Spring turkey season is under way across Texas. In the High and Rolling; the season on Rio Grande turkeys concludes May 2. The spring Eastern turkey season in 17 East Texas counties is under way as well, running through April 25.

Drought hurt Rio Grande turkey production throughout the High and Rolling Plains and the Edwards Plateau in 1998. Texas Parks & Wildlife Department biologists say a boom in turkey production two years ago leaves plenty of mature toms available.

HHS artist reworks state contest entry after original stolen

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Nearly six weeks have passed since Nick Celaya's portrait of the rapper Tupac Shakur disappeared from the exhibit at Westgate Mall in Amarillo.

State competition is this weekend in Arlington, and Celaya will be ready for it with a new portrait and hopes for a first-place award.

Since the disappearance of the original piece, Celaya has spent nearly every spare minute duplicating the work which had originally taken more than a year to complete.

Celaya added a few modifications to the new portrait — modifications which only a knowing eye would detect — such as Celaya's name in the dot pattern of Tupac's turban.

Celaya rapidly moved past the disappointment and hurt of losing his first competition piece to the knowledge that if he wanted to show at state, he better get busy and finish the replacement portrait.

"The other piece was really good," said Celaya. "But I think this one is even better. I have high hopes that it will do well."

Mostly the work has been done at home, after Celaya finishes school and work.

"It's only been the last 10 days or so I've been able to work on it at school," he said. "But, I was determined to show at state. Right now that is the most important thing."

CRISIS IN KOSOVO

Cost of operation rises; U.S. cites Serb atrocities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration worked out details of an emergency $5.9 billion budget request to pay for military and humanitarian operations in Yugoslavia as it cited new, compelling evidence of mass killings of civilians there.

The spending package will cover the cost of U.S. participation in the NATO airstrikes and humanitarian relief for refugees from the besieged province of Kosovo, said a senior administration official who spoke on the condition of anonymity. The administration will formally present the request to Congress early next week, the official said Friday.

At the same time, Defense Secretary William Cohen is expected to ask President Clinton to approve the call-up of some 33,000 military reservists, including up to 25,000 Air National Guard members in units that fly aerial refueling missions.

Some civil affairs specialists from the Army Reserve also are likely to be activated, military officials said.

Meanwhile, State Department spokesman Jamie Rubin said evidence of fresh atrocities inside Kosovo might explain in part an increase in the exodus from the besieged Serbian province.

"There is ... evidence of mass killings and graves associated with those mass killings," west of Kosovo's capital, Pristina, Rubin said.

He did not have precise information on the number killed but said it was more than a few dozen. The location is different from one where mass graves were reported last week, he said.

The new information, which Rubin called compelling, comes from refugee accounts and independent sources he would not identify. It was turned over to the international War Crimes Tribunal, where investigators are compiling records that could lead to prosecution of Serbian officers.

At the Pentagon, officials disclosed that a Yugoslav Army officer was captured by troops of the Kosovo Liberation Army on Tuesday night or early Wednesday and turned over to U.S. custody in Albania on Friday.

The officer, said to be about 21 years old, is the first member of the Yugoslav military to become a prisoner of war during the campaign. Yugoslav forces two weeks ago captured three American soldiers near the border between Yugoslavia and Macedonia and are holding them as POWs. It wasn't known whether the U.S. would seek a prisoner exchange.

Earlier this week, Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon said the administration would probably ask for $3 billion to $4 billion for the Kosovo campaign, an amount that many Republicans called inadequate. Even the higher figure now being requested by the administration was expected to generate opposition from some Republicans who see the bill as a vehicle for dealing with longer-term needs of the military.

Some members of Congress are pressing for spending of from $10 billion to $18 billion to beef up the armed forces.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, meanwhile, broadcast a brief message to the Serbian people to counter what she said were the falsehoods of their own government.

"NATO has no wish to conquer your people and expand eastward," she said. "We have recognized Kosovo as part of your country. But our nations cannot stand by while thousands of innocent people are killed or driven from their homes."

Albright's message was delivered in Serbo-Croatian, a language she learned when she lived in Yugoslavia for a time as a child. It was broadcast into Serbia via Radio Liberty, Radio Free Europe and the Voice of America.

NEW HOSPITAL?

Board can phase in renovations, maintain status quo

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

If the Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors decide the voters won't approve a $19.1 million bond issue for a new hospital or a $24 million issue for a major renovation/expansion project, an architectural consulting firm has offered two more options.

The two options, renovation through multiple projects and maintenance of the status quo, will be much less expensive. Also, the maintenance of the status quo, or "capital investment only as required," will not require voters' approval.

If Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors have been thinking they're overwhelmed with plans, they couldn't be blamed.

Just in the past two weeks, the directors have received a Master Facility Plan, which examined the Hereford Regional Medical Center physical plant, and a five-year Long Range Strategic Plan.

Business update

Hereford agency merges

Joan Coupe-Osborn, owner and general manager of Hereford Travel Center, recently announced the local travel agency's merger with National Travel Systems, a company formed during a similar merger between Excel Travel and Premier Travel.

According to company reports, National Travel Systems is the largest independently owned travel agency network in Texas.

The company is headquartered in Lubbock and reports gross earnings in excess of $44 million.

National Travel Systems is now comprised of 19 locations following the Hereford Travel Center acquisition, and employs 150 travel consultants throughout Texas and New Mexico.

Coupe-Osborn said the merger will allow Hereford Travel Center to remain competitive in comprehensive travel service for the Hereford area.

"Nothing will change beyond our name, and our ability to offer our customers greater savings due to the expanded purchasing power a large travel agency has over smaller, independent operations," Coupe-Osborn said.

As time for state competition approached, Celaya still received no news about the missing art work.

"It's gone; I don't expect to ever get it back," he said. "I just hope the new piece is more secure in Arlington than the other one was in Amarillo."

The dot pattern portrait was done as an experiment, he said, "just to see how it would look."

Celaya has kept the new portrait as close to the original as possible, but he says the improvements are more than just a security measure, but also add a little extra to the work.

Celaya is finishing his junior year at Hereford High School and will advance his art skills this summer with a two-week trip to the Dallas Art Institute.

He hopes to one day use his love of art as part of his career, possibly in architecture.

Judging winners - Members of the Hereford High School FFA Livestock Judging Team were judged to be winners themselves at the South Plains College competition. The

HRMC

Master Facility Plan report giving the directors some ideas about what to do to improve the health care delivery system in Deaf Smith County.

In addition to outlining the problems with the aging physical plant, the consultants provided an assessment of the strengths and weaknesses inherent in each proposal.

MULTIPLE PROJECTS PHASE 1

This program carries a price tag of about $5.6 million for its first phase.

The first phase involved expansion of the emergency room and operating rooms, a project that would increase the hospital space about 16,800 square feet.

The expansion would see the addition of seven ER patient spaces, five treatment and two trauma, and two operating rooms and two procedure rooms, and is estimated to take about 12 months to complete.

The total cost of the construction would be about $3.4 million. The additional costs would be incurred in the purchased of additional medical and kitchen equipment, and furniture, about $1.5 million, and associated costs, including legal and professional fees, $712,316.

The consultants concluded the advantages to multiple projects program would be:

- Less costly up front and more likely to achieve community support;
- Provides increased or improved services in some of the most-needed areas;
- Allows recruitment of new physicians in the areas of work;
- Provides additional space for new or improved service;
- Enables better utilization of modern technology;
- Provides flexibility for changing trends in health care;
- Provides opportunity for new areas to pay for future construction; and
- Smallest initial investment.

The disadvantages, which the consultants concluded would be numerous, included:

- Requires several separate projects;
- Will be the most expensive over the long term;
- Compliance deficiencies will remain or increase in some areas;
- Funds may be spent twice, once for repair and once for replacement, for some systems;
- Incremental gain makes perception of an improved hospital marginal;
- Phased-in construction will affect space planning;
- Existing systems will continue to age and deteriorate;
- Requires maintenance of a variety of systems until replacement;

Plan

evaluation of the HRMC physical plant, offered several options about to improve the facility.

These recommendations presented four options, which included each proposal's strengths and weaknesses, for the directors to consider in developing a plan to improve the hospital. The four options are:

- Construction of a new hospital;
- Renovation/expansion;
- Multiple phased renovation/expansion; and
- Maintenance of the status quo.

The Long Range Strategic Plan, which was compiled by the Houston consulting firm HealthExec Inc., grew out of last year's evaluation of the Deaf Smith County health care delivery system conducted by the Community Health Improvement Partnership (CHIP) and a January retreat that involved hospital district directors, HRMC administrators and medical staff, and civic/community leaders.

Although the Long Range Strategic Plan looked at the needs of the physical plant as did the Master Facility Plan, its emphasis was on the advantages/disadvantages of each option.

Also, the Long Range Strategic Plan included a fifth option not included in the Master Facility Plan: Lease or sell hospital district assets to an outside organization that would contract to provide health care services in the county.

As with the other options, the lease-sell option has its own strengths and weaknesses.

The major advantage seen in the lease-sell option is it would "retain the probability of Hereford-based health care service delivery, but this would be pursued ... through contractual arrangements with an external entity operating in Hereford," the plan stated.

The other advantages to this option included:

- Financial relief to hospital district taxpayers;
- May result in lower costs of operation;
- Offers continuity hospital services and presence of physicians.

The disadvantages cited in the report include:

- Loss of community control;

ment;

- Inconvenience from utility and service outages;
- Systems will cost more to install because existing systems are kept on line until replaced;
- Existing structure will determine space layout and dimensions in reused areas;
- Existing exterior still will determine appearance;
- Some loss of services and market share as facilities are shifting by the phased construction;
- Staff and patients will have to endure noise and other inconveniences caused by construction;
- Wear, warranties and maintenance schedules will be tagged to accommodate phases;
- Existing infrastructure may present regulatory or physical barriers;
- Liability risks increase with construction in close proximity to functioning hospital;
- Appearance of operating a hospital in a construction site; and requires community support to finance the replacement facility.

MAINTENANCE OF STATUS QUO

In considering the strengths and weaknesses of maintaining the status quo, the consultants concluded there are only three advantages: least current cost, does not require voter approval, and continuity in location.

