Whatever happened to the Class of 1974?

By Kitt Jennings

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

A lot can happen in 25 years. National boundaries across the world have been redrawn in just such a length of time. A span of 25 years once witnessed both America's entry into the Korean War and her exit from Vietnam.

Now, this year marks the 25th year since the graduating class of 1974 walked the halls of Hereford High. And the slightest mention of high school is enough to send grads running down Memory Lane.

"High school was fun, but I barely made it out!" said Tom Coneway, former band member and self-appointed twirler-watcher. "College was a breeze, but high school nearly killed me."

Some graduates remember involvement in extracurriculars like sports, theater, band or service clubs.

"I was on the yearbook staff. That was fun, getting out of class a lot," said Aikman Primary's librarian, Melinda Bridge. "I guess some things don't change."

Others, like HHS's senior counselor Sara Pesina, remember an absence of after-school activities.

"I didn't do anything because I was married and they wouldn't let you," she said.

But most graduates have more vivid remembrances of all that went on far away from school and anything school-related.

"If you ever wanted to get in trouble, I could take you to the places," Jerry Brock said with a chuckle and added, "It wasn't so much 'trouble' as it was us having fun and people not appreciating it."

Aside from what may or may not have been good, clean fun, what were these former students really like? Debbie Gonzales described herself as a "plain-jane person," noting that she participated in what were fairly typical girls' activities, like pep squad.

Speech pathologist Sharon Johnson guesses that when she walked down the hall, others probably "pointed and said, 'There's that girl who talks too much!'"

"I was friendly and always willing to help the kids that were handicapped. That was strange," Johnson confessed. "But maybe that's why I'm doing what I do now."

With all the different personalities one could find at Hereford High, everyone had their own twists on the trends of the time as well. Then again, some things were pretty universal.

"Dingo boots - I remember those awful things," said Dean Reinart, meter foreman at Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative. "They were kind of

WEEDS, WEEDS

Overgrowth creating potential for wildfire condition in the fall

By Kitt Jennings

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Ask anyone who has ever hoed cotton or rogued a corn field what nature's greatest evil is, and they'll tell you without an ounce of amusement that it's weeds.

For Hereford, the weeds this summer are more than just an eyesore or a mild annoyance. The overgrowth as a result of above-normal rainfall could easily become an extreme fire hazard. And, as long as it rains, the menace will only grow taller.

For now, moisture abounds and wildfires are far from most residents' minds. But despite the near-record precipitation Hereford has received of late, Fire Marshal Jay Spain warns that "a hot wind will dry things out in a hurry."

"Have a couple weeks with no precipitation and 90- to 100-degree weather and a little wind, and even green grass will get dry enough to burn," he said.

Since more moisture is expected this summer, Spain admits that the weeds are not an immediate concern. He still stresses the importance of keeping yards well-mowed.

"Even elderly people, who can't mow should hire someone. The shorter you keep (the weeds), the less danger," Spain said. "But you mow, it rains the next day, and here they come again."

Weeds in alleys pose fire danger

He recommends that grass be cut fairly short for about 30 feet around buildings and fences, and that people not park their cars in tall grass. And for those residents who have let their problem grow too tall for anything but a tractor mower, Spain suggests a "plain, old-fashioned yo-yo."

"Everyone in town should keep their alleys clear, too," warned Spain, adding, "Unless they want to lose their back fences (to a fire)."

So far to counteract the problem, the city's Street Department crew has been mowing vacant lots, while Code Enforcement workers have stepped up their letter output to residents with especially abundant weeds.

Open house set at HISD campuses

Special to The Brand

Several Hereford Independent School District campuses will hold an open house before school begins Monday. The special open house hours have been established to give students and their parents a chance to meet their new teacher.

The cafeteria manager at each school will also be on hand to meet with parents. She will be prepared to receive money for prepaid breakfasts and lunches, help fill out lunch applications and answer any questions or concerns related to the HISD Food Service Program.

This will also be the first opportunity for the students and parents to meet the new principal of their school. New principals are at Northwest Primary School, West Central Intermediate School and Hereford Junior High School.

Open house programs have been scheduled at the following schools:

SUNDAY

Aikman Primary

3-4:30 p.m.

Parents and students will meet their teachers and supplies may be placed in the rooms.

Bluebonnet Intermediate

3-4:30 p.m.

Students and parents may meet the teachers and students may place school supplies in their rooms.

Shirley Intermediate

3-4 p.m.

Students may bring their parents to meet their teachers for the coming year, and also meet the staff.

Stanton Learning Center

2-3 p.m.

Refreshments will be served when students and parents visit the school to meet their teachers and staff for the coming year.

Tierra Blanca Primary

4-5 p.m.

Farmland preparing for takeover of center

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

When Donnie Rhine stopped his rig on the scales July 6, it marked the start of a new era in Hereford.

Rhine, who was hauling a load of wheat for Hereford Grain Corp., had the first load purchased by Farmland Industries - the first of many, according to Marvin Hachmeister, operations director for the Missouri-based company.

Hachmeister said the company initially will fill two barns, each with a capacity of 1.1 million bushels.

Since that initial load of wheat was delivered to the center, Farmland Industries has continued to accept deliveries of grain, even though it has not yet taken possession of the complex.

Farmland Industries' acquisition of the 10-million-bushel Frito-Lay grain center in Hereford is complete, but the Plano-based company will continue to lease the complex until Aug. 30, when Farmland Industries will have occupancy and physical possession, Hachmeister said this week.

As preparation for the planned improvements at the complex, the Hereford Econom Development Corp., acting on behalf of Farmland Industries, petitioned Deaf Smith County and the City of Hereford to close portions of Industrial, Commerce and Express streets and Canal and Rail avenues.

The county commissioners approved the request at its Aug. 9 meeting; the city is expected to give its approval at the Monday meeting of the commissioners.

Hachmeister also said the contractor is on site and will start doing some dismantling for the company's planned improvements of the complex.

Farmland Industries plans capital improvements, including construction of a rail spur that will allow 110-railcar units to unload in less than 15 hours. The facility will conform to Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railway shuttle program requirements and will provide opportunities for Midwest producers to supply grain efficiently and competitively to the region's traditional feedgrains market.

Hachmeister said the company expects the rail spur and the mechanical upgrade project will be completed by mid- to late November.

The 10-million-bushel grain facility in Hereford has been used by Frito-Lay to supply food-grade corn to its domestic snack plants and specific international businesses.

Hachmeister has said the acquisition of the Hereford facility will allow "Farmland to supply corn to Frito-Lay and provide an excellent opportunity to expand our presence for marketing programs in West Texas."

Under the Farmland Industries plan, the Hereford center will utilize all 10 million bushels of storage for Frito-Lay processing needs, as well as assist with marketing grain to feedlots in the surrounding area.

Farmland Industries Inc. is the largest farmer-owned cooperative in North America with 1998 company sales of $8.8 billion in all 50 states and 90 countries. When including Farmland's share of sales of its affiliated businesses, sales were $11.9 billion. Focused on meeting the needs of its 600,000 farmer-owners in the United States, Canada and Mexico, Farmland is a highly diversified company with major business lines in crop marketing, and the processing and marketing of pork and beef products.

The company's Webpage is <http://www.farmland.com>.

Local roundup

County plans tax hearing

Members of the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will conduct a public hearing at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in the commissioners courtroom at the courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

The hearing has been set to give the public an opportunity comment on a proposed five-year tax abatement for Archer Daniels Midland, which intends to build a grain complex near the junction of County Road 1 and U.S. Highway 60.

The abatement request received the unanimous endorsement last week of the county Tax Abatement Board.

In addition to the city, the Hereford Independent School District trustees and the Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors must approve the abatement.

Juvenile board to hold meeting

Members of the Deaf Smith County Juvenile Board are scheduled to adopt the county Juvenile Probation Office's Fiscal 2000 budget when they meet at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in the commissioners courtroom at the county courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

Also on the board's agenda will be a discussion about hiring a full-time staff member for the IV-E program, approval of a resolution to accept state funding and discussion of salaries for probation department personnel.

HISD budget workshop slated

Hereford Independent School District trustees will conduct a budget workshop at 6 p.m. Monday in the board room of the Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave.

City to consider HEDC petition

A request by the Hereford Economic Development Corp. for the closure of several streets in the Hereford Industrial Park area will be considered by the Hereford City Commission when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the commission chamber at City Hall, 224 N. Lee.

The street closures already have been approved by Deaf Smith County and are part of Farmland Industries' proposed improvements at its grain center complex.

In other business, the commissioners will:

- Consider a resolution authorizing the city administration to submit amendments to the city's 1997-98 state grant for sewer improvements;

- Consider a tax rate for Fiscal 2000;
- Consider suspension of a proposed rate increase for Energas;
- Consider requests from the Hereford Soccer Association regarding lighting and fencing in Langley Park;
- Receive a report from the HEDC; and
- Hear from a resident regarding a water bill and trash collection.

PCS plans landlord meeting

Panhandle Community Services will conduct a landlord meeting at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the game room of the Hereford Community Center, 100 Ave. C.

The meeting is open to the public and all current or prospective landlords are encouraged to attend.

a boot with buckles and square toes. Definitely the hippie thing."

When reminded of the flurry of bell bottoms, long hair, sideburns and hip-huggers that enjoyed popularity in the '70's, Bridge only sighed.

"I didn't like it much then, and I don't like it now," she said frankly.

But whether they like it or not, former students agree that a lot of the fads they once picked up are definitely returning today.

"To tell you the truth, all of it has come back around. It's interesting how it's repeated and kids still like it," Pesina said.

"It's kind of neat, but it makes me feel old," confessed Donna Kemp, Hereford Regional Medical Center's special projects director.

Gonzales agrees that kids today enjoy fashions that were in style a generation ago.

"I used to wear mini skirts, and now my husband won't let our daughter wear one," she claimed in a half-whisper, leaning closer to her desk. "I said, 'You used to like it when I wore them,' and he said, 'That's different.'"

DONNA WALTERSCHEID

DEBBIE GONZALES

Fads do go beyond clothes, though. "The music was really cool then," said Kemp, adding, "My kids think it was really crazy, though."

Brock thinks that the music "must have been pretty good, because some of (the bands) are still around."

Then there are those fads that go without clothes.

"The Class of '74 kinda got streaking started," Reinart proclaimed with a proud grin, and then promised, "I could give you some names, but we'd better not go there."

Coneway doesn't remember much streaking, but said drive-by moonings were not uncommon at the old Arrowhead drive-in.

"Every once in a while, someone would drive by hanging half out the window," he laughed.

Despite some less than perfect behavior, the majority of the '74 seniors fared well in the long run.

"Being raised in the '70's, well, there weren't too many productive people back then," Bridge said wryly. "But now I vote like I'm supposed to, and I'm involved in a study club and school things with the kids."

Many grads still living in Hereford expressed their amazement that so many of their classmates are still around and doing quite well for themselves.

"I'm surprised more of (my classmates) aren't dead or in jail," joked Mike Bridges, earning a laugh from coworker Reinart.

"Yeah," said Reinart. "Some of 'em you'd think would end up in jail/did alright for themselves, and some we all expected to do good didn't."

A few people were surprised by individuals that "everyone figured would be a farmer" who ended up selling commodities like David Hutchins, or moving to bigger cities, as Franklin Higgins did.

"And one of our cheerleaders, Cindy Hairgrove, is a lawyer now!" Gonzales explained emphatically.

For some, settling down in a familiar place to run a successful business was appealing; others preferred the glamor of moving on to bigger, better things.

"We lived outside Houston for eight years and decided we didn't want out kids to grow up there," explained Bridge. "But it was a shock to be back here."

"Those of us who didn't leave don't know the difference, and those who didn't wouldn't come back for any amount of money," Bridges reasoned.

Others, like Reinart, just can't leave. "When I was a kid, it was, 'When I get away from here, I'm never coming back,'" he said with a smile. "The farthest I ever got was Wildorado."

Board turns down clemency for inmate with mental illness

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles on Friday denied a request to commute the death sentence of a man set to be executed next week.

The parole board had been urged to commute the sentence of Larry Robison, who is scheduled for execution Tuesday. A group of defense lawyers says the man's history of mental illness merits a reprieve.

Robison, 41, was sentenced to death for stabbing and shooting Bruce M. Gardner, one of five people authorities say he killed on Aug. 10, 1982.

The Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association asked the board for a 90-day reprieve and a commutation of the death sentence to life in prison. The parole board was unconvinced, voting 17-0 on both requests.

Asked late Friday afternoon if there were any possibility he would give Robison a 30-day stay, Bush replied, "No, there's not."

"I think his case has been fully vetted by the courts," Bush said. "First of all, this man has still got time to go to court. Should his appeals be exhausted I believe his case has been fully vetted."

According to authorities, Robison killed Gardner, 33, and four others, in two adjacent cottages at Lake Worth in Tarrant County. Among the victims was an 11-year-old boy.

Robison was convicted and sentenced to death in 1983. That sentence was overturned because of an error in selecting the jury, and he was convicted for a second time in 1987.

Polluted waterways to be listed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Clinton administration is making a comprehensive to-do list for cleaning up the nation's most polluted rivers, lakes and streams.

In his weekly radio address today, President Clinton said the Environmental Protection Agency plans to work with states "to assess the state of all our waterways, to identify the most polluted waters and to develop strong, enforceable plans to restore them to health."

Clinton said the plan is a continuation of work begun in 1972 with passage of the federal Clean Water Act. The goal of the latest cleanup plan is water clean enough for swimming or fishing, he said.

Despite enormous progress under that landmark law, the president said, about 40 percent of the nation's waterways don't meet the swimming or fishing test.

"Parents have a right to expect that our recreational waters are safe for their children to swim in," Clinton said. "All Americans have a right to expect we're doing all we can to clean up our waterways."

States and the EPA have already identified about 20,000 polluted waterways that fail to meet national water quality standards, EPA Administrator Carol Browner said. For each, states must produce individual cleanup plans.

Reserved grid tickets go on sale

Reserved seats for Hereford Whiteface home football games will be on sale next week, according to a spokesman for the Hereford Independent School District.

