Clinton floating Medicare plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is floating a Medicare prescription benefit that could pay roughly half the cost of drugs up to a limit of perhaps $3,000 to $5,000 a year, in return for higher premiums paid by beneficiaries.

The proposal still is being written, White House press secretary Joe Lockhart said, and final details will not be disclosed until Clinton presents it Tuesday.

Congressional Democrats are nervous about raising Medicare premium charges heading into the elections.

They also are concerned about another possible feature: a means-testing requirement that links premium costs to beneficiaries' incomes. Some lawmakers are concerned the higher costs and income tests will blow up in their faces, much like the 1988 surtax that Congress approved — and later was forced to repeal at the demand of outraged senior citizens — to provide catastrophic health insurance under Medicare.

Jamaica celebration set Sunday

The San Jose Community's annual "Jamaica" celebration has nothing to do with tropical islands; it's all about a coming together of a community.

The annual event will be noon-8 p.m. Sunday at Dameron Park. "We will have all kinds of different game booths, a volleyball tournament and a car show," organizer George Pacheco said.

The car show will feature a variety of automobiles, from classic cars to low riders to street rods, he said.

There will be game booths and food booths, which will feature a variety of fare, including the San Jose community's popular German sausages, Pacheco said.

Should there be more rainfall or if the park doesn't dry out enough before Sunday, Pacheco said the festival organizers have a contingency plan.

The Hereford Community Center has been reserved and the booths would be set up on its parking lot, Pacheco said. Also, there will be booths set up at the site of the old swimming pool.

For more information, call Pacheco at 364-2015.

Truck driver Michael Utesch of Mentor, Ohio, looks at damage to a wheel on the empty flatbed trailer he was pulling after the tractor-trailer rig was involved in an collision with an automobile driven by Allene Harvey of Clovis, N.M. The accident occurred on U.S. Highway 385, near Milo Center. Mrs. Harvey was taken to Hereford Regional Medical Center and later transported to an Amarillo hospital.

Clovis woman injured in wreck

MILO CENTER — Debris littered U.S. Highway 385 near Milo Center Thursday after a collision between a car and a tractor-trailer rig.

According to Texas Department of Public Safety officers, Allene Harvey, 64, of Clovis, N.M., was southbound on U.S. 385 and traveling behind an 18-wheeler when she crossed the center line.

As she crossed the center line, her 1993 Taurus struck the flatbed trailer of a northbound Freightliner, driven by Michael Utesch, 47, of Mentor, Ohio.

"She hit the trailer, and ran all down the side until she hit the rear wheels," DPS officer Larry Campbell said.

The DPS report indicates Harvey hit the last set of wheels on the trailer, spun around, and went into the roadside median east of the highway.

Utesch said he had been driving rigs for 25 years and this was his first accident.

"I saw her coming across the line and tried to get over as far as I could and thought she missed me when I felt the impact," Utesch said. "Let me tell you it was a jolt."

Campbell said Harvey could not remember anything other than hitting the truck.

Utesch said he had just dropped his load at the Hereford John Deere and was headed for Amarillo. He decided to take the U.S. 385 route rather than U.S. Highway 60 due to the location of the Amarillo destination. Harvey was taken to Hereford Regional Medical Center and then transported by Lifeflight to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo with what was believed to be non-life threatening injuries.

There were no other injuries in the accident.

The trailer tire, which was struck by Harvey's vehicle, landed in a field several hundred yards away.

Utesch had to have the wheel cut off before repairs were made.

House OKs flag protection bill; Senate prospects iffy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to protect the flag was only one or two Senate votes away from clearing Congress after a strong House vote of approval. But prospects for picking up those votes appeared slim.

For the third time in four years Thursday a flag desecration amendment sailed through the House on a 305-124 vote — 19 more than the two-thirds needed. U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, whose 19th District includes Deaf Smith County, supported the measure. Combest also was a co-sponsor of the proposal.

But that two-thirds majority has proved elusive in the Senate: The amendment fell three votes short in 1995 and Senate leaders, facing another close defeat, didn't take it to the floor in 1997.

This year Senate supporters thought they had the votes, but were disappointed by the recent announcement by two undecided North Dakota Democrats, Sens. Byron Dorgan and Kent Conrad, that they preferred legislation to protect the flag rather than a constitutional amendment.

Senate Democratic leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota said the votes needed to defeat the amendment remained solid.

If the measure cleared Congress, it would probably quickly win ratification by three-fourths of the states, the last step before it became the 28th amendment to the Constitution. Forty-nine state legislatures have endorsed it.

The 17-word amendment states, "The Congress shall have power to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States."

Supporters say it is needed to overcome two Supreme Court rulings: one in 1989 to strike down 48 state anti-desecration laws and one in 1990 to negate a law passed by Congress. The court argued that the laws violated First Amendment rights to free expression.

Rep. Randy "Duke" Cunningham, R-Calif., the chief sponsor, said the amendment only addressed physical acts against the nation's unique symbol, and in no way infringed on the rights of Americans to express their opinions. "Nothing in this prevents anyone from expressing themselves in writing, speech or any other way except for the desecration of the flag," he said.

But opponents argued that, with flag desecration a rarity, it was unwise to take a step that could chip away at free speech rights.

"Above Old Glory, above the symbol of our liberty, is our sacred Constitution," said Rep. John Lewis, D-Ga. "The Constitution guarantees that we have the freedom to have political beliefs, and to express those beliefs openly."

The White House, in a statement, said the president was deeply committed to protecting the flag but "efforts to limit the First Amendment to make a narrow exception for flag desecration are misguided."

