News in brief

Former A&M official wins appeal

HOUSTON (AP) — A state appeals court has reversed the conviction of former Texas A&M University System board of regents chairman accused of misusing a state plane in 1993.

Ross D. Margraves Jr., 57, was convicted of official misconduct by a Lee County jury in September 1996 after being charged with improperly using a Texas A&M plane to travel to his son's graduation at Louisiana State University.

The 14th Court of Appeals in Houston overturned the conviction Thursday.

"I'm just glad it's over and that's the bottom line," Margraves told the Houston Chronicle. "I think it's a victory for every man and woman who has ever served, currently serves or will ever serve in the public arena."

Brazos County District Attorney Bill Turner, who prosecuted the case, could not be reached for comment. First Assistant District Attorney Margaret Lalk said she hadn't seen the opinion.

Hacker violates probation

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — Working as a web site developer is a promising career these days, but it got a Baylor University student a date with jail for the next 90 weekends.

Ryan David Schwartz, 23, had been prohibited from using computers as part of his probation on theft charges.

On Thursday, Schwartz admitted before state District Judge Bradley Smith that he has been using a computer anyway. Schwartz said he even worked developing a web site at Baylor.

Rather than revoke his probation, prosecutor Mike Elliott and defense attorney Dick DeGuerin agreed on a modified probation which saves Schwartz from two to 10 years in prison. Instead, Schwartz must spend the next 90 weekends in jail.

"It's going to be hard, but this is my last chance," Schwartz told the Houston Chronicle. "This is not going to deter me from my goals I want to accomplish in life."

Judge to uphold ordinance

HOUSTON (AP) — Hundreds of Houston billboards would have to be torn down immediately under a judge's ruling, promised after a dozen years of litigation.

Billboard companies said they will appeal the ruling, which they believe will cause Houston to lose tens of millions of dollars and potentially force some small businesses to close.

"The billboard industry puts $30 million directly into Houston's economy every year and this does not even take into account all the money generated by advertising," said Lee Vela, spokesman for Eller Media Company, a subsidiary of San Antonio-based Clear Channel Communications.

State District Judge Jane Bland said Thursday she would uphold most of the ordinance, first enacted in 1980. A 1992 amendment banned all billboards within city limits that are not located on a company's premises.

"This is a tremendous victory for Houston and goes a long way toward reducing the number of billboards seen all over the place," said Kevin Aiman, assistant city manager.

Awaiting summer inspection

Crowded hallways — Teachers at Hereford Junior High waited outside their classrooms Thursday to meet with the new Junior High principal, Lynn Luther. Eighth grade science teacher Janna Rudd (left) and seventh grade reading teacher Melissa Soliz wait outside their classes because maintenance personnel are busy painting the walls and waxing the floors. Throughout the school signs of summer improvement can be seen as crews use the summer months to prepare for what will become not only crowded, but also busy hallways.

San Antonio residents face water restrictions

Officials report Edwards Aquifer drops nearly a foot per day.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio residents are in for another summer of water restrictions if the region doesn't get some significant rainfall soon.

Officials say the Edwards Aquifer, the city's only water source, is dropping by almost a foot a day as the region suffers through a moderate drought.

If the drought management plan is triggered this summer in San Antonio, it would be the third time in four years.

The aquifer's level in the Bexar County index well stood Thursday at 659.4 feet above sea level, down 26.9 feet since the beginning of the year. The aquifer is down 16.3 feet in the past month and 10.2 feet in the past 11 days.

"If we don't get rain soon, we'll be going into Stage I of the city's aquifer management plan in the next couple of weeks," John Boggess, spokesman for the San Antonio Water System, told the San Antonio Express-News.

"We're encouraging residents to be judicious in the use of outdoor water. We know that people tend to over-water, and we're encouraging them to water only when it's needed."

After repeated threats by a federal judge to impose harsh drought restrictions to protect endangered species at Comal and San Marcos springs, the aquifer region has adopted progressively tougher drought rules during the last few years.

The first drought stage used to start at 655 feet for voluntary conservation measures.

The drought plan of San Antonio and most other cities in the region is now triggered when the Bexar index well drops to 650 feet.

Stage I of the plan requires pools to be covered at least 25 percent when not in use, prohibits restaurants from serving water except upon request and prohibits the washing of parking lots, driveways, streets or sidewalks.

City ordinances have year-round prohibitions against water waste and against using sprinklers between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.

A year ago, the region was under Stage I restrictions with an aquifer level of 646 feet. The region was in the midst of a four-month drought that saw the level drop to 640 feet.

The lowest level ever recorded was 612.5 feet in 1956, toward the end of a 7-year drought.

San Antonio has had only 0.07 inches of rain over the last 24 days. Rainfall at San Antonio International Airport from December through June 10 was 7.66 inches — 49 percent below normal.

FHA requires detailed descriptions

Appraisals provide complete buyer information

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appraisers must provide a much more detailed description of defects in prospective homes to families with government-insured mortgages, under a new initiative by the Federal Housing Administration.

The reforms, announced Thursday, seek to improve the quality of appraisals and give home buyers complete information on the condition of the homes they are considering for purchase.

Under the plan, appraisers must fully disclose any structural problems the homes may have. The three-page form requires appraisers to describe defects in a wide range of areas such as plumbing, electrical systems, foundations and the presence of wood-destroying insects.

Such concerns must be reported to prospective customers in writing, and the FHA will not insure the mortgage on the home until sellers fix the defects.

"We will do more than any other mortgage insurer to safeguard the interests of hardworking families buying homes," said Andrew Cuomo, secretary of the department of Housing and Urban Development.

The new initiatives also seek to improve the quality of home appraisers. Typically, lenders select appraisers, who report on the value of the home and conduct a review of its physical condition. But the FHA must approve the appraisers, if the lender is seeking to have its loan financed with an FHA mortgage.

