HANDS OFF THE CENTER

What seemed like a good idea -- letting the HEDC and chamber share office space -- sparks protest

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

It seemed like a good idea at the time.

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and the Hereford Economic Development Corp. complement each other, so Hereford City Commissioners agreed it made sense to let the two entities share office space, which would allow them to coordinate economic development activities and share some expenses.

Unfortunately, the commissioners thought providing space in the Hereford Community Center would be the way to go.

At the last commission meeting, the commissioners gave their blessing to the request by the chamber and HEDC to move into offices in the community center, which would require some civic groups to move their meetings to the city-owned Campfire Lodge.

At that meeting, the commissioners directed City Attorney Terry Langehenning to draw up rental agreements between the city and the chamber and HEDC for the space in the community center. The commissioners anticipated returning to Monday's meeting and approving the agreements, setting the stage for the two economic development organizations to share the space.

That didn't happen.

The commissioners received several petitions signed by Hereford residents who opposed the proposal and who resented what they thought was an effort by the city to kick them out of the community center.

At Monday's meeting, the commissioners, confronted with the petitions and a room of annoyed residents, voted to table the rental agreements and to reconsider the whole matter.

Louise Witkowski told the commissioners the community has not been adequately informed about the plans. She also said the city is attempting to transfer the use of the center from the community to the chamber and HEDC.

She referred to a letter written in 1958 from O.L. Bybee, an attorney and a trustee for the J.E. Hill Estate, which provided the seed money for the construction of the community center.

Louise Witkowski, along with a group of Hereford residents, protested the Hereford City Commission's plan to convert part of the Community Center into office space for the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and Hereford Economic Development Corp. The commissioners tabled a vote on rental agreements between the city and the two agencies.

She said the letter indicated the Hill estate was providing the money for a center for the community, and said the chamber/HEDC office space didn't fall within the intent of the Hill estate.

Jess Robinson agreed, saying the center was for the youth. Robinson said if the community center space is taken by the city for office space, what will be the next step.

Mayor Pro Tem Roger Eades said the city has no plans to take any additional space from the community center.

Robinson said City Manager Chester Nolen had said if the city needs the space, it'll take it.

That drew a sharp response from Nolen.

"That's not what I said," Nolen said.

The two men disagreed about what had been said, but Eades interrupted, saying it would do no good to continue the debate.

"The matter has been tabled. We'll take it under advisement," Eades said, adding the commission will give consideration to any objections to the proposal.

Robinson asked about the advantages to having the chamber and HEDC in the same office.

Eades said the two entities complement each other.

In response to one resident's question, Nolen said the renovation of the community center will involve new lighting, carpeting and construction of a partition to convert the old lounge area into a conference room.

Nolen said the renovation will cost about $5,000, which will be paid for by the HEDC. A city crew will do the work, he

Murray views his life after atheism

By Dianna Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Not the usual Sunday morning church service and definitely not the same old sermon greeted members and visitors of the Church of the Nazarene who arrived to hear William J. Murray speak on life after atheism.

Murray, son of Madalyn Murray O'Hair, spoke Saturday evening and again at both Sunday services, depicting the differences in his life with his famous atheist mother and life as a Christian.

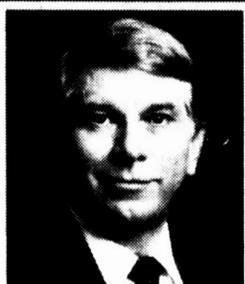

With a touch of humor and an ability to laugh at himself and the situation, Murray relived his early years with his radical and socialistic mother, who made a name for herself as the "most hated woman in America."

By his account, his mother seldom held any position for longer than just a few months. Her outspokenness and superior attitude cost her one job after another, he said.

By the summer of 1960, he said she had decided to defect and try to become a citizen of the Soviet Union.

They returned to the United States after a failed attempt to get into the USSR. Shortly thereafter, O'Hair embarked on an attempt to remove any semblance of prayer or religion from any public facility or event in the U.S.

From this attempt, O'Hair soon collected more money

than she had ever earned.

After years of living as the son of America's most hated woman, Murray quickly climbed the corporate ladder, only to learn that much more could be accomplished by being nice than by not caring who got hurt.

After nearly 20 years in the outside world, Murray returned to help his mother run the American Atheist organization, but soon learned he liked his lifestyle much better.

Murray describes his walk to Christianity as anything but normal. He never walked down the aisle to seek forgiveness. He never spent days at a church camp as a youth. He never even spent hours sitting on church pews listening to "hell's-fire and brimstone" sermons.

He received his instruction simply through the words of a Bible, which he purchased in the wee hours at an all-night discount department store.

Murray now spends untold hours urging law makers to take a moral, if not Christian, stance regarding laws which most people know little if anything about.

As far as his concern for his mother goes, he feels she is past the need of prayer. He is fairly certain she has met her end at the hands of one or more of the convicted paroled murderers she enjoyed employing.

Something's missing

'1-806' no longer necessary in calling Amarillo or Canyon from Hereford

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

There's something missing now when you pick up the telephone to call Amarillo or Canyon.

What's missing?

"1-806," that's what.

Hereford residents calling exchanges in Amarillo and Canyon no longer have to dial "1" and the area code because toll-free calling between Hereford and its neighboring cities went into effect late Monday.

Last fall, the Texas Public Utility Commission ordered Southwestern Bell to institute the toll-free calling after more than 70 percent of its customers in the Hereford exchange approved an extended local calling option in an election.

Under the guidelines for the election, at least 70 percent of the returned ballots had to support the ELC before the PUC would issue an order instituting the toll-free calling.

Dennis Hicks of Hicks Well Service, who had spearheaded the petition drive to call the ELC election, had said after the vote that 79.15 percent of the ballots supported linking with the Amarillo exchange; the vote for tying in with Canyon was favored by 75.54 percent of the Hereford exchange customers.

The new service means SW Bell's customers in Hereford will see a new line-item charge on their monthly telephone bills. The company would charge up to $3.50 for residential customers and up to $7 for commercial customers for extended calling.

There were two ELC votes in Hereford last year. The ballots sent out by SW Bell in April were voided by the PUC after it was discovered there was a discrepancy between the number of customers who received ballots and the number of access lines.

