BIG BUCKS

New 'Star Wars' movie sets record with $28.5 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new "Star Wars" movie made $28.5 million on opening day, shattering records set in 1997 by "The Lost World: Jurassic Park." And that was on a school night.

"Star Wars: Episode I — The Phantom Menace" opened at 2,970 locations, some of which have been playing the movie round-the-clock since 12:01 a.m. Wednesday.

The 24-hour receipts totaling $28,542,349 beat the one-day record of $26.1 million set by "Lost World" on a Sunday of Memorial Day weekend in 1997, box office tracker Exhibitor Relations Co. said Thursday.

"Phantom Menace" also topped the "Lost World" opening-day record of $21.6 million, set on the Friday of that weekend.

Analysts said "Phantom Menace" should gross $100 million to $140 million by the end of its five-day opening Sunday.

Runners give peace a chance

By Don Cooper

Runners from around the world are giving peace a chance by taking their message to the roads.

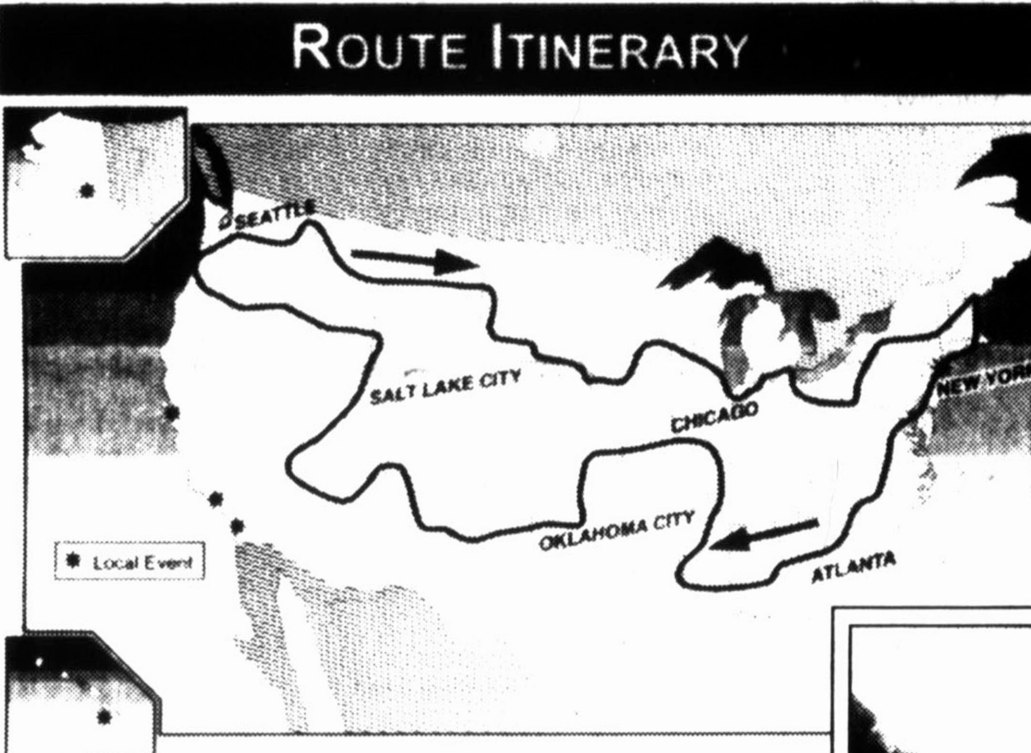

A group of international runners, bearing flaming torches symbolic of world peace, stopped Thursday in Hereford on their trek through the United States. During their brief stay in Hereford, the runners with the Sri Chinmoy Oneness Home Peace Run presented programs for the students, hoping to inspire them to exercise tolerance and grow up working for peace in the world.

The runners started their United States leg April 17 in New York City, moved down the Eastern Seaboard to Georgia and then across the South, reaching Hereford about 2 p.m. Thursday. From here, the runners will head for New Mexico, with Seattle, Wash., as the ultimate destination before returning to New York for the closing ceremonies on Aug. 14.

"There are runners from more than 100 nations participating in peace runs in Europe and Africa," Daulton Fountain, an electrician from Seattle, said. Fountain, who had run about 11 miles Thursday, was driving the relief vehicle, which was stopped about 8 miles east of Hereford on U.S. Highway 60.

He said the group which was visiting the schools in Hereford, had 12 runners from the U.S., including Jason Wilie of Austin, Texas, who said the organization hopes to expand into the Panhandle.

The other runners included natives of Scotland, Australia and the Czech Republic.

Fountain said the runners like to show the students how people from different nationalities can share and work together for a common goal.

"We hope it will inspire the children," Fountain said.

He said the group spent Wednesday night in Clarendon, where they received a warm welcome.

"We were put up at the Bar H Dude Ranch and the chamber of commerce fed us," Fountain said. "Along the way, hotels have offered us rooms. We also have an RV, so we can make most of our meals."

The run isn't easy, Fountain said.

"We average 8-12 miles, depending on the (individual) runners."

The relay run across the U.S. is part of a global effort to bring in the new millennium, passing through more than 1,000 communities this summer. The run, which began in April, will wind up in Au-

