Clinton's fee offer draws fire

 Judge ruled president in contempt for proving false testimony in case

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Paula Jones' lawyers contend that President Clinton's proposal for what he should pay to resolve the civil contempt citation against him is inad-

In documents filed Tuesday, John W. Whitehead and the Rutherford Institute said the sanctions proposed by Clinton "would do precious little to redress" his misconduct.

U.S. District Judge Susan Webber Wright found Clinton in contempt in April for giving intentionally false testimony about his relationship with Monica Lewinsky during his January 1998 deposition in Mrs. Jones' sexual harassment case.

The judge then ordered Clinton to pay Mrs. Jones' lawyers any "reasonable" expenses they incurred as a result of his false testimony. The lawyers have asked the court to order Clinton to pay almost $500,000.

Clinton's lawyers on May 21 proposed that the president pay $33,737 to the court and other attorneys for Mrs. Jones, and nothing to Whitehead and the Rutherford Institute, a conservative legal group.

Clinton's attorneys said the request from Mrs. Jones' side was unreasonable and "bears no relationship to the actions that gave rise" to the contempt order. Clinton attorney Robert Bennett also argued that the institute provided no legal services to Mrs. Jones, performing only fund-raising and public-relations tasks.

Mrs. Jones' attorneys contended in Tuesday's filing that the institute provided services that her other attorneys could not handle alone.

Any payment would be in addition to the $850,000 Clinton has already paid Mrs. Jones to settle the sexual harassment case without admitting wrongdoing. Clinton denies any wrongdoing and has said he settled the case simply to bring an end to a public crisis.

Friona plant works to keep safety first

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

FRIONA -- In a day when industrial waste, environmental hazards and food recalls make big news, a local plant is setting the standard when it comes to state and federal safety rules.

It has been more than 20 years since Excel Friona has had a major spill or leak. And, part of the reason for this sterling record is the plant's continuous safety training of its employees.

Tuesday afternoon, plant officials recognized the work and effort of the employees have put into becoming a leader in safety.

Excel, which counts nearly 600 Hereford residents among its work force, has one of the best safety and hazardous materials safety programs in the nation.

"We outdo every OSHA (Occupational Safety Health Administration) standard, every state and federal regulation. And our employees are responsible," said Bill McIntosh, process safety management coordinator Excel has recently purchased a discontinued ambulance from Friona Fire Department which, after being refurbished and refitted, now serves as the official HazMet truck. This vehicle will respond to all hazardous materials calls, should one come in.

New home sales climb of new homes climbed to the second highest level on record in April, increasing a surprisingly strong 9.2 percent, the government said today.

The Commerce Department reported that the increase in sales of new single-family homes followed four straight months of de-

Analysts had expected a fifth straight decline in April, contending that rising mortgage rates were cooling off what had been a red hot housing market.

The new report showed strong sales in every region of the country except the West. The strong activity pushed sales of new homes to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 978,000 units last month, the second highest level on record. The alltime high was a sales rate of 985,000 units set last November.

The housing industry has been one of the main beneficiaries of the country's current good economic times. The lowest unemployment rate in three decades, record high levels of consumer confidence and low interest rates pushed new home sales to an 11-year high last year.

Analysts have been predicting a slowdown in this sector because mortgage rates have been creeping up in recent weeks. A national survey of mortgage rates showed them hitting 7.23 percent for the past two weeks, the highest level in 18 months.

Existing home sales did decline in April by 3.3 percent, but that drop was from a record high set in March.

The report on new home sales showed that the surge in demand was accompanied by a rise in prices. The median price of all new homes sold last month climbed 3 percent to a record $159,500. .

The average sales price rose 3.7 percent to a record as well of

All regions of the country except the West enjoyed strong increases in sales last month.

Sales surged 33.5 percent to an annual rate of 211,000 units in the Midwest. Sales were up 17.1 percent to a rate of 89,000 units in the Northeast and climbed 7.5 percent to a rate of 429,000 units in the South.

Teamsters, car haulers reach pact

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) - After all-night negotiations, the Teamsters union and companies that haul new cars to dealerships nationwide said today they have reached a tentative settlement in a labor contract dis-

A final agreement expected later today would avert a threatened strike, subject to ratification of the contract by union members.

Among major union goals in the negotiations, which ran more than a day past the original strike deadline, has been better pensions for drivers who choose to retire after 25 years

The trucking companies have demanded they be allowed to pay newly hired drivers less and hire some part-time — flexibility they say they need to keep competitive with nonunion haulers.

Teamsters President James P. Hoffa had said the union would strike rather than give in to those

However, Hoffa also had said negotiators were aiming "to develop a win-win" agreement that would keep union jobs secure by helping the trucking companies stay competitive and gain new business transporting used cars as well as new ones.