U.S. closes embassies in Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States temporarily shut down six embassies in Africa after receiving information they were under surveillance by "suspicious individuals."

The embassies in Gambia, Togo, Madagascar, Liberia, Namibia and Senegal were closed Thursday. State Department spokesman James P. Rubin said today a decision will be made over the weekend on whether they will be reopened Monday.

"We don't take a decision to close an embassy lightly," Rubin said on ABC's "Good Morning America." "We did develop information that suspicious individuals were engaged in surveillance of certain embassies. ... It was concrete information or we wouldn't have taken the decision to close these six embassies."

Rubin said the United States is putting pressure on a number of governments to capture accused terrorist Osama bin Laden. He is accused in the deadly attacks on U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania.

Bin Laden has been placed on the FBI's list of 10 most-wanted fugitives. He is believed to be in Afghanistan.

U.S. economy expands by a robust 4.3 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy, propelled by strong consumer spending, grew at an annual rate of 4.3 percent in the first three months of the year despite a trade deficit swollen by overseas financial troubles.

The Commerce Department said today the increase in the gross domestic product from January through March was slightly better than the 4.1 percent rate estimated a month ago.

The 0.2 percentage point improvement reflected a slight revision in the trade deficit, which, while still at record levels, was $6.5 billion lower than the government estimated previously.

The economy's pace at the beginning of the year was far above expectations. That has triggered concerns that the Federal Reserve will begin raising short-term interest rates at its meeting next week in an effort to keep the expansion from triggering inflation.

"It was a fairly broad-based story of expansion in the first quarter," said economist Lynn Reaser with Bank of America in Jacksonville, Fla.

Wall Street apparently liked another government report today that showed higher first-quarter corporate profits. The Dow Jones average was up nearly 100 points early today.

News in brief

Cisneros hearing moves forward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having established that the chief prosecution witness against former Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros spun a year-long web of lies for federal investigators, lawyers for the one-time Clinton Cabinet member now will seek to show that she still is misrepresenting the facts.

Cisneros' ex-mistress, Linda Jones, on Thursday wrapped up four days on the witness stand during a pre-trial hearing that carries high stakes for both prosecutors and the defense as they move toward a September trial.

His legal team seeks to thwart the government's use of tapes that Ms. Jones secretly recorded during phone conversations with Cisneros as their relationship deteriorated and she scrambled for proof of his verbal commitment to support her financially.

The recordings are central to the government's contention that Cisneros conspired with Ms. Jones and two aides to conceal from the FBI the scope of his payments to her after their extramarital affair exploded into public view in 1988, torpedoing her marriage and career as a political fund raiser.

Cisneros' attorneys contend the 88 tapes — all of which are copies of since-destroyed originals — are inadmissible because they constitute "tampered" evidence. The government contends they are legitimate and that only five of the 34 tapes they are seeking to play at trial were altered by Ms. Jones.

Bush calls for education reform

LIVONIA, Mich. (AP) — Sounding a cry for "compassionate conservatism," Texas Gov. George W. Bush said he will stand for conservative values while also reaching out to Americans in need.

In his first Michigan visit as the frontrunner for the Republican presidential nomination Thursday, Bush again addressed abstinence as one of his leading issues, saying "it is conservative to confront illegitimacy" but it is compassionate to offer help to young parents and their children.

"No child should be left behind in America," Bush said at a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner in the Detroit suburb of Livonia, linking the issue to his goals of reforming education and decreasing poverty.

"Failed schools are creating two societies," Bush told the more than 1,000 in attendance. "One that reads, and one that can't. One that dreams, and one that doesn't."

He said he wants to give more authority to states to regulate and set standards for their schools and level the field for all children.

Earlier Thursday, at a stop in Detroit's Mexicantown, Bush used his push in Texas for charter schools and school vouchers as an example.

Service posts flash flood warnings

Heavy rains and large hail pounded West and North Texas overnight, with several twisters also roaming the regions.

Flash flood warnings and watches were posted through tonight for around the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

In the Stephenville area and Comanche County, where up to 6 inches of rain fell, the National Weather Service posted a flash flood warning.

A flood watch included both Fort Worth and Dallas as well as counties adjoining the Metroplex.

Runoff from rains blocked highways in Van Zandt and Collin counties, the weather service said.

In the Panhandle, twisters were sighted near Borger and Amarillo late Thursday. But no damage or injuries were reported.

Hail up to 1.75 inches in diameter fell in the Amarillo area. Winds gusted to 67 mph at Panhandle Junior High School, according to Carson County sheriff's officers.

Other large hail was reported at Skellytown, Panhandle, Washburn and Bushland.

Crashes not affected by stricter laws
Findings challenge university study reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government study has found that stricter drunken driving limits alone do not conclusively reduce the number or severity of alcohol-related crashes.

The finding challenges statements by President Clinton after a 1996 university study reported that alcohol-related fatalities had fallen in states where the blood-alcohol limit for determining drunken driving had been reduced from 0.10 percent to 0.08.

As the president lobbied for a national .08 drunken-driving limit last year, he cited the research and said, "If all states lower their BAC (blood-alcohol content) to .08, it will result in 600 fewer alcohol-related deaths each year."

Hatch chilis wither in summer heat

HATCH, N.M. (AP) — An oasis in the southern New Mexico desert, a green patchwork of small farms splits the barren landscape.

The plowed earth of the Hatch Valley is dotted with pecan orchards, onion tops, corn — and what is left of the chili plants. Cool nights, gusting winds, insects and drought conditions are taking a toll on the valley's staple, from long hot green peppers to mild red peppers and paprika.