The sales to the general public will be Aug. 16-20 at the business office in the HISD Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave.

Sales for season ticket holders concludes today.

After Aug. 20, single-game tickets only will be sold on a week-to-week basis at Troy's Sweet Shop, 1003 E. Park.

Reserved seat tickets cost $4 each per game if purchased by Aug. 20. All tickets purchased after Aug. 20 and at the gate will be $5 each, including student tickets. Students who purchase their tickets at their school before the games will pay $2 per game.

Cowboy mystique examined

AMARILLO — Cowboy poet Buck Ramsey once said, "The cowboy epic is the one myth the United States has given the world." In "The Cowboy Mystique: A Tribute to Buck Ramsey," KACV-TV explores the continuing significance of the cowboy mystique to the region and the nation.

The program, which premieres Tuesday, August 17 at 7 p.m., is the flagship special of the public television station's August pledge drive. In-depth, one-on-one interviews with cowboy performers Michael Martin Murphy and Red Steagall, as well as cowboy poet J.B. Allen were shot this summer for the program. Never before seen footage of Buck Ramsey is also included.

"If you have any pride in our western heritage, this is a program you won't want to miss," said program producer and host Ellen Robertson Neal. "It not only gives insight into the cowboy mystique itself, but also into some of the people keeping that legend alive."

"The Cowboy Mystique: A Tribute to Buck Ramsey," which was made possible through a grant from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation, will air a total of five times during the KACV-TV membership drive, August 17 through 22. In addition to the premiere broadcast, it will air Friday, August 20 at 10 p.m.; Saturday, August 21 at 2 p.m. and 9 p.m.; and Sunday, August 22 at 1 p.m.

Other KACV-TV produced history programs will also be featured during the drive. "Route 66: A Journey Through Texas," another documentary made possible by the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation, visits some of the unusual people and places that can be found along Old Route 66. It premieres Tuesday, August 22 at 8:20 p.m.

"Route 66: A Journey Through Texas" includes sights in Vega, Shamrock, Glen Rio and more, and repeats Sunday, August 22 at 2:25 p.m.

"Basically, we just hopped in the truck and took off looking for anything people might like to see," said producer Robertson Neal. "We were really surprised to find how many things we'd never even known were there. I think viewers will be, too!"

Both airings will be followed by broadcasts of KACV's popular documentary "Rick Husband: Man with a Mission," covering the final weeks of training that led to his piloting of the NASA's space shuttle Discovery launch this past May. The program also includes the shuttle launch itself, plus interviews with Husband's immediate family and friends. This program was made possible through special support from Battelle-Pantex and Southwest Airlines.

"We decided to make the August drive a celebration of the last summer of the century," says KACV-TV Membership Coordinator Joanna Latham. "Producing special programs to reflect our pride in the area's achievements is a big part of that, as well as a way for us to thank the people in our area who have consistently given the station their support."

Other highlights of the membership drive include new music specials featuring

13-year-old classic soprano sensation Charlotte Church, stage stars Sarah Brightman and Bernadette Peters, Ray Charles and more. Questions about becoming a member can be answered by calling the KACV-TV Membership Office at (806) 371-5479 or 1-800-999-9243, or by visit the station website at www.kacvtv.org. Program information is also available at the site.

As a special incentive, everyone donating 465 or more throughout the drive will qualify for a drawing for two tickets on Southwest Airlines. The winner of the drawing will be announced the evening of August 22. Members donating $65 or more from 1 to 6 p.m. on August 22 will qualify for a drawing for a special Texas Rangers package including Southwest Airlines tickets, tickets to the Rangers' September 18 match against the Tampa Bay Devil Rays and one night hotel accommodations, donated by KGNC.

KACV to air quilting special

Special to The Brand

AMARILLO — Quilts were once considered no more than a bed cover or a handy thing to protect furniture when moving. But today they've been elevated to works of art, are treasured pieces of family history and, old or new, are coveted collectibles for homeowners.

That's one reason why KACV-TV is hosting a special TV quilting event from 9 a.m. until noon Aug. 21 as part of the station's "Last Summer of the Century" celebration.

In addition to airing two specials on quilts and piecework techniques, the station will have video of antique quilts, local experts on quilting and textile preservation, quilting demonstrations and exhibit three quilts entered by the Ogallala Quilters Group in this year's Houston Quilt Festival, all live in the KACV-TV studios throughout the event.

"America Quilts," which airs at 9 a.m. Aug. 21, examines quilting as a pastime with irresistible appeal, as a record of our country's history and as a form of artistic expression. In addition to displaying the beauty and variety of quilts, "America Quilts" tells the inspiring stories behind the creation of several award-winning quilts through interviews with the people who made them.

Susan Denny, a textile expert from the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon, will share stories of quilts on exhibit at the museum. Footage of an antique Civil War quilt on exhibit at Texas Tech will also be shown.

"Because it is an overwhelmingly feminine pursuit, quilting has almost no mention on our country's official history. Women didn't serve in Congress, they fought no wars, they built no buildings, they were not revered as artists, musicians, or writers," said Yvonne Porcella, who shares her quilting techniques and artistry. "Their legacies are composed of cotton, linen, silk and wool."

Tax abatement another sign of cooperation

Perhaps it is synchronicity: A major corporation planning to build a multi-million-dollar facility in Deaf Smith County requests a tax abatement.

The Archer Daniels Midland request for a five-year, 50-percent tax abatement comes at a time when budget planners for the city, county, school district and hospital district are trying to cope with a stagnant tax base.

The ADM facility, when completed, will represent a significant addition to the tax base — even with a five-year abatement. The decision by ADM to place its $6 million facility in Deaf Smith County is exactly what Hereford Economic Development Corp. Executive Director Don Cumpton said — good for everybody.

The decision by the tax abatement board to recommend that the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court, Hereford Independent School District and Deaf Smith County Hospital District grant the tax break also is another example of the cooperation that has become the trademark of our community.

Although the ADM facility will not be added to the City of Hereford's tax rolls, the city representatives on the board voiced their support because it would be good for the county and hospital district.

And, the school district representatives endorsed the ADM request even though HISD will not realize any additional revenue for five years.

The cooperation further was demonstrated by the teamwork of the HEDC and the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, representatives of the public sector and private sector who coordinated their efforts at shepherding the ADM project to fruition.

Cooperation will be the difference if Hereford and Deaf Smith County do realize a new era of growth, which can mean better lives for all in the community.

Mauldin was inspiration

Donald Cooper

Most kids' heroes are athletes, movie stars or entertainers, but when I was growing up, I had a different hero.

Chippo Cherry's heroes were Mickey Mantle and Y.A. Tittle, while Lujack managed to talk the manager of the Elberta Theater in Nashville, Ark., to let him have a John Wayne poster and Wedgie wanted to look just like Elvis, something that wasn't easy for a nearsighted, short fat kid.

Now I always checked the sports pages to see how Ted Williams or Jimmy Piersall and the Boston Red Sox did, but when I was a kid, my real hero was Bill Mauldin.

Mauldin, a native of New Mexico, first became famous during World War II for his cartoons in Stars & Stripes and Yank that depicted the daily lives of the Army combat soldiers, the "dogfaces."

Mauldin's cartoons, which featured Willie and Joe, two war-weary infantrymen, presented the war from the perspective of the ordinary soldier.

A couple of months ago, William Murchison, whose Dallas Morning News opinion columns are nationally syndicated, said Mauldin and the reporter Ernie Pyle "represented the World War II soldiers better than (President) Franklin Roosevelt or Gen. (George C.) Marshall or Gen. (Douglas) MacArthur or the editorial page of The New York Times because they talked from the 'foxhole' level."

Pyle was killed in 1945 by machine-gun fire during a campaign on the Pacific island of Ie Shima.

In 1945, Mauldin won the Pulitzer Prize for editorial cartoons. He also published "Up Front," his memoir of the war and which included many of his best cartoons.

After the war, Mauldin became an editorial cartoonist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and later with the Chicago Sun-Times and in 1959 would receive another Pulitzer Prize for his editorial cartooning.

My parents had a copy of "Up Front" and it fascinated me. I used to get the book, spread my paper and pencils on the floor and try to copy Mauldin's sketches of "Willie and Joe."

While most of my friends got the morning newspaper, they'd grab the sports pages, but I always went immediately to the editorial page to see if it had a cartoon by Bill Mauldin.

I studied Mauldin's cartoons as religiously as most kids studied the major league standings and box scores.

While Chippo was trying (and failing miserably) to become a switch-hitter like the Mick, I was trying to master the style of Mauldin. It took Chippo the better part of a Little League season, but he finally realized that he'd never be a switch hitter like Mickey Mantle, so he just concentrated on trying to hone his own skills.

Like Chippo, I finally realized that I would never draw like Bill Mauldin, and my own style emerged.

A few years ago when I was working as editor of a small paper north of Dallas, I got the agenda for the annual Associated Press Managing Editor's convention and saw Bill Mauldin was to be one of the speakers.

As an editor, I've never been one who attended conventions, associations or all of those other press confabs, but I quickly decided I would attend this meeting.

At the first session of the convention, right after Annette and I had completed the registration, I looked down the hall and I saw Mauldin walking toward the meeting room. Carrying my worn copy of "Up Front," I approached Mauldin and asked him to sign one of his cartoons. He laughed when he saw that I had selected a cartoon that he said had never been appreciated by his editors, and then he signed the book.

Mauldin stayed around for the entire convention, and I had several opportunities to talk to him about cartoons.

It's great when your heroes turn out to be such nice people.

Lawmakers discussing renewal of the draft

Tom Raum
The Associated Press

It's got to be one of the least politically popular proposals in years: reviving the draft to keep the military from losing its post-Cold War battle with attrition.

But that's just what some military-minded lawmakers are suggesting may be necessary if the services can't fill their ranks due to growing recruitment and re-enlistment shortfalls.

The Pentagon is dead set against any talk of reviving the draft, suggesting the 26-year-old all-volunteer force is a great success, despite current recruiting problems.

Meanwhile, just as talk is growing over whether to revive the draft, the House is prepared to take up legislation that would do just the opposite: terminate the Selective Service System.

"Congress seems to be moving in two directions at once in this particular case," Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon observed Tuesday.

The dueling proposals underscore the attention Congress is giving to the issue of military readiness and the difficulties the services are having in recruiting and keeping people at a time of growing peacekeeping deployments and higher-paying private-sector jobs.

House Armed Services Chairman Floyd Spence, R-S.C., calls the military's recruiting and retention problem "a desperate situation that keeps getting worse" and suggests returning to some form of compulsory military service.

Reps. Herbert Bateman, R-Va., chairman of the subcommittee on readiness; Steve Buyer, R-Ind., chairman of the military personnel subcommittee; and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., former chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, have also suggested a fresh look at reviving the draft.

But such suggestions are not receiving wide support.

"I'm concerned about the trends away from public service, both the military and otherwise," said Rep. Ike Skelton of Missouri, senior Democrat on the Armed Services Committee. "The recruiting goals are not being met except by the Marines. But I don't think that's a good reason to reinstate the draft."

He noted that the Army had an authorization for 480,000 positions but was down to 469,400.

"That's about a 10,000 shortage," Skelton said. "Do you really want to reinstate the draft to get 10,000 soldiers? I question that. We'll just have to do a better job of retention."

The Air Force may fall 2,500 recruits short of its annual goal and come up 1,400 pilots short of requirements, and the Navy projects a shortage of 22,000 sailors. Only the Marine Corps, the smallest service, seems capable of meeting recruitment goals.

Skelton and others point to a military compensation package near final passage in Congress that would provide the biggest increase in pay and retirement benefits since the early 1980s.

That includes an across-the-board 4.8 percent pay raise to take effect next January, with additional increases set at half a percentage point above the rate of inflation.

Retired Air Force Col. Paul Arcari, director of the Retired Air Force Officers Association, said the new compensation package will go a long way toward making military pay and benefits more competitive.

Arcari characterized reviving the draft as "politically unpalatable."

Bacon, the Pentagon spokesman, said the Defense Department is working hard to fix "recruiting problems, many of which reflect the strong economy. ... The military has to show more imagination and hard work to meet its recruiting goals, and I believe we're doing that."

"We believe that as long as our all-volunteer force does its job well in protecting the national interests, there should not be a need for a national mobilization," Bacon said.

At the same time, he said, the Selective Service System, which continues to register 18-year-old men for a potential military call-up, "provides a very good backup, should that be necessary someday."

A provision to shut down the 59-year-old agency is tucked in a spending bill to be taken up after the House recess.

The House Appropriations Committee approved the agency termination before the August recess with little debate, mostly as a cost-cutting move.

"There was no advance warning," said Lew Brodsky, the service's director of public and congressional affairs. He noted Selective Service survived previous attempts to abolish it, in 1993 and 1995.