However, the consultants determined there are considerable more disadvantages than advantages to this program. The disadvantages outlined by the consultants are:

- Increasing costs over time as other systems age and wear out;
- Compliance issues are addressed as they become critical or in phases as the budget allows;
- A mixture of systems resulting from new components being used with obsolete systems;
- Increased utility costs as performance of major systems declines;
- Continued loss of market share;
- Continued difficulty in recruitment and retention of doctors
- Higher maintenance/repair costs;
- Investment in plant will rise with diminishing returns;
- Increased liability risks associated with intermittent and unexpected loss of systems;
- Increasing noncompliance of codes as standards are tightened by state and federal regulators; and
- Reduced ability to maintain standard of care as loss of market share reduces revenue.

Financial/operational interests of the acquiring or leasing corporation would take precedence over those of the community.

Although the consultants acknowledged the sell-lease option is attractive because it offers "some relief relative to capital outlay by the ... community," they also said any regional healthcare system "which might be interested in making a capital investment" in HRMC would expect a significant commitment from the community.

These regional systems typically require some form of protection for their investment.

The long-range plan does call for more marketing efforts by the hospital, with the hospital administrators, medical staff and employees serving as "ambassadors" to the community.

Among the other marketing goals for the hospital are:

- Public speech writing and/or presentation for public appearances;
- Marketing campaign products beyond local newspaper and radio;
- Public opinion surveys;
- Special events coordination, including fund-raising activities;

Production of newsletters, both in-house and for public distribution, to provide information for hospital employees and the community; and Development/improvement of media relations.

The hospital has a marketing budget of approximately $45,000 for the year, of which less than $10,000 has been spent. Kemp said the budgeted amount was reduced because the agreement with the former marketing agency was severed, and it was anticipated that another firm would be considered this year.

Also, the directors already have retained The Price Communications Group of Lubbock to develop a new marketing plan for the hospital, with the first major task to be a public awareness campaign about the hospital and the services it offers.

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Military experts abound on the Hill

Tom Raum
The Associated Press

Defense Secretary William Cohen got a hearty, knowing laugh at a NATO dinner last week in Brussels, Belgium, when he noted that one of his guests, Sen. John McCain, had made a great sacrifice to come to Europe for briefings on the bombing campaign against Yugoslavia.

It was the first day in a long time the Arizona Republican hadn't been able to get on network television, Cohen said.

McCain, a GOP presidential hopeful, is a former Navy pilot who spent 5 1/2 years in a North Vietnamese prison camp. He's been before the public constantly since the Kosovo crisis began, critiquing the operation and insisting that ground forces should be considered.

But then, the 106th Congress is hardly short on military expertise.

More than usual, "a lot of the current members are close to military people in the Pentagon and elsewhere," said former Rep. Lee Hamilton, an Indiana Democrat who was chairman of the House International Relations Committee before Republicans gained control in 1994. He's now director of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, was Navy secretary in the Nixon administration. He spends hours each day getting private updates from generals and is often seen at the Pentagon.

His predecessor, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., is a retired general in the Army reserve who took part in the D-Day invasion of Normandy as part of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division.

Rep. Ike Skelton of Missouri, senior Democrat on the House Armed Services Committee, has flown in the cockpit of the B-2 stealth bomber. His district includes Whiteman Air Force Base, home of the B-2 fleet. He frequently talks to pilots and crew members.

Opposed to sending U.S. troops to Bosnia, Skelton has forcefully urged Clinton to consider using ground forces in Kosovo.

Rep. John Murtha of Pennsylvania, ranking Democrat on the Appropriations national security subcommittee, won a Bronze Star and two Purple Hearts as a Marine in Vietnam and has long-standing and close ties to the Pentagon.

Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, is a war hero who lost part of his leg in Vietnam. Sen. Max Cleland, D-Ga., an Armed Services Committee member, lost both legs in Vietnam as a young Army captain and headed the Veterans Administration in the Carter administration.

Rep. Randy Cunningham, R-Calif., a member of the House Armed Services Committee, was a "top gun" flight instructor during a 20-year Navy career.

"I don't believe that we in Congress ought to be crafting specific military solutions," said Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. He said it's hard enough for NATO's commander, Army Gen. Wesley Clark, to deal with 19 NATO nations — let alone having to worry about legislative generals.

And how did Dodd spend his spring break? He visited NATO in Brussels and a refugee camp in Macedonia — and held a news conference on his return to outline his view of next steps.

Rep. Floyd Spence, R-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, led his own delegation to the Balkans and has criticized the bombing campaign. "From the very beginning, I have been against this type of operation," Spence said Tuesday. Still, he added, "We are there now for better or worse — and we have to support our military people."

"There are too many armchair quarterbacks who call the game before the coin is tossed," suggested Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, senior Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee.

Biden himself is the sponsor of a resolution to authorize the president to use "all necessary force," including ground troops,

Voters need to show responsibility

A toy maker desperately wanted a little boy to call his own, so in true toy-maker fashion, he carved a small puppet, painted a smiling face and attached the strings to make the little puppet dance and play.

One night he set the little puppet on the shelf and went to bed. During the night, a fairy visited the puppet and gave it life, to bring pleasure to the old man.

The strings were removed and the carved piece of wood could now think and act on his own.

Old Gepetto, the toy maker, was overjoyed. He now had a wonderful little boy to call his own. Gepetto never stopped to think of how much easier it was to control the puppet-boy while the strings were attached or how the new creation could now think and act on his own.

The old fairy tale may very well provide a lesson for voters. We really need to think about the action we are going to set in place by the people we vote into office.

In less than two short weeks, voters will cast their ballots for a number of local political candidates. Those who are elected will play major roles in determining the future of the hospital, the education of our children and the governing of our fair city.

As is so often the case, I fear that only a few will determine the fate of many. With all the grumbling and griping about all three bodies, I can only hope voters will take the time to show up at the polling place.

More than that, I hope voters actually will listen to the candidates and decide who will be best suited for each position.

These small local races may be nearly as important as the presidential and congressional races. What's more, the actions of these individuals probably have greater impact on local residents than do issues regarding regions, districts, states or the nation.

The common goal of all candidates, I hope, is to make Hereford a better place to live, go to school, or receive health care.

To do this, the controlling powers will undoubtedly have to put aside personal preferences, likes and dislikes and be able to decide what is best for the entity they represent.

These powers also will need to be able to think on their own. Unlike the puppet-turned-boy, they will not have a Jiminy Cricket conscience, nor will they have a fairy or an old toy maker looking out for them.

In the last two weeks, I have seen how the Civil War really got started. I have seen how sectionalism — the concept of what's best for one, rather than the whole — can divide the population.

I'm truly concerned about the ideas, beliefs and lack of knowledge of some candidates and with that I am concerned that some may vote for a name rather than what the candidate actually stands for.

Candidates in all three races seem to have some misconceptions as to what individuals on any board can do. For this reason, board members will have to be able to put aside individual personalities and work for the general good.

Talk about synchronicity. When I checked The Associated Press' advisory Wednesday morning, there was a notice about Dan Quayle's announcement he's a candidate for president in 2000.

I've always had ambivalent feelings about the former vice president.

On one hand, I've always thought he's a complete airhead who shouldn't have his finger on the TV remote, and certainly shouldn't have his finger on "The Button."

On the other hand, he provides such comic relief to the normal mess in Washington, I kinda like having him around.

And, with the exception of Steve Forbes, there's not one other candidate who came close to Quayle in sheer, unadulterated goofiness.

But, back to synchronicity.

When I saw the notice about the announcement, I thought how good it would be to have some Quayle jokes for Sunday's editorial page. However, I had misplaced my "Best (Mis)Quotes of Dan Quayle" list and don't have either the inclination or time to start digging through books, drawers and file cabinets to find it.

When I got home for lunch, I checked my e-mail, and there was something from Dennis Byrd, a friend and former colleague who now runs Donrey Media Group's news bureau in Little Rock.

So, here it is:

Dan Quayle's Top 15 Campaign Promises

15. Statehood for Hawaii and Alaska
14. "Read my lips: Know knew taxis!"
13. Four years of unequaled prosperity for comedy writers
12. To "lead this great nation into the 20th Century."
11. New OSHA safety campaign: "Scissors Is Pointy"
10. A peaceful end to the Viet Nam war
9. Appoint Judge Reinhold to the Supreme Court
8. Spending cutbacks -- except for funding of this cool rocket car idea I came up with.
7. More bondage between parents & children.
6. Turn over Marilyn's bulletproof hair secrets to the Department of Defense.
5. Deploy U.S. troops to end ongoing ethnic violence between Star-Bellied Sneetches and Plain-Bellied Sneetches.
4. "By the end of my term, America will be fully prepared for the Y2K bug."
3. Support NATO
2. Reduce the number of commercials on the Cartoon Network.
- And, the No. 1 Dan Quayle Campaign Promise:
1. Will serve less than two terms if that job with Ringling Brothers comes through. Thanks, Dennis.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

I have been reading the news coverage in Hereford Brand concerning the co-location of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce and the Hereford Economic Development Corp. There are advantages in locating these two groups in the same building, but there are also some serious questions about the concept.

I was opposed to the recent proposal to house both of these entities in the Community Center and was relieved to see the idea abandoned. This was a bad idea for several reasons.

The new proposal to have both groups housed in an expanded chamber facility just about blew me away! It appears to me, that this is simply a way to get the taxpayers to buy the chamber a building and provide it with a new source of income. In the first proposal, the chamber's offices were only worth $250.00 a month to the city. Now, in the second proposal, the HEDC's offices are worth $1,650 a month to the Chamber of Commerce.

The citizens of Hereford voted an increase in taxes to start and maintain the HEDC. The HEDC was the taxpayer's solution to the economic dilemma facing this town. Many people are distrustful of the chamber and feel that it has done disservice to the community in the past. I remember the conflict between the city and the chamber over the hotel-motel tax monies about eight or 10 years ago, those scars are still not healed. There is also the famous story about the chamber telling Wal-Mart to go fly a kite.

Maybe the chamber has changed; I don't know, but the fact remains that the vast majority of taxpayers have not chosen to support it. I do not know what the current level of membership is in the chamber, but I will bet that it is a tiny fraction of the people currently paying taxes to support the HEDC. This new proposal to house the HEDC in the chamber building at an outlandish rental rate would take that choice of support of the chamber away from the taxpayer. They will be paying nearly $20,000 a year to an organization that they have privately chosen not to join. It would make more sense for HEDC to buy a building and lease or even give space to the chamber. At least the taxpayers would have a building to show for all of the money that they are spending.

