Little restaurant draws big crowds

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Stuck back from the hustle and bustle of world of franchise fast foods, a local eatery stands out -- if for no other reason than the constant line of cars at the drive-through window.

Beginning at 6 a.m. nearly every day, Juanita's Express Burrito opens its doors and invites passers to stop and grab a tasty bite to start the day.

"By treating everyone like they are the best customer we have, it makes them feel special. We try to get everyone hooked so they'll keep coming back," owner Juanita Ramos says.

Ramos has had quite a bit of practice making everyone feel like the best. She bought the tiny tucked-away restaurant just over six years ago from her former employer.

In that time, she's added some new items to the menu, changed a few recipes, and learned as much as possible about keeping the customers coming back.

"We make our sauce fresh every day and try to cook only what we know we will use," said Ramos. "During the school year, we cook quite a bit more than in the summer. We just try to cook what we need so it is always fresh."

Owning a restaurant didn't come easy for Ramos.

She says she got married early -- very early. She quit school in the ninth grade and from there she worked various jobs where she learned a little more about the business world.

Ramos learned bookkeeping at an auto parts store and taxes from another employer. Honesty, hard work and a strong work ethic, she learned from her mother. She's planted fields of onions and walked the cotton fields hoeing the ever-present weeds.

"I guess the lady I bought the place from liked my honesty and hard work, because when it came time to sell, she chose to sell to me, even though there were others who offered her cash," Ramos said.

She says she always enjoyed cooking, canning or baking, just about anything in the kitchen, but because of her background, she never thought she would one day run a restaurant of her own.

Friends and family expressed more than a little concern at the beginning, but with a few encouraging words from her mother and husband, Ramos started a venture which she wouldn't trade for anything.

Today, Ramos still works just as hard as she did as an employee, but she also has the added concern of being an employer.

She and four others work as a well-oiled team in a space much smaller than most modern kitchens, cooking up fresh burritos, tamales, and enchiladas.

"When even one person is missing, it makes a gap and we don't work quite as well. It makes us go a little crazy sometimes," she said.

Ramos has combined her love of cooking with her natural affinity for people to make what she calls a real Weeds, shrubbery, parked cars and tree limbs turn many intersections in Hereford into hazardous-driving zones.

Watch out!

Road hazards can spell trouble for city's drivers

By Kitt Jennings

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

They're simply the negative by-products that come with an industrialized society: the occasional blocked stop sign, blind corner and maniac behind the wheel. But often, these road hazards can spell trouble -- and extreme annoyance -- for the average driver.

"I can't stand it when you're in a 30 mph zone and you get behind someone cruisin' 'cause they're cool going 15 m.p.h. and waving at everyone," Kim Dawson said, her voice loaded with sarcasm.

"Yeah, and I hate it when people drive down the turn lane, or pass you there," grumbled Kasey Lomas, a teen driver.

Trucks are a source of complaints as well. Dawson described an incident at Park Avenue and U.S. Highway 385 in which a trucker would not slow down for a yellow light and ended up running a red light.

"Unless they're hauling a load of ice, I don't see what the big hurry is," Dawson professed.

Another gripe many Hereford residents have has to do with plants and other objects obstructing the view of signs and the streets that make up an intersection.

"At Highway 60 and Lawton, there's overgrown weeds. If you're in a low car like mine, we're talking about pulling out in front of four lanes of highway traffic! Not everyone in town drives a pickup," Dawn resident Dori Wimberley noted.

"There should be a city ordinance about how close to the street you can plant trees and shrubs, and if you don't have a clear view, people should be asked to trim them," she stated.

Lomas agreed.

"I thought the city was supposed to issue citations when people block the view of an intersection," he commented.

Dawson also said residents with obstructive landscaping should be contacted by the city.

"The cops should talk to the resident and give them two weeks to trim it before they send the city guy out there to do it," she said. "He'll make sure it doesn't block the stop sign for the next 10 years!"

"And that Edwards Pharmacy sign is really annoying, too," Lomas said, explaining it obstructs the view of

County sheriff named to association board

Deaf Smith County Sheriff Joe C. Brown Jr. recently was named to the Sheriffs Association of Texas board of directors.

The appointment was made during the association's 121st Annual Training Conference, which was July 25-28 in El Paso.

JOE BROWN
Elected to board

Brown took office on Sept. 6, 1983, serving the unexpired term of Travis McPherson, who resigned. Brown subsequently has been elected on his own.

The sheriffs association is one of the oldest law enforcement organizations in the nation.

The group met for the first time Aug. 14, 1874, in the Navarro County Courthouse in Corsicana. The meeting was called to order by McLennan County Sheriff Sul Ross, a notable figure in Texas history.

The association began annual training conferences in 1878, with the conferences growing to become the largest composite gathering of law enforcement officers in Texas. Sheriffs and other county and local law enforcement personnel, as well as federal and state officers and security personnel attend.

The sheriffs association serves as a liaison with federal, state, county and municipal agencies and associations to promote cooperation, training, education and more efficient services to Texans.

Road closure request on tap

Members of the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will consider a request to close roads in the area around the Farmland Industries grain center complex. The request also been sent to the City of Hereford for those roads/streets that lie within the city limits.

The commissioners also are expected to work on the Fiscal 2000 budget, approve monthly reports, and authorize soliciting of fuel bids.

northern Miles Avenue almost completely for vehicles traveling east on Fourth Street.

With all these minor problems, what's the most dangerous street in Hereford, then?

"Where Farm-to-Market Roads 809 and 1062 meet," Wimberley suggested. "People run right through that sign and don't even care!"

"You would think Main Street is (the most dangerous), cause everyone's trying to back out of those parking spots, and people don't look," Lomas said.

Actually, the intersection of U.S. 385 and Park Avenue was, statistically, the most dangerous intersection in Hereford for June, with three wrecks for the month. Two of the wrecks occurred only a day apart.

Almost half - 25 out of 54 - accidents this month took place on Park Venue, 25 Mile Avenue or U.S. 385. And 16 of those wrecks happened on U.S. 385 alone, making it June's most dangerous street.

"Sometimes it's confusing coming off 25 Mile onto one of those side streets where the little parks exist," Hereford Police Chief David Wagner said, citing the intersection of Ross, 6th and 25 Mile Avenue as a prime example.

"We're looking at putting up more stop signs," Wagner said.

Dawson believes the whole problem could be solved "if you'd be more considerate and aware" of surroundings.

"But at least the people in Hereford are more considerate than in Amarillo," she conceded. "There, you're taking your life into your hands."

High school registration scheduled

Special to The Brand

Registration for Hereford High School students will be conducted 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Aug. 10-12 in the school library.

Students may pick up their schedules during this time, then take those schedules to the book room so that textbooks may be checked out.

Lunch applications and transportation sheets will also be available at the time of registration.

Fines must be paid and immunizations updated before registration.

Students are reminded they must adhere to the district dress code which prohibits baggy or sagging pants, short shorts and tank tops. Hats and caps may not be worn in the school building.

Students using backpacks are requested to utilize only those items which are clear or mesh. The clear backpacks have been specifically ordered by Alco which will have the units on sale. Mesh backpacks may be purchased from the school office at $26 each. Students who cannot afford these items may fill out a financial assistance request form in the office.

The change in backpack styles is being requested in the cause of safety, according to Linda Lowe, principal. She said weapons, cigarettes, lighters and other prohibited items may be carried in backpacks and the clear/mesh units make this more difficult and contribute to the positive safety movement.

According to Mrs. Lowe, many school districts are moving to the clear/mesh backpacks and some school district do not allow any type of backpacks.

"Parents, we are asking your cooperation and support on this issue," Lowe said. For more information, contact Mrs. Lowe at the high school, 363-7620.

JUNIOR HIGH

Students who will be attending Hereford Junior High School classes for the first time in 1999-2000 are encouraged to have their photographs taken for identification tags on Aug. 14 at the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave.

This will involve all seventh-grade students and those eighth graders who are new to the campus.

Students must present their Social Security card before they may have their photograph taken.

District policy requires that the badges be worn at all times while attending class on the junior high and high school campuses.

Principal Lynn Luther has scheduled specific times for students to have their photograph taken. This will reduce the delay for students waiting in line for their pictures to be taken with digital cameras.

- Those times are:
- 9 to 10 a.m. for students whose last names begin with the letters A through D.
 - 10 to 11 a.m. for students whose last names begin with the letters E through J.
 - 11 a.m. to noon, for students whose last names begin with the letters K through N.
 - 1 to 2 p.m. for students whose last names begin with the letters O through R.
 - 2 to 3 p.m. for students whose last names begin with the letters S through Z.

difference to the customers who frequent her small shop.

"Small businesses have to give more for the money to keep customers coming back. We have to work harder for what we get, but it pays off when we see customers coming back and bringing their friends. We know the word of mouth advertising goes a long way."

As the morning rush slows down, Ramos and her staff take just a minute to catch their breath before the next wave hits. Pans and cooking utensils need to be put away; sauce has to be poured into individual containers; and a smile has to be offered to the lone straggling customer.

During the early morning hours, Juanita serves up grill-warmed, individually made burritos to people headed to work or school. During the lunch hours, customers include students, businessmen or wives who are taking something out to a husband in the field.

She says she knows she misses the supper crowd by closing after the lunch, but she doesn't have the seating facilities for the supper crowd.

"Most people only eat supper out once a week or so. When they do, they want to be able to sit down and enjoy their meal."

Ramos hopes to someday expand her business to a larger place where she can offer seating for the after work crowd.

"If I had the seating, I could stay busy until nine or 10 o'clock, but until the right door opens, I'll be happy where I am. I have customers who stop by every year as they go through on vacation. And, having evenings off isn't all bad."

Two-car accident -- Emergency personnel (above) use the Jaws of Life to extricate the driver of a car involved in a two-car collision on U.S. Highway 60 just west of Caviness Packing Co. Although the accident report was not available this morning, the collision occurred after the driver of one of the two cars apparently passed another vehicle and struck the rear of an automobile that had just turned out of the Caviness parking area onto the highway.

Commissioners to review city budget

By Donald M. Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Hereford city commissioners will take up a proposed Fiscal 2000 budget during a budget workshop scheduled for 5 p.m. Monday in the commissioner chambers at City Hall, 224 N. Lee.

In the proposed budget, City Manager Chester Nolen recommends a 4.5 percent pay increase for most city employees.

Nolen also is recommending a tax rate of 41 cents per $100 assessed valuation, unchanged from the year that ends Sept. 30. However, because of an increase in the total assessed valuation of property in Hereford, the rate represents a 6.22 percent increase over the effective tax rate of 39.8 cents per $100 valuation. The effective tax rate is the rate required to generate the same amount of revenue as in the previous year.

Because the proposed rate represents an increase over the effective tax rate, the city will have to conduct a public hearing.

