Jobless rate dips

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's unemployment rate dipped back down to a 29-year low of 4.2 percent in May even though the growth of payroll jobs was the smallest in more than three years. Unemloyment among blacks fell to the lowest level on record.

The Labor Department said today that the 0.1 percentage point drop in the unemployment rate, from 4.3 percent in April, occurred even though the nation's manufacturing sector continued to be battered by the global currency crisis. Factories shed another 45,000 jobs last month, bringing the total loried to sort out the cross-currents in the data.

Economists said today's report offered mixed signals about where the economy is headed. While the unemployment rate fell, the number of payroll jobs that were created was a mere 11,000, the smallest increase since an outright decline in January

Some analysts said the small gain in payroll jobs may reflect that employers are having trouble finding qualified people in the current tight labor market. Other analysts noted that while May's increase in jobs was tiny, the April figure had been revised up sharply to show a sizable gain of 343,000 jobs. "May looks pretty weak but the upward increase (in April) means the average so far this year is 210,000 jobs. That is not bad. Last year it was 236,000," said Cynthia Latta, economist at Standard & Poor's DRI.

Hereford is first stop for participants in 3-day, cross-country competition

Hereford Municipal Airport will be busy Monday as pilots participating in a three-day cross-country race will be landing here on the first leg of the competition.

Flying three consecutive days in small piston-driven airplanes, getting a bird's-eye view of nearly 2,000 miles of the United States, and doing their best to take home a share of the $25,000 in cash and prizes are just three of the reasons 75 people from 23 states are participating in the 5th Annual Marion Jayne Air Race. This event is considered the toughest test of pilots.

Representatives from the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will be at the airport to welcome the planes, which will be arriving between 10:15 and 10:45 a.m. The last plane should arrive sometime around 2 p.m.

Thirty-five planes will fly out of the Gallup, N.M., airport Monday, leaving at one-minute intervals until Texas.

all participants are in the air.
With Hereford as the next timing point, racers can land, refuel at their leisure - time on the ground does not count -- and then depart for Hutchinson, Kan., or stay overnight.

On the second day, the competitors will fly two more legs to Knoxville, Iowa, and then to Oshkosh, Wis. From there, the teams will fly to Bloomington, Ind., to complete the Top Gun Sponsor for this year's race is the founding sponsor HCC Aviation Insurance Group of Addison,

The race has a perfect safety record of 176,163 miles raced with 690 landings according to Patricia Keeger, a veteran air racer and president of U.S. Air Race Inc. The nonprofit corporation runs events that benefit general aviation, including the Marion Jayne Race and the 300mile Gallup Air Race, which precedes the longer Marion Jayne race on June 6.

■ West says bombing campaign to go on until withdrawal of Serb forces is verified

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — NATO warplanes struck an airfield outside Belgrade, tanks in Kosovo and Serb broadcast stations today, a day after Slobodan Milosevic's government said it accepted an international peace plan.

The West promised no letup in the allied bombings until there is a verifiable withdrawal of 40,000 Serb forces from Kosovo and more than 855,000 ethnic Albanian refugees are then allowed to return home.

NATO kept up the bombing campaign that started March 24 even as alliance generals began talks with their Yugoslav counterparts about a prompt timetable for military and paramilitary forces to be formally withdrawn from the southern Serb province.

NATO and Yugoslav generals will meet Saturday on the border between Macedonia and Kosovo to discuss the withdrawal of Serb forces from Kosovo, NATO spokesman Jamie Shea said.

Gen. Michael Jackson, commander of NATO troops in Macedonia preparing to enter Kosovo as part of a peace implementation force, will represent the allies. There will also be a representative from Finnish President Martti Ahtisaari, who convinced the Yugoslavs to accept the peace

Additionally, Norwegian Foreign Minister Knut Vollebaek, current head of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, said Gen. Wesley Clark, the American commander of NATO, planned to meet Saturday with Yugoslavia's defense chief. He did not elaborate.

Foreign ministers from the G-8 group - Russia and the seven major industrialized democracies that put together the peace plan - planned to meet Sunday to work out points of a tentative U.N. Security Council resolution formally empowering the

Although withdrawals are a key condition for ending the 11-week-old air campaign, NATO officials say they want to see evidence that they have begun, not just an agreement that it will happen. Alliance warplanes continued pounding Serb targets in keeping with that stance.

NATO said it had flown 610 sorties over the past 24 hours, 234 of them attacks and 74 to suppress Yugoslav air defenses.

Cool idea -- Roy Herrera has the right idea now that summer's just around the corner. He is installing an evaporative cooler to provide indoor relief from the hot days of summer. The weather forecasters might be saving the summer will be cooler and wetter, but why take a chance?

