NEWS in brief

Albright escorts victims' bodies back to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - As Secretary of State Madeleine Albright undertakes the sad mission of bringing the remains of American victims of terrorism home, new threats are being leveled against American interests in Egypt, Malaysia and Yemen.

Albright was flying to Germany today to visit 10 hospitalized Americans and Kenyans injured in the bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Nairobi and then to turn around and fly directly home with the remains of 10 of the 12 Americans who were killed. Three Americans injured in Tanzania were sent to South Africa and London for treatment.

She has said she plans to go to Kenya and Tanzania as soon as her presence will not hamper ongoing rescue and recovery efforts.

President Clinton cut short a planned three-day cross-country trip to meet with his national security advisers today about the bombings. He and his wife, Hillary, will attend a ceremony at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., on Thursday honoring the American victims.

On the eve of Albright's departure, the State Department announced "there may be a threat to U.S. interests in Egypt, Malaysia and Yemen that could include attacks on buildings."

Americans in the three countries were advised to be careful. A senior U.S. official told The Associated Press the statement was based on "credible information," but declined to provide further details.

Asian markets continue their steep decline

TOKYO (AP) - Tokyo markets are on a weeklong losing streak. Hong Kong is at a five-year low. In Singapore, stocks haven't been so cheap in a decade - and are still heading south.

Tuesday's plunge on Wall Street sank slowly at Asian enfeebled stock exchanges this morning, further depressing markets and cementing fears there's no end in sight for the region's downward spiral.

At the Tokyo Stock Exchange, on its longest roll of losing days in two years, the tailspin in New York was only the latest in a steady stream of dark market news.

With prices already low and many dealers away for summer holidays, the reaction was muted. The benchmark Nikkei Stock Average fell 56.29 points, or 0.37 percent, to 15,350.70 as of midday. The index has closed lower for the past seven straight trading days.

"It doesn't seem panicky... just this sort of ongoing depression," said Paul Migliorato, senior manager of institutional sales at Jardine Fleming Securities. "No one is near the window ledges."

Two Arkansas youngsters ordered into custody

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) - With details laid out in an unusually public juvenile court trial, a still-grieving community found out how - but not why - two boys killed four of their classmates and a teacher last spring.

Mitchell Johnson and Andrew Golden were ordered into the custody of the state Division of Youth Services after their trial Tuesday, and with them go the answers Jonesboro wanted to hear.

"Some day I hope, without the presence of lawyers, we can sit down - the two of you and me - and you can tell me why you did this," said Mitchell Wright, the husband of slain teacher Shannon Wright.

"I would love to know," said Debbie Amir, whose daughter was wounded.

The boys - Mitchell turned 14 Tuesday, Andrew is 12 - were pronounced delinquent by Craighead County Juvenile Court Judge Ralph Wilson Jr.

Draft budget shows county intending to hold the line

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Hold the line appears to be the goal of Deaf Smith County administrators in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

An early draft of the proposed budget for Fiscal 1999 calls for spending $3,755,834, a miniscule $93,114 increase over the year ending Sept. 30.

The package could, and probably will, change between now and Oct. 1, but the county commissioners have expressed a desire to hold down spending and taxes, a popular idea during an election year.

An early draft called for general fund expenditures of $3,862,707; however, that was lowered in mid-July when the budget planners agreed to cutbacks in travel and telephone expenses.

If the FY 1999 general fund budget were approved as recommended in mid-July, it would be just $86,672 higher than the FY 1997 budget.

Proposals for spending in the Road and Bridge funds also see an effort by the commissioners to hold the line on spending. The draft proposals for R&B expenditures are:

- Pct. 1: $205,603, up $1,286 from FY 1998;
- Pct. 2: $201,746, down $2,316;
- Pct. 3: $209,334, up $1,241; and
- Pct. 4: $244,052, up $1,043.

At the July 27 budget workshop, the commissioners discussed pay raises. Under the draft proposal, the commissioners are considering two salary adjustments: 3 percent and 5 percent.

The total cost to the taxpayers for the 3 percent increase would be $63,047 over FY 1998; at 5 percent, the increase would amount to $105,078.

Salaries for elected officials in this year's budget are sheriff, $35,000; county judge, $35,117; justice of the peace, county clerk, district clerk, county treasurer and tax assessor/collector, $28,043 each; county commissioners, $18,999 each; and county auditor, $31,500.

Bet they can't eat just one!

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) - Jon Robison turns a corner and walks into a snack-lover's paradise: a vat piled high with potato chips of every kind - barbecue, sour cream and onion, and plenty with just plain salt.

But hold the beer and football. These lip-smacking snacks are not for him or any other human. They're being stored for cows.

"I'm going to say this is not real common," said Robison, an animal nutritionist who oversees the dairy at Fresno State University. "But I think it's a lot more common than people think."

Robison said he's been feeding potato chips to beef and milk cows for about 10 years because they provide the animals with an easily digestible and relatively cheap source of energy.

The chips are mixed in with other feed ingredients, usually at a rate of about 15 percent but sometimes higher.

The chips come either directly from snack food companies or through feed suppliers.

"Potato chips that don't go into the bag will find their way into livestock feeds," said Nick Ohanesian, a member of the American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists, who works as a dairy consultant.

In processed chips, the starch has been broken down further than in its natural form and requires less energy for digestion, Robison said. The chips contain anywhere from 22 percent to 28 percent fat, which has more than twice the amount of energy as starch, he said.

"All that oil they're cooked in adds even more to the energy value," he said.

The chips also allow him to reduce the amount of corn in his feed. He pays about $125 a ton for corn, roughly $40 more than the cost of an equal measure of chips.

Unlike most cattle farmers, he buys the chips unmixed, allowing him to experiment with the rations he puts in his feed, which will also typically include alfalfa, barley and corn.

"There are many who would advocate not using them, mostly because of the nutritional variability (of potato chips)," Robison said. Most farmers don't like to vary their cows' diet because it affects milk output.

Weather woes cut cotton crop in U.S. by 24%

WASHINGTON (AP) - The prolonged Southern drought and other weather problems will cut the U.S. cotton crop by 24 percent this year compared with 1997, the Agriculture Department projected today.