The Deaf Smith County Appraisal District set the city's tax base $273,495,540, up $6.3 million since 1998.

The proposed budget that the commissioners projects general fund revenue for the next fiscal year will be $4,813,573, an increase of about $87,000 from the FY 1999 budget.

Of the revenue, the city expects to collect slightly more than $1 million in ad valorem taxes; $1.2 million in garbage billing; $700,000 in sales tax/mixed drink tax; and $700,000 from operating transfers, primarily from the water/sewer fund.

On the expenditure side, Nolen recommends spending $4,780,583, which would leave a $32,990 surplus when the year ends Sept. 30, 2000.

The water and sewer fund is expected to have $2,781,000 in revenues with expenditures of $2,428,332, leaving a surplus of $352,668.

The total revenue for Fiscal 2000 is projected at $7,594,573 and total expenditures are estimated to be $7,208,915, leaving a year-end balance of $385,658.

Here's a breakdown of the proposed General Fund expenditures by department (FY 1999 budget in parentheses):

- Legislative, $22,355 ($25,105);
- Administration, $117,830 ($119,288);
- Building & Zoning, $140,073 ($135,872);
- Municipal Court, $66,189 ($66,321);
- Fire, $255,393 ($188,100);
- Health, $656,191 ($678,418);
- Parks, $239,886 ($239,673);
- Aquatic Center, $213,984 ($213,951);
- Golf Course, $304,327 ($285,227);
- Police, $1,452,748 ($1,422,420);

- Animal Control, $49,082 ($39,340);
 - Streets, $584,297 ($586,815);
 - Airport, $59,250 ($56,950);
 - Construction, $77,478 ($76,727); and
 - Non-departmental, $521,500 ($502,000).
- Other proposed expenditures include:
- Finance Department, $207,800 ($193,167);
 - Utility Maintenance, $407,612 ($379,344);
 - Water Production, $426,486 ($468,914);
 - Waste Water, $155,115 ($136,626); and
 - Water & Sewer non-departmental, $1,231,319 ($1,132,450).

ARE TREES LONESOME?

(Paula Prutsman & Barnaby)

There is a lone one in a pasture all on its own. Today it whispered to me as I sat beneath its leaves.

"I've got wildflowers to look at and lots of honey bees! The sun comes out and warns me and the moon beams down with care. For the weary, troubled and happy, my shade I gladly share.

"When I sleep throughout the night, the squirrels settle and birds nestle and go sound asleep. They feel warm and secure tucked in my many arms.

"It's like a hug they give me as they nestle close to me. No, I am not lonesome, do you see?"

"I'm grateful that you want me in your yard, but please visit me, and I will linger here. The rancher, he likes me, too, and I'm really glad he could. But come to see me soon. I really wish you would."

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

EDITORIAL

Humanity received another hearty, but rare, helping of unselfish goodwill recently when long-time Hereford residents S.L. and Mildred Garrison contributed more than $1.1 million to the Amarillo Area Foundation.

S.L. and Mildred Garrison

The gift, which was made to the community foundation to establish the S.L. and Mildred Garrison Charitable Fund, will help the Amarillo foundation meet the charitable needs of residents throughout the Panhandle.

Nearly 200 similar funds are currently administered by the foundation.

And though the gift was quite substantial, it was certainly not the Garrison's first benevolent act.

This graceful and unassuming couple have committed themselves and much of their wealth to many worthwhile church and community projects through the years, the success of which were often partially determined by the magnetic draw of the Garrison name.

From their business interests in farming, cattle, the seed trade and banking; to their quiet leadership and philanthropy that will continue to bolster The First United Methodist Church of Hereford, the Hereford Senior Citizen's Center and Kings Manor Methodist Retirement System of Hereford; there is virtually no area of our community that hasn't felt the Garrison's loving and considerate touch.

They have truly left an honorable and lasting mark, not only on our community, but also on this community's residents, those both young and elderly that the Garrison's many kindnesses have always sought to benefit.

We commend them for their generosity, leadership and long-standing commitment to better Hereford, and applaud them further for being the last ones to tell anyone about it.

We should all be grateful that the Garrisons have called Hereford their home.

Take the opportunity to tell them sometime.

News item: Texas has accounted for one-third of all executions in the U.S. since capital punishment resumed in 1976.

Death penalty treating symptom, not disease

Texas holds the unenviable title of "Death Penalty Capital" of the United States. No other state administers the death penalty with greater frequency than Texas.

Since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976, one-third of all executions have occurred in Texas. So far in 1999, Texas has executed 18 condemned killers, with four more executions set during the next two weeks.

As routinely as Texas executes condemned criminals, legislators discuss expanding the list of crimes covered by the death penalty and, especially in wake of the school shootings at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo., argue for lowering the age for capital punishment.

Many of elected representatives, both at the state and federal level, appear to try to outdo each other in their enthusiasm for capital punishment -- so they won't be perceived as "soft" on crime.

A few years ago, I saw a skit on "Saturday Night Live" about the Texas gubernatorial race. In the skit, the candidates showed increasing support for the death penalty until one, I believe it was supposed to be former Attorney General Jim Mattox, pledged that if elected governor that he not only would administer the lethal injection himself, he would enjoy doing it.

The sad thing is the skit was more real than satire.

Does the death penalty deter crime, as its proponents insist?

I doubt it. Even capital punishment's staunchest supporters cannot produce any conclusive evidence that the crime rate is affected at all by the presence of the death penalty.

Some surveys have found that as much as 67 percent of law enforcement officers do not think capital punishment decreases the homicide rate, and only 3 percent of the nation's police officers believe imposition of the death penalty is a useful crime-fighting tool.

And, more than 80 percent of the nation's police officers believe criminals don't think about possible punishments when they commit a crime.

I acknowledge the survey was conducted by the National Coalition to Abolish the Death Penalty, but the organization offered other information to support its position.

For example, between 1952 and 1967 there was an average of one execution every two months in California; between 1968 and 1991, there were none. Yet the homicide rate in California was twice as high in the period 1952-67 as during the years when there were no executions.

Also, the five countries with the highest homicide rates that do not impose the death penalty average about 22 murders per 100,000 people, while the five countries with the highest homicide rate that do impose the death penalty average about 42 murders per 100,000 people.

In the U.S., the average murder rate per 100,000 people is about 8 percent in the states with the death penalty, while it is 4.4 percent in those states that do not impose capital punishment.

Another argument against the death penalty is its racial bias.

Nearly 90 percent of the persons executed were convicted of killing whites, although more than half of all homicide victims in the U.S. are non-white.

Studies have determined that killers whose victims were white are four times more likely to receive the death penalty in Illinois, Oklahoma and North Carolina than if their victims are non-white. In Mississippi, they are five times more likely; in Maryland, seven times more likely.

Sixty percent of the persons on death row in California and Texas are either black, Hispanic or Native American.

I acknowledge there are individuals who commit crimes so heinous that it would seem they must be executed. However, their execution will not erase the crime, nor will it make society any more secure.

I believe capital punishment is an admission that we have failed to create a good society. Our prisons are overflowing, which demonstrates our society's failure to dedicate itself to solving the basic problems of poverty and social discord.

Capital punishment represents an attempt to treat the symptom, not the disease.

Taking a monkey-wrench into the Ice Age

Mauri Montgomery

Hello Hereford.

The "Jetsons," an early-'60s cartoon sitcom I watched as kid, had a leg up on us 30-plus years ago when it predicted our angst over computers.

That was the premise of an article appearing somewhere in one of the more recent truckloads of free computer magazines we somehow have been randomly selected to receive.

The TV 'toon was spun around George Jetson and his middle-class family. The jet-setters lived in a floating space suburb where the grandeur of automated technology often dimmed when a computerized household ran amuck.

The Hanna/Barbera production delivered the promise of comic entertainment for thousands of kids like me, but its legacy is that yesterday's comedy is more truth than fiction today.

Jetson depended on endearing little old repairmen from Spacely's Space Sprockets and Cogswell's Cogs to bale him out of cyber breakdowns.

We employ guys like Matt Hendershot, a local young computer guru who spent the better part of Wednesday morning combing through the entrails of a computer server, searching for a malignancy that jeopardized its function and, thus, the work flow in our ad composition department.

He rummaged through the compact engine; testing the carburetor, fan belts, radiator and spark plugs. It was personally gratifying to see such an astute young man using some of my dinosaur logic — a time-honored technique of eeny-meeny-mynoe-mo to determine the problem.

He swapped and exchanged parts from a healthy machine and transplanted them into the critical machine.

Trial and error failed

After he reported the trial and error failed, I gained further respect for him and his wired generation when he didn't show any resolve to then use my other time-honored technique — beating the machine with a 10-inch crescent wrench.

"It wasn't the video board," he advised, "Probably the motherboard."

Ouch.

That hurt.

Major component.

Next, he said we had to determine whether the motherboard's chip set was DX or LX.

"DX is the newer set," Matt tried to explain to the simpleton, the dinosaur sitting before him, "So, that's probably what's in there since your network is pretty new. We've got the newer DX chip sets in stock, but we would definitely have to order the LX set and that might take awhile."

I knew better, but I hoped anyway.

It was a pipe dream, true to form.

New is a relative term: meaning by today's digital technology standards, a machine or component not only designed, but mass produced by the Taiwanese and marketed within the last 24 hours.

Our system was a tad older, built by Asian workers nearly a full year ago.

"Uh, Matt, it appears we have a problem. We have the earlier LX chip set," I later told him over the phone while testing the heft and bludgeoning potential of the gleaming monkey-wrench.

The "ouches" still linger

The "ouches" of today still bank in the shadow of "The Jetsons," a harbinger for a world dependent on automation and computers.

But Matt was hanging in there, using brain rather than wrench to solve the puzzle. Better than his Jetson counterparts, he attacked the glitch with three, not two, dimensional thinking.

Likely, Hanna/Barbera never guessed the cartoon they created so long ago would relate so well to our hassles with digital automation these days. Or, maybe they did. Maybe they sensed that man would always be at odds with machine — a constant limited by no time or space.

The most revealing message spun in the ancient cartoon was that, bless our hearts, we will never stop contriving new ways to make our lives more convenient, faster, more efficient and more Jetsonian. And, second, we contrive our way to less efficiency by chasing the dream.

I readily admit that computers, when they work, do many wonderful things, including easing our load in producing this newspaper.

Truth is, the computer industry needs to develop more pride in manufacturing dependable hardware and software — at least, some bona fide standards. Only then will they offer

VIEWPOINTS

Maybe kids are right this time

Most people, especially kids, know that I usually agree with stricter actions taken by the school administration.

However, not this time. Kids, this time I agree with you.

For the school district to issue the ultimatum that all kids in grades 7-12 carry see-through plastic or mesh bags or none at all is more than just unfair.