The ballots were sent out after a petition was submitted to the PUC requesting an election to decide if Hereford could expand its local calling area to the Amarillo and Canyon exchanges.

Several days after the ballots were mailed, Linda Hymans, the commission's ELC coordinator, began receiving calls from Hereford subscribers who had not received a ballot.

Subscribers were asked to send Hymans a letter stating they had not received a ballot and how they would have voted.

Seventeen letters were received by the PUC; however, when the PUC staff checked those names with the master list supplied by the telephone company, the names were not on the list of subscribers.

The master list was verified with 7,592 access lines, but only 4,620 ballots were mailed. Multiple lines were eliminated, as were SW Bell test lines, leaving about 3,000 subscribers without ballots.

The PUC ordered the telephone company to file a written report explaining the discrepancies.

In its order, the PUC voided the ballots and ordered the telephone company to "resolve discrepancies between the number of customers who were mailed ballots and the number of access lines."

The ELC was designed to enable communities, such as Hereford, with less than 10,000 telephone lines to petition the PUC for toll-free service to larger cities.

In a previous ELC election, some Hereford residents apparently were confused about the telephone exchanges involved.

Iraqis threatening U.S. allies

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Baghdad warned U.S. allies today that they will pay a high price for playing host to American and British warplanes that patrol "no-fly" zones over Iraq.

The warnings carried by Iraq's state-controlled media came one day after Iraqi Vice President Taha Yassin Ramadan said Baghdad would attack a Turkish base for U.S. warplanes if the jets continue patrolling Iraqi skies. It was the first time in years Iraq has threatened to attack its northern neighbor.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright has promised swift U.S. retaliation in the event of an Iraqi attack.

U.S. jets based at Incirlik, in southern Turkey, have struck almost daily at Iraqi defense sites after being targeted while patrolling the no-fly zone over the Iraq's north.

In Ankara, Deputy Iraqi Prime Minister Tariq Aziz today defended his government's threat.

"The U.S. and British planes are killing Iraqis, are destroying Iraqi property and this is not acceptable," Aziz said. "A Turkish airbase should not be used by the Americans and British to hurt Iraqis."

Iraq has also threatened to strike at bases in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, from which U.S. and British jets patrol a southern no-fly zone.

"Time has run out for American and British aggressors and those supporting them," the al-Jumhuriya newspaper said in a front-page editorial. "They shall pay a heavy price."

Al-Qadissiya, the newspaper of the Iraqi armed forces, said that it "must be made clear and obvious to them that ... the price for their ongoing aggression will be very high."

Turkish officials did not immediately react to the remarks.

In Kuwait, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said the Iraqi threats reflect Baghdad's "aggressive intention toward its neighbors."

On Monday, Ramadan said in an interview with Radio Monte Carlo that "if the Turkish base continues attacking Iraq it will certainly be (targeted) like other bases" in the Gulf.

Ramadan made his remarks just hours after Aziz held talks with Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit in Ankara. Aziz went to Turkey to try to persuade the Turkish government to

Riley proposes national teacher licensing

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his yearly speech on the state of American schools, Education Secretary Richard Riley will propose a national teacher licensing system to raise the bar on teacher quality, a newspaper reported today.

The plan, to be outlined in the speech to be delivered at California State University, Long Beach, would also tie a teachers' pay to the certification, which could be carried from state to state, USA Today reported in today's editions.

In testimony before congressional education panels last week, Riley offered no specifics about what stick or carrot the federal government might use to get states to follow a national teacher certification plan.

Riley did say that the department's proposals this year for the law governing most education programs would include some way of making sure states adopt tougher, more-relevant teacher exams. He cited a recent department survey of teachers showing that many feel unprepared to teach specific subjects.

"States receiving (federal) funds should adopt challenging competency tests for new teachers, phase out the use of uncertified teachers, and reduce the number of teachers who are teaching 'out of field,'" Riley told a House committee.

The plan would be state-operated and would go as follows:

—New teachers would get a three-year maximum initial license after passing a written exam and an evaluation of classroom performance. Teachers who perform poorly could be fired.

—Other new teachers could get a professional license, provided they meet state standards and win the approval of a panel of teachers and one supervisor.

—Finally, the nation's top-paid teachers would be certified under a voluntary advanced license. Experienced teachers could choose to undergo a tough certification program under the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards.

States and districts would have to base a teacher's salary on the teacher's type of license, years of teaching experience and demonstrated knowledge and skills valued by the district.

The plan also includes a national job bank to match teachers with school districts. Education officials expect that many new teachers will be needed in coming years because of the growing number of young students expected from the "baby boom echo."

National Education Association President Bob Chase told the newspaper that he supports Riley's ideas of stricter licensing requirements and tying salaries to tougher state standards. Chase said he believes Riley is not calling for federalization of the teacher licensing process, an idea the NEA opposes.

Authorities seek addresses of sex offenders

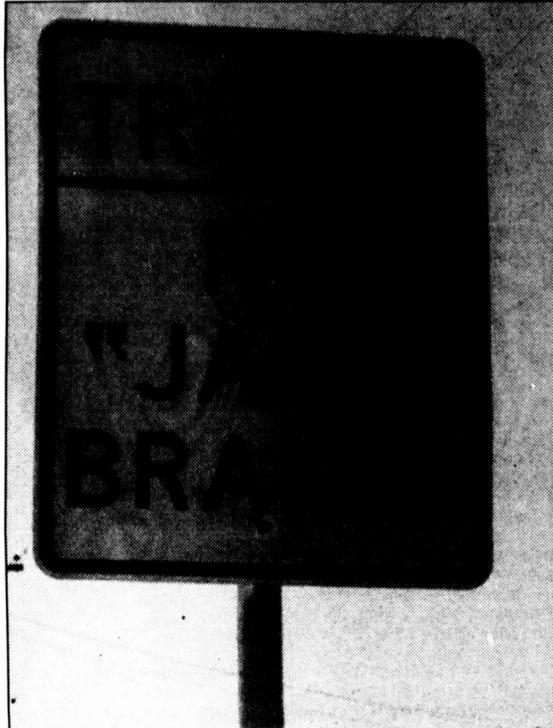

AUSTIN (AP) — Information about Texas' 15,500 registered sex offenders was made available on the Internet last month, but authorities said that list is missing the addresses of nearly 1,000 sex offenders.