Ideal weather elsewhere means the fall soybean harvest remains on track to set a record, the corn crop figures to be the second-largest ever and wheat yields are forecast to reach an all-time high.

Farmers had already planted less cotton because of a three-year decline in prices. But extreme heat and lack of rain in Texas - by far the top cotton-producing state - has slashed this year's expected harvest there by 40 percent, or more than 2 million 480-pound bales, compared with 1997.

About 1.9 million acres of cotton have been abandoned in Texas, or about 37 percent of the acres planted this year.

In the No. 2 cotton state, California, the problem has been prolonged wet weather that triggered soil fungus disease. That state's cotton crop is forecast at 1.8 million bales, down 32 percent from a year earlier, as planting and growth were well behind normal pace.

Overall, the cotton harvest is estimated at 14.3 million bales, compared to 18.8 million bales a year ago.

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said today's crop estimates would be used to determine the extent of drought losses and how much more emergency aid is needed above the $500 million included in a Senate spending bill.

During a visit Tuesday to Bastrop, Texas, Glickman said the aid will have to be "substantially higher" than the Senate figure.

"People have come through with relief after hurricanes and earthquakes," Glickman said. "I think they will come through for a farming disaster."

Things look much rosier for corn, soybeans and wheat, although bumper crops this year will likely keep prices in the doldrums for farmers. The crop report's projections are based on actual field and farmer surveys by USDA.

Corn production is forecast at 9.59 billion bushels, which would be 2 percent more than 1997 and second only to the 1994 harvest of more than 10 billion bushels.

Yields are estimated at 130 bushels per acre, up three bushels from last year, and prices are estimated to remain low at between $1.95 and $2.35 a bushel.

The soybean harvest is projected at 2.82 billion bushels, up 4 percent from 1997 and the third record in as many years. Yields are up slightly from last year at 39.5 bushels per acre and prices are forecast at between $4.85 and $5.85 a bushel.

Production for all types of wheat is estimated at 2.55 billion bushels, up 1 percent from last year largely because of record yields of 43 bushels per acre.

The harvest of durum wheat, used to make pasta, is estimated at 126 million bushels or 46 percent more than last year. Other kinds of spring-planted wheat will produce an estimated 508 million bushels, or 9 percent less than 1997.

The final winter wheat forecast is for 1.91 billion bushels, or 2 percent more than a year ago.

Wheat farmers, especially hard hit by the price downturn, will benefit from improved exports led by the Clinton administration's decision to buy some 75 million bushels for donation to needy countries. Yet prices are projected down 15 cents a bushel, possibly as low as $2.55 a bushel.

Wall Street appears to be rebounding after Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) - Stocks opened higher today, extending Tuesday's late recovery from a sharp selloff sparked by more signs that the fiscal crisis in Asia is worsening rather than easing.

At 10 a.m. on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average was up 58.19 at 8,521.04. The blue-chip barometer finished 112 points lower on Tuesday after rallying back from a 258-point deficit.

Broad-market indicators were also posting sizable gains as world markets steadied and investors searched for bargains amid the wreckage of Tuesday's steep decline.

At Tuesday's low, the Dow was down more than 1,000 points from the July 17 record of 9,337.97.

The market has been shaken by Japan's deepening recession and fears it will prevent a recovery in Asia's yearlong economic crisis, which is hurting business at many American companies.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index was up 8.07 at 1,077.05, and the technology-heavy Nasdaq composite index was up 20.92 at 1,813.62.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by a 4-to-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 89.48 million shares.

BUSH2K

Nebraska senator endorses Texas governor for president

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Sen. Chuck Hagel does not care if the presidential election is two years away. He also does not care that the person he is endorsing for president has not decided if he will even run.

Hagel said he will support Texas Gov. George W. Bush for president because he thinks Bush is the best candidate out of those who have expressed an interest in running.

"He's the kind of guy America needs," Hagel said. "I think he's very electable."

Even though his endorsement comes 27 months before the election,

Hagel said he had a responsibility as a national Republican leader to identify the best candidate and promote that person.

Bush, 52, has not spent any time in Iowa or New Hampshire laying the groundwork for the election. He is seeking re-election this year to a second term as Texas governor.

Hagel said when he visited Bush in Texas earlier this year, he told him to focus on the gubernatorial election and worry about the presidential race later.

If Bush runs for president, Hagel said he will offer his full support. If he chooses not to run, Hagel said he will back whoever the Republican nominee turns out to be.

"We've got a lot of good Republicans out there who have expressed some interest of running for president," Hagel said.

One Democrat considering a run is fellow Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey. Hagel said he thinks the Democratic Party and the nation would be well-served with Kerrey as president, but he stopped short of endorsing him.

When Kerrey ran for the Democratic nomination in 1992, Hagel contributed $1,000 to his campaign. If Kerrey runs again, Hagel said "he can count on getting his financial-support base developed through others."

Statistics show who's in poverty

WASHINGTON (AP) - Three in 10 Americans lived below the poverty line for at least two months during a three-year period, but few remained poor for longer stretches, the Census Bureau reports.

A new study released takes an unusually deep look at poverty in the United States, using seven measures to paint a picture more complex than any one statistic might suggest.

From 1993 through 1995, 30.3 percent of the population lived below

Tri-state fair officials roll through Hereford

Amarillo Tri-State Fair officials hit the road Tuesday for a five city promotional tour.

"I read in this old '40s scrapbook that the fair used to tour before it started and I really liked the idea," said Cheri Christensen, fair general manager. "Last year, we picked a five-city tour that we could drive in eight hours, and it went really well. We will continue to tour before the fair in the future."

The fair is set to run Sept. 19-26, Christensen said.

This year's entourage started the morning with a trip to Hereford, and made stops in Dimmitt, Tulia, and Silvertown, with the final stop in Clarendon before heading home to Amarillo.

Bus driver Richard Allison, president of Trailways and a fair board member, said the group rolled up 238 miles on the five-city trek.

Christensen said round table discussions with community leaders in each town gave fair board members a chance to get acquainted with neighbors in towns surrounding Amarillo and to share ideas of concern and mutual benefit related to the 75-year-old fair.

Christensen said the fair offers an array of educational opportunities for children.

The Texas AgriMasters will have multiple exhibits on agriculture and livestock, said Christensen.

"Kids can go there and grind their own peanut butter," she said.