Chili stands in some fields along the twisting Rio Grande are so sparse farmers are considering plowing them under, said 88-year-old Alex Franzoy, whose father was the first farmer in the Hatch Valley to grow chili for market.

"I don't think there's going to be very much chili this year," Franzoy said. "I think it's the worst that I've seen since I've been in the valley."

Economists are still weighing the financial impact of a dismal growing season, but they estimate losses for farmers could reach $30 million, half the value of last year's crop.

It is too early to tell whether consumers will pay more for chili in the marketplace.

New Mexico provides 60 percent of base chili products — powdered chili and paprika, for example — to the rest of the country, said Bill Gomez, an economist with the New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service.

"In many fields, stands are thin, and it's not economically feasible to harvest the crop," Gomez said.

The extension service is seeking federal disaster aid for chili farmers across southern New Mexico. Nearly every farmer in the Hatch Valley grows some form of chili.

Tough conditions along the lower Rio Grande are nothing new to Hatch farmers. They have been growing their world-famous peppers for nearly a century, withstanding droughts, floods and insect invasions.

"You fight something different every year," said Sherry Franzoy, who runs a 60-acre chili operation in Hatch with her husband, Ronnie.

The first chili crop in Hatch Valley was planted around 1920 by farmer Franzoy's father, Joseph, who emigrated from Austria. He planted about 10 acres of chili in Salem, about 5 miles north of Hatch, and sold his crop for 10 cents a pound.

Things have changed. Chili no longer goes that cheap — a 35-pound bag of green chilis now brings $10 to $18 — and farmers now have to worry about everything from farm labor activists to chili farmers from elsewhere who try to pass their goods off as Hatch chili.

"If you want New Mexico chili you're going to have to pay more," said Garfield farmer Dickie Ogaz. "And buyers know that. If they don't give in, they know the poor farmer can't hold his crop."

The 125 acres of chili on Ogaz's farm are faring well considering the withered plants to the south. But he ment said a series of studies "provided positive, if not conclusive, results and formed a reasonable basis for supporting .08 BAC laws."

The department also said it has consistently supported a broad approach to combating drunken driving, including public education and stricter law enforcement in addition to a lower blood-alcohol limit.

A leading drunken driving group, Mothers Against Drunk Driving, said the GAO report supported its call for a comprehensive approach to fighting drunken driving.

"All research is equivocal and, by definition, inconclusive," said MADD President Karoly Nunnallee. "The fact is, all research to date points in the same direction: .08 still expects to lose about 25 percent by harvest time.

Recent rain over the southwestern corner of the state has helped. "Last night we got about an inch. After that, the plants look like you would if you just had a good glass of cold tea," Ogaz said.

But the rain isn't enough for some farmers. But the plants are late and the stands are very thin.

laws are effective in reducing alcohol-related traffic fatalities."

Thirty-two states and the District of Columbia have laws making it illegal for people to operate an automobile if their blood contains 1/10th of 1 percent alcohol. Sixteen states have a stricter limit: 0.08 percent. Two states, Massachusetts and South Carolina, have blood-alcohol limits, but they also require that a person show visible signs of drunkenness.

The GAO report grew out of last year's debate about a $203 billion national highway bill. Drunken driving opponents got the Senate to support a provision saying that states that did not lower their blood-alcohol limits to 0.08 percent would risk losing their federal highway funds. The president argued in favor of the provision.

The House did not support the measure and ultimately it was thrown out of the bill, which Clinton signed. The bill did include a provision asking the GAO to gauge the effectiveness of state 0.08 BAC laws.

Critics of stricter limits point out that a 120-pound woman having two glasses of wine over two hours could be branded a drunken driver.

Supporters say a 170-pound man wouldn't reach the limit unless he downed more than four beers in an hour.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: From time to time, I see letters in your column from heart-broken grandparents who have been forbidden from seeing their grandchildren by a vindictive ex-daughter-in-law or ex-son-in-law.

I was in a terrible marriage to an abusive man. There was only one thing that kept me from filing for divorce — his parents. "Clarence and Carla" were wonderful people, and I was afraid they would never speak to me again if I left their son. I could not have been more mistaken. Clarence and Carla knew their son was mistreating me and that our marriage would not last. I found out later they were terrified they would never see their grandson again.

Ann, I can't tell you how terrific and supportive my ex-in-laws were. My son and I spent countless dinners and holidays at their home after the divorce. Never once did they blame me for the way things turned out. I made sure that were able to see their grandson whenever they wanted. They came to every school function and scout meeting. When a job transfer sent them to another state, we visited as often as possible and were on the phone frequently.

After I remarried, they welcomed my new husband into their home. I helped them find a new house near ours when they retired. When Carla passed away, Clarence came to our home for dinner several nights during the week. He also took our son on vacations. When he died, my husband was a pallbearer at the funeral.

Not a day goes by that I don't think of those wonderful, loving people. I am thankful my son had 11 years with his grandparents because they shaped him in so many positive ways. Grandparents fill a special place in a child's heart. Please tell your readers how important it is to keep that special link in the family chain. I am — Missing Them in Omaha

Dear Omaha: What a beautiful tribute. I thought of my own three grandchildren when I read your letter. Family ties are important and are well worth the time and effort.

Dear Ann Landers: In 1948, I was the skinniest kid in the Buchanan, Mich., high school. I was too light for sports, so I didn't fit in with the popular crowd. But that fall, something happened that changed my life forever. The most beautiful girl I had ever seen transferred to our school from a neighboring town. Every sport jock in school was after Pattie.