Police said they have been unable to verify the whereabouts of 986 sex offenders — some of whom were convicted of offenses against children. They said they are considering turning to other law enforcement agencies and parole officers, as well as going door-to-door, to track them down.

Police said it's especially important to know where convicted sex offenders are living because they frequently are repeat offenders.

Sex offenders convicted on or after Sept. 1, 1970, are required to notify authorities and provide them with addresses and other information within seven days of moving. They are also supposed to register annually.

Truckers beware -- New signs have been posted near the city limits signs warning truck drivers, who may come up on those red lights just a little too fast, not to use that annoying "jake" brake inside the city. Just to get the message across, the penalty for using "jake" brakes inside city limits can range from as little as $1 for the first offense to more than $500 for subsequent offenses. Court costs will be additional.

The family suggests memorials be made to the First Baptist Church of Canyon.

Theater in Texas is topic of program by Beene

Los Ciboleros Chapter NSDAR members heard a program titled "Early Theater in Texas," presented by Jean Beene at a meeting Thursday in the home of Patricia Robinson.

Beene noted that 1998 was the anniversary of 400 years of theater in Texas. The first recorded performance was in 1598 just downstream from El Paso. It was in Spanish, as were many Texas plays well into the 1800s.

Productions of melodramas, tragedies and musical entertainments declined in Texas after the introduction of moving pictures in 1905.

By this time, theater had infiltrated the classroom and by 1927 enough schools were producing drama to spark a statewide contest encouraged by the University Interscholastic League. These UIL contests became the most influential factor in the persistence of community amateur theater in Texas, according to Beene's presentation.

Regent Ruth Newsom and chaplain Ruth Knox led the opening ritual. Argen Draper led the Pledge of Allegiance, Margaret Bell led in singing "America," Juanita Brown led the American's Creed and Helen Rose led the preamble to the Constitution.

Robinson presented the President General's message and Charlotte Clark highlighted material from the February National Defender. Rose gave a Constitutional Side-light.

Argen Draper, chairman of the commemorative events and flag of the United States committee, reported plans for the presentation of a United States flag to King's Manor Methodist Home at 10:30 a.m. on Feb. 22, George Washington's birthday.

Robinson and Beene are delegates to the 100th TSDAR Convention in Dallas March 17-20. Jayne Brainard, a former state regent from Los Ciboleros Chapter, will also be a voting delegate.

The next meeting of Los Ciboleros Chapter will be March 11 in the home of Juanita Brown. The speaker, Roger Eades, will discuss "Naval Reserves, Their Missions and Relationship to Active Naval Operations."

Hostesses Robinson and Clark served refreshments to Mary Williamson, Lois Gilliland, Beene, Bell, Brown, Draper, Knox, Newsom and Rose.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letter from "Grieving Mom in Sacramento," whose mentally ill daughter died of alcoholism. The mother complained about the lack of services for those who are seriously ill and won't reach out for help. There used to be assistance for such people through the state mental hospitals. Then, someone got the bright idea that the civil liberties of these people were being violated, so now, we have mentally ill homeless people.

I'm all for civil liberties, but let's get real, Ann. Mentally ill people cannot be left to treat themselves. They wind up as prey on the streets. Perhaps there should be less restrictive places for those with mental health problems so they could receive support and treatment and have a chance at a real life. — Common Sense in the United States

Dear U.S.: Thanks for a good letter. Unfortunately, "common sense" is not so common. Keep reading for more on this subject:

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from "Grieving Mom," whose mentally ill daughter could not get the help she needed to recover from her alcoholism. It is time to re-examine the issue of personal freedom and mental illness.

My brother is schizophrenic and has had this problem for over 20 years. He has been in and out of hospitals and recently was placed in an apartment with limited supervision of his daily activities. The problem is his medication. When he takes it, he functions well. Unfortunately, when he is functioning well, he thinks he no longer needs his medication and stops taking it. This starts a downward spiral with which we are all too familiar. The results are disastrous.

My brother will probably fold out of this program and wind up in a hospital again. How could it possibly be considered cruel to force him to stay on his medication? He can be a wonderful, kind, intelligent person when he is taking his medicine. The only time he loses his freedom is when he declares himself "cured" and stops taking it. Is there a solution to this dilemma? — Sad Sister in N.C.

Dear Sister: I do not know the answer. Schizophrenics should accept the fact that there is no "cure," but in most cases, they can live a normal life if they stay on their medication and get checked by a doctor periodically. Those who are dependable enough to do this should be left alone. The problem is, as you said, the person who feels perfectly normal stops taking the medication and runs into trouble — paranoia, hallucinations and anxiety attacks.

Perhaps it is time the government intervened for the good of those who cannot care for themselves. Allowing loved ones to commit mentally ill family members to residences where medication is monitored under the supervision of trained personnel may be the solution.

Dear Ann Landers: My fiance and I have decided to get married in Hawaii with immediate family and a few friends attending. To my delight, my best girlfriend and her husband have decided to accompany us. She has mentioned that she and her husband would like to renew their vows while there.

I do not know if she intends to have her "renewal" the same day as our marriage. I love her dearly and am delighted that she will be attending our wedding. However, I'm not interested in having her horn in on our wedding ceremony. Please, Ann, tell me how to handle this. — Befuddled Bride

Dear Fud.: You must be very explicit about your wishes. Tell your friend you want very much to attend her renewal service, but it won't be possible if she chooses to have it on the same day as your wedding. Your fiance should give the same message to her husband to make double sure there's no mix-up. Happy hula, honey.

Are you one of the 7 out of 8 who have not prepared a will?

When you die you must leave behind everything for which you have worked and saved. The question is, "TO WHOM?" If you have a will, you have already instructed the State, attorneys and judges to act according to YOUR wishes. But if you don't have a will, the State will simply distribute your estate according to law.

Without a Will you let the State determine the disposition of your assets, the welfare of your spouse and the guardianship of your children. Probate costs, taxes and fees increase. What's worse, you rob yourself the privilege of continuing stewardship through designated gifts.