Christensen said West Texas A&M University and Amarillo Discovery Center have joined forces to present the Discovery Expo at this year's fair, with an array of hands-on science activities for children.

One of the fair's new events this year will be Katunga the alligator wrestler, Christensen said.

Featured country music stars this year are Steve Wariner, currently on the charts with "Holes in the Floor of Heaven", Kevin Sharp at the Make-a-Wish Foundation.

Pre-fair tour

Members of the Tri-state Fair board of directors and staff made a quick trip through Hereford Tuesday on a one-day bus tour promoting the Tri-state Fair's 75th anniversary. ## Hoops game challenges improprieties

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Was it improper for a federal judge presiding at a hearing to play a one-on-one basketball game with the son of the man seeking a new trial for a jurist's slaying?

Legal experts differ on the impact of U.S. District Judge Fred Biery playing the quick game last week in a Denver hotel with actor Woody Harrelson.

The San Antonio judge was in Denver to preside at a hearing in which Harrelson's father, Charles V. Harrelson, is seeking a new trial on charges that he assassinated U.S. District Judge John Wood at San Antonio in 1979.

Harrelson is serving two life terms for Wood's death, the only slaying of a Federal judge in this century.

The judge, who played high school basketball and some college basketball at Texas Lutheran College, said the pick-up game with the former "Cheers" star occurred after a chance meeting with the actor in the hotel health club.

The actor acknowledges that he is financing his father's defense team in efforts to win a new trial.

The judge told the San Antonio Express-News he did not believe the game raised any ethical concern.

"We were all at the same hotel, the FBI agents, the prosecutors, the defense attorneys and Woody Harrelson," Biery said Tuesday. "I would have had to lock myself up not to run into someone involved in the case every day at breakfast, dinner and in between."

Asked if he had heard about the game, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn, one of the prosecutors in the case, replied: "I did not see that."

Charles Harrelson's attorney David Michael, who also has represented Woody Harrelson in the past, said he had no comment about the issue.

The judge said he was getting ready to leave the hotel gym last Wednesday when the actor came in.

Biery, who works out several times a week by shooting baskets, said they began to talk and decided to play a game.

"He did say he felt kind of awkward, and I told him we could play as long as we did not discuss the case," Biery said. "I also had breakfast twice that week with FBI Special Agent Claude Martin, who was there to testify. We also did not discuss the case."

It may not have been improper, according to Joan Bohl, judicial ethics expert and instructor at Southwestern University School of Law in Los Angeles. But that may not have been enough.

Nasa rocket explodes

Explosion costs billions

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - An Air Force rocket carrying a classified military spy satellite exploded shortly after liftoff today. No one was injured.

The giant Titan 4 rocket split apart 42 seconds into flight, showering debris over the Atlantic Ocean. Until then, everything appeared to be normal.

"Oh, no," the launch commentator muttered as the rocket blew up. "It appears that we've had a malfunction of the vehicle."

The 20-story Titan 4, powered by solid-fuel boosters similar to those on NASA's space shuttle, is the largest unmanned rocket in the United States.

It was hoisting a secret satellite for the National Reconnaissance Office that reportedly cost $1 billion. The loss of the rocket and the cost of the launch swelled the total loss today by an additional $200 million or more.

Journalists and Air Force guests watching from three to four miles away were rushed onto buses and evacuated when the rocket shattered. No workers were evacuated from Cape Canaveral Air Station or NASA's adjacent Kennedy Space Center.

Bombing victim heads for homeland

RAMSTEIN AIR BASE, Germany (AP) - Six Air Force guards gently loaded the flag-draped coffin of an American killed in the U.S. Embassy bombing in Kenya onto a military aircraft today for the final leg of the journey home.

The body of Air Force Senior Master Sgt. Sherry Lynn Olds - the first American victim to be repatriated - was being flown to her native Florida via Andrews Air Base in Maryland at the request of her family.

The bodies of 10 other Americans flown to Germany this week will be accompanied by U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright to Andrews following a military ceremony early Thursday.

A 12th American casualty, a woman married to a Kenyan, will be buried in her adopted homeland.

Seven wounded Americans also were set to depart Ramstein Air Base for Andrews today.

Six were to be taken to Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington for treatment, and the seventh to the burn center at Brooks Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas.

The double boom could be heard miles away, setting off car alarms throughout the area.

Air Force officials stressed there was no danger to nearby residents. Fumes from the toxic rocket fuel - resembling an orange donut - wafted out to sea and dispersed within a half-hour. Under launch rules, the wind must be blowing out to sea in order for a Titan 4 to lift off.

All the rocket debris fell into the ocean, officials said. There was no known damage, they added.

The rocket, built by Lockheed Martin Corp., should have soared in late July, but was grounded so workers could repair torn insulation on its upper stage. This morning's launch occurred at 7:30 a.m., 1 1/2 hours late because of fueling problems.

Sometimes children belong with father

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot about deadbeat fathers. What about all those deadbeat mothers who are collecting huge amounts of child support, but rarely spend any of that money on the kids? Their children go to school with holes in their shoes and clothes they outgrew two years ago. Meanwhile, the mothers are dressed to kill.

My ex-husband and I decided it would be best for our children if they lived with their father on his farm. I live in the city and pay their father child support. He takes very good care of the boys. It is evident that we made the right decision. They are growing up beautifully. Their father's schedule is more flexible than mine. He is able to help with their schoolwork, which I am not. This arrangement is wonderful for me since it allows me to pursue my career.

I am now dating a wonderful man. He is an excellent father who is paying a lot of money for child support. Unfortunately, his children are not having their physical or emotional needs met by his ex-wife. It is obvious that she is incapable of raising them and the only thing she wants is the money. He has tried to get custody but has failed. Why can't society see that sometimes there's a divorce is with their father? -- Sick of It in South Dakota

Dear South Dakota: I agree wholeheartedly and hope your letter will open some hearts as well as some eyes. For the sake of the children, I hope all divorced mothers will read this and learn from what you have written.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to add another voice to the argument that "once a cheater, always a cheater."

My husband and I have been married for nearly 20 years. The early part of our marriage was good, but gradually, our relationship deteriorated. Our attention to each other was diverted to our children and my husband's demanding medical career. "Marcus" and I were in our own little worlds, feeling lonely and misunderstood. Both of us took solace in the arms of another person.

