ALL FOR ONE, ONE FOR ALL

A team to boost economic development in Hereford was put in place Monday when the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce

Shaw picked for chamber

Hereford businessman to direct daily operations, join forces with HEDC in boosting local economy

A longtime Hereford businessman has been selected as executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Sid Shaw, who is sole owner of Double S Sales and co-owner of Daylight Donuts, also has been active in civic and community organizations. He served as chamber president in 1998 and as Hereford Lions Club president in 1981.

Shaw and his wife, Susan, have two children, 12-year-old Stephanie, and Scott, a student at Hardin-Simmons University.

He is a lifelong resident of Hereford, graduating from Hereford High School in 1968. For 25 years, he was vice president and sales manager of White Implements.

Shaw was selected Monday by the chamber directors to succeed Don Cumpton, who resigned at the end of March when he was named executive director of the Hereford Economic Development Corp.

Cumpton, who has continued to direct the chamber's day-to-day operations on an interim basis, will vacate his office in the chamber building and move into the HEDC quarters in Hereford City Hall, chamber president Chris Leonard said this morning.

Cumpton's move to City Hall is temporary because the HEDC will be relocated to an office in the chamber building after an expansion project is completed.

Hereford City Commissioners already have approved a rental contract and service contract between HEDC and the chamber.

Under the terms of the rental agreement, HEDC will occupy a 450-square-foot office on the west side of the chamber building at 701 N. Main and pay $400 per month in rent. Under the terms of the service agreement, the HEDC will pay $1,650 per month for a variety of services to be provided by the chamber.

Chamber and HEDC officials have been working for several months to bring the two entities under one roof. The officials contend the city's economic development efforts will be enhanced if the two entities are sharing space, which will enable more coordination between them.

The chamber has an agreement with the Caviness family to purchase the building. Closing has been scheduled for May 28.

It is not certain when the expansion work will begin, but it is expected to take about 60 days to complete. At a recent City Commission meeting, Cumpton indicated the expansion project could begin before the closing date, allowing the HEDC to relocate as early as the first week of July.

'Graffiti-busters' Youth clean up eyesores

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Businesses and fences, dumpsters and walls -- nothing seems to be immune to damage wreaked by local graffiti artists.

Experts recommend removing the graffiti as soon as possible, and now residents and businesses are getting some help from the San Jose Community Center youth.

A team of volunteers, ages 11-18, clean, remove and repaint graffiti-marred structures.

The team has just begun the community project, but with help from the Hereford Police Department, local businesses and the youth home, it already has removed the eyesores which had been painted on the side and back of West Park Drug.

"This is a collaborative effort," Lori Coronado, community center director, said. "We want to catch the kids early and give them some pride in their community. We want them to understand the importance of keeping their town clean."

"We've received tremendous support from the youth home," she said. "We've kind of used them as a mentor. They've provided most of the supplies and lots of help."

Coronado hopes as more businesses see the benefits of this community service project they will provide more support.

"We need all the help we can get," she said. "We would like for older students to help supervise the younger ones as well as support in the form of supplies and paints."

Coronado didn't just jump into this project. She says she has done some research and has found out that making children repaint surfaces they have damaged often prevents them from damaging the item again.

"This is something we've seen on the increase in the last few years," Deaf Smith County Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Lou Serrano said. "We hate to see it just left there. We hope the businesses will use this and be able to help

County to deal with Y2K problem

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

There are only 234 days left in the 20th century, but Deaf Smith County should be ready for the 21st century by October.

That's because the county commissioners voted Monday morning to purchase new computer software and hardware, which should give the county protection from the Y2K computer bug.

The Y2K computer glitch dates back to the 1960s when computer programmers used the last two digits for dates to save storage space. For example, 65 represents 1965.

But when the millennium rolls around, many older computers will misread "02" as 1902. Computer scientists say that will cause major miscalculations on everything from interest on loans to driver's license expiration dates.

Other computers were programmed to read the date Sept. 9, 1999 (09/09/99) as an error and will shut down.

As a result, the programmers have been scrambling to correct the glitch before midnight Jan. 1, 2000.