One soon-to-be Hereford Junior High student said she thought they were supposed to get more freedoms as they get older, but rather the innocent kids are getting punished for the acts of a few bad kids. And, they are being punished for acts which have not been, nor may not be, committed.

I understand the issue from both sides.

The administration is held accountable for the safety of our children while on school property. I know the higher-ups in the district take that responsibility very seriously.

I appreciate that. After all, my kids are in the public schools, too, and I don't want to think my kids or others are in danger.

But, look at it from a student's point of view. By making all the kids carry see-through bags, doesn't that run contrary to the concept of innocent until presumed guilty?

The schools already resemble armed institutions. All that is needed is the chain link fence topped with coiled razor wire and -- Voila! -- instant prison.

Dianna F. Dandridge

Armed officers walk the halls, elbows resting on the butts of a department-issue handgun. Dances and sporting events swarm with badge-toting officers.

Now kids are flat-out being told: "We can't trust you, so we're not going to let you carry anything we can't see."

Some kids carry items which by no means are illicit, but don't need to be advertised to the entire student body. And at the junior high age, boys especially are tempted to poke fun, sometimes at things that have no humor involved.

I'm sure some students carry inappropriate items -- things that don't really belong at school, but are by no means illegal.

There is no way I am willingly going to consent to turning the kids into mirror images of each other.

Part of the fun and excitement of going back to school is getting to pick out the new accessories, including type, style and fabric of their backpacks. For some students, this is the only inducement to go back to school. So now it's being taken away.

Maybe I wouldn't have such a hard time with the backpack issue, if the same strong stance was taken against some of the things that really make a difference.

Experts, who deal solely with gang-related activity, indicate that color choices and application styles of some makeup points directly to gang involvement -- as does piercing arrangements in the ear.

Let me guess. School districts can't ban certain makeup styles, because it violates one of the young gang-banger rights, but they can tell an immature bookworm to expose her books of fancy to the ridicule of those gang-bangers.

That makes a lot of sense. Realistically, is a see-through bag of any kind actually going to stop a weapon-toting miscreant? I doubt it. The shooters at Columbine didn't bother with backpacks. Neither did any other school shooter in the last five years.

Counselors are quite willing to tell people "there is no controlling other people," and in this they are quite right.

If a kid has it in his head to have a shootout at the local school, chances are, he will find a method. All the clear backpacks in the world aren't going to do any good the day a teen, angry because his girlfriend dumped him, decides to do a drive-by shooting with a high-powered, multi-shot weapon. Someone is probably going to wind up dead or hurt.

The only outcome I can see in this is more students losing homework, books and papers; more students showing up without pens and paper; and less learning taking place.

As tacky as the plastic and mesh bags are I can understand kids not wanting to carry one, but I would let the teachers have to deal with the conglomeration I carry with me. Multiply that by the number of students in each classroom and there is going to be a mess. I'm glad it's them and not me dealing with it. I hope I can find something for my daughter to carry that does not scream "Cheap, ugly plastic, made in China."

She hopes so, too!

Governors leaving organization very unhappy

Dear Editor:
... The Secret Society of Happy People declared Aug. 8, 1999, as the first National Admit You're Happy Day. The purpose of the day and the entire month of August is to encourage people to talk about their happy events and moments by telling someone about them.

To help bring recognition to the day, the Society requested proclamations from the governors in all 50 states. The Society believed that the governors would welcome the opportunity to encourage the citizens of their states to express more moments of happiness. After all, what's more universally politically correct than talking about happiness?

However, once the initial requests were sent out, to the surprise of the Society, it became obvious that even in the world of politics, the expression of happiness was a potentially controversial topic. ...

When asked if (New York)

Governor George Padauk would issue a proclamation, the aide in his office replied, "We have no official position on happiness. We're going to wait and see what the Federal Government and other Governors do."

Other responses to the request have included Oklahoma Governor Frank Keating's office, who stated: "We'll need to check with our attorneys" and several Governors, including Minnesota Governor Jesse Ventura's office that replied, "He represents the people of Minnesota (or appropriate state) and he really doesn't see how this impacts them."

It's difficult for me to understand how any Governor's Office wouldn't think a National Admit You're Happy Day would impact the constituents of their state. After all, aren't they still in the union? It's as if the Governors are suggesting they really don't want their citizens to talk about their happiness.

Even something as seemingly harmless as issuing a proclamation to encourage the expression of happiness creates confusion in some states. It's this exact attitude of encouraging people to "keep happiness to themselves" that the Society is trying to change.

As of today, 15 happy governors have approved the proclamation, 17 governors will make the "parade raining" or "stick in the mud" lists, 17 are undecided, including Texas Governor George W. Bush, and one doesn't have an official position.

The governors who'll make the "parade raining" list are the ones who denied the proclamation request despite the fact they had members of the Society who reside in their states. The "stick in the mud" governors are the ones where the Society didn't have an official member, so technically it didn't meet official state proclamation criteria. However, the Society feels they should have made an exception since happiness is a universal feeling and it's a national day.

...The Secret Society of Happy People was formed to encourage the acceptance of the expression of happiness and discourage the social backlash that often accompanies this. The Society gained international recognition in December when it challenged Ann Landers for discouraging people from writing happy holiday newsletters to enclose with their holiday cards. Since then, more than 125,000 people have embraced the message of the Society by contacting us. ...

Forest service issues wildfire danger notice

Special to the Brand

LUFKIN - The Texas Forest Service has issued a wildfire danger advisory for the entire state due to rising fire danger and increasing wildfire activity.

Hot, dry summer weather continues to bake the Texas landscape, sapping moisture from vegetation and raising the prospect of serious wildfire problems. Should vegetation continue to dry the above normal vegetative growth present in many areas could fuel dangerous and potentially deadly wildfires, says Gary Laco, head of wildfire prevention for the Texas Forest Service in Lufkin.

"The situation across Texas continues to deteriorate as significant precipitation eludes the state," said Laco.

"We have had reports of increasing wildfire activity from several areas, particularly in north central Texas. Some counties are considering or have already implemented outdoor burning moratoriums or bans in response to the growing wildfire threat."

Firefighters in the Amarillo area report a tremendous growth of fuel in that region. Buffalo grass and other fine, flashy fuels that normally are half an inch or less at this time of year now stand 18 inches and taller, according to Joe Rice, chief of the Canyon Fire Department.

"This increased fuel loading translates into greater risks for residents and firefighters should any wildfires get started in the area," said Rice. "Rural residents need to start thinking about establishing defensible space around their homes and installing fuel breaks within fields and around buildings to break the continuity of vegetation and restrict wildfire spread."

However, Deaf Smith County Fire Marshal Jay Spain said the Hereford area "is in good shape. Everything's wet and green, and fire danger is very low."

Hereford is ahead in precipitation for both the month and the year, although the fuel load is quite high.

"What I'm worried about is when it frosts," Spain said. "This year, the fuel load will be very high, and then there will be some danger, but for now, it's very low."

Energas seeking OK for rate hike

Energas Co. has filed notices with 67 cities requesting $9.8 million in additional revenues from its West Texas customers.

If the request, which is the first for a rate adjustment by the company in more than three years, is approved, the average customer will see an increase of about 8.8 percent, or $3.64, in the monthly gas bill.

Even with the increase, Energas president Earl Fischer said the company's rates "will continue to be among the lowest in the state and, indeed, among the lowest in the nation."

In addition to paying for the system's improvements and expansion, Energas also proposes to restructure its gas rates by separating the gas commodity cost from the utility's cost of service. Fischer said the proposal before the cities will enable Energas customers to more clearly distinguish between the cost of gas, which is currently a pass-through from suppliers,

Income Comes In Three Flavors

What goes up must come down unless you're talking about income.

Ask anyone how much income they'll need 10 years from now, and their answer will surely be, "More than I earn now." Everyone needs increasing income - not just while your family is growing, but also in retirement, when your expenses may be lower. The reason: inflation.

Even with the best control, a certain amount of inflation is built into our economy. To maintain your standard of living, your income should increase each year.

Working Americans are typically rewarded with wage increases that meet or exceed inflation. Those planning for retirement, however, must create an investment plan that will provide increasing income. As life spans continue to increase, it's more crucial than ever to devise a plan that not only will allow your money to grow enough to meet rising living costs during retirement, but also to last at least as long as you do.

Achieving this goal requires choosing the right mix of three income flavors: variable, fixed and growing.

Some of today's most popular investments offer variable income. Savings with short maturities, such as U.S. Treasury bills, bank certificates of deposit (CDs) and money market accounts, pay income that fluctuates.

Typically, these short-term investments guarantee your principal, so they are ideal for meeting short-term needs. However, they may not be appropriate for long-term goals. For example, a $100,000 investment in three-month T-bills for the period Jan. 1, 1976, through Dec. 31, 1995, would have provided dramatically fluctuating income, from a high of $14,662 one year to a low of about $3,600 another. It's hard to budget on fluctuation like that. It's even harder to live on it.

One solution to fluctuating income is fixed income investments. These include Treasury, corporate and municipal bonds. They guarantee a return of principal if held to maturity, and a fixed interest rate which generates a stable income, usually paid semiannually, while held. The guarantee that you'll get your money back is attractive, but the fact that your income won't rise means fixed-income investments should not comprise your entire portfolio. For example, a $100,000 investment made Jan. 1, 1976, in a 20-year Treasury bond guaranteed annual fixed income of $8,000. When returned 20 years later, the $100,000 investment had lost about half of its buying power. Not only did the income lose the race against inflation, so did the principal.

The third type of income is growing income. Investments that offer the potential for growth - such as stocks and mutual funds - offer no guarantees, but historically they have been rewarding.

Many excellent companies have grown and prospered over the years. As corporate profits increase, companies typically pay higher dividends to shareholders. A hypothetical $100,000 investment in U.S. stocks as represented by the Standard & Poor's 500 Index for the same 1976-1995 period would have produced annual dividends growing steadily from about $4,000 in 1976 to $15,291 in 1995.

Successful investment, just like a good recipe, requires the right mix of flavors. Make sure your portfolio includes a balance of short-term, fixed-income and growth investments, and you'll be rewarded with your just desserts.

Whiteface volleyball team faces new season, new challenges

By Yuri Soto
Hereford Brand Sports Editor

For the first time in several years, Brenda Kitten enters a volleyball season with a largely inexperienced squad.

But again, expectations are high in Camp Kitten. And, like always, there's no room for sloppiness.

"I don't think we start out from the beginning of our two-a-day workout expecting anything less than a state championship," the Hereford volleyball coach said. "If we allow ourselves less, that's what we'll get."

There are some concerns about the lack of experience. After all, the Lady Whitefaces return only two starters from last year, Audra Witkowski and Tori Walker.