When I discovered my husband's affair, I was hurt, but I could hardly be self-righteous, since I was in the same position myself. I confessed my affair so he would know he wasn't the only one who had behaved badly. We agreed to forgive each other and find out what was missing in our relationship and fix it.

That was two years ago. Our marriage is now stronger than ever because of our honesty and willingness to forgive, and we are grateful to have gotten through this together. I would like to know how others managed to maintain a long-term relationship after things had gone sour. -- Still Married in Vancouver

Dear Vancouver: Your candor is refreshing. And now I hope others will accept your "invitation" to share their "forgive and forget" stories.

Dear Ann: You recently printed a "how we met" letter about Blanche, who sat on Harry's lap in a taxi on a hot summer day and left the imprint of her polka dot dress on his trousers.

My wife and I had a great thrill out of that story, even though it had nothing to do with us. You see, our names are also Harry and Blanche. In our case, one look was enough to know we were in love. So far, we've been welded together for 47 years. -- Harry and Blanche in Oregon

Dear Harry and Blanche: I'm sure that same-name couple will get a kick out of your letter. I certainly did.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 12, the 224th day of 1998. There are 141 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: One hundred years ago, on Aug. 12, 1898, the peace protocol ending the Spanish-American War was signed.

- On this date: In 1944, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., eldest son of Joseph and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, was killed with his co-pilot when their explosives-laden Navy plane blew up over England.

In 1953, the Soviet Union conducted a secret test of its first hydrogen bomb.

In 1960, the first balloon satellite, the Echo-1, was launched by the United States from Cape Canaveral.

In 1972, the last American combat ground troops left Vietnam.

In 1977, the space shuttle Enterprise passed its first solo flight test by taking off atop a Boeing 747, separating, then touching down in California's Mojave Desert.

In 1978, Pope Paul VI, who had died Aug. 6 at age 80, was buried in St. Peter's Basilica.

In 1985, the world's worst single-aircraft disaster occurred as a crippled Japan Air Lines Boeing 747 on a domestic flight crashed into a mountain, killing 520 people.

Ten years ago: The controversial movie "The Last Temptation of Christ," directed by Martin Scorsese, opened in nine cities despite objections by some Christians who felt the film was sacrilegious.

Five years ago: Pope John Paul II began his third U.S. visit in Denver. President Clinton signed a relief package for the flooded Midwest. President Clinton lifted a ban on rehiring air traffic controllers fired for going on strike in 1981. The launch of space shuttle Discovery was scrubbed at the last second.

One year ago: Steel workers approved a contract ending a 10-month strike against Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. Two New York City police officers were placed in desk jobs as authorities investigated the charges of Abner Louima, a Haitian immigrant who accused police of sodomizing him after his arrest in a nightclub fight. A flash flood in Arizona's Lower Antelope Canyon claimed the lives of 11 hikers.

Cowboys' offense displays signs of life

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) -- Emmitt Smith carried six times for 83 yards, including a 54-yard burst, as the Dallas Cowboys' offense showed a glimmer of life in a Tuesday scrimmage against the New Orleans Saints.

But the meaningless meeting also brought potentially bad news for the Cowboys, as star defensive tackle Leon Lett sprained his left knee. He was helped off the field during the Saints' first possession.

The injury was to be re-evaluated Wednesday by team doctors in Wichita Falls, the Cowboys said.

The Saints, whose offense was the NFL's worst last year, moved the ball well on their first drive with a big assist from Dallas cornerback Kevin Smith, whose pass interference on the first play set New Orleans up at the Cowboys' 24.

Hobert hit tight end Josh Wilcox with a 12-yard touchdown pass three plays later.

Smith's big run came on the Cowboys' first sequence, giving Dallas a first down at the Saints' 15. He broke free through the middle and appeared on his way to a touchdown until he was caught from behind by cornerback Tyrone Drakeford.

Despite the run, the Cowboys didn't get into the end zone after Aikman failed to connect with Billy Davis on third down. Davis appeared to cut the wrong way on his route. Cunningham ended up hitting a 29-yard field goal.

Smith continued to shine on the Cowboys' next possession with consecutive runs of 6, 10 and 11 yards. An Aikman 13-yard screen pass to Irvin set Dallas up for a 1-yard touchdown dive by rookie Tarik Smith.

The performance by Smith follows a dismal exhibition against Oakland on Saturday. He rushed for 3 yards on four carries against a defense that was the NFL's worst in rushing and total defense last year.

The scrimmage also saw a return to action for Everett McIver, the Cowboys' starting right guard who missed two weeks of work after suffering a deep neck cut in a mysterious July 29 incident at a training camp dormitory.

McIver went through drills with the team and started with the first team in a pair of 10-play offensive sequences.

The team has termed the incident only as "horseplay," but numerous reports have Michael Irvin was involved with McIver in a scuffle that started over a haircut. McIver missed 11 days of work, including two exhibitions, and returned to practice only Monday.

Both he and Irvin have refused to discuss the incident. Irvin and Cowboys owner Jerry Jones have denied Sunday's report in The Dallas Morning News that Jones brokered a deal in which Irvin paid McIver "in the high six figures" to keep McIver from pursuing criminal charges or publicly discussing details. Such public disclosure could be bad news for Irvin, who faces 20 years in prison if he violates the terms of his probation on drug charges.

THE 80TH PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

Young guns look to reclaim dominance

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer
REDMOND, Wash. -- So much for Generation X taking over golf.

A year ago, the 20-something stars came to the PGA Championship trying to make it a clean sweep of the major championships. They arrived this week at Sahalee Country Club with one last chance to steal one from the old guys.

"These guys obviously have a lot of game," Tiger Woods said Tuesday. "They're working harder and harder. To win a major, you need to get a few breaks. And more importantly, you've got to have experience."

Lately, the young guns' experience in the majors has been more about despair than domination.

It's no longer Woods in a runaway in the Masters, but a 22-year-old who finally made a Sunday move in a major only to see 41-year-old Mark

O'Meara win his second major of the year in the British Open.

It's no longer Ernie Els winning his second U.S. Open at age 27, but someone trying to cope with an ailing back and simply get into contention again in a major.

