Shannon Redwine was honored Monday night by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce as Hereford's "Woman of the Year" for 1998. The announcement came as the highlight of the Women's Division's first quarterly meeting and installation of 1999 officers held at Sirlain Stockade.

Installing officer Peggie Fox compared positions on the executive council to the parts of a tree as she installed Kim Leonard as president; Shannon Redwine, president-elect; Leslie Easley, vice president; Frances Farr, secretary; Marilyn Bell, one-year director; Gail Richardson, two-year director; and Rita Bell, parliamentarian.

Redwine was presented a silver tray and a dozen long stemmed roses by Elvira Enriquez, the 1997 Woman of the Year.

On hand to witness the presentation to Redwine were her husband, Lanny; her parents, Morris and Gwen Hacker, her sister, Sandra Hacker, and her uncle and aunt, Bob and Martha Kerschen.

Other special guests in attendance were Don Cumpton, executive director of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, Shelia Wagner and Yvonne Simpson.

Leonard served as president of the Women's Division during the second half of 1998 following the resignation of Nancy Denton.

Upon accepting the gavel for the 1999 term of office, Leonard stated her theme for the year will be "Building a Strong Foundation."

"A strong foundation is essential in keeping the Women's Division going. We have made some changes

County to join sealcoating pool

By Don Cooper

Deaf Smith County will participate in the annual sealcoating program, but there still are some questions remaining about the project.

The commissioners voted unanimously to include 4.5 miles of county roads in the sealcoating project; however, the roads to be included have not been selected. Also, the mileage to receive the sealcoating also is flexible, with the commissioners hinting the figure could rise.

The commissioners needed to make a decision on participating in the annual project because Oller Engineering of Lubbock, the project coordinator, already is seeking bids for the work.

Several Panhandle/South Plains counties and municipalities participate in a pool, which is designed to reduce the cost of sealcoating roads/streets.

At the Dec. 14 meeting, engineer Rich Oller urged the commissioners to join the pool using his firm to coordinate the project. He said the bid is expected to be sent out around the first of February.

Also, Oller acknowledged some problems with the inspector last year and said he would handle the inspections this year, adding he would give the county a break on consultation fees this year.

The commissioners agreed to participate in the sealcoating project this year, but they agreed Pct. 3 foreman Bobby Hammock should be the liaison with Oller Engineering and the contractor.

County Judge Tom Simons drew nine names for positions on the county Grievance Committee. Three members of the public will serve on the panel.

The individuals whose names were drawn are Ester Zamao, Nancy Gonzales, Robert Griego, Darla Stengel, Willis Dean Duggan, Edward Allison, Doug Sanderson, David Zuniga and Benny Carrasco.

The commissioners approved a request from Energas to lay a gas line across a county road in Precinct 1.

The line already has been installed on an emergency basis, but the gas company needed the approval on record.

Also, representatives of Energas asked the county to consider changing its require-

More temperate temperatures greet lawmakers

Two years ago, an ice storm preceded lawmakers traveling to Austin for their every-other-year session.

This time, forecasters were predicting a warmer-than-usual day with temperatures peaking in the mid-70s.

Clinton, House managers file briefs

Oral arguments set to begin Thursday in the Senate trial

The Associated Press

Charting a legal course for President Clinton's trial and any presidential impeachments to come, House prosecutors and White House defenders are clashing over the evidence in a written preview of the drama soon to unfold in the Senate.

The two sides filed briefs Monday that blended arguments over Clinton's guilt or innocence with momentous predictions of how the case would influence future judgments of presidential misconduct.

In a road map for oral arguments that begin with the House presentation Thursday on the Senate floor, prosecutors said that if Clinton is not convicted of the perjury and obstruction-of-justice charges, "the bar will be so high that only a convicted felon or a traitor will need to be concerned."

The House trial brief Monday rebutted White House arguments earlier in the day. Clinton's lawyers contended that his attempts to conceal an extramarital affair with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky "do not permit the conviction and removal ... of a duly elected president."

"The charges ... do not rise to the level of 'high crimes and misdemeanors' as contemplated by the founding fathers," the White House said.

Both sides Monday tried to hone their presentations, knowing that the openings will take on an even greater significance if the Senate does not allow witnesses later in the trial. Each side has 24 hours on the clock, with the White House to follow when the prosecutors are done.

Lead prosecutor Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., who plans to begin the prosecutors' opening presentation, said this was "not the time to get angry with the Senate" over its decision to delay his demand for witnesses. He said the House "managers" wouldn't "want to hang our hat just on the question of witnesses."

Vice President Al Gore predicted Monday that the Senate would not muster the two-thirds vote to convict Clinton. "What the president did was wrong," Gore told The Associated Press in an interview. "He's acknowledged that, asked for forgiveness. But what he did falls far short" of misbehavior warranting removal from office.

The White House submission Monday was a 13-page answer to a Senate summons that sought a response to the

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS News in brief

Board of Health proposes ephedrine rules

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Board of Health was poised to propose new rules today regarding drugs and diet supplements containing ephedrine, which has been blamed for medical problems when taken in elevated doses.

The proposed rules, reached in a compromise with the herbal products industry, include standard dosages, recommended limits and warning labels for products containing ephedrine, the Austin American-Statesman reported today.

They can't be adopted until after a 60-day public comment period.