Teamsters spokesman Chip Roth said late Tuesday that the union had agreed to "terms in some locations throughout the country that allow for scheduling changes that will provide the companies some flexibility." He declined to give specifics.

to go further, I want to save some money," he said.

Bush raised nearly $8 million between January and April while he was busy pushing tax cuts and school initiatives through the Texas legislature. The figure put him far ahead of the GOP pack - and he did it without spending a single day on the campaign trail.

With the legislative session concluded, and Bush preparing to mount his first campaign swing next week, aides say he should raise at least $8 million more in the second quarter ending June 30.

News in brief

Father, daughter indicted on perjury

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A South Texas man and his daughter aren't riding so high on the hog anymore. A judge in South Texas sentenced Scott Warren Cornelius and Cammy Cornelius to probation after they pleaded guilty to lying about the theft of Ms. Cornelius' prize pig. Cornelius, of Agua Dulce, was sentenced to three years' probation and fined $3,000 for aggravated perjury, officials said. His daughter was sentenced to one year of probation and a $1,000 fine for perjury.

The father and daughter were indicted last year on charges of third-degree organized criminal activity. Both were accused of lying to a Washington County grand jury investigating the possible theft of Ms. Cornelius' pig.

The pig had been sold to a commercial buyer during the annual Houston Livestock Show in Brenham last year, but resurfaced two weeks after its sale at a San Angelo livestock show. The castrated male pig won grand champion honors and a $4,000 prize at the show.

Statewide rules adopted by the major livestock shows allow pigs to be shown once, Washington County District Attorney Charles Sebesta told the Corpus Christi Caller-

Once the pigs are entered, they become property of the show and are sold to commercial buyers for slaughter only. The rule prevents people from buying show hogs and entering them in other shows, he said.

"It's important that all kids participating in the 4-H and FFA programs in this state be allowed to play on a level playing field," he said.

Trial dates for three other defendants allegedly involved in the scheme are expected to be set later this summer.

School district claims race track

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Bandera School District has been cleared to take over the defunct Bandera Downs racetrack although an appeals court says the purchase was "a virtual thumbing of its nose at taxpayers.

The 4th Court of Appeals Tuesday overturned a district court decision blocking the purchase, but it took note of Bandera School District residents' 1996 vote opposing a bond issue that included funds to pay for the horse track.

"The appeals court has ruled that the board did act within its authority and within the law (in successfully bidding for the property)," Superintendent Gus "Skip" Pfeiffer said Tuesday. "We won't be able to do anything major on the property without a bond package."

Pfeiffer said any further action also would depend upon whether the 4th Court's decision is appealed to the Texas Supreme Court.

The decision involves a suit brought by Bandera County resident Al Hamilton, who now is a member of the district's board, questioning the legality of the school system's Feb. 3, 1998, purchase of the track for $1.475 million at a tax

Neither Hamilton nor his attorney, Richard Mosty of Kerrville, could be reached for comment Tuesday, the San Antonio Express-News reported.

State District Judge Murray Jordan ruled April 6, 1998, that the school district failed to provide a 60-day public notice of its intent to buy the track. Jordan also held that the district was prohibited from bidding more than the $383,000 owed by the track in delinquent taxes.

The board purchased the 135-acre track, which has been closed since 1995, with money from the district's reserve fund of $2.9 million.

Bandera voters overwhelmingly rejected a $15 million bond package that included $3 million for the purchase of a track to handle student overcrowding in November 1996.

Board members proposed that the track and its facilities could be turned into another campus for the district.

The district has about 2,400 students and uses three portable buildings at the high school and one at each of its two elementary schools.

Cowtown to celebrate anniversary

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Yee-hah! It's Cowtown's sesquicentennial!

Festivities starting Thursday for the city's 150th anniversary include musical tributes, historical displays and initiation of a daily cattle drive through the street. "It's a great excuse to have a party," Fort Worth Mayor

Kenneth Barr said. "As cities go we are not an old city, but for this part of the country, 150 years is a long time." The city was founded as a military post on June 6, 1849, by the U.S. Army's Co. F, 2nd Dragoons. The fort was named for commanding Gen. William Jenkins Worth. The city became known as Cowtown because of its roots in the cattle industry. Several of the anniversary events will take place in the city's Stockyards area, now a tourist destination.

BIPARTISAN BUSH: Gov. George W. Bush has declared the 1999 Texas Legislature a bipartisan success and says he wants to move on into the partisan world of presidential politics. The Republican governor, who polls show as the GOP front runner, has already scheduled campaign trips to Iowa, New Hampshire and 10 other states this month.

