Talks yield changes in Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Talks between President Clinton and Senate Finance Committee leaders have yielded little progress toward an agreement on a major overhaul of Medicare this year or new prescription drug benefits for senior citizens.

However, Clinton and the committee's chairman, Sen. William Roth, R-Del., have agreed to consider some incremental changes to the health insurance program for the elderly and disabled that could yield more money for hospitals and nursing homes complaining of too-tight budgets.

Clinton, Roth and Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York, the Finance Committee's senior Democrat, met at the White House on Tuesday.

Six 'victims' are treated after a 'spill'

By Julie L. Carlson

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Six victims were sent to Hereford Regional Medical Center after a tragic chemical spill Tuesday evening, and local emergency workers are still mopping up after the accident — a mock drill conducted to test emergency personnel preparedness in possible hazardous chemical accidents.

Parathion, has been described as a deadly poison which can severely injure, or even kill a person with its potent vapors and harmful skin burning elements. The insecticide, according to local hazardous chemical specialists, is common to areas around Hereford due to its use on area cropland.

The alarm for the mock spill was turned in at 6:30 p.m., and unconscious victims were located and then rushed to Hereford Region Medical Center where they were treated using hazardous waste safety protocols.

Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain said, "We all responded well. We had 20 firemen respond and six to seven fire trucks. We (each entity involved) all worked well to

Folk group to kick off annual concert series

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

A pioneer group from the Folk Era of the early 1960s will inaugurate the 1999-2000 Hereford Community Concert Association's series.

The Brothers Four will perform at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Hereford High School Auditorium.

In the late 1950s, four musically inclined Phi Gamma Delta fraternity brother — Bob Flick, John Paine, Mike Kirkland and Dick Foley — got together at the University of Washington. Forty years later, the Brothers Four continue to record and play at numerous festivals around the U.S. They also make yearly tours in Asia and Japan, where they have released albums that aren't available in the U.S.

After getting a start playing at a variety of campus events, the Brothers Four in 1958 became regular performers at the Colony Club in Seattle.

In the spring of 1959, they performed at the hungry i in San Francisco, where they were introduced to Mort Lewis, then manager of jazz great Dave Brubeck. The group sent a demo to Lewis, who persuaded Columbia Records to sign the Brothers Four to a record contract.

Their first album, "The Brothers Four," was released in 1960 and included "Greenfields," which would be their most successful single.

In 1962, the group had another hit single, "Green Leaves of Summer," which was the theme song of John Wayne's movie "The Alamo."

After being named the "Most Promising Group of 1960" by Billboard magazine, the group became one of the hottest acts around, playing on major TV variety shows, selling out arenas and playing 250-300 concerts per year.

After the Beatles took American by storm in 1964 and folk artist Bob Dylan went electric, the interest in folk music declined and with it went the big record contracts.

Although the group continues to tour and record, only Paine (vocals, guitar) and Flick (vocals, bass) remain from the original group. Kirkland (vocals, guitar, banjo) left the group in 1969, to be replaced by Mark Pearson (vocals, guitar, banjo), and Foley (vocals, guitar, mandolin).

The Brothers Four (from left), John Paine, Terry Lauber, Mark Pearson and Bob Flick, will open the annual Hereford Community Concert Association season.

Local roundup

Shooting still under investigation

Law enforcement officials are continuing to investigate a Sunday night shooting at Coronado Acres that sent a 28-year-old man to the hospital, according to Castro County Deputy Glenn Snickter.

Castro County and Deaf Smith County deputies responded to the incident at about 7:45 p.m. Sunday to find the wounded man. According to reports, the shooting was the result of a domestic dispute.

Deputies which responded from Castro County were Snickter, Fitzgerald, and Williams and lead investigator W.H. Cox.

The victim was taken to Hereford Regional Center and later transported by helicopter to Amarillo. He later was transferred to Parkland Hospital in Dallas for treatment.

The shooting is being investigated as accidental.

Classes to dismiss an hour early

Classes on all campuses in the Hereford Independent School District will dismiss early Friday to ease transportation for the football game in Dumas.

The revised bus schedules are:

- Stanton Learning Center, 1:50 p.m.;
- Aikman, Northwest and Tierra Blanca Primary schools, 2:10 p.m.;
- West Central, Bluebonnet and Shirley Intermediate schools, 2:30 p.m.;
- Hereford Junior High School, 2:35 p.m.; and
- Hereford High School, 2:45 p.m.

Parents of students who do not ride a school bus should be at the schools an hour earlier than normal to pick up their children.

Also, the pep rally will be 10 a.m. Friday in the high school gymnasium.

Medicare

there is some common ground, but Medicare reform is a complex issue and he doesn't want to rush into meeting any artificial deadlines," Roth spokeswoman Tara Bradshaw said after the meeting.

