EASTER SHOPPING

Retail merchants preparing for one of their busiest, most profitable seasons

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Retail merchants throughout the area are preparing for one of the busiest and most profitable of all holiday seasons - Easter.

In just nine days, most residents will celebrate Easter, one way or another. Some will go shopping for new clothes; some will purchase

"We've just gotten our Easter lilies in... We'll put them out this week and, hopefully, that will get people thinking about the rest of the things that go with Easter."
David Jorgenson

goodies to fill the multi-colored baskets; and some will buy special cards, books, and keepsakes for their loved ones; some will enjoy a plain old home cooked meal.

Regardless of how people celebrate the season, merchants still expect the Easter shopping season to show strong profits.

Easter shopping usually lasts only a week or two, compared with the extended Christmas shopping. Many managers think that day for day, revenue from Easter shoppers compares favorably with that of Christmas.

"We've just gotten our Easter lilies in today," Alco manager David Jorgenson said. "We'll put them out this week and, hopefully, that will get people thinking about the rest of the things that go with Easter."

"We'll probably have the most sales this weekend and next week," he said. "I was really glad to see we received some inspirational books.

Brand/Dianna F. Dandridge

Easter is a good time to brighten up wardrobes and many customers, like Elma Ruiz (center) enjoy taking younger family members shopping to see what they would like in the form of spring clothes. Ruiz recently took her niece, April Losolla, to Beall's, where Diane Castillo showed them some new spring fashions. The Easter season will begin Sunday with Palm Sunday observances.

Hopefully, next year the corporate office will order Bibles."

Other stores began displaying Easter baskets, stuffed rabbits, chocolate bunnies, and jelly bird eggs shortly after Valentine's Day.

Many retail merchants get corporate directives telling them when and where to set up holiday displays. Others, get more of a free rein and choose to set up holiday items early enough to catch the earliest of shoppers.

It's not just the department type stores which will do a brisk business, but also the grocery stores.

Eggs, of course are a must, not only for boiling and dyeing, but also for the dishes that go with the Easter ham.

"We've haven't seen a lot of Easter dinner shoppers yet," said Pedro Dominguez, manager of B&R Thriftway on McKinley Street. "But beginning next week, we'll probably see a lot more coming in."

Most grocery stores, like other merchants will be offering the traditional hams, asparagus, olives and other treats.

As a businessman, Jorgenson enjoys the added volume due to any holiday, but with Easter he said he would like for his customers to remember that the holiday is about Jesus' death and resurrection.

Yugoslavia "still has forces out in the field and, to be candid, of even more concern are the so-called paramilitary forces, including gangs of hardened criminals which have in the past and are apparently now being employed in ethnic cleansing operations against the Kosovar Albanian population."
Gen. Wesley Clark, NATO commander

NATO: Attacks damage military

WASHINGTON (AP) — NATO forces have seriously damaged Yugoslavia's military, but Serb forces including paramilitary "ethnic cleansing" bands remain in Kosovo and continue to kill and persecute ethnic Albanians, top U.S. officials said today.

"We've taken down a substantial proportion" of Yugoslavia's air defenses and command and control assets, said U.S. Army Gen. Wesley Clark, supreme NATO military commander.

But Clark, speaking on NBC's "Today" show, said Yugoslavia "still has forces out in the field and, to be candid, of even more concern are the so-called paramilitary forces, including gangs of hardened criminals which have in the past and are apparently now being employed in ethnic cleansing operations against the Kosovar Albanian population."

U.S. and allied forces have suffered no losses and encountered little resistance during two days of air attacks, Clark said.

But Serb military activity in Kosovo was intensifying despite the NATO attacks.

Clark, speaking from his headquarters in Brussels, said he had fully expected that Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic would step up aggression against ethnic Albanians, whose plight sparked the NATO action this week.

"This was entirely predictable at this stage," Clark said.

A third day of airstrikes would begin later today, Clark said, focused on further reducing Yugoslavia's formidable air defenses, which have, as yet, been withheld from the battle.

Ohio GOP leader spurns favorite son, backs Bush

"Let's face facts ... Moderates in Texas are more conservative than most people across the country. He's a conservative, Republican governor of Texas. That's real good conservative credentials for me and for most conservatives in the country."
Arshinkoff

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Gov. George W. Bush met with more supporters from around the country Thursday, and he left an Ohio county GOP leader saying Bush makes a better presidential candidate than his own state's favorite son, U.S. Rep. John Kasich.

"There's a favorite son candidate in Ohio ... but there are many party leaders as well as the rank-and-file party members who are eagerly awaiting the Bush campaign taking off in Ohio," said Alex R. Arshinkoff, GOP chairman in Summit County.

"John's a great guy, but there hasn't been a congressman elected to statewide office since 1936 in Ohio, so it's going to be pretty difficult to go from Congress directly to the presidency," Arshinkoff said.