The rules follow failed attempts by the board to ban sales of non-prescription drugs and diet supplements containing the substance and are less restrictive than rules proposed by the same board in three previous years.

The board never adopted those rules, despite encouragement from medical experts, amid vocal criticism from the industry.

Trial lawyers ready to waive fees from state

DALLAS (AP) — Private lawyers who represented Texas in its multibillion-dollar tobacco lawsuit settlement are prepared to release their claims against the state after receiving a $3.3 billion award, a published report says.

But those involved in the litigation told The Dallas Morning News in today's editions that trial attorneys want a commitment from Texas Attorney General John Cornyn that he will not challenge the record award.

"If he decides to claim some of the $3.3 billion for the state, then I think we are going to see extensive, very heated litigation," a lawyer close to the case told the newspaper.

"If Mr. Cornyn decides to let the lawyers keep their money from the tobacco companies, then I think this deal is finally over," the lawyer said.

An arbitration panel appointed by the tobacco industry and attorneys last month awarded the plaintiffs' lawyers $3.3 billion, to be paid by the major tobacco companies in the record $17.3 billion settlement in Texas.

THE HEREFORD BRAND Obituaries

ROBERT MORGAN Jan. 8, 1999

Funeral services for Robert Morgan, 65, of Hereford were Monday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church with Msgr. Orville Blum officiating. Burial was in Rest Lawn Memorial Park. Arrangements were under the direction of Gililand-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Morgan died Friday at the Hereford Regional Medical Center.

He was born Nov. 7, 1933, in Hale Center to Eldon Morgan and Jeannette Stark Morgan. He married Rita Vinton on April 14, 1955, in Hereford.

He was a graduate of Hereford High and had worked as an engineer for the Texas Department of Highways.

Survivors include his wife, Rita Morgan; four daughters, Debra Arroyas, Jana Morgan, both of Hereford, Cindy Dews of Portland, and Trina McCollum of Murray, Utah; one son, Barry Morgan of San Antonio; one sister, Anne Swaim, of Houston.

The family suggests memorials be made to the St. Anthony's Endowment fund.

Drought conditions remain in Texas

OLD GLORY, Texas — Not one drop.

That's how much rain has fallen on many areas near the small West Texas town of Old Glory since March 1998.

Not enough for the cotton plants to break ground this year on 56-year-old Glen Germont's small farm.

Not even enough to produce the tumbleweeds that usually blow through the town and collect along the small fences near the corner stores — most died before sprouting.

Stonewall County is one of several across the state that have been left in the dust despite the general end of drought conditions.

"It doesn't matter how much rain those places got, if it doesn't rain on me," Germont said as he looked over his dry, barren property. "It might as well have been raining in Honolulu."

There are few statistics that show how many areas across the state also have received no rain since spring. The National Weather Service and the National Climatic Control Center tally rainfall averages by regions.

That makes documenting the rainless regions or "dry spots," as drought watchers call them, almost impossible. Those who try rely upon the anecdotes of farmers so desperate for rain it's likely they would remember even a trickle.

Travis Miller, a Texas A&M Extension Service researcher and a member of a drought strategies task force, said even though the regional hub cities of Lubbock and Amarillo received rain in September and October, other parts were less fortunate.

"Rain can travel beneath the ground a bit but it is true that there are areas of the state that have received little to no rain last year," Miller said. "It is easy to forget that there are some unlucky parts that are still experiencing the worst drought of the decade. Seventy miles up the highway things might be a little different, but if you're the guy who's hurting, what do you care?"

Parts of Wilbarger County, nearly 250 miles northwest of Dallas, also have received less than an inch of rain since April of last year. There, the lack of rain has robbed the small county of one of its most defining traits — tumbleweeds.

The few tumbleweed plants that received enough water to sprout became food for hungry cows.

"There wasn't enough hay to go around this year, so we had cows that would settle for anything," said Jacob Reynolds, a rancher near Vernon.

Andy Brumley told the Wichita Falls Times Record News his cows wasted no time dining on the coarse bundles of weeds.

"My cows would eat a tumbleweed in a heartbeat," said Brumley, a Wilbarger County stockman. "If any blow across the fence now they'll probably eat them."

Dry spots like Stonewall County are not unusual, according to those who study weather patterns.

Larry Vannozi, chief meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Amarillo, said Texas is a state where forecasters may be right, even if they always seems to be wrong.

"Because Texas is such a large state, you often have divergent conditions even in regions that are often spoken of as if they're one place," Vannozi said. "It's possible to say, there was significant rainfall in the Panhandle, but yet have people in the Panhandle who haven't seen a drop. The Panhandle stretches over hundreds of miles."

So, when will Wilbarger and Stonewall Counties receive rain? Not soon, meteorologists say.

"We've had an extraordinarily dry winter in some parts and that is expected to continue through the spring," Vannozi said. "It could be another tough year for the farmers and ranchers."

That news didn't surprise Germont.

"At this rate, we may have to be careful about how much we plant and not overcommit," he mused. "I guess there's always next year."

ments for steel casing of gas lines. The representatives claimed a new plastic-like piping is actually better than the steel casings and considerably less expensive. Simons said the matter will be put on the next agenda for discussion.

In other business, the commissioners:

- Appointed Commissioner Troy Don Moore to serve as county judge pro tem;
- Re-appointed Commissioner Johnny Latham to the county Juvenile Board;
- Approved requests to cross county roads in Precincts 3 and 4;
- Approved a resolution supporting the State of Texas Anniversary Remembrance (STAR) Day;
- Approved advertising for bids for chemicals, fuel, and public officials/law enforcement and general insurance coverage.

