Vietnamese Family To Make Home Here

In 1966 Thai Lam Ha made his first visit to Muleshoe, Texas. At that time as a Lieutenant in the South Vietnamese Army, he said he wished to return to America. Little did he know that nine years later he would return with his family to establish a home in Muleshoe.

Thai Tam Ha and his family arrived in Muleshoe Thursday evening and are temporarily staying with their American sponsor, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Watson, before moving into a home of their own here.

Thai Tam Ha came to Muleshoe in 1966 as a guest of Don Watson while they were attending Associate Officers Career Course at Fort Benning, Georgia. Ha, along with another Vietnamese officer, Lt. Tung, spent two weeks in Muleshoe in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.A. Watson. While in Muleshoe they were made honorary citizens of Muleshoe. Two years later Lt. Tung died fighting in his country, but Thai Tam Ha continued to write to the Watsons.

Then for four years there was no contact between the Watsons and Lt. Thai.

About a month ago, the Watsons received a letter from Lt. Thai who was in a refugee camp with his family on Guam. The next letter they received, Thai was in Camp Pendleton.

The Howard Watsons applied for sponsorship of Thai and his family and finally through a lot of red tape, they were able to leave Camp Pendleton and come to Muleshoe.

In an interview with the Journal Friday morning, Thai said he was extremely happy to be back in Muleshoe and was most fortunate.

Thai is a liaison officer with the United States Defense Department Attache Office in Saigon at the time they fled Vietnam. Thai stated they were given a 15 minute notice to be evacuated from Saigon. He said that he and his family were some of the lucky ones as only those connected with the United States were able to leave, others had to stay behind.

Thai and his wife, Khanh Thi Nguyen, and their children, Vu Xuan Ha, age 5, Van Thuy Ha, 4, and Van Bich Ha, 2 years old, left Saigon on April 24. After leaving Saigon they went to the Philippines, Guam and to Camp Pendleton where they stayed for about 20 days.

Thai and his family will be welcome and vital additions to Muleshoe and are wished every success in adjusting to the American way of life.

U.S. To Stay World Leader Says Mahon

U.S. Representative George Mahon said here at a public reception Wednesday at the Muleshoe State Bank that "I actively supported the effort to override the Emergency Agriculture Act of 1975 feeling that while there were two sides to the issue, enactment of the legislation would tend to introduce some stability into agricultural markets and promote greater availability of credit for farmers. In addition, passage of the measure would serve to increase production, which would benefit both consumers and our national balance of trade. However my efforts to override the veto fell short of the needed votes. Secretary Butz, who urged the veto fell short of the needed votes. Secretary Butz, who urged the veto of the bill by the President, has now come forward with a statement seeking to assure farmers that the USDA would seek to be helpful should there be such a requirement due to failing commodity markets.

Administration has failed to accept the recommendation of USDA in this matter. Nevertheless, Congress will find some way to provide FmHA loan money.

When asked by the Journal if the desperate financial situation of New York City could make any impact on Congress, Mahon said the City of New York has gone so far in establishing a welfare state, that their pleas for help in Washington have fallen on deaf ears.

He added that if big spending is the answer, Utopia must just be around the corner. Non-essential spending programs should be eliminated, he said.

Mahan spoke at a noon luncheon Wednesday at the Catholic Center to members of Kiwanis, Rotary, Jaycees and Lions Clubs of Muleshoe. The luncheon was provided by women of St. Mary's Circle and Lions Club Ladies.

At the luncheon, Mahon was named an honorary citizen of Muleshoe by Muleshoe Mayor

Rural Okayed By House

AUSTIN -- State Representative Fred Head's bill to provide doctors for underserved small cities and rural areas successfully passed final reading in the Texas House of Representatives and now awaits approval from the Senate. "The bill gives adequate financial incentive to insure that underserved areas of Texas will have ready access to qualified medical care," explained Representative Head.

Currently, 17 counties in Texas have no medical doctor. Residents of those 17 counties must travel several hours to nearby cities in order to receive any medical attention.

Citing the most common hardships incurred by rural residents whose communities lack the services of a qualified doctor, Head stressed, "That means there is no one to take care of the child whose flu takes a serious turn for the worse in the middle of the night; or to set a broken limb; or even to deliver a baby who arrives a couple of weeks early."

The bill allows for medical students to receive a $100,000 monthly stipend after they sign a contract to serve in a rural area for at least four years after their graduation and residency.

In order to insure an adequate number of rural doctors in the future, the bill stipulates that at least 20 percent of each Texas medical school's new class must participate in the program.

Oil Price Controls

WASHINGTON—If a hostile foreign power wished to cripple our efforts to attain energy independence, it would be hard pressed to do more damage than the liberal majority in Congress already is doing.

America has become dangerously dependent on foreign sources of oil. We have to import about 40 per cent of the crude oil we use, and the $25 billion we have to pay OPEC to get it is depressing our economy, worsening inflation and wreaking havoc with our balance of payments.

What Congress should be doing to keep this bad situation from getting worse is to provide incentives to increase domestic production of energy, and to take measures to curb energy use.

