'Good faith'

"When I came into the Legislature in 1985, the state had serious economic problems, and ... there were numerous tax increases ... Now it's reversed itself, the economy in Texas is good In good faith, I think the Legislature should go back and adjust the tax structure back to where it was."

Panhandle legislator wants to share budget surplus with taxpayers

If John Smithee has his way, Texas taxpayers will share some of the state's budget surplus.

Smithee, an Amarillo Republican whose Texas House District 86 includes Deaf Smith County, on Tuesday told members of the Hereford Golden K Kiwanis Club, the economic good times enjoyed by Texas over the past several years has generated a budget surplus, and Smithee said he believes the Texas Legislature should show "good faith" by sharing the money with the state's taxpayers, especially because taxes have been increased during past legislative sessions.

When I came into the Legislature in 1985, the state had serious economic problems, and during each of the first three sessions (1985, 1987 and 1989), there were numerous tax increases, the gasoline tax and the sales tax, and we made some big cuts," particularly in higher education, Smithee said.

"Now it's reversed itself. The economy in Texas is good, even with our two (traditional) biggest businesses, oil and farming, in serious problems. Agriculture's been down statewide for the last three years," Smithee said, noting the drought that's hit the state will mean a loss of some farmers and ranchers.

"(The drought) has some long-term consequences. Oil prices are down, and we're still doing good because of teachers, staff and administrators were on hand at Tuesday's Hereford Independent School District board meeting to show their support for funding a district-wide technology

Teachers at the meeting expressed their views - "the need to keep up with technology ... students must be taught the most up-to-date lessons as possible and this means the new technology is a must" - in an effort to persuade the board to approve the necessary funding.

After many comments and much discussion, the board approved funding which included a $3.1 million loan to finance the plan.

To fund the plan, the board has agreed to budget up to $500,000 of well. public funds money every year for the next seven years.

Public funds are low-interest loans made to public entities, such as

The district could get as much as $3.5 million in one lump sum and apply part of it to the cost of

Regardless of whether the district gets it as a lump sum or in parts, it will all be used for the technology improvements.

The technology plan consists of electrical upgrades to all buildings; staff development for all personnel; hardware/software for curriculum, student and financial services; and equipment and software maintenance.

This plan was approved in the April board meeting with priorities explained and detailed in the plan.

The goal of the district is to have a computer and the technology to use it in each classroom.

As part of the technology plan, the district has implemented a technology center in the HISD administration of the new computers and programming as it becomes available.

Corky Lockmiller, assistant A standing-room-only crowd of superintendent for educational support, said the teachers are very excited about the possibility of having the opportunity to learn about the new technology and pass on what they learn to their students.

In other business, the board approved the proposal to offer early retirement to all eligible district employees again this year, then not offer it again until at least 2003.

To be eligible for the early retirement program, an employee must have a minimum of 20 years of service and at least three years with

Lockmiller said that at least 91 professional staff members would be eligible for early retirement and a high number of other employees as

According to HISD Superintendent Jack Patton, this program has the potential to save the district thousands of dollars and still keep a highly diverse and experienced teaching staff in the district. As a preliminary to the routine business of running the school, media technology or invest part of it and use representatives O.G. 1998 Media Honor Roll awards. Board members often have the opportunity to present awards to outstanding teachers or students, but seldom do they get to present the local media with state-recognized awards.

The awards were given in recognition of the commitment to the betterment of education in Hereford which is exhibited by both the newspaper and the radio station.

"We appreciate these organizations for their coverage of the successes achieved by local students and their teachers," board president David Charest said. "Their work focuses on the goal of providing the best public building to train teachers in the use schools we can for every child in our school system.'

Wind flays coast as Bonnie nears

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) -Tropical storm-force wind and rain center was about 85 miles south of lashed the Atlantic coast today as the Wilmington, and was moving at 14 edge of massive Hurricane Bonnie mph. The storm had turned from reached the mainland. More than a moving northwest to the half-million people had been ordered north-northwest, and forecasters said

A few gusts reached 100 mph this expected. morning on coastal areas near Wilmington, blowing rain horizontally and sending traffic signals creaking back and forth above deserted streets.

The heart of the 400-mile-wide mph, could reach the mouth of the Cape Fear River south of Wilmington by early afternoon, said Doug Hoehler, a National Weather Service forecaster in Wilmington.

Only a few coastal residents were hanging around to see.

More than 330,000 people were ordered off North Carolina's coastal islands. About 200,000 more, including 120,000 tourists, were instructed to leave South Carolina's two northernmost coastal counties. A state of emergency was declared in Virginia, though no evacuations were ordered.

Hurricane warnings were in effect across a 500-mile stretch of coastline, from Chincoteague, Va., to Edisto Beach, S.C.

The last major storm to come storm, with sustained winds of 115 ashore in the Wilmington area was Hurricane Fran in September 1996. Instead of turning north, it plowed through the middle of the state, causing $5.2 billion in damage and 24 deaths.

