'It keeps me busy ...'

"I don't really take orders anymore. Sometimes I'll do a special piece, but I don't like to be rushed or hurried."

Peggy King

Golden Plains resident keeping old art form alive

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Everyone needs a hobby, and as hobbies go, Peggy King really gets into hers - china painting. King, a resident of Golden Plains Care Center, keeps herself busy painting and refinishing delicate china pieces. "Most of the pieces I get are from secondhand shops or garage sales," said King. "Sometimes I have to remove the old patterns before I can paint a piece." She says she got started painting china about 30 years ago when her oil painting instructor offered to teach her this dying art form. Now she does it just to keep herself active and busy. "I don't really take orders anymore," she said. "Sometimes I'll do a special piece, but I don't like to be rushed or hurried." The pieces she works on range from tall antique milk pitchers to dainty tea cups and saucer sets to meat platters and quaint bread plates. A lot of work and many hours go into a finished piece. First the piece has to be cleaned and all the old decals removed, which can take days depending on the intricacy of the pattern. After removing the decal comes the first stage of the painting - rough outlines of the design. Each layer of the paint is delicately added with an almost chalk-like textured paint and can be easily rubbed off before firing. "If it's been fired the design is permanent and the piece can be used," she said. "They're dishwasher safe and read to use. Even if the design is not complete." "Most of what I paint just comes off the top of my head," she said. "But, occasionally I find a calendar or a picture I try to copy. Sometimes I just get an idea from a picture and do my own thing." King said each piece has a distinct quality which helps her decide just exactly what she will paint. "I like birds, but they're somewhat difficult," King said. "I won't ever do owls again. They're probably the hardest." As the piece progresses, it has to be fired a number of times. "I've painted a number of pieces and had them break during the last firing," she said. "It's really disappointing when you've worked so hard, and think you're nearly finished and then have it break during the final firing." King displays her art in a glass cabinet and says she just like to look at the finished items. She says her apartment has maybe 300 pieces displayed. Unfinished pieces are carefully stored under a cloth until the next firing. "If I don't keep them covered," said King, "then the dust settles on them and gets fired into the finish with the paint." According to Doris Huckert, an employee at Golden Plains, many residents will stop by while King is painting, just to see the designs develop. "It keeps me busy," said King. "And, it's something I enjoy doing."

New bank still on track

Acting CEO, Easley, knows patience is a virtue, or at least understands the theory behind it

By Mauri Montgomery
Hereford Brand Publisher

Plans are still progressing, even if moving slower than originally expected, for Hereford's newest financial institution -- a bank being organized as First National Bank of Hereford, according to acting President/CEO, Wade Easley. And patience is a virtue. At least that is what Easley, who already knows well the in's and out's of the banking business, keeps reminding himself after pacing for months like an expectant father. The bank, which received preliminary charter approval in October, is still awaiting approval from Texas State Securities Board for issuance of a stock circular. Initial capital reserves have been projected at between six and 12 million dollars. But waiting at the bequest of state and federal regulatory agencies can seem endless for those who want to apply their enthusiasm in this lifetime. "The whole process has taken a little bit longer than I had counted on, but I fully expect to receive approval from TSSB within the next week or two," Easley said. "Once that hurdle has finally been leaped, we'll be able to start selling stock," he said. A Hereford native, Easley began his career in banking as a loan officer at the original First National Bank of Hereford; at that time, Hereford's oldest financial institution. He served as loan officer at FNB prior to the bank's merger with the Perryton-

"I had always believed Hereford needed a locally-owned, locally-operated bank, and when such a bank no longer existed I knew I wanted to try to bring one back," Easley said. "I found out in a hurry I wasn't alone in my beliefs when I started testing the waters for investors."

Firm plans to sell new Hereford phone book

Hereford residents and merchants will soon have another choice in local phone books if another directory company has its way. Choice Directories of Canyon recently announced its intention to enter toe-to-toe competition with other phone books for the Hereford market's current directory and directory advertising business. The Canyon business, owned and operated for the past six years by Canyon News Publisher, Bird Tooley, is currently publishing similar directories for Canyon and West Texas A & M University. The company had also operated successfully for 20 years prior to Tooley's interest in the venture. And having an established Panhandle track record brings the company a greater vested interest and a better local perspective about what a community wants in its phone book, according to Tooley. "We hope that Hereford residents will adopt this as their book," Tooley said. "I know we'll have a greater interest than our competitors in tapering it to fit the community's needs, not only in content, but also in the rates we charge for advertising." Tooley said the company operates on a rate structure which is typically 50% less expensive than a similar ad placed in a competitor's phone book. "We will try hard to be a new business member of Hereford, not the guys who show up only once per year to resale the book," Tooley said. The directory company has already begun marketing efforts and some initial sales calls in Hereford, according to Tooley, but will begin promoting itself more heavily in the next two weeks.

Mockup of new directory cover planned for Hereford

Schumacher ready for new responsibilities

By Don Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

When the new year dawns, Jean Schumacher will raise her right hand and accept a new challenge, new responsibilities. Schumacher, who has spent the last 20 years as a legal secretary for Rex C. Easterwood's law firm in Hereford, is still "on Cloud 9" after winning the 222nd District Court clerk's job. As the new district clerk, Schumacher will inherit the position held for more than two decades by Lola

Faye Veazey. She also will be the first Republican to hold the position since the district was created. Even though Schumacher will spend some time between now and Jan. 1 getting briefings from Veazey and trying to get a field for the clerk's office and its routine, Schumacher will not leave her job with Easterwood until he has found a replacement. Also, Schumacher said she has no intention to make any sweeping changes in the district clerk's office, either in personnel or operations. "I just want to get to know the job, how it's been running. Lola Faye has done a good job," Schumacher said. "She's also invited me to come there" and get to know some of the things involved in running the office. "Besides, you don't make promises to make changes until you see how things are. People do things in different ways to achieve the same end," Schumacher said, acknowledging things that worked well for Veazey might not work so smoothly for her. The victory in Tuesday's general election was the first

Holiday gala

The Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce recently announced plans to host a Holiday Winter Gala, November 16, 6 p.m.-7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

The first-ever gala is replacing the former Neiman-Marcus Fun Breakfast, which had been a holiday staple for many years.

The new event will feature a meal, holiday style show, a variety of retail holiday booths, numerous door prizes and presentation of the Hereford Bull Chip Award.

The gala admittance cost will be $15 per couple. Seating will be limited for the affair, and interested residents are encouraged to make reservations early.

Break-dancing contest

Break-dancers will get a chance to show off their talent during a contest at the Hereford YMCA.

The contest, set for 8 p.m. Nov. 13, is open to junior high and high school students.

Trophies will be presented to the first-, second- and third-place winners in both singles and team competition. The first-place winners also will receive a one-month membership in the YMCA.

The entry fee is $5 per entry.

Admission is $3 per person.

For more information, contact the Hereford YMCA at 364-6990.

County commission

Members of the Deaf Smith County Commission will canvass votes from the Nov. 3 generalelection at 9 a.m. Monday in the commissioners courtroom of the county courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

The commissioners also will discuss plumbing problems in the county jail, discuss hospitalization insurance, review/approve election expenses, consider an appointment to the Panhandle Regional Housing Finance Corp., open bids for a sheriff's vehicle, consider taking bids on monitoring underground fuel storage tanks and discuss jail inmate medical fees.

News in brief

Harlingen police chief on leave amid shooting inquiry

HARLINGEN (AP) — A consultant hired by the city to help investigate the police department's role in the shooting of two Border Patrol agents wasted no time in asking that the police chief be put on administrative leave.

Police Chief Jim Scheopner will begin his three week administrative leave Monday as law enforcement consultant James Robenson starts looking into how an assault-style rifle donated to the police department ended up being used in the killings of Susan Rodriguez and Ricardo Salinas.

Robenson suggested Scheopner be put on leave so that Robenson could have complete access to police records and so that employees could answer questions more freely, Harlingen City Manager Natalie Prim said.

Just a few days before, Prim had said speculation about asking for the chief's resignation was premature.

"Placing the police chief on leave is an appropriate and routine procedure, which will allow our consultant full access for a complete and impartial review of the Police Department's management practices," she said. "It is not to be considered punitive in any way."

Fight between artist, Austin gallery settled during trial

AUSTIN (AP) — Just as a week-long trial was about to finish Friday, a famous Southwestern artist and the owner of an Austin gallery reached a settlement in their long-running feud.

Amado Pena, a prolific and prominent Southwestern artist, was sued by Olga Pina, who bought his Austin gallery, El Taller, in 1991.

Ms. Pina said Pena promised to display his work at El Taller, and the two would share the proceeds when a painting was sold. But, she charged, Pena failed to deliver all the art he promised and even took back some pieces. She said he also undercut her business by selling his work for lower prices at an Austin gallery run by his sister and niece.

The case went to trial in Travis County court Monday. Just minutes before closing arguments were scheduled to begin Friday, both sides announced a settlement.

Reaction to busing proposal is divided

AUSTIN (AP) — Familiar arguments are being heard again as the Austin school board considers ending more than a quarter-century of school busing to achieve integration.

Some parents and minority group leaders are worried that the end of busing could leave their children in inferior schools.

"I would want busing to continue unless they have good experienced teachers in these inner-city schools," said Olga Cuellar, deputy director of education for an Austin League of United Latin American Citizens chapter.

"If we are getting the same curriculum and the same tools at every school, then there's no problem," Cuellar told the Austin American-Statesman.

time Schumacher has made a bid for public office and she admits she enjoyed the campaigning.

"One day I left here about noon and went out to knock on some doors. I was disappointed because no one seemed to be home. I guess I only found about five people home, but I enjoyed visiting with them. I enjoy being with people," an attitude she intends to carry through into her new position.

"I anticipate having a good working relationship with (222nd District) Judge (David Wesley) Guley and (Criminal District Attorney) Roland (Saul)," she said. She also believes her transition will be helped because she already knows several of the people who work in the offices of Guley and Saul.

Also, Schumacher said she's "familiar with the activities of the office. Most of the documents actually filed in the office are similar to what I've been doing here."

"I'm looking forward to the job because it is so similar to the job here and I love the work. I love the work because it entails working with the people," she said.

A native of Goree in Knox County, Schumacher earned a bachelor of science degree from West Texas State University (now West Texas A&M in Canyon), with a focus in physical education.

After graduation, she taught health, physical education, driver's education and some general science at Hereford High School for five years before leaving teaching to become a full-time mother and homemaker.

She had two children, Karl and Kimberley. Both of her children, now grown, live in San Antonio. Karl is with the Air Force and is stationed at Kelly Air Force Base; Kimberley is an assistant director of a day care center and attends college.

After her daughter entered the school system, Schumacher began looking for a job, something that was tougher than she had expected, but she would be hired by Easterwood. She celebrated her 20th anniversary with the law firm last February.

"Obviously, I didn't have a legal background, but Rex Easterwood taught me. He's been my mentor," Schumacher said. "I had a hard time getting a job. Since I had a teaching certificate, I was considered 'overqualified,' although I don't think there's such a thing as overqualified," she said.

"I heard about CETA," she said, referring to the now-defunct federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act program. "I was going to go sand and paint at the E.B. Black House, which they were renovating, when a secretary here saw my name - and I got this job. It just shows things always work out for the best, one way or another."

Then, more than 20 years later, she decided to run for the district clerk's position, which was up for grabs after Veazey's decision not to seek re-election. Schumacher ran a campaign out of her home, assembling yard signs on a table on the patio of her home. She also was aided by volunteers in her campaign.

"I had some wonderful people help me in a myriad of ways. You can't do a grassroots campaign without help and support," she said.

New job, new challenge, new responsibilities.

And, Jean Schumacher's ready to take them on.

Muslims: "The Siege" promotes damaging stereotypes

DETROIT (AP) — Muslims and Arab-Americans are protesting a new movie about domestic terrorism that opens today around the country, saying "The Siege" promotes negative stereotypes of them.

Many were planning to distribute leaflets about Islam at theaters in the Detroit area, New York, Los Angeles and Washington, and invite moviegoers to open houses at mosques.

The plot of the 20th Century Fox film, which stars Denzel Washington and Bruce Willis, focuses on overzealous American officials who indiscriminately round up large numbers of Arab-Americans after an attack pinned on Middle East terrorists.

Movie director Ed Zwick said he's not sure how anyone could watch "The Siege" and conclude it's anti-Arab. He believes the criticism is too narrowly focused.

"What is ironic, of course, is that the film is about stereotyping, and the inherent dangers in categorizing a culture as diverse as that of the Arabs," he said. "We went to extraordinary lengths to be thoughtful."

The movie started Friday at Moovies 6, 400 N. 25 Mile Ave. in Hereford.

Bank

based banking group, FirstBank Southwest.

He began formation of the new bank upon his resignation as senior vice president from FirstBank Southwest in earlier this year, which according to Easley was, "the beginning of an effort to realize a personal dream."

"I had always believed Hereford needed a locally-owned, locally operated bank, and when such a bank no longer existed I knew I wanted to try to bring one back," Easley said. "I found out in a hurry I wasn't alone in my beliefs when I started testing the waters for investors."

Initial bank charter investors, formed under the operating name of La Plata Organizational Group, included Easley and eight Hereford and area cattle/agri-businessmen. They were; Chris Cabbiness of BJM Sales and Service, Scott Hall of Circle 3 Feeders, Scott Keeling of Keeling Cattle Feeders, Robert D. Josserand of AZTX Cattle Company, Jim Marsh, Garth Merrick of Hereford Bi-Products and Merrick Petfoods, Jim Perrin, and Don Opplinger of Farwell.

Directors for the new bank have been named as; Cabbiness, Easley, Hall, Keeling, Barry Josserand, Marsh, Joe Perrin, John Perrin, Opplinger and Gilbert Tijerina.