White House officials said Clinton has agreed, however, to work with lawmakers to find money and make regulatory changes that could moderate the billions of dollars in Medicare cuts that were part of the 1997 balanced budget act.

Clinton suggested that the money needed could come from some changes he has proposed making in the way Medicare does business.

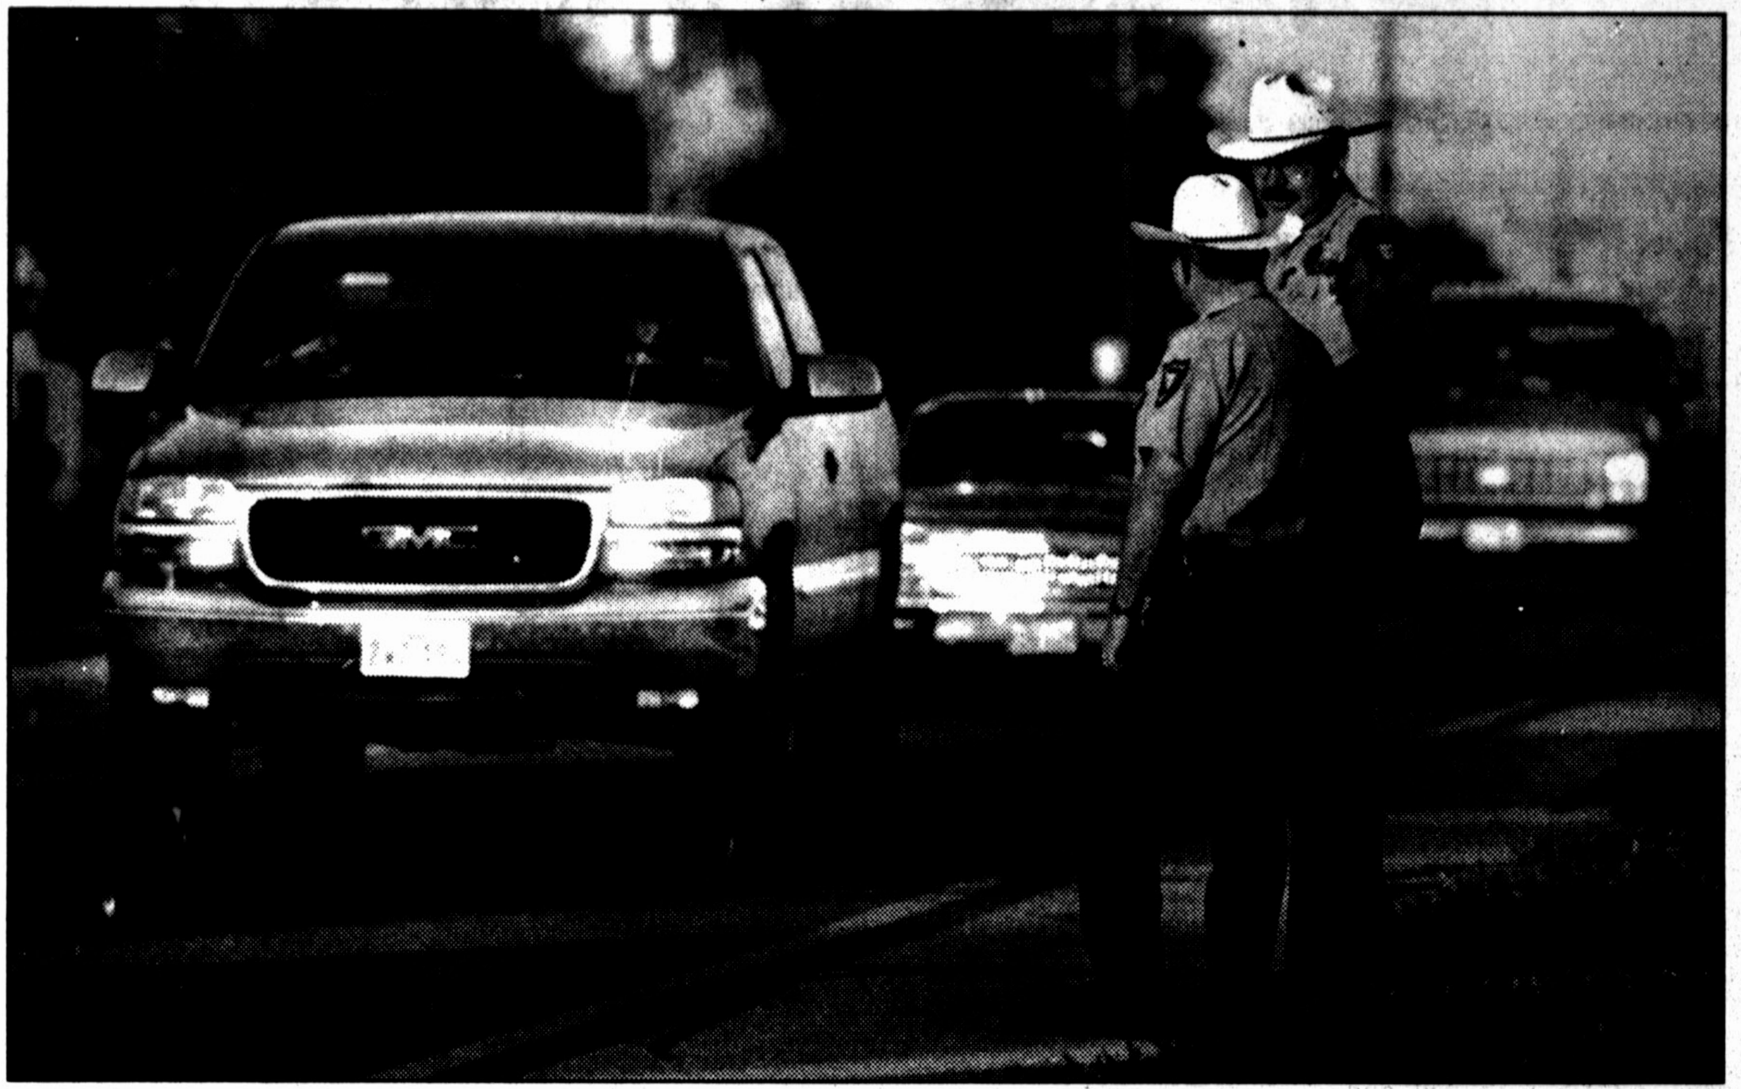

"The president indicated his openness to such initiatives, but in the context of providing additional statutory authority to modernize the purchasing practices of (Medicare)," said a written statement from Press Secretary Joe Lockhart.

Clinton in June proposed a package of such purchasing changes that the administration has estimated could save Medicare $25 billion over 10 years.

Among them: requiring competitive bidding by medical suppliers and giving retirees the chance to save money if they see doctors and other health care providers who agree to special discount contracts with Medicare — much like the many private health plans' "preferred provider" networks.

Roth and Moynihan agreed to look at those proposals as possible ways to pay for the balanced budget act modifications.

Caregivers — especially hospitals and nursing homes — have complained in massive lobbying campaigns that they are painfully strapped for cash because of the 1997 payment cuts. Some studies have also found evidence that Medicare patients with expensive medical problems are having trouble getting services such as home health care.

Charges filed in probe into money laundering

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
News digest

NEW YORK — Federal prosecutors have charged three people and three firms with illegally moving $7 billion from Russia through the Bank of New York, the first charges in what could be one of the largest money laundering cases in U.S. history.

U.S. Attorney Mary Jo White said more charges were expected, and the worldwide investigation was likely to be a long one. The case has raised the question of whether Russian businesses, individuals and organized crime groups used the nation's 15th largest bank to launder billions of dollars.

An indictment unsealed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan charges Peter Berlin, 44, Lucy Edwards, 41, and Aleksey Volkov, 34.

It also names Benex International Co. Inc., Bees International L.L.C. and Torfinex Corp. The Bank of New York, which is cooperating in the probe, was not charged.