DON'T MAKE THE MISTAKE OF THINKING:

- only wealthy people need a will
- that drawing a will is too complicated
- or that it is too expensive.

Participants sought for Cancer Survivor's Lap

The American Cancer Society's Deaf Smith County unit will conduct its third annual Relay for Life on June 4-5.

Teams of walking and running enthusiasts from Deaf Smith County will gather at Whiteface Stadium to show their support in the fight against cancer.

Relay for Life is the American Cancer Society's community-oriented team event where participants walk or run around a track relay style for 24 hours. When they aren't taking their turn on the track, team members camp out around the track and take part in a variety of fun activities.

Two activities open to the public which are held in conjunction with the annual relay are the Cancer Survivor's Lap and the Luminaria Ceremony.

Cancer survivors from Deaf Smith County are invited to walk the first lap of the Relay for Life to celebrate their victory over cancer.

The Survivors Lap will begin immediately following the opening ceremony which is scheduled for 6 p.m. on Friday, June 4. Each cancer survivor will receive a free T-shirt to wear while walking the track. There is no cost to participate.

Cancer survivors need to call Debbie or Adam Treff at 364-2536 or Adam at 364-1860.

The Luminaria Ceremony, which will be held at 9:30 p.m. Friday, is a special candle lighting ceremony to recognize those touched by cancer in Deaf Smith County.

Individuals and companies can make contributions in memory of those who have lost their fight with cancer and in honor of those who have survived. Each will be recognized by a special lighted luminaria candle.

Luminaria contributions can be made by calling Kee Ruland at 364-0857 or any American Cancer Society volunteer.

If anyone would like to register a team for Relay for Life, they can call the numbers listed above.

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment is the secret!

OCALA, FL. -- An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred race-horse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx[®] and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more. Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears. ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some feed stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. © 1997 PGC

Wrestlers head to state finals

By Mauri Montgomery
Hereford Brand Publisher

Hereford sophomore grappler Javier Alonzo, bloodied, scratched and bruised from a scathing regional final match Saturday with Tascosa's Bret Robinson only moments before, was already mentally diagramming the errors he made in his match.

"No big deal, he busted my lip. He wasn't all that bad. I think if I had switched holds differently a couple of times, I might have won the match," Alonzo told the Hereford contingent shortly after the match.

Alonzo had just come off a 14-8 loss against the three-time All-State Tascosa wrestler to place second in the 135-pound weight division of the Region I Wrestling Championships hosted this past weekend in Amarillo Caprock's Activity Center.

It was a telling moment in Hereford's early rise in the UIL sport.

The no excuses, nobody owes me anything attitude has propelled the young and inexperienced first-year Hereford High School wrestling program into the heights of premier UIL wrestling, and into the HHS history books as well.

Hereford took seven wrestlers into the first-ever Region I tournament and finished 12th in a 35-team field. More importantly, Hereford placed six grapplers in the state finals.

"I think our kids finally realized they can compete and even win against more experienced wrestlers after the regional tournament."

HHS Wrestling Coach MIKE DOMINGUEZ

"I think our kids finally realized they can compete and even win against more experienced wrestlers after the regional tournament," HHS wrestling coach Mike Dominguez said. "The best complement a program or wrestler ever gets comes when a seasoned coach comes up after a match and says, 'Hey that kid is solid'. It feels good to me and the wrestlers when they say it. And they usually never do unless it's sincere." Alonzo, who Dominguez says has earned the role as the team's designated "come-from-behind artist", defeated El Paso Americas' Ricky Vallejo 10-3; beat El Paso Hanks' fourth-ranked Josh Guillen 6-4; and then came from behind with five seconds left to defeat El Paso Irving's Cesar Mireles 11-10 before losing in the finals to Robinson, ranked among the nation's top-twenty schoolboy wrestlers.

Alonzo, now boasting 29 wins for the year, will be the first HHS wrestler ever to compete in the state wrestling finals when he takes the mat at 10:30 a.m. Friday February 26 at the Austin Convention Center.

And he is going to be joined there by wrestling teammates Bobby Barba, Kris Hammarbeck, Amariah and Rachael Rodriguez and Danielle Garza.

In the 215-pound weight division, Hereford senior Bobby Barba took a starting top position in the opening minutes of a sudden-death overtime match to win a decision over No. 3 ranked Brady Ames of Dumas in his first round of the tourney.

Barba, who had been ill the past three weeks, then avenged a 13-2 loss earlier in the year to Thomas Rios of Lubbock High by winning a 4-1 decision; beat El Paso Yesleta's fourth-ranked Adolfo Ochoa 4-2 in overtime and then lost 4-1 to Vernon's Jonathon Ochoa, ranked as the state's No. 1 215-pound wrestler.