Forecasters expect cooler, wetter summer

DALLAS (AP) — John Doolittle vividly remembers the summer of 1998, and he doesn't exactly treasure the memories.

Like countless other Texans, the manager of the Lakewood Garden Center nursery felt the effects of the blistering heat wave that swept across the state, broke records for average temperatures and included 29 consecutive 100-degree days.

"Business dropped off dramatically," Doolittle said. "People didn't want to do anything outside, much less plant flowers. It was miser-

A year later, business is picking up and temperatures are staying down. The National Weather Service in Fort Worth, which recorded three 100-degree days by the end of May last year, has reported only one day above 91 degrees so far this year, and most days have been even cooler.

In San Antonio, the average high temperature last month was 85.8 degrees, almost six degrees below that of last May. In Houston, the average high of 87.4 was slightly above normal for May, but was still nearly three degrees cooler than in summer's record mark of 85.9.

"This summer should not be nearly as warm as it was last year," meteorologist Skip Ely said. "That's partly due to La Nina, but the main reason is that the spring has been wetter than normal. A wet May will usually put off the heat for several weeks, so we may stay below average through

Ely said temperatures gradually will climb as the summer progresses, but the overall average temperature should remain well below last ably will take similar steps again.

Officials hope that news will translate into a decrease in the number of heat-related deaths in Texas, which reached a record high of 131 in 1998. That trend prompted the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs to coordinate a program offering free and discounted air conditioners to low-income households, where many of the deaths occurred. And although the hot weather has yet to arrive this year, spokeswoman Heather Tindall said the agency prob-

That would explain why Social Security has found its way into the 2000 presidential "Politicians are going to come along and put their paws on it," he warns. Vice President Gore, the front-runner for the Democratic nomination, was in New Hampshire on Thursday, pledging his allegiance to both Social Security and Medicare benefits.

"I intend to stand by them and make sure they are never threatened, never taken away and never weakened," he said.

Gore backs the Clinton administration plan to use the $3 trillion in surpluses over the next 15 years to pay down the national debt, boost economic growth and thus increase future tax revenues. He would earmark the money for Social Security and Medicare by placing IOUs from the general Treasury in the programs' trust funds.

The government would in-

Republican candidates say voters don't trust the government to invest their savings.

"Individuals, not the government, should be allowed to make their own decisions," former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander said recently. He wants 2 percent of Social Security taxes put in personal retirement accounts.

Separating himself from Democratic and GOP rivals, conservative activist Gary Bauer wants to give Americans a 20 percent cut in Social Security taxes. "That way they can invest or spend the money any way they want," Bauer said Thursday.

FAA investigates plane crash

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Wind-resisting wing panels used to slow down landing jetliners were not opened as American Airlines Flight 1420 hurtled down a runway and crashed, killing nine people, federal authorities say.

During a typical landing, the spoilers — movable flaps on the top of the wing — are opened and thrust reversers are engaged to cut a plane's speed.

But information from the aircraft's flight data recorder shows that the spoilers did not deploy Tuesday night and that the thrust reversers turned off and on, investigators

The question now is whether the irregularities were due to mechanical problems or were the result of choices by the pilot, who was killed.

"It could be that the only person who knows the answer to that question is no longer with us," George Black of the National Transportation Safety Board said Thursday night.

Televangelist moves to Texas

DALLAS (AP) - Flamboyant Pentecostal preacher and televangelist Benny Hinn will move his ministry from Orlando, Fla., to the Dallas-Fort Worth area by Sept. 1, a spokesman for the ministry says.

"The Dallas airport makes the world accessible for our people, and the metroplex area has the resources we need to expand the ministry," Hinn, 46, said Thursday in a prepared statement. Many of the church's partners and donors live in the Dallas area, spokesman David Brokaw said.

"There's also a sense that a lot of the physical plant growth that needs to take place can happen more efficiently in the Dallas-Fort Worth area," he said.

Hinn, a controversial figure, has long been associated with the Trinity Broadcasting Network, the world's largest Christian network, which has studios in Irving and Southern California.

The U.S. side of the border also is struggling with the scope of the problem. For instance, the prevalence of diabetes in the lower Rio Grande Valley is about three times the national average, researchers said.

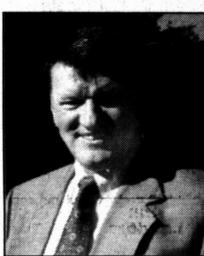

Although the project remains in the development stages, public health officials plan to begin a door-to-door survey of border residents at risk for diabetes.

Health officials plan to interview 350 residents in each of the four U.S. border states and 250 residents in each of the six Mexican states in the region as part of the project.

The survey is scheduled to begin in about six months, Espey said.

The Texas Department of Health has committed $60,000 to fund the initial stages of the project. Several other funding sources from both sides of the border are expected, Espey said.