"It's a concern in the fact that we don't have a lot of varsity playing experience," Kitten said. "Every season brings about new concerns and new challenges and we have to figure out how to attack them."

Witkowski and Walker are the only returning starters from last year's squad that fell to Dumas in the Region I-4A final. The Lady Whitefaces lost several key players, including Kristin Fangman, Lyndi Carlile and Makesha Rives.

"Our foundation right now revolves around Audra and Tori. Both were highly recognized as juniors," Kitten said.

Kitten said that Witkowski is like the quarterback. The rotation of the team revolves around her. Walker brings power to the net.

The other seniors returning are Valerie Guzman, Toni Eicke, Amanda Hill and Shyla Martin.

The Lady Whitefaces even return two juniors who played in the varsity team, Ashley Fangman and Pam Klein. Kitten expects these two players to step up their play.

"By the same token, we're going to have to have other players in other positions doing more than their share when it comes to offense and defense," Kitten said.

Other players for whom Kitten has expectations are Eicke as an outside hitter and Guzman for defensive skills and leadership in the backcourt.

Michelle Bernhardt will fill in a gap as a middle blocker, a position Kristin Fangman succeeded in last year.

"Even though we're young, the possibilities are very exciting," Kitten said.

Many of these names are synonymous with the Hereford community, but Hereford has always been synonymous with the powerhouse volleyball programs around the Panhandle and the state.

"You notice our preseason schedule, we don't have what you would call any easy preseason matches," Kitten said.

Hereford does have a tough pre-district schedule. The squad opens on the road Aug. 17 at Lubbock Coronado and play the defending Class 5A volleyball champion Amarillo High twice. The Lady Herd will also play matches against Canyon Randall and Amarillo Tascosa, which Kitten considers two of the top-notch teams in the area.

"Those are considered the biggies," Kitten said. "Those games are good measuring sticks for us as long as we handle into those preseason matches."

District play, as always, is going to be a big challenge for the Lady Whitefaces. Especially with a team like Dumas always being a tough team to be reckoned with.

But again, Kitten expects the best out of her players, from the time they are warming up for practice, to the actual game time.

"Our main goal is that we want to see improvement every

Writer should find Spicer Gripp a trip

"Folks, it's time for all them boys go ropin' them steers." Or I guess that's how they say it at Roping Competitions throughout the United States.

When I first was hired by Mauri Montgomery at the Hereford Brand, I knew I was going to cover some sports that I have never covered before.

I have covered a variety of sports — football, basketball, baseball, softball, volleyball, track, cross-country, tennis and golf. All high school sports, of course.

But not rodeo and roping. The only experience I have covering any of the rodeo sports is rewrites about Hereford residents who have competed in national and state competitions.

Yeah, I bet that's been exciting for you readers.

I get this feeling, though, if I ever become a serious rodeo sports writer, I might just get into situations a friend of mine got into while covering a rodeo and roping event.

It was early in February of this year, and a man who I consider one of the best sportswriters in Texas, Bret Bloomquist of the San Angelo Standard-Times, covered the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

After a deadline, Bret went to hang out at the Vegas strip when he suddenly ran into an intoxicated TV star by the name of David Hasselhoff.

You know, the one who hides his gut to come out running in the "Baywatch" show.

Hasselhoff's reaction to my friend Bret was "Yee-haw, look at them cowboys."

I didn't know the so-called "Baywatch" actors could act like such rednecks under the influence of alcohol. That would explain the cast of "Ally McBeal."

But for Bret, it must have been a funny and good experience. Especially since that's the closest thing he'll get to Pamela Anderson.

The Spicer Gripp Memorial roping will feature a lot of horses.

The only horses I've ever been around was in Mexico when I was a kid.

No, it wasn't day-to-day transportation.

I was taken to a ranch in Mexico where my grandmother was born. I rode a horse there for the first time ever, with a man. That was

Cowboys lose McKnight to season-ending knee injury

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys receiver James McKnight, acquired from Seattle six weeks ago to be a deep threat, is lost for the season with a knee injury.

McKnight tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee during an intrasquad scrimmage Thursday night. He'll undergo surgery within two weeks.

McKnight, who cost the Cowboys a third-round pick in next year's draft, is the second player to suffer a season-ending knee injury in training camp, joining offensive lineman Mike Kiselak.

McKnight's injury was by far the most severe on a night filled with bumps and bruises.

Players have been going down hard throughout camp.

scrimmage with a nagging back problem.

Dallas also will be without Deion Sanders until September at the soonest, and more likely October, because of a toe injury.

McKnight was penciled in as the fourth or fifth receiver; the Cowboys will keep as many as six. His absence virtually guarantees that fourth-round pick Wane McGarity will make the team and it helps the chances of MarTay Jenkins, Jason Tucker and John Washington, none of whom have ever played in the NFL.

Others that have gone down with injuries have been Michael Irvin, Kevin Mathis, Wane McGarity and Tony Houston.

New hunting license time, and poaching laws with teeth

Hunting licenses for the 1999-2000 seasons will go on sale in Texas on Wednesday, August 11. The first big hunting activity, fast-approaching, is dove season, set to open September 1, and the special early teal season in mid-September isn't all that far off either.

It's a good idea to go ahead and buy your license early because in the rush of late summer and the start of school, it's easy to overlook. Opening day of dove season has a way of sneaking up on you, and heading out to the dove fields or a local playa to open the dove or teal season on the spur-of-the-moment may not prove such a good idea if you forget to buy a license, and stamps as needed.

Yep, we're seeing lots of doves locally. Some of the over-eager hereabouts are reminded there's no open season on doves prior to the September 1 opening date.

Dove season in our North Zone carries from September 1 through October 30, with a bag limit of 15 doves per day and a possession limit of 30. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

When you go in to purchase your license, remember that if you're planning to hunt migratory gamebirds such as dove and waterfowl this season you'll have to be Harvest Information Program (HIP) certified.--It's no big deal to get this certification issued with your license. You just answer a few questions about what you'll hunt, about how many you expect to harvest, etc. and the HIP is automatically printed on the license when you buy it. Connie and Ann down at the County Clerk's office at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse are really good about asking you if you want the certification and state duck stamp when you go up to the second floor and buy your license there, but you may have to remember to ask for HIP certification yourself at some license outlets where the person behind the counter may not be as customer-friendly as these ladies.

The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service initiated HIP to create a harvest database on ducks, geese, doves, and other migratory fowl. This will be the second season that Texas participates in the Federally-mandated program.

The Sportsman's Den

By Jim Steiert

About 3.5 million hunting and fishing licenses are sold annually in Texas. Everybody should know you're supposed to have a hunting or fishing license, but state game wardens write a goodly number of tickets each year to folks who don't.

There may be some serious charges filed and hefty tickets written to poachers in Texas this season. Recently-enacted law is especially stringent with big-game poaching, providing for felony charges and a mandatory jail sentence even for first-time poachers who violate some statutes.

Along with the new dove season, HB 2526, enacted by the 76th Legislature, goes into effect on September 1, establishing severe penalties for poaching activities.

Taking big game without landowner consent is the focal point of the new law. Those who enter private property without consent of the landowner could be in for a real shock if they get nabbed by the game warden.

New law establishes severe penalties for poaching activities including hunting or fishing without landowner consent, hunting from a motor vehicle, hunting big game with a light, and hunting big game at night.

Severe penalties are also in store for failing to retrieve and keep big game carcasses in an edible condition. Get caught poaching and you could be looking at fines, prison time, and loss of hunting and fishing licenses for a period of one to five years.

There are some real teeth in regulations relating to big game. Under the new Texas Parks & Wildlife State Jail Felony classification, individuals convicted of taking white-tailed or mule deer, pronghorn antelope, or desert bighorn sheep without the consent of the landowner are subject to being jailed for 180 days to two years, plus a possible fine of from $1,500 to $10,000.

Be foolish enough to do it a second time and get caught, and the fine is up to $10,000 plus incarceration for two to ten years.

Wasting game is always a sin. The law is taking a tough attitude against those who do. If a poacher is convicted of wasting big game animal carcasses, such as is often the case with poachers who shoot "trophy heads" and take only the racks, the violator caught on first-offense is subject to jail confinement for up to a year and a fine of $500 to $4,000. A second conviction for wasting a big game carcass becomes a TPW State Jail Felony.

A second conviction for hunting from a motor vehicle, hunting at night, or hunting with a light also carries a State Jail Felony charge.

The Legislature has taken a get-serious attitude when it comes to trespassing, poaching the state's game, and wanton waste of wildlife resources. It created provisions in the law allowing for the confiscation and forfeiture of equipment used in these violations...weapons, vehicles, knives, spotlights, even aircraft and vessels.

It will still be up to landowners to file charges in some of these cases and help make these laws stick.

Stealing game has always been a crime...Now poachers caught at it will stand to lose a lot more than their licenses...and be looking at doing time.

Astros split doubleheader with Cubs

Lima, Lorraine lead their teams in split between worst and first in Central

CHICAGO (AP) — Andrew Lorraine pitched a three-hitter in his season debut and Henry Rodriguez hit a three-run homer Friday to lift the Chicago Cubs to a 6-0 victory over the Houston Astros for a split of their doubleheader.

In the opener, Carl Everett, playing his first game since being sidelined with a hamstring injury, had five RBIs and Jose Lima got his 15th win of the season as the Astros beat the Cubs 6-1.

Sammy Sosa, who trails major league home run leader Mark McGwire 44-42, went 1-for-7 with a walk in the two games.

In the second game, Lorraine (1-0), called up from Triple-A Iowa, won in his first appearance in the majors this season. The left-hander allowed just three singles and retired 13 straight at one point, walking one and striking out four in his first career complete game. It was the longest outing of Lorraine's 26-game career which includes 10 starts. His previous best was 6 2-3 innings on July 28, 1994, against Texas.

Seán Bergman (4-6) took the loss, his fourth in a row. Bergman, who had been on the disabled list since June 26 with elbow tendinitis, gave up six runs and eight hits while walking two in 4 1-3 innings.

Gary Gaetti hit an RBI single and Mickey Morandini hit a two-run single in the Cubs second to take a 3-0 lead.

Rodriguez hit his 21st home run with one out and two on in the fifth to make it 6-0.

In the opener, Lima (15-6) gave up six hits and struck out seven in 7 1-3 innings, allowing only Mark Grace's solo homer, his 12th.

Jay Powell came on in the eighth and struck out Sosa and Tyler Houston to end the inning with the bases loaded. Powell finished up for his third save.

Lima, who won for the fourth time in his last seven starts, is tied with teammate Mike Hampton and St. Louis' Kent Bottenfield for the NL lead with 15 victories.

Everett, who missed 20 games because of a strained right hamstring, went 4-for-5 with a three-run homer for the Astros.