Justin Leonard, who won the British Open and gave Davis Love III all he could handle in the PGA Championship, hasn't been in serious contention since March and was blown away by an 82 in the third round at Royal Birkdale.

Make room for O'Meara, who played 56 majors as a pro without winning but now is trying to become the first player since Ben Hogan in 1953 to win three in one year.

Don't forget about nine-year veteran Lee Janzen, who proved by winning his second U.S. Open title that he's one of the best grinders

For Appleby, just playing important

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer
REDMOND, Wash. -- Each step is just as difficult as the one before. Stuart Appleby doesn't know where the road will lead, only that it is long.

"This is stage whatever of infinity," he said.

The drive into Sahalee Country Club was his first to a major championship without his 25-year-old wife, Renay, at his side to read off the directions. The practice rounds were the first without seeing her behind the ropes along the fairway.

Three weeks ago, the 27-year-old Australian and his wife were taking their luggage out of a taxi that was double-parked in front of a London train station. They were on their way to Paris for a second

Two story lines to garner attention

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS -- There are two intriguing story lines in the Big 12 this year: Frank Solich replacing Tom Osborne as coach at Nebraska and Ricky Williams' run at the Heisman Trophy for the Texas Longhorns.

Nebraska is favored in the North and Texas A&M in the South, setting up a possible rematch of last year's league championship game. The Cornhuskers won that battle in San Antonio and are favored to do so again in St. Louis.

But, for Nebraska, this season won't be as simple as trying to repeat. After a quarter-century of Osborne leading the Cornhuskers into battle, their new boss will be his longtime assistant.

"I know what the expectations are," said Solich, who inherits a 42-game home winning streak and 275 consecutive rankings in The Associated Press poll since 1981. "It can be a little nerve-racking."

Adding to his jitters is the fact the Cornhuskers don't have an incumbent quarterback and the projected starter, sophomore Bobby Newcombe, played a different position last year.

There also will be a new starting I-back, DeAngelo Evans, who sat out the 1997 season with a pelvic injury after rushing for 776 yards in 1996.

At Texas, new coach Mack Brown will take over from John Mackovic, who only two years ago was sitting on top of the Big 12 with a victory over Nebraska in the league's first title game.

The biggest step so far for Brown was getting Williams to return for his senior season and another shot at the Heisman.

"It's important to me," said Williams, who led the nation with 1,893 yards and 25 touchdowns last season. "But it's more important to go out and win ball games. If we play well and win ball games, the individual stuff will come to me later."

A critical game for Williams will be week two at UCLA. The Bruins mauled Texas 66-3 last year, greasing the skids for Mackovic's ouster.

Brown said if Williams wins the Heisman it will mean the Longhorns have had a good season.

"You never see a player with the Heisman on a team that doesn't perform at the highest level," said Brown, who was lured from North Carolina after consecutive 10-win seasons.

In the North, Nebraska could be hard-pressed by Kansas State.

The Wildcats return 18 starters, nine on each side of the ball, from an 11-1 team. And Kansas State has a cream puff non-conference schedule of Indiana State, Northern Illinois and

Texas trims Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) -- Esteban Loaiza got his first victory for Texas as the Rangers, without slugger Juan Gonzalez, beat the struggling Cleveland Indians 2-1 Tuesday night.

Gonzalez, who leads the majors with 119 RBIs, missed his second straight game and eighth in 13 games with a stiff neck. Mike Simms, his replacement in the lineup, hit his 12th homer.

Loaiza (1-2), acquired from Pittsburgh on July 17 for Todd Van Poppel and Warren Morris, allowed one run and seven hits in 7 1-3 innings, walking one and striking out three.

Loaiza was working on his second career shutout when Jeff Manto hit a one-out, solo homer in the eighth to cut it to 2-1.

Pinch-hitter Mark Whiten followed with an infield single, and Xavier Hernandez relieved Kenny Lofton, in a 2-for-15 slump, flied out to right, and Omar Vizquel fouled out to end the threat.

John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his 32nd save.

Cleveland's sleepwalk through the AL Central continued as the Indians dropped to 27-28 since June 9. Entering the game, they had picked up 2 1/2 games during that span as every other team is below .500.

If an AL East team wins the wild-card spot, the Indians and Rangers will battle to see who plays the New York Yankees in the first round of the playoffs. Whichever team has the worst record gets to take a shot at the Yankees in the five-game division series instead of a best-of-7 ALCS.

The AL West-leading Rangers snapped a two-game losing streak and won for the sixth time in seven games.

The Indians' offense continued to struggle without All-Star first baseman Jim Thome, out with a broken hand. David Justice and Lofton, both in danger of dipping below .270, are still badly out of sync.

Justice stranded Vizquel at second in the first with a weak grounder to the mound and was 0-for-4. Lofton, 1-for-4 and batting .256 in the second half, grounded into an inning-ending double play in the third.

However, Lofton made perhaps his best defensive play since returning to the Indians after spending 1997 with the Atlanta Braves. With Simms on first in the sixth, Lofton sprinted to the right-center gap to catch Ivan Rodriguez's trailing liner, set himself on the run and doubled up Simms with a perfect throw on a line to Richie Sexson.

Simms hit a two-out solo homer off starter Steve Karsay in the fourth to give the Rangers a 1-0 lead. Todd Zeile led off the fifth with a double and scored on a double by Tom Goodwin to make it 2-0.

Appleby

No one expected to see Appleby in the PGA Championship. Even Appleby had doubts that he could return to a career he and Renay had built together.

"At my best, I feel good," he said. "At my worst, I feel terrible."

He wanted to meet with reporters now so he wouldn't have to take questions at every stop. All that does is take more time away from time on the course -- and make him fight back tears.

On Tuesday, he held back as long as he could.

"The tough times..." Appleby started, before tears welled in his eyes and his voice began to crack.

"The tough times are when you do a lot of thinking," he said, fighting to continue. "You just wish things were different. I've just got to bust through this little bubble in front of me."

Renay Appleby's death sent shock waves across PGA tours around the globe. She was a favorite among players and their wives, having caddied for her husband when he was trying to make it on the Nike Tour.

When he won for the first time on the PGA Tour two years ago, she nearly pulled his thumb off as they nervously held hands behind the 18th green in the Honda Classic as the last group came through.