Heath Urbanczyk of WT Services, whose computer services division conducted a survey of the county's computer systems, reported in March there are several areas which are not Y2K-compliant.

He also reported the most urgent need is to upgrade the Novel software installed on file servers in the county clerk's office and the sheriff's office.

County Clerk David Ruland, who found himself in the position of coordinating the county's Y2K compliance effort, advertised for proposals for both software and hardware.

Two proposals for software were submitted; however, Ki Corp. of Lubbock failed to meet the deadline.

The commissioners accepted the proposal from the current vendor, Apollo Software of Austin. Because the county is a client, the company sliced the cost of the upgrade by about half.

The total package for the software is $61,356.26, which includes conversion/training and yearly maintenance.

The items in the proposal include:

- Software, $36,956.25;
- Conversion/training, $8,500;
- Maintenance, $15,900.

The software costs by department are:

- County Clerk, $12,243.75;
- District Clerk, $8,175;
- Justice of the Peace, $2,043.75;
- Sheriff/Jail, $8,925;
- Treasurer, $5,568.75.

There were four proposals for hardware, with Custom Integrated Computer Solutions (CICS) of Hereford coming in with the lowest estimate at $31,120.

Other proposals were Tangent of Burlingame, Calif., $34,176; B&B of La Nina refers to a large, unusually cold pool of water in the equatorial Pacific Ocean that develops every several years, and influences weather patterns around the world.

La Nina linked to tornadoes

The Associated Press

La Nina, the weather phenomenon behind record snow in the Northwest this winter and dry conditions in Florida, is being blamed for influencing the deadly tornadoes that swept across the Plains last week.

"The signal is there," said Steve Byrd, science officer for the National Weather Service in Omaha, Neb. "The incidence of tornadoes on the central Plains is slightly higher during La Nina."

La Nina refers to a large, unusually cold pool of water in the equatorial Pacific Ocean that develops every several years, and influences weather patterns around the world.

It works in reverse of the more common and better-understood El Nino, which is a warming of Pacific waters.

La Nina has generated a stronger, colder jet stream in the upper atmosphere, while warm, wet air at lower levels has been pulled from the Gulf of Mexico into the Plains states.

This combination generated the ferocious thunderstorms that spawned dozens of twisters, including a historic F-5 tornado in Oklahoma City. An F-5 is the most powerful tornado there is. At least 41 people have died in Oklahoma alone as the result of the severe weather.

The current La Nina has persisted for nearly a year, fueling weather that resulted in 91 feet of snow on Mount Baker in Washington this winter and severe drought in Florida. Most La Ninas last only several months, and there are signs that this one is beginning to wane.

The weather pattern comes on the heels of an El Nino that dissipated in 1998.

Lawmakers consider lower blood alcohol

AUSTIN (AP) — The threshold for being legally drunk in Texas is a step closer to being lowered.

The Texas House has tentatively passed legislation lowering the legal maximum blood-alcohol content from .10 to .08.

The bill sponsored by Rep. Scott Hochberg, D-Houston, has already passed the Senate and will head to Gov. George W. Bush after getting final House approval, which could come as soon as today.

Bush "believes this legislation will make our streets safer by sending a clear signal to help Texans understand that drinking and driving don't mix," said spokesman Scott McClellan.

Bill supporters say the legislation will discourage impaired people from getting behind the wheel and raise public awareness of the problem of drunken driving.

"The bill will save lives and is a needed step to prevent tragedies," said John Posey, vice president of the Heart of Texas branch of Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

"We're glad Texas is finally taking a step in the right direction," he said.

Posey said the bill would not cure the state's drunken driving problem. But "it will save some lives and it will prevent hundreds of injuries," he said.

Of the 1,748 alcohol-related traffic fatalities in 1997, 379 involved blood alcohol levels of under .10, according to a House bill analysis.

Bill supporters say the difference between the .10 limit and .08 for a 170-pound man would be between having five and four drinks in one hour. For a 137-pound woman, it would be between having three and four drinks in one hour.

Some lawmakers said it would be too difficult for the average person to know when they had reached a blood alcohol limit to .08.

HISD salutes HOSTS mentors, teachers

Volunteers who give time and effort to help kids in the HISD achieve academic success in reading, vocabulary and math were saluted during the recent Helping One Student to Succeed (HOSTS) reception at the HISD administration building.