Lack of moral conviction evident in response from reader's in-laws

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When I married "Glenn" eight years ago, I knew his parents were divorced, but I didn't realize they both had been married and divorced four times.

Last year, Glenn and I were having a difficult period in our relationship. I decided to talk to his parents about it, hoping they could provide some help and insight. Instead, I was shocked by their attitude.

When I told my mother-in-law that Glenn, age 36, had declared bankruptcy for the second time, she said the banks were at fault for giving him money and charging such high interest rates. When I told her he has a gambling problem, she said there was nothing wrong with gambling, that a lot of people make a living playing poker, and that somebody has to win and it could be him. When I explained that he always spends more than he makes, she said, "So what? A lot of people have that problem."

My father-in-law compared Glenn's gambling addiction to investing money in the stock market, saying, "Glenn just takes different risks." Both in-laws told me there are plenty of women who would be willing to overlook his addiction. They also let me know they will be leaving him their entire estate (over a half-million dollars) when they die, so we won't have to worry about money. Frankly, at the rate Glenn gambles, a half-million dollars wouldn't last very long.

I was appalled at my in-laws' lack of any moral conviction. They never spoke about honesty, personal integrity or the danger of a gambling addiction. I came from a foreign country and was raised by parents who believed it was important to behave honorably and that the family name should never be tarnished. How do I handle this?
— Arlington, Va.

Dear Arlington: It is apparent that Glenn was not raised the way you were. You say you were having a difficult time with your relationship last year. It sounds as if you were willing to sweep a lot under the rug in order to stay with Glenn. You don't say whether or not you have children. That would be important for me to know in order to give you some solid advice.

You need to have some sessions with a marriage counselor. It sounds as if your relationship is on shaky ground. I urge you to ask Glenn to go with you. The man was raised by parents who made excuses for all his failures and weaknesses. He is in desperate need of some self-understanding. A competent marriage counselor could be a godsend to you both.

Dear Ann Landers: I thought you might enjoy these tidbits of cowboy wisdom that I picked up from the Internet.
— Dave from Cumberland, Md.

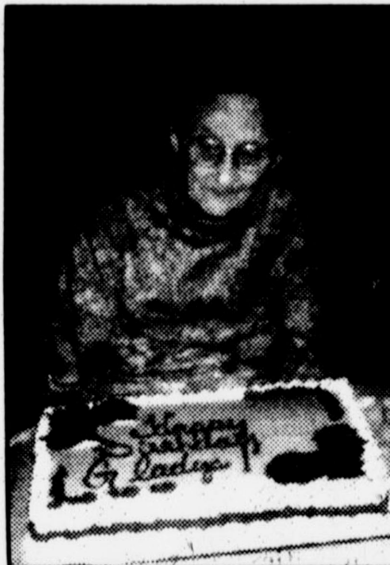

Dear Dave: Those "tidbits" are solid hunks of wisdom for the population at large, not only cowboys. I'm pleased to pass them on. Here they are:

1. Don't squat with your spurs on.
2. Don't interfere with something that ain't bothering you none.
3. Timing has a lot to do with the outcome of a rain dance.
4. The easiest way to eat crow is while it's still warm. The colder it gets, the harder it is to swallow.
5. The biggest troublemaker you'll probably ever have to deal with watches you shave his face in the mirror every morning.
6. A woman marries a man thinking she can change him, but she can't. A man marries a woman thinking she will never change, but she does.
7. Never ask a barber if you need a haircut.
8. Never miss a good chance to shut up.

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment is the secret!

OCALA, FL. -- An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred racehorse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