Under the plan, all new appraisers must pass a mandatory test to ensure they are qualified to perform FHA appraisals. Old appraisers have until February to pass the test. Additional enforcement regulations will enable the FHA to suspend appraisers who are not performing up to standards.

The department came up with the plan after receiving complaints from home buyers, who were faced with thousands of dollars in repair costs after purchasing homes with substantial defects. More than 1 million families purchase homes annually with mortgage loans made by private lenders and insured by the FHA.

"We will do more than any other mortgage insurer to safeguard the interests of hardworking families buying homes."

The FHA is also encouraging home buyers to get inspections of prospective homes, in addition to appraisals. Inspections generally provide a more detailed evaluation of the home's condition.

The Mortgage Bankers Association of America, a trade organization, applauded the plan as a reasonable balance between protecting consumers and keeping real-estate transactions efficient. The group, which had opposed calls by some in Congress last year for mandatory inspections, said it would help inform consumers about the benefits of inspections.

"Better education and higher appraisal standards make more sense for everyone," said Michael Ferrell, senior vice president of the industry group.

I believe it will help other parents as well. Please, Ann, print it in your column. — A Chicago Parent

Dear Chicago: Parents of teenagers need all the help they can get these days. I'm grateful to you for sending it on. Here it is:

The National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy recently published Ten Tips for Parents to Help Their Children Avoid Teen Pregnancy. Here is an abbreviated version: Ten Tips for Parents

1. Be clear about your own sexual values and attitudes. Communication with your children about sex will be more successful when YOU are certain about these issues.

2. Talk with your children early and often about sex, and be specific! Initiate the conversation, and make sure it's a dialogue, not a monologue.

3. Supervise and monitor your children by establishing rules, curfews and standards of expected behavior, preferably through an open process of family discussion.

4. Know your children's friends and their families. Welcome them into your home, and talk openly.

5. Discourage early, frequent and steady dating. One-on-one dating before age 16 can lead to trouble.

6. Take a strong stand against your daughter dating a boy who is significantly older, and don't allow your son to develop an intense relationship with a girl who is much younger. The age difference between younger girls and older boys or men can lead girls into risky behavior.

7. Show your teenagers that there are options for the future that are more attractive than early parenthood. Help them set meaningful goals for the future, and discuss what it takes to make those goals come true.

8. School failure is often the first sign of trouble. Let your kids know that you value education highly.

9. Know what your kids are watching, reading and listening to. You can always turn the TV off, cancel subscriptions and place certain movies off limits.

10. These tips work best when they are part of strong, close relationships with your children that are built from an early age. Express love and affection clearly and often, and listen carefully to what your children say. Spend time with them, and engage in activities they like. Be supportive and interested in what interests them, and help them build self-esteem. Remember, it's never too late to improve a relationship with a child or teenager.

Dear Ann Landers: According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the number of children inadvertently poisoned in the homes of relatives has dropped dramatically, and one big reason is those hard-to-use bottle caps. The CPSC is now working with packaging professionals to make child-resistant packages that are also adult accessible.

To those who have problems opening bottle caps, I say this: Keep your eyes open. New, convenient caps (or closures) are appearing on store shelves. Also, write to the product manufacturer about the packaging you prefer. The greater the demand for new configurations, the sooner they will be introduced. — G.E., Herndon, Va.

Dear G.E.: The wheel that squeaks gets the oil. Thanks for reminding us.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS

"The Church as Sick Bay and Eatery." Pastor Stone will be talking about that on this, the Third Sunday after Pentecost. What is said will be based on an exploration of Matthew 9:9-13, the suggested "optional" gospel du jour. Gathered worship begins at 10:30 and concludes no later than 11:30. FOB is sensitive to the fact that Sunday is a great day for eating with family and friends. An 11:30 conclusion gives FOB-ers an early start on the dining/bonding adventure.

"Forum" is FOB's answer to the Sunday school thing. In "Forum," open discussion, dialogue and loving debate are encouraged. This Sunday, the pastor will give a brief overview of a Time article entitled, "Should All Be Forgiven?" (4/5/99) Food for thought: "In the past two years, scientists and sociologists have begun to extract forgiveness and the act of forgiving from the confines of the confessional, transforming it into the subject of quantifiable research. In one case, they have even systematized it as a 20-part 'intervention' that they claim can be used to treat a number of anger-related ills in a totally secular context. In short, to forgive is no longer just divine." (pp.55-56)

FOB is a hanging-out place for anybody struggling with faith. FOB is a place where all questions are honored, and where honest doubt is an asset, not a liability. At FOB, people are fully aware that life is short and can change drastically in a flash. Therefore, we prescribe lots of love and tons of laughter.

FOB chooses an administrator annually who makes most of the decisions for the church. Rather than passing an offering plate, there is a little love-box in the foyer. How you give your money and to whom is your business. FOB has virtually no extracurricular meetings beyond Sunday mornings. FOB's reason for being is to give away love and money in the spirit of Jesus in order to make this world more like the peaceable kingdom of which Jesus dreamed.

A supervised nursery is available at all services. The church building is located at 245 N. Kingwood (at Moreman).

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

A great summer welcome is extended by the church family of First UMC to attend our worship services at 8:30 and 10:45 a.m. in the church sanctuary. Sunday school for all ages begins at 9:30 a.m. Dr. Tom Fuller's message, "A Boy Who Might Have Been," will refer to scripture II Samuel 18:31-33. The anthem "Walk Worthily" will be sung by the sanctuary choir. Pre-service music "Prayer" and "Evening Prayer" will be played on the organ by Tommie Stevens. Pianist Nancy Denison and Stevens will perform "Arioso" for the prelude to the services and "Psalm 15" for the postlude.