"I feel very lucky that I knew her," Appleby said. "The time we spent together was good quality. She was the first prize in a raffle, and I was lucky enough to win. She changed a lot of people's lives."

That much has been made clear in the past couple of weeks.

Nick Price did not celebrate his first PGA Tour victory of the year two weeks ago in Memphis without paying tribute to Renay. Emyln Aubrey shot 61 on the Nike Tour in his victory two weeks ago and dedicated it to Renay.

Billy Mayfair had tears in his eyes walking up the 18th fairway toward victory in the Buick Classic on Sunday, thinking about Renay.

"Obviously, winning and all that was very special to me," Mayfair said. "But my wife Tammie and I said that the first win I get I'm going to dedicate to Renay."

Appleby has received more letters than he can count, so many flowers that he was able to put a fresh batch on Renay's grave up until he left Australia for the PGA Championship.

"Not an hour goes by that I don't think about her -- not an hour," Appleby said. "Just getting back to golf is very important."

He figured he had two options, the first of which was not very appealing.

"I could dig myself in a hole and lose all the potential I had," he said. "Or I could say I was lucky to get her."

There are more steps ahead on the long journey. Appleby has not been to their home in Florida since a week before leaving for the British Open and doesn't look forward to going through the door without her.

He doesn't know what to expect this week in the PGA Championship, only that he won't be as tight as he usually is when he steps to the first tee in a major championship.

"I don't think it will be very hard at all," he said. "Nerves don't concern me. They're so irrelevant right now. I'm ready for whatever happens."

Twilight cast long shadows across Sahalee late Monday afternoon when Appleby emerged from the clubhouse. A dozen players were on the range, two dozen others on the putting green.

They looked over at Appleby, none of them quite sure what to say or even if it would matter. For a moment, the final major of the year lost some of its significance.

"Only Stuart knows what he's going through," two-time U.S. Open champion Ernie Els said. "They were the best of friends and it's got to be so tough. When things like this happen, golf is secondary."

those close games," coach Bob Simmons said. "The signal it sends is that if we are able to repeat that same performance in 1998, we will have the opportunity to win our share of games."

Texas could be a threat if it can improve a defense that allowed 33.3 points and 399.2 yards per game.

"We're going to put nine guys on the line of scrimmage and force teams to throw," Brown said.

Texas Tech, Oklahoma and Baylor appear a step behind.

when the conditions are tough.

"I don't feel any additional pressure," said David Duval, a five-time winner since October but trying to get his first major. "It would put a nice asterisk on what already has been a good year."

Youth figures to be sorely tested at Sahalee, which will require patience to realize there are birdies for the taking as long tee shots are guided away from the towering trees lining every fairway.

"With the trees being so large and so close to the fairway, you immediately see the only shot you possibly can hit, and that's a straight shot right down the middle," Janzen said.

"I think the best way to prepare for this course would have been to go to New York and maybe play down Fifth Avenue."

Woods, whose inaccuracy off the tee cost him last year at Winged Foot, may not even hit the driver this week. The most strategic landing areas are 240 to 280 yards out, good enough for his 2-iron or, if he really feels bold, his 3-wood.

"Last year, I was guilty of being too rambunctious at times," he said.

And, last year, Woods was guilty of waking up seasoned pros and making them raise their game to a higher level. It started when he won three times in his first 14 tournaments as a pro, then won the Masters by 12 strokes with a record 18-under 270.

"Sometimes when you've been doing this for so long you get into a rut. Sometimes you can use a kick-start," Woods said. "New blood tends to do that."

The first wave of response came from his peers.

Els and Leonard won the next two majors. Duval closed out the year by winning three straight tournaments, and Phil Mickelson started 1998 by winning a duel with Woods in the Mercedes. Jim Furyk seemed to finish in the top 10 every time he played.

That now seems like ancient history.

Not only have the majors been won by O'Meara and Janzen, a player in his 20s hasn't won on the PGA Tour since Stuart Appleby in the Kemper Open the first weekend in June.

"I think Tiger Woods has probably influenced a lot of players since he's come out on tour," said Janzen, who won his second U.S.

Open title at The Olympic Club.

"He expects a lot out of himself and he also thinks he can do just about anything," Janzen said. "And I think this challenged the rest of us to maybe start thinking a little higher and setting higher goals."

The young guys have not exactly disappeared, but they haven't lived up to the expectations of a year ago that they would be the dominant force in golf for years to come.

Still, they've had their chances.

BOOK REVIEW

Fact-based novel tells of life, times of colorful gunman

Clay Allison: Legend of Cimarron, by John A. Truett, Sunstone Press, 286 pages, $24.95 (hardcover).

If not for the disruption of lives caused by the Civil War, Clay Allison might have lived out his life on a farm in Tennessee.

However, Allison was just one of the hundreds of thousands of Americans, both Northerners and Southerners, who pulled up stakes and sought new beginnings in the West after the end of the war.

Allison, accompanied by his brother John, saw the rough-and-tumble New Mexico Territory as the place to start over. The two young men journeyed to Cimarron, a wild boomtown in northern New Mexico.

In defending himself from a pair of outlaws, Allison earned the reputation that made him one of the Old West's most colorful - and deadly - gunfighters.

However, unlike some of the other Old West gunmen, such as Billy the Kid, John Wesley Hardin and Doc Holliday, Allison was not a borderline psychopath. His defenders claim Allison never killed anyone who didn't deserve to die, and some of his reputation resulted from his problems with alcohol.

Allison was considered a peaceful man, a gentleman, until he imbibed. Then, he could not control his explosive temper, leading to confrontations, which his skill with weapons ended in his favor.

Allison's story is recounted in a fact-based novel by New Mexico author John Truett. His novel carries the stamp of authenticity as he captures the spirit of the Old West without the use of stereotypes, without merely regurgitating the old myths.

Readers of "Clay Allison: Legend of the Cimarron" will sense the feeling that Truett has for his subject and the Old West -- the real West, not the "reel" West. Truett, a resident of Roswell, N.M., served with the Army Air Corps in the Pacific Theater during World War II. He later received a bachelor's degree from Woodbury University in Los Angeles and worked as a film editor/script supervisor in the motion picture industry.

He is a member of the Western Writers of America and the National Outlaw and Lawman Association.