As wind picked up at Wrightsville Beach, the barrier island just east of Wilmington, police used a bullhorn to wake up Paul Houseworth at his home early today. Houseworth had abruptly decided late Tuesday to return home after leaving with his wife, Cathi Fithian. She asked police to bring him out this morning.

With big waves and dangerous currents sweeping the East Coast. swimming was banned at beaches as far north as Massachusetts' Nantucket Island. Rip tides were blamed for five drownings since the weekend at a few more windows Tuesday and beaches in South Carolina, North Carolina, Delaware, New Jersey and

NEWS in brief

Report: Texas housing chief resigns

DALLAS (AP) - The Texas housing department chief, under fire for failing to spend tens of millions of dollars in federal housing aid and for questionable real-estate deals, is leaving the post, The Dallas Morning News reported today

Larry Paul Manley is leaving his job as executive director of the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs on Monday to resume his law and investment banking career, the newspaper said.

State Rep. Harryette Ehrhardt, D-Dallas, told the newspaper she believes Gov. George W. Bush's office asked Manley to resign after a meeting she had 10 days ago with Joe Allbaugh, the governor's chief of staff.

Ms. Ehrhardt, who is on a committee that oversees the housing department, said she then arranged a meeting with Allbaugh and Howard Siegel, the department's chief credit officer who resigned last month.

Siegel said he gave a three-page memorandum to the governor's office in response to a request for information. In it, he discussed his concerns about certain real estate deals that Manley supported.

Laredo braces for flood

LAREDO (AP) Fearing a flood, Olga Rojero showed up at an emergency shelter a full two days before the Rio Grande was predicted to crest in her Rio Bravo neighborhood.

We came as soon as they warned us," said the mother of six who showed up at the United D.D. Hachar Elementary School shelter Monday. "I live one block from the river. I was afraid."

Residents of the Rio Bravo and El Cenizo areas, on the outskirts of Laredo. were evacuated Tuesday in anticipation of flooding as a crest of water estimated at up to 40 feet rolled down the Rio Grande to Laredo and neighboring Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

The sister border cities expected flooding sometime today. Remnants of Tropical Storm Charley, already responsible for at least six deaths in Del Rio floods, caused the crest.

On Tuesday, officials on both sides of the border scrambled to prepare

UT law school admits more minorities in 1998

AUSTIN (AP) - The University of Texas law school has more minorities on campus than a year ago, but fewer than in 1996, when race still was being considered in the admission process.

The Austin American-Statesman reported today that preliminary figures showed at least eight blacks and 30 Hispanics among the 465 first-year students enrolled by early Tuesday afternoon.

Four blacks and 26 Hispanics were enrolled in 1997. There were 31 blacks and 42 Hispanics enrolled in the first-year class in 1996.

UT officials said more black and Hispanic students could be hidden among those 70 students who did not reveal their race on applications. Enrollment numbers will be official in about two weeks, they said.

'It's still an improvement, and were pleased with that," said Mike Sharlot, UT law school dean.

Reputed marijuana smuggler headed to Texas death chamber

HUNTSVILLE (AP) - A reputed marijuana smuggler linked to the killings of at least five people, including a woman who was ground up in a tree chipper, was set for execution tonight for gunning down a Dallas-area man who unwittingly interrupted a kidnap scheme.

The U.S. Supreme Court was considering a request to review the case of Genaro Ruiz Camacho, convicted of the fatal shooting of 25-year-old David Wilburn.

Camacho, 43, from Mercedes in the Rio Grande Valley, also was convicted on federal charges in the deaths of a 31-year-old woman and her 3-year-old son, killed in the 1988 kidnap plot intended to collect a drug debt. They were abducted from the Dallas-area home where Wilburn was killed and taken to Johnston County, Okla., where they were shot, their bodies dumped in a grave and covered with kitty litter.

Jurors at his sentencing were told of at least two other slayings, including that of a 23-year-old Dallas topless dancer, Pamela Miller, whose dismembered body was fed through a tree shredder after a botched drug deal.

Victims flood south Texas flood-shelters in the hardest-hit part of this flood-ravaged city were forced from their homes a second time in 48 hours today when rain brought the renewed threat of high water.

Authorities declared a mandatory evacuation in neighborhoods near San Felipe Creek around midnight, just after thunderstorms resumed in the region swamped by a deluge early Monday.

Residents in the area were allowed

DEL RIO, Texas (AP) - Residents back into their homes on Tuesday after flood waters from the creek had receded. Rita Nunez, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Border Patrol, said officials are merely being cautious with the latest evacuation.

'The only reason they're having to leave is they have a higher risk of flooding," Ms. Nunez said.

About 550 people in this border town of 34,000 were cleared out of their homes during the night and directed to three shelters that opened after the earlier flooding.

Forecasters predicted heavy rain from a weather system in Mexico would continue in the Del Rio area through the night. By dawn, the San Felipe Creek had risen a few feet, but no new damage was reported, authorities said.