The First Church family welcomes Dr. and Mrs. Fuller and daughters, Mary, Becky and Beth, back for another year at the church's pastoral family. Dr. Fuller was re-appointed to First UMC at Annual Conference June 4 in Amarillo.

Sunday programming includes Weigh Down Workshop at 5 p.m. with Junior High Youth Fellowship at 5:30 p.m., Youth Snack Supper at 6:30 p.m., and Senior High Youth Fellowship at 7 p.m. The Church Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Ward Parlor to discuss and implement church programs. The Education Committee will meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday to discuss Vacation Bible School.

Brionne Yosten, shown here in the Region I-4A Championships, will compete at the U.S. Junior Championships in Denton on June 20. She will run the 3,000-meter run.

Brionne is at it again

Hereford track star Yosten to compete in Junior National Track and Field Championships in Denton

By Yuri Soto
Hereford Brand Sports Editor

What hasn't Hereford track star Brionne Yosten done? District champion in the 3,200 meters and 800 meters, cross country champ in regionals and district. Region I-4A champion in both the 3,200- and 800-meter runs. State cross-country runner-up.

Of course, there's the second place finish in the 800 at the state championships in Austin back on May 14. And you sure couldn't forget the state championship in the 3,200-meter run.

And she'll only be a junior in the upcoming school year. So far, she's accomplished almost everything a high school track star can do in a four-year high school career except win a Track and Field Junior Championship.

So why doesn't it surprise anyone that she'll try for one of those as well on Sunday, June 20, when Yosten travels to Denton to compete at the U.S. Junior Track and Field Championships.

"It feels really good," Yosten said. "I wasn't sure that I could do it."

Yosten did qualify as she had the best times in the Panhandle area that are part of the Amarillo Globe News circulation.

Yosten's time of 10 minutes, 55 seconds in the 3,200 was the best in the area and accomplished it at the region

I-4A Track and Field Championships in San Angelo back on April 30. That was a first place finish. But she will compete in the 3,000-meter race.

Brionne also qualified in the 800-meter run after timing in at 2:14.81 at the ULL State Track and Field Championships in Austin on May 13. She finished second.

"Brionne has accomplished a lot because she has a lot of natural ability and really works hard," Hereford girls track coach Ray Baca said. "I am really proud of her."

"Brionne has accomplished a lot because she has a lot of natural ability and really works hard. I am really proud of her."

Yosten will compete in the 3,000 meters only at Denton. She will not compete in the 800, a decision both Baca and Yosten made.

"We felt that she would succeed more in the 3,000 meters than in the 800," Baca said.

Looming for Yosten is the toughest competition she will ever face. This race is dominated by track athletes under 19 years of age and most are college freshman competing.

"In this type of race there's not much competition," Yosten said. "There's either really good people or not that good."

But Yosten is one of the really good ones competing at the Junior National Championships. College track coaches have already shown interest in

"There's a lot of people that I have talked to especially college track coaches. I talked to the track coach at Texas Tech and Texas and they are really interested in Brionne," Baca said. "It is going to be fun to watch her."

Not only that, but Yosten's goal in this competition, like any other driven athlete, is to succeed, period.

"I am going to do my best and I hope to win," Yosten said. "But it's going to be tough."

Most of Texas has witnessed what Brionne Yosten can do on the track. It may be now time for the rest of the country, and even the whole world, to see the petite trackster showcase her talents.

She's not finished achieving yet, and even though she may compete in the World Junior Championships one day, there's still a national title to accomplish.

Watch out, track world.

Braves maul Muleshoe, 20-0

Five different hitters convert RBI for the 4-2 Hereford Braves

From Staff Reports.

J.P. Holman gave up one hit and struck out four batters in four innings work as the Hereford Braves bounced back from an 8-4 loss on Monday to Randall with an impressive 20-0 victory over Muleshoe on Tuesday as part of a doubleheader.

But Game 2 of the doubleheader was canceled due to heavy thunderstorms in the area.

The Braves scored six runs in the bottom of the first inning. Andrew Ramirez, Toby Torres, Kyle Artho and Ramiro Zambrano batted in five runs in the inning. The other run was scored by George Castillo after Brady Daniel was hit by a pitch.

Daniel was hit five times in the elbow during the game.

Zambrano gave the Braves a 9-0 lead after his RBI double scored Kyle Artho.

Two more runs in the fourth inning made the score 11-0 in favor of the Braves. An L.J. Vallejo run off an error and Lacey's run off Vallejo's RBI double accounted for the inning's runs.

Vallejo, Jesse Castillo and Andrew Villareal, accounted for eight more runs and gave hereford a 19-0 lead. Castillo scored the final run of the inning off a catcher's error.

Villareal batted in the final run of the game as his RBI single scored Torres.

The Braves improve their record to 4-2.

Turning up the heat

Pitcher Eddie Lacey scored a couple of runs in the Braves 20-0 win over Muleshoe.

Comets open with win in Orlando

Texas Tech product Sheryl Swoopes scores 18 points in 77-63 win over Miracle

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Houston Comets didn't win the first two WNBA titles by relying on one player.

Cynthia Cooper wasn't at full strength for Thursday night's season opener against the expansion Orlando Miracle. But it hardly mattered in a 77-63 victory.

Tina Thompson had 22 points and 12 rebounds and Sheryl Swoopes scored 18 in support of a hobbling Cooper, who finished with 24 points, seven rebounds and seven assists despite playing on a badly sprained ankle.

"I wouldn't say that 'the big three' won the game," Swoopes said, adding that Sonja Henning, who only had two points while spearheading Houston's defense, also played a major role.

"The last couple of days in practice we weren't playing very good together. We were very concerned about the chemistry of the team and just playing together. I think we were all very pleased with the performance of everyone tonight."

Taj McWilliams led Orlando, one of two expansion teams this season, with 15 points. Nykesha Sales and Shannon Johnson added 13 a piece.

