SW Bell customers give OK to extended calling

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Toll-free calling between the Hereford and Amarillo/Canyon telephone exchanges should be available sometime between Oct. 18 and January 1999.

Dennis Hicks of Hicks Well Service, who spearheaded the petition drive to call an extended local calling (ELC) election, said Friday he had received verbal notification from the Texas Public Utility Commission the ELC measure was approved by more than 70 percent of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. customers in the Hereford exchange.

Under the guidelines for the election, at least 70 percent of the returned ballots had to support the ELC before the PUC would issue an order instituting the toll-free calling.

By Oct. 18, SW Bell should notify the PUC when the ELC should go into effect. Opponents then will have until Nov. 23 to file protests with the utility commission.

On Nov. 28, if there are no protests or if the protests have been reviewed, the utility commission will issue its final order on the ELC.

Then the implementation process will begin, which Hicks said apparently has usually taken two months.

"It might be sooner because they (SW Bell) already has ... put things in place," Hicks said, adding the information has come from the PUC and he has not yet spoken with a representative of the telephone company.

Hicks said 79.15 of the ballots supported linking with the Amarillo exchange; the vote for tying in with Canyon was favored by 75.54 percent of the Hereford exchange customers.

Also, Hicks said 624 more ballots were returned to the PUC than had been mailed in during April's vote.

"I'm just glad it passed, but I think I was through with it no matter what happened," he said with a laugh.

Hicks said the PUC indicated it would issue the final order around Nov. 1.

A spokesman for SW Bell said last week if the measure were approved by the phone company's customers, it could go into effect as early as Oct. 1.

Some folks already have had some practice in making toll-free telephone calls between Hereford and Amarillo, but it was just practice.

Some telephone calls between Hereford and Amarillo went through last week without long-distance charges, as the telephone company tested its equipment.

The ELC passage means SW Bell's customers in Hereford will see a new line-item charge on their monthly telephone bills. The company would charge up to $3.50 for residential customers and up to $7 for commercial customers for extended calling.

The PUC's Legal Administrative Division is expected to issue an order within two weeks acknowledging the results.

The ELC election is the second this year. The PUC voided the ballots sent out by SW Bell in April after it was discovered there was a discrepancy between the number of customers who were mailed ballots and the number of access lines.

'You're not going to get television video. But if it's just Clinton standing up, looking face on at the camera, it's going to look really good.'

- Mark Cuban, president,
Broadcast.Com, an Internet video company

Web sites gearing up to offer Clinton video on Internet

WASHINGTON (AP) - And you thought traffic jams on the Internet made it frustrating trying to download the 445-page written report about President Clinton and Monica Lewinsky?

Even as Congress decided to release Clinton's four-hour videotape Monday, Web sites were already making plans to let people watch it over the Internet. It will not be the same as watching on television.

Even across high-speed connections under ideal conditions, Internet video is typically a grainy, jerky image the size of a Post-It note with audio that can stutter and fall out of sync. Most users, for example, can expect three to five video frames per second, up to 10 times worse than television quality.

"You're not to get television video," warned Mark Cuban, president of Broadcast.Com, an Internet video company. "But if it's just Clinton standing up, looking face on at the camera, it's going to look really good."

Watching Internet video requires special software, usually available free, that must be downloaded and installed separately.

In the worst cases, because of Internet congestion, popular video snippets can suddenly freeze, akin to a cable outage during a suspenseful television drama.

"The technology itself isn't there" for TV-like quality, said Scott Woelfel, editor and chief of CNN Interactive.

Those are problems just for people who get through: Unlike downloading text on a page, streaming continuous video is much more likely to cause data congestion - and more prone to give Internet surfers the equivalent of a telephone busy signal.

Woelfel predicted only about one-tenth as many people who were able to view Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's 445-page report on CNN's site will be able to watch the video there.

So, what is the allure of Internet video? Technology buffs say viewers will be able to watch at their leisure Clinton struggling to answer graphic questions about Ms. Lewinsky.

In many locations, such as some foreign countries, it is unlikely broadcasters would air the entire videotape. But it would be available worldwide in its entirety over the Internet.

Web sites struggled with what is on the Clinton videotape. Unlike network and cable broadcasts, Internet video is not scrutinized by the Federal Communications Commission. Network TV generally cannot air material considered "indecent" between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m.

"There just aren't Internet standards," said FCC spokeswoman Liz Rose. "You can basically put whatever you want on the Internet."

The Associated Press planned to offer only excerpts on its Web site, The Wire, "because of all the uncertainty about the nature of the content," said editor Ruth Gersh.

MSNBC said it will broadcast the video with a slight delay to edit out "any inappropriate material."

What is the procedure in impeachment?

"The President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors."
-- U.S. Constitution, Article II, Section 4

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

If the House Judiciary Committee concludes special prosecutor Kenneth Starr has presented enough evidence of wrongdoing by President Clinton to warrant an impeachment hearing, the House of Representatives will move into unfamiliar territory.

Even though members of the House have introduced resolutions calling for the impeachment of just about every president since Washington, only one chief executive has actually been impeached.

The Radical Republicans who controlled Congress in the aftermath of the Civil War tried to remove President Andrew Johnson from office after he fired Secretary of War Edwin Stanton without notifying the Senate.

In February 1868, the House impeached the president, charging him with violating the Tenure of Office Act. Johnson, who ascended to the presidency after the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, was tried by the Senate, where he was acquitted in May by one vote.

The Johnson impeachment was a political power play by Radical Republicans who disagreed with Johnson's conciliatory policies toward the former Confederate states.

In late July 1974, the judiciary committee culminated the Watergate investigation into wrongdoing by Richard Nixon by approving three articles of impeachment, which charged the president with obstruction of justice, abuse of power and contempt of Congress.

On Aug. 9, 1974, four days after releasing transcripts of conversations with top aides that showed his knowledge and participation in the coverup of White House links to the Watergate break-in, Nixon resigned before the full House could vote on impeachment.

Although Nixon's defenders tried to portray the judiciary committee's investigation, as well as that of the independent counsel, as politically motivated, the articles of impeachment were approved by both Democrats and Republicans on the panel.

The word "impeachment" has been bandied about frequently -- conservative Republicans pushed a resolution last November calling for an impeachment inquiry -- and especially since January when the first allegations about Clinton's affair with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky surfaced. But many people really aren't clear what impeachment is, other than to acknowledge it is a matter of considerable gravity.

Although some people seem to think impeachment would mean the removal of the president from office, it is a two-step process involving both houses of Congress.

Impeachment is a formal accusation of wrongdoing. Articles of impeachment, like a grand jury's indictment, would establish the charges against the president. The articles of impeachment can be approved by a simple majority of the House.

If the House were to impeach Clinton, the Senate

Impeach Rehnquist wrote book on process

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON - Only one president, Andrew Johnson, was impeached and forced to stand trial in the Senate. One American who knows much about that 1868 proceeding is Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, who would preside over a Senate trial for President Clinton.

In his 1992 book "Grand Inquests," Rehnquist detailed the House impeachment and Senate trial of Johnson and those conducted in 1804 for Supreme Court Justice Samuel Chase.

"He probably knows more about impeachment than anyone else," Washington lawyer John Roberts says.

The House Judiciary Committee must decide whether

City commission

Members of the Hereford City Commission will be busy Monday night as they conduct three public hearings in addition to the regular meeting.

The commissioners will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the commission chamber at Hereford City Hall, 224 N. Lee.

The public hearing will focus on two zoning change requests. The properties affected are at 611 McKinley and 604 W. 3rd.

The commissioners also will hear from the public on the proposed Fiscal 1999 budget.

In the regular meeting, the commissioners will adopt the FY 1999 tax rate and budget, consider a proposal for auditing services, receive a report from the Hereford Economic Development Corp., and approve the HEDC budget.

New bucks

The Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce is asking residents to redeem all current-issue Hereford Bucks certificates in their possession by Dec. 31. The chamber is planning to issue new Hereford Bucks on Dec. 1 which will feature a different color and a one-year expiration period from the date new bills are purchased.

The chamber reports that Hereford Bucks will continue to be honored by any Hereford business. For more information, call the chamber at 364-3333, or visit the chamber office at 701 N. Main.

Aquatic Center

The Hereford Aquatic Center will be closed Sept. 24-25 to allow municipal workers install the dome.

The center will reopen at 1 p.m. Sept. 26.

Candidate forum

Candidates for three county offices will participate next month in a political forum sponsored by the Hereford Educators Association and the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce.

The forum will begin at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 15 at the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building, 600 N. 25 Mile Ave. It will be directed by Jane Gulley and Carolyn Waters.

Expected to participate are Darla Hale and Jean Schumacher, candidates for district clerk; Sammy Gonzales Sr. and Steve Hoffman, Precinct 2 commissioner, and Johnny Latham and Jerry O'Connor, Precinct 4 commissioner.

Voters may submit questions to the candidates through Oct. 13.

Students return

Students and faculty of Northwest School will resume classes on their campus 8 a.m. Monday.

Construction at the campus is virtually complete with only trim and gutter work remaining.

The air conditioning and heating systems are completely installed and working and the metal roof is in place.

School board meeting

Hereford Independent School District board of trustees will meet 5:30 p.m. Monday at the Administration building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue, for a regular meeting.

Agenda items include the approval of TASB state mandated policy changes and reports from various personnel.

Crime of the week

The Hereford Police are investigating a criminal mischief that occurred on the weekend of Sept. 4, when an unknown person spray painted graffiti on the walls and glass of a business in the 200 block of West Park Avenue, causing at least $2,000 damage.

Anyone having information about this crime please call 344-CLUE (2583). Callers may remain anonymous. Crime Stoppers pays up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of individuals involved in crime activity.

Mauled child's face rebuilt

DALLAS (AP) - Before it even had a wrinkle, two-year-old Mycha Lee Herbert's face was torn off.

While he was playing Sept. 4 in his back yard in Tulsa, Okla., the toddler's visage was reduced to bone as he was savaged by the family's pit bulldog, Blue.

Only Mycha's eyes and forehead were intact.

No cheeks. No nose. No eyelids. No flesh.

None.

By most medical accounts, Mycha should have died that day. The child's facial arteries should have spilled his short life out in a matter of minutes.

But now, under a constantly changing mask of bandages, the boy has a new face.

The Great Pumpkin

It's that time again. All the good little witches and goblins wait in the fields for the great pumpkin to arrive to give all the good little boys and girls a treat. So, maybe there isn't some great mythical pumpkin, but Joyce Schlabs, left, and Brenda Yosten know there are truly great pumpkins as it took the two of them to lift the giant gourd out of the trunk of Yosten's car at last week's Farmers Market. Yosten said she has one, still in the field, that is even bigger and heavier than this golden globe.

Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's report suggesting impeachable conduct by Clinton requires impeachment hearings. If such a full inquiry led to articles of impeachment, the full House would have to vote whether to impeach - the political equivalent of an indictment. Selected House members then would serve as prosecutors, and the 100 senators as a jury.

Washington lawyer Theodore Olson cites the "scholarly detail" of Rehnquist's book in calling him "one of the experts."

The book tracks two historic Senate trials that ended in acquittals, not ouster from office. Rehnquist suggests that in each the Senate put aside partisan politics to reach results that best aided the nation and the integrity of the process.

"There were undoubtedly political partisans on both sides of the aisle in each case, but each time enough members of the majority party balked at the demands for party unity to acquit both Chase and Johnson," he wrote.

A two-thirds vote of those senators participating is needed for conviction and ouster by the Senate.

Noting that the Supreme Court's 1998-99 term beginning Oct. 5 could yield the fewest decisions of any term in decades, Roberts says, "If the chief justice finds he has additional obligations this year, he should be able to attend to them."

At the nation's highest court, Rehnquist has the well-earned reputation of running a tight ship. He zealously keeps oral argument proceedings on schedule, sometimes cutting off attorneys in mid-sentence. His eight colleagues suggest in private that he runs the court's closed-door deliberations in much the same manner.

Such instincts might have to be suppressed in a Senate trial, however. In Johnson's trial last century, most of the procedural disputes were resolved by the Senate itself and not presiding Chief Justice Salmon Chase.

The Johnson trial took nearly two months, but those who know Rehnquist well say it might have been much shorter had the current chief justice been on the scene.

A lifelong Republican, Rehnquist was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1972 by President Richard Nixon, and was elevated to the chief justice's job in 1986 by President Ronald Reagan.

In the early 1980s, Rehnquist often told acquaintances he could not picture himself still working at age 70. But his promotion and his wife's death in 1991 changed his retirement time-schedule.

He will be 74 in two weeks, but no one expects Rehnquist to retire before the presidential election in 2000.

Richard Carelli covers the Supreme Court and legal issues for The Associated Press.

would conduct a trial, with Chief Justice William Rehnquist presiding.

At the conclusion of the trial, the senators would vote to acquit or to convict the president. Conviction requires a two-thirds majority -- 67 votes, if all 100 senators cast ballots. If convicted, the president would be removed from office and disqualified from holding any other federal office. He also could be indicted and tried in criminal courts.

The ballots were sent out after a petition was submitted to the PUC requesting an election to decide if Hereford could expand its local calling area to the Amarillo and Canyon exchanges.

Several days after the ballots were mailed, Linda Hymans, the commission's ELC coordinator, began receiving calls from Hereford subscribers who had not received a ballot.

Subscribers were asked to send Hymans a letter stating they had not received a ballot and how they would have voted.

Seventeen letters were received by the PUC; however, when the PUC staff checked those names with the master list supplied by the telephone company, the names were not on the list of subscribers.

The master list was verified with 7,592 access lines, but only 4,620 ballots were mailed. Multiple lines were eliminated, as were SW Bell test lines, leaving about 3,000 subscribers without ballots.

The PUC ordered the telephone company to file a written report explaining the discrepancies.

In its order, the PUC voided the ballots and ordered the telephone company to "resolve discrepancies between the number of customers who were mailed ballots and the number of access lines, including any information received from subscribers who did not receive ballots" and to provide a new master list "that accurately represents each subscriber in the Hereford exchange ... and provides a detailed explanation of what actions were taken to resolve the discrepancies."

The ELC was designed to enable communities, such as Hereford, with less than 10,000 telephone lines to petition the PUC for toll-free service with larger communities. For example, Vega already has ELC with both Amarillo and Hereford.

In a previous ELC election, some Hereford residents apparently were confused about the telephone exchanges involved. Although there are several prefixes in Amarillo, the city is considered one exchange for purposes of the ELC.

Dimmitt seeking ELC vote

DIMMITT--A group of Dimmitt citizens have initiated petitions for Expanded Local Calling to include the telephone service to five other area towns. The group approached the Dimmitt City Council about their efforts last Monday.

The towns that have been selected by the organizers are Amarillo, Hereford, Plainview, Canyon and Amarillo. Betty McClure, coordinator for the petitioning campaign, reported it would take a minimum of 180 days for the entire process.

McClure said if the request is approved by the Public Utilities Commission, then GTE would be notified and would send out ballots. If approved, the charge would $3.50 per month for residential subscribers and $7 per month for businesses.

Was 'Wizard' kids' story or satire?

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) - Roger Baum and Michael Genovese agree on one thing - Toto was just a dog.

Beyond that, "The Wizard of Oz" is either the greatest children's novel ever written or a story about the collapse of Populism in the late 1800s.

Baum, the great-grandson of "Oz" author L. Frank Baum, will be in Chesterton this weekend for the 17th annual Wizard of Oz festival. His views are clear.

"The Wonderful Wizard of Oz was written solely to pleasure children of today," Baum said, quoting from the introduction to the book written 98 years ago.

But Genovese, a political science professor at Loyola Marymount University, says Oz has a political dimension beyond the yellow brick road. Describing Oz as just a fairy tale about a girl from Kansas is like claiming "Moby Dick" is nothing more than a story about a white whale, he says.

Henry Littlefield, a teacher in Pebble Beach, Calif., is credited with finding the Populism theme. Populists advocated free coinage of silver to counteract inflation, abolition of national banks and a graduated income tax, among other things.

Littlefield interpreted the yellow brick road and Dorothy's silver shoes - they were changed to ruby in the movie to show off new color technology - as representing the gold standard and the coinage of silver.

His students found more parallels: - The title 'Oz' is actually the abbreviation for ounce, the standard measure used for gold.

- The Tin Woodman is the industrial worker, left heartless by dehumanizing work in factories.

- The brainless Scarecrow is the farmer, not intelligent enough to recognize his political interests.

- The Cowardly Lion is Williams Jennings Bryan, a leader in the Populist movement ridiculed for having more bark than bite.