"There's been no serious problems," said Del Rio police Lt. Michael Burch. "Unless we get a whole lot of rain here, we don't expect any serious problems."

Families are still waiting for about 41 people unaccounted for after raging flood waters roared through Del Rio in the dead of night Sunday, killing at least six.

The Department of Public Safety promised action, but cautioned that some of the missing might be at shelters or simply not near a working telephone.

There are people missing, and we are looking," U.S. Border Patrol spokeswoman Paty Mancha said. We're compiling shelter lists and comparing those to missing lists. Everybody doesn't have access to a phone, and that is a real problem."

Del Rio is on the Rio Grande, 150 miles west of San Antonio.

The city's residents were warned about flash floods, but still were surprised when the deluge roared into neighborhoods.

As the water receded Tuesday, cleanup efforts began. About 400 homes were damaged, Mayor Robert Chavira said.

The city's utilities were returning to normal. By Tuesday, electricity and gas had been restored to about 90 percent of the town.

But dishwashers and washing machines were still on the blink. The storms ravaged the town's water

The shortage meant many restaurants were unable to cook, car washes were closed and showers were out of the question. Neighboring cities and businesses donated water in tanker trucks so residents would have drinking water. Hotel residents scooped water from swimming pools to flush toilets. Some locals carried buckets from the same river that flooded their homes.

"People are getting water in anything they can carry," said Greg Weaver of San Antonio, who drove one tanker truck into town. "I saw one person with a laundry basket."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I moved into an apartment complex about three months ago. A woman who lives directly above me has two adorable children, ages 4 and 2. "Lucille" is normally quite pleasant, but when she drinks, she becomes mean and is entirely too rough on her children.

It breaks my heart when I hear those little ones screaming and I know she is beating them. I told my daughter about this (she also has two children under 5 years of age), and she says I shouldn't get involved. She then quoted your well-known phrase, "MYOB."

What about it, Ann? I am looking to you for guidance. Please reply in the paper. -- Totally Anonymous

Dear Totally A.: It sounds as if your neighbor is taking out her unhappiness on those two defenseless children. Yes, there are times when I would say MYOB, but this is not one of them.

The next time you hear the children screaming, go upstairs, knock on the door and say, "I think the little ones are getting on your nerves. Let me take them for a few hours so you can get some rest."

The following day, speak to Lucille when she is sober and tell her she needs to get help with her drinking problem. Look up the phone number of Alcoholics Anonymous, find out when the next meeting in your area is scheduled, and tell Lucille that unless she gets help, you will notify the authorities about her beating the children and they might be removed from her care. If she doesn't shape up within the next 30 days, make good on your threat.

Dear Ann Landers: You recently answered a letter from a young woman in San Antonio, Texas, who was worried about her dad moving too fast into a relationship after the death of his wife.

Dear Up Close: Your observations are right on, according to many readers who wrote to say they also have "been there." Thank you for making the point so succinctly.

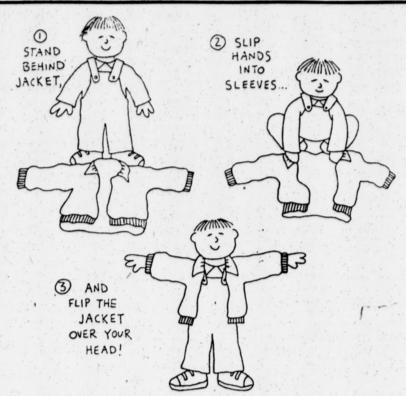

Dear Ann Landers: I enjoyed your columns in which you mentioned some odd names given to children by their parents. I became interested in that subject at an early age. My dad was a mail carrier, and remember hearing about Mr. and Mrs. Bottom, who named their children Fanny and Harry. The parents said, "That's what these kids are going to be called by their friends, so we might as well name them that

Small wonders

Designers produce successful lines of petite styles

SAN ANTONIO - For small women, there's nothing worse than staggering through the petite section of the department store and discovering a wasteland of florals and ice-cream pastels.

The alternative is skulking off to the girls section. Problem is, you can't wear Pooh Bear separates to the office.

Fortunately for the petite shopper, designers such as Carole Little, Dana Buchman and Liz Clairborne are getting it. By focusing on classic silhouettes and fabrics, they've produced successful lines of casual and work attire pared down to fit a smaller frame.

"In petites, it's more conservative, a more classic look," asserted designer Carole Little. "Larger sizes tend to wear a more outgoing look, the short skirts, the bustiers." Little, who happens to be 5-foot-4 herself, thinks the petite market hasn't even begun'to get the department store floor space that plus sizes command. According to her statistics, the average American woman is 5-foot-4 and weighs 140 pounds.

"I get requests and comments from petites all the time,"said Little.

The petite fashion category takes in all women 5-foot-4 and under, regardless of weight. Height is the governing factor.