"Well, I guess it's true what they say: 'Welcome to the big leagues,'" said Orlando coach Carolyn Peck, two months removed from leading Purdue to this year's NCAA Championship.

"We're new and we learn from each and every experience. You start the year off and you have to play somebody. I'd rather play the two-time defending world champion because that shows you quick and early what you need to work on and where you need to go."

Cooper, the two-time league MVP, sprained her right ankle in practice Wednesday and limped through warmups and most of the game. Nevertheless, she shot 7-for-10 and played all but three minutes of the game, including the entire second half.

"That's a gutsy effort ... playing on the ankle that she could not walk on yesterday," Houston coach Van Chancellor said. "In the first half, I was really concerned because she started out with no hobble and then she went to a bad hobble that worried me to death."

A stirring rendition of the national anthem by Miracle forward Tari Phillips, an Orlando native, finished a rousing 15-minute pregame show that got the crowd of 15,422 — about 2,000 shy of capacity — into the game.

Although Houston never trailed, Orlando made it interesting by finishing the opening half with a 14-4 run to trim an 18-point deficit to 43-35.

With Cooper limping noticeably early, Thompson took the burden off the two-time scoring champion to carry the Comets offensively. The 6-foot-2 forward made seven of 11 shots, including 3-for-4 from behind the 3-point line, for 17 first-half points.

McWilliams, who had 13 points at the break, led the Miracle surge in the closing minutes of the first half. She made two 3-pointers and four free throws in the run that cut Houston's lead to single digits.

The closest the Miracle got in the second half was 49-45 with just over 13 minutes remaining. Swoopes made two free throws and Cooper a 3-pointer to break Orlando's momentum before taking over the game in the 14-0 burst that built the lead to 68-47.

Sales, Orlando's rookie guard, struggled in her pro debut after sitting out last season while rehabilitating an Achilles' tendon injury. She missed 12 of 15 shots in the first half and finished 5-for-19.

"Every day is a learning experience. I just told my team: 'Thank God, we do have tomorrow,'" Peck said. "Today is over. What we'll take from it is the things we need to improve on and move forward. That's what we'll do."

Celtics head Hall of Fame list

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The Boston Celtics, the most dominant team in NBA history, dominated this year's nominations to the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Six of 13 candidates announced Thursday played for the Celtics: Kevin McHale, Dennis Johnson, Jo Jo White, Wayne Embry, Bob McAdoo and retired Georgetown coach John Thompson, who was a backup center for Bill Russell on the 1965 and 1966 championship teams.

"They did so much! How could you leave them out?" said Red Auerbach, who coached the Celtics to nine titles from 1957-1966.

The Celtics have won 16 NBA titles, more than any other team, and 25 players, coaches and others connected to the Celtics already are in the Hall of Fame.

McHale and Johnson were teammates on the Larry Bird-led Boston teams that won NBA championships in 1984 and 1986. McHale also played on the Celtics' championship team in 1981.

Brought to the Celtics in 1980 with Robert Parish, McHale at first was the team's sixth man. The 6-foot-10 forward went on to play 12 seasons on a front line with Parish and Bird.

"He was so good, and he improved his game so much," Auerbach said. "Originally, he was just in the pivot and after a while, he started to move around and developed a real good outside shot."

In 1985, McHale set a Celtics record by scoring 56 points against the Detroit Pistons. Bird broke the record nine days later with 60 against the Atlanta Hawks.

McHale averaged 17.9 points and 7.3 rebounds in his career, and was a 55 percent shooter from the field. He made seven All-Star teams and was three-time selection to the All-NBA defensive team.

Bird once said McHale "never saw a triple-team he didn't like."

Thompson coached Georgetown for 27 years before leaving the job in January. His teams went 593-239, made the NCAA tournament 14 straight times, played in three Final Fours and won the national championship in 1984.

White was sweet-shooting guard who won two championships with the Celtics and an Olympic gold medal in 1968. Embry played on Boston's 1968 title team.

McAdoo played in only 20 games for the Celtics, in the 1978-79 season. The three-time league scoring champion played on two championship teams with the Los Angeles Lakers.

The other nominees are: — Maurice Cheeks, a slick guard for the 1983 NBA champion Philadelphia 76ers who was the league's career steals leader when he retired.

— Gus Johnson, a power forward for the Baltimore Bullets who died of brain cancer in 1987.

— Sidney Moncrief, a two-time NBA defensive player of the year for the Milwaukee Bucks in the 1980s.

— Chet Walker, a forward on Philadelphia's 1967 championship team.

— Mount St. Mary's coach Jim Phelan, the winningest active college coach. His career record is 800-442.

— Tex Winter, an assistant Chicago Bulls coach who has spent 52 seasons as a college and pro coach. — Morgan Wootten, the coach at DeMatha High School in Washington, D.C., whose record of 1,185-178 is the best ever for a high school coach.

Jones trying to re-sign Deion despite the risk

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones says he will "take the risk" and work to re-sign Deion Sanders to a contract extension despite uncertainties about the All-Pro cornerback's ailing toe.

DEION SANDERS

"No body can tell me when he'll be back or when he'll be healthy," Jones told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram for today's editions.

"But it is my belief that Deion is going to play this year. And if that's the case, I want to try to work something out."

Neither Sanders nor his agent, Eugene Parker, was available for comment, the newspaper said.

The Cowboys probably will try to work out a multiyear deal that gives Sanders a large signing bonus and a low base salary over the next few years to clear salary-cap room. That doesn't mean the Cowboys will get a bargain.

Sanders has said he won't sign for less than market value, which could mean a contract averaging $7 million a year. He has a base salary of $6.5 million for 1999.

Sanders hurt his toe last November and has been ailing since. After surgery April 27, he was given a best-case prognosis of four to six months for his return.

Doctors suggested the possibility that Sanders might never play again.

