Patton: No Veazey petitions

Questions regarding Hereford Independent School District staffing and personnel matters continue to surface within the community.

Outgoing Superintendent Jack Patton said Friday he has not received any petitions in support of Deputy Superintendent Nena Veazey as his successor. However, he acknowledged his office and school board members have received letters of support.

The only petition his office has received called for reinstatement of a teacher who has chosen the early retirement plan, Patton said.

Further questions regarding school staff, personnel, or employment issues should be presented to the superintendent's office.

A health-care team

Natives of India provide care for needy

By Becky Thorn
Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor

Quiet, efficient, knowledgeable — all describe Drs. Ranga Subra and Palani Mani, physicians at South Plains Health Providers Organization who also happen to be husband and wife.

This team provides much-needed health care for a large number of low-income families in Deaf Smith County.

Originally from southern India, they have been in the United States since 1971 and with SPHPO since 1992.

Both of them began their medical studies in India and completed their residencies in New York.

Dr. Subra, the female half of the team, is a pediatrician. Dr. Mani was trained a general surgeon but serves as a family practitioner with SPHPO.

Both are on the active staff of Hereford Regional Medical Center.

"We were in Morton before coming to Hereford. It is a very small town and we wanted something with a larger school for our child," Dr. Subra said.

Other advantages included working in the same place together and not having to do much driving, so Hereford offered many of the things they were looking for, according to Dr. Subra.

"We like the practice we do. South Plains is a little different than private practice, but the services we offer are needed. She (Dr. Subra) is the only pediatrician in Hereford."
Mani

"We like the practice we do," Dr. Mani said. "South Plains is a little different than private practice, but the services we offer are needed. She (Dr. Subra) is the only pediatrician in Hereford."

Dr. Subra has been a United States citizen for more than two years, but Dr. Mani still has his green card.

They have two daughters. Their oldest daughter is graduating from medical school at George Washington University this May. She is going to University Medical Center in New Jersey to be an orthopedic surgeon.

Their younger daughter, Mallary, is in fifth grade at Nazarene Christian Academy.

Both doctors stressed that they felt it is good the community is getting involved with determining what the health care needs are.

"We all need to give our input of what our need is and what we think," Dr. Subra said.

"We need to determine what kind of health care facility the community will use, because a lot of the people do not use this hospital," Dr. Mani said. "We need a facility the community will use. That is the key point."

"If the doctor is good and the person trusts the doctor and he is doing his best, most of the people will stay with him," Dr. Subra said.

"South Plains Health Providers serve people who cannot always afford to pay, but they have a place to come. That is the bottom line. The people working for South Plains get satisfaction from helping other people," Dr. Mani said.

"We saw about 7,000 patients last year," Dr. Subra said.

Dr. Ranga Subra and her husband, Dr. Palani Mani, provide health care for a large number of low-income families in Deaf Smith County. The physicians are originally from southern India and have been with the South Plains Health Providers Organization since 1992.

Press association offering 2 journalism scholarships

Applications are now being accepted from high school seniors and junior and senior college students for two $1,000 college scholarships, according to Hereford Brand Publisher Mauri Montgomery. The amount of the scholarships were increased by West Texas Press Association at the 1998 Summer Convention held in Midland.

The Hereford Brand is a member of the West Texas Press Association, the world's largest press organization because of the vast geographic area it encompasses. The association will present scholarships to two future journalists in print media from the area served by the membership of WTPA whose career goals include working with a community newspaper.

Through the Bob Craig Memorial Scholarship program, a graduating high school senior and a college junior or senior will each be presented with a $1,000 scholarship. The scholarship is named in honor of longtime Hamlin Herald Publisher

Bob Craig, who died in 1981. He served 18 years on the WTPA board in all offices, including president in 1967 and secretary/treasurer from 1969.

The scholarship will be divided into payments of $500 per semester for two semesters for each of the two scholarship winners. The winners must be enrolled in at least three hours of college or university journalism courses each semester that the scholarship is awarded.

Each applicant must fill out an application form and write an essay based on the theme "My future and Career Plans in Community Journalism."

One scholarship will be presented to a graduating high school senior and the other will be presented to a student who is already attending a college or university as a print journalism or advertising major.

There were no entries for the college scholarship last year and the board voted to award two scholarships to graduating seniors. Winners were Amiee M. Moreland of Fort Davis and Laura Barkowsky, a graduate of Greenwood High School in Midland.

Application forms have been sent to member newspapers and high schools in the area of West Texas Press Association members and to college journalism departments.

Prospective applicants may secure a form from the high school journalism department or counselor or the local newspaper office. Applicants must be from the area served by the WTPA membership.

Applications and essays must be sent to M. Gene Dow, WTPA Scholarship Chairman, P.O. Drawer 1200, Seminole 79360, and be postmarked on or before June 15, 1999.

Scholarship recipients will be chosen by the directors of the West Texas Press Association and will be announced at the Association's 69th Annual Summer Convention, July 22-24, 1999, at the Clarion Hotel in Abilene.

Rival takes on Bush issue

Buchanan sets Texas visit to discuss oil at town meeting

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican presidential hopeful Pat Buchanan will make a trip to Texas, hitting Midland-Odessa next week to talk about one of Gov. George W. Bush's favorite subjects — oil.

Buchanan plans a town meeting on Wednesday to discuss what can be done to shut the valve on "cheap foreign oil."

Buchanan campaign manager Jay Townsend said the Texas trip is targeted at an issue, not Bush.

"Our message is that we have disagreements with the White House and some people in our party over U.S. trade policy," Townsend said. "This is not about George Bush."

In 1992, Buchanan picked up 37 percent of the New Hampshire vote in running second to then-President George Bush. In 1996, Buchanan won the New Hampshire primary.

Bush, a former oilman, earlier this year signed emergency legislation to give tax breaks to small oil producers facing low prices.

Buchanan's 2000 campaign already is heavy on evidence that he and Bush are headed for major disagreements, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

"I was not born to vast wealth or a famous political dynasty," Buchanan said in a recent fundraising letter. "In this campaign, we will be facing candidates who enjoy these advantages."

Dole opposes abortion, but says amendment unlikely

Another potential GOP presidential rival, Elizabeth Dole, said Friday she supports the idea of a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion but feels the idea is politically unfeasible — a position similar to one that has brought Bush criticism from some conservatives.

Mrs. Dole wrote in a letter to a supporter that she is anti-abortion. However, like Bush, she said she believes abortion should be allowed in cases of rape or incest, or when pregnancy might endanger the life of a mother.

The former Red Cross president and Republican Cabinet secretary has been criticized by some in the conservative wing of the party for not having taken a position on the hotly debated topic.

Former Reagan official meets with governor

Bush met Friday with Edwin Meese, Ronald Reagan's attorney general, who said the two spent 35 minutes in a "wide-ranging discussion ... on a variety of domestic, foreign and domestic issues that we were both interested in."

"We talked about a lot of things. The governor's a friend," Meese said. He would not detail most of their discussions.

Colorado governor to head Bush's effort in that state

Colorado Gov. Bill Owens says he will be the state chairman for Bush's presidential campaign.

Owens endorsed Bush in February, after he and other Colorado officials paid an economic-development visit to Texas. Owens says he's supporting the Texas governor because he likes his philosophy, and "I've used him as a model in certain areas." Ex-aide to LBJ says being Texas not always good

Being a Texan could be both good news and bad for Bush, political analysts told The Dallas Morning News.

While Dwight Eisenhower's birthplace is Denison, and presidents Lyndon Johnson and George Bush called Texas home, there are a long line of other Texas politicians who've tried and failed to win the White House: John Connally, Lloyd Bentsen, Phil Gramm and Ross Perot.

"Texas is a little bigger than life, so there is a cultural bias against Texas," said Democratic consultant George Shipley of Austin. "And it is certainly apparent in the Northern state primaries. In Iowa and New Hampshire, it is there."

But George Christian, who was press secretary to Johnson, said Bush is an exception.

"There was no way any of those other guys were able to put this kind of national effort together the first crack out of the box," Christian said. Bush "appears to be a non-threatening kind of political figure that voters like," he said.

Retreat participants — Residents of the Hereford area joined the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors, Hereford Regional Medical Center personnel, members of the medical community and civic/community leaders Saturday morning for a HRMC-sponsored retreat to discuss the future of the health care delivery system in the county. Consultants Jephtha W. Dalston, HealthExec Inc. of Houston, and Mary Crites, Parkhill, Smith & Cooper of Lubbock, discussed long-term planning for the hospital, including the physical plant.

Senate OKs $98 billion budget with tax relief

AUSTIN (AP) — Senate budget-writers tentatively agreed to a nearly $98 billion, two-year spending proposal Friday that would provide for an estimated $2 billion in tax relief for Texans.

The budget measure — which would fund state government programs and services from education to welfare to prisons — was adopted 11-0 as a "work product" by the Senate Finance Committee.

The panel will take another, formal vote after the bill is drafted in final form. The measure then will head to the full Senate for consideration.

Proposed tax relief under the budget proposal includes a move to reduce local school property taxes and a sales tax break.

It falls short of the $2.6 billion in tax relief that has been proposed by Gov. George

"I think it's unfair to say well, because he didn't get $2.6 (billion) he failed. ... I would say he got a heck of a lot. It's a big deal. I sure wouldn't look at it as a failure. I would look at it as a heck of a win."

Sen. Bill Ratliff, chairman, Senate Finance Committee

W. Bush.

Finance Committee Chairman Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, said the smaller number shouldn't be viewed as a setback for the Republican governor.

"I think it's unfair to say well, because he didn't get $2.6 (billion) he failed. ... I would say he got a heck of a lot. It's a big deal," said Ratliff.

"I sure wouldn't look at it as a failure. I would look at it as a heck of a win."

Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-

Austin, voted yes on the budget proposal but said it doesn't do enough in such areas as teacher pay. He said his vote was out of respect for Ratliff's leadership.

"This bill in my opinion falls terribly short of meeting the needs of the state. ... We have failed to adequately address some of our greatest needs — education, health and human services for our children," Barrientos said.

"I hope we can do better before the bill is finally passed."

Rodeo bullrider remains in a coma

AUSTIN (AP) — Charles "Trey" Shader's last conscious memories are of losing his balance, falling forward and slamming his head against the skull of a 2,000-pound bull.

That was April 3. As of Friday night, the 24-year-old rodeo bull rider remained in a coma at Brocoe Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Shader's accident happened four seconds into an eight-second ride during a competition in Stockdale, south of San Antonio. With his face bleeding profusely, he collapsed unconscious onto the brown dirt of the arena floor.

"This is really the bad side of rodeo," rodeo buddy Adam Olivo told the Austin American-Statesman. "If you're going to ride bulls, you're going to get hurt. You just don't know when and how bad. Charles knew that. ... We're praying for him, and we have a lot of faith."

Friends and relatives said Shader appeared to improve during the week, and he surprised doctors by moving his eyes and jaw. On Thursday, he was taken off the respirator and breathed on his own.

But his condition worsened Thursday night, said his aunt, Rachel Biddy. He began running a fever, and doctors said he had an infection.

Candidates for the three at-large seats on the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors are Bobby Owen, Pat Stone, Ernest Flood, Dr. Steve Lawlis, Joe Hamby, Shelly Brock and Jesse E. Rincones.