Designer Dana Buchman said, "Not everyone is the perfect size 6, 8 or 10. Just as women have measurements, they also have different proportions. By offering Dana Buchman Petites, we address the huge percentage of women who are 5-foot-4 and under. We also reach women who may be petite on top and missy on the bottom or vice-versa."

Career women Barbara Cole, who is the executive assistant to the president and CEO of Broadway Bank, has spent years on the front lines of petite fashions, honing her sixth sense of style.

"I don't want to make mistakes," Cole deadpans, "because I don't have a lot of room to work with."

She explains that a taller woman has added inches to take fashion risks with a not-so-hot outfit.

A small woman, however, has to consider whether a style will obscure her shape so completely it looks as if her shoulders are fused to her hips.

"I try to wear one color at a When wearing navy, for example, Cole wears navy shoes and navy color provides a continuous visual line from shoulder to toe, creating the illusion of height.

If she wants to add color, Cole adds a bright hue on top - an orange cardigan, a scarf - never on the bottom. Cole finds that light shades placed near her face give a nice, rosy glow to her complexion. Paired with dark pants or a skirt, the whole outfit has a slimming effect light fabrics can't offer.

Different colored hose combined with a flat shoe can be a killer mistake, says Cole.

"It just cuts me up, just cuts me up all over," Cole groaned. The effect of a flat shoe and pale hose shortens the appearance of her legs something Cole avoids like the plague.

Details are another important consideration for the vertically challenged.

Cole says she takes into account reveals. "I'm more shoes, watch, bag the "size of buttons and color of buttons." The small details have a way of accentuating or de-accentuating her physique. For the smaller woman, big buttons, an oversize collar, an outsize accessory can give off a clownish effect.

Having made her share of fashion foibles, Cole has learned how to give a garment a quick once-over in the store and know whether it will work for her. Cole often has a predisposed idea of what she wants to add to her established wardrobe. Because she has invested in classic styles, her clothes last longer from season to season and she seeks out pieces that jibe with what she already owns.

Having worked as a petite model has given her the advantage of seeing what works - and what doesn't.

"Sometimes in modeling, they'll put me in a designer version of a 'missy' - a petite fits so perfectly for my body - it's the difference in looking good and looking terrific," says Cole. Junior and missy fashions are made for a growing, adolescent body - not real women's curves. At a perfect 5-foot-4. Cole can find tailored clothes by designer petites, which fit without complains. needing any alterations.

leaves her house in the morning. Cole maintains a few more rules, often discovered the hard way: Her standard color is black, in pieces that can be dressed up or down; she wears accessories that don't add extra weight such as huge bags and enormous jewelry; and she wears her hair short. When I cut it - I had curly long hair -I just cried and cried," Cole confesses. When she looked in the mirror and discovered what a chin-length bob did for her proportions, those tears dried right up. Short hair isn't for Amalia Ortiz, however. An assistant theater manager at the Guadalupe Cultural Arts Center who doubles as a free-lance costume designer, Ortiz relates that when her hair was shorter, "people kept patting me on the head.

As a designer, Ortiz has taken great license with her personal style. "I never follow color rules," she and out the door."

Ortiz acknowledges that she purposely broke established fashion rules just to cause a reaction. Now, Ortiz finds that "if I want to be playful, I do not want to look younger than I am." She has quit buying very trendy clothing or separates bought in the children's department. Ortiz focuses more on pieces that are stylish, but express individuality with classic silhouettes and funky fabrics. The best part of the '90s has been platform shoes," says Ortiz.

A tall shoe can go a long way with a risky style, but is complimented by proportionate looks.

If I'm dressing a man for a show, I'm not going to take a pair of big man's pants and shorten them from the bottom up, if you know what I mean," Ortiz elaborates. Instead of quick fix-it alterations on her clothes, Ortiz tries to take care and attention in the way she sculpts an oversize garment.

"For awhile, the spaghetti strap dresses were in, and every time I tried on the one-size-fits-most style, I felt like I was playing dress-up," Ortiz

She finds herself searching more Cole's first rule of fashion: "If the often in the children's section of thrift proportions are correct, you can have stores, where petite clothing is often some outstanding choices." Although accidentally organized. Or she finds her closet is filled with classic innovative ways to adapt garments to

Dear Readers: This is a wonderful time of year for picnics and outdoor fun. Here are some important foodsafety hints for your adventure.

* Only bring the amount of food you think you will eat, and if it's cold, be sure to keep it in insulated coolers with plenty of ice.

* Bag or securely wrap foods such drip or leak juices on other foods. (In fact, try not to pack them together.)

* If possible, take two coolers, one with food and the other with drinks and extra ice. This will prevent the food from warming each time someone wants a cold drink.

Keep hot foods hot in an insulated container of their own.

When traveling to your destination, keep the coolers in the passenger compartment of the car to keep them cool, not in the trunk where temperatures can get very hot.

* When you arrive, place the coolers in the shade or cover them with a blanket. Be sure to replace ice when needed.

