Slush fund flap upsets HRMC plan

Hereford Regional Medical Center administrator John Studsrud had hoped this weekend's retreat would be a chance to involve the community in planning the hospital's future.

However, Studsrud became the main issue at the retreat Friday when his use of hospital money came under fire.

Alan Rhodes, legal counsel for the Deaf Smith County Hospital District's board of directors, said Friday night the board received information Thursday night that Studsrud had borrowed money from a special employee assistance fund and additionally used hospital money to pay for his travel expenses, including air fare, between Hereford and his home in North Dakota without the board's knowledge or authorization.

Studsrud was named HRMC administrator last fall to replace Jim Robinson, who resigned last February after a conflict with the hospital's medical staff.

The information was presented by Studsrud as part of the administrator's report during a special meeting Thursday night. Although the board received the report, it could take no action on the matter.

Rhodes said he had been contacted Jan. 4 by an employee of the hospital regarding concerns that Studsrud had established a personal loan for himself and used hospital money for his travel expenses, including air fare, between Amarillo and North Dakota. The attorney said the amount involved is about $14,000.

In a Friday night review of his investigation into the matter, Rhodes told members of the HRMC medical staff and various community members participating in the weekend retreat that even though poor judgment had been exercised by Studsrud in borrowing the money, there was also substantial evidence suggesting Studsrud had clear intent to reimburse the hospital.

"In some of these instances, I think there was a misunderstanding on John's part about how the hospital would reimburse his moving expenses," Rhodes said. "But the board wanted to be up front in presenting these concerns to the medical staff and the community."

"These questions arise and are made even more sensitive because of our history," Rhodes

When John Lennon and Paul McCartney penned the lyrics to the final song on the Beatles' album "Abbey Road," they didn't have Raul Guerrero in mind. But they could have because when anyone who meets Guerrero cannot help but share in his love of music and life.

And, he does share with others -- from couples at weddings, to parishioners at church events, to inmates at the Deaf Smith County Jail -- and he says with a smile that he receives as much, if not more, than he gives.

Guerrero is not a full-time musician, as a partner with Frank Murillo in F&I Remodeling, he doesn't have the time to devote his life to music. After all, he and Murillo just finished a roofing and interior remodeling job in Dimmitt, a hard job that

HEDC board plans to move deliberately on new director

By Don Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Members of the Hereford Economic Development Corp. board plan to take their time in finding a replacement for Mike Hatley.

HEDC President Dr. Cliff Skiles said the board doesn't feel under pressure to name a new executive director.

"We're not in an emergency. We won't fill the position until we find the person we think is the most qualified," Skiles said.

The HEDC executive director's position will become vacant Jan. 31 when Hatley leaves for a similar position with the Sweetwater economic development agency.

Skiles said the board has begun advertising the position in some trade journals, although he said there will be some lead time before the ads begin to reap results.

"We have received some resumes and talked to some qualified people," Skiles said. "But it's really too early to tell" what the response to the trade journal advertisements will be.

Skiles said the board has lost a little time because of the Christmas and New Year's holidays, which saw little activity by job-seekers.

He said Hatley "was good enough to give us some time to be looking."

Hatley has been with HEDC since it was organized in September 1994, serving first as interim executive director. He took over the position on a permanent basis in January 1995.

Before assuming the HEDC position, Hatley served as Hereford assistant city manager, joining the city in 1992 after a two-year stint with Frito-Lay Inc. As assistant city manager, he was responsible for accounting procedures and economic development.

A 1978 graduate of Texas Tech University who later would earn a master's degree in agricultural economics from the Lubbock institution, Hatley worked for Diesel Injection Service of Lubbock and Diamond Plastics Corp. for most of the 1980s. In 1989, he taught courses at Tech.

At Hereford, he coordinated the community effort to bring a Texas Department of Corrections facility to Deaf Smith County.

Toll-free calling to Amarillo, Canyon on track

By Don Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Toll-free calling between the Hereford and Amarillo/Canyon telephone exchanges will happen -- really.

Although the Texas Public Utilities Commission last fall confirmed the approval of extended local calling between Hereford and Amarillo/Canyon, the toll-free calling has been a long time coming.

However, Garnet Elkins, an ELC assistant with the utility commission, said Tuesday the "implementation date" is Feb. 16.

More than 70 percent of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. customers in the Hereford exchange approved the ELC proposal during last fall's election, the second conducted during 1998.

More than 79 percent of the ballots supported linking with the Amarillo exchange; the vote for tying in with Canyon was favored by 75.5 percent of the Hereford exchange customers.

When it goes into effect, SW Bell's customers in Hereford will see a new line-item charge on their monthly telephone bills. The company will charge up to $3.50 for residential customers and up to $7 for commercial customers for extended calling.

The ELC election which gained the SW Bell customer's approval was the second in 1998. The PUC voided the ballots sent out by the telephone company in April after it was

Medeles in custody

A 27-year-old Hereford man, who was serving a 99-year prison sentence, is once more in the custody of Deaf Smith County jail.

Rene Medeles was convicted in the Aug. 16, 1997 aggravated assault with a deadly weapon of Rene Perez.

Assistant District Attorney Jim English said Medeles, who was out on bond, appeared for the first day of jury selection, but failed to return the following day. Warrants charging Medeles with surrender of surety, failure to appear, and jumping bail were then issued.

The trial continued in Medeles' absence with the jury finding him guilty and sentencing him to 99 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Medeles was arrested Thursday in the county and was made to appear before 222nd District Court Judge Wes Guley for sentencing on the original charge.

English said he had heard rumors Medeles had returned to celebrate his birthday, Jan. 13, with family members, but authorities are unsure about Medeles' whereabouts has been since his escape.

The other charges will have to be cleared before Medeles enters prison.

said, referring to similar incidents which led to the resignation of a former hospital administrator, Ron Rives, in 1994.

Rhodes said that the special fund was established during the tenure of Robinson. The hospital board and most members of the medical staff were unaware of its existence.

Three hospital employees apparently had oversight of the fund, which was generated by non-tax revenue.

According to Rhodes, 16 loans had been made out of the slush fund; four still show unpaid balances.

The HRMC board will meet at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the hospital board room. The directors are scheduled to take up Studsrud's contract, as well as terminate the employee loan fund. The directors also will meet with representatives of the Hereford accounting firm McGinty &

Associates about internal control mechanisms.

In two separate sessions held in conjunction with the retreat, Rhodes described the apparent misappropriation of funds and sought recommendations from both the medical staff and community leaders about how he should advise the hospital board to proceed with the matter.

Seven members of the HRMC medical staff, including Drs. Gerald Payne, Duffy McBryer, Nadir Khuri, Jesse Perales, Stephen Lawlis, Bruce Clarke and Howard Johnson attended the first session and announced collective support of Studsrud.

The doctors were also unanimous in their assessment of Studsrud's ability to perform all the duties assigned to him as hospital administrator.

"I support John 100 percent," Dr. Howard Johnson said. "I don't see anything that has been done wrong here. Nothing has been done illegally, or undercover. As far as I'm concerned, I think we're ready to go forward."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wrapping up their opening arguments, House prosecutors today launched a blistering attack on what they called President Clinton's "so-what" defense. They told senators he should be removed from office because he "abused the trust placed upon him by the American people."

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott asked Democrats to meet to discuss the possibility of calling witnesses later in the trial, but he got a cool response from Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daschle.

Lott suggested in a letter to Daschle that "a bipartisan group of senators could anticipate and help resolve in advance any complications" brought about by witness testimony. "We should consider safeguards now so that testimony could begin as soon as fairness allowed."

But Daschle said such a move would violate the Senate's previous agreement, which calls for the witness question to be settled later in the process. "I agree that the prospect of witness testimony poses a number of troubling considerations that we would be forced to confront," Daschle wrote. "It is my hope that such arrangements will ultimately prove unnecessary."

Security tight for horse-shooting suspect

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies roped off a block around the 19th century courthouse to help protect the first of three suspects appearing for arraignment in the slaughter of 34 wild horses.

"We have an obvious concern for the safety of the defendant," Sheriff Pat Whitten said Friday. "It is an emotional trial."

Anthony Merlino, 20, of Reno, didn't enter a plea, but his lawyer said the young construction worker maintains he is innocent. Merlino and two U.S. Marines are accused of shooting the horses with high-powered rifles. The three attended high school together in Reno.

One of the Marines, Lance Cpl. Darien Brock, 20, said he saw his two friends shoot one horse but doesn't know anything about the other animals killed in a canyon just east of Reno.

"I watched my two friends kill this horse without doing anything about it. Yes, that is wrong. That is what I'm going to court for. But we did not kill 34 horses that night," Brock said in a jailhouse interview Thursday with KGTV in San Diego.

would not have left much time for club or stage performances. But hard work is no stranger to Guerrero, the son of migrant farm workers.

He was born in La Feria, a small town in the Rio Grande Valley of South Texas. One of eight children -- five boys, three girls -- Guerrero said the family followed the harvests, from South Texas through the Panhandle, Kansas, Idaho, the Dakotas and California.

"We used to travel a whole lot, back when I was a teenager," he said. "I got to see a whole lot of the United States. I probably wouldn't have seen as many states (otherwise). We arrived in Hereford in 1959, but we didn't spend the winters here. Dad followed the harvests to wherever it was warm weather. During the winter, we would be in South Texas or California.

"My daddy bought me a little guitar when I was eight. I only knew three chords, but I thought I knew everything. My daddy would always ask me to sing for him," Guerrero said.

"I sing at church, doing weddings, special celebrations of the church and around the Diocese of Amarillo," he said. "Last Sunday, at Amarillo, I was master of ceremonies for the (diocese's) 'Immigrants of All Nations,' for the new citizens. And, every other week, I sing at the jail."

"It's my ministry, along with my buddy, Bacilio Rodriguez. We have had that ministry for about 15 years. We sing with the prisoners."

Guerrero smiled and idly fingered chords on his guitar. "They (the jail inmates) love to sing. They all join in. That's one area I really enjoy. They really get into it and love to sing. It's very fulfilling. We're supposed to give them something, but we get just as much from them."

In addition to his work and singing, Guerrero enjoys his family. He and Nora, his wife of 27 years, have three children -- two sons in Hereford, a daughter in Dumas -- and five grandchildren.

Meanwhile, he and his partner and co-workers in F&I Remodeling find that singing helps them toward the end of the day, when they're tired from work.

"At the end of the day, we sure do a lot of singing. They (customers) enjoy us being up there," he said.

"You know the good thing about singing is when you're down, it brings you up."

The chamber's banquet will feature the introduction of the Citizen of the Year, sponsored by the Hereford Lions Club, and the Woman of the Year, sponsored by the Women's Division. The banquet also will feature the introduction of new chamber officers and directors.

Tickets for the banquet are $15 per person and must be purchased in advance because seating is limited to 525.

Presidential talk overshadows Bush inaugural

AUSTIN (AP) — As happens often around the Capitol, Gov. George W. Bush got a little visit the other day from four state legislators. As often happens, they enjoyed lunch and conversation in the ornate Governor's Mansion.

But these lawmakers weren't from Dallas, Houston, El Paso or the Panhandle.

They were from New Jersey.

The New Jersey delegation included that state's Senate president, its Assembly speaker and the chairmen of the Assembly Appropriations and Senate Judiciary committees.

Over lunch — green salad, veal cabbage rolls, rice with peas and carrots, apple brown Betty and ice cream — they asked the Texas governor to attend a fund-raising event for New Jersey legislative candidates, said Karen Hughes, Bush's spokeswoman.

Bush's answer was pretty much the same as that he gives when asked about a presidential race: He'll get back to them discovered there was a discrepancy between the number of customers who were mailed ballots and the number of access lines.

The ballots were sent out after a petition was submitted to the PUC requesting an election to decide if Hereford could expand its local calling area to the Amarillo and Canyon exchanges.

Several days after the ballots were mailed, Linda Hymans, the commission's ELC coordinator, began receiving calls from Hereford subscribers who had not received a ballot.

Subscribers were asked to send Hymans a letter stating they had not received a ballot and how they would have voted.

Seventeen letters were received by the PUC; however, when the PUC staff checked those names with the master list supplied by the telephone company, the names were not on the list of subscribers.

The master list was verified with 7,592 access lines, but only 4,620 ballots were mailed. Multiple lines were eliminated, as were SW Bell test lines, leaving about 3,000 subscribers without ballots.

The PUC ordered the telephone company to file a written report explaining the discrepancies.

In its order, the PUC voided the ballots and ordered the telephone company to "resolve discrepancies between the number of customers who were mailed ballots and the number of access lines, including any information received from subscribers who did not receive ballots" and to provide a new master list "that accurately represents each subscriber in the Hereford exchange ... and provides a detailed explanation of what actions were taken to resolve the discrepancies."

The ELC was designed to enable communities, such as Hereford, with less than 10,000 telephone lines to petition the PUC for toll-free service with larger communities.

later. "They asked him to come this spring. He said he couldn't because he's focused on the Texas legislative session," Ms. Hughes reported. "At that point, they invited him to New Jersey later this summer or fall, and he said he'd consider that."

It's becoming a common scene. "They asked to come down and meet with the governor. He's always happy to meet with fellow elected officials," Ms. Hughes said. "It's not unusual for people — increasingly over the last year or two — to call the governor and say they'd like to get to know him a little better."

Is America becoming "ethically challenged"? Scandal after scandal has rocked, but not, it seems, shocked the nation. Former Education Secretary William J. Bennett says that is high time to restore the ancient and vital concept of honor in private and public life. Dr. Bennett addressed this topic at a national leadership seminar last year. His talk, in part, is reprinted below by permission from IMPRIMIS, the monthly journal of Hillsdale College.