He also is the author of two other books, "To Die in Dinah: The Dark Legacy of Kit Carson" and "Monument in the Storm," both published by Sunstone Press of Santa Fe, N.M.

Motley Crue drummer gets 30 days for assault

PHOENIX (AP) - Tommy Lee was sentenced Tuesday to 30 days in jail and fined $800 for assaulting a security guard at a concert last winter.

The Motley Crue drummer spoke with City Court Judge Michael Lester by phone from the Los Angeles County Jail, where he is serving a six-month sentence for kicking his estranged wife, Pamela Anderson. Under the plea agreement, he will serve the 30 days at the same time as his California sentence.

Lee, 35, and fellow Motley Crue member Nikki Sixx were charged with assault on a security guard in December.

The guard had tried to hold back 75 to 150 fans who rushed the stage at America West Arena after members of the band told them to leave their seats. Sixx has pleaded innocent.

NELSON MANDELA
MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) - Nelson Mandela says he tied the knot with Graca Machel under

"unbearable" pressure from friends.

The South African president's relationship with Ms. Machel was out in the open for two years before their surprise wedding July 18. Members of the clergy complained the couple set a bad example by not getting married.

"Even in Parliament in my country, deputies told me I should get married," Mandela said Monday. "The pressure became unbearable."

JON STEWART
NEW YORK (AP) - The late-night turnstile took another turn Tuesday when Jon Stewart was named host of Comedy Central's "The Daily Show."

He will replace Craig Kilborn in January. Kilborn will take over for Tom Snyder at CBS' "Late Show."

"There's really only five of these jobs available," Stewart told reporters. He said he was especially happy to be taking a job "where I don't feel like I'm pushing the guy out."

Critics won't get early look at "The Avengers"

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "The Avengers," one of the most anticipated movies of the summer, may be headed for trouble at the box office, with the studio declining to show it to critics before its release Friday.

Traditionally, studios that have little faith in a movie refuse to screen it early for reviewers, preferring to take their chances with the public.

The remake of the stylish '60s TV show stars Ralph Fiennes as the dapper John Steed and Uma Thurman as the leather-jumpsuited Emma Peel. Sean Connery plays the villain.

Warner Bros. didn't immediately return a call Tuesday, but senior vice president Don Buckley told the New York Post that the studio "decided that we want the press and the audiences to discover the movie together."

"We're very proud of the movie," he said.

The Los Angeles Times quoted an unidentified studio spokesman as saying the filmmakers were tinkering last week with the special effects.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Hereford, Friona linemen to compete in SPS rodeo

Southwestern Public Service Co. linemen from Hereford and Friona will show their stuff Saturday as they participate in the 8th Annual SPS Lineman's Rodeo in Lubbock. Three area linemen will compete as a team, with another SPS lineman in individual competition. Line working foreman Dywane Fry of Hereford, serviceman Jon Hendrickson of Friona and substation working foreman Bob Avery of Hereford make up the SPS team, while lineman apprentice Robert Malcolm of Hereford will be the individual competitor.

The men will compete in rodeo shirts supplied by Butch White of Boots & Saddle Western Wear of Hereford. Unlike cowboys in traditional rodeos, participants in this rodeo will spend the day strapped to power poles displaying skills used in carrying out their daily work.

The rodeo activities began at 7 a.m. Saturday for apprentice, or individual, events and at 8 a.m. for team events. The competition will be held at the Lee Dillard Rodeo & Training Grounds at the intersection of the Clovis Highway (U.S. Hwy. 87) and Indiana Street in northwest Lubbock. The public is welcome to watch and attend safety demonstrations from SPS power plant personnel. Soft drinks and hamburgers will be available and activities for children will be featured at the "Kiddie Rodeo."

SPS will field a total of 14 teams, which will compete with four teams from Public Service Co. of Colorado, two teams from Public Service Co. of New Mexico, and three teams from area rural electric cooperatives.

Individuals will compete in the apprentice competition, with 27 apprentices from SPS participating. PNM will have two competitors and the rural cooperatives also have entered two.

The top three SPS teams and apprentices will advance to the National Lineman's Rodeo, which will be Sept. 19 in Kansas City, Mo.

Teams will compete in three mandatory and three mystery events; apprentices will compete in four mandatory and one mystery event.

All events are timed, and points are deducted for moves that do not meet set safety/quality standards. Events include hurt man rescue, which involves safely securing and lowering a dummy from the pole to the ground. Another event, pole climbing, involves ascending a pole with an egg in a bucket. At the top of the pole, the lineman removes and old bucket, throws it to the ground, hangs the new bucket, places the egg in his mouth and climbs down. The rope splicing event involves all three team members in an effort to splice two pieces of rope with neat, tight knots. Apprentices participate in a similar event, slack blocks and eye splice, by rigging a set of two sheave slack blocks without crossing rope between the two blocks. Apprentices also take written tests in addition to performance tests.

POOR

the poverty line for at least two months. But just 5.3 percent of them stayed poor for two full years.

"These statistics portray poverty as a trap door for a few and a revolving door for many," explained the report, which examined data from those three years.

The government considers a three-person family poor if its income is below $13,650; for a four-person family, it's $16,450.

In 1994, on average, 15.4 percent of Americans were poor each month, and about 22 percent - or 55 million people - were poor for at least two months in 1994.

Nearly half of them stayed poor for just two to four months. About 13 percent were poor for more than two years.

On average, people were poor for four and a half months.

But the rates differ dramatically by race and family structure. Blacks, Hispanics and children are among the poorest groups in the nation.

But the most likely to be poor were families headed by single mothers: In 1994, nearly half of the female-headed households lived in poverty for at least two months in a row, more than three times the poverty rate of married couples.

The difference was even more dramatic among the chronically poor. Single moms were eight times as likely to live in poverty for two years than married couples were to be poor for at least two years.

"You can't understate the role of family structure," said Robert I. Lerman, an economist at the Urban Institute who studies poverty issues.

Children are most likely to be poor, no matter what the measure. And the elderly, once the poorest Americans, are now the least likely to live in poverty, thanks to Social Security and Medicare.

But while senior citizens are least likely to fall into poverty, once there, they are as likely as children to remain poor. That's because they rely on fixed incomes, which are unlikely to go up, Lerman said.