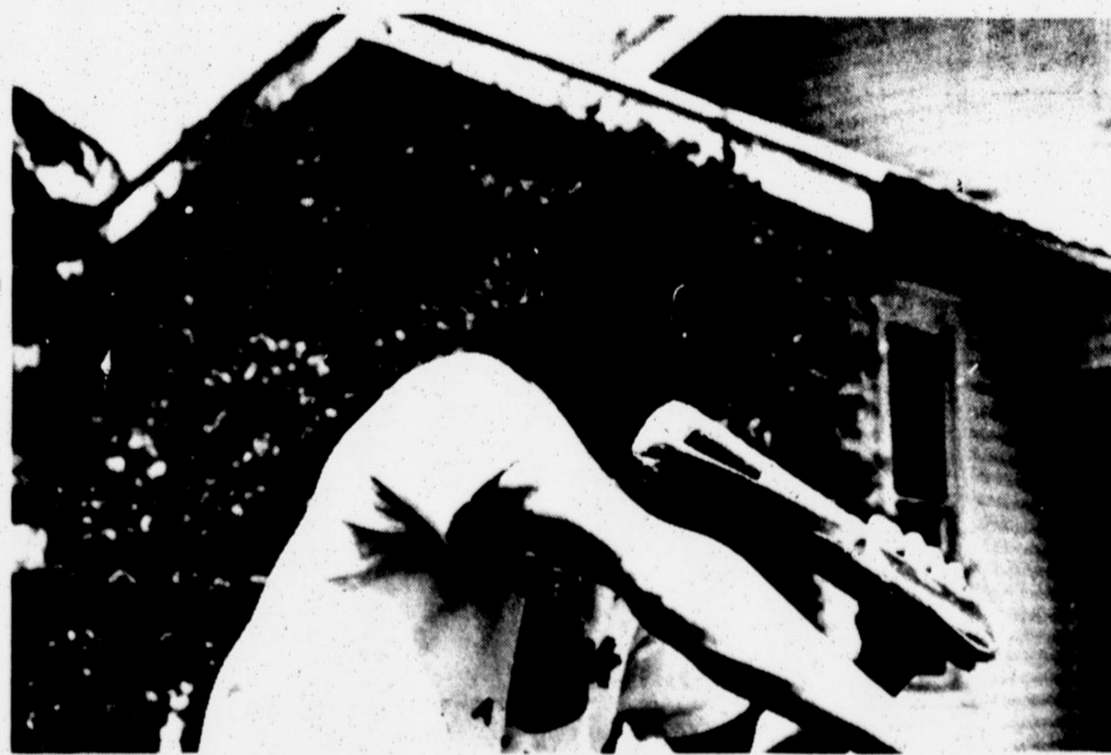

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more. Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears.

ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some feed stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. © 1997 PGC

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I work at a homeless shelter in Arkansas called Mission Outreach of Paragould. Recently, a gentleman brought us quite a large bag of sample-size and hotel-size bottles of shampoo, cream rinse and mouthwash, as well as some toothbrushes, toothpaste and other small products. When he presented the items to us, he also gave us a copy of a letter that ran in your column, where a reader and you had suggested such a gesture.

May I tell you that you are perfectly correct in assuming that homeless people, many of whom come to us with just the clothes on their backs, appreciate the smallest of things. For them to have their own personal products is a real boost to their otherwise beaten egos.

Sometimes it is just these types of things that are the catalysts that encourage someone to apply for a job or seek outside help, all in an effort to better himself or herself.

Thank you for your suggestion, and I encourage anyone else who may have these types of items to please donate them to a local shelter. It may seem meaningless to some to give something that came free of charge, but to us, it means a lot. Our funds usually are earmarked for food, heat and clothing and very little can be put aside for personal items. Thank you again. — Fran Adams, Paragould, Ark.

Don't thank me, I'm just the "bulletin board." I thank you and all the people who work and volunteer for reminding us that a small gesture can mean a lot to someone else.

Note: Please try to call the shelter first to check with them about the things they need and the best time to take them. — Heloise

FABRIC-SOFTENER SHEETS

Dear Heloise: To keep things fresh in my linen closet, I have always tucked a few dryer sheets among my sheets and towels. This morning that really saved me because I discovered I was out of fabric softener to do my laundry. I borrowed the sheets out of the linen closet and I replaced them with new ones after I shopped. — Mrs. Pat St. Onge, Omaha, Neb.

TAPED MEMORIES

Dear Heloise: While running a 25-year-old tape of a retirement party, it occurred to me to ask you to print the following hint.

When someone circulates through the party with a recorder, they have guests offer their wishes and congratulations to the person for whom the retirement party is being held. That's fine, except one doesn't know who said all those things. Everyone should be introduced, or the speakers should say their first and last names before speaking. The tape I played would have been so much nicer if everyone had been identified — especially the ones who have since died. — Dorothy Peterson, Anaheim, Calif.

Colorful pegboard pigs will soon be seen in the yards of homes throughout Hereford if the homeowners have not purchased "pig insurance" from the youth of First United Methodist Church. The scheme is designed to raise money for the annual ski trip. Pig insurance is $10 per yard and can be purchased through Sunday. After that date, $5 per pig will place a pig (or pigs) in someone's yard and the recipient must make a donation to have the pig removed. Along with the pig will be a note identifying the sender. For insurance or pig placement or more information, call 364-0770.

Alpha Chapter lists charitable contributions

Alpha Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met on Jan. 5 for its regular monthly meeting. President Phyllis Neill presided at the meeting with 12 members present.

In the business meeting, the group heard from International about the charitable organizations the sorority endorses. It was voted on by all members to make charitable contributions to local needs in Hereford.

Contributions were made in December by the Alpha Alpha Chapter to The Christmas Stocking Fund and the Women and Children's Crisis Center.

Karren Ruland and Alene Tindall were hostesses for the evening and served sandwiches, chips and dips and Reeces chocolate cheese cake.

The next meeting will be Jan. 19 in the home of Kaye Stevens in Dimmitt.

Hereford wrestlers capture first dual victory

From staff reports

LUBBOCK — Hereford High School got its first-ever dual win in nondistrict wrestling action Saturday, taking a 45-34 decision from Lubbock Estacado.

The Whitefaces got the win after losing an earlier dual Saturday to Lubbock High, 40-25.

The Whitefaces had been scheduled to wrestle in a tournament Friday and Saturday in Liberal, Kans., but elected to withdraw from the tournament to wrestle the two dual matches.

It turned out to be a good decision by Hereford coach Mike Dominguez.

"It's very good to get that win under our belts," he said. "It's kind of a sigh of relief for the kids."

Myself, I knew it was just a matter of time before we won. The kids are working hard."

The historic dual win for the Whitefaces holds more significance than just being a confidence booster for the inaugural year of the Hereford program.

