Early voting to end Friday for election

3 local contested races on the Nov. 3 ballot

Early voting in the general election will end at 5 p.m. Friday. Early voting is being conducted at the Deaf Smith County Clerk's Office in the courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

The polls will be open on Election Day (Nov. 3) from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Although there have been several hotly contested statewide races, for Deaf Smith County voters, there are only three contested local races on the ballot.

Democrat Darla Hale and Republican Jean Schumacher are vying for the 222nd District Court Clerk's position, which is being vacated by long-time clerk Lola Faye Veazey; Democrat Sammy Gonzales Sr., who defeated incumbent Lupe Chavez in the March primary, will face Republican Steve Hoffman for the Precinct 2 commissioner's seat; and incumbent Johnny Latham, a Democrat, is challenged by Republican Jerry O'Connor for the Precinct 4 seat.

On the state ballot, incumbent George Bush, who is seeking to be the first governor re-elected to a four-year term and the first Republican to win a second consecutive term, is the overwhelming favorite over Garry Mauro, who vacated the land commissioner's office to challenge Bush.

Hotly contested statewide races pit Comptroller John Sharp, a Democrat, against Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, a Republican, in the race to succeed retiring Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

Also, Democrat Jim Mattox is battling Republican John Cornyn, a former Supreme Court justice, in the race for attorney general, a post formerly held by Mattox; and former Secretary of State Tony Garza, a Republican, is challenging Democrat Joe B. Henderson for the railroad commissioner's seat being vacated by Carole Keeton Ryland, the GOP nominee for the comptroller's office vacated by Sharp. Ryland's Democratic foe is Paul Hobby, son of former Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Mauro, Bush off to school

AUSTIN (AP) — With the election a week away, the candidates for governor went to school Monday.

Republican Gov. George W. Bush attended the dedication of a San Antonio middle school named for his mother, Barbara.

Democratic candidate Garry Mauro visited with Austin elementary school students who will vote in a mock election this week. Their talk turned to baseball.

One student asked Mauro if he and Bush are friends in the same way as home run title contenders Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa.

"Well, not really," Mauro replied, explaining that there's a key difference between baseball and politics.

"Sammy still has a job and gets to play outfield, even though he didn't win the home run crown, right?" Mauro asked. "If I don't get more votes than George Bush does, I won't get to be governor."

Nonetheless, Mauro said, "I do like him (Bush) and I think he comes from a good family. He's not a bad guy. But I doubt if I have the same relationship (with Bush) as Sammy and McGwire."

In San Antonio, Mrs. Bush was greeted with loud applause and cheers but told her audience she was "a little nervous."

"It's been a long time since I've been invited to a meeting with the principal and one of our sons," Mrs. Bush said.

Gov. Bush said he learned a lot from his mother, including the importance of literacy and education. He said education will be his top priority in a second term.

"I learned that the most important job a man or woman will ever have is to be a good dad or a good mom," he said. "That no matter what your title is in life, that being a good parent is by far the most important thing."

Insisting again that he hasn't made a decision about a 2000 presidential race, Bush also said Monday he doesn't want to talk any further about that subject until after next week's balloting.

"I intend to be the first governor elected to back to back terms in our state's history," he said. "From this point forward, we're going to talk about Texas politics and the Texas election."

Will this one do?

Big pumpkin -- Morgan Norvelle must want to have a jack o'lantern that everyone will be able to see from a distance, because she picked one that's almost as big as she is. Morgan got the pumpkin from Greg Whitacre's patch west of Hereford.

Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court County clerk gets OK to cancel contract

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland got the go-ahead Monday from the county commissioners to cancel the county's contract with First Printing of Hereford for a Xerox copier.

Ruland asked the commissioners to give him the authorization to cancel the contract and sign an agreement with Danka of Amarillo for a Minolta copier.

Workers in courthouse offices have been dissatisfied with the Xerox copier, complaining it takes too long to process jobs, jams too frequently and does not have a sorter.

Ruland said there is some question about the cancellation process, noting he believes the county can terminate the agreement on 30 days notice. However, he said there seems to be a conflict in the signed contract.

The commissioners directed Ruland to proceed with the cancellation process, but to have Jim English, the county's legal counsel, review the contract and supporting documents.

Commissioner Wayne Betzen asked Ruland about the situation with computers. Ruland said the county's software is

Year 2000 compliant; however, there are some computers that need to be replaced, so the county will be out some money in updating the equipment.

Some of the older computers are not Y2K compliant, he said. However, some of the newer computers may not be Y2K compliant because processing chips installed as replacements might have been non-compliant.

However, Ruland said he sees no problem in making the county's computer system Y2K compliant before Dec. 31, 1999.

Ruland said the Apollo Data software already is Y2K compliant because when the dates are entered in the computer field, it's a six-digit number, such as 10-26-98 for Oct. 26, 1998, but when an eight-digit number, such as 10-26-1998, shows on the monitor.

Jim Glenn of Pepsco discussed a new plan offered by the financial management firm to county employees.

County employees already can earmark payroll deductions to be handled by the company as deferred compensation. Glenn said Pepsco now offers a new plan, which will make the new Roth IRAs and education prepayment plans available to any county employees who choose to participate.

Glenn said he would meet with county employees individually and at the employees' request so there would be no disruption of the work routine.

The commissioners discussed the county hospitalization insurance plan and decided to take the matter up again at the next meeting.

Betzen said he is concerned about escalating costs and wanted to implement some of the administrator's recommendations, such as increasing the deductible, establishing a specific enrollment period and raising the co-payments.

The commissioners will review the recommendations and consider changes at the next session.

Commissioner Troy Don Moore, who is a member of the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District Board, reported the district hopes a negotiated settlement will be reached between the appraisal district and Holly Sugar Corp., which has filed a lawsuit in 222nd District Court contesting the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District's assessment of its beet-processing plant in Hereford.

Imperial Holly Corp., parent company of Holly Sugar, announced in February it would close the beet-processing plant, which had been operating since September 1964. Although the company shut down the beet-processing facility, the plant remained open as a packaging/distribution center.

Holly Sugar's assessed value for this year is between $25 million and $26 million, according to chief appraiser Danny Jones.

In the suit filed by attorneys James Popp and Gilbert D. Davila of the Austin law firm of Popp & Ikard, Holly Sugar contends the district's appraisal "exceeds its market value and is, therefore, excessive and unlawful" and asks the court to "determine the market value of the property and reduce its appraised value on ... (the) roll."

The company also contends the appraised value of the Holly Sugar property "exceeds the median appraised value of ... comparable properties reasonably adjusted" and seeks a reduction in the appraised value on the tax roll.

"Growing anxiety about the financial markets, combined with political concerns and recent layoff announcements, have given consumers the jitters."

Consumer confidence tumbles to 2-year low

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer confidence tumbled to its lowest level in nearly two years in October amid increasing concerns about global economic and political troubles.

The Conference Board reported today its index of consumer confidence fell 9.1 points to 117.3 from a revised 126.4 in September. The last time it was lower was in December 1996.

October's decline, the fourth straight month of retreat, was much larger than Wall Street analysts expected. The index now is down 20.9 points from its 29-year high in June.

"Growing anxiety about the financial markets, combined with political concerns and recent layoff announcements, have given consumers the jitters," said Lynn Franco, associate director at the Conference Board, a New York-based, business-financed private research group.