Enjoy your time outside this summer, try to stay cool and don't forget the sunblock. — Heloise

Wayland has high hopes for '98 season

PLAINVIEW (Special) -- The Lady Pioneers of Wayland Baptist University will kick off another volleyball season Friday and Saturday in Lubbock at the Chap Classic.

The tourney will be a two-day affair at the Lubbock Christian University Field House. The Lady Pioneers will open against Angelo State University at 10 a.m. Friday. Wayland will also face Dallas Baptist at 4 p.m. Friday, and Abilene Christian and the University of Colorado-Colorado Springs Saturday. Wayland will take on UC-CS at noon and ACU at 4 p.m.

The Lady Pioneers finished the 1997 season 21-11, bowing out in the first round of the regional tournament. Wayland hopes to improve on that record in 1998, and has scheduled at least 12 matches against NCAA Division II opponents. This season will be first time the Lady Pioneers have faced a Division II team during the regular season.

"We definitely have our work cut out for us," Wayland coach Brad Borden said. "The difficulty of our schedule has probably gone up fivefold. We may have to take some lumps along the way, we hope our schedule will prepare us for November.'

The Lady Pioneers made their second trip to the regional tournament in two years in 1997, and Borden has high expectations of returning to the playoffs again. In both years, Wayland has not advanced past the first round, but this year the team has higher goals.

"I don't want to make another overnight trip to Austin," former Hereford standout Jessica Evers said. "I want us to go down there and win, and I have the confidence in this group we can do it.'

Evers, the team's lone senior, has been a major contributor to the growth of Wayland's volleyball program. In Evers' freshman year, the Lady Pioneers won only 12 matches. In her sophomore and junior seasons, though, Wayland went 51-13.

"Obviously this program has grown a lot and it's because of coach Borden's coaching style and his recruits. We have a great group of recruits this year," Evers said. "At the end of this year, I just want to feel some sort of satisfaction about how we played as a team all season long."

The Lady Pioneers have seven returning players and five freshmen. At the outside hitter slot, Amarillo native Kristee Turpin and Serenity

King of Pampa return. Both juniors are two-time all-conference selections.

Junior all-region setter Terrie Walters and twin sister Carrie Walters -- last year's Sooner Athletic Conference Most Valuable Player -are also returning for Wayland. Junior favorite theories.

LINCOLN, Neb. -- Frank Solich

We'll know more about that soon. After 19 years as a Nebraska assistant, Solich leads a team that again is expected to be among the Kansas State to play for the Big 12

Don't expect any big changes from the way Osborne did things. That's why Solich was promoted.

'We've been able to know our offense and we've kept ourselves very consistent on defense," Solich said. "We know what we want to get done with our players, and our players know what we're after."

Another time-honored Nebraska theory Solich is forced to try maintaining is that the Cornhuskers don't rebuild, they reload. He may have to do a lot of reloading to replace several stars from last year's co-national champion.

BIG 12 PREVIEW NEBRASKA

Gone to the NFL are All-Americans in defensive lineman Jason Peter, defensive end Grant Wistrom and offensive guard Aaron Taylor, nation's elite and is favored over last year's Outland Trophy winner. Also departed is gritty quarterback Scott Frost. Although Nebraska is likely to have another physical, disciplined team, there are a few questions about the offense.

The new quarterback is untested sophomore Bobby Newcombe. His brilliant speed and agility were seen on punt returns and as a receiver last year, but Newcombe was recruited at quarterback. He established himself with a 175-yard rushing effort in the spring game.

Behind Newcombe is redshirt freshman Eric Crouch. Newcombe and Crouch were among the nation's top prep quarterbacks two years ago, and Solich said he has no concerns about their youth.

'They are the kinds of guys who demonstrate leadership even though it's early in their careers," Solich said. "They pat people on the back. I think that position will be a very strong position for us.'

Running back DeAngelo Evans, who had 776 yards as a freshman in 1996, returns after missing the 1997 season with a pelvic muscle injury. Evans appeared healed during spring practice, and the coaching staff is counting on it. In January, junior Ahman Green left school early for the

An inexperienced offensive line returns one starter in center Josh Heskew. Two tackles, including projected starter Adam Julch, had offseason injuries, leaving their status for the season uncertain.

Nebraska's strength will be its defense, which must stabilize the team until the young offense finds its step. Seven starters are back on a unit that allowed 257 yards per game last year, fifth-best nationally.

"We'd like to think that early in the year our defense will play well enough to help our offense ... maybe

Defensive ends Chad Kelsay and Mike Rucker are expected to fill the feadership vacuum left by the departures of Wistrom and Peter. Returning starters Brian Shaw, Tony Ortiz and Jay Foreman make the Cornhuskers strong at linebacker while Erwin Swiney, Mike Brown and Ralph Brown are back on a secondary that was repeatedly tested last season.

'We have a lot of speed on defense, maybe more than we had last year," Foreman said. "As long as we come out and gel right away. That's what this team needs right away -- for the defense to play real well."