Kyle Farnsworth (2-5) took the loss in his second start and fifth appearance since being recalled from Iowa on July 17. He gave up four runs and six hits while walking three over seven innings.

With two out and two on in the Astros first, Everett hit his 12th home run. After Grace's homer made it 3-1, Everett's two-out single in the fifth drove in a run. He added an RBI double in the ninth.

Everett's career high for RBIs is six, set June 20 against Montreal.

Russ Johnson hit a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

time we step out on the court against any of those teams and play at a level in district to get us in the playoffs," Kitten said.

The playoffs are a different story. But Kitten knows that the team has to take each game one match at a time in the post-season. If they make the post-season, of course.

"Hopefully by then, you hope you are playing your best volleyball when the playoffs are around," Kitten said.

It is rather strange, though, for Kitten to see a lot of young, inexperienced players in her squad.

"When you're this young, your going to be playing some good volleyball close to the end of the season," Kitten said.

"These kids are going to continue to grow every single day."

The challenge for the Lady Whitefaces this year is to hone their skills — one thing Kitten thinks the squad needs to improve.

But again, things are looking good at Camp Kitten. Good enough to challenge for another Class 4A state championship.

Only time and progress will tell.

Jays clamp Texas Correction

ARLINGTON (AP) — Jeff Zimmerman is human after all.

The Texas reliever lost his first career game in the majors Friday night, allowing the go-ahead homer to Carlos Delgado in the eighth as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Rangers 5-4.

Zimmerman (9-1) had matched the major league record for most wins at the start of a career by a relief pitcher and had gone 26 straight scoreless appearances before allowing at least one run in each of his last three outings.

Zimmerman has given up three homers in his last three outings after allowing one in his first 62 1-3 innings and the four hits allowed on Friday night were a career high.

Toronto got major contributions from Delgado, who had three homers, and from closer Billy Koch, who pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

Delgado had his second three-homer game of his career, the other coming last August at The Ballpark in Arlington. Delgado has 11 homers for his career at the Rangers' home stadium, second all-time behind Jose Canseco's 12.

Zimmerman came on to get the final out in the seventh before running into trouble in the eighth with a 4-3 lead. Shawn Green led off the inning with his 32nd home run before Delgado hit his third homer of the game, into the right-field seats.

The Rangers had their four-game winning streak snapped. Texas is 17-4 since the All-Star break.

Lee Stevens hit his 18th homer leading off the seventh to put Texas in front 4-3.

Chris Carpenter (8-5) allowed four runs and nine hits over seven innings in winning his fifth straight decision. He struck out eight and walked one.

Rafael Palmeiro homered and drove in three runs for the Rangers.

Texas took a 1-0 lead in the first on Palmeiro's RBI single. Toronto tied it in the second on Delgado's first homer.

The Rangers went in front 3-1 in the fourth when Juan Gonzalez reached on a fielding error by first baseman David Segui. Palmeiro followed with his 27th homer.

In the seventh, Delgado's second homer of the night pulled the Blue Jays within 3-2 and knocked out Helling.

Tony Fernandez greeted reliever Mike Venafro with a double. He advanced to third on a groundout and scored when shortstop Royce Clayton bobbled a two-out grounder by Homer Bush for an error to tie it at 3.

Helling allowed two runs and five hits over six innings. He struck out one and walked three.

A picture that ran in the Thursday, August 5 issue of the Hereford Brand misidentified a volleyball player in practice. That player was Pam Klein. The newspaper regrets the error.

Local youth attend The Salvation Army's Camp Hoblitzelle

Service unit committee provides opportunity for kids to have time away from home

Activities at The Salvation Army's Camp Hoblitzelle, near Midlothian, were enjoyed by 27 campers from Hereford who lined up with other campers to participate in water games.

Special to the Brand

MIDLOTHIAN - This summer, boys and girls from all over Texas, including 27 campers from Hereford, enjoyed camp at The Salvation Army's Camp Hoblitzelle, according to Major Ken Bush, service unit director for The Salvation Army's Texas divisional headquarters.

During each session, between 250-300 boys and girls attended the camp, a 600-acre retreat near Midlothian which offers a sleeping capacity of 500 people.

"The Service Unit Camp Sessions are for boys and girls from small Texas towns that have Salvation Army service units," Bush said. "In 305 smaller cities, The Salvation Army depends on service unit committees to carry out its programs locally. The Salvation Army service unit is needed where there is no official Salvation Army building or corps community center directed by a Salvation Army office.

"The children are selected by school counselors, DARE officers and others in service unit communities. Each service unit town provides transportation for kids to get to Camp Hoblitzelle. Sometimes this is by school bus or church bus, but some communities have raised money to charter Greyhound buses."

Andy McCullough, Salvation Army service unit administrative assistant, said, "For 95 percent of these kids, this is their first time away from home. We provide three good, solid meals a day, organized recreation and a spiritual environment."

Hereford children who attended Camp Hoblitzelle were Steven Alejandro, Carmelia Bailey, Vanessa Carrasco, Michael Casias, Raquel Castro, Nathan Curtsinger, Christopher DeLaRosa, Crystal Foster and Martha Gomez, A.J. Mungia, Joshua Padilla, Monique Padilla, Chelsi Pickens, and Garrett Pickens.

Also Jennie Rincon, Silvestre Rojas, Phillip Romo, Kendra Smith, Chelsey Stone, Brandon Villarreal, Tanisha Walker, Saul Zapata, Amber Walker, Erica Elizondo, Luis Elizondo and Cristy Martinez.

Counselors and volunteers receive extensive training. Volunteers have varied backgrounds in fields such as teaching, coaching, community center administration and law enforcement.

Judy Baker, assistant director of county social services and Salvation Army service unit volunteer, accompanied the local youths to camp.

Activities at Camp Hoblitzelle include fishing, field games, archery, swimming, canoeing and horseback riding.

Funding for local youth to attend the camp is made possible in part by the United Way of Deaf Smith County and the local service unit committee.

The service unit committee is made up of volunteers, including a chairman, treasurer, welfare secretary and camp chairman. Their mission is to provide emergency assistance for people in crisis. Local residents may be provided food, clothing, prescriptions, rent, utilities, counseling, camp scholarships and referral networking with other agencies.

For transient families and the homeless, service units can provide food, lodging, transportation, supplies for infants and referrals to crisis centers.

Former Hereford resident retires after 24 years with prison system

By Becky Thorn

Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor

David Moya, former Hereford resident and the first Mexican-American to serve as a warden for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, has retired as of August 1.

When Moya, son of Lupe Cerda of Hereford, graduated from Hereford High School in 1967, he had an idea about making law enforcement a career.

With a brother serving as a deputy sheriff and an uncle who was a captain in the military police, Moya said law enforcement was always in the back of his mind.

But a part-time job with a chemical company led Moya to pursue a business degree at West Texas State University and law enforcement was placed on a back burner.

After graduation, Moya was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army and was trained as an artillery officer.

On his discharge from the military, he decided to pursue law enforcement and corrections. So he began graduate studies at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville in 1975.

Moya's interest in corrections grew and ended his indecision between selecting law enforcement, "catcher," or corrections, "keeper."

In 1975, he joined the security staff as correctional officer at the Diagnostic Unit. He made the rank of sergeant and was assigned as an instructor in the TDC's officer training school.

A little less than a year later, Moya won a promotion as a building lieutenant at the Coffield

David Moya

Unit near Palestine. He spent eight months as a shift supervisor when he was promoted to assistant warden.

At the time of Moya's promotion, there were few minorities in the better paid, upper ranks of TDC.

In an interview with Post reporter Richard Vara, Moya said, "I am not native enough to believe that being Mexican-American didn't have anything to do with it. But if I am not cutting the mustard, I don't think they will be bashful about firing me."

But he must have "cut the mustard" to "their" satisfaction, because Moya spent the next 23 years with the TDCJ.

From Palenstine, he went to the Ramsey Unit at Rosharon, then he became the warden of the Clemens Unit in Brazoria County in October 1983.

After four years in Brazoria, he served at the Robertson Unit near Abilene, before becoming senior warden of the Hughes Unit, near Gatesville, in 1994.

It was from this unit that he retired August 1, handing over the reins to incoming Warden Herbert Scott.

Moya is married to Teresa Moya, who works in the Murray Unit at Gaatesville. He has a son, John David, 11, and a daughter, Courtney Michelle, 9.

A year ago, Moya bought about six acres of land east of Gatesville, and he plans to live there with his family after retirement.

Prior to his retirement, Moya was presented the James H. Boyd Jr. Memorial Award which states, "In dedication to an outstanding individual whose commitment, professionalism to the agency, its employees and the local community will forever be remembered. By those who are honored to know him."

The bride is the daughter of Steve and Connie Gilbert of Hereford.

Parents of the bridegroom are Tommy and Billie Jo Reiter of Hereford.

Brady Boyd, pastor of Trinity Fellowship, officiated at the ceremony.

Maid of honor was Laurie Gilbert, sister of the bride. Best man was Jeremy Reiter, brother of the groom.

Bridesmaids were Micah Reiter, sister of the groom; Laura Robinson and Laura Duane of Dallas; and Laura Secret of Hearne.

Serving as groomsmen were Jason Cochran of Amarillo, Jeff Young, Jeff Trautman and Jeff Dalrymple, all of Dallas. The groomsmen also served as ushers.

Kinann Sage of Amarillo and Jesse Salazar presided at the registry table.

Flower girl was Madison O'Rand, daughter of Jeff and Donnie O'Rand.

Ring bearer was Ben Paetzold, son of Randy and Lauri Paetzold. He carried a needlepoint design pillow made by the mother of the groom.

Sara Gilbert of Red Oak, Iowa, cousin of the bride, was candle lighter.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal ivory colored, halter style gown with a beaded bodice. The full skirt featured intricate lace cutouts which were repeated on the chapel length train which was attached by three rosettes at the back waist.

The waist length veil was edged with satin and attached to a satin and pearl headband.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, Stephanotis, and English ivy tied with ivory ribbon.

She carried a handmade lace handkerchief provided by her aunt, Deana Gilbert of Red Oak.

Bridal attendants wore long, straight skirts of burgundy crepe with sleeveless burgundy satin tops featuring a square neckline. They carried bouquets of stargazer lilies, blue iris and delphinium tied with ivory ribbon.

A reception at Hereford County Club followed the ceremony.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I recently attended a wedding. Both the bride and groom had been married before and have children by their previous marriages, who were to participate in the wedding — a very nice touch. This was a formal affair, to be followed by a catered reception. The bride wore a gorgeous gown with a veil and long train. There were mounds of fresh flowers on the altar, and the elegantly dressed guests filed into the church and took their seats on the arms of the tuxedoed ushers.