Kids Inc. real power source is in help of volunteer coaches who give up free time to be with kids

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor

Coaching requires a lot of patience, hard work and time. It takes patience to deal with players, fellow coaches, officials and game strategies.

It takes hard work to create a team and to be a success in sports.

It just takes a lot of time and effort.

All coaches choose this field because they develop a love for

Many of them do it for life and is a way not only to help kids, but also to put food on the table.

However, many of these people just do it to enjoy themselves and to relieve themselves from the hardships of everyday life.

Kids Inc. offers a great opportunity for adults who work hard during the day, or night, and spend their hardearned free time coaching the kids who play every summer afternoon at the Deaf Smith County Baseball Complex.

Many people are coaches because they want to spend time for their families.

"I go to work about 4:30 a.m. or 5:30 a.m., so this is the only time I get to spend with them," said Vicki Morasco, who coaches the T&G Service Co. minor girls team. "You really can make a difference in self-esteem doing stuff like this."

it because it is an enjoyable activity.
"It's for the kids, that's all, just for the kids," said Chris Brummett, who coaches boys T-ball for Texas Bearing. "This is where they start and then they go to high

"I grew up playing ball," said Kayla Farmer, who coaches for the Marquez & Sons girls T-ball team. "This is just a great thing to do."

There are many more other reasons to be involved as a volunteer coach, but none is more important than those previous factors and it is fun for all sides.

Children are in the process of learning and these adults take and play the part of "role model."

"We've got the best group of adults here," said Ben Urbanczyk, vice-president of Kids Inc. "The board of directors and coaches meet during the off-season to get prepared for the season. We have about 500 kids playing."

But the kids not only learn from the coaches and other adults; the adults seem to also learn from the children.

"I've learned that they are more mature than most think," said Randy Ruegas, coach for Flat Land Services' minor girls team. "They really do listen. I thought it was going to be a little hard, but if you explain them and give them some responsibility, they are ready and have their eyes open."

Whoever said learning stops? It never does. Just ask a coach at Kids Inc.

You may even run into a coach and feel you are talking to a kid. HOWEVER that is.

"I know my points were down and my rebounds were down, but the people who voted looked at more than just that," said Malone, who also received the award in 1997. "This is an award for the whole player, for the defensive player and for the team leader. It's not just the numbers that show up in the newspaper."

The 35-year-old Utah Jazz forward had another banner individual year that was marred by setbacks in other areas, especially his failure to win the NBA title that has eluded him throughout his 14-year career.

He knows that failure will define his career as much as the two MVP trophies, 11 All-Star selections, two Olympic gold medals and his eventual place among the league's career scoring leaders. He is currently fourth, and could easily be second within two years.

Of course you'd give all of this up for a championship, but that's not possible," he said Thursday. "I just have to be happy with doing the best job I possibly can for my team and for myself. That's what I really have to play for."

Malone averaged 23.8 points in 1999, his lowest since 1986-

87, his second year in the league. His rebounding average was down to 9.4, lowest since his rookie year in 1986.

But Malone almost always came through for the Jazz during the regular season, when they tied San Antonio for the league's best record. He led Utah in scoring for the 13th straight year and continued to be the Jazz's focal point on both offense and defense.

Malone edged fellow big men Alonzo Mourning of Miami and Tim Duncan of San Antonio in the voting by 118 North American media members. Malone received 827 points and 44 first-place votes to Mourning's 773 points and 36 firstplace votes.

Malone became the ninth player in league history to win the MVP award twice. It comes at the conclusion of a 12month span in which Malone wrestled Dennis Rodman on pay-per-view, started a short-lived talk radio show, vowed to never again play for the Jazz and then returned, all but promising to finish his career in Utah.

He then led the Jazz to a league-best 37-13 record, but his team sputtered down the stretch and was eliminated from the playoffs in the second round by the Portland Trail Blazers, Utah's earliest exit since 1995.

"This whole year was weird, so to top it off with this was really special," Malone said. "I didn't like the way I played in the playoffs, but I'm getting the award Saturday, and I'm not giving it back."

Malone is the first MVP in nine seasons to fail to take his team to at least the conference finals. Magic Johnson's Los Angeles Lakers also were upset in the second round of the playoffs in 1990.

"Individual awards are nice because they come with the territory, but you play this game for a championship," Malone said. "Everybody knows we're disappointed with what happened, but this could start the healing process on that."

Duncan, the second-year big man many thought deserved the award after a tremendous late-season surge, finished third in the voting with 740 points and 30 first-place votes.