'He's got a gun!' Another school is terrorized

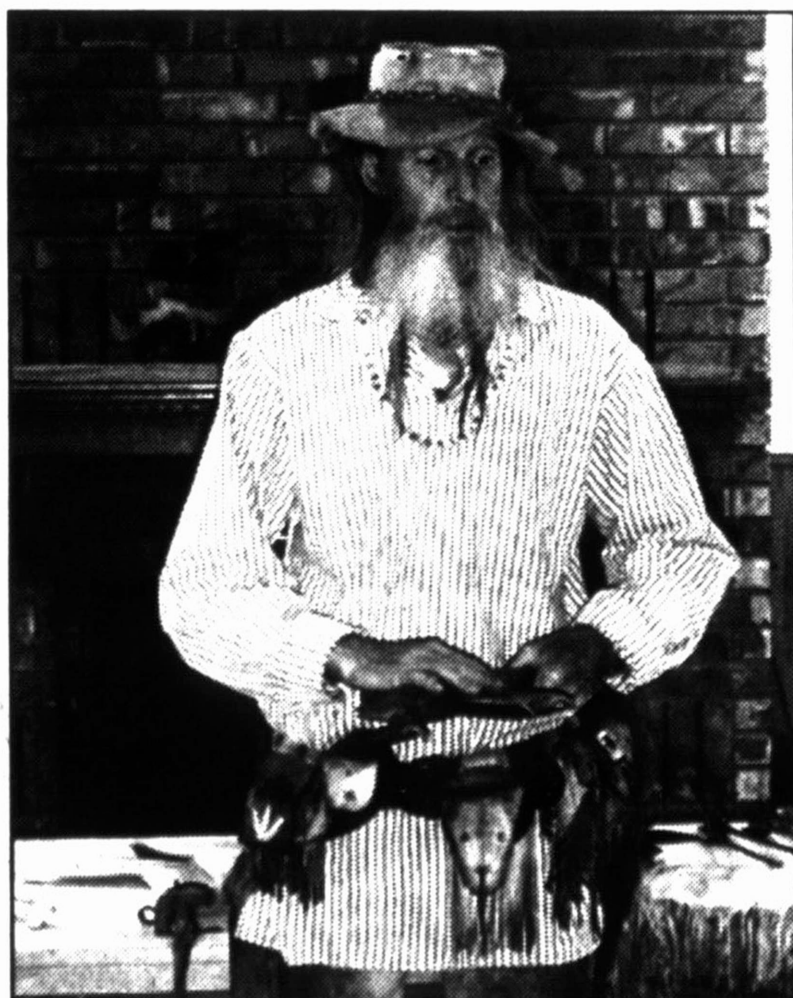

CONYERS, Ga. (AP) — The first bell hadn't sounded yet and the students in the commons area at Heritage High School were gabbing and munching on cinnamon rolls. It was the last day of class for the seniors.

Suddenly came a loud, startling "pop," then another, another and still another. Some figured it was a prank — maybe firecrackers — until they heard shouts of "he's got a gun!"

Then came the panic, screams, tears — and blood.

On the day Heritage High seniors were looking forward to picking up their yearbooks, their suburban community became the new focus for a

Dressed in mattress ticking-striped shirt, deerskin leggins and high boots; and with enough apparent weaponry to get anyone expelled, Hodie Porterfield, on Thursday debunked Hollywood's myths about American Indians, cowboys and frontiersmen as part of Shirley Intermediate School's annual end-of-course Ranch Day.

Porterfield looks and dresses the part of a mid-1800s frontiersman. Not only does he look like a frontiersman, he also knows many facts regarding American Indians, early settlers and the mountain men.

Porterfield brings history to life with his knowledge of flints, steels, tools and weapons.

Picking up a long-handled-rock-bladed item, Porterfield said, "The Indians had only one weapon. It was called a skull buster."

Porterfield explained to the Weapons and tools from the mid-19th century students, Indians would shape a flint rock, cut a hole in a stout piece of wood, soak the wood in a river until the wood started to swell. Finally the rock blade could be worked into the handle and the entire weapon would be hung out to dry.

Students for the most part were enthralled. Porterfield showed his young audience how to start a fire by striking flint with steel, and how early explorers Lewis and Clark made friends with native tribes.

Today it was back to the classroom. But for the students, the lessons taught by a bearded man in buckskins may last a lifetime.

Bill meant to help Texas students

AUSTIN (AP) — A program to help with the cost of school-based health centers in Texas would be jointly administered by the state's education and health commissioners under a bill that backers say is meant to help youngsters do their best in the classroom.

"It addresses barriers to learning so teachers can teach and students can learn," said Jenni Jennings, president of the Texas Association of School-Based Health Centers and a board member of a national school health care group.

The bill, which was OK'd Thursday by the Senate, earlier passed the House and returns there for consideration of amendments.

It would provide for school districts to establish health centers at one or more campuses on the advice of an advisory panel, of which parents would make up the majority.

The school districts could compete for grants to help fund the centers. The bill would cost an estimated $1.25 million a year. Funding first would have to be allocated through the state budget.

Schools report increased threats

DALLAS (AP) — County schools have received four times more threats of violence this year than they normally receive at the end of the school year, officials say.

Officials said Thursday that 20 youths accused of making bomb or gun threats against schools and their classmates have been locked up at the Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center in the month since the Colorado school shooting.

The recent threats will have serious consequences even if they were intended as pranks, say law officers.

Punishment could range from probation to placement at a Texas Youth Commission facility until they are 19.

Juvenile officials have conducted psychological tests on the 20 students — 16 boys and four girls — detained in the month since the Colorado shootings. Most were released from custody after a few days pending a court hearing later this month.

Mike Griffiths, Juvenile Department director, said such threats are usually rare and generally occur near the end of the school year. District get no threats at all during some months, but he said that in the last month of school, five threats usually are the maximum.

Dr. Saleem Ateek, chief psychologist for the Juvenile Department, said it is "clear that all threats have to be taken very seriously because we have seen their impact on human life."

"You really cannot afford to ignore them."

Among those jailed during the past month were two Richardson girls, ages 14 and 15, who had a "death list" of 17 students and teachers they wanted to kill.

Also jailed was a 15-year-old Dallas boy who was overheard saying, "I'll blow up the whole school. I will kill you all."

In another case, a 12-year-old Richardson boy was jailed after he allegedly said, "I'm leaving my mark on this school. I'm blowing it up."

The ages of the youths who made the recent threats range from 10 to 16, and two had previously been referred to the juvenile department. Their names are not being released because they are juveniles.

Juvenile court Judge Hal Gaither, one of two judges who preside over such cases involving juveniles in Dallas County, said most of the youths will likely get probation.

"These kind of kids that are doing it for a prank are different from what's called the regular juvenile delinquent, who would be willing to steal or hurt somebody or take somebody's life," Judge Gaither said.

But he added, "If there really were some intentions of violence, then we will throw the book at them."

Juvenile court Judge Cheryl Lee Shannon, the other juvenile judge, said she will consider each case individually.