Consumer sentiment is an important economic indicator since consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of the nation's overall economic activity.

The report comes amid increasing evidence that the U.S. economy is slowing as a result of the financial crisis in Asia and Russia that is now threatening Latin America.

In reaction to continued economic turbulence, U.S. stocks slumped sharply in early October, before beginning to rebound.

Stocks were up broadly today, with the Dow Jones industrial average adding 47.38 at 8,479.59 late this morning. That's more than 7 percent above where it began the year but 9 percent below its record high of 9,337.97, reached July 17.

Pilots warned of Viagra

DALLAS (AP) — Airline pilots are being warned against using Viagra because of vision problems it can cause while flying in bad weather or at night.

The Federal Aviation Administration has advised pilots that the sex potency drug can impair the ability to distinguish between blue and green.

That presents a problem for pilots because those colors show up everywhere — from the color instrument displays in modern cockpits to hundreds of thousands of taxiway lights at darkened airfields.

"Although only 3 percent of all patients report visual disturbances, this blue-green impairment could be dangerous" while flying in bad weather or at night, according to Dr. Donato J. Borillo of the U.S. Air Force. Borillo wrote about the subject in the fall edition of the Federal Air Surgeon's Medical Bulletin.

FAA officials say flight doctors are being urged to tell pilots not to fly within six hours after a dose of Viagra.

In addition to problems with colors, "full attention to the instrument scan and the task at hand may be compromised," Dr. Borillo wrote.

"I'm not sure there are that many who would admit they needed it," Hotard told The Dallas Morning News.

Dr. Warren Silberman, the FAA doctor who manages the government's flight-physical program, said he knows of no accidents or incidents attributable to Viagra.

The answer is simple, he said: "Six hours from Viagra to throttle."

One-car accident — Emergency services personnel worked a wreck Monday about 10 p.m. involving a 1995 Chevrolet Cavalier. The driver, Candie Holmes, 19, of Hereford was taken to Hereford Regional Medical Center, but sustained no serious injuries according to officials at the scene. Holmes reportedly lost control of the vehicle, which rolled at least once.

UT accepts New York times morgue

AUSTIN (AP) — Some 22 million New York Times clippings dating to early this century and covering topics from the Titanic to the Vietnam War are finding a new home at the University of Texas.

The school announced Monday that its Center for American History is inheriting the Times' morgue, 2,500 boxes of clips that arrived in Austin on four tractor-trailer rigs.

"It's a great event," said UT American history professor Lewis Gould. "The Times morgue is one of the most important untapped resources for the study of the modern United States."

Center director Don Carleton said the millions of clips are divided into subjects, including 25 boxes on President Lyndon Johnson alone. The stories stretch from 1908 to 1989.

"It represents an important icon of newspaper history and the way newspapers used to work before the computer age," he said.

The clippings were a gift, and one of the only restrictions the Times held for the center was that they never be destroyed, Carleton said.

"It is truly a gold mine. It's a literary gold mine," said Arthur Gelb, president of the New York Times Foundation and a former managing editor of the newspaper.

It was a difficult decision for the newspaper to give up the morgue, but the company decided it didn't have the room or people to preserve the clips, some of which are in fragile condition, Gelb said.

"We decided that it required tremendous space and tremendous staff," said Gelb, who will make a formal announcement at a dinner Wednesday night. "And Texas was willing to give it the tender loving care it needed."

The clippings will be housed at the J.J. Pickle Research Campus in Austin, but researchers, including students and the general public, can request any subject and a file will be shipped to the center, Carleton said. The files will not be on display, he said.

"We're talking about a tremendously wonderful time-saving measure," Carleton said. "The clippings are indexed and filed the way New York Times reporters used them."

Gelb said he used the archives daily as a 45-year reporter and editor for the Times.

"I couldn't have survived a day in that newsroom without it," he said.

The clippings will be the cornerstone of the center's media archives, which also includes contributions from the CBS Evening News for the period Walter Cronkite was managing editor.

The New York Times clippings were a natural progression since the center already has the archives of the now defunct New York Herald-Tribune and the Hearst Corporation's New York Journal-American, Carleton said.

"What we have here are the extremely well-indexed articles of comprehensive coverage for all the major events of U.S. history as they occurred during the major portion of the 20th century. It's a major coup," he said.

Gelb said the university seemed like a natural place to house the archives.

Whooping crane found in NM

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An endangered whooping crane that dropped out of sight for more than three weeks on its trip south for the winter was spotted in northwest New Mexico having breakfast in a farmer's field.

The crane seen Monday by a Bloomfield bird watcher is one of two remaining whoopers in a group of four that followed pilot Kent Clegg in an ultralight airplane from Idaho to the Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge last year.

This time, the whoopers are trying to make the trip on their own. "We're happy to find it alive," Clegg said from his home in Grace, Idaho.

Longtime birdwatcher John Rees first saw the 5-foot tall white bird Sunday morning in a field about 25 miles south of Farmington. "It's hard to mistake," Rees said. "We saw it feeding and resting."

The bird was alone and looked healthy, he said.

The whooping crane is flying near the route Clegg used as he tried to teach the young whooping cranes to migrate to the wildlife refuge in central New Mexico, U.S. Fish and Wildlife spokesman Hans Stuart said. A bobcat and a coyote killed the two other whoopers last winter at the refuge.

The other ultralight whooping crane is in Colorado's San Luis Valley where an older whooping crane, sandhill cranes and other birds rest before continuing their southern migration.

Clegg said the ultralight whooper in Colorado has paired with the older whooping crane. "They are recognizing their own kind, that's another positive sign," he said.

There is some concern that the whooper spotted near Farmington is traveling alone, but Clegg said it isn't unusual for a young whooping crane to keep to itself once it reaches the wintering ground.

"We'll be interested to see where it goes," Clegg said. "The fact that it's in New Mexico is a big plus. It's only a day's flight out of the bosque if it chooses to go that way."

Clegg said the whooper probably is waiting for better weather — which normally would provide a tail wind for the journey south.

The ultralight program was created to match reintroduction techniques. Researchers hope the whoopers will follow the follow the set routes and stay together. "The whole objective is to see if we can manipulate where they winter," Clegg said.

Some states along the migration route have opposed reintroduction, citing fears about federal interference stemming from Endangered Species Act regulations. Wildlife managers in the western states also have questioned the biological basis of the program, which they say puts the cranes at the outer limits of their historical range.

Trick or treating the safe way

Halloween can be fun for children when safety precautions are considered.

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Halloween is the kids' night to howl, so let them do it in style and safety. Children's Halloween costumes should give children maximum mobility and visibility for the nocturnal neighborhood treks on Oct. 31. "Parents should consider these guidelines before the little gremlins get dressed for their trick-or-treating," said Dr. Michael C. Smith, pediatrician at the Scott & White Clinic in Waco and assistant professor at the Texas A&M University Health Science Center College of Medicine.

So, how can parents make sure their little cowboys, ballerinas and space aliens are both stylish and safe? Smith advises the following:

- Make sure the costume allows for easy movement and doesn't drag on the ground. This could cause the child to trip and fall. The child should wear shoes that fit well and feel comfortable. High heels, clown feet or heavy boots could cause the child to stumble.

- Since most trick-or-treating is down at sundown or at night, costumes should allow the child to see and to be seen by motorists. Make sure the costume is made of white or bright material so that the child can be seen at night. Use black only for trim or decorative touches.