Malone grinned when asked if he would trade the MVP trophy for a championship. Yeah, because I have another one," he said. "I'd trade the one from '97. This one is different, but it's still bigger for me." Malone also was chosen by the league's coaches for the alldefensive first team, was third in the league in scoring, 11th

Interleague play fan interest down

· (AP) — Interleague play is still getting mixed

Fans seem to love it, but players such as Mark McGwire, Pedro Martinez and John Franco believe it's still a big miss.

"It doesn't do anything for the game," McGwire insisted. "It screwed up the schedule and hasn't gained the notoriety they thought it would. I think we should go back to the way the game of baseball is meant to be played."

No such luck, Big Mac. Instead, interleague play returns for the third season starting tonight. The featured matchups: New York Mets at New York Yankees, Anaheim at Los Angeles and Oakland at San Francisco.

Also, McGwire and his St. Louis Cardinals visit Detroit, while Sammy Sosa and the Chicago Cubs travel to Cleveland.

Once again, it will be East teams vs. East teams, Central vs. Central and West vs. West. But there's a new wrinkle this year. Some natural rivals, such as Yankees-Mets, White Sox-Cubs and Blue Jays-Expos, will play six games, up from the previous three. "Six games is too much," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "If you have to have something like this, three games is enough."

Said Toronto outfielder Shawn Green: "It's kind of weird. We play Montreal six times and some American League teams only seven or eight

For those counting, AL teams held a 114-110 advantage last season. The year before, NL clubs had a 117-97 edge.

Crowds ran above the average for those games, though last season's attendance figure of 31,447 dipped from 33,407 in 1997. Naturally, the upcoming games in New York will be sellouts; Minnesota and Milwaukee next week might not do so well.

This year's 252 interleague games will be played from June 4-13 and July 9-20. Originally proposed by owners as a two-year experiment, the players union gave its approval to continue it this season.

Clearly, AL teams are hurt when they lose the designated hitter for games at NL parks. While Edgar Martinez might become a pinch-hitter when Seattle plays on the road, Anaheim manager Terry Collins intends to use Mo Vaughn — limited to DH duties since May 11 because of a sprained left ankle - back at first base at Dodger Stadium.

"There's a lot of history there," Vaughn said. "They've got a great ballclub, I've got some friends over there. I'm looking forward to it."

Fanfare is certainly down from the first year, when the concept became one of the most hotly debated issues in baseball history. Proponents said the plan would take the sport into the future, while critics claimed it would wreck more than 100 years of tradition.

To Pedro Martinez, who pitches for Boston against the Atlanta Braves and Massachusetts native Tom Glavine tonight at Fenway Park, this interleague stuff is no big

"It's just other players, I don't see anything exciting about it," he said.

Cutting back

Alexander hopes Bush effort stalls

WASHINGTON (AP) -Former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander has ovdered drastic cutbacks in his presidential campaign staff and travel because of fund-raising prob-lems, The Associated Press has learned.

The press and legal offices will be gutted in an effort to keep the campaign afloat long enough to see whether Texas Gov. George W. Bush falters this summer, campaign officials said today.

runner,

The sources Tom Rath, s a i d consultant Alexander expects to have raised $2.5 million by the end of the second quarter, far below expectations. "We need to adjust to reflect the difficulties in raising money in the wake of Bush mania," Tom Rath, a top Alexander consultant said in a telephone interview from New Hampshire. "Until that subsides, and it may subside when (Bush) gets out on the campaign trail and we see what kind of candidate he to stay viable." Rath did not provide details, but three officials fa-

the payroll was being significantly reduced. Among those leaving the campaign were communications director Steve Schmidt and his deputy, Jeff Macedo; research director Brian Jones; legal counsel Katherine Phillips, and several support staff.

Some of the departing staff will be retained as consultants, but at dramatically reduced pay rates, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

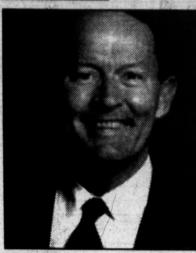

In addition, Alexander will reduce his travel -focusing most of his attention on Iowa, the site of the first voting of

Schmidt, who confirmed that he is leaving the cam-paign July 1, said, "The campaign is going to continue forward, making the changes to ensure that it has enough money to be in a position to win the early primary states."

Alexander began running for the presidency almost as soon as the 1996 campaign ended. He finished a strong third in Iowa and New Hampshire four years ago, giving him an edge heading into the next campaign cycle.

He began the year with high hopes, planning to raise at least $15 million to establish himself as the leading GOP moderate in the race. Starting early, he established one of the strongest organizations in Iowa and New Hampshire.

But the Texas governor has frustrated Alexander's fundraising efforts. By the end of June, Alexander expects to miliar with the cutbacks said have raised just $2.5 million compared to the $7 million or so he had planned to Alexander reported to the Federal Elections Commission that during the first quarter of 1999, he had raised $748,773 and spent $661.856.