The City Commission offers the last and only forum for the taxpayers to have a say in what happens to their money. The owners of the chamber building, the Board of Directors of the HEDC, and the Chamber of Commerce have already worked this deal between themselves. All that they need now is YOUR MONEY to make it fly.

I encourage everyone to attend the City Commission meeting where this will be discussed, or at least talk to a City Commissioner and let them know how you feel one way or another on this issue.

Pat Reilly

Dear Editor:

Before the taxpayers spend $19 million, plus another $2 million or $4 million here and there for a new hospital, maybe we should think of this.

What will be the return on the investment? If it's good to excellent, how about having the Hereford Economic Development Corp. find a private firm to build a new hospital?

This would reduce the tax rate to zero and be a great boost to the local economy.

Gene Anderson

Dear Editor:

Much was written in The Brand this week concerning the possibility of a new hospital for Hereford. Certainly, a hospital that pays its own way is a great asset to (Deaf Smith) County. On the other hand, spending over $19 million, a thousand dollars for every man, woman and child in the county, is a large expenditure that must be considered carefully. The fact that a hospital is new will not assure that it will be competitive. Last year Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon closed its doors for good and that facility was 50 years younger than Hereford's. If a new facility is built here and ultimately closes, then the taxpayers of this county will be saddled with a very heavy burden.

Any health care facility must take into account that in this area, there are two main hospitals that will provide critical care for patients, Baptist St. Anthony and Northwest Texas, both in Amarillo. Because of the large population served, these facilities can and will provide critical care more efficiently and can attract the highly trained specialists needed to provide this care. For critically ill or injured persons, the local hospital should be designed to stabilize the patients and transport them to these facilities. For patients whose condition does not demand the specialization that these Amarillo hospitals provide, a local facility is appropriate. For Hereford to attempt to come into direct competition with these facilities would be misdirected and futile.

Jesus said in Luke that before you begin to build a tower you must first sit down and consider whether you can afford to finish it. While I understand the pride that citizens have for a local facility, it is imperative that we all carefully count the cost and be sure we are willing to take on such a potentially large tax burden.

Breathing room, but no action, on dealing with Medicare

Here are excerpts from editorials in newspapers in the United States:

The Seattle Times, on Medicare and Social Security reforms:

Estimates now show Medicare and Social Security will remain solvent longer than previously expected. Whoop-de-doo.

The strong economy pushed Medicare just seven years further from the brink of bankruptcy to 2015, and the day of reckoning for Social Security moves two years, to 2034.

But when the market cools, the same structural flaws to Medicare and Social Security will remain. Young workers and baby boomers face the same bad choices — higher payroll taxes or fewer benefits — unless Congress and the White House cooperate on permanent fixes for the government's healthcare and retirement programs.

Setting aside some of the projected budget surplus, as Clinton proposes, is a small step toward solvency of Social Security. But it is not real reform and it does nothing to address the growing demand by young workers for a better, lasting return on their compulsory investments.

The surplus gambit also leaves Medicare's skyrocketing costs unabated. Instead of adopting necessary belt-tightening measures and elements of private competition recommended by the defunct bipartisan Medicare commission, the White House wants — you guessed it — a diversion of the budget surplus to shore up the program and expand benefits.

Faint-hearted policymakers are misusing the new report to rationalize inaction.

Put your heart and soul into it

Jesus replied: "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind."

Matthew 22:37

Cliff Golden
Career Specialist

Have you ever noticed the help you get when someone thinks things aren't working the way 'they' think they should? Like when your car is limping along they may announce it's the spradelator or the produget causing all the problem as they freely offer their assessment of the difficulty.

In their mind they're just trying to help you solve your apparent difficulty 'cause if you knew how to correct the perceived problem you would have already fixed it.

Right? In their wise assessment, they think their schedule and approach to the repair is the only way. Under the guise of being helpful, many cooks begin helping with your broth.

Education is like that and I am just as guilty as anyone having my own agenda and interests in mind; but there is one major part of our many individualized plans we don't consider. Like the automotive advice, what happens when the wisdom is unwanted? What if there's a plan in the works to eventually correct the perceived problem?

On the front page of the Amarillo Daily News is an article summarizing the Texas Senate Finance Committee's recommendation on proposed educational budget spending proposing more money be spent by schools and districts to solve our apparent low educational achievement levels. On Page 5A of the same paper, school superintendent Bill Denton of Woodward, Okla., is being accused of "opposing raising [educational] standards" as he opposes the Oklahoma's State Board of Education current proposal. He says, "... requiring high school students to spend four out of seven class hours a day taking college preparatory math, science, English and social studies is a disservice to those who are interested in careers in other fields."

Let's stop and count the suggested ways to 'correct' our perceived educational woes currently on the table. Our federal fathers have been saying high tech in the classroom is the way to go, Texas legislators say we need money to make it right and the Oklahoma State Board of Education is proposing making everybody take college prep curriculum. It sounds to me like they're fixin' to throw the baby out with the bath water! Who's right or are they all? What's the basic need here? What's important?

Regardless of legislative action the desire cannot be legislated! Unless the kids think the lessons taught are important and worth while they'll ignore the whole thing. Teachers put every part of their being into their teaching, but, for their part, it doesn't seem to be good enough. What can a parents do to help make the situation better?

Bottom Line

Everyone wants to put their entire heart into the situation, but who has the correct solution? Legislators, educators, students or parents all have pieces of the puzzle, but no one person has the whole thing sewed up. Seemingly, we're suggesting many different directions at the same time. Everybody and their brother has some quick fix to our perceived difficulties, but the bottom line is heart. All involved must have a meeting of the minds and plan this thing out where ALL understand the ultimate cost and their part. We must have a team effort. School board meetings are for taking care of the school's business. Open forum(s), where all can speak their minds/hearts/souls and the information can be equally understood and the ultimate goals clearly developed, could eventually produce the desired results: all sides joining together in making the educational experience meaningful for all. Remember E Pluribus Unum?

As prices rise, gas-guzzlers reconsidered

NEW YORK (AP) — Pamela Williams and her husband have been planning a summer vacation drive from their home in Philadelphia to Virginia Beach, Va., and New Orleans.

But after watching gas prices soar roughly 50 percent over the past six weeks, they've begun checking out train schedules.

Petroleum industry leaders say prices are merely returning to normal after months of unprecedented lows, but the sharp rise has provoked some Americans to change their gas-guzzling ways.

The latest nationwide review of 10,000 gas stations by the authoritative Lundberg Survey showed the average price was nearly $1.23 a gallon. Three weeks ago, it was $1.09, and in late February a stunningly low 99.8 cents.

Oakland hammers Rangers

Jaha, Giambi swing like they knew what Sele was throwing

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — John Jaha and Jason Giambi were swinging the bat like they knew what was coming from Aaron Sele, and they admit they had an idea.

Jaha and Giambi each had four hits, teaming up for nearly half of a 17-hit attack that carried the Oakland Athletics past the Texas Rangers 8-2 Friday night.

"When he's got his curveball working, he's as tough as anybody. But he didn't quite have his curveball early so we sat on his fastball," said Jaha, who went 4-for-4 with a homer, two doubles and four RBIs while matching his career best for hits in a game.

Giambi, who entered batting .206, was 4-for-5 for his first multihit game of the year, driving in a run and scoring three times.

The two got five of their eight hits off Sele (2-1), who was tagged for six runs and nine hits in four innings.

"He's really tough to hit against because he throws about 90 mph and he's got a really slow curveball, but he couldn't get his curveball going and we were able to sit back and hit," Giambi said.

Lady Whitefaces lose a heartbreaker

It was a heartbreaking loss Friday for the Lady Whitefaces as they fell 14-11 to the Dumas Lady Demons in District 3-4A softball competition.

Dumas used a six-run second inning to jump out to an 8-0 lead, but the Lady Whitefaces stormed back in the bottom with five runs.

The Hereford rally started with a walk to Sabina Hastings. Crystal Luna followed with a triple, scoring Hastings. Janae Schlabs was hit by a pitch and Jessica Gaitan singled, driving in Luna.

Amanda Valleja singled to bring in both Schlabs and Gaitan. After Crystal Reese walked, Vallejo was out at third on a fielder's choice, and Reese advanced to second. Reese then stole third and scored on a passed ball to end the scoring in the inning.

The Lady Whitefaces added another run in the bottom of the fifth. Hastings walked, to third on a single by Luna, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Sessions to cut the 8-6.

Dumas added two in the top of the sixth, but saw the Lady Whitefaces battle back in the bottom of the inning to take the lead at 10-9.

Hereford opened the inning with consecutive singles by Vallejo, Reese and Dominguez.

Vallejo scored on Dominguez' safety.

After Clarissa Lucero grounded out, Hastings doubled to drive in Reese. Luna followed with a double, scoring Dominguez and Hastings.

Luna then stole second and third and scored on a passed ball.

Hereford had a one-lead margin going into the top of the seventh, but Dumas came back with two outs to tie the game, sending it into extra innings when the Lady Whitefaces were unable to score in the bottom of the inning. Dumas scored three in the eighth to claim the win.

'Poke tackle flunks drug test

IRVING, Texas (AP) — For the fourth time in five years, the Dallas Cowboys must prepare to play without Pro Bowl defensive tackle Leon Lett — and this time, it could be for good.

Lett is facing a punishment of at least a year after failing an NFL drug test for the third time, a league source who requested anonymity told The Associated Press on Friday. The violation also could carry a lifetime ban.

Lett has been enrolled in the NFL's substance-abuse program since 1995. He was suspended four games that season, then was suspended for the last three games of 1996 and the first 13 of 1997.

This past year was his first complete one 1994. Like that season, he made the Pro Bowl.

Lett, who seldom speaks to the media, has not commented. The team said it could not comment, citing league confidentiality rules.

"Talking turkey" to the birds in the Pease River country

Spring turkey season is underway across Texas. In the High and Rolling Plains, the season on Rio Grande turkeys continues through May 9. In South Texas, the season concludes May 2. The spring Eastern turkey season in 17 East Texas counties is underway as well, running through April 25.