"America is the greatest nation in the history of the world-- the richest, most powerful, most envied, most consequential. And yet America is the same nation that leads the industrialized world in rates of murder, violent crime, imprisonment, divorce, abortion, sexually transmitted diseases, single-parent households, teen suicide, cocaine consumption, and pornography production.

"America is a place of heroes, honor, achievement, and respect. But it is also a place where heroism is often confused with celebrity, honor with fame, true achievement with popularity, individual respect with political correctness... Despite our wonders and greatness, we are a nation that has experienced so much social regression, so much decadence, in so short a period of time, that we have become the kind of place to which civilized countries used to send missionaries...

"Whenever I make a comment these days criticizing Bill Clinton, someone inevitably asks, 'Aren't you casting stones?' It shows how far we have fallen that calling upon the President of the United States to account for charges of adultery, lying to the public, perjury, and obstruction of justice is regarded as akin to stoning... It is also an example of what sociologist Alan Wolfe refers to as America's new 11th commandment: 'Thou shalt not judge.'

"Of course, all of us are in favor of tolerance and forgiveness, but the moral pendulum has swung too far in the direction of relativism. If a nation of free people can no longer make pronouncements on fundamental matters of right and wrong -- for example that a married 50-year-old commander-in-chief ought not to have sexual relations with a young intern in his office and then lie about it -- it has lost its way. The problem is not with those who are withholding judgment until all the facts are in, but with the increasing number of people who want to avoid judgment altogether...

"Those who invoke the sentiment of 'Who are we to judge?' should consider the anarchy that would ensue if we adhered to this sentiment in, say, our courtrooms. What would happen if those sitting on a jury decided to be 'nonjudgmental' about rapists and sexual harassers, embezzlers and tax cheats? Justice would be lost. Without being 'judgmental', Americans would never have put an end to slavery, outlawed child labor, emancipated women, or ushered in the civil rights movement...

"Our most exalted leader, a man who once proudly boasted that he would head the most ethical administration in history, is now saying to the American people, in effect, 'My political enemies are to blame for all the scandals that surround me. I have nothing more to say. The rules don't apply to me. There are no consequences to my actions. My only responsibility is to do the people's business.' This is moral bankruptcy, and it is damaging our country, our standards, and our self respect. It is also jeopardizing the future of the next generation of American leaders.

"Honor never grows old, and honor gives the greatest joy because honor is, finally, about defending noble and worthy things that deserve to be defended, even at a high cost... And so honor has a future, if we can keep it. And we keep it only if we continue to esteem it, value those who display it, and refuse to laugh at it."

SEX! Parents' nightmare

Mauri Montgomery

PARENTAL DISCRETION ADVISED: In a world which leaves little to our imagination these days, this week's column depicts a conversation between two parents and a child about SEX. Parents everywhere may find it offensive if they don't first appreciate its humor.

Probably one of the of the most feared aspects of parenting for some of us comes when our children begin to realize their existence has little to do with immaculate conception.

I've known a few adults who still pretend that may have been the case in their instance, but the last time I checked, their divinity offered no more ability in treading water than for the rest of us.

No, we're pretty much all the same, figuratively speaking.

We enter this world as natural born observers. That's how we learn. But since most of us don't grow up in nudist colonies, the ages at which we finally realize; (a) that males and females are different, (b) there's a ulterior motive for those differences, and (c) those differences won't always appear to be stupid -- varies.

In the meantime, parents fret, worry and plan for the day anatomical discussions lead to the simple, yet nearly inescapable question -- why?

The age of the child asking the pointed question determines how much stuttering, shuffling or sudden hearing loss befalls the guardians of knowledge.

While every situation is different, the drama usually unfolds like this:

CHILD: "Why?"
ADULT: "Because."
CHILD: "Because why?"

(A stagnant pause enters stage left.....the parents stall for time and collect themselves.....then they exit stage right with a rousing choral distraction)

"Because, because, b-e-c-a-u-s-e -- because of the wonderful things he does. We're off to see the Wizard, the wonderful Wizard of Oz," they sing in harmony.

More often, our children already know the answers to the questions they are asking. They are just giving us a test to see how well we do.

Many years ago, my wife's response to my five-year-old daughter's query about female concerns was, I thought, quite creative.

"Mom, what's a period?"
"It's the dot at the end of a sentence."

She didn't even flinch and I knew she was hoping, praying her response had been enough.

"Mom, I already know what it is, so if you're not going to tell me, then forget it," my daughter said as she stormed out of the room.

So much for creativity. The day of reckoning recently arrived for two of our friends when their seven-year-old son ruined a perfectly fine afternoon by asking what sex was all about.

The boy cornered his mother first.

And she, with great love and seriousness, began to explain the human reproduction systems of both males and females -- the proper names, their functions and the processes by which new human beings were brought into the world.

Her son nodded from time to time just to let her know he was capable of absorbing more.

Finally she paused, mentally reviewed the reproductive check-list, wiped the sweat from her brow, and took

Have you heard about the four new bond issues?

The state of the presidency is another question

In a strained state of disunion, President Clinton, the impeachment defendant, is due before his House accusers and Senate jurors Tuesday night to tell them and the nation his proposals for the year ahead.

He can't make the request crucial to all the rest -- that he be acquitted by the Senate to complete the two years and a day until his term ends. The presumption is that he will be, for lack of the 67 votes it would take to convict and dismiss him.

Clinton said his instinct is that his State of the Union address should deal only with the people's business, because Americans have heard enough about impeachment over his deceptions in the Monica Lewinsky affair.

With rare exceptions, presidents have pronounced the state of the union to be sound and strong in these ceremonious, joint session addresses. Clinton can point to the economy, the surplus federal budget, declining crime rates and more to make that point.

The state of the presidency is another matter -- never before has a president on trial for his job gone before the House and Senate for the report the Constitution requires.

Andrew Johnson, the only other president ever impeached by the House, sent Congress two written messages in 1868, both after his Senate acquittal. Beset by Watergate, Richard M. Nixon said in his 1974 State of the Union address that he had no intention of resigning. Impeachment accusations were lodged against him later, and, facing conviction, he quit.

As schedules stand, Clinton's defense attorneys will be making his case in Senate trial by day on Tuesday, with the president to present his 1999 agenda hours later to Congress and the leaders of government in the House chamber, where his impeachment was voted one month before.

And on Wednesday, when Clinton plans to go to Buffalo, N.Y., and suburban Philadelphia to talk about his State of the Union plans, the Senate will be reconvening his trial.

The day and night stress prompted suggestions, some from Democrats, that Clinton delay the address until after the Senate trial, or send Congress his proposals in writing, as presidents did until Woodrow Wilson's time.

With the duration of the trial uncertain, the White House wasn't interested in waiting, and Clinton certainly was not going to sacrifice the stage that belongs to every president at State of the Union time.

It served him well a year ago, a week after the Lewinsky scandal began, when he was still dishonestly denying the affair. He did not speak of it in his address to the Congress and the nation. It was Clinton performing in his element, claiming the initiative on policy.

That State of the Union address boosted his standing despite the gathering

The remote? It's a 'guy' sort of thing

It has to be a guy thing. There's no other explanation for the phenomenon. For some reason, males of all ages seem to have a remote control fetish. I've never met a girl with this obsession.

It apparently is not only a guy thing, but it also must be inherent, inborn or genetic, because males who have lived part of their lives without any type of remote will automatically claim any and all remotes that come with in reach.

My 9-year-old son is no exception.

Within the last year I finally acquired a modern TV, one with a remote control. In the past, we only had an old-fashioned set, which you had to get up and manually change the channel.

Joshua seldom ever changed the channel. He would rather watch 45 minutes of aquatic ballet rather than get up, walk five steps and change to his favorite football game.

The new TV wasn't completely out of the box before he claimed the remote control.

Dianna F. Dandridge

He wasn't interested in learning how to program it. He just wanted to push the buttons.

He's been pushing them ever since. Come Saturday morning -- the only day I ever get a chance to sleep late -- he'll be in the living room flipping channels.

Good grief, we only get three channels. How many times does he have to go through them to determine which cartoon to watch?

Apparently, if what my friends say of their husbands, brothers, fathers and sons is true, they all do it, too.

I guess I ought to be glad that Joshua is so supposedly "normal".

Now he's even happier.

This Christmas we added to the number of remotes. The family got a VCR -- with remote and I got a stereo -- with remote.

A friend-knew we were getting these items, so she gave us a universal remote.

Joshua now has four remote controls at his disposal. (Actually just three, because I haven't figured out the programming on the universal remote.)

He's almost got it down to an art form, this movement between television channels, stereo and recorded movie.

It's entertainment itself just watching him scramble to find the appropriate remote so he doesn't have to watch a single second of a commercial or hear one note of an unfavorable song.

For added amusement, just let one set of batteries run low and tell him we're out of "AA"s.

Then he has to figure out how to change the batteries from one remote to the other in the same amount of time allotted for channel/device surfing.

This kid may not know the location of last night's homework or the match to his gray boots, but he KNOWS where to find the remotes.

It's like he's got some kind of sonar that hones in on their exact location. He actually breaks down and starts to cry if one or the other can't be located. His sister and I know, because we've hidden one and watched as his little heart broke.

It's not enough for him to have access to remote controls already in existence, but now he's talking about someone needing to design a time saving remote that can run the bath or dish water at a pre-determined temperature. It would allow the user to watch five more minutes of a favorite program before having to participate in all the odious chores.

Personally, I think he needs to go back to the drawing board, but wait -- if he goes back to the drawing board he may come up with something more outlandish.

Maybe I'll just buy stock in a good "AA" battery company.

Sex

in a deep breath. She believed she had covered the topic pretty well.

"Okay," she said. "Are there any questions you want to ask mommy about what we've just talked about?"

"No mom, I understand it better now, thanks," he said.

A few minutes later the seven-year-old cornered his dad out in the garage.

"Dad, tell me more about a china," he said with budding confidence.

His dad looked up with puzzlement from his work at the tool bench.

"A what?"

"A china," the boy repeated.

"Well son, China is a country," he said.

The boy could tell his dad wasn't on the same page, and tried again.

"Dad, I've been talking with mom about sex and all that stuff and I wanted to know more about a china," the boy recounted.

And as fathers who are caught embarrassingly off guard are prone to do some times, he balked.

"It's just a big country son," he repeated, "with lots of communists."

The boy seemed to sense that the discussion would go no further and went on about his business.

And just when we thought we knew all there was to know about sex and the issues that arise because of it, we find there's something more -- that those darned communists want to keep the information for themselves, and they're willing to build a Great Wall around their country to secure it.

Senators to hit the talk show circuit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the impeachment trial won't be in session Sunday, the public can catch nearly one-fifth of those standing in judgment of the president talking about it on the TV talk show circuit.

While required to remain silent inside the chamber "on pain of imprisonment" during the trial, at least 18 of the 100 senators were lined up for Sunday TV appearances as of Friday.

NBC's "Meet the Press" has the most, six, followed by "Fox News Sunday" with four.

Among those making the rounds are Christopher Dodd, D-Conn.; Orrin Hatch, R-Utah; Jon Kyl, R-Ariz.; Byron Dorgan, D-N.D.; Phil Gramm, R-Texas; and Patrick Leahy, D-Vt.

At least the gabfest has an element of equal time to it: The 18 are equally divided between Republicans and Democrats.

Not among them is Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa.

At least the gabfest has an element of equal time to it: The 18 are equally divided between Republicans and Democrats.

"Now that I am serving as a juror with the impeachment trial under way," he announced publicly Friday, "I do not intend to make any further public statements."

scandal. His job approval ratings soared, and have remained strong through it all.

Now it will be prime time for the impeached president, to boast what he calls an American economic renaissance, to talk again of Social Security financing for the future, to renew his proposals for education aid, health care guarantees, and an array of other measures.

He has been previewing them for weeks -- as the trial began on Thursday he recommended a five-year $6 billion plan to help hire new police officers, concentrating on high crime areas. The day before it was new aid for the disabled, the day before that, $1 billion for land conservation.

Clinton also has outlined proposals for increased defense spending, tax breaks for long-term care of the elderly and disabled, more help for the homeless and for after-hours school programs.

Those buildup proposals are standard; Clinton has used them yearly as a way to set his agenda first, before Congress gets going. But for impeachment, the Senate would have recessed as the House has, until State of the Union day.

Little else is standard this year. Presidents usually can hold center stage the morning after. On Wednesday, the Senate trial will resume.

"I don't think the president has the ability to be distracted," his spokesman, Joe Lockhart, said.

There has never been a distraction like this for him or for Congress.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 30 years.

The New Paradigm

Making public education work for kids

Putting it all together:
Where do we go from here?

CLIFF GOLDEN
Career specialist

Bottom line

There are three things that are needed to create a learning atmosphere — curriculum or something to be taught, dedicated facilities to learn in and an appropriate time management model. These three are a package deal working together... not individually. For us to have a successful learning environment all three elements have to be present. I know a lot of folks think I've forgotten students, books and other "school things", but I'm talking about just learning.

For years companies have been using on-the-job (OJT) training methods to teach the specifics of what is to be learned. For example, learning how to operate road graders and picking up people skills to effectively and efficiently work in an insurance office or bank. These are the types of environments we all must learn in and some of the skills needed in each. How do curriculum, facilities and an appropriate time management plan come together and how do they create learning? Here's where we make a decided break from conventional academic thinking. Here's where the new educational process or Paradigm comes in.