He had debts of $212,405. Advisers said the cutbacks are designed to keep Alexander viable until at least August, when the former Tennessee governor hopes to fare well in the Ames, Iowa, straw vote. A strong showing, they believe, will slow Bush's momentum and make fund-raising easier for Alexander.

"It's just a very different environment that we thought we'd be in," Rath said. "What will change the fund-raising environment is a change in the political environment."

"We're clearing cutting back on our national campaign staff ... to make the best use of our resources in Iowa and New Hampshire, where we believe this race is being run right now," Rath said. "We're trying to be lean as we can be, putting our resources in those two states.'

Smith: Conservatives 'abandoned' by GOP

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) Presidential hopeful Bob Smith, who says the Republi-can Party has abandoned conservatives, plans to decide within two months whether to help start a third party.

Though he insists he is not advocating a third party, the New Hampshire Republican has thought about launching one on July 4 in front of Independence Hall in Philadelphia, The Union Leader reported Wednesday.

The GOP, Smith said, has abandoned its roots by not opposing abortion strongly enough and "walking away from guns."

The party, he said, "has become a party of globalism and big money and elitists and special interests."

Smith first talked publicly about a The GOP third party two "has become weeks ago. a party of He said conservaglobalism and tives were big money and seriously considerelitists and ing startspecial intering one because of ests." their frustration with the GOP over gun rights, national defense, school prayer, taxes and abortion.

"If it happens, I'm not leaving my party — my party is leaving me," he said.

Earlier this week, Smith called New Hampshire a microcosm for the GOP's woes nationally. With Republican support, the state recently enacted a statewide property tax and refused to ban lateterm abortions.

He said he hopes Republican state lawmakers who opposed the abortion ban are defeated.

"Every single last one of them that voted not to ban partial-birth abortions should be defeated, in my view," he said. "They're not Republicans.

Smith said he is researching ballot-access rules for third parties, which vary from state to state. He also said he might seek the nomination of the Reform, Libertarian or U.S. Taxpayers' parties.

He said he will decide in "60 days max" whether to resign from the GOP. If he does so, he will not resign from the Senate, to which he narrowly won re-election in

Smith rejected the conventional view that a conservative third party would draw votes from a moderate Republican presidential nominee and ensure a Democratic victory next year. He said his movement would attract millions of conservatives, libertarians and Reform Party activists, some of whom have not bothered to vote in recent elections.

With three parties, he added, it would take only 35 percent of the popular vote in any given state to win that state's electoral votes.

"There is a lot of national sentiment to do this," Smith said. "I had one guy call and say he'd bring 1 million Catholic Democrats to the fray in New England alone if I did

Smith doubts he could be elected president as the nominee of an existing third party unless two parties could have the same nominee and their votes could be combined in the allocation of electoral votes.

There is a lot of research," Smith said, "and I'm doing all the research now."

"I've talked to a lot of experts on third parties,' Smith said.

"Most of them believe a third party movement, if it plays out right, will be an automatic 20- to 25 percent," he said.

We have to strengthen it ... so we won't have all this political demagoguery," Quayle said Thursday from a campaign stop in California. Sen. John McCain of Arizona said Wednesday that Social Security is little better than burying savings in a tin can. He wants to allow Americans to use part of their Social Security tax dollars to invest on their own in the stock market.

Texas Gov. George W. Bush has had little to say about Social Security, other than that he approves of the GOP congressional "lock box" legislation, designed to lock away Social Security funds to prevent them from being used for other than their intended purpose.

"And I like the idea of individual retirement accounts," Bush said recently.

First lady said to be ready to form exploratory panel

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) -Hillary Rodham Clinton intends to form an exploratory committee in early July, preparing her for a potential Senate campaign in New York next year, a top adviser said Thursday.

She would be the first sitting first lady to run for public office.