Marvels of technology also can be abused

Dianna F. Dandridge

Today's technology undoubtedly provides the greatest benefits man has ever known. Modern medicine provides physicians with never-before-seen views of the human body; communication is nearly instantaneous; and computers can access information ranging from an individual bank account to the population of endangered species with a click of a button. Millions of years ago, fire was a wonder beyond wonders. It chased away darkness, provided warmth, changed the way food was prepared and could even be used as protection against predators or unfriendly humans. Way beyond a burning stick, technology today now provides predators new ways to hunt their prey. No, I'm not talking about a cougar using the Internet to find the closest yard of deer, but rather technology that allows human predators access to individual lives. More and more often, I hear about perverts, weirdos and crooks using technology to lure children into dangerous situations or to bilk susceptible old folks out of their money. Just this week, a friend told me she had received a late-night phone call from a bunch of giggling girls making prank calls. For her, it was nothing more than a disruption of her sleep, but she wondered what could have happened if the girls had dialed the number of a weirdo with a caller ID. A few weeks ago, another friend said she had received several late night calls, where the caller just hung up. Her caller ID informed her the caller used a pay phone. She didn't think anything about it and left on vacation. She returned to find her house had been robbed. Now she wonders if the late-night caller had something to do with the robbery. That little box that so many of us take for granted could very easily provide information any smart weirdo could put to good use. The smaller ID boxes provide only the name and phone number of the caller. Larger, more expensive units can give details such as the caller's address. Add this little bit of information to the information in a local phone book or city directory and the undesirable human element now has access to a good portion of our lives. By simply cross-referencing the phone number and street address, an undesirable could very easily determine where a kid goes to school, where parents work and what hours the house is likely to be unoccupied. This by no means finds fault with the new technology, especially the caller ID, but it does bring to mind the necessity of protecting ourselves from uninvited intruders. For years, parents have told children to tell callers that parents can't come to the phone. That's pretty much a give-away kids are home alone. The caller ID, of course, can eliminate that problem if kids just don't answer when they see an unknown number, but we all know that probably won't happen. Just as the caller ID can aid the undesirables, it can also aid emergency services in the event a very young child or visitor, who may not know pertinent information, must make an emergency call. I doubt very seriously if inventors or manufacturers ever considered the criminal element when developing or designing the gizmos and gadgets we all use - gizmos and gadgets which are designed to improve security and life in general. I suppose the criminal element will continue to advance right along with technology, which means the non-criminal element will have to continue to find better ways of protecting themselves. After all, a lock is only going to keep out the honest folks. Others who really want in are going to get in. Staff Writer Dianna F. Dandridge can be reached at hbnews@hotmail.com

Dear Editor: I would like to take this opportunity to express my disappointment with the choice made by the various school campuses to have their open houses on Sunday. I have always appreciated the Hereford Independent School District for its desire to educate all of the children and while this choice was probably made thinking that it would be a way to have more parents free to attend these open houses, it also takes away from the opportunity for these parents to have greater time with their families and spend a day meant for worship in a meaningful way. For many years, the school district has made great effort to not infringe on Wednesday night, as that is church activity night for many of the churches in Hereford. Why then did they feel that the Sabbath was all right for school? I hope that this will not set a precedent for future Sundays and more school activities.

Dear Editor: Last Saturday looked to be a beautiful day for the Jubilee. It was a wonderful day for the 15th Annual Greg Black Memorial Walk/Run. The day promised warm sunshine and a much welcomed, but small breeze. Smiling faces lined the parking lot and grassy area of the YMCA. Excitement rose and friendly greetings were exchanged. Stretching, jogging in place and last words of encouragement were spoken as we waited our instructions. Typical of most crowds there were those who continued to talk over the ever rising voices of our instructor as he strived to give us directions. Finally the much-awaited blank gunshot went off and as the Hereford Brand announced: "They're Off!" Me, and my little group of ladies - a couple of us 50+ - took off at great strides as the runners left us in the dust. It didn't matter though, as we had it all, friendship and a beautiful day with fresh clean air to breath... until we looked up to the loud sound of an airplane flying over us. Well, not directly over us, as it was about two blocks away. We looked up to see where the sound was coming from and to our horror the plane, which would normally thrill my heart, was spraying a heavy mist over the area we were about to walk through. Oh no we thought, surely this can't be! Surely they wouldn't be spraying for mosquitoes today at 8:10 during the annual walk/run! Surely not! My heart sank as he continued to swipe back and forth across our path. Finally it caught up with us and was falling directly over where we were walking. We covered our mouths with our hands to keep from breathing it. Our eyes were burning. I was glad I hadn't put on any eye makeup that morning. We felt the mist land on our skin. Finally it made me angry to think our "City Fathers" appeared not to be watching over the situation as they should. I wanted to weep because I dislike breathing anything that might adversely hurt my health. What do we do? Quit the race and run into Allsup's on 15th to get out from under it and not finish the race? That all ran through my mind. Instead I decided to pray and pray I did, that the Lord would protect us from any present or future harm that this might cause. But, I know he wants us to use our good sense too. I hope next year there will be more consideration. I know the weather was a factor and that we need mosquito spray, but that day I would rather have the mosquitoes than to be sprayed for them. This is a wonderful time and honors the memory of a great young man, Greg Black. It is a good community project to raise funds for the YMCA. Don't let the error of this year detour you from coming out to walk/run next year.

Book offers mix of fact, fiction

A long-forgotten scrapbook found after his wife's death sends Billy Bryan, a retired school teacher and former minor league catcher in the Washington Senators organization, to Havana, Cuba, where he confronts his past.

In 1947, Bryan, who had been banging around in the minor leagues for several seasons, was the starting catcher for the Havana Lions and dreaming of a shot at the major leagues.

While immersing himself in the decadent nightlife of Havana, Bryan would become "Castro's Curveball," by both fascinated political turmoil Tim Wendel; Ballantine and frustrated in surrounding the Books, New York, 1999; his dealings with Batista dictator-286 pages; $23.95 hardcover much scrutiny has been brought to bear on it."

Rumors still persist that Castro signed, or at least considered signing, a contract with the Washington Senators while he was a student at the University of Havana during the late 1940s.

Castro has denied signing a contract; the National Baseball Library in Cooperstown, N.Y., has found no record of a Castro contract. Yet, the tale will not go away and forms the basis of Wendel's novel.

Bryan was caught up in the "Castro's Curveball," by both fascinated political turmoil Tim Wendel; Ballantine and frustrated in surrounding the Books, New York, 1999; his dealings with Batista dictator-286 pages; $23.95 hardcover hurricane unto himself" and "a person who was comfortable being many things to many different people."

The love affair between Bryan and Malena is as tumultuous as his baseball relationship with Castro. She is passionately Cuban, and while she detests the Batista regime and recognizes that Castro is a forceful leader, she also harbors doubts about Fidel.

After the season ends, Bryan tried to persuade Malena to leave Cuba with him, but she chooses to stay. Bryan never knew he had fathered a child by Malena, even thinks she was killed when Castro's plot to seize the Cuban army's Moncada barracks failed on July 26, 1953.

Bryan left baseball and raised a family in the United States, but Cuba always remained a part of his life, as he wondered what if Malena had come with him?

In "Castro's Curveball," Wendel has produced the literary equivalent of a knuckleball: The reader, like a batter, doesn't know where it's going.

As for Fidel Castro, he's still throwing curveballs.

Tim Wendel, an award-winning writer for USA Today Baseball Weekly, has worked a mixture of fact and fiction to create a highly entertaining novel that captures two passions - baseball and politics.

Cuba, a vibrant, passionate island nation, is the perfect backdrop for the story of a itinerant ballplayer who still has his dreams, but who is coming to accept the reality that his dreams may not be attainable.

Cuba is a nation racing toward revolution. The Batista is brutal, oppressive and corrupt, the gap between the haves and the have-nots is growing ever wider, and there is festering resentment toward the United States and U.S. companies that exploit the Cuban workers.

In the author's note, Wendel observes the best place to start with a novel "is with a tale that simply won't go away, no matter how

Grunts, Tackles and Hard Hitting

Brand/Mauri Montgomery

Looking for an Open Target — Quarterback Cody Hodges looks for an open receiver during Friday's intrasquad scrimmage at the Whiteface Practice Field. The intrasquad scrimmage gave the coaches a chance to look at players in a live setting, making the coaches' decisions easier on choosing which players will be on the varsity and which players are not. Some of the highlights of the scrimmage included two touchdown runs by junior varsity player Joe Santiago, a one-yard touchdown run by L.J. Vallejo and the defensive efforts of Daniel Fangman. In a span of four series, Fangman helped the defense hold the offense to -26 yards.

Whitefaces take on each other in the field of battle

■ Yenzer happy with performance despite struggles

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor

There was good, crisp tackling and dominating defensive plays.

There was well-executed plays in the offense that produced some time-consuming plays.

There was a little bit of everything.

There may be some kinks the Hereford High School football team needs to work on. But after Friday's intrasquad scrimmage, head coach Craig Yenzer feels good about the performance of his players.

"Overall, I was pleased with the effort," Yenzer said. "We have a lot of execution things to work on, pass routes to think about and read on our quarterbacks."

That's just some of the mistakes that the offense made. The defense may have looked good, but there's always room for improvement.

"The defense still made mistakes in some schemes of that nature," Yenzer said. "We still need to practice Monday and get to work on those things."

The defense, except for some of the mistakes Yenzer mentioned, was tough to run and pass against Friday. In a span of four scrimmage series, the defense allowed -26 yards total offense. It sure made defensive lineman Daniel Fangman happy.

"It felt great getting through the line, letting the linebackers through, hurting some people and making plays," he said.

"It's kind of a coaches' cliché, but you better have your defense ahead of your offense or you're in trouble," Yenzer said. "I was pleased with the defense. They did a good job."

The offense had many opportunities to score, but some missed assignments and dropped balls denied the offense any consistency.

"We had some mental breakdowns that stopped our momentum," said starting quarterback Cody Hodges. "We haven't rushed since last year, but we're getting back into it."

The offense did, however, have their highlights. Junior varsity running back Joe Santiago broke for running scores, one of which was a 70-yard scamper on the first play of a series. The other was a 30-yarder late in the scrimmage.

L.J. Vallejo, last year's leading rusher for the Whitefaces, also broke free for a one-yard

Coaches do work magic

It's amazing how coaches can work magic with the athletes they are coaching.

Many do it in many different ways.

Bill Walsh was so successful in his coaching career because he developed plays and systems that made their players work with their best of their abilities.

That type of coaching produced three Super Bowls in the '80's for the San Francisco 49ers.

Then there's the demanding part of a coach toward a player.

One big example is Bill Parcells.

Parcells, who was an assistant at Texas Tech, comes from the idea that football games are won with hard work. In other words, his way or out the door.

That philosophy of coaching has produced two world championships, three conference championships and several divisional titles in the NFL.

Now, what does that have to do with Hereford anyway?

The coaches in the high school provide the same magic that makes their athletes successful.

In a very Bill Parcells-like way.

Not to blow it out of proportion, but the coaches in Hereford are very demanding toward their players when it comes to working hard on the field and in the classroom.

Those demands have worked wonders for the athletes in Hereford.

Brenda Kitten's demanding ways have produced two state championships.

Ray Baca is one of them, too. His track and cross-country runners have won many district, regional and state championships.

ChiSox take two games from Texas

CHICAGO (AP) — Kip Wells is the right guy for the Chicago White Sox but it's the wrong time.

Wells (2-0) won his second big league start Friday night to give the White Sox a 4-2 victory in the first game of a doubleheader against the Texas Rangers. The 22-year-old was then optioned back to the minors after the game.

Ray Durham drove in three runs in the second game to lead the White Sox to a 7-4 victory and a sweep of the Rangers.

Durham hit a two-run homer and a RBI single off Ryan Glenn (2-4) in the second game for the White Sox, who had lost a season-high seven straight before the sweep.

"It was good to finally win some games," White Sox manager Jerry Manuel said.

Texas has lost six of its last nine games and saw its lead over Oakland in the AL West slip to 5 1/2 games.

"Anytime you get swept in a doubleheader, it's frustrating. Frustrating all the way through," Texas' Rafael Palmeiro said.

Wells could have been frustrated or upset or simply miffed that he was packing his bags for Birmingham for the second time after his second win. But he wasn't.

"I've had success above and beyond what I could've asked for," Wells said. "I didn't expect to walk in here and take over. It's part of the business. They've got five guys in the rotation. Six won't do it."

"He does make it difficult," Manuel said of Wells who may be back with the club Aug. 30 for its final doubleheader against Seattle. "It was a spot start. Our people in the rotation are pretty well set."

In the second game, James Baldwin (6-11) gave up two runs and 10 hits in 6 1/3 innings for his second win in his last eight starts.

"Anytime you shut a team like that down, it's good," Baldwin said. "They can definitely hit the ball."

After Magglio Ordonez's RBI groundout in the first gave Chicago the lead, Brook Fordyce hit a run-scoring double and scored on Durham's single in the second to make it 3-0. Chris Singleton added an RBI double in the third.

Durham hit his 13th homer in the fourth to make it 6-0 and Caruso added a run-scoring groundout in the sixth.

Glynn gave up six runs and nine hits in five-plus innings.

Rusty Greer hit solo homers in both games and had a two-run single in the seventh of the nightcap for the Rangers. Greer has 11 homers.

Lee Stevens added a solo homer in the ninth for Texas.

In the opener, Wells (2-0), Chicago's No. 1 pick in the 1998 amateur draft, gave up one run, three hits and three walks in five innings. He struck out six and overcame a 56-minute rain delay in the top of the third.

The right-hander won his major-league debut Aug. 2 against Detroit, allowing two runs — one earned — in 5 1/3 innings.

"We had some ugly swings against him," Texas manager Johnny Oates said. "It looked like the ball went where he wanted it to go."

He was sent back to Double-A Birmingham following that start and recalled before Friday's doubleheader. Immediately after the first game, Wells was again optioned to Birmingham.

Bob Howry pitched the ninth for his 19th save in 23 chances.

With runners on second and third and two outs in the first, Paul Konerko blooped a single into shallow right off John Burkett (3-6) to score two runs.

"When that (first) inning was over, I was happy to keep it to two (runs)," Burkett said. "Their pitcher did a good job. He held our hitters down."

Texas cut the lead to one in the fourth, when Wells balked with runners on first and second and Lee Stevens followed with an RBI groundout.

Burkett allowed four runs and 11 hits in 5 1/3 innings.

Five dark goose limit among liberal waterfowl proposals

Goose hunters in the Western Zone of Texas will apparently have a bag limit of an astonishing five dark geese—to include no more than one whitefront—during the 1999-2000 waterfowl season if guidelines are finalized in their proposed form by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Commission on August 26.

The proposed dark goose limit is nearly triple the daily dark goose limit of two that everybody around here grew up with. This year's proposed regulations would boost the limit by one Canada goose over the four Canada limit of last year. Possession limit for dark geese will be twice the daily bag limit.

The bag limit on light geese during the 107-day October 30-February 13 regular season in the Western Zone is proposed at 20 per day with no possession limit.

I visited by phone with Brian Sullivan, waterfowl program leader with the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department last week and got the latest on proposed waterfowl regulations, and prospects for another late snow goose season similar to the conservation season last spring.