Drought hurt Rio Grande turkey production throughout the High and Rolling Plains and the Edwards Plateau in 1998. Texas Parks & Wildlife Department biologists say a boom in turkey production two years ago leaves plenty of mature toms available.

Understandably, the fastest-growing type of hunting in Texas is spring turkey hunting.

Talking turkey with a box, slate, or diaphragm call well-enough to convince a lovesick gobbler that a hen is summoning him hither, brings a mystique and excitement that is hard to duplicate. Probably the only thing similar in terms of an adrenalin charge would be calling a coyote or a bobcat whisker-close.

If you are good enough to call a wild turkey into shotgun range, you have enticed a worthy quarry...not a barnyard dummy. A Rio Grande tom is sharp of eye, keen of ear, as wary as a salesman-dodger, sometimes a strutting show-off, and always unpredictable. A wild turkey can haul its sizable body into surprisingly-speedy flight, or flee at a steady trot that easily outpaces a man on foot. A gobbler is tough enough to take a lot of punishment. He can absorb a shotgun blast that knocks him down, get up, and still make a fleet-footed escape if the shot is not well-placed.

My friend James Gillespie of Matador has hosted me on several spring turkey hunts in the Pease River country, just outside of Roaring Springs. James has spent afternoons squiring me around mesquite-tangled ranchland in his 4x4 pickup. We have spied long-bearded toms wooing hens amidst the treacherously quicky red sand and scrubby brush of mid-Pease.

Hiding in brush, we have watched Rio Grande gobblers come calling in their courting attire. Puffed-up like a toad filled with Junebugs, a big tom displays a wide-swept fan of dark-streaked tailfeathers as he bustles about the hen, his wingtips brushing the sand. He circles the object of his affection persistently, like a windup toy.

There have been times when I might have, and marksman James certainly could have had a strutting Tom with a rifle shot, but that is not the name of this spring turkey hunting game. This is whisper-close-and-personal shotgun-range work, or not at all. You owe that to a spring-season gobbler...He's a spectacular game bird.

On the farm/ranch where we hunted, turkeys were held in esteem and the welcome mat was kept out for them. Although the current proprietors of the place were generations removed from the event, turkeys got credit for having helped save the farm. When a plague of grasshoppers descended on the hardscrabble Rolling Plains, voracious turkeys gobbled up the would-be ravagers with such gusto that they literally saved crops and pastures.

The story of the beneficent wild turkeys, passed across generations on this land, continued to command them a place here. A grove of towering ancient cottonwoods along the river at mid-ranch was left as a roosting haven. Anybody with a lick of sense and a desire to be welcomed back to the ranch knew you didn't shoot near the roost. Turkeys won't tolerate shooting around their roost site, and neither would the land-owners.

Nobody on the ranch got upset about busting a round bale of hay in transit to the pasture...They left it as sort of a grain-studded libation to the turkeys. Once the constantly hungry birds found the busted hay bale and moved in to scratch and peck, the mass of fodder and grain would be taken to the ground in a surprisingly short period of time.

Over the years, I took four spring gobblers from this place on the Pease. Each successful hunt was exciting, but possibly the most so was the time I had to wait out a tom by looking through a forest of turkey feet.

James and I were hidden, and enjoying the shade beneath a shinnery motte in an area heavily-used by turkeys. We didn't have to wait long before a couple of hens wandered up and loitered in front of us...We must have been on a hot turkey trail. Soon there was a flock of hens--maybe 30, milling around in front of us.

I sat, staring through the turkey feet for several minutes. There was a beard dragging the ground in the midst of that feathered mass...A gobbler!...Must have slipped-in with the hens. I hadn't seen him come.

The tom was shielded amidst the close hens. I didn't know how I could get a clear shot. We hunkered quietly, sweating-it-out for a while before I decided to pop up and see what happened.

In one motion I eased to my knees and raised my shotgun to my shoulder. My gamble paid off. The hens scurried, parting like a feathered sea, and the gobbler was momentarily in the open.

Pointing the bead on the base of his neck, I squeezed off a load of No. 2s from my 20 gauge. I claimed a striking, iridescent trophy of the Pease River bottoms as my prize.

Iverson says Barkley 'nobody'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley is ripping Allen Iverson again. This time, Iverson is talking back.

Barkley, the Houston Rockets forward who came up with one of the most pointed nicknames for the young 76ers star — "Me-Myself-and-Iverson" — unleashed new criticism in the April 19 issue of Sports Illustrated.

Speaking about "bad basketball, bad players and young guys whose memories are too short," Barkley took a shot at Iverson, the NBA's leading scorer with Barkley's former team.

"Take Iverson. I can't stand that guy," Barkley said. "He has to show up for practice every day. He has a responsibility to cut the crap and not have some drama with his coach every week. He's showing no respect to anyone, least of all the game."

Only Birds Have One Use for Newspapers

We'll be the first to admit it. People have come up with, shall we say, interesting uses for newspapers.

And that's what makes newspapers so great. They serve different uses for different people. Whether you're scouring the entertainment section to find that perfect movie for that all important first date, checking the business section to review the latest financial information or scanning the sports pages to see how your team made out during last night's game, newspapers offer something for everyone.

And if you're a bird, we're sure you can come up with at least one good use for newspapers on your own.

Bushes have to write check for $3.77 million to pay taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush said he and his wife paid $3.77 million in federal income taxes on an estimated 1998 income of $18.4 million. "I wrote a check that is the biggest check I could conceivably (write)," Bush, a possible

Republican candidate for the 2000 presidential election, said Thursday. "I never dreamt I'd write a check that big. Of course, I never dreamt I'd make that much money, either." The bulk of Bush's 1998 income came from the sale of the Texas Rangers baseball team, of which he'd been managing partner before his 1994 ejection as governor. Bush, who bought into the Rangers for just more than $600,000, received about $14.9 million when sale of the club was announced last summer.

The Bushes also reported giving $334,425 to churches and charitable organizations during 1998. The blind trust that manages Bush's assets has applied for an extension of time to file the governor's 1998 tax returns. Bush, who established a presidential exploratory campaign on March 2, has raised $7.6 million for a possible campaign so far.

Texas writers' work sought

Special to The Brand
DALLAS -- The Today Foundation and The Writer's Garret are teaming up a second time to produce TEX!, a magazine of Texas fiction and poetry to be distributed statewide.

TEX! will again feature works from prominent Texas poets and writers, and include works from new and emerging artists. The magazine also will feature original visual art by Texas artists. As with the first issue, TEX! will reach more than 150,000 Texans statewide, making it the largest circulating literary magazine in the country.

Selections will be made by TEX! editors from solicited manuscripts based on literary merit and ability to speak to a wide audience (with a PEG rating). Two works will also be chosen as 1st and 2nd prize in fiction and poetry through a blind, outside judging.

George Plimpton, celebrated author and founder/editor of The Paris Review will choose the fiction winners. Poet Joy Harjo (a recent addition to the National Council on the Arts) will act as poetry judge.

First prize in each category will be $400. Second prize winners will receive $200. Other published work will receive $125 for short fiction and $125 per line of poetry. You must be a past or current resident of Texas, or have worked or attended school in Texas to submit.

The deadline for submissions is May 15. The statewide release date for the second issue is set for early September.

Submission guidelines

- Send 5 copies of the typed, original unpublished manuscript; self-addressed, stamped, envelope (SASE); and cover sheet with name, address, phone number, title of work, and number of pages. Names should not appear anywhere else on the manuscript. Number the pages. A $5 entry fee is required for each poem or short story. Total poetry submissions may not exceed 100 single-space lines. TOTAL fiction entries should not exceed 1,200 words (typed, double-spaced).

- Submissions must be postmarked by May 15, 1999. No submissions will be returned.

- Mail submissions and checks to: Jack Myers (Poetry Editor) or Billy Bob Hill (Prose Editor), c/o the Writer's Garret, P.O. Box 140530, Dallas 75214-0530. Simultaneous submissions are not accepted.

Editors reserve the right to publish any submissions. TEX! also reserves the right to publish or excerpt the work in any available media, including, but not limited to the Internet.

Applications accepted for pair of scholarships

Awards to be given in memory of former West Texas newsman

Applications are now being accepted from high school seniors and junior and senior college students for two $1,000 college scholarships, according to Hereford Brand Publisher Mauri Montgomery. The amount of the scholarships were increased by West Texas Press Association at the 1998 Summer Convention held in Midland.

The Hereford Brand is a member of the West Texas Press Association, the world's largest press organization because of the vast geographic area it encompasses. The association will present scholarships to two future journalists in print media from the area served by the membership of WTPA whose career goals include working with a community newspaper.

Through the Bob Craig Memorial Scholarship program, a graduating high school senior and a college junior or senior will each be presented with a $1,000 scholarship. The scholarship is named in honor of long-time Hamlin Herald Publisher Bob Craig, who died in 1981. He served 18 years on the WTPA board in all offices, including president in 1967 and secretary/treasurer from 1969.

The scholarship will be divided into payments of $500 per semester for two semesters for each of the two scholarship winners. The winners must be enrolled in at least three hours of college or university journalism courses each semester that the scholarship is awarded.

Each applicant must fill out an application form and write an essay based on the theme "My future and Career Plans in Community Journalism."

One scholarship will be presented to a graduating high school senior and the other will be presented to a student who is already attending a college or university as a print journalism or advertising major.

There were no entries for the college scholarship last year and the board voted to award two scholarships to graduating seniors. Winners were Amiee M. Moreland of Fort Davis and Laura Barkowsky, a graduate of Greenwood High School in Midland.

Application forms have been sent to member newspapers and high schools in the area of West Texas Press Association members and to college journalism departments. Prospective applicants may secure a form from the high school journalism department or counselor or the local newspaper office. Applicants must be from the area served by the WTPA membership.

Applications and essays must be sent to M. Gene Dow, WTPA Scholarship Chairman, P.O. Drawer 1200, Seminole 79360, and be postmarked on or before June 15, 1999.

Scholarship recipients will be chosen by the directors of the West Texas Press Association and will be announced at the Association's 69th Annual Summer Convention, July 22-24, 1999, at the Clarion Hotel in Abilene.