In addition to naming Easley as president and CEO of the bank; John Sherrod, immediate past president of FirstBank Southwest, was listed as executive vice president in the charter plan.

First National Bank of Hereford has also filed applications with Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for deposit insurance, and to Federal Reserve Bank to form a holding company, which will own the bank. The holding company would operate as La Plata Bancshares.

Easley said the final steps in making the bank a reality, beyond the application approval process, would be to complete operational requirements provided by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and the remodeling of the bank facility.

Organizers of the bank have entered a lease/purchase agreement with owners of the former Energas building located at the corner of Lee and Third Streets.

"We should be up and running in the first quarter of 1999," Easley said. "It won't have come too soon."

Carter pushing for forgiveness of foreign debt

POSOLTEGA, Nicaragua (AP) — The sheer scope of damage caused by Hurricane Mitch in Central America has led former President Carter to predict a lengthy recovery and urge lenders to forgive the foreign debts of the two countries hardest hit.

Carter's comments Friday followed a flight over Nicaragua's disaster zone, where mudslides killed an estimated 2,000 people and obliterated villages. Still, Carter warned, "The worst is yet to come: cholera and dengue."

Some diseases apparently already have arrived. In Guatemala, 25 cases of cholera have been reported, the Public Health Ministry said Friday.

Economy Consumer borrowing picks up in September

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pace of consumer borrowing picked up in September as Americans sought to maintain their standard of living in the face of spillover from the world's economic problems. Credit outstanding grew at a 7.9 percent annual rate to a seasonally adjusted $1.28 trillion, the Federal Reserve said Friday. That's up from 4.2 percent in August and also faster than the 5.2 percent average for the year so far. In fact, the figures probably understate the rate of increase because they don't include home equity loans.

Truck stop — Hereford Independent School District erected this barrier last week to curb access to semi-trucks which frequently pull off the highway and park overnight on the parking lot at the HISD administration building. According to school officials, the trucks were damaging the parking lot. The 12-foot tall barrier will allow smaller vehicle traffic to continue using the entrance to the parking lot. School officials are also considering a chain barrier for the south parking lot entrance if the larger vehicles continue to ignore "No trespassing" signs posted in the parking area.

Gingrich to surrender speaker's position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bob Livingston, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, emerged to challenge House Speaker Newt Gingrich even before Gingrich decided not to seek re-election Friday. But there are at least three other lawmakers who seem to be angling for a run for the House's top post.

Best known among the alternatives is Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. But there are two lower-profile lawmakers scrambling for the position as well: Rep. Christopher Cox, R-Calif., and Rep. James Talent, R-Mo.

The maneuvering was set off by Tuesday's elections, in which Republicans who had been hoping to fortify their 22-seat House majority saw it sliced to just a 12-seat margin. In the GOP uproar that followed, Livingston stepped forward Friday and — hours later — Gingrich decided he would abandon his post.

Livingston, 55, started lining up support for the speaker's post earlier this year, saying he wanted to be ready in case Gingrich, his friend, steps down to run for president. In that effort, he has raised money for many of his colleagues. That head start, plus the power he has as chairman of the committee that controls one-third of the government's $1.7 trillion budget, has made him one of the favorites in the race.

His candidacy was already dividing conservatives. The Christian Traditional Values Coalition called Livingston's candidacy "a poignant example of Clintonesque self-deception." But Chairman David Keene of the American Conservative Union issued a letter of support for Livingston, calling him "a leader who knows the difference between tilting at windmills and achieving conservative goals — and what it takes to do both."

Archer, 70, is a 28-year House veteran and longtime advocate of tax cuts. He said Friday that he is "actively considering running for speaker" and was being talked up by some of the chamber's conservatives.

"The Republican conference needs solid seasoned leadership to unify our party, chart a positive agenda during the next two years, and lead us to expand our majority in 2000. I believe that person is Bill Archer," said Rep. David McIntosh, R-Ind., a leader of House conservatives.

In the past, Archer has said that his upcoming two-year term in Congress would be his last. But his spokesman, Ari Fleischer, said Archer would serve beyond 2000 should he become speaker.

Archer would appeal not only to conservatives, but to many older House veterans who have long served with him. He is soft-spoken and unfailingly polite, and despite occasional clashes with House leaders often prompted by his relentless quest for tax cuts, he has almost always been a team player.

Archer would probably have the support of most of the 13 Republicans from Texas, one of the largest GOP delegations in the House, for whom he has been an unflagging supporter of the oil industry.

He might even garner support from some of the 23 GOP lawmakers from California in hopes that one of their own, Rep. Bill Thomas, might succeed Archer as Ways and Means chairman.

Besides the name of the function, the big change will include a style show and dinner instead of games and announcements at a breakfast.

Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce's retail merchants and the Women's Division, tickets will be $15 a couple. There will be door prizes and a drawing for $100 for a lucky chamber member. Santa Claus will make an appearance; a Bull Chip award will be presented, and the C of C is providing free baby sitting.

Sports fans who have followed high school football through the years are well aware that players keep getting bigger. We were reminded of that trend recently when Benny Womble brought us a copy of a 1961 football program for the Hereford-Canyon game. There was not a single 200-pounder player on the program.

Hereford's largest players were Bill Steele (189), Jim Haney (185) and Virgil Kuykendall (185). One of the top Whiteface running backs of all time, Mack Cansler, weighed in at 160. Canyon had one larger griddier, 194-pound Ronny Harris. Another Canyon player of note, Terry Funk, who later became quite a wrestler, weighed 170.

Cuby Kitchens was the athletic director and head basketball coach, and Jack Meredith was the head football coach. Assistants included Ray Todd, Willie Williams and Joe Brooks. Paul Stevens was superintendent and L.B. Russell was high school principal.

The program included a picture of Hereford's "Big Domino" marching band with Ben Gollehon as director. Cheerleaders were Jan Reese, Joy Story, Joyce Ann Johnson, Joyce West and Toni Parker. Twirlers were Jenny Holt, Jere Noland and Kathy Boston.

We've never been very handy around the kitchen, so it was good to run across a bachelor's guide to cleaning the refrigerator.

-If you can't tell the difference between ice cream and ice cubes, it's time to throw both out.

-Frozen foods that have become an integral part of the defrosting problem in the freezer will probably be spoiled by the time you pry them open with a kitchen knife.

-When something starts pecking its way out of the shell, the eggs are probably past the expiration date.

-Clues on dairy products: Yogurt is spoiled when it starts to look like cottage cheese. Cottage cheese is spoiled when it starts to look like regular cheese; and regular cheese is nothing but spoiled milk anyway.

-Any canned goods that have become the size or shape of a basketball can be disposed of, but very carefully.

-Be careful with meat. If opening the fridge door causes stray animals to congregate outside your house, toss the meat.

-If you can take chip-dip out of its container and bounce it on the floor, it has gone bad.

-Fresh potatoes do not have roots, branches or dense, leafy undergrowth.

What others say

Here are excerpts from editorials in other newspapers: Corpus Christi (Texas) Caller-Times, on economic good times:

The bad news the Federal Reserve Board has been fearing may be here: The American worker is profiting from the economic boom. ...

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan's baleful gaze has been alert for the slightest sign of wage-push inflation, an expected, if still overdue, consequence of the 28-year lows in unemployment.

The Fed had been poised to intervene by raising interest rates if that occurred, but labor shortages have been slow to drive up wages as recession-scarred and downsize-scarred workers opted for job security instead.

In August, the Fed had to reverse course, with two interest rate cuts already this fall, to forestall another, potentially graver problem: the spread of the slump afflicting a large part of the globe to the American economy.

The wage figures came out on the heels of two other encouraging economic measures: vehicle sales are good and durable goods orders are strong, meaning that, despite hints of shaky confidence, consumers are still spending and businesses still investing.

All told, this is good news, even for the Fed.

The Sacramento (Calif.) Bee, on school discipline: Higher standards, better educated teachers and more well-equipped classrooms have topped the list of the nation's school reform agenda. But even as progress is made toward those important goals, student learning is being sabotaged by a more difficult problem: kids who misbehave.

Far more pervasive than the high-profile cases of students shooting people on campus are the day-in, day-out incidents of students mouthing off at teachers, smoking in school bathrooms, cheating on quizzes, wandering into class late. Such relatively less serious offenses are nothing new, but a new study by the Educational Testing Service indicates both that they are disturbingly widespread and have a demonstrable effect on achievement. ...

It is clear that discipline must occupy a top spot on the reform agenda, with expectations for civil behavior and consequences for misbehavior going hand-in-hand with higher expectations for achievement. But as in curricular reforms, schools should be careful not to swing the pendulum too far. ...

If those goals are met, officials may be able to avoid schools where metal detectors, surveillance cameras and hall monitors bearing walkie-talkies set a tone of tension and mistrust. The point of discipline at school should be to create an atmosphere where learning can flourish, teaching the benefits of self-discipline and responsibility to others.

Lot of roadblocks between Austin, D.C.

George W. Bush, or "Dubya" as some pun-dits now refer to him, is on a roll.

He's the first Republican governor to be re-elected and the first governor of any party to be elected to two consecutive four-year terms.

The last governor re-elected in Texas was Dolph Briscoe, who was the state's pet rock back when the term was just two years.

Exit polling conducted by NBC News on Election Day also showed Dubya to be a heavy favorite over Vice President Gore in 2000.

Dubya probably would beat Gore - if the governor and the vice president were to be matched in two years.

However, Dubya first would have to survive the Republican primaries, and it's not certainly the radical rightwingers who dominate the party's primaries would put party over ideology when they see the name "Bush" on the ballot. And, the radical rightwing and their Christian Coalition allies haven't demonstrated any willingness to put the party before ideology.

Dubya's foes in the GOP primaries in 2000 likely will be so far to the right of the spectrum that the Texas governor. A pragmatic moderate (or "compassionate conservative," as he has called himself), will look like a clone of Ted Kennedy.

It's very likely Dubya would beat Al Gore or any other candidate the Democrats field - if he can get through the Republican minefield.

After the election, Newt's too optimistic

Despite a narrowed and shaken Republican edge in the House next year, Speaker Newt Gingrich claimed it won't be much harder to manage the GOP agenda.

It will.

President Clinton said there was vindication for his policies in the Democrats' off-year election strength, and a message from the voters that they want the GOP Congress to act for his programs.

It won't.

Instead a divided government, with Democrats emboldened and Republicans divided, may be prone to gridlock.

First, of course, House Republicans have to decide what to do about the impeachment proceedings against Clinton in the Monica Lewinsky scandal.

Hearings in the Judiciary Committee open in about two weeks. "Our duty has not changed," said Rep. Henry Hyde, the chairman. But the atmosphere has. The edge is dulled, and Republicans who resisted limits on the case now are saying it probably will be over by the end of the year.

Clinton wouldn't speak of it. "That's in the hands of Congress and the American people," he said.

Gingrich talked of hammering Republican issues more forcefully in the 106th Congress, where the GOP House majority apparently will be whittled to six. It was trimmed from 11 by Democrats in the first midterm election gains for the White House party in 64 years.

After a standoff in the Senate, where Republicans were held to their current 55 seats, a 10-vote margin but not enough to take full command of business - they'd need the 60 they once forecast - Sen. Trent Lott said he would be happy to push a massive tax cut early in the new Congress.

He said he'd like one bigger than the $80 billion passed by the House but shelved in the Senate, where it would have been filibustered by Democrats. Clinton had said he'd veto it anyhow.

Gingrich said he'll be back on taxes, too. "We probably should have aggressively pushed cutting taxes and saving Social Security much harder than we did this year," the speaker said Wednesday.

Clinton and the Democrats, of course, have another game plan. The president said the elections were evidence of voter support for programs he sought and couldn't get in the last Congress such as federal aid for school construction and health care reforms. He did win partial victories - notably, funds to begin hiring 100,000 schoolteachers - in the compromise budgets negotiated at the end of the session.

To get the deal done, Republicans relented on their tax cut, and agreed on spending terms they had resisted. Conservatives said it was a surrender that blurred the Republican message, and those complaints were louder after the Democrats upset the off-year election odds.

There were calls from the right for a change in GOP leadership, although none is likely at the top. After all, Gingrich said, Republicans won Congress for the third straight election, which hadn't happened in 70 years.

"I would suggest it's pretty hard to argue that the only team to have been successful in 70 years somehow ought to be replaced by somebody who has not ever won a nationwide election," Gingrich said.

"And I think the people who are normally quoted on this are the people who would in fact take the party to a narrower base with fewer members."

Clinton conferred with his economic advisers on Social Security reform Wednesday, after calling the Democrats' showing astonishing. He said the voters' message to both parties was: "We sent you there to work for us and we want you to find a way to do it."

House Democratic leader Dick Gephardt said, "People don't want deadlock and they don't want ideological answers to these problems."

But it will be hard to avoid either, or both. Clinton has called a White House conference on Social Security Dec. 8, saying it is to begin shaping a bipartisan proposal for future financing of the system.

Lott, however, said the president ought to take the first step himself, sending Congress his proposal. "He can't holler down to Congress, 'Help, we need to do something on Social Security. Good luck.'"

"I would suggest it's pretty hard to argue that the only team to have been successful in 70 years somehow ought to be replaced by somebody who has not ever won a nationwide election. And I think the people who are normally quoted on this are the people who would in fact take the party to a narrower base with fewer members."
- Newt Gingrich

But on Social Security, the most sensitive of political issues, the problem always has been determining who's to go first, and risk blame for steps that can't be cost-free.

That's for the new Congress where, Gingrich said, the narrowed GOP majority will be able to stay on the Republican message. "It was hard at 228, it will be hard but it won't be dramatically harder at 223," he said.

But let a handful of Republicans stray on one test or another and the majority is gone.

"When we and the president agree, we ought to cooperate," Gingrich said. "When we and the president disagree, we ought to fight."