High-tech devices aid drug officers money for the program.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Customs inspectors peering into the tractor trailer at the Colombia-Solidarity Bridge along the U.S. border saw nothing more threatening than a cargo load of cookies. But after passing the truck through an X-ray machine the size of a car wash, agents caught a look at the real treat stashed in the truck: more than 5,600 pounds of marijuana.

The $7.8 million bust in February at the bridge near Laredo, Texas, offers just one glimpse of how officials along the border and in local communities are taking advantage of advanced technology to outsmart drug traffickers and criminals. "We're not out to push the state-of-the-art for its own sake," says Ray Mintz, director of the applied technology division of the U.S. Customs Service.

But with such tools as a thermal imaging camera no bigger than the average camcorder - police officers can find out whether someone is growing marijuana at home or is handing someone a baggie containing narcotics. They can even do it in the dark. The thermal camera equipment relies on very slight differences in temperature to create an image with light and dark contrasts. The tool is so sensitive it can detect a change of a quarter of a degree. So if a suspect carrying drugs decided to rid himself of the evidence, the drugs still warm from being close to his body - would show up a different shade than the screen background. Greenhouse-like lights needed to produce marijuana inside a home give off excess heat that the camera picks up. The device has made work less precarious for police officers in Brownsville, Texas, who patrol the border and sometimes face gunfire from smugglers bringing in marijuana at night.

"Usually, they can see us before we see them," said Ben Reyna, chief of the Brownsville police. "Now, we're starting to turn that around."

The thermal camera is the most requested item in the Office of National Drug Control Policy's technology transfer program. Funded by Congress since 1998, the program gives state and local police, like Reyna's unit, advanced equipment from the federal government. More than 110 of the $13,000 cameras have been provided to law enforcement officials nationwide.

"We know these systems work, and we know the cops needs these tools," said Barry McCaffrey, the administration's drug control policy director. He is seeking more

X-rays detect hidden panels, illegal stashes Other innovations have focused on the same goal of giving law enforcement a better and faster glimpse of a situation. Wearing a tactical video device mounted on a black-armored vest, officers on a drug interdiction team can run through a home and give teammates sitting in a van outside an exact peek at the inside layout and any possible suspects.

Developed for the U.S. Coast Guard, the 6-pound equipment set features a camera the size of a grapefruit atop the vest's shoulder. A communications system is tucked into a pocket on the back. Color images that can be encrypted are transmitted to PCs at another location.

The U.S. Customs service still relies on its mainstay -X-rays — to inspect drugs or other smuggled goods. But these systems use four or more times as much energy as the machines that scan luggage at the airport.

The cargo X-ray machine along the Southwest border can scan a 40-foot truck in minutes. A driver brings his truck onto a moving platform, where the vehicle is dragged between two X-ray systems looking for hidden

The machines — which cost about $3.5 million each can catch fake walls or other compartments stashed with illegal drugs. One tractor passing through the X-ray at the Bridge of the Americas in El Paso was found to have several hundred pounds of co-caine concealed in its front tires.

With seven such systems in place, Customs officials conducted 57,000 examinations in fiscal year 1998, seizing 23,000 pounds of drugs, Mintz said. By August, railroad cars crossing the border at Laredo will pass through a similar system.

A minibuster density meter - about the size of a chalkboard eraser — also helps to detect whether drugs might be hidden in surfaces.

OWEN ANDREWS

June 1, 1999 Services for long-time Hereford resident Owen Andrews, 91, will be 10 a.m. Thursday at the Parkside Chapel Funeral Home with Rev. Larry Perkins officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Parkside Chapel Funeral Home.

Mr. Andrews died June 1, 1999, at his home.

He was born in Montague County, Sept. 7, 1908, the oldest of six children, to Joe (J.E.) and Bernice Benson Andrews.

The extended families of Andrews and Benson moved to Comanche, Okla. about 1910, and then moved to Wellington in 1917 before making a final move to the Frio Community of Hereford 10 years later.

In August 1930, Mr. Andrews and his family became some of the original charter members of the Frio Baptist Church.

Andrews married Georgia Sparkman, the daughter of Thomas L. and Lora Springer Sparkman who were also charter members of the Frio

Baptist Church, on March 7, 1931. The Andrews made their home six miles south of Hereford on Star Route until 1962, when they moved to their present home four miles south of Hereford.

Mr. Andrews was one of the early irrigation farmers, in this area. He drilled a 100foot deep well in Jan. 1935, and used a Johnson pump with 10-inch pipe to pump 1,200 gallons per minute. The well cost $1,450, and the motor, a six-cylinder IHC cost $450 and burned natural gas. Jacobson Bros. Welding shop made the casing from flat steel, a procedure they had never tried before. But at Andrews' insistence they rolled their first pipe - a skill that would later become an important part of their business.