The three seats are now held by Mal Manchee, who serves as board president; Chip Guseman and Chris Leonard. The three decided not to seek re-election to the hospital board.

Only one race for Hereford City Commission is contested. In Place 1, incumbent Silvana Juarez is facing a challenge from Joe Garza and Martha Rincon. Rincon was an unsuccessful candidate in 1998 for the commission.

Two other city candidates, incumbents Mayor Bob Josseland and Commissioner Tom Conaway, had no opposition. They already have been declared winners in the election and their names will not be on the ballot.

In the Hereford Independent School District, there are two contested races. In District 2, incumbent Charlie Arrellano is being challenged by Raul Valdez, while incumbent Tracy Straughan is being opposed by Lou Serrano.

Testing, testing, one, two, three

Whenever we'd do a sound check after setting up a portable sound system or turning on a building P.A. we'd say, "Test, testing, one, two, three."

This did several things. First, it told us the system was working. We could tell right away if we needed to check the power, a speaker, cord or a switch. Second, it was apparent if the sound was overwhelming. Too loud and we would know right away! Not loud enough and we needed to make other adjustments. The last, and most important, was the system working like we wanted it to. Was it doing what we intended it to do.

Cliff Golden
Career Specialist

We just got most of the high school TAAS results back from TEA. With the exception of the reading results, the numbers were fantastic! The kids did a bang-up job of getting through one of the toughest hurdles of the year. Without passing results, not to mention the decidedly awesome scores we came up with, the kids would have had to have gone back to the drawing board.

These kinds of impressive scores make the educators look really good. The teachers work long hours to come up with classroom strategies and plans to facilitate student successes. Administrators, too, have been trying new approaches that they hope will be successful. Guess what? The strategies, plans and strategies worked! In fact, the high school administration took a well deserved bow at last Tuesday's school board meeting. With a "drum roll" and the administrators standing the very impressive results were announced. Success is a great foundation on which to build!

Testing, testing, one, two, three.

What kind of things do the TAAS results tell us? What can we tell from these fantastic results? What kind of proficiency do the students have in problem solving? Team work? How about personal responsibility like were the basis of the S.C.A.N.S. report? In my humble opinion there's a few things that continue to go unanswered. What kind of skills do the successful students have? With new careers being created every day, will the successful testees be able to figure out occupational trends and where they fit into our world economy?

TAAS is not an end-all answer to evaluation of students' skills. I've heard industrial leaders and business men/women alike suggest skills evaluation be made a part of the TAAS. These leaders are interested in just how well their new employees can perform on the job. Not how well they can be taught to take the TAAS assessment.

Bottom Line

I'd like to recommend we look at some sort of modified block scheduling and coherent career emphasis so our students would not only master academic concepts, but have an opportunity to try and hone some of their new ideas. I've found I occasionally have to adjust a carefully thought out idea after trying it out.

If block scheduling, course sequencing and career emphasis or pathways don't mean anything to you just ask. Ask the school district trustee from your district, your student's counselor or school's principal to explain them to you. We must have a marketable education experience and our current system is not doing the job completely.

Any opinions expressed are solely the opinions of the author and do not reflect the opinions or policies of the Hereford Independent School District nor its employees.

State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, who chairs the Texas Senate Education Committee; and Joe Wisnoski, co-

THE HEREFORD BRAND Letters

Dear Editor:

With the city's decision to remove the signal lights from Main Street, it is as if they are signaling the town of Hereford will never grow or get back to the busy, prosperous city it has been in the past.

Why be in such a hurry to take such drastic action?

When we came to Hereford in 1952 from Oklahoma, we were so impressed with the number of trains that come through here every day. Then we got down to only a few a day. Now they say we will have around 150 trains a day. This should tell us something. Hereford can become a thriving, busy town again.

Betty Greenway

Dear Editor:

The S.W.O.R.D. group of Hereford Church of the Nazarene would like to say many thanks to some very special people for making our annual Bus Ministry Easter Egg Hunt a huge success. John and Sandy Josseland, Tom and Jan Dickerson, Ted and Evelyn Taylor, Patti Sellars, Jake Northcutt.

There were over 70 excited children who participated. Kids who may not have had an Easter of any kind.

This project has always been very special for our group. On behalf of this group it is my prayer of Thanks for this successful event and that everyone in this community had Easter as blessed as mine.

Finally, a missile defense

During the third week of March, the Senate debated a simple but profound question: Shall it be "...the policy of the United States to deploy as soon as technologically possible an effective national missile defense capable of defending the United States against limited ballistic missile attack?"

The Congress, at long last, made the right decision: We will deploy a missile defense system as soon as technologically feasible. As President Reagan said on an historic night 16 years ago, describing his vision for a missile defense: "Wouldn't it be better to save lives than to avenge them?"

This bill had been blocked by a filibuster for two years but ultimately had strong support from both sides of the aisle. As more and more members of Congress became convinced that a missile defense is critical to our nation's security, the support was overwhelming and even President Clinton dropped his opposition.

The need for missile defense is vital and the danger is growing every day. Chinese missiles can now reach our mainland. Apparently with U.S. assistance and through espionage, China has tremendously boosted its military space and missile capabilities in recent years.

China is now directly threatening Taiwan. It has even warned us not to include Taiwan in our defense umbrella.

North Korea probably already possesses the capability to target our shores. Iran and Iraq are not far behind. The Clinton administration, incredibly, said that we would have a warning time of 15 years before North Korea and Iran could acquire such missiles.

But in January, North Korea launched a

Shall it be "...the policy of the United States to deploy as soon as technologically possible an effective national missile defense capable of defending the United States against limited ballistic missile attack?"

Missile defense system legislation ballistic missile over Japan, and it now appears that this ballistic missile was a three-stage missile rather than a less sophisticated two-stage rocket, as originally believed. That launch suggests North Korea is capable of a lot more than simply striking Japan, South Korea, Taiwan and U.S. bases in the Western Pacific. Very soon, it will be able to threaten attacks against the United States in Alaska and parts of Hawaii.

There never was a good argument against deploying a missile defense as soon as possible.

The bill we passed does not mandate a specific missile defense or authorize a particular funding level. It is simply a confirmed policy, and an extremely important step for our national security.

The bold, innovative nation that put a man on the moon can and will meet this technological challenge. Our top scientists have researched anti-missile technology for decades. We have had a formal missile defense program since President Reagan launched his Strategic Defense Initiative in 1983. An operational system is now within our reach.

Finally, we will strive to end this nation's shocking vulnerability to the world's most threatening weapons.

Deja vu all over again

Don Cooper
HerefordBrand

As the esteemed sage Yogi Berra once put it: It's deja vu all over again.

For those of us who remember the United States' inexorable drift into a full-scale war in Vietnam, the air strikes on Yugoslavia, followed by the decision to dispatch helicopter gunships and support troops to Macedonia, really does offer a sense of deja vu.

In a strange twist of irony, many of the people who are leading the nation down the path toward a war in the Balkans are the same people who opposed the war in Vietnam.

Of course, you can't compare what's going on in the Balkans with what transpired in Southeast Asia; however, there are some similarities.

In Vietnam, the first step was the decision during the Eisenhower administration to send military advisers to help train the South Vietnamese armed forces in their civil war with the North Vietnamese.

During the Kennedy administration, the U.S. was drawn further into the conflict between the two Vietnams. President Kennedy increased economic aid to South Vietnam, then boosted the number of military advisers to 16,000 and introduced helicopters.

After Kennedy's assassination, President Lyndon Johnson increased the number of advisers, U.S. hardware and economic aid to the south. In the spring of 1965, Johnson authorized a bombing campaign against North Vietnam, followed in August 1965 by the introduction of the first 50,000 ground combat forces.

The slow escalation of the U.S. participation in Vietnam saw a bombing campaign against selected military targets, with a goal of persuading the North Vietnam Army and the Viet Cong guerrillas that the cost of continuing the war against South Vietnam was too high.

The bombing campaign, which ultimately would expand to aerial strikes against major North Vietnamese cities, failed even though the U.S. pounded Vietnam with three times the amount of bombs it dropped on both theaters of World War II.

In this conflict, the U.S. and NATO are bombing selected military targets. In an ominous decision, the Clinton administration is sending helicopter gunships to Macedonia to help protect the ethnic Albanian refugees. Introduction of the Apache attack helicopters into the region also means there will be additional U.S. military personnel on the ground in Macedonia in support roles.

This next step likely would be the deployment of ground combat forces in Kosovo when it becomes apparent the bombing campaign is a failure. There also is the very real possibility the war will spill over the borders of Serbia and Kosovo into Bosnia-Herzegovina, Macedonia, Albania and Croatia.

Will the U.S. become involved in a ground war in the Balkans, a historically unstable region of bitter ethnic rivalries? If President Clinton is truly determined to "prevail" in this confrontation, U.S. ground forces will be deployed. After all, Lyndon Johnson was determined to "nail that coonskin to the wall," and the U.S. involvement in Vietnam expanded steadily.

The parallel is ominous: Like Vietnam, there apparently is no plan for getting out of the Balkans and the U.S. leaders seem to think bombing of selected military targets in a "limited" war can succeed.

It didn't succeed in Vietnam; it is not likely to succeed in the Balkans.

Like Yogi said: It's deja vu all over again.

A helping hand is good, but free ride hurts us all

Nothing seems to stir a taxpayers' blood nearly so much as the topic of welfare, welfare reform or welfare abuse.

Nearly everyone has their own tale of seeing welfare recipients buying unqualified goods, driving new vehicles, or "knowing how to work the system."

Unfortunately, today's society perpetuates the system and its abuses and only gives lip service to reform issues.

Today's big welfare news is the number of people coming off welfare rolls but who still cannot make a living, afford insurance for themselves or their children, or afford non-subsidized housing.

For welfare reform to be effective, it must start at the individual level with an old-fashioned thing called integrity. Without integrity, children will continue to be born of unwed parents, brought up on welfare and thinking education or making something of themselves is unimportant.

The ideas of free rides, free meals and free livelihoods must come to a stop. As it stands, there is no incentive for people to conduct themselves in a manner to stay off welfare rolls.

Don't get me wrong; I certainly feel that people in need should be helped. However, at some point, people have to help themselves and stand on their own two feet.

When people say they can't afford to be married because the man would have to go to work, or the couple would lose their food stamps, Medicare or housing, where is the incentive to stay off the welfare rolls?

Someone told me of a young man who said he didn't really need to finish high school because he had already fathered two children and could live with either one of the mothers.

This truly bothers me. Why is this young man not having to support his children and why has society become so tolerant as to accept unwed mothers and their children? It's not only an acceptance, but an encouragement when the unwed mother is provided food, housing, clothing allowances, day care so she can attend classes, medical care, but not told another child will not be paid for by the state.

After all, if morals and ethics are not taught at home at an early age, then they need to be taught as soon as possible.

Along the same line is the number of state prisoners ordered to pay support, but who do not pay, because as prisoners they can't make payments. What's worse is they make no attempt to get out of jail, because part of their parole includes making child-support payments.

What really bothers me, though, is the number of hard working people who can't afford little luxuries like doctors, dentists, car repairs or small vacations because so much is taken out of their checks to pave the way for all the deadbeats.