One day, I got my nerve up and asked Pattie to meet me after school for a photo session for the school yearbook. We spent that afternoon and several more together — with her posing and me snapping my camera hundreds of times. What Pattie didn't know was that my camera was empty — I had no money for film.

We started to date and were married immediately after graduation. Yes, we were young, and no, we didn't HAVE to get married. (She would have broken my arm if I had tried anything before marriage.) We just were in a hurry to spend the rest of our lives together. We now have three beautiful daughters and have worked side by side in our photographic busi-

Despite ineffective Burkett, Rangers defeat Oakland, 5-2

ARLINGTON (AP) — Against the first two batters he faced in his emergency start, John Burkett pitched poorly, just as most people expected.

But Burkett battled out of a first-inning jam and went on to pitch six solid innings, leading the Texas Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Oakland Athletics on Thursday night.

"This gives me a lot of confidence," Burkett said. "I was able to keep my changeup down, which is big for me. I had a lot of groundball outs, which is an indication that I'm keeping the ball down."

Burkett (1-3), banished to the bullpen after six ineffective starts, was given another chance as a starter because Mark Clark was placed on the disabled list this week.

The A's threatened early, putting runners on second and third with no outs in the first inning on a single by Tony Phillips and a double by Miguel Tejada. But Burkett struck out Ben Grieve, retired Jason Giambi on a foul ball and got John Jaha to ground out to end the inning.

"That was certainly a momentum shift," Oakland manager Art Howe said. "We had them on the ropes, but we let them off the hook. That took the wind out of our sails."

Burkett went on to retire 10 in a row between the second and the fifth innings. He allowed both runs and six hits in six innings, struck out five and walked none. His win was his first since Sept. 23 of last year.

"Getting out of the first inning was big," manager Johnny Oates said. "From there, he was getting the ball down. He pitched like he's capable of pitching."

Several A's hitters said that Burkett's strong outing took them by surprise. Relegated to mop-up duty for most of his stint in the bullpen, Burkett was able to keep Oakland off-balance by using both changeups and breaking pitches.

"Compared to the other times I faced him, he was a different pitcher," said Grieve, who struck out twice. "He's the kind of pitcher that has to hit his spots to be effective, and he did that against us."

Rafael Palmeiro and Ivan Rodriguez had two-run singles to back Burkett in his first start since May 29.

John Wetteland, the Rangers' fourth pitcher, got three straight outs for his 25th save in 28 chances. He struggled earlier in the series, blowing a save in the first game and allowing two runs in a save on Wednesday.

Oakland's Tim Hudson (2-1), a combined 9-0 in 14 previous starts in the majors and minors, allowed five runs and six hits in six innings.

The A's won the first game of the three-game series against division-leading Texas, but the Rangers won the next two.

Reds blank Astros, 3-0

HOUSTON (AP) — Ron Villone hasn't thrown a no-hitter since high school, so it took him a few minutes to figure out why his Cincinnati Reds teammates were ignoring him in the dugout.

Villone, making his fourth career start, allowed one hit in seven innings and came within eight outs of a no-hitter, helping the Reds beat the Houston Astros 3-0 Thursday night.

"In the fifth inning, the guys sitting next to me were looking at me funny," Villone said. "I knew I had it going in the sixth when they wouldn't sit next to me or talk to me. But to win the game was the big thing."

It was a dramatic turnaround from Villone's last start, when he retired just one batter last Saturday against Milwaukee and allowed six earned runs and three hits. Manager Jack McKeon told him Wednesday night that he'd start against the Astros.

Villone (2-2) walked five, including four in the first four innings, and struck out six. Danny Graves finished for his 10th save in 13 chances.

"I didn't have too much time to think about it, but I just want the ball," Villone said. "It was my day to start and it's the same if I get five days' notice or one hour's notice."

The Astros' and Cleveland entered the night as the only major league teams not shut out this year. The Indians were blanked 3-0 at Toronto.

Houston didn't get a runner past second until the seventh inning, when Richard Hidalgo walked and took third on Tony Eusebio's single. Tim Bogar then

Ruth named Greatest Player of Century

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Babe Ruth was voted the greatest player of the 20th century in balloting conducted by the Society for American Baseball Research, topping Lou Gehrig.

Ruth and Gehrig were picked on 861 of 865 ballots, with Ruth edging Gehrig for the top spot based on elite points, a separate vote in which SABR members picked the top five players.

Ted Williams (858) was third followed by Hank Aaron (also 858), Stan Musial (857), Joe DiMaggio (855), Ty Cobb (854), Willie Mays (852), Rogers Hornsby (851), Honus Wagner (850) and Walter Johnson (850).

Johnson received the most votes among pitchers, followed by Christy Mathewson (847), Warren Spahn (835), Bob Gibson (828), Cy Young (826), Sandy Koufax (822) and Bob Feller (820).

Roger Clemens received the most votes among active players, finishing 34th with 769, followed by Tony Gwynn, in 39th place with 752.

Also making the top 100 among active players were Greg Maddux (40th place), Cal Ripken (43rd), Ken Griffey Jr. (53rd), Rickey Henderson (60th), Mark McGwire (61st), Barry Bonds (65th) and Wade Boggs (80th).

Cap Anson finished first in voting for the top 19th century figures, followed by King Kelly, Cy Young, Ed Delahanty and Buck Ewing.