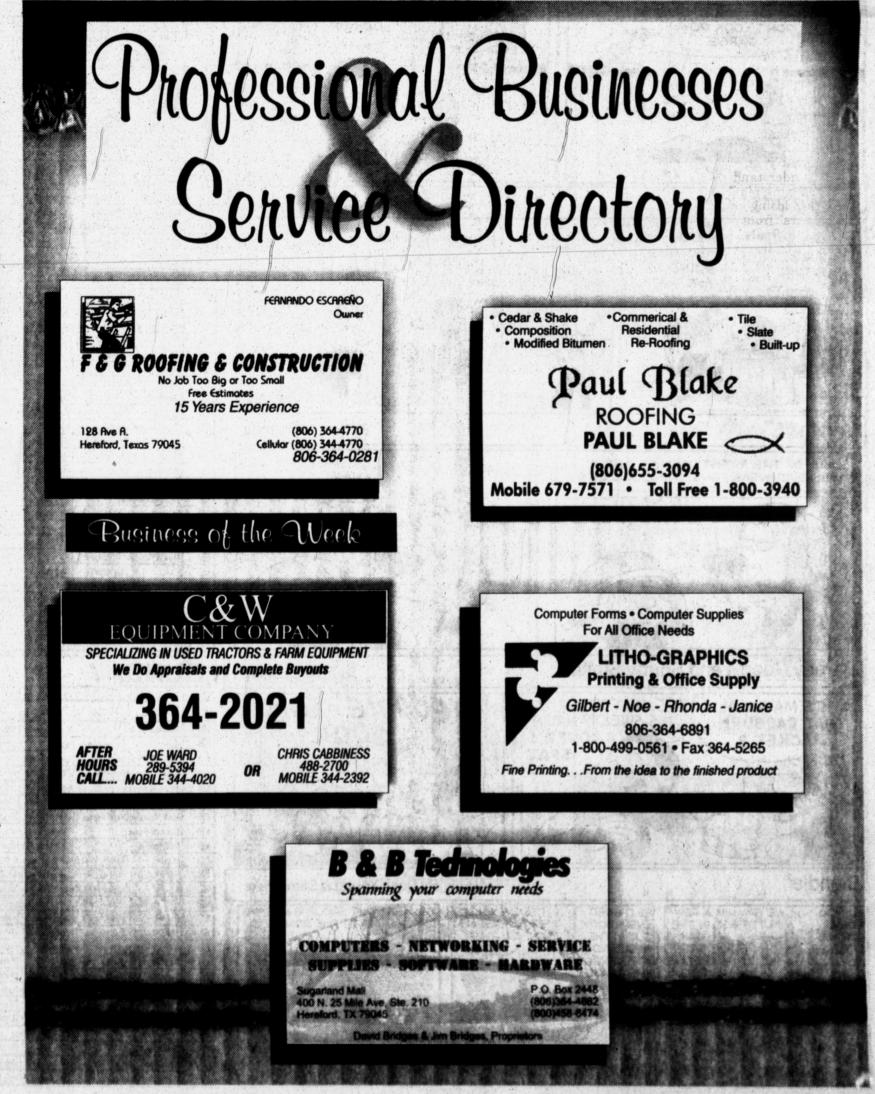

Harold Ickes, who is heading up Mrs. Clinton's political operation, disclosed the plans after Rep. Nita Lowey said, in a telephone call to the first lady, that she would seek re-election to the House. That move leaves the Democratic field clear for Mrs. Clinton.

"I told her it seemed clear she was running ... I wished her well," said Lowey, who also had been eyeing the Senate race. "I told her I would support her enthusiastically." In a statement, Mrs. Clinton said, "I thank Nita for her support and I look forward to working with her."

There was no mention of her own plans.

Lowey said she did not ask Mrs. Clinton if she would seek the seat being vacated by retiring Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan. "It's clear to me she was running and it was time for me to move on," the congresswoman said.

Asked about Mrs. Clinton's conversation with Lowey, Ickes said, "I think you can discern that Hillary is going to press forward and she will be forming an exploratory committee in early July and just keep moving forward."

LOS ANGELES - David Lander, best known for playing Squiggy on the sitcom "Laverne & Shirley" has multiple sclerosis.

Lander was diagnosed with the often-crippling nerve dis-ease 15 years ago. He told The Associated Press on Thursday that he is revealing his illness now to help others with the disease.

"I just figured that if people can see me, and see that I'm working — I guess I call it 'fighting' M.S. — maybe I can do some good," he said.

Lander played Andrew "Souiggy" Saving

"Squiggy" Squiggman on "Laverne & Shirley" during its 1976-83 run on ABC.

Lander, married and the father of a teen-age daughter, was diagnosed with the disease shortly after the series came to an end.

"The first two years were the toughest. I've been in remission most of the past 13 years," he said. "The major way it affects me is called 'drop foot' in which my knee will buckle. I have to go down stairs slowly, holding the railing, but so do a lot of people who don't have M.S."

Last week, Lander ap-peared on Rosie O'Donnell's talk show for a tribute to "Laverne & Shirley" star Penny Marshall. Lander also had a guest role on the HBO sports comedy "Arli$$" and is set to star in the musical "Once Upon a Mattress" in Utah.

"It has some physical work, but I'm not afraid to do it," Lander said.

identified remains found in a ravine as those of former Iron Butterfly bass player Philip "Taylor" Kramer, who disappeared four years ago. The skeletal remains were positively identified Thursday using dental records, said Scott Carrier, a spokesman with the coroner's office. The cause of death had not yet been determined.