HOSTS was launched in Hereford during the 1993-94 school year to boost students who needed help with language arts. Volunteer HOSTS mentors have been providing tutoring sessions one-on-one with students ever since in a program customized to meet their individual needs.

The rate of volunteerism—442 mentors for all HOSTS programs in the HISD for 1998-99—has been an eye-opener since the program's inception here. In its premiere at West Central Intermediate and Northwest Primary, HOSTS had hoped to involve 60 students and 120 mentors. Those expectations were far exceeded with 350 mentors serving 120 students in the initial year.

HISD's HOSTS program has long since become something of a state role model for positive community involvement in education.

Leslie Sebasta of the HOSTS Corporation in Vancouver, Washington, parent company for the program, was on hand for the reception. During her comments she assured those present that her office and HOSTS programs around the country are well-aware of the success achieved by HOSTS in Hereford. She presented recognition plaques to all Hereford HOSTS sites that rank as "exemplary" on a national or local scale.

National HOSTS Exemplary Recognition awards were presented to the reading programs at Northwest Primary, West Central Intermediate, and Shirley Intermediate.

Local HOSTS Exemplary Recognition went to the Bluebonnet Intermediate math program, the Hereford Junior High math program, and the Aikman Primary Spanish Reading program.

Corky Lockmiller, HISD assistant superintendent for educational support, recognized two veteran teachers who are retiring at the end of the school year for their pioneering efforts on behalf of the HOSTS program in Hereford.

Doris Cagle, HOSTS teacher at Northwest Primary, and Carlynn DeLozier, HOSTS teacher at West Central Intermediate, were warmly praised by Lockmiller for their dedication to youngsters in getting the HOSTS program well-grounded, and for their excellent work with students and volunteer mentors in guiding HOSTS in Hereford to status as a state-leading program in the years since.

Individual campuses also made a number of recognitions and award presentations.

Diana Salinas, HOSTS teacher for the Spanish reading program at Aikman, named Mary Zepeda as Mentor of the Year. St. Mary Clinic was named Aikman's Business of the Year, and Angel Awards were presented to Sylvester Villegas, Trudy Hobbs, and Hereford Cablevision. Perfect Attendance awards went to Trudy Hobbs, Nancy Mooring, Sharon Crawford, Frances Suarez, Maria Caballero, Sylvester Villegas, and Mary Zepeda.

Bluebonnet HOSTS teacher Linda Brown made presentations for the reading program at her campus. Carmen Comonado was named Mentor of the Year, AgriPro Seed, Inc. was named Business of the Year, and Angel Awards were presented to Marcella McLain and Karla Fellers.

Doris Cagle, HOSTS teacher at Northwest, honored Jessie Ann Davis as Mentor of the Year. Hereford Cablevision received Northwest's Business of the Year Award, and Angel Awards went to Jean Beene and Hereford High School. Perfect Attendance awards were presented to Helmi Batterman, Margaret Zinser, Beatrice Knabe, Lloyd Ames, Marguerite Cole, Bonnie Hamilton, Vesta Mae Nunley, Virginia Curtsinger, Lucy Martin, Virginia Winget, Edna LeClaire, Louise Witkowski, Betty Jo Carlson, Jessie Ann Davis, Frances Crume, Linda Stevens, Ann Cummings, Ronnie Daniel, Monica DeLeon, and Jean Beene.

Howard Perry, HOSTS teacher with the Shirley reading program, honored Linda Perry as Shirley's Mentor of the Year. Allsup's No. 114 and its manager, David Kimmel, garnered Business of the Year honors. Angel Awards from Shirley were presented to Margaret Formby and LaJuan Fowler. Perfect Attendance awards went to LaJuan Fowler and Cleta Brown.