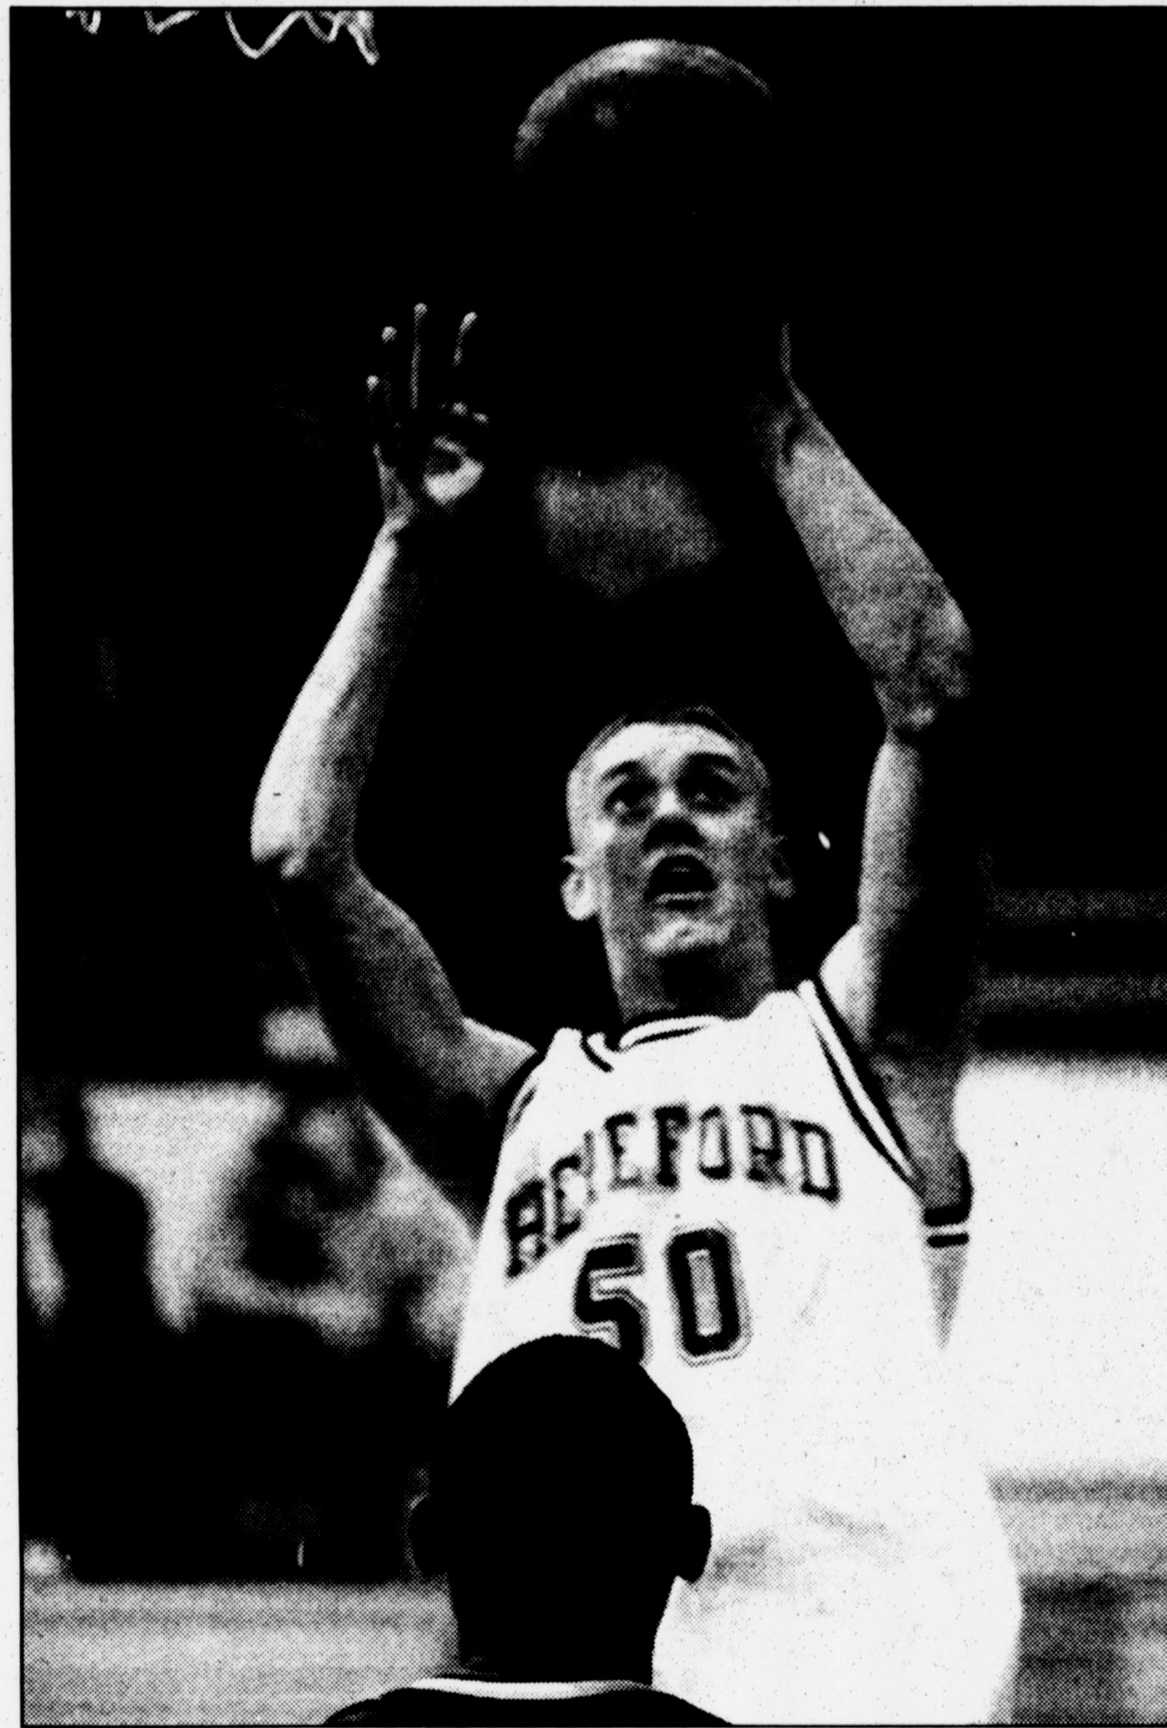

"We're trying to teach the kids about discipline and life," Dominguez said, "but we want to have rewards. The reward is being successful and winning. . . We know wins are out there and we're working hard to accumulate them."

"The historical part is those kids will remember that. It was a perfect moment, a perfect day for us. Those kids were excited. Coach (Britt) Narrell and I were excited."

'02 Games may be in jeopardy

IOC official says Games may be moved or cancelled

By Stephen Wilson
AP Sports Writer

LONDON — The IOC official who blew the whistle on Olympic corruption said Monday the 2002 Winter Games could be in jeopardy because of the Salt Lake City bribery scandal.

Marc Hodler, the IOC's senior member, said it was possible the games could be moved elsewhere or canceled if Salt Lake can't raise enough money because of eroding public and corporate support.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press, Hodler also said two Salt Lake officials who resigned last week apparently tried to cover up cash payments made to IOC members during the bid, although he again described the Utah city as a victim of a corrupt system.

The 80-year-old Swiss, a member of the International Olympic committee executive board and head of the IOC's oversight panel for the 2002 Games, spoke a month after alleging that Salt Lake's efforts to secure the 2002 Games amounted to bribery and cited widespread corruption in other campaigns for host cities, touching off the biggest scandal in Olympic history.

Another IOC official, vice president Anita DeFrantz of the United States, said she expected as many as 12 committee members to be ousted in the investigation.

She also said the games would stay in Salt Lake City because there was not enough time to find another site.

Hodler raised doubts about the ability of Salt Lake organizers to raise the remaining $350 million needed to meet their $1.45 billion budget if the scandal makes sponsors jittery.

"With the reaction in Utah and Salt Lake City, it's going to be difficult to find those $350 million," he said. "This is my main concern."

IOC leaders have said Salt Lake City won't be stripped of the games, and Hodler acknowledged it would be difficult to move to another venue only three years out.

But he said, "Theoretically, yes (it's possible)."

Hodler noted there was a precedent. Denver relinquished the 1976 Winter Olympics after Colorado residents voted in 1972 against financing the event. The games were moved to Innsbruck, Austria.