I have to admit that it upsets me when I hear parents say they can't afford to take their kid in for braces, especially when I see so many Medicaid kids with caps on all their teeth. No, I don't want to see anyone deprived of a necessary part of life, but it is very hard to justify the payments when the payees don't get any benefit.

Dianna F.
Dandridge
HerefordBrand

Just think how many fewer people would apply for or need benefits, if they actually had to qualify for them.

Benefits are, after all, something a person is due or has earned. Those of us in the working community earn a vacation; we earn our insurance; we make our house payments and rent from the sweat of our labor.

Why can't welfare recipients earn their benefits? Two hours of work in a park for a day's worth of food stamps.

Why can't single moms help clean the daycare centers in return for child care while they attend classes? Maybe it wouldn't be exactly equal as far as amount of work for benefits, but at least the recipient would be putting into society.

A helping hand is something everyone needs at some point, and most people appreciate it. A continuous handout hurts us all.

Upbeat reports gloss over lingering economic pain

By Dave Skidmore
The Associated Press

When people like Jerry Lobdill and Chuck Engel read about the U.S. economy, they grind their teeth at the seemingly endless stream of good news.

Both know their story isn't told by the nation's unemployment rate, at a 29-year low of 4.2 percent in March, nor by the 10-week stretch of weekly jobless benefit claims beneath 300,000, the longest since 1973.

And they know they're not alone in briding at the picture painted by the broad brush of such statistics, and the political rhetoric that often accompanies them.

"These economic indicators ... mean wider opportunity and a better chance for millions of Americans," President Clinton declared at a news conference earlier this month, before turning to the situation in Yugoslavia.

Such talk angers Lobdill, 61, of Fort Worth, Texas.

"When I hear Clinton crowing about that stuff ... I'm just totally disgusted," he said.

In 1991, Lobdill, a chemical engineer and applied scientist, lost a job of 25 years at the Fortune 500 defense contractor, Tracor Inc. In the wrenching industry shakeout after the Cold War, he and his family moved first to Syracuse, N.Y., and then to suburban Washington so he could take jobs that lasted, respectively, seven months and two years.

After four more years of making ends meet by substitute teaching high-school science and math and taking odd jobs, Lobdill again is working in applied science for a firm that makes underwater acoustic sensors — but at a third of his former salary.

He takes issue in particular with the use of the unemployment rate as a proxy for the nation's economic health, because it makes no distinction between a chemical engineer working full-time earning $100,000 and a chemical engineer tossing newspapers.

For his part, Engel, 51, of Daytona Beach, Fla., is skeptical of the significance of

"These economic indicators ... mean wider opportunity and a better chance for millions of Americans."
President Clinton

vigorous employment and income growth in real estate. After the growth of large discount chain stores ended his nearly 30-year career selling and servicing office machines, he joined many other laid-off workers in thinking a real estate license might be the answer.

But in real estate, the top 10 percent of sales people rack up 90 percent of commissions, he said.

"It takes years to build a career in this field," he said. "What do you suppose the other 90 percent of the people that make 10 percent of the earnings make? ... It has not made me even minimum wage for the time I put in last year."

The headline unemployment rate in March masked other disparities: blacks at 8.1 percent and whites at 3.6 percent; teen-agers at 14.3 percent and adults 25 years and older at 3.1 percent; high-school dropouts at 6.1 percent and college graduates at 1.9 percent.

Rates for metropolitan areas in February ranged from 19.8 percent in the farming community of Visalia, Calif., to 1.1 percent in the college town of Charlottesville, Va.

Perhaps a more telling measure of economic health is the under-employment rate, at 7.9 percent in March. It includes not only jobless people looking for work, but jobless people too discouraged to look and part-timers who want full-time work.

And even that fails to account for movement down the economic scale by people like Engel and Lobdill.

According to the Economic Policy Institute, a liberal-leaning Washington think tank, job losers in the 1980s and 1990s suffered on average a 14 percent pay cut in their next job. Nearly 29 percent lost health benefits.

And even as more people get hired, more are getting fired. Challenger, Gray & Christmas Inc., the Chicago job placement firm, reported more than 450,000 publicly announced job cuts in the six months ended in March — record for the 1990s.

"Companies today have to make cuts to satisfy Wall Street," said John A. Challenger, the firm's chief executive. "It's the '90s imperative."

It's conventional wisdom that Clinton — whose 1992 campaign operated under the unofficial slogan, "It's the economy, stupid!" — can do no wrong in the public's eye because the economy is thriving.

But his would-be successor, Vice President Al Gore, will need to be especially careful when he talks about the economy's strength, lest he alienate voters.

"Because Bill Clinton is perceived as in touch with the average American's experience, he can get away with a lot," said Celinda Lake, a Democratic pollster. "A politician like Al Gore will pay a lot higher price for saying, 'The economy is good,' because people already think he's out of touch with their pain."

Dave Skidmore has written about the economy for The Associated Press in Washington since 1987.

Time
(Jeannine Hassell)

The arm moving silently in exercise, actively turning hour by hour.
No motion, but the arms
When silent,
a repeated humming sound is heard
time, after time,
after time.
The one way motion of the exercising arms
movings around in circles, in Time.

Quarter Horse Man
(Jerry Ratliff)

He drives down the highway in his pickup, of course,
But his off-road vehicle is his quarter horse.
Cowboy marries sweetheart and puts the ring on her hand
As they go through life on their promised land.
There's children; there's roundups, rodeos and races
So much to do and so many faces
Through hard times and good, the hour glass loses sand
But the strong just get stronger like the quarter horse man.
Now it's rodeo time; there's the rodeo queen
Cowgirl in tight jeans; cowboy in starched shirt
Flies through the air as he hits the dirt
Shock comes far too soon with a pride that can't hide
The disappointment and heartbreak of the seven-second ride.
How do you tell the age of a quarter horse man
By his wrinkled hands and the depth of his tan.
But the eyes tell the story of where he has been
Reflections to the world picked up by a friend
Many years go by, it's the end of the race
Tired in the eyes and tired in the face.
Don't feel bad for the cowboy, he has had a good ride
With wife, family and friends always by his side
Now the curtain comes down; it's the end of the play
Black cars and black suits mark the end of the day.
Still a vision on the hill watches over the land
Through the eyes and soul of a quarter horse man.

YOUR EYES

Your Children and Eye Safety

All too often, children suffer eye injuries that could easily have been prevented. To provide the safest environment that you can for your children;

- Choose toys that are age-appropriate
- Supervise when your children are using scissors, pencils, paper clips and rubber bands.
- Don't let them play with potential hazardous items such as wire coat hangers or elastic cords, air-powered rifles, pellet guns or BB guns. Avoid darts and arrows.
- Keep all chemicals and sprays out of reach of young children.
- Don't let your children play with fireworks.
- Make sure a child is wearing protective eyewear when playing baseball, basketball, racquetball, soccer, hockey or lacrosse.
- Set an example by wearing protective eyewear when you are using power tools or working with other potentially dangerous machines.

To the max

BRAND/ Mauri Montgomery

UNDER THE WIRE

A Canyon softball player reaches as far as she can to retrieve a wide throw to second while Hereford's Teresa Zimmerman slides safely to the pad. Hereford won the game 17-7, which was played in March during the first half of loop play. The Lady Whitefaces were to meet Canyon again Saturday at 1 p.m. in Canyon. Hereford concludes its season this week here against Dumas on Tuesday and Randall on Saturday, April 17.

Astros may have ace in Reynolds

HOUSTON — When it comes to the Astros' pitching staff, the talk always comes back to the team's need for a No. 1-type pitcher, somebody to call "ace."

They may already have one. In the past nine months, righthander Shane Reynolds has faced the acquisition of Randy Johnson, rumors of his name being on the trading block and a failed attempt to land Roger Clemens. Through it all, he remains in an Astros uniform.

"Guys like Randy Johnson and Roger Clemens are few and far between," said Reynolds, who made his fourth straight opening day start Tuesday with a victory against the Chicago Cubs. "If you are lucky enough to have one of those guys, that's something special. We found that out last year with Randy Johnson. None of us are veteran, power-type pitchers that have that kind of leadership and intensity."

But last season, Reynolds had something equally important — victories. In 1998, he posted career highs with 19 wins and 209 strikeouts, while ranking among the National League's top 10 in six different categories.

Only four pitchers had more victories. Two of them took home Cy Young Awards.

Manager Larry Dierker, a major-league pitcher for 14 years, thinks the only thing preventing Reynolds from gaining mention among baseball's best is the ability to record successful back-to-back seasons.

Only once has Reynolds, 31, posted double-digit victories in consecutive seasons, winning 10 games in 1995 and 16 in '96. He dropped to nine wins during an injury-plagued '97 season before last season's breakthrough.

Reynolds came within one victory of being the first Astros pitcher to win 20 games since Mike Scott in 1989.

SHANE REYNOLDS

LARRY DIERKER
Astros manager

"He's on the verge of being classified as a No. 1 pitcher. I think Shane has pretty much gotten the respect of everyone around the league," Dierker said. "Most guys that you project as No. 1 pitchers are guys that throw real hard. What it boils down to is making good pitches. Hitting the spots and having movement on your pitches is more important than running the radar gun up."

"He not only gives you the aspect of a guy who doesn't walk people, but he makes the hitters beat him instead of beating himself," Dierker added. "He can also get a strikeout with a man on third and one out, which is one of the things you look for in a No. 1 pitcher, a guy who can get out of a really tough jam by getting strikeouts."

Reynolds went 7-1 following the July 31 trade for Johnson. In five full seasons, Reynolds' 63 victories rank 10th on the club's all-time list.

"He's going to take his place among the best (in club history) if he does this for a few more years," Dierker said. "If you start getting yourself into the top 10 pitching categories with any team, that's a pretty good accomplishment. I don't think he's far away."

Olazabal leads at Augusta

■ But the Masters still hasn't seen the last of Greg Norman, who stood three strokes off the lead Friday as the field headed into final weekend rounds

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Even in the depths of his mysterious foot problems, when he was confined to the couch for months at a time, Jose Maria Olazabal refused to ask himself "What if?"

For Greg Norman, that's been the question of his Masters career.

"You cannot live in the past," Olazabal said after shooting a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take the halfway lead in the Masters. "I try to not think too much about what happened in the past."

Neither does Norman, but it's hard not to when every interview eventually gets around to his 1996 collapse on a spring Sunday at Augusta National. Then there were the letters that filled his locker this week, offering sympathy and support.

It was no surprise, then, after moving into contention Friday for the first time since he blew a six-stroke lead in the final round, where the talk was going. It was more about past failures than Norman's unexpected success that has him just three shots off the lead going into weekend play.

GREG NORMAN

"I don't know what my destiny is," he said. "All I want to do is just go play well. I don't believe in things getting owed to you. I think you go out there and play well enough to get them yourself."

So far, Norman has been doing just that, playing steady if not spectacular golf in this, his 19th Masters. He bogeyed the first hole Friday, then didn't make another mistake in shooting a 68 that left him 5-under at 139 — three shots behind Olazabal.

Whether the weekend will finally bring the green jacket he so desperately wants or more heartache, remains to be seen. But he's determined to do just what Olazabal had to do to resurrect his career — forget the past.