There was talk that the Cowboys might waive Sanders to save money. But Jones says restructuring Sanders' contract is in the team's best interest.

"I never said I would waive him," Jones said. "And I know firsthand how much Deion wants to compete and help us win. Never did I think that Deion can't dramatically help the team."

Busted!Stone faces drug charge

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Movie director Oliver Stone was arrested for investigation of driving under the influence and possession of hashish, police said.

Stone, 52, was arrested late Wednesday, Police Lt. Gary Gilmond said today.

The Oscar-winning director was released from custody Thursday morning after posting $12,500 bail, Gilmond said.

A message left early today for Stone's spokesman was not immediately returned.

The director, who also has a number of producing and writing credits to his name, won Academy Awards for "Platoon" and "Born on the Fourth of July." His directorial credits include "U Turn," "Heaven & Earth," "JFK" and "Wall Street," among others.

Jesse Ventura

ST. PAUL, Minn. — In his tell-all autobiography, Gov. Jesse Ventura disclosed that he doesn't much care for underwear.

The folks at Fruit of the Loom — saying they wished to show their, ahem, support for the governor — sent 12,000 items of underwear on Thursday.

"We thought, 'Why in the world would a wrestler be intimidated by boxers?'" quipped John Wendler, senior vice president for marketing.

Most of the underwear will go to area homeless shelters.

"No matter who you are, I don't think anyone cares to inherit underwear second-hand," Ventura said.

Rosie O'Donnell

NEW YORK — Rosie O'Donnell skipped the Tony Awards and stayed home with her two children after someone phoned in a kidnapping threat to the Howard Stern show, her spokeswoman said.

The talk show host was slated to present an award with actress Elaine Stritch at Sunday night's show, but pulled out earlier in the week after an anonymous caller said he was considering kidnapping her 3-year-old son Parker.

"When somebody makes a threat to your children, your first instinct is to run and spend time with them, not to leave them alone," O'Donnell spokeswoman Jennifer Glaisek said Thursday.

The story was first reported Wednesday in Variety.

Jim Kelly

ALBANY, N.Y. — Two years after revealing that his infant son suffers from a debilitating disease, former Buffalo Bills quarterback Jim Kelly returned to the state Capitol to thank lawmakers for supporting medical research into the illness.

Hunter Kelly has Krabbe's disease, a degenerative disorder of the nervous system. It starts in the brain and impairs motor skills.

In 1997, the state Legislature allocated $25,000 for the Institute for Basic Research on Staten Island to study the illness after Kelly made a personal appeal for the financing.

"Right now, there is no treatment," Kelly said Thursday. But he said researchers were making progress and a cure would one day be found.

"There's no doubt," he said. "And we're going to keep working until there is."

Kelly has helped raise more than $3 million for Krabbe's (pronounced KrabAZE) research with his Hunter's Hope Foundation.

Alan Greenspan

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan ignored the intricacies of fiscal policy and instead urged members of Harvard University's class of 1999 to maintain a sense of social justice in their endeavors.

"If we succeed in opening up opportunities to everyone, our national affluence will almost surely become more widespread," he said Thursday during commencement ceremonies.

"Of even greater import is that all Americans believe that they are part of a system they perceive as fair and worthy of support."

Among the 6,500 degree recipients was Kristin Gore, 21, daughter of Vice President Al Gore, who graduated from Harvard in 1969. Gore and his wife, Tipper, attended the ceremony.

Steven Seagal

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Actor Steven Seagal wants car owners who change their oil to "Finish the Job" and recycle the used motor oil.

Seagal and race car driver Mario Andretti on Thursday filmed public service announcements at the Santa Monica Pier aimed at encouraging more recycling.

The state-funded campaign — dubbed "Finish the Job" — also features actor Gordon Clapp, who plays Detective Greg Medavoy on "NYPD Blue," Michael T. Weiss of "The Pretender" and Luke Perry.

About 16.5 million gallons of oil were improperly disposed of in California last year, state officials say.

Christian Coalition slapped

Denial of tax-exempt status means major restructuring effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Christian Coalition, struggling to regain influence and contributors, is undergoing a major reorganization triggered by the denial of its request for tax-exempt status. Founder Pat Robertson said Thursday the organization would "continue to be a force in American politics."

The Internal Revenue Service first denied tax-exempt status to the group last year in a ruling kept under wraps pending appeal. The Christian Coalition was notified in recent weeks that it would lose the appeal and decided to withdraw it.

The IRS concluded that certain Christian Coalition activities were too partisan for the group to enjoy tax-exempt status.

As a result, the coalition will not enjoy the tax benefits of a nonprofit religious organization. Some critics said the IRS ruling could cost the group grassroots support and will require it to observe legal limits on contributions.

"It's long awaited and it's

"It's long awaited and it's very appropriate. We think everybody ought to play by the same rules. A lot of what they want to do is properly done by a political action committee."

"Christian Coalition of America will continue to be a force in American politics and will remain a prominent fixture on the political landscape as the nation's number one pro-family, pro-life organization."

very appropriate," said Carole Shields, president of the liberal People for the American Way. "We think everybody ought to play by the same rules. A lot of what they want to do is properly done by a political action committee."

Coalition spokesman Mike Russell said the organization's changes would include creation of a new Christian Coalition International, which would form a PAC and engage in partisan activity including candidate endorsements and political contributions. Russell said the Christian Coalition of Texas, which is currently a tax-exempt group, will be renamed Christian Coalition of America and will limit its activity to nonprofit "voter education."

"The organization has been dramatically reshaped but its mission statement remains intact and it will continue to do the things it has been doing since it formed, which is recruit pro-family activists, draw people to the polls in record numbers for elections and educate," Russell said.

"Christian Coalition of America will continue to be a force in American politics and will remain a prominent fixture on the political landscape as the nation's number one pro-family, pro-life organization," said Robertson, the group's president.