Berlin was the president of both Benex and Bees and was married to Ms. Edwards, a former vice president at the Bank of New York and also an officer of Benex and Bees, prosecutors said.

Volkov was the president of Torfinex, which allegedly handled the illegal money transfers.

Senate leaders want way out of pact vote

WASHINGTON — With both sides agreeing the votes aren't there to ratify a global ban on nuclear testing, the Clinton administration and Republican Senate leaders were searching for a graceful exit strategy from a scheduled vote next week.

Neither side appeared to want to proceed with the vote. But neither side wanted the blame for calling it off either.

Both Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., and Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., urged their respective Senate troops to remain calm late Tuesday as speculation swirled that the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty was doomed and would soon be pulled from the Senate calendar.

A top Democrat, Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, told a group of reporters he had informed the president chances were bleak for achieving the 67 votes next Tuesday or Wednesday needed to ratify a treaty.

Few Republicans, not even moderates who generally support the president on international issues, appeared willing to support the pact, Biden suggested.

Lott, who had forced the issue by scheduling a quick vote on the treaty after Republicans had blocked it for two years, said he would consider calling off the vote — but only if President Clinton and Senate Democrats would acknowledge they had initiated the delay.

Furthermore, Lott said he would not agree to any plan under which the treaty could be called up during next year's presidential race.

Cause of London train crash still unclear

LONDON — Investigators are likely to focus on driver error or signal failure as potential causes of the rush-hour train crash that killed at least 26 people and injured 160 near a west London rail station, newspapers reported today.

Authorities have not commented on what might have caused Tuesday morning's collision between two packed commuter trains. But newspapers said the probe would look first at whether the driver of the outbound train ran a red light near the station. Detailed tests also were being performed on signaling equipment.