Carlynn DeLozier, HOSTS teacher at West Central, saluted Nancy Buchanan as her school's Mentor of the Year. West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative was honored as West Central HOSTS Business of the Year. Hereford State Bank was an Angel Award recipient. Perfect Attendance awards were presented to Leisa Autry, Joy Bunch, Kathy Davison, Edward DeLozier, Evelyn Lyles, Linda Mardell, Lily Roberts, Linda Stevens, Jimmy Bell, Wynona Blair, Grady Brown, Franca Campbell, Linda Gilbert, Mary Ann Hernandez, Joan Latham, Charlene Sanders, Jeani Conway, Kristi Milton, Nancy Buchanan, Kathy Allison, and Audine Dettman.

Postal collections — Letter carriers this past weekend made special collections to benefit the Hereford Food Pantry. Residents put out canned goods, and groceries and letter carries collected the goods. Total weight of the goods collected was 4,240 pounds. Local letter carrier Hedy Trujillo helped load the grocery items into trailers to be delivered to the Food Pantry.

Scientist wins chemistry award worth $300,000

HOUSTON (AP) — A scientist best known for studying whether microbial life may have existed on Mars has won a chemistry award that includes a $300,000 prize.

Stanford University chemist Richard Zare is the 1999 recipient of the Welch Award. An announcement was scheduled later today at a luncheon in Palo Alto, Calif.

Zare, 59, has pioneered laser techniques that detect and identify molecules in unimaginably small concentrations. The techniques are now common practice in labs around the world.

"Richard Zare's contributions have made a difference in the way we think about many important areas of chemistry," said Richard J.V. Johnson, Houston Chronicle publisher and Welch Foundation chairman. "He's been called the master laser chemist of our time, with his work combining the pursuit of basic understanding with highly practical analytic applications."

One of chemistry's most prestigious prizes, the Welch Award goes to chemists whose lifetime contributions have had a positive influence on humanity.

Zare will receive the award's $300,000 prize and a gold medallion at a banquet in Houston in October.

"I'm insatiably curious — and something of a frustrated inventor," Zare told the Chronicle. "The combination tends to lead me in a lot of directions. But everything I'm interested in starts with chemistry and it's all much more connected than people expected."

Zare used laser techniques to study a Martian rock that provided evidence microbial life may once have existed on the red planet.

He determined that organic material in the rock wasn't scattered randomly in the meteorite. Instead, it was clumped together in globules of carbonate. More than three years later, Zare still awaits a definitive verdict on the rock's evidence, saying it has been neither proved or disproved that microbial life once existed on Mars.

Auditions are private (student and judge only) with well qualified musicians serving as judges. Students are judged on individual merit in areas of accuracy, continuity, phrasing, pedaling, dynamics, rhythm, tempo, tone, interpretation, style and technique. Students are also judged on scales, cadences, transposition, sight reading and ear training.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I can empathize with the woman whose husband soaked his infected toe in her crockpot. I'm sure you will hear from other women whose husbands have done disgusting things with kitchen utensils, but I'll bet nothing beats mine.

One day, I noticed a dead squirrel in the back yard. I asked my husband, "Dirk," to dispose of it before the children saw it. I assumed he would use a shovel or some other garden implement to do the deed. I was horrified when I looked out the window and saw him holding the dead squirrel with my sterling silver tongs. They were a wedding gift from my maid of honor.

Dirk said, "I was going to wash them. What's the big deal?" Ann, this guy is a business executive and usually shows good judgment. The tongs caused quite an argument. I didn't want to throw them away, considering their sentimental value, but I could not imagine myself using them to touch food again. After a heated discussion, I soaked the tongs in a bleach solution overnight and put them through the dishwasher several times.

I now see the humor in the situation, although we still refer to them as the "Squirrel Tongs." Please don't print my name. No one would ever accept a dinner invitation to our home again. — Spokane, Wash.

Dear Spokane: Too bad your maid of honor's gift morphed into a family joke, but it did provide me with my laugh for the day.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Ted in California," with the absent-minded wife, was one of the most heart-warming letters I have ever read. If more people would pay attention to the last sentence in his letter, imagine how the divorce rate would plummet! The man wrote, "I love my wife, and my flexibility has made a big difference in our relationship." He certainly sounds like a one-of-a-kind guy.

If we all could be flexible enough to overlook those little habits of our spouses, parents, friends and co-workers that drive us crazy, the world would be a much better place. Have you noticed, Ann, it's the little things that people go nuts over?