Grant to help migrants succeed in education

Special to The Brand
CANYON -- West Texas A&M University received a $1.5 million grant from the U.S. Department of Education this month to help migrant and seasonal farm workers succeed in higher education.

The College Assistance Migrant Program (CAMP) will be funded through $310,800 in federal money each of the next five years, making the initial year of college education available annually to 30 economically disadvantaged migrant students in the Texas

Panhandle. Besides tuition, fees, books and supplies, half of each student's housing will be covered through CAMP, which will also assist migrant students in obtaining additional aid to cover remaining housing expenses. To administer the program, four full-time programs will be created.

Delta

Xi

Kris Dollar, left, president of Delta Xi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International was joined by presidents of other area chapters and Dr. Mary Ann Waldon, third from right, in the dinner celebration and presentation of the history of Delta Xi, "The First Twenty Years."

Research chairman Jean Beene tells about the history.

Active charter members are, above, Della Stagner and Eloise McDougal; and at right, Margaret Ann Durham.

History in Brief

Delta Kappa Gamma Society International was founded in Texas in 1929.

Among its purposes were to unite women educators, to honor women for distinctive service in education, to advance the professional interest of women in education, to endow scholarships and aid women educators and to stimulate the personal and professional growth of members.

Delta Xi Chapter was chartered in 1956, from chapters that had previously encompassed 11 counties, representing Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties.

In 1970, Delta Xi split into three chapters - one for each county that it had originally included. A drawing was held to see which chapter would retain the name Delta Xi and Della Stagner drew it for Deaf Smith Co.

Since its beginning in 1956, each Delta Xi member has contributed $1 or more each year to scholarships awarded at the state and international level. In the early years, members of Delta Xi were recipients of some of the state scholarships and this year another Delta Xi member, Deloris Dowell, was the recipient of a state scholarship.

During the 1990s, Delta Xi has annually awarded two or three scholarships of at least $300 to junior and senior level women education majors from Deaf Smith or Parmer county.

Active charter members of Delta Xi are Margaret Ann Durham, Eloise McDougal and Della Stagner.

Dr. Waldon receives first copy of Delta Xi history, above, and Beene, below, receives "surprise" copy from Donna Warrick.

Presentation of history highlights double anniversary celebration

By Becky Thorn

Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor

When Delta Kappa Gamma Society International encouraged local chapters to do something special to observe the society's 70th birthday, one member of the local chapter, Delta Xi, took the challenge seriously.

Jean Beene researched the chapter's first 20 years and wrote a narrative of her findings. Then with the help of other chapter members, pictures were located and added to her narrative and a book was born.

Beene began the work in 1992 or 1993 when she was research chairman of Delta Xi and received a letter from the state office advising her that Delta Xi had not turned in its history.

"I was still teaching at that time and did not have the strength or the time to work on the history, so I just shelved it and thought 'When I retire I will do this,'" Beene said.

Last summer when Beene attended the international convention in Dallas she learned they wanted the local chapters to do something special to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the organization.

"When Kris Dollar became president of Delta Xi, she assigned the whole research committee to help me finish the history so we began on it in earnest last August or September with the goal of having it ready for the anniversary," Beene said.

"So I made a time line, did as much as I could to spread the enthusiasm and we really got with it."

The time line was a list of all the jobs necessary to finish the history prioritized by date. With this as a guide, Beene and those who assisted her were able to complete their task by the deadline.

Those who shared the chores with Beene, in addition to Dollar, were Marge Bell, Dorothy Mercer, Dorothy Brownlow, Marilyn Leasure, Eloise McDougal and Della Stagner.

Also Wana Brewer, Doris Bryant, Jane Coplen, Ann Cummings, Marietta Flood, Carol Gage, Connie Gilbert, Caroline Gilley, Sue Inmon, DeeAnn Matthews and Julia McNaney.

The history of "The First Twenty Years" of Delta Xi which started out as a narrative became a hardcover book with 50 copies printed.

Harlan Resch, with the Hereford ISD Print Shop, gave time as technical advisor and provided the finished product.

The books were presented at a Founders' and Birthday Dinner at Hereford Community Center on April 12. The celebration was in observance of the 70th birthday of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International and the 43rd birthday of Delta Xi Chapter.

Special guest for the dinner and presentation was Dr. Mary Ann Waldon, state president. The first copy of "The First Twenty Years" was presented to Dr. Waldon.

Other special presentations were made to Delta Xi president Kris Dollar, charter member Della Stagner, Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society representative Nell Norvell, and a surprise presentation to Beene.

The first printing of the book is already sold out, but Beene advised that if there is sufficient interest a second printing may be possible.

Alatia Bradley and John Fassett Iszard, both of New York, N.Y., exchanged wedding vows in the afternoon on April 17 in the St. Thomas Church in New York.

The bride is the daughter of James Howard Bradley, Jr. of Dallas and Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips Boone of Dallas. She is the granddaughter of James Howard Bradley, Sr. of Hereford and the late Mrs. Julia Moore Bradley.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert French Iszard, Jr. of Dundee, N.Y.

Officiating at the ceremony was The Reverend Park McD. Bodie of St. Thomas Church in New York and The Reverend Donald W. Matthews of Grace Church in Elmira, N.Y.

Valerie Anne Elizabeth Vasti of Boston served as maid of honor. Bridal attendants were Elizabeth Marks Dent of Bronxville, N.Y.; Sara French Iszard, the groom's sister, of Boston, Mass.; and Marti Meyerson Hooper of New York.

John William Schneiderhan of Clinton, N.J., served as best man. Groomsmen included Peter Wallace Gaillard of Charlottesville, Va.; John Montgomery McLeod, Jr., the groom's cousin, of New York; and Andrew Lawrence Schoelkopf of Darien, Conn.

Guests were seated by John Seeley Booth Jr., the groom's cousin, of Pine City, N.Y., and Ralph Henry Roberts, the groom's uncle, of Elmira.

Wedding music was provided by Dr. Gerre Hancock on the organ, and The Gentlemen of the St. Thomas Church Choir.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a candlelight silk satin couture gown. A bias cuff framed the strapless, fitted sheath which fell to slipper length in front and flowed to a chapel length train. Detailing the gown's sincerity was a row of tiny covered buttons at center back.

The bride wore a bouffant double layer illusion veil.

She carried a tight bouquet of ivory garden roses, ice green viburnum, delicate white ranunculus and ruffled white parrot tulips tied with white French ribbons.

The bridesmaids wore aquamarine iridescent chiffon dresses and carried tight nosegays of pale yellow tulipeonies, double freesia and yellow garden roses.

Following the wedding, the bride and groom were honored with a reception at The Racquet and Tennis Club in New York City.

The Racquet Club was transformed into an English garden as full-bloomed cherry blossoms and garden roses in apricots, corals and pale yellows filled the room. Classic Chinese urns overflowed with blooming jasmine, tall French tulips, orange blossoms and wild sweetpea vines.

The guests danced to the Peter Duchin Orchestra.

After a wedding trip to Mexico, the couple will reside in New York City.

The bride grew up in Dallas, where she attended The Hockaday School. She graduated from Choate Rosemary Hall in Connecticut and received her Bachelor of Arts degree in Art History from Barnard College of Columbia University in New York. She is an advertising account manager of DEPARTURES Magazine, a division of American Express Publishing in New York. She is the co-chair of the Young Friends Committee of The Henry Street Settlement in New York and a member of the Doubles Club.

The bridegroom was raised in Elmira. He attended The Forman School in Connecticut. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Art History from Elmira College in Elmira. He received a Masters in Fine & Decorative Arts from the Royal Academy in London through Christie's Education. He is an Assistant Vice President, Client Advisory at Christie's, Inc. in New York.

Education Roundup

By Carolyn Waters

"A minute of thought is worth more than an hour of talk."

From an in-depth study of "How Students Have Changed...A Call to Action for Our Children's Future," the top ten changes affecting students during the past thirty years are: the number of dysfunctional families has grown; high technology has influenced school, work and home life; children are threatened by crime, violence and poverty; communities are changing, becoming more diverse; the influence of the mass media has tightened its grip on children, giving them more knowledge at an earlier age; students question authority and shun traditional values and responsibilities; a hurry-up society often lacks a sense of community; changing workplaces create demands for higher levels of literacy; knowledge about learning styles demands new kinds of education and peers exert a powerful influence on values.

Ten recommendations for helping students deal with the new century and the ideas of today include: teach kids to be socially competent, to manage and resolve conflict; create a learning environment in the home; help parents and children become media literate, to sort out truth from fiction, quality media from the rest; help business and media realize the consequences of selling products that glamorize violence and diminish human dignity; encourage taxpayers to support education and the business community to supplement that support with donations, to schools, of state-of-the-art equipment and other resources; allow parents time off from work to be with their children, visit their children's school, or volunteer in the community; encourage community agencies to coordinate their efforts to be

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Since you are an Iowa girl, it occurred to me that you might be interested in some little-known facts about cows. An article from the Grand Forks (N.D.) Herald by Richard Chin tells about John Pukite, a world-class cow watcher and author of "A Field Guide to Cows." Pukite became interested in cows while driving from St. Paul, Minn., to Seattle. This is what I learned from John Pukite:

A cow stands up and sits down about 14 times a day.

In the ancient Celtic religion, a black cow symbolizes death.

A 1,000-pound cow produces an average of 10 tons of manure a year.

Brahmans do not moo; they grunt.

The Chianina breed was depicted by Michelangelo in his art.

There are an estimated 920 different breeds of cows worldwide.

In 1930, the first cow to fly was Elm Farm Ollie, who was milked in an airplane.

The next book by John Pukite is going to be about pigs. — Shirley in Grand Forks, N.D.

Dear Shirley: Pigs? A whole book? I can hardly wait. Meanwhile, I would be interested in knowing why John Pukite became so fascinated with cows and pigs. A few years ago, a Chicago couple made news when they kept a 140-pound pot-bellied pig in their high-rise apartment. The neighbors complained, and the case went to court. It was dismissed when the couple moved to the suburbs and Laddie had a yard to play in.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the oldest of five children. We recently celebrated my parents' 50th wedding anniversary. This should have been a joyous occasion, but it was not. We all know that our father has been having an affair for the last 20 years with a woman young enough to be his daughter.