The irrigation water pumped from the well was, for the first several years, distributed from ditches and changed every three hours.

In those early days, farmers worked together and swapped work with each other to get the farming done. Mr. Andrews had a thrashing machine and the neighbors all formed a thrashing crew to do the work for all of their farming operations.

Mr. Andrews grew potatoes in the early 1940s, but also began growing cotton in 1947 after C.N. McClure grew his first crop on the neighboring J.E. Warrick farm. That cotton was hauled to southern Castro County to be ginned, since there was no gin in Deaf Smith county at that time.

And with that 1947 cotton crop, the Andrews' farm missed few (if any) cotton production years.

Some of the families that contributed to the Andrews' farming business included; J.H. Dobbs, Jim Brooks, A.H. Brown, W.H. Andrews, Herb and Leonard Schmidt, and George Zetzsche. Andrews was preceded in death by 'his mother in 1961;

his father in 1962; a brother Henry in 1985; two sisters, Alma in 1990 and Mattie King in 1999. He is survived by his wife Georgia, of the home; three sons, Clark of Hereford; Glen of Carthage, Mo. and Joe of Egeland, N.D.; two daughters, Veradelle Bruns and Frances Zetzsche, both of Amarillo; 19 grandchildren; 33 great-grandchildren; and two sisters, Ruby Sparkman of Hereford and Elsie Jones of Canyon.

SUSAN BEACH FISH May 27, 1999 COTTON CENTER - Memorial services for Susan Beach Fish, 42, of Cotton Center were Monday at Center Plains Memorial Chapel, with Rev. Ted Taylor, pastor of First Church of the Nazarene, Hereford, officiating. Burial was in Center Plains Cemetery, under the direction of Freeman-Abell Funeral Home in Hale Center.

Mrs. Fish was born in Lubbock and graduated from Cotton Center High School. She was a dental assistant for Dr. Baldwin in Plainview and had worked with the senior center in both Hereford and Hale Center. She was active in horse riding clubs and Turff Therapy.

She married David Fish in 1994 in Hereford.

Survivors include her husband; two daughters, Kara and Lauren Thurman, both of Cotton Center; her parents, Earl and Sue Beach of Terlingua; two brothers, Bill Beach of Dallas and Gary Beach of Richardson.

The family suggests memorials be made to MADD, 3311 81st Street or Turff Therapy, 83rd and Martin Luther King

Ann Landers

Dear Ann

Landers: I

am 25 years and have had an obsession with vacuuming for many years. I usually vacuum three times a day, seven days a week. Whenever I feel stressed or nervous, I start my vacuum. I also feel anxious when I have company and the floors don't have those neat vacuum tracks. I can't stand to have any dirt or mess on the floor. The strange thing is that I am not as meticulous in other areas. It doesn't bother me if my closets or drawers are a mess.

Do you know what could be causing this strange behavior? It is driving me and my family nuts. - Vacuum Crazed in South Carolina

Dear V.C. in S.C.: You are exhibiting classic symptoms of obsessive-compulsive behavior. It has little to do with your desire to be neat or meticulous. Please seek professional help, and get to the core of what is really bothering you. It is probably some unresolved problem you haven't been willing to face.

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for reprinting the letter from "D.S. in Adel, Iowa" about drunk drivers. We are all responsible for looking out for those around us. You said, "If a friend of yours is drunk, be a REAL friend, and drive him or her home. That's the greatest gift you can give."

As the administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, it is my duty to make the roads safer for all Americans. For the past five years, we have worked with the Advertising Council on the highly successful "Innocent Victims" public service campaign to raise awareness of the problem of drunk driving. Courageous family members have stepped forward to participate in the campaign and spread the word: Friends Don't Let Friends Drive

Drunk. Last year, that message was amended to include an intervention message: Get the Keys. The campaign is designed to encourage action and involvement when you see someone who has had too much to drink get behind the wheel.

I would like to hear from your readers how THEY stopped someone from driving drunk. Hearing how others have stopped a friend, family member or even a total stranger from driving drunk can help people learn how they, too, can intervene. Ricardo Martinez, M.D., administrator, NHTSA, Washington, D.C.

Dear Dr. Martinez: Thanks for a letter that is going to save lives. And how, dear readers, please write and tell me how you stopped a drunk from getting behind the wheel. I'll print the most compelling letters.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago, after 21 years of marriage, my husband told me he didn't love me anymore and wasn't sure he ever did. I was shocked and heartbroken. "Ernie" refused to go for counseling, so I went on my own. I wanted to give our marriage every chance, not only for me but for our two sons.