- Elaborate headdresses and rubber masks can block a child's vision. A good substitute for masks and headdresses is face painting. Just make sure the paint is nontoxic and designed for use on the face. Use paint labeled specifically for cosmetic purposes and safe for the skin.

- If you have doubts about using a paint, call the Texas Poison Control Center Network's toll-free number for information before applying it. Call (800) POISON1 or (800) 764-7661. The phones are staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Callers will be connected with the nearest available poison center.

- Add plenty of glow-in-the-dark decals or reflective tape so the child can be easily seen at night. Let the child help decorate the costume, shoes, trick-or-treat bag and hat with reflective tape. Costumes made of non-flammable materials are essential. If you are buying a ready-made costume, read labels carefully to make sure the fabric is flame retardant.

- Give your child a flashlight to carry.

- Don't let your little trickster carry sharp objects. Safe and attractive replicas can be made with cardboard and spray paint.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My good friend and fellow astronaut John Glenn will return to space on Thursday, Oct. 29, after 36 years. This true American hero captured our hearts and imaginations when he became the first American to orbit the Earth back in February 1962. During the countdown of that historic flight, fellow Mercury astronaut Scott Carpenter echoed the nation's silent sentiments when he spoke the words "Godspeed, John Glenn."

It is my desire to repeat history on an even grander scale for this launch. I would like to encourage everyone from around the nation and the world to participate in the send-off by watching the launch of the space shuttle Discovery and joining in a resounding "Godspeed, John Glenn and the crew of STS-95" at launch time, approximately 2 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time) on Oct. 29. This expression of goodwill and support for John Glenn and the entire crew will indeed make this one of the greatest moments in the history of space. -- Buzz Aldrin, astronaut

Dear Buzz Aldrin: What a splendid idea! I hope my readers around the world will make an effort Thursday afternoon to wish godspeed to John Glenn and the crew of the space shuttle Discovery. My best wishes for a successful mission and a safe return.

Dear Ann Landers: My 17-year-old son has left the house. I didn't throw him out. He chose to leave because I told him to take some classes and get his GED or find a job and keep it.

"Todd" dropped out of school last year after years of struggling with attention deficit disorder and some other mild learning disabilities. He had all the help he could ever hope for. I spoke with school teachers and counselors. Todd was given medication but refused to take it. He's been to psychologists, family counselors, medical doctors, you name it, all in an effort to help him cope and succeed. The problem is, Todd is not willing to do anything to help himself.

When Todd dropped out of school, I told him he either had to take classes or go to work. He's had three jobs since then and quit them all. He just wants to hang out with his friends and would come home only to eat and sleep. The whole family decided we could no longer tolerate his behavior and stand by while he wasted his life. We all love him dearly, and he can come back any time he wants, as long as he follows the rules.

I am physically ill because of this. I've cried until there are no more tears, and I'm totally stressed out. I fear for Todd's safety while he's bouncing from friend to friend, house to house. I don't know if he's eating or where he is, and it's only been a week. I pray constantly for his safety and hope that he will eventually come to his senses. I also pray to have the strength and peace to get through this, but I'm having a hard time keeping it all together for my husband and our other two children. Any advice for me? -- Greensboro, N.C.

Dear Greensboro: You didn't throw Todd out. He chose to leave. It sounds as if you have made a valiant effort to help this boy, but he is doing very little to help himself. (Refusing to take his medicine is a very important clue.)

Please contact BILY (Because I Love You), an excellent support group for parents who have difficult teenagers, at P.O. Box 35175, Los Angeles, Calif. 90035-9998 (www.becauseiloveyou.org), or call toll-free 1-888-443-4481.

Good luck, dear. Please write back, and let me know how you are doing.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. Researchers suggest women's genes get around a lot more than men's genes do

NEW YORK (AP) — The history books are full of the adventurous travels of men, but a new study suggests that women have done better at spreading their genes around the globe.

That doesn't mean historians have overlooked voyages by women explorers. For the most part, researchers say, the explanation is much more mundane: Women through history moved to their mates' communities to start families.

Over thousands of years, these short migrations apparently enabled women's genes get around more than men's, said researcher Mark Seielstad.

Seielstad, a fellow in the program for population genetics at the Harvard School of Public Health, did the work with Luca Cavalli-Sforza and Eric Minch at the Stanford University School of Medicine. Their findings were published in the November issue of the journal Nature Genetics.

The study used data on modern-day genes. It looked for the effects of men and women moving away from their native communities in ancient times and producing children somewhere else.

It relied on the fact that the Y chromosome is passed on only by fathers. In contrast, genetic material called mitochondrial DNA, or mtDNA, is passed along only by mothers.

Both kinds of genetic material contain tiny variations that can be tracked in different populations. The more a specific variation is confined to a particular population, the less chance it has had to spread elsewhere through human migration.

The researchers found that Y chromosome variations tended to be much more localized than mtDNA variations — a sign that men weren't migrating as much as women. The difference showed up when different populations on a single continent were compared, as well as in comparisons between inhabited continents.

The biggest reason is probably women moving to their husbands' communities to start families, the researchers said. A smaller factor might be men with multiple wives, which would also suppress variation in Y chromosomes, but very few men have been able to afford that arrangement, the researchers said.

Seielstad said he and colleagues weren't surprised by the result, because the idea of women moving to their husbands' community is so common across cultures.

Michael Hammer, a University of Arizona geneticist, said that Seielstad's conclusions make sense but that his own work suggests an additional twist.

His evidence agrees that women may have migrated more than men within continents, but men may have traveled more between.

Class of 1979 plans reunion

Seeks addresses for class membership

Members of the Hereford High School Class of '79 have announced they are seeking names and addresses of fellow classmates as part of preparations for a 20th reunion.

The class has scheduled the reunion to begin Aug. 6, 1999, and continue through Aug. 7.

Anyone who may have information regarding the whereabouts of these class members are asked to send the information to: H.H.S. Class of '79, P.O. Box 1583, Hereford, Texas 79045.

Use imagination to create great costumes from ordinary items

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — It is a dark and stormy night — or whatever other kind of night your imagination can create this Halloween.

But what's that? You say your imagination is more desolate than a candy bowl ravaged by trick-or-treaters? Never fear, even the most innovative minds need an occasional jump star.

With that in mind, we've tried to find some of the most creative, some of the easiest and some of the least expensive costume options around.

It's amazing what you can do with an old sweatshirt or a raggedy pair of jeans and a hot glue gun. And never underestimate the usefulness of a cardboard box.

As you prepare for Halloween — or a fall festival — at your house or school, keep some of these ideas in mind.

SWEATSUITS

Since they come in all sizes, sweatsuits are a great start to costumes for kids of all ages.

Using sweatsuits, we made costumes for three children: a ladybug for a 17-month-old girl, a cluster of grapes for a 3-year-old boy and a Dalmatian suit for a 12-year-old girl. But any one of the costumes would have worked for any of the kids simply by getting a different sized sweatsuit.

First, the ladybug: Take a red sweatsuit. Glue small black pompons on the front and back. For the bug's antenna, wrap two black pipe cleaners around a red headband. Glue bigger black pompons on the end. We used 1-inch pompons for the ladybug spots and 2-inch ones for the antennae.