Dad spends most of his time at the Other Woman's house and leaves Mother alone on weekends. Last January, he missed his grandchild's birthday to be with this woman. Mother has known about the affair for several years and apparently is content to live like this. She has made it clear she will never divorce him.

When we first confronted Father about the Other Woman, he said, "We are just good friends, and furthermore, it is none of your business." Well, Ann, we feel it IS our business because it affects our family relationships and is putting an emotional strain on all of us. What do you suggest we do about this disgraceful situation? Should we tell him off or what? — Sick About It in Minnesota

Dear Minnesota: It sounds as if you have already registered your complaint, but it has made no difference. Your father has no intention of ending the relationship. You can refuse all invitations that include the Other Woman and let your father know she is not welcome in your home. Please do not discuss the situation with your mother. She probably has enough pain as it is. I don't know what kind of relationship your parents have now, but I hope you will include your mother in your lives whenever you can. She needs your love and your presence.

Gem of the Day (Sent it by Laura E. Webb of Huntington, Ind.): A man suspected his wife might have a hearing problem. One night, he positioned himself across the room from her as she sat in her favorite chair, her back to him. Softly, he asked, "Can you hear me?" When she did not answer, he moved closer and repeated, "Can you hear me?" Still no answer. He moved closer again and asked, "Can you hear me?" Finally, he repeated his question from directly behind his wife's chair, to which she responded, "For the fourth time, yes!"

Red Cross Update

A CPR class renewal will be held April 21 at 7:00 PM at the Red Cross Office. Persons must have a current Red Cross CPR certificate and register for the class by calling the Red Cross Office at 364-3761.

A Damage Assessment/Survey class will be held Tuesday, April 20 at 7:30 at the Red Cross office. This Disaster Services class teaches volunteers how to do a survey to determine damages after a disaster. Please call the office to register or to find out more information.

On April 5, Steve Bullock, Acting President of the American Red Cross, announced that the Red Cross needs at least $1 million each week for the next few months to meet the emergency needs of refugees streaming from Kosovo. Bullock said the American Red Cross is mobilizing to ensure that the needs of the refugees are met.

The Red Cross is now accepting financial donations for Kosovo or Balkan relief at the office.

"No matter what happens in the days and weeks ahead, the Red Cross will be there supporting the communication needs of the men and women of the U.S. military," said Bullock. "Having personally served as an American Red Cross AFES staff member in German and Vietnam, I can tell you how vitally important it is to our military personnel to have the American Red Cross right by their side in times of conflict."

Donations are also being accepted at the local office for the Midland tornado. There were 270 homes damaged by the storm. Red Cross volunteers are on the scene responding to the needs of disaster victims.

All American Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary donations of time and money from the American people. To help the victims of this and other disasters, contributions can be made to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund by calling 1-800-HELP NOW or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish). Contributions to the Disaster Relief

Drug Use Among Our Youth Is Becoming Epidemic

1. Is the child's behavior becoming more intolerable to parent?

Does the youth: demand his right to drink alcohol, refuse to spend additional time on studies even though grades are down, insist that teachers are unfair, become extremely irritable, refuse to do chores, use bad language, come home late with alcohol on breath, claim people are telling lies on him, claim never to have smoked pot, not want to eat with or spend time with family, act very secretive on telephone? After behavioral clues to drug use, there usually comes the tell-tale physical evidence which is difficult to deny. The youth will usually lie or give half-way truths to parents when caught.

2. Is the teen becoming careless in his drug use?

Does the child: forget to replace the liquor stolen from parents cabinet, put the bottle between mattresses, leave the "roach" in flower pot, in bathroom or car ashtray, forget who vomited in family car, insist that marijuana found in car or room belongs to someone else?

3. Is the teen becoming drug dependent?

Does the teen: take money from his parents, brothers or sisters, steal objects from home that are easily converted to cash, lie chronically, drop out of school?

Is the teen: caught shoplifting, charged with burglary, arrested for drug use or delinquent act?

Does the teen attempt suicide? Suicide is the number two killer of our kids in America today, next to driving while intoxicated with alcohol or drugs, which is the number one killer.

The Dress Your Family For Success Program meets on Thursdays from 6 p.m.-9 p.m. The whole family is encouraged to attend. There is a children's program available. Snack and supper is provided.

A Substance Abuse Group meets on Wednesday from 6 p.m.-9 p.m. Counseling for families, groups and individuals is available. Therapy for children, teens and adults may be covered under Medicaid and insurance.

At district contest in Borger

Local 4-H'ers demonstrate consumer skills

Six Deaf Smith County 4-H members demonstrated their shopping skills and critical thinking abilities Saturday during District 4-H Consumer Decision-Making Contest in Borger.

Representing the local 4-H program were Erin Louder, Celeste Louder, Lark Duncan, Shayla Wilcox, Nathan Louder and Chelsea Campbell.

Erin Louder placed eighth as high point individual on the senior level. Her sister, Celeste, was third high point individual in the intermediate division. Lark Duncan, also an intermediate 4-H'er, was second high point individual. Celeste and Lark received medals during the awards program.

Shayla Wilcox earned a medal as high point individual in junior rankings. Also participating from Hereford on the junior level were Nathan Louder and Chelsea Campbell.

Contestants were judged on their comparison buying knowledge of batteries, athletic shoes, phone cards, bike helmets, cameras, jeans, cellular phones, toys and a mystery class.

The Consumer Decision contest teaches "thinking" skills. It is a project that instructs youth how to buy specific items, in pre-defined classes. Participants are taught how to compare quality of products and services, economic values and personal preferences. Youth attended a series of local workshops led by Extension Agent Beverly Harder in preparation for the District-level competition.

All participants are required to complete a Consumer Life Skills project. Only one senior team of three or four 4-H'ers can advance to district level. Other seniors are eligible to compete as individuals. Juniors and intermediates can compete as individuals or on a team.

Educational programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Baby boomers are targets for bifocal contacts

WASHINGTON (AP) — For aging baby boomers, bifocal glasses have seemed an inevitable rite of passage. But the pharmaceutical company Johnson & Johnson now is pushing a more youthful-looking alternative: bifocal contact lenses.

The new Acuvue disposable bifocals aren't the first bifocal contact lenses, and a few competitors exist. But very few of the 89 million Americans who need bifocal vision correction have tried them or know they exist.

"Eye care providers were not suggesting them to people, because we never had faith they would work," said optometrist Thomas Quinn of Athens, Ohio. Now that he's suggesting Acuvue, "patients' first reaction is surprise."

In testing the Acuvue, Quinn said about 70 percent of his patients had successful bifocal vision correction. He said older bifocal contacts had about a 25 percent success rate.

But the Acuvue is not for everyone, both Quinn and the Food and Drug Administration cautioned Monday. It seems to work best on mild to moderate bifocal vision problems, said FDA ophthalmic devices chief Dr. James Saviola. Quinn said people who have problems with night vision may not be good candidates.

As people age, the eye's lens gradually loses its flexibility to change visual focus from near to far. One of the first symptoms of this "presbyopia" is difficulty reading, forcing people to hold books at arm's length.

Symptoms typically begin around age 40. Even people with perfect vision in their youth need at least reading glasses by their 40s and 50s, which they remove to see at a distance. Others use bifocal glasses, or even try "monovision," putting a contact lens for near vision in one eye and one for far vision in the other.

A few companies make bifocal contacts with special near and far vision zones. But only about 1 percent of presbyopics wear contact lenses, the vast majority of whom wear monovision contacts, Johnson & Johnson said.

Acuvue bifocals comprise five concentric rings that alternate in correcting near or far vision, called a "pupil intelligent" system. Look through them, and the eye automatically adjusts to see near or far, J&J says.

YOUR EYES

YOUR OVERALL HEALTH

Many vision problems result from diseases that affect the entire body, not just the eyes. One example is diabetes. If it's not properly treated in time, diabetes can lead to blindness. High blood pressure can also harm eyesight, as can obesity.

To prevent disease and other medical conditions from seriously damaging your eyes, it's very important to have regular medical examinations.

Of course, there are other things you can do to take care of your overall health. Exercise is one. And that doesn't mean you have to get on a Stair master an hour a day. A simple 20-minute daily walk can do wonders for your system. Diet is also critical for good health. Be sure to eat plenty of leafy, dark-green vegetables.

Protecting Original Property- Patents, Trademarks and Copyrights

(Last of two parts)

Last week, in part one, I discussed utility, design and plant patents. I included some street-smart tips for protecting your ideas as you investigate the patent process.

This week we'll look at trademarks and copyrights. None of these concepts are new to the American business economy.

More than two hundred years ago the farmers of the Constitution of the United States of America guaranteed certain rights to the owners and creators of intellectual property. In Article One, Section

Eight, the writers of that great document articulated the need to "promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries..."

This grand beginning led to the patent, trademark and copyright laws we use today to protect individual effort and innovation. Truly our forefathers saw the protection of intellectual property as a part of guaranteeing the establishment of justice and promotion of the general welfare.

Trademarks

Today, U.S. Trademark law is based on the concept of first usage. While you are not required to register a trademark or service mark in order to establish your right to use it, there are advantages in following trademark procedures.

Before registering your trademark, you should search existing files and find any conflicting marks before you spend any money developing your trademark. I know one company that developed an expensive marketing campaign only to discover that the name they picked was already in use and was protected. The company had to start over with a new name.

Remember, if you're sued for trademark infringement, the fact that your mark is registered will strengthen your case and entitle you to additional protection. Many small firms have received settlements from larger companies simply because they protected their products beyond common law usage.

With trademarks, often a little extra effort can provide strong protection. Do your homework and take the trademark procedure seriously.

Copyrights

Copyrights apply to original expression, regardless of official filing status. If you create an original work - a poem, book, essay, sculpture, song, etc - the copyright is considered as a part of the work and therefore affords automatic protection. Your work does not require publication to be protected.

There are three criteria used in determining if your work is legal to copyright. It must be original, use a tangible medium of expression (paper, audio or video tape, fabric or computer disk, etc.) and it must have been produced by some form of creative activity such as your brain power or physical abilities.

The easiest way to establish copyright protection is to place the copyright symbol, the date and your name on the document. This gives you basic copyright protection, but you can strengthen your defense if you register your work with the U.S. Copyright office.