It's been a year since Ernie moved out. Every evening, he calls to say goodnight. Whenever we see each other, he kisses me hello and goodbye. He still hasn't told his friends he doesn't live here. When they telephone, I say, "Ernie isn't home right now," because I just can't bring myself to tell them otherwise.

Ernie doesn't want to fix our marriage or spend time alone with me, yet he refuses to discuss divorce or reconciliation. If he doesn't want me anymore, why won't he let me go so I can make a life with someone else? I still love Ernie. I hate to give up on him, but I cannot stand living in limbo. I am 44 and don't want to spend my life alone. What can I do? - Still Married in New York

Dear N.Y.: You can give Ernie an ultimatum. He has 30 days to decide whether he wants to go for joint counseling and move back in the house, or you call a divorce lawyer. Put the ball squarely in his court.

Hall is Boys State delegate

Riley Hall has been appointed delegate to the American Legion Boys State, Department of Texas to be held June 5-11 at the University of Texas at Austin, according to Roger Eades, vice commander of American Legion Post 192 in Hereford.

He is the son of Scott and Lori Hall of Hereford.

To be eligible for appointment as a Boys State delegate, the candidate must be a male high school student who has successfully completed his junior year and been recommended by his school officials.

To be selected as a delegate, a candidate must demonstrate a sincere desire to attend, strong leadership abilities, outstanding scholastic achievement, good character, competitive spirit and ability to work with others.

The American Legion believes there is no better way to assure the survival of our republic than to train our young people in the ideals and objectives of American government; therefore, Boys State was developed from two concepts.

First, it should offer youth a better perspective of the practical operation of government. Second, the individual is an integral part and commensurately responsible for the character and success of his government.

Boys State is an activity of high educational value, born out of a need for youth training in practical citizenship. It is a

Aggie Moms honor students

The Golden Spread Aggie Moms met for an icecream social Sunday afternoon, May 23, at Terri Johnson's home in Hereford. President Rita McDaniel of Dimmitt welcomed members and guests.

Diane Townsend of Dimmitt, scholarship committee chairperson, introduced Brynne Bryant, daughter of Beverly and John David Bryant, as recipient of one of the club's scholarships to incoming Texas A&M freshmen. Absent was Carey Lyles, son of Evelyn and Charles Lyles, the second $500 scholarship recipient.

Other students present who will be attending Texas A&M for the 1999/2000 academic year were Amy Perrin and Meredith McGowan of Hereford, and Christina Fierro of Coronado Acres. Their mothers were invited to join the Golden Spread Aggie Moms McDaniel introduced and expressed gratitude to incoming and outgoing officers as well as departing members Johnson and Denise Teel. Johnson explained the club's role and activities, which support area Texas A&M students.

McDaniel presented a paperweight featuring the senior class seal to Texas A&M University senior Moriah Olson, daughter of Ginger and Steve Olson of Hereford. Other seniors not in attendance who will receive paperweights are Brooke Bryant, daughter of Beverly and John David Bryant of Hereford, and Coby Fangman, son of Karen and Donnie Fangman of Hereford.

Aggie Mom Teel of Hereford announced that her daughter Trisha Teel White received her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. Aggie Mom Virginia Artho of Hereford announced that her son Jeremy Artho received his Bachelor of Science in Aerospace Engineering.

Other current and former A&M students in attendance were Aimee Alley, Jill Johnson, Wade Johnson, Sy Olson, and Shelia Wagner with husband D.J.

Present to share "Aggie brags" were members Eileen Alley and husband Larry, Artho and husband Eddie, Beverly Bryant, Johnson, Ginger Olson with husband Steve and daughter Joanna, Carla Scott, Teel and husband Jerry, all of Hereford, and McDaniel and Dianne Townsend with husband Carter, all of Dimmitt. Other guests in-cluded Lucy McGowan and Susan Perrin of Hereford, and Santos Fierro of Coronado Acres.

The Golden Spread Aggie Moms support of Texas A&M students also includes special needs networking and care packages. Any Texas A&M mother interested in joining the Golden Spread Aggie Moms may contact Rita McDaniel of Dimmitt, 647-5522, or Evelyn Lyles, 364-8245, and Virginia Artho, 364-5429, of Hereford.

cers tie Knicks, 1-1

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) -Reggie Miller has beaten the New York Knicks so many times in so many ways. Choke signs and clutch shots. Twenty-five-point quarters and 3-pointers from Spike Lee's lap.

So it was no surprise that it was Miller doing the Knicks in again. It was the way he did it that was a stunner.