Teaching is nothing more than an orderly, organized method to teach a subject or curriculum. Remember, I always use the K.I.S.S. method when planning out-comes: Keep It Simple Stupid. For sure there's a lot more that goes into developing a curriculum and teaching method, but I'm discussing the barest of essentials here.

The most basic of concepts needed in developing a curriculum is scope. How deeply will the subject be covered? What elements are required? How will this level of training fit into the existing or next level? These questions and many more are all well and good, but there's an even more basic, underlying question to be asked here: How will this curriculum and those other related levels of curriculum provide our students with the skills they'll need AND how will this training fit into the overall educational experience? For example, you're working on a new approach in junior high school math. How does this piece of the academic puzzle fit into the entire math experience AND how does our math program work with social studies, English, science? What's more, how do we apply these quintessential disciplines?

Application of these disciplines needs a laboratory facility and that's where the dedicated facilities come in. Application is nothing more than using the lesson material on real problems. We need to make sure we're teaching the kinds of tools that work.

Just like chemistry and biology need labs for experiments so do electronics, automotive and metals fabrication. Our new meat processing program will need all the tools of the trade to teach would-be butchers and agriculture inspectors how to use their studies. Hands-on is the only real way to add the finishing touches to an education. That's one of the biggest reasons we're building new facilities North of the high school. We also need the more classrooms.

OK, we have lessons that need teaching so our students can be what they want to be. And we have the classrooms and labs for trying out the lessons learned. How long does it take to see the effects of a misplaced comma or putting in the word 'their' when 'there' is the proper word? Not near as long as it takes to set up an electronics test module, collect the data, run the test again insuring the consistency of the data and cleanup. I mentioned the new meat processing program, how long will it take to get the meat out of the refrigerator, show students where the cuts are to be made, make the required cuts, process the meat and cleanup after all this? Time is the important factor here. Additionally, painting a car or lots of other applied activities take A LOT longer than some of the other disciplines.

Appropriate blocks of time is the answer for those activities taking much longer. There's many different time management models. Since I've been here in Hereford we've discussed first one block model or another. Committees have gone to several school districts to see their model only to return saying what they saw won't work in Hereford. What WILL work in Hereford? When will we come up with our own plan for meeting our needs and let someone else come see what we've been up to?

Bottom Line

Education is changing at a furious pace. A pace set by our economy and technology. ALL disciplines, core (English, math, science, etc.) and elective must come together in a seamless package. No longer can we afford to be so specific or specialized that our focus is on getting ready for college. College is the next higher level of training for a select few occupations. Our students must see the importance and need for going on to the next level of training - if needed.

Eighty-four percent of our economy's occupations by the year 2006 will require no more than a two-year education after high school, but they will be extremely technical. We have to have a school curriculum that is responsive to the needs of our economy producing potentially successful students. Facilities made for doing and enough time to learn the skills our students need. Anything less is wrong.

Ground Day project offers HISD students look at the workplace

Special to The Brand

On Groundhog Day (Feb. 2), 60 Hereford Independent School District students will spend a half-day with a professional in each student's chosen career.

Groundhog Day gives students from Hereford Junior High and Hereford High schools a chance to try one of their dream occupations 'on for size': welders, auto body repair, medical technicians, nurses or other careers. Some students might even want to look at being a teacher or working in the print media.

The Panhandle Tech-Prep/School-to-Careers Partnership is sponsoring a Panhandle-wide Groundhog Day. In the Hereford school district, Steve Nash is coordinating the programs for the district.

After Groundhog Day, students will make decisions based on personal experience instead of what they think is true or other's impressions. The students should have a better idea of what they'd like or not like to do and start preparing with the types of training needed.

Hereford Junior High School counselor Karen Roberts and HHS's career specialist Cliff Golden have put together students' and professional mentors' names for each campus.

The selection process included consistent attendance, grades and a written application. Additionally, teacher recommendations for students played a roll in the selection process.

During their shadowing experience, students will be treated as if they, too, are professionals. They will be expected to responsibly dress and act appropriately, be on time for 'work' and meet all personal duties.

For more information about Groundhog Day, call Nash at 363-7600, Roberts at 363-7630 or Golden at 363-7620.

Italian filmmaker honored at India's annual film fest

HYDERABAD, India (AP) — A chorus of Hindu chants echoed as Italian filmmaker Bernardo Bertolucci was honored Friday with the first lifetime achievement award at India's annual film festival.

Bertolucci, 58, whose work includes "The Last Emperor" and "Last Tango in Paris," received a gold medal and certificate from India's information minister. A screening of Bertolucci's new film, "Besieged," followed.

Bertolucci was honored for "enriching world cinema as a master craftsman, an incisive social analyst and chronicler of our times."

"While making films, I was exposed to different cultures which always fascinate me," Bertolucci said. "This endeavor is a search of pleasure for me."

IOC calls meet to confront scandal

By Clare Nullis
Associated Press Writer

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — The International Olympic Committee will hold an emergency assembly in March to vote on expelling corrupt members and tightening procedures for selecting host cities of the Winter and Summer Games.

In a bid to tackle the bribery scandal that has overwhelmed the Olympic movement, its president, Juan Antonio Samaranch, announced Friday that he was convening an extraordinary session of the committee's 115 members for March 17-18 in Lausanne.

"We have always said that we want to get to the bottom of this matter, and to act swiftly," said IOC director-general Francois Carrard. "This is a decision which goes in that direction."

Carrard said "about half" the 13 members under investigation for alleged misdemeanors during Salt Lake City's winning bid for the 2002 Winter Games have replied to a letter from Samaranch.

He declined to identify them or offer details about the letters.

Samaranch told The Associated Press on Thursday that nine members are accused of "serious" offenses that could result in expulsion, and that four are cited for minor violations.

The members are entitled to appear in person to defend themselves before the six-man IOC commission investigating the Salt Lake case. The panel meets Jan. 23 to conclude its findings before making recommendations to the executive board the following day.

Recommendations to expel members would go to the full assembly, where a two-thirds majority vote is required for expulsion.

"The decision to exclude a member of the IOC is a matter of the utmost gravity," Carrard said.

Meanwhile, LeRoy T. Walker, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee in 1995, when the games were awarded to Salt Lake City, told The News & Observer of Raleigh, N.C., that the entire Olympic movement is being jeopardized by the scandal. He called it, "The worst threat to the Olympics in my lifetime."

Also, the Globe and Mail of Toronto reported that the husband of an IOC member from Finland got a job from the Ontario government after a request from the group seeking to win the 1996 Summer Games for Toronto. USA Today said Bjarne Haggman, who later was divorced from Pirjo Haggman, worked for 20 months for the Ontario Ministry of Natural PAMPA — Chayse Rives scored 15 points, and Hereford rallied in the fourth quarter to get a slim 47-44 win over Pampa in the District 3-4A opener for both teams Friday night at Neely Fieldhouse.

The Whitefaces had led much of the game before being outscored 17-6 in the third quarter.

"We did a lot of things that allowed them to stay in the game," Hereford coach Randy Dean said. "We missed a lot of two-footers."

Rives' 15 points led Hereford (16-6, 1-0 District 3-4A).

"He's really doing a good job on both ends of the court," Dean said,

"and accepting the responsibility that comes with it."

Slade Hodges had 13 points and Cody Hodges added 10 points for the Whitefaces.

Hereford took a 12-4 margin into the second quarter. The Whitefaces led at halftime 26-17 before the Harvesters came back in the third quarter.

But Hereford rebounded in the fourth quarter and started making shots.

"We felt like we had to shoot the ball better in the fourth quarter," Dean said. "We had some guys really make some big shots."

In the junior varsity game, Pampa defeated Hereford, 48-42.

Lady Whitefaces trample Pampa

PAMPA — Keyed by a trio of 3-pointers from Makesha Rives in the third quarter, Hereford rallied in the second half past Pampa 47-37 Friday night in girls District 3-4A basketball at Neely Fieldhouse.

Rives finished the game with 12 points for Hereford (16-9, 2-1 District 3-4A). Tori Walker led the Lady Whitefaces with 13 points.

Hereford coach Key Harrison said the win wasn't one of the better efforts by the Lady Whitefaces this season, but that he was happy to come away with a win on the road.

Despite a lackluster start in the first quarter, Hereford took a 12-7 lead into the second quarter. It was then it caught up with the Lady Whitefaces.

"They went to a zone," Harrison said. "We had some shots, some good looks at the basket. We just didn't hit them. We missed a couple of easy layups."

Hereford was able to recover in time for the second half, retaking the lead in the third quarter by outpointing the Lady Harvesters 16-8.

"It took some effort to turn it up coming out in the third quarter," Harrison said. "We realized we were going to have to play to beat them."

In the junior varsity game, Pampa trounced Hereford, 50-28.

Modano leads Stars past Anaheim, 3-1

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Mike Modano had a goal and two assists and Mike Keane added a power-play goal as the Dallas Stars beat the Anaheim Mighty Ducks 3-1 Friday night, ending Paul Kariya's club-record point-scoring streak on home ice at 17 games.

Jere Lehtinen also scored to help the Stars improve their NHL-leading record to 27-7-7, as they vie for their second consecutive President's Trophy.

Ed Belfour, who had 27 saves, stopped Anaheim's first 22 shots and lost a bid for his seventh career shutout against the Ducks with 11:10 remaining as Fredrik Olausson cruised across the crease during a power play and converted Marty McInnis' centering pass for his ninth goal. Olausson has scored in each of his last four games — getting the Ducks' first or only goal each time.

Modano opened the scoring at 5:27 of the first period with his 15th goal. Lehtinen's rising slap shot from the left point hand-cuffed Guy Hebert, who couldn't control the rebound and attempted to clear the puck to Steve Rucchin. But Modano intercepted it in the slot and beat Lehtinen gave the Stars a two-goal lead after a turnover deep in the Anaheim zone by defenseman Ruslan Salei. Brett Hull got a stick on the attempted clearing pass and Modano got the puck to Lehtinen, who put his 15th goal over Hebert's glove and into the top right corner of the net at 13:11 of the period.

The second period was only 70 seconds old when Keane took a cross-ice pass at the inner edge of the left circle and whipped a 20-footer over Hebert's glove to make it 3-0 and help Dallas salvage a road trip that began with shutout losses at Calgary and Vancouver and ended with a 2-2-1 mark.

Broncos-Jets matchup of contrasting styles

By Barry Wilner
AP Football Writer

DENVER — The disparities come straight at you like Terrell Davis carrying the ball. East vs. West; offense vs. defense; loud and intimidating vs. cerebral and relatively unmenacing.

Bill Parcells vs. Mike Shanahan. OK, so they'll be on the sidelines, not on the field, when the New York Jets play the Denver Broncos in Sunday's AFC Championship game. But they'll get as much camera time as league MVP Davis and the rest of the players at Mile High Stadium.

"Well, Bill and I can't play," said Shanahan, who guided Denver to its first Super Bowl triumph (after four losses under previous regimes) last January. "Our players play. It's one of those games where you are playing for a championship and both teams are excited to get out there and show each other what they can do."

Both teams can do plenty. They appear to be at their peaks. The Jets, for example, have not been nearly this good since midway through the 1986 season, and they haven't been a true title contender since 1982. These Broncos probably are better than any of their previous Super Bowl visitors, even last season's champs.

Falcons DB confident in facing Vikings' Moss

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Brian Billick, the Minnesota Vikings' offensive coordinator, was asked this week what he would do if his best cornerback was 5-foot-9 Ray Buchanan and he had to cover 6-5 Randy Moss.

"I don't know," Billick replied. "And if I did, I wouldn't tell you."

Buchanan has no such qualms. He's not only happy to be covering the offensive rookie of the year, he's looking forward to it when his Atlanta Falcons (15-2) face Moss and the Vikings (15-1) Sunday with for a trip to the Super Bowl at stake.

This is how good Moss can be.

Last week, the Arizona Cardinals covered him with Aeneas Williams, one of the best cornerbacks this decade in the NFL. Williams gave Moss trouble, and had a touch-down-saving interception.

Moss finished with four catches for 73 yards and a touchdown.

Buchanan, a Pro Bowler himself, doesn't feel overmatched.

"The Lord has blessed Randy Moss," he said. "The Lord has blessed me, too. He gave me great hands, quick feet, great maneuverability, great awareness."

True enough. And maybe if Moss were the only challenge for the Atlanta secondary, it would be fine.

There's also Cris Carter, tight end Andrew Glover and maybe Jake Reed, although his hamstring problems might not allow him to play. If he can't, it'll be second-year man Matthew Hatchette, who has played well himself.

There also are running

And the coaching has so much to do with it.

"I think you always get a little juiced up when you're going against a coach who has had a lot of success, and obviously a coach who has a couple of Super Bowl rings," Shanahan said.

Parcells, who says he barely knows Shanahan, but admires his work, sees that work in how the Broncos conduct themselves.

"The Broncos have won so many games in the last few years, I don't think anything that happens on the field is going to damage their mentality," said Parcells, who with a fourth straight victory in a conference championship game — two came with the Giants and one with the Patriots — would be the first man to coach three franchises to the Super Bowl. "They get behind, they think they are going to come back ... I don't think we're speaking about fragile mentalities at this time of the season."

Both Shanahan and Parcells are known for their leadership. Their backgrounds, however, are quite dissimilar.

Shanahan was a quarterback, Parcells a linebacker. Shanahan grew up in the Midwest and learned the pro game in Denver and San Francisco. Parcells was born and raised in New Jersey and did his apprenticeships on the Atlantic coast.