"I've always been one for what's done is done and move on with life," Norman said. "Right now I'm feeling extremely

Offer carp "the right dough" and they'll become hooked

Rainbow trout were supposed to be the star attraction, but the biggest fish landed by any youngster in the KidFish event held at the Aquatic Park Pond in Hereford March 27 was a 21-inch "bugle-mouth bass" hauled in by Chris Mendoza in the 12-16 age category. Cassandra Buentello had the top fish in the six and under category at 12-3/4 inches, and Fernando Carrasco won the 7-11 age class with a 12-incher. Top five KidFish fundraisers, in order, were Ryan Lucero, Baily Clements, Bryson Acton-Ware, J.C. Aguillar, and Clint Buckman.

The buglemouth variety of "bass" caught by Chris is known in far less flattering terms as the common carp...

The fact that a carp was the big fish of a KidFish event that yielded some nice stringers of rainbow trout shouldn't come as a huge surprise, given that carp thrive in almost any waterhole, and that many of the event's young anglers were using canned whole-kernel corn (carp candy) as bait.

Carp won't win any beauty contests, nor will many anglers readily acknowledge that they have purposely fished for the scaly/slimy finned beasts, but buglemouths have brought sudden action and excitement to many a fishing outing that might otherwise have been a dud.

Powerful, determined tackle-busting fighters, carp reach outsized trophy proportions. Any water body that has a serious population of carp is probably going to routinely yield five-pound or larger specimens... The state record carp taken on rod and reel is in excess of 40 pounds!

Years ago, I fished an elongated irrigation reclaim pit near Hart that was absolutely teeming with carp. Walking stealthily along the bank, you could see clouds of silt rising to the surface, marking the foraging of the fish.

Using my spinning reel I lobbed a worm-baited hook just in front of one of these silt clouds and almost before I had turned the crank on the reel a carp grabbed the bait and took off---It was like hooking a torpedo. A massive wake shot across the water, my rod bent double, and the line sang with impossible tautness... No chance to back off the drag before the fish hit the end of the line and snapped the straining monofilament with a sound like a rifle shot.

Nothing to do but sit on the bank and shake a while. Then I re-rigged, backed the reel's drag way off, and tried again. The next strike was just as intense, but this time the screeching drag on the reel gave line at the crucial point and I was able to successfully fight and land a good fish. I enjoyed the thrill of catching at least a dozen five and six-pound class carp in the next hour.

In days of yesteryear when Buffalo Lake at Umbarger was a Panhandle angling hotspot, my grandad would brew up what he called "crab-bite" on the butane cookstove of his converted school bus/ camper. This crab-bite contained cottonseed cake and other assorted ingredients that he stirred to a putty-like consistency to formulate an effective dough bait for carp and catfish. He would fairly line the bank at Buffalo Lake with fishing rods propped into conduit holders that were poked into the ground. I was probably four or five the time he shoved one of these rigs into my hands after it bowed to the weight of a fish on, and told me to crank hard and reel him in. The line grew impossibly tight---I just couldn't reel any more, but I could step backward---and managed to drag a monster carp from the deep onto the bank. I still remember the screeching sound the reel made as the handle ran backward when I got the fish on the bank---it had to have been the mother of all backlashes.

If nothing else, playing carp is great practice for more serious angling. Should a carp break off and escape it's not as if you've lost the trophy of a lifetime... You ought to be able to hook another one just as good in short order.

You can boost your chances with carp or catfish by concentrating them by baiting a hole. Soured wheat or grain sorghum works great for this, although working with this odiferous stuff is aromatically challenging. Just let the grain soak in a covered plastic bucket for about four days, and it will become sufficiently aromatic to draw fish from clear across the lake. Some folks sink burlap bags containing cottonseed meal or cornmeal to sweeten-up a honey hole. Mark the spot you've baited, then fish over it with your choice of offerings.

Rick Mize, a television cameraman from Lubbock, clued me in on a couple of effective doughbait recipes that are simple to make, and effective on carp. The complicated ingredients for one are a box of Wheaties cereal and a can of strawberry soda. Crush-up a couple of cups of Wheaties, then pour in a dab of strawberry soda. When the cereal soaks up the soda it should be the consistency of putty. Roll it into doughballs to bait your hook.

Another similar recipe uses bran flakes crushed to a coarse dust. Stir in about two tablespoons of table mustard to each cupful of cereal. You can add small amounts of water to moisten the bait to desired consistency to work onto your hook.

A bit more complicated recipe will yield gelatin bait. Just pour a package of strawberry gelatin into eight ounces of water. Add three tablespoons of salt and bring to a light boil. Add a cup or more of white cornmeal. Remove from the stove and add flour until a good doughball consistency is achieved.

RUN, RICKY, Williams put under RUN the NFL microscope

SAN DIEGO (AP) — At 10 o'clock on a chilly, blustery morning, the microanalysis of Ricky Williams begins.

With his famous dreadlocks tied back in two pigtails, Williams runs three 40-yard dashes for dozens of NFL scouts, coaches and general managers gathered at the finish line at the UC San Diego track. Moments later, they compare times, which vary widely.

An NFL Films crew roams the field as Williams does other drills. Williams' agent, Leland Hardy, is wearing a black suit and a burnt orange Texas cap. Eric Dickerson is there. "He's having a good workout," the newly minted Hall of Famer says into his cell phone.

For a guy whose NFL draft stock supposedly has fallen a bit for various reasons — questions about his weight, signing with an agency owned by a rapper, the fact he's not a quarterback — this workout has become a main event.

About 200 people are watching, including reporters, agents, hangers-on, even a few unemployed NFL players. For Williams, it's the final chance to impress a mass audience before the draft, which starts next Saturday.

Williams says later he was just glad he didn't get hurt. Two other college players who piggyback on Williams' workout pull hamstrings, a truly unfortunate time and place for that to happen. Marquis Smith, cousin of one of the top quarterback prospects, Akili Smith, pops his right hammy and plows into a 14-year-old boy standing too close to the finish line. The two crash to the ground.

Running for the gold at Texas RICKY WILLIAMS

The two-hour session ends in the weight room, with Williams bench-pressing 225 pounds 22 times while college students take it all in from the StairMasters and treadmills.

"This is a circus," said Wilbert Montgomery, a former star running back who's now a coach with the St. Louis Rams. "It's like going to the California State Fair to find out what kind of beef you're going to buy."

Hey, doesn't it count for something that the mild-mannered Williams returned to Texas for his senior season, won the Heisman Trophy and gained more yards than any other college running back?

Yes, it does, but this is the NFL and scouts want to see how fast you can run around orange traffic cones in the middle of a field.

Williams showed up at the scouting combine in mid-February long enough for teams to deduce that he was overweight — 244 pounds, thanks to the banquet circuit — and has small hands.

But he skipped the drills, which is why representatives of many NFL teams traveled for Tuesday's workout in San Diego, where Williams went to high school.

Williams didn't exactly blow the doors off in the 40. But everyone was pleased when he weighed in at 224 pounds, showing how hard he's worked the last six weeks.

"I think if you look at how much money they're going to put into a player, I think it's all warranted," said Williams, who nonetheless was glad when the audition ended.

Dickerson agreed, but thinks there might be some overanalysis going on.

"They talk about his dreadlocks, his tattoos," Dickerson said. "That has nothing to do with when you play on Sundays. Everybody wants that perfect individual, and Ricky's a really nice guy. A really good person and a hell of a football player."

"I remember when I came out they talked about my goggles," Dickerson said. "They said I had eye problems because I wore goggles! All kinds of things come up when the draft comes around."

relaxed and in control of what I'm doing."

So is Olazabal, who sat on a couch in Spain resting his aching feet as he watched Norman blow the 1996 Masters by shooting a final-round 78 and allowing Nick Faldo to slip into the green jacket.

The mysterious ailment that had Olazabal thinking his golf career was over was just as mysteriously cleared up months later by a German doctor who worked on his back. But it was just as difficult for the 1994 Masters winner to watch the tournament on television as it was for Norman to throw it away in person.

"I thought about the possibility of not playing anymore," Olazabal said.

Those thoughts were long gone Friday. Olazabal began the day a stroke off the lead, then came down the stretch with a 32 on the back nine — capped by a 12-foot birdie putt on 18 for a one-shot lead over Scott McCarron.

Neither his stride nor his golf game showed any ill effects from the enforced layoff that struck at the peak of his career.

Olazabal's back nine bunge put him atop a leaderboard loaded with names of players who have won major tournaments and a few who have yet to prove they are anything more than journeymen golfers.

McCarron, who quit golf after college because he couldn't putt, was a surprising second after a 68 shot with the help of his long putter. Then came Norman and U.S. Open champion Lee Janzen at 5-under with Nick Price and Davis Love III two more shots back.

"Two shots is nothing," Olazabal said. "The tournament will establish itself on the back nine on Sunday. We all know that."

By then, perhaps, pre-tournament favorites David

Duval and Tiger Woods might find a way to shoot themselves back into contention. Both have taken dreaded "snowmen" eights on holes and both had to rally Friday to be assured of making the cut.

Woods was seven shots back after making birdies on three of his last six holes. Duval was another stroke back after a final birdie helped ease the sting of the eight he took after hitting his third shot in the water on No. 15.

Moceanu, parents end legal battle with financial settlement

HOUSTON (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Dominique Moceanu and her parents have reached a financial settlement that dissolves a one-year protective order against her father, her attorney confirmed Friday.

"I certainly realize that people can make mistakes even when their intentions are good," Miss Moceanu said in a written statement, released by her Boulder, Colo.-based publicist at Gold Medal Management.

"This has been an extremely difficult time for my family and I hope that we can now begin to move forward in support of one another."

The 17-year-old gymnast, declared a legal adult Oct. 29, won a court order in December that kept her father at least 500 feet away from her. She sought the order after police said they were investigating allegations that Dumitru Moceanu, 44, tried to have two of his daughter's friends slain.

He has denied the accusation.

Attorneys declined to elaborate on stipulations made in the confidential financial settlement and the gymnast, training in Colorado for the 2000 Olympics, declined a request for an interview.

Ms. Moceanu's attorney, Ellen Yarrell, said in a statement that "it is important for Dominique's fans and supporters to know that she is confident that the settlement assures her personal safety and achievement of her financial goals."

Dumitru Moceanu did not return a phone call Friday to The Associated Press. His attorney, Jimmy Phillips, would say only that "the family is back together again."

International Olympic Committee names two to new ethics panel

LONDON (AP) — Howard Baker and Javier Perez de Cuellar were placed on a panel Friday that will police the conduct of International Olympic Committee members.

The IOC said Baker, a former Senate majority leader and White House chief of staff, and Perez de Cuellar, the United Nations secretary-general for 10 years, were among the eight members appointed to its Ethics Commission.

The panel was created last month in the wake of the Salt Lake City bribery scandal, in which six IOC members were expelled and four resigned for receiving improper inducements during the Utah capital's winning bid for the 2002 Winter Games.

The committee has also set up a separate reform panel, IOC 2000, to recommend ways of restructuring the organization. Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Peter Ueberroth, chief organizer of the 1984 Los Angeles Games, are among those already appointed to that panel.

The ethics commission will be chaired by IOC vice president Keba Mbaye of Senegal, former vice president of the International Court of Justice in the Netherlands.