After being a nonfactor all night, Miller made two free throws with two seconds left Tuesday night to give the Indiana Pacers an 88-86 victory over the Knicks. The victory was huge, evening the Eastern Conference finals at

"We're very fortunate to be in this position, but I'm happy with the way we gutted it out," Miller said. "No one ever said it was going to be easy, and we're going to have our hands full, but we feel very good about ourselves."

Only seven teams have come back from a 2-0 deficit to win a seven-game series, and only two, the 1994 Houston Rockets and 1969 Los Angeles Lakers, made such a comeback after losing the first two games at home.

Game 3 in the best-of-7 series will be Saturday at Madison Square Garden.

And while the Knicks, the first No. 8 seed ever to make a conference final, should be thrilled with taking one at home from the Pacers, they're not. This game was won with ticky-tack fouls, Chris Childs said. The Knicks were whistled for 40 fouls, while Indiana was called for 28.

"This is a game for the people, the fans and the players — and it wasn't that tonight," Childs said. "It ain't no moral victory. I'm not trying to hear that. We won this game. We should have won."

The Knicks came close. The Pacers blew a 17-point lead and after a 19-2 run, New York had a 78-72 lead with 8:29 left. But Jalen Rose scored seven points as Indiana went on a 12-2 run to give the Pacers an 84-80 lead with 3:04 left.

Ewing hit a jumper, and Marcus Camby's 3-pointer tied the game with 1:21 left. Then Ewing put the Knicks ahead with two free throws. But after Antonio Davis' jumper tied it again with 31 seconds left, Camby was called for charging. Then it was Miller

Miller had 14 points up to then, a respectable number for most people, but not for Miller. Especially not against the Knicks. He was 3-for-11 from the floor, and just 1-of-

4 from 3-point range. But he was still Indiana's go-to guy, so when he got the ball, he held it outside the 3point line as the seconds ticked away before faking Childs off his feet. Miller, the league's leading free-throw shooter at 91.5 percent, went to the line.

Patrick Ewing had one last chance to tie, but he missed a turnaround jumper at the buzzer.

They got calls all night. It didn't matter who it was," said Childs, who insisted he never touched Miller. "We took their best shot. The only way they scored was free throws. That's the only way they can score against us. That's the only way."

Well, not the only way. Mark Jackson rebounded from a subpar Game 1 and led the Pacers with 17 points, while Dale Davis added 15 and Rose 13. Indiana also forced 20 turnovers and held the Knicks scoreless for about five minutes in the fourth quarter.

Larry Johnson scored 22 points to lead New York before fouling out with 4:58 left. Childs and Chris Dudley also fouled out, while Camby fin-ished with five fouls and Ewing, Charlie Ward and Kurt Thomas had four apiece.

"When your best players are sitting over there with you, it's not a great feeling," Knicks coach Jeff Van Gundy said. "I thought in the second half it became more of a normal NBA playoff game. I thought the first half was very unique."

Ward picked up two personals in the first four minutes, and Childs drew three personals and a technical in the next four minutes. With the Knicks so short-handed, the Pacers built up a 17-point lead on free throws from guess who? - Miller with 1:55 left in the first half.

Johnson, who'd kept the Knicks from being blown out, went on his own little minirun, scoring six points and getting the assist on Latrell Sprewell's basket to narrow Indiana's lead to 57-46 at halftime. Johnson finished the half with 17 points.

in over Colorado Stars force seventh game with 4

DENVER (AP) - The Western Conference finals will be decided by a one-game showdown between two of the NHL's most talented teams. Neither seems ready to blink.

Dallas and Colorado will need a Game 7 to determine the West's best after the Stars forced the series back to Texas with a 4-1 victory over the Avalanche on Tuesday night.

Like the previous five games, Game 6 was still in doubt in the third period before the Stars scored three goals, two of them by Jamie Langenbrunner.

"I dreamed of playing a Game 7 as a kid," said Dallas goalie Ed Belfour, looking 8-1 on the road. ahead to the decisive game Friday night in Dallas. "I always won.

The winner will advance to the Eastern Conference champion Buffalo Sabres.

Belfour, trying to shed his reputation for collapsing in the playoffs, was stellar Tuesday night. He kept the Stars in the game long enough for Langenbrunner to put the Avalanche away.

Langenbrunner, who had only 12 goals in the regular season, scored his seventh and eighth goals of the playoffs, including the third game-win-for sure," Langenbrunner said. "You play the game to score goals. That's what you dream about playing in your basement.

After giving up 10 goals in two straight losses, the Stars avoided their first three-game losing streak of the season by playing more like the team that won the Presidents' Trophy for having the best record in the NHL.

Belfour's strong play and Dallas' persistent attack were enough for the Stars to earn one more game at home. They are 6-2 at Reunion Arena in the playoffs - with both losses coming in this series. Colorado is 3-6 at home, but grabs."