While Parcells led the Giants to two Super Bowl crowns in his first NFL head coaching stint, Shanahan was 8-12 for the Oakland Raiders and was fired four games into 1989.

Shanahan is well-versed in all kinds of offensive schemes and was the coordinator for the 1994 champion San Francisco 49ers, who had one of the most dynamic attacks the league has seen. He has mixed elements of the West Coast offense with his own tenets and, thanks greatly to such talent as Davis, John Elway, Shannon Sharpe, Ed McCaffrey, Rod Smith and a superb offensive line, put together a nearly unstoppable offense in Denver.

Parcells is a defensive guru, but one who is willing to open things up and gamble on offense.

As for the images, well, Parcells knows how to turn on the charm, but you never want to cross him.

"This is a coach who wants to make you a better player, and wants you to do your best," said Pro Bowl receiver Keyshawn Johnson. "He'll keep coming at you to make sure you understand him and make sure you're working hard. But that's one of the things that makes him a great coach to play for. You know he'll give you the best chance to win."

Shanahan doesn't appear so gruff, but don't be misled. Nobody is testing him, either.

"He's tough on you," Broncos veteran safety Tyrone Braxton said of the man some players call "Little General."

"You think of a general who's going to be tough on you, but then he loves you as a person and as a player. He loves his soldiers, and he's going to nurture them, make sure they're ready."

Resources, until Sept. 14, 1990 — four days before Toronto lost out to Atlanta.

Four separate investigations are under way into allegations that IOC members or their relatives received cash payments, scholarships, jobs, free medical care, real estate deals, lavish gifts and other inducements from Salt Lake boosters.

The scandal has prompted Samaranch to suggest banning visits by IOC members to candidate cities, stripping the full assembly of the vote and leaving the selection to the executive board or other small "electoral college."

Samaranch said visits by IOC members to bid cities aren't necessary because the committee already has a group of experts who inspect the sites and compile a report on the logistical and financial merits of each bid.

Any new process should be in place before the 2006 Winter Games site is selected at the IOC session in Seoul, South Korea, next June.

Carrard confirmed that the IOC might introduce a code of ethics for its members.

But he stressed that the organization valued the independence of its members.

And he reiterated that Samaranch does not intend to resign and that he has the support of the IOC membership.

"He has been leading the IOC over the most fantastic period of development in the last 19 years," Carrard said. "He's determined to clean the house and see that future procedures are improved so that these kind of events don't repeat themselves."

"The IOC has survived many difficult times in the world and is one of the few organizations to survive. The decisions taken in general by the IOC are recognized as good ones, including the awarding of the 2002 Olympic Winter Games to Salt Lake City."

"The IOC is determined to go on with the Games in 2002 in Salt Lake City," he said.

Gilmore holds lead at Sony Open

HONOLULU (AP) — Brandel Chamblee held a two-stroke lead at the midway mark of the Sony Open, but chances are he's glancing over his shoulder.

Among those lurking in the pack is John Huston, the guy who set a course record in winning here last year and who is jokingly accused by other players of being the reason officials decided to toughen the oceanside layout.

In the final Hawaiian Open last year, Huston set a tour record for a 72-hole event with a 28-under-par performance.

At the 36-hole mark of the inaugural Sony, Chamblee was at 6-under-par 134 after shooting a 66 on Friday.

First-round leader Tommy Tolles recovered from a slow second round start and finished with a 3-over 73, enough for a share of second place with Mike Hurlbert at 135.

Then came Huston, who shot his second 68, Len Mattiace and Craig Stadler.

Double-majors winner Mark O'Meara and Esteban Toledo, who started the day in second place, were grouped at 3-under 137.

Black Hawks down Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Maneluk scored on a breakaway and Jocelyn Thibault stopped 31 shots to snap the Chicago Blackhawks' seven-game winless streak with a 3-1 victory over the New York Rangers on Friday night.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead 1:10 in on a Doug Gilmour goal.

Moss

backs Robert Smith and Leroy Hoard — Smith a quick slasher and Hoard a power back.

That will keep Buchanan from covering Moss full time. In fact, the Vikings would like to get Moss against Michael Booker, who is 6-2 but doesn't have the speed of Buchanan or Moss, who has been timed in less than 4.3 seconds for the 40-yard dash.

The Vikings say they're wary of whomever Atlanta plays.

"They're good enough so they don't have to try to fool you," coach Dennis Green said. "They play things pretty straight. They feel they can match their man and your man and try to beat you."

That might make the matchups up front most important for the Atlanta defense.

Minnesota has three Pro

Bowlers on its offensive line — left tackle Todd Steussie, left guard Randall McDaniel and center Jeff Christy. On the right side, the Vikings have two linemen — David Dixon and Corey Stringer.

Against them, the Falcons present a relatively small but very quick front. Tackle Travis Hall, at 300 pounds is the heaviest. Chuck Smith, the best pass rusher, doesn't weigh more than 260.

Atlanta's other defensive weapon is simple — offense, led by Jamal Anderson. He carried the ball an NFL record 410 times this season.

"One of the real keys to our success is our ability to control the ball, whether it be running the football or making some conversions on third down, just constantly moving the football," coach Dan Reeves said.

Elway focused only on Jets

By John Mossman
AP Sports Writer

DENVER — His 16-year journey got off to a bad start when he was labeled a spoiled brat for refusing to play for the team that drafted him.

The spurned team owner proclaimed, "John Elway will never be any good."

Robert Irsay of the Colts got it all wrong, of course.

Elway went on to become one of the greatest quarterbacks in NFL history.

He will leave the game — possibly Sunday after the AFC championship — with a decidedly different reputation than the one Irsay imagined.

Elway is respected, even revered. He is treated in his adopted home of Denver as if he were a demigod.

"John Elway is Denver's Moses," said Broncos tight end Shannon Sharpe. "He has led Denver out of obscurity and into the land of milk and money."

In June, after four months of pondering his future, Elway said he intended to play just one more season. But since then there has been no talk of retirement or going-away presents or goodbye tours, which is just the way Elway wants it.

On the day Michael Jordan retired, Elway was asked what it's like to go out on top.

"No matter when he went out," Elway said, "he was going out on top."

The same could be said for the 38-year-old blond gunslinger with the John Wayne walk and the knack for late-game heroics.

A season after finally winning his Super Bowl ring, Elway has his Broncos back in the AFC title game, this time against the upstart New York Jets. He's within one victory of his fifth Super Bowl appearance, and another championship would be a fitting end to his Jordanesque career.

The game Sunday could be his last, and most likely will be his farewell to Mile High Stadium.

"I'm not even thinking about that," he said. "I don't want to take the game off what we're doing, and that's to win the football game. I'm not even letting that enter my mind, what I'm doing next year. This is what I came back for. So I'm going to enjoy it now and then cross that bridge when the season is over."

"The game is more important than that right now to me. I'll get plenty of time to make that decision in the offseason."

If Elway has already made a firm decision, he hasn't told his teammates.

"I haven't heard him discuss it," running back Terrell Davis said. "If it is his last season, I don't think we're going to find out about it until after the season."

By then, everyone will probably be reminiscing about Elway's extraordinary career.

His 148 victories as a starter are the most in NFL history, and he and Dan Marino are the only quarterbacks who have thrown for more than 50,000 yards.

Many of those passes came at Mile High, of course, where Elway has created countless magic moments.

One of his favorite comebacks was the desperation drive that included two successful fourth-down plays in the closing minutes of a 26-24 divisional playoff win over Houston in January 1992. Another was the 20-19 victory over Kansas City the following season when he threw two touchdown passes in the final two minutes.

Elway also fondly recalls that in his rookie season in 1983 he threw three touchdown passes in the fourth quarter in a 21-16 victory over Baltimore, the team he rejected after it selected him with the No. 1 overall draft pick.

Elway and Mile High victories have become almost synonymous. Including postseason, his career record as a starter at home is an amazing 102-25 (.803).

Ask his teammates about their favorite Elway moments, and they quickly come to mind.

"Definitely that fourth-and-6 pass against Houston here, when he avoids a sack and throws that great pass to Vance Johnson," said safety Tyrone Braxton, who has played with Elway for 11 seasons. "I was on the sideline thinking how unbelievable a play that was. I was like, 'Wow.'"

Center Tom Nalen said he will always remember last season's "helicopter play in the Super Bowl, when Elway sacrificed his body and flipped around to get that crucial first down."

Fans will always remember The Drive, when Elway led the Broncos 98 yards to tie the Cleveland Browns with 39 seconds in the AFC title game in January 1987. Denver went on to win 23-20 in overtime.

Through it all, Elway gained admiration from foes, too.

"He may, in fact, ultimately be the greatest to have ever played this game at that position," said Marty Schottenheimer, who was tormented by Elway as coach at Cleveland and Kansas City.

"And I steadfastly believe that it doesn't have anything to do with his arm strength or with the people around him. The guy is the greatest competitor I have ever witnessed in sport. That, to me, is the quality I will always remember about John Elway."

"If he chooses to retire, he is going to be greatly missed by all of us."

Floyd officially Bulls coach

DEERFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Six months after Tim Floyd arrived in Chicago, the Bulls dropped the "in-waiting" tag Friday and officially made him their coach.

"It's going to be a daunting task," he admitted.

The Bulls have just four players under contract — Ron Harper, Toni Kukoc, Randy Brown and Keith Booth — with Harper the only starter. That's not even enough to hold a real practice when training camp opens next week.

The 44-year-old Floyd has no NBA experience, but he does have a solid record as a college coach. He'd been rumored to be Jackson's successor for the past two seasons.

Lopez shares leader board at Inaugural

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Nancy Lopez was in tears when she left home for the start of her 22nd season on the LPGA Tour, asking herself why she continues to play with 48 victories, a spot in the Hall of Fame and four kids at home in Georgia.

She got a reminder on Friday with the kind of golf people would expect more from Annika Sorenstam or Se Ri Pak than a 42-year-old mother.

Finally confident with her putter, Lopez made five birdies in a six-hole stretch and tied the course record with a 6-under 66 on Friday to share the first-round lead with Catriona Matthew in the HealthSouth Inaugural.

"I still want to beat the young girls," Lopez said. "It's fun to play with the best players because you realize how well you have to play to win. That's more satisfying to me to do that."

Matthew, a 29-year-old from Scotland who has never won in four years on the LPGA, played without a bogey in her round of 66. Colleen Walker and Japanese rookie Akiko Fukushima were among those at 67, while Karrie Webb shot a 68.

Sorenstam, coming off another great season in which she was player of the year and became the first woman to break 70 for a season scoring average, birdied the last two holes for a 69. Defending champion Kelly Robbins was at 70, while Pak struggled off the tee and had a 74.

The 66 by Lopez and Matthew tied the course record last equaled by Robbins in the final round last year.

"I don't want to be out here just to finish. I want to feel like I can still win," said Lopez, just as competitive as she was 21 years ago when she won five straight tournaments and nine times overall in her rookie year.

Angelos to lead trip to Cuba

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — (AP) — Baltimore Orioles owner Peter Angelos was to lead a delegation of baseball and church officials to Cuba today to discuss an exhibition series against Cuba.

Angelos hoped to arrange a game in Cuba and one in Baltimore, with the proceeds possibly going to the Catholic Relief Services.

Angelos was to be joined by his son Louis, team counsel Russell Smouse, consultant Scott Armstrong, four representatives of Major League Baseball, including a representative of the players association, and a representative of Catholic Relief Services, team officials said.

Tom Garofalo, director of Catholic Relief Service's efforts in Cuba, told The Associated Press that the delegation hoped to negotiate details about holding the games, such as which field and even what type of bats to use.

"I think they want to negotiate some of the logistics of the game," Garofalo said.

Angelos did not immediately return phone calls about the trip, which Garofalo said could last a week.

The series was first proposed in 1996, but the State Department rejected the proposal because of a longstanding ban on trade with Cuba. The idea was renewed last week when the Clinton administration announced new measures to aid the Cuban people, including permission for the Orioles to play in Cuba.

If the Orioles play in Cuba, they would become the first major league team to play on the island since the Brooklyn Dodgers held spring training in Havana in 1947.

Cuban officials are leery of sending a team of the country's best baseball players to the United States because of the possibility of defections.

The last two times the Cuban national team played in the United States, a player defected and signed with a major league club.

The possibility of such a series has not been warmly received by some Cuban players in the major leagues.

Pak signs 3-year deal with IMG

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Se Ri Pak has signed a contract with International Management Group, giving the sports agency another powerful name in golf and giving her the management she lacked during her sensational rookie season.

The three-year contract was signed Thursday night over dinner, before Pak's family could hear a last-ditch offer from Cornerstone Sports. IMG declined comment, but the deal was confirmed Friday by family adviser Yeong Shin and by Samsung, Pak's corporate sponsor.

"IMG will handle everything," said Shin, as he and her father, Jun-Chul Pak, watched her struggle to a 2-over 74 in the first round of the HealthSouth Inaugural.

Pak, who became the youngest winner of the U.S. Women's Open and the first rookie in 14 years to win two majors, had been shopping for a management firm since last month, when Samsung agreed to give up management of the South Korean star.

Local couple exchanges marriage vows

Kimberly Briar Baker of Hereford and Jake Bronson Head of Hereford exchanged wedding vows on the evening of Jan. 9 in First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Cindy and Dwayne E. Cassels of Hereford and Robert L. Baker of Hereford, and the granddaughter of W.S. and Dorothy Ingram of Friona.