But Congress instead has mounted an assault on common sense and elementary economics that began in March with the virtual repeal of the oil depletion allowance.

The result of THAT folly already is clear. Drilling activity in Texas and other oil producing states has dropped off sharply. Oil rigs which at this time last year were probing the earth for new sources of oil are standing idle. The major oil companies have announced sharp cutbacks in domestic exploration. The high risk capital needed to finance "wildcat" expeditions is drying up.

It is hard to imagine a blow more damaging to domestic oil production than the repeal of the depletion allowance, but Congress has come up with one: the Petroleum Price Increase Limitation Act of 1975.

Up until now, we have had a two-tier pricing system for domestic petroleum. While the price of "old" oil has been held artificially low, the price of "new" oil has been allowed to rise to freemarket levels. This two-tier system has introduced distortions into the oil market and has hampered development of energy resources.

In order to spur domestic production, President Ford plans a step-by-step reduction of controls on "old" oil. A recent federal study indicated that decontrol would increase our domestic oil recovery by 10 billion barrels per year, which would reduce the amount we would have to pay to OPEC by $8.5 billion per year.

But Congress seems determined to see that OPEC will get not only that $8.5 billion, but a lot more as well. The Petroleum Price Increase Limitation Act not only would bar the lifting of price controls from "old" oil, it would slap controls on "new" oil as well.

It follows logically that if controls on old oil limit production, controls on new oil will limit it further. It requires no great expertise in economics to see the relationship. But Congress, alas, has no great expertise in economics.

Cotton Herbicides In Wide Use

COLLEGE STATION -- Texas cotton farmers are continuing to rely more and more on herbicides (chemical weed killers) to take care of their weed problems.

In 1974 more than 89 percent of the state's cotton crop, or almost 4.4 million acres, were treated with one or more herbicide applications, reports Dr. Dave Weaver, cotton weed control specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Weaver surveyed county Extension agents in all the cotton-growing counties to obtain the data on herbicide use.

According to the survey, pre-plant type herbicides were used most widely, with almost 56 percent of the acreage receiving this type of treatment.

Cotton acreage treated with either preemergence or post-emergence herbicides varied only slightly, with preemergence herbicides used on 17 percent of the cotton and post-emergence herbicides, on 15.4 percent of the crop.

Herbicide use was highest in the South Plains where more than 1.9 million acres were treated. More than 650,000 acres were treated in the Rolling Plains, with just over 550,000 acres treated in North Central Texas. Almost 400,000 acres were treated in South Texas, primarily in the Rio Grande Valley and Coastal Bend.

In his survey Weaver also queried Extension agents on the "hardest - to - control" weeds in cotton. Forty-three different species of weeds were listed, with johnsongrass winning "hands down." Of the 163 county agents completing the survey, 136 of them pointed the finger at johnsongrass as hard-to-control included silverleaf nightshade, morning-glory and nutsedge.

"Due to the development of more effective herbicides and the high cost of farm labor, herbicide use in cotton will continue to increase," believes Weaver.

Pro - Tem Clarence Christian, Mahon, who has been a representative of the 19th Congressional District since 1934, recognized Mrs. Bonnie Haber of Earth, "the lady in the hat" as one of his old time friends in this area.

Mahan informed the assembled group that he hoped the hearings held throughout the state on natural gas priorities would have an effect on having adequate natural gas available for irrigation purposes. He also pointed out that agriculture at this time brings $20 billion back in exports to the United States. Any curb on agriculture exports would be a setback for this country and agriculture. He said that America's agriculture production is one of the marvels of the century.

The representative said "we cannot relax our efforts on the importation of water which is so vital to the production of food and fiber and commended the work done by Gov. Briscoe, and Bill Clayton, speaker of the House, on this project.

Mahan said that in a sense, the U.S. used Vietnam and did not fight to win, but fought with tied hands, and undoubtedly thousands of South Vietnamese in the next several years will be executed. "Over Vietnam," Mahon said, "we have a sense of lost pride, but that can be recovered."

Mahan explained that his greatest fear is in the mid-east area over events that would result in a confrontation between the U.S. and Russia.

He said, "we are not going to back off from being the world's leading power and I will do all I can to help keep the U.S. great, militarily. As a nation, our job is cut out for us and we are big enough to do it."

Mahan explained, "I cannot bring all the answers, but I can bring you a spirit of resolve and love of country."

LONG WAIT

SEVENOAKS, ENGLAND Mr. and Mrs. Harold Osborne were told they could have a bathroom installed in their subsidized council house if they paid 50 pence ($1.15) a week extra rent. Now, 18 years and almost 1,500 ($1,150) later, 69-year-old Mr. Osborne was told the job will be done in eight or nine months.

Not That!

Joe and Jim were in a speedboat racing across the bay at top speed, narrowly missing other boats in their path.

Finally, Jim confessed to Joe, who was at the wheel, that he got frightened every time they had one of their near-hits.

"Why don't you do what I do then, and you won't get frightened," answered Joe. "Just close your eyes."