- The Wizard is any one of several presidents in office in the late 1800s trying to be everything to everybody but were just common men, ruling others through deception.

- The wicked witches of the East and West are the capitalists and bankers who kept the "little people" - that would be the munchkins - in bondage.

"You don't have to buy into it," Littlefield said. "It's just a way of looking at these wonderful stories written by this absolute genius at writing fantasy."

But for Baum, all the talk of subtext blasphemes a charming children's book.

"There are a handful of professors here who love to turn 'Oz' into a

Corn, soybeans futures go lower on exchange

CHICAGO (AP) - Corn and soybean futures prices finished mostly lower Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade amid expectations of active harvesting this weekend in Midwest growing regions. Wheat futures ended mixed.

Corn and soybeans futures fell as market participants speculated farmers, seeking to meet loan payments, would sell large amounts of the record soybean crop and the second-largest corn crop on record soon after the harvest.

Grain and soybean prices have taken a battering - and are expected to go lower - because of the global economic crisis that has sharply reduced demand for American commodities, just as ideal weather promises to bring in bumper crops.

Soybean losses were limited, however, as rain delayed some harvesting in the Southeast, and after the National Oilseed Processors Association reported soybeans crushed into meal or oil rose 1 percent over the previous week.

Wheat for December delivery was unchanged at $2.66 a bushel; December corn fell 2 cents to $2.05 a bushel; December oats rose 1/2 cent to $1.141/2 a bushel; November soybeans fell 1/2 cent to $5.221/8 a bushel.

Miss America says Clinton should quit

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Miss America says President Clinton should relinquish his crown if he committed perjury, and she's not getting into trouble for saying so.

"If the president lied under oath I think he should resign," Kate Shindle said. "And I don't know whether he did, I haven't had time to read the entire Starr report, but if the president lied under oath then the president knows it."

Years ago, a Miss America who made such a bold statement about a political leader may have been censured or reprimanded. But the pageant has been striving to shed Miss America's beauty queen image.

Shindle, an AIDS activist, has publicly supported government-funded needle exchanges and the distribution of condoms in schools.

Late singers' children meet

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - After nearly five decades and a long-running legal battle, the two children of Hank Williams Sr. finally met for the first time.

Wearing cowboy hats like their famous dad, the two shook hands Thursday at the Country Music Hall of Fame, where an 8-foot bronze statue of Hank Sr. was unveiled.

"I can think of no better birthday present for our dad than for the two of us to meet at this event in his honor," Jett Williams said Friday. "I hope that this is just the first step in establishing a positive relationship."

Hank Williams Jr., 49, and his half-sister Jett, 45, were embroiled in a nine-year legal battle over their father's estate.

Jett Williams is Hank Sr.'s daughter by a 1952 affair with a Nashville secretary. She was born five days after his 1953 death and raised by adoptive parents in Alabama.

She learned her true identity in the early 1980s and went to court to fight Hank Jr. for her share of the estate. The courts upheld her claims in 1992.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says lots of people think they are charitable if they give away their old clothes and things they don't want.

Beautiful young people are the works of nature; beautiful old people are works of art.

After recuperating from surgery a year ago, I gradually got my strength back. Then I started noticing in recent months that a lot of friends and acquaintances have started remarking, "You're sure looking good!" That made me feel good about myself until I ran across an item which reported there are three distinct ages: Young, middle-age, and you're looking good!

The good thing about reaching those senior years, it seems, is that you can get away with more. A friend told us about his elderly mother who was stopped by a policeman for running through a stop sign. Trying to put the woman at ease, the officer looked at her driver's license and tried to compliment her.

"Ma'am, you sure don't look 90." That was a mistake. "Give me that," she demanded as she snatched the driver's license from his hand. She then drove away, leaving the patrolman astonished...and red-faced.

That reminds of the story about a group of little old ladies who were traveling down the highway. They were going so slow that a highway patrolman stopped them and asked the driver why she was moving at such a slow pace on the busy interstate.

"We're following the speed limit signs," said the driver. "The signs say 20 miles per hour." The patrolman advised her that the sign was the highway number, not the speed limit. He added that the speed limit was posted at 70 on the highway. "Oh," she said, "thanks for telling me."

The officer then noticed the other passengers looked pale and nervous. "What's wrong with them?" the patrolman inquired. "Oh, they'll be okay. We just turned off Highway 108."

Here are some words from a previous presidential scandal: "Yes, the president should resign. He has lied to the American people, time and time again, and betrayed their trust. He is no longer an effective leader. Since he has admitted guilt, there is no reason to put the American people through an impeachment. He will serve absolutely no purpose in finishing out his term; the only possible solution is for the president to save some dignity and resign."

The statement was made by Bill Clinton regarding the Nixon administration in 1974.

Danny Andrews, in The Plainview Herald, writes about the paradox of our age:

"We have taller buildings, but shorter tempers; wider freeways, but narrower viewpoints. We spend more but have less, and we buy more but enjoy less. We have bigger houses and smaller families; more conveniences but less time. We have more degrees but less sense; more knowledge but less judgment. There are more experts but more problems.

"We drink too much, smoke too much, spend recklessly, laugh too little, drive too fast, get too angry too quickly, stay up too late, get up too tired, read too little, watch TV too much and pray too seldom.

"We have multiplied our possessions, but reduced our values. We talk too much, love too seldom and lie too often. We've learned to make a living, but not a life. We've added years to life, not life to years. We've been all the way to the moon and back, but have trouble crossing the street to meet a new neighbor. We've conquered outer space, but not inner space. We've done larger things, but not better things. We've cleaned up the air, but polluted our souls. We've split the atom, but not our prejudice. We write more, but learn less, plan more, but accomplish less.

"We've learned to rush, but not to wait. We have higher incomes, but lower morals, and more food but less appeasement. There are more acquaintances, but fewer friends; more effort but less success. We build more computers to hold more information to produce more copies than ever, but have less communication. We've become long on quantity, but short on quality. These are the times of fast foods and slow digestion, steep profits and shallow relationships.

"These are times of world peace, but domestic warfare; more leisure and less fun. There are more kinds of food, but less nutrition. It is a time when there is much in the show window, and little in the stockroom."

GOP turning up heat on U.S. foreign policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Emboldened congressional Republicans are pursuing an increasingly activist foreign policy agenda. Democratic critics suggest it's producing a chamber of surrogate secretaries of state.

Spending bills nearing final votes are becoming easy vehicles for GOP amendments challenging President Clinton's policies.

These range from trying to impose stringent conditions on the International Monetary Fund to scuttling a 1994 nuclear power-plant agreement with North Korea to setting guidelines for weapons inspections in Iraq.

GOP leaders contend Clinton's credibility overseas has been undermined by his political weakness at home, and thus enemies will continue to test the United States.

If that creates a foreign-policy vacuum, there's no shortage of those willing to fill it.

"I am worried about the image of the United States and our president," Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., said. "It's embarrassing. I don't know any other way to describe it."

"It's important that we not be distracted... (and) that we're in a position to have the respect that's necessary to lead in these critical times," he said. Administration allies say it's led to a lot of GOP micromanagement.

"This is mindbogglingly reckless," Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., said of a House Appropriations Committee vote dropping from a foreign aid bill $35 million for fuel oil for North Korea.

The money was part of an agreement that the United States, South Korea and Japan reached with the communist nation four years ago. In exchange for the oil for power plants, North Korea agreed to curtail its nuclear energy program.

Republicans say they've lost faith in administration policy. North Korea's launch of a multistage rocket over Japan two weeks ago didn't help.

Meanwhile, despite urgent and repeated appeals from Clinton and Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin, the administration's request for $18 billion to help the IMF weather financial crises in Asia, Russia and Latin America remains in deep trouble.

Even though the Senate has passed it, the House version only earmarks $3.4 billion for the IMF - and imposes stringent conditions on that. Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, says his panel will hold hearings next year on whether the 152-nation global lending institution should be eliminated.

Republicans, meanwhile, have established a new American "hero" with whom to further challenge administration foreign policy. He's Scott Ritter, the American weapons inspector who quit a U.N. monitoring job last month saying the administration was going easy on Iraq.

Gilman, speaking Tuesday before Ritter's latest round of testimony, said Ritter "put his professional career on the line because he realized that this administration would no longer provide the political support, the credible threat of military force," to stand up to Saddam Hussein.

Reflections

Bill Clinton should resign. The day after his videotaped testimony before the grand jury, I wrote a column in which I stated the president should step down.

The president's dalliance with White House intern Monica Lewinsky and subsequent lying about it has embarrassed the nation, humiliated his wife and daughter, and allowed the investigation to drag on months longer than necessary.

He betrayed his family, his friends and his supporters.

I voted for Bill Clinton twice and I believe he's done a lot of good things as president, but I also think he should step down because he will not be -- or will not be allowed to be -- effective in office.

But Clinton should not be the only person to step aside. Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr also should shut down his $40-plus-million investigation industry, pack his bags and ooze back under his rock.

Clinton's conduct has been indefensible, but so has Starr's. He has directed a viciously partisan campaign, zealously trying to overturn the last two elections.

Starr has waged a scorched-earth campaign against Clinton, willing to destroy the Constitution, lives and reputations in his single-minded effort to get the president.

Finally, Starr came up with his report, which could better be described as a soft-core pornographic novel than as a legal document. Not satisfied with merely stating that Clinton had several sexual encounters with Lewinsky, Starr had to go into graphic detail, telling the nation more than it wanted to know and serving merely to pander to those who love to be titillated.

There is a voyeuristic quality about the Starr report that is disgusting. It would be easy to see the special prosecutor as one of those men, coat collars turned up, slinking into a porno theater.

As a nation, we have become the laughingstock of the world. And, not just because of Clinton's white-trash behavior, but also because of Starr and the sniggering, juvenile attitude displayed in his investigation.

Starr's defenders say the independent counsel has just been doing his job. To a certain extent that's true; however, one has to ask for whom has he been working?

Starr was appointed at the instigation of Sen. Lauch Faircloth, a North Carolina Republican whose hatred for the Clintons knows no bounds. Faircloth was angry because Robert Fiske, the original special prosecutor in the Whitewater probe (remember it?), wasn't aggressive enough in his investigation to suit the senator.

Through the machinations of Faircloth and U.S. District Judge David Sentelle -- and whose wife was given a job by Faircloth -- Starr was appointed independent counsel.

The rest, as the saying goes, is history.

President keeps scandal apart from job

WALTER B. MEARS

Washington Today

WASHINGTON (AP) - When it began, President Clinton said he was putting the Monica Lewinsky scandal in a little box, while he kept working at his presidential duties. The box is a lot bigger now.

But the approach Clinton described the day the investigation was disclosed still seems to be at work.

Avoiding a direct admission that he lied in January when he was denying the improper sexual conduct he admitted to a grand jury one month ago, Clinton said there is a personal toll in pain, but he feels better now "because I'm working on what I think I should be working on."

"I believe the right thing for the country, and what I believe the people of the country want, is now that they know what happened they want to put it behind them and they want to go on, and they want me to go on and do my job, and that's what I intend to do," he said Wednesday as he took, but did not really answer, questions about the affair.

"That is the right thing to do," he said at his first news conference since Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr sent his 11-count impeachment allegations to the House.

One compartment for the scandal, another for the work of the presidency Clinton said he means to hold for the next two years, to the end of his term.

That's the coping system by which a tearfully contrite Clinton could pray forgiveness in the morning, and by evening, appear as the bantering president telling Irish-Americans that evening that he was lapping up the laughter and applause of a celebration on the White House lawn.

In his campaign compartment, Clinton said the scandal's impact is not the real danger to Democrats in the Nov. 3 elections, that the risk lies in the history of off-year defeats of the presidential party, "complicated by good times," that could lead to complacency.

He even suggested there could be a political up side to the situation.

"Go tell people... not to worry about the adversity," Clinton told Democratic donors in New York on Monday. "Adversity makes people come out and show up - witness your presence here tonight."

So far, to Clinton's advantage, Americans polled on the president's affair are handling it in compartments too. More than 60 percent say he doesn't share the moral values of most Americans, but more than 60 percent also say they approve of the job he's doing as president and don't want him forced from office.

Those numbers, and changes in them, will be a factor in what happens, for all the congressional denials that polls or politics will affect impeachment deliberations. Five months before Richard M. Nixon resigned in 1974, the polls began showing that more Americans wanted him out than in.

But there are real numbers coming for Clinton and this Congress six weeks from Tuesday, in the off-year elections. A Democratic drubbing would cost the president more than votes for the defense in the House and Senate. It could undermine his already skittish support in his own party.

In an interview on Jan. 21, the day the Starr investigation became public, Clinton specifically denied an improper sexual relationship with Ms. Lewinsky and described his way of coping: "Whatever I feel about it, I owe it to the American people to put it in a little box and keep working for them."

While he speaks now of concentrating on the job he was elected to do, the Lewinsky affair no longer fits the compartment. There are demands for his resignation - he dismisses them - from Republicans who contend that he can no longer lead effectively.

His defenders say he can, although no one can pretend it is not as a weakened president in dealing with an opposition Congress.

Democratic Rep. Charles Rangel of New York said Clinton "is not going to yield and negotiate things that he believes are unfair to the American people merely because of the embarrassing situation that he finds himself in with the Republican leadership."

What's the presidency descended to?

DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE

The Real World

I've never been much into politics. Granted, I do vote and have in every presidential election except one since I was 18.

I have to admit that while I was still young and dumb and impressionable, I did allow some friends to draw me into the campaigning efforts of one Massachusetts Democrat - and it wasn't John F. Kennedy.

My candidate never got past the Democratic National Convention. He must not have made much of an impression on anyone, because as the years have gone by, even I have forgotten his name.

What I do remember, however, is that as a young, dumb and impressionable first time voter, I liked what I heard of the candidate. I thought he would do us a good job and besides he was a Democrat, so he couldn't be all that bad.

Not that I have ever voted a straight party ticket, it's just that my thoughts usually lined up with candidates on Democratic platforms.

Maybe I can't really be blamed. My first memory of a political nature occurred Nov. 22, 1963, shortly after noon. I can still remember my mother leaving lunch preparations and crying as Walter Cronkite announced "President John F. Kennedy has been shot."

I can remember my father being upset because the special news update pre-empted whatever soap-opera came on that he used to watch. Mama, coming from Providence, Rhode Island, felt something of a kinship with the Massachusetts family, and like so many others felt a deep loss.

Daddy was just ticked off because his program wasn't on the air. Years later, I feel that surely my mother's opinion of JFK must have lessened as one scandal after another came to light. She's made comments that re-affirm this notion, though she's never said so outright.

After Kennedy came Lyndon Baines Johnson, Richard M. Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan, George Bush and, now, Bill Clinton.

For the most part, I can remember both good and bad things about most of the officeholders. Most, including Nixon, I can still have some respect for. He at least had the decency to resign before he could further damage the highest office in the country. Many have said Carter was ineffective - maybe, maybe not. At least he wasn't detrimental. And, he had a nice smile, for a peanut farmer from Georgia.

Reagan had great presence, and must be forgiven if he sometimes fell asleep - after all, he was nearly 70 when he took office.

And for all his efforts, I don't think Bush really hurt the broccoli growers. It is still one of the top vegetables ordered at restaurants.

But, now the country is in the position of dealing with our current presidential situation. Forgive me if I seem to show absolutely no respect for the man.

Previously, I've made note that he is at least intelligent. He is a Rhodes Scholar, but then the best of organizations can make mistakes.

I still hold the office of the president of the United States in highest esteem. Unfortunately, now though, the man in the office is only the butt of some very bad jokes.

I'm quite proud to say that it's not my fault. Not just once, but twice I chose not to vote for this individual.

From early in the election process, way back in the '90s, I told anyone who would listen that I thought Clinton was something worse than a reprobate. He just never instilled any confidence with me.

The first scandal I can remember, concerning him involved a woman other than Hilary. (Just for anyone who is interested, she doesn't impress me much either.) Then came Whitewater and $600 haircuts!

Come on, world! What is it going to take to make the American public understand they've been snookered?

This man has never said he's sorry! At best he's said he's sorry for getting caught, then tried to blame someone else for lies, cheats and deceptions.

I can't help but feel that the presidential seal has been so badly stained that is all most people will see when they think of the office, the man, or the party.

I don't know who will be the next occupant at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. What I do know is that if they are to be free from the shadows and aspersions cast on the office by the antics of its current occupants, then the American public needs to let it be known these type of shenanigans will never be

Tape's image of Clinton not one he wants

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent
 WASHINGTON - After his campaign of humble contrition, President Clinton's videotaped testimony promises to resurrect the picture of a man who dodged answers, split legal hairs and fumed at prosecutors. That is not the image the White House wants Americans to remember.