"There's no easy road to the Stanley Cup," Avalanche coach Bob Hartley said. "This round is a classic example. the Stanley Cup finals against It's going down to the seventh game and we like our chances. We're a good road team, and I think we'll be there."

our same old mistakes. Every game we lose, the next day in the papers we read all the same quotes.

The Avalanche appeared poised to win their third straight Game 6 of the playoffs, opening a 1-0 lead late in the first period on a goal by Claude Lemieux. Dallas tied it on a goal by Jere Lehtinen in the second, setting up a sudden-death atmosphere.

"I don't see any advantage between these two teams,' Dallas coach Ken Hitchcock said. "Every game goes down to the last 10 minutes. It's unbelievable. It's up for Hitchcock wouldn't mind getting another performance performed well in adverse from Belfour like the one he got Tuesday night. After giving up the first goal, Belfour stopped everything coming his way and finished with 26 saves. Finally, Langenbrunner broke the 1-1 tie when he poked home a rebound on Joe Nieuwendyk's shot from the slot at 6:49.

"I made a great first save," Colorado goalie Patrick Roy said. "I think it hit a stick wasting a 3-2 series lead for and then the stick of Langenbrunner was under me into the empty net."

breakaway chance 10 minutes later, Langenbrunner added another goal with a wide-open flip on a power play with 2:45 remaining.

The score came after Lemieux was penalized for charging into Belfour. "The third goal was a sigh of relief," Hitchcock said. "I finally got my hands out of my pockets."

Hitchcock exhaled further when Richard Matvichuk, whom the Avalanche have accused of dirty play throughout the series, added his first goal of the postseason to put the game out of reach with 2:31 left.

"We've done this all year," Hitchcock said. "We've always

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 20 cents a word for first insertion ($4.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

Rate	Min
.20	$4.00
.31	$6.20
.42	$8.40
.53	$10.60
.64	$12.80
	.20 .31 .42 .53

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines -- those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphs, all capital letters. Rates are $5.30 per column inch.

LEGALS Ad rates for legal notices are $5.30 per column inch.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately af-ter the first insertion. We will not be respon-sible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an addi-tional insertion will be published.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints: · Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

· Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

VICE PRESIDENT AL GORE Sees support of women as key to successful campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) -Vice President Al Gore hopes support from women, includ-ing the wife of the man he wants to succeed, will energize female voters to rally behind his bid for the Democratic presidential nomina-

Hillary Rodham Clinton said she supports him because no one has fought harder or will continue to fight harder for children and families than Gore.

"Helping families meet the new challenges of today and tomorrow is at the heart of not only this administration but really at the heart of Al Gore," she told several hundred women at a rally Tuesday at a downtown hotel.

Gore said the so-called women's issues that he supports, improved child care and education and equal pay, affect children and families,

"Women deserve a president who gets that," he said. Women are expected to play a pivotal role in the 2000 elections, and Gore wants to inherit the support President Clinton has enjoyed among them. Clinton's focus on family issues helped him win the women's vote 55 percent to 37 percent in 1996.

But in a head-to-head matchup with Texas Gov. George W. Bush, the Republican leader in early presidential polls, Gore trailed among women in late May by 52 percent to 42 percent in a CNN/USA Today/Gallup poll.

Women were about equally split in that poll on whether Gore has the vision to solve the nation's problems. By a 50 percent to 32 percent margin, they said they were less likely to vote for Gore if Clinton actively supports and campaigns for him.

At the rally, Gore talked about his pride in cosponsoring, as a senator, the first bill signed into law under the Clinton-Gore administration

— the Family and Medical Leave Act. The law gives workers up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave to care for a new child, a seriously ill rela-

Dissidents remember Tiananmen Square massacre of 1989

BEIJING (AP) - China appealed to citizens today not to stir up trouble over Friday's 10th anniversary of the crushing of the Tiananmen Square democracy protests even as dissidents intensified their demands for redress.

In a rare direct mention of the 1989 movement, the ruling Communist Party's leading newspaper accused Western governments and the dissidents of trying to foment discord to weaken China.

"The firm and resolute suppression of the political turmoil in Beijing in the spring and summer of 1989 was extremely timely and completely necessary to preserve the country's independence, dignity, security and stability," People's Daily said in a front-page commentary.

is to charge a crime," said the court decision. The judges were Stephen Williams and Laurence Silberman, Republican appointees, and David Tatel, a Clinton appointee.

"Hubbell's ... argument that the indictment fails to give sufficient notice because it provides too much detail is, to be charitable, unconvincing," the court added.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. -Religious broadcaster Pat Robertson, who lost up to $7 million in a failed diamondmining venture in the former Zaire this decade, is involved in a gold mine project in another African country.