"Ted in California" points out how easy it is to get past those annoyances if we just make the effort. Ted is on the right track, and he set me on that same track today. Please print my letter, and tell Ted he should write a book on the subject. He has a message a great number of people need to see. — J.O., Lafayette, La.

Dear J.O.: Here's your letter, and I hope Ted in California sees it. One key word is "flexibility," but actually, it is much more than that. It's his boundless tolerance and patience, born of love for his wife, that have made Ted such a terrific husband.

Dear Ann Landers: I am tired of people who refer to emergency medical technicians and paramedics as "ambulance drivers." There is a great deal of education involved in being an EMT or a paramedic, from initial training courses to the continuing education classes.

Club year concludes with salad luncheon

As its final meeting of the club year, the Garden Beautiful Club held a salad luncheon Saturday in the home of Shirley Wilson.

The business meeting was opened by outgoing president Marguerite Cole, then new officers for 1999-2000 were installed by Bea Noland.

Newly installed president Helen Spinks conducted the remainder of the meeting.

Spinks displayed a plaque that was presented to the Garden Beautiful Club at the 16th annual Texas Department of Human Services Volunteer Recognition meeting. The plaque was given in recognition of numerous items donated to human services by club members in December.

A letter of thanks from Margie Daniels, with Hereford Senior Citizens Center, was read for the club's donation to help with the water damaged floor and other upkeep needs at the Senior Center.

Members attending were Leona Andrews, Vada Axe, Louise Axe, Marcella McLain, Dorothy Noland, Louise Streun, Darlene Walker, Jerrye Wheeler, Cole and Spinks.

Artho gives program for L'Allegra

L'Allegra Study Club held its last meeting of the club year at the Deaf Smith County Museum with Valerie Artho, museum educator, giving the program.

Artho explained to the members about her visits to area schools and surrounding towns with individual trunks filled with artifacts pertaining to the American Indian, cowboys, di-nosaurus, pioneers and World War II.

These programs educate school children on the past and help draw them to the museum to learn more about Hereford's rich history.

A short meeting was held after the program then refreshments were served by hostesses Carmen Flood and Hilda Perales. The members then toured the Sears Memorial Garden adjacent to the museum.

Those in attendance were Melissa Clark, Kitty Gault, Diana Griffin, Diane Hoelscher, Sylvia Khuri, Shelley Menke, Karen Payne, Jody Skiles, Ella Marie Viegel, Judy Wall, Jan Weishaar, Mary Janet Bricker, Flood and Perales.

Rockets seek split in Los Angeles

He scored 25 points in Houston's 101-100 loss Sunday, when turnovers cost the Fisher took some of the Rockets by surprise, including Pippen.

"He played much better than we anticipated, much better than we wanted him to play," Pippen said. "That sort of hurt us."

Fisher doesn't think the Rockets can adjust enough to affect his game tonight.

Rockets in the closing seconds.

"I'm going to be more aggressive. I'm going to call for the ball more," Barkley said Monday before practice.

"I got to make them pay for not doubling me."

The Rockets must win tonight at the Forum to avoid a 2-0 deficit when the series heads to Houston for Game 3 on Thursday.

"For us to survive in this series, we've got to win a game here in L.A.," said Scottie Pippen, whose turnover with seven seconds left and the Rockets ahead by one in the opener led to their downfall.

"We don't want to put our backs to the wall and push it to the limit. We would definitely love to steal the home court from them," he said.

Kobe Bryant said Barkley should expect more defensive attention tonight.

"Charles is a tough matchup. We have to bother him a little bit," Bryant said.

"Try to put him in uncomfortable situations where he doesn't know every time down the floor what you're going to do."

Barkley is willing to concede at least 25 points to Bryant and Shaquille O'Neal, but he doesn't want to see the Lakers' Glen Rice score 29 points again.

"If we play as well as we did (Sunday) and cut down on the turnovers, we'll win," he said.

"We played well enough to win (Game 1), we just made a couple mental errors."

One of those came when Pippen lost the ball with seven seconds left.

Lakers guard Derek Fisher made a head-first dive onto the floor and took the ball away.

"I enjoy it, it gets my blood boiling," Fisher said of his on-court wrestling.