Hodler said Lillehammer, Norway, site of the 1994 Winter Games, would be an alternative this time, along with 1998 host city Nagano, Japan.

Calgary, which staged the 1988 Winter Games, has offered to step in if Salt Lake could not serve as host, "but they don't have a downhill course any more," Hodler said.

But Hodler said the worst scenario would be the cancellation of the 2002 Games.

"The athletes have a right, particularly this generation, to have Winter Games in 2002," he said. "The worst consequence would be the games cannot take place in 2002. We need to keep them in Salt Lake City or have them somewhere else."

Schottenheimer's resignation came after a 7-9 season, his first losing campaign since he became an NFL coach in 1984. Considered a Super Bowl contender when the season started, Kansas City was beset by injuries and also became the NFL's most penalized team.

"After 10 years it's time to give someone else an opportunity to implement their plan," said Schottenheimer, 101-58-1 with the Chiefs. "I've decided to take a break, to take some time and relax."

There was no immediate word on Schottenheimer's successor.

The Eagles hired Reid, the Packers' quarterbacks coach, to replace Rhodes, and signed him to a reported $5 million, five-year deal. Both Rhodes and Reid coached with Holmgren and are close friends.

"Today the turnaround begins," Eagles owner Jeffrey Lurie said two weeks after he fired Rhodes following Philadelphia's 3-13 record — the Eagles' worst since 1972.

"This is the first step in putting the Philadelphia Eagles back on the map," the Reid said.

The 40-year-Reid, who worked under Holmgren for seven years at Green Bay, became the second-youngest head coach in the NFL after Oakland's Jon Gruden, 35.

Rhodes worked with Holmgren in San Francisco, then moved to Green Bay as UTPA guard nation's top scorer, but looks to improve

By David Hinojosa

The (McAllen) Monitor

EDINBURG — A new and improved Brian Merriweather?

It could happen the next time the University of Texas-Pan American takes the court on Thursday at home against Southwestern Louisiana.

While it may be difficult to imagine seeing improvement from a player who is the nation's leading scorer, UTPA head coach Delray Brooks believes that the Broncos' 6-foot-3 sophomore guard can get better offensively.

Considering that he leads all NCAA Division I scorers with a 26.3 average, that has to be an unsettling thought for future Bronc opponents this year.