In voting for the top contributors to baseball, Walter Alston finished first among managers, followed by Sparky Anderson, Leo Durocher, Miller Huggins and Connie Mack. Mel Allen finished first among broadcasters, followed by Red Barber, Jack Buck, Harry Caray and Bob Costas. Bill Klem was the No. 1 umpire followed by Doug Harvey and Al Barlick. New York Yankees general manager Ed Barrow was tops among executives.

Roger Angell of the New Yorker was the top writer and Ken Burns, who did a major baseball documentary for Public Broadcasting, was first among others.

Lee Allen, who provided research for the first Baseball Encyclopedia in 1969, was first among historians.

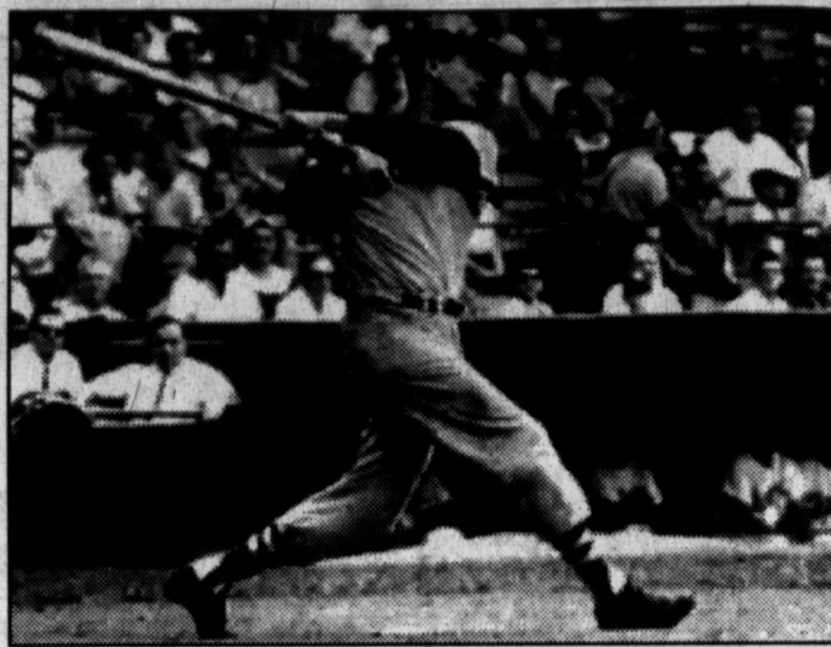

SABR has about 6,000 members, and all were eligible to vote.

Kournikova might face Venus

Kournikova-Williams match possible for fourth round; Courier, Agassi showing support for each other WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Anna Kournikova advanced to a potential fourth-round matchup against Venus Williams at Wimbledon, today, when her opponent, Ines Gorrochategui, retired in the second set with a shoulder injury.

No. 8 Nathalie Tauziat, last year's runnerup, routed qualifier Seda Noorlander 6-1, 6-1.

Gorrochategui received treatment from a trainer after the first game of the second set, then retired with Kournikova leading 7-5, 3-1.

Williams was scheduled to play a third-round match later in the day against Sarah Pitkowski.

Kournikova, seeded 17th, reached the semifinals in her only other appearance at Wimbledon in 1997. Williams, seeded sixth, made the quarterfinals last year.

On the men's side, Jim Courier is rooting for Andre Agassi, Agassi is rooting for Courier, and Pete Sampras is on his own.

The top American men at Wimbledon say the bond among them has grown stronger because of maturity and recent results. The latest win was by Agassi, who swept Guillermo Canas 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 Thursday to reach the third round.

As a show of support, Courier was in the stands at the start of the match, just as Agassi watched Courier's five-set victory Wednesday over Carlos Moya. So will Agassi return to the stands to cheer for five-time Wimbledon champion Sampras?

Let's not get carried away. "Pete hasn't really needed a whole lot of support here in the past," Agassi said. "I felt inspired to be out there pulling for Jim. Not that I don't pull for Pete. I'd love to see him accomplish six Wimbledon — if I happen to lose here."

An all-American final between Agassi and Sampras in England on the Fourth of July is a tantalizing prospect. Courier and fellow American Todd Martin could also be factors.

Martin, seeded eighth, joined his countrymen in the third round Thursday. Also advancing were second-seeded Patrick Rafter, No. 5 Richard Krajicek, No. 6 Tim Henman and No. 10 Goran Ivanisevic.

Another winner was three-time champion Boris Becker, who played his first match on Centre Court since 1997 and beat fellow German Nicolas Kiefer 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

The star-studded session drew a crowd of 40,312, largest in Wimbledon's 113-year history.

Advancing in women's play were No. 3 Lindsay Davenport, No. 5 Jana Novotna and No. 9 Mary Pierce. Australian 16-year-old Jelena Dokic, who upset Martina Hingis in the first round, edged Katarina Studenikova 6-0, 4-6, 8-6.

No. 7 Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario and No. 16 Natasha Zvereva joined Hingis as the only seeded women on the sidelines. Sanchez-Vicario lost to American Lisa Raymond 7-6 (7-4), 6-1. Zvereva, a semifinalist in 1998, was beaten by Tatiana Panova 6-4, 7-5.

Agassi, Courier, Sampras and Michael Chang have known each other since they were teen-agers playing junior tennis. They've been foes rather than friends, but the relationships began to change in recent months.

Courier's thrilling performance in April to help the U.S. Davis Cup beat England inspired Sampras to rejoin the team. And when Agassi won the French Open earlier this month, he was surprised to receive a congratulatory phone call from Sampras.