The grapes: You can make either green or purple, depending on what color sweatsuit you have or can find to buy. We had a little trouble finding a purple sweatshirt for a boy, and in the end, opted for the hooded variety. Blow up balloons that match the sweatshirt and, very carefully, safety pin them all over the sweatsuit. Remember not to pin any to the back of the pants, though, or the child won't be able to sit down. Balloons also can be attached to a green or purple leotard for a girl.

The Dalmatian: Glue or iron on black felt spots of various shapes and sizes to a white sweatsuit. The felt can be ironed on using adhesive backing sold in fabric stores under such brand names as Wonder Under and Pellon. You also can use fabric paint to put the dots on the sweatsuit. If your little Dalmatian has long hair, pull it up into pigtails and then using black pony tail bands, cover the pigtails with white socks. You also can add spots to the ears, if you like. If pigtails aren't an option, felt or construction paper ears can be glued to a headband. You can use an eyebrow pencil to color in a black nose on your puppy. Our dog also wore a red dog collar — fastened loosely, of course — and an old rabies vaccination tag from a real dog.

Still eager for more sweatsuit ideas? Try these:

A fawn: Start with a brown sweatsuit. Glue cotton balls to the back of the suit for the fawn's spots. Cut a U-shape out of white felt and glue to the front of the sweatsuit. Cut a tail out of brown felt, glue cotton balls to the underside and glue or safety pin the tail to the seat of the pants. Use a black or brown eyebrow pencil to add a dark nose and a few whisker spots on the fawn's cheeks.

A moose: Again, start with the useful brown sweatsuit. Cut moose-shaped antlers out of brown construction paper and glue to a headband. Use a brown eyebrow pencil to give your little moose a dark nose and you're ready for the school's fall festival. Seems almost too simple.

A tree in fall: Wait, we've got one more for the brown sweatsuit. Cut lots of leaves out of red, orange and yellow construction paper or felt. Glue or pin the leaves all over the sweatsuit.

A Christmas tree: Get an early start on the egg nog season with a green sweatsuit-based costume. Cut bulb shapes out of colored felt and glue onto the sweatsuit. Use black fabric paint as

Toujours Amis membership observes club birthday party

The Toujours Amis Study Club recently celebrated a collective birthday party for the entire membership of the club at the Hereford Country Club.

Hostesses; Tami Charest, Diana Griffin, Donna West and Sherri Turnquist served club members sparkling punch during a welcome. The club then sang Happy Birthday to itself before cake was served.

Each member received a gift and then shared what they had received with the rest of the club.

Membership role was called and Sally Nolen, club president, led the meeting.

Members present at the meeting were; Teresa Allen, Chrystal Anuszkiewicz, Kim Bigham, Trish Brown, Tami Charest, Lisa Formby, Diana Griffin, Jill Harrison, Heather Hicks, Tonja Horrell, Julie Laing, Sally Nolen, Lauri Paetzold, Jan Reeve, Becky Reinart, Jill Savoini, Melody Seiver, Donna West, Heather Wilson and Tammy Yenser.

Funeral directors seek to lighten the mood

Offer unconventional funeral services to grieving families

BOSTON (AP) — Making a living from death doesn't have to be morbid. Take it from the National Funeral Directors Association.

At the industry's largest gathering of the year, funeral directors said it's about time their profession overhaul some outmoded rituals, personalize services and generally just lighten up.

"The image is the old, scary guy with cold hands," said

Paul Johnson of Bradshaw Funeral Cremation Services in St. Paul, Minn. He said this year's theme, "Revolutionize Your Thinking," was timely.

"We don't do cookie-cutter funerals," he told several hundred attendees Monday. "We ask, 'How would you like your mom or spouse to be remembered?' and take it from there."

According to industry figures, more than 124,000 people are employed by more than 21,000 funeral homes nationwide, with the average funeral home handling 160 services annually.

Creating a meaningful death ceremony should be as unique as celebrations of birth or marriage, directors say.

Take, for example, the effort to personalize the service of a Harley Davidson enthusiast. One of the man's five beloved bikes was parked alongside his casket and one of his sons hopped on the bike to lead the procession to the cemetery.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Patients admitted to Hereford Regional Medical Center on Oct. 27 were: Viola M. Harbert.

The hospital listed a total of six patients.

an "electrical cord" to connect the bulbs. Glue on colored pompons or felt shapes for ornaments. Glue a yellow construction paper star to a headband to complete the outfit.

A bumble bee: Start with either a yellow or a black sweatsuit. Cut wide felt stripes out of yellow for the black suit or black for the yellow suit and glue the stripes onto the sweatsuit. Wrap black pipe cleaners around a black headband and glue large black pompons to the ends of the antennae. Cut a V-shape out of black felt, crease in the middle and pin to the seat of the pants for the string to the shirt sleeve cuffs so that the "clothesline" stretches across the child's chest when the arms are extended.

LEOTARDS

Any parent of a little girl appreciates the versatility of that old ballet leotard. All of these costumes also can be made using the appropriate color of sweatsuit. Here are some suggestions:

A black cat: This one's a perennial favorite and one of the easiest costumes to pull off. Start with a black leotard and black tights. Cut a tail from felt or even a feather boa (little girls LOVE feather boas). Pin the tail to the seat of the leotard. Cut black construction paper ears and glue them to a headband. Use a black eyebrow pencil to add a nose and whiskers.

A bunny rabbit: Start with a white leotard and white tights. Pin a big, fluffy powder puff to the seat of the leotard for the tail. Cut long white ears out of white construction paper. Cut a second ear shape slightly smaller out of pink construction paper for the inner ear. Glue each inner ear to an outer ear and glue the entire ears onto a headband. Some little girls may opt for a pink bunny rabbit by wearing a pink leotard and tights.

STUFF YOU ALREADY HAVE

A ghost: Always popular, this is easily made with an old white sheet. If you don't have one, buy an inexpensive twin sheet. Cut eye and arm holes and you can tie a loose bow around the neck to keep the costume in place.

A tourist: Dress up in a loud

CARDBOARD

Boxes are amazing. One mom covered a box in foil, cut a hole in it, painted spools silver and glued them on, then stuck a metal colander on my her little boy's head on his way out the door to make him a robot. Precious.

Other cardboard box ideas include buses, cars, trucks, moving vans — all great things for little boys. You can dress the child appropriately, maybe stick a hat on his head. You can also make a toaster or a television set or a computer.

Fan discovered he had much to learn about Negro Leagues

By Deborah Voorhes
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS — Layton Revel had always considered himself a baseball enthusiast. He grew up watching Mickey Mantle; he could recite obscure stats and had even written four books on sports and education.

So no one could have been more surprised than Revel when he found himself chatting with a couple of old-time black baseball players who had competed on teams he didn't even know existed.

The chance meeting happened in the early '90s when Revel was promoting his book Sports Educational. He had come from his home in Carrollton to be a part of a baseball memorabilia expo in the convention center at Houston's Astrodome. While setting up his slickly lighted booth with a color display of his book, he saw the two men sit down at the table next to him carrying only a cardboard box of pictures to be autographed.

Curious, Revel struck up a conversation and soon learned they had been ballplayers in the Negro Leagues.

"I considered myself very knowledgeable about the game in general," he says, still sounding slightly flabbergasted, "but by the end of the weekend it became obvious I knew next to nothing about the Negro League." Sure, he knew the leagues had existed and he displayed at the African American Museum.