The county chairman said he thinks Bush can win the White House back after President Clinton's two terms.

"I happen to think George Bush can win," he said. "I'm a county chairman. I don't like being out-

Campaign 2000

Being in is good. We need a president that can win."

Kasich spokesman Todd Harris countered, "I'm sure if we looked across Texas, we'd find people who support John."

Arshinkoff also said he wasn't worried by criticism that Bush's "compassionate conservatism" might not be enough for some Republicans.

and for most conservatives in the country."

Bush presidential exploratory committee spokeswoman Mindy Tucker said the governor had lunch with about 30 elected and party officials from Massachusetts, Maryland, Ohio and California. Bush didn't speak with reporters after the session.

Also at the luncheon was California Assemblyman Bruce Thompson, who likened Bush's appeal to that of former president Ronald Reagan.

"This man is so down to earth, but yet polished and charismatic ... He just has the ability to communicate with people. Ronald Reagan had that same ability. I've not seen that until I saw it today in what the governor has to say," Thompson said. "He has it. He has what it takes."

First load of nuclear waste delivered

Big rig loaded with radioactive material arrives at nation's first nuclear depository

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — A big rig loaded with radioactive waste arrived today at the nation's first nuclear waste dump after a historic 270-mile journey through cheers, jeers and an attempted blockade.

The truck left Los Alamos National Laboratory in northern New Mexico and traveled south to the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant near Carlsbad, a 7 1/2-hour trip that followed a quarter-century of studies, protests and lawsuits.

"I'm ecstatic — this is just the culmination of everything I've worked for for 25 years," said Wendell Weart, a Sandia National Laboratories scientist who was instrumental in creating WIPP.

The nuclear waste was expected to be buried later today or Saturday after arriving at the plant early this morning.

The $1.8 billion facility is designed to gather contaminated material from military sites spread across the nation into a single depository carved out of ancient salt caverns nearly half a mile below ground.

An appellate court in Washington, D.C., and a federal judge in Santa Fe on Wednesday rejected last-ditch appeals from environmentalists who sought to scuttle the transfer.

The driver gave a thumbs-up as he left Los Alamos on Thursday evening, and a crowd of about 100 people cheered in response.

But down the road in Santa Fe, a hub of anti-WIPP sentiment, dozens of protesters lined the route holding up placards that read "Stop Nuke Trucks" and "Science or Science Fiction?"

William Beems, 42, of Albuquerque, was arrested after he tried to block the truck's path by parking his car across the roadway, said state Public Safety Secretary Darren White. An advance team of officers cleared the way.

The truck carried about 600 pounds of waste — plutonium-contaminated clothing, gloves, booties, filters, coveralls, plastic covers and metal cans. The waste was packed in boxes loaded in three specially designed stainless steel containers, each about 8 feet wide and 10 feet high.

Oil patch schools lose teacher positions

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — In what could become a pattern among oil patch school districts, Brownfield school officials have cut 17 teaching jobs because they expect lower oil prices to cut into their tax revenue.

"We have no recourse but to cut," said Debbie Roesler, business manager for the Brownfield Consolidated Independent School District, located about 30 miles southwest of Lubbock. "There's no place for us to go."

The district had already assumed a lean budget, Ms. Roesler said, but compounded by the loss of 180 students in two years — state aid is tied to enrollment — forced the district into another round of budget cuts.

"We've already cut the fat," Ms. Roesler told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "I really think now we're starting to cut into the meat."

The district figures to save about $500,000 by cutting 17 probationary teachers, each with less than three years' experience, and six aide positions. Officials said they might have to rehire up to seven teachers in order to stay within state-required teacher-student ratios.

Brownfield's problems are expected to spread to other West Texas districts.

As oil prices have foundered, the number of active rigs hit an all-time low this year. When rigs shut down, the property where they sit loses value, which translates into fewer tax dollars for school districts.

State Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander has estimated that schools across the state will lose $154 million because of oil-related declines in property value.

Brownfield school board President Rusty Andrews said the cuts weren't easy to make.

"For those teachers it was not a matter of the quality of teaching because they were excellent teachers," he said. "It was strictly a matter of the budget."

The effect of oil-related revenue cuts will also be felt by students, officials said.

Extracurricular activities are likely to be restricted to within 60 miles of home, they said. Athletic or academic teams that qualify for area or state competitions might not be able to go.

"We're dropping all but what's mandated by law," said Ms. Roesler, who let her payroll clerk go. "I've been doing time cards at night."

Although oil prices are starting to recover, the rebound won't help anyone immediately, said Andrews, the school board president.

"It's a very serious problem that has to be addressed long term," he said. "I think every district in Texas that has minerals and agriculture sees that."