"At this stage of the ballgame, it's really hard not to have strong feelings toward your fellow Americans," said Agassi, 29. "Our generation is at the tail end, and we're old enough now to realize that there are a lot of great memories that we've given to each other."

The reasons for keeping their distance from each other have been nothing personal, Agassi said.

"We've got a lot of Grand Slams between us," he said. "If Jim or Pete or Michael didn't exist, I would have more Grand Slams. They've always been serious obstacles in my path, and I know I've presented my problems to them in theirs. ... And so going out to dinner or having a beer together wasn't always a top priority."

Their rivalry could resurface at Wimbledon. The fourth-seeded Agassi, still riding momentum from his French Open title, wants to become the first man to win at Roland Garros and Wimbledon in the same year since Bjorn Borg in 1980. The top-seeded Sampras wants to match Roy Emerson's record of 12 Grand Slam titles.

The unseeded Courier remains a long shot, even though he has advanced beyond the second round at Wimbledon for the first time since reaching the 1993 final, when he lost to Sampras. But a potential fourth-round match between Courier and Henman would produce plenty of fireworks.

Agassi and Sampras might both show up for that one.

grounded into an inning-ending double play.

Villone said he threw Eusebio a slider.

"I was trying to keep the ball down, but it was in the middle of the plate," Villone said. "He hit it, and you've got to give him credit. I got the ball on the ground, which is what I wanted, but it got through, and that's the way it goes."

Astros manager Larry Dierker made his first appearance in the Astrodome since a seizure in the dugout June 13 that led to brain surgery.

He received a standing ovation when he was recognized in the middle of the first inning. Dierker left Methodist Hospital on Wednesday and wasn't expected to visit his team until the weekend at the earliest.

"It was fun to see him here, smiling the same old smile everybody knows," Derek Bell said.

Houston, 5-6 under interim manager Matt Galante, scored in 74 consecutive games since a 4-0 loss to St. Louis and Matt Morris last Sept. 22.

"He (Villone) kept us off balance," Galante said. "It's frustrating. When you have one or two guys struggling, it's tough. But we're going through this together. We know that we are one of the better offensive teams in baseball."

Mike Hampton (9-3), who lost to Morris in that shut-out last year, allowed all three runs and four hits in seven innings, with eight strikeouts. He had won his four previous starts.

Cincinnati, which lost its previous seven games in Houston, has the best road record in the NL at 23-10.

winning five straight away from home and 18 of 22.

The Reds went ahead in the fifth when Mike Cameron tripled and scored on Aaron Boone's double down the left-field line.

Hal Morris hit a run-scoring grounder in a two-run eighth and Barry Larkin hit an RBI single.

"That as the best I've ever seen Hampton," Larkin said. "He just came up on the short end of the stick."

Israeli warplanes hammer Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beirut was blacked out and residents in northern Israel huddled in bomb shelters today during the heaviest fighting between Israel and Lebanon in three years. The attacks killed seven Lebanese and two Israelis.

The Israeli airstrikes against Lebanon's infrastructure also wounded 57 people since they began Thursday.

Israeli jets and helicopters hit two power substations outside the capital, Beirut; guerrilla targets in the eastern city of Baalbek, a stronghold of the Hezbollah militants; and bridges on Lebanon's main coastal road.

The Israeli army said in a statement that its planes carried out the bombings in response to Hezbollah rocket attacks on northern Israel Thursday that wounded one soldier and four civilians. Those rockets were fired after Israeli shelling wounded a Lebanese civilian.

About a dozen Hezbollah Katyusha rockets hit the Israeli border town Kiryat Shmonah. Two municipal workers were killed when a rocket smashed into City Hall at midnight Thursday. Both men were part of the city's emergency response team to rocket attacks.

Ethnic Albanians torch Serb homes

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Ethnic Albanians reportedly torched Serb houses and looted Serb-owned shops in Kosovo as Washington offered a $5 million reward for help in convicting Slobodan Milosevic and others wanted for war crimes in the Balkans.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav parliament was scheduled to vote today on measures giving Milosevic's government power to crack down on dissent and keep its wartime controls over banking and the economy, despite the assembly's decision to lift the state of war imposed after NATO began bombing March 24.

Milosevic's autocratic rule has been shaken by the Kosovo conflict, in which Serb-led Yugoslavia sustained heavy bombing damage and was forced to agree to withdraw troops from Kosovo and allow a NATO-led force into the province.

Ethnic Albanians made up 90 percent of Kosovo's pre-war population of 2.1 million, and many favored independence for the province.

In Pristina, British soldiers swarmed around the commercial center of the Kosovo capital late Thursday in an attempt to curb looting. During the 78-day NATO air bombardment, ethnic Albanians fleeing to nearby countries spoke of Serbs looting Albanian-owned businesses.

AMA urges yearly mammograms

CHICAGO (AP) — One side recommends yearly breast cancer screenings for women over 40. The other side says tests can come as much as two years apart. In the middle are the people most affected: patients, and insurers who must pay for the procedures.

Switching sides in one of the most contentious issues in medicine, the American Medical Association on Thursday recommended all women get yearly mammograms starting at age 40.

The recommendation, supported by the American Cancer Society and the American College of Surgeons, could lead to pressure on insurers and managed care companies to pay for more mammograms.

It also puts the AMA at odds with the government and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, which say an interval of one to two years is adequate.

The issue has pitted those who argue that routine mammograms are not cost-effective in younger women against those who say that the tests are needed and that the insurance industry should be paying for them.

Parents do own disease research

WASHINGTON (AP) — How much does it cost to find a cure for a disease?