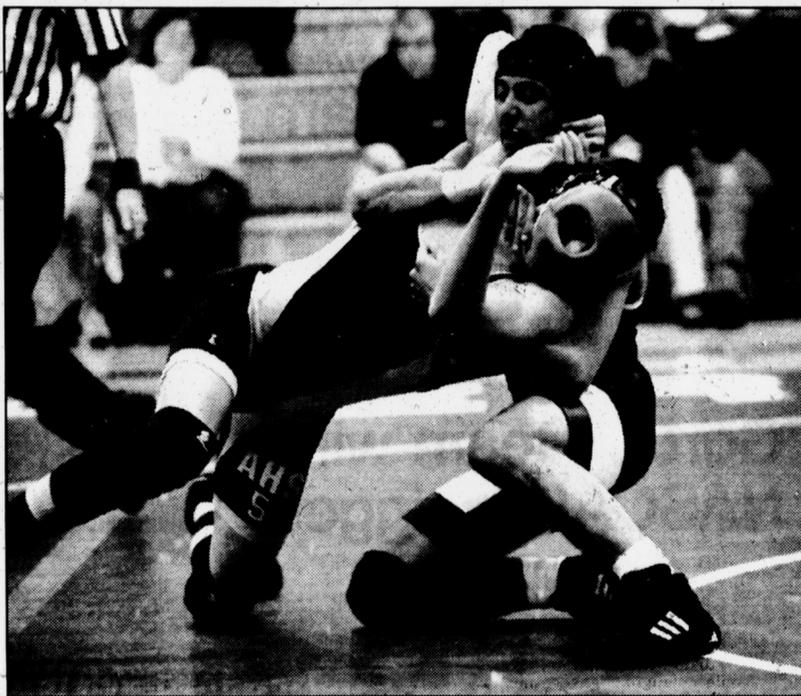

Hereford's big guy, Kris Hammarbeck dominated El Paso Coronado wrestler Ben Graniello 13-4 in the first round of heavyweight competition and pinned Lubbock High's Eric Villareal before meeting Rocky Morin of Amarillo Caprock. Morrin had defeated Hammarbeck 8-4, 6-2 in the tourney semifinals the day prior; but Hammarbeck defeated Morin when it counted, 7-2 in the finals. Hammarbeck then lost 15-2 to top-ranked state champion Buck McLamb of Amarillo Tascosa in the final match.

HHS girl wrestlers did their part too.

Danielle Garza will advance to the state tournament following a win over El Paso Hanks' Marline Felcano and a round robin win over Caprock's Brooke Stout; Amariah Rodriguez bounced Caprock's

Lady Whitefaces meet Randall

Tonight in 3-4A bidistrict playoff game

By Mauri Montgomery
Hereford Brand Publisher

When the Hereford Lady Whitefaces hit the court at the West Texas A & M University Fieldhouse this evening at 5:30 p.m., they'll be fielding the great expectations they carried into play early this season, and finally made real Saturday after they defeated the Borger Lady Bulldogs 48-43 in a playoff for District 3-4A's third place seed.

The Lady Whitefaces, now 22-11 realized the dream of making the playoffs after Toni Eicke and Kristen Fangman found their marks at the foul line — connecting on five from the bonus rule in the final seconds of the game to put Borger away.

The win signaled a bonafide trip to the bidistrict playoff against last year's 4A champ Randall High School (19-2), but also stamped a winning 3-1 record across the 1998 footnote marked Hereford vs. Borger.

"Yeah, it was pretty much the typical game between us and Borger," head girl's varsity basketball coach Key Harrison said. "It was tight the whole way."

The two teams battled point for point before entering half-time with Borger trailing by one point, 22-21 at the half.

The Lady Whitefaces clipped-off a six point lead at one time in the third quarter before entering the final period with a 33-30 advantage.

And true to form judging from the two team's previous encounters, the game came down to the nitty-gritty.

Eicke, who had missed two heartbreaking 1-1 opportunities in Hereford's only loss to Borger earlier in the year, had a second chance to deliver a fatal blow to Borger, or what Harrison referred to as "poetic justice."

The Whiteface junior made two free throws to break a 43-43 tie and added another free throw shortly afterward to give Hereford a three-point 46-43 lead with less than 10 seconds left.

Kristin Fangman added two more free throws to seal Hereford's second consecutive win over Borger in just over a week's time.

The Lady Whitefaces only had a day to rest on their laurels though.

Monday morning, the Whitefaces were preparing the best they could for tonight's bidistrict contest — a contest Randall has had a full week to work on.

"You never know. Sometimes I think a shorter layoff between games is better," Harrison said. "I do know the girls are really excited to play and ready to get after it."

Even though this Randall team is a good team, I don't think they're the same team that won the state championship a year ago. They're bigger than we are, but they're beatable," he said.

Whitefaces travel to meet PD Dons

On Monday afternoon, Randy Dean and his troops were heading into tonight's regular season finale against top-ranked Palo Duro with all the fervor of a Marine Corps boot camp.

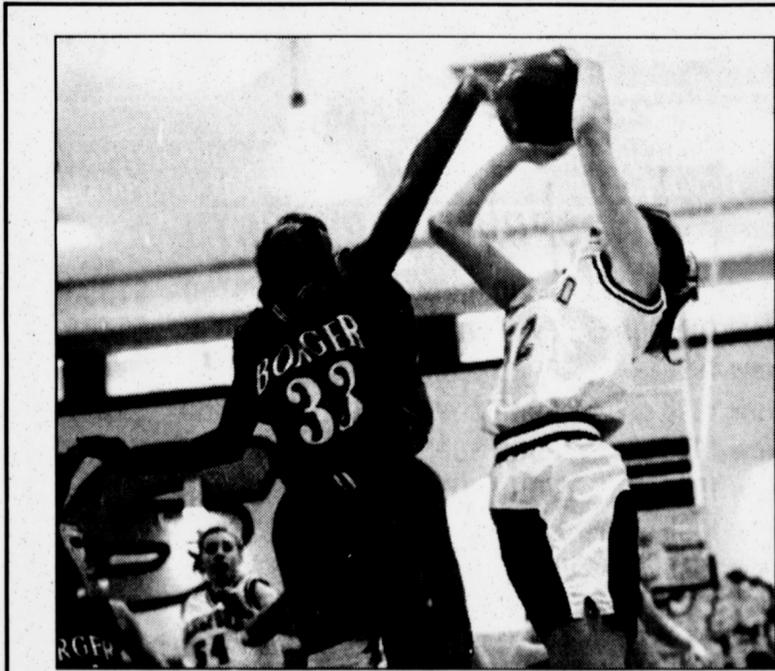

The booming echo of Dean's voice after an errant workout pass could be heard from the Hereford High parking lot.

The practice was serious business — young warriors preparing for battle with a team that Dean is convinced Hereford, can win against, even if no one else in the district has.

It's a game that won't change the 3-4A pecking order one bit, but Dean knows a Hereford win would offer a monumental emotional lift just as the Whitefaces enter the district playoffs as the No. 2 seed.

It's possible. Hereford is no pumpkin and pushed the Palo Duro Dons (9-0) as few other teams have during the two squads' earlier meeting this year.