Liberian President Charles Taylor has reached a mineral development agreement with Robertson's Freedom Gold Ltd., based at Robertson's Christian Broadcasting Network headquarters in Virginia

The for-profit company was incorporated in the Cayman Islands last December. Robertson is the company's president and sole director.

If the agreement is ratified by the Liberian legislature, the Liberian government will get a 10 percent equity interest in the company and Liberians will be offered the opportunity to purchase at least 15 percent of the shares after an exploration period, said Joseph Mathews, vice president of Freedom Gold.

The mining company has no connection to Robertson's television ministry, Mathews said. He said Robertson wants to help "kick-start" Liberia's economy, which has been shattered by years of civil war.

Prosecutors look at Houston lawyer's role in tobacco case

DALLAS (AP) - Federal prosecutors have subpoenaed Texas Attorney General John Cornyn's records on the role of a Houston lawyer in the state's tobacco case, according to published reports today.

The subpoena is the first eral officials are investigating efforts by former Attor-ney General Dan Morales to have attorney Marc D. Murr paid hundreds of millions of dollars for his role in Texas' historic $17.3 billion settle-

Murr is now waiving all claims to any money in the case, his lawyer said.

Sources speaking on condition of anonymity told The industry officials said they

Associated Press last month that the FBI has been comparing computer hard-drive data to papers to determine whether Morales backdated four contracts and letters to make it appear Murr was involved in the case longer than he really was.

However, federal authorities continue to refuse to publicly confirm or comment on their investigation.

The subpoena was issued May 20, but not released until Tuesday in Austin. A public records request brought the document to light, The Dallas Morning News and the Houston Chronicle reported in today's editions.

Cornyn said the subpoena is "hard evidence" that grand jurors are going to try to determine "if allegations of civil fraud rise to the level of criminal fraud."

Also on Tuesday, tobacco received an $82,000 check from Murr, reimbursing the companies for money they've paid him as part of a $1 million award from a national award panel last year.

The check was accompanied by a one-page letter stating that Murr now waives any claim to the money, which was set to be paid out during the next 30 years, The Morning News said.

Murr's lawyer, Austin at-torney Roy Minton, said his firm returned the money for Murr. He told the newspaper that Murr has ended all efforts to get payments for his role in the tobacco case and won't ask for additional ately return a phone call from The Associated Press. In the past, Morales has denied all allegations of wrongdoing and said the accusations are politically calculated to prevent him from running for governor as a Democrat. Cornyn is Republican.

Cornyn, who was not aware of Murr's reimbursement to the tobacco companies until contacted by the Dallas newspaper, said Murr was "simply returning ill-gotten gains."

The subpoena orders Cornyn to provide "affidavits, statement, correspondence, computer records, phone records and visitor logs," to a grand jury meeting in Austin.

"They are not telling us what they are doing, but they are obviously trying to determine whether the evidence we uncovered and believe amounts to civil fraud rises to the level of criminal fraud,"

Barnes & Noble calls off purchase

NEW YORK (AP) — Barnes & Noble Inc. called off its planned acquisition of Ingram Book Group today, amid growing speculation that antitrust regulators would challenge the $600 million deal to unite the world's largest bookstore chain and the No. 1 book

The announcement follows recent published reports that the Federal Trade Commission staff had concluded that such a combination would give Barnes & Noble an unfair competitive position.

Both companies, in separate statements this morning, said that they worried that a prolonged review by the FTC would hurt their businesses.

"The review process has been disappointing to us," Ingram Book Group chairman John R. Ingram said in a statement announcing the deal has been terminated. "For six months, we've responded to every

"The events of the last several days have made it clear that some (FTC) staff hold an outdated view of the marketplace, making an objective analysis of the transaction impossible," he said.

Witness: Merger won't affect Microsoft future

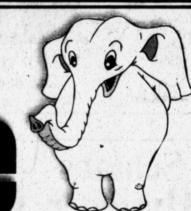

WASHINGTON (AP) - A government witness in the antitrust trial of Microsoft Corp. sought to ease the judge's concerns about implications of the $10 billion merger of two of the software company's biggest rivals.

Franklin Fisher, an economist, testified Tuesday that the deal is too little, too late to pose a credible threat to Microsoft.

Fisher's testimony clearly was aimed at easing misgivings that U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson had expressed earlier in the trial, when he said America Online's purchase of Netscape Communications Corp. "might be a very significant change in the playing field."

Final testimony in the trial began Tuesday, with the government using Fisher as a lens to focus the judge's attention on Microsoft's alleged aggression toward rivals and away from the impact on the AOL-Netscape alliance.