They usually disagree.

VIEWPOINT

Diogenes would have hard time these days

The election is over; ballots have been cast; polls are closed and the bribes have been paid, or at least the checks are in the mail.

During the last several weeks I've paid a little closer attention to the political campaigns than I normally do.

Some I actually listened to; some I looked into a little farther; some I ignored completely.

Through it all, I couldn't help but think of the ancient Greek philosopher Diogenes. He lived his life and died searching for one honest man.

And in today's political arena, poor old Di would have been even more hard-pressed to locate that elusive dream.

Mudslinging never adds much worth to any campaign. I have a hard time considering any candidate who has to cover an opponent with muck and mire just to make themselves appear lily-white.

But, even with the mudslinging there is a problem which concerns me more. That is the idea that many politicians are bought and paid for by some larger-than-cosmos entity with little thought or care for the issues affecting the general populace.

None, I'm sure, will come right out and say "Hey! Vote for me. I took big bucks from industry leaders to make sure they get what they want. Everyone else can go take a flying leap."

Old Di's job might have been a lot easier if we could convince candidates and nominees to do just that. Voters would at least then have a clear shot at the lesser of two evils.

I heard at least one campaign ad stating how an opponent had taken contributions from some group and then made rulings in the group's favor.

These can all be verified or voided if someone really puts the time and energy into it. The buyouts that can't be verified are often the candidates that run unopposed.

Without a challenger, these candidates run amuck, feeling safe and secure in their knowledge that no one cares who bought and paid them.

If anyone cared, they probably wouldn't get to run unopposed term after term.

Maybe this is the problem: No one cares. Maybe the voters they no longer care that crooks, frauds, and liars are in the position of power.

Maybe it doesn't matter that judges don't see the need for children to grow up respecting authority figures. Maybe that's why the average age of prison inmates continues to fall.

After all, if judges can be paid off by one group, who's to say that another group -- with a little deeper pockets -- can't pay the judges off to turn a blind eye on another matter.

If education is such a hot topic, then how come we seldom hear about sweeping educational changes except during elections?

Could it be that politicians would rather keep the future generations from becoming knowledgeable about current political transgressions or is it that the teachers' lobbyists and coalitions have not yet stooped so low as to have to buy a politicians vote? I certainly hope it's the latter.

I've heard it said every man has his price, but what a shame that the disinterest of the American people have created a plethora of opportunities for these purchased officials.

Individuals who are bought and paid now have the opportunity to control almost all aspects of our lives.

I hear moans and groans every day about one organization or another. I hear people wishing they could change some atrocity, but then they say they didn't have time to vote, or worse they say their vote wouldn't matter, so they didn't bother.

By not bothering to cast that unimportant vote, the purchased powers continue to gain strength and power.

The organizations which have purchased these powers can sit back and smirk and destroy lives.

Until more people take an active role pursuing Diogenes' dream of one honest man, and demoting and ousting the dishonest powers, then we all suffer.

No one is safe from the dangers of the purchased judges, legislators or other power positions.

THE HEREFORD BRAND Letters

Dear Editor:
As I read the Tuesday, November 3rd issue of the Brand, I was wondering why news of the golf course flooding was more important than news of several families being evacuated from their home Saturday morning.

I found three pictures on the front page of the golf course, two of which are pictures of the same gazebo. There was one small article on the front page concerning the flooding at San Jose Community which was continued on Page 9 after the advertisements and football news.

Shouldn't people's homes and lives be of more importance than a golf course?

Democrats had edge on economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Minnesota businessman Bob Weng isn't wedded to either major party, but he voted to send a Democrat to the House this year because he felt that party's priorities on the economy and education were more in tune with his family's.

Exit polls suggest many voters felt the same way. And Democrats reaped the benefits as they made significant gains among white men, Catholics and independents while managing to turn out core supporters including blacks and union members. Many voters also indicated they were tired of the Republican focus on investigating President Clinton.

Democrats defied history in this week's elections, holding their own in key governors races and the U.S. Senate, strengthening their hand in the South and even gaining five seats in the House. It was the first time since 1934 that the president's party had gained House seats in a midterm election.

Democrats succeeded by appealing to the political center. Fifty percent of this year's voters said they considered themselves moderates, and they favored Democratic House candidates over Republicans 54 percent to 43 percent, according to exit polls. To these voters, education, the economy and Social Security were the most important issues.

In contrast, moral values were most important to self-described conservatives, who made up 31 percent of the electorate and favored Republicans by an 80-19 margin.

Economic optimism could be found among most groups, with those who were the most bullish favoring the president's party.

It's that time of year again. But this year you have a choice!

Trinidad back ready to write his name in 6-man books

By Chuck Cox
Tyler Morning Telegraph

TRINIDAD — It's an unusually warm late October afternoon and it's Danny Pierce's birthday.

The mosquitoes are biting as usual as practice winds down for the Trinidad Trojans. As soon as third-year coach Kevin Ray addresses his undefeated team, Pierce's teammates pile on top of his back one by one. Before long, he has about seven teammates on his back (some birthday present) and he is still standing strong in the north end zone of Trojan Field.

For people who are not associated with the Trinidad program, it would be easy to believe that senior running back Damien Jackson is the player who carries his teammates on his back instead of Pierce. After all, Jackson, who is a mere 5-feet, 9-inches, 170 pounds, is one of the most prolific six-man players ever.

Jackson could break the national six-man record for career touchdowns Friday when Trinidad hosts Coolidge in a District 15 season finale. He has 117 career rushing touchdowns, which is just one behind national record holder Dennis Korinek of Ulysses, Neb. Korinek set that record in 1950. However, he played all four seasons. This is just Jackson's third.

Not to mention that Trinidad has applied the 45-point mercy rule in 22 of Jackson's 33 games.

Jackson tied a national record last season with nine touchdowns in a 94-80 playoff win over Strawn. He is also a finalist for Dave Campbell Texas Football's Six-Man Player of the Year. Jackson also took home a pair of gold medals from the State Track Meet last year in the 400-meters (49.26) and the 200-meters (22.04).

"A lot of people equate Trinidad with Damien Jackson," said Ray, who is now in his third year as head coach of the Trojans. "Really there's a lot more to it. We have a lot of good athletes. It's nice to know every player on the offensive side of the ball can score. It makes for a lot less pressure on me as far as play-calling goes."

Jackson, who will likely play Division I college football, helped his squad to a 12-1 record last season and a trip to the state semifinals. Trinidad, which had some untimely injuries late in the season and in the postseason, fell to Panther Creek, 36-32, in the fourth round of the playoffs.

The previous season, Trinidad lost in the first round of the playoffs after registering a 6-4 regular-season ledger.

Now, Jackson and his teammates are looking to win the elusive state championship.

"A lot of people equate Trinidad with Damien Jackson. Really there's a lot more to it. We have a lot of good athletes. It's nice to know every player on the offensive side of the ball can score. It makes for a lot less pressure on me as far as play-calling goes."

Keeping the faith, Hereford hooks Caprock 24-7 to claim District 3-4A co-championship title.

Whitefaces will host Plainview here Nov. 14 in bi-district showdown

By Bob Varmette
Hereford Brand Sports Writer

Somehow, it wasn't quite the ending they had envisioned.

Hereford won its share of a district title with a 24-7 win Friday over Amarillo Caprock at Whiteface Stadium in the District 3-4A finale for both teams.

But the Hereford locker room wasn't a mass of players and coaches congratulating each other. The mood was sobered by the fact one of their teammates — senior linebacker Jeremy Lopez — had been injured by a hit after the final seconds had ticked off.

There were a few smiles and some muffled congratulations offered, but the players' minds were several miles away at Hereford Regional Medical Center.

"It's a tough situation for the kids," Hereford coach Craig Yenser said. "They win a district championship and they don't even really get to enjoy it."

Lopez was hit in the chest and was taken away by ambulance. Later x-ray results were negative, but attending physicians determined Lopez did sustain a bruise in the chest area. More tests were expected to be made.

"It's a scary type of thing," Yenser said. "We just have to hope he's alright."

Intensity was something Yenser had been afraid the Whitefaces might lack because they had already sewn up a playoff spot. But neither Hereford (8-2, 4-1 District 3-4A) nor Caprock (1-9, 1-4) lacked any, and the game almost got out of hand on several occasions.

"It got a little crazy, especially at the end," Caprock coach Ron Rogers said. "That was a bad hit at the end of the game. I think I got (our players) a little riled by getting two penalties in the first half. I could tell they were riled at halftime."

The Longhorns had definitely come ready to play despite being sizeable underdogs to the Whitefaces. Hereford marched 73 yards in 11 plays into the wind on their first drive to take a 7-0 lead, but Caprock answered with a touchdown of their own on an 11-yard pass from quarterback Brandon Burdick to receiver Kolby Moore with 11:03 left in the first half to knot the score at 7-all.

The Longhorns couldn't enjoy it for long, though. Hereford's Nick Whatley returned the ensuing kickoff 82 yards for a touchdown and a 14-7 Hereford advantage.

"It was a big old hole," Whatley said about his second kickoff return for a touchdown this year. "It was a huge hole. I just got to thank my blockers."

Whatley was a thorn in the side of the Caprock offense much of the game. In addition to returning the kickoff for a touchdown, the junior defensive back picked off two Burdick passes.

"They threw it a lot in my territory," Whatley said. "It seemed like every time they were going for a deep route. They were able to get some passes. (Jay Fields)

NASCAR already getting head start on 1998 season

By Paul Newberry
AP Sports Writer

HAMPTON, Ga. — There's still one more race to go this season, but NASCAR is getting a head start on 1999.

With Jeff Gordon having already clinched the Winston Cup championship, the final event, Sunday's NAPA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway, will become a testing lab for changes that might provide closer racing next year.

NASCAR has altered the "five-and-five" rule to allow taller rear spoilers and longer front air dams, which officials hope will bring the cars closer together and perhaps slow them a bit.

"We love to race side by side and make passes as much as the fans like to see it," said Dale Jarrett, who, like everyone else, waged a futile attempt this year to keep up with Gordon.

Gordon clinched his third title in four years last weekend when he won the AC Delco 400 at Rockingham, N.C., removing any drama from this race at the 1.54-mile track south of Atlanta.

"Obviously, we had other things to race for last year," said Jarrett, one of three drivers still in the running for the championship going into the final 1997 event. "There was a little bit of added pressure. But we're still coming in here trying to win the race."

Jarrett is skeptical that spoiler and air dam changes will make much of a difference, especially in Atlanta. Since the facility was repaved and redesigned into a trioval prior to last year's race, it has basically been a one-groove race track.

"There's no way we're going to race side by side here," Jarrett said. "But the new rules may help racing in other places."

In Atlanta, teams will be allowed to use a front air dam with a 31/2-inch ground clearance rather than 5 inches. Also, the 5-inch-high rear spoilers can now be extended to 61/4 inches on the Ford Taurus, 61/2 inches on the Chevrolet Monte Carlo and 67/8 inches on the Pontiac Grand Prix.

Competition has become a key issue in light of Gordon's dominating season. NASCAR officials are keenly aware that Winston Cup boomed in popularity because of bumper-to-bumper thrills — not one driver pulling away from the rest of the field.

"I still think you're going to have the same teams running up front no matter what you do," Jarrett said. "NASCAR is hoping to get us back to having closer races and some side-by-side racing. But I'm not sure fiddling with the spoiler and the air dams is going to do that."

Maybe they should just attach a load of bricks to Gordon's car. Even though the Winston Cup points system is designed to keep things close right down to the last race, Gordon buried everyone else with a dominating season. He hasn't finished lower than seventh in the last 19 races and can pick up his 13th victory of the season Sunday, which would equal Richard Petty's modern record.

"They don't have a weakness," said Jarrett, who comes to Atlanta ranked third in the standings but trails Gordon by a staggering 355 points. "And even with that, it's pretty incredible to string together what they've done in the last 19 races without getting caught up in something like a wreck or a flat tire."

Jarrett and Mark Martin were among a handful of Winston Cup regulars who arrived at the speedway on Thursday to take part in qualifying for a Busch Grand National race. First-round qualifying for the NAPA 500 is today.

Martin, who is second in the points, 344 behind Gordon, has put together a remarkable season of his own — seven victories, 25 finishes in the top 10 — but he's barely been noticed alongside the Gordon juggernaut.

"I'm not flashy like Jeff Gordon," Martin said with a shrug. "The media loves Jeff Gordon. He's young. He's talented. He's good. He has charisma. He's good with the media. He's good with the fans."

Martin has finished sixth or

"I think we just need to keep our heads on straight," said Jackson, who has 6,498 career yards and counting. "We have to come out here and do what we've got to do ... and don't get the big head."

Jackson, who also plays linebacker on defense, said Trinidad fell victim to some bad luck last year.

"I think when our center (Cory Westbrook) got hurt, that's what prevented us from winning state," Jackson said. "I think, with some luck, we can win it this year."

Westbrook suffered a broken ankle the regular season finale. "(Westbrook's injury) really hurt our offense," Ray said. "We just weren't able to click with the timing after that. And it's crucial to attack the line of scrimmage."

Westbrook is hoping he can stay healthy and help his team to a state championship this time around.

"We try to get a little better every week," Westbrook said. "We don't ever want to be satisfied. Hopefully by week 15 we'll be at our peak. We don't want to peak too early."

"Because our games are short we have to work extra hard in practice. Sometimes practice is more difficult than the games."

That's the whole idea for Ray, who said he believes his team, which was ranked number three in Dave Campbell's Texas Football preseason six-man poll, has what it takes to win it all this year.

"We've got to have a little bit of luck," Ray said. "We've got the talent. We've got as much talent as anybody in the state. I think the rest comes down to character."

And a little Damien Jackson doesn't hurt either.