Stockton, Malone combo holds off Kings

Utah Jazz win 120-112 over Sacramento

By The Associated Press

The original Stockton-Malone combination is still better than the upstart impersonators from Sacramento. John Stockton and Karl Malone held off a spirited charge from Jason Williams and Chris Webber as the Utah Jazz beat the Kings 120-112 in overtime Monday night. Sacramento appeared ready to upset the Jazz thanks primarily to standout efforts from rookie point guard Williams and new acquisition Webber that sparked memories of Stockton and Malone in their early days. In just his fifth pro game, Williams had 19 points and seven assists, while Webber had 26 points and 11 rebounds before fouling out early in overtime. "He plays with a lot of confidence, but their whole team does," Stockton said of Williams. "They're going to beat some people this year."

But not Monday night. Malone hit five free throws in the final minute of regulation to force overtime, and the Jazz made a 9-2 run to start the extra period and run their record to a franchise-best 6-0. "We'll take the win and not dwell on the rest," said Stockton, who scored eight of his 10 points in the fourth quarter and had 15 assists. "Karl is our guy. He made huge free throws all night."

All the moral victories, however, belonged to the Kings (2-3 with just one home game so far), who appear transformed from the moribund franchise that has made the playoffs just once in the last 12 years. And with Williams and Webber, they may have a young go-to combination similar to the one that has served the Jazz so well for so long. "We feel some good about it, but we need to win some of these games," Kings coach Rick Adelman said. "We have a lot of road games (14 of their first 21), and it's a tough stretch for any team."

Elsewhere Monday, it was New York 78, Detroit 69; Miami 95, New Jersey 72; Phoenix 115, Denver 106; Portland 99, Dallas 84; and Golden State 101, Minnesota 99.

Bryon Russell and Shandon Anderson combined for 12 points in overtime as Utah remained one of two undefeated teams heading into tonight's showdown with Seattle (5-0).

Malone, despite shooting just 8-for-20 from the field, led the Jazz with 26 points and nine rebounds. Russell had 25 points — seven in overtime — and nine rebounds.

Knicks 78, Pistons 69
At New York, Grant Hill scored 31 points, but the Knicks held the rest of Detroit's players in check.

Allan Houston scored 19 points, Patrick Ewing had 14, Larry Johnson 12 and Charlie Ward 10 for the Knicks, who double-teamed Hill near midcourt whenever they could. The strategy worked as New York held the Pistons to 36 percent shooting.

Miami 95, New Jersey 72
At Miami, Alonzo Mourning had 34 points, 17 rebounds and seven blocks as the Heat handed New Jersey its third straight loss.

P.J. Brown chipped in 12 points and nine rebounds for Miami, which has won 12 of its last 14 games against New Jersey.

Keith Van Horn paced the Nets with 19 points. Suns 115, Nuggets 106

Jason Kidd had 28 points, 13 assists and 11 rebounds and George McCloud added 24 points as Phoenix won at Denver.

Kidd was 9-for-17 shooting and posted his 20th triple-double as the Suns beat the Nuggets for the eighth consecutive time and second time this year.

Bryant Stith scored 23 points and Nick Van Exel added 21 for the Nuggets. Antonio McDyess, who played for the Suns last season, had 20 points and 12 rebounds.

Trail Blazers 99, Mavericks 84

At Portland, Arvydas Sabonis had 16 points, 10 rebounds and nine assists for the Trail Blazers.

Rasheed Wallace added 15 points, while Damon Stoudamire and Isaiah Rider each had 14 points for Portland.

Michael Finley led Dallas with 21 points, and Steve Nash added 19.

Warriors 101, Timberwolves 99

Rookie Antawn Jamison scored 21 points, including the game-winning tip-in with four seconds left, as Golden State won at home against Minnesota. Jamison added 11 rebounds in 29 minutes none more crucial than his tip of Terry Cummings' missed put-back after Donyell Marshall shot an air ball. Minnesota's Kevin Garnett led all scorers with 29 points.

Rodman is still a man without a team

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While Dennis Rodman and the Los Angeles Lakers seem to want each other, they aren't together yet.

When — or if — it does take place appears to be up to the eccentric seven-time rebounding champion.

"I heard he's coming,"

Shaquille O'Neal, the NBA's leading scorer, said Monday after another practice came and went without an appearance from Rodman. O'Neal said he hasn't spoken with the Worm since last week.

"To be honest, I haven't heard much about it," reserve forward Corie Blount said. "I haven't heard the players talk about it, the coaches."

A source close to the Lakers told The Associated Press late Sunday that Rodman was expected to sign with the team by today and be in uniform for tonight's game against Charlotte.

Rodman attended high school in Dallas and played two years with the San Antonio Spurs.

Lakers spokesman John Black said there was "absolutely nothing new to report," but acknowledged that executives Jerry West and Mitch Kupchak have been talking with Rodman's agents.

A couple hours earlier, Black answered his home telephone by saying, "Dennis Rodman Hotline."

Several players said speculation over Rodman's expected arrival hasn't been a distraction, but the Lakers enter tonight's game with a disappointing 3-3 record.

"I think I'll just leave that up to everybody else to talk about," Lakers coach Del Harris said when asked about Rodman.

"In my contract, it says to play basketball," reserve forward Travis Knight said. "I just show up at practice and at games and play as hard as I can. I don't really give it much mind. I've got enough to worry about doing my job."

Derek Harper, at 37 the oldest player on the team and the same age as Rodman, said over the weekend that "any distraction was going to be a cancer for this team."

"I think he can help us as a player here," Harper said Monday. "If and when it happens, it happens. That's the only approach you can have. We haven't, I haven't, talked about it with anybody except the media."

The Lakers first expressed an interest in Rodman two weeks ago. They can only offer the veterans' minimum of $1 million, prorated for this lockout-shortened season, and that money is diminishing with every game Rodman misses.

Starting tonight, they'll play six games in eight days.

Rodman has played on five of the last 10 NBA championships, including the last three with the Chicago Bulls, who opted not to pursue him last month after Michael Jordan announced his retirement.

Representatives for Rodman's new agents from International Creative Management could not be reached Monday.

uled game 50-44 in Hereford after Panhandle snows made traveling impossible.

And the Whitefaces are coming off a Friday night 60-43 win over the Dumas Demons here.

But that's probably the most troubling aspect for Dean.

Dumas, winless in district competition as of tonight, gave the Herd more than Dean wanted.