The other members announced Friday were French Senator Robert Badinter, former president of the French Constitution Court; former Swiss President Kurt Furgler; former Canadian Olympic athlete Charmaine Crooks; and IOC executive board members Kevan Gosper of Australia and Chiharu Igaya of Japan.

"The individuals selected for the ethics commission are known for their independence and strong ethics," IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch said. "I am confident that the world of the commission will help the IOC adopt global best practice as we enter the new millennium."

The appointments of Baker and Perez de Cuellar should lend weight to the IOC's efforts to repair its credibility following the biggest scandal in its 105-year history.

Baker, 74, a Tennessee Republican, served in the U.S. Senate from 1967-85. He served as Senate majority leader and was White House chief of staff under President Reagan in 1987-88.

Perez de Cuellar, 79, was U.N. chief from 1982 to 1991.

The IOC said the ethics panel will provide "guidance on how the IOC operates in accordance with the best practices of international governance."

The IOC said the panel would develop a framework of ethical principles and rules, study the Olympic bidding and selection process, ensure accountability and enforce compliance with a new code of conduct.

The commission, which will meet at least twice a year and report to the IOC executive board, will hold its first meeting on May 3 at IOC headquarters in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Meanwhile, the composition of the IOC 2000 reform panel is not yet complete. The panel will have 20 to 24 members, half from the IOC and half from outside.

Apart from Kissinger and Ueberroth, others appointed to that commission so far include U.S. Olympic Committee president Bill Hybl, IOC vice president Anita DeFrantz and Italian industrialist Giovanni Agnelli.

The other panel members are expected to be announced in the next few weeks.

The reform committee will consider how IOC members are elected, term limits, structure and membership of the executive board, further roles for Olympic athletes, revenue sharing and the evolution of the games themselves.

Dairy Queens helping charity

Special to The Brand
BEDFORD — Dairy Queen® stores throughout Texas will be having a ball in April and helping their local hospitals for children in the process.

The promotion, which began Monday, will run until supplies run out.

Dairy Queens across the state will promote the sale of a special baseball commemorating the achievements of future baseball Hall of Fame inductee Nolan Ryan. For each ball purchased, the Dairy Queen store will donate $1 to the Children's Miracle Network, to benefit the hospital for children in that area. The collectible ball includes Ryan's facsimile signature and is packaged in a full-color box featuring his career statistics. Because only a limited number of baseballs has been manufactured and will be available only at participating Dairy Queen stores for a short time, the baseball's value will most likely increase in the future.

The Children's Miracle Network is an international, non-profit organization whose mission is to generate funds and create awareness programs to benefit children and its 166 associated hospitals for children in the U.S. and Canada. All dollars raised locally directly benefit the CMN-affiliated hospital in that community. Over the past 14 years, the Dairy Queen system has contributed more than $30 million to the CMN and remains one of its top contributing national sponsors.

Top court rules against company

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has ruled against an insurance company that refused to pay under an automobile policy when a child bumped against a shotgun on a pickup's gun rack and the pellets struck a driver in a nearby car.

The issue in the case questioned whether the underinsured motorist provision in the Texas standard liability policy would cover such an accident, which did not involve moving vehicles.

The shotgun discharged at an East Texas lake in 1992, when a 9-year-old boy tried to crawl into his father's truck through a sliding rear window. The gun blast hit a Gilmer man sitting in his mother's car, parked next to the truck, and one pellet pierced his brain.

Message to the taxpayers: Get it done or pay a penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — A message to the 34 million or so taxpayers who haven't filed their income tax returns: This is the last weekend to get it all done before the April 15 deadline.

There are ways to get extensions from the Internal Revenue Service, but they can make tax bills even higher. Tax experts agree it's a big mistake not to file something by Thursday's midnight deadline.

"The worst strategy, one that can add thousands of dollars to your tax bill, is to do nothing," said Lawrence Torella, an accountant and partner with Richard A. Eisner & Co. in New York.

Torella said a "whole new generation" of taxpayers with problems filing returns on time could be created by income from the booming stock market, an increase in people who have stock options and windfalls from sales of small businesses. In addition, tax returns are more complex than ever.

The penalty for failing to file a tax return is 5 percent of the balance due per month, up to a maximum of 25 percent.

Taxpayers who aren't going to meet the filing deadline should send the IRS a request for extension until Aug. 16 using Form 4868, which is available on the Internet, IRS offices and some banks and post offices. The IRS automatically approves such requests.

People seeking extensions should still pay an estimate of their taxes due, or at least as much as possible, by Thursday. Doing so will lessen the sting of interest — now 8 percent on late payments — and penalties of a half-percent per month.

The IRS will refund any amount overpaid, once the final return is submitted.

"Come in a little high," said IRS spokesman Don Roberts. "Whatever you have left, you're going to pay interest on."

Penalties for late tax payments drop to a quarter-percent per month if the taxpayer enters into an installment payment agreement with the IRS.

A request for such an installment plan, using Form 9465, can be attached to the tax return. The IRS almost always grants such requests as long as the taxpayer agrees to pay $25,000 or less within five years. There's a $43 fee to set up such a plan.

For reasons such as a death in the family or serious illness, the IRS sometimes waives late-payment penalties on returns filed on time. People should make such requests courteously and in writing.

One other note: The U.S. Tax Court has rejected claims from taxpayers who say accountants advised them to file returns late while collecting required documentation.

Through April 2, the IRS had received almost 70 million of the 126 million tax returns expected this year. Counting estimates for this week, IRS spokesman Roberts said it's likely that 34 million taxpayers, or about 26 percent, will submit their returns in the next few days.

Although refunds are running close to 20 percent ahead of last year and average $1,575, it's likely that people who owe taxes make up the bulk of the last-minute filers. And many people probably put off doing taxes last week because of the twin Easter and Passover holidays.

"You really have only one good weekend in April to work on tax returns, instead of two," Roberts said.

Last-minute forms available
 Last-minute forms from the IRS are available in several ways. The fastest is through the Internet at www.irs.ustreas.gov.

Taxpayers also can call from a fax machine at 1-703-368-9694 and have a form faxed.

Clinical laboratory professionals to be saluted by HRMC this week

Hereford Regional Medical Center is saluting its laboratory personnel during National Medical Laboratory Week, April 11-17. This year the theme for the week is "Laboratory Professionals: Your Link Between Technology and Good Health."

Clinical laboratory professionals are key members of today's health care team and quality medical care depends greatly on them. Every day, nurses, physicians and other medical workers rely on laboratory professionals to perform tests on bodily fluids, interpret the results and help provide a complete picture of a patient's health.

Without this precise and valuable information, medicine would simply become guesswork. Laboratory professionals work in a variety of settings, from hospitals and doctor's offices to research laboratories and community health fairs.

HRMC's laboratory staff is composed of 10 full-time, highly educated, trained and registered professionals.

Most tests are performed in-house, rather than having to be sent to another lab to be analyzed so results can be faxed to all doctors (in or out of town) usually within a few hours.

The lab is totally automated and computer interfaced and is fully accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

The laboratory facility at HRMC is one of only two in the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle to provide the Abbott LCX, one of the newest technologies on the market. The Abbott LCX is utilized in the detection of chlamydia and gonorrhea bacteria using much smaller samples than were needed in the old method. Through early detection, this new technology will assist in reducing the medical expense necessary to treat chlamydia, which is a common cause of infertility, pelvic inflammatory disease, chronic pain, ectopic pregnancy and other related complications.

Hereford Regional Medical Center will honor its staff members throughout the week with special activities.

Objective realized—Having funds available to make loans to new and existing businesses is one of the objectives of the Rural Assistance and Innovation Network, a micro enterprise program of the Promised Land Network. This objective was realized when a grant was received from the Meadows Foundation which enabled PLN to offer this loan program to small businesses in the Hereford area. Alan Birkenfeld, second from left, RAIN chairperson, presents proceeds from the grant to Mike Schueler, treasurer, to establish the loan fund account with FirstBank Southwest. Other RAIN officers are, from left, Lydia Villanueva and Carolyn Kollin, public relations officers; Henry Reid, secretary; and (not pictured) Mike McManigal, vice chairperson.

Funds available through RAIN to assist local small businesses

RAIN has money available, now it is in search of members to utilize these funds.

RAIN is the Rural Assistance and Innovation Network, a micro enterprise program of the Promised Land Network. A grant from the Meadows Foundation has enabled PLN to offer a loan program to Hereford area individuals and small businesses.

The regular monthly meeting of RAIN will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at San Jose Community Center and will kick-off a membership drive.

Having funds available to make loans to new and existing businesses is one of the objectives of RAIN.

A loan fund account has been established at FirstBank Southwest, N.A. specifically to provide funds for small businesses needing start-up loans or existing businesses needing expansion loans, and members are being sought to complete the necessary training to qualify for such loans.

In general, loan amounts are from $1,000 to $2,500 and must be repaid in 12 months. The association by-laws provide strict guidelines for the amount that can be borrowed, the number of loans, the terms of repayment and interest rates.

A specified amount of training is also required before a loan application will be considered in order for the applicant to acquire the necessary skills to operate a business.

This training is provided by RAIN through its monthly meetings on the second Tuesday of each month where members are able to discuss their problems with a group of their own peers and receive support, assistance and solutions.

Training may deal with such areas of business as insurance, market research and forecasting, business plan development, loan packaging, personnel issues, advertising and sales, marketing, bookkeeping, business accounting, computer applications, legal issues, credit counseling, expansion and franchising.

Active membership in the association is open to any existing business or any person who intends to start up a new small business in the future.

Small businesses are defined as sole proprietorships, partnerships, or family businesses with fewer than 10 employees, other than immediate family.

These small businesses may provide only a partial income for a family and must not necessarily be its sole livelihood.

There are currently no dues or membership fees required of new RAIN members.

Associate memberships are available and are designated as "Friends" of RAIN. These are individuals or companies that may designate representatives who desire to belong to the association but are not actively involved in a small business.

Any individual or business in the community is welcome to attend the meeting on Tuesday to find out more about RAIN and the opportunities it provides.

For more information, contact the PLN office in Nazareth at 945-2444 or call 364-4670.

Education Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"In these times you have to be an optimist to open your eyes in the morning." - Carl Sandburg

Teachers, of all educators, are perhaps more in a position to experience frustration and yet remain optimistic about their chosen profession. The following, written by an experienced teacher several years ago, is still timely:

The Joys of Teaching

Where have all the joys gone?

The time to listen when a child needs to talk

The time to inspire a child who has given up

The time to tell tales and legends that make life understandable.

Where have all the joys gone? A distributor, I've become.

Discipline plans collated in stacks of twelve.

Lists of parents who signed the form

Sets of rules everywhere - stapled in their place.

Where have all the joys gone?

The child's not at the right percentile -

Add 55 minutes to the day; see that he doesn't play.

The bureaucrats have spoken-the problem lies in lack of forms!

Where have all the joys gone? Instead of enlarging the lesson

I'm pushing chalk across the board. It's called agenda.

Is your schedule posted to the minute, and a list of procedures prominently displayed?

How else shall we proceed?

Where have all the joys gone? Oh, you've brought your lizard, Price. Well, that's nice, but it's not on the agenda you see-besides it's now time for P.E.

Questions go unanswered as we address "Pre-test" and "Post test", Who's Best."

While dreams go unexpressed!

Where have all the joys gone? No time to develop lessons.