Hikers found the remains last Saturday inside a wrecked van in the bottom of a ravine. The van matched the description of the vehicle Kramer was driving when he disappeared on Feb. 12, 1995. while driving to the airport to pick up a friend. Kramer was 42 when he disappeared.

The musician joined Iron Butterfly in 1975 during an attempt to revive the group, which had several incarnations with various band members. The band's most famous song was the 17-minute "In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida" in 1969.

Kramer later worked in the aerospace industry and at the time of his disappearance, was chief technology officer at Total Multimedia.

Junior Braithwaite KINGSTON, Jamaica -Junior Braithwaite, one of the three surviving members of Bob Marley's legendary Wailers reggae group, was shot and killed in a Kingston home, relatives said. He is the second Wailer to die in this manner. Peter Tosh was shot and killed at his Kingston home in 1987. Marley died of cancer in 1981.

Braithwaite, 47, was one of two men slain Wednesday night by unidentified gunmen in the home of a local musician. Police are investigating.

The musician recently returned to his Caribbean homeland from Chicago, where he had lived for more than 20 years. He had been attempting to revive the singing career that he gave up when he left the Wailers in 1966.

Along with Marley, Tosh, Bunny Wailer and Beverly Kelso, Braithwaite formed the original Wailers in Kingston in the early 1960s. He sang on the group's 1965 break-through hit "It Hurts To Be Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

· Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

 Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

· Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbre-

 Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

"The sooner the Serbs withdraw, the sooner the bombing will stop," Shea said. In Kosovo, allied aircraft struck 21 artillery pieces, 30 mortar positions, four tanks, 10 armored personnel carriers, eight anti-aircraft artillery pieces and other military vehicles, NATO said in its latest operations report.

Other targets included ammunition storage sites, a fuel storage site, a headquarters of the Serb special police forces, an airfield and radio relay and broadcast stations.

"We have said we will stop the air campaign when there is a verifiable withdrawal," British Prime Minister Tony Blair said.

President Clinton said he was waiting for signs that the Yugoslav leader would begin pulling his troops out of Kosovo and allow the return of all ethnic Albanian refugees forced out since March.

While saying he is "anxious to end the bombing," Clinton told ABC's "Good Morning America: "I think it's important that we continue the military action against the military targets until we have some evidence that ... the military forces are withdrawing."

The plan, accepted by Milosevic and the Serb parliament Thursday, contained tough conditions the Yugoslav leader had until now ada-mantly resisted, including the deployment of NATO troops on Yugoslav soil.

NATO is planning to put nearly 50,000 armed troops into Kosovo to keep the peace, including about 7,000 U.S. forces.

The Macedonian government has agreed to allow NATO to deploy 14,000 additional troops in the country — raising the total to 30,000,
Foreign Minister Aleksander Dimitrov said today.

Macedonia has more than 250,000 of Kosovo's refugees in the country; neighboring Albania has some 440,000.

Indians file $1 billion suit against tobacco industry

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -American Indians have filed a $1 billion lawsuit against the tobacco industry, claiming they were unfairly excluded from the massive settlement reached by states.

The suit, filed Wednesday in San Francisco, demands $1 billion in compensation and punitive damages from several tobacco companies.

The suit stems from an agreement reached last November in which the tobacco industry promised to pay $40 billion over 25 years to settle four state lawsuits and another $206 billion in a broader deal with the other 46 states.

According to the suit, Indians were counted in census data used to determine how the money would be distributed but were not allotted their own share of the money. try we have been left clear The suit claims that is a out of the process," said violation of Indian sovereignty and amounts to racial discrimination.

A spokesman for the to-bacco industry said officials had not seen the suit and could not comment on its allegations.

Nathan Barankin, a spokesman for California Attorney General Bill Lockyer, said the assumption that Indians won't benefit from the settlement is "perhaps a premature conclusion, at least for California."

According to the suit, Indians traditionally have used tobacco for ceremonial and medicinal purposes only. But during World War II, Indian soldiers were introduced to cigarettes and tobacco companies began targeting that population, the suit charges. Today, American Indians

Feed the Children hit by charges staffers took donations home

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -More than 200 aid agencies will be deprived of food as Feed the Children keeps its warehouse here closed amid allegations of employee theft, the organization's president said.

Larry Jones, who is also the founder of Feed the Children, said the warehouse will be closed indefinitely while the group looks into reports that Nashville workers took home goods meant for the

The agency fired all 14 of its Nashville workers Tuesday after Tennessee Bureau of Investigation agents found boxloads of donations in the homes of several upper-level employees. Feed the Children closed the 274,000-square-foot warehouse so it could take inventory. Jones said the closure effected 201 aid agencies in 15 Eastern states.