Lawmakers question fund shifting plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposal to shift $400 million from the Texas Workers Compensation Fund into the state's general revenue fund, where it could be spent on education, prisons and a variety of others issues, may not be feasible according to some lawmakers.

Rep. Bill Siebert, R-San Antonio, filed a bill — at the request of Gov. George W. Bush — to take millions from the fund, which sells insurance to Texas employers to cover their workers' on-the-job injuries.

"As a matter of public policy it makes sense for the Legislature to decide what public purpose this large surplus should be used for," said Bush's spokeswoman Linda Edwards.

According to the Department of Insurance, the fund, an insurer of last resort for companies that couldn't obtain or afford private workers' compensation policies, currently has about $800 million, but only needs half that.

If there's extra money in the fund, it should go back to the employers that paid for it, said Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

"My initial reaction is if we have a surplus in funds, in the insurance fund, that one, the funds should lower its rates or refund the moneys back to the employers," he said.

Junell said he was among the lawmakers who voted to start the fund. "It was never conceived that we would take that money," he said.

Bush's proposal comes as he continues to push for $2 billion in property tax cuts, along with business and consumer tax cuts. Legislative budget writers have said there may not be enough money available to pay for all those tax cuts and fund other programs as well.

"I think it is a ridiculous and a terrible effort to take money that it allotted to injured workers to save a tax cut proposal," said Rep. Kevin Bailey, D-Houston, head of the Legislative Study Group.

The funds could go to cover more workers or rebate money to employers, but "to steal from the workers in order to save this tax bill is shameful," he said.

The governor's office said the property tax cuts didn't motivate the proposal.

"There is adequate funding available for the governor's tax cut as proven by the governor's budget that he submitted to the Legislature," Ms. Edwards said.

Representatives of the Texas AFL-CIO criticized the bill, saying it would harm injured workers and Texas businesses.

"This measure would cut the pool of funds available for worker benefits, place upward pressure on premiums and line the pockets of private insurers," said AFL-CIO President Joe Gunn.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A friend sent me these tips for losing weight, and I want to pass them along to your readers. I thought they were hilarious.

Faithful Fan in San Diego

Dear San Diego: I did, too. In fact, I printed something similar several years ago, but your list is better. Remember: Stressed Spelled Backward Is Desserts

1. If you eat something, and no one sees you eat it, it has no calories.

2. If you drink a diet soda with a candy bar, the calories in the candy bar are canceled out by the diet soda fizz.

3. When you eat with someone else, calories don't count if you do not eat more than he or she does.

4. Foods used for medicinal purposes, such as hot chocolate, brandy, toast and Sara Lee banana cake, NEVER count.

5. If you fatten up everyone else around you, you will look thinner.

6. Movie-related foods do not have additional calories because they are part of the entertainment package and not part of one's personal fuel. Some examples: Milk Duds, buttered popcorn, Junior Mints, Red Hots and Tootsie Rolls.

7. Cookie pieces contain no calories. The process of breaking causes calorie leakage.

8. Things licked off knives and spoons have no calories if you are in the process of preparing something.

9. Foods that have the same color have the same number of calories. Example: spinach and pistachio ice cream.

10. Chocolate is a universal color and may be substituted for any other food color.

11. Anything consumed while standing has no calories. This is due to gravity and the density of the caloric mass.

12. Anything consumed from someone else's plate has no calories since the calories rightfully belong to the other person and will cling to his or her plate.

might like it for your stupid-crook collection. — J.T., Evergreen, Colo.

Dear J.T.: Thanks for your contribution. Here's the story:

A sheriff's deputy found a bank robber's note in a dry cleaning customer's pants pocket. The note read, "Put the money in the bag and don't say a word or I will kill you." The note was traced to one of three suspects in the robbery of a local bank and nailed the case.

Dear Ann Landers: Nine years ago, I found a litter of pups that appeared to be about a month old. They were in pretty sad shape. I gave five pups to a friend, kept the runt of the litter and named her Jessica. I fed her with a teaspoon every two hours around the clock, and she survived.

Last year, I had to have a pacemaker installed, but it malfunctioned, and I needed an operation to replace it. I was transferred to another hospital, and when I awoke, Jessica was at my feet. My doctor had brought her to aid in my recovery.

Little did I know nine years ago, when I fought to save that little dog's life, that the day would come when she would save mine. — M.M., Ree Heights, S.D.

FELLOWSHIP

OF BELIEVERS

This Sunday marks the beginning of Holy Week. Some liturgical guides call this "The Sunday of the Passion." Passion being the deep and intense suffering-love of Jesus that is anticipated by the church.

This is also Palm Sunday - the day of Jesus' so-called triumphal (on a donkey?) entry into the big city. FOB's gathered worship will, therefore, begin with a processional hymn led by the children carrying and waving the traditional palm branches.