I'm off to a meeting for another list, another form to witness what we're doing here.

But then, too soon the form becomes a reason.

Where have all the joys gone? Why do we insist on coming back for more? Because today, John, who's hardly talked for years made a 96 on his geography test, smiled and cheered! Donna, who's not raised her hand before, and now wants to show it; Brennan "got the hang" of geometry and designed a string art picture; Brad, who's been written off by many finally read a book. He says it's great. And class - even though it's time for science and this isn't on the agenda - they need to tell us and we care. Let's forget the reason, the joys of teaching are still there, but so much else gets in the way.

Very likely, every teacher could pen their own verses, because we care, we stay, and we have many good memories.

"I would rather lose in a cause that I know some day will triumph than to triumph in a cause that I know some day will fail." - Wendell L. Wilkie

Registration is open for those interested in competing in the Little Miss Hereford and the Miss Hereford pageants.

Dear Ann Landers: I was offended by your response to "A Hairy Situation in the East." Your correspondent

Ann Landers said his sophisticated girlfriend did not shave her legs or under her arms. He found this neither ladylike nor attractive. You said unshaven armpits and hairy legs are not socially acceptable in our culture and he should tell her so.

I am a professional woman who has never shaved her legs, and I have no intention of doing so, despite the ads by razor-blade companies who tout hairlessness as next to godliness. Yes, my legs are hairy. So are my arms. Please, Ann Landers, soften your views. And let us know if you hear any more on the subject. — Harriet in Harrisburg, Pa. (No Pun Intended)

Dear Harriet: I did hear a lot more on the subject, and the overwhelming majority of females who wrote said shaving their legs is a nuisance, but it is an essential part of a woman's grooming. The men who wrote declared hairy legs a turnoff and surmised that women who did not shave their legs were either blind, slob or both. Here's what the readers had to say on the subject:

From Beverly Hills, Calif.: I, too, am a "sophisticated, attractive woman with a terrific job." However, I pluck my eyebrows, wax my bikini line and shave my legs and armpits. Why? Because I am unable to overcome my own culturally ingrained concepts of femininity. Perhaps that girlfriend should ask "Hairy" to shave his chest in exchange for her willingness to please him.

Galva, Ill.: "Hairy" is making too big a deal about his girlfriend's hairy legs. Wouldn't she still love him if he were totally bald?

Concord, Calif.: I have not shaved my legs in 20 years, and like "Hairy's" girlfriend, I am pretty furry. I have received razors and waxing products as gifts and returned them. Also, I do not use makeup or dye my hair. How far should a woman go? Should she have ribs removed so she can have a 22-inch waist?

Mount Herman, Calif.: The first women to shave their legs were prostitutes. The jerk who was critical of his girlfriend's hairy legs should have been proud of her for flouting the sexist double standard.

Brookline, Mass.: Getting rid of unwanted hair can be time-consuming, painful and expensive. If the guy doesn't like it, he should check out France or Germany, where the women on the beaches have as much hair on their legs as the men. Some have more.

Chicago: Hair removal is big business. Millions of dollars are spent every year on razors, creams, depilatories and so on. Whose idea was it that females should be hairless? Gillette, I'll bet.

Irvine, Calif.: There are many reasons a woman might not want to shave. Remember the biblical story of Samson and Delilah? When she cut off his hair, she deprived him of his strength. Do you see an analogy here?

Dear Irvine: No — it only worked for Samson. Hair doesn't have muscles.

Nashville, Tenn.: Hair has become quite an issue in my husband's family. It's his mother's mustache. Our kids, ages 3 and 5, don't want to kiss Grandma because her mustache is "scratchy." We have tried to explain to the children that it is not polite to mention such things, but they continue to complain. Grandma hears them and smiles. Any suggestions?

Dear Tennessee Reader: From the mouths of babes can come some brutally frank comments, but in this case, it won't make a particle of difference. Grandma knows she has a mustache, but it doesn't bother her. Tell the kids to kiss her on the cheek.

The Successful Family

By Dr. TILL
Ph.D., LPC, NCC

One of the questions asked increasingly by parents is: "How can I tell if my child is using drugs?" This is a most difficult question when signs and symptoms associated with behavior are used as a basis for (knowing) suspicion. It is difficult to separate the typical adolescent behavior from the drug-induced behavior; but the parent should consider the following behavior suspect:

1. Does the child seem to be changing? Is the child becoming more irritable, less affectionate, secretive, unpredictable, hostile, depressed, uncooperative, apathetic, withdrawn, sullen, easily provoked, oversensitive?

2. Is the child becoming less responsible? Is the child: not doing chores, late coming home, tardy at school, forgetful of family occasions (birthday, etc), not cutting grass, allowing room to be untidy, not completing homework?

3. Is the child changing friends, dress code or interests? Has the child: a new group of friends, the language of new friends, hair styles like new friends, switched clothes styles, become reluctant to talk about new friends, become very interested in rock music and concerts, become less interested in school, sports and academic hobbies, refused to talk about parents of new friends, started insisting on more privacy, demanded permission to stay out later than usual?

4. Is the child more difficult to communicate with? Does the child: refuse to talk about details of friendship, group activities, refuse to discuss "drug issues," become defensive when negative effects of drug use are discussed by peers, insist that adults hassle their children, begin to defend "rights" of youth, prefer to talk about bad habits of adults?

5. Is the child beginning to show physical and/or mental deterioration? Does the child show: disordered thinking or ideas and thought patterns that seem out-of-order, heightened sensitivity to touch, smell and taste, increased appetite from marijuana smoking (known as the "munchies"), loss of ability amotivational syndrome, weight loss?

Behavior changes as discussed above occur over a period of a few months, the summer, or over a year or more. These behavioral patterns should be monitored closely by the parent. More blatant behavior will begin if the child can manipulate his way through the aforementioned examples and more obvious drug use behavior will begin to occur.

Inspectors uphold pork checkoff spending

Primary contractor weilds excessive authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government audit raises questions about the close ties between a quasi-governmental board created to promote pork and the industry's trade association.

But the audit by the Agriculture Department's inspector general found no evidence the National Pork Board misused dollars collected from farmers.

"Our evaluation showed that the board basically used checkoff funds to finance pork promotion, research and consumer education projects," inspector general Roger Viadero wrote in an audit released Wednesday.

Hog farmers contribute 45 cents of every $100 of animal value for a federally mandated checkoff fund. The money goes to the board, which later contracts promotion services through the National Pork Producers Council, the trade group.

While the audit did not find "misuse or loss of checkoff funds," the report concluded the board "has relinquished too much authority to its primary contractor," the council, and "has placed the NPPC in a position to exert undue influence over board budgets and grant proposals."

"The board has awarded all program grants to the NPPC since 1996," Viadero wrote, recommending the board take actions to "accomplish appropriate separation."

Council officials said the inspector general's concerns were unwarranted.

"What really stands out about this report is that it shows we did nothing wrong,"

NPPC President John McNutt said during a teleconference with the board.

He said Viadero "wants to dramatically change a well established and well functioning organization."

"An arm's length relationship does exist between the National Pork Board and the NPPC," said Greg Boerboom, a producer from Marshall, Minn., who is chairman of the board's budget committee.

The audit comes amid a movement by some pork producers for a referendum on whether the checkoff should be voluntary.

"There's nothing separating the NPPC from the pork board except a couple of inches of Sheetrock. It says we're justified," Rhonda Perry, a Missouri organizer of the anti-checkoff effort, said about the audit.

The board rents space in the council's Des Moines, Iowa, headquarters.

Perry said the group would announce next week it has enough signatures to force a vote on the issue.

The board, made up of 15 producers appointed by the agriculture secretary, was created by Congress 12 years ago to strengthen pork industry promotion. Last year, the program collected $47.2 million.

Similar programs are in place for other products such as beef, almonds and cotton.

One of the problems cited in the audit is that the board, with its staff of two, is understaffed and too reliant on the council to handle its duties.

"The board's dependence on the NPPC to administer sub-contracts and carry out much of the board's work resulted in a weakened accountability over contributed funds," the audit said.

Combs prepares for dry year

AUSTIN — Joining Gov. George W. Bush at a drought news conference, Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs announced she is taking action now to help the state's producers begin to prepare for a potential repeat drought this year.

"We are already getting calls from livestock producers about hay supplies running low," Combs said. "I am committing the staff we need to operate the Texas Department of Agriculture's Hay Hotline (877-429-1998). This hotline links those with hay to sell to individuals who need to buy hay."

"If the state's dry spell continues and the governor declares an emergency, the TDA Hay Hotline also will be used to solicit donated hay and facilitate its distribution to areas in need."

Combs said she contacted agriculture commissioners in other states such as Iowa, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Georgia and the Carolinas about the possible need for donated hay from other areas to Texas this year.

"I hope that weather forecasts for continued dry and warm weather in Texas are proven wrong," the Commissioner said. "However, if we are entering another dry spell I want to have all the resources in place so we can take action quickly."

Horse judges — Two local girls, Savannah McKay (right) and Kael Gallagher recently competed in the Clarendon Horse Judging Contest. Gallagher, an alternate, placed seventh overall high point and McKay placed tenth overall. The team will travel to District on April 17.

TNRCC to develop Rio Grande supply model

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Senate wants the state to determine how much water the Rio Grande and its tributaries can dependably provide to the communities in its watershed.

By a 29-1 vote, the Senate passed legislation directing the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission to develop a water supply model for the river by Dec. 31, 2003.

The regulatory panel would gather data from all entities that allocate Rio Grande water, in Texas and in other states that drain into the Rio Grande.

The study would include Colorado and New Mexico, along with five Mexican states.

Recent droughts, especially in the past two years, have kept reservoirs along the Rio Grande and tributaries on both sides of the border at dangerously low levels.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said interests upstream, as well as in Texas and Mexico, will compete increasingly for water that has not always been in abundant supply.

"The Rio Grande is Texas' most endangered river," he said.

The water-supply model called for in the legislation would give planners the information they need to project water availability in future years.

"Over 10 million people live along the river in Texas and the five Mexican states that touch the river," Truan said. "If Texas fails to monitor the demands being made on the Rio Grande, our communities that lie along the Rio Grande will have no security in their long-term water supply."

The measure goes to the House for consideration.

Herbicide Offers Consistent Grass Control Year After Year

Sometimes it is tempting to wait and treat weeds and grasses late in the season after others have emerged. That way, you could get them all in one shot, right? Wrong. The early ones are now too tall for effective treatment and your strategy has backfired. Plus, competition with weeds during the crop's crucial, early stages can rob yields before you realize there is a problem.

Early application of an effective postemergence herbicide allows you to treat immature weeds further protecting the yield and quality of your crop.

The ideal postemergence herbicide should:

- provide excellent control of annual and perennial grass species
- allow growers to create their own weed control program with tankmix flexibility
- be rainfast within hours of application
- work in any and all tillage programs.

For years FUSILADE® DX herbicide has been one of the most popular postemergence treatments for controlling rhizome johnsongrass, and other tough perennial and annual grasses in cotton and soybeans.

Fusilade DX controls grasses by translocating through surface tissues and traveling to the growing points in the stems and roots, where it stops growth within hours. To use Fusilade DX effectively, apply to johnsongrass before it reaches the top of your boots, or about 8 inches high. Target annuals when they're too-high.