The bridegroom is the son of Poppy and James E. Head of Hereford and the grandson of Jean and Bob DuLaney of Lubbock.

Officiating at the family ceremony was Rev. Dr. Nathan L. Stone of Fellowship of Believers.

Framing the altar with the unity candle and crystal rose bowls and candles was an arch candelabrum entwined with greenery. Enhancing the chancel were two large bouquets of white larkspur, white gladiolas and white Casa Blanca lilies in blue and white Ming urns, accented by more rose bowls and candles and two seven-branch candelabrum entwined with greenery. Pews were adorned with white tulle bows entwined with greenery.

Bridget Baker of Irving and Teresa Baker of Dallas, sisters of the bride, served as maids of honor. Bridal attendants were Kate Denison, Julie Rampley, and Angela Baker of Canyon, sister-in-law of the bride.

T.J. Head of Amarillo and Tate Head of Hereford, brothers of the groom, served as best men. Groomsman included Sammy Albract of Amarillo, Steve Sims of Canyon, and Lee Ballard of Canyon.

Haley Cassels and Lexi Cassels of Roswell, N.M., nieces of the bride, and daughters of Lisa and Kelly Cassels, served as flower girls.

Jack Cassels of Roswell, nephew of the bride and son of Lisa and Kelly Cassels and Reagan Straffuss of Canyon, niece of the bride and daughter of Rodney Straffuss and Bobby and Angela Baker, served as ring bearers.

Guests were escorted by Lee

Mrs. Jake Bronson Head
...nee Kimberly Briar Baker

Gabel of Canyon, Jim Locke of Miami, and Bobby Baker of Canyon, brother of the bride. Rala Byrnes of Pampa, cousin of the groom, invited guests to register.

Wedding music was provided by Nancy Denison on the piano, performing classical selections for the prelude, "Trumpet Voluntary" for the processional, and "The Wedding March" for the recessional. "The Other Side of Me" by Michael W. Smith was played during the lighting of the Unity Candle. Sound technician was Jack Denison.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore an elegant designer gown of white silk shantung and Alencon lace. The bodice, which was heavily beaded with sequins and pearls on Alencon lace, featured a scooped neckline and dropped back, lantern sleeves, and an elongated waistline highlighted with a scalloped overlay. The full ball gown skirt flowed to a chapel-length train.

To complete her attire, the bride chose a headpiece accented with silk illusion and pearls, and a two tiered cathedral-length veil.

The bride carried a cascade of white Casa Blanca lilies and white bridal roses accented with baby's breath and English ivy, tied with white French chiffon ribbon.

Bridal attendants wore floor length, cobalt blue dresses with a velveteen bodice and flowing organza skirt, accented with an organza bow at the waist. Attendants carried long stemmed white Casa Blanca lilies accented with tree fern and baby's breath and tied with white French chiffon ribbon.

Mary Beth White served as wedding coordinator. The bridal assistant was Joy Osborn of Friona, aunt of the bride.

Following the wedding, the bride and groom were honored with a reception at Hereford Country Club with music provided by Adam Treff.

The three tiered pineapple-orange cake, cascading with burgundy and concord grapes, accented with gold tendrils and leaves completed the bride's table. A Grecian arch accented with ficus trees and mixed exotic greens and moss adorned the bride's cake table. Also on pedestals were Ming urns with bouquets of white larkspur, white gladiolas and white Casa Blanca lilies.

Reception attendants were Candace Ingram and Kahlie Ingram of Friona, cousins of the bride.

After their honeymoon, the couple will reside in Hereford.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1998, attended Texas Tech University in Lubbock, and is now enrolled at West Texas A&M University, majoring in Pre-Communication Disorders.

The bridegroom graduated from Hereford High School in 1993, attended West Texas A&M University and is currently employed by Walco Animal Health Division.

The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents, was held the previous night at Fellowship of Believers and was catered by Sheree Rampley.

The bride was given a lingerie shower hosted by Kate and Nancy Denison.

Grandson performs in Carnegie Hall concerts

Stirling Trent, grandson of Mary Denton of Hereford and the late Pete Denton, was one of 50 musicians ages 15 to 22 who participated in the prestigious New York String Orchestra Seminar recently. The event included two performances at Carnegie Hall, one on Christmas Eve and one Dec. 28.

Trent, a 16-year-old violinist, is the son of Stan and Jana Denton Trent of Colleyville.

The seminar, which was founded in 1969 by conductor and violinist Alexander Schneider with his friend and manager Frank Salomon, is intended to prepare the country's finest young musicians for careers as chamber, orchestra and solo artists. "Within musical circles, it's very prestigious," Jan Mark Sloman, Trent's teacher and principal associate concertmaster of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra and concertmaster of the Dallas Pops, said. "To be selected into this group is a big honor. Literally hundreds of kids audition."

Trent began violin lessons at age 3 and has spent an estimated 10,000 hours practicing.

He still practices five hours a day and has two-hour lessons twice every week.

He would like to attend Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

American History Essay Contest draws 193 entries from local schools

A total of 193 essays were entered in the 1998-1999 American History Essay Contest sponsored by Los Ciboleros Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, according to Charlotte R. Clark, contest committee chairman.

The topic for the contest was "A Naval Hero of the Early American Republic, 1789-1815."

Essays were collected by the local committee on Dec. 1 from participating schools: West Central Intermediate, St. Anthony's, Shirley Intermediate, Community Christian School and Nazarene Christian Academy.

All students in grades 5-8 in public, private and parochial schools, and in sanctioned home study programs were eligible.

The essays have been read by the membership and one was selected and sent to State Competition on Jan. 9.

"The top winners from the schools have been submitted to a local non-member individual who will select the outstanding essay for the year," Clark said.

The winners and the outstanding essay entry will be announced on Feb. 1. Los Ciboleros Chapter celebrates American History Month each February.

A special tea honoring the American History Essay Contest winners, their parents, family, friends, teachers and administrators has been scheduled for Sunday afternoon April 18 at Hereford Community Center.

"Los Ciboleros Chapter is excited this year with an entry in the State Competition, the large number of entries, and the outstanding participation," Clark said.

Participating students will be honored individually during the awards assemblies of their respective schools in May.

Education Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Manners easily and rapidly mature into morals." — Horace Mann

Choirs in both HHS and HJH are selecting solo and ensemble music for UIL competition. Competition for HHS musicians will be in February and in April for HJH musicians. All students who choose to compete must plan for much practice and hard work and also must have passing grades in all classes.

Extended Day classes on each campus are proving successful and this additional time for TAAS preparation is also helpful in the improvement of general study skills.

Technology classes in both secondary schools are preparing projects for area and state competition. Students in these classes are learning valuable skills for use during their lifetime — not just their school years. It is sometimes amazing what these students can actually achieve in this area and their instructors are to be commended.

A group of teachers meet regularly with HISD Superintendent Jack Patton to discuss concerns of students and faculty. Members of this cabinet, selected by Mr. Patton, represent each HISD campus. Faculty members are urged to submit questions and concerns to the cabinet members who include: Bill Binder and Linda Cumpton, Hereford High School; Connie Gilbert and Wesley Rudd, Hereford Junior High; Sherri Martin, Northwest; Brenda Reinauer, Stanton; Tonja Horrell, Aikman; Mendi Robins, Bluebonnet; Cristi Conger, West Central; Brandi Massey, Shirley; Janie Rendon, Tierra Blanca; Elva Rodriguez, Administration and Carolyn Waters, District Liaison.

Tomorrow, Jan. 18, is a professional development day, also known as in-service, for all HISD personnel. This is a holiday for students. Faculty members will have the opportunity to attend a choice of various activities, both in Hereford and in Amarillo.

The following "Recipe for Friendship" is a good lesson for students, parents and teachers:

Combine heaping measures of trust, well-rounded scoops of respect, generous portions of affection and equal amounts of sharing.

Stir together until lumps and bumps are dissolved, then carefully pour into heart-shaped containers. Sprinkle abundantly with patience, understanding, tolerance, humor, caring and compassion, tenderness and dependability. Warm gently and serve generously.

Too often we let the lumps and bumps of life "get us down" and miss many of the blessings of life.

"The best way to keep your friends is not to give them away." — Wilson Mizner

The Successful Family

By MATILDA J. BOOZER

VERBAL ABUSIVENESS

Most verbal abusiveness, such as rudeness, sarcasm, impoliteness, and name-calling, is a cover for feelings of inadequacy, a learned behavior from parents, adults, or other models, a call for attention, or a way of striking back at an unfriendly world. In this instance, the teen or child needs interactions with adults and parents who are calm, rational, and consistent and who behave maturely. Adults and parents need to be on guard and not allow the teen's or child's verbal abusiveness to provoke the same behavior from them. When parents or adults resort to criticism, belittling, and name-calling, they have little chance of changing teens' or children's behaviors.

1. Determine the goal of the verbal abusiveness. Could it be that the child is seeking attention, revenge, or power? Become a "teen or child watcher" and listen attentively to help determine these needs and goals. Once the goal has been defined, the adult or parent can help the child find a more constructive means of meeting this need.

2. Meet privately with rude, sarcastic, impolite, or name-calling children or teens. Interpret their behavior to them as a cry for help. Then discuss the reasons they feel it necessary to use verbal abusiveness. Plan with the teens and children ways to avoid the behavior in the future.

3. Meet with the victims of the abusers. Explain to these victims that if they do not respond to the abuse, it is not as satisfying to the abuser and the behavior will decrease. Plan and rehearse with the "victims" their behavior when the abuser "attacks." This will empower the victim to not be helpless to an older sibling attack.

4. Contract with the abusing teen or child to reduce verbal abusiveness. Clearly define unacceptable behaviors (such as cursing or pushing) and the consequences of those behaviors. Rewards for appropriate responses may also be included in the contract. Teens especially like extra privileges, while a child may respond to extra TV time.

5. Provide opportunities for success. Praise and reinforce nonabusive behavior. Example: "I noticed how understanding you were when Tom had his accident today. That was a nice thing to say to him."

6. Role-play or use films, filmstrips, or books to demonstrate and provide stimuli for group or family discussions. Examine what has occurred and the consequences. Discuss new and better methods of interacting. Behavior rehearsal may help teens and children practice the new behaviors. Teens will rebel against this at first. Use humor if you can to motivate them to participate. They will soon get the idea and respond especially if a privilege is part of the deal. Negotiation with teens and children helps them develop problem solving, decision making and social skills.

Looking Back

Today in History

Today is Sunday, Jan. 17, the 17th day of 1999. There are 348 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 17, 1961, in his farewell address, President Eisenhower warned against the rise of "the military-industrial complex."

On this date:

In 1562, French Protestants were recognized under the Edict of St. Germain.

In 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston.

In 1893, Hawaii's monarchy was overthrown as a group of businessmen and sugar planters forced Queen Liliuokalani to abdicate.

In 1893, the 19th president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, died in Fremont, Ohio, at age 70.

In 1899, notorious gangster Al Capone was born in Brooklyn, N.Y.

In 1945, Soviet and Polish forces liberated Warsaw during World War II.

In 1945, Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg, credited with saving tens of thousands of Jews, disappeared in Hungary while in Soviet custody.

In 1946, the United Nations Security Council held its first meeting.

In 1977, convicted murderer Gary Gilmore, 36, was shot by a firing squad at Utah State Prison in the first U.S. execution in a decade.

In 1995, more than 6,000 people were killed when an earthquake with a magnitude of 7.2 devastated the city of Kobe, Japan.

In 1997, Israel handed over its military headquarters in Hebron to the Palestinians, ending 30 years of Israeli occupation of the West Bank city.

In 1997, a court in Ireland granted the first divorce in the Roman Catholic country's history.

Ten years ago: Five children were shot to death at the Cleveland Elementary School in Stockton, Calif., by a drifter who then killed himself.

Five years ago: A 6.7 magnitude earthquake struck Southern California, killing at least 61 people and causing $20 billion worth of damage.

One year ago: President Clinton gave a deposition in Paula Jones' sexual harassment lawsuit against him; during the nearly six hours of sworn testimony, Clinton denied having a sexual relationship with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Betty White is 77. Ballerina-actress Moira Shearer is 73. Singer-actress Eartha Kitt is 72. Actor James Earl Jones is 68. Actress Sheree North is 66. Talk show host Maury Povich is 60. Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali is 57. Rhythm-and-blues singer William Hart (The Delfonics) is 54. Rock musician Mick Taylor is 51.

Thank You

Words are inadequate to express the deep appreciation we have for all the kindnesses you have shown us during Bobby's illness and death. Your prayers have undergirded us, your cards, calls, and kind words have encouraged us, and your many loving deeds have helped us endure. We give praise and gratitude to our gracious Lord for a warm, loving community who cushioned our hurts with caring.

We give special thanks to Gililand-Watson Funeral Home, Tom Fuller, Jordan Grooms, Betty Wollé, Tommie Stevens, Nancy Denison, the First United Methodist Church Sanctuary Choir, and the former members of the Hereford Chamber Singers who offered loving words and heavenly music at his funeral service.

With thanksgiving to God for you...

In the Service

Military Muster

Navy Seaman Recruit Rachel Garcia, daughter of Mary L. Martinez of Hereford, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Garcia completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis is also placed on physical fitness.

Garcia and other recruits also received instruction on the Navy's core values — honor, courage and commitment — and how to apply them in their military performance and personal conduct.

She is a 1998 graduate of Hereford High School.