"We have to see whether it was just a mindless kind of threat — a bad case of bad judgment — or if there really are some issues that can be considered a threat to someone or to the community," she said.

Kiwanis Students of the Month — Lisa Riley, center, and Mitch Wagner, second from left, have been named as Kiwanis students of the month for May. Both students are active in school, church, and civic organizations. Riley, 17, the daughter of Roy and Helen Riley, has participated in varsity tennis for three years; is a two-year member of the National Honor Society; the Concerteers and the Key Club. She attends the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, where she is the assistant pianist. She plans on attending Brigham Young University and majoring in business management. Wagner, 18, is the son of David Wagner and Pam Wagner, has participated in several high school sports and was named Boys Varsity Basketball's "most valuable player." He is an active HOST mentor; a member of the HHS yearbook staff; sports editor for the school paper; and was a candidate for Most Handsome. Wagner participates in Nazarene Youth Group and for the last three years has attended the Southern Nazarene University at Bethany. After graduation he plans on attending the University of North Texas. Pictured with the students are Wagner's father David Wagner, left, and Riley's parents, Helen and Roy Riley.

Waste disposal bill could prove unconstitutional

AUSTIN (AP) — A nuclear waste disposal bill pending in the Texas Senate could violate the U.S. Constitution, the state attorney general's office says.

According to the opinion released Tuesday, the measure proposing to privatize a radioactive waste dump would be unconstitutional if it also prohibits the state from accepting waste from other states.

Gov. George W. Bush voiced concern Wednesday about legislation to allow private companies to store and bury low-level radioactive waste, saying he doesn't want Texas to be the nation's nuclear dump.

A Texas Senate committee last week approved a bill that would allow private companies, not a state agency, to store or bury low-level waste.

The AG's opinion suggests that it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the state to privatize a waste site without also losing control over the sources of shipments.

The opinion concluded that a law barring private companies from accepting low-level waste from the Department of Energy would unconstitutionally interfere with interstate commerce and federal activities.

Don't talk and drive Cell phones create tragedies

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for printing the letter on cell phones and the dangers they pose. As a traffic safety expert on radio and TV, I hear too many horror stories about tragedies caused by people who use their cell phones while driving. Your readers might be interested to know that in the following countries, using cell phones while driving has been banned: the United Kingdom, Australia, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Brazil, Chile, Switzerland and Israel.

Must we wait until we see some young mother lying in the street next to her kids, a cell phone still in her hand, or a businessman mangled after a car crash with his car phone next to his ear, before we decide to do something to stop this public menace? — Kenny Morse, "Mr. Traffic," Los Angeles

Dear Mr. Traffic: This is a do-it-yourself project if ever I heard one. Are you listening, readers? I hope so. Please keep reading for another letter that could help you (and your children) stay alive:

Dear Ann Landers: As the executive director of the Air Bag & Seat Belt Safety Campaign, I am pleased you told your readers to always wear their seat belts and that parents should place child safety seats in the back seat.

The greatest danger American children face is being unrestrained in a car crash. Each year, six out of 10 kids killed in car crashes are not wearing seat restraints. Nearly half would be alive today if they had been properly buckled up.

Studies consistently show that we won't get children buckled up until we get adults to wear seat belts. A study in the journal Pediatrics found that a buckled driver is three times more likely to buckle up a child. Please encourage your readers to follow the ABCs of passenger safety:

Always slide the seat back — and sit back.

Buckle everyone.

Children sit in the back.

Thank you, Ann. — Janet Dewey, Air Bag & Seat Belt Safety Campaign, National Safety Council, Washington, D.C.

Dear Janet Dewey: Your statistics are chilling. The one that got to me was six out of 10 kids killed in car crashes were not wearing seat belts. I hope every parent will remember this column when their children get in the car.

Dear Ann Landers: After reading your column for so many years, I have decided to join the "how we met" crowd.

Several months after the Japanese surrendered, I was still serving on the USS Guam. The ship was ordered back to New Jersey to be decommissioned. Art, my roommate, was a tall, handsome naval officer, and I was a not-so-tall Marine captain. We decided to go on liberty in New York and have some well-deserved fun.

We had heard there was a swell officers' club in the Sherry Netherlands Hotel. Upon entering, we were met by a middle-aged hostess who welcomed us warmly and seated us in a booth. Shortly after, an attractive young woman showed up and was introduced as the hostess' daughter. The young woman immediately took a shine to my handsome friend — until he remarked that his wife and baby were on the way from Hawaii. This babe dropped old Art like a hot rock and gave me her undivided attention.

Six months later, we were married. I should add that I wasn't all that keen on getting married then because I had gotten a "Dear John" letter while in the South Pacific and sworn off babes, but she changed my mind. — J.C., Atlantic Beach, Fla.

Dear J.C.: Thanks for a fine example of the wisdom in never saying never.

Sunday, May 30 we will have our Fifth Sunday Dinner. Everyone is invited. Bring food for your family and the church will furnish tea, coffee and bread.

FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS

According to the liturgical calendar of the Christian year, this is Pentecost Sunday. This is the birthday of the Church. This Day of Pentecost remembers the events recorded in Acts 2 where there was so much love and harmony that some suspected that the church was drunk. In a sense, she was!

Pastor Nathan L. Stone, Ph.D., will preach a sermon (10:30) entitled, "Ears, as of Fire: Pentecost 1999" (Acts 2:1-21). As a group exercise, FOB will wonder whether Pentecost is more about speaking or listening. And, we will wonder about the meaning of drunkenness as a descriptor of the church on her birthday.

FOB's tradition is that gathered worship will conclude no later than 11:30.

During FOB's version of adult Sunday school ("Forum") 9:30-10:30 the church will reflect on the question, "Is there a female side to God?" The discussion will be launched by watching a brief video clip of Steven Brown and Tony Campolo "hashing it out."

FOB is not a mainstream church. We are whatever it is that is the opposite of mainstream. Lesser stream? FOB holds to no creed but can agree with much that is found in the classic creeds. We have very few meetings and pass no offering plates. We seek to be a haven for those who are burned out on the church as institution. We are ordinary folks searching for truth and more truth. FOB is a church in process...a work in progress.