"I don't really think I'm playing that hard or playing that well if I don't get down there and dive on the loose balls."

He also scored 20 points, one off his career best, and hit four 3-pointers while picking up an assortment of scrapes and bruises.

"If he wouldn't had the type of game he had, we would've lost," Rice said. "Offensively, he was explosive. Defensively, he was on every loose ball, stealing the ball from people."

"You've got to have guys like Derek Fisher, guys that are willing to get down there no matter what it takes, and get scratched up every now and then and ignite the defense," Rice said.

Houston bats devour Pirate pitchers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros are making a living off left-handed pitchers.

Pittsburgh's Pete Schourek is the latest lefty to be victimized by Houston's hitters. The Astros, despite stranding a season-high 14 runners, routed Pittsburgh 6-0 behind Mike Hampton's five-hitter and three hits apiece from Ken Caminiti and Tony Eusebio.

"They've got several guys who are really killing left-handers," Pittsburgh manager Gene Lamont said of the Astros. "If you don't have your best stuff against them, they'll make you pay."

The Astros had 13 hits — including nine against lefties Schourek and Scott Sauerbeck — to raise their average against left-handers to .356 (104-for-292), tops in the majors.

"Against most left-handers, we can put up a strong lineup of right-handed hitters. I have no explanation for it, we've just been hitting them well this year," Astros manager Larry Dierker said.

Four starters — Derek Bell, Jeff Bagwell, Caminiti and Carl Everett — are hitting .400 or better against left-handers.

"I didn't realize we were doing that well," Bell said. "It's just the way our luck is, I guess. It's one of those things in baseball, we've got some good right-handed hitters."

Caminiti extended his hitting streak to 11 consecutive games.

"Left-handers haven't given us much of a problem this year, but it's a long season and I don't want to pay much attention to that right now," Caminiti said. "We have a good hitting team all around. The one thing they told me when they signed me was that this team has trouble against good right-handers."

Hampton is 4-0 in his last five starts.

"He feels he's as good as

Astros win 6-0 despite leaving season-high 14 runners stranded anybody in the league right now," Dierker said.

"This is three in a row that he's been dominating. The last three games he has had command of all of his pitches, changing speeds, using all four corners, he's had a good sharp slider and his fastball has been good when he needed it."

Hampton (4-1) struck out seven and walked none in his first shutout and complete game since a seven-hitter against the New York Mets on April 21, 1998. He also kept up his solid hitting, going 1-for-3 to raise his average to .286.

Hampton, who got his fifth career shutout, has allowed just one run and seven hits in his last 16 innings, lowering his ERA to 2.83. He is 4-0 in his last five starts against the Pirates.

"I'm confident out there and the team is scoring runs for me. I'm kind of in a groove," Hampton said. "The big thing tonight was getting ahead in the count and making them hit my pitch. I got better as the game went on. My changeup got better and I got more strikeouts at the end of the game."

The Astros have won the last five games Hampton has started. All five wins came after a Houston defeat.

"I'm challenging the hitters and confidence is a big factor. I am confident I can get the hitters out and when I fall behind, I've got confidence that my fastball can get them out," Hampton added.

Schourek (1-3) allowed six runs, nine hits and five walks in four innings.

"You can't consistently pitch behind in the count and be successful," Schourek said. "I thought the biggest hit of the (fifth) inning was the ball Eusebio cued off the end of the bat with Hidalgo running. I was living on the edge after that."

Bell's sixth homer put Houston ahead in the third, and the Astros added five runs in the fifth, sending 10 batters to plate.

"They have an explosive offense," Lamont said. "They have eight guys in that lineup who can beat you."

Bagwell walked, Caminiti doubled and Richard Hidalgo, Eusebio and Tim Bogar followed with consecutive RBI singles that chased Schourek.

Glen Barker's single off Brad Clontz loaded the bases, and Clontz walked Craig Biggio and Bell on 3-2 pitches, forcing in a pair of runs.

Former teammate says Tuinei demise was related to drugs

McKINNEY, Texas (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys star Mark Tuinei's final hours were spent looking for heroin and, later, slowly dying in his antique roadster while a former teammate slept beside him.