Clinton's lieutenants worry the tape could undermine the carefully nurtured appearance of a president seeking forgiveness. Also, that snippets from the four hours will wind up in Republican ads before the Nov. 3 election and contribute to Democratic defeats.

On the other hand, Americans are telling pollsters overwhelmingly that they are tired of this scandal, sick of the details and don't want to see the videotapes. Some analysts believe the tapes' release could reinforce the impression that Kenneth Starr is an overzealous prosecutor, asking needlessly embarrassing questions of the president.

"At the end of the day it's not going to be that damaging to him (Clinton) and may end up ironically more damaging to Starr and the Republicans," said Marvin Kalb, director of a Harvard University center on press and public policy.

Kathleen Jamieson, a communications expert at the University of Pennsylvania, said the videotape, expected to be released soon, could affect public opinion if the prosecutors' questions appear unfair or invasive, or if Clinton is too legalistic or uncomfortable.

"To the extent this appears to be a fair and judicious process, this could be damaging to Clinton," she said. "If (Starr) is unfair and injudicious, Clinton is helped. Clinton is a very powerful communicator. The question is, did he retain that capacity in these answers."

Clinton testified in the White House Map Room on Aug. 17 and then went before the nation that night with a televised address that was considered a public relations disaster even by his closest allies. He was still angry about intrusive questions from Starr's prosecutors and it showed. Clinton later said publicly he had not been contrite enough, and he went on to say he had sinned and repented.

Attorneys familiar with Clinton's testimony say he was at times angry and defiant, struggling uncomfortably to answer some questions and at one point accusing prosecutors of trying to criminalize his private life.

Democrats have been complaining that Clinton's attorneys, in trying to protect him from perjury charges, have been relying on absurdly contorted definitions of what constitutes sex.

Clinton may face the same criticism about his testimony.

"You are free to infer that my testimony is that I did not have sexual relations, as I understood this term to be defined," Clinton testified, according to the Starr report.

Another time he said: "It depends on how you define 'alone.' ... There were a lot of times when we were alone, but I never really thought we were."

Asked why he had not corrected his attorney who said on Jan. 17 that "there is absolutely no sex of any kind in any manner, shape or form," Clinton responded with a discussion of definitions. "It depends on what the meaning of 'is' is," the president began.

White House officials have not seen the tape but already are mounting a counterattack.

Clinton lieutenant Rahm Emanuel said, "The one thing you learn from this tape release is this is more about the loss of bipartisanship in Congress and the emergence of partisanship."

Robertson: Resignation not enough

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Rev. Pat Robertson has demanded that Congress impeach President Clinton, saying resignation is too good for a "debauched, debased and defamed" leader.

"While resignation might be easier for America, it's not best for America," Robertson told 3,000 members of the Christian Coalition attending a two-day conference of the nation's most active religious conservatives.

Four or five members of the crowd held up yellow signs that read, "Impeach Clinton."

Christian Coalition leaders have long called for Clinton's ouster, but the rhetoric was more timely and stronger than ever. It is the organization's first gathering since the president admitted to an affair with Monica Lewinsky and House began work that could lead to impeachment proceedings.

In a veiled warning to Republicans tempted to move cautiously toward impeachment, Robertson said, "I'm not sure whether the Republican or Democratic Party will emerge stronger."

"How can we truly say the party of (former Sen. Bob) Packwood and (former President Richard) Nixon has reached perfection while the party of Kennedy and ... (Clinton) is hopelessly beyond redemption?" Robertson asked. "Of course, that is not the case."

Ralph Reed, former director of the Christian Coalition, later told the group that there are Republicans in "the upper reaches" of the GOP leadership who want to move timidly against Clinton.

Not wanting to be considered among the timid, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott followed Reed to the stage and promised to take impeachment proceedings seriously.

"I don't know if ... (Clinton) will do the right thing, but we will do the right thing," Lott said.

Reed said Democrats will pay in Nov. 3 elections for supporting Clinton. "They're going to get a wake-up call." And he predicted that Americans, more than ever, will take character into account in November and 2000.

"We care about the character of our leaders and we will not rest until we have moral leaders on every level of government from the courthouse to the White House," Reed said.

Robertson urged Democrats and Republicans alike to push forward with impeachment "because we need America to see there are still outstanding leaders in our midst. After all, not all of our leaders are debauched, debased and defamed."

Robertson heard a smattering of boos when he told the crowd that, as Christians, they must forgive Clinton. But then he quickly added that as citizens, people "must do our duty ... to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, even when our president does not do so."

The failed 1988 GOP presidential candidate expressed disgust with the revelations of Clinton's affair with Ms. Lewinsky, calling them "our worst nightmare."

"For nearly nine months, we have seen one man wreak political havoc on our most noble office. For nine months, we have been mocked, demeaned, belittled and lied to," he said to thunderous applause.

The Oval Office has become "the playpen for the sexual freedom of the poster child of the 1960s."

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "I say to you today, we will be silent no longer!"

acceptable.

To my mind's eye, anyway we go Clinton will get off easy. Impeachment proceedings take a long time. By the time the proceedings could be complete, he would have served out nearly his second full term.

Censure! Yeah, what are we going to do? Pay someone to follow him around every minute and say No! No! Billy boy?

At best, he might resign and choose to leave the country. But, I doubt if that will happen, so in the mean time have you heard the one about Clinton and ...

Republican leaders also will make another attempt to win approval of "fast-track" trade authority. Clinton sought this for himself in 1997 but abandoned it in the face of heavy Democratic opposition.

Now, needing all the Democrat support he can get, Clinton isn't about to renew a drive that would further alienate his party. "We intend to pass it," House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, told reporters.

While Democrats have narrowly blocked it in the Senate, GOP legislation to overturn administration policy and put a national missile defense system in place as soon as technologically possible is also getting a renewed push from House Republicans.

Part of that defense system should be space-based, as former President Reagan suggested 15 years ago, said House Speaker Newt Gingrich. "Any notion that we are not going to put defense in space does psychological harm" to our defense outlook, he told a foreign policy forum.

Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, the senior Democrat on the House International Relations Committee, said efforts by the GOP Congress to seize the initiative on key foreign policy issues is troubling many U.S. allies.

But don't underestimate Clinton's ability to prevail in the end, suggested Hamilton.

"He is still the president of the United States. He has awesome powers as president. He's the most powerful political leader in the world, whether he has weaknesses at home or not."

Deflation, inflation? Neither

NEW YORK (AP) - You can see it in the faces of farmers as grain prices plunge. You can measure its lessened impact on your wallet by watching the numbers spin more slowly at the gasoline pump.

Signs of deflation, however spotty, are appearing in the U.S. economy.

Commodity prices, basic to the production of a vast variety of consumer products, continue to fall. A major steelmaker has just lowered prices. Computers and electronic products seem to cost less each week.

Deflation's presence hasn't yet shown up in the Consumer Price Index, which rose 0.2 percent in August, but the Producer Price Index has fallen in eight of the past 10 months through August.

All this doesn't mean the U.S. economy as a whole is deflating. Prices are still rising and the economy continues to grow. But the signs of price weakness could spread, as they have in much of the less developed world.

"Deflationary forces are continuing to emerge" throughout the world, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said last week. And he suggested the process could be moving in the direction of the United States.

In a world in which economies are tied together by trade, deflation can be as contagious as the flu, a scourge that can lead to lower wages and profits, and layoffs and failures. It can undermine securities.

Signs of deflation or inflation, therefore, must be dealt with as illnesses. If inflation is a fever, deflation is a collapse of the economy's blood pressure with all the attendant consequences.

The United States is still in an inflation mode, however slight, but deflation fear is rising. For many months, monetary officials have looked for signs of inflation; they now tilt slightly toward deflation.

Should it envelop the economy, it might force employers to curtail costs, including payrolls, and drop their prices. It might mean fewer jobs and shrunken incomes. Stock prices as a result would suffer.

Price competition might intensify as producers and retailers choose cost-cutting to losing market share, especially to imports. Competition could be deadly in businesses based on commodities, such as iron and oil.

Service industries might do better, especially in areas where demand can be maintained, as among health-care businesses and utilities. Discounters, already winning market share, might become more popular.

Homeowners with variable rate mortgages might be major beneficiaries of deflation, if you measure their well-being on the basis of falling interest rates. Some could lower costs hundreds of dollars a month.

Those with lots of cash or its equivalent would be able to get good buys. Investors in U.S. Treasury bonds also could benefit, in this instance if such securities, considered secure havens, rose in value. The same, however, might not apply to corporate or municipal bond holders.

These are likely events should deflation spread, but even those who might seem to benefit could be hurt as the economy slows.

Employers who cut jobs, for example, might also cut demand for their products. Companies might lower quality or service, spreading the damage. Homeowners could lose jobs, bond holders lose interest income.

Neither widespread inflation nor deflation are certain to develop, but one or the other is a threat, with the odds now leaning toward the latter. In fact, pockets of deflation already can be seen.

Dole gets the last laugh with book

WASHINGTON (AP) - "Irreverence is in my blood," says Bob Dole, who has written a book aimed at proving that he's not the only politician with a sense of humor.

Dole's humor was on display in 1996, when he was running unsuccessfully for president, and among the politicians Bob Dole quotes in his book is Bob Dole.

Including his quip when former Presidents Carter, Ford and Nixon stood side by side at a White House event.

"There they are," Dole said, "'See no evil, hear no evil and ... evil.'"

His book, just published by Doubleday, is called "Great Political Wit" and costs $16.95. It is a little book. It measures 7 inches by 5 inches. It has big type and 190 pages. It weighs 10.3 ounces.

Dole takes much of his humor out of the mouth of others who've lost the presidency. He quotes William Howard Taft as reflecting upon his 1912 defeat for re-election in a three-way race. He says that Taft said he took some consolation in knowing that no man in American history had ever been elected ex-president by such an overwhelming majority.

He quotes what Richard Nixon told John F. Kennedy's speechwriter, Ted Sorensen, after JFK had defeated Nixon and delivered a stirring inaugural address in 1961.

"I wish I had said some of those things," said Nixon.

"What part?" asked Sorensen, with pride. "That part about 'Ask not what your country can do for you?'"

"No," Nixon replied. "The part that starts, 'I do solemnly swear.'"

In Dole's book, some of the best humor is self-deprecating. Taft weighed over 350 pounds and when he left the White House his alma mater, Yale, offered him a chair of law. Taft replied that a sofa of law would be more appropriate.

Adlai E. Stevenson was another big presidential loser with a sense of the ridiculous. When he was running against Dwight D. Eisenhower, someone rushed up after a speech to inform him he would have "the support of all thinking Americans."

"Not enough," Stevenson replied. "I'm going to need a majority."

Ted Kennedy, Dole says, once gave voice to a thought that must have occurred to everyone who sought the presidency and lost: "Frankly, I don't mind not being president. I just mind that someone else is."

Former Arizona Rep. Morris Udall's presidential bug was squashed in the Democratic primaries of 1976. Fourteen years later, Udall was asked if he might run again and paraphrased William T. Sherman. "If nominated," the congressman said,

"I will run to Mexico; if elected, I will fight extradition."

Here and there, author Dole turns serious. He says he rushed onto the late night television shows with his one-liners after his defeat because he wanted to show that "losing an election does not mean losing your sense of humor."

And he says that "it's not just a coincidence that the two most successful presidents of this century - Franklin Roosevelt and Ronald Reagan - are also the two who possessed the healthiest sense of humor about themselves and their job."

America is great, says Dole, "because anyone can grow up and make fun of the president."

Which recalls what Dole says Barry M. Goldwater, 1964 Republican loser by a landslide, had to say about the idea that any child can become president.

Yeah, said Goldwater, "it's a great country where anybody can grow up to be president ... except me."

Says Dole, "I know how he feels."

In a blurb on the book's jacket, Elizabeth Dole writes that she was tempted to give the book a bad review. Why? Because when she served as secretary of transportation in Reagan's Cabinet, Dole once said that the Federal Highway Administration used his wife's biscuit recipe to fill potholes.

New TV season means lots of 'new' shows

By FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer

Life, as we all know, is a process, a journey that prepares you for the great beyond: A sitcom starring you as the person you used to be before you scored your TV deal.

This is something Ray Romano knows well, having enshrined his former life as a Long Island family guy in the hit comedy "Everybody Loves Raymond."

Jerry Seinfeld, awash in millions from the sitcom where he played a stand-up comic trying to wangle a sitcom deal, knows it too. Ditto, Roseanne. And a few seasons ago, The Mommies sure tried.

Now Boston barmaid-turned-comic Sue Costello is seeking her own plush hereafter with the autobiographical sitcom "Costello," which premiered on Fox last Tuesday. And John DiResta, a real-life New York City transit cop turned stand-up comedian turned sitcom hopeful, will play a transit cop on "DiResta" Mondays on UPN starting Oct. 5.

The lesson from this is clear: Live each day as if it were an episode of a sitcom starring you as yourself where you're up against "Drew Carey." Someday, sweetie, you might be.

The 1998-99 season officially begins this week, ushering in 16 of the total crop of 36 new series. But before you stress out at the thought of catching each premiere, remember there's much to learn from the networks' fall offerings - without your even having to watch.

- Lesson: If your children's mother should fly the coop, do not despair. It means you can hire a sexy younger woman who will gladly tend to your offspring and potentially you, too. Divorce or widowhood? No prob! ABC's "Two Of A Kind" and Fox's "Holding the Baby" erase all doubt.

- Lesson: Life is a cosmic quota you must meet ... or else. The hero of ABC's "Cupid" insists he must romantically link 100 couples before he can return to Mount Olympus. On Fox's "Brimstone," cop-gone-to-hell Peter Horton is sent back up to Earth, where redemption awaits him only if he can recapture 113 fugitive souls.

Even the assistants on ABC's "Fantasy Island" are chipping away at some sort of liability. "Are we any closer to getting released?" they ask Mr. Roarke after pulling off another fantasy. "A little closer," he says with a sneer.

- Lesson: The show must go on. Recently Fox snuffed "Hollyweird," a creepy-crawly whodunit, before it ever drew a breath. This follows in the tradition of last season's "Rewind," a Fox sitcom starring Scott Baio similarly yanked before its premiere.

Imagine! Good enough to win a place on the schedule, bad enough to be stillborn.

- Lesson: You can beg, barter or steal, but keep it off the books.

For instance, on ABC's "Vengeance Unlimited," Michael Madsen plays a mysterious loner with justice for sale. The tab for his services is $1 million - or you may promise him a favor in return. You can guess which he prefers (imagine the tax bite on that million!).

- Lesson: You CAN go home again, whether as a big success (the young software tycoon of WB's "Hyperion Bay") or a failure (Faith Ford as CBS' broke, divorced "Maggie Winters").

And you can LEAVE home. Escaping her parents, the comely eponym of WB's "Felicity" bolts clean across the continent for college in New York City.

Don't try to make your home in the 'burbs. As the gated subdivisions of ABC's "The Hughleys" and Fox's "Living in Captivity" demonstrate, the only menace greater than people who are different from you is those who aren't.

- Lesson: With the exception of the gay leading man on "Will & Grace" and the promiscuously nice title character of "Conrad Bloom" (both on NBC), males on sitcoms are likely to be infantile louts.

Consider CBS' "King Of Queens" and ABC's "Secret Lives of Men," for starters.

And even a man holding the nation's highest office can be an oaf, according to "The Secret Diaries of Desmond Pfeiffer." A screwball exercise in revisionist history, this UPN comedy exposes Abraham Lincoln as a philandering buffoon. Imagine such behavior in a president!

- Which brings us to one final lesson of the new TV season: News can be the most outrageous TV fare of all.

For the second year in a row, a real-life, happening-in-real-time story is upstaging the networks' launch of their fall schedules. Last year, viewers were riveted by Princess Diana's death and its aftermath - a fairy tale gone tragically, unsavorily wrong.

Now, of course, audiences flock to "Clintongate," which, along with "Dawson's Creek" and "Kids Say the Darndest Things," was one of last winter's mid-season hits.