The pastor, Nathan L. Stone, Ph.D., will guide the expression of worship (10:30) from the festive, Jesus-parade to the somber and quiet reality of the Friday that is called "good." This homiletical excursion into Holy Week will be entitled, "Palm Sunday - Good (?) Friday." The suggested texts are Matthew 21:1-11 and 26:14-27:66.

On Good Friday, April 2, at 7 p.m., FOB will once again serve popcorn in the foyer. The movie for this holy day will be, "Cry, The Beloved Country" (starring James Earl Jones and Richard Harris). This is the heart-rending story that chronicles racial divisiveness (and its roots) in South Africa of 1946. The movie is based on Alan Paton's celebrated novel by the same name. The movie (1995) is a timely film for any discussion on reconciliation and redemption. Popcorn and other refreshments will be served beginning at 6:45. A brief discussion will follow.

FOB is a non-exclusive, interdenominational and independent church that seeks to be innovative, refreshing and unorthodox.

The church building is located at 245 N. Kingwood. The human church is wherever FOBers play, sleep, eat, drink, hug, work, mow the lawn, wash the car, pet their cats and dogs, shop for groceries, and read their Hereford Brand.

A supervised nursery is available at all services.

ST. ANTHONY'S

CATHOLIC CHURCH

This Sunday, for Catholics, is the Sixth Sunday of Lent, also known as Palm or Passion Sunday when the RCIA and Youth are having Days of Renewal.

Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. the Chrim Mass in Amarillo at the Cathedral will hear priests from the Diocese renew their vows of service and commitment to the church.

Holy Week services at St. Anthony's are 7:30 p.m. each evening on Holy Thursday, Good Friday and Holy Saturday (Easter Vigil).

All are invited to worship with our newest members of the faith and with those returning to complete their Sacraments of Confirmation and First Eucharist. Some are celebrating the fact that their marriages are now blessed by the church.

Please come share our joy. Easter Sunday services are at 9.

Alter servers training will begin on Wednesday, April 7 at 3:45 p.m. All parishioners in the 4th grade and above are invited to join the ranks of the servers at the altar.

Easter baskets are being collected at the rectory for the Easter Baskets to Shut-ins Project.

Karnival Krazy will be April 18. Items are needed for the Country Store. Call Laurie Paetzold at 364-1961 if you have something - anything - to donate. Top sellers in the past have been handmade quilts and cross-stitching, bedding plants and bulbs, and baked goods.

Evening activities begin with Discipleship Training at 5:45. John Curtis is going through John 1, 2 and 3. Team KIDS, for children in first through sixth grades, is also at 5:45. Beverly Curtis and Paula Eubanks are working with these children.

Our evening worship is at 7. The pastor will again bring the message.

Wednesday at 7 p.m. is our prayer meeting. After the prayer session we are studying the book of Galatians.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

The anthem, "Hosanna to the King" will be sung by the Children's Choir.

Confirmation Sunday will be the focus of worship services, preceded by a prayer vigil for confirmands, their families and sponsors on Saturday.

Sunday services will be followed by a church-wide covered dish luncheon. The meal will end with a dessert sale and auction benefiting Spirit Wind, and a children's Easter egg hunt.

Maudy Thursday services will be at 7 p.m., including the service of Holy Communion and the re-enactment of Passover "Seder" meal. Members need to RSVP if they plan to participate in the Passover meal.

Easter will be celebrated at a 7 a.m. Sunday service in the King's Manor gazebo. Morning services are also planned at 8:30 and 10:45.

This adventure is for every man, woman, and child - all participating together. For more details on the material, stop by the office of the Church of the Nazarene. FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS

FOB moves with churches around the world toward crucifixion and resurrection. On this, the Fifth Sunday in Lent the lectionary invites us into the world of a dying Lazarus and his grieving family. There is a lot of crying in this text (John 11:1-45). Complementary texts may be found in Romans 8 and Psalm 130.

At the time of gathered worship (10:30), Dr. Nathan L. Stone, pastor, will explore the texts in a sermon entitled, "Jesus Wept - Lazarus Laughed!" (Eugene O'Neill). Jesus cries while Lazarus laughs: an interesting way to complete the Lenten journey.

In "Forum" (9:30) the group will continue its discussion of world religions and the notion of cultural and theological pluralism. Specifically, the forum will consider the question, "What Happens After We Die?" - as seen through the eyes of the five major religions of the world.

A very special Sunday school experience is available for the children at 9:30. Children must be sure to bring their questions and their sense of play and wonder. Holly Kirk will know what to do with those things.

FOB is a gathering of thinking, feeling, nurturing and welcoming Christians who value individuality, independence, generosity and a sense of humor. At FOB spirituality is pursued and cherished above orthodoxy.

The church building is located at 245 N. Kingwood. The real church is wherever FOBers work, sleep, play, hug, laugh, watch TV, eat and drink.