Nonetheless, the IRS decision adds to the problems faced by the Christian Coalition following the departure two years ago of Ralph Reed as executive director. Amid waning influence and dips in fund-raising, the coalition also faces challenges from other religious-focused groups, such as the Family Research Council, that want to emerge as the next powerhouse of the Republican right wing.

"They are clearly trying to get their sea legs under them," said Rich Galen, executive director of the GOPAC fund-raising organization.

Some advisers to Robertson had urged him last year to form a for-profit political organization but he balked. One of those advisers, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the faction had been concerned that losing the IRS appeal would hurt the group's reputation among social conservatives who expected the coalition to abide by the letter and the spirit of the law.

Bauer qualifies for matching funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — GOP presidential hopeful and conservative activist Gary Bauer announced Thursday that he has raised enough money to qualify for federal matching dollars in January 2000.

To become eligible for matching dollars, a presidential candidate must raise a minimum of $5,000 in each of at least 20 states. Bauer's campaign met that threshold in 23 states.

Bauer's campaign must now begin submitting monthly reports to the Federal Election Commission — which oversees the matching funds — in order to receive money at the beginning of next year.

"The Bauer campaign is continuing to gain valuable resources nationwide," said campaign manager Frank Cannon.

Meanwhile, Bauer became the latest GOP candidate to bash Texas Gov. George W. Bush on his abortion stance Thursday, arguing the front-runner is ducking the issue and won't commit to name only anti-abortion justices to the Supreme Court.

"Instead of making that commitment, Governor Bush talks about all sorts of side issues and avoids the heart of the matter," said Bauer, in an interview. "It's consistent with his lack of leadership."

Bauer said Bush's vagueness on many issues during the early stages of the campaign will not set well with conservative activists who decide Iowa caucus campaigns.

"We're going to see, I think, that his campaign peaked," said Bauer. "As more details come out, conservatives are going to find it very hard to swallow the vagueness of his agenda."

Pontiff addresses Polish parliament

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II celebrated his homeland's decade of freedom today with an unprecedented speech in parliament, receiving a hero's welcome from Solidarity and ex-communist deputies alike.

"Oh, look what's happened to us!" he exclaimed to "all my dear fellow Poles," his hands outstretched in a gesture of wonder at the peaceful transformation from communism to democracy that his papacy helped inspire.

The packed chamber, including former communist leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski and Solidarity founder Lech Walesa, gave him lengthy standing ovations and sang the national anthem, followed by the traditional "Sto lat," or "May he live 100 years," for the country's most beloved figure.

Even former communists knelt and crossed themselves as John Paul walked slowly into the marble-walled chamber to a throne-like chair set up just for him.

It was the first address by the Roman Catholic pontiff to a national parliament, and he offered the most political comments so far of his 13-day pilgrimage to Poland.

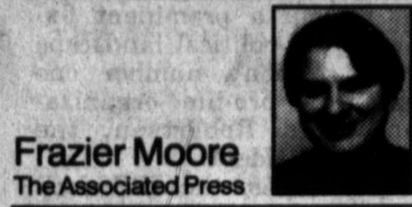

He gave the Vatican's full endorsement to Poland's efforts to join the European Union, a plan drawing growing public opposition due to the painful economic reforms necessary to qualify.

At the same time, John Paul said politics and economic development must be based on ethical principles and spirituality, a theme with particular resonance in a country where many people equate national identity with Catholicism.

At the end, he echoed his prayer from his first pilgrimage home 20 years earlier, when he asked the Holy Spirit to "renew the face" of Poland.

Rather puts columns between covers

Frazier Moore
The Associated Press

"Seeing something in a newspaper with my byline on it reaches way back with me."

Dan Rather

If CBS News were a newspaper, Dan Rather's byline would be found on just about every page: Rather anchors the "48 Hours" newsmagazine.

He serves as a correspondent for the new "60 Minutes II" and as a contributor to its forebear, "60 Minutes."

His name nests in the title of "The CBS Evening News With Dan Rather." He does a daily radio commentary. And when the big story breaks, he's apt to be reporting from the thick of it.

If all this were a newspaper, it might properly be called The Daily Dan.

It isn't a newspaper, it's broadcasting, and that suits Rather fine. Except for one thing: There's no ink involved.

Looking to fix that, Rather added ink to his regimen in June 1997, when he began writing a weekly column. Syndicated by King Features, "Dan Rather Reporting" appears in newspapers nationwide.

Now Rather has gathered some of those columns, along with other writings, into a volume titled "Deadlines and Datelines: Essays at the Turn of the Century," published by William Morrow.

In its pages, Rather speaks of people and things as diverse as Saddam Hussein and Debbie Reynolds; poor service from a Manhattan photo shop and heroic service in the rattletrap Mir space station. The pieces are crisply composed, a bit folksy and unfailingly gracious, even in reproach. It's very much Rather's voice, in ink.

Here we read of Rather looking, through tears, upon the broken body of one survivor of the Oklahoma City bombing after Timothy McVeigh is found guilty on all counts. The verdict marks "the end of one chapter, but not the end of the whole story."

"Justice is like that," Rather reflects. "It's meant to bring closure, to answer questions, to put limits on our suffering, to stop the wrongdoing. The reality is often more complicated than that."

We also read of Rather's wife Jean, who, as a girl, met up with a certain good-looking kid, a raven-haired truck driver passing through town.

"And ever since that dance, at the VFW post in Winchester, Texas, on a warm summer night many, many years ago, Jeannie has been an Elvis Presley fan," Rather writes. For the boy at the dance, who, "a few months later, gave up truck-driving for a career in music," was Elvis himself.

"Wide variety. Easy to read. Mercifully short," says Rather in his office, jauntily reciting a few of his new book's selling points. "And I'm supposed to tell you that this is the perfect Father's Day gift."