That's what Patricia Furlong wanted to know. Her two young sons were dying of a rare disease that kills boys, usually before age 20. Her doctors, even the National Institutes of Health, said there was nothing to help.

The Middletown, Ohio, woman was aghast. Why, she asked, when scientists had discovered the key gene in 1986, was there still no good treatment?

Furlong decided parents, armed with little more than desperation and bake sales, might speed research of treatments for Duchenne muscular dystrophy. She illustrates a fledgling movement: parents fighting rare childhood killers by personally seeking out scientists and paying for research that they — laymen, not doctors — find exciting.

Furlong's Parent Project has raised over $1 million, helped fund Duchenne research centers at two major universities, and prodded a New York hospital to open a special clinic for Duchenne-stricken boys.

Cities worry about gunmaker's act

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A California gunmaker targeted in lawsuits by cities seeking to recoup the costs of gun-related violence has filed for bankruptcy protection, raising concerns that other weapons manufacturers named in the lawsuits will follow the same path to escape big payouts.

Davis Industries, a Chino, Calif.-based company that produces small, cheap handguns known as Saturday night specials, filed for Chapter 11 protection in May.

The move has alarmed attorneys representing cities that have sued Davis and more than a dozen other gunmakers.

"It's a no-win situation for everybody. The industry would basically be run by a bankrupt judge and our suits would be put on hold until the industry is reorganized by the court," said lawyer John Coale, who sued gunmakers on behalf of New Orleans, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Newark, N.J.

A call seeking comment from Davis Industries was not returned Thursday.

GOP seeks to cut capital gains tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans in Congress are assembling a sweeping tax cut plan likely to include trimming top capital gains tax rates to 10 percent, fixing the "marriage penalty" that affects millions of two-income couples and abolishing inheritance taxes.

The $778 billion, 10-year plan to be unveiled in July is intended to energize the GOP's social conservative and business supporters. It also will force Democrats to decide between tax relief's appeal and President Clinton's priorities of Social Security, Medicare and education.

"Americans are paying too much in taxes, and, as history has shown, any taxpayer money left in Washington will surely be spent," said Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Democratic tax-cutting sentiment is particularly strong in the Senate, where as many as eight of the 45 Democrats are either co-sponsoring major tax relief bills or have expressed a desire to return some of the projected $2.6 trillion budget surplus to taxpayers over the next decade.

Navy defends spending on admirals' residences

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee is criticizing the Navy for diverting $5.5 million from its operational budget to refurbish the residences of three four-star admirals. The Navy defended the spending on Thursday, but suggested the diversion would not happen again.

As a result of the dispute, the Senate voted to require the Pentagon to notify Congress in the future anytime it spends more than $25,000 on fixing up the quarters of an admiral or general.

The Senate Appropriations Committee said the Navy's decision to spend the money from its "operation and maintenance" account instead of from housing funds appeared to be "an attempt to circumvent congressional controls" on spending on the quarters of admirals and generals.

It asked congressional auditors at the General Accounting Office to look into the matter.

The Navy took money for repairs from the operation and maintenance budget because the houses are used for official functions such as receptions, a Navy spokesman, Lt. Cmdr. Lydia Robertson, said.

CLASSIFIED ADS
Classified advertising rates are based on 20 cents a word for first insertion ($4.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

Times	Rate	Min
1 day per word	.20	$4.00
2 days per word	.31	$6.20
3 days per word	.42	$8.40
4 days per word	.53	$10.60
5 days per word	.64	$12.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines — those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphs, all capital letters. Rates are $5.30 per column inch.

LEGALS
Ad rates for legal notices are $5.30 per column inch.

ERRORS
Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
• Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Supreme Court will take up states' rights issues in fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, having ended its 1998-99 term by dramatically enhancing states' political power, will confront two new states' rights disputes in October.

The justices added one of those cases Thursday in an order issued among scores of others the day after they began a three-month recess from the bench.

The court agreed to use a Vermont dispute to decide whether people can sue a state they accuse of cheating the federal government.

Vermont's lawyers contend that the Constitution and federal law bar such lawsuits against states. Lower courts rejected that argument.

The justices had agreed in January to decide, sometime in 2000, whether state employees who say they were victims of age discrimination can make a federal case of it. Consolidated cases from Florida and Alabama will yield that decision.

In other orders Thursday, the court:

- Left intact a Pakistani man's Virginia death sentence for the 1993 fatal shootings of two CIA employees outside the spy agency's headquarters. Mir Aimal Kasi had challenged his arrest by FBI agents in Pakistan following a global manhunt.

- Refused to let four Arkansas cities bar people from putting leaflets on cars parked on city streets.

- Refused to require a New York public elementary school to rent its building to a church for Sunday worship services even though the school rents the building to groups using it for nonreligious purposes.

- Carried over until the term that begins in October a potentially important Louisiana voting-rights case. At issue is how vigorously the federal government can protect minorities from election-system changes that might impede their voting power.

In the Vermont case, Jonathan Stevens was a lawyer for the state Agency of Natural Resources' water supply division when he sued the agency in 1995. He alleged that it had submitted false time records in connection with federal grant programs.

Stevens sued under the federal False Claims Act, which lets private citizens file lawsuits on the federal government's behalf alleging that someone committed fraud against the government. Private citizens whose lawsuits are successful can collect a share of any damages awarded.

Vermont officials asked a federal judge to dismiss the lawsuit, saying a state is not a "person" who can be held liable under the False Claims Act. They also invoked the protection of the Constitution's 11th Amendment, which the court has interpreted to generally bar states from being sued by individuals in federal court.