The bride and groom entered and walked down the aisle. Instead of going to the altar, they seated themselves in the front row, which was most unusual. The minister then stood up and announced, "The couple will not be getting married today. Unfortunately, the groom's divorce is not yet final. Please enjoy the reception."

The reception went on with the father of the non-bride making a toast to the non-married couple. Everyone seemed in great spirits. The non-married, non-newlyweds left immediately after the dinner for the non-honeymoon in Acapulco.

I cannot believe any preacher in his right mind would go along with such a farce. I'm betting he didn't know until he arrived at the church, just like the rest of the guests, that the groom's divorce had not been finalized.

Ann, this didn't take place in some zany place like Hollywood. It was in Decatur, Ill., grassroots, Pride of the Prairie, Soybean Capital of the World. If they have a real wedding in a few weeks, I'm NOT attending. — Still in Shock in Illinois

Dear Illinois: I'm sure the other guests were just as shocked as you were. I am also certain, as you surmised, that the minister did not know until he arrived at the church that the groom was not free to marry.

My guess is, the couple waited until the very last minute, hoping the divorce would be finalized. When it didn't come through, they decided to have the celebration sans the wedding. I hope, for their sake, when the divorce DOES come through, that they will not have another wedding.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are currently undergoing fertility treatment. It is stressful for both of us, but we are managing. The problem I am writing about is my mother.

Mom is in her 50's and is an intelligent woman. However, she is constantly saying things to me that are totally inappropriate and downright hurtful. Last week, she said, "Maybe you should get a dog instead." Yesterday, she told me, "I never had any problems like this. I don't know what is wrong with you." She is forever telling me I am too tense and that I should "simply relax."

I have told Mom that her comments are very upsetting, but she insists that I have lost my sense of humor. I don't find her remarks funny in the least and have told her so, but it seems to make no difference. I cannot discuss this with any other family members because my fertility problems are my own business and I wish to keep them that way. I don't want to stop talking to my mother, but I see no alternative. Any suggestions? — At Rope's End in Utah

Dear Utah: Your mother must have had a lousy relationship with her mother, and you are the victim of that awful legacy. Do not confide in her. Stay off the subject of your efforts to conceive. If she asks questions, simply say, "I'll let you know if there is anything to report." End of problem.

Gem of the Day: History repeats itself, which is a good thing because most people don't listen the first time.

Doing Whatever It Takes

The Successful Family

By Dr. Matilda J. Boozer
DAPA, LPC, NCC

"No man is an entire island of itself; every man is a piece of the Continent, a part of the main...any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in Mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; It tolls for thee." —John Donne

Littleton, Oklahoma City, Jarrell. Far more than mere spots on a map, these locations are now synonymous with human tragedy, whether natural in origin or man-made.

Witnessing these tragedies, we have come to recognize that mental wellness is one of the less outwardly visible, yet perhaps most devastating and permanent injuries which many victims suffer. And now, of course, we know that the earlier we address the post-trauma mental health needs of a victim, the more likely we will be successful in diminishing the adverse effect of the disaster both in severity and duration.

What helps people be very gentle, friendly, and soft-spoken? What is the reason for people's gentle nature? Some are satisfied with their basic needs being met (food, water, shelter). They are born, live, and die in one area. Some people seem far removed from the violence and materialism of our world.

One afternoon, we stopped at a tiny shop with exquisitely carved and painted wooden ducks. The owner, who did not speak English, was charging so little for his beautiful work. His little daughter walked into the shop from the back room where her mother and grandmother were painting the ducks. She was a big-eyed, dark-haired beauty of about three years. She saw my husband first and proceeded to walk straight to him and put her hand out. He assumed she wanted to shake his hand and offered it to her. She then took his hand in her tiny one and moved it to her lips and softly kissed it.

Tears came to my eyes as I saw this exchange. Here was a child that did not notice the gender or age difference; she was not bothered by the language barrier nor that they belonged to different religions; and neither did she notice the difference in the skin color. All she saw at that moment was another human being whom she accepted and wanted to share some happiness. It's so hard to put things in perspective, but so important to try so that we realize what real happiness is all about.

YOUR EYES

Watching Out For Your Children

Vision problems can develop at an early age. Amblyopia, or "lazy eye," and strabismus are common among preschoolers. Nearsightedness often starts at age 8 or 9. Problems may be hard to detect because kids might not know what normal vision looks like. And school vision screenings might test only for straight-ahead vision. So bring your children to your eye doctor for routine eye exams and catch problems early on.

Children who need corrective eyewear don't always want it. While your eye care professional guides your child in selecting eyewear that provides the proper fit, comfort, strength, and durability, keep one eye on styling. If they have to wear glasses, kids at least want "cool" frames, often in adult-looking styles and bright colors. Make sure there's a wide selection so kids can choose the look they want. Children who feel comfortable about their glasses are more likely to wear them.

Today in History

Today is Sunday, Aug. 8, the 220th day of 1999. There are 145 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On this date:

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte set sail for St. Helena to spend the remainder of his days in exile.

In 1876, Thomas A. Edison received a patent for his mimeograph.

In 1942, six convicted Nazi saboteurs who'd landed in the United States were executed in Washington, D.C.; two others were sentenced to life imprisonment.

In 1945, President Truman signed the United Nations Charter; The Soviet Union declared war against Japan during World War II.

In 1953, the United States and South Korea initiated a mutual security pact.

lies" reports he had taken kickbacks from government contracts in Maryland and vowed not to resign — which he eventually did.

SCHOOL NEWS

Board adopts conduct code amendments

The Hereford Independent School District Board of Trustees adopted several significant changes in the Discipline Management Plan and Student Code of Conduct for the 1999-2000 school year.

A change brought about by recent action of the Texas Legislature mandates expulsion for students in certain situations, including bringing weapons to school. The name of the athletic code has also undergone a name change.

Policy prohibits students from the carrying of weapons (including any size or type of pocket knife) on school property at any time. Violation of this policy will result in disciplinary action.

In severe cases, as mandated by law, students will be expelled from school.

The code states, "A student must be expelled for any of the following offenses that occur on school property or while attending a school sponsored or school related activity on or off school property."

Bringing to school a firearm, as defined by federal law.

Firearm under federal law includes:
• Any weapon (including starter gun) that will or is designed to or that may readily be converted to expel a projectile by the action of an explosive.

• The frame or receiver of any such weapon,
• Any firearm muffler or firearm weapon,

• Any destructive device, such as any explosive, incendiary, or poison gas bomb, or grenade.

Using, exhibiting, or possessing the following, as defined by the Texas Penal Code:

• A firearm,
• An illegal knife, such as a knife with a blade over 5½ inches; hand instrument, designed to cut or stab another by being thrown; dagger, including but not limited to a dirk, stiletto, and poniard; Bowie knife; sword; or spear,
• A club,

• A prohibited weapon, such as an explosive weapon; a machine gun; a short-barrel firearm; knuckles; armor-piercing ammunition; a chemical dispensing device; or a zip gun.

Students in athletic and other extracurricular events will also be held accountable for guidelines set forth in the "Extracurricular Standards of Behavior for Athletics" supplement.

Questions about these or other code of conduct policies may be directed to the school campus.

HISD bus routes unchanged

School bus routes for the Hereford Independent School District in the 1999-2000 school year are unchanged from last year, according to HISD transportation director David Morris.

Students living in the following areas should expect to ride the bus indicated below:

Bus 45 - 100, 200 and 300 block of Ave. H.

Bus 46 - Grand Street from Ave. B to Ave. G, 200 and 300 block of Ave. G. and Paloma Lane.

Adults will be charged $1.75 for lunch at all schools and visitors will pay $2 per meal.

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY

School bus drivers for the Hereford Independent School District are responsible for the safekeeping of their passengers riding to and from school daily and on field trips. Each driver carries a great deal of responsibility while they perform their duties and the Transportation Department takes pride in the safety record it has maintained over the years.

To transport students safely requires the special cooperation of students, their parents/guardians, drivers, school administrators, the transportation department and community.

Students must follow established rules for the school bus operations. These rules have been carefully designed with the safety of passengers first and foremost. It is important that parents discuss these rules with their children and encourage them to follow these guidelines.

Bus drivers are required to notify the transportation director of rule infractions and written reports are forwarded to the child's school principal. HISD buses are equipped with video monitoring devices which can make a videotape of all persons and their actions when riding these vehicles. These video tapes can be reviewed by authorized district personnel anytime there is a suspected problem on the bus.

Disciplinary actions may range from verbal warnings to suspension of bus riding privileges. HISD discipline guidelines will be utilized in assuring that the rules are followed. If a student's school bus riding privileges are suspended, it becomes the responsibility of parents/guardians to make sure their student continues to attend classes on a daily basis in compliance with state law.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Learning from or living with failure: It's your choice

(Part one of a two-part series)

He sat in my office slowly shaking his head. "I've failed," he said. "I wanted to make this company so successful that people would look up to me. Now, they'll see me as a failure."

The man sitting across the desk from me was a bright, honest and hard working business owner. He was coming to grips with the fact that his business wasn't going to make it. Past mistakes had piled up, and he had waited too long to address his problems. When a new, well-capitalized competitor entered the market, my client decided he had fought the battle lone enough.

As we worked on an exit strategy to minimize losses, I reminded him that one failed venture did not make him a total failure personally. I pointed out some other successful people who experienced failure early in their lives.

I reminded him that R.H. Macy had failed in several retail ventures before founding the successful chain of Macy's Department Stores. I told him about Henry Ford's early automotive fiascos. I even shared a few of my own business mistakes.

The truth about failure

In the past few months, I've thought a lot about this client and many others like him. I've worked with more than 2,000 business owners in the past eleven years and failures aren't that rare. I believe if you try to achieve anything worthwhile, you will experience some setbacks. Whether your failures are completely debilitating or just temporary roadblocks is up to you.

When it comes to failures in your life, you have two choices. You can choose to "live with them" or you can choose to "learn from them."

You see being knocked down in life doesn't make you a failure unless you choose not to get back up. Life is a game, and like any other game sometimes you're ahead and sometimes you're behind. Sometimes you win and sometimes you lose. Having a failure and being a failure are two entirely different things.

We don't always get to choose where we begin in life, but we can influence where we're going to end up. If you've experienced a recent failure here's some news you can use.

Making a fresh start

You may have failed in business, suffered a broken relationship or even committed a crime. Don't dwell on past failures, because today is a brand new page in your life and you can write whatever you choose on it. You can choose to make a fresh start today.

Your destiny may be great if you choose not to let failure keep you down. You're not the first to have to get back up on your feet and get on with life.

Walt Disney was encouraged to give up art and drawing early in his career. His first screen star "Oswald the Lucky Rabbit," was taken from him by a shrewd businessman who owned the rights. Disney didn't quit. He developed a new character called "Mickey Mouse." The rest of the story you know.