A supervised nursery is available at all services.

FOB is located at 245 N. Kingwood (at Moreman).

Houston bests Los Angeles in extra innings, 4-3

Astros improve to 25-14, best in the NL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Houston Astros can't believe they're really this good. The Los Angeles Dodgers are convinced they're not this bad.

Houston's 10-inning, 4-3 victory Thursday night was their 14th in 19 games and improved their record to 25-14 — best in the National League. It also matched last season's start as the best in club history through the first 39 games.

"We've played well so far, but there's a long way to go, and a lot of things can happen," first baseman Jeff Bagwell said. "It's the team that can weather the storm throughout the entire year and play well, that will determine who the best team is."

The Astros won the NL Central in 1998 with a franchise-best 102 victories, but Bagwell is wary of making comparisons.

"We're going to have to be a hell of a club to compare with last year's club," he said. "You can't judge a team till you get into August or September, when you know what kind of club you actually are. The bottom line is getting to the playoffs — whatever it takes — and then finally getting by that first round for us."

The underachieving Dodgers, whose payroll is the third-highest in the majors, fell to 21-19. They are 7-9 since winning five in a row in late April — the last time they won back-to-back games.

"We just have to find our own breaks," Dodgers left fielder Gary Sheffield said. "We have to go out and make it happen, put more pressure on the other team and hit better with runners in scoring position."

Astros manager Larry Dierker has no doubt the Dodgers will turn it around in their first season under manager Davey Johnson, whose winning percentage is the highest of any active manager in the majors.

"I'll be surprised if that trend continues because they have an excellent team," Dierker said. "I think they'll run off some winning streaks here and there and I believe they'll be right there at the end."

"I don't know if they're going to win their division, but I don't think they're going to be out of range of winning it during the final week or two."

The Astros lead the NL in batting average, on-base percentage, doubles and stolen bases. Their pitching staff — despite the loss of Randy Johnson to free agency — have allowed the fewest walks, home runs and earned runs in the league.

"We were in first place last year before we got Randy Johnson," Bagwell pointed out. "Our pitching staff is very solid. We don't have an ace, but we've got some guys out there who can pitch."

"Shane Reynolds has pitched well in this league for a while, Jose Lima has established himself and Mike Hampton is as tough a lefty and as tough a competitor as they come. So we have a very solid rotation to go along with a great offense — which gives us a good chance to win every night," Bagwell said.