"We're going to continue to work with him," Brooks said. "He needs to get more aggressive. He's the name on everybody's board before the game. He's got to play more aggressive, take the contact and score whether the officials call the foul or not."

Becoming a more complete player is a priority for Merriweather.

"I'm trying to develop my game in the post where I can get the easy fouls and try to get in the bonus early so we can get the easy points," he said.

For the most part, Merriweather's production comes from the perimeter. In the Broncos 76-69 victory over Arkansas-Little Rock, the transfer from Cumberland College in Kentucky canned 7-of-14 from the 3-point arc to break the team's season-record for most treys with 78. Greg Guy held the previous mark when he made 77 in 1993-94.

Only 16 games into his UTPA career, Merriweather is already third on the school's all-time list for most 3-pointers. Teammate Lalo Rios holds the record with 190. Merriweather needs 20 more to reach second-place Gabe Valdez. Guy is second with 144.

Merriweather is making 43.8 percent from the 3-point line on 78-of-178 shooting. Overall, he hits for 41.9

"We're going to continue to work with him. He needs to get more aggressive. He's the name on everybody's board before the game. He's got to play more aggressive, take the contact and score whether the officials call the foul or not."

— Delray Brooks, UTPA coach

percent from the field on 153-of-365 shooting.

However, Merriweather has shot only 40 times from the free-throw line. Considering that he has missed just four those, increasing Merriweather's aggressiveness can work to the Broncos favor.

"We just need him to be a more complete scorer take it to the basket and get to the free-throw line," Brooks said.

It isn't difficult for opponents to pinpoint exactly from where UTPA's scoring output comes. Merriweather accounts for more than one-third of the 73.3 points the Broncos are averaging this season. Take away Merriweather's 3-point numbers and UTPA is hitting for 27.2 percent on 61-of-224 shooting from outside the 3-point arc.

As a result, Merriweather has encountered some intense, physical defense. Brooks said Merriweather has dealt with it well.

"He has, but it hasn't stopped him from scoring points," Brooks said. "It's maybe affected his (shooting) percentage a little bit, but it hasn't stopped him from scoring points."

Since the Broncos roster has been whittled down to six players because of four academic casualties, resting Merriweather hasn't been much of an option. At the suggestion of assistant coach Jason Patterson, Brooks opted to rest Merriweather on Monday in order to have him fresh down the stretch.

It worked. After being held to 11 first-half points and one 3-pointer, Merriweather closed the game by scoring 20 points and hitting six 3-pointers in the final 11:32.

"I had to relax and try to find my niche on the floor," Merriweather said. "Maybe start out closer to the basket and work my way out from there."

When it comes to rest, it is only in relative terms since there are currently only six players on the roster. A "fresh" Merriweather played 35 minutes on Monday. He's averaging 36.9 minutes a game.

"When we rested him at SMU, he came in a played really well," Brooks strength in its upper weights, winning three of five matches from 171 pounds through heavy-weight.

Senior 215-pounder Bobby Barba ran his record against Texas opponents to 13-2 with a pair of wins Saturday, including a pin of Jose Carrillo of Estacado. Barba decided David House of Lubbock High 11-3 earlier Saturday.

"He is wrestling a lot better, his technique is really coming along," Dominguez said. "He looks a lot better and is truly developing into a wrestler, not just a brawler."

Hereford's Kris Hammerbeck won both his matches at heavy-weight, pinning Peter Matt of Lubbock High in 56 seconds and then winning by forfeit in the dual against Estacado.

But in the dual with the Matadors, the Whitefaces also got help lower down, weights where Hereford has struggled.

"We did have some wins, against Lubbock High we had wins at the lower weights," Dominguez said. "The kids are having more confidence in themselves and it is becoming a more balanced team."

Albert Chavarria and Javier Alonzo both won — Chavarria by forfeit at 130 pounds and Alonzo by fall at 135 pounds, sticking Estacado's Albert Castro in 3:54. Also a winner was Hereford's

J.P. Gutierrez at 140 pounds. Gutierrez won by fall over Mike Rios at the 1:45 mark.

The Whitefaces also did well in the middle weights against Estacado. William Shows pinned Jason Torres in the 160-pound match 1:22 to even his season record at 2-2.

"Shows) is coming along," Dominguez said. "This weekend, he had two really tough kids and pinned one of them. When he's on, he's wrestling really well."

Shows' success is another pleasant surprise for the Whitefaces. Like Barba, Shows is another Hereford wrestler who had very minimal experience on the mat before joining the team.

"It goes back to his workout partners," Dominguez added. "Those guys are really working well together and they're really working hard in the room."

Hereford did suffer a setback at 171 pounds, though. The Whitefaces' Seth Pietssek dropped his match to Estacado's Justen Hiblo 14-5 and was pinned by Lubbock High's Charley Watson in 1:35.

Pietssek lost the early match to Watson after breaking a bone in his right hand and then wrestled in the dual against Estacado. Pietssek is now 8-5 against Texas individuals on the season.

Senior Cory Marsh made his wrestling debut in the Lubbock High dual. Marsh wrestled at 189 pounds and was pinned by the Westerners' Henry Garza in 1:00.

HJHS frosh split games

From staff reports

The Hereford Junior High School freshman basketball team split a pair of games last week, beating Canyon 44-36 and losing to Valley View, 57-42.

In the Canyon game Thursday, Hereford got out to a 18-2 lead after the first quarter. The Whitefaces struggled in the second quarter, getting outscored by the Eagles 10-3 to go in at halftime up 21-12.