I read the following little prayer and it is so simple, yet holds our every need from God. Maybe you will get a blessing from it as you read it also. "I know not when He sends the word that tells me feverent prayer is heard; I know it comes soon or late, my part is but to pray and wait. I know not if the blessings sought will come in just the guise I thought, I leave all care with Him above, whose will is always one of love."

TEXAS TALK

Crop Camels have heads but no humps. The term "Crop Camel" is used as a reference to any crop that gets along on little water but in this area is generally reserved for sorghum. Primary reason for the development of sorghum as a feed grain was because it provided essentially the same nutritive value as corn but had unique growing properties. Properties such as becoming practically dormant during a drought and then resuming growth as soon as water is available. Most common of the grain sorghum types are the kafirs and milos or a hybrid developed from the two varieties. According to authorities such as J. H. Martin, sorghum originated in east Africa with the kafir variety coming to the United States from South Africa in 1876. Milo followed in the early 1880's. Hybrid developments and farm improvements have moved average yield from under 20 bushels per acre in 1950 to a current average of close to 65 bushels.

Wallace On Foreign Policy

Alabama Governor George Wallace was interviewed recently by a group of foreign journalists; the effect on the journalists was negative concerning much Wallace said in the field of foreign affairs. One of Wallace's blast drew a rebuke from Moscow (which couldn't hurt Wallace politically).

Some American journalists, including Jim Kilpatrick, were apparently impressed by the Governor's remarks—as possible political assets. But in the foreign policy sphere, Wallace's shots were not always impressive to the informed.

That doesn't mean they won't win support for the crippled politician; they might. But Wallace's chastisement of West Germany, for example, was far from the mark. West Germany is the only country in Europe which has repeatedly helped the U.S., financially, in the last decade.

West Germans pay the cost of U.S. forces there. They buy much military equipment in this country to help the U.S. payments balance, often by fixed agreement. They support United States policy more consistently than any other European power. They also are our strongest ally economically and militarily on the continent.

Actually Wallace's basic tone toward former enemies Germany and Japan was friendly. In fact, he inferred we had fought the wrong people—that produced the retort from Moscow. (At the time these people, however, were led by aggressive, military adventurers.)

Wallace rapped Scandinavians for their criticism of U.S. policy in recent years—reminding them they were "mighty glad" when "we came over and saved you from the Germans" in World War II. (He apparently didn't know Sweden stayed out of the war, escaped German occupation, and was neutral during the war.)

Wallace said that as President he would do what was best for the United States, whether or not foreign countries approved. He would build up a great military force, etc.—so that America was the strongest nation in the world. He wouldn't trust the communists and wouldn't expect them to keep agreements, etc.

Columnists like Kilpatrick may be right in thinking this approach wows the little man, the average (uninformed) voter; with some, it may be heady stuff. But much of Wallace's approach oversimplifies the issues and the world situation itself. Wallace, one must conclude, is thinner in this field—foreign affairs—than is desirable. And he isn't likely to be elected, nationally, until his foreign policy is anchored in a sounder foundation.

NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

The Panama Canal-Sovereignty-Wallace's World-The Votes-

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Ford may soon be caught between recommendations from the State Department and opposing congressional sentiment on the question of maintaining U.S. sovereignty in the Panama Canal Zone.

In recent years Panamanian governments have fanned the Canal Zone sovereignty question into an emotional issue. At one time a few years ago, Washington was on the verge of giving in, but Congress was in no mood to give up U.S. sovereignty and then President Lyndon Johnson never sent such a proposal to the Hill.

Now the State Department is flirting with the same proposition. Should the U.S. give Panama sovereignty, retaining a commercial agreement to operate the canal? Hill sentiment is still against this because that would lay the foundation stone for an eventual seizure of the Canal Zone by some hot-headed Panamanian leader.

Senators and Congressmen opposed to giving up U.S. sovereignty have a good case. Panama has been paid handsomely for the Zone. The treaty gives the U.S. permanent possession. Of course, in today's world and at the U.N., many look askew at such treaties—wherein a big power maintains sovereignty in a foreign country.

But Britain, even with Labor governments, has hung on to the vital base at Gibraltar, in spite of agitation and bad feeling in Madrid, even "threats" a few years back. That precedent should guide Washington in this case.

The Canal is vital to U.S. security and Panama is not a stable country capable of defending it. There have been 44 Presidents in the last 70 years in this nation of only 1,500,000. To turn the Canal over to such a country would, in effect, be a reckless gesture to appease international public opinion.

Alabama Governor George Wallace's recent press conference on foreign affairs probably didn't cost him any votes in rural America. In fact, it might have won him a few.

On the other hand, his limited background and knowledge in diplomacy and history did show. And some feel he would be well advised to hire, and listen to, an experienced, highly informed expert in this area, if only to avoid slip-ups which reveal a sketchy background and understanding.

NEWS VIEWS

Robert C. Byrd, Senate Democratic Whip, comment on Mayaguez operation: "It worked. It will strengthen our prestige throughout the world."

Henry Kissinger, Secretary of State:

"The impact ought to be made clear that there are limits beyond which the United States cannot be pushed."