Brian said the Arctic Tundra Conservation Act has been proposed in Congress, aimed at re-activating the rules of last spring's initial light goose conservation season when shooting hours were extended, hunters were allowed to use unplugged shotguns and electronic calling, and there was no bag limit on light geese.

The ability to hold a spring season on light geese in 2000 has been in question because of a lawsuit filed by the Humane Society of the United States. While the HSUS failed in halting last spring's conservation season, they did succeed when a judge ruled that the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service must complete a full Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) on the snow goose conservation season.

Getting a full EIS done is slow business, and probably won't be completed in time for a spring season in 2000.

Meanwhile, hordes of snow geese continue to damage the fragile vegetation of the arctic tundra, literally eating themselves out of house and home. Geese that can't find enough vegetation on top also grub out the roots of plants, leaving vast expanses of the tundra in a desert-like state.

The only way to permit continuing a snow goose conservation season without the EIS is through Congressional action—thus the proposed Arctic Tundra Conservation Act—aimed at halting any further long-term damage by snow geese.

The Sportsman's Den

By Jim Steiert

The population of light geese is three times the goal established by the North American Waterfowl Management Plan. The long-term plan is to reduce the continental snow goose population 50 percent by 2005. The preferred method of accomplishing this is through hunter harvest.

Delta Waterfowl reports that the initial light goose conservation season was marginally successful—but remember—confusion and politics caused the startup of the season to be delayed for coastal Texas and a lot of snows had already left the region before the conservation season was launched. Fortunately for local hunters, the conservation season kicked off right after the end of the regular season, and migrating snow geese were moving through the area in good numbers. Local folks were among the first to get a crack at conservation season snow geese under the liberalized regulations, and they took advantage of it.

Preliminary estimates place the total light goose harvest during the 1999 conservation season at around 215,000 birds—short of the first-year goal of 618,000.

Another try with a timely kickoff of the year 2000 effort and hunters made eager by their experiences during last year's conservation season could mean better results. Experts say up to five consecutive conservation seasons might be required to accomplish the desired level of snow goose population reduction.

Sullivan anticipates that no conservation season will be in effect unless the Arctic Tundra Conservation Act flies. With the backing of the Congressional Sportsman's Caucus, there's a good chance something positive will occur.

Texas had petitioned the Fish and Wildlife Service for two whitefronted geese in the bag limit for both the Western and Eastern zones this year. While two whitefronts are proposed to be allowed for the Eastern Zone, the Western Zone whitefront limit will remain at one, despite objections from many hunters who take their geese in the Rolling Plains. The area around Benjamin hosts a huge concentration of specks. Apparently the Feds were concerned about potential overharvest of these Rolling Plains geese. Population data showed a decline, but Sullivan says the decline was from a record-high, and whitefront numbers are on par with North American Waterfowl Management Plan goals.

Sullivan says Texas has been working toward a new management plan for whitefronts, and didn't feel that a request for a second speck in the bag for the Western Zone was out of line. He knows there will be howls of protest from Western Zone hunters in the Rolling Plains over the Eastern Zone getting a second speck while they were left out, but Bryan wants them to know this one wasn't his fault...The Eastern Zone is proposed for a limit of only one Canada, however, except during the January 24-February 1 period when three would be allowed.

Duck season for our High Plains Mallard Management Unit is proposed at 90 days, the same as last year, and would span October 23-26 and October 30 through January 23, with a youth-only hunting day on October 16. Seasons in the North and South Zones are proposed at only 74 days, also the same as last year.

Good nesting prospects for many species set the stage for another large flight this fall and the bag limit will remain liberal by today's standards at six. The bag may include no more than: five mallards, two of which may, (but ought not) be hens; one pintail; two wood ducks; three scaup; two redheads; one mottled duck; and one canvasback.

A huge flight of mallards, possibly as many or more than were seen in the 1950s, is expected to wing south along with large numbers of greenwinged teal. These species are the source of some fantastic duck action in the playa lakes country of the Plains. Add in some widgeon, pintails, and the odd redhead or canvasback, and the stage is set for what could prove a memorable season—depending on weather and the timing of migration of the waterfowl.

touchdown run. But mostly, a lot of opportunities were lost in some plays due to dropped passes.

"We need to get more practice and better timing," Hodges said. "Especially in the shotgun, we need to catch the ball."

Yenzer and his staff got to look at their players in a more controlled manner, which will make their jobs tough on choosing varsity players. But they knew they needed to take a look at the squad in action.

"It was good for us to see this in a live setting and under control," Yenzer said.

Yenzer and the staff kept it in control as they did not allow the quarterbacks being hit, not

"It's early and we don't want to get into that hard-hitting action yet."

cut block and stopped plays when they felt would endanger a player.

"It's early and we don't want to get into that (hard hitting action) yet," Yenzer said.

But they will next week, when they face Plainview in a scrimmage next Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Plainview.

One thing Yenzer wants to get out of this is improvement and keep it a scrimmage among both teams.

There maybe some intentions the players have to get even with Plainview, who eliminated the Whitefaces from then playoffs last year with a 25-6 victory.

"They talked a lot of trash, damaged our locker room and stuff like that," Hodges said. "We're not going at them like we're going to kick your butt. They'll probably want to start a fight, but we got to be smart about it."

But the game will be treated like a regular scrimmage and nothing else.

"We're going to approach it like a practice," Yenzer said. "Our main focus is not Plainview. We got plays and execution to get to work on and that's how we'll approach it and not going to try to hype it."

But at least the hype of Whiteface football is starting to grow on the city of Hereford.

And this is only the beginning.

COACHES

Local coaches use their own brand of magic to bring out the best in their athletes

Sure, Brionne Yosten is a very gifted athlete. But she wouldn't be as successful if it wasn't for a coach like Baca.

James Salinas is another one. Being a great student of the game, Salinas is also a great teacher of the game of golf. He's so detail-oriented that many golfers in Hereford, from young to old, have had some type of lesson from Salinas.

Yenzer and his staff is also another demanding group. Hereford's all-out hustle they provide from the practice field to the game is credited to the staff. They will not allow any player to go half speed during plays and conditioning drills.

A lot of the girls at the high school are very athletic. But that doesn't mean they are good in all sports.

Oh, but they are. Athletes like Tori Walker, Audra Witkowski and Valerie Guzman are excellent all-around athletes because they meet the demand of coaches like Kitten, Baca and Key Harrison.

Many sports programs have a great amount of athletes, but it's sometimes the guidance of a coach that can make the difference between winning and losing.

Hereford, you should feel pretty lucky. You have a good number of coaches that demand the best in their athletes. Even if it means being like Bill Parcells.

Tiger two shots back in PGA Championship

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — Time is running out for Jay Haas to win a major championship, though he might not acknowledge it after watching a senior tour player leap into contention at the PGA Championship.

Tiger Woods has all the time in the world, though you might not know it by the sense of urgency he had Friday as he teed off in search of his second major title.

Add a couple of guys widely separated in age — 54-year-old Hale Irwin and 19-year-old Sergio Garcia — to the mix, and the season's final major now has the potential of a pretty interesting weekend.

"That's what I've worked for my entire career, to be in a position like this," Haas said after taking a 1-stroke lead over Mike Weir at 9-under 135 midway through the PGA.

"I'm in contention after two rounds," Woods said. "That's right where you want to be."

Three straight birdies to start the day helped put Woods two strokes back of Haas entering today's play and in contention for his first major win since the 1997 Masters.

It's the third time this year Woods has contended in a major — while Haas has been on the leaderboard only a handful of times in his long career.

He was right on top of it when Woods began play Friday afternoon, though, and Woods was determined not to let him get any more distance.

"I saw (Haas) at 8-under and I knew I needed to keep pace and not let him get too far ahead," Woods said. "I saw guys were going low."

The lowest was Haas, who followed an opening 68 with a 5-under 67 that put him at 9-under.

The 45-year-old veteran with nine tour wins but no major titles posted his score early, then let Woods take his best shot at it.

"I've played a long time out here without a major win," Haas said. "All we all want to do is win golf tournaments and majors especially, and I've not done that."

With his 18-year-old son, Jay Jr., carrying his bag, Haas birdied the first hole and didn't falter until a final-hole bogey. He played early enough to escape the late rain on Medinah No. 3, and good enough to keep Woods just where he was starting the day — two strokes behind. "I've been nervous. I've been excited. The adrenaline is pumping," Haas said. "I saw my name up on the leaderboard and that charged me up. But it's a good nervous because I'm playing well."

On a day when Haas and Woods offered the extremes of a tour journeyman and the game's most recognizable superstar, Irwin and Garcia put on a show of young and old by playing together and staying on the leaderboard.

Garcia, the first-round leader, shot a 73 and was four strokes back, the same place Irwin was after a second-round 69.

"You just put a bag over everybody's head, including your own," said Irwin, who took a break from dominating the senior tour to play in the PGA. "So you can't look in the mirror and see gray hair and you can't look in the mirror and see a kid with freckles."

The Ryder Cup controversy faded, at least for one day, as the season's final major firming up on historic Medinah No. 3 with a pretty entertaining field entering weekend play.

England's Lee Westwood was there, three shots back, trying to win his first major and the third for a European this year. Skip Kendall, who has won lots of money but no tournaments, was a stroke worse after a course-record 7-under 65.

"I just want to win a tournament," Kendall said. "It would be a bonus if it was a major."

Not there were such notables as Lee Janzen, Justin Leonard, Greg Norman and Tom Watson, who all missed the cut. Ryder Cup captain Ben Crenshaw, who hadn't made a cut in 13 tournaments this year, also missed the cut and will have time to scout for his two captain's picks among the weekend players.

Among those Crenshaw is looking at is Tom Lehman, who was 11th on the Ryder Cup points list and put himself into position to move past Jeff Maggert into a top 10 automatic bid by making the cut at even par. Maggert, meanwhile, shot a 76 Friday to miss the cut.

Irwin's improbable play — not taking into consideration his 24 senior tour wins — even had some suggesting that Crenshaw look at him as a possible captain's pick for the team even though he isn't in the points race.

The possibility seemed to surprise Irwin, who would be the oldest person to win a major tournament if he could find a way to finish on top Sunday.

"Let's take one thing at a time," Irwin said. "Winning this would be beyond any expectations, certainly, and any hopes. We can all dream about it. Dreams do come true."

"And who knows? It could happen."

'Horns look for life after Ricky

AUSTIN (AP) — What a first impression coach Mack Brown made at Texas. Now comes the encore.

In Brown's debut season, the Longhorns rebounded from 4-7 the year before to go 9-3 and win the Cotton Bowl for the first time since 1982. Along the way, Brown was smart enough to keep his freshman quarterback under control and, most importantly, get the ball to Ricky Williams.

Texas officials were so impressed they decided to pay Brown $1 million a year. The message was clear: It's great to win again. Keep it up.

After years of underachieving Texas teams, fans smell a powerhouse brewing. Texas officials report selling more than 43,500 season tickets, almost 4,000 more than the previous high.

"It's exciting to be a part of what is going on right now," said Brown, whose "come early, stay late, be loud, wear orange" mantra hasn't worn off.

"We're trying to build on that."

But matching their 1998 effort will be a challenge for the Longhorns, who have a seasoned quarterback and improved defense but face life after Williams. No more Heisman Trophy campaign. No more 193.1 yards rushing per game.

"Last year is just a memory," said Brown. "A lot of things happened to the team, but that is history."

"There are a lot of similarities between the two starts. We still have a lot of unknowns. But we have a philosophy in place. The players know us and we know them."

To replace Williams, the leading rusher in Division I-A history, Brown has tabbed junior Hodges Mitchell as the starter and redshirt freshman Victor Ike as backup. There are no college starts between them.

Mitchell had 203 yards rushing in the last two seasons combined and only four carries for 9 yards in the spring game.

"The concern is that we don't have a guy who's ever started in a ball game," Brown said. "Mitchell has been here two years ... but we can't expect him to carry it as much as Ricky."

With Williams gone, the leadership role falls squarely upon quarterback Major Applewhite, last season's Big 12 freshman of the year. With defenses stacked to stop Williams, Applewhite passed for 2,453 yards and 18 touchdowns with 11 interceptions.

"Ricky took so much pressure off everyone else," Applewhite said. Texas lost 67 percent of its offense with the departure of Williams and Wane McGarity, the first 1,000-yard receiver in school history. Kwame Cavil, the top returning receiver, had 51 catches for 775 yards in 1998.

"We feel like Kwame can be one of the best receivers in the country," Brown said.

The offensive line replaces four starters but should be solid when the season starts Aug. 28 against North Carolina State, Applewhite said. Guard Roger Roesler is the only returning starter.

"They were unsure of themselves, but by the end of spring you could see they were gaining their confidence," Applewhite said.

The defense will have to carry the Longhorns early, Brown said.

Texas returns eight starters from a unit that ranked ninth in the Big 12 and gave up 364.4 yards per game. The Longhorns also have help on the way in freshman line-backer Corey Redding, USA Today's high school defensive player of the year.

"We'll be much better on defense because we're more experienced and faster," Brown said.

Circle provides the caring touch

Las Vegas-style casino party will benefit Circle of Friends

Hereford Circle of Friends will kick off its annual membership drive with what promises to be a fun-filled night of entertainment and chances to win. The "Las Vegas" style casino party will begin at 7 p.m. August 21, poolside at Hereford Country Club. The public is invited.

A Circle of Friends membership contribution of $25 per couple or $15 per person admits you to the "casino" where you will be issued $250 in chips for playing blackjack and craps presented by "A Night in Vegas" of Dallas. If the initial supply of chips is exhausted, additional chips may be obtained with a cash donation.

At the close of gaming, guests will have a chance to bid on items such as a Playstation; a three-disc CD player; an autographed print of Jack Nicklaus, donated by Tom and Monica Edwards of Edward Jones; a case of wine from Caprock Winery; a year of a premium channel on cable, donated by Hereford Cablevision; a bottle of Century Scotch Malt Whiskey, donated by 19th Hole; a round of golf for two with cart at the John Pitman Golf Course; and a gift certificate from Inkahoots.

These items will be available on the casino auction and can be purchased with the casino chips that you win.