A hidden asset for Nebraska is kicker Kris Brown, who has connected on 16 straight field goals, 79 consecutive PATs and consistently puts the ball beyond the end zone on Nebraska opens with Louisiana Tech on Aug. 29. Other games of note include Washington, Oklahoma State in Kansas City, at Texas A&M and home games against Missouri, Texas and Colorado.

Clearly, the biggest test of the regular season comes Nov. 14 at Kansas State. The Wildcats are coming off a Fiesta Bowl victory and lost only once last year -- to the Cornhuskers, who have beaten them 29 straight times.

With or without Osborne, Nebraska fans are expecting great things. Fullback Joel Makovicka, who returns for his senior season, said every Cornhusker knows how he can contribute immediately.

"There's going to be a lot of pressure on coach Solich. We can take that pressure off by playing well," Makovicka said.

Tom Brady, Scott Dreisbach or freshman Drew Henson will replace Griese. Dreisbach has the most experience. He started all 11 strong showing in spring drills, however, Brady should be the top man this fall even though he attempted just 15 passes in a backup role last season.

Penn State, meanwhile, lost its final two games last season and the Nittany Lions face a brutal schedule that includes seven bowl participants from last season and trips to Columbus and Ann Arbor.

Troubled running back Curtis Enis left for the NFL and the Nittany Lions are inexperienced on offense, especially at quarterback.

'Any Day Now,' new racial drama, took years to find home

By LYNN ELBER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES - Combine these elements: race relations in the tumultuous 1960s and the tense 1990s, a Southern setting, a focus on girls and women instead of boys and men, and faint-hearted TV networks.

What you get, eight years later, is the Lifetime series "Any Day Now." Broadcasters said no to the drama, over and over again, but the cable channel said yes.

Yes to the idea of exploring the friendship of two girls, one black and one white, in segregated Birmingham, Ala., in the '60s. Yes to cutting between their childhood and adult years, weaving the past and the present in a sophisticated quilt.

And yes to a drama that has charm and heart - and which figures that viewers are willing to think as well as feel

"Any Day Now," starring Annie Potts and Lorraine Toussaint, airs 8 p.m. CDT as part of Lifetime's new Tuesday series lineup that includes the comedies "Oh Baby" and "Maggie."

Ms. Potts ("Designing Women," "Dangerous Minds") is Mary Elizabeth Brian, a white woman whose teen-age pregnancy and marriage have kept her bound to her hometown. She is a loving wife and mother who can't ignore how narrow her world is.

Ms. Toussaint ("Amazing Grace," "Law & Order") plays Rene Jackson, who fled Birmingham to work as a big-city corporate attorney, turning away from her father's tradition of civil rights activism. Success, however, has come at a proce.

A death brings Rene book home, where she tries to create a new life amid bitter memories that include her estrangement from her childhood friend.

Young tomboy Mary Elizabeth and cautious Rene (played by Mae Middleton and Shari Dyon Perry in flashbacks) once were inseparable; the grown-up pair have to find a way to confront the rift between them and the choices they've made.

The big themes are there, but so are the little touches: We see the girls swoon over the idea of their brassieres, dispatch bullies and swipe cigarettes.

For Nancy Miller, the show's creator, "Any Day Now" was a matter of any year now.

It was in 1990 that she envisioned a drama she describes as "a 'Wonder Years' meets 'Mississippi Burning.' "The former is the 1988-93 coming-of-age TV series; the latter the 1988 film about the volatile '60s South.

CBS ordered six episodes from Orion, but the studio pulled the plug just 10 days before shooting began.

Too expensive, they said. Ms. Miller refused to surrender.

"Every development season I carried this script under my arm and begged them (the networks) to make it" she said it," she said.

They balked at the cost, the racial theme and this:
"It was about girls. I think if it was about boys, it would have gotten made," Ms. Miller said.

Her passion was more than personal, though she does have her own memories invested. The character of Rene represents a dear childhood friend from Oklahoma, while mischievous Mary Elizabeth echoes Ms. Miller.

But the chance to explore social issues also kept her battling for "Any Day Now." As a youngster, she had seen Birmingham firsthand during visits to her parents' hometown.

Storm slams Twain's concert

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - Shania Twain took the country music scene by storm. At one of her sellout concerts, the storm struck back.

Twain's concert at the New York State Fair grandstand came to an abrupt end Monday night when lightning struck 40 yards behind the stage, prompting officials to end the show.

Nearly 16,800 fans braved heavy rain and high winds for the first 70 minutes of the show, to hear Twain sing hits such as "You're Still the One" and "Don't Be Stupid (You Know I Love You)."

Fair spokesman Joseph LaGuardia said officials were in constant contact with a meteorologist about the weather, which took a turn for the worse as the concert progressed.

GARY COLEMAN

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Gary Coleman, the former "What you talking 'bout" kid on TV's "Diff'rent Strokes," pleaded innocent to slugging a woman who sought his autograph at the mall where he works as a security guard.