Leonid I. Brezhnev, Soviet Leader:

"The elimination of the hotbed of war in Indochina creates conditions for further improvement in the international atmosphere."

Casper W. Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, on Social Security hike:

"I fear this will add additional inflationary pressures to the economy and inflation."

George Wallace, Alabama Governor, on presidency:

"If I get involved, it will be because I think I have a chance to win."

L. Dean Brown, Ambassador, director of the President's refugee task force:

"If there are no widespread killings in South Vietnam, I believe we will see a large outflow back."

The Rebates

Tax rebate checks are now appearing in mail boxes all over the country. Designed to stimulate the economy, some 78,000,000 rebate checks are scheduled to have been mailed by the Treasury Department by June 15th (when another income tax payment comes due).

The tax rebate was a political as well as an economic reaction to the current recession by Congress. Rebates were limited to $200, so more people could get them and the wealthy wouldn't get more than the average citizen.

Perhaps this will prove a successful effort but one wonders how much the economy will be stimulated by a one-time $200 payment, which will probably go toward debts and bills in most families in a recession.

Since the cost to the Treasury may be as much as $18 billion, the rebates will be a primary cause of the heavy deficit for the current fiscal year—ending June 30th. That will, of course, add inflationary pressure to the economy, which is just now recovering (via recession) from ruinous inflation.

Only time will tell, but one suspects the tax rebates will have little effect on the economy and add much to inflationary pressure by unbalancing the budget. Congress, in an effort to do something quickly to combat the recession, threw taxpayers this tidbit, while continuing to spend excessively in other fields. The answer is probably not that simple.

David Hicks bought his M-C 600E10 Continuous Grain Dryer 6 or 7 years ago because he thought it would be a good investment. Has it worked out? Yes," says Dave and for a number of reasons. One reason is because he can start harvesting corn early, knowing that his dryer will handle the high moisture grain with no trouble. In this way, he gets all the crop he's raised because there are no field losses due to poor weather late in the season. How about maintenance? "I've had to replace one belt on the fan." How about grain condition and automatic moisture control? "Every time I sell corn, it tests just the way I expected it to," says Dave.

If you're considering a grain dryer, look at M-C—the Continuous Grain Dryer more farmers are buying every year. M-C Dryers are made in 14 models—Single Phase or Three Phase electric, or PTO for LP or Natural Gas. Capacities to 600 bu./hr. May we send you complete details?

EVERETT MAXWELL

Services Held Saturday For E. Maxwell

Everett Maxwell, 75, died Wednesday evening, May 28, in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. He had been a resident of the Mulshoe Nursing Home. A resident of Farwell for five years, he moved there from Lazbuddie. Maxwell was a retired school teacher.

Born August 10, 1899 in Witts Spring, Ark., he was a member of the Lazbuddie Church of Christ.

He taught in Arkansas schools from 1921 until 1958. From 1955 until 1958 he was superintendent of Pottsville, Arkansas Schools. He taught from 1958 until he retired in 1970 in the Lazbuddie School. Funeral services were held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday morning in the Lazbuddie Church of Christ. Andy Rogers, minister, and James Wilbanks, minister of the Farwell Church of Christ, officiated. Burial was in the Lazbuddie Cemetery under the direction of Singleton-Ellis Funeral Home.

The family requests memorials be made to the Lazbuddie Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife, Eddie; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Johnson of Santa Fe, N.M.; two sisters, Miss Emily Maxwell and Mrs. Estella Sims both of Conway, Ark.; two brothers, S.M. Maxwell of Lancaster, California, and W.P. Maxwell of Portland, Oregon.

Consider Milk-Fat Calves

COLLEGE STATION -- Milk-fat calves make excellent eating, and families may want to consider having one processed for the home freezer.

"Select a calf that is still nursing and weighs 400 to 600 pounds. The calf will be 7 to 9 months of age and still gaining weight rapidly, which improves the quality of the meat. It should be carrying as much fat as possible," says Woodrow W. Bailey, livestock and meat specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

It is recommended that a calf not be weaned and fed for 30 to 40 days. If a calf has not been eating feed while nursing it will take 30 days or more to regain weight loss in the weaning and learning-to-eat period, Bailey adds.

Calves will be available from ranchers, at livestock markets or from your local custom processor.

The calf should be processed in 3 to 5 days after slaughter, for it does not "age" well in coolers, cautions Bailey. There is not enough fat to prevent drying of outside lean.

A 500-pound calf will yield a carcass weighing about 330 pounds. The carcass should cut out about 240 pounds of retail cuts ready for storage in a home freezer. Most custom slaughter plants charge about $50 to slaughter, chill, cut, wrap and freeze for a home freezer.

Cuts from this size calf will be about half the size of heavy beef cuts. A T-bone or rib steak cut one-half to three-fourths of an inch thick is just about right for one serving.

"Beef from these young animals does not charcoal broil as well as heavy choice beef, but it is excellent for all other cooking methods. It is unsurpassed for pan-frying," Bailey adds.

For a chart showing yields of different cuts from a carcass, contact your local county Extension agent.