A supervised nursery is available at all services.

Battle at home

BRAND/Mauri Montgomery

No score — Monica Dominguez, a pitcher for the Lady Whiteface softball team, covers home plate and tags out a Borger runner earlier this year. The Lady Whitefaces, now 2-5 in loop play, are getting a break from district competition today when they face Lubbock Monterey in a non-league clash.

Purdue flourishes in its parade to the line

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The basketball season has been one long parade for No. 1-ranked Purdue — a parade to the free throw line.

To beat the Boilermakers, Louisiana Tech coach Leon Barmore says, that parade has to be stopped.

Purdue and Louisiana Tech will meet Friday night in the semifinals of the women's NCAA tournament Final Four, a game matching No. 1 seeds who have met once already this season and have long winning streaks.

The one that continues its streak will play for the national championship Sunday against the winner of Friday's first semifinal game between Duke and Georgia.

"I don't think I've seen a basketball team, men or women, that shoots more free throws than Purdue," Barmore said Thursday. "They dribble around until you foul them. If you don't foul them, they dribble around some more."

"They get to the foul line as well as any team that I've seen play," he said.

Purdue (32-1) has made 569 free throws, which is more than its opponents have attempted (495), and shoots 72.7 percent from the line. The Boilermakers' top three scorers, Stephanie White-McCarty, Ukari Figgs and Katie Douglas, all shoot at least 80 percent from the line.

And Purdue's advantage at the line has been even more pronounced in the NCAA tournament as the Boilermakers have run their winning streak to 30. Purdue has made 85-of-123 free throws in four games, its opponents 22-of-43.

Louisiana Tech (30-2) thrives on defensive pressure and has forced an average of 25 turnovers a game. The Lady Techsters' challenge Friday night will be to keep up that pressure — without fouling.

"It makes you become more focused because you don't want to go for the head fake," Tech's Monica Maxwell said. "You don't want to get in early foul trouble and let your team down because you're on the bench."

"They're very patient and they're very smart. They force you to play smart basketball or they're going to put you on the bench."

Louisiana Tech, making its 10th Final Four trip, has won 22 straight since a 71-65 loss to Purdue at Indianapolis on Dec. 19. And guess where Purdue had a big edge? The Boilermakers were 21-of-29 at the line in that game, Louisiana Tech 6-for-13.

Tech is playing much better now. Only one team has come closer than 14 points since that loss and the Lady Techsters have won their four NCAA tournament games by an average of 26.5 points.

"They're clicking on all cylinders right now," Purdue coach Carolyn Peck said. "Monica Maxwell has played extremely well. There's no

San Antonio rips Denver

Win marks third straight Spurs victory over hapless Nuggets

DENVER (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs bring out the worst in the Denver Nuggets.

After holding the Nuggets to a franchise-low 61 points less than two weeks ago, the Spurs added another black mark to Denver's record book with an 86-65 victory Thursday night.

The 65 points were the fewest Denver has ever scored at home, and the lopsided loss was the third by 20 points or more for the Nuggets this season. All three have come against the Spurs.

"Well, at least we're done with San Antonio for the year," Denver coach Mike D'Antoni said. "It's hard to point to one thing. It was a complete meltdown."

Tim Duncan scored 28 points and David Robinson added 12 points and 13 rebounds for the streaking Spurs, who have won nine straight against Denver and 12 of 13 overall.

Vainly trying to defend both

7-footers, the Nuggets had no answer for San Antonio's inside game. Denver shot 31 percent from the field and were outscored 44-20 in the paint.

"They're kind of undersized," Robinson said. "They start two forwards at 6-9 and then a center at 6-7, so there are tough matchups for them. They're athletic, but at the same time, it's hard shooting over 7-footers every time you turn around."

Antonio Daniels, playing through a bout with the flu, had 12 points off the bench to spark the Spurs, who have rebounded from their 6-8 start.

"I'm feeling a little bit better, but this cough is killing me," Daniels said. "This is the worst place to play if you're sick — the worst place, because even if you're healthy, you can't breathe. If you're sick, it's that much worse."

Antonio McDyess had 17 points and Nick Van Exel 16 to lead the Nuggets, whose previous low at home was 67 points against Detroit on Jan. 1, 1998.

The Spurs started slowly and fell behind by 11 points, but Duncan took advantage of his 3-inch height advantage over McDyess to hit 11-of-18 shots. He also converted 6-of-7 free throws and blocked three shots.

"I was feeling good early,"

Duncan said. "I was getting more aggressive, going in hard to draw some fouls and get some baskets."

The Nuggets trailed by 15 points at halftime and closed to 66-56 late in the third quarter, but the Spurs went on a 12-0 run over the final three minutes of the third and the first 2:33 of the fourth to pull away.

"I knew it was going to be a tough game because they've already beaten us by 30 twice," McDyess said.