Revel knew of a few of the players and teams, but he had much to learn.

Revel turned his frustration into a mission to educate others on the Negro Leagues and the long-forgotten players.

Four and a half years ago, he formed the nonprofit Center for Negro League Baseball Research, which searches for and documents the playing lives of former ballplayers and collects original Negro Leagues memorabilia.

"A major piece of sports history will die if something isn't done," says Revel. "The history rests within each of those guys that played ball. There's not a month that goes by without several ballplayers dying."

His artifact collection has grown so large he's made a deal with the African American Museum to house it. A portion of the archives is on display at the museum through Feb. 28.

"This collection is larger than the one in Kansas City and it surpasses the one at Cooperstown's National Baseball Hall of Fame 1/8and Museum 3/8 in New York," says Larry Lester, the guest curator for the exhibit and the co-founder of the Negro League Baseball Museum in Kansas City. "It has more original historical artifacts - balls, bats, uniforms, programs, contracts - than I've ever seen in one place."

The exhibition peeks into the world of the Negro Leagues. It looks at the batting power of Josh Gibson, the pitching magic of Satchel Paige and the running speed of James "Cool Papa" Bell. It explores how segregated America affected the players' lives (often they had to sleep on the bus if no black-owned hotels were available). It shows whites and blacks playing on the same teams in many countries, such as Cuba and Canada, and it shows black and white all-star teams competing against each other around the United States.

"Many assume that African-Americans discovered baseball when Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in 1947," says Lester. "We've been playing since post-Civil War days - all the way back to the Philadelphia Pythians in the 1870s."

In fact, he says, baseball was once the third-largest industry in black America. "It provided income for athletes, and it helped keep black restaurants, hotels and black-owned taxis in business."

The work Revel has done is far from over. Every month he makes hundreds of calls; he travels 10 to 15 times a year in search of former players. His database has more than 500 living Negro Leagues players listed. When he took up this cause, he had been told that only 250 were still alive. Clues on where to find players often come from the players themselves. "I often hear, 'Oh, have you found so and so? I hear he's in New Orleans now.'"

Revel studies not only the major leagues such as the Negro National League or the Negro American League, but also the minor leagues such as the Negro Southern League, Texas Negro League and the Negro Carolina League. "It's important to know where these players competed before and after they played with the majors," he says. And he even explores small community and industrial teams and the independent players and teams referred to as "barnstormers."

"There was a whole group of ballplayers who just barnstormed across America scheduling games where ever they could," says Revel. "They didn't belong to any league. One day they may play the Birmingham Black Barons and the next day the Masonite Paper Company."

Pay in such cases was very often a 60/40 split of the gate. After the expenses were paid, the winning team would get 60 percent and the losing team 40 percent.

Once Revel finds the players, he records their entire playing career. He has interviewed players all around the United States, and last summer he went to the Yucatan to track down Hector Rodriguez, who is in the hall of fame in three countries (Cuba, Mexico, Venezuela). Rodriguez started his career in Cuba before playing in the Negro Leagues and later for the Chicago White Sox in 1951 as the starting third baseman.

Among his most prestigious interviews was with the late Satchel Paige, the man Joe DiMaggio called the greatest pitcher he ever battled. This was long before Revel had vowed to record the history of black baseball, but it's a meeting he has not forgotten. In 1976, Paige was a coach for the Tulsa Oilers in Oklahoma. During a hometown game, Revel approached him while he was signing autographs, and struck up a conversation with him.

"Satchel told a story about how he could make more money playing for a small team in Bismarck, North Dakota, than he could playing for the Cleveland Indians in the American League." So for a short time Paige decided to pack up his belongings and his wife. Once they got to the town, they couldn't find a place to stay. "He ended up having to set up some furniture in an old abandoned boxcar on the edge of town."

While many have appreciated Revel's work, it has raised a few eyebrows. "Much of the work being done in this field has been done by whites," says Revel, who is also white.

Lester, an African-American, says, "I get criticized by blacks who want to know why I'm working with whites. They'd prefer I work with blacks, but that's not who's preserving the history. I often hear complaints that they lack money for research but... a library card is free."

Revel says he doesn't let this bother him. "This is not a black or white issue. This is a piece of American sports history, and these players exemplify what sports should be about. They didn't play for big salaries or ad endorsements."

Hereford harriers win Levelland meet

From staff reports

Both Hereford's boys and girls cross country teams won team titles Saturday at a cross country meet in Levelland.

The Lady Whitefaces swept the first four spots and had 17 points to capture the Class 4A division. Second-place Canyon Randall had 55 points and Levelland was third with 66 points.

Brionne Yosten won the girls side to lead the Lady Whitefaces. Yosten won the two-mile event in a time of 10 minutes, 50 seconds.

Four other Hereford girls placed in the Top 10. Amy Crox was second with a time of 11 minutes, 29 seconds and Audrey Cabezuella was third with a time of 11 minutes, 47 seconds.

Amy Perrin finished in fourth with a time of 11 minutes, 57 seconds and Meredith McGowan was seventh with a time of 12 minutes, 20 seconds. Anna Delgado was 20th in a time of 13 minutes, 27 seconds.

On the boys side, Robert Chavarria led Hereford, finishing second in a time of 17 minutes, six seconds over the three-mile course. Mark Dotson was fourth in a time of 17 minutes, 21 seconds and Justin Carrol was fifth in 17 minutes, 22 seconds.

The Whitefaces won the Class 4A division with 37 points. Canyon was second with 53 points and Wolforth Frenship was third with 60 points.

James Mather also placed in the Top 10 with a time of 17 minutes, 28 seconds.