"Where are they going to get an increased income?" he asked.

The report also notes that while blacks and Hispanics have similar poverty rates, blacks were slightly less likely to fall into poverty but slightly more likely to stay there.

Deaths add urgency to trunk release effort

DETROIT (AP) - With the recent deaths of 11 young children who climbed into car trunks, locked themselves in and became victims of suffocating heat, automakers are hearing renewed demands for release switches inside trunks.

Advocates cite not only the children's deaths this summer but crimes such as kidnappings, a terror well known to trunk-latch crusader Janette Fennell of San Francisco. She and her husband, Greig, were abducted at gunpoint, robbed and stuffed into the trunk of their car in October 1995.

They dug amid the trunk's upholstery and she found a release cable, and then led her husband's hand to it, enabling him to pop the trunk lid for their escape.

Cosby family asked for maximum sentence for son's murderer SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Entertainer Bill Cosby implored a judge to hand down the maximum sentence against the 19-year-old man convicted of killing his only son.

"The malice, hatred and ill will leading to his murder must be kept off America's streets forever," Cosby said in a written court statement released Tuesday after Mikail Markhasev was sentenced to life in prison. Cosby's wife, Camille, was equally unforgiving: "Mikail Markhasev's only regret about his crime is that he got caught. I don't want him to ever experience freedom again."

Ennis Cosby, 27, was shot Jan. 16, 1997, while changing a flat tire on a dark road in Los Angeles. Police said he was murdered during a robbery attempt.

Markhasev, who was convicted in July of the murder, was sentenced to the mandatory penalty of life in prison without the possibility of parole. Superior Court Judge David Perez rejected a defense motion for a new trial before he announced the sentence.

Priest, secretary stole donations, gambled them away PITTSBURGH (AP) - A recently retired Catholic priest lived the high life - gambling and buying fancy cars and handguns - by skimming at least $1.5 million over 26 years from donations to two churches, authorities say.

The Rev. Walter J. Benz and Mary Anne Albaugh, parish secretary at his last church, will be charged with theft and conspiracy within two weeks, Allegheny County Police Inspector Daniel Colaizzi said Tuesday. Until last week, Benz lived with Albaugh and her teen-age son in a house packed with antique guns and furniture, gold coins and a 2-foot Buddha statue, Colaizzi said. Police believe that nearly all the items were bought with stolen church offerings.

American balloonist crosses Atlantic; heads toward Australia ST. LOUIS (AP) - Adventurer Steve Fossett became the first person to cross the southern Atlantic Ocean in a balloon, leaving him in good shape both emotionally and geographically on his fourth around-the-world quest.

NEWS in brief

Fossett's mission control at Washington University in St. Louis said Tuesday the balloon had picked up some favorable winds and was drifting across the Indian Ocean.

The next challenge was for his crew to determine the best altitude and wind pattern to carry him toward Australia. They were expected to make a decision early today.

Fossett was facing no immediate problems with about 25 percent of the trip behind him. "He seems to be in very good spirits," said expedition meteorologist Bob Rice.

Researcher: Studies on Gulf War syndrome flawed DALLAS (AP) - The Defense Department has ordered a review of the government's research on the existence of Gulf War syndrome, in response to an epidemiologist's report that said three studies on the subject were seriously flawed.

The three studies, published in 1996 and 1997, found that Gulf War veterans did not have higher rates of postwar death, hospitalization or birth defects among their children than did other veterans of the same period.

But Dr. Robert Haley reported Tuesday in the American Journal of Epidemiology that the researchers erred in their statistical analysis and allowed the studies to bias one another.

14-year-old sentenced to six months in detention CLEARFIELD, Pa. (AP) - A 14-year-old girl who tightened a noose around the neck of a shy girl with a learning disability and watched her killing was sentenced to six months in a juvenile detention center.

Jodi and Richard Dotts, whose daughter was slain May 10 - Mother's Day - sat quietly during Tuesday's sentencing of Teresa Wolfe. But Kimberly's grandfather spoke out.

"She will be home at Christmas and Mother's Day. My daughter's Mother's Day is not going to be a pleasant one," Joe Fuleno said. "There's a part of my heart that's been taken out that I cannot replace."

Kimberly Dotts was shy and overweight. She joined a group of 10 teen-agers and her distant cousin, 24-year-old Tracy Lewis, some of whom planned to run away to Florida together. They gathered May 10 at a clearing in a wooded area called Gallows Harbor.

CBS cancels Gumbel's show

NEW YORK (AP) - CBS is reportedly canceling "Public Eye," the newsmagazine featuring Bryant Gumbel.

High production costs, poor ratings and comparatively lower advertising rates killed the show, sources told the New York Post and the Daily News.

The announcement that the program would end was no surprise, the papers said. Gumbel, formerly the longtime host of NBC's "Today Show," told the News he was pleased with the show's ratings this summer, but acknowledged the difficulties of getting a newsmagazine off the ground.

"It's hard when you're not trying to sensationalize something," he told the newspaper.

The show first aired last September after CBS signed Gumbel to a five-year contract that pays him an estimated $5 million a year. CBS News president Andrew Heyward on Tuesday told the newsmagazine's staffers that they would lose their jobs. A source told the News that a "limited number" of the 50 or so employees would be reassigned. Gumbel's plans were unclear. There is a chance - though unlikely - that he could become an on-air correspondent for "60 Minutes II," or create a syndicated talk or news program, the Post said. The final edition of "Public Eye" is to air Sept. 16.

Palace:
new book
'fantasy'

LONDON (AP) - In a strongly worded statement, Buckingham Palace today dismissed a new book about Princess Diana's death as fantasy and called it "deeply hurtful" to the royal family.

In "The Day Diana Died," author Christopher Andersen alleges that within an hour of hearing the princess had been killed in a Paris car crash Aug. 31, Queen Elizabeth II inquired about whether she had any royal jewels with her and whether they were safe.

The claim is "completely inaccurate and without any foundation whatsoever," said a palace spokeswoman, speaking with customary anonymity.

The book, published this week in the United States, also said the queen tried to stop Prince Charles from flying to France to claim his ex-wife's body.

On the contrary, the palace spokeswoman said, the queen suggested her son use a Royal Squadron aircraft, as befitting the task of bringing the princess's body back to Britain.