In three decisions earlier this week, the court extended the "sovereign immunity" states enjoy against lawsuits by businesses and private citizens in federal and state courts, and enhanced the states' power in relation to the federal government.

Poet's Corner accepts poems of any form or style to 40 lines. All submissions should include the poet's name. Poems may be delivered to The Brand, 313 N. Lee, or mailed to P.O. Box 673, Hereford 79045.

Iowa straw poll may sort out wheat, chaff

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Dan Quayle is lining up Indiana college students for an Iowa "poll the nation will see." Lamar Alexander's camp says the straw poll could be the "last opportunity" for his struggling campaign. George W. Bush has enlisted interest groups to bus in backers.

The 12,000 or so activists who show up for the Iowa Republican straw poll Aug. 14 won't pick any delegates, but they could well narrow the field of serious candidates for the party's presidential nomination.

"It will give some structure to the field, deciding who is a contender and who is a pretender," said Brian Kennedy, who runs former Tennessee Gov. Alexander's campaign.

"I think it is a do-or-die event for some candidates," said Greg Mueller, a consultant allied with publisher

Steve Forbes.

The lengths candidates are going to be detailed in campaign memos leaked by rivals.

Texas Gov. Bush is tapping various trade organizations to bring in Iowans to increase his showing.

In a memo to students at Huntington College in Indiana, a Quayle supporter offers students from the former vice president's home state free travel to Ames, Iowa, 500 miles away, for the poll.

"All presidential candidates will be there and the Quayles want you to be there also to show our support," says the memo.

Only Iowans can vote, however, and state GOP executive director Dee Stewart said all IDs will be checked. Quayle spokesman Jonathan Baron said students would come as volunteer organizers, not voters.

Joseph Rodgers, a major Alexander supporter, sent out a fund-raising letter saying the campaign needs $1 million "by the end of this month" to compete in the straw poll.

"This is the last opportunity we will have to give Lamar a chance to prove a lot of people wrong," Rodgers wrote on campaign letterhead.

With a large and unruly field seeking the GOP nomination, there's some hunger for clarity. Those who fare poorly could find attention hard to get and money scarce as the contenders move closer to February caucuses that open the presidential nominating season.

"The campaigns that finish in the top three are going to be the ones who are taken seriously as we move toward the caucus process," said Stewart.

MS BeefaThon to be Sunday

Special to The Brand

AMARILLO — The Panhandle Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society will hold the 29th Annual MS "BeefaThon" from noon until 5:30 p.m. Sunday, with the proceeds benefitting the Panhandle Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The chapter generates approximately $45,000 from the BeefaThon, a 5½-hour televised auction on KFDA News Channel 10. The auction is unique because it targets the beef industry, and the Panhandle Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society is the only chapter in the nation to hold an event of this kind.

Area cattle feedyards and ranchers donate beef that will be sold both in custom-cut quarters and ground beef packages. Melvin Edes of Edes' Custom Meats and Swisher Meats will process cattle and also package the beef quarters according to the custom orders. There is an additional charge of 25 cents per pound to Edes' Meats or Swisher Meats for the custom cutting of the beef. Extra-lean ground beef is sold in 15-pound lots at a set price of $30.

Local merchants donate services and items to be auctioned throughout the day. Items valued at $300 or more, and original works of art will be on the Super Board and will be presented throughout the 5½ hours. Other items will be presented during each 40-minute segment on the blue, green and yellow Boards. This year's Super Board includes artwork by regional artists Ben Konis, Danny Gamble, Manuel Franco, R. Russell Brown, James Haney, Ken Cargle, Pris Middleton and other local artists, and services and merchandise from local businesses.

News personalities from KFDA News Channel 10 will be the hosts for this year's auction. Other on-air hosts will include Mary Lyn Halley from KGNC FM98; Bedford Forrest, a long-time farm and ranch reporter; Allen Shankles of the Amarillo Little Theatre; Michael Callahan and Brad Jones from Northwest Texas Healthcare System, as well as other local dignitaries and National MS Society volunteers.

Phones will be open noon-6 p.m. to accept bids.

This year's auction will be aired from the Northwest Texas Healthcare System Pavilion Auditorium. The phone number for placing bids is 463-BEEF (2333) or for long distance call 1-877-287-BEEF (2333).

Why in the world is the Death Tax still alive?

VOTERS SAY IT'S BAD

77% would vote for a member of Congress who supported the repeal of the Estate Tax (which is really a Death Tax).<sup>1</sup>

COMMUNITIES SAY IT'S BAD

The Death Tax is a leading cause of why family farms and businesses go under - leading to thousands of layoffs across America.<sup>2</sup>

EXPERTS SAY IT'S BAD

For every $1 taken from a family owned business to pay Estate Taxes, another $1 is wasted in order to prepare and comply with the tax.<sup>3</sup>

BUSINESSES SAY IT'S BAD

96% of manufacturing firms and 90% of minority-owned firms feel that the Estate Tax impedes their long-term business growth.<sup>4</sup>

CONGRESS SAYS IT'S BAD

The Joint Economic Committee found that the costs to collect the tax are roughly equivalent to what it takes in - a little over 1% of the federal budget.<sup>5</sup>

America gets it. You get it. Get your legislator to get it.

Congress can start this year by initiating the phase out of this obsolete and erroneous tax. Ask Congress to support Estate Tax cuts. Call, write, e-mail or fax your local US Senator or US Congressional Representative today. U.S. Capitol 1-202-224-3121. Or, Get to www.deathtax.com for mailing addresses.