Coleman, 30, did not appear in court Tuesday for arraignment on a misdemeanor assault charge, and his lawyer entered the plea. The judge set a pretrial hearing for Oct. 20.

The woman, Los Angeles bus driver Tracy Fields, said Coleman signed an autograph and then flew into a rage when she asked him to personalize it for her son on July 30.

He punched her in the eye and kept hitting her after

Mames in the news

she fell into a gumball machine in a uniform store, she said. She suffers headaches and muscle spasms as a result, she alleges in a $1 million lawsuit against Coleman.

Coleman played the affable Arnold Jackson on "Diff'rent Strokes," which originally aired from 1978

JANIS IAN

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Singer-songwriter Janis Ian is going high-tech for an auction via the Internet in memory of her mother.

Among the 300 items on sale is the handwritten score to Ian's 1975 hit song "At Seventeen," along with one of her guitars and her first drafts of many songs.

Proceeds will go to a memorial fund at Vermont's Goddard College, the alma mater of Ian's mother, Pearl Wadoff. While fighting multiple sclerosis, she earned an undergraduate degree and a master's in playwrighting from the school. She died last year.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/ products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

-Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no

-- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condi-

-- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be

Vet actor Marshall, 84, dies

NEW YORK (AP) - E.G. Marshall's distinctive voice landed him a radio job that launched him in Brand were distributed in 1997. If your show business, a 66-year run in which advertising message was not included in he was often cast as a lawyer or many of these issues, you need to call Mauri politician. He played them so mistook him for the real thing.

The two-time Emmy Award winner, who reprised his role of lawyer Lawrence Preston in a Showtime version of "The Defenders" last season, died Monday evening at his home in suburban Mount Kisco. He was 84.

His agent, Clifford Stevens, did not disclose the cause of death.

Andy Wolk, who directed Marshall in the Showtime series, praised him for freshening a 30-year-old character. "He's a great actor and a great human being," Wolk said.
"The world has lost a great actor and I have lost a wonderful friend," said actor Beau Bridges, who played Marshall's son in the Showtime

In an interview last year with The Associated Press, Marshall pointed out he had worn the same oxfords in the 1990s and 1960s versions of "The Defenders."

'He had the shoes resoled," Wolk said. "Those shoes were maybe the only thing old-fashioned about him. He would come to the set each day .. and come up with a gem that was spot on for the character.'

Marshall's movie credits included "The Caine Mutiny," "The Silver Chalice," "The Left Hand of God," "Twelve Angry Men," "Cash McCall," "Town Without Pity," "Compulsion," "The Bridge at Remagen," and "Superman 2."

On Broadway he appeared in "The Petrified Forest," "The Iceman Cometh," "The Skin of our Teeth," "Jacobowsky and the Colonel," "The Gambler," and "The Crucible.

His distinctive voice often was heard on commercials.

Clinton's defense fund expires

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton's supporters have closed the book on his original defense fund after collecting $1.32 million over a 31/2-year period.

In a report released Tuesday, the Presidential Legal Expense Trust reported receiving $18,040 in the final month before the fund was closed on Dec. 31, 1997. The money came from 85 donors.

Over its life, the trust received $1.32 million from 9,376 contributors, averaging $141 per donation.

Is Your Child Ready For Sports?

The National Alliance For Youth Sports and the Hereford YMCA present the START SMARTTM Sports Development Program.

START SMARTTM is a six-week instructional program which helps parents work one-on-one with their children teaching them sports basics like throwing, catching, kicking and batting. The program helps prepare children for organized sports using Koosh® products which are both safe and fun to learn with.

START SMARTTM Junior Program is open to children 3-5 years old who attend each session with their parent or significant adult.

START SMART™ will be held at the Hereford Where: YMCA for six consecutive Thursdays. Parent Orientation Meeting will be held on Aug. 31, 1998 from 6:00 pm to 7:00 pm.

Cost: The cost is $20.00 per parent-child group.

the diversified economy that (developed) in the late '80s and '90s," he

Smithee said the budget surplus is causing the lawmakers to wonder what to do. Should there be increased spending, especially for colleges and universities which took a hit in the economic hard times, or "do you take the surplus and give it back to the people? Or do you do both?" he

"In good faith, I think the Legislature should go back and adjust the tax structure back to where it was" when the tax increases were adopted,

He offered three suggestions for sharing the surplus with the taxpayers: - Eliminate the corporate franchise tax on small businesses, although he acknowledged there needs to be a definition of what constitutes a small business. For an example, he suggested a small business would be defined as one which has a net income of less than $100,000 per year;

- Allocate more state funds to public school districts, allowing the districts to reduce local property taxes;

Reduce the state sales tax by a half-cent to one cent.

"If nothing else, I hope we will have some kind of tax cut," he said. When the 76th Legislature convenes in January 1999, Smith said "everybody will be asking for more money.'

There also will be a serious effort in the Legislature to improve the monetary levels for education, as well as deal with electric deregulation.