This herbicide's flexibility allows you to broadcast, band, and direct or spot spray in any tillage system. Also, Fusilade DX easily tank mixes at a variety of rates with other herbicides for expanded control. In cotton, tank mix Fusilade DX with insecticides for timely, convenient insect control.

For the best control of grasses and weeds in cotton and soybeans year after year, count on Fusilade DX. Contact your local ag chem dealer for more information about Fusilade DX by Zeneca Ag Products.

Producers cut health insurance during lean years.

Liquid assets prevent government assistance

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Even though he has a wife, a 11/2-year-old daughter and a job that can involve dangerous accidents, Clint Jacobs says he had no choice but to cancel his health insurance policy.

"It was too expensive, and we didn't get any coverage. We had some really high deductibles and there was no way of paying the premium," said Jacobs, 30, who raises 200 cattle on his ranch near Amidon, N.D.

Like most farmers and ranchers strangled by the sour farm economy, Jacobs has fallen victim to increasing agriculture concentration and new government trade policies — not to mention floods, blizzards and other weather disasters.

Until he dropped the policy in September, he paid $550 every three months and had a $1,000 deductible for each member of his family.

Jacobs tries to avoid thinking about what would happen if he were injured in a car crash or fell seriously ill.

"What happens, happens," he said. "We're broke anyway. What's a little more brokenness?"

As for health care assistance from the government, some farmers and ranchers complain it is tailored to urban lifestyles and excludes needy farm families.

Farmers, who are self-employed, generally pay much more for private health insurance than do people who join their employers' health insurance programs.

One rancher in northwest South Dakota who has a

"If you have four or five bad years and you tighten the belt every time, health insurance gets to be one of those things."

Sandra Simonson Thums, disaster response specialist

$4,500 deductible said he worries every day that an accident or illness will bankrupt him, his wife and their baby. The family of three pays more than $6,000 a year on health insurance premiums because one member is epileptic and another is diabetic.

Although his ranch is not making money, he, too, is ineligible for government health care assistance, he said.

"If you've got any machinery, that's a liquid asset," said the rancher, who did not want to be identified.

In a recent survey of 82 farmers and ranchers, 26 said they had to drop their health insurance to make ends meet, said Sandra Simonson Thums, a rural specialist with Lutheran Disaster Response and Lutheran Social Services of North Dakota, which conducted the survey.

Forty-four respondents said they cannot sleep at night and 36 said financial problems have caused stress in their marriages.

"If you have four or five bad years and you tighten the belt every time, health insurance gets to be one of the things," Thums said.

Jim Long, chief executive of West River Regional Medical Center in Hettinger, N.D., a nonprofit hospital that treats mostly rural people, said patients have begun to skip important preventative care like mammograms, prostate screenings and physicals. Doctors sometimes do not charge for treatment and hand out medicine free.

"Our amount of uncompensated care is continuing to increase at significant rates," Long said. "Sometimes we take ridiculous payment plans, like $10 a month on a bill that would take 30 years to pay off. In some cases, we don't get paid at all."

Self-employed workers can deduct up to 45 percent of their medical payments when filing tax returns.

New legislation will help farmers and ranchers some by allowing the self-employed to deduct 60 percent of medical costs on their 1999 and 2000 taxes.

The legislation, which was attached to the omnibus spending bill President Clinton signed in October,

Protecting Original Property- Patents, Trademarks and Copyrights

(Part One of a Two-part series)

A common question our clients ask is how they can protect their ideas, inventions and intellectual property. In this and next week's column, I hope to lend some clarity to the subject of patents, trademarks and copyrights.

Let's begin with a brief overview of each. Patents protect an inventor's innovation and discoveries. They are granted in three categories: utility, design and plant. You must have more than a mere idea or suggestion for improving a product or business process.

A trademark protects the goodwill or brand value customers associate with your product, business name or packaging. Trademarks typically cover trade names, logos, artwork, product lines and packages.

A copyright protects authors, writers, designers and artists from unfair use of original work. The work must be demonstrated in a fixed or tangible medium. Books, musical scores, recordings, computer programs and drawings are prime examples.

Three Patent Types

of the types of patents, the utility patent is the most common. The utility patent covers a lot of innovation territory. A utility patent can fall into any of the following five categories: a machine, a process, a composition of matter, a manufacture or an improvement of an existing idea which fits into one of the first four categories. They must also provide some useful benefit.

Some inventions fit into more than one category. A new widget may be both a machine and a composition of new matter. A software program might be regarded both as a process (steps of operation) and a machine (the instrument that carries information).

Design patents - the second type - are issued for the invention of designs or nonfunctional item. A new shape for a motorcycle fender or a scoop shovel would have potential for a design patent if it did not qualify for a utility patent because of no increase in functionality or usefulness.

Plant patents are granted for the "green and growing up" type of plants, not manufacturing plants. Plant patents can be issued for flowers, crops, grasses, shrubs, and trees. A new color for a hybrid rose, a drought resistant bean or a new apple variety might qualify for plant patent protection.

Applying for patent is a fairly complicated process. The strongest patents are written in great technical detail, with specific claims that describe the patentable aspects and include drawings of the invention. Most successful inventors agree that you should use a patent agent to attorney.

Some Tips for Inventors

- Keep your cards close to your vest. Until you file for patent protection or disclosure, keep your ideas to yourself. Don't offer it for sale or discuss it openly.
  - Keep good records. Keep a log of the ongoing work you're doing. Date these entries in a "running" journal.
  - Don't listen to your family and friends. You can get objective, non-biased advice from professional such as attorneys, inventor's organizations, consultants and small business development center counselors.
  - Avoid invention-marketing companies. Particularly those who advertise that they help you get rich with your invention. I've visited with dozens of inventors who spent their hard-earned dollars and received very little value in return.
  - Network with other inventors. You can learn a lot from someone who has walked a few miles in the "patent" shoes.
  - Conduct your own patent search at a patent depository library. If you find that someone has beaten you to the punch, you've saved your money.
- Next week, I'll discuss trademarks and copyrights. I'll also give you sources for obtaining additional information. Don't miss patent, trademarks and copyrights, part two.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By Rebecca Walls

On March 29th, I received a call from the Legislative office of the Texas Library Association asking if I would come to Austin and give testimony before the Senate Committee concerning the Public Library Fund. This Bill would authorize the collection and disbursement of funds in the form of direct aid to Texas Public Libraries.

At the present time, public libraries receive some indirect aid through the Texas 10 Library System. My first question was, "When do I need to be there?" The reply was 10:00 a.m., March 31st. I did a quick review of my to-do list and since I only had to write the magazine article, plan Summer Reading Club, and sew three dresses this week, I immediately said, "Sure."

I called the airline, got a ticket, made hotel arrangements, and prepared my testimony. The latter required gathering some history, facts and statistical information to support what I wanted to say in my allotted 2-5 minutes.

Feeling very good about myself and the confidence that the Texas Library Association must have in me to ask me to do such an important task, I began to pack for the trip. (That was not difficult. I took the only clean suit in my closet.)

I began to practice my speech in my head as I put things in the suitcase. I practiced my speech as I drove to the airport. I practiced my speech in my head as I sat on the plane ready for takeoff.

As I glanced up to watch the other passengers board, who should I see but Roland Saul. We exchanged greetings quickly as the line of people boarding continued to press forward.

Checking into the hotel in Austin, Roland and I saw each other again. Our short conversation determined that we were both there to give testimonies.

What a small world. We work across the street from each other and here we are in Austin speaking to Senate Committees concerning legislation.

As I entered the hearing room, they gave me an agenda that lists all the Bills scheduled to be heard, and the names of the people there to give the testimony. The press fills 1/4 of the room while many others are there to give testimony and/or answer questions the legislators might have.

There were more than eighty Bills to be reviewed that day, so they asked that we keep our remarks brief. That means two minute each. The overview of the Bill is read by the author and then persons on the testimony list are called forward. You sit at a table with a microphone and face the Senate Committee members, and then you speak.

What an awesome experience! What a thrill! What a responsibility! Everyone should have this opportunity and experience. On April 1st, I received word that Senate Bill 691 Texas Public Library Fund was passed out of the committee onto the Senate. What a thrill to know that I was a small part of that process.

I have not seen Roland since my return to Hereford, so I do not know how his testimony went, but I am still amazed that two of us from Hereford were there attempting to make a difference. Well, enough about my experiences. Now for the reviews you have been waiting.

Nevada Barr's new book, Liberty Falling, takes Park Ranger Anna Pigeon to Liberty

Island. Molly, Ann's sister, is gravely ill. What started as pneumonia has become worse as complications develop and all Anna can do is wait and watch.

In an effort to clear her mind, Anna visits Liberty Island with friends. Across the harbor, among the decayed remains of the hospital wards and staff quarters of Ellis Island, Anna finds solitude. Unlike the magnificently restored Registry hall, these buildings are being reclaimed by nature.

Anna accidentally tumbles through a crumbling staircase and temporarily stops her exploring nature. When a young girl falls to her death while exploring the Statue of Liberty, Anna's curiosity is raised. Then a Park employee falls to her death. Now Anna knows this goes beyond accidents and is determined to uncover the secrets behind Lady Liberty and the Island.

Ashes to Ashes is the title of Tamie Hoag's latest thriller. "Some killers are born. Some are made." For the "Cremator" the taste of murder has always been present.

Prowling a wooded Minneapolis park like a wolf, he performs his profane ceremony. Arranging the body just so, he anoints the body with accelerant and then lights the match. There have been three ceremonies so far and it is just the beginning.

A runaway teen, Angie DiMarco has seen the face of the killer in the light of his sacrifice. The police now have Angie but Angie is not talking. Kate Conlan has seen the worst as an FBI Agent but now her job is to help protect victims and witnesses.

After working with Angie,

Kate is unable to determine what role Angie is playing. Is she a reluctant witness, a potential victim or something else? Special Agent John Quinn is called in as the case profiler.

It is up to Kate and John to stop the Cremator before Kate becomes the next victim.

Split Image by Judy Mercer is another story in which nothing is quite what it seems. First Ariel receives a phone call and then there is a chance encounter. His name is Jack Spurling and he seems astounded that Ariel cannot remember him.

At the age of thirty-three, Ariel is suffering from amnesia and cannot remember anything past one year. Why should she remember Jack Spurling?

Then through a little research, Ariel discovers Jack was the center of one of the most notorious stories Ariel had covered. It was believed that Spurling got away with the murder of his own wife.

Ariel is compelled to reconstruct the events surrounding the Spurling murder because as she does so her own life seems to come together. Jack, a man of confidence and intimate charm, is someone Ariel hopes to prove innocent. But as Ariel digs deeper into the past, the more sordid that past becomes.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
• Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write

We'll be the first to admit it. People have come up with, shall we say, interesting uses for newspapers.

And that's what makes newspapers so great. They serve different uses for different people. Whether you're scouring the entertainment section to find that perfect movie for that all important first date, checking the business section to review the latest financial information or scanning the sports pages to see how your team made out during last night's game, newspapers offer something for everyone.

And if you're a bird, we're sure you can come up with at least one good use for newspapers on your own.

Documentary series adds humanity to century's history

Peter Jennings (center) touches on both the horrors of World War I and a Boy Scout's memories in the diverse 15-part series The Century: America's Time, premiering Monday on The History Channel.