Henry Ford's first automobile company was a flop. Mary Kay Ash was 45, divorced, jobless and suffering from depression when she decided to start her "dream company," Mary Kay Cosmetics. Michael Jordan was cut from his junior varsity Basketball team as a teenager and yet he went on to stardom as a professional.

Failure doesn't have to stop you. If you're still breathing there is hope. Don't quit, don't give up. Learn from your failures and you'll find success.

Read next week's column and I'll give you some sure-fire ways to overcome failure. Don't miss "Learning from or living with failure" part two.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By Martha Russell

If your child was part of the Summer Reading Club, you might want to check to see if your kiddo got home with his vinyl popcorn box name tag. Each year we have some sort of theme-related static cling vinyl shape on the inside window of the library with the name of each participant. This year, following a circus theme, we had popcorn boxes.

At registration, each child was given one of the vinyl boxes with his or her name on it to proclaim to the world (at least to any part of the world who cared to look at our window) that this child is a summer reader. Each time a child won a prize, he or she was given a static cling vinyl piece of popcorn.

It may not seem to be a big thing to an adult, but the kids enjoy it. One mother told us that her child still has the vinyl name tag for each of the four years she has been in the summer program. That's keeping better track of things than I can!

So, with the summer program over and school about to start, we will be taking the tags down. If you want yours, you need to come by very soon and claim it.

August has traditionally been the time at the library when we do our planning for the new year. If there are programs you would like to see us develop or some service that you feel our community needs from the county library, please let us know. Our purpose is to serve the citizens of Deaf Smith County.

In Hadrian's Walls, a first novel by Robert Draper, the identity of Shepherdsville, East Texas is tied up almost totally in its prisons, among them Hope Prison Farm. It's a town where virtually every inhabitant is either an inmate or a prison employee.

Shepherdsville's two most famous citizens are Sonny Hope, its larger-than-life prison director, and Hadrian Coleman, its most notorious convict. Their friendship since boyhood has followed a pattern of mutual dependence, keeping them at once in collusion and on opposite sides of the law. At age 15, Hadrian killed a man and was sentenced to 50 years at Hope Farm. However, 20 years later, he achieves the unthinkable and escapes from the prison.

After years of a life on the run, he returns to Shepherdsville to receive a full governor's pardon, compliments of Sonny Hope, who now runs the prison, and, by extension, the town. Hadrian is well aware that the favor is not without strings attached. It will require something in return. When the nature of the payment is finally made clear, Hadrian must determine whether carrying out Sonny's demand will result in a lifetime spent in his power.

As Hadrian struggles between loyalty to his friend and the desire to do right, he is pulled toward a final showdown with Sonny. This is a crisis which will not only change the lives of the two men but also finally free Hadrian from Shepherdsville and from his past.

Elisabeth Richard's Rescue is the story of Paige Austin, a woman who has interesting work, a stable marriage, and a circle of women friends that help soothe the ache where life has left empty spots: the place in her heart that her beloved father held, and the one she would have filled with the child she can't conceive. Everything is running smoothly until her husband's son, Malachi MacGowan, walks in.

Thrown out of private school, Mal is the reprobate stepson Paige hardly knows who has come to live with her and his father in their Manhattan apartment. Paige's friends offer counsel on step-motherhood, but nothing prepares her for Mal himself. An impossibly tall, smart-talking young man, he makes her feel definitely old, but yet wonderfully alive.

In a few electric days, Mal and Paige seem to forge a connection neither of them can fully understand. She is no longer childless, and Mal basks in a love unprecedented in his 17 years. Then, as abruptly as he arrived, he stalks away. Left with an unraveling marriage and wounded heart, she attempts her own kind of escape...until Mal's inevitable crisis crashed in.

Black Hawk Down: A Story of Modern War by Mark Bowden is the true account of 99 elite American soldiers, trapped in the middle of a hostile city. As night falls, they are surrounded by thousands of enemy gunmen. Their wounded are bleeding to death. Their ammunition and supplies are dwindling.

This is the story of the most intense firefight American soldiers have fought since the Vietnam War. Late on the afternoon of Sunday, Oct. 3, 1993, the soldiers of Task Force Ranger were sent on a mission to capture two top lieutenants of a renegade warlord and return to base. It was supposed to take them about an hour.

Instead, they were pinned down through a long and terrible night in the heart of Mogadishu, Somalia, locked in a desperate struggle to kill or be killed. When the unit was finally rescued the following morning, 18 American soldiers were dead and dozens more badly injured. The Somali toll was far worse: more than 500 killed and more than 1,000 wounded.

Ranch to rail program on track again Producers see feedlot performance, carcass traits

Special to The Brand

AMARILLO - It's that time of the year again.

The 1999 Texas A&M Ranch-to-Rail program will be taking cattle deliveries in October. But right now, producers need to begin the process of selecting and preparing their entries.

Ranch-to-Rail gives producers Mexico imposes anti-dumping tariffs

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Accusing U.S. producers of dumping low-priced beef in Mexico, the Mexican Commerce Ministry announced Monday it was imposing tariffs of up to 214 percent on certain meat imports.

The National Cattlemen's Beef Association in Washington said the decision "could disrupt the beef market."

The ministry said an investigation showed that U.S. imports of fresh and frozen beef had either hurt or threatened to hurt domestic producers. No tariffs were imposed on live cattle imports.

Mexican beef producers filed complaints in June 1998 accusing U.S. cattlemen of sending beef priced below the cost of production to Mexico between June and December 1997.

A final ruling on the complaints is expected within six months; companies meanwhile could file arguments challenging the tariffs.

Most of the beef products investigated are exempt from import tariffs under the North American Free Trade Agreement.

"The various tariffs announced today would levy substantially larger duties on smaller U.S. processing plants, in addition to distorting trade patterns and adding costs," Dana Hauck, chairman of the Washington association, said in a statement.

The association "will be working with other segments of the beef industry and the U.S. government to overturn the duties as the case moves through the process."

Hauck said Mexico is the second largest and fastest growing export market for U.S. beef, with U.S. producers sending more than $450 million in beef to the country last year.

The Mexican ministry imposed a preliminary 5.24 percent tariff on carcasses and half-carcasses from U.S. companies that declined to participate in the investigative hearings. A provisional exemption was granted to four companies: ConAgra; Excel Corp.; Farmland National Beef Packing L.P.; and IBP.

Those four companies represent about 80 percent of the imports of beef cuts investigated.

The highest tariff, 214.5 percent, was imposed on beef scraps, excluding livers and tongues, from companies that did not appear at the hearings. The ministry ordered tariffs on beef scraps of 11.4 percent for ConAgra, 17.1 percent for Excel Corp., 2.67 percent for Farmland and 36.22 percent for IBP.

For boned beef cuts, imports from ConAgra, Excel and IBP were exempt from tariffs, while those from Farmland face a tariff of 7.6 percent and from others 12.76 percent.

For boneless cuts, IBP imports face a tariff of 4.14 percent, ConAgra 7.66 percent and others 74.98 percent. Excel and Farmland were exempt.

For tongues, imports from Excel face a tariff of 23.17 percent, from IBP 5.29 percent, ConAgra 16.91 percent, Farmland 8.45 percent and others 198.07 percent. For livers, the tariffs imposed are 3.02 percent for ConAgra, 11.02 percent for Farmland, and 106.24 percent for others. Excel and IBP were exempt.

ers the opportunity to check feedlot performance and carcass traits of steer calves produced from their herds. Cattle are fed at the Hondo Creek Feedyard at Edroy, near Corpus Christi, or Friona Industries' yard near Amarillo, or both.

"Participation involves a three-step process," said John McNeill, beef cattle program leader with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station.

First, producers need to enroll their cattle. To sign up, contact your local county extension agent or McNeill at 409-845-3579. Enrollment forms must be submitted this month.

Next, producers should identify a minimum of five steer calves to enter.

"Only steers will be accepted and there's no age restriction. We recommend weights between 500 and 800 pounds," McNeill said. Individual identification will be maintained on each calf for the length of the program.

The last step may be the most important, according to the beef expert.

Calves will need to be prepared for the feeding program. Although a preconditioning regimen isn't required, however, it is highly recommended, McNeill said.

"Ideally, the calves should be weaned a minimum 45 days before shipping," he said.

"We like to see the animals vaccinated against viral and bacterial pathogens that can lead to illness once the calves leave the ranch," he said.

While not required, these preparations will reduce the risk of health problems enroute to the feedyard.

The steers selected also need access to a complete mineral supplement, good quality grass hay or pasture, and a high protein supplement.

ment. Guidelines for preparing the calves, such as the Texas A&M VAC-45 and Tex-VAC, can be obtained from your local county extension agent, area livestock/beef specialist, or from McNeill.

"Now's the time to ready your animals," he said. If a 45-day regimen is chosen, then the steers should be weaned between mid-August and Sept. 1. Even if calves are not weaned for that long, the schedule for administering some vaccinations may require producers to begin in late August.

Whether now or later, today's beef producers must be knowledgeable about the product they market. Ranch-to-Rail offers the chance to learn more about their cattle and their industry to boot.

For assistance and information, call on your local county extension agent, area livestock/beef cattle specialist, or McNeill at 409-845-3579.

Young Angus enthusiasts

A group of young Angus enthusiasts recently represented Texas at the 1999 Leaders Engaged in Angus Development (LEAD) Conference. Sy Olson, third from the left in the back row, has represented Hereford in the American Angus Association numerous times this summer. He was a showmanship representative for the National Junior Angus Show in Hillsboro and he was elected as new director during the 1999 annual meeting.

Local borer activity increases

Moth activity means time for chemical treatment

Corn borer activity means producers need to make decisions on appropriate treatment, according to experts.

In the Panhandle, Extension entomologist Dr. Carl Patrick said producers are having to make a decision whether or not to chemically treat their corn for borers.

"Southwestern and European corn borer moth activity is very high right now," he said. "The eggs are being laid on the corn and now is the time for producers to decide when and whether or not to apply an insecticide."

Patrick said the borers are a common problem in his area.

"The corn borers initially feed on the leaves and eventually get into the stalk, which is where they do the most damage," he said.

Patrick said the yield loss occurs on two levels: the feeding inside the stalk and the fact that the stalk may eventually fall over and will not be harvested.

Patrick also added that when the borers enter the stalk they open it up to various "rotting" organisms.

"So, they essentially make the stalk vulnerable to other harmful diseases," he said.

Patrick said the numbers of borers are larger than last year.

"Producers need to be making decisions in this area about whether or not to chemically treat," he said.

These borers feed briefly on the leaves, so when the egg-laying adults are active, they need to be checking the fields looking for the eggs, Patrick said.

"Producers need to treat before the larvae enter the stalk," he said, "because after they enter the stalk it is pretty much a lost cause."