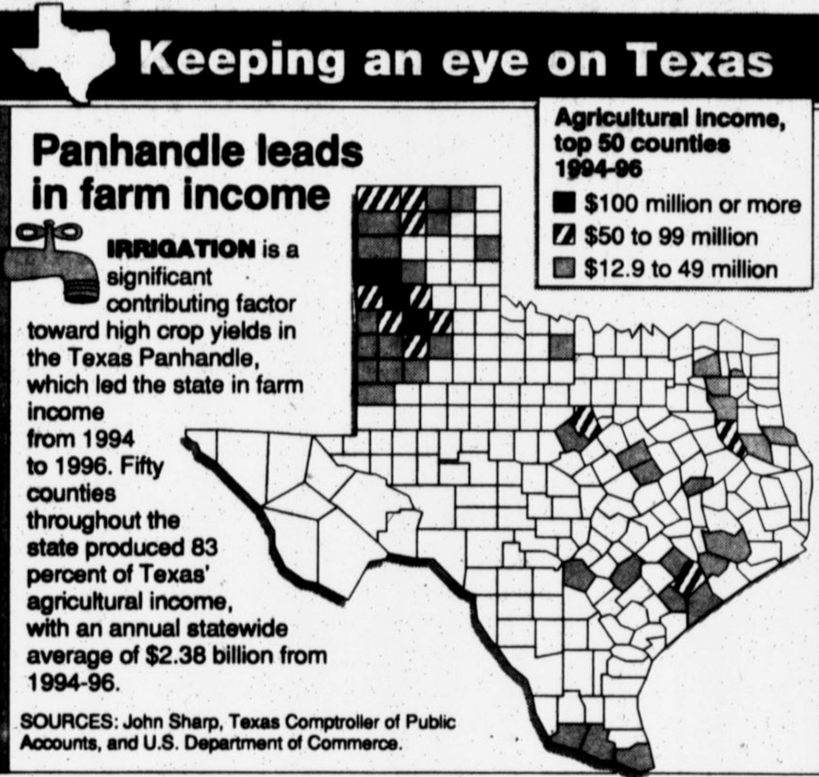

C-SPAN cohabitates with "Midnight Blue." Jerry Springer meets Lawrence

Spivak. Complete with built-in product placements for Altoids mints and the Gap, this Washington-based saga is the most appalling, hilarious, dismaying, inventive, disgusting, lurid, debasing, divisive, mephitic, irresistible fiasco on the air.

And it breaks the networks' cardinal programming rule: not a hero in sight. Frazier Moore can be reached at fmoore@ap.org

Forgotten convict ordered released

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - A woman forgotten for 16 years after being convicted of killing her boyfriend was ordered released today, a year after authorities finally remembered the case and found her living quietly at home.

Loretta Randley's manslaughter sentence was commuted to time served a day after the 58-year-old grandmother's lawyer argued that she had essentially served probation all those years at home and that evidence of long-term sexual abuse should have been introduced as a defense at her 1981 trial.

After she was convicted of shooting her boyfriend, Hartman Delano Poirier, she was released on bond pending an appeal. The appeal was denied in 1982. The letter notifying Ms. Randley that she should go to jail went to the wrong address.

For the next 16 years, Ms. Randley raised her children and also helped with raising some of her 25 grandchildren. But a tip last year led police to Ms. Randley, and she was picked up and taken to jail to serve her eight-year sentence.

Merry Christmas! Santa fight brewing at store

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - It's not Christmas time yet, but a Santa-sized dispute is brewing in Louisville.

Former Wal-Mart worker Marta Brown is challenging the store's right to replace her with a male Santa Claus.

Wal-Mart claims it replaced Ms.

Brown after a mother complained about her gender. The woman's child had pinched Ms. Brown's breast while in Santa's chair and said, "Mom, Santa Claus is a woman."

During a hearing Wednesday before an officer of the Kentucky Human Rights Commission, Ms. Brown, 45, said she quit her regular Wal-Mart job as a customer service associate after her co-workers teased her about the incident.

An attorney for Wal-Mart contends the store was trying to uphold Christmas tradition and respond to the complaint from the child's mother.

"It's our position being a male is part and parcel of being Santa Claus," said attorney Kathy Quesenberry. "Santa Claus is a man. He has a beard. He's married to Mrs. Claus."

Trucker can keep his scatological decal

TRENTON, Tenn. (AP) - It may be rude, but it isn't illegal for John Mathis to put a scatological bumper sticker on his truck.

Gibson County Judge Mark Agee ruled Thursday in favor of Mathis, who was ticketed last month for having an offensive decal on his truck.

State Trooper Glenn Taylor wrote the ticket after seeing the decal depicting a little boy - similar to the Calvin character in the "Calvin and Hobbes" comic strip - urinating on the word "Bama."

Mathis, is a University of Tennessee football fan and bought the popular decal because the University of Alabama is a hated rival.

Lady Whitefaces sweep triangular

From staff reports

Hereford swept a pair of matches Friday in a volleyball triangular at Whiteface Gymnasium. The Lady Whitefaces downed Canyon Randall 17-15, 15-6 and then cruised past Fort Elliott, 15-2, 15-5.

Tori Walker led Hereford in the Randall match, recording 13 kills and two blocks. Christy Schumacher added nine kills and eight digs for the Lady Whitefaces, and Kristin Fangman had five kills.

Makesha Rives led Hereford with nine digs against the Lady Raiders. Rives and Lyndi Carlile also had four kills each for Hereford.

Walker had another seven kills in the match with Fort Elliott. Schumacher, Kristin Fangman and Ashley Fangman all had four kills each for the Lady Whitefaces.

Valerie Guzman had two aces for Hereford in the match.

With the two wins, Hereford is now 17-4 on the season.

Bam sees Bears as last chance

By NANCY ARMOUR
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO -- Bam Morris will always remember the pain in his mother's eyes as the handcuffs snapped shut around his wrists.

He'd had every opportunity, every advantage that comes with being one of the best running backs in the country, and he'd blown it. Now there he was on his way to jail for violating probation, the threat of a 10-year prison sentence ringing in his ears.

That was when Morris finally started to wise up.

"For the longest time, I took my talent for granted," he said. "The style I was in, the mode I was in, I think I took everything for granted until I had a chance to lose it."

After years of doing whatever he wanted and thinking rules were for other people, Morris is on his last chance. The Chicago Bears running back promises he's a changed man this time, and friends and colleagues say he's sincere.

He'd better be. Another screw up, and his talent on the football field won't mean a thing.

"I don't think my football ability was ever questioned. I can play," he said. "As far as the character, about off the field, that was the thing."

With a quick smile and an infectious laugh, Morris hardly looks like someone with such a troubled past. But he looks older than just 26, and he speaks with the wisdom of someone who's seen a lot.

He talks openly about his problems, most of which stem from being caught with about 6 pounds of marijuana in the trunk of his Mercedes-Benz. And he hopes he can prevent someone else from making the same mistakes.

"I had nobody, really, watching me and telling me this is wrong and that's wrong," he said. "I always thought, 'I have no control over it. If it happens, it happens. It was meant to happen.' That was always my excuse.

"But now the way I look at it is, 'What I want to happen, I'm going to make it happen.'"

At the beginning of his career, Byron "Bam" Morris looked as if nothing could stop him.

He was the top prep rusher in Texas as a senior, running for 2,972 yards and 39 touchdowns, and he continued to shine at Texas Tech. His 1,752 yards as a senior broke Earl Campbell's Southwest Conference rushing record, and he received the 1993 Doak Walker Award as the nation's top running back.

By his second season with the Pittsburgh Steelers, Morris had become one of the NFL's best backs. In the 1996 Super Bowl, he rushed for a game-high 73 yards and a touchdown in a losing effort. And then his life began to fall apart.

On March 22, 1996, he was arrested near Rockwall after a state trooper stopped him for not wearing a seat belt and found the marijuana in his car. He pleaded guilty that June to possession and was given six years' probation. The Pittsburgh Steelers released him.

The Baltimore Ravens signed him in September 1996, but he was suspended for four games for violating the NFL's substance abuse policy.

The problems didn't end there. He was suspended for the first four games of the 1997 season after an offseason NFL test revealed he'd used alcohol. When he missed seven meetings with his probation officer from July 1996 to August 1997, prosecutors hauled him back to court.

On Jan. 12, as part of a plea bargain, Morris was sentenced to four months in county jail with his JONATHAN SHELBY of Wolforth Frenship finds little running room Friday night at Tiger Stadium as Hereford's Leo Balderaz (44) and Johnny Zammaripa (48) close in. Hereford won, 31-28.

Pass-happy Herd soars above Frenship, 31-28

By BOB VARMETTE

WOLFFORTH -- In the end, it was a Hereford turnover that cost Wolforth Frenship the victory.

The Tigers had just closed the gap to two points -- 24-22 in favor of the Whitefaces -- on a 46-yard strike from Trace Vineyard to Steven Todd. Hereford looked like it was going to have to run out the final 5:04 of the game clock, and running is something Hereford doesn't do well.

But then Hereford's L.J. Vallejo fumbled the ensuing kickoff and two plays later, Frenship's Dustin Peters bowled into the end zone from six yards out for a 28-24 Tiger lead.

Now the Whitefaces had Frenship right where they wanted them. They Hereford had to pass, and that they can do.

Hereford quarterback Cody Hodges marched the Whitefaces 80 yards in 10 plays -- going 6-for-7 for 62 yards -- before taking it in himself from five yards out with 53 seconds left in the game to lift Hereford to a 31-28 nondistrict win Friday night at Tiger Stadium.

"These guys showed a lot of character," Hereford coach Craig Yenser said. "They never gave up. These guys showed so much character. There were many times where we could've been left for dead, but these guys kept coming and kept coming."

Hereford improves to 2-1 on the season and Frenship falls to 2-1.

For the Tigers -- for whom the combination of Cody Hodges and Slade Hodges had been a big concern -- the reality turned out to be worse than they thought.

"You've got to give (Cody Hodges) all the credit," Frenship coach Bobby Davis said. "He's a great one in that shotgun. The pressure never bothered him."

Cody Hodges ended the night 17-for-26 for 235 yards with one touchdown and an interception. He also ran for two touchdowns.

Slade Hodges completed the nightmare for the Frenship defense, catching seven passes for 146 yards.

"Our plan was to stop them," Davis said. "Obviously, we didn't do that. Hodges just avoided our rush. Sometimes it was some poor tackling, but he was cool under fire."

Early, Cody Hodges was running for his life -- getting sacked three times in the first half, and the Tigers looked like they were going to make it a rout. Frenship got out to a quick 7-0 advantage, driving 52 yards in six plays on the game's initial drive.

Hereford's response lasted only three plays. Facing third and 10 from their own 22-yard-line, Cody Hodges made an errant pitch on the option and Frenship's Todd recovered at the Hereford 30.

The Tigers capped off a five-play, 30-yard drive when tailback Jonathan Shelby scored on a dive from one yard out to put Frenship up 13-0 with 6:13 left in the first quarter. Todd's try for point ricocheted wide to the left off the left goal post.

It looked like it might be a long night for the Whitefaces.

Rangers rap A's to go up by 2 in West

ARLINGTON (AP) -- John Burkett saw the way Todd Stottlemyre handled the Anaheim Angels by starting batters with low fastballs on the first pitch. So he tried the same thing against the Oakland Athletics.

Using the strategy to get ahead in counts, Burkett threw his best game in two months as Texas beat Oakland 3-1 on Friday night. The Rangers' fourth-straight win helped them go two games ahead of Anaheim in the AL West as the Angels fell to Seattle 5-3 in 12 innings.

"Before Stottlemyre's game the other night he was talking about establishing the fastball, just concentrating on keeping it down and being aggressive," Burkett said. "I watched him execute that and I thought to myself, 'That's my kind of game plan. I should be able to do the same thing.'"

After watching tapes of himself successfully using that strategy the last two years, Burkett decided to give it a shot.

"It was funny because when I came in tonight Pudge said 'Hey, let's throw some more fastballs and establish it early,'" Burkett said.

Burkett did more than regain a lost touch. He might have saved his spot in the rotation.

Texas manager Johnny Oates was considering sending Burkett to the bullpen going with four starters beginning Wednesday with the final game of the pivotal Anaheim series.

Now Burkett may get to keep his turn.

"By him pitching this way, I can justify staying with a five-man (rotation) and not having to pitch four guys out of a role they haven't been used to," Oates said.

Oates said he was already thinking about giving Burkett another try because his other starters haven't pitched on short rest very much in their careers. He's especially afraid of asking 19-game winner Rick Helling and 18-game winner Aaron Sele to take on extra work because they've already thrown the most innings of their careers.

Burkett is anxious for the opportunity.

"I've been used to getting the ball in big games," said Burkett, a 10-year veteran. "But I totally understand Johnny's side of it. It's hard to have confidence in a guy who is 8-13 with a (5.87) ERA."

Burkett allowed a season-low four hits in a season-high eight innings, striking out one and walking none. He threw just 89 pitches, 60 of them strikes.

"When he's pitching 0-1 and they're putting second pitch in play, that's a plus for him," Oates said.

John Wetteland, who set the Rangers' save record Thursday night, allowed two hits to start the ninth before getting three straight outs for his 42nd save. It was Texas' 46th save of the year, setting another team record.

Mike Oquist (7-11) allowed just two hits over the first four innings. But Lee Stevens opened the fifth with a single and Todd Zeile followed with a homer, his second in as many nights after going 30 games without one.

Stevens, who had been 3-for-20 before singling in the fifth, added a solo homer in the sixth.

Oquist, who entered the game with a league-worst 8.32 ERA on the road, gave up three runs and six hits in six innings. He struck out six and walked three.

"He did his job," Oakland manager Art Howe said. "We just ran into a starter that did a little better."

McGwire hits No. 64

MILWAUKEE (AP) -- Mark McGwire swears he doesn't care if Sammy Sosa passes him at the finish line in the Great Home Run Chase of 1998.

Still, he keeps making it harder on the Chicago slugger.

In the stadium where Hank Aaron hit his final home run for the career record, McGwire added to the single-season mark Friday night.

Overmatched UNT goes to Arizona State for $$$

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) -- Lured by money and facing a team oh so hungry for a victory after an unexpectedly awful start to the season, North Texas visits Arizona State this weekend overmatched but not overlooked.

"We're taking them very seriously, obviously," Arizona State quarterback Ryan Kealy said. "We're 0-2, and if we don't take them seriously, there's something really wrong with this team."

There has been something very wrong with the Wildcats so far this season, as they lost a heartbreaker to Washington at home 42-38, then were beaten soundly by Brigham Young 26-7.

By all accounts, the Sun Devils' practices this week were as spirited and intense as they have been all season for a team that must regroup after its heady expectations were dashed in a 42-38 heartbreaker to Washington and a surprisingly one-sided 26-6 loss at Brigham Young.

"I think we were up in the clouds a little bit," Kealy said. "This has brought us down to reality. This is football. We just have to go out and hit and hit and hit until they can't hit us anymore."

North Texas is in just its fourth season in NCAA Division I and has yet to challenge for the Big West title, let alone be competitive with the likes of Arizona State. The Mean Green opened their season with a 37-9 loss at Oklahoma, then lost last week at home to Texas Tech 30-0.

North Texas has given up 292 yards per game on the ground, and can expect to see a lot of J.R. Redmond and the other Arizona State running backs on Saturday night.

Redmond gained only 28 yards in 16 carries last week. As a team, the Sun Devils managed just 22 yards on the ground.

"We should get 22 yards in one drive," Arizona State coach Bruce Snyder said. "So you bet, we're going to go run the football."

The Sun Devils will have six new starters. Some of the changes were forced by injury. Defensive back Mitchell Freedman will sit out the game because of a strained thigh muscle. Phillip Brown will start in his place.

Chance

mother, Marie, looking on in court. Make one more mistake, the judge said, and Morris would serve the rest of his 10-year probation in prison.

Morris, who was released by Baltimore after his sentencing, served 89 days.

"Even though he got in trouble, I don't think the reality of it hit him until he got sent to jail," said Josh Kaufmann, Morris' agent. "Then it was, 'Whoa! Wait a minute. This isn't a slap on the wrist. I'm in a really serious situation here.'"

While Morris was committed to turning his life around, many NFL teams weren't so sure. After the high-profile problems of players such as Lawrence Phillips, Michael Irvin and Alonzo Spellman, few teams were willing to take a chance.

The Bears, however, took one. With top draft pick Curtis Enis holding out, Chicago needed someone to back up Edgar Bennett. Morris signed a one-year contract worth about $500,000.

"He did not try to hide anything," said Rick Spielman, the team's director of pro personnel. "He realized this might be his last chance, and he's done everything we've asked him to do. And beyond that."

Though Morris had a strong training camp, showing he hadn't lost any of his bruising talent, he dropped to third string when Enis signed. He didn't play in the first game, and got just two carries last weekend. The Bears plan to keep him the rest of the season, though, in part because they know he can step in right away if Enis or Bennett get hurt.

While Morris is anxious to play, he knows being on the field isn't the most important thing right now.

"The issue is whether he can stay out of trouble," Kaufmann said.