By Jacqueline Cutler
©TVData Features Syndicate

While some find history boring – a series of irrelevant dates and remote figures long turned to dust – it certainly doesn't have to be that way. It's often at its best when average folks tell their stories as eyewitnesses to spectacular events.

In The Century: America's Time, an impressive 15-part documentary series airing Monday, April 12, through Thursday, April 29, The History Channel offers a look, often through the eyes of everyday people, at the political, social, cultural and technological events that shaped the century.

"This is not a story of the leaders and the movers and shakers," Beth Dietrich, the series' supervising producer, says. "It is the smaller story."

The Century: America's Time is a production of ABC News in association with History. Its host, ABC News anchorman Peter Jennings, takes us from the turn of the century, with an early tape recording of President William McKinley, on through footage of Monica Lewinsky cowering from the paparazzi.

While there are some celebrities – Martin Scorsese relates the history of his immigrant family, and Dennis Hopper remembers how Marlon Brando involved him in the Selma, Ala., civil rights march – the documentary's charm lies in the stories of the not-so-famous.

Mabel Griep, for instance, was the next-door neighbor of the Wright brothers.

"I can hear Dad turn more than once and say, 'Look, are you all paying attention to this? Now listen to me; you're going to remember this to your last day,'" she recalls. "When that plane took off the ground, people were speechless. It was spectacular. It was unbelievable."

Retired Gen. Colin Powell tells a poignant story from the Vietnam War. "There was one kid who was grievously injured. And I had my arms around him, trying to comfort him. But he was losing consciousness," Powell says. "He just kept staring up with an expression on his face of 'Why? Why's that happening to me?' By then, 1967, '68, when we were losing hundreds a week in that same fashion, you had to start questioning how much longer this could go on."

The series is a collection of magnificent footage of events long known but seldom seen. Dan Davids, History's executive vice president and general manager, says it took five years to cull more than 3,000 hours of footage from archives around the world and conduct more than 500 interviews.

Among the rare finds: World War II footage from inside Poland's Warsaw ghetto. The dismal conditions recorded include starving orphans and Nazis shooting Jews after the Warsaw uprising.

The series kicks off with "Seeds of Change," detailing the emigration of 13 million Europeans. While we know the hard life that turn-of-the-century immigrants endured, the footage of the Europe they left is shocking: people starving, people with ropes around their necks being used as mules to haul drays.

The series reminds us, particularly those of us born into a world of videocassette recorders and personal computers, that at the dawn of this century, electricity was new. The technological and scientific advances are well detailed.

One would have to be an emotional rock to watch The Century: America's Time without crying at some point – for the farm families who had their lives scattered to the wind, the unflappable dignity of Marian Anderson singing, or the joy of a boy running into the arms of his father, who spent 444 days as a hostage in Iran.

"One of the things we try to do at the channel is serve the history enthusiast within all of us," Davids says. "We can't think of any better way for someone to understand history than from someone who has been there."

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ April 11-17 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
You have a lot on your mind this week, Aries. While you need to talk to someone about it, be careful who that person is. If you voice your opinions to the wrong person, you'll find yourself in a difficult situation. A loved one needs your help with a family event. Do whatever you can to help him or her.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
While a friend makes you very upset early in the week, Taurus, don't say anything. He or she only will get angry with you, making the situation much worse. Just let it go; it's not anything important anyway. The person whom you've been seeing wants to get serious. Think about what you really want before saying yes.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Patience is the key to your success this week. You'll find yourself in a powerful financial position if you just let things happen on their own; don't force the issue. A close friend introduces you to his or her significant other. Don't make a quick decision about this person. There is more to him or her than meets the eye.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
Don't shy away from the spotlight at work this week, Cancer. You deserve all of the praise and recognition that you're getting. Your actions have made your superiors look very good. An acquaintance asks to borrow money. Don't do it. He or she isn't reliable enough to pay you back.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Take control of a family matter early in the week. Even though others want to handle the situation, you know that you are the best person for the job. Stand your ground when they try to take over. An old friend calls you out of the blue. Talk with him or her. You're sure to learn a lot of interesting information. Libra plays a key role.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Don't worry about a loved one, Virgo. He or she knows what to do about a personal problem — even though it looks as if he or she doesn't have a clue. Let this person handle it alone. Sagittarius plays an important role on Tuesday.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Even though you don't want to, you have to make an important personal decision this week. Don't try to avoid it. Turn to that special someone for advice if you need it. He or she always has your best interest at heart. Don't worry; everything will work out for the best.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
A friend turns to you in a time of need. Don't desert this person; he or she really needs your help. Do what you can. A business associate has an interesting proposition for you. Look at all of the pros and cons before you get involved, because this seems too good to be true.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
It's going to be difficult, but you have to be sensitive when talking with a friend about a problem. This person has gotten into a difficult situation. However, angry words from you only will make things worse. The person whom you've been seeing has a gift for you. Let him or her know how much you like it.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
You have a lot to do this week, Capricorn. Don't let those around you distract you from the tasks at hand. Your diligence and hard work will be rewarded at the week's end. A close friend needs to talk with you. Give him or her some frank advice. Pisces plays a key role.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
Don't let others force you to do something that you're not comfortable with. You're smart enough to make your own decisions; don't let anyone bully you. A loved one gets you involved in a family argument. Try to get everyone to see each other's point of view.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Don't let a golden opportunity to enhance your financial situation pass you by. Take a chance — it will prove to be very lucrative. A friend drops by unexpectedly and needs a shoulder to cry on. Be there for him or her. Your thoughtfulness will be appreciated.

Carroll O'Connor, Kim Cattrall and Treat Williams (from left) star in 36 Hours to Die, the story of a man who finds his family business has become involved with the mob. It premieres Sunday on TNT.

Businessman takes on mob in taut 36 Hours to Die

The Oscar-nominated screenwriter of Saving Private Ryan pens a taut, thoughtful thriller about a man battling to save his family business from the mob in 36 Hours to Die.

The TV movie premieres Sunday, April 11, on TNT.

Treat Williams (The Deep End of the Ocean) stars as Noah Stone, a brewery executive who is recuperating from a near-fatal coronary when he receives an urgent yet cryptic phone summons from a colleague.

Shortly after the man fails to show up for their meeting, Noah makes a terrifying discovery: His brother, Frank (Alain Goulem), who has been overseeing the brewery in Noah's absence, has involved the business in some shady dealings involving a ruthless gangster (Saul Rubinek, Daphne's attorney boyfriend on Frasier).

Frank has only one weekend to save his brewery - and his wife (Kim Cattrall) and children - from this tangled and potentially deadly situation, with the help of his wife's uncle (Carroll O'Connor), a retired cop.

"I wanted to put a character in a situation with seemingly no escape, and then let him try to figure his way out," screenwriter Robert Rodat says. "I also liked the idea of an action drama with an unusually vulnerable lead."

"Noah is bright and resourceful, but he's not Superman. He's weak from his heart attack, and he's never fired a gun in his life. He's an easy guy with whom to identify."

Williams makes that audience identification even easier, giving a winning performance as a little guy with real pluck. Cattrall and O'Connor offer superior support, both as characters and actors.

The versatile Rubinek all but steals the movie, however, with his multifaceted portrayal of Morano, Noah's gangster nemesis. It's a brilliant stroke of casting to have a rumpled, apparently unimposing actor play such a villainous character.

If you have a couple of hours to kill, 36 Hours to Die is nifty entertainment all around.

Q: What do you hear killed Cupid? Or is it, I hope, being revamped to return? —Virginia in Pocatello, Idaho.

A: Cupid died of anemic ratings, although Dorothy Swanson of Viewers for Quality Television, which heartily endorsed the series, holds ABC accountable for not working harder to nurture an unconventional show.

Swanson also urges viewers who are feeling powerless to join her national organization by writing to VQT, P.O. Box 195, Fairfax Station, VA 22039. I share her belief that individual letters of support seem to matter less and less to network programmers these days.

Q: Is the actress playing Georgia in As the World Turns the daughter of Barbara Mandrell? —Athalene Klein, Evansville, Ind.

A: Yes, that's Jaime Nicole Dudney, Mandrell's 23-year-old daughter.

Q: I saw William R. Moses in a movie a few weeks ago. What series did he use to play in? —Mildred Smiley, Lancaster, Pa.

A: Moses co-starred as Cole Gioberti in Falcon Crest. He also played Keith Gray, Alison's married lover, on Melrose Place and David Graysmark on the syndicated Fame L.A.

Q: Please tell my stubborn co-worker that Penny Marshall is the sister, not the daughter, of Garry Marshall. —J. Currier, Hampton, N.H.

A: Garry is only seven years older than his sister Penny.

Q: Is that the guy who played Dewey in the Scream movies in those 1-800-Call-ATT commercials? —Brandon McCain in McKean, Pa.

A: Yep, that's David Arquette.

Q: When the Saturday night NBC "Thrilligy" lineup premiered, there were three shows. Now there are only The Pretender and Profiler. What was the third one, and why was it canceled? —Janie via e-mail.

A: In the fall of '96, NBC unveiled the "Thrilligy" concept with Pretender and Profiler in their current time slots, preceded by Dark Skies, a series about aliens among us.

Skies, with Eric Close and Megan Ward, limped through most of a season before being canceled due to low ratings.

The following fall, NBC tried Sleepwalkers as a third link in its "Thrilligy." That show tanked almost immediately.

Since then, extra Pretender episodes and Dick Clark "bloopers" presentations have filled the third hour, which briefly was the home last fall of Wind on Water, the inept Bo Derek drama that thrilled only fans of awesomely awful TV.

SOAP TALK

Page having good time with bad-girl role

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

When ABC canceled her prime-time series, Second Noah, actress Erika Page was confused about what she wanted to do next. When the call came that a soap opera on the East Coast wanted her to play a new character, she was a little hesitant to pick up and move across the country.

"I hadn't even auditioned," Page says. "The call for One Life to Live came out the blue, and I was like, 'Hey, hold on.' They told me that (former OLTL head writer) Pam Long, who had been the executive producer on Second Noah, had shown (OLTL executive producer) Jill Farren-Phelps my tape. It turned out to be a great role."

As Roscanne, a manipulative young woman who goes after what she wants, Page finds herself playing one of the juiciest roles on daytime television.

"She's a bad girl, but she does have a heart deep down in there somewhere," Page says.

"She had a tough time as a teen, and she thinks she has to be mean to get what she wants."

For the past few months, it looked as if Roscanne had lightened up a bit, but all that is about to change.

"She wants Christian (David Fumero) again, and she is going to do whatever it takes to get him," Page says. "You are going to see her mean side come out again."

One of Page's biggest fans is popular country singer Bryan White, who is also her fiancé.

"When he goes to work out at the gym, he makes them change the TV to OLTL," Page says. "He's very proud of me and respects what I do."

The couple rack up the frequent-flier miles when he's on the road. They made a pact more than a year ago that they would never be apart for more than a week.

Page is excited about her latest project, an ad for Jockey. "I had so much fun," she says. "They picked four of us from the ABC soaps." She calls the ad "very sexy and classy."

THE BUCK STARTS HERE.

Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information.

Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.

Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live.

Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise.

It's an integral part of our lives.

Newspaper. It delivers.

THERE'S MORE Hereford IN THE BRAND.