Newcombe upset with teammates

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Nebraska quarterback Bobby Newcombe is upset with some of his teammates and his confidence has been shaken, but he has no plans to leave the Cornhuskers, his father says.

The talented sophomore returned to his hometown this week to undergo further tests on his injured left knee. But the knee isn't the only thing bothering him.

Newcombe told the Albuquerque Journal some of his teammates have started to question the seriousness of his injury.

"When they speak to me, there's a good group who support me," Newcombe said. "But I always have to deal with some of those people who say I'm goldbricking it. They see that I can walk and run a little and they think I'm not that hurt."

Nebraska coach Frank Solich on Thursday said he was unaware of any criticism directed at Newcombe by other players because of the injury.

"Certainly, if he felt that, there must have been something there that's bothering him, but I've heard nothing," Solich said.

Newcombe's comments sparked speculation in Albuquerque that he might consider transferring, and Newcombe didn't exactly squelch it.

"Nothing's impossible,"

Newcombe said. "You never know what's going to happen tomorrow. ... But more than likely, I'll stay where I'm at. I'm pretty happy, but I'm going to leave my options open."

His dad, Robert Newcombe, downplayed that possibility.

But the elder Newcombe also said his son's confidence has taken a hit since he suffered the injury in the season-opener against Louisiana Tech.

"There was a lot of pressure to begin with. With the injury, there's a whole new set of pressure. The coaches put him in the game, then they take him out," he said.

Newcombe's injury was initially thought to be a partially-torn ligament, but Robert Newcombe said doctors in Albuquerque have determined the injury is more extensive.

Sosa homers in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Sammy Sosa didn't disappoint the Japanese fans who came out to see a demonstration of the swing that resulted in 66 home runs last season for the Chicago Cubs.

He connected leading off the second inning Friday, accounting for the first run of the game. A team of touring major league stars parlayed that into a 4-1 victory over the Yomiuri Giants.

"I hit a home run not only for me, but for the people of Japan," Sosa said. "The pitch was up and away, and I wasn't sure it was going to stay fair."

Vinny Castilla of the Colorado

Rockies also homered before 55,000 at Tokyo Dome, where the eight-game tour began. San Diego's Greg Vaughn drove in two runs for the stars, who managed just five hits.

"I was really impressed by the Giants pitching," said Cleveland's Mike Hargrove, who is managing the team.

Philadelphia's Curt Schilling allowed three hits and struck out four to get the win.

On Saturday, the major leaguers meet a team of Japanese stars in the opener of a seven-game series.

Avs cap Oilers

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Valeri Kamensky scored three goals to lift the Colorado Avalanche to a 5-2 victory over the Edmonton Oilers on Friday night.

Peter Forsberg, Kamensky's linemate, added a goal and three assists and Claude Lemieux scored the game-winner as the struggling Avalanche improved their record to 4-7-1.

Boris Morin and Andrei Kovalenko scored for the Oilers, who embark on a four-game road trip starting Sunday in Chicago.

It was Colorado's second victory in two games with the Oilers, who upset the Avalanche in last season's playoffs.

The win was also welcome relief for beleaguered Avalanche goaltender Patrick Roy, who gained just his second victory.

better in the season standings every year since 1989, and twice has been the runner-up. But he has yet to win a championship.

"It wouldn't matter if I never won a championship," Martin said. "When you look at most of the guys I race with every week, only a few have had a better career."

With the championship decided prior to Atlanta for the first time since 1994, interest in the NAPA 500 has waned. In recent weeks, track officials even tried to boost ticket sales by offering those who bought two a chance to take their regular cars out on the trioval for a spin.

Lots of rain for late October, but does it set a record?

All of the rain and runoff last weekend created quite a spectacle as playa lakes and buffalo wallows filled over a broad cross section of the Panhandle.

Seldom-wet Tierra Blanca Creek went on a rise that had people snapping photographs at the South Main and Highway 385 bridges in Hereford, put folks to gathering cattle with jet skis, and created enough inflow to put a substantial charge of water into Buffalo Lake.

It's highly unusual to receive the kind of rainfall that we got here last weekend so late in the fall. We essentially received what should have been our summer's rainfall at harvest-time, rather than spread out over the spring and summer growing season. All of it fell in roughly 24 hours.

Some folks probably wonder if last weekend's cloudburst was the most rain the local area has ever received in late October.

That's hard to say for certain, but it is doubtful. The record rainfall year throughout the Llano Estacado and onto the Rolling Plains came in 1941, when up to 55 inches of rain fell in some localities through the summer and into the fall. Chances are good there was even some hefty rain in October.

T.L. Sparkman of the Frio Draw country told me once that he could remember shocked feed standing in water in the fall of 1941, and re-stacking bundles so that the grain would at least be out of the water.

The late A.S. "Jack" Jackson, chronicled much knowledge of the flora and fauna of the High Plains. He told me that during 1941, when he lived in Lubbock, motorists traveling almost any direction from the Hub city had to drive through playas. Jackson said that it wasn't uncommon that year to see houses and barns sitting way back in playa lakes that had swollen with rainfall runoff. Motorists who expected to remain on the pavement had better keep their car between red sticks that the highway department placed to mark the highway whenever they came to a place where the roadway passed through a playa.

Floyd County got 43 inches of rainfall in 1941. That was enough even to flood railroad right-of-way in places. A train traveling from Turkey to Lubbock had to cross a flooded playa near Sterley and the train sat so low on the track that water from the lake flooded out the firebox heating the engine's boiler.

Folks were said to be able to step into a boat on the east side of Lockney, and row it nearly to the Caprock. May 28, 1941 saw a real frog strangler on the drainages of the Frio Draw near Friona. Headwaters from the Frio Draw rushed down on low-lying areas of Friona, flooding grain elevators, homes, and the railroad yard.

Water from the Frio Draw was so high that it stranded the Grand Canyon Limited of the Santa Fe railroad for five hours during the peak of the flooding. The train was cut into two-car segments that allowed the locomotive to pull them forward on the flooded tracks. The two-car segments were moved west to the next siding, on dry ground. Each segment of two cars was dropped there, with the engine then returning to get another two cars, until all of the cars were rescued.

Local folks have talked about individuals rowing a boat all the way from Hereford to Buffalo Lake when Tierra Blanca Creek was on a tear. Last weekend's rainfall and watershed event had Tierra Blanca flowing a quarter-mile wide at points east of Hereford.

All of this water coming so suddenly in such a bundance has caused some costly distress for grain and cotton farming and cattle feeding operations. Lots of water coming quickly did leave an abundance of playa lakes over a wide stretch of country the fullest that they have been in probably at least a decade.

With an amplitude of playa water now available, the stage may be set for a banner duck, goose, and sandhill crane hunting year for area sportsmen.

How things turn out in that regard depends on whether-or-not weather farther to the north in the Central Flyway pushes good numbers of waterfowl and sandhill cranes on down. If the birds short-stop and don't move on down due to mild weather up the flyway, we'll have a lot of good waterfowl habitat sitting disappointingly empty here.

If cold fronts send the flights of ducks and geese scurrying ahead of them, we ought to have good waterfowl luck, opportunity arriving on the wing sometime around Thanksgiving.

 was pretty tough." Fields - a 6-3, 175 pound sophomore - caught four passes for 50 yards, and Burdick finished the night 11-for-26, but suffered three interceptions. Those interceptions, combined with two lost fumbles, quashed several Caprock drives. "That's just been the history of our offense this year," Rogers said. "We'd make first downs, then we'd lose yards, or we throw an interception, or lose it on a fumble." The Longhorns were forced to the air by their total inability to run the ball against the Hereford defense. Caprock gained only 28 yards rushing on 21 attempts. "We just couldn't run the ball against them," Rogers said. "They're just better than we are, they totally dominated the line of scrimmage." Hereford held a 17-7 lead at halftime after Jose Martinez added a 34-yard field goal with 4:27 left in the second quarter. Caprock was on the verge of answering, getting a first-and-goal at the Hereford nine, but the two penalties on the Caprock sideline pushed the Longhorns back to the 39 and then Whatley got the first of his two interceptions to end the threat. Hereford added its final score in the third quarter on a 23-yard pass play from quarterback Cody Marsh to George Castillo with 3:03 left in the third. Marsh - a freshman - had replaced starter Eddie Lacey in the second quarter when Lacey went down with a minor ankle sprain. Still, the game was closer than the final score indicated. Caprock's defense surrendered only 283 yards to the district's second-leading offense. "Defensively, we played well at times," Rogers said. "We gave ourselves a chance to win the ballgame. Joey Lopez had three turnovers on his own (two interceptions and a fumble recovery). He's a good kid, a good player. He's always around the ball." Hereford will now host the Plainview Bulldogs, who bludgeoned Friendship 37-6 Friday night, in a bi-district playoff game here Saturday, Nov. 14. Time for the Saturday playoff contest was likely to depend on whether the Lady Whiteface volleyball will be playing Saturday. Despite the somber mood of the players and coaching staff because of the injury to Lopez, Yenser still couldn't help but show some pride in a team picked by many to finish near the bottom of the district. "I thought our kids played well," he said. "It was a tough situation for them to be in, having a playoff berth already clinched. But we wanted more to be district co-champions... The senior class really wanted this game." Hereford finished the regular season with an 8-2 won-loss record and a 4-1 mark in district play, sharing the district title with either Pampa or Borger, who were to play 2 p.m. Saturday.

Gramm: Banks' priorities aren't necessarily his

NEW YORK (AP) — Earlier this year, Sen. Phil Gramm single-handedly defeated legislation that banks have sought for two decades that would remove laws that separate commercial banking from securities underwriting and insurance.

Now, with the defeat of Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., Gramm is in line to become chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, giving rise to fear the bill has no future.

Gramm moved to quell fears, however, that he would once more hold up the legislation, which would remove Depression-era restrictions on the banking business.

Speaking with reporters, the Texas Republican said the banking industry's priorities won't necessarily be his next year.

When considering banking legislation in the next session, Gramm, a one-time economics professor, said he will ask, "Does it make financial services more available? Does it lower the cost? Does it create more jobs? If the answer is no, then I'm not for it, whether or not Wall Street or anybody else is."

Asked today about working with Gramm, Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Arthur Levitt said he respects his "intelligence and his patriotism."

"He has his priorities and I have mine and hopefully we will work together," said Levitt, who has had sharp differences with the lawmaker in the past. Levitt said he and Gramm share important goals such as protecting investors and avoiding excessive regulatory burdens for the securities industry.

The banking legislation came very close to passing this year after some very delicate negotiations and a compromise between the insurance and banking industries and their federal and state regulators.

Gramm, however, blocked it, objecting to language in the bill that he said would inappropriately expand the Community Reinvestment Act, which requires banks to invest in low- and moderate-income neighborhoods.

The bill had also faced a veto threat, with the White House complaining it gave too much regulatory power to the Federal Reserve.

It was Gramm's position on local lending that angered community groups, consumer activists and liberal members of Congress. These same people worry now that as chairman next year, Gramm will have more power to tinker with community investment laws.

For their own part, banks were also frustrated to see the bill die once more. While they agreed with Gramm that the Community Reinvestment Act, known as CRA, should not be strengthened, they were willing to give on that issue if it meant getting a financial-overhaul bill passed that would make it easier for them to compete with insurers and other financial services businesses.

"Does it make financial services more available? Does it lower the cost? Does it create more jobs? If the answer is no, then I'm not for it, whether or not Wall Street or anybody else is."
Phil Gramm, R-Texas

But on Thursday, banking executives and lobbyists were also extending the olive branch.

"Sen. Gramm has always been a strong proponent of financial modernization," said Edward Yingling, executive director of government relations for the American Bankers Association. "He made a statement yesterday indicating that it was a top priority of the committee."

Said Joseph Belew, president of the Consumer Bankers Association: "Sen. Gramm is a brilliant economist. He understands the issues. I think the speculation has been, 'Is he too much of an ideologue to work as the committee chair?' I think he's put that to rest."

Belew pointed out that the Democrat who defeated D'Amato, Rep. Charles Schumer, is a likely appointee to the Senate Banking Committee because he sat for many years on the banking committee of the House. "We can work with him," Belew said.

Firm consolidates operations

Special to The Brand

Raymond James Financial today announced that it is consolidating its two independent contractor subsidiaries, Investment Management & Research (IM&R) and Robert Thomas Securities (RTS), into Raymond James Financial Services, according to Dan Warrick, C.P.A. of the Hereford IM&R office.

Thomas A. James, chairman and CEO of Raymond James Financial, said the move came as part of the firm's national branding campaign, "enabling us to focus on the Raymond James name and, at the same time, creating a larger presence for our independent contractor operations within that segment of our industry."

"Although we will now share a common name, the two former broker/dealers will continue to operate independently as divisions of Raymond James Financial Services," Warrick said.

"Historically, IM&R's financial advisors have focused on more broad financial planning, offering a wide range of services, while RTS advisors have generally planned their clients' portfolios using individual stock and bonds," Warrick said. "While our name will change, our staff and services will remain intact."

M. Anthony Greene, currently president of IM&R, will be chairman of the new entity. He will assume responsibility for recruiting at Raymond James Financial Services and will continue to oversee the Investment Management Division, formerly IM&R.

J. Stephen Putnam, currently president of RTS, will be president of Raymond James Financial Services. He will oversee its operations and technology, and retain responsibility for the Securities Division, formerly RTS, including its Financial Institution Division, which staffs offices for regional banks.

The consolidation is scheduled to be effective during the first quarter of calendar 1999 and Raymond James Financial Services will be a member of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD).

SBA offering new program for handling variety of loans

Special to The Brand

The Lubbock District Office of the United States Small Business Administration now has an umbrella Pre-Qualification Pilot Loan (PreQual) Program. In this program, SBA provides assistance in the application process to segments of the small business community that may have been underserved by the lending community. The PreQual program replaces the Women's and Minority Pre-Qualification Loan Programs and expands the definition of qualified borrowers to a wider variety of underserved markets.