Power Of Attorney Can Be Handy Too!

COLLEGE STATION -- To meet financial obligations on time, power of attorney can be a handy tool, according to Lynn Bourland, family resource management specialist.

"Power of attorney is a simple method of authorizing another person to take care of necessary business matters. A retirement cruise or stay in the hospital are two examples of times when absence may cause a person to miss a bill payment," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

"This document -- as simple or as complex as needs require -- details every act the attorney-in-fact is allowed to perform. It should be drawn up by an attorney.

"In granting power of attorney, be careful in describing the powers given. This person becomes agent and attorney-in-fact to lawfully perform specific jobs such as paying all household bills or managing business matters for a limited period of time," she explained.

In Texas, powers of attorney are required to be acknowledged before a notary public and are frequently recorded in the general records of the county clerk.

A power of attorney may be specific -- authorizing a certain responsibility such as handling a house sale. Or it may be more general and comprehensive.

"A major advantage to Texans who consider giving a power of attorney is that while such powers automatically expire at death, current laws permit the power now given an agent to extend beyond a period of the grantor's physical or mental disability.

"This enables a person to avoid costly and time consuming problems resulting when elderly persons' affairs must be managed in a probate court guardianship. The power of attorney has now become a much more flexible tool for use in personal planning as one approaches retirement," she said.

Crop Insurance Reduces Farming Risk

COLLEGE STATION -- With all the violent weather that has plagued Texas farmers in recent weeks, more thought should be given to federal crop insurance, believes an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Federal crop insurance can reduce production risks for farmers as their costs continue to rise sharply," points out Dr. Wayne Hayenga. "Such insurance protects working capital committed to crop production."

Although crop insurance provides only limited coverage, it does cover out-of-pocket production costs in most cases, notes the Texas A&M University System specialist.

"About 90 percent of all federal crop insurance is of the 'all-risk' type," says Hayenga. "This type of insurance is available in 84 Texas counties from the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, with coverage limited to cotton, sorghum, corn, peanuts and citrus. Its main purpose is to protect farmers from a total crop failure. It covers losses, when unavoidable, due to adverse weather conditions such as drought, hail, high winds, floods and freezing temperatures. Unavoidable losses from insects and disease infestations are also covered."

The insured producer is usually guaranteed a specified yield. When the harvested yield is less than this, the shortage is covered at a price selected from a price options list before the growing season starts. Coverage usually ends at harvest time, points out the economist.

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

From Planting to Harvesting... Cattle on Feed Stays Again... Milk Production Declines... Cotton Production for 1974.

Texas agriculture during the last week in May is a many-contrasted thing. While farmers on the High Plains are in the midst of planting cotton, farmers in the Rio Grande Valley are making plans to harvest their crop in a short while. And as wheat harvest is ending in the south, harvest of the crop will soon begin in the northern areas.

The 1975 Texas wheat production is now estimated at 137,500,000 bushels, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Although this is down slightly from the earlier estimate, it still will be the largest crop on record. Yield is expected to average 25 bushels per acre, which is about a third more than last year.

Meanwhile, cotton planting over the state is about at the same level as a year ago. In the Lower Rio Grande Valley and Coastal Bend, early stands are squaring and setting fruit. Cotton harvest for 1975 should begin in June.

Sorghum planting is more than two-thirds complete. Stands are heading out from Central Texas to the Valley area. Prospects are good in those sections for at least a normal crop.

ALTHOUGH CATTLE FEEDING did show a slight increase a couple of months ago, that situation has reversed during April. As of May 1, there were 1,056,000 head of cattle and calves on feed in Texas. This is virtually 50 per cent below a year ago and five per cent under a month ago.

In the seven major feeding states--Texas, Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas--there were 5,589,000 cattle and calves on feed. This about the same as a month ago, but is 33 per cent less than a year ago.

APRIL MILK PRODUCTION throughout the state has declined three per cent from a year ago, but is slightly above the production of the previous month.

Milk production per cow averaged 835 pounds during April. Nationwide, milk production averaged 906 pounds per cow. Milk cows on farms are estimated to be down one half of one per cent from a year ago. The April milk-feed price ratio was one per cent below March, while the ratio was 10 per cent below a year ago.

JUST TO MAKE IT OFFICIAL, here is the latest count on the 1974 cotton crop. It is the smallest upland cotton crop produced in Texas since 1946. The 1974 crop totaled only 2,462,000 bales. This is only 53 per cent of the 1973 total.

Harvested acres are set at 4,400,000, down 15 per cent from the 1973 acreage. Yield per acre fell to only 269 pounds per acre; this compares with 431 pounds average production in 1973.

Indications for 1975 are that acreages will be down a million from 1974. The value of the 1974 crop is down 60 per cent from 1973. Cotton prices in 1974 averaged 35 cents per pound, compared with 46 cents per pound in 1973.

Cottonseed was an exception. That part of the cotton crop in 1974 averaged $120 per ton, which compares with the $93.50 per ton average in 1973.

Nationwide, the 1974 cotton crop is estimated at 11,540,100 bales; this is 11 per cent below the 1973 crop.