And Morris is making every effort. Instead of hanging out with friends, he spends his time off the field with his wife, Stephanie, and his daughter, Courtney. His former Steelers teammate, John L. Williams, has become a surrogate big brother and often travels with Morris on road trips.

Morris moves forward by constantly reminding himself of where he's been. Though it hurts to remember, he thinks of the pain he saw in his mother's eyes. Of how badly he hurt his daughter and wife.

And of what it was like to hear those jail doors clang shut every night.

"I feel like I'm 33 and I've been in the league for 12 years," he said. "It just feels like it's been a long time with all of the stuff I've been through. It aged me. You can guarantee, I think it aged me for the better."

"My mind is clear. I see everything I didn't see four years ago."

Flying

"We didn't plan on giving up 28 points," Yenser said. "But their quarterback did some things to us. He was on target. I think the points (we allowed) was more due to their execution."

Vineyard tossed two touchdown passes for the Tigers, going 8-for-20 for 164 yards on the night with one interception.

While the Frenship air attack did gain some yards, the Tigers were woeful on the ground, gaining only 80 yards on 30 attempts.

"We never got any help from our running game," Davis said. "Offensively, we had hopes with us starting our first game with our starting quarterback. And I'd say he did an adequate job. But we still have to get some consistency in our offensive line."

Down 13-0 midway through the first quarter, the Whitefaces answered with a march of 13 plays over 82 yards keyed by three lengthy pass plays. Cody Hodges connected with twin brother Slade Hodges twice for 69 yards on the drive.

The Hereford payoff came on a 22-yard toss from Cody Hodges to George Castillo with :13 left in the opening quarter.

Yenser said with the Tigers' secondary playing loose, he knew there would be opportunities for his offense.

"I'd studied film about two hours this morning," Yenser said. "I saw something in the junior high film... They were loose at corner and were playing a cover-three -- a three-deep zone -- and trying to disguise it as a man (defense)."

Hereford briefly claimed the lead at 14-13 when Vallejo recovered a Vineyard fumble in the end zone. The fumble was one of five in the turnover-plagued contest. Hereford turned the ball over four times, Frenship three times. Frenship retook the lead -- at 16-14 -- with 32 seconds left in the first half when Todd booted a 36-yard field goal.

Castilla powers Rockies past Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) -- Vinny Castilla hit his 44th and 45th homers and drove in three runs, and Andy Ashby failed for the sixth straight start to win his 16th game as the Colorado Rockies beat the slumping San Diego Padres 4-1 Friday night.

The Padres lost four straight for the first time this season and have dropped five of six since clinching the NL West title last Saturday night.

Castilla hit a two-run shot with two outs in the fourth off Ashby and a solo shot off Scott Sanders leading off the ninth. He also doubled in the second to finish 3-for-4.

Pedro Astacio (13-14) allowed six hits in 8 1-3 innings.

McGwire

break a tie with Sosa as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 5-2 at County Stadium.

Sosa went 0-for-4 earlier Friday in the Cubs' loss to Cincinnati.

"We can't worry about each other," McGwire said. "I mean, right now it's a big deal who finishes on top. If you ask Sammy and I, I don't think it really matters."

McGwire, who sent three pitches out of County Stadium during batting practice, hit a 3-1 pitch from rookie Rafael Roque 417 feet into the left-center field bleachers for a two-run homer in the fourth inning.

"What we've done in the game of baseball, nobody's ever done. Nobody's ever done it," McGwire said. "And it's like, what we're doing right now, people want more. How much more do you want? We're doing our best. We're both rooting for each other, and wherever the numbers finish, where we land, that's the way it is."

McGwire didn't seem as euphoric about this home run as he has over the ones he has hit in the last week.

Afterward, McGwire even got testy when asked about passing Sosa again.

"All I can tell you is I feel good. I had a good game today, that's really about it," he said. "Like I've said 1,000 times, I can only take care of Mark McGwire. Sammy takes care of Sammy and that's it."

Asked whether his back spasms Sunday might have been the result of picking up Sosa in celebration after breaking Roger Maris' mark, McGwire retorted: "That didn't have anything to do with it. I've had a bad back since 1989. I'll have a bad back the rest of my life, period."

11th Anniversary Celebration!

Since 1987, Mariscal's Body & Paint Shop at 1605 E. Park Ave. in Hereford has been helping area residents when they need collision repair & repainting.

The 4 full time employees and 1 parttime employee do updating in the I/CAR classes (Inter-Industry Conference on Auto Collision Repair) to keep skilled in the newest changes in cars & trucks, mechanical, electrical, suspension, frame, glass & air bags.

Mariscal's offers insurance estimates & strives to always do the best quality work using the best materials.

Raul's biggest supporter have always been his parents, Eluterio & Amelia Mariscal, his wife Marta Mariscal and son Navarro. Special thanks to Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union for their help on their business financial loan.

First, I want to thank God for what he has given us, because he always supplies all our needs. We are really just stewards over what we have and we can only be the best stewards God wants us to be.

To mom and dad for always being there to support me. My dad believed in me so much that he was willing to give up everything for me, which proved to me that he had no doubt I could make this business work. He told me "If you're afraid, don't do it; if you're not afraid, then do it."

And to my wife & son, only you know what we went through. I know people say the first three years in business are the hardest years, and they were. Thank you both for all your help and support.

Thanks to all my employees and the rest of my family. I couldn't have done it without you. Thanks to all my customers for their loyalty and support, Hereford has been very good to us.

Prairie Dogs Proposed for "Threatened" Listing

The National Wildlife Federation (NWF) petitioned the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service (FWS) in a 50-page document on July 31 to list the black-tailed prairie dog as threatened under the federal Endangered Species Act. The FWS is required to make a ruling within 90 days (sometime in November) on whether the species warrants emergency listing as proposed. The 90-day finding will determine if more investigation is warranted. A further 12-month finding of warranted, precluded, or not warranted could then follow.

Depending on how things go with the petition in the next year, the Federation's action, intended to protect black-tailed prairie dogs, may well have endangered the future of these shortgrass prairie rodents on private land in Texas.

Kevin Mote, Texas Parks & Wildlife threatened and endangered non-game and urban wildlife biologist at Canyon, is among TP&WD personnel handed the daunting challenge of addressing the petition to list the prairie dog as endangered.

"Our department's position is that we oppose a federal listing for the prairie dog. Although we acknowledge a significant decline in the occupied range of the species, and prairie dogs aren't nearly as abundant as they once were, there are still many thousands of them in Texas. We would prefer to see an interstate conservation agreement that has the affected states working cooperatively with each other and the FWS to achieve the desired conservation results, so that a federal listing wouldn't be necessary," says Mote.

Mote is no stranger to dealing with the political hot potato of a proposed listing. The swift fox, a nocturnal predator of the short grass prairies, was petitioned for listing in 1992 and became a candidate for listing in 1995. Mote worked with the Swift Fox Conservation Team that included federal biologists and state wildlife agencies in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado, North and South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, and Montana.

Operating in Dallam County, Mote provided evidence that swift fox were present where no data existed to document this fact. Petitioners in the swift fox issue had assumed that drastic population reductions had occurred, but biologists like Mote came up with scientific proof to the contrary.

Using aromatic cans of sardines as an irresistible fox bait, Mote live-trapped, tagged, and released unharmed five swift foxes in the first few nights that he worked. A graduate student under his supervision live-trapped, radio collared and released eight of the ubiquitous little predators in Dallam and Sherman counties in only a week...So much for no swift foxes.

Mote and his associates did their part with the Swift Fox Conservation Team. The cooperative effort filled-in-the-blanks in the swift fox range map from Texas to Canada. They proved there was far more inhabited range than was previously believed to exist. As a direct result, FWS personnel in South Dakota are now recommending that the swift fox be removed from the candidate list.

Mote and his compatriots at TP&WD hope to see the same successful process with the black-tailed prairie dog.

"A lot of private landowners have unknowingly been doing a good job of prairie dog management here in the High Plains for many years," says Mote. He believes the silver lining behind the cloud of the prairie dog listing issue may be an opportunity to educate many people on this exact point.

Many of the complaints made by the petitioners seeking listing of the black-tailed prairie dog concern prairie dog management on public land.--The FWS believes that prairie dogs can be conserved on public land alone.

Such a viewpoint could mean that private landowners may not be impacted, even if prairie dogs are listed as threatened.

"Many landowners occasionally drop some Phos-Tox tablets down prairie dog holes when they have time, and when the prairie dog numbers are getting hefty. Control is expensive. A lot of landowners just limit the prairie dog population from growing and expanding, rather than eradicating them. Although it would be hard to get them to admit it in public, there are landowners who don't mind having a few prairie dogs around, they just don't want their place overrun with them. Many families have fought prairie dogs for generations.--It's just part of a farming and ranching heritage," says Mote.

While the NWF wants all killing of prairie dogs and destruction of their habitat stopped, Mote believes that goal may be unattainable.

"We've got to help landowners live with prairie dogs if we are going to conserve a population of them. That means we'll have to spend time and money on management. Since prairie dogs are sedentary and only raise one litter a year, they ought to be easy to survey and manage compared to deer. I'd like to see us come up with harvest and management recommendations that landowners could live with that would ensure a stable, healthy prairie dog population," says Mote.

Mote finds some of the NWF's reasoning in its 50-page petition sound, "but its approach is attempting to save the whole short-grass prairie ecosystem by going after one animal."

One factor driving the Federation's concern may be the ongoing effort to restore black-footed ferrets to former range in the Dakotas. Black-footed ferrets are dependent on prairie dogs as their food base, and on public land in the Dakotas, ferret restoration releases have been occurring in prairie dog towns that are still subject to federally-subsidized prairie dog poisoning!

Interest in prairie dog hunting has grown tremendously in the past few years. Mote frequently receives calls from all over the country seeking information on places to hunt prairie dogs in the Panhandle.

Hunting and efforts aimed at limiting the population on rangeland aren't likely to wipe these critters out if done properly with the assistance of a trained biologist.

Some prairie dog towns on public and private land that get a lot of hunting pressure can be eradicated. Mote says prairie dogs have a social hierarchy that can be disturbed by removing too many individuals from a family group. Genetic diversity can also become a concern in isolated towns when numbers are reduced severely. Increased predation and disease are a worry in towns that are "overhunted." Mote says a population management plan is needed to do a good job of conservation.

The next mission impossible for Mote and TP&WD is responding to the NWF petition with comments. The game plan is to seek another interstate conservation agreement.

Mote is a realist about what could happen if landowners perceive a stampede to list the black-tailed prairie dog as an endangered species.

"Farming, ranching, and prairie dogs have been co-existing on the Texas High Plains for a lot of years. We would hate to see a lot of folks go out and destroy the remaining prairie dog towns over this issue. We'd like to be able to keep a few prairie dogs around."

Wardens don't like use of dove bait

By MARK McDONALD
San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO -- Wardens don't look too kindly on dove bait

Right from the start, Son Won felt misgivings about the fellow in full camouflage lurking around the dove field. Had he, too, been invited to hunt earlier this month in Howard County, north of Big Spring? Was the stranger one of the landowner's friends? A golf buddy?

First of Two said he hailed the fellow and was told he was "hunting this field." Still, something did not quite mesh, so Son Won took his curiosity to the landowner, who dispatched his caretaker to check it out.

The caretaker returned -- just ahead of the stranger, a field agent with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

In seconds, the agent, wired with an ear plug and microphone, summoned a second vehicle with three Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens.

Son Won and the other hunters were told to unload their guns, to keep their birds separate. One-by-one, the hunters were taken aside, interviewed and informed they were being charged with hunting over a baited field.

Just lovely. The oldest offspring of Flatlander here gets a hunting citation. Next, the sheriff's kid will get caught joy-riding on the town square.

"Did you know there was bait in the area?"

"No, I did not," replied the young man, who comes from a home where a poacher shares the same station as a lying president.

Confused and slightly irritated, Son Won asked the landowner for an explanation. It seems the presence of a slightly irritated, 6-foot-4, 275-pound former all-Southwest Conference lineman can be a truth serum, for it brought a quick confession:

Two weeks prior to the North Zone Opening Day, the embarrassed landowner had asked his foreman to take sacks full of oil sunflowers, a yummy for doves, and scatter them along the dam of a livestock tank.

Son Won and the rest of the party were unaware of this chicanery, but no matter. TPWD and federal guidelines are clear on baiting, and with the South Zone season and all those business hunts opening Friday, it's time to review.

Key points in the regs: "Baiting" is the act of placing corn, wheat, salt or other feed to lure migratory game birds.

Once feed is grown in a field, it may not be taken from that field and brought back -- nor may it be used in any other field where hunting is conducted.

If somebody corns a field, and you hunt it, you could get nailed even if you don't know it's baited. You could be found guilty by association.

In Son Won's case, the landowner stepped up to pay the judge in Coahoma $196.25 each for his guest offenders.

Baiting, says Atascosa County game warden Arthur McCall, is not as common in his district as "double-dipping" -- taking one limit in the morning, one in the afternoon -- but he makes a baiting case virtually every year. Last year there were 91 baiting cases statewide. So far this year, wardens have made 27 cases.

"Usually, you've got a bunch of people taking birds off a tank dam where the ground is reddish-brown with milo," McCall said. Sound familiar?

Ah, but what if an automatic deer feeder is running in the next pasture? Does that mean a nearby dove hunter could be cited for hunting migratory game birds over bait intended for deer or turkey?

State game wardens admit it gets murky here.

"We tell people they can feed, but they can't hunt where they feed," McCall said. "I wish we had a definition of how far you had to be... 300 yards, 400? We just use common sense."

David Sinclair, a TPWD warden at headquarters in Austin who specializes in game regs, says his office takes each feeder-baiting question case-by-case.

Dad set Williams straight

NEW YORK (AP) - Robin Williams believes he might have become a military man if his dad hadn't set him straight about war's horrors.

Williams' father served on an aircraft carrier during World War II and survived a kamikaze hit that blew apart the control room. "Guys around him died," Williams says in Sunday's Parade magazine.

He recalls his father's words: "War isn't like the movies portray it. People die alone and miserable. "He was honest with me, because he wanted me to be safe. After that, I gave away all my toy soldiers," Williams said.

When he later told his father that he wanted to be an actor, he got this advice: "Fine, but have a backup plan, like being a welder."

Williams, 46, still does stand-up comedy and this year won an Academy Award for his supporting role in "Good Will Hunting."

JAROMIR JAGR

CANONSBURG, Pa. (AP) - Hockey star Jaromir Jagr is a master at the split-second decision, as long as it's on the ice and not at a White House state dinner.

The Pittsburgh Penguins forward came back from a Washington gala wondering if he should have asked Hillary Rodham Clinton to dance.

"Hillary was dancing like nobody else," Jagr said Thursday. "I walked over halfway, but I changed my mind at the last minute."

Jagr, a Czech, was invited to Wednesday night's gala honoring Czech President Vaclav Havel.

"They were dancing rock 'n' roll," Jagr said, demonstrating a twist-like move. "I never saw anything like it. It was so funny when I saw our president (Havel) dancing to disco."

 Jagr came away a Clinton fan.
 "I never really cared about politics, but after I met him I respected him because he seemed like a very nice guy," Jagr said. "I had a lot of fun."

BOB DYLAN

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) - Bob Dylan is bringing it all back home.

Dylan, who was born Robert Allen Zimmerman in Duluth and grew up in nearby Hibbing, will return Oct. 22 for a concert at the Duluth Entertainment Convention Center, his first hometown performance since he gained fame as a singer-songwriter.

Dylan won Grammys last February for best album and best contemporary folk album, for "Time Out of Mind." His many albums include "Blood on the Tracks," "Highway 61 Revisited," "Blonde On Blonde," and "Bringing It All Back Home."

In his acceptance speech, Dylan reflected on being a teen-ager and seeing Buddy Holly play at the Duluth National Guard Armory.

Tickets for Dylan's concert go on sale Sept. 26.

'Environmental racism' site dropped

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A chemical company averted a national test case over "environmental racism" by suspending plans to build a plastics plant in a poor, black community.

Shintech Inc. said it will instead try to open the plant in an industrial area near Baton Rouge.

The Environmental Protection Agency praised the decision, while activists said they will fight to keep the plant from being built anywhere in Louisiana.

Shintech had planned to open the polyvinyl chloride plant in Convent, a mostly black town on the Mississippi River between Baton Rouge and New Orleans.

Shintech opponents filed a civil rights complaint with the EPA, which investigated the matter and saw the dispute as a possible test case in its efforts to ensure "environmental justice" by preventing dangerous plants from being concentrated in poor, minority neighborhoods.

Shintech said Thursday will it abandon the Convent project altogether if it gets the OK to build instead near a Dow Chemical Co. facility in Plaquemine, just south of Baton Rouge.