To obtain more information about patents, trademarks or copyrights, use these resources. For information on patents, patent disclosure, depository libraries and trademarks call: (800) 786-9199 and follow the instructions given. Note: you must have a touch-tone phone to utilize this automatic service. I'd recommend these brochures: "Basic Facts about Patents," "The Disclosure Document Program" and the "Current Fee Schedule."

For trademark information, request "Basic Facts about Trademarks." It usually takes about two weeks to receive the information. There is a "Help Line" which can be reached during normal business hours of the Patent and Trademark office.

For information obtaining copyright protection call (202) 707-3000 and follow directions for obtaining information. "Circular Number One - Copyright Basics" is a good place to start.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By Martha Russell

Only one more day of technology training left for library staff. The classes have been good. We've all learned a lot, but I think every one of us will agree that we're glad it's almost over!

The last session will be the last week of this month and will cover things like policy for public use of our equipment. On the surface, it looks simple enough, but really there are difficult issues. It's new territory for us; we've never been this way before. We must answer questions about who may use our Internet computer, for how long at a time, and what they may do while they are using them.

Our initial approach was to make no rules and just wait to see what would become necessary. Our agreement with Harrington Library Consortium, because they own and maintain most of our equipment, defined some of the boundaries very quickly. However, there are some gray areas in which we must make judgments. We must consider our commitment to confidentiality for patrons, administering our resources to provide optimum access to all patrons, and managing staff time involved in supervising and assisting public use. It's not easy to juggle all of that, so occasionally we have to make tough calls. Bear with us; we're "flying by the seat of our pants," and sometimes we are not sure what is the best solution for a dilemma.

Speaking of juggling...Our summer reading program theme this year (yes, it is that time, again!) is "Open a Book-On with the Show!" Planning around a circus motif, we find ourselves in need of a juggler—the kind who juggles beanbags, balls or oranges. If we needed someone who could juggle schedules, meals, money, kids, pets and husbands we could go out and find any Mom and have an expert. However, the Guinness Book of World Records kind is a little harder to find.

I decided that I would try to learn to juggle, even though I have never been known for my outstanding coordination and grace. I found a web page that gives instructions, complete with animated illustrations. The initial trials were just that—trials, especially for those in the vicinity of the objects that were flying off my fingertips. If you are amused by watching me make a fool of myself, you had better learn to duck. I am getting better. At least I think so. However, my teenage son is picking it up much faster than I am. So what else is new? The kids always show us up.

Summer reading club should be fun this year. The prizes for reading are really cool. Library staff is having a good time playing with them, so we feel like the kids will enjoy them, too. After all, we're just kids in grown up bodies. Don't let the gray hair fool you!

This week Rebecca and I will be going to Texas Library Association Conference in Dallas. As always, we look forward to bringing home new ideas and new energy. We'll give you a complete report over the next two or three weeks.

Although it is not a Mrs. Pollifax book, the latest by Dorothy Gilman, Thale's Folly, promises to be just as entertaining. When New York City novelist Andrew Thale goes to check out an old family property that has been neglected since Aunt Harriet Thale's death years ago, he finds that the old place is far from being deserted. Thale's Folly is fully inhabited by a quartet of charming squatters, former "guests" of kindhearted Aunt Harriet. There is elegant Miss L'Hommedieu, Gussie the witch, Leo the bibliophile, and beautiful nineteen-year old Tarragon, who is unlike any girl Andrew has ever met in Manhattan.

Andrew is entranced by these otherworldly creatures and their simple life. But when a thief breaks into the farmhouse, and an old friend of the "family" disappears, the peace that appears to have been Aunt Harriet's only legacy to her companions is destroyed and Andrew and Tarragon are drawn into mysteries they cannot fathom.

Dark Justice by William Bernhardt is the story of Ben Kincaid, a burned out courtroom attorney on his way to the scenic Pacific Northwest for some much needed R and R. The planned blissful getaway turns into a busman's holiday when Ben arrives in Magic Valley where a pitched battle between the local logging industry and crusading conservationists erupts in murder.

Years earlier, professional activist George Zakin was successfully defended against a charge of murder by a fledgling attorney named Ben Kincaid. Now, accused of viciously killing a lumberjack, Zakin is counting on Ben to duplicate that long-ago courtroom coup and save his neck a second time. Even though Ben is convinced of his client's innocence, Ben knows that winning the case will be an uphill fight in a town where logging is a way of life.

It doesn't help that Ben's opponent is Rebecca Granville "Granny" Adams, a hometown prosecutor with a reputation for being as ruthless as she is beautiful. With the odds stacked against him, Ben walks into a courtroom war zone and a potential killing field in the streets and woods of Magic Valley. It is an explosive place where allies and enemies are hard to tell apart and digging for the truth is as good as digging your grave.

Meatpackers reveal payments

Administration proposes pilot program

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hog farmers trying to recover from some of the lowest prices in years, the Clinton administration is proposing that meatpackers be required to reveal what they pay.

The administration's proposal is slightly different from several already pending in Congress. It would make mandatory price reporting permanent while many congressional versions authorize a three-year pilot program.

The administration for several years has supported mandatory price reporting but has never put forth its own proposal.

"Our legislation gives USDA authority to work with producers to make sure that we get them the most valuable information, so they'll have a fuller, more timely picture of what's happening in the market place," Vice President Al Gore said Thursday.

Gore made the announcement during a swing through Iowa — a critical political primary state that is also the nation's largest hog state.

Farmers have pushed for mandatory price reporting for some time, but with greater urgency over the past year. They say there is a big gap between what the meatpackers pay them and what consumers pay at the checkout counter.

All areas of livestock are experiencing low prices, and farmers have accused big companies of pushing them out by keeping prices secret.

Hogs were selling for about 25 cents a pound last month, up from a low at the end of 1998 of 8 cents but well below the break-even point for most hog farmers of almost 40 cents.

Under the proposal being sent to Congress, the Agriculture Department would require individuals who buy, sell or market livestock, livestock products or meat products to report the prices of their transactions to USDA.

USDA now collects the information only on a voluntary basis.

"Our producers have a right to know how much their product is worth on the open market and right now, they don't," said Rep. John Thune, R-S.D., a sponsor of one of the House versions.

Al Tank, chief executive officer of the National Pork Producers Council, said, "Knowledge is power. Mandatory price reporting is a component of that knowledge."

Despite the announcement, Chuck Hassebrook, a Nebraska member of Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman's National Commission on Small Farms, said the administration could do more. Commission members in February criticized Glickman for not moving to implement some form of price reporting, saying he already has some authority.

"As long as the administration refuses to use its existing authority to enforce the law, asking the Congress to pass additional legislation is just passing the buck," Hassebrook said. "It's fine, but it's not exactly providing leadership to send up legislation."

During a speech two months ago to the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, Glickman said his agency had "broad discretionary authority to collect more information from packers" and vowed to introduce interim steps.

"Within the next couple of weeks, I will have an announcement on specific steps we will take to collect additional price information," Glickman said then. "I want to push our course of action as far as we can until Congress gives me more authority."

The administration has never announced those initial steps, although a spokesman said Thursday the secretary was still reviewing options.

Dale Kleuskens awarded Resident Conservation Farmer

Local farmer and long time resident, Dale Kleuskens was recently named the Resident Conservation Farmer by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission at their 12 annual conservation awards program.

Kleuskens was nominated by the staff of the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District, because of his on going efforts to conserve water and soil and still produce a variety of crops.

Kleuskens uses conservation methods such as leaving crop residue on field surface, which prevents water loss, soil erosion, and increases irrigation water distribution.

Kleuskens also changes his sprinklers to drip systems as the crop develops. This allows for more efficient water usage and decreases the drain on the aquifer.

He includes minimum and no till farming and continues to maintain the productivity of his land.

Kleuskens farms approximately 2,500 acres, planting triticale, cotton, and grain sorghum for grain and seed.

Last year, Kleuskens raised 1,506 pounds of cotton on 14 inches of irrigation water and 480 pounds of dryland cotton.

Along with the water conservation efforts, Kleuskens applies 15 tons of manure prior to planting triticale. The addition of manure adds texture and nutrients to soil which also works to keep in moisture and prevent topsoil from blowing away.

This application is sufficient to grow the triticale, as well as corn or seed milo with only limited additional nutrients.

Kleuskens graduated from Hereford High in 1971, attended West Texas State University and returned to the family farm.

University

The Kleuskens live in a home built in 1906 which is located on the home section where he was born.

Along with the 90 year old home, Kleuskens farm includes a barn built in 1898, which housed a corn broom factory.

Kleuskens and his wife, Tonya have two children and remain active in agricultural endeavors.

Conservation winner -- Dale Kleuskens, right, was recently presented with an award by Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District chairman, Jerry Hornfeld.

FFA teams place at SPC

FFA winners — Hereford FFA teams recently traveled to Levelland to participate in the annual South Plains College Livestock Judging Invitational and came home with high point overall banner and the Grand Champion swine judging banner. Not only did the teams place well, but several individuals also placed during the event where 70 teams and approximately 300 contestants competed. High point overall individuals were Justin Johnson, second; Jerad Johnson, ninth. High point individual swine winners were Zack Vasek, second, and Brent Carlson, third. Justin Johnson placed second in individual beef judging. The Hereford team placed sixth in sheep; second in beef.

Permian producers vote to abolish boll weevil

AUSTIN (AP) — Permian Basin cotton producers have approved a plan to establish a boll weevil eradication program in the six-county zone, the Texas Department of Agriculture announced Thursday.

Of the 2,074 ballots counted, 1,507 cotton farmers voted for the plan, while 556 voted against it.

Farmers in the region agreed to pay $12 per acre for irrigated land and $6 for dryland to eradicate the weevil, a crop pest, starting with a chemical spraying. It will be followed with in-season treatments for several years.

There are four boll weevil eradication zones: Permian Basin, Southern High Plains-Caprock, Northwest High Plains and Northern Rolling Plains.

Cotton producers in the Southern High Plains-Caprock zone voted for the program but lost out on it because the number of voters for the plan was less than the two-thirds majority needed. Northern Rolling Plains producers have yet to vote.

Once a boll weevil eradication program is approved, all farmers in the region must pay for his or her property to be chemically treated.