Marine Pfc. Horacio Vasquez, son of Pedro and Maria A. Vasquez of Hereford, recently completed a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean, Indian Ocean and Arabian Gulf with the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), embarked aboard the ships of the USS Essex Amphibious Ready Group (ARG).

During the deployment, Vasquez received training on urban warfare techniques, rope rappelling, close-quarter battle, weapons and small unit fighting.

Vasquez's unit also completed training in Hawaii which tested all areas of amphibious warfare, including non-combatant evacuation operations and amphibious assault.

Vasquez and crew members had the opportunity to visit Bahrain, Hong Kong, Malaysia, Oman, Seychelles, Singapore, Thailand and the United Arab Emirates where crew members participated in community relations projects in the host countries.

The 1997 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Marine Corps in May 1997.

— YOUR EYES —

Sight Preservers

All too often, people wait until they have problems with their eyes to start taking proper care of them. By taking care earlier on, you can slow, reverse or even halt vision loss.

- Eat lots of fruits and vegetables. A healthy eyes diet should contain plenty of Vitamins A, B Complex, C and E, Selenium, and Zinc.
- Protect your eyes from the sun. Amber-tinted sunglasses block out blue light, a component of sunlight that may contribute to age-related vision loss. These sunglasses not only offer protection from the ultraviolet rays of the sun, but they reduce glare and improve contrast.
- Periodically do a self-test for macular degeneration. An easy way to do this is to look at straight-line objects such as window frames. If the lines appear to be distorted in any way, let your doctor know.
- Don't smoke. If you smoke, quit. People who smoke twenty or more cigarettes a day are at greater risk of getting cataracts.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I wear sneakers often, but I have a problem with the laces. They keep coming undone and I'm afraid of tripping and falling. How do you keep them from untying? I've double-knotted them, but they are hard to untie. Please help! — Alberta Karaveris, Toms River, N.J.

Here are three easy hints to treat those stubborn laces.

1. Tying them so they don't come undone is the first thing to do. Try this: Tie the lace right over left and under to make a knot, then left over right for the loop to make a square knot.

2. Tie the shoes tight, then dampen the knot with a little water.

3. Remove the laces from the shoes and rub a light coat of wax (candle or paraffin) on the portion where you tie the knot.

Good luck in tying things up! Hope they stay tied as long as you want them to. — Heloise

SCUFFED FLOOR

Dear Heloise: When black marks are left on vinyl floors by the black rubber soles, simply rub over the mark with the white rubber sole of another shoe. Just make sure both the shoe and floor are dry. The black mark will instantly and effortlessly disappear! — Paul Kaminer, St. Matthews, S.C.

Before going away on vacation, or when leaving a beach house or mountain cabin, be sure to unplug the appliances. This is especially important for small appliances that have heating elements, i.e. toaster, toaster oven, coffee maker.

Why? If they're plugged in and a power surge occurs, there is a slight chance that the heating element could come on, possibly starting a fire.

You know the old adage: It's always better to be safe than sorry! — Heloise

Study suggests some avoid fat by fidgeting

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some people seem to be able to fidget away fat, according to a Mayo Clinic study aimed at finding out why some stay slim when overeating, while others gain weight.

The study, published today in the journal Science, involved 16 volunteers fed 1,000 extra calories a day for eight weeks as instruments measured their energy use.

At the end, some of the subjects gained as much as 16 pounds, others as little as two.

The difference, says Dr. Michael D. Jensen of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., was the "fidget factor."

"It is some sort of physical activity that they (the low weight-gainers) are doing more throughout the day than the others," he said. "It could be fidgeting or moving around or just being a little more restless."

The study was designed to investigate why some people seem to relentlessly gain weight, while others, eating roughly the same diet, seem to stay slim.

Jensen and his colleagues picked subjects for the study who had sedentary jobs, such as office work, and who did not engage in regular physical workouts. They were outfitted with accelerometers — instruments that measure movements — to determine how much energy they expended.

Additionally, there were special blood chemistry tests to measure energy expenditure that was so slight it could not be picked up by the accelerometers.

The result showed that it was not the gross movements, such as walking or climbing stairs, that made the difference. It was the small, fidgeting-like movements that separated the fast gainers from those who stayed slim.

"The people who were burning a lot of extra calories were doing it in the activities of daily life," said Jensen. This could be fidgeting, standing up often, stretching and just the effort to maintain a good posture, he said.

The researcher said that each muscle movement burns calories and uses some of the excess energy that might otherwise be stored as fat.

"The take-home message is that every little motion counts," Jensen said. "Clearly the people who are doing little activities during the day are not gaining weight even though they were eating more. So it looks like the more you do, even in small activities, the more it counts in controlling weight."

Previous studies have shown that people metabolize food — or break it down into chemicals used to power muscles and other bodily functions — at different rates. Jensen said his study did not address whether that might be responsible for the differences. The study used four women and 12 men, all between the ages of 20 and 35. Jensen said the women tended to gain weight more readily than did the men.

"The fidgetiness of an individual likely plays a more important role in daily energy expenditure than previously thought," Eric Ravussin of Eli Lilly and Co., and Elliot Danforth Jr. of the University of Vermont said in an analysis of the study in Science.

"This carefully conducted study provides an interesting explanation for the differences in gain of body fat in response to overeating," Ravussin and Danforth said. The fidgeting mechanism, they noted, "could explain why some of us escaped gaining weight, whereas others did not, after overindulging during the past holiday season."

Some Sound Advice

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 22-year-old pregnant woman. I had a routine AFP-3 blood test at 16 weeks of gestation. The results were positive. The doctor said I am at increased risk for carrying a Down's syndrome baby. He told me to have an amniocentesis done to confirm the diagnosis. I'm only 22. How could this happen? How accurate is the AFP-3 test? Please help. — S.C.

ANSWER: Alpha-fetoprotein 3 — AFP-3 — is a test that analyzes a pregnant woman's blood for three pregnancy hormones. A high AFP-3 reading suggests spinal cord troubles in the developing fetus. A low level can indicate genetic problems, such as Down's syndrome.

The risk for Down's syndrome is higher in women older than 35. However, more Down's syndrome babies are born to younger women because younger women have more babies than older women.

The AFP-3 is not infallible. If the fetus is younger than the age calculated by the doctor, a low reading indicates only fetal immaturity. For that reason, often a woman with a low AFP-3 score gets an ultrasound picture that gives a reliable estimation of fetal age.

Furthermore, a low AFP-3 score is not proof of Down's syndrome. All it implies is an increased risk of having a Down's baby.

Removing fluid from the protective sac enclosing the fetus — an amniocentesis — provides a specimen with cells that the doctor can examine microscopically for the chromosome abnormality that causes Down's. Try to relax, as ridiculous as that sounds, until the amniocentesis gives definite information.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been diagnosed with ventricular tachycardia. Is it necessary to take the EP test? I don't want to take it because it's invasive. Right now, I'm taking medicine and doing all right. — S.S.

ANSWER: Ventricular tachycardia is a heartbeat disturbance that makes doctors' ears prick up. It's a serious heartbeat derangement and it can be a fatal one.

The ventricles — the heart's two lower pumping chambers — suddenly speed up. They no longer listen to the commands of the heart's pacemaker. They behave like runaway horses. A heart cannot beat at breakneck speed without courting serious problems.

Electrophysiologic (EP) studies permit the doctor to pinpoint why the ventricles behave so erratically. The EP study guides the doctor in choosing the best way to treat ventricular tachycardia. Treatment could involve destroying abnormal pathways that cause ventricle speedup. Or, the studies tell the doctor if drug treatment can best control the heartbeat. They also tell the doctor if a patient needs an implanted defibrillator. It's a gadget much like a pacemaker. A defibrillator sends out a jolt of electricity to bring the racing ventricles back into line.

EP studies are invasive but not major-league invasive. The doctor threads thin catheters to the heart from veins in the upper leg, neck or arms. No large incisions are made. You feel fine at the end of the study. The memory of it fades by the next day.

The special report on heartbeats and heart rhythm disturbances can give you a better grasp of all this. I'm sending you a copy. Readers can obtain one by writing: Dr. Donohue — SR 102, Box 5539 Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents), No. 10 envelope and $3. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've been a nurse for 22 years. Last year, my brother almost drowned. While he was in the Intensive Care Unit, something happened and an "umbrella" was inserted. Can you give me any information about the umbrella? — M.W.

ANSWER: I have to make a guess. Your brother, while at bed rest in the Intensive Care Unit, could have formed clots in leg veins. Pieces of those clots — emboli — were carried to the lungs, where they obstructed blood flow.

An umbrella — very much like a sieve — is inserted into the vena cava, the large vein through which blood from the legs flows back to the heart. The umbrella filters out emboli, thus protecting the lungs.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My sister has lived with the pain of shingles for seven years. She has recently been told about a Spinal Cord Stimulator. Will you advise us? — M.W.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have suffered two and a half years with shingles pain. Can you help me? — D.B.

ANSWER: The pain that lingers after the shingles rash has disappeared is "postherpetic neuralgia," a condition that is difficult to manage and can make life unbearable for patients.

One out of every five shingles patients struggles with postherpetic neuralgia for more than a year. Some endure it for decades. The pain can be a sensation of burning or of an agonizing stab.

Medicines are the first line for control. Amitriptyline, doxepin, carbamazepine and phenytoin are standbys that have eliminated pain for some. Gabapentin has recently shown promise. The application of Zostrix cream or 5 percent lidocaine gel to the painful skin has given others relief.

Using numbing agents to block the nerve sending pain signals to the brain is another option.

When pain reaches intolerable levels and is present day after day, the doctor has recourse to prescribe morphine and morphine-like pain killers. The worry of addiction raises its head at mention of these drugs. Rarely do patients taking such drugs for pain relief become addicted.

Spinal cord stimulation is a novel way to block pain signals. A fine wire is positioned on the spinal cord. A spark of electrical current blocks the barrage of pain signals entering the cord. Similar to the stimulator is a reservoir containing pain-relieving medicine. When pain agonizes patients, they can push a button that releases painkilling medicines into the spinal cord.

I would go for any procedure that holds a ray of hope for relief of constant pain.

I'm sending you both the shingles report. It can help put the shingles story in perspective.

Date rape focus of local half-hour TV program

In a recent survey of college women, one in six are victims of rape or attempted rape. Of these, 42% never tell anyone about their experience.

Tuesday, Jan. 19 KACV-TV, the local public television station will address these alarming facts, and the causes behind them in an hour-long program, made possible through a grant from the Potter-Randall Medical Alliance, titled Perspective: ASAP: Anti-Sexual Abuse Project.

The program is hosted by KACV's Ellen Robertson Neal, who will be joined by a group of students from WTAMU along with a panel of professionals who deal directly with rape victims, and will focus primarily on the issues of sexual violence and date rape among women 16 to 24.

"This isn't just a problem," says host Ellen Robertson Neal, "it's an epidemic. It's up to us, both as a community, and as individuals to find a solution." WTAMU students who will be participating are Prairie McChristian, Mona Barrera, Melissa Meier, Pecos Shafer, Damian Grant, Mark Woelfle, Stephen Brown and Matt Muir.

The panel of professionals includes Vicky Richmond, Director of Sexual Assault Services/Family Support Services; Becky O'Neill, head of the Rape Examination Team at NWT; and Gil Farren Randall County Victims Assistance Coordinator. Viewers are encouraged to phone in their questions during the program, or E-mail them in advance to www.erneal@actx.edu.

Due to the sensitive nature of the program topic, a special phone bank of volunteers will be on hand to assure added privacy and confidentiality to callers.

A repeat broadcast of the program is scheduled to air Sunday, January 24 at 5:00 p.m.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Guide your Creativity with the C.O.M.P.A.S.S. Method

Creativity is a valuable tool when converting problems into opportunities. Studies indicate that we are the most creative at about age 5. Later, we often find ourselves locked in routines of our own making.

Yet there are those who maintain great curiosity about everything. They put silly things together in their minds. They wonder what if. They ask why not.

Instead of going from A to B to C in order to reach D, the creative mind may work backwards by going to Z then jumping to

D. While the creative person doesn't care a great deal for responsibility and consequence, they do love change. And they will make changes just for the sake of seeing what happens.

Maybe you're in a rut as you read this column. Though you don't wish to throw caution to the wind, perhaps you feel a little creativity would be refreshing. The C.O.M.P.A.S.S. guide will help you.

Spurring your Creative Cells

C.O.M.P.A.S.S. is the seven-part guide for increasing your creative thinking skills. The intent is to get you started in thinking outside the box.

COMBINE. This simple strategy gets your creative juices flowing by allowing you to put different items together. The hot dog is an example. It is a combination of nearly every poor quality meat in the carcass. But combine it with a bun and a ballgame and - walla - you've got an American institution.

Combine earphones with a small tape player and - walla - Sony Walkman. Combine a suitcase with wheels and a pullout handle and - walla - you make millions of travelers happy. Combine a rechargeable battery pack with an electric hole making device and - walla - a cordless drill.

OBSERVE. Observe means to watch carefully, pay attention to details. When you're creating, try to look at everything in a new way. I watched people carry heavy suitcases in airports for 30 years without seeing the need for wheels.

What was I looking at? I saw the problem, but not the solution. When you observe a problem, write it down. The solution may come to you weeks or months later.

MODIFY. The first tape recorders wound wire from one reel to another. Then came magnetic tapes, 8-track cassettes and even smaller cassettes and micro-cassettes.

In the 60's my racing friends and I wanted to ride our motorcycles in the winter. We modified our tires with sharpened bolts and raced on frozen lakebeds.