IN CASE YOU HAVE FORGOTTEN IT, you might be one of 24,000 Texas crop farmers who have received the 1975 crop questionnaire.

If you did receive one, be sure and fill it out promptly and return it as soon as possible.

The 1975 crop estimates for Texas will be made from those questionnaires.

TGSPB Slates Meeting

LUBBOCK--The Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board will conduct its regular bimonthly meeting beginning at 9:30 a.m. June 17 in the City National Bank of Plainview, according to board chairman C.C. "Pap" Reed of Kress.

Heading the list of agenda items will be discussion of recent Federal Power Commission hearings conducted in Lubbock, Albuquerque, N.M., Phoenix, Ariz. and Washington, D.C. The outcome of the ruling could ultimately decide the future of irrigated farming in the United States, according to informed observers.

Board representatives Nathan Boardman of Crosbyton, Larry Witten of Olton and K.B. Parish of Springlake, presented testimony during the Lubbock hearings concerning the necessity of natural gas for irrigation on the High Plains.

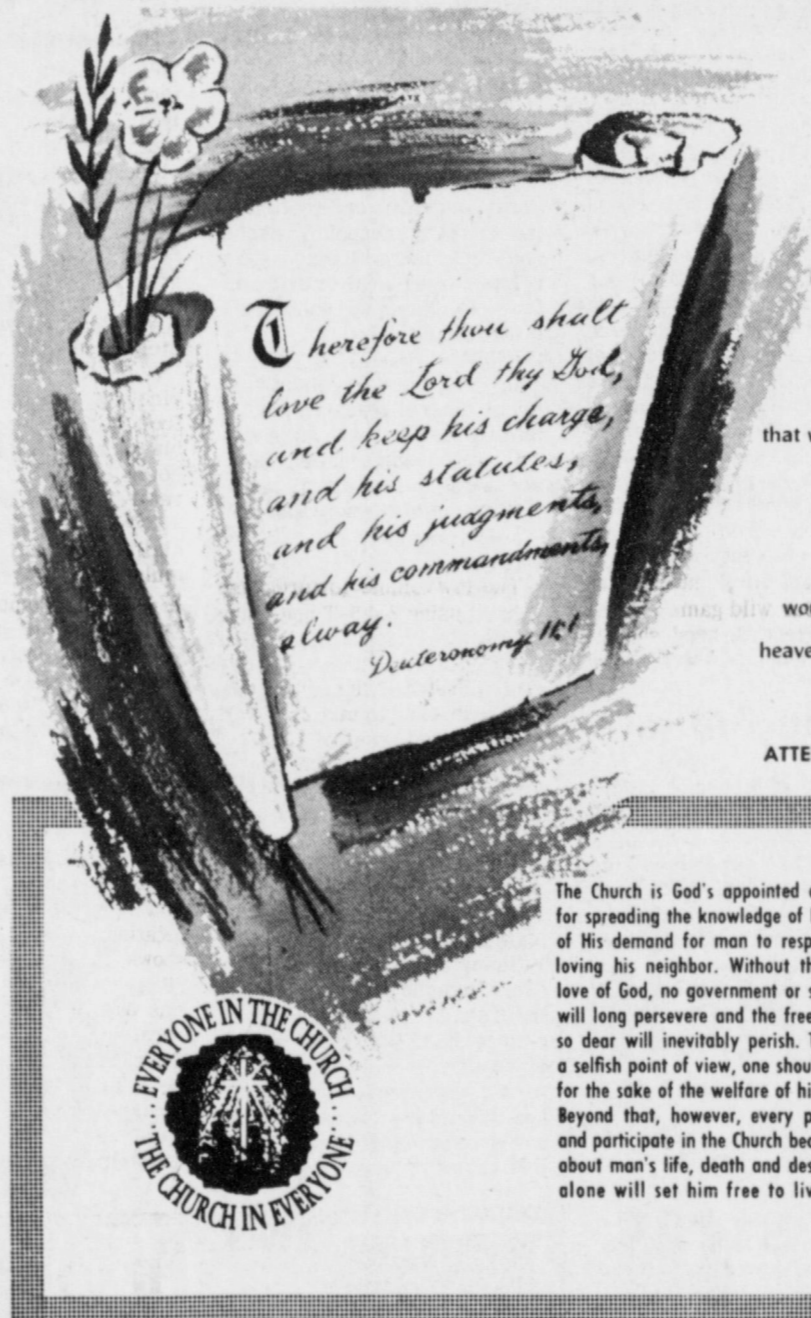

Elbert Harp, TGSPB executive director, will report on his recent trip to Eastern Europe where, in his role as chairman of the U.S. Feed Grains Council, he inspected council projects and promoted the use of American feed grains.

ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

GOD'S WILL

The greatest commandment is that we should love our God. This is a free choice that man has, but it is God's desire that all would seek Him. He is our heavenly Father, and desires only the best for us.