There will also be a silent auction held throughout the evening. If anyone who is not able to attend the party wishes to bid on a silent auction item, they can mail their bid to 103 Rio Vista before August 21 and the bid will be submitted for you.

Items in the silent auction are two round-trip airfare tickets to anywhere in the 48 states that American Airlines flies; a $500 shopping spree from Duncan and Boyd; a Berek Christmas sweater Party preparations are being made by the Circle of Friends for the Las Vegas-style casino party which will be held at 7 p.m. August 21 poolside at Hereford Country Club. Pictured above are hosts Jan Weishaar, Melissa Clarke and Jody Skiles.

from Yiota's; season tickets to the Texas Tech football games, donated by Bruce and Melissa Clarke; a weekend for four with two rooms and food to Carlsbad Cavern, donated by KPAN Radio Station Sunday brunch for six at Hereford Country Club; and three one-hour body massages from Dianna Kimmel of Hereford Massage Therapy.

Other items will include six months of HBO, Cinemax and Showtime, donated by Hereford Cablevision; a basket of spa goods from the LaCosta Resort and Spa in California, donated by Tom and Monica Edwards of Edward Jones; an interior design item from Room Service; a pair of topiary from Terry's Floral and Design; passes to the Aquatic Center; movie passes to Moovies 6; a basket of 14 of the new Beanie Baby bears, Spangle included; and a chance to move up to the red seats at the Hereford High School football games, donated by Hereford Travel Center.

There will also be a chance to win a pair of men's Justin belly oyster boots from Boots and Saddle in the men's Duck Squat Poker and a John Hardy bracelet from Duncan and Boyd in the women's Duck Squat Poker. Chances are $10 per card and will be sold throughout the evening of the party. There will also be intermittent drawings for door prizes throughout the evening as well.

The evening will culminate with a drawing for a "Weekend in Opryland" donated by Clint and Margaret Formby. The package includes airfare for two from Lubbock to Nashville via Southwest Airlines, hotel accommodations at the Opryland Hotel, dinner Friday on the General Jackson Showboat, a Saturday tour of stars' homes and a tour of the Country Music Hall of Fame, and a live performance Saturday night at the Grand Ole Opry.

Chances are $10 per ticket and are available at the customer service desks at FirstBank Southwest and Hereford State Bank and at KPAN.

Tickets are also available from any of the host couples: Clint and Margaret Formby, Temple and Karen Abney, Roberta Caviness, Bob and Nancy Josserand, Frankie and Jeri Bezner, Carl and Shelley Menke, David and Renee Zinser, Nadir and Sylvia Khuri, Frank and Betty Barrett and Dave and Joan Hopper.

Other host couples are Dale and Tonya Kleuskens, Elizabeth Witherspoon, Max and Shelly Moss, Bruce and Melissa Clarke, Jesse and Hilda Perales, Ron and Jan Weishaar, Cliff and Jody Skiles, Johnny and Jana Trotter, Mark and Wendy Kriegshauser and Teery and Francine Bromlow.

Also serving as hosts are Tom and Monica Edwards, Ed and Mary Janet Bricker, Mary Thomas, Sue Hyer, Lewis and Jean McDaniel, Ronnie and Anne Reiter, Steve and Joyce Stevens, Steve and Kim Lawlis, Pat and Patsy McGinty and Stevens Five Star Car and Truck Center.

"We would also like to thank the underwriters of the casino, Kevin Clowe with PurduePharma which represents Oxy-Contin, Open Air MRI of Amarillo, Covenant Family Healthcare Center, and Amy Wolfe with Roche Pharmaceuticals for underwriting part of the buffet," Melissa Clarke, who serves on the board of the Circle of Friends for the Hereford area, said.

Circle projects for the year

• Continue to rent and maintain two apartments for cancer patients taking cancer treatment and living outside a 60 mile radius of Amarillo.

• Provided the Patient Care Fund with $30,000, which assists cancer patients across the Panhandle in meeting out-of-pocket, non-reimbursed medical expenses.

• Donated $5,000 to the Amarillo Marrow Donor Program for bone marrow typing of donors to meet requirements for the National Marrow Donor Program.

• Supported Camp Alphie, a camp for children with cancer, with scholarships, lunches for the parents each day and a birthday party for Alphie (the camp mascot).

• Provided $5,750 to the Cancer Control Department to print cancer risk assessment brochures to promote the Harrington Cancer Center Cancer Risk Assessment computer program, educational materials for health fairs, lap top computers and purchase of "Tribe of Warrior Women" photo display to celebrate "Breast Cancer Awareness" month.

• Donated $4,000 to the community relations department for LaValier Microphone and towards sponsorship for the KACV and KVII "Perspectives" program on breast cancer.

• Donated $3,600 to the Development Department for Harrington Cancer Center Christmas decorations, hospitality fund, sponsorship for the "Stars at Night Gala," utensils and serving pieces for the HCC kitchen, and six 90-inch round tablecloths.

• Donated $1,600 to the Department of Nursing for nutritional snacks, bookcases, magazine rack, toy box and toys.

• Provided $3,874 to the Supportive Care Department for snacks for patient support groups, Pediatric Oncology Family Support Group and Connections, an HCC patient/family newsletter.

• Donated $850 to the Women's Center for deodorant packets for mammograms.

• Sponsored an outing to Wonderland Park for Pediatric Oncology Family Support Group.

Circle of Friends membership is support vehicle for patients

Circle of Friends is a non-profit volunteer organization founded to support the philosophy and goals of The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center. The purpose of the Circle of Friends is to provide cancer patients and their families financial assistance in times of crisis, and to support programs in cancer treatment, education and research.

Membership in the Circle of Friends is a vehicle for that support.

"In the past year the Circle of Friends board has worked extremely hard. Area membership parties, which provide the major portion of the Circle of Friends income, were superb this past year," Clarke said.

Parties were held in Amarillo, Borger, Clarendon, Claude, Dalhart, Hansford County, Hereford, McLean, Pampa, Panhandle, Perryton and Stratford. Together these parties raised $97,000.

In October 1998 the Circle of Friends, in conjunction with the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, held the eighth annual Panhandle of Texas "Race for the Cure." The race had more than 1,400 entries and raised $45,000 of which 75 percent stays in the Panhandle for Mobile Outreach Mammography programs.

The remaining 25 percent is sent to the Komen Foundation for grants to fund breast cancer research.

Pilot Club of Hereford continues to provide service to community

Special to the Brand

Pilot Club of Hereford was chartered 15 years ago, on August 14, 1984, with 48 members.

The Pilot Club of Amarillo assisted with the organization and chartering of the Hereford club with Pilot International.

Ruth Gilliam, district extension leader of the Amarillo club, supplied Margaret Bell and Irene McKinister with information and procedures which they extended to persons within the community who were interested in membership in the newly organized service club.

Pilot International is a global organization of executive, business and professional leaders working together to improve the quality of life in local communities and throughout the world. The name "Pilot" represents "leader and guide" and the organization's basic principles are friendship and service.

Pilot's ongoing service focus — brain-related disorders — is to promote awareness and to improve the lives of those affected, through education, volunteerism, financial support and research.

Pilot offers its members friendship through group fellowship, personal growth, leadership development, business networking opportunities and the satisfaction of service within the local community.

Margaret Bell was the first president of the Pilot Club of Hereford, serving in that position for two years. The first executive board and division leaders laid a solid format for projects for the club.

These include supplying large print Readers Digest for the nursing homes and Hereford Senior Citizens Center, and furnishing four Lifeline units to citizens who would not otherwise have them.

Service is given to the local nursing homes and Alzheimer's publications have been supplied to caregivers. Assistance is given to Special Olympics, the Satellite Center, Big Brothers Big Sisters, and Boy and Girl Scouts.

The club gives two deserving high school seniors $1,000 scholarships each year in memory of charter members Berta Otteson and Margaret Schroeter.

The local community and news media have been very receptive to the Pilot Club fundraising efforts enabling the club to continue these services.

Sue Hyer is president of the Pilot Club of Hereford for the club year ending in June 2000.

Anyone interested in becoming a member should make a current club member aware of their desire. New members and guests are welcome at regular meetings held at 7 a.m. the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at the Hereford Community Center.

Doing Whatever It Takes

The Successful Family

By Dr. Matilda J. Boozer
DAPA, LPC, NCC
LIFESTYLE FOR THE FAMILY

"Lifestyle" is everything you think, feel and do 24 hours a day. We want to have a healthier, more satisfying and fulfilling life. To achieve this there are many things we need to do, some of which we need to become aware.

Regarding those things, we often are unable to put them into practice on a daily basis for a variety of reasons. For example, we know it is better to chew our food well rather than "wolf it down." It is better to breathe deeply from the diaphragm rather than take short, shallow breaths. It is better to allow enough time to do things rather than creating pressure and stress.

The goal of Lifestyle Family Psychotherapy is to help us become more aware of how we live, understand, and evaluate those areas in which we choose to improve and why we are having difficulty in doing so. We can also learn steps that we can take to change our daily behavior toward a more positive direction.

At DRESS YOUR FAMILY FOR SUCCESS, we will discuss a variety of topics aimed at improving family lifestyle. How we think and our attitude is very important regarding our receptivity to benefit from the issues that will be discussed.

Our thoughts and attitudes affect us on all levels: mentally, emotionally, physically and spiritually.

Take a look at yourself (your thoughts and attitudes) regarding your lifestyle. Ask if you want to become more conscious of how you choose to live, to evaluate it, and to take the responsibility for changing it to a more positive and healthy format.

Join us for the DRESS YOUR FAMILY FOR SUCCESS program. The group meets each Thursday from 6-9 p.m. at 110 N. 25 Mile Avenue, Suite F. The program is designed to reach out to every member of the family without regard to age. Help your family and yourself. For more information, contact Dr. Tilli at Action Mental Wellness Center, 806-364-HELP (4357).

HerefordBRAND

Former resident is inventor

Special to the Brand

After treating a patient who he thought had mouth cancer, Dr. Carl Brownd, a Denver dentist and former Hereford resident, realized that dentists' safety procedures could use some improvement.

Brownd and his colleague had handled the needles they used without much thought to their own safety, so they became concerned when they learned that the patient had AIDS.

The incident emphasized to Brownd the potential that health-care workers have of contracting deadly diseases by accidentally sticking themselves with needles.

So he invented a product designed to help them avoid this problem — the Bull's-Eye.

The Bull's-Eye is an octagonal piece of stiff, coated paper about an inch and a half wide with a black and orange bull's-eye design. At the center of the bull's-eye is a hole that fits over a needle cap, the little plastic shell in which a dentist or hygienist puts a needle after use.

The problem with using the needle cap alone, Brownd says, is that it can be too small a target, especially at the end of a long day when going from far vision to near vision leads to poor hand-eye coordination.

The result is that almost a million accidental needle sticks occur in a year, several thousand of which result in AIDS or hepatitis transmission, according to the Journal of Healthcare Safety, Compliance and Infection Control.

The problem is especially acute in dentists' offices because a single needle can be used several times on a patient in the course of a procedure to administer more anesthetic, meaning several uncappings and recappings.

The average dentist uses 3,000 needles a year, Brownd says, and researchers say anywhere from 10 percent to 34 percent of health-care workers who handle needles stick themselves each year.

With the Bull's-Eye as a visual aid, there's less chance of missing the needle cap. Even if the person handling the needles does miss, however, the Bull's-Eye, despite being made of nothing but paper and ink, is so firm that it is almost impossible to puncture, even intentionally.

There are other recapping aids on the market, but Brownd says his is cheaper and better because, being paper, it can be folded over the needle when it's not in use.

Brownd, a 1971 Hereford High School graduate and son of Gid and Juanita Brownd, is as much an inventor as a dentist. As another sideline, he molds and dyes prosthetic silicone noses and ears for people who have lost theirs to disease, accident or surgery.

He is working on prototypes of recapping aids for different-sized needles, such as those used by diabetics to inject themselves with insulin.

Another idea is a kind of plastic-foam holster for emergency medical technicians so that instead of leaving needles around uncapped, they could shove them into the holster, which would collapse around the needle.

Vows exchanged in Catholic ceremony

Jessica Lopez Carnahan and Martin Carnahan exchanged wedding vows in an evening ceremony July 17 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Jose and Maria Lopez.

The bridegroom is the son of Eric and Janette Fowler.

Monsignor Orville Blum, of St. Anthony's Church, officiated at the ceremony.

Maid of honor was Geneva Martinez, cousin of the bride. Best man was Jason Carnahan, brother of the groom.

Serving as bridesmaid was Kristin Carnahan, sister of the groom. Groomsman was Eric Fowler, father of the groom.

Guests were seated by Daniel Carnahan, brother of the groom and Jeremy Lopez, brother of the bride.

Candle lighters were Janette Fowler, Maria Lopez and Jacob Lopez.

Pianist was Diana Detten who also served as a vocalist with Laura and Patrick Schlabs and Susan Stubbs.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory gown with empire waist, satin ribbon trimmed jewel neckline, and sheer lace short sleeves. The bodice was covered with floral lace embroidered with silk ribbon on each of the floral designs. The low square back tied with a ribbon trimmed chiffon bow.

The A-line skirt of bridal satin was covered with ivory chiffon and trimmed with satin ribbon at the bottom. The chiffon train was also trimmed with satin ribbon.

Her bridal illusion finger tip veil was covered in random crystal beads for a sparkling effect and attached to a head piece covered in ivory and beige satin roses and trimmed in pearls.

She carried a bridal bouquet of two dozen ivory and peach long stem roses with baby's breath tied with a large bow of peach chiffon and bridal illusion ribbon.

Bridal attendants wore sleeveless dresses of peach reversed satin with scoop neck and fitted, above-the-knee style with long sleeved swing-style jackets of dark seafoam green chiffon with peach flowers. They carried six long stem peach roses with baby's breath tied with peach chiffon ribbon and strands of peach and seafoam satin ribbons.

The couple was honored with a reception and dance in St. Anthony's cafeteria and gym.

The four tier wedding cake and two satellite cakes were decorated with peach flowers and topped with a Precious Moments bride and groom figurine.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School. She is a homemaker.