PUT IT TO OTHER USES. Someone took soft writing paper to the toilet. Someone took glue that wasn't very sticky and made post-it-notes. Someone took a water pump and made a whirlpool bath. Someone turned a computer into a portable Rolodex, entertainment center and gaming device.

ADAPT. Ideas don't have to be original to work. James Watt didn't build the first steam engine. He adapted the ideas of others for a more specific purpose. I have a friend who is building a business by adapting the common tape dispenser into a hands-free tool. Keep your eyes open and you'll see new ideas you can adapt to solve old problems.

SUBSTITUTE. In the early days of supermarket shopping everyone carried a shopping basket. In 1937, Sylvan Goldman put wheels and handles on the baskets and invented the shopping cart.

Can you substitute ingredients to come up with a new taste or mix? What if? What else? Why not?

SIMPLIFY. The Reader's Digest simplifies reading for millions around the world. Readers love the clear and concise format.

Generators and cordless tools simplified construction where no electricity is available. Ballpoint pens make writing easier. Computers simplify editing of text. What can you make easier to use?

I hope this system will help you create something new. I know I need something...so tell me what.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By MARTHA RUSSELL

There is something about the love of books that draws people together. You can have a lively conversation with a complete stranger about a book. You may be light-years apart in personality, politics, or experience, but a book can bring you to common ground. Even if you haven't read the same book or have totally different tastes in literature, the common love of a good read can bring about an instant comradeship.

We find that with our library patrons. You just have to feel akin somehow to the person who comes in just before a long weekend with a slightly wild look in her eye, almost desperate to be sure she has reading material to carry her until the library is open again.

Library staff becomes attached to these, especially the regulars, who come in at the same time each week to get their regular "fix" of mysteries, sci-fi, or nonfiction. And it doesn't take long to learn what certain patrons like.

When we lose a patron through death or moving, it affects the library staff. It's like losing a member of an extended family, and it leaves an empty spot.

I would like to begin to list those whom we miss; I would surely inadvertently miss listing someone. Robert Morgan, however, is representative of those whom we consider part of the "family" and will miss sorely. He and Rita have always come in on Monday nights. If they came in on another day, it would give us cause for questioning. What day is it anyway?

We could always count on

Robert to give LaJuan a bad time with the bell on the circulation desk. He had to ring it every time he came in, just to get a reaction from LaJuan. Of course, it was all in fun... and it was fun.

The Morgan family tells us that Robert died reading a book. How fitting. A voracious reader, he alone boosted the circulation statistics significantly, exchanging a stack of books at least once a week for a new stack of adventure.

It seems that we have lost several loyal patrons lately. They are missed and remembered.

The book sale, a smashing success last weekend, is still in progress in the Heritage Room in the basement of the library. Even though sales were brisk (hurricane force?), there are still hundreds, bunches, and gobs of books down there, for a mere dime or quarter.

Even if you have already been here and looked, you might want to come again. There are just too many treasures to see in one sweep of the tables.

Proceeds from the sale are used by the Friends of the Library to help out in ways that are not covered elsewhere. Friends are responsible for inaugurating our talking book and video collections, as well as spearheading the purchase of the video projector that many civic organizations and churches use each month.

Most recently, Friends purchased tables for us. These tables are used for organizational meetings, training for hospital staff and law enforcement, as well as the book sale and Summer Reading Club.

Over time, through setting up and taking down, a few of our tables have been damaged and replacements were badly needed. Friends to the rescue.

If you travel much and look at public libraries around the country, the Deaf Smith County Library can hold its own with most any of them. Our Friends of the Library group makes a significant contribution to that excellence, not only in monetary ways, but also in volunteer support and encouragement. We don't know what we would do without them.

Consider becoming a part today. Annual membership is only $3 per person and $6 per family. Drop by the library. We will be happy to help you.

Please note that we will be open Monday, Jan. 18, Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday. We will be open normal Monday hours from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m.

New books this week include One August Day by Charlotte Morgan, the story of five ordinary people going about ordinary lives on a seemingly ordinary day. While these Virginia folks go about their business, rain begins to fall. This is a rain that will turn this ordinary few hours into a nightmare, linking five otherwise diverse and disconnected lives forever. It is based on the Nelson County flash-flood of August 19, 1969, the remnants of Hurricane Camille.

In Rage Sleep, by C. W. Morton, doctors are stunned by a new anesthetic, Anaex. Patients who have been given this wonderful drug emerge very swiftly from the drug-induced haze that permits surgery. This has terrific implications for the Murphy Medical Center, whose patients are military officials and politicians - people who can't afford to be unconscious for too long.

When General Thurmond S. Boothby, the most powerful American on the Korean peninsula, underwent surgery, it was only a minor procedure. The only problem was that the anesthesiologist used a new wonder drug - Anaex.

As the already tense political and military situation escalates, Dr. Christopher Thorne begins to suspect that this may not be the medical miracle doctors once thought it was.

When he discovers others who are displaying violent behavior after exposure to Anaex, Dr. Thorne begins to think that it may be the wonder drug that will push the United States to the brink of war.

The River Midnight, by Lillian Nattel, is the story of the Polish town midwife, keeper of village secrets. Now pregnant, Misha will reveal to no one the identity of the father of her unborn child.

The Second Angel, by Philip Kerr, takes place in July 2060, the centennial of the Apollo 11 Moon walk. Earth has been devastated by plague, climatic changes and a new rampant virus. The only hope for its victims is an infusion of clean, uninfected blood. Clean blood now becomes the currency of choice. The Moon has become the "federal reserve" of blood banks, with an impenetrable security system designed by one man, who now has every reason to destroy it.

Acting on the most human of motives, revenge, he will take on the impossible. Unbeknownst to him, he will have help from a very strange source.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A while back, you printed a letter about the dangers of prostitution. I would appreciate the opportunity to tell my side of the story. I hope you will print my letter because your assessment was not accurate.

I am a 31-year-old woman with a bachelor's degree from a well-known university. I have been a sex worker for the last 14 years and am happy with my career. It burns me up when I read studies that say we are messed-up drug addicts who were abused as children or that we are at risk of getting beaten up or raped by our customers.

I do not deny that streetwalking is a difficult and stressful way to make a living, but not all prostitutes are streetwalkers. I work in a brothel in Nevada and would not trade my job for any other that I know of. I perform a valuable service that is legal in most counties in this state. Every woman who works out of our house gets checked by a doctor every week.

I have met some fascinating, successful, well-educated men through my profession. Many have been clients of mine for several years. I count among them doctors, lawyers, judges, college professors, politicians and business executives. I make enough money working only two weeks each month and can use the other two weeks to pursue my writing career and work toward a Ph.D.

Ann, there's a reason prostitution is called "the world's oldest profession," and it isn't going away. Instead of fighting it, we should decriminalize it everywhere. For a woman who needs to feed her children, the threat of abuse is insignificant compared with watching her babies starve before her eyes. Legal sex work makes it possible for all women to have safer, stress-free working conditions. You should endorse it.

Magdalene at Madam Kitty's
Dear Magdalene: I caught the significance of your name choice - from the Bible yet. It is obvious that you enjoy your work, and as I have said before, there always will be a market for what you are selling.

For many years, I have been in favor of legalizing your profession and have said so. But please do not try to persuade anyone that babies would starve if their mothers did not go into prostitution. There are many other options - government assistance is the best known. I won't go down the list of others, but no woman in America needs to sell her body to make a living - unless, of course, she wants to.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a male escort, working on my master's degree at a university in Washington, D.C. I take out women (usually my mother's age) and am well paid. There is no sex involved. These women simply need a decent-looking, well-dressed guy to take them to various social events at which they would feel ill at ease if not accompanied.

Very few friends know about my "moonlighting," which is the way I want it. I have met some interesting, intelligent women in my work, most of them widowed or divorced. Three of these women would like to marry me.

Marriage is out of the question. I am gay. Should I tell them? It would be easier than trying to make up reasons for my lack of interest. Yes or no, Ann? - Mr. X in D.C.

Dear Mr. X: No. A negative response to the marriage proposals is adequate. There is no need to go into detail about your personal life. Meanwhile, don't be ashamed of your part-time job. The older women are no doubt grateful for the company. And escorting them to social events is a lot easier than cleaning office buildings at night.

FARM & RANCH

HEREFORD BRAND • Sunday, January 17, 1999 • B7

Officials remain optimistic about ag's future Technology carries industry into new millennium

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Agriculture is doing a major backslide into the new millennium, but the head of the American Farm Bureau Federation is not panicking.

Dean Kleckner remains optimistic despite falling prices, bad weather, disease and fewer and fewer small farmers.

"The U.S. is still the No. 1 producer in the world. And with the help of technology, we're going to continue to go forward," Kleckner said as the nation's largest farming organization prepared for its 80th annual convention in Albuquerque this week. "We're never going to go back to the old days." There were plenty of reasons to be pessimistic in 1998. Excess supply in the pork industry sent prices plummeting, while the beef and poultry did not fare much better.

In fact, with the exception of dairy producers, farmers worldwide are experiencing a sort of recession, said Kleckner, an Iowa hog farmer.

"A world glut of farm products and lessened demand are keeping prices low," Kleckner said in an interview. "Pork is a complete disaster, but prices for major crops are low, too."

Dairy marketing order reform, farmland preservation and environmental challenges are among the many issues the 4.7-million-member Farm Bureau will tackle at the convention, which continues through Thursday.

Crop insurance reform is one of the major priorities for Kleckner. Farmers received nearly $3 billion in disaster relief last year.

Under the current system, farmers are paid from a federal disaster relief fund if their crops are destroyed by disease or bad weather. Kleckner, who wants the federal program privatized, said the money in the fund should be used to help farmers pay their insurance premiums.

Insurance should be based on the amount of income a farmer lost in a year, instead of the percentage of crops lost, and the fund should be expanded to cover livestock, he said.

Regulation is another area of concern for farmers because overregulation has driven many out of the business, Kleckner said.

"We need (regulations), but they ought to make sense and be done for the common good," he said. "They're causing farmers to throw their hands up in the air. The big farms can hire lawyers to deal with the legalese, but the small farmers say they can't keep on."

Regulation, particularly the Endangered Species Act, is a primary concern for farmers in the West, Kleckner said. He is urging the government to enlist farmers and ranchers to help design laws affecting agriculture.

"I think the government starts out with the mindset that ranchers and farmers are the enemies," he said. "(But) when it comes to growing plants and animals, who knows more than farmers?"

Lloyd honored by national weed science societies

Dr. Randy W. Lloyd, a senior technical service representative for American Cyanamid, and former Hereford resident recently received the Distinguished Achievement in Weed Science, Industry award presented by the North Central Weed Science Society.

This award recognizes individuals outstanding contributions to weed science.

Lloyd also received the Technical Service Award of Excellence from American Cyanamid, the highest award given by the company.

Both awards recognize Lloyds dedication and service to the weed science industry.

Lloyd is active in various aspects of the plant protection industry including: herbicide discovery, biopesticide research and field technical service; and is a regular guest lecturer for weed science classes.

He is the son of Robert and Elsie Lloyd of Hereford. He graduated from Adrian High School in 1978. He received his doctorate from Texas Tech University in 1988.

Lloyd is married to Joni Caroline and they have to children.

Sugar cane harvest slumps in aftermath of drought

This year's harvest is not looking too sweet for the state's $50 million sugar cane industry, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Dr. Bob Wiedenfield, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station agronomist in Weslaco, said harvest is behind and yield is down considerably, resulting in a $10 million loss.

"We've had three dry years in a row," he said. "You can't make a good sugar crop without a good water supply."

Wiedenfield said in a normal season the yield is 33 tons of cane per acre but this year yield is down to 29 tons per acre.

Norman Rozeff, agronomist with the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers Inc. in Santa Rosa, said the water levels along the Rio Grande River haven't changed much despite the large amount of rain the Valley received this fall.

"The fall rains came at the worst possible time," he said. "We normally begin harvesting in the second week of September, but harvest was delayed until the end of November."

Rozeff said sugar quality is very low due to those untimely rains. He said the cane was dry throughout the summer, and the moisture in September caused the cane to start growing vegetatively again instead of building sugar.

"Usually we have about 10 percent sugar content in the cane," he said. "This year we only have 7 percent."

Fall rains also prevented planting of sugar cane for next season.

"We only have 2,800 acres planted for next year," Rozeff said. "That's low compared to the usual 6,000 to 10,000 acres." Sugar cane's growing season is 12 months long and requires more water than most crops grown in the Valley.

Rozeff said the cane needs 43 inches of rainfall and irrigation during the growing season.

"In a normal year, we have 24 inches of rain and the other 19 inches comes from irrigation," he said. "Of course we didn't have nearly that much rain this year and four of the water districts ran out of water in early July, so we had some cane sitting dry for two months."

Despite the first eight months of the year being the driest on record, Rozeff doesn't expect to see many sugar cane producers switching to other crops.

Los Angeles feels the sting of killer bees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Killer bees have colonized most of Los Angeles County, according to the county's agricultural chief.

The area colonized by Africanized honey bees covers 1,010 square miles, including 76 cities and 23 unincorporated areas, with the entire county to be declared colonized by the end of the year, said Cato Fiksdal, chief of the state Agriculture Department.

"The declaration of colonization does not really change anything but puts the county residents and agencies on a higher level of alert regarding the presence of the bees," he said.

The first known colony in the county was found in December in a Lawndale apartment building, about 16 miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

Five people are known to have died from killer bee stings nationwide, the last in April 1997 when a 72-year-old man was attacked at his mobile

"Farmers don't have a lot of options down here," he said. "Once you invest so much capital into a certain commodity, it's not easy to change."