"The principles applied to achieve this solution should be incorporated into any blueprint for dealing with environmental justice issues in communities across the nation," EPA Administrator Carol Browner said.

At the Convent site, Shintech had planned to produce both the raw materials and the plastic. Under the new arrangement, Dow would produce the raw materials, while Shintech would make the polyvinyl chloride, which is used in plumbing and a variety of other products.

The Congressional Black Caucus had asked the EPA to keep Shintech out of Convent.

Couple exchanges vows in Saturday ceremony

Jo D'Lyn (JoJo) Lytal and Matt Wesley Osborn, both of Friona, were united in marriage in an evening ceremony Saturday in Sixth Street Church of Christ in Friona.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Lytal of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Robert H. Osborn of Friona and the late Robert H. Osborn.

Tom Harguess, minister of Second and Adams Church of Christ of Elk City, Okla. and father of the bride's sister-in-law, officiated at the ceremony.

Matron of honor was Mandy Gowdy, sister of the bride. Best man was Ben Neelley.

Bridesmaids were Pam Lytal, sister-in-law of the bride; and Kristi Lytal, cousin of the bride.

Junior bridesmaid was Adrienne Osborn, niece of the groom and daughter of Mark and Dierdre Osborn.

Serving as groomsmen were Mark Osborn, Robert Osborn and Ben Osborn, brothers of the groom.

Guests were seated by Mark Lytal and Jason Lytal, brothers of the bride; and Jimmy Gowdy, brother-in-law of the bride.

Flower girl was Katie Osborn, niece of the groom and daughter of Robert and Jo Osborn.

Tate Gowdy, nephew of the bride and son of Jimmy and Manda Gowdy, was ring bearer.

Candle lighters were Jason Lytal, brother of the bride and Lauren McNutt.

Wedding music was performed a cappella by the chorus with special selections by Barbara Grimsley and Justin Grimsley, Tonya Buchanan, Kirk Miller, Key Graham and Thomas Reed. Two selections, "From this Moment On" and "You Light Up My Life," were taped and sung by the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father and her son, Sawyer Lyn Lytal, wore a formal gown of ecru silk with silks roses around the scooped neckline in the back. The straight skirt had a detachable cathedral length train.

She wore a double layered veil of illusion with braided silks roses and pearl band. Silks roses that matched the dress neckline were on the crown.

She carried a hand tied bridal bouquet of confetti roses, sunflowers, freesia and lilies with tulle bow.

Bridal attendants wore full length dresses of navy brocade with empire waistline and fabric roses at the waistline in back. They carried miniature versions of the bride's bouquet.

The couple was honored with a reception in the church fellowship hall.

Those assisting with the reception were Karen Taylor, Jennifer Findling, DeeAnn Bullard, Danene Hudson and Linda Hudson, cousins of the bride.

The bride's table was draped with a floor-length ecru crepe cloth swaged with ecru tulle. The four-tiered hexagon shaped pineapple-orange cake was set upon a square antique silver plateau and decorated with handmade gum paste flowers consisting of roses, sunflowers, freesia and purple status. The bride's cake was made by her mother.

The groom's table was draped with a navy floor-length cloth and quilted valance. The groom's German chocolate cake was made by his mother.

A kid's table was draped with a splatter-paint cloth and decorated with multi-colored balloons. A self-service fountain was displayed and pizza bagels, mini-corn dogs, peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and cookies were served.

After a Caribbean cruise wedding trip the couple will be at home in Friona.

The bride is a lifelong resident of Hereford and a graduate of Hereford High School and Amarillo College School of Nursing. She is currently employed by Hereford Regional Medical Center.

The groom is a lifelong resident of Friona and a graduate of Friona High School. He is employed by Cunningham Electric of Friona and also engaged in farming in Parmer County.

Reily gives program for Xi Epsilon Alpha

The first September meeting of Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held in Hereford Community Center.

Hostess was Gaye Reily with Melinda Henson as co-hostess. Reily presented the program on "Natural Remedies: Wrinkles," with a short video presentation on face massage techniques to help delay the onset of wrinkles.

Plans for the garage sale on Sept. 26 were finalized. It will be at 220 Ranger and leftover items will be donated to the Senior Citizens Thrift Store.

Service committee chairman Henson continued the tradition of a quiz during each meeting until Christmas to collect money for the Christmas Stocking Fund. She asked trivia questions about Hereford, collected a considerable amount of money and announced the next quiz will be on rock and roll in the 1960s.

Plans were finalized for a trip to Oklahoma City on Oct. 23-25 for the craft show "Affairs of the Heart."

A copy of the new Beta Sigma Phi Cookbook was introduced and member Shelley Lewis has a recipe printed in it.

Last year's chapter sweetheart, Pattie Urbanczyk, collected votes for the sweetheart for 1998-1999.

Refreshments of veggies and dip, tea and coffee were served by the hostesses.

Those in attendance were guest Tamara Mins and members Linda Arellano, Holly Bixler, Sharon Bodner, Kim Hollingsworth, Peggy Hyer, Diane Kreig, Connie Matthews, Susan Shaw, Pattie Urbanczyk, Stacey Urbanczyk, Henson, Lewis and Reily.

La Plata Study Club meets

La Plata Study Club met recently at the home of Peggie Fox. A backyard picnic was served by the hostess and yearbook committee members Dorothy Mercer, Dorothea Prowell and Mildred Fuhrmann.

Ludie Greeson presided over a brief business meeting. Yearbooks were distributed by the committee and the 1998-1999 season was discussed.

Members attending were Audine Dettman, Bonna Duke, Annell Holland, Lois Matchett, Betty Mercer, Mary Beth Powell, Rosemary Shook, Yvonne Simpson, Clara Smith, Betty Taylor, Avis White, Gayle Worthan, Fox, Greeson, Prowell, Mercer and Fuhrmann.

Fence at St. Anthony's School is completed as Eagle Scout project

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Boy Scout Randy Evers feels certain that he doesn't want to make a living putting up chain link fences.

Evers has been responsible for putting up a chain link fence around the playground area at St. Anthony's School as part of the requirements for obtaining the rank of Eagle Scout.

The fence was completed just prior to the start of this school year, but the project will not be complete until parking bumpers have been installed.

"I didn't put up the entire fence by myself," Evers said. "But I had to make sure it got done and that everything was right."

As with any project, regardless of the best planning, unexpected problems arose.

A major problem was encountered early in the project while digging the post holes. The tractor mounted digger Evers intended to use would not dig through the rock.

He made arrangements for a truck-mounted post hole digger used when setting utility poles.

"It drilled the hole, but then got stuck and we had to dig it out by hand. That was a really big post hole when we got done," Evers said.

While Evers was responsible for putting up the fence, he did not have to raise the necessary funds. Those were received in a grant from the Knights of Columbus.

The fence is a safety feature to keep children playing on the school ground from having direct access to the street.

Evers, 15-year-old son of Sonny and Carolyn Evers, has been involved in scouting since he was 6 years old.

He is a member of Boy Scout Troop 50, which is sponsored by Hereford Lions Club. Scoutmasters are Scott Ward, Bill Bankston and Derrin Ginter.

In addition to the community service project he has just completed, Evers needs three more merit badges to complete the requirements for Eagle Scout.

He is a sophomore at Hereford High School where he plays French horn in the band. He has paper route for The Hereford Brand and he is an usher at St. Anthony's Catholic Church. He also enjoys square and round dancing.

Randy Evers, right, a member of Boy Scout Troop 50, receives a certificate of appreciation from Nancy Neusch, principal of St. Anthony's School. Evers was responsible for the construction of a chain link fence around the school play ground as his Eagle Scout community service project.

Wishes.

DONNA WILLIAMS, JASON GRIFFITH

October wedding set

Don and Linda Stapleton of Amarillo announce the engagement of their daughter, Donna Williams, to Jason Griffith, son of Ronnie and Linda Griffith of Hereford.

The couple will wed Oct. 16 at Country Home Bed and Breakfast of Canyon.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Amarillo College with an associates degree in nursing. She is employed by Baptist St. Anthony's Home Health.

The prospective bridegroom attended West Texas A&M University in Canyon and the University of North Texas in Denton. He is currently employed by Panhandle Eye Group, Amarillo.

Red Cross Update

The Tri County Chapter is sponsoring a "55 Alive" class. This is an A.A.R.P. defensive driving class for persons 55 years old or older. The class will be held Nov. 16-17 (Monday and Tuesday) 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. both days. This class will qualify persons finishing the class for a 10% discount on liability insurance. There is an $8.00 fee. The class will be held at the Red Cross office at 224 South Main Street in Hereford. The instructors for this class will be Benny and Joan Womble. Call the office at 806-364-3761 to register for this class.

More than 400 people were killed and 100,000 left homeless after last week's torrential rains in southern Mexico. At least 849 people are still missing and many of them are feared dead. The Red Cross has delivered 600 tons of food and medicine to the flood-hit region. With more than 500,000 people without clean water, concerns about disease are growing. Outbreaks of malaria and dengue fever have been reported in 136 communities.

A CPR class will begin Tuesday, Sept. 29, 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., and finish Sept. 30. Register at the office.

The United Way Fund drive is underway and we hope all residents support the fund drive.

To make a donation to the Red Cross disaster fund, call or come by the office at 224 South Main or call 1-800-HELPNOW.

Anniversary is observed

Mr. and Mrs. B.F. Cain were honored on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary with a brunch at the Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth on Sept. 13.

Hosts for the celebration were their two sons, B. Frank Cain and Dr. Phillip Cain and their families.

B.F. Cain and Morgan Thomas were united in marriage on Sept. 3, 1938 in Shamrock.

In addition to the couple's sons, they have seven grandchildren.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Nothing levels a playing field like a better idea." --Stanley I. Mason.

Connie Gilbert and Royce Spies presented "Murder In The Classroom" at the Middle School Conference on Thursday evening. Susanne Allen and Margot Sims presented "B.R.A.I.N. (Better Read All Information Now) Power" at the conference which was held at Westover School in Amarillo.

Students on Purple Team brought items from home to make their own slides as they continue their microscope unit.

Enrollment forms for students interested in Junior Historians should be returned as soon as possible with at least one semester of dues ($10.00). The first 25 to return these will be eligible for the first field trip on Oct. 17.

Several groups will have pictures made on Wednesday, Sept. 23. Those students in volleyball, football, orchestra and cheerleading may have individual pictures made when the group picture is made. On Monday, the coach or leaders will issue Memory Mate forms which must be returned with payment on picture day.

All students and staff will have yearbook pictures made on Thursday, Sept. 24. Orders for these pictures will be made when proofs are delivered.

The Accelerated Reader program is well underway. Students are encouraged to meet individual reading goals. Certificate levels for student achievement are a motivational tool and those students reaching this level will receive recognition and awards for their efforts. Students should be encouraged both at home and at school to read every day.

Preparation is underway for a theatre class play. "I Hate the Mall" should be ready for production in late October.

Members of the HJH Boys Choir as well as a few of the girls choir members joined the HHS Varsity Choir in attendance at "Man of La Mancha," staged by Darion and Leigh, at the Amarillo Civic Center on Friday evening. This was an exciting and rare opportunity for these students. Margaret Williams and Jane Gulley, choir directors, sponsored the trip.

Seventh and eighth grade students have an opportunity to enter an essay contest, "What Freedom Means to Me," sponsored by the VFW. We need someone from the VFW Auxilliary to contact us at HJH for details. Contact Carolyn Waters or Diedra Drake at 363-7630.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM KARL OTTE III
...nee Patricia McCrary

Former resident wed in ceremony in Dallas

Patricia McCrary and William Karl Otte III of Dallas were united in marriage Aug. 1 in an afternoon ceremony in St. Rita Catholic Community in Dallas.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Hughes McCrary of DeLeon, formerly of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Karl Otte Jr. of Galveston. Deacon William J. Schuster officiated at the ceremony.

The bride's honor attendants were Pam Chesshir of Dallas and Barbie Craig of Austin. Other attendants included Ellen McCrary of Rowlett, sister-in-law of the bride, and Lesley Metz and Deborah Bigbie of Dallas.

The bride's niece, Anna Elizabeth McCrary, served as flower girl. Sindy Wickersham of Plano and Sharon McCree of Madison, Miss., recited the scriptures.

Serving as best man was the groom's brother Chris Otte. Groomsmen included John McCrary of Rowlett, brother of the bride; Sergio Garcia and Scott Miller of Austin; and Dave Kapavik of Houston.

Ring bearer was the groom's cousin Chase Micheletti.

Completing the wedding party were ushers Kevin Corley of Dallas, Ross Norman of Abilene, and the groom's cousin Daryl Smith of Mesa, Ariz.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of imported Italian satin and organza. The fitted bodice had a scooped neckline and dropped waist. The box pleated chapel length skirt of organza was banded with wide Italian satin trim.

She wore a small coil with a tailored bow of Italian satin with imported illusion.

She carried a bridal bouquet of pink stock, lavender freesia and champagne roses.

A reception at the Northwood Country Club followed the ceremony. The couple honeymooned in Maui, Hawaii, and reside in Dallas.

The bride graduated from Texas A&M University with a degree in English. She teaches at Plano Senior High School and Brookhaven Community College.

The groom received a Bachelor of Arts in Biology from the University of Texas in Austin. He is currently employed as a client support manager at Erasmus Network Services in Dallas.

Attending from the Hereford area were Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Carlile and Lyndi, Dr. and Mrs. H.A. Cavness, Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Gearm, Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Metz, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Metz and Mrs. Juanita Willis.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When I read the letter from "Nameless in Philadelphia," the woman whose 67-year-old husband wanted to start using Viagra, my eyes popped. "Nameless" said her husband had not been interested in sex for several years and she was relieved she no longer had to pretend he was a great lover when all she could think of was getting it over with. The woman ended her tirade with a threat -- "The minute he walks into the house with those Viagra pills, I'm walking out."

I am sure a lot of women who read that letter identified with her. (I know I did.) Then, you, dear Ann, weighed in with a dumb remark right out of a sex manual from the 1950s. You said, "If a woman loves her husband and wants him to enjoy the ultimate in marital bliss, she will satisfy his needs." My question is: What about HER needs? Don't they count? Ann, I think your brain must be atrophying. -- Longtime Reader in Calgary, Alberta, Canada

Dear Calgary: You aren't the only one. Keep reading for more.

From Portland, Ore.: Your arrogant, sexist comment gave credence to the rumor that your column is being written by a man. (A Southern Baptist, no doubt.) How dare you imply that a woman doesn't love her husband just because she has happily accepted nature's plan to diminish sexual activity. The "magic" of Viagra has been greatly overrated. It won't help a man who has difficulty shifting position because of hip and knee replacements or those males limited in movement by stroke and heart disease. Get real.

Carbondale, Ill.: I see nothing wonderful about Viagra. It must have been developed BY men FOR men. Could it possibly be the design of Mother Nature that when women go through menopause, men are supposed to slow down, also? It is not natural for 70-year-old men to perform like 18-year-olds when their post-menopausal wives find sex a lot less exciting and sometimes painful.

Bakersfield, Calif.: I am an 80-year-old woman whose sexuality has been rejuvenated by a wonderful lover who is nearly my age. As for that new "wonder drug," Viagra, it isn't going to do anything for a deprived wife unless it is accompanied by tenderness, loving foreplay and a genuine desire to please. After 25 years in a sterile marriage to a Scandinavian iceberg followed by a long stretch of celibacy, I have found heaven on Earth. (P.S. If you print this letter, please don't use my name. My grandchildren would be horrified.)

Cambridge, Mass.: I keep a scrapbook of your columns. Way back in 1985, you ran a column giving the results of a sex survey. The question you posed to your women readers was this: "Would you be content to be held close and treated tenderly and forget about 'the act'?" You then asked them to add one sentence to the response indicating whether they were over or under 40 years of age.

More than 90,000 women cast their ballots. Seventy-two percent voted YES -- they would be content to be held tenderly and forget about "the act." Forty percent of those women were under 40 years of age. That was the most surprising aspect of the survey.

The most candid response came from Eureka, Calif. A woman wrote, "I am 62 years old, and I'm voting NO. If my old man were over the hill, I'd settle for high school necking, but as long as he is able to shake the walls and wake up the downstairs neighbors, I want to get in on the action. And I'll take an encore anytime I can get it." Those are the kind of women who would be happy about Viagra, Ann.

Dear Readers: Thanks for your comments. Tomorrow, I will print more on this subject.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

The Power of Positioning for Profit

(Part Two of a three-part series)

If you are a small-business owner, a profit position is one that allows you to give your customers benefits and advantages they can't get anywhere else. Your customers must see and understand these opportunities for gain before they will pay you for them. When the benefits are obvious, your profits will grow.