The electric industry is changing and it can't be stopped," Smithee said. "What you will see is a choice of who you buy your electricity from." Although it isn't clear exactly how the new changes will shake out, he said he is concerned the utilities will give special low rates to large, industrial customers, which will lead to higher costs for residential users.

"That's the big fight and (the Legislature) will have to deal with this," he said, adding the lawmakers are looking at some of the other states where the deregulation already has taken place to see what has happened.

In looking at the upcoming legislative session, Smithee said "things are getting busy," noting Rep. Warren Chisum, R-Pampa, already has announced plans to pre-file a bill in the 76th Legislature. Chisum announced Monday he will introduce legislation to bar gay-lesbian couples from adopting children.

With the drought continuing in the Panhandle, Jack Bradley expressed concern about water supplies in the region.

When the interzone water transfer program was initiated, Smithee said Panhandle lawmakers thought it would mean increased supplies for the region; however, when they looked at the fine print, they found out the transfers primarily benefitted Austin and San Antonio, which have experienced rapid growth and depleted water resources.

One of the problems, he said, is the "Panhandle is just outvoted." The Panhandle from Lubbock north has only four representatives - Smithee, Chisum, Republican David Swinford of Dumas and House Speaker Pete

Laney, D-Hale Center - while the Houston are alone has 30 representatives. While most of the state's population living along and east of Interstate 35 (which runs from Houston to Dallas-Fort Worth), the Panhandle and most of western Texas are outgunned. In response to a question from Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce executive vice president Don Cumpton, Smithee expressed concern the state might not be ready for the so-called Y2K problem, referring to the computer glitch that could see computer failures when the clock hits midnight Dec. 31, 1999, and the year 2000 begins. When computer programs were written in the 1960s, the programmers use the last two digits of the year, such as "68" for 1968, and computers will read "00" as 1900, not 2000. Smithee said he had met with the state insurance commissioner, who said the majority of the insurance companies are not ready for it. "It's potentially a devastating problem, and it's no joke," Smithee said. Smithee was asked about the Texas Lottery, which has been plagued with declining revenue. He said he's "not a fan of the lottery," saying he opposed the lottery when it was proposed. But, he said, the revenue is down because the prizes When the Legislature revamped the program, reducing the prize level, many people simply quit playing the lottery, he said. Also, there is increased competition from other sources, such as the eight-liners (gambling machines). There is considerable controversy over the eight-liners, which pay winners with prizes rather than money, and it is not clear if the machines are legal. He noted they are considered legal in some counties and illegal in others, so the Legislature must clarify the law. Bradley, who raises racehorses, quipped the Lottery should be eliminated because it's hurt the racing business.

Margie Daniels, director of the Senior Citizens Association, asked if the lottery revenue is really going to education, as its proponents claim. Smithee said lottery proceeds go into the general revenue, which funds

"It (lottery revenue) goes in the pot" and then is parceled out, so it does benefit education, but the law doesn't specifically dedicate lottery proceeds to public education, he said.

Smithee, who was first elected to the Texas House in November 1984, is unopposed for re-election this year. He serves as chairman of the House Insurance Committee and is a member of the Energy Resources Committee.

Nightclub bombing linked to U.S. strikes

However, the Tuesday evening attack appeared to have been carried out by a local group, another South African official said, noting that pipe bombs were common in the area.

Shards of broken glass and blood covered the interior of the restaurant today and a half-dozen bouquets were scattered on its bloodied steps along Cape Town's waterfront, a popular tourist destination.

He condemned the bombing and speculated it was carried out to discredit Islam and scare people away from a march his group was organizing on the U.S. Embassy on Saturday to protest the U.S. attacks in Sudan and Afghanistan.

In Washington, the State Department said the group was both anti-Jewish and anti-Israeli. Some members were among the 40 people who protested U.S. policies on Iraq and Israel during President Clinton's visit in March.

The White House condemned the bombing but said it had no information it was "politically motivated."

South African Security Minister Sydney Mufamadi said the bombing was probably linked to the U.S. cruise-missile attacks, South African Broadcasting Corp. radio reported. The U.S. attacks on suspected terror sites were themselves retaliation for the Aug. 7 bombings of U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania.

FBI agents who had been investigating the bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Nairobi were invited down by South Africa and expected to arrive later today, said National Police Commissioner George Fivaz.

"These people have expertise about similar attacks all over the world," Fivaz said as he visited the wrecked Planet Hollywood.

President Nelson Mandela's spokesman, Parks Mankahlana, said police believed a pipe bomb was responsible. "These pipe bombs ... are a very common phenomenon in the Western Cape, which might be an indication that we are not dealing with an international network but a local group," he said. A Muslim vigilante organization. People Against Drugs and Gangsterism, has been widely blamed for pipe bomb attacks in recent years targeting suspected gangsters and drug dealers in the area.

Police initially reported the one person killed was a woman, but later said it was a man.