Though little consolation, Denver avoided matching the 61 points it scored at San Antonio on March 13. The Spurs still won four games against the Nuggets by an average of 23 points.

Denver led 17-6 early, but San Antonio used an 18-5 run over the first and second quarter to go ahead for good.

The Spurs had nine straight field goals inside the paint during one stretch, made 15 of 21 shots and outscored Denver 37-20 in the second quarter to take a 55-40 lead into halftime.

The Nuggets, who were 5-of-16 in the second period, went nearly 19 minutes without scoring consecutive baskets.

helped carry the Lady Whitefaces to the Region I semifinals with an average of 14.1 points per outing and 4.7 rebounds.

Walker was also named to the Class 3-4A All-District team.

Cody Hodges (21) goes up for an under-handed layup against Pampa this year.

Mallon takes two-shot lead in Dinah Shore

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Meg Mallon, who has won 10 LPGA titles this decade, shot a 6-under-par 66 Thursday to take the Nabisco Dinah Shore first-round lead.

Mallon held a two-shot edge over Kris Tschetter after 18 holes of the women's first major of the year.

Defending champion Pat Hurst was in a group another shot back at 69. Hurst, six months pregnant, birdied the final hole to stay close to the lead.

Helen Alfredsson, the 1993 Dinah Shore champion, also was 3-under, along with Kelly Robbins and Janice Moodie.

Annika Sorenstam, the tour's Player of the Year three of the past four years but winless in her four 1999 starts, shot a 70 over the par-72, 6,460-yard Mission Hills Country Club course.

Karrie Webb got off to a slow start, shooting a 73 to immediately fall seven shots off the pace. Webb, the dominant player so far this year, has won three of her last four tournaments, including a victory at Phoenix last weekend.

Although she has 12 titles to her credit, Webb has never won a major event.

Si Re Pak also had a first-round 73. A 21-year-old from Korea who seems to be struggling after winning the LPGA Championship, U.S. Women's Open and two other titles last year as a rookie, Pak has missed the cut three times this year and not finished higher than 18th.

Mallon, 35, has won two majors in her career, but both those came in her best year, 1991. She won four times that year, including the LPGA Championship and the Open. She won twice in both 1993 and 1996, once last year, then took the Naples Memorial title earlier this year.

Mallon had a bogey-free tour at Mission Hills, with her accurate iron shots leaving her many birdie opportunities from 10 feet and closer.

"I just had one of those rounds," she said. "My iron play was perfect and I didn't miss a fairway. It was an absolutely perfect day for golf, overcast and not a breath of wind."

"I love this event and this course."

Tschetter, whose only tour win was in 1992, did all her scoring on the first eight holes, with an eagle, three birdies and a bogey. She settled for pars the rest of the way, but said that she wasn't disappointed. "Anytime you shoot a 68 in a major, you have to be happy," Tschetter said. "I just didn't do anything on the back."

Alfredsson, who finished in a third-place tie last year, knocked an 8-iron into the cup on the par-3, 141-yard No. 14 for her third career ace.

"It came in a critical situation," said Alfredsson, who three-putted from 45 feet for bogey on the second hole, then had 12 consecutive pars before the hole-in-one abruptly moved her to 1-under.

Alfredsson then birdied the next two holes, including making a 20-foot putt on No. 15, to move into contention.

other way I could describe her than an animal on the boards. She really has a nose for the ball."

Maxwell has averaged 13.3 points and 9.3 rebounds in the tournament. Amanda Wilson, a second-team All-American, is Tech's season leader in scoring (16.5) and rebounding (8.0).

"They're very quick, with the ball and without the ball," said White-McCarty, a unanimous All-American. "It's just going to come down to our communication and team defense. We have to get back in transition and we have to help each other out in the half-court."

White-McCarty, Figgs and Douglas make Purdue difficult to defend because all three can shoot, drive and pass. When teams commit too much in their direction, it frees up 6-foot-4 Camille Cooper, who scored a career-high 20 points in the Midwest Regional finals against Rutgers.

"I think they have a lot of fun working for each other," Peck said. "We don't have any selfish players. I think they have a lot of fun setting up opportunities for each other."

Barmore thinks so much of White-McCarty that he voted her his player of the year over Tennessee's Chamique Holdslaw.

"Playing point guard myself in college and high school, you can kind of relate," he said. "I can't relate to Wilt Chamberlain or Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. I respect what she does for her team."

"I respect that she took a team of less talent than say a Tennessee ... and she has them knocking on the door of a national championship."

'All Ed, all the time'

Logic would suggest that "EDtv" is mainly about someone named Ed. And something called TV.

Both have major roles in this bracing new comedy from director Ron Howard that probes the nature of fame. Ed, lovingly played by Matthew McConaughey, is a 30-ish videostore clerk who consents to let a cable channel televise him live, around the clock.

