

'That's not many compared to what it usually is," Heyl says as she hoses off her driveway. "I've counted as many as 200 over there. She feeds them.

Heyl's neighbor is one of those in this resort and retirement haven along the Golorado River who regularly feed the thousands of pigeons that live here.

Local experts estimate there are about 15,000 pigeons - about one for every three people - and community leaders want to get rid of the birds.

Pigeons aren't native to the desert, where summer temperatures can reach 110 degrees, and the origin of the Lake Havasu City flock is unclear.

Local legend has it that hundreds were released at the dedication 30 years ago of the city landmark: the London Bridge, which town founder Robert McCulloch had dismantled, shipped to Arizona and reassembled here.

New quarters to have five designs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Look carefully at your quarters next year. George Washington might be on both sides.

The famed picture of Washington crossing the Delaware River has been chosen to replace the American eagle on quarters commemorating New Jersey.

Delaware's also will feature a Revolutionary War theme and Connecticut's, a symbol of freedom from its colonial past. A peach will appear on Georgia's coin, and Pennsylvania's will depict the female allegorical figure, "Commonmalth," the statue perched atop the state capitol in Harrisburg.

Each of the five designs has been selected from among finalists by the states' governors. Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin is expected to formally announce his approval this month or next. He's already given preliminary approval to each.

The five new coins, under legislation sponsored by Rep. Michael Castle, R-Del., are part of a 10-year program to commemorate the 50 states in the order they ratified the Constitution or joined the union.

The 25-cent piece still will feature the portrait of Washington on the front. It has appeared on the quarter since 1932, the 200th anniversary of his birth. But the familiar eagle won't reappear until 2009.