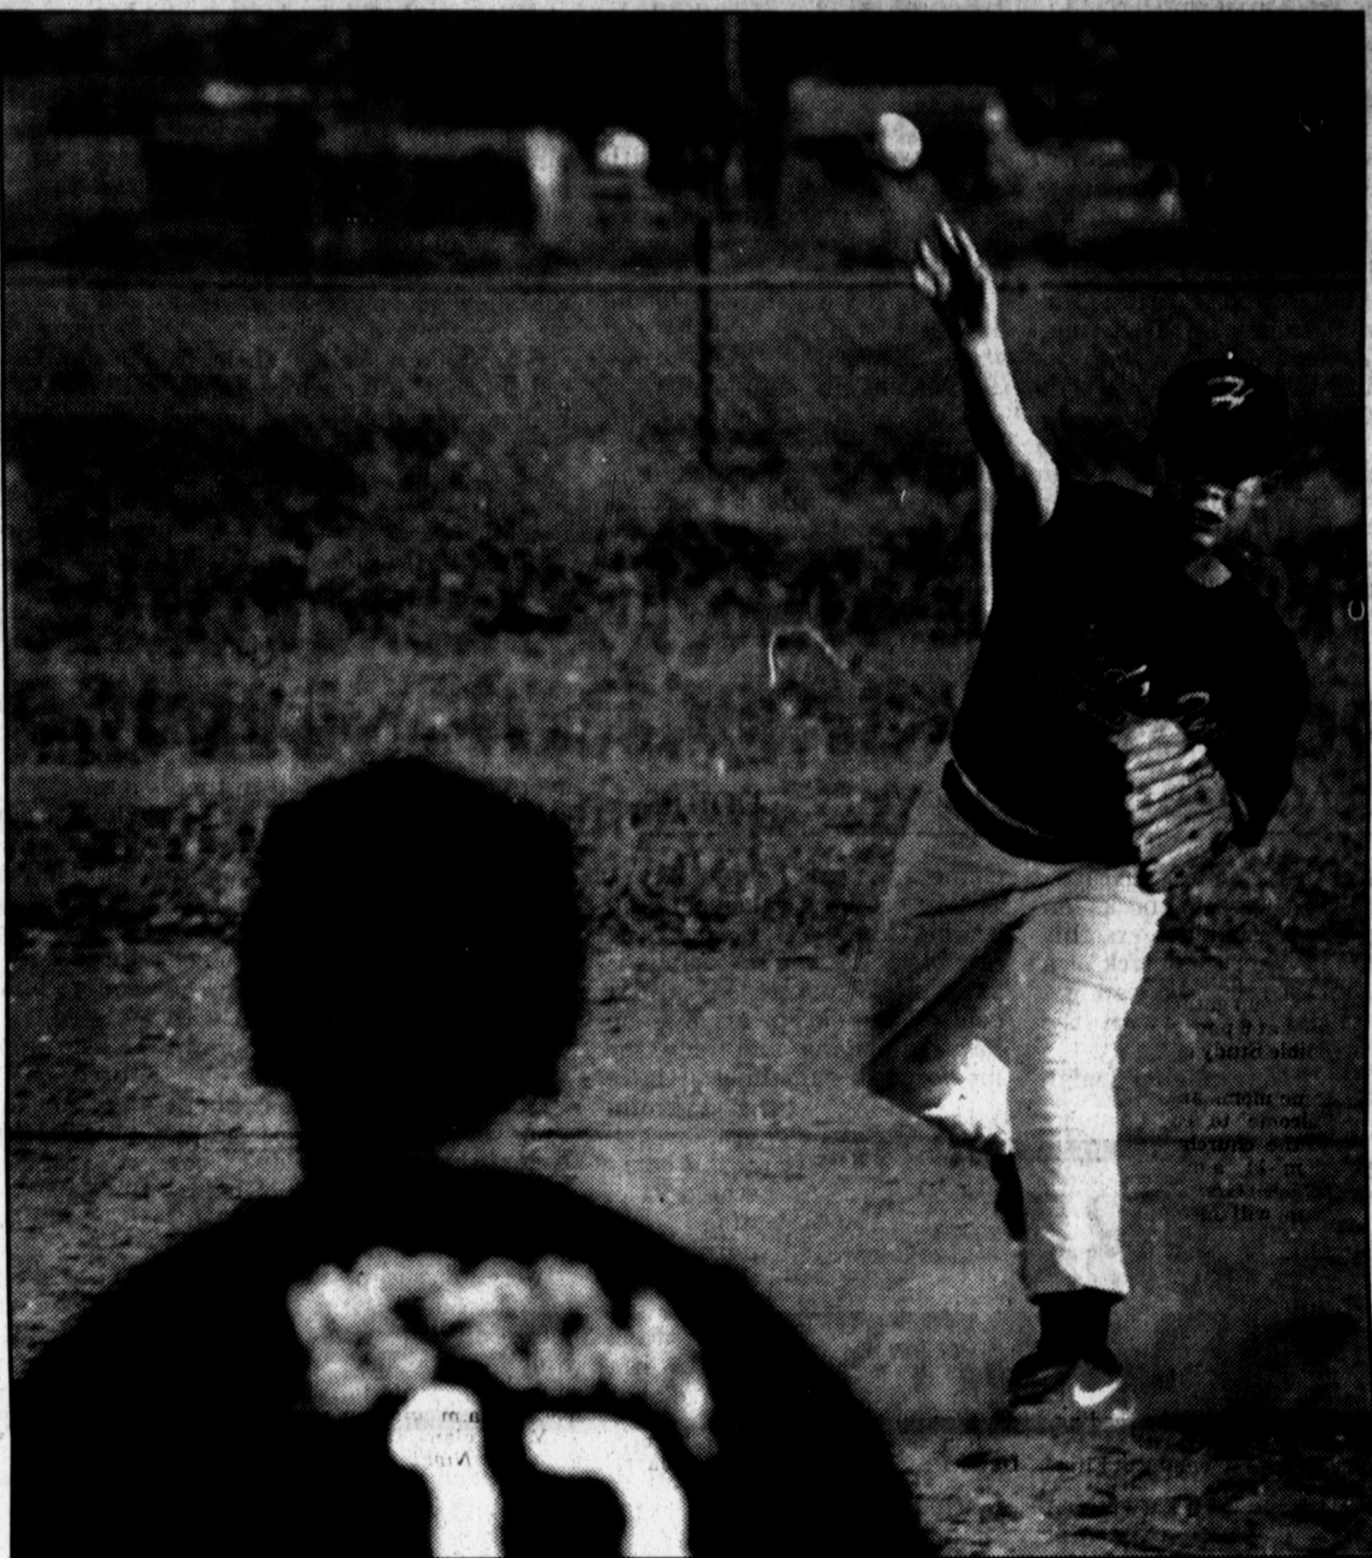

Hampton, who brought a four-game winning streak into the game, settled for a no-decision despite holding the Dodgers to a run and seven hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Carl Everett's home run in the second off Chan Ho Park gave Houston a 1-0 lead that Hampton held until the seventh, when the left-hander's throwing error helped the Dodgers tie it. Eric Young hit an RBI single that made it 1-1.

Pinch-hitter Tripp Cromer hit his first home run with two outs in the ninth to pull the Dodgers even again. But in the 10th, Craig Biggio drew a leadoff walk from Jeff Shaw (1-2) and scored on Derek Bell's drive to the right-center field gap. Ken Caminiti added a sacrifice fly.

Billy Wagner (1-1) pitched two innings and got the victory despite blowing his first save of the season in 12 chances. Raul Mondesi hit his NL-leading 15th home run off Wagner with two outs in the 10th, but Eric Karros looked at a third strike for the final out.

Quick work

Comin' your way — Haggar and Associates second baseman Branden West throws to Justin Armendariz at first to finish a rally begun by Plains Insurance Thursday in a boys' major league baseball game at the Kids, Inc. baseball complex. Haggar and Associates improved to 2-0 with a 17-4 win.

0-2 Lakers trying to find answers as series shifts to Los Angeles

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers' failure to communicate cost them dearly, and now they face a difficult task in the Western Conference semifinals.

Lakers coach Kurt Rambis admitted Thursday he didn't make himself clear to his players late in Game 2 a night earlier at the Alamodome.

Things didn't go as planned, and the San Antonio Spurs took advantage and beat the Lakers 79-76 to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series.

Games 3 and 4 are Saturday and Sunday at the Forum.

"We are still a growing, developing team, and everybody forgets that," said Rambis, who could have just as well been speaking about himself as an NBA coach. "You just keep trying to get better and better and better, that's what we're trying to do."

The Lakers were on the

verge of tying the series when things suddenly unraveled.

First, with the Lakers leading 76-75 thanks to a 3-point shot by Kobe Bryant with 36 seconds remaining, Bryant missed two free throws with 18 seconds left.

When Bryant stepped to the line, he had 28 points and was 23-of-25 on free throws (92 percent) in the playoffs.

Then, San Antonio's Tim Duncan, guarded by J.R. Reid, made a short jump hook from the baseline with 8.4 seconds to play, putting the Spurs ahead.

"We were supposed to come down and double-team him right away," Rambis said of Duncan. "That was one thing we didn't do."

They also should have fouled Duncan, since the Lakers had one to give.

"I guess I didn't do a real good job in telling them," Rambis said. "I did say we have a foul to give."

Rambis said he assumed his players would use that foul before Duncan could shoot.

"I was obviously incorrect in my assumption," he said. "Once (Duncan) started getting in that low deep position, that was the time to foul him."