"All Ed, all the time" is the slogan for ratings-starved True TV, whose three-person video crew shadows Ed, broadcasting his life to an insatiable nation.

Swiftly, this redneck schmo who had lived obscurely with his family in San Francisco has become a celebrity hailed from coast to coast.

"I don't go to the bathroom until Ed goes to the bathroom," declares one hooked viewer, "because I don't want to miss anything."

If "EDtv" sounds familiar, no wonder. It arrives as the third in a video triptych of films released to theaters in the past nine months, including last summer's "The Truman Show" and last fall's "Pleasantville."

On paper, "EDtv" appears quite similar to "The Truman Show," which starred Jim Carrey as the hero of his own ongoing telecast. But the differences are legion: Truman lived in a studio mocked up as his hometown. Everyone around him was employed as his supporting players. And he knew none of this.

"The Truman Show" was a chillingly observed allegory, while "EDtv" is a lighthearted fable. And it's something else: an unapologetic romance.

Which brings us to the film's most delightful ingredient: Ed's girlfriend, Shari, a UPS driver who just wants a relationship and — God help her! — privacy. In this world of would-be stars, Shari is the lodestar, the modest but resolute conscience.

Shari neither wants to be on TV, nor does she belong there. After all, Ed's audience clamors for him to ditch her in favor of Jill (Elizabeth Hurley), a sexy actress angling to share Ed's prominence. (According to a newspaper poll, 71 percent of "EDtv" viewers feel Shari isn't good enough for Ed.)

A splendidly appealing character, Shari is played by Jenna Elfman, and she is nothing short of a revelation.

"EDtv" is showing at Movies 6

Like her or hate her on the ABC sitcom "Dharma & Greg," here you're in for a surprise. As Shari, a woman unsure of herself and even less sure of men, Elfman is fresh, natural, comic yet winsome. In "EDtv," Elfman proves herself to be an actress and a true original.

The rest of the cast is strong, too, especially Woody Harrelson as Ed's loutish, loopy brother, Ray.

"This could change things!" he tells Ed, insisting that the TV cameras are their key to fame and fortune. "How many chances do guys like you and I get?"

Unfortunately, fame has its downside. Now, when Ray cheats on Shari (who, as the film begins, is dating him), she witnesses his philandering on live TV. A bit later, she fights back, announcing to the "EDtv" viewership that Ray is a zero in the bedroom. This time, a horrified Ray is watching the show. Soon Shari and Ed have fallen in love.

Sally Kirkland is fine as the brothers' flighty mother, and Martin Landau is spot-on as their stepfather, an endearing kook confined to a wheelchair.

At the cable network, Ellen DeGeneres plays Cynthia, the program executive who hits on the idea of "EDtv." Rob Reiner is dandy as her egomaniacal boss.

Cameos abound. For instance, talk-show pundits seen denouncing "EDtv" include Harry Shearer, Michael Moore and George Plimpton, who sniffs at its "celebration of booberie."

The film's pacing is brisk, the production values classy (especially the lovely San Francisco scenes).

464 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Genesis intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times.

ABRAHAM'S BATTLE WITH THE FIVE KINGS
WITH A VERY SMALL FORCE AGAINST THOUSANDS, ABRAHAM HAS SURPRISED THE ENEMY AS THEY SLEEP AT NIGHT IN A VALLEY, ATTACKING ON BOTH SIDES, HE THROWS THEM INTO CONFUSION AND....

...BY MORNING THE ONLY ONES REMAINING, LIE DEAD AMIDST THE WRECKAGE OF THEIR CAMP....

THE CONFUSION TURNS INTO A ROUT, AS THEY SEEK TO ESCAPE THE SWORDS IN THE DARKNESS...

NOW THE BONDS OF SLAVERY ARE CUT FROM THE HAPPY PRISONERS!

AND SO LOT AND HIS FAMILY, ALONG WITH MANY OTHERS, ARE SET FREE BY HIS UNCLE ABRAHAM, WHO HAS DEFEATED A LARGE ARMY WITH ONLY A HANDFUL OF MEN BY USING HIS SMALL FORCE WITH THE UTMOST INTELLIGENCE, ALL OF WHICH HAS BEEN RECORDED IN THE BOOK OF GENESIS - CHAP. 14

Next Week A NEW STORY

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write.