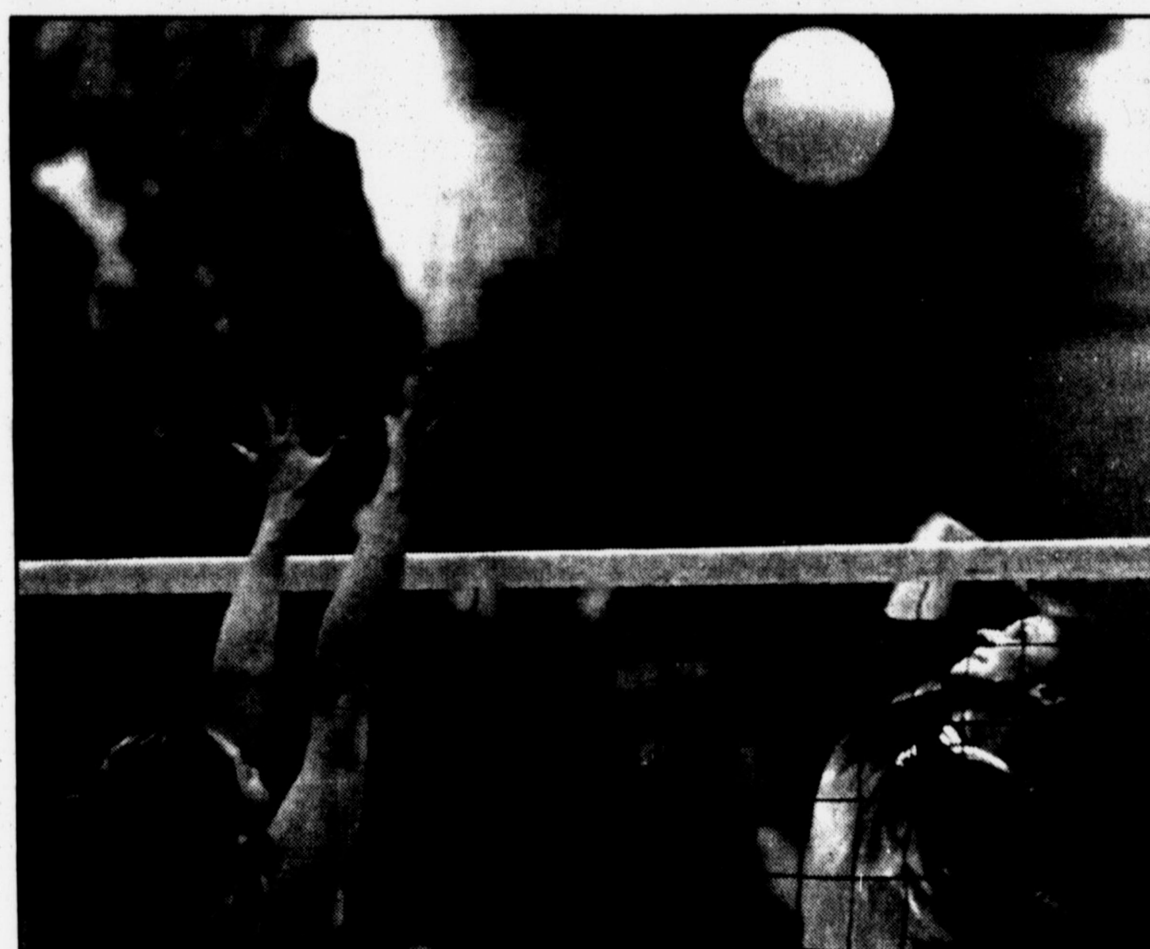

Anthony Gonzalez ran the course in 18 minutes, one second to place 19th for Hereford. Tony Escamilla was 27th in 18 minutes, 57 seconds and Felix Talamantes was 33rd in a time of 19 minutes, 24 seconds.

In the junior varsity meet, Ruby Crox led the Lady

Whitefaces with a second-place finish in 11 minutes, 51 seconds. Yvette Villa was the only other Hereford JV girl to run in the Top 10, recording a 10th-place finish in a time of 13 minutes, 11 seconds. Erica Dominguez was 12th in 13 minutes, 22 seconds and Jenny Butler was 21st with a time of 14 minutes, five seconds.

On the boys JV side, Juan Salazar was 10th for Hereford, in a time of 19 minutes, 30 seconds. Mac Nielsen was 11th in 19 minutes, 44 seconds and Carlos Perez did not place with a time of 20 minutes, 57 seconds.

Hereford wins seeding match over Demonettes

By Bob Varmette
Hereford Brand Sports Writer

AMARILLO — It was pretty much taken for granted that it was a match that was essentially meaningless.

It was pretty much taken for granted that the loser of the match actually had an easier route through the Class 4A volleyball playoffs.

And it was pretty much taken for granted that neither Hereford nor Dumas was going to make much of an emotional investment into their third match of the season.

So why was Dumas coach Jack Wilson so displeased after Hereford decided the Demonettes 16-14, 15-10 Monday night at Amarillo Caprock Activity center in a mere playoff seeding match?

"We're making too many errors," Wilson said. "Way too many errors, too many mental errors, too many communication mistakes, so many things it's hard to pinpoint one thing."

It was also taken pretty much for granted that Hereford (28-5) and Dumas (25-9) will play for real to decide who will represent Region I in Austin, as the two have done for the last three years. This was just for... well, fun.

"We really didn't put a lot of emotion into this match," Hereford coach Brenda Kitten said. "Our kids 45 minutes before the match were loose, we were joking around... We didn't play this match up. Winning is kind of just icing on the cake."

But for those anticipating yet another match between the Demonettes and the Lady Whitefaces, Wilson said not so fast.

Phoenix rips Avs for second time

DENVER (AP) — Two years ago, the Colorado Avalanche stood atop the Stanley Cup champions.

After opening the season a franchise-worst 0-4-1, the Avalanche beat Edmonton before falling to the Phoenix Coyotes 5-1 Monday night. So far this season, Colorado has allowed a league-worst 29 goals and has been shut out twice in five home contests.

"We were just a disgrace out there," Colorado forward Keith Jones said.

Colorado was 1-for-7 on the power play, but avoided being shut out when Jones scored at 16:39 of the third period. The Avalanche also had two goals disallowed.

The two disallowed goals took the energy that we had," Colorado coach Bob Hartley. "When they took a 3-0 lead, we missed a couple of power plays where we didn't execute very well."

Keith Tkachuk, a 50-goal scorer in two of his past three seasons who is known for his scoring streaks, got two goals and an assist Monday night as the Coyotes beat Colorado for the second time this season already.

"You know how he gets on those rolls. Sometimes they last a few months," Phoenix coach Jim Schoenfeld said.

Cliff Ronning and Rick Tocchet added a goal and an assist each for the Coyotes, who won a game in Denver for the first time since March 27, 1996.

Mets ink Piazza to $91M contract

By Ronald Blum
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Mike Piazza was pumping iron last Friday in a Southern California gym when his cell phone rang with the news.

After winning over the tough New York fans, who booed him for much of the summer, Piazza was being offered the richest deal in baseball by the Mets.

"I might as well get booed by the best if I was going to get booed by anyone," Piazza said Monday after the Mets announced his $91 million, seven-year contract, the largest in baseball history.

A six-time All-Star, the 30-year-old catcher had slumped early this year. First, the Dodgers traded him to Florida on May 15 after failing to work out a new multiyear contract, then the Marlins sent him to New York seven days later, and Mets fans immediately expected him to lead the team back to the playoffs for the first time in a decade.

It took until the final month of the season for him to settle down, and he wound up hitting .348 in 109 games for the Mets with 23 homers and 76 RBIs, finishing with an overall .329 average, 32 homers and 111 RBIs.

By mid-October, Mets fans had sent the team an e-mail with 10,000 names urging Piazza be re-signed. Mets general manager Steve Phillips said he received dozens of phone calls — including one daily call from a Brooklyn Knights of Columbus lodge — telling him to keep the catcher.

"I definitely had some growing pains coming here," Piazza said. "Once I went through the ups and downs of New York, I definitely wanted to finish my career here."

Jennifer Terry of Amarillo Caprock sends the ball toward Hereford defenders Lyndi Carlile and Kristin Fangman during the teams' final District 3-4A match at Caprock Activity Center. Hereford won 15-3, 15-1 to finish the regular season at 27-5 overall and 9-1 in district.

Hereford hooks Caprock to end regular season

By Bob Varmette
Hereford Brand Sports Writer

AMARILLO - It's usually not a good sign when the question isn't whether you're going to win or lose, but how long it's going to take for you to lose.

Such was the fate of the Amarillo Caprock Lady Longhorns Saturday afternoon.

Hereford - the two-time defending Class 4A volleyball champions - was merely taking time off from hitting balls at each other to practice on Caprock in preparation for another playoff run.

Practice almost made perfect as Hereford routed Caprock 15-3, 15-1 in the final District 3-4A match for the two squads at Caprock Activity Center.