ATTEND CHURCH

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Brush Control Research Aimed At Saving Millions Of Acres

LUBBOCK -- Rangelands across Texas have supported some of the finest grasses in the country for livestock and wildlife for hundreds of years. Today, much of this land is literally being choked to death, overrun by mesquite, prickly pear and scrub brush of various sorts. Millions upon millions of acres in Texas are infested, about 56 million in fact. This includes open ranges, hill country, rolling plains and productive farmland.

A team of brush control scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station are working 14- to 16-hour days when weather allows on ranches and farms throughout the state to find effective and economical ways to reduce these infestations. Their research is the result of an expanded program started in 1968, based on needs expressed by ranchmen.

The team of scientists consists of six men from three research centers and satellite field stations. They include H. T. Wiedemann, John H. Brock, Bobby Cross, and Virgil Jones, all of Vernon, and C.H. Meadors of Spur.

They are led by Charles E. Fisher, a Lubbock-based scientist who has invested over 40 years in agricultural research. "Mesquite is probably our toughest target," Fisher says. "Roots of this species reach down in the earth over 30 feet to absorb moisture. That's why mesquite will thrive on land where little else will grow. Prickly pear is bad too, because its growth is prolific. Scrub brush of a hundred varieties also get to be a problem.

"We don't want to rid Texas of this plant life," he emphasizes. "Our wild game as well as our livestock need shelter and food, much of which comes from brush that some might consider useless. This plant growth also serves to hold the soil together and prevent erosion.

"What we do want to come up with though, are some effective and economical methods of controlling undesirable brush when land is overrun and made unproductive."

Ranchmen consider brush their main cattle problem, he notes. Choking out valuable grasses and providing a secret maze of hideaways for livestock, a jungle of mesquite and scrub brush can make efficient labor and management impossible on a large ranch. Cattle working that would take four hours in a cleared pasture could take up to two weeks in a brush-infested pasture and still leave cattle in the brush.

"Some Texas ranches are infested so thickly with brush that only the experienced eye of a veteran cowman can pick out a cow or a calf," says Fisher. "That land is often rendered unproductive."

The TAES brush control field team has gauged a variety of control measures, ranging from combinations of chemical spray, chaining and root plowing to roller chopping, discing and reseeding with a newly developed rangeland drill in efforts to come up with brush control techniques.

CHEMICAL CONTROL
In 1975, their results of chemical control research pointed toward distinct savings in diesel, water and aviation gasoline using a new aerial application method known as low volume-low pressure, Fisher reports.

The low volume-low pressure method using 2,4,5-T and other herbicides in aerial application resulted in reductions of 86 percent diesel and 78 percent water (both used to mix 2,4,5-T), and reduced use of aviation gasoline by 36 percent due to less flying time. In addition, use of the low volume-low pressure system increased acreage sprayed per hour by 42 percent over conventional methods, while maintaining effective plant kill.

The new low volume-low pressure method was approved by the Texas Department of Agriculture in 1973 and 1974, Fisher reports.

Low volume-low pressure has been used to spray brush and weeds on some one million acres of Texas rangeland and has been especially effective in controlling mesquite at six TAES tests on the Chaparras Ranch, La Pryor; 6666 Ranch, Guthrie; Pitchfork Ranch, Dickens; Waggoner Ranch, Vernon; Gene Whitehead Ranch, Menard; and McElroy Ranch, Crane.

The professor says research developments now underway indicate that plant kills of mesquite and other brush species have been increased by the combined effects of newly designed aerial spraying equipment, higher concentrations and specific gravity of the spray solution. This is without increasing costs or drift hazard, he adds.

"We found the highest deposition using aerial sprayed 2,4,5-T was with diesel oil-water emulsions. The method gave a minimum break-up of the spray solution," says the rangeland researcher.

Over a four-year period (1968-1972) in studies at 10 ranch locations in the western and southern areas of Texas, the brush control team found that various combinations of 2,4,5-T with herbicides provided effective plant kill with a half-pound rate. Using 2,4,5-T alone, 29 percent plant kill was obtained. A combination of 2,4,5-T and dicamba gave a 34 percent kill, while a combination of 2,4,5-T and picloram yielded 44 percent.

Picloram and 2,4,5-T combination also effectively controlled prickly pear, tasajillo, black brush, twisted acacia and some other brush species, the veteran researcher adds.

"Aerial applications of specially developed granular formulations of three herbicides is showing some promise for the control of mesquite and other brush where other herbicides cannot be used safely," he says. "However, further research is needed. The three new granular herbicides are still in the experimental stages."

Rainfall has a direct effect on chemical brush control, the research shows. A summary of results obtained at 97 ranch locations from 1949 to 1973 shows an average plant kill of 38 percent when the rainfall was one or more inches above normal in the eight months prior to aerial spraying with 2,4,5-T. Only five percent occurred when rainfall was as much as one inch below normal. Highest plant kills -- 77 percent at seven locations -- occurred when amount and distribution of rainfall was normal or above normal, though there were some exceptions. MECHANICAL CONTROL

"In mechanical control at costs varying from $1 to $5 per acre, a low-energy grubber has been highly effective and economical for the controlling of light to open stands of seedlings and small mesquite and cedar trees," says Fisher. "A specially designed hydraulic operated cutting blade on the grubber has made it possible to grub trees a third larger than with standard blades.