The groom graduated from Hereford High in 1994. He is employed by McCracken Loader Service.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I must protest your response to "Concerned Mom in Arizona," whose virginal daughter often slept in the same bed with her fiancé, but insisted they did not have sex. You told her, "If you believe that, I have a bridge in Brooklyn I'd like to sell you." Well, how much do you want for that bridge, Ann?

I would have agreed with you a year ago, but not anymore. I am now in a serious relationship with a wonderful guy. We are both 23-year-old professionals, and often end up spending the night at his apartment or mine. While we do share a bed, my boyfriend is a virgin, and wishes to remain so until marriage. I respect this.

I always assumed that sex was inevitable under such circumstances, but I now realize there are many other ways for couples to be intimate. Young people CAN stick to their convictions. If this girl says she is still a virgin, her mother should believe her. And so should you. — Living Proof in N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: It's good to get a letter from someone who has been there and is not "doing that." In fact, I received hundreds of such letters and I believe all who wrote. My apologies to those I underestimated. Keep reading for more:

From Maryland: I have slept in my fiancé's bed on many occasions and am still a virgin. It hasn't always been easy, but it's certainly not impossible. My fiancé and I anxiously look forward to our wedding night.

Woodland Hills, Calif.: I am a 35-year-old male who has been involved in two relationships where there was no sex, but we shared a bed. I never compromised a woman's values, nor did I move beyond the established boundaries. It would not have occurred to me to use pressure. I consider myself fortunate to have had both women in my life.

Tallahassee, Fla.: I am appalled by your lack of faith. I am waiting until marriage to have sex and have no problem falling asleep in the same bed with my boyfriend and remaining chaste. Please give us credit for having some self-control.

Jacksonville, Fla.: I am a 20-year-old male, and everyone assumes that, given the opportunity, I will be reckless, irresponsible and take advantage of a woman. Just because two people share a bed does not mean they share anything else.

Indianapolis: I am a 22-year-old female who has spent several nights at my boyfriend's apartment, and we have never gone all the way. I am sure "Concerned Mom's" daughter would not be in a relationship with someone who does not respect her decision to remain a virgin — regardless of the circumstances.

No City: I am 24 years old and in my third long-term relationship. I am proud to say I am still a virgin. I have spent the night with each of these boyfriends, but none have pressured me to have sex. I admit it was a struggle, but we cared enough about each other to resist the temptation. I enjoy cuddling with my boyfriend and waking up next to him, but as for the rest of it, we can wait.

New York: I sustained a three-year relationship with a guy who wished to abstain from sex. Truth be told, I would have been happy to have gone all the way, but he didn't want to. We slept in the same bed many nights. I have never found it terribly difficult to stop before crossing that line.

California: It IS possible for two consenting adults to sleep in the same bed and do nothing but sleep. My wife and I are living proof. We lived together for six months before actually "doing it." We are married now, and love each other that much more for having waited.

YOUR EYES

Progressively Better Lenses

Thirteen percent of the population is over age 65, and this figure is projected to double as baby boomers approach their senior years. Most boomers will need help reading the newspaper as presbyopia enters the picture.

Presbyopia is the inability to focus clearly on nearby objects as the eye's lens becomes less resilient. This commonly starts at about age 40. Eventually reading glasses are needed.

Ben Franklin invented the bifocal lens, providing both near and distance vision. Bifocal segments solve the presbyopia problem but create two new ones: unsightly segment lines and "image jump," a difference in magnification between segments.

Now eye doctors often recommend progressive lenses, a new generation of bifocals that eliminate segment lines. While gaining a smarter appearance, wearers can see better with the gradual transition from close to far away and in between. Visit your eye care professional to see if progressive lenses are right for you.

Looking Back

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, Aug. 15, the 227th day of 1999. There are 138 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Aug. 15, 1945, was proclaimed "V-J Day" by the Allies, a day after Japan agreed to surrender unconditionally.

On this date:
In 1769, Napoleon Bonaparte was born on the island of Corsica.

In 1888, T.E. Lawrence, the British soldier who gained fame as "Lawrence of Arabia," was born in Tremadoc, Wales.

In 1935, humorist Will Rogers and aviator Wiley Post were killed when their airplane crashed near Point Barrow, Alaska.

In 1939, the MGM musical "The Wizard of Oz" premiered at Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood.

In 1944, during World War II, Allied forces landed in southern France.

In 1947, India became independent after some 200 years of British rule.

In 1948, the Republic of Korea was proclaimed.

In 1969, the Woodstock Music and Art Fair opened in upstate New York.

In 1971, President Nixon announced a 90-day freeze on wages, prices and rents.

In 1974, South Korean President Park Chung-hee escaped an assassination attempt in which his wife was killed.

Ten years ago: F.W. de Klerk was sworn in as acting president of South Africa, one day after P.W. Botha resigned as the result of a power struggle within the National Party.

Five years ago: Ilich Ramirez Sanchez, the terrorist better known as "Carlos the Jackal," was jailed in France after his capture in Sudan.

One year ago: Twenty-nine people were killed by a car bomb that tore apart the center of Omagh, Northern Ireland; a splinter group calling itself the Real IRA claimed responsibility.

Thought for Today: "Life has taught me to think, but thinking has not taught me how to live." — Alexander Herzen, Russian author (1812-1870).

Brandi Norvell, Marcus Petroski

Norvell, Petroski will wed in Clovis church

Brandi Lea Norvell of Texico, N.M., and Marcus Brian Petroski of Clovis, N.M., announce their engagement. The couple will wed Sept. 18 in Advent Christian Church in Clovis. The bride-elect is the daughter of Cindy Borden of Texico and State Norvell of Hereford. She is the granddaughter of Lewis Lea and Nell Norvell, both of Hereford.

Parents of the prospective groom are Mark and Hazel Petroski of Clovis. The bride-elect is a 1997 graduate of Texico High School and attends Clovis Community College and Eastern New Mexico University studying secondary education. The future groom is a 1997 graduate of Clovis High School. He is a partner in the operation of P & L Suspension Works.

Plant covered porch creates tranquil yard

WACO — Home is where the porch is, at least that's what Yvette Mooney believes. Mooney and her husband, Louis, both retired educators, had a replica of Yvette's grandmother's back porch built in their East Waco back yard within the past year. "When I was a little girl, there were so many people who were good to me," Mooney said. "I did a lot of reflecting on my life during my last year of teaching. I hoped that I had made an impact on my students' lives like so many people had for me. I started thinking about my childhood years, and I have so many endearing memories of my grandmother and being at her house. This porch is a symbol of her love." Mooney said she and her sister and cousins spent many a day on "Mama and Daddy Ware's" back porch on South 11th Street.

"My mother would put my sister and I in pastel dresses and take us over to my grandmother's and tell us we were not supposed to get dirty, which was hard because the back yard didn't have any grass in it and it also had a chicken coop in it," Mooney said. "So we were basically restricted to the back porch. My grandmother had a spider fern on her porch, and we all wanted to water it. At night, we'd sit on the porch and tell funny stories, jokes and ghost stories. My grandmother didn't have a porch light so ghost stories could get scary, especially if one of the cousins slipped off under the porch to grab our feet and make us scream."

The porch was like a member of the family, he said.

"Grandmother's place was the gathering place. Everybody had their spot on the porch," Mooney said. "On the Fourth of July and on the 19th of June, we'd have big cookouts. Everybody would line up on the porch to eat and visit. We all had really endearing times on that porch and with Mama. I'm in the process of journaling them all right now."

The replica porch in the Mooneys' back yard is a little different from the original, but it still brings back memories.

"I remember the day the carpenter put the door on. He asked me if it looked OK, and something touched my heart," Mooney said. "It still looks like my grandmother is going to come to the door to say, 'Don't get off the porch!'" Mooney added: "It's quite a bit smaller and her entire porch was not covered. It's also a storage house where we keep our yard tools and seasonal decorations." Mooney and her husband are avid gardeners. Three walls of the yard are lined with plants, trees and shrubs, and the lawn is carpeted in green grass. "All of the plants in the backyard are shade-loving plants," Mooney said. "It's shady back here most of the time. After six to eight hours the shade completely covers the backyard." Some of the shade-loving plants Mooney uses include caladiums, impatiens, elephant ears, begonias and geraniums.

One section of the yard, called "Roxie's Corner," is special to the Mooneys because it's a tribute to the family dog that passed away a few years ago. "We've lived here for 30 years," Louis Mooney said. "It's nestled away from the road and it's so nice and quiet. We've really enjoyed living here."

KUB Award Winners

The Hereford Beautification Alliance has announced the names of the recipients for the KUB (Keeping Us Beautiful) Award for the week of August 15. The KUB Award is given to acknowledge those individuals and businesses who take the time and effort to maintain their property. Property is judged for neatness, free of weeds and junk, lawn mowed, no junk cars parked on premises, and flowers (in season) and shrubs. No major prizes are awarded but recipients receive an award letter. Winners for the week of August 15 are:
*George Ritter, 2002 Plains
*David Smalts, 325 Hickory
*Ramon Landeros, 209 Avenue A
*Mary Hamby, 328 Avenue E
*Cipriano Rodriguez, 235 Avenue F
*Billy Gage, 505 Westhaven
The Alliance congratulates these winners for the high standard they are setting.

Military Muster

Marine Pvt. Emilio Montano, a 1996 graduate of Hereford High School, and Marine Pvt. Michael D. Hicks, a 1998 graduate of Hereford High, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego. Both successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally. They and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The crucible, a 54-hour team effort, problem solving evolution which culminated with an emotional ceremony in which the recruits were presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and were addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

Area colleges announce dates for fall registration

Eastern New Mexico University in Portales and South Plains College in Levelland have announced fall registration times.

ENMU has set regular registration for August 25 with the last day for late registration Sept. 1.

New student activities are scheduled for August 23-25. Instruction begins on August 26. The semester ends Dec. 17.

Pre-registration for currently enrolled students is continuous. For more information call 1-800-FOR-ENMU or 505-562-2175.

Fall registration times for South Plains College's three campus locations include the SPC Reese Center, 9730 Reese Blvd. in Lubbock; SPC Lubbock, 1302 Main St. in Lubbock and SPC Levelland, 1401 S. College Avenue in Levelland.

SPC Reese Center registration will be 5:30-7:30 p.m. August 23-24.

SPC Lubbock will have returning student registration 9 a.m.-noon and 3-7 p.m. August 25 for students enrolled in the spring or summer of 1999. New student registration will be 9 a.m.-noon and 3-6 p.m. August 26. Open registration will be 6-7 p.m. August 26.

SPC Levelland will have Financial Aid Award Day for pre-registered students receiving any type of financial aid from 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-6:30 p.m. August 25.

Fall registration will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. August 26. A registration permit is required. Evening registration will be 4-6:30 p.m. A registration permit is not required. Late registration is August 30-Sept. 3.

Red Cross Update

A very special thank you goes to the students of Dimmitt High School and their fund-raising efforts toward the Oklahoma tornado victims. We received an additional $2,682 from a student sponsored cookout. Keep up the good work! We appreciate you all!

The winners of the Tri-County Red Cross drawing, held at Hereford's Town and Country Jubilee, were John Griffin, Bernice Orel and Mrs. J.E. McCabe. Each received first aid kits. We hope you visited our booth in the park. We enjoyed the excellent turn out. A special thanks to McCracken Loader Service for the ice donation! Many people were extremely grateful for the ice water! Also to Roger Fields and Lois Norwood from Friona and Geneveive Miller from Dawn, many thanks for helping out Saturday.

We are currently trying to get enough people together for a First Aid class. If you are interested please call 364-3761. If you need CPR at your work place we are willing to come to your job site. We will work something out to fit your schedule.

Notice: We are not accepting any clothing or articles at this time. Our garage is overflowing! We appreciate all previous donations, and will notify you when we are able to accept items once again. Currently we are trying to organize our storage area and are unable to do so because of the quantity of items. Thank you for not dumping articles outside our building either.

The American Red Cross is dedicated to helping make families and communities safer at home and around the world. The Red Cross is a volunteer humanitarian service organization and annually provides almost one-half of the nation's blood supply, certifies more than 8.5 million people in life-saving skills, mobilizes relief to victims in more than 68,000 disasters nationwide, provides direct health services to 2.8 million people, assist international disaster and conflict victims in more than 40 countries, and transmits more than 14 million emergency messages to members of Armed Forces and their families. For more information, you can call the local office.

All American Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary donations of time and money from the American people. To help the victims of this and other disasters, contributions can be made to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund by calling 1-800-HELP NOW or 1-800-257-7575 (Spanish). Contributions to the Disaster Relief Fund may also be sent to your local American Red Cross chapter or to the American Red Cross, P.O. Box 37243, Washington, D.C. 20013. ...celebrate 25th anniversary

Couple renews vows on 25th anniversary

Pat and Sheryl Michael celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with a trip to the Black Hills of South Dakota.

The anniversary trip included visits to Mt. Rushmore National Monument, Crazy Horse Monument, Deadwood, S.D., Rapid City, S.D., Keystone, S.D., and other local tourist sites.

The climax of the trip was in Sturgis, S.D., on July 23 where friends and family gathered for a ceremony of vows renewal held in the Sturgis City Park. Officiating over the vows was Dr. Dale Jones of the High Plains Spiritual Life Center.

Robert and Bonnie Elston, Sheryl's parents, were among the family members present.

The celebration was hosted by Dr. and Mrs. Jack Elston of Rapid City.

Michael married the former Sheryl Elston on March 16, 1974, in Denison. The couple moved to Hereford from Denison in September 1977.

He is currently Hereford Police Captain. She is secretary of Avenue Baptist Church.

The couple has three children, Michelle of Lubbock, and Joshua and Leslie of Amarillo. They have one grandchild.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Spin wasn't created in the Whitehouse

Contrary to popular opinion, spin wasn't created by President William Jefferson Clinton or even any of his predecessors. Spin - that is making something negative sound positive and appealing - has been around a good long time.

My guess is that it originated in a garden several millenniums ago. A certain serpent put a little spin on the fruit of the tree of life. I suspect the original spin doctor made those apples so appealing even you and I might have been persuaded to pick a bushel or two.