"I'm saddened for Feed The Children. I'm also saddened for the children who are hurt right now," Jones said Thursday. "But you have to remember that every company in America has this

The seizures followed a four-month investigation by Nashville television station WTVF, which secretly videotaped staff members carting boxes of clothes, food, toiletries and more into their cars and homes.

Authorities were deciding whether to file charges. Spokeswoman Emilee

Truelove of Feed The Children said the organization was not sure all of the employees were stealing. They were let go, she said, "to restore the trust in our donors. We wanted to let them know that we were doing all that we could."

Forklifts sat idle Thursday against the back wall behind row after row of boxes of pasta, fruit juices and packaged foods.

Jones said he was considering installing surveillance cameras, although he did not like the idea, and he was meeting with consultants for ways to prevent theft.

He said he did not think stealing had been a problem in Feed The Children's other warehouse in Oklahoma City, "For it to just sit here but "we're going to look at while agencies are really beg- all the operations."

PRESIDENT CLINTON Objects to fee proposal

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) Lawvers for Paula Jones dismissed President Clinton's objections to their $438,000 fee request as "absurd" and argued that his lies under led to the expenses. The Dallas law firm of Rader, Campbell, Fisher & Pyke defended its request in court papers filed Thursday oath about Monica Lewinsky

"Had Mr. Clinton chosen not to lie about his illicit sexual activity with Ms. Lewinsky, we would not have needed to take the depositions of Monica Lewinsky, Linda Tripp, Betty Currie, Vernon Jordan and other related witnesses," the firm said.

In April, U.S. District Judge

Susan Webber Wright found Clinton in contempt for giving false testimony about his relationship with the former White House intern during his January 1998 deposition in Mrs. Jones' sexual harassment lawsuit.

The judge then ordered Clinton to pay Mrs. Jones' lawyers any "reasonable" expenses they incurred as a result of his false testimony.

The Dallas firm submitted itemized bills for $437,825 and the Virginia-based Rutherford Institute, which helped in the case, asked for $53,333. Clinton's lawyers argued Mrs. Jones' attorneys deserved no more than $33,737.

Any money the judge eventually awards would be in addition to the $850,000 Clinton has paid Mrs. Jones to settle her case. He did not admit any wrongdoing.

Clinton's deposition became the subject of the investigation by Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr.

Tampa student takes Spelling Bee crown

WASHINGTON (AP) - The national spelling title within her reach, Nupur Lala drewon her natural curiosity about words and her parents' drilling. A little prayer might have clinched the crown for the 14year-old from Tampa, Fla.

The eighth-grader correctly spelled "logorrhea" on Thursday to win the 72nd annual Scripps Howard National Spelling Bee, which awarded her $10,000, encyclopedias, two airline tickets and computer software.

"Logorrhea" means pathologically excessive and often incoherent talkativeness.

Nupur, who last year was eliminated in the third round, beat out 248 competitors, ages 9 to 15. This year, she aced several words, including "nociceptor," "trianon," and "bouchon," before winning in the 12th round.

"This time she was very determined," said her father, Parag Lala, a University of South Florida computer science professor.

The secret to her success? "With every word I was getting closer to the championship, and that kept me going. I was just praying I would get a word that I knew," she said.

She did. Her parents helped, too, spending time on word drills. Nupur also has an affinity for word sleuthing.

"I would read different books and whenever I found a word I didn't know, I would write it down and look it up later," Nupur said as she clutched her gold trophy cup after a victory leap.

Rivlin leaving Fed; two slots are open

WASHINGTON (AP) -The unexpected resignation of Federal Reserve Vice Chairman Alice Rivlin gives President Clinton two vacancies to fill at the nation's central bank.

And some private economists believe Rivlin's departure increases the likelihood that Alan Greenspan will be asked by Clinton next year to stay on as Fed chairman for a fourth four-year term. Rivlin, 68, announced Thursday that she would leave the Fed on July 16 in order to devote more time to her second job as chairman of the District of Columbia's financial control board.

"I am definitely not resigning as chair of the D.C. Financial Assistance Authority," Rivlin said in her resignation letter to Clinton. "Indeed, I hope to spend more time and to be more effectively involved in the city than I have been able to be at the Fed."

The control board was created by Congress in 1995 at a time when the District was on the brink of financial insolvency during the administration of former Mayor Marion Barry.

In recent years the city has regained its financial footing, and both Congress and the control board have relaxed their day-to-day supervision of local affairs.

In a written statement, Clinton praised Rivlin for "helping usher in a new era of budget surpluses" during her time as head of the administration's budget office.

Mayor Anthony Williams said he looked forward to working with Rivlin "to solidify our financial recovery and bring democracy to our nation's capital."

Rivlin's departure means there will be two vacancies on the seven-member Fed board of governors. The administration has indicated that Carol J. Parry, an executive vice president of Chase Manhattan Bank, the country's third largest bank,