These markets include women, veteran, and minority owned businesses. Rural areas are also being considered for this program.

To be eligible, a prospective business must be 51 percent or more owned by veterans, women, and/or minorities. Businesses can also qualify if they significantly expand existing export markets or develop new export markets. Loan requests from these markets are handled by the field office (Lubbock District Office) which is authorized to implement the PreQual Program at its discretion.

The primary factors to be considered are:

1. The borrower's willingness to repay debts, as indicated by a good credit history;
2. The likelihood that expected earnings will be sufficient to repay obligations; and
3. The ability of the business to succeed with requested financing.

The Lubbock District Office is responsible for ensuring that SBA's credit and eligibility standards are observed. Applications are not to be accepted under the PreQual Program if they involve unique, unusual or complex situations or issues, there is an affirmative response to questions on bankruptcy within the past 10 years or on criminal history at any time, or they do not meet routine credit and eligibility considerations.

The maximum loan amount under the PreQual Program is $250,000. If a borrower currently has a SBA loan and the combined loans requested as a result of this program are more than $250,000, the request is to be processed through the regular guaranty program.

For additional details on this program and intermediaries, contact the SBA at its toll-free number (800) 676-1005 or (806) 472-7462.

Cowboy cook—Ken Branum tends the grill at The Ranch House Restaurant where he enjoys cooking steaks for his customers. But his real love is chuckwagon cooking which he began learning as a young Boy Scout.

Chuckwagon cook preserves past by bringing history to life

By Becky Thorn

Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor

A chuckwagon cook isn't born, but he does: grow up learning to cook from an early age and loving it; have a genuine love of people; and have an intense interest in history.

At least, those elements describe chuckwagon cook Ken Branum.

Branum brought his unusual talent to Hereford in March of this year when he became a partner with Mike Miller at the Ranch House Restaurant and began preparing steaks on the grill.

Then his penchant for chuckwagon cooking, which has a long history, was revealed.

"The beginning was from grandmother and mom. They thought a family should have three hot meals a day and I was around my mom quite a bit and my grandmother when she was there and I enjoyed cooking. That was when I was a little guy," Branum said.

"Then I got into scouts and that took me to the outdoor cooking and the dutch ovens and so forth and I really enjoyed that."

Being from Canyon, he got interested in the museum there and in history and that led to the cowboy cooking, he explained.

The cowboy cooking that Branum enjoys is not necessarily done from a chuckwagon, but is done outdoors over an open fire like what was done for cowboys on the trail drives, most of which was done from a chuckwagon.

Branum didn't pursue cooking as a career until after completing college at West Texas State and spending two years in law school at Tech, then working for the transit authorities in Houston and Dallas.

"It was the coat and tie kind of job and I enjoyed what I was doing, but I couldn't wait for evenings and weekends so I could cook," he said.

"Cooking to me is relaxing and I enjoy it, enjoy playing with the different ingredients—like artists play with different colors—but a lot of times I go back to the basics."

Branum said he got into the restaurant and catering business in Houston, catering from a chuckwagon. He went to some competitions where authentic chuckwagon cooking was required—no paper or plastic—with the utensils and even the wagon as authentic as possible.

Branum began doing research, reading and personal interviews to make his cowboy cooking as nearly authentic as possible.

"In 1864 or 1865 Charles Goodnight designed a chuckbox, had a freight wagon reworked, stocked it and they took off on a trail drive," Branum said.

He visited the museum in Canyon to study the plans for Goodnight's first chuckbox and was surprised to find that it was a simple box with two horizontal shelves.

Branum currently has a Bain wagon, about an 1870 model, which he is working to restore as authentically as possible, including utensils, he said.

According to Branum, most of these wagons were designed to feed a 12-man crew on the trail drives. The cook and his helper, or hoodlum, could have a meal ready in 45 minutes.

Basics for these trail drives were coffee, flour, beans, meat (if available) and sourdough biscuits.

Sourdough biscuits were made from a starter kept in a crock pot on the wagon. Each time the cook took out dough to make biscuits, he added equal amounts of flour and water to replace what he had used.

Occasionally on the trail a cook or one of the cowboys would come across fruit of some kind which could be used to make a cobbler. Since sugar, like salt, was not necessarily available, the cobbler was only as sweet as the fruit it contained.

"On a trail drive, the cook was paid more than the cowboys. He was up by 3 or 3:30 in the morning and he was not only cook, but also doctor, listener, horseshoer and blacksmith," Branum said.

Often the cook was a cowboy who was too old or physically unable to function as a cowboy so he became the cook.

In addition to the cooking supplies, the chuckwagon also hauled the bedrolls, cooking utensils, cowboys' guns and, in many areas of the country, the firewood.

"When I do the chuckwagon cooking it's usually a nice, beautiful day, but back then they had to cook in the cold, the rain or the wind. It wasn't as romantic as we make it sound. I would like to be back in that era for awhile, but it's

Mini-grant recipients to be named

Children from the Amarillo Community Center will join the Amarillo Area Foundation to host a press conference at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Amarillo Community Center, 609 S. Carolina.

Jim Allison, president and executive director of the Amarillo Area Foundation, will announce the 16 recipients of $10,000 in mini-grants from the Children's Fund.

Representatives, including young clients, from each of the 16 area nonprofit organizations serving children and receiving grants will be on hand to accept and learn the amounts of each of the individual grant awards.

Forty organizations, requesting nearly $40,000, made application to Children's Fund this year.

This press conference will also serve to kick-off the '98 Children's Fund Campaign. Details of the campaign will be announced.

The Amarillo Area Foundation, a community foundation, is a public charity which both accepts funds from individuals, families, businesses and other groups that want to help Panhandle communities, and gives funds through carefully considered grants to charitable organizations for the enrichment of the quality of life of the people in the 26 northernmost counties of the Panhandle.

more fun this way," Branum admitted.

"The history of the trail drive and cowboy cooking is fascinating to me so it has become a challenge to reenact that, to recreate that."

Catering for large groups cannot be done from a chuckwagon, Branum explained. The cooking is done in the restaurant and the food is transported to the location and served from a chuckwagon setting. Authentic chuckwagon cooking is done, comfortably, for 20 people at the most.

"Now we use an assortment of various sizes of Dutch ovens, camp ovens and skillets, but trail cooks were limited to the bare necessities due to the weight of the pots and the limited space on the wagon," he said.

(For those who are not versed in cowboy cooking, a dutch oven has a rounded lid and a flat bottom. A camp oven has a lip so you can load the top with coals and has three supporting legs on the bottom so you can put coals underneath.)

"Coffee was probably the most important staple on the wagon. One brand, Arbuckles, came out with a marketing scheme where they put coffee in one-pound bags and boxed them. Each bag contained a candy cane and the cowboy who ground the coffee got the candy," Branum said.

Cooking with hot coals is a unique experience and requires time and practice. The number of coals to use is not an exact science and the cooking time is affected by such things as the weather and even the wind. The more wind, the hotter the fire and the less cooking time is required.

But people enjoy the campfire cooked food so much that Branum said he has even had compliments on burned biscuits.

Even though Branum spent several years in the Houston area, his heart kept pulling him back home, he said.

While looking for a place in Amarillo, he heard that Miller was looking for a partner.

"Boy, am I glad I came to Hereford to pursue this because if you ever want to 'come home' to good people, the place is Hereford," Branum said.

Branum has combined his love for people, his love for cooking and his fascination with history into not only a successful business, but an exceptionally unusual way of life.

(Editor's Note: The recipes printed below do not represent those that would have been used on a trail drive. They have been altered to suit our more demanding tastes while giving the feel of cowboy cooking.)

SOURDOUGH STARTER

1 pkg. dry yeast or 1 cake yeast dissolved in 4 c. warm water
2 T. sugar
4 c. flour (unbleached)
1 raw potato, cut into 1/4's
Mix all ingredients. Allow to set for 24-48 hours to begin process of fermentation.

(Branum added a footnote, that if the starter turns a pink color, throw it out and start over. It's just no good. It is okay if it turns gray or even black because it will turn a cream color again.)

PEACH COBLER

1 (6 lb. 10 oz.) can sliced peaches in light syrup
2/3 c. butter or margarine
3 c. water

2 tsp. vanilla
1 c. flour
3 c. sugar
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 recipe Vinegar Pie Crust
Grease bottom and sides of a 16" camp oven and dust lightly with flour. Roll out half of pie crust dough to 1/8" thickness. Line bottom of oven with pie crust and set aside.

In a separate pot, heat peaches, butter, water and vanilla. Combine dry ingredients, and stir slowly into peach mixture, mixing well. Cook until hot. Remove from heat and pour into pie crust-lined oven.

Roll out remaining dough to 1/8" thickness and place on top.

Place lid on oven and put hot, live coals on lid. Place hot, live coals under oven. Bake 15-20 minutes or until top is golden brown, making sure to rotate oven often. (Baking time varies according to amount of wind.)

VINEGAR PIE CRUST

4 c. flour
1/3 c. sugar
2 tsp. salt
1-3/4 c. shortening
1/2 c. water
2 T. cider vinegar
1 egg

Combine flour, sugar and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Combine water, vinegar and egg and beat well with fork. Add to shortening mix and mix well. Chill at least 2 hours before using.

Makes enough crust for one peach cobbler or two 9-inch double crust pies.

BRISKET CHUCKWAGON STEW

2 T. bacon grease or vegetable oil
3 lb. brisket, trimmed and cut in 1- 1/2" cubes
3/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. fresh ground pepper
1 large onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 c. beef stock
2 (4 oz.) cans chopped mild green chilies, drained
2 lbs. red skin potatoes, cut 1" pieces
2 c. fresh or thawed frozen corn kernels
1/4 c. chopped fresh cilantro
1/3 c. all-purpose flour

In camp oven, heat the bacon grease over medium heat. Season the brisket with salt and pepper. Working in batches to avoid crowding, add brisket and cook, turning until browned on all sides, about 8 minutes. Set aside.

Add onion and garlic to grease and cook, stirring often, until onion is softened (about 4 minutes). Stir in beef stock. Return the brisket to camp oven and add chilies. Bring to a simmer over high heat, skimming off foam. Reduce heat to low, cover and simmer until brisket is tender (about 2-1/2 hours). During the last 30 minutes, stir in potatoes, corn and cilantro. Remove from heat and let stand five minutes. Skim any fat from top of stew.

In a small bowl, whisk one cup of cooking liquid with flour until smooth. Stir into stew and simmer until sauce is thickened (about 3 minutes). Season with salt and pepper, if desired. Serve hot.

Tending to supper—Chuckwagon cook Ken Branum checks the cobbler he is cooking in a camp oven as he prepares to serve a catered supper. Branum has successfully combined three of his favorite things -- cooking, history and people -- by specializing in cowboy cooking, done outdoors over an open fire.

Hereford native among authors to participate in Texas Book Festival

Jean Brashear

Hereford native Jean Brashear, author of The Bodyguard's Bride, will participate in the third annual Texas Book Festival to be held in Austin Nov. 13-15. The Texas Book Festival celebrates Texas authors and their works. Last year's festival attracted more than 12,000 book lovers to the seminars, book signings and exhibits and raised $204,607, which was distributed as grants to 83 Texas public libraries.

"I practically grew up in my hometown library and feel strongly about supporting them," Brashear said when asked her reasons for participating in the Texas Book Festival. "I want to give back to libraries because they provided a small-town Texas girl a place to dream... a window to worlds far outside anything I knew existed." Brashear will sign at the Texas Romance Authors booth from 10 to 11 a.m. Nov. 14 and from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Nov. 15. "Our booth offers a chance for festival visitors to meet nationally known and best-selling authors and have books autographed personally," says Peggy Moreland, this year's Romance Booth Chair. "It's a chance for aspiring writers to ask questions of published authors and to browse through handouts pertaining to a career in writing." In addition to Brashear, 19 other authors will be featured in the Texas Romance Writers booth throughout the festival.

Thank You

I would like to give a really heartfelt thanks to the Hereford EMT Unit & Police who came to my rescue recently. I appreciate your quick response. Also to the HRMC emergency room crew. You are truly appreciated!!

HJH Roundup

"A true measure of your worth includes all the benefits others have gained from your success." - Cullen Hightower

The search for Texas treasure has begun in Miss Mugford's Texas history classes! They will be researching, making reports and treasure maps to lead to their treasure. By the way, when Miss Mugford returns to class on Wednesday, her students will begin using her new name, Mrs. Flood, as she and Nathan Flood were married on Saturday!

Preparations for Science Fair projects are underway in all science classes. Students and parents must remember that successful projects will require much time and it cannot all be done at school.

Geography Bee students have received their handbooks and will be practicing each morning, either in the classroom or at the computers in the library where they can explore Geo Bee. These students should also watch the news and the game Jeopardy as often as possible.

The new policy for Noon Study Hall is that students must present the pink copy of their NSH assignment form to be admitted to the NSH room. If they do not do so, they will not be admitted and will be required to attend two study halls. Students must bring work to do or they may receive another NSH. Hopefully, students will become more responsible for their actions and NSH will have fewer in attendance.

Students involved in History Fair will meet Tuesday to report on progress in their work. Also, Junior Historians will meet this week to discuss committee assignments and projects for the remainder of the calendar year.

Wanted!!! If there are seniors who have gone to HISD from kindergarten through their senior year and could locate their K-6 and some of their HJH and HHS teachers, either active or retired, we would like to hear from you. We are planning something special! Contact me at 364-0596 or Dianna Dandridge at The Brand, 364-2030, and we'll give you the details.

Students who have begun conservation essays, which are due in December, will complete those during the week before Thanksgiving. DAR and VFW essays are due in December, also.