In South Texas, district Extension director Terry Lockamy in Weslaco said the weather has been hot and dry and there is no moisture in sight.

"Cotton harvesting continues in full swing this week due to the hot weather," he said.

Lockamy said some harvesting of sorghum continues, but the season is ending.

"Sugarcane is progressing well," he said, "and limited irrigation is under way."

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: soil moisture is very short to short. Corn is fair; irrigation activity high. Some cotton beginning to set bolls; aphid infestations increasing. Sorghum needs rain; greenbugs increasing. Peanuts need rain. Cattle in good condition; some heat stress reported.

Pesticide ban means higher peach prices

ATLANTA (AP) - Georgia peach farmers say the Environmental Protection Agency has taken away one of their most effective weapons against pests by banning a chemical used on 81 percent of the state's peach crop.

The methyl parathion ban came Monday, three years after the 1996 Food Quality Protection Act required the EPA to reassess safety levels for hundreds of commonly used pesticides.

"They are taking away the most effective and safest and best pesticide that we've had," Robert Dickey, a Crawford County peach farmer, said Tuesday. "We're going to have to substitute some others that are more expensive and less effective. It doesn't make much sense to us growers."

Dickey said the alternative pesticides could cost three times more. The pesticide ban will hit Southern growers more than their counterparts in California because the pest that attacks South Carolina and Georgia peaches is not as great a problem out West, he said.

In addition, he said, fruit imported from other countries may have been treated with the pesticide.

"It's probably costing us $40 or $50 an acre to spray now," he said. "If I've got 1,000 acres of peaches, you see where my profit goes. The EPA just took it. It's a real blow to us." Dickey said he will try not to pass the extra cost on to consumers in order to compete with other growers.

However, state Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin said consumers may have to pay more for Georgia peaches because of the ban.

"I don't think it will be a huge cost, but it will have some impact on the production costs," he said.

Irvin said he thinks consumers will be willing to spend a little more for Georgia peaches because "our peaches are so much better in quality and taste that the price doesn't become a big factor."

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 • Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 • Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 • Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 • Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

After 27 years, Ryan Express chugs into Cooperstown

By Tammy Dorman
©TVData Features Syndicate

The Ryan Express has made its final stop — in a tiny village called Cooperstown, N.Y.

For the uninitiated, that's the home of the Baseball Hall of Fame, into which Nolan Ryan, the game's ultimate power pitcher, was recently inducted after a 27-year career full of strikeouts and no-hitters.

The pitcher's journey from tiny Alvin, Texas, to Cooperstown has been documented by Fox Sports Net Southwest in Ryan Express to Cooperstown, which premieres Sunday, Aug. 8.

"Nolan is a local icon in this region," executive producer Mike Anastassiou says. "He's from Alvin and played the majority of his career in Texas (with the Astros and the Rangers), so there's lots of interest towards him. We produce Houston Astros and Texas Rangers games here at Fox Sports Southwest, so this project was a natural for us."

Ryan was a right-hander whose blazing fastball — clocked at an amazing 100.9 mph by Rockwell scientists in 1974 — inspired both awe and fear. He was also a little wild, especially early in his career. This combination left hitters uneasy about the prospect of facing him, but eventually Ryan gained control and went on to set or share 53 major league records.

Probably the most noteworthy are his seven no-hitters, the first of which came in 1973 and the last in 1991 at age 44.

Ryan struck out 5,714 batters during his career, almost 1,600 more than runner-up Steve Carlton. He struck out a record 383 batters in 1973 and six times fanned more than 300 in a season. He struck out an average of 9.55 per nine innings pitched over the course of his career and 11 times held his opponents' batting average below .200 for the season.

Anastassiou relates a story from spring training in 1987 to prove the point.

"Nolan was in the middle of the field doing wind sprints and what seemed like thousands of sit-ups all by himself on a 95-degree day," the producer recalls. "He was working his butt off. Here was a guy who was one of the best pitchers in baseball but who took nothing for granted."

Ryan learned that work ethic early on, rising at 1 a.m. to help his father, Lynn Nolan Ryan Sr., deliver The Houston Post.

Young Nolan grew up playing Little League baseball, where he was coached by his father, and dreamed of becoming a veterinarian.

Those plans changed when he was spotted by New York Mets scout Red Murff in 1963. Murff's report to the Mets would prove prophetic: "(Ryan) has the best arm I've seen in my life."

In 1965, the Mets took Ryan in the 10th round of the draft, and he was on his way.

Ryan made his big-league debut on Sept. 11, 1966, and notched Atlanta's Pat Jarvis as his first strikeout victim. Over the next 27 years, more than 1,100 different players went back to the dugout after fanning against Ryan, including seven father-son combinations (eight, if you count Sandy Alomar Sr. twice; Ryan struck out both his sons).

Greg Myers of the California (now Anaheim) Angels was Ryan's final strikeout victim on Sept. 17, 1993.

But as great a player as Ryan was, the focus of Ryan Express to Cooperstown is his greatness off the field.

"What we already knew about Ryan was strengthened," writer Greg Lucas said. "Not a single person we've interviewed has said anything negative about him. He's a genuine person who doesn't seek the limelight. He's just a regular guy who happened to become a professional athlete."

Browns vs. Cowboys in NFL's Hall of Fame Game

By Josh Greene

cTVData Features Syndicate

It's only fitting the new Cleveland Browns get to partake in this year's Hall of Fame Game.

In 1970, the original Browns played the first game of a little ABC concept known as Monday Night Football. On Monday, Aug. 9, the new Browns play on the network's first ever Monday Night Football telecast from Canton, Ohio.

"This is football history," Joe Horri-gan, vice president of communications for the Pro Football Hall of Fame, says. "In their first nationally televised game, the Browns return to the NFL."

"The league scheduled the Cleveland Browns in their first game back in the National Football League for our Hall of Fame Game with the Dallas Cowboys."

From Pro Football Hall of Fame Field at Fawcett Stadium, Al Michaels joins Boomer Esiason and Lesley Visser to call the action.

"(The game) has traditionally kicked off the NFL preseason," Horri-gan says. "It puts everybody back into the football feeling. We've had the summer to think about what's coming up. And now here's fall. Training camps are over. With the Hall of Fame Game, the season begins."

Sure, exhibitions sometimes mean the only action a big-name player will see is from the sidelines. But the stars will be in uniform, ready to compete.

"The coaches are careful who they play," Horri-gan says, "but they've been very good at playing their starters. We get as much playing time from starters as any other preseason game that follows."

For nonstarters and rookie hopefuls, the game offers a great opportunity for some national exposure.

"For some players, this'll be the only game they play in," Horri-gan says. "But it is one more opportunity to see some of the kids who may not get the chance in another game. They make the most of it."

The Browns won't have much trouble drumming up hometown support in the stands. The Cowboys on the other hand, well...

"It's not often Dallas has to take a back seat to somebody," Horri-gan says.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Did Jennifer Aniston play the older sister, Jeannie, on the TV show Ferris Bueller? It wasn't on very long. --Julie in Ohio.

A: Yes, Julie, the future Friend earned one of her first TV credits in that 1990 CBS flop, which was turned up on TV Land in recent months.

Q: I saw Peggy Cass recently on the Game Show Network and wondered whether she is still alive. --Shirlee Hedges, Avon Lake, Ohio.

A: Shirlee, I'm sorry to report that the delightful Cass -- who won a Tony for her Broadway performance in Auntie Mame and an Oscar nomination for the subsequent movie version -- died of heart failure March 8. She was 74.

It's no surprise Cass did so many game shows back in the '60s and '70s. The Boston native possessed an encyclopedic memory that often dazzled her opponents.

Q: Didn't the guy who played Capt. Dobey on Starsky and Hutch also co-star with Eddie Murphy in 48 HRS.? --Brenda Jones, Wixom, Mich.

A: No, Bernie Hamilton, who played Capt. Harold Dobey on Starsky, did not appear in the Eddie Murphy hit.

Q: What can you tell me about The Millionaire, a TV series from the '50s? Is it still available in syndication? --Ronald Bauman, Appleton, Wis.

A: From 1955-60, each Wednesday night the eccentric (and unseen) multi-billionaire John Beresford Tipton would dispatch his personal secretary, Michael Anthony (Marvin Miller), with a cashier's check for $1 million, tax-free, for some unsuspecting stranger. The only strings: The recipient must not try to find out the identity of the benefactor and could reveal the source of his windfall only to his or her spouse. Apart from Miller, the half-hour anthology series featured a different cast each week.

The Millionaire is still available to stations in syndication, but black-and-white shows from this period, sadly, are not much in demand these days.

Q: Is Gloria Stuart of Titanic the same actress who played in Poor Little Rich Girl with Shirley Temple? --Gail Robinson, Gainesville, Ga.

A: Yes, Stuart, now 89, was in her mid-20s when she made that 1936 movie with Temple.

Q: I am convinced that there was a TV show some years back about a boy and his remote control that featured Fran Drescher as his prissy older sister. Am I right? --M.K., Waterbury, Vt.

A: Sort of. You're thinking of What's Alan Watching Now?, a 1989 TV movie that was an unsuccessful pilot for a CBS series. Corin Nemec, Barbara Barrie and Peter Michael Goetz also starred.

She caused big trouble for the residents of Pine Valley on All My Children, and now Skye Chandler (Robin Christopher) is headed back to ABC daytime. But this time she's returning to Llanview to create havoc in the lives of its residents on One Life to Live.

"I'm so thrilled to be coming back to ABC daytime and reviving this character that's always been near and dear to my heart," Christopher says. "It should be really exciting to see Skye interacting with a whole new group of people in Llanview." Christopher also played Lorna on Another World.

Former General Hospital star Sean Kanan (ex-A.J.) is returning to daytime. He'll play Jude on Sunset Beach.

Dear Candace: I named my daughter Dorian after first hearing the name on One Life to Live 23 years ago. Just out of curiosity, how many actresses have played Dorian Lord since 1976? —Patsy Ypsilanti, Michigan.

Dear Reader: Nancy Pinkerton (1973-77), Claire Malis (1977-79) and Robin Strasser have all played Dorian.

Dear Candace: I always liked the actor who played Connor, the attorney, on The Bold and the Beautiful. Can you tell me his name and what he is doing now? I think the writers should bring him back and partner him with Brooke (Katherine Kelly Lang). —C.J., Findlay, Ohio.

Dear Reader: Scott Thompson Baker left B&B in 1994. Since then he's been seen in the prime-time soap Savannah and TV movies.

He's also guest starred on several prime-time series, including Becker, Alright Already and JAG.

Dear Candace: Is the new guy on Guiding Light the same actor who played Kirk on As The World Turns? He was always one of my favorites. —B. R., Bronx, New York.

Dear Reader: Tom Wiggin plays Sam on GL, and yes, he portrayed Kirk on ATWT.