Researchers predicted earlier this year that, left unchecked, the boll weevil would rampage across the South Plains this summer, destroying millions of acres of cotton and costing farmers millions of dollars.

"Producers in the Permian Basin have shown they want an eradication program," said Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs. "We look forward to working with them and the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation in eliminating this costly pest in Texas."

The Permian Basin zone include 779,183 acres in six counties: Dawson, Ector, Howard, Martin and portions of Borden and Midland.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Topical Tips

Is your carpet looking a little dingy, but you cannot afford to replace it?

Well, the answer may be simpler than you thought. Salt, soil, sand, grime, grease and oil are constantly being ground into your carpet, which ### builds up.

With proper care, carpets can retain their luster and last for years. If you neglect them, however, your carpets will "ugly out" long before they wear out.

The carpet-cleaning experts at Sears offer the following tips to keep your carpets gleaming for years:

*Have a professional technician perform a hot water extraction cleaning at least once a year.

*Vacuum your carpets once a week -- more if you have kids or pets.

*When spot cleaning, rinse the area thoroughly to remove residue.

*Don't rub stains -- work the stain from top to bottom, from outside to inside.

*Get the right carpets for the right places in your home and remember that there are several types of carpets made for different rooms. Consider room function, traffic flow, kids, pets, etc., when choosing color and construction.

*Ask about other carpet services, like deodorizing and carpet protection, that might be right for your home.

Going Wild! celebrates Earth Day on Disney

Jeff Corwin of the Disney Channel's educational nature series Going Wild! With Jeff Corwin spends time with some of his animal subjects. For Earth Day on Thursday, Disney offers a minimarathon of Going Wild! covering flora and fauna from Costa Rica to California.

On the day set aside to honor our planet, the Disney Channel offers a prime-time minimarathon of its educational nature-adventure series Going Wild! With Jeff Corwin. Disney is airing four consecutive episodes, covering areas from Costa Rica to California, on Earth Day, Thursday, April 22.

Speaking from his home on an island off the New England coast, Corwin says the first three shows are a "best of" from his series' first two seasons. In the first, "Costa Rica: Corcovado/Two-Toed Sloth," the peripatetic biologist visits Central America, where the show's "feature creature" is the two-toed, tree-dwelling mammal.

In the next episode, "Florida Manatees," Corwin travels to the Sunshine State to visit with the gentle sea cows in Homosassa. And in "Olympic National Park, Washington," Corwin switches from sea to air to showcase the endangered bald eagle.

The marathon culminates with "Monterey Bay," a new episode shot for the show's third season on the Ano Nuevo State Reserve, an island off the central California coast. There, huge elephant seals mate each year, and males stake out their territory, fighting over harems that can have as many as 100 cows for each bull.

Corwin says that while filming, he and his crew make an effort not to disturb the wildlife he's intent on preserving. He manages to get dangerously close to the huge elephant seals, which, up close, look like something invented by Dr. Seuss and sound like a car dying.

"It was very exciting," Corwin says. "You just sit there, and a 5,000-pound creature goes undulating past you. You feel the earth shimmer as they go by." He seems genuinely transfixed watching a cow give birth, and talks about the rich milk as the new pup nurses.

A biologist by training and an environmentalist concentrating on preserving the rain forest, Corwin has traveled around the world to shoot his 30-minute show. Its goal is "to expose our audience to natural history and get them to think about exploring something, whether in a natural ecosystem or through a book at the library," he says, adding that he would like children to "look at themselves as a global citizen, and how do we make that impact as positive as possible? I want to do that by having fun and an intimate sense of adventure."

In the elephant seal episode, Corwin's high boots get mired in the mud, and as he frees himself, he asks the audience, "Is there anything I won't do for you guys?"

This is minor compared to some of his real brushes with danger. "I haven't felt terrified as of yet," he says. "We did a show in the Rocky Mountains and were looking for Rocky Mountain elk. We came across a bull weighing about 1,000 pounds. To make it feel really exciting, I try to get in the shot with the animal and explain it."

"We found a tree, and I sort of Army-crawled on my belly, and the camera was above ground in another tree, and suddenly this bull sees me and comes charging."

"We were counting down the seconds, and I kept thinking, 'When does my window of escaping end?' Luckily, he just stopped."

So far, Corwin has taken viewers to some of the world's most exotic places. He even managed to find falcons in the eaves of a Manhattan skyscraper.

Corwin says he picks locales because of their indigenous animals. "Essentially, we want to go to an ecosystem and explore it in a way that it has not been explored before," he explains.

Telefilm on Jordan's life isn't anything like Mike

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

From the studio that gave birth to Power Rangers comes Michael Jordan: An American Hero. Fox Family Channel cashes in on a legend with the unauthorized movie biography airing Sunday, April 18.

This is not to say there aren't some mighty nice people involved in the production: Debbie Allen and Ernie Hudson play Jordan's parents, Lou Rawls has a two-scene cameo as a Chicago Bulls employee, and Michael Jace plays the NBA's greatest star as an adult. Robin Givens co-stars as Michael's wife, Juanita.

By definition, films about living legends are perilous undertakings. Movies depicting the accomplishments of extraordinary athletes are almost never satisfactory, but Michael Jordan isn't simply a sports hero; he is an inescapable part of American culture. He can't hide from us, nor we from him.

Given all that, Hero fails on two fronts: fact and art.

First, the facts: Though his golf game and gambling habit are covered, there is nothing in Hero about Jordan's Olympic outings, the broken foot that benched him for months, his movie career, his Nike endorsement deal or his staggering influence on youth.

The film ends in 1995, when he returned to basketball after his foray into professional baseball.

Hero fudges on points any Jordan fan would know, such as the fact that he was married after his first child was born, not before.

Artistically, the cast exudes sincerity, but the script crashes through Jordan's life like a series of photo ops, reducing a legend to a "common man" in an uncommonly predictable soap opera.

Jordan is the most extraordinary athlete of his generation. A movie about him should give the audience a look at the inner man. It should grapple with the phenomenon of his talent instead of suggesting he is the product of practice, ambition, positive thinking and multivitamins.

To paraphrase F. Scott Fitzgerald, Michael Jordan is different from you and me. That's where Hero misses its shot.

TV PIPELINE

Q: While discussing '70s TV shows with a friend, I vaguely remembered a ridiculous series about a junk dealer developing his own space program. Do you have any information on what it may have been? —K. Niekamp via e-mail.

A: I suspect you may be thinking of Salvage 1, which aired on ABC in 1979. Andy Griffith played junk dealer Harry Broderick, who liked to think big. Every week he and his crew, led by former space jockey Skip Carmichael (Joel Higgins), would undertake a major salvage expedition, such as journeying to the moon to retrieve junk left behind by astronauts. Trish Stewart and Richard Jaeckel also starred.

Thanks to the alert reader who first brought this obscure series to my attention in a private e-mail several weeks ago.

Q: I recently saw A Woman of Independent Means on TV. Who played Sally Field's husband, Sam Garner? —S.C., Broadway, Va.

A: Sam was played by Australian actor Jack Thompson, who may be best known for his roles in the critically acclaimed feature dramas Breaker Morant and The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith, among many others.

Q: My husband insists that the Clarence Gilyard Jr. from Matlock and the Clarence Gilyard on Walker, Texas Ranger, are father and son. I say they are the same actor. Who is right? —Mrs. A.D. in Manchester, N.H.

A: You are.

Q: A friend insists that Pernel Roberts is older than Lorne Greene, his father on Bonanza. Can you please clarify? —Bill Halfacre, Schenectady, N.Y.

A: Roberts, last seen in a 1997 guest appearance on Diagnosis Murder, was born on May 18, 1928. Greene, who died of pneumonia in 1987, was born on Feb. 12, 1915.

Q: I dimly recall a Suzanne Pleshette-George Hamilton movie called The Power, but no one else does. Does this movie exist, and what is it about? —Carolyn Dockey, Newton, N.C.

A: Pleshette and Hamilton starred in this nifty 1968 thriller about a team of researchers who discover that one of their own is using diabolical mental powers to kill the others, one by one. Richard Carlson and Yvonne De Carlo co-starred.

Q: Which Murphy Brown character did Pat Corley play? And aren't the themes to Murder, She Wrote and Newhart the same tune? —M. Cartwright, Ellwood City, Pa.

A: Corley played Phil, who owned Phil's Place. And no, John Addison wrote the Murder theme, while Henry Mancini composed the Newhart music.

SOAP TALK

Sabatino adds another nasty-boy role to resume

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

He may have set a record for bad-boy roles with his latest gig, but fans will take Michael Sabatino however they can get him.

Sabatino, who is well-known to soap audiences for playing not-so-nice guys on All My Children, The Bold and the Beautiful, Days of Our Lives and Knots Landing, will play Peter Wentworth on As the World Turns.

The character is Claire's (Donna Hanover) estranged husband, an old nemesis of Brad's (Roy Eudon). His plans for revenge include some key Oakdale residents.

Also joining the cast is Michael Woods in the contract role of Alec Wallace, a wheeler-dealer whose presence affects a great many lives.

Woods has an extensive television resume that includes Knots Landing: Back to the Cul-de-Sac, Bare Essence, Our Family Honor, Capitol News, Private Eye and most recently The Magnificent Seven.

Dear Candace: Is the actress who plays Jill's (Jess Walton) maid on The Young and the Restless the same person who played Jane Hathaway on The Beverly Hillbillies? -B.M. via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Nancy Kulp played Jane Hathaway. Beverly Archer plays Shirley the maid on Y&R.

Dear Candace: I don't know what is going on with the hairdressers on B&B.

First they chopped off Brooke's (Katherine Kelly Lang) hair. If she was supposed to look sexy for the Brooke's Bedroom clothing line, they missed the mark.

Then they had Rick Forrester (Jacob Young) standing there in a tuxedo looking like his hair had been through a Mixmaster. The hair is just plain ugly on this show. -Ruth E. Young, Findlay, Ohio.

Dear Reader: Brooke's shorter style coincided with Lang's desire for a new look. Rick's haircut, while not especially neat, is something a hip young adult might wear these days.

THE BUCK STARTS HERE.

Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information.

Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.

Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live.

Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise.

It's an integral part of our lives.

Newspaper. It delivers.