Information about more essay contests will be available soon. Experience in writing will prove valuable as students prepare for high school and college. There are many opportunities for scholarships that require an essay and we have had winners - let's prepare for more!!

Amity Award winner—Tasha Bradford competed last weekend in the 1998 Miss Texas Teen All American Pageant in Grapevine. Bradford received the "Amity Award," given to the contestant selected as most congenial by vote of the 72 teens competing. Bradford said it was a "really good experience" and she appreciates all those who helped sponsor her in the competition.

Extension News

The extra publicity through news media sources on Breast Cancer Awareness may have ended for the month of October; however, every month should be dubbed as Breast Cancer Awareness month for all women.

Three detection methods lower the devastating results of breast cancer. All three should be utilized on a regular basis. Breast Examination (BE) during a routine physical by health personnel, Breast Self Examination (BSE) practiced at least once on a monthly basis, and having an annual mammogram can find and detect lumps in early stages.

Not all lumps are malignant. If one finds a breast lump, an immediate call should be made to your physician. One of eight women in the U.S. will be diagnosed with breast cancer in her lifetime. Early detection is the key to a greater chance of surviving this deadly disease.

Using a pin head, small pencil eraser, dime, button (or quarter) and a ping pong ball can visually help a woman realize the importance of early detection. Surviving a malignant (cancerous) tumor of the following sizes will give a person the following percentage chance of survival:

- The head of a glass-head pin - the average size lump (.3 to .5 centimeter) found by women who have regular mammograms - 96% chance of survival.
- Small pencil eraser - this is the average size lump (.5 to 1 centimeter) found by a first mammogram and can give one a 90 to 95% chance of survival.

- A dime - the average size lump found by practicing regular breast self-exams - 85 to 90% chance of survival.

- A quarter - 2 to 3 centimeters, found by practicing occasional breast self-exams - 75 to 80% chance of survival.

- A ping pong ball - 3 to 4 centimeters, found by women without having mammogram or practicing breast self-exams. The chances of surviving a malignant tumor this size can be as low as 20%.

Many other factors figure into the survival rate. This method of comparisons is used so that women can understand how important are all three detection methods, the regularity of utilizing the breast examination methods and the value of detecting a malignant breast lump in the early stages.

This comparison method and breast models to teach women to correctly practice breast self-examinations are valuable in breast health awareness. To book this program, call the County Extension office at 364-3573.

Remember to mark one day each month as your own Breast Health Awareness day, and to utilize Breast Self Examination as one of the tools for early detection. It is a responsible approach to your health and to the people who love you.

Curtsinger gives La Afflatus Club video program

Leola Cook was hostess for the Tuesday meeting of La Afflatus Estudio Club.

Syndicated Columnist

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have enjoyed your column for a long time and always thought it would be nice if I could send something you might publish as sort of a "pay-back." Well, at last I have found what I've been looking for.

The Massachusetts Bar Association Lawyers Journal printed the following questions, actually asked of witnesses during a trial. The responses to some of the questions were given by insightful witnesses. This is not a put-on. It's for real. — Ronita in Center Line, Mich.

Dear Ronita: What a thoughtful friend you are. Here's the list of questions lawyers posed to witnesses. My thanks for sending it on:

1. Now, doctor, isn't it true that when a person dies in his sleep, he doesn't know about it until the next morning?
2. The youngest son, the 20-year-old, how old is he?
3. Were you present when your picture was taken?
4. Were you alone or by yourself?
5. Was it you or your younger brother who was killed in the war?
6. Did he kill you?

7. How far apart were the vehicles at the time of the collision?

8. You were there until the time you left, is that true?

9. Question: She had three children, right?

Answer: Yes.

Q: How many were boys?

A: None.

Q: Were there any girls?

10. Q: You say the stairs went down to the basement?

A: Yes.

Q: And these stairs, did they go up also?

11. Q: How was your first marriage terminated?

A: By death.

Q: And by whose death was it terminated?

12. Q: Can you describe the individual?

A: He was about medium height and had a beard.

Q: Was this a male or a female?

13. Q: Is your appearance here this morning pursuant to a deposition notice that I sent to your attorney?

A: No, this is how I dress when I go to work.

14. Q: Doctor, how many autopsies have you performed on dead people?

A: All my autopsies are performed on dead people.

15. Q: All your responses must be oral, OK? What school did you go to?

A: Oral.

16. Q: Do you recall the time that you examined the body?

A: The autopsy started around 8:30 p.m.

Q: And Mr. Dennington was dead at the time?

A: No, he was sitting on the table wondering why I was doing an autopsy.

17. Q: Mr. Slatery, you went on a rather elaborate honeymoon, didn't you?

A: I went to Europe, sir.

Q: And you took your new wife?

18. Q: So the date of conception was August 8th?

A: Yes.

Q: And what were you doing at the time?

19. Q: Are you qualified to give a urine sample?

A: I have been since early childhood.

20. Q: You were not shot in the fracas?

A: No, I was shot midway between the fracas and the navel.

Red Cross Update

The rain which fell Oct. 30 resulted in flooding at the San Jose Community. A shelter was opened early Saturday morning, Oct. 31 for those needing a place to stay. More than 16 families were affected by the flood.

Those needing assistance are asked to contact the Tri County Chapter of the American Red Cross at 364-3761 or come by the office at 224 S. Main.

Financial contributions are greatly appreciated and can be made to P.O. Box 1371, Hereford 79045 or at the office.

Since there has been much disaster assistance needed in Central America and in South Texas, please specify where you would like your contribution to be used.

The "howling monster," as one victim described the flood waters in Texas has receded, but for residents, the process of recovery and cleanup has only just begun.

Relief supplies continue to pour into the Lone Star State but have not yet reached all of the victims across the thousands of miles of affected land.

Hurricane Mitch is one of the most devastating storms to hit Central America this decade, with mud and rock slides in many communities. The storm is feared to have killed many thousands of people in Nicaragua and Honduras, plus 400 elsewhere in the Central American region.

MILITARY MUSTER

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Eric V. Savage, son of Freddy A. Savage of Hereford, recently participated in a remembrance ceremony for Prisoners of War and Missing in Action (POW/MIA) while on a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean and Arabian Gulf aboard the aircraft carrier USS Abraham Lincoln, home ported in Everett, Wash.

Savage's ship paused in the Arabian Gulf to pay tribute to the men and women who have given their lives in the service of their country. In addition, an announcement to all crew members was given by Savage's commanding officer on the flight deck to fulfill the promise to our nation's POW's and MIA's and their families, that they are not forgotten.

Savage is currently halfway through a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific and Indian Oceans and Arabian Gulf.

The 1991 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Navy in February 1996.

Birthdays, special days, a year-around remembrance? Send them The Hereford Brand.

The American Red Cross has committed $25,000 for immediate disaster relief operations. In addition, ARC is exploring the shipment of selected relief supplies to affected area, with special consideration to priority items identified by national Red Cross Societies.

For those who wish to support the Hurricane Mitch disaster relief efforts, contributions can be made to the American Red Cross International Response Fund, P. O. Box 37243, Washington, D.C. 20013 or by calling 1-800-HELP-NOW or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish).

Flood damaged interior items can be prepared

Rain water is often associated with renewal, growth and cleansing. But flood water, on the other hand, could be associated with destruction, stains, and detergent.

"Flood waters may contain bacteria from sewage and other sources," explains Dr. Pamela Brown, a consumer sciences specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

After the recent rains, many Texans may find that water and bacteria have damaged bedding, upholstered furniture, carpets, and rugs, curtains, clothing and more.

The decision to keep or throw away these items depends on the extent of damage, the replacement cost, the cost of cleaning and restoration and the value of the item to the individual," said Brown.

Though the task of cleaning flood-damaged items can be overwhelming, Brown said, sound decisions can be made by considering each household item individually. She recommends that all items be repaired at one time and after cleaning, they be stored in a dry, well ventilated place.

Furniture

Antiques can be worth the time, effort and expense of restoration, according to Brown.

"Pieces that have suffered light damage can be cleaned, reglued, and refinished at home."

Solid wood furniture can be restored, unless severely damaged. Veneered wood usually requires more cost to repair, unless only a small amount of regluing is required.

Senator John Glenn's return to space aboard the space shuttle Discovery has proven to be the biggest media event for the space program in decades. Not since the days of the Mercury and Apollo projects of the early sixties and seventies has so much attention been paid to the launch of a space vehicle. Indeed, NASA has steadily restored the credibility it lost after the disastrous Challenger accident of January 1986. I am sure most will remember the explosion of the space shuttle shortly after lift-off and the loss of the seven astronauts on board. Just like the phoenix bird of legend, NASA rose from the ashes as vibrant as ever.

This latest shuttle mission is but a harbinger of things to come. It is preparing the way for the crown jewel in NASA's play book, the manned mission to Mars. Before an astronaut can set foot on the Martian soil, many things will have to be learned about the enigmatic red planet. At this moment the Mars Global Surveyor is circling high in the Martian atmosphere. The Mars Orbiter Camera aboard is imaging the surface and returning pictures like the one at the right (Image of sand dunes on the Martian surface courtesy of Malin Space Science Systems/NASA). Next month the first of two missions designed to complement the Mars Global Surveyor will be launched from the Kennedy Spacecraft Center.

The next generation of spacecraft to be sent to Mars will be part of the Mars Surveyor '98 program. The first probe, the Mars Climate Orbiter, will be launched December 10th of this year. Upon the arrival at Mars, September 1999, the spacecraft will use a series of aerobraking (the craft will enter the upper limits of the Martian atmosphere and use the planet's "air" to slow its speed) maneuvers to achieve a stable orbit, and then use atmospheric instruments and cameras to provide detailed information about the surface and climate of Mars.

The second spacecraft, the Mars Polar Lander, is scheduled for launch on January 3, 1999. It will land near the southern polar cap on Mars eleven months later. The lander is equipped with cameras, a robotic arm and instruments to measure the Martian soil composition. Also, piggybacking on the lander will be two small microprobes. These will penetrate the Martian subsurface to detect water ice. And a Mars microphone will detect any sounds within range of the lander.

This is just a sampling of the missions NASA has planned to study the red planet. The 21st century should prove to be a most interesting and fruitful era for the exploration of space. Scientists hope to have a manned Mars Mission a reality by the early decades of the new millennium. And then what? With new technologies on line, including more efficient propulsion systems, the stars or other destinations loom on the horizon.

On the mornings of November 17th and 18th the earth will pass through the path of Comet 55/Tempel-Tuttle. Debris left from the comet's tail will enter the earth's atmosphere at this time. Known as the Leonid Meteor Shower, astronomers are eagerly awaiting to see if this will be the spectacular event some have predicted. Although the earth's orbit around the sun carries us through the Leonid meteoroid stream annually, it is usually greatest every thirty-three years, but not always. The last great Leonid meteor shower occurred in 1966. They have been recorded since at least A.D. 902. The best prospects for observation this year seem to be for the longitudes of eastern Asia, on the opposite side of the world from us. But if you happen to be outside on those particular mornings, look up, you may see a cosmic traveler entering our atmosphere in a blaze of glory.

This event has the world's space agencies concerned. There are more than 500 working satellites currently orbiting the earth. Some of them could sustain a sandblasting if the prediction for the large meteor storm comes to pass. On earth, things such as pagers could suffer the effects of the bombardment.

require immediate attention.

But, Brown warns that laundry equipment needs to be cleaned and disinfected first.

To disinfect the washer, pour one cup chlorine bleach or three-fourths cup pine oil disinfectant into a washer full of hot water. Run the longest wash cycle possible, rinse.

For the dryer, unplug before cleaning. Wipe all surfaces of the dryer and dryer door with a cloth dipped in a disinfectant solution of two tablespoons chlorine bleach in one cup of hot water.

"Leave the dryer door open until all parts are thoroughly dry," Brown said. "Remember to disinfect other surfaces such as laundry baskets, work surfaces and containers that may come into contact with clean clothing."

Bedding
Mattresses may require costly renovation to make them useable, advises Brown. Though they can be cleaned and renovated, the cost of such a service may be more than purchasing a new mattress.

Pillows made of feather, polyester or foam rubber may also be salvageable. To clean, brush surface dirt off the pillow.

"Heavily soaked pillows may not be cleaned successfully, since water and mildew odors may remain," she added.

Feather pillows may be washed by machine or by hand. If the outer pillow ticking is badly damaged, transfer the feathers to a muslin bag that is large than the pillow ticking. Hint: Stitch an open end of the ticking to an open end of the bag. Shake the feathers into the bag, stitch the bag closed.

Wash in warm water 15-20 minutes, adding a disinfectant. Rinse with warm water several times. Squeeze or spin excess water from the pillows and dry in the dryer or on the line.

Polyester fiberfill should be washed by hand in warm water with a low sudsing detergent and disinfectant. Rinse several times, squeeze or spin off water in washing machine.

Fiberfill pillows may be dried in the dryer or line dried. Foam or urethane pillows should be dried away from heat and light.

— YOUR EYES —

Contact Lenses And Cosmetics

Cosmetics can cause all sorts of problems for contact lens wearers, including eye irritation, allergy, dryness, injury and infection. Here are some tips to keep in mind when it comes to buying and applying makeup.

- * Use cosmetics that are labeled "hypoallergenic" or "for contact lens wearers."
- * Avoid unknown brands.
- * Use water-soluble cosmetics - ones that say "won't run in water" are oil-based.
- * Avoid frosted, pearlized or other glittery types of eyeshadow--particles in them can get into your eyes.
- * Never apply eyeliner to the inner edge of the lid.
- * Don't wear makeup if your eyes are red, swollen or infected.
- * Use sprays--hairspray, perfume, deodorant--before inserting your lenses.
- * Wash hands thoroughly before handling your lenses.
- * Apply makeup after you've inserted your lenses.
- * Never apply eye makeup when you are in motion.
- * Never share cosmetics.
- * Remove, clean and store your lenses before taking off your makeup.
- * Replace eyeliner and mascara every three months.