That account, revealed in a police affidavit Monday, came from Cowboys running back Nicky Sualua, who was with Tuinei in the hours leading up to the former All-Pro lineman's death last week.

Police said they expected toxicology results today which could provide further evidence as to what caused the 39-year-old Tuinei to die.

According to Sualua's account, Tuinei told his friend he took the stimulant Ecstasy. The two later went to a north Dallas apartment to obtain heroin, and Tuinei went into a bedroom, "and he said 'Here it is,'" the police affidavit said.

Tuinei emerged unsteady, "as if he was passing out," and eventually stopped breathing, Sualua said.

Sualua added that he performed CPR at the apartment until Tuinei was breathing again, but still unconscious.

Rather than seek medical help for his friend, Sualua dragged the 6-foot-5, 320-pound former player to his 1933 classic Ford roadster. Sualua drove to Tuinei's house in an affluent section of Plano, a Dallas suburb, and parked in back. "Mark was snoring loudly," the affidavit said.

Sualua got two blankets from the house and slept in the car with his friend. When he woke up, about 5:30 a.m. Thursday, Tuinei was not breathing, Sualua told police.

In a 911 tape released Friday, a man identified as "Nicky" told the dispatcher that his friend had stopped breathing. "I can't feel a pulse," he said. Tuinei was pronounced dead after arriving at a nearby hospital.

Neither Sualua, a reserve fullback for the Cowboys, nor his agent, Steve Weinberg, could be reached Monday.

Sualua was at his suburban Carrollton home, which he purchased from Tuinei last year, but refused to answer the door. Jerry Banks, an attorney who said he is representing Sualua, refused comment as he left the house.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 • Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 • Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 • Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 • Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

In Senate, Gore, Bradley didn't see eye to eye

By Laurence Arnold

The Associated Press

Al Gore and Bill Bradley might seem like two peas in a pod — free-trading Democrats both workish and wooden. Just don't get them started on daylight savings time and highway billboards.

Now competing for the Democratic presidential nomination in 2000, Gore and Bradley were colleagues in the Senate. As members of the same party, the junior senator from Tennessee and senior senator from New Jersey voted alike on more than three-quarters of all roll-call votes, according to an Associated Press analysis.

But compared side by side, their voting records reveal some fundamental differences on issues foreign and domestic.

Bradley was more willing than Gore to expand use of the death penalty. Gore, but not Bradley, supported an international space station and a space-based missile defense system.

Bradley favored fewer U.S. troops in Europe but grudgingly voted to fund Nicaraguan rebels.

Gore voted to confirm President Reagan's nomination of Alan Greenspan as Federal Reserve chairman and President Bush's nomination of David Souter to the Supreme Court. Bradley was one of two dissenters on Greenspan, questioning his international experience, and one of nine dissenters on Souter, questioning his position on abortion rights.

As for daylight-savings time, Bradley supported a move in 1986 to change the "spring ahead" from the last Sunday to the first Sunday in April. Supporters of the measure said an extra hour of light at night would conserve energy, fight crime and help business. Opponents like Gore favored an hour of light in the early morning, when children leave for school.

And in a 1987 debate that pitted business against environmentalists, Gore helped derail limits on highway billboards that Bradley supported.

The Senate took 2,722 roll-call votes during the eight years Bradley and Gore served together — from 1985, when Gore joined the Senate, until 1993, when Gore became vice president. In 585 of the roll calls, at least one of them did not vote, according to the AP analysis of vote tallies compiled by Congressional Quarterly.

When Bradley and Gore both cast votes or announced how they would have voted, they were on the same side 1,693 times, or on 79 percent of the roll calls. They differed on the other 444 votes.

Rutgers University political scientist Ross Baker said the aggregate numbers suggest Bradley and Gore are more alike than different.

"They are not exactly joined at the hip, but they're certainly fraternal twins," Baker said. He estimated that the most ideologically aligned senators vote alike 80 percent to 90 percent of the time.

Bradley said Friday that he and Gore have "a lot of differences" on issues and pledged to explore them in the fall. He said he tackled complex issues in the Senate, like international trade, international finance and taxation, while Gore was "more cautious."