"Overall, I was real pleased with how aggressive we stayed throughout the match, especially after getting big leads in both games," Hereford coach Brenda Kitten said. "We've had such a difficult time at points in this season - just kind of sitting back and coasting - and I was really proud of our kids the way they continued to stay aggressive."

Hereford finished the regular season at 27-5 overall and 9-1 in District 3-4A. Caprock fell to 8-19 and 1-9.

It looked at the start like the Lady Longhorns might put up a fight for the 400 Parent's Day fans. Caprock jumped out to a 1-0 lead on a Hereford line violation and the teams then exchanged five sides out before

"We're doing a lot of things wrong," he said. "It's happened against several other teams in the district, but we have so much talent we've been able to overcome it. But with Hereford, they've got talent, too. It's tough to overcome that."

"It'll be that way in the playoffs. We must be able to do a better job of executing as far as our hitting goes, and right now we're not doing that. We're the ones that got the work cut out for us. About anyone could whip us on a given night the way we're playing."

Inconsistency and a lack of intensity plagued both teams at times.

The Demonettes two big hitters - Julie Williams and Beth Ratliff - both recorded double-digit kills. Williams had a match-high 11 kills and Ratliff had 10, but both were silent for long stretches, including crucial Hereford runs at the end of each game.

"We knew we had to stay very, very aggressive," Kitten said. "We went after them. That keeps Julie from getting chances to swing aggressively."

Williams started out strong. She recorded eight kills in the first game as the teams exchanged points and sides out for first half of the game.

After Williams started to go quiet, Hereford managed to assert itself to a 10-6 margin, but Dumas tied the score at 12-all on a Ratliff crosscourt kill that Hereford's Lyndi Carlile couldn't handle.

Dumas edged ahead 14-12 on a Hereford net violation, but Carlile headed off the Demonettes at game point with a soft kill to force a side out. Dumas again had Hereford at game point, but Tofi Walker got one of her 10 kills in the match for a another side out.

The Lady Whitefaces then ran off four straight points, getting two aces from Makesha Rives, including the game-winner.

"Our kids got real stingy defensively," Kitten said. "Especially in that second game, we made some great defensive plays."

In the second game, Dumas was in command at 10-6, but Williams and Ratliff had combined for only six kills. Then the pair - and the rest of the Dumas attack - went silent.

"Julie wasn't getting that many sets," Wilson said. "When she was getting the sets, she was doing a real good job in there, but she didn't get many swings at the ball. Our passing kind of fell off there, and what really killed us there was when Julie went to the back line, we just didn't have anybody scoring for us. Beth normally does, and she was not getting it done for us."

While the Demonettes went into hibernation, Hereford ran off nine straight points, getting five straight kills from Walker to take the game and the match.

"Tori is just one of the toughest and fiercest competitors I've ever coached," Kitten said. "She takes control of a match. We kept going back and back to her. It's amazing how well she sees the court."

Walker's aggressive play typified Hereford's play, Wilson said. And that, he said, was essentially the difference in the match.

"Defensively, we're just not fighting for balls," Wilson said. "We're waiting for everyone else to do it for us. We just don't have enough aggression. We're not out there battling. . . . It's real disheartening. Everybody just freezes."

Eagles lose final

From staff reports

PLAINVIEW - Nazarene Christian Academy dropped a 28-16 decision to Lubbock Trinity in the High Plains Christian Athletic Association six-man football finals Saturday at Plainview Christian Academy Field.

The Eagles had advanced to the finals with a 42-14 pounding of Amarillo Trinity.

Lubbock Trinity and NCA exchanged touchdowns and extra points in the first quarter. Erael Silva connected with Nick Foster for NCA's touchdown.

Lubbock Trinity got out to a 20-8 lead, but the Eagles answered with a 70-yard run by Silva for a touchdown.

Neither team would score in the third quarter. Lubbock Trinity scored late in the fourth quarter for the final margin.

Silva and Andrew DeLaCruz were named to the all-tournament team.

"I felt our boys demonstrated character, sportsmanship and teamwork all year," NCA coach Larry Perkins said. "It was disappointing to come up one game short, but I could not be prouder of the whole team."

The Eagles finished the season at 13-4 after going 1-13 in 1997.

one game out in the NL wild-card race, is poised to act quickly in rebuilding for next year: The Mets intend to announce Wednesday that they have re-signed pitcher Al Leiter to a $32 million, four-year contract.

St. Andrew's drops NCA in final match

From staff reports

PLAINVIEW - St. Andrew's of Amarillo defeated Nazarene Christian Academy 15-7, 15-8 Saturday in the first round of the High Plains Christian Athletic Association at Plainview Christian Academy Gymnasium.

St. Andrew's went on to win the four-team tournament.

"The Lady Eagles were led by Callie Hansard's seven service points. NCA's Jenna Urbanczyk was chosen to the all-tournament team."

The Lady Eagles ended the year at 11-6.

USA Today poll finds GOP holds edge in congressional races

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Republicans have a narrow advantage over Democrats among likely voters in next week's congressional elections, according to the latest USA Today/CNN/Gallup Poll.

However, the 49 percent to 47 percent edge is within the poll's 4 percentage point margin of error.

Among other findings:

— 24 percent of all those surveyed said the country would be better off with Republicans controlling Congress compared to 22 percent favoring Democrats and 48 percent who said it makes no difference.

— Among those identifying themselves as Republican or leaning Republican, 44 percent said they are more enthusiastic about voting than usual to 39 percent who are less enthusiastic. However, among Democrats or those leaning Democratic, only 32 percent said they are more enthusiastic than usual to 51 percent who described themselves as less enthusiastic.

— Among likely voters, 24 percent said their vote will send a message of support for President Clinton in the "Monica Lewinsky matter" and 22 percent a message of opposition. But 52 percent said their vote in the congressional elections will not be intended to send a message on Clinton.

— 65 percent approve of the way Clinton is handling his job as president.

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment is the secret!

OCALA, FL. -- An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred racehorse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears.

ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some feed stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446, © 1997 PGC

Audiences like 'Pleasantville'; 'T-Rex' rocks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Pleasantville," the story of two teen-agers from the 1990s who add a little color to a black-and-white TV town, topped the weekend box office with a debut of $8.9 million.

The summer hit "Armageddon" became the year's first $200 million movie after 17 weeks, "Life is Beautiful" did well in limited release and the IMAX-format "T-Rex: Back to the Cretaceous" had a thunderous debut, according to industry figures released Monday.

"Pleasantville" had an impressive per-theater average of $5,413 and just edged "Practical Magic." The film about witches in love had $8.8 million for second place.

"Beloved" tumbled nearly 50 percent in its second week, bringing in $4.3 million for seventh place. "Apt Pupil" opened with a disappointing $3.6 million for ninth place.

In limited release, the critically lauded "Life is Beautiful" from Italy opened to $118,920 for a strong per-location average of nearly $20,000. And "T-Rex" collected $119,855 on just three screens for a huge average of $39,952.

"Orgazmo," the NC-17-rated comedy from Trey Parker of "South Park" fame, did weak business in limited release.

The top movies at North American theaters Friday through Sunday, followed by studio, gross, number of theater locations, average receipts per location, total gross and number of weeks in release, as compiled by Exhibitor Relations:

1. "Pleasantville," New Line, $8.9 million, 1,636 locations, $5,413 average, $8.9 million, one week.