If at that moment he's kidding around, the author of such books as "The Camera Never Blinks Twice" and "The Palace Guard" leaves no doubt he is thrilled to be between covers again — especially since "Deadlines and Datelines" certifies for the ages that Rather, in addition to the CBS gig, took his turn writing a column.

"Seeing something in a newspaper with my byline on it reaches way back with me," he says. Back to Depression-era Texas when a little boy's dream "was to become a big byline reporter for the Houston Chronicle or the Houston Post or the Houston Press. And dreams die hard. Sometimes, they never die."

After college and the Marines, Rather headed for the Chronicle.

"I wasn't particularly good at it," he admits. "For one thing, I was an atrocious speller. But somebody had mercy on me, and while never saying to me, 'Son, I'm not sure you're going to make it as a newspaperman,' they pointed me to the newspaper's radio station."

The broadcasting thing worked out pretty well for Rather in the decades to come. When he was approached to write a syndicated column, he couldn't say no.

Now, Rather does his writing on a word processor.

475 Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Judges, intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

JEPHTHAH

THREATENED WITH INVASION BY THE AMMONITES, THE GILEADITES HAVE PERSUADED JEPHTHAH TO RETURN AND LEAD THEM IN BATTLE AGAINST THEIR ENEMY...

IN KEEPING WITH THESE ANCIENT TIMES, JEPHTHAH SENDS A MESSAGE TO THE KING OF THE AMMONITES!

PERHAPS WE MAY YET AVOID THIS FIERCE AND BLOODY CONFLICT!

...THE AMMONITE KING RECEIVES THE MESSAGE OF JEPHTHAH...

WHAT SAVES THE ISRAELITES OF GILEAD, SIRE?

THEY SAY THE LAND HAS BEEN THEIRS, LO, THESE THREE HUNDRED YEARS—WHY NOW DO WE SEEK TO QUARREL?

LEAD US AGAINST THE ISRAELITES!

JEPHTHAH'S MESSAGE—HIS REASONABLE LOGIC, AND HIS ATTEMPTS TO AVOID BATTLE WITH THE AMMONITES, GO UNHEEDED BY THESE FIERCE ADVERSARIES!

LET US HAVE WAR NOW!

Next Week JEPHTHAH'S VOW

SAVE THIS FOR YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL SCRAPBOOK

THIS DEVOTIONAL & DIRECTORY IS MADE POSSIBLE BY THESE BUSINESSES WHO ENCOURAGE ALL OF US TO ATTEND WORSHIP SERVICES.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 • Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 • Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 • Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 • Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 20 cents a word for first insertion ($4.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

Times	Rate	Min
1 day per word	.20	$4.00
2 days per word	.31	$6.20
3 days per word	.42	$8.40
4 days per word	.53	$10.60
5 days per word	.64	$12.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines — those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphs, all capital letters. Rates are $5.30 per column inch.
LEGALIS
 Ad rates for legal notices are $5.30 per column inch.
ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Worm.Explore.Zip New bug sent through 'Net'

NEW YORK (AP) — A new computer menace is sweeping across the Internet — a destructive bug that tricks people by disguising itself as a friendly e-mail reply bearing a gift — forcing even Microsoft to temporarily shut down corporate e-mail systems as a precaution.

Anyone who opens that "gift" in an attachment to e-mail messages unleashes "Worm.Explore.Zip," which hunts through a computer hard drive and wipes out the contents of documents, spreadsheets and other important files.

The best prevention is to "be a little paranoid," said Mark Zajick, member of the Computer Emergency Response Team at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

"If they get this e-mail message or any e-mail with an attachment, do not open it," he said. "Don't click on it, don't run it, don't execute it."

Government and university anti-virus teams scrambled to combat the outbreak, which reportedly was first detected in Israel this week and has reached at least 12 countries.

Worm.Explore.Zip is the third major threat to computer networks since late March, when the Melissa virus overwhelmed systems with floods of e-mail. A more damaging virus named Chernobyl struck on the 13th anniversary of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster in April, doing most of its harm overseas.

Because of the way it works, Worm.Explore.Zip actually does not fit the definition of a computer virus. Instead, software experts said, the bug should be classified as a "Trojan Horse" — a name borrowed from an ancient battle in which Greek soldiers hid inside a wooden horse to launch a surprise attack on the city of Troy.

Either way, the bug poses a serious threat to businesses, government agencies and personal computer users.

"It's difficult to know right now where we are in the cycle, whether this represents the peak" in the outbreak, Shawn Hernan, a CERT team leader, said Thursday.

Early warnings helped General Electric contain the damage Thursday when its system was infected. Microsoft shut down its corporate e-mail system for two hours as a precaution, but at least one smaller business didn't fare so well.

"We have the virus," said Rachel Albert, a spokeswoman for InterActive Public Relations of San Francisco. "It's terrible. A lot of people lost everything they were working on."

"Our belief right now is that it's spreading fairly quickly within a site but not as quickly from site to site," Hernan said, noting that his team is working with the Defense Department to contain the outbreak.

Worm.Explore.Zip arrives with a friendly message: "Hi (Recipient Name)! I received your email and I shall send you a reply ASAP. Till then, take a look at the attached zipped docs."

The message is harmless unless a person opens the "zipped docs," a term referring to a compressed file sent with the e-mail.

By opening that file, a person unknowingly activates the virus, which then uses the computer's e-mail software to send a copy of itself to the address of any e-mail that arrives.

"This one's coming from someone you know, and in response to an e-mail you just sent them, so it looks safe," said Susan Orbeck, a spokeswoman for Trend Micro, a maker of anti-virus software.

Poll: First lady should run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three of four Americans think it's OK for a president's spouse to run for office, and more than half say Hillary Rodham Clinton should run for the U.S. Senate in New York, according to an Associated Press poll.