"We have a great opportunity in our second season," Dean said in reference to the playoffs. "But we can't play like we did here tonight if we're going to compete there. We're going to have to get on a roll and stay there."

The Palo Duro vs. Hereford tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. at Palo Duro High School.

Stephanie Olivas and El Paso Jefferson's Jenni Meyer, but lost to Norma Garcia of Amarillo Caprock in the final match; and Rachael Rodriguez advanced after earning second in the 138 weight division.

"We have good wrestling technique, good conditioning and kids who still know there's more wrestling to learn," Dominguez said. "When you have all those things, and you know you don't have anything to lose — only things to prove, then you have what you need to be successful and competitive."

Gordon team wins NASCAR's biggest

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jeff Gordon thinks winning a Daytona 500 is almost as satisfying as capturing the Winston Cup title.

Who's to say he won't get both in 1999?

Gordon and his Rainbow Warriors got the year off to a perfect start by outdueling Dale Earnhardt down the stretch to win NASCAR's biggest race Sunday.

A day later, Gordon turned his winning car over to be displayed at an exhibit next door to the track. Then, he started looking forward to the chase for a third-straight Winston Cup series title.

"We not only got the Daytona 500 win, but we got that first win of the season out of the way," Gordon said. "It's so important to get that first win. After last season was over, you go, 'Boy, do we have what it takes to get to victory lane again next year? Are we going to be a championship contender?' I'm still not sure about the championship part, but we definitely have one win out of the way."

And what a victory it was. A day later, Gordon was still putting the pieces together, trying to explain the thought process he used to muster a late chase through the pack that produced a scintillating final dash to the finish with Earnhardt on his bumper.

Once the passing was over,

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
• Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Nolen also noted the contracts, which were tabled, called for monthly rent of $250 each from the two organizations. The rental funds would be used to maintain/renovate the community center, he said. Nolen also said he had gone over the register and determined that only five groups were using that part of the community center on a regular basis. He also said the Campfire Lodge is undergoing major renovations to accommodate civic groups.

Both Eades and Commissioner Silvana Juarez urged the residents to go to the Campfire Lodge and check out the work that has been done so far. Nolen said some trees will be cut down to accommodate additional parking and lighting at the lodge.

Commissioner Wayne Winget said he believes relocating the chamber and HEDC into the community would be good for Hereford, saying he and the other commissioners would never do anything detrimental to the community.

"I'm a young adult and I'm interested in doing what's best for Hereford," Winget said. He also said the city is "eroding ... and I want to stop that. We've got to get some stuff in here" that will expand the tax base and provide new opportunities for the community's residents.

Langehenning was asked if using the community center as space for the chamber and HEDC would be legal under the original charter of the community center.

The city attorney said all of his research indicates it is permissible.

Eades, Nolen and Commissioner Angie Alonzo assured the residents that the Campfire Lodge would be available to any civic/community organizations that make reservations, which will be handled in the same manner as the community center.

In a report on the HEDC, Nolen, who is serving as interim executive director, said the agency's board is reviewing applications for a replacement for Executive Director Mike Hatley who left at the end of January.

Nolen also reported HEDC representatives will meet with a local company soon to discuss expansion of the local facility, which would result in an additional 20 jobs.

Chamber Executive Vice President Don Cumpton also said the HEDC and chamber have been involved in discussions with a consultant about possible location of a factory outlet mall in Hereford. Cumpton said the city is still a contender for the outlet.

In other business, the commissioners also appointed judges for the May 1 municipal election. Voting will be conducted at the community center.

Lupe Cerda was appointed presiding judge, with Cindy Carol serving as alternate presiding judge.

David Ruland was appointed clerk for early voting, which will be conducted at the Deaf Smith County Clerk's office in the county courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

Mail-in ballots also will be sent to the county clerk's office.

Mayor Bob Josseland and Commissioners Carey Black and Tom Conway were absent.

halt the flights from Incirlik base. Ecevit insisted that use of the base would continue.

U.S. warplanes attacked Iraqi defense sites in northern Iraq on Monday, the Defense Department said in Washington. The planes returned safely to Incirlik, U.S. officials said.

Iraq said Western planes also had carried out attacks in the southern no-fly zone, killing five civilians and injuring another 22. The U.S. statement made no mention of strikes in the south, and the Iraqi claims could not be independently confirmed.

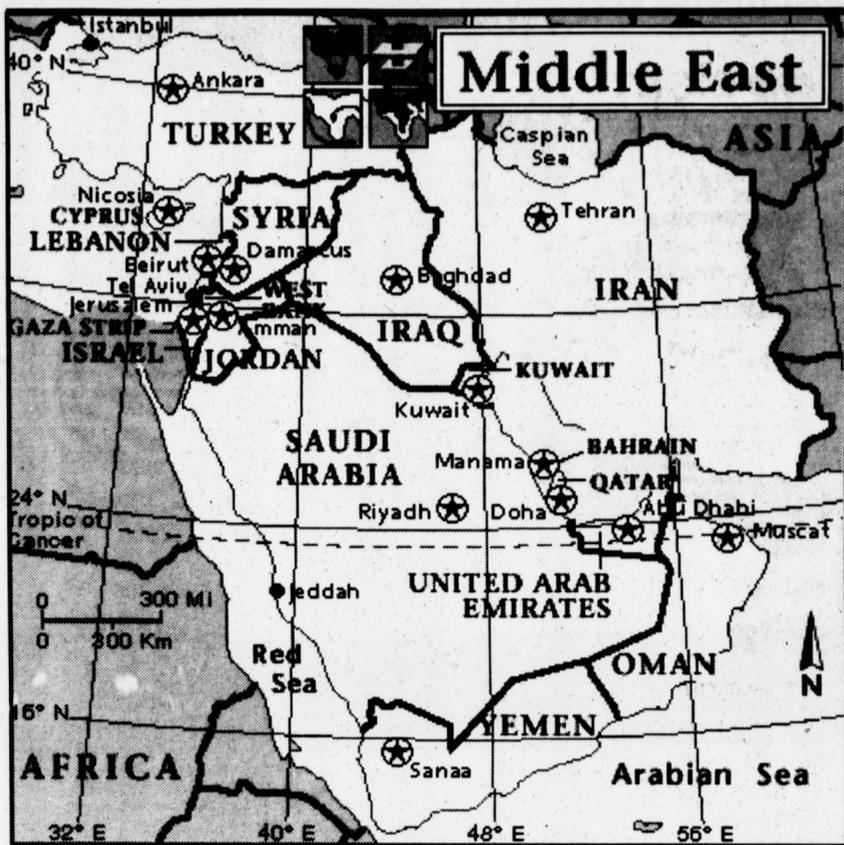

The no-fly zones were set up after the 1991 Gulf War to prevent Iraqi aircraft from attacking Kurdish rebels in the north and Shiite Muslims in the south of the country.