"Root plowing is still the most effective method tested for the control of mesquite and mixed brush with the exception of white brush, prickly pear, and certain other minor species," he says. "It is especially well suited for the control of dense stands of brush growing on highly productive range sites with a sparse vegetative cover where reseeding is successful."

For white brush, Fisher notes, good control has been obtained following chaining and stacking of the brush, using four methods: 1) root plowing with a root picker attachment, 2) discing twice with a heavy-duty offset disc, 3) rotary tilling, and 4) root plowing followed by discing or root raking.

Also, discing in the fall and seeding to oats followed by discing and seeding to blue panic and buffelgrass has given good control of white brush and has increased forage production from 250 pounds up to 5,000 pounds of forage per acre. Shredding twice annually over mesquite. Of the rich grasses for replacing the brush, Kleiggrass appears the most promising for reseeding rangeland following root plowing in the Rolling Plains and the Edwards Plateau areas, Fisher concludes. Other promising native grasses include El Reno side oats, Caucasian, cane and old world bluestem.

Many U.S. farmers have been trying a familiar gimmick in order to sharply increase income. They have borrowed up to the hilt from their banks for seed, fertilizer, labor and other expenses with firm intentions of paying back the loans after the 1974 harvest. Only it didn't work out that way for many farmers because commodity prices slid nearly 30 percent after peaking last October. Commodity prices rose through most of last year as a result of unanticipated worldwide demand for U.S. farm products, so farmers withheld their harvests in hopes that prices would climb even higher during the winter months. Just the opposite happened and many farmers were unwilling to take the losses they faced, hence they were unable to repay their bank loans. Extensions of 1974 farmers' loans have jumped more than 40 percent from last year and new loans have shot up as farmers scramble to buy more time.

Net farm income in 1974 fell 37 percent to $27 billion, but farm indebtedness increased about 25 percent. In January farm credit associations saw their outstanding loans climb 23 percent about 1974. Federal land bank associations which hold mortgages on more than 35 percent of all farm land in the country, saw their loan totals jump 25 percent. New loans in January rose 18 percent. In the Midwest farm belt alone, land bank loans climbed 43 percent in January. Farmers should have no big problem paying off their loans if commodity prices firm up and crop yields are as good as last year or better. But any drop in crop production this summer and fall could leave many of them in a cash squeeze.

The credit problem is compounded by the fact that farmers' costs are still climbing while the prices they get for their crops keep sliding. A bushel of seed corn now costs up to $52 per bushel vs. about $6 a few years ago. In all, the cost of planting an average acre of land is now more than $100 compared with $89 only two years ago.

Charley Pride Will Appear At Fair

LUBBOCK -- Charley Pride, one of the superstars of the country and western music field, will be making a record fifth appearance at the 58th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair here this fall.

Heer, said Pride had been signed to open the eight-day fair run on Sept. 20-21.

He will be followed by Mel Tillis and Cumilla Hutton on Sept. 22-23; Lester Flatt, Mac Wiseman, Grandpa Jones, the Stoney Mountain Cloggers, all in a "Bluegrass Special" on Sept. 24-25; and Ronnie Mil-sap, the Country Music Association's male vocalist of the year, on the last two days.

Pride holds the fair box-office record for two-day stints here and has proven to be one of the most popular stars ever carded for the regional exposition.

The native of Sledge, Miss., worked in cotton fields in his childhood days with his seven brothers and three sisters. At 14 he got his first guitar.

An avid baseball fan, Pride made it to the minor leagues, served in the U.S. Army for two years and got his start singing purely by coincidence. One night, just for kicks, he sang over the public address system before a minor league game, became the talk of the town and got a night club engagement. In 1965, his first record was released and it was all uphill afterward.

Tickets for the Pride show will be $4, $5, and $6, Ducats for all other shows are $3, $4 and $5. Mail order reservations now are being accepted by the fair association at P. O. Box 208, Lubbock 79408. Tickets will be mailed in July in the order in which requests are received. Shows are set for 5:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. daily.

The fair will be shooting to break the all-time attendance record this year having been short of the mark last year due to four days of almost constant rain. The 1974 exposition was extended to nine days due to the downpours.

The all-time high was set in 1973 at 313,858. Last year the turnstile count was 288,499 -- despite the rains.

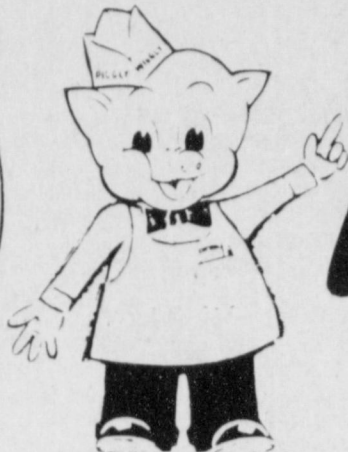

Several new events are being scheduled for this year, Lewis said.

Legislature plans inquiry on rising drug costs.