Positioning your business for profit requires careful thought and planning. You have two separate but related goals. First, you need to identify the areas where you can excel at providing obvious benefits and advantages. Second, you must determine how you can turn these areas into profit.

Not all positions are customer driven. Some focus on improving your business. The first position below is of this type.

Rock Solid Positions

The Low-Cost Provider Position. No one can take you out of business by cutting price, if you become the low-cost provider. The low-cost provider focuses on eliminating waste. If any expense doesn't help you serve your customer effectively, eliminate it.

A few words of caution are required here. First don't confuse cutting costs with eliminating waste. Be careful when reducing marketing, promotion, image building and customer service expenses.

The Customer Focus Position. Business owners who lead their companies into growth and prosperity, will be the ones who know the most about their customers. I often talk to owners who know their business inside and out. Unfortunately, they often know little about their customers. Despite their success today, they are vulnerable to a more customer-oriented competitor.

To improve your focus, study your present customer base. Find out who they are, where they live and why they're doing business with you. Get personally acquainted and use their names. Customers need respect and need to know you appreciate their business.

Begin with your best customers and largest accounts. Plan some outside-the-business, face-to-face customer time each week. Remember, customers who are delighted and excited are quick to tell others.

The "WOW! That's Interesting" Position. People often spend money on things that interest them. When someone says, "Hey, come look at this!" You know you peaked his or her interest. There is a market position here.

Look carefully at the first impression your business makes. Are the products or services you offer interesting and inviting or dull and boring? What have you done lately to increase that WOW factor? Have you purchased exciting new inventory, spruced up your appearance, or added appealing new services?

Disney World, Internet providers, travel agencies and Tom Clancy's publisher all rely on the "WOW, that's interesting position." And friends, that's interesting.

The Power Marketing Position. When I see a fast growing business, I know they have discovered this position. Power marketing is a position where many marketing tools are utilized effectively.

The power marketer understands the relationship between price, product, position, promotion, people and place. Those who excel in using this position are also using the customer focus position. You must know your target customers needs and wants, before you can create a marketing plan to serve them.

The power marketer uses people and promotion, publicity and public relations, logos and loss leaders, newspapers and newsletters, phones and faxes, signs and service, networking and nicheing, personal selling and press releases, radio and research, testimonials, telephones and television. The power marketer never misses a marketing opportunity.

Which reminds me, have I mentioned my books lately? If you would like an autographed copy at a great, low price, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for information. Send it to Don Taylor - Book Offer, PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

And don't miss part three of this series next week. I'll share four additional power positioning strategies.

Don Taylor is the co-author of "Up Against the Wal-Marts." You may write to him in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, TX 79105.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Reaching the end of our budget year always presents a challenge. It seems we run out of money in the book allocation first and hold onto the equipment budget until the very last. We never know when that piece of equipment will breathe its last breath and must be replaced or repaired.

Have you noticed the rapid change in equipment and technology, and how the manufacturers keep the market for the latest and greatest equipment built up? Microfilm is an old technology, but instead of letting this technology become obsolete, the manufacturers of microfilm reader-printers quit producing the parts needed to repair the older machines.

Well, the machines are fairly well built and with Internet becoming available, the machines are used less and less, so repairs and parts are needed less and less. Now how is the microfilm reader going to keep his technology on the market? Now he must create a demand for his new machine, and this done by eliminating the source of supplies for all of the machines except the newest model he wants to sell.

Yesterday while I was driving to Canyon, with two rolls of microfilm of the Hereford Brand, I began to wonder how I could justify the cost of a new microfilm reader-printer. No there is nothing wrong with the one we have except that we can no longer purchase the toner or paper. They are no longer manufactured.

How many trips to Canyon, to make microfilm copies, would it take to equal $3,500 at 27 1/2 cents per mile, two hours' salary, cost of copies and postage to send the copies to the patron requesting them?

What do you think? Should I keep making the trips, or should I find a way to purchase that piece of equipment with an equipment budget of $2,500? This year only seven trips to Canyon have been made for this purpose. What if you are the one who needs the copy?

Another result of the ending budget year is the new book selection or the lack thereof. This week the selection is rather small to choose from, but there are a few good mysteries.

Chain of Custody by Harry Levy is about Dr. Michael Malone, who at one time was the Assistant Chief of Cardiovascular Medicine and Interventional Cardiology at Mt. Zion Hospital. Now, however, Malone is a practicing lawyer. Michael's marriage to the highly respected Deputy District Attorney is falling apart. When his estranged wife is found murdered in their apartment, Michael becomes the prime suspect. His medical background would give Michael the knowledge of how to disguise the victim's time of death, while his legal background can help prevent evidence from being deemed admissible in court keeping him out of jail.

Michael is the only one who knows for sure that he is innocent. The problem is proving it to everyone else when the DNA test points to the guilt.

Reservation Road by John Burntam Schwartz involves two families that become connected through a hit and run.

The Learner family, Ethan and Grace, their children, Josh and Emma, are on their way home from a concert when Ethan stops for gas. Ten-year-old Josh gets out of the car and deep in thought wanders up to the edge of the road. When a racing car comes around the bend in the road, it hits and instantly kills Josh. The car speeds away as though nothing has happened.

Ethan, a respected literature professor at a small New England college, will continue to look for his son's killer until they bring him to justice. Eighteen-year-old Emma thinks she is to blame for her brother's death. Grace must find the strength to keep herself and the family together and help Emma work through the overwhelming guilt.

Dwight Arnok, a small town lawyer, is the hit and run driver in desperate need of a second chance.

Dwight's 10-year-old son was asleep in the back seat the night Josh was killed. Dwight must now decide whether to run from his crime or turn himself in.

Stray Kat Waltz by Karen Kijewski features private eye Kat Colorado. Kat has lived through or seen just about everything. Then the unsolved murder of a cop hits too close to home leaving Kat feeling very vulnerable. Kat needs time to regroup and does not want any new clients.

Sara Bernard shows up at her office asking for help. Sara's law officer husband is a wife beater and Sara fears for her own life. Kat reluctantly accepts the case. In her investigation, Kat can find no one that says Jed Bernard is not the greatest guy in town, a really straight shooter.

If Jed is the good guy that everyone says he is, then who is trying to kill Sara and Kat? Someone is not on the level and it is up to Kat to find out whom before someone else is killed.

Golden K, DAR hold joint meeting

Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR and Hereford Golden K Kiwanis Club met in joint session Tuesday in the Golden K room at Hereford Senior Citizens Center with Leo Witkowski, president of Golden K, presiding.

In celebration of Constitution Week, Sept. 17-23, Helen Rose, constitution chairman of Los Ciboleros Chapter, presented an account of the Constitutional Convention which met in the summer of 1787 in Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

The purpose of the Convention had been to amend the Articles of Confederation, but it was soon apparent that a stronger central authority was needed. The problems were neither simple nor few. Small states were afraid of being swallowed up by large states. Large states had no intention of giving up any territory. Delegates had no idea what kind of government they wanted. Then there was the question of regulation and admission of the large western lands.

Benjamin Franklin was quoted as saying that he hoped the document that was sent to the states for ratification would serve the nation at least twenty years. When the lengthy process of ratification was finally completed he said, "'Tis done! We are a nation."

Mrs. Rose was introduced by Cecil Boyer of Golden K, who also presented her with a certificate of appreciation.

Following the joint meeting, Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR reconvened for a business meeting led by Ruth Newsom, chapter regent.

During committee reports, Rose reported that community churches had been requested to ring their bells on Sept. 17 in celebration of Constitution Week.

Newsom reported for the American History committee that an article had appeared in The Hereford Brand announcing the American History Essay Contest for grades five through eight. The topic is "A Naval Hero of the Early American Republic, 1789-1815." Supporting materials have been placed in the schools.

Newsom announced the formation of a new DAR committee, the World War II Memorial Challenge Committee, which will seek to raise funds for a national memorial to World War II veterans. Locally, the committee will be chaired by Mary Williamson.

Females 18 years of age who are lineally descended from an ancestor who served as either a soldier or patriot during the period 1775-1783 are eligible for membership in DAR. For information call Kathryn Ruga at 364-4375 or Newsom at 364-0420.

Guests for the meeting were Becky Camp from The Hereford Brand, Jess Robinson and Gid Brown. Members present were Margaret Bell, Juanita Brown, Lois Gilliland, Ruth Knox, Nell Norvell, Patricia Robinson, Donna Smith, Jean Beene, Ruga, Williamson, Rose and Newsom.

During a joint meeting Tuesday of Golden K Kiwanis and Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR, Helen Rose, center, presented a program on the Constitutional Convention as a part of the observance of Sept. 17-23 as Constitution Week. Leo Witkowski, left, is president of Golden K and Cecil Boyer is program chairman.

Growing produce proves risky 1998 proves hard year for carrot growers

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

Farming at any level involves considerable risk. Extreme weather conditions, unstable market prices, freight costs, falling water tables, and rising energy costs all add to the risk factor.

But some farming ventures, such as producing vegetable crops, are riskier than others to begin with, and risk continues to grow with each planting.

"There's no guarantee with vegetables," said Larry Malamen, owner of M&W Carrot. "With other crops, the producer can get insurance. That's not so with vegetables. If they lose a crop, they lose a crop."

This year proved to be an extremely bad year for carrots because of the high winds and the hot temperatures so early in the year.

Malamen and the farmers he contracts with planted at least three crops of carrots this year - totalling at least 450 acres - and most were lost to the early heat wave. They also planted about 90 acres of turnips and 20 acres of various squashes, pumpkins and fall flowers.

Only 200 acres of carrots survived, all the turnips and most of the squashes weathered the hot, dry conditions.

Chris Bullard, Malamen's assistant, said the carrots can take either the wind or the high temperature, but not both.

"Anything that was planted before May 15 or after July 15 managed to survive," Bullard said. "Everything planted in between just burned up."

Another major concern for vegetable growers is the marketing of their product.

"There's no comparison with the other crops," Malamen said. "Farmers can't just take it down to the local elevator and say 'here it is.' There pretty much has to be a buyer for it when it's ready to go."

"The big stores and chains would rather deal with companies that can supply produce guaranteed all year," Bullard said. "We can't do that, so much of the vegetable market goes to the California producers."

For the bulk of the carrots, grown by farmers who contract with Malamen, marketing is relatively simple: It all goes to the Texas prison system cannery where it is peeled, sliced, cut, diced and canned for state use. None are packaged in single sale units.

"We just can't afford to do it. The labor and overhead would eat up all the profits," Bullard said.

Turnips are brought in from local fields, washed, packaged in 20-25 pound bags, cooled and sold to buyers on the East Coast.

The advantage of growing and selling vegetables locally, according to Malamen, is that local stuff draws people.

"Just look at the local farmers market. They sell nearly everything they grow," Malamen said.

"We can sell some of our produce to B&R Thriftway for less than they would pay their buyers," Bullard noted. "They get a better, fresher product and it's home-grown. It's a win-win situation for everyone."

Most farmers, according to Bullard, are leery of planting too many vegetables.

"Years ago, there were lots of vegetables grown here, but the markets, and the cost of watering the crops were just too big of a risk for many producers," he said.

Malamen doesn't really understand the producers' cautions when it comes to planting vegetables.

According to him, it takes much less water to bring in a carrot or other vegetable crop than it does to bring a corn crop to harvest.

Malamen did say he can see the day when few, if any, vegetables are grown locally; and at the best maybe only enough to sell at local farmers market days.

A never-ending process

Trucks bring in loads of carrots as fast as they can be scooped in to the trough that carries them through the washing process and the hydrocooler, before being cooled and sent on the way to the TDCJ system cannery.

Winning bird men

TAES marketing program returns

Texas Agricultural Extension Service's Master Marketer Training Program will return to the Panhandle after a three-year absence.

Since its 1996 Amarillo premier, the program has trained producers in Vernon, Wharton, Lubbock and Waco.

"Improved marketing techniques is one of the few areas left where producers can make great strides in upgrading their bottom line," said Dr. Steve Amosson, farm management economist.

The program is designed to enable producers to develop a marketing plan, evaluate selling alternatives, and develop profit making skills.

The program will be offered in two sessions. The first will be Jan. 6-7; the second every two weeks. All programs will be at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Amarillo.

For registration and reservations please contact the local TAES office.

If you think changing clocks for daylight savings time is a nuisance, consider the shadow clock which told ancient Egyptians the number of hours before or after noon. That clock had to be turned around each day at noon.

First fire-ant bait finally approved

AUSTIN (AP) - The war on fire ants soon will be getting a new weapon: the first federally approved anti-fighting, growth-inhibiting baits for farmers.

The baits, which don't leave harmful residue in food crops or slaughtered animals, have been approved by the Environmental Protection Agency and will hit the market early next year, the Austin American-Statesman reported Thursday.

The new product was developed by researchers at four state agencies, the University of Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech. It's part of the $2.5 million Imported Fire Ant Research and Management Plan.

The ants, which have infested more than 50 million acres in the eastern two-thirds of the state, cost Texans at least $300 million in annual damage, according to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Most of the damage is done to cropland, where the ants destroy seeds and plants. That's where the new bait comes in.

"For the first time, we have a bait product that can be applied to land that is going to be cultivated for soybeans, food crops like corn and sorghum, as well as to pastures where you're raising livestock," said Bart Drees, a Texas A&M researcher and coordinator of the state program.

The fire ant program issued its first report this week during what Gov. George W. Bush has proclaimed Fire Ant Awareness Week.

Drees said the baits, which have passed four years of field tests, are designed to inhibit growth in the ants' queens and their brood.

But Drees added that there still are questions about how best to apply the baits and whether they'll be cost-effective for farmers and ranchers.

The program's report said there are other anti-ant weapons on the horizon.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Learning experience

Junior Troop 217, led by Marie Carra, worked on their "First Aid" and "Hikers" badges during a recent meeting. The girls got some hands-on experience with treating cuts, fractures, CPR, sunburn, frostbite, etc. Kelley Daniels, an EMT with Hereford EMS and mother of troop member Darcy, instructed the class. Any career person or anyone with a special interest or skill who would like to volunteer for a one-time-only class to help pass your knowledge on, contact Carra at 364-2248.

HITTING AS PARENTING: WHY
PARENTS HIT THEIR CHILDREN

Hitting may have actually begun thousands of years ago. For as long as anyone cares to remember, hitting has been used by parents and adults as a way of communicating their anger with children.

Many cultural specialists suggest that hitting children actually began when people lived in caves and verbal language was developing. Hitting was a way a cave mother said to her child, "I am not pleased with you, or with what you did."

Although parents today generally don't use clubs, the practice of hitting children is unfortunately still widely used. In two national surveys it was found that 90% of parents of 3 and 4 year olds had struck their children in the previous year; 22% of the parents of children under 1 year of age said they had hit their children; 75% of the parents of 9 and 10 year olds had hit their children, as had 20% of parents with 17 year olds. The most widely used type of hitting today is spanking. There are several common reasons why parents hit their children.

RATIONALE: Parents hit children to teach them right from wrong. Parents often hit their children because they want their children to learn right from wrong. Using the theory, "When there's pain, there's gain," parents feel a "good spanking" will teach children not to misbehave.

The reality is that spanking communicates to children that they not only did something wrong but they also are bad people. In addition, hitting never teaches children what to do or what is the right thing to do. Instead, it only teaches children what is not acceptable.

Until children are taught what to do instead, misbehavior will likely continue. In this instance, low self-concept and low self-esteem are the likely results from repeated spankings.

Parents Hit Children as a Form of Punishment. For many parents, hitting is the only way they know to punish children for misbehaving. If they do not use spanking, many parents are left with no form of punishment at all. Any mention of eliminating spanking as a form of punishment leaves parents with a basic fear that children will be allowed to do what they want and will be out of control.

Punishment, when used with rewards, is an effective way for teaching right from wrong. Punishments such as time-out, being grounded, loss of privilege, paying for something purposely broken, and parental disappointment are far more effective than hitting. In these instances, children learn that they are still loved even though they misbehaved.

For learning more alternatives to correct your children, come to the DRESS YOUR FAMILY FOR SUCCESS program at San Jose Community Center on Thursday evenings from 6 to 9. Call Tili Boozer at 364-4357 for more information.

Elephants are called pachyderms, from a Greek word meaning thick-skinned, but their skin is surprisingly tender. To protect themselves from sun and insects, they roll in mud. Unlike other mammals they don't have a layer of fat under their skin to protect them from the cold. They get stomach cramps if the temperature drops below 35 degrees.