Gore spokesman Chris Lehane said the vice president "has a very long and distinguished record both in the House and the Senate on issues like the environment, high-tech, family policy and community empowerment."

Single by Beatles to be released

Refurbished version of film to be put out

LONDON — A previously unreleased single by the Beatles will be put out later this year, along with refurbished versions of the "Yellow Submarine" soundtrack and movie.

The single is about three minutes long and features all four Beatles singing, said Geoff Baker, a spokesman for Paul McCartney and Apple Records. He wouldn't disclose other details about the song Monday.

The 87-minute movie "Yellow Submarine," first released in 1968, is being restored and given a remixed soundtrack, Baker said.

The album had six songs by the Beatles and seven instrumental tracks from the film score by George Martin, the group's producer. The remixed version will drop the instrumentals and replace them with previously released Beatles tracks, Baker said.

Natalie Portman

NEW YORK — Natalie Portman was far from a "Star Wars" fan when she landed the role of Queen Amidala in the latest installment.

"I was born in Israel and I lived there for my first three years," said the 17-year-old Long Islander. "By the time I got to the United States, all the films had already come out. So I missed it the first time around."

Portman plays a queen who resists invasion of her country in "Star Wars: Episode I — The Phantom Menace."

She said Sunday that she plays a "strong female character that's really good for girls."

Garth Brooks

LOS ANGELES — A pop-rock CD set to hit record stores in October features a greatest hits package by one of the best-selling artists in history: Chris Gaines.

So who's Chris Gaines? He's none other than Garth Brooks. The country crooner is set to star as the fictional Gaines in a movie chronicling the end of the 15-year career of a rock idol.

The Capitol Records CD "In the Life of Chris Gaines" is to be released in October. Nowhere on it is there a mention of the country superstar.

The idea is to introduce listeners to Gaines so they will know the character and want to see the thriller "The Lamb," which is still in development at Paramount Pictures.

Annie Glenn

NEW CONCORD, Ohio — The wife of the oldest person to ever fly in space urged graduating students to embrace public service — whatever it means.

"When I say public service, I am not just talking about politics or government, although they are two top types of public service," Annie Glenn said at the Muskingum College commencement.

"To me, public service is much, much broader. It can encompass virtually any skill, any talent or any ability that you possess," she said.

Mrs. Glenn and her husband, John, have been appointed distinguished alumni professors at the college, which they both attended.

Back then, she said, her public life was limited by severe stuttering that she has since overcome, but she tried to be involved in her community anyway.

"I couldn't imagine speaking in public, but I could still play the organ and I played the organ at every chapel on every military base where we were assigned," Mrs. Glenn said.

The total cost of the software and hardware upgrade is $92,476.25. The county will use $26,900 in county records management funds and $12,700 in records preservation funds (county and district) for the project, leaving a net balance of $52,876.25 that will be paid in three annual payments of $11,468.49.

The commissioners also agreed to install new cabling and hubs for the computer network. That expense is estimated to be about $3,000.

The commissioners also approved the purchase of insurance on its motorgraders. The annual premium of $4,034 provides more than $1.26 million in all-risk coverage and includes a $10,000 deductible.

Farm safety to be stressed

Like all industries, agriculture has its own unique problems and concerns. Topping the list is the number of accidents, specific to agricultural producers.

As a safety awareness measure the Texas Partnership for Farm Health & Safety, Texas Agriculture Extension Service of Deaf Smith County and the West Texas A&M University Division of Nursing will host a Progressive Farmer Farm Safety Day Camp for nearly 350 local fifth-grade students.

Students will meet Wednesday in morning and afternoon sessions at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn and spend a day learning about everyday dangers on the farm and ranch and how the often tragic accidents can be prevented.

"We move at such a fast pace today we often fail to give final warnings of the dangers that exist," Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Agricultural Extension Agent, said. "With this day camp we want to make children aware of the common dangers and just what can happen from a moment's inattention or just not thinking."

For nearly 10 years Progressive Farmer has helped agricultural communities design programs which deal specifically with concerns of the area.

This year the Deaf Smith County Farm Safety Day Camp will include pickup/ATV accident demonstrations, grain bin safety, gate and belt safety, emergency first aid, and chemical safety. ani-