But no matter where it started this we know: spin is a part of our lives today. Unfortunately, we find in the business world, too.

Maybe some of the best examples of modern-day spin (outside of Washington that is) are found in advertising terms. We see these words, terms and phrases in print ads, hear them in radio spots, see them in TV commercials and even read them on buses and billboards.

Let me give you a quick introductory quiz. In the real estate industry, does "a great little fixer upper" mean: a) with a little tender loving care this house would be perfect, or b) you won't believe this dump? In the automobile circles does the term "pre-owned" mean: a) nearly new, or b) very used? In computer spin does "user friendly" mean: a) wow, this is easy, or b) 12 hours a day for a week isn't going to help you figure this mess out?

Here are a few spin words and phrases complete with real meanings. With a little practice you'll know spin when you hear it.

- New and improved. The manufacturer has found a way to suck cost out of this product. They are willing to bet the farm that you can't tell the difference.
- Proven. Two people tried it, and they both thought it was good.
- Safe. No one can prove that all the rats died because they ate this product. (Some of the rats were old.)
- Free. A word used to make you rush in for something at no cost.
- Free. (another meaning) There are significant strings attached to this offer.
- It pays. You get to pay for it.

- Available only at ... These folks would like for you to believe no one else has a product or service like this.
- At last. We didn't think it would ever get here either.
- Limited supply. We've got a bunch of this stuff to sell, and if we can make you believe there may be a shortage, you may come in and buy a lot of it even though you don't need it.
- Limited edition. We don't think there are more than a million of these.
- Save. Spend.
- Today only. Today will be yesterday tomorrow. So this means today only, the next day only, the next day only, etc.
- Secret formula. No one can remember exactly what was put into this stuff.
- New, lower price. We didn't sell very many at the old price.
- 25 percent off. We bought quite a lot of this stuff and evidently paid too much for it. You wouldn't buy it at full price, so let's see if we can move it this way.
- 50 percent off. We're desperate to sell this stuff. Please buy some.
- Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back. If we weren't completely satisfied with your money, we'll give it back.
- Special sale. We could come up with a legitimate reason to have a sale. Isn't that special?

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By Rebecca Walls

Along with the job duties of checking books and materials in and out of the library, the library staff must also weed the collection. Weeding the book collection is a lot like weeding a flower garden. As you work very carefully to pick only the unwanted plants you are able to see the struggling flowers that have fought for food, water and lights.

Martha Russell and I began an extensive weeding project with the children's nonfiction collection. When we began the project we found many obsolete books containing information that is outdated and incorrect. We have also found books that have torn pages, have been written in and books that are so unattractive that no one will check them out.

Every now and then we have found a few flowers hidden by the weeds.

Today I picked up a book entitled Snide Lights on Texas History, by Ananias Twist. As I began to read it aloud, Martha and I both began to laugh. It reads like an old radio comedy sketch, or maybe more like a Tom Simons-John Stagner Chamber of Commerce routine. (A little fact with a lot of fiction).

I'm almost certain that if the Native Americans and/or the Texas Historical Society knew of this book, there would be a campaign to have it removed from the library shelves. It is one of the most politically incorrect books I have seen in a long time, but the humor is clean and, in my opinion, truly funny.

Did I remove it from the shelf? No. I wanted Judge Tom Simons to have an opportunity to read it. Who knows, maybe he and John can use some of the material for their next Chamber function. They could both probably afford to brush up on their Texas History.

I don't know if any of the new books will be considered flowers 15 years from now, but I think a couple of them will most certainly hold your attention for a while.

According to one reviewer, Perri O'Shaughnessy "has crafted her most spellbinding novel to date," in Acts of Malice. John is a prominent citizen of South Lake Tahoe and part owner in the family's posh Paradise Ski Resort.

John and Alex Strong are brothers enjoying a ski outing at the family resort when Alex is killed. The accident creates headlines in all of the papers and the police begin an investigation into the cause of death.

The coroner's report announces that Alex died from "injuries unrelated to the accident," and John finds himself charged with murder.

Defense Attorney Nina Reilly has no idea that the case she has accepted may involve a psychopathic killer, a father obsessed with his dead son's ghost, a widow who still loves John, or a wife that may have been involved with the deceased.

As if that isn't enough, Nina finds that the Assistant District Attorney, Collier Hollowell, is determined to put Jim behind bars, and pursue a romantic relationship with Nina.

Carnal Innocence, by Nora Roberts takes place in the small town of Innocence, Mississippi. Caroline Waverly, world famous concert violinist has just ended a longtime relationship with her conductor boyfriend. Tired of endless rehearsals and concert dates, Caroline is looking for a place where she can rest and recuperate. Caroline hopes that her late grandmother's house, with the porch made for the soft summer nights, will provide the badly needed tranquility.

Tucker Longstreet, with his striking good looks, lazy charm and family fortune is smitten with Caroline from the first time he sees her. Having no desire to begin another relationship, Caroline may be able to resist the thrill she feels when Tucker is around. Or, maybe the fact that Tucker is the leading suspect in the local murders, and having one of the victims discovered in her own back yard will help Caroline maintain her distance. So much for tranquility.

Hunting Down Amanda, by Andrew Klavan begins with a chance encounter. Lonnie Blake's sanity is hanging by a thread since his wife's murder 18 months ago. Then one night, Carol Dodson steps out of the city's darkness and asks that Lonnie give her asylum just for the night. What Lonnie does not know or even suspect is that Carol's secret about an extraordinary little girl named Amanda will make him a target. Lonnie is now wanted by the police and a team of international killers.

Thief of Heart, by Katherine Stone is the story of Dr. Caitlin Taylor a "seamstress of damaged hearts." Dr. Patric Feloner is Caitlin's mentor and dear friend. When Caitlin discovers that Patric is gravely ill and will die without a bone marrow transplant, she begins to look for a possible donor. Jessie Falconer is Patric's twin brother, but the two have not seen or spoken to each other for many years. Rather than ask his brother for help, Patric would die. It is up to Caitlin to find Jessie, mend the broken hearts, and get the bone marrow to save Patric's life.

Cattlemen host Tennessee visitors Small cow-calf operators glimpse world of big boys

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Texas beef producers gladly demonstrate their methods and technology to producers from other countries and even other states, such as the 40 members of the Tennessee Cattle Feeders Association that visited this week.

The visitors toured the feed mills, Brown Feed Yard and other beef industry concerns, but they were on more than just a touring trip.

The Tennessee cattlemen, were on a fact-finding mission to determine the best way to get the best gain and yield from their herds.

"The demonstrations this morning were probably the high point of the whole trip," said Joe Campbell, vice president of Washington County (Tenn.) Livestock Association. "Our members, who usually have less than 200 head, can't compete with these big feeders, but they gave us some good advice about medications and care."

Tennessee has no feedyards, no big feed mills and not even a single slaughter plant in the entire state. Tennessee producers focus on cow-calf operations and then send the calves out to other areas for finishing.

Most of the participants raise only 15 to 200 head of animals. They are all either retired or work in the public and raise cattle as a side line.

The main attraction at the Brown Feed Yard was the "posting" of a calf, where the visitors were able to see first hand how an injection at the wrong site could adversely affect the animals.

A local veterinarian prepared a couple of calves last week by injecting them in different muscles. On Friday, the calves were slaughtered and the bruising and damaged tissue was shown to the visiting cattlemen.

"We used to just give them a shot in the hip or anywhere we could get to them," Ernest Brown said. "Now we've learned not just any muscle will do. We pretty much use the neck now."

By "posting" the calves, the visitors were able to see exactly where the best injection site for different common medications are on calves and the impact on the meat of a misused injection.

Because most of the Tennessee cattlemen are not prepared to feed the vast numbers of animals as in this area, the quantities of mixed feed was more than just a little overpowering.

One visiting cattleman said he "mixes feed by hand and could not imagine a mixer that would make several tons at one time."

"This whole trip has been really wonderful," Campbell said. "We've learned a lot and seen how some of the big boys do the job. We'll all probably take a great deal home with us."

The visitors arrived early this week and will start home on Sunday. They finished the tour of the feedyards with a Texas steak cooked over a hickory fire by nutritionist Bob Beville.

The tour was sponsored in part by members of the National cattle feeders organizations and invitations were extended at a recent convention.

Time Your Cotton Harvest to Maximize Bottom Line

With cotton harvest, timing is everything. Harvesting a week late can mean nearly $30 an acre in yield and grade loss to your bottom line.

That's why it's important to use a cotton harvest aid that stimulates the maturing process of cotton bolls and desiccates crop and weed foliage for a quicker, more efficient harvest.

CYCLONE® harvest aid stresses the cotton crop and forces the transfer of nutrients from leaves to bolls to accelerate maturation. This allows growers to harvest more mature cotton with open bolls earlier in the season.

In addition, Cyclone acts as a desiccant, killing foliage abruptly so leaves fall from plants and weeds. Cyclone reduces unwanted cotton foliage and kills weeds for a faster, cleaner harvest.

When used in a harvest aid program, Cyclone allows growers to:

- increase cotton yields by cracking more mature, unopened bolls
 - schedule cotton harvest and reduce harvest problems
 - reduce regrowth of cotton foliage after cutout
 - eliminate late-season weed problems
 - improve lint quality and gin turnout by reducing levels of green foliage at harvest
- Apply a tankmix of Cyclone with phosphate or chlorate defoliants when bolls are 80 percent open and remaining bolls to be harvested are mature. When tank mixing with other defoliants, such as Def®, Folax®, Dropp®, Harvad® and Prep®, treat when bolls are 60 percent open and remaining bolls are mature.
- After cotton has been properly defoliated, use Cyclone to open mature bolls and desiccate green weeds when 75 percent or more of the bolls are open and the remaining bolls are mature.

Let Cyclone help you plan your harvest aid program. The better your timing, the more lint you'll put through the gin. For more information about Cyclone, contact your local ag chem retailer.

Mother nature not kind to vintners

Wineries feel effects of strange weather

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The vintners growing grapes for Texas wines are grappling with the consequences of erratic spring weather.

An unseasonable chill in April led to a freeze in Fredericksburg that reduced the region's grape crop, said George McEachern of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Early hailstorms in Lubbock, home of the Llano Estacado winery, damaged some vines and wiped out others.

"This has been one of the strangest weather years we've had," Chad Auler, vice president of Fall Creek Vineyards in Austin, said. "Quantity is a little light."

Texas, the nation's fifth-largest wine making state, produced 1.3 million gallons of wine in 1998 in its 27 wineries, according to the Texas Wine Marketing Research Institute.

The state's production has grown 20 percent in the past decade.

This year, excellent yields in southwest Texas are compensating for crop shortfalls from the Lubbock hailstorms and early Hill Country freezes, according to the institute.

In some cases, early season anomalies may have been

Drought fails to help cotton prices

September to January.

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — The lingering heat wave killing cotton crops in the South won't be enough to help raise cotton prices for growers in the Southwest.

Rick Lavis, executive vice president of the Arizona Cotton Growers Association, said even with the Southern woes, prices will remain low because of a global cotton glut.

China, in particular, is producing an abundance of the fiber, keeping prices down, and 90 percent of Arizona's crop goes to Asian buyers. Cotton is selling for 51 cents a pound or 52 cents a pound, significantly off its peak of 85 cents a pound earlier this decade.

It's still too early to tell how strong the Arizona crop will be, growers said, because it won't be harvested until at least next month. The harvest usually continues from

Officials eradicate bison brucellosis

Officially eradicated

FORT PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Brucellosis, a disease that has afflicted cattle and calves around the country, could be eliminated from the nation's only quarantined private buffalo herd in 15 months.

Elimination of the disease, which now exists in only a handful of cattle herds nationwide, could save many of the nation's farmers and ranchers the expense of vaccinating and testing their animals.

Brucellosis causes cows to abort and become sterile, reduces milk production and makes calves sick. It also can cause undulant fever in people who drink unpasteurized milk; the debilitating disease is usually not fatal but can cause infections of the brain and central nervous system and heart dysfunction.

Sam Holland, state veterinarian and executive secretary of the South Dakota Animal Industry Board, said a plan was developed earlier this year to rid the Triple U Enterprises buffalo herd of brucellosis. The 60,000-acre Triple U ranch, about 30 miles northwest of Fort Pierre, once had the nation's largest private herd: more than 4,000 head of buffalo.

Thanks to a $1 billion eradication program, only the Triple U buffalo herd and five infected private cattle herds in Texas and Missouri still harbor brucellosis, down from 124,000 herds nationwide in 1956.

"For a long time, cattlemen have been concerned about bison and brucellosis," said Sam Albrecht, executive director of the National Bison Association. "Now we can say ... We're not a threat to the cattle industry as far as bison are concerned."

Bumper crops expected

Experts predict 47 percent cotton increase over 1998

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Despite horrible prices, Texas farmers are on pace for bumper harvests in most crops this year, state agricultural experts say.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service said Thursday it expects 5.3 million bales out of cotton, the state's leading cash crop, based upon Aug. 1 field conditions.

That would be a 47 percent increase from the drought-slashed crop of 1998. Though not a record high, the state's cotton harvest would be up 3 percent from the 5.14 million 480-pound bales produced in 1997, the previous peak for the 1990s.

Texas farmers are also expected to harvest good to excellent crops of corn, peanuts, grain sorghum, rice and soybeans.

It's the government's first monthly production forecast for 1999 crops in Texas, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

"It's bumper yields and the lowest prices since 1986," said economist Carl Anderson, a cotton specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The Agriculture Department said the nation's cotton, soybeans, corn and other major grain crops have escaped major setbacks from July heat across the Great Plains and the ongoing drought in the mid-Atlantic states.

The U.S. corn crop is estimated at 9.56 billion bushels, the third-largest ever, the USDA said. A record soybean crop of 2.87 billion bushels is expected. Grain prices are also at their lowest levels since the mid-1980s, and soybean prices are at their lowest since 1972, the USDA said.

Although the income of farmers and farm suppliers will suffer, the Texas beef cattle industry, livestock feeders and the poultry industry are benefiting from the low feed-grain prices.