Seeds of Smallness-Fifteen factors for failure

(Part One of a two-part series)

It is easy to write a formula for success. It must be, because hundreds have done it. Just slip into any good bookstore and look at the books in the "self-help" section.

You'll find dozens of current titles. You will also find several "oldies but goodies" that have racked up 20 printings or more. There are books by movie stars, sports figures and coaches, corporate CEO's and professional speakers. All of them promise to reveal the secrets of success.

You can "Think and Grow Rich," "Awaken the Giant Within" and learn "How to Win Friends and Influence People." Now friends don't be hasty in your judgement here. I am not putting down any of these books or any others like them. I've read more than 100 of these "self-help manuals" and I've gleaned something positive from each one of them.

However, this column isn't about success, it's about failure. It's not about greatness, it's about smallness. It will show you how to plant the seeds of failure that guarantee a dismal, small harvest in your life.

However, some of you may read between the lines. You may just decide to take a step or two away from failure, toward success. But, that's your choice.

Sowing Failure

- I didn't know. This is a classic failure seed, and a great excuse. You will never know everything, but you can know something. You don't need all the answers in advance, but you do need a sense of direction. The difference between a classic failure and a great success may be the winner's words, "I don't know, but I'll find out."

- I didn't believe I could. The failure is right. If you don't believe you can, you can't. On the other hand, if you believe you can, you're also correct. When there is little to lose by trying and much to gain if you succeed, by all means give it your best shot.

- They wouldn't let me. This is a classic loser's kernel. Let me interpret: "They wouldn't let me" means "I didn't really want to try." Remember, no one can keep you from becoming a success but you. Triumph is nothing more than "umph" added to "try."

- I didn't plan. For many people, planning is a misunderstood process. Failures make this simple process seem difficult. Planning has three steps: 1) Know where you are, 2) Decide where you want to go, and 3) Determine the steps required to get from point one to point two.

- It isn't my job. I'll guarantee your failure if you'll say, "It isn't my job," frequently. Failures avoid action. They don't look for solutions, instead they complain about the problem.

- I didn't learn from my mistakes. Proverbs 26:11 says, "As a dog returns to his vomit, so a fool returns to his folly." The only value of mistakes are the lessons they teach. You'll have to be a good student if you're trying to climb above failure.

- I didn't have time. Check me out on this one. I think failures have the same amount of hours each day as those who succeed. We all have the time. The question is do we use our time wisely? I gave up television when I began writing this column eight years ago. Subsequently, I conceived and co-authored one book and have written another. I don't feel that I've wasted my time.

Next week in part two, I'll share more seeds of failure. I hope you'll never plant them. In any event, don't miss part two.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the covers

By Martha Russell

There are many things that make working at the county library interesting and enjoyable. One of the things I enjoy most is that when I walk in the library in the morning, I never am sure what we will encounter before the day is over. Now, that could be either good or bad. Most of the time, however, it's good.

Recently, I received a call from a librarian in Barnwell, South Carolina. It took me a few seconds to decipher the drawl. She called to thank me profusely for sending some of their books that our Baker & Taylor lease program had sent here by mistake.

After I had assured her that it was no trouble at all, and, actually, was what the Baker & Taylor people had instructed me to do, I expected the call to end. She hesitated, and then said, "Could I ask you a question?"

"Of course," I replied. "Where did you get the name for your county?" she asked. I explained to her about Erastus Smith, being careful to tell the story in a way that a non-Texan who was not well-versed in Texas history could follow. She then told me that, although she had never been to Texas, she would like to see the Alamo. She went on to tell me that South Carolina school children are taught that since William

Barrett Travis was from South Carolina (a fact that this Okie did not realize), their state sent more men to fight in the Texas Revolution than any other eastern state. In fact, twelve or thirteen young men from Barnwell, itself about the size of Hereford, died fighting in the Texas Revolution.

Well, I learned as much about Texas history from the woman from South Carolina as she did from me, maybe more. I hope that sending those books to Barnwell helps in a way, even though small, to pay them back for their contribution to the freedom we enjoy today.

When I got out of bed that morning, I had no idea that I would encounter such a gracious and informative lady. And, I love to listen to that thick Southern drawl!

Max Lucado has another new book. Just Like Jesus begins with Lucado's description of his office and how it looks different. He goes on to describe how he liked the office fine the way it was, but his wife, Denalyn, is a compulsive redecorator. It is not enough just to own the house, she must change and remodel it. Fortunately, she limits her remodeling to what she and her husband own, even though she is sometimes strongly tempted to rearrange pictures in the houses of friends.

Lucado writes that the way

Denalyn views a house is the way her Father, her heavenly Father, views life. God loves to decorate. God has to decorate. Lucado states, "God loves you the way you are, but he refuses to leave you there. He wants you to be just like Jesus."

As basketball season approaches, we are again faced with purchasing basketball shoes for two guys. When I was a kid, most girls did not play basketball. If they did it was a half-court thing and the shoes, well, I can't remember what shoes we wore. They must have been those Keds kind. At any rate, they weren't leather, they were not the "air" kind or the "pump" kind, and they sure didn't cost more than $5.00.

The Sneaker Book: Anatomy of an Industry and an Icon by Tom Vanderbilt is an entertaining and informative look at this $1.4 billion-a-year industry. How and by whom are sneakers made? Where does your money go when you buy a pair? Why is Nike heralded by economists and lampooned by Doonesbury? Just when and why did America (and the world) go sneaker crazy?

The text includes a time line of sneaker history. Did you know that Reeboks, my personal favorite, began in 1895?

This book has a wealth of facts, figures, cartoons by Garry Trudeau and Mark Alan Stamaty, as well as literary excerpts. Yes, literary excerpts. I don't think reading this book will convince my sons to choose less expensive shoes (they must be Nikes or nothing!), but it will make informative reading while I wait for the credit card bill and try to figure out how to pay for those shoes!

Fforde is a humorous English novel of two fixer-uppers - an old house and a young woman. When Hetty Longden, freshly dumped and broken-hearted, agrees to look after her great-uncle's long-abandoned mansion in the countryside, she is at something of a lifetime low. Looking for nothing more than a good old-fashioned escape, she finds, instead, a cast of quirky and ever-present neighbors, a couple of SNAGS (Sensitive New Age Guys), some very humorless bank officials, two disarming little canines, one gracious, dilapidated, romantic old house and, just maybe enough elbow grease to polish everything up again.

Helpful fungi rebuilds endangered wildlife habitats

Earth's rich carpets of grasslands owe their diversity to partnerships with underground fungi, new research published today suggests.

The findings could prompt scientists to rethink ways of restoring endangered habitats such as America's shrinking tallgrass prairies, and help farmers become more productive.

Scientists had thought that competition between plant species and grazing by animals controlled the amount of diversity in grasslands.

"What this says is that it's the below-ground that controls the above-ground, instead of the other way around," said John Klironomos, an assistant professor of botany at the University of Guelph, near Toronto.

Klironomos and a separate team of Swiss researchers found that specialized species of fungus dictate how many and what type of species sprout on the surface by feeding nutrients to the plants.

While such a relationship had been suspected by scientists, this research is the most persuasive work demonstrating the theory, said David

Janos, an associate professor of biology at the University of Miami. "It's a really interesting, provocative paper that takes us that next step forward. It's a major contribution."

Similar links have been shown between fungus and trees.

Klironomos' team created bare outdoor plots, introduced varying numbers of species of fungus, then scattered a uniform amount of seeds from 15 species of grasses and wildflowers.

In a study published in today's issue of the journal Nature, they report that plots with the most fungal species sprouted the greatest variety of surface plants.

Their findings were complemented by similar work in greenhouses at the University of Basel in Switzerland. Researchers there found that even a slight shift in the number of fungal species can lead to big swings in plant diversity.

The studies' suggestion that some fungi favor specific plant species was particularly intriguing, said Elaine Ingham, an associate professor of botany and plant pathology at Oregon State University.

"I think this gives us undeniable proof that fungi are controlling the plants," she said.

Ingham said learning which fungi favor which plants could help farmers create more productive pastures without fertilizer.

The findings also explain why efforts to restore tallgrass prairies often fall short, said Mike Miller, senior ecologist at Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago, which has created a tallgrass prairie on the grounds of its underground atomic accelerator.

"We have something that looks like a prairie, but is not really functioning like a prairie because it lacks this large population of fungi that play a big role in enriching and stabilizing the soil," Miller said.

Molds reduce peanut aflatoxin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "good" mold could help reduce a type of peanut contamination that farmers identify as their No. 1 problem.

Agriculture Department scientists in Dawson, Ga., have discovered a method for using helpful fungi to reduce aflatoxin contamination of peanuts while the crop is still on the farm.

Aflatoxin is a naturally occurring carcinogen that can contaminate peanuts and corn. The mold that produces the toxin tends to increase during hot, dry weather. Peanuts contaminated with it can't be sold for human consumption.

Mold strains of Aspergillus flavus and A. parasiticus often produce two potential food contaminants — including aflatoxin. But benign strains of these molds produced neither compound, the scientists found.

In fact, good molds added to the soil can occupy space that might otherwise be taken up by the bad molds.

USDA's Agricultural Research Service has applied for patent protection on the mold mixture, which is available for licensing.

"The 'good' mold mix is combined with a delivery system that offers protection for crops in the field before harvest," said Richard J. Cole, director of the service's National Peanut Research Laboratory in Dawson.

The Food and Drug Administration requires that aflatoxin content in peanut products be less than 20 parts per billion, equal to a drop of water in a 21,700-gallon swimming pool. International aflatoxin levels are set much lower, typically with a range of 0 to 4 parts per billion.

Industry leaders have identified aflatoxin contamination as their top problem. The industry has set a goal to ensure that peanuts are aflatoxin-free by the year 2000.

Computer devise determines citrus bruising points

HOUSTON (AP) — Grapefruit! Klaatu barada nikt!

A small, spherical computer may soon be launched on a mission into Texas fruit-packing plants.

Two years ago, the U.S. Department of Agriculture sent a similar probe into the plants to measure the amount of abuse oranges and grapefruit receive between picking and shipping. It didn't survive.

Now Bhimu Patil, an assistant professor at the Citrus Center at Texas A&M University's Kingsville campus, wants to try again.

The round robot, developed by researchers at Michigan State University, is a lot smaller than the metallic giant Gort in the classic science-fiction movie, "The Day the Earth Stood Still." (Gort, Michael Rennie's robot companion, was ready to destroy the world until Patricia Neal used the code phrase, "Gort! Klaatu barada nikt!")

The more-mobile Michigan State computer measures how and when citrus fruit is bruised as it travels through the plants.

The idea is to give packers more data on where bruising occurs so they can install padding in the right places.

Many packers won't take on the expense of padding unless they're shown proof that there's a problem, Patil told The Texas Journal of The Wall Street Journal.

Richard Walsh, president of Mission Shippers in Mission, said he usually doesn't have problems with bruising, and he is skeptical of the need for a high-tech detective.

"I don't think it would have taken one of those balls to find the bruising," he said.

However, some growers are willing to spend money to pamper their produce.

Dwayne Bair, president and general manager of the Edinburg Citrus Association in Edinburg, bought new sizing equipment after taking part in the USDA test.

Before it was battered into silence, the robot probe "confirmed some suspicions" that his fruit was getting bruised during the sizing process, Bair said.

Scientists release enhanced tomatoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watch out, carrots. Beta carotene-packed tomatoes are coming your way.

Agriculture Department scientists have released three new lines of tomatoes that contain 10 to 25 times more beta carotene than average tomatoes.

The new tomatoes can be processed into paste, juices and sauces. High beta carotene cherry and beefsteak type market tomatoes also will be released as specialty tomatoes for the fresh market.

"Soon consumers may be able to get abundant beta carotene not only from carrots but also from tomatoes," said John R. Stommel, a plant geneticist with the Agricultural Research Service's Vegetable Laboratory in Beltsville, Md. Stommel developed the new tomato lines.

Beta carotene provides the body with vitamin A, an essential nutrient that aids in clear vision, bone growth, tooth development and reproduction.

A major food producer already has begun using the breeding lines to develop nutritionally enhanced products, Stommel said.

The fruits are firm and crack-resistant.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information. Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examines the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

THERE'S MORE Hereford IN THE BRAND.

The House of the Week

Versatile Country Design

Multiple rooflines, a round-topped window on the prominent gable and an inviting front porch create a combination of country and modern styling.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
 AP Newsfeatures
 Versatile living spaces are found in plan G-98, by HomeStyles Designers Network; they add a valuable dimension to this country-inspired design. Its one and one-half floors provide 2,533 square feet of living space.

Just off the 18-foot-high foyer, the dining room features two sets of columns. An alternative floor plan allows this area to be turned into a den or extra bedroom, complete with its own bath.

Entertaining and family activities will be centered in the 18-foot-high vaulted great room. This grand area has a fireplace and a home entertainment center. A wall of windows overlooks a backyard porch and perhaps a garden plot beyond.

The kitchen is a chef's dream. Its well-planned design includes ample cupboard and counter space, a walk-in pantry and an island cooktop with a snack bar. A powder room and laundry facilities are just steps away.

Dining will be a pleasure in the bayed breakfast room, which opens to a side porch through sliding French doors. The main-floor master suite has a 10-foot stepped ceiling atop the sleeping chamber, and sliding French doors that lead out to the rear porch. The private bath has a garden tub. A seated shower and a big walk-in closet also are features of this charming space.

Unless otherwise noted, all main-floor rooms feature 9-foot ceilings.

A two-way staircase allows access to the upper floor where a railed balcony provides sweeping views. A full bath is shared by two bedrooms, one with a 9-foot tray ceiling and the other with an 11-foot-6-inch vaulted ceiling.