The Lakers called their final timeout, after which Derek Fisher was unable to handle Bryant's inbounds pass — a pass that was supposed to go to Shaquille O'Neal or Glen Rice.

The ball ricocheted off Fisher's head, and San Antonio's Mario Elie came up with it.

Elie was immediately fouled — the foul the Lakers had to give — and the Lakers then fouled Sean Elliott, who made two free throws with 5.3 seconds left to complete the scoring.

Without a timeout, Bryant raced downcourt and missed a desperation 3-pointer that could have tied the game.

"It's my responsibility to be clear, it's their responsibility to execute," said Rambis, who succeeded Del Harris as coach of the Lakers on Feb. 26 and didn't have head coaching experience before that.

Rambis gave his players Thursday off, explaining, "Mentally and physically, I just gave them a break; emotionally, just get away from the game for a little bit."

There's a lot to contemplate. In order to reach the conference finals for the second straight year, the Lakers must win four of five games from a team that has gone 35-6 since the beginning of March. And that's not all.

The Spurs are 4-1 in the playoffs after winning 12 of their final 13 regular-season games; they've won their last five road games and seven of their last eight, and they haven't lost two in a row since setbacks to Seattle and Utah at the end of February left them 6-8.

"Our defense just keeps on stepping up and keeps on making stops," Duncan said. "We were able to keep our composure."

Lakers forward Rick Fox is a believer.

"They've proven themselves time and again this season," he said. "We didn't give them two games, they took two games."

However, Fox made it clear his respect for the Spurs didn't mean he had lost hope.

"As in tennis, they held serve," Fox said. "We come home now to our home fans, home cooking. We can do what we do best, play Laker basketball, go back to San Antonio tied 2-2."

The Spurs have done an especially effective job of bottling up O'Neal, holding him to 21 points in an 87-81 victory in Game 1 and 16 points in Game 2.

Portland ties Utah at 1-1 with 84-81 win

Rider leads Trailblazers with 27 points

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — One of the biggest knocks on the Portland Trail Blazers this season has been their lack of a consistent scorer who can get that crucial basket with the game on the line.

On Thursday night, Isaiah Rider filled the role nicely with a little help from his brothers.

Portland beat the Utah Jazz 84-81, but the Blazers couldn't exhale until John Stockton's layup with two seconds to play went in and out. Rider scored six straight points in the game's final 1:39 as the Blazers barely held off a frantic Jazz rally and evened the second-round playoff series at 1-1.

The notoriously unstable Rider has been a steady force for Portland during the playoffs. He averaged a team-high 20 points in the Blazers' first-round sweep of Phoenix, but in Portland's 93-83 loss in Game 1, he was held to 12.

"My brothers called me and let me know, 'Hey, that was terrible. All you're doing is shooting 3-pointers,'" Rider said. "They keep an eye on how I'm playing, and they keep me focused sometimes. I have good brothers."

Rider scored 21 of his 27 points in the second half, beating the Jazz with his outside shot and an array of post-up moves against Jeff Hornacek and Shandon Anderson.

"They had Hornacek and Anderson on him, and he's stronger than both of them," Portland's Rasheed Wallace said. "We made sure he had a chance to score."

In the night's other game, the New York Knicks defeated Atlanta 77-70 to take a 2-0 lead over the Hawks.

Tonight's game features the Philadelphia 76ers returning to their home court trying to avoid falling behind 3-0 in their series against Indiana.

Hornacek's jumper with 1:58 to play cut Portland's lead to 76-73, and on the next three possessions, the Blazers went straight to Rider. He was fouled the first two times, and he made all four free throws with the raucous Delta Center crowd screaming in his face.

"It doesn't matter about those balloons and those fans," Rider said. "If it didn't look cocky, I'd be smiling when I shoot those free throws. That's my favorite time."

Stockton's 3-pointer cut the lead to 80-78 with 37 seconds left, but the Blazers found Rider in the low post, and he turned and made a layup with Hornacek hanging all over him.

"Those are shots we need," said Rider, who was 4-of-6 on 3-pointers. "That was my responsibility, and I just tried not to let the guys down."

But the Jazz still weren't done. Hornacek hit a 3-pointer with 12 seconds left, pulling Utah to 82-81. Greg Anthony made one of two free throws, setting the Jazz up for a final shot.

Stockton, who has scored most of the biggest last-second points in Jazz playoff history, was the natural choice to take the final shot. He drove the lane and drew contact with Jim Jackson, but the ball went in and out.

"I should have made it," Stockton said.

Anthony made another free throw, and Bryon Russell's full-court heave at the buzzer missed.

The strange game also featured the lowest-scoring first half in playoff history and impressive performances from two of the game's best power forwards, Brian Grant and Karl Malone.

The game's exciting conclusion belied an atrocious first half in which Portland and Utah set the NBA playoff records for the fewest combined points in a first quarter and tied the record for fewest points in a first half.

Red Raiders yanked from Big 12's baseball tourney

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Designated hitter Jake Epstein drove in the winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning Thursday as Missouri edged out Texas Tech 8-7 in the longest game in the history of the Big 12 baseball tournament.

Epstein had a total of three RBIs on 4-of-7 batting. The winning hit was a single.

Missouri (36-18) advanced to play Texas, which fell to Baylor 8-2 in a late game.

Texas Tech (40-15) was eliminated. The Red Raiders were two and out, with the first loss recorded Wednesday against Texas.

Missouri led 7-4 after six innings, but Tech rallied to tie the game 7-7 in the top of the seventh. All three runs scored on a home run by Josh Bard.

Neither team scored over the next four innings.

Brandon Roberson (2-4) gave up seven hits in 6 1/3 innings. He took the loss.

Chris George (4-3) was the winner in relief. He came on in the sixth inning and gave up two hits while striking out eight.

For Alexander, it's patience, get up and go

Walter Mears
The Associated Press

ANALYSIS

With barely a ripple of support in the early Republican polls, Lamar Alexander insists that he can vault from the field when the real 2000 competition begins and the question isn't famous names but who's ready to be president.