Canyon closed the gap in the third quarter, scoring 13 points and holding Hereford to just seven. Hereford took a 28-25 margin into the final quarter.

The Whitefaces then pulled away from Canyon in the fourth quarter.

In the Valley View game Saturday, Hereford took a 15-14 lead into the second quarter, but went in at halftime down 28-23. Valley View then outscored the Whitefaces 29-19 in the final two quarters for the win.

Salt Lake Games said there would be no need to change the site.

"Seventy-two percent of our budget is made," said John Krnasky, deputy general secretary of the U.S. Olympic Committee and head of the joint marketing program with Salt Lake.

Krnasky said he had extended the deadline for raising the remaining money by one year, to August 2000, but had not encountered widespread concerns from sponsors or potential sponsors.

"I don't know on what basis he Hodler made that statement," Krnasky said.

IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch has said his panel would not take the games away from Salt Lake, and DeFrantz said Monday that there is not enough time to make a change. She also said the city would have won even without the "apparently compromised votes."

Michael Payne, the IOC's top marketing official, met with officials of Hill & Knowlton Inc. in New York, and was scheduled to discuss the case with week with sponsors such as Coca-Cola, Xerox and Visa.

Hodler said he was sorry that

Salt Lake Organizing Committee president Frank Joklik and vice president Dave Johnson resigned last Friday amid the scandal.

"I believe both are excellent persons," Hodler said. "Their departure) is a loss. I consider them as absolute gentlemen and very trustworthy."

But he criticized them for withholding information about cash payments to IOC members. Officials confirmed last week that payments of up to $70,000 had been made.

"I was very disappointed," Hodler said. "I had asked Salt Lake City to come completely clean and say everything that happened. I asked them, 'Did you pay any cash?' They said, 'No, only scholarships.'"

Yet, Hodler reiterated his assertion that Salt Lake was not to blame.

Hodler has alleged that several middlemen approached bidding cities demanding up to $1 million to secure blocks of IOC votes, then charge the winning city up to $5 million.

Hodler said certain IOC members "grab any chance to make a little money." He said identifying the culprits was up to the IOC panel that is scheduled to report its findings in the Salt Lake scandal on Jan. 14.

But Rhodes ran into front-office problems, working under four different general managers. Even Lurie took some of the blame for the Eagles' poor showing, saying he should have paid more attention to the front-office situation.

Hunt said he reluctantly accepted Schottenheimer's resignation, adding it marked the end of "golden era" for the Chiefs. The owner said he twice asked Schottenheimer to reconsider, and the decision became final only this morning.

"I've never been retired before," Schottenheimer said. "At this juncture, I really don't know. I'm going to work on my golf game. Pat and I are going to travel. I may even get back into my aviation pursuits."

Rhodes' appointment solved a major problem for the NFL — he was one of just three black coaches in the league and most of the prospects for coaching jobs are white.

When all the hiring is done, nine of 31 teams will have new coaches.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Will Smith captures top honor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He was a music star who became a TV star who became a movie star. Now he's a music star again.

Will Smith's return to hip hop, "Big Willie Style," earned him three American Music Award trophies Monday night, to go along with his two 1998 MTV awards and a Grammy nomination.

"I'm just glad people are accepting me again making the music," said Smith, who won favorite pop/rock album as well as favorite male artist and best album in soul/rhythm and blues category.

The former star of TV's "Fresh Prince of Bel-Air" has a soaring film career as well. He recently finished shooting the big-screen version of "The Wild Wild West," this summer's Fourth of July release, and currently appears in the hit "Enemy of the State."

The movie business made its presence clear with two other winners at the 26th American Music Awards, selected by a national sample of about 20,000 music listeners.

Canadian chanteuse Celine Dion, who sang the ubiquitous love ballad from "Titanic," won awards for favorite adult contemporary artist and for female pop/rock artist, and composer James Horner won for the "Titanic" soundtrack.

to spend it — and for businesses that see their finances boosted by the influx of people accompanying the 140-day session that opens today. "Our occupancy at the hotels in Austin definitely sees a rise during the legislative years," and other businesses benefit, too, said Gwen Spain of the Austin Convention and Visitors Bureau. "It's just a very nice busy kind of added buzz time of year when the Legislature convenes." Joni Witt, director of sales and marketing for the historic Driskill, said the downtown hotel sees a dramatic jump in occupancy during the legislative session. About a 20 percent increase is expected. "There are several dates in January, February and March that are already sold out ... The hotel itself, since opening in 1886, has taken part in the creation of many Texas traditions," she said. "LBJ and Lady Bird had their first date here." Art Aubry, owner of Shooting Star Photography, is looking forward to the Legislature's return and to next week's inaugural celebration. "I was so thankful when the governor got inaugurated last time, I almost renamed the place George W. Bush Photography. I sold every roll of film in the house," he said.

Donna Taylor, owner of Little City Espresso Bar and Cafe, said her shop typically gets a lot busier as lawmakers return — and she began noticing a difference as the Legislature leaned more to the GOP in the last legislative session. Republicans have narrowed the gap in the Democratic-majority house, and they have a Senate majority. "They don't tip as well, and they don't spend as much money," she said. Those conservative Republicans and other lawmakers are getting a price break from Austin, with free parking at city meters and free passes to city parks, including golf courses.