Golden Circle elects officers

The Golden Circle Class of Avenue Baptist Church elected officers at its monthly meeting and salad supper Tuesday evening in the home of Sherri Newman.

Class officers elected were Kathy Keyes, president; Sherri Newman, secretary/reporter; Pat Goforth and Thelma Cherry, benevolence and cheer; Sue Morris and Beverly Bone, outreach; and Delores Webster, social chairman.

Devotionals, "A Mission Statement for a Believer" and "What If..." were presented by Bone, Webster and Janey Allmon.

Attending were Cherry, Bone, Keyes, Webster, Allmon, Goforth and Newman.

Applications available for mini-grants to fund unique needs of area children

The Amarillo Area Foundation is looking to award approximately $10,000 to meet some very special and unique needs for area children. The Foundation is now accepting applications for mini-grants from the Children's Fund. The fund will distribute individual grants from the charitable contributions raised during the 1997 Children's Fund campaign held last holiday season. Each mini-grant will range from $500 to $1,000.

Any 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization operating in the 26 northernmost counties of the Texas Panhandle and offering services to children is eligible to apply for the one-time grant. Interested agencies should call the Amarillo Area Foundation to request an application form. Completed applications must be returned to the Amarillo Area Foundation on or before Friday, October 2, 1998. Instead of token seasonal gift giving, Children's Fund provides local citizens a way to acknowledge business associates and special friends through a special charitable gift in their name. Since 1993, the Children's Fund has awarded more than $40,000 from charitable gifts with an additional $10,000 to be awarded in November.

The Downtown Women's Center is working to create a handcrafted gift item again this year which will be mailed to each honored recipient as a symbol of the gift made to area children.

The Children's Fund helps agencies meet those "special" needs of children and youth which are not met through normal funding channels. Grants from this Foundation fund have made possible such items as:

- * a car seat designed to safely restrain a child with cerebral palsy (expensive and not covered by Medicaid);

- * matinee "Nutcracker" ballet tickets for low-income children;
- * scouting and Camp Fire scholarships for low-income children with disabilities;
- * a theme park outing for children of homeless families;
- * stockings for youth in detention; and
- * basketball shoes for Special Olympics athletes.

The Children's Fund was established in 1993 to raise additional monies to enhance the quality of life for underprivileged children. The Amarillo Area Foundation, a community foundation, is a public charity which both accepts funds from individuals, families, businesses and other groups that want to help Panhandle communities, and gives funds through carefully considered grants to charitable organizations for the enrichment of the quality of life of the people in the 26 northernmost counties of the Texas Panhandle.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Clean Up On Cleaning Product Tips

(NAPS)—So, you've decided it's time to clean up around the house. The next step is to go to the store to buy the variety of specialty products you'll need to accomplish each task. Right? Well, maybe not.

When searching for cleaning supplies, you may find you already have a variety of low-cost household products on hand that can do the job. For example, baking soda can be used to clean bathtub rings and vinegar is often mixed with warm water to use as a window cleaner.

Other common products have a variety of cleaning functions that many people don't even realize. The ever-popular WD-40 is great for cleaning and removing grease, adhesives, tar, sap and a variety of stains from surfaces around the house.

Often used in the garage to clean grease and grime, WD-40 works equally as well around the home. A squirt of WD-40 and water on kitchen and bathroom fixtures may return them to their original luster and prevent future build-up of soap scum, water spots and grime.

The product can also be used to remove water spots on ceilings and floors caused by leaks and spills. And, marks left on floors or walls by crayon-wielding children may come off with a small amount of WD-40 followed by simple soap and water.

Exhaust fan grills over the stove can be cleaned with full-strength vinegar to keep fresh air circulating and adding it to your carpet solution may dispel odors.

There are more uses for common household products than you may realize. For instance, a mixture of WD-40 and water can help shine bathroom fixtures.

Cornstarch can also be used as a carpet cleaner. All you do is sprinkle it on, let it stand up to 30 minutes and then vacuum. A mixture of cornstarch and cleaning fluid can also be used to help remove greasy spots from wallpaper.

Ice cubes can come in handy for a variety of cleaning needs as well. If you get candle wax, chewing gum or other gooey substances on your carpet or tablecloth, simply hold an ice cube against the stain until it freezes and then lift or scrape the frozen object off. If this doesn't work, WD-40 can be used to lubricate and clean the spot.

For cleaning around the house, you may want to first look in your cabinets, cupboards and refrigerator. You may find the products that meet your needs.

Female characters join three NBC dramas

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

When NBC's Law & Order, ER and Homicide: Life on the Street begin new seasons this week, three new female characters join the fray.

Wednesday, Sept. 23, in Law & Order, Angie Harmon introduces Assistant District Attorney Abbie Carmichael, whose independent style rubs womanizing colleague Jack McCoy (Sam Waterston) the wrong way. But with a 95 percent conviction rate at her last job, Abbie is a hard woman to argue with.

"She has a lot more strength than the past two characters I've done," Harmon says, referring to her roles in Baywatch Nights and C-16.

"She's used to (prosecuting) drug dealers. She's used to working on her own and getting the job done."

If there is any doubt about Harmon's suitability for a spot in the cerebral drama, executive producer Dick Wolf has a ready response.

"This woman is a terrific actress," Wolf says. "Holding people's previous credits against them, in this business, is pretty risky."

Besides, Wolf adds, "There is a wish-fulfillment factor (for female viewers) when you put an attractive woman in a situation where she is doing real, adult stuff and doing it with obvious intelligence."

Wolf's wish theory must be contagious, because a beautiful woman is one of two new characters joining the Homicide team when it returns Friday, Sept. 25.

In the wake of last season's squad room massacre, Lt. Giardello (Yaphet Kotto) welcomes Detective Rene Sheppard, played by Michael Michele, who had a recurring role in Wolf's New York Undercover.

A former beauty queen, Rene can handle her caseload perfectly well, thank you, and won't let her good looks be held against her. It seems a good bet Rene will have a juicy role in the next Law-Homicide crossover story line, coming later in the season.

Also new to the show is FBI agent Mike Giardello (Giancarlo Esposito), the lieutenant's estranged son, who transfers in from out of town to work in tandem with the homicide squad. Though he won't report to his father, the close working relationship will give viewers a window on Giardello's home life, a previously unexplored arena.

Overall this season, Tom Fontana, the show's executive producer, says viewers should expect a broader focus for Homicide, unlike last season, when Andre Braugher's Frank Pembleton was the centerpiece.

On Thursday, Sept. 24, ER welcomes Kellie Martin (Christy, Life Goes On) as third-year medical student Lucy Knight.

Martin says the name Knight is appropriate for her character, as she thinks she is going to save the world.

"She is a big screw-up, though. That's the big shocker," the actress says. "She's a straight-A student in the classroom, but when she gets into the arena and she actually has to put in an IV, she doesn't know what to do."

In fact, Martin says, her character is turning out to be a bit of comic relief for the show. "She doesn't threaten anyone's life with her blunders. That wouldn't be funny, obviously. But (her antics are) really funny right now. She's just mangling everything."

For those wondering how George Clooney's character, Dr. Ross, will exit the show at season's end, producer John Wells says he's worked it all out with Clooney, but for now at least, that bit of medical information will remain confidential.

Actress Kellie Martin, best known for her work in Christy and Life Goes On, joins the staff of NBC's ER Thursdays as third-year medical student Lucy Knight. A straight-A student in school, Lucy finds hospital life more of a challenge, Martin says, leading to some unusually humorous moments for the staff.

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ September 20-26 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

You have a lot on your mind this week, Aries, and it has you on edge. Don't take your anxiety out on your loved ones. They just want to help you. Take some time for yourself to sort your thoughts out. An acquaintance offers to help you with a personal problem. Say no, because he or she is really just snooping around.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

You face a difficult family situation late in the week, Taurus. Be strong; everyone is counting on you to help make things better. If you keep your emotions in check for a while, you'll work things out. That special someone buys you something special. Let him or her know how much this means to you.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

You're in for a treat this week. Friends and loved ones show you how much they appreciate all that you do. Enjoy yourself. A close friend asks for your advice about a romantic problem. Be honest with him or her; don't just blurt out clichés. Virgo plays an important role.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

You face several challenges this week, Cancer. However, don't back down. If you stay determined, you most definitely can succeed at each one of them. Those around you will be impressed with your accomplishments. A friend introduces you to someone very interesting. Just be yourself, and you're sure to gain a new friend.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Don't let your pride get in the way of apologizing for a mistake that you make early in the week. Everyone slips up once in a while. It doesn't mean that you aren't a very capable person. Keep your chin up. Things will get much better soon. Scorpio plays an important role on Friday.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Look at all of your options before making an important financial decision this week. You work too hard for your money to make a hasty choice. Remember, you can ask for help. You meet up with an old friend at the end of the week. Spend time with him or her. You'll be surprised at what you find out.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Even though you might not want to hear what family members have to say, listen to them. They're just looking out for you. Take their advice. A date late in the week turns out to be all that you're hoping for and more. This is the start of a lasting relationship.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

A business associate tries to pull the wool over your eyes when it comes to an important project, Scorpio. Don't let him or her. You know how things are supposed to go. Take control of the situation. Your superiors will be impressed with your efforts. That special someone has a bad day at the end of the week. Be supportive.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Don't beat yourself up over a mistake you made a long time ago. Learn from the past, and move on. If you stay focused, you'll come across an excellent financial opportunity this week. A close friend needs a shoulder to cry on. Listen to him or her, and be compassionate.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

When it comes to advancing your career, look before you leap, Capricorn. Things aren't always as good as they seem. Look at all of the pros and cons before getting involved. A loved one offers to help you with a personal problem. Take him or her up on it. You can't handle this alone.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

You're on the go this week, Aquarius. There's a lot to be done, and you're a little overwhelmed. Don't worry; if you stay focused, you'll come through with flying colors. A friend of a friend tells you how he or she really feels about you. Before making a commitment, think about what you want.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

It seems as if everyone wants something from you this week. Don't get upset. Just take some time for yourself. Then, you can deal with everyone else. A budding romance stops before it starts. Don't get upset. He or she wasn't the right one for you.

IN FOCUS

Comic Kevin James stars in The King of Queens, premiering Monday, Sept. 21, on CBS. James plays parcel deliveryman Doug Heffernan. Doug is the king of his castle - a modest home in the New York borough of Queens - where his prized possession is a large-screen TV. When his father-in-law (Jerry Stiller) moves in and the TV room becomes the spare bedroom, Doug suddenly finds his home is no longer his castle.

Elise Neal and D.L. Hughley star as parents striving to achieve the American dream in The Hughleys, premiering Tuesday, Sept. 22, on ABC. Hughley plays his namesake, Darryl Hughley, a breadwinner living in a new suburban house with his family. While his wife and two children have adjusted to their new lives and made friends in the neighborhood, Darryl's best friend, Milsap (John Henton), tries to convince him that success is taking him away from his roots.

Nebraska farm wife Juanita Buschkoetter is the pivotal figure in The Farmer's Wife, filmmaker David Sutherland's documentary airing Monday through Wednesday on PBS' Frontline (check local listings).

The Farmer's Wife on PBS is week's best soap opera

Forget The Young and the Restless and All My Children. The best soap opera on TV this week is a PBS Frontline miniseries airing Monday through Wednesday, Sept. 21-23 (check local listings).

While it has most of the elements of a commercial soap, however, The Farmer's Wife - filmmaker David Sutherland's three-part, six-hour-plus documentary on the life of a Nebraska farm family - is all too real.

The title "character" in Wife is Juanita Buschkoetter, a sad-eyed brunette struggling to keep her family and marriage together in the face of what may be hopeless economic hardship.

Her marriage to Darrel, who is a few years older, never has been a day at the beach. From the beginning, Juanita's white-collar family has viewed the union with mild disapproval.

Her mother even offered to pay to have Juanita's crooked front teeth fixed if she didn't marry Darrel, and she remains convinced that her son-in-law is not a good provider.

And Darrel has issues of his own. His taciturn, aloof farmer father hasn't done much for his son's self-esteem, leaving Darrel feeling increasingly depressed and defensive as an early frost has a devastating effect on his crops and puts the farm in jeopardy.

Darrel even becomes paranoid about his loyal wife, fretting that she is being unfaithful and that any outside activity, including school, will lead her to leave him.

As a result, much of the responsibility for keeping their three children happy and the creditors at bay falls on Juanita's slender but steely shoulders.

Watching the personal challenges and, ultimately, the victory of this farm family makes for addictive television - especially given Sutherland's painterly eye with his visuals, which often look like an Andrew Wyeth canvas. You won't soon forget a shot like the one in which a violent thunderstorm churns on the horizon, about to sweep down like the wrath of God.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: I hear Judge Wapner has a new TV show on Animal Planet, but I can't find it anywhere in my listings. What is it called? -Mary Fran Purse via e-mail.

A: Judge Wapner's Animal Court airs weekdays on Animal Planet starting Monday, Sept. 28.

Q: Does Gale Storm have any plans to star in another series, or guest star in one that's already running? I think she would be great on Touched by an Angel! -Allen Freeman Jr., Madison Heights, Va.

A: At 76, Storm has no plans to tackle a new series (her last one was The Gale Storm Show, also known as Oh! Susanna, which ended in 1960). She made a guest appearance on a Murder, She Wrote episode back in 1989.

She does, however, seem to be moving back into the public eye since the 1996 death of her husband, Paul Masterson. She charmed fans last spring at a Knoxville, Tenn., film festival event in her honor, and was scheduled to present an Emmy Award in the technical awards coverage recently broadcast on C-Span.

Judge Joseph Wapner

If you want to keep posted on the beloved singer-actress, write to the Gale Storm Appreciation Society, P.O. Box 212, Coalton, OH 45621. Be sure to include a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the reply.

Q: What happened to the delightful NBC comedy series For Your Love? Isn't it coming back? -Puzzled via e-mail.

A: Love has moved to The WB Network, where it airs Thursdays.

Q: I need your help. I say a TV movie called Uncommon Valor premiered on TV the same night as The A-Team many years ago. It was about a pyromaniac who set fire to a hospital after he lost his job. My friends say I am crazy and the only movie of that title was a Gene Hackman war movie. -"Am I Nuts?" via e-mail.

A: Relax. Mitchell Ryan, Ben Murphy and Barbara Parkins are among the stars of this CBS movie (a series pilot), which aired Jan. 22, 1983, according to Alvin H. Marill's Movies Made for Television. If Marill has the date right, that was actually one night before NBC unveiled The A-Team.

Q: Is the Cherie Johnson who played Maxine on Family Matters the same Cherie Johnson who played Cherie on Punky Brewster? -Sheila via e-mail.

A: Yes.

Q: Who played the villain in the recent USA Network thriller Every Mother's Worst Fear? I know him, but it's driving me crazy! -C. Montgomery, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

A: That was nice guy Ted McGinley (Married... With Children) in a radically different image mode.

SOAP WORLD

Brown returns to GH; Warner departs AMC

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

When Carly (Sarah Brown) comes home from the sanitarium on General Hospital, she isn't going to be happy about the deepening relationship between Robin and Jason (Kimberly McCullough, Steve Burton). Unfortunately for Robin and Jason, Carly may not worry for long. Robin isn't happy about the idea of living under the same roof with Carly, but Jason refuses to be separated from his son. In addition, Jason's desire to leave the mob has put his entire family in danger.

Brown, who has been on maternity leave since June, returns to GH on Oct. 5.

In other news: T.C. Warner is leaving her role as Kelsey on All My Children to move to Los Angeles to work on several prime-time and movie projects. Kelsey will be going off to college.

Kimberlin Brown, who plays Sheila on The Bold and the Beautiful, is leaving the show. We will have more on her departure in a future column.

Dear Candace: One of my favorite soap opera actors of all time is John Aprea (ex-Lucas/Alexander) on Another World. He also was on Knots Landing for a while. Can you tell me what he has been up to lately? -Janie in Oklahoma.

Dear Reader: Aprea appeared in the 1991 feature film New Jack City and in 1997's The Game. The actor says he continues to keep his mind open about returning to daytime television.

Dear Candace: I've watched As the World Turns for more than 30 years. I love the new character Brad. He turns an old lady on. What can you tell me about him, please? -S.W. via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Nick Kokotakis (Brad, ATWT) is single, but dating. He has an 8-year-old daughter, Alex, and he plays classical piano. Kokotakis starred as Detective Michael Price in the USA Network prime-time series Silk Stalkings. His other television credits include Xena: Warrior Princess.

Kokotakis splits his time between Los Angeles, where his daughter and girlfriend live, and New York, where ATWT is filmed.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best.

You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.