Corn farmers, for example, could reap record high average yields between 90 and 115 bushels per acre across North Central and Central Texas and along portions of the Gulf Coast.

The average expected cotton yield is expected at 509 pounds per acre, one of the highest rates ever, and record high yields are possible along the Gulf Coast.

The bright outlook comes despite Texans losing a surprisingly high 900,000 acres of planted cotton — about 800,000 of them in West Texas — to hailstorms, washouts, diseases and cool June weather, Anderson said.

In a typical year, Texas farmers lose about 300,000 to 500,000 cotton acres. A majority of those West Texas acres were replanted in alternative crops or cotton, according to extension estimates.

"It's going to run the gamut this year," said agronomist Randy Boman, extension cotton specialist in Lubbock. He cited anticipated results from Lamesa to north of Plainview, the state's major cotton-growing region.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
• Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Vacations look tame after action-filled First Daughter

Monica Keena (left) plays the president's daughter and Mariel Hemingway plays the Secret Service agent assigned to protect her in First Daughter, premiering Sunday on the TBS Superstation.

By Cynthia Werthamer
©TVData Features Syndicate

The pretty, pleasant scene of a posh political fund-raising party opens First Daughter, the latest TBS Superstation original movie, airing Sunday, Aug. 15. From the shadows, all hell breaks loose, and the film is on its way.

That's the motif throughout the movie, which stars Mariel Hemingway, Doug Savant and Gregory Harrison. In the midst of what seems normal—even in the midst of the isolated and beautiful—danger lurks and is about to pounce.

When revolutionary American freedom fighters scale the walls of his fund-raiser's Beverly Hills estate and blow up everything in their path, President Jonathan Hayes (Harrison, best known for his role in Trapper John, M.D.) is pulled out of harm's way by ambitious Secret Service agent Alex McGregor (Hemingway). Rather than being credited with saving the president's life, however, Alex's boss reprimands her for following her instincts during the attack and disobeying orders.

As a result, Alex is reassigned to cover the president's daughter, Jess (Monica Keena), instead of the man himself. She becomes lead agent in charge of Jess and her friends on an Outward Bound-type climbing and river rafting trip in the Rockies.

In a fairly predictable scene that portends they will be spending much more time together, Alex meets up with the trip's guide, Grant Carlson, played by Savant (Melrose Place). The trip works as a setup for later dynamics and humor between the two.

The baddies, of course, reappear. They are led by Dirk Lindman—played by WCW wrestler Diamond Dallas Page ("DDP") in his film debut. They kidnap Jess, and the tough Secret Service agent must pair up with the tough river guide to save the first daughter.

The convincing action sequences on the river and the emphasis on relationships of various kinds make the film appealing to both men and women, Patricia says.

The casting of Keena, co-star of the popular series Dawson's Creek, also helps target the movie to younger viewers, as well as entertaining older ones to whom Hemingway and Harrison are more familiar.

Keena is persuasive as a mildly rebellious teen-ager who just wants to be like other kids but can't, courtesy of her important dad. Her longing is illustrated by her crush on another camper (Daniel Murphy) who doesn't realize who she is. After she tells him, she impulsively shoves a cell phone at the boy and tells him to speak to her father—the president. "Hey, man, how's it going?" is his response.

Keena says she feels for any young person put in such a high-profile position. "What I think is most important to remember about the president's daughter is that she is just a teen-ager," she explains. "Adolescence is so hard in itself that growing up and trying to find yourself ... in an environment where everybody's looking at you and following your every move, I think, is very hard. I don't envy any of the presidents' daughters."

Keena's Jess doesn't get along with Alex. She thinks the Secret Service agent is hitting on her widowed father. "I don't want another mother," the girl says angrily during one of their encounters.

But the teen-ager and the Secret Service agent change in believable ways—the woman learning to deal with the girl and with her own ambition, the girl learning to accept the circumstances in which life has placed her.

The wilderness scenes, shot in Australia, make the film visually arresting as well. Patricia says the action sequences took hours to film because "water rapids don't cooperate, and people and cameras get wet." Savant, he recalls, fell in the water right before the first shot.

We know, from the first mention of "Hell's Half Mile," that the notorious rapids will re-emerge, and are still captivated when they do. The suspenseful denouement, in which the good guys attempt to rescue the first daughter, belongs as much to the river as to the actors.

HOROSCOPES

August 15-21

ARIES - March 21/April 20

A loved one offers you constructive criticism about your personal life. Don't get defensive; just listen. He or she is looking out for your best interest. A close friend invites you out for a night on the town late in the week. Say yes, because it's sure to be a good time. Taurus plays an important role.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

While you're normally the strong, silent type, you turn into a chatterbox when you meet an interesting person this week, Taurus. Get to know him or her better — it definitely will be worth your effort. A loved one needs help with a home-improvement project. Do what you can for him or her.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

You have to do some quick thinking when it comes to a problem at work. A co-worker makes a costly mistake, and you need to come up with a solution. The higher-ups are counting on you. Your efforts will be rewarded. The person whom you've been seeing wants to take a break. Don't get upset. Time apart will do you good.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

When it comes to romance this week, Cancer, you're going to have to make the first move. The person whom you like reciprocates your feelings, but is too shy to ask you out. Take the initiative. It will be worth your effort! A business acquaintance confides in you about a problem. Be supportive.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Don't be shy when an acquaintance reveals his or her true feelings for you. Be yourself, and tell this person exactly how you feel. A loved one asks to borrow money. Don't automatically say yes. First, find out what the money is for. Something is suspicious about the whole scenario.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

You have an important meeting early in the week, Virgo. Don't be late for it. If you are, you could miss out on an interesting travel opportunity. A friend of a friend asks to meet with you. Get together with him or her; you could learn some intriguing information. Scorpio plays an important role on Tuesday.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Don't sulk over a minor disagreement with a friend. Neither of you means the things that you say. Just talk with him or her, and clear the air. Your relationship will be back to normal soon. A loved one gets you involved in a family problem. Even though you're upset about it, do what you can to help.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Keep your eyes and ears open this week, Scorpio. Something is going on at work, and it has everyone on edge. Try to find out what's happening. Co-workers are looking to you for answers. That special someone has a surprise for you late in the week. Enjoy!

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

You run into an old friend early in the week, Sagittarius. Spend time with him or her; catch up on the gossip. You'll learn some interesting information. A loved one asks you to help him or her get ready for an important date. Do your best to keep this person calm and upbeat.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

While you want to make your mark at work, don't do it at a co-worker's expense. Work diligently to earn praise; don't try to get it by making someone else look bad. That special someone has an important question to ask you. Be honest — even if you know that he or she doesn't want to hear what you have to say.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Don't bite off more than you can chew this week, Aquarius. A lot of people are asking you to help them, but you can't do everything. Set your priorities, and focus on what's most important. An intriguing person asks you to lunch late in the week. Say yes, because it's sure to be fun.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

Try to look at the bright side of things when a personal problem arises, Pisces. Things aren't as bad as they seem. Turn to loved ones for comfort. They always will be there for you. A close friend asks a favor of you. Do what you can to help.

IN FOCUS

Amy Jo Johnson (Felicity) stars in Sweetwater: A True Rock Story, airing Sunday, Aug. 15, on VH1.

In 1969, the band Sweetwater was part of the famed lineup at the original Woodstock music festival. Thirty years later, a TV producer investigates what happened to the band, in particular its elusive lead singer, Nansi Nevins (Johnson), who seemed to disappear from the public eye.

The TV movie also stars Kelli Williams (The Practice) and real-life rockers Michelle Phillips and Adam Ant.

Horror's grand master, Stephen King, brings another nightmare to TV in The Langoliers, airing Sunday and Monday, Aug. 15 and 16, on ABC.

In this two-part 1995 TV movie, passengers on an overnight flight across the country awaken to find they're all alone on the plane.

After landing at a deserted airport in Maine, they discover that they are just as alone on the ground as they were in the air. Or are they?

David Morse, Patricia Wettig, Bronson Pinchot and Dean Stockwell star.

Born to Run ★★★ (1993) Richard Gere, Jay Acovone. A Brooklyn street racer matches wits with the mobsters standing between him and the woman he loves. 2:00. (C) August 21 2am.

Nominee Lauryn Hill is scheduled to appear at The Source Hip-Hop Music Awards, airing Friday on UPN. Puff Daddy, Master P, Will Smith and boxer Mike Tyson also are expected to attend.

The Source honors hip hop music's top artists

A former home to the Oscars, Hollywood's Pantages Theatre is hosting another type of ceremony - this time honoring the biggest stars in hip hop music.

The industry's hottest names take to the Pantages stage for The Source Hip-Hop Music Awards, airing Friday, Aug. 20, on UPN.

Winners, chosen by Source subscribers and radio's most influential DJs, cover a broad spectrum of hip-hop styles and artists.

"This is a dream come true for a typical hip-hop fan," Source publisher David Mays says. "In one night, one show, you'll be able to see Master P, Puff Daddy, Nas, Lauryn Hill, DMX and other stars like (presenters) Mike Tyson and Will Smith."

Platinum recording artist Missy "Misdemeanor" Elliott says she will settle for giving out awards as a presenter instead of accepting them. The diva sees the ceremony as a strong step toward hip hop getting its long-deserved due.

"I think (hip hop) is just now getting its recognition," Elliott says. "For a long time, people overlooked it. It's good to see people recognize how long hip-hop's been around."

Basketball player Shaquille O'Neal is honored as athlete of the year. A recording artist himself, O'Neal says he relates to the bond between hip hop and sports.

"I'm known as a basketball player," O'Neal explains, "but for me these are the albums of my favorite artists. Certain days, I want to be like L.L. Cool J. Other days, I want to be like Dr. J."

Russell Simmons gets the nod for the lifetime achievement award. The industry mainstay says he feels the show is the proper venue for fans to witness the potential of the hip hop industry.

"Getting an award from these guys means a lot to me," Simmons says, "because they're people who are sophisticated about the culture and their choices mean something. They have a whole lot of credibility."

"You can tell (hip hop) has integrity and heart," he concludes. "When you see that in the music, you know it's got staying power."

TV PIPELINE

Maura Tierney

Q: Is the actress who plays Lisa on NewsRadio the same woman who played in the movie Dragonslayer? -C.H., Princeton, N.C.

A: No, Maura Tierney of NewsRadio was still in her early teens when that Walt Disney movie was made. An older actress named Caitlin Clarke played Valerian, Peter MacNicol's Dragon-slayer sidekick.

Q: I recently found out that Lindsay Lohan from The Parent Trap was on Another World. What part did she play, and when? -Jennifer Moser, Columbus, Ohio.

A: Lohan, now 13, played Alexandra "Alli" Fowler from 1996-97. She was the third young actress to play the role. She landed her Parent Trap role shortly after leaving the soap.

Q: Back in the '50s, my sister and I saw a film in which the entire cast was birds - parakeets, I believe. It was called Bill and Co, but everyone thinks I am nuts when I mention it. -Judy Morello, Pinetop, Ariz.

A: You're not nuts. Bill and Co was a charming 1947 live-action short featuring a cast of trained birds dressed as humans. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presented a special plaque to the short, "in which artistry and patience blended in a novel and entertaining use of the medium of motion pictures."

Q: What can you tell me about a TV show called Holmes and Yoyo, if such a show ever existed? -A reader in Wisconsin.

A: Pattered (unsuccessfully) on such vintage two-man comedy teams as Laurel and Hardy, Holmes and Yoyo starred Richard B. Shull as accident-prone police detective Alexander Holmes, who always escaped injury himself but put so many partners in the hospital that his department paired him with a lifelike robot named Gregory "Yoyo" Yoyonovich (John Schuck, McMillan and Wife). The ABC sitcom lasted less than three months in the fall of 1976.

Q: My girlfriend insists that Lorenzo Lamas from Air America is the same actor who starred in Renegade. I say no way. -Ron Clark, Rancho Cucamonga, Calif.

A: Way, Ron. Lamas, who also starred for several years in Falcon Crest, did play long-haired fugitive Reno Raines in Renegade.

Q: I vaguely remember a '60s game show called Treasure Island. Details, please. -M.H., Tampa, Fla.

A: Actually, I believe you are thinking of Treasure Isle, a 1967-68 ABC game show played in a specially constructed Florida lagoon. Couples paddled around on rafts to recover floating jigsaw pieces that, when assembled, provided a clue to the location of treasure buried on Treasure Isle. The lavish show lasted only one year.

SOAP TALK

Timing right for Evans' return to soap operas

By Candace Havens

In her career, Andrea Evans has come full circle. She began in 1978 as ingenue Tina Lord in One Life to Live. Now, she's playing the young mother of an ingenue on The Bold and the Beautiful. "I wouldn't have wanted to play the ingenue forever," Evans says. "As an actor you want to explore different stages of life. At this point I don't have any children, so it is very interesting for me to explore that mother-daughter relationship."

The actress left OLTL in 1990 and has been working in films and prime-time television. She hadn't really thought much about returning to daytime TV.

"Bradley Bell just called me up and asked if I was interested," Evans says. "I think the time was right and I've known Bradley for years. I've worked for his father (William Bell, The Young and the Restless), and it felt safe."

Evans also was intrigued by the role. She plays Tawny Moore, who was recently reunited with her estranged daughter, Amber (Adrienne Frantz). Tawny stole a baby to keep Amber in the Forrester family.

"When Bradley explained the character, he said she was 'economically challenged and dates a lot,'" Evans says. "I like very gray characters. With the Amber situation, I think she is doing a bad thing for a good reason. She is trying to get ahead in the world. But I like her, and I think that is essential in the way that I play her."

In June, Evans unveiled her new jewelry line in Las Vegas.

"A lot of the designs are based on animals," Evans explains. "By animals I don't mean just dogs and cats, but endangered species. A portion of the profits will be going into a trust to help endangered species."

Evans' love for animals spills over into her own life. In fact, her dog, Motown, is her very own personal trainer.

"If you run with one of your dogs, he won't let you skip a day," Evans says, laughing. "When I run, I wear a baseball cap and he'll follow me around the house with it until I take him out. You pay big bucks for a personal trainer to make you feel guilty, and that's what my dog does for me."