FROM THE FOYER, the dining room lies directly to the left. An alternative floor plan allows a den or bedroom and a full bath. The great room anchors the center of the home and flows into the kitchen and breakfast room. The laundry room is nearby and has access to the two-car garage. Across the home, the master suite has its own bath. Upstairs, two bedrooms and a full bath are connected by a balcony hall.

Haley's Mama Flora mixes history, storytelling

Mario Van Peebles, Cicely Tyson, Kaleb Morton, Queen Latifah and Blair Underwood (from left) star in the multigenerational film Mama Flora's Family. Based on the novel by Alex Haley (Roots) and David Stevens, the two-part TV movie airs Sunday and Tuesday on CBS.

When Roots author Alex Haley died in 1992, he left unfinished the story of his mother's life, an uphill struggle against harsh circumstances.

Mama Flora's Family, a two-part drama adapted from the recently published novel of the same name, is the fulfillment of Haley's vision.

"It was meant to be a novel and a miniseries," says executive producer Jon Avnet (Fried Green Tomatoes), who recalls Haley as a mentor and friend.

"There was a story inside (Haley), and he sort of hammered it out. (We intended) to do the miniseries after he finished the book. He worked on the book for a number of years and wrote quite a bit of it but ultimately never completed it."

That task fell to David Stevens (Breaker Morant). Stevens also co-wrote the script for the film, which airs Sunday and Tuesday, Nov. 8 and 10, on CBS.

Mama Flora's Family opens in 1970, as 74-year-old Flora Palmer (Cicely Tyson) collects her granddaughter Diana (Queen Latifah) and toddler grandson from a trashy apartment to take them under her own roof. Unwilling at first, Diana learns from her grandmother's life story, which begins before the turn of the century.

Flora (played in flashbacks by Erika Alexander) is a sharecropper's daughter. In her teens, she gives birth to the child of a well-to-do young man and is forced to give the infant up. Crushed, Flora leaves home to start life over, working as a laundress and housekeeper.

Flora's marriage to farmer Booker T. Palmer (David Ramsey) brings happiness, but Booker pays for his ambition with his life. Flora is then left to raise their son, Willie. She tries to keep the boy in school, but he quits to work in a cotton field. Later, Willie heads for Chicago, where money slips through his fingers.

During the 1940s, Flora finally meets her estranged son, Luke (Mario Van Peebles), who has had the benefit of a law-school education but resents the absence of his mother for so many years.

At the same time, Willie envies the maternal pride Flora has in Luke.

"Willie goes through the same struggle a great many men go through in life," says L.A. Law star Blair Underwood, who plays Willie from 17 to 55.

"I see Willie as almost three different people. In the beginning, he's a kid trying to find himself. I liken it to a young deer trying to find his legs.

"Then when he goes up to Chicago and he's drinking and gambling and running around with women, he's trying to find his manhood in many ways. And later on, he's trying to find his heart, around age 45 or 50."

Mama Flora's Family is a big story, and Avnet fits as much as he can into four hours. The characters' lives intersect with World War II, the civil rights movement and the Vietnam conflict, but the story stays focused on Mama Flora's values and determination.

"As I read the script," Underwood recalls, "and saw the broken English, and (the story) starting off with slavery, there was a side of me that said, 'I don't want to see that, much less be a part of it or do it.'"

"But as I continued to read, I came to the realization that a lot of kids don't know the history of African-American families in this country. So it's worth exploring."

And, he adds, "it's by far the most challenging role I've ever played."

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ November 8-14 ★ ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20

You have an important business decision to make this week, Aries. While you need to look out for your own interests, don't disregard everyone else involved. Try to make a decision that will benefit everyone. People are counting on you to be fair. A loved one gets into financial trouble late in the week. Do what you can to help.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

You have the perfect opportunity to enhance your love life early in the week. You've been waiting for this chance for a long time. Don't let it pass you by. A close friend needs to talk with you about a business situation. Don't put him or her off. This is an important matter that you have to deal with. Cancer plays a key role.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

It seems as if you're facing an uphill battle when it comes to a personal problem early in the week, Gemini. Don't let these setbacks get you down. You need to stay determined if you want to accomplish anything. A loved one offers you some constructive criticism. Listen to what he or she has to say without getting upset.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Your sense of humor saves the day early in the week. A tense situation has everyone on edge, but your wit makes people laugh and relax. While only a few actually tell you, everyone appreciates your efforts. A friend of a friend calls you unexpectedly. Listen to what he or she has to say.

LEO - July 23/August 23

A close friend invites you to an important social event. Even though you're nervous, say yes. The evening has many pleasant surprises in store for you. A loved one needs your help dealing with a family situation. Be supportive, and do what you can to help. Gemini plays a key role.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

There's a lot going on this week, Virgo, so keep things organized. It's the only way to get things done. A close friend comes to you with a personal problem. While you would like to help, you know that you really can't do anything to improve the situation. Resist getting involved.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

You have to make a decision about your complicated romantic life this week, Libra. You've been putting it off for too long now. Think about what you really want, and make your decision. It's the best thing to do for everyone involved. Leo plays a role.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let a business associate influence a career move that you're considering. You have to do what is best for you. Those closest to you will understand and support your decision. A former friend wants to get close again. Think about the consequences before saying yes. Is it really worth it?

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

Keep your wits about you early in the week, Sagittarius, or you're sure to say the wrong thing at the wrong time. Listen to what others are saying, and respond to them. Don't just blurt out whatever is on your mind. That special someone has a surprise for you this weekend. Enjoy yourself!

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

A close friend introduces you to an important business associate. Don't let his or her outgoing nature overwhelm you. Be confident, and you're sure to make a good impression. The person whom you've been seeing wants to call it quits. While you're upset, think about it. This really is for the best.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

An acquaintance offers to assist you with an important matter late in the week. Don't overanalyze the situation. He or she just wants to help. A loved one needs your advice about a romantic relationship. Be honest. While he or she may not want to hear what you have to say, it needs to be said.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

It seems as if everyone you know is trying to hold you back this week. Don't get discouraged. Getting upset only will make things worse. Try to make as much progress as you can. A friend needs a shoulder to cry on late in the week. Be there for him or her.

Things are heating up in more ways than one for Scully and Mulder (Gillian Anderson, David Duchovny) in the season premiere of The X-Files Sunday on Fox.

Sixth season of X-Files sets small screen afire

Temperatures rise on The X-Files as the popular Fox series begins its sixth season Sunday, Nov. 8.

Hot on the heels of this summer's feature film, the new season begins with an episode set in Phoenix, an unfamiliar terrain for Mulder and Scully (David Duchovny, Gillian Anderson).

But there's a good reason why the two agents are traipsing around the sweltering city. After several years of filming in Vancouver, British Columbia, the series now is shot in Los Angeles.

"The (episode's) opening shot starts on the sun and we hold on it - a bit longer than we should probably - and then we come down and we reveal the desert landscape, and it's sort of a wink to the audience," executive producer Frank Spotnitz reveals.

The new locale isn't the only thing causing blood to boil. In the film, Mulder and Scully almost shared a kiss. Now, as outside forces threaten their partnership, the two agents must come to terms with how that intimate moment changes things between them.

"I think you will see the good and the bad of that moment, not just in the first episode but in several of the episodes in the new year," Spotnitz says. "It leads to tensions as well as increased closeness between the two of them."

Also in the season premiere, Spender and Fowley (Chris Owens, Mimi Rogers) return and are partnered up to protect chess prodigy Gibson Praise (guest star Jeff Gulka).

Spotnitz says the teaming of Spender and Fowley creates an intriguing contrast to Mulder and Scully's pairing.

"There's also the interesting personal connection between Mulder and Fowley because they were once romantically involved, whereas Mulder and Scully have never been," he notes. "And then Spender's connection to the Cigarette-Smoking Man becomes increasingly clear in the new season."

The next mythology episodes won't air until February, but the producers have plenty planned for fans. Episode 3 is filmed in the wide-screen format and plays in real time, while episodes 4 and 5 feature a two-part comedic story line set in Nevada's Area 51.

Pat Sajak

Q: I thought Pat Sajak committed suicide a couple of years ago, but I recently saw him on Wheel of Fortune. I am really confused! -Mrs. Joyce Lane, Lenoir, N.C.

A: You're just confusing the hale and hearty Sajak with the ill-fated Ray Combs, the former Family Feud host, who killed himself in June 1996 in the wake of a failed marriage and several disastrous investments.

Q: Please help settle an argument. Who played Judge Peters on a recent episode of Ally McBeal? I say it's the guy who used to play Winchester on M*A*S*H. He says the actor appeared in Animal House. Who is right? -Dana Greenup, Clarks Hill, Ind.

A: You are. David Ogden Stiers played stuffy Maj. Charles Emerson Winchester on *M*A*S*H*, before going on to appear as Judge Andrew Peters in the Ally episode titled "They Eat Horses, Don't They?"

Q: I would guess your friend is thinking of actor John Vernon, who played Dean Vernon Wormer in Animal House.

Q: Can you tell me the name of the dog in the Taco Bell commercials? -CeJae Boggess, Appleton, Wis.

A: The canine character's name is Dinky, but "he" is actually played by a 3-year old female Chihuahua named Gidget. The voice is supplied by comic Carlos Alazraqui.

Q: For any puppy playboys out there panting after her vital statistics, Gidget weighs 8 pounds and stands a statuesque 11 inches tall.

Q: I say Lisa Ann Walter played Gloria, the divorced hairstylist on Hope & Gloria. My mother insists it was someone else. A $20 bet is riding on this. -Samantha in Kodiak, Alaska.

A: Cough up, Sam. Gloria Utz was played by Jessica Lundy. She also played Elaine Shulman, Dr. Joel Fleischman's erstwhile fiancée on Northern Exposure.

Q: Who did Craig T. Nelson play in Call to Glory? Who else was in that series, and when did it air? -Jacob Wang, San Francisco, Calif.

A: Nelson played Air Force Col. Raynor Sarnac in that ABC drama, which premiered on Aug. 13, 1984, and had its last telecast on Feb. 12, 1985. Cindy Pickett (Hyperion Bay) played his wife, Vanessa; their three children were played by David Hollander, Gabriel Damon and a future Oscar nominee named Elisabeth Shue.

Q: I miss Rob Estes and Mitzi Kapture on Silk Stalkings. What are they doing now? -Mary Probert, Golden City, Mo.

A: They're hiding in plain sight. Estes is in his second season as a Melrose Place regular, while Kapture recently joined the cast of Baywatch.

SOAP WORLD

After more than 12 years on ABC soap operas, Debbi Morgan (Dr. Ellen Burgess, Port Charles) is leaving to pursue other acting opportunities.

The actress, who also appeared on The City and All My Children, received critical acclaim for her performance in last year's feature film Eve's Bayou.

"I feel that it is time to take on my next challenge and pursue my dream of working in film," Morgan says. "It has been an incredible experience being a part of the Port Charles family."

Morgan leaves in mid-December. In other news: On Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 14 and 15, viewers of ABC soaps may want to head down to the Disney-MGM Studios in Florida. More than 30 soap opera stars are scheduled to be there attending the third annual ABC Super Soap Weekend.

At the event, fans are treated to autograph sessions, contests, interviews with the stars, parades and a chance to purchase one-of-a-kind memorabilia from their favorite shows.

Susan Lucci (Erica, All My Children) is attending on Sunday to unveil Mattel's Erica Kane doll. Fans have the opportunity to bid on the original prototype of the doll.

A street party is scheduled on Saturday night, featuring performances from Wallace Kurth (Ned, General Hospital), Jonathan Jackson (Lucky, GH) and Catherine Hickland (Lindsay, One Life to Live).

The roster of actors attending is a veritable Who's Who of soap stars.

Julia Barr, David Canary, Michael E. Knight, Cameron Mathison, Robin Mattson and Cadý McClain represent AMC. Actors from OLTL include Kale Browne, Timothy Gibbs and Don Jeffcoat.

The GH brigade includes Nancy Grahn, Becky Herbst, Billy Warlock and Jacklyn Zeman. Michael Dietz, Jay Pickett, Julie Pinson and Kin Shriner are attending for Port Charles.

For more information about the Super Soap Weekend, visit the ABC Website at www.abc.com.

With the threat of cancellation looming, Another World has transformed itself into one of the best daytime serials currently on television.

The recent story lines are rich, mysterious and incredibly fun. But all the rumors and threats sometimes make it difficult for the cast and crew.

"We can't really worry about what might happen in the future," says Joseph Barbara, who plays Joe Carli-no. "The rumors are out there, and you can't help but think about it sometimes. But we are in here at the studio doing our best."

"I can't wait to see what is going to happen next in the script," he adds. "It's some of the best writing I've seen since I joined the show. I look forward to going to work every day."

Barbara's character is directly involved in solving the mysteries surrounding the Lumina Ball. "Joe finally has something to do besides giving people orders," he says.

Dear Candace: I greatly enjoy Alison Sweeney's work on Days of Our Lives. What can you tell me about her? And could you please give me an address where I can write her? -Eddie Drew on the Internet.

Dear Reader: Sweeney joined Days in January 1993 and has won several awards as the vindictive Sami Brady.

She began her television career at the age of 5 working in commercials and then went on to do several guest appearances on series. She hopes to get into other areas of television and film.

Sweeney was born in Los Angeles. She loves kick-boxing, water sports, alpine skiing, basketball and softball. She is single and dating.

Write to Sweeney c/o Days of Our Lives, NBC-TV, 3000 West Alameda Ave., Burbank, CA 91523.

Dear Candace: Who is the actor on Guiding Light who plays the part of Sean? I recently saw him in the TV movie Race Against Fear: A Moment of Truth Movie. -Frances in Maine.

Dear Reader: William Bumiller plays the role of Sean McCullough on GL and was in Race.