Three-quarters of Democrats were in favor of a Senate campaign by Mrs. Clinton, but so were half of independent voters and one in three Republicans.

The proportion of people who said she should run, 54 percent, was sharply lower than the 73 percent who said a president's spouse could appropriately run for office. But that difference was largely due to the attitudes of GOP voters.

The poll, conducted by ICR of Media, Pa., found that 65 percent of Republicans said seeking elective office was appropriate for a presidential spouse, while 34 percent said this particular president's wife should run. Among Democrats, 85 percent said running for office was appropriate in general, and 77 percent said Mrs.

Clinton should run. Mrs. Clinton recently said she would form an exploratory committee to help her decide whether to seek the Senate seat held by Democrat Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who is retiring. She is running neck and neck with New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani, a Republican, in polls of New York voters.

Elizabeth Dole, a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination and wife of 1996 Republican nominee Bob Dole, said in an interview with The Associated Press this week that Mrs. Clinton should be able to run "if that's what she wants to do and if the people of New York want her to do it. ... She's certainly a very bright lady. That's up to her."

The telephone poll of 1,016 American adults was taken Friday through Tuesday. The margin of sampling error was plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Mrs. Clinton's approval rating stood at 57 percent in the poll. President Clinton got a mixed review, with 48 percent saying they had a favorable opinion of him and 44 percent saying their opinion was unfavorable.

"She's qualified, a smart lady. She's gone to law school. She's got a lot of ideas and had some nice health ideas," said Andrew Eckman, a 46-year-old manager of a comedy basketball team in Springfield, Mass. "I pursue my dreams. She should be able to."

But some who thought it was appropriate for a president's spouse to run for office didn't want Mrs. Clinton to run for the Senate.

"If a person grew up in a state and then came back and wanted to run, that would be OK," said Lep Wiser, a 44-year-old carpenter in North Charleston, S.C., who was born near Binghamton, N.Y. "Every time I've heard Mrs. Clinton asked about what's going on in New York, she gravitates towards the city. I wonder if maybe she should try for representative of the city."

The sentiment for Mrs. Clinton to run and the number who think it is appropriate for a president's spouse to run dropped for respondents 55 and older.

"She should be a writer and lecturer," said Elizabeth Smothers, a 57-year-old Republican from Boaz, Ala. "She'd be out there for everybody who wanted to pay to see her, but I would never have to hear from her again."

Inflation slowing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level slowed significantly in May as gasoline prices retreated after a record price jump.

The Producer Price Index, which measures inflation pressures before they reach the consumer, rose just 0.2 percent last month, down sharply from the 0.5 percent advance in April.

The moderation reflected a big drop in energy prices. Gasoline prices at the wholesale level, which had risen by a record 29.1 percent in April, declined 2.7 percent in May.

Big increases in both wholesale and consumer prices last month set off inflation jitters in financial markets.

After consumer prices jumped 0.9 percent in April, a nine-year high, the Federal Reserve let it be known that it was now leaning toward raising interest rates to hold down inflation.

Many analysts believe that the moderation shown today in wholesale prices will also be reflected when the government reports next Wednesday on consumer prices.

Senators far wealthier than mass of Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's leaders are far wealthier than most Americans but men of modest means compared with some of their rank-and-file colleagues, financial records revealed today.

Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., and Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., both own rental property, mutual funds and stocks, but are hardly in the multimillionaires' club.

Neither are assistant Democratic leader Harry Reid of Nevada nor Lott deputy Sen. Don Nickles of Oklahoma, although Reid has a substantial real estate portfolio and Nickles was busy in 1998 buying and selling investments.

In an annual ritual that reveals where lawmakers invest their assets and earn any non-congressional income, financial disclosure forms are publicly released and then scrutinized by reporters. The Senate forms are out today, the House disclosures next Wednesday.

Since congressional rules do not require net worth statements, the value of holdings and non-congressional income is only expressed in broad ranges.

Compared with most Americans, a lawmaker's income is large. The rank-and-file salary is $136,700, with floor leaders earning $151,800 and the speaker of the House $175,400.

For some their government salary is only a fraction of their income. Among the wealthiest senators are John D. Rockefeller IV, D-W.Va., Herb Kohl, D-Wis., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J.

Many lawmakers have working spouses, most invest in stocks and mutual funds, and a substantial number have real estate holdings — some of them earning rental income.

Daschle listed a portfolio of two-dozen mutual funds, but only one reached the $50,001 to $100,000 range in 1998. The others were in the $15,001-$50,000 category or the lower, $1,001-$15,000 range.

The Democratic leader, whose wife is a lobbyist, also owns two rental apartments in Washington's Virginia suburbs and one in Sioux Falls, S.D. — each worth between $50,001 and $100,000 and producing $5,001-$15,000 in income.

Lott's major assets include six rental apartments in Mississippi worth with a combined value of $50,001-$100,000, three investment funds worth between $1,001 and $15,000 and 161 unimproved acres in his home state worth between $50,001 and $100,000. Most of the family assets are in Lott's wife's name and all were valued at $50,000 and under.

Nickles had a busy trading year, with 15 investment purchases and 15 sales. The purchases included Citigroup, Coca-Cola, Compaq Computer Corp., Johnson & Johnson, McDonalds and Parker Drilling Co.

Reid listed a $500,001-$1 million partnership interest in a company that owns a Las Vegas office building, while other real estate holdings could be worth more than $1 million.

In contrast to the leaders' holdings, Lautenberg is still reaping huge financial rewards from Automatic Data Processing, the payroll services company he co-founded. His shares in ADP are worth between $5 million and $25 million.

He has a blind trust valued between $5 million and $25 million and a second valued between $1 million and $5 million. Together, they produced income of more than $5 million in 1998.

Like Lautenberg, Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., has a blind trust, valued between $250,001 and $500,000. His holdings in Slade Gorton & Co., a wholesale fish packer.