In the Panhandle, freezing temperatures have slowed winter wheat growth.

Dr. Bob Robinson, district extension director in Amarillo, said general precipitation is needed for the dryland wheat crop and pastures in the region.

"Very little forage is available at this time," he said. "Cattle remain in good condition, but the cold weather has increased supplemental feeding."

Tony Douglas, district extension director in Overton, said soil moisture is adequate in East Texas.

"Winter forages have slowed with the freezing temperatures and permanent pastures are dormant," he said. "Hay feeding is in full swing, and cattle remain in good condition."

In the Coastal Bend, dry and sunny weather conditions have allowed some producers to begin land preparation. Lin Wilson, district extension director in Corpus Christi, said that while some fields have dried out, others are too wet to be worked.

"Row crops are behind due to previous rainfall," he said. "However, pastures are in fair shape with some ranchers supplemental feeding."

Wilson said some pecan trees are being pruned and planting of new peach trees began at the first of the year.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short to adequate. Cold temperatures, little precipitation. Wheat fair to good; growth has stopped due to cold temperatures, dryland crop needs rain. Range poor to fair; very little forage. Cattle fair to good; supplemental feeding.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short. Unseasonably warm weather. Precipitation needed. Wheat good. Pasture and ranges fair to good. Land preparation under way. Pecan harvest winding down.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture very short to short. Hard freezes and sub-zero wind chills. Cotton harvest complete; yields well below average. Wheat very poor to poor; suffering from lack of moisture. Livestock producers reporting dangerously low stock water.

Growers, gardeners, marketers present vegetable conference

Vegetable growers, market gardeners, and master gardeners are invited to attend the annual vegetable conference, beginning 8:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center.

"The conference will focus on sustainable vegetable production. It is an excellent chance for growers to update their production and marketing skills and gain new insight on the industry," said Dr. Roland Roberts, Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist.

The day's event will feature presentations and discussions by growers, researchers, vegetables specialists, scientists and agribusiness leaders.

Registration is $25, which includes a luncheon and admission to a trade show with commercial exhibits and educational displays.

Items to be discussed include:

- potato seed handling and treatments for maximum crop performance;
- growing and marketing specialty crops with strong market potential;
- precision vegetable culture;
- new potato and watermelon varieties;
- Integrated Pest Management and potato research at WTA&M;
- Texas Watermelon Project and other marketing opportunities;
- chile production on the High Plains;
- insect, disease and weed control options;
- drip irrigation for intensive vegetable production;
- the future of pest control products and current Texas pesticide laws and regulations;
- an update on labor regulations and legislation.

It's not unusual for people to travel from five states to attend the West Texas Vegetable Conference. Growers and crop advisors can earn continuing education credits, and certified master gardeners can earn six hours credit toward their vegetable specialty certification, Roberts said.

Conference sponsors include TAES, High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Deaf Smith County Extension Vegetable Development Committee, Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, Texas Tech and the Department of Agriculture.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

SENSATIONAL GATHERING ROOM

Many Interior Delights

A multitude of sensational window treatments give the home character, while maintaining a comfortable quality.

Plan number 7-714 is available on a basement or crawl space foundation. The basement stairs are under the stairs up to the bonus room, or if the crawl space is used, this area would become a storage closet or pantry. All W. D. Farmer plans include construction details for substituting brick, frame or stucco exterior finish. The plan includes 1,700 square feet of heated living space on the first floor and 383 square feet of space in the optional bonus room.

FEATURE HOMES

BY W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D.

A wide covered porch offset to one side on the front of this home provides entry to the formal foyer. A hallway creates a central hub for easy access throughout the house.

The dining room is accented by a tray ceiling and visually divided by columns. Alongside is the generous kitchen and family room which creates a sweeping unified space. One of many interior delights in this area is the island kitchen with angular sink counter. Walls of glass focus on this space and a fireplace is included near the doors to the rear terrace.

An open stairway leads up to the bonus room. This room allows many alternatives in home planning, and could be finished at a later date. The room includes a full bath and walk in closet, and could be used for a bed room for an older child, or as family needs change.

Nearby is a full laundry room and an additional closet for extra storage space.

The master suite is highlighted by a tray ceiling and windows that take in the outdoor panorama along with a door onto the private rear sun deck. Twin walk-in closets provide capacious storage. A large garden bath completes the suite.

Notice that all of the bed rooms are in a sleeping wing. However, the master suite is accessible from the rear hall only, providing an extra bit of privacy.

The family bed rooms are accessible from the front hall and each includes a full walk-in closet. There is a central full hall bath, for these rooms to share.

WB gets an upscale sitcom in Zoe, Duncan, Jack & Jane

Michael Rosenbaum, Selma Blair, Azura Skye and David Moscow (from left) star in Zoe, Duncan, Jack & Jane, premiering Sunday on The WB Network. The sitcom, with executive producer Michael Jacobs (Boy Meets World) at the helm, is geared toward teen-agers and young adults.

Zoe, Duncan, Jack & Jane is the clumsy title of a very promising new teen sitcom premiering Sunday, Jan. 17, on The WB Network.

Set in New York, the series follows four close friends in their late teens: Zoe Bean (Selma Blair), a wistful beauty; Duncan Milch (David Moscow), her lifelong chum; and their mutual friends, a pair of squabbling fraternal twins, Jack and Jane Cooper (Michael Rosenbaum, Azura Skye).

The show's pilot is smart and funny, with writing and acting that will appeal to both teen-agers and young adults, the network's core audience. But what is up with that unwieldy title, anyway? After all, the show was developed as the easy-to-remember Zoe Bean.

"It's actually kind of funny about the title," says executive producer Michael Jacobs, whose Boy Meets World is in its sixth season on ABC. "(The network) wanted the audience to realize that it was an ensemble piece about the four kids. So we said, 'You mean an ensemble like Seinfeld?' And they said, 'Let's just use all the names,' and we said, 'Fine.' All the characters are terrific and interestingly named.

"We have nothing against the name. It's a very nice name — and that's our public position," he says with a chuckle.

The show may be an ensemble piece, but the pilot episode tells us far more about Blair's character than the rest of the foursome. The story line has Zoe running into Columbia University dreamboat Montana Kennedy (guest star Scott Foley, Felicity) while waiting for a subway train.

The two strike up a nice conversation. As he leaves, Montana says something that is drowned out by his approaching train. Zoe thinks — hopes! — that he was asking her out. But to resolve the issue without asking Montana directly, Zoe is forced to take desperate action: She must befriend a classmate, Montana's sister, Breeny (Sara Rue).

And Breeny — the show's most audacious and risky character — is literally hell on wheels. She uses a wheelchair and exploits her disability to wreak terror on the dodge-ball court.

"Frankly, we don't know what to expect — the fact that she is a featured character, she's in a wheelchair and she's not a pat character. This is an angry person," Jacobs says.

"We think Breeny is a terrific character. When we first pitched the idea ... the network didn't know whether we would be able to pull it off. Now it's one of their favorite characters."

Blair, who co-stars with Sarah Michelle Gellar (Buffy the Vampire Slayer) in an upcoming Dangerous Liaisons teen adaptation called Cruel Intentions, is a real winner as Zoe. She's insecure, but without the maddening mannerisms of the Felicity McBeals elsewhere on TV; think Neve Campbell but with a sense of humor.

Among her cast mates, Moscow — Tom Hanks' little alter ego in Big — is funny as Duncan, but he will be funnier when he refines the character from the broad strokes he uses in the pilot. Both Rosenbaum and Skye, likewise, have presence to burn, leaving viewers wanting to learn more about Jack and Jane — and soon.

In short, Zoe, Duncan, Jack & Jane is fresh and full of promise, especially in this lackluster TV season. But the show will have to deliver on that promise quickly if it is to survive against its competition, a little show that Fox executives wisely did not decide to call Mulder & Scully.

TV PIPELINE

Q: Law & Order is one of the best shows on TV, but I have to say that Chris Noth's character of Mike Logan is sadly missed. Any hope that we may get him back on a regular basis? -N. Fitzsimmons, no address.

A: No, especially not while Dick Wolf is executive producer of L&O. Both men have healthy egos, and Noth still is rankled at the way Wolf handled his departure from the show.

For the record, Noth says he was ready to leave - he was tired of the series grind - but had hoped to make a joint announcement with Wolf, who simply issued a terse statement that Noth's contract was not being renewed.

While NBC would love Noth to do more Mike Logan vehicles like Exiled: A Law & Order Movie, which aired in November, the actor bitterly fought against Wolf being put in charge of that project and has hinted that he won't do any more of the movies if it means he has to work with Wolf.

Q: I know that I have seen actor William Ragsdale (Brother's Keeper) somewhere before, but where? He is gorgeous! -Valerie Winters, San Francisco.

A: Ragsdale, 37, has a number of TV and movie credits, but he probably is best known as Herman Brooks in the raunchy Fox sitcom Herman's Head. He also played Dan, Ellen Morgan's pizza-delivering boyfriend, in Ellen, and he starred in the cult-hit horror comedy Fright Night and its less successful sequel.

Q: Was Roddy McDowall ever in a weekly TV series back in the late '60s? I could swear I remember him on one, but my husband insists I am thinking of the guy who played Wilbur on Mister Ed. -Kathy Dees, Buedingen, Germany.

Chris Noth

A: Sorry, Kathy. The perennially boyish McDowall, who died of cancer in October, made his TV series debut in 1974's Planet of the Apes TV adaptation on CBS, although he had appeared in TV movies before then.

Perhaps you were, indeed, thinking of Alan Young in Mister Ed, which ran in the 1960s.

Q: I've noticed Tom Bosley and William Schallert on several life insurance commercials recently. I could have sworn these veteran actors both died in recent years, or am I mistaken? -T.B., Mooresville, N.C.

A: Happily, you are mistaken. As of this writing, Bosley, 71, and Schallert, 76, are still very much with us.

Q: Who played the private eye Boston Blackie in the 1950s TV series? -Bill and Don, Fontana, Calif.

A: Kent Taylor played the title role in Boston Blackie, which aired via syndication from 1951 to 1953.

PBS' Living Edens takes viewers to an icy paradise

It's not the Georgia Ray Charles sings about, but the subject of the latest installment of The Living Edens will certainly stay on your mind.

"South Georgia Island: Paradise of Ice" airs Wednesday, Jan. 20, on PBS (check local listings) and features narration by Avery Brooks (Star Trek: Deep Space Nine) and music (principally cello) by Emmy winner Laura Karpman.

Situated in the Atlantic a thousand miles east of South America's southern tip, South Georgia is a nursery for the Antarctic, hospitable only in comparison to the frozen continent. Here birds and marine mammals in the millions come each year to bear their young.

Yet the island surely is an Eden, as the series claims. Pristine and starkly beautiful, its hundred-mile length is marked by sheer rock faces reminiscent of Everest, creeping glaciers, and in summer, brown beaches and a few marshy pools where insects thrive.

King penguins live here year-round, leaving their chicks in huge huddles while parents fish to keep them fed all winter. Even in the summer nesting season, an exposed egg can freeze.

The wandering albatross stays through winter, too, leaving solitary chicks to wait for days at a time in 100-mile winds while parents hunt for food.

In the brief summer, the multitudes come: macaroni and Gentoo penguins, snow petrels, skua, ducks, sooty albatrosses, and elephant and southern fur seals. All claim a place on the beach, on the rocks or in nesting burrows, where they can breed and tend the young, many of which spend a year or more in their parents' care.

Autumn storms come crashing, and the waves are red with the blood of penguins hurled against rocks in their struggle to reach the chicks on shore.

Some of the show's most remarkable creatures are not seen until the closing credits run. These are the camera crews who visited South Georgia for a full year to photograph grand vistas, mating rituals and young of all kinds emerging into a cruelly cold world.

SOAP WORLD

Finally Another World fans have a reason to rejoice. Alice Barrett-Mitchell, who played Frankie Frame Winthrop from 1989-1996, is returning to the show.

"We are thrilled to have Alice back on AW," executive producer Chris Goutman says. "As Frankie she was much loved and has been sorely missed. I know the fans will be as excited about her return as we are."

Barrett-Mitchell has been doing prime-time guest spots and theater since leaving AW.

"I look forward to working with my friends again," she says. "You can go home again."

In other news: Alli Fowler on AW suffers from aging-child syndrome. Alicia Leigh Willis now plays the character.

"The character of Alli returns to Bay City as a teen-ager in full bloom," Goutman says. "From the moment Alli arrives, she attempts to protect her mother from her usual mistakes with men and ultimately will threaten to rock the foundation of Amanda's relationship with Cameron."

Dear Candace: Is Lisa Rinna (Billie, Days of Our Lives) now on Port Charles? I thought I saw her today. -Soap fan, White River Junction, Vt.

Dear Reader: No, it isn't Rinna. You may have her confused with Julie Pinson, who plays Eve on Port Charles. They look a lot alike.

Dear Candace: I hate Alice (Tamara Clatterback) on The Young and the Restless. How can she play such a vixen and treat her mother like dirt? I think she is terrible. What was Bill Bell thinking? -Darryl, Canada.

Dear Reader: Alice is a character with whom few people sympathize. Viewers are supposed to hate her.

Dear Candace: I would like to know what became of Jean LeClerc, who played Jeremy on All My Children and Loving. -Rhona Reh, Hillsdale, Mich.

Dear Reader: For the past few years, LeClerc has been performing in theater, and he has done some prime-time television in Canada and the United States.