2. "Practical Magic," Warner Bros., $8.8 million, 2,652 locations, $3,315 average, $25.9 million, two weeks.

3. "Antz," DreamWorks, $8.1 million, 2,929 locations, $2,770 average, $61.7 million, four weeks.

4. "Bride of Chucky," Universal, $7.1 million, 2,445 locations, $21.4 million, two weeks.

5. "Soldier," Warner Bros., $6.4 million, 2,507 locations, $2,572 average, $6.4 million, one week.

6. "Rush Hour," New Line, $5.9 million, 2,602 locations, $2,252 average, $117.3 million, six weeks.

7. "Beloved," Disney, $4.3 million, 1,507 locations, $2,844 average, $14.7 million, two weeks.

8. "What Dreams May Come," Polygram, $4 million, 2,274 locations, $47 million, four weeks.

9. "Apt Pupil," Sony, $3.6 million, 1,448 locations, $2,475 average, $3.6 million, one week.

10. "A Night at the Roxbury," Paramount, $2.3 million, 1,993 locations, $1,167 average, $26.6 million, four weeks.

John Glenn at the Cape, ready for shuttle launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — With John Glenn and his crewmates on hand and the countdown going smoothly, Florida's unpredictable weather is NASA's chief concern as it prepares to launch the shuttle Discovery.

Forecasters said there was only a 60 percent chance of favorable weather for Thursday's launch, and they were keeping a close eye on Hurricane Mitch churning through the Caribbean.

The storm posed no threat to Florida, but forecasters said that even from a distance it could generate high winds at the oceanside launch pad. Winds of 17.2 mph at launch time could force a postponement.

Glenn and his six crewmates had some rare leisure hours today at the crew quarters, a short drive from the launch pad.

They were to review their flight plans, check equipment, including their spacesuits and undergo brief medical exams. In the afternoon, they were given five hours of free time to spend with adult family members. As a guard against colds or infections, mission rules bar children and teenagers from the crew quarters.

Nearby, preparations by spectators and journalists were reaching a pace that rivaled the frenzy of the Apollo moon shot days of 30 years ago.

Motels in nearby Titusville and Cocoa Beach were filled. Traffic jams were common.

Along highways that afford cross-water views of the launch pad, workers erected barriers and installed portable toilets for the thousands of tourist expected to watch Glenn's return to space. By launch day, the highways are expected to be lined with cars and recreational vehicles filled with spectators awaiting the show.

About 3,500 journalists have registered to cover the mission. More than two dozen television trucks jammed the media complex.

President Clinton and a large congressional delegation are scheduled to attend, along with sports and show business celebrities.

Glenn walked quickly to his waiting family, hugging his wife, Annie.

At attention — Members of the Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band stand at attention during their performance Friday night at the Hereford-Pampa football game in Pampa. The HHS band recently received its 38th consecutive Division I rating in UIL marching band competition.

News in brief

Mitch threatens Honduras

LA CEIBA, Honduras (AP) — Honduras braced for potential catastrophe today as Hurricane Mitch roared through the northwest Caribbean with heart-stopping strength, churning up high waves and intense rain that sent coastal residents fleeing for safer ground.

President Carlos Flores Facusse declared a state of maximum alert and the Honduran military sent planes to pluck residents from their homes on islands near the coast.

Early today, Mitch was 95 miles north of Honduras, near the Swan Islands. With winds near 180 mph, and even higher gusts, it was a Category 5 monster — the highest, most dangerous rating for a storm. The storm was 350 miles wide.

"Mitch is closing in," said

Monterrey Cardenas, mayor of Utila, an island 20 miles off the Honduran coast. "And God help us."

Mitch posed no immediate threat to the United States, forecasters said, but was expected to remain in the northwest Caribbean for the next five days.

The entire coast of Honduras was under a hurricane warning and up to 15 inches of rain was forecast in mountain areas.

Yeltsin in sanatorium

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Yeltsin checked into a sanatorium today, a day after doctors ordered him to cancel yet another foreign trip because of high blood pressure and extreme fatigue.

Yeltsin checked into the Barvikha sanatorium near Moscow, the Interfax news agency reported, citing his spokesman, Dmitry Yakushkin. Yeltsin has stayed there in the past, including when he was recovering from multiple heart bypass surgery in 1996.

Albright presses Arabs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Madeleine Albright is urging Arab leaders to recognize Israel now that it has agreed to cede more land to the Palestinians.

She also wants them to help the Palestinians develop the West Bank and Gaza.

Arab momentum in establishing diplomatic and economic ties to Israel was halted after Benjamin Netanyahu and his Likud coalition ousted Shimon Peres as prime minister in 1996 elections.

Netanyahu's refusal to relinquish more land and his opposition to a Palestinian state prompted the Arab freeze.

But now that he has signed an agreement with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat to give up to the Palestinians another 13 percent of the West Bank, Albright wants the Arabs to reciprocate.

"Secretary Albright believes with the peace process now reinvigorated Arab states should do more to normalize relations with Israel, assist the Palestinians economically where possible and participate in the multilateral peace process track," her spokesman, James P. Rubin, said.

The Clinton administration is not gearing up to push Israel to make a land-for-peace deal with Syria.

Default rate drops again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stricter controls and an improving economy have lowered the share of students defaulting on their federally backed loans from nearly one out of four early this decade to less than one in 10 in 1996, the Education Department says.

"The student loan program is now a shining example of government providing opportunity with accountability," President Clinton said Monday after the department announced a 9.6 percent default rate for fiscal 1996. It was the sixth annual decline in a row and the first time that the rate was below 10 percent. Rates peaked at 22.4 percent in 1990.

Congress passed legislation in 1990 and 1992 to crack down on borrowers and trade schools such as beauty colleges and truck-driving schools that promised more job training than they delivered. And the country began to pull out of a recession in early 1991.

The department noted that the default rate has declined even though the volume of loans has risen dramatically, from about $14 billion in 1992 to $38 billion in the 1998 fiscal year. Because of the volume, actual dollar savings aren't as dramatic as they could have been.

In 1991, for example, the department had to repay $3.6 billion in default claims to lenders. In fiscal 1998, the department had to repay $2.8 billion.

A new higher education bill approved by Congress will further streamline the program and make it more accountable, said Rep. Bill Goodling, R-Pa., chairman of the House Education and Workforce Committee.

"Less time and money spent on delinquent loans means more time and money to help needy students receive financial assistance," Goodling said.

"Over 300,000 Texans have left the welfare rolls and nearly one million Texans no longer need food stamps."

"It's the result of welfare reforms I suggested and the Legislature approved."

"Today, there are strict limits on how long the able-bodied can be on welfare. They must work, train, or learn for their benefits."

"Welfare recipients must agree to stay off drugs and keep their children in school to get their checks."

"We're using finger imaging and technology to fight welfare fraud."

"More can be done to change welfare to insist on work."

"So I've proposed we cut off benefits to anyone on welfare who refuses to accept a job, is convicted of using drugs, or doesn't cooperate with child support enforcement."

"If we discover welfare fraud, it should be one strike and you're out."

"For teen single moms, we'll establish group homes so they learn the values and skills to have successful lives."

"And I will encourage faith-based organizations to be even more involved in providing social services, bringing hope, and changing hearts in a way government can't do."

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.