He is, the former Tennessee governor, secretary of education, and two-time candidate for the Republican nomination says; and the favorites, Texas Gov. George Bush and Elizabeth Dole, have yet to be tested. "I'm patient about it," Alexander said in an interview with The Associated Press, referring to his persistent, dogged quest — begun in 1995, with no noticeable pause since.

In the pre-season polls, his name ranks near the bottom of the list of 11 GOP prospects, declared and undeclared. His campaign was in the red, according to his March 31 report to the Federal Election Commission. Alexander said his fund raising is going fine now, while declining to give numbers. He said that the question isn't who has the most money but who has enough to run effectively in the first contests of 2000, and that he will.

He took in $784,773 in the first three months of the year, but raised more than that at one kickoff dinner this month in Nashville, Alexander said. It was the first in a series of 26 money events in May and June.

Neither that, nor poll ratings of 5 percent and lower, nor Bush's early lead and $7.6 million raised by March 31, wrings an admission of frustration or weariness from Alexander.

"I don't worry, I just get up and go," Alexander said.

And he certainly keeps going. "My day is basically working on what I have to say, what I believe, recruiting chairmen in Iowa and raising money." And then doing it again the next day. Running for president at this point, he said, means driving two hours to Ottumwa, Iowa, to see a dozen people, sometimes with a flat tire to delay the trip back to the Des Moines hotel.

For all of it, Alexander said he's much more comfortable seeking the presidency now than the first time. "I mean, running for president of the United States is not like stepping up from alderman to mayor or mayor to governor; it's like taking on a new life."

An old one for him now, but new, and a severe test, he said, awaiting Bush and Dole, the leaders in the Republican presidential preference polls.

The question also will be who can win. Alexander's first run didn't pass that test. He quit early, after a succession of primary defeats. His best 1996 showings were third place finishes in Iowa and New Hampshire. The latter haunts him. "The race in '96 was over when Bob Dole beat me by 3,800 votes in New Hampshire," he recounted. Pat Buchanan won that primary. By Alexander's reckoning, if he'd finished second, Dole would have dropped out, the race would have been between him and Buchanan, "and I would have won."

Actually, Dole beat Alexander by 7,609 votes, according to the final, official figures.

And on making an expectations case against Bush, saying that as the front-runner, he should be presumed to be a big winner in every contest, including an Iowa straw poll in August, which the Alexander people there think they've already got locked.

Alexander knows that he's got to win early this time, with the decisive, big state primaries set for March 7.

"This is a fast race," Alexander said, "a hundred yard dash."

Or will be next winter. For him, the marathon came first.

Milosevic blaming NATO for the flood of refugees

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — NATO bombs set fuel depots across Yugoslavia ablaze today, lighting the Belgrade skyline and a town near the Hungarian border with the orange glow of burning fires. The United States apologized for an airstrike that damaged the Swiss ambassador's residence during a diplomatic reception.

A Yugoslav foreign ministry spokesman, meanwhile, denied U.S. and NATO reports of army desertions. Allied officials have cited the desertion accounts as evidence the NATO air campaign that began March 24 was working and raising the levels of internal unrest.

And President Slobodan Milosevic blamed NATO's airstrikes for the exodus of hundreds of thousands of ethnic Albanians.

Little progress was reported in Moscow in talks late Thursday and early today between Russia's Balkans envoy, U.S. negotiator Strobe Talbott and Finland's president. Russia, which has cultural and religious ties to Serbia, opposes NATO airstrikes.

The state-run Tanjug news agency said one person was killed and several were injured when fuel storage tanks were hit by allied bombers in Sombor, a mostly Hungarian town 12 miles from Hungary. Smoke billowed over Sombor before dawn today.

Also reportedly targeted late Thursday and early today were the Ostruznica and Lipovacka Suma regions near Belgrade, where more fuel depots and army installations are located.

Tanjug reported an attack on a prison near Istok in northwestern Kosovo in which officials were quoted as saying 10 people were killed, including the deputy warden. The prison came under attack twice today and was struck Wednesday when three inmates were reported killed.

Disaster survivor seeking pardon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifty-five years after the worst domestic loss of life in World War II, one of the survivors of an ammunition explosion is asking President Clinton to clear his name.

Freddie Meeks and 49 other black sailors were court-martialed for mutiny for refusing to return to the loading docks after the July 1944 blast at the Port Chicago Naval Magazine that killed 320 men.

Meeks, 79, is one of two known surviving members of the group of black sailors convicted and imprisoned three months after the explosion near San Francisco.

Lawyers for Meeks argued the military prosecution was racist and the punishment too harsh.

The sailors defied white officers' orders to resume loading ships two weeks after the blast. Two-thirds of those killed were members of the all-black loading crews that stacked bombs and other explosives aboard Navy ships.

White sailors in the same position would not have been court-martialed, Busey contended.

The pardon petition argues that Meeks' apprehension was justified. Mutiny. It also nation on edge after months of fear and concern about violence in America's schools.

Six students were wounded in Thursday morning's attack, none critically.

The suspect, a 15-year-old sophomore friend said was upset over a failed romance, dropped to his knees, pulled the gun away from his mouth and, witnesses said, surrendered with a tearful: "Oh my God, I'm so scared!"

The gunman was identified by friends as Thomas Solomon Jr., nicknamed T.J. He was charged with aggravated assault and other charges were being considered. Solomon must appear in juvenile court before he can be charged as an adult, something not expected before Monday.

Rockdale County Sheriff Jeff Wigington said today that the suspect broke into a locked gun cabinet in his family's basement to get the weapons — a .357 Magnum and a rifle. The suspect fired 14 shots, 11 from the rifle and three from the revolver, according to a preliminary investigation.

"Apparently he was shooting at the hip, basically. He was not aiming the rifle at one particular person," Wigington said.

After the shooting, Assistant Principal Cecil Brinkley followed the student outside toward the football field and asked the suspect to hand over the handgun, which was raised at him.

"I stepped back a couple of steps and I turned to him again and I said, 'Give me the gun,' and I said again, 'Give me the gun,'" Brinkley said today. "I saw him lower the barrel of the gun and I kept getting closer and closer to him. Then I held out my hands and he laid the gun in my hands."