Kosovo

From Page A1 Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, also on NBC, insisted the 19-member allied coalition against Yugoslavia remains united behind the air campaign — despite pressure from Italy to return to negotiations — and that Russia is more concerned with Serb intransigence than with the key U.S. role in a campaign against one of Moscow's traditional allies. Albright expressed concern about possible continued violence against U.S. embassies as a result of the strikes. "We are very concerned, obviously, about the security of our embassy personnel all over the world and we are taking all necessary precautions," Albright said. In a special satellite message beamed early today to the people of Serbia and Yugoslavia, President Clinton blamed the attacks on Milosevic. "Right now he's forcing your sons to keep fighting a senseless conflict that you did not ask for and that he could have prevented," Clinton said in the taped message. The nations of NATO, he said, tried to avert the conflict "through every means we knew to be available." Thursday night on CNN's "Larry King Live" program, Defense Secretary William Cohen, said the "targets that we were after we successfully hit." Cohen wouldn't reveal the targets. But defense officials said they included anti-missile batteries, command, control and communications sites, ammunition and fuel dumps, bases, barracks and other military structures across Yugoslavia — from near the capital of Belgrade to the Kosovo capital of Pristina to Montenegro, which with the state of Serbia makes up Yugoslavia. Hitting fuel dumps would slow Yugoslavia's tank corps, one official said, adding that NATO wouldn't strike tanks and troops directly until the U.S.-led alliance reached a much stronger attack phase. "We're not there yet," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity. NATO missiles and bombs hit more than 40 targets in the first night of bombing. Allied planes also shot down at least three MiG jet fighters and destroyed more on the ground. Thursday night, Tomahawk cruise missiles launched from Navy ships in the Adriatic and B-2s led the NATO attack. B-52 bombers, which took the lead Wednesday night, didn't fly on the second day to launch cruise missiles. Instead, jet fighters such as F-15s and F-16s, equipped with precision-guided munitions, dominated the air campaign, a defense official said. Clinton said crippling Milosevic's military could be achieved without ground troops. Sandy Berger, the president's national security adviser, laid out the new familiar choices for Milosevic: Make peace by agreeing to self rule for the ethnic Albanians in Kosovo and a 28,000-member NATO peacekeeping force or face NATO's growing wrath. Albright said there was no indication Milosevic was ready to talk peace. She said "diplomatic channels remain open," though the government in Belgrade announced Thursday it was cutting diplomatic ties with the United States, Britain, France and Germany.

Firefighters battle tunnel fire

CHAMONIX, France — Exhausted firefighters battled searing heat and poisonous smoke today in a tunnel under Western Europe's highest peak, searching through charred tractor-trailer trucks for victims of a blaze that killed at least 30 people. The 7-mile tunnel under Mont Blanc turned into an inferno two days ago, when the blaze broke out in a truck carrying flour and margarine.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS News roundup

Firefighters sprayed the area with coolant today, trying to bring down temperatures that reached 1,832 degrees Fahrenheit at one point in the tunnel. Clinton, GOP agree on issues, differ on details WASHINGTON — Tax relief. Bolstering Social Security and Medicare. More education and defense spending. President Clinton and Republicans in Congress emphasize the same issues in their budgets, but there's a wide chasm on major details. Despite intense partisan debate Thursday in Congress, lawmakers of both parties were optimistic some of the gaps can be bridged in this new era of budget surpluses.

A slight change can prove deadly for environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A temperature change of only a few degrees can disrupt a community of animals, according to a researcher who studied how hot and cold affects the delicate balance of starfish and mussels in Oregon's tidal waters. Eric Sanford of Oregon State University said his study, published today in the journal Science, suggests that if a key species in a community of animals is particularly sensitive to temperatures, a slight warming or cooling can start a whole cascade of rapid changes affecting every animal in an ecosystem. Sanford said in an interview that he found a 5-degree change in temperature is enough to change dramatically the feeding habits of the starfish, a five-armed creature that feeds mainly on mussels and is common along the Pacific coast of the United States. The finding, said Sanford, has important implications for understanding the effects of global warming. "Many people have assumed that the effects of climate change would be gradual," the researcher said in an interview. "But this shows that if an important species in a community is highly sensitive to temperature, then the effects of a small temperature change can happen rapidly." In his study, Sanford tracked the feeding patterns of starfish kept in the laboratory at different temperatures. He checked his results by manipulating the population of starfish and mussels in two areas along the Oregon coast. Sanford found that a temperature drop of 5 degrees caused the starfish to virtually stop feeding on the mussels. This allows the mussels to rapidly expand in population. Conversely, when the water temperature was increased by 5 degrees, Sanford said starfish went on a feeding binge, quickly reducing the population of mussels. Either way, he said, there are dramatic changes in the tidal community of animals. When mussels are not controlled by starfish, said Sanford, their population explodes. The mussels attach themselves to every surface in the near-shore tidal zone, crowding out barnacles, algae and other organisms. "If you take away the sea stars, then you go from an ecosystem with a diverse population of species to a system where there is essentially only one species," Sanford said. When starfish eat too much, he said, the reef-like mussel communities quickly start falling apart. These reefs, Sanford said, are homes for crab, sea cucumbers and worms, all important parts of the ecosystem.