Iraq has never accepted the validity of the zones, which were created by the United States, Britain and France and are not authorized by the United Nations. France later withdrew its participation in the enforcement of the zones.

Aziz, who traveled to Turkey through the Iraqi Kurdish areas, questioned the validity of the zones.

"They claim they are protecting the Kurds from Iraqi government," he said. "Then how can an Iraqi deputy prime minister travel so easily?"

The United States says Iraq has violated the zones 90 times since it began challenging them in December.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS News in brief

Pentagon reviews what to put on its Web sites

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff looked on as Pentagon cyber-warriors clicked away at their laptops and showed how would-be terrorists could find his son's home address.

Army Gen. Henry Shelton then got a demonstration of how a skilled adversary might combine publicly available biographies and contractor information on military Web sites with a few well-placed phone calls to pin down the dates of highly classified nuclear exercises.

The classified briefing, held in Shelton's Pentagon office, was then given to other generals and admirals as well as senior civilians, generating a momentum that has led the military to order a massive scrub of its vast network of Internet sites.

Deputy Defense Secretary John Hamre said military Web sites offered adversaries "a potent instrument to obtain, correlate and evaluate an unprecedented volume of aggregated information" that could, when combined with other sources of information, "endanger Department of Defense personnel and their families."

Instituted Dec. 7, the policy change has touched off a debate as some critics argue the Pentagon went too far in restricting the information it makes public on the Internet.

In response, defense and national security officials have become more willing to discuss, on condition of not being identified by name, the nature of the risk their detailed review of military Web sites revealed.

"There was information that was potentially tactically useful to an adversary, the kind of thing where if someone really wanted to do harm to your personnel, it could facilitate them in undertaking an attack," said one senior defense official working on Internet security issues. Another national security official called the briefings "eye-openers" that startled commanders.

Midwest shaking off Rust Belt image PEORIA, Ill. — Jim Maloof remembers the "For Sale" signs, the boarded-up windows and the skyrocketing unemployment here in the 1980s. The worst memories, he says, are of the families that gave up.

"People would come in and put the keys to their homes on my desk. They'd ask me to take their home, take over their mortgage," says Maloof, a Realtor who became Peoria's mayor from 1985 to 1997. "They couldn't do it. It really broke my heart."

Like dozens of other cities around the industrial Midwest, Peoria suffered an economic slowdown in the 1980s so staggering that unemployment reached 20 percent.

Communities including Cleveland, Detroit and Louisville, Ky., also suffered as older industries closed and the region earned dubious fame as the "Rust Belt."

But now, some say, the Rust Belt is back. A region that was losing jobs and residents a decade ago is on the rebound, the Census Bureau reports, as people move back to the industrial heartland.

"In many Rust Belt metro areas, unemployment is down, welfare rolls are down, crime is down or stable," the Census Bureau says in a statistical report to be officially released today.

Pooches profitable for ski areas

OXFORD, Maine — Cross-country ski center operators who once shoed away canine companions are now pursuing customers who take their four-legged friends along on romps in the woods.

The result is more and more groomed trails dedicated to dog owners. They're known in the business as "loop de poop" trails.

The owner of the Carter's Cross Country Ski Centers allows dogs on all of his trails with one caveat: owners pay full price for a daily doggie pass that will be confiscated for any misbehavior.

"We've never had a problem," said David Carter, who lets dogs romp alongside their owners on 22 miles of trails in Oxford, about 35 miles northwest of Portland.

It's a growing doggie-friendly trend at cross-country ski centers.

Dogs were allowed at only a handful of trails a decade ago. Now they're allowed at 53 of 212 areas that belong to the Cross Country Ski Areas Association, according to Chris Frado, president and executive director of the Winchester, N.H.-based organization.

Romance beats out revenge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kevin Costner's romantic drama "Message in a Bottle" edged out the revenge film "Payback" at the weekend box office while new family fare also did well, according to industry estimates Monday.

"Message in a Bottle" opened with $19.1 million in ticket sales from Friday through Monday, knocking the Mel Gibson action piece into second place in its second week with $18.4 million.

Timed for Valentine's Day, "Message" stars Costner as a boat builder whose bottled notes to his dead wife win the heart of a new love, played by Robin Wright Penn. It was among three new films for the Presidents Day weekend as the year's box office began to heat up following the usual slow start.

"My Favorite Martian," based on the 1960s TV sitcom, debuted in third place with $11.1 million, while "Blast from the Past" opened at No. 5 with $9.7 million, according to Exhibitor Relations Co. "Blast" stars Brendan Fraser as a man who grows up in a bomb shelter and emerges into modern-day Los Angeles, where he meets Alicia Silverstone.

"Martian" benefited from timing and nostalgia, said Chuck Viane, general sales manager for Buena Vista Pictures.

"There hadn't been a new family film since Christmas," he said. "The market was open and ready for us."

"Shakespeare in Love," moving into wider release, benefited from strong word of mouth and the 13 Oscar nominations it garnered last week. It was in sixth place with $9.5 million over four days after adding more than 1,000 screens.

"Life is Beautiful," which is up for best picture, was not in the top 10, but both it and "Shakespeare" saw strong jumps in their per-screen averages, meaning they generally drew larger audiences to each showing.

By comparison, the reissued "Saving Private Ryan," which had 11 nominations, only held its own. The acclaimed war film was in seventh place with $4 million for four days. "The Thin Red Line," with seven nominations, finished out of the Top 10.

Teen films that were supreme a few weeks ago saw their audiences dip in the wake of the new fare.