"Then he gave me a real big bear hug and he said, 'I'm scared, I'm scared,'" he said.

Classes were canceled for today, though students were expected to return to Heritage High on Monday. School officials said graduation would go on as scheduled May 28.

The attack was the sixth mass shooting at an American high school or middle school since October 1997.

President Clinton received word of Thursday's shooting before he left for Littleton, Colo., for the one-month anniversary of the deaths of 15 people at Columbine High School.

The news "is deeply troubling to me, as it is to all Americans," Clinton said. As he spoke, the U.S. Senate was approving a proposal requiring background checks for all transactions at gun shows and for anyone seeking to reclaim a weapon at a pawn shop.

Meanwhile, the Heritage High Class of '99 was left with these indelible mental snapshots:

Hundreds of teens, screaming, crying, jamming through doors to escape. Some yanking up fallen friends, others jumping over them.

A girl, lying on the floor, screaming "I'm shot!" and begging for her mother. Another moaning after banging her head diving under a table.

A teacher shepherding students into a closet, and calming them by quoting from the Book of Psalms.

slavia, which is being hammered daily by the NATO bombing campaign.

The run is sponsored by the Sri Chinmoy Marathon Team, an international running organization that stages hundreds of athletic events around the world, including world-class ultra-marathons, marathons and triathlons.

The Peace Run also has been endorsed by several world-class athletes, including U.S. Olympic star Carl Lewis and marathoner Grete Waitz; religious leaders, such as Pope John Paul II, South African Archbishop Desmond Tutu, the Dalai Lama; and many entertainers, including Paul McCartney.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

GUN CONTROL

■ Focus of debate now on House after Senate approves restrictions on sales of firearms at gun shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Propelled by a rash of high school shootings, the congressional debate over gun control shifts to a new battleground, the House, following a contentious vote in the Senate that approved locks on all new handguns and imposed tougher restrictions on gun show sales.

Even before the Senate passed the new gun rules Thursday as part of a major juvenile crime bill, there already was a clash in the House — over when to bring the issue to the floor. President Clinton was meeting with House Democratic leaders this afternoon to plot strategy for an immediate debate.

House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., offered to bring a bill to crack down on violence by kids to the floor in the second week of June, after the Judiciary Committee holds hearings. In a floor speech, he left open the possibility of proposing additional gun restrictions, but warned that the House wouldn't necessarily sign off on all of the provisions passed by the Senate.

Hoping to capitalize on the momentum generated in the Senate, House Democrats rejected the Republican proposal for a vote in June, pushing instead for floor debate next week, according to a knowledgeable official who demanded anonymity. And Rep. John Conyers, ranking Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, already had proposed several gun sale restrictions by the time the Senate voted.

The overwhelming passage, 73-25, of the juvenile crime bill authored by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, would have been improbable at best before the Littleton, Colo., school shootings, but it was given added impetus by the additional bloodshed earlier in the day at a high school in Conyers, Ga.

HIGHLIGHTS

- The Associated Press
The Senate juvenile justice bill would:
- Make it easier for prosecutors to charge juveniles as young as 14 with violent crimes.
  - Require background checks on all firearms transactions at gun shows and pawn shops.
  - Revoke the right to gun ownership for anyone convicted of a gun crime as a juvenile.
  - Require gun safety devices to be sold with all handguns.
  - Limit the liability of gun owners who use the gun lock when the firearm is stolen and used to commit a crime.
  - Set up a grant program of $50 million a year for state juvenile court judges, juvenile prosecutors, juvenile public defenders and other juvenile court system personnel to reduce court backlogs and recidivism.
  - Provide for a study of the effects of television programming, movies, video games, Internet content and music lyrics on child development.
  - Provide for a study of the marketing practices of the firearms industry with respect to children.
  - Make Internet screening software more cheaply available.

Rank-and-file Republicans who reversed their opposition to the Democrats' gun control proposals and even backed down when GOP leaders threatened to pull the bill earlier this week were pleased to leave behind such a public relations meltdown. "OK, we've had the debate," said Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., who voted for the bill on final passage. To the Democrats and their declaration of victory over Republicans and the gun lobby, Lott said: "You've had your fun, you've made your point. ... Now it's time for us to move on."

Democrats never stopped crowing after Vice President Al Gore cast the tie-breaking vote at midday in favor of a key Democratic gun control amendment that had failed in nearly identical form a week earlier.

New guidelines issued for medical marijuana

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration today released new guidelines to ease the availability of marijuana for medical research, in a move that officials believe will quicken the pace of studies into the drug's possible beneficial uses.

The new guidelines, "an extension of an existing process," will make it easier for academic researchers to obtain samples of research-grade marijuana grown by the government, said Campbell Gardett, a spokesman for the Department of Health and Human Services.

The guidelines were endorsed by the White House Office of National Drug Policy as part of an effort to more thoroughly understand the benefits of using marijuana to treat medical conditions.

BANQUET NIGHT

BRAND/Mauri Montgomery

Almost ready — The banquet hall at Hereford Independent School District Administration Building is silent, just waiting for the members of the Class of '99 to take their seats at the tables for the annual Hereford High School Senior Banquet. The seniors will gather for the banquet tonight, and then come back Saturday night for the annual Senior Prom. Although the banquet is set up and just waiting for the seniors' arrival, their parents were still working Thursday night on the decorations for the prom. The theme of this year's prom is "Evening Around the World."

Ramsey son is not suspect in his sister's death

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Authorities have denied claims in a tabloid report that JonBenet Ramsey's brother is a suspect in the girl's death. "Burke is not a suspect," said Suzanne Laurion, a spokeswoman for Boulder District Attorney Alex Hunter. Burke was 9 when his 6-year-old sister was found beaten and strangled in the family's basement in Boulder. He was the only person, other than JonBenet's parents, known to be in the house when she died on Christmas night in 1996.

Police have said that the parents, John and Patsy Ramsey, remain under suspicion. A grand jury has been investigating the case since Sept. 15.

Boulder city spokeswoman Leslie Aaholm said police want to talk more with Burke.

"We would like to talk to him, which is something we've said all along," she said.