The search for more victims in the mangled carriages resumed at dawn today, after having been called off overnight. Rescue workers on Tuesday picked through the smoldering wreckage near the residential Ladbroke Grove area, trying to account for passengers.

The trains collided at 8:11 a.m. two miles west of Paddington Station. An explosion was reported as carriages tumbled off the tracks and burst into flames.

Better follow-up cited

In colon-cancer tests

WASHINGTON — Public health experts are calling attention to the need for follow-up testing for colon cancer in the wake of a report that many people who have positive preliminary tests don't get the recommended procedures.

A study in today's edition of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute reported that, of older Americans receiving any follow-up to their preliminary cancer tests, only about one-third got both of the tests currently recommended by the American College of Physicians.

Failure to obtain proper follow-up testing could delay discovery of the disease and "the later you find it, the more difficult it is to cure," warned one of the researchers, Dr. Jon D. Lurie of the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center in White River Junction, Vt.

Program targets teen-age reading

Special to The Brand

When was the last time you actually heard a teen-ager ask to read a book just for fun? That's a question the Hereford High School Library hopes will be answered during Teen Read Week (Oct. 17-23) and throughout the school year.

Teen Read Week is designed to turn teens on to reading. The message is "Reading Rocks — Read for the Fun of It!" The Hereford High School Library will join hundreds of other libraries, the American Library Association and the Young Adult Services Association in the celebration.

"Teens sometimes get so busy they forget that there's more to reading than just textbooks," says Donna Luther, Hereford High School Librarian. "Teen Read Week aims to remind teens that reading is fun; it's free and can be done anywhere, anytime. We also hope it encourages parents and teachers to promote reading."

During Teen Read Week, the Hereford High School Library will be offering a special program for students called "Caught You Reading."

Students who are "caught" reading materials other than textbooks will be given a coupon which can be redeemed at the high school library for special prizes, such as movie passes donated by Hereford Movies 6.

Luther says there are lots of ways teens can read for the fun of it:

- Keep a book going all the time by carrying it in a backpack or read on the bus ride to school or extracurricular events;
- Spend a few minutes reading each night before going to bed;
- If you like the movie, read the book;
- Read to a younger sibling;
- Don't finish a book if it does not interest you. Pick up something else;
- Visit the library and ask a librarian to recommend great books for teens.

Aging couple seeking advice on disbursement of inheritance

Dear Ann Landers: This is a hard letter for me to write. My husband and I are in our 70s and have raised two children who are a disgrace. We waited until we were over 30 to marry because each of us was taking care of an elderly parent. We were thrilled to have children, and tried to follow all the rules so we could set a good example. Our children were raised with love, religion, family values and discipline. We lived in a nice home in a fine neighborhood, and they attended excellent schools.

We have searched our hearts to understand why they turned out the way they did. They were never neglected, always supported, and given the best we could afford — and many things we couldn't. Their opportunities were many, but they always chose the wrong path with the wrong people.

Now, we are faced with an unusual problem and need your advice. My husband and I received an unexpected, sizable inheritance. Our children are not aware of this. We do not want them to have it when we die. We have no other relatives, and our friends are as old as we are. We are considering our church and perhaps the Salvation Army.

We have made a list of people mentioned in our local newspaper who have done good deeds with no expectation of being rewarded, and think perhaps we might give some money to them. We would like to feel we have really made a big difference in someone's life.

Our attorney wants to meet

us soon to draw up our wills. We are not in the best of health. Please answer soon. — Disappointed Parents, No Name, No State

Dear Parents: I can't imagine what your children did to justify total estrangement, but that's not what you wrote about, so I'll stick to the business at hand.

The good causes you mentioned are excellent places to put your money. I have been a strong supporter of the Salvation Army for years, and know how much your help would be appreciated. I also recommend the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and the Hereditary Disease Foundation in Santa Monica, Calif. Your attorney and tax consultant can advise you as to the best way to give your money away and help prevent your will from being contested by your children.

Dear Ann Landers: The most hilarious column you ever wrote helped me turn the corner when I was seriously ill several years ago. My copy is torn, but I'll try to patch it up and send it on. Please run it again. I am — A St. Petersburg, Fla., Fan.

Dear St. Pete: Here it is:

A couple sitting on their back porch, enjoying a lovely summer evening, were startled by bloodcurdling screams for help coming from their neighbors' home.

After dialing 911 and arming themselves with a baseball bat, the couple proceeded to their neighbors' house to assist in any way they could. As luck would have it, the front door was unlocked, so they walked right in. They followed the frantic calls for help to an upstairs bedroom, where they found the neighbor lady stark-naked, tied hand and foot to her bed. On the floor lay her husband, unconscious, wearing a Batman cape and mask.

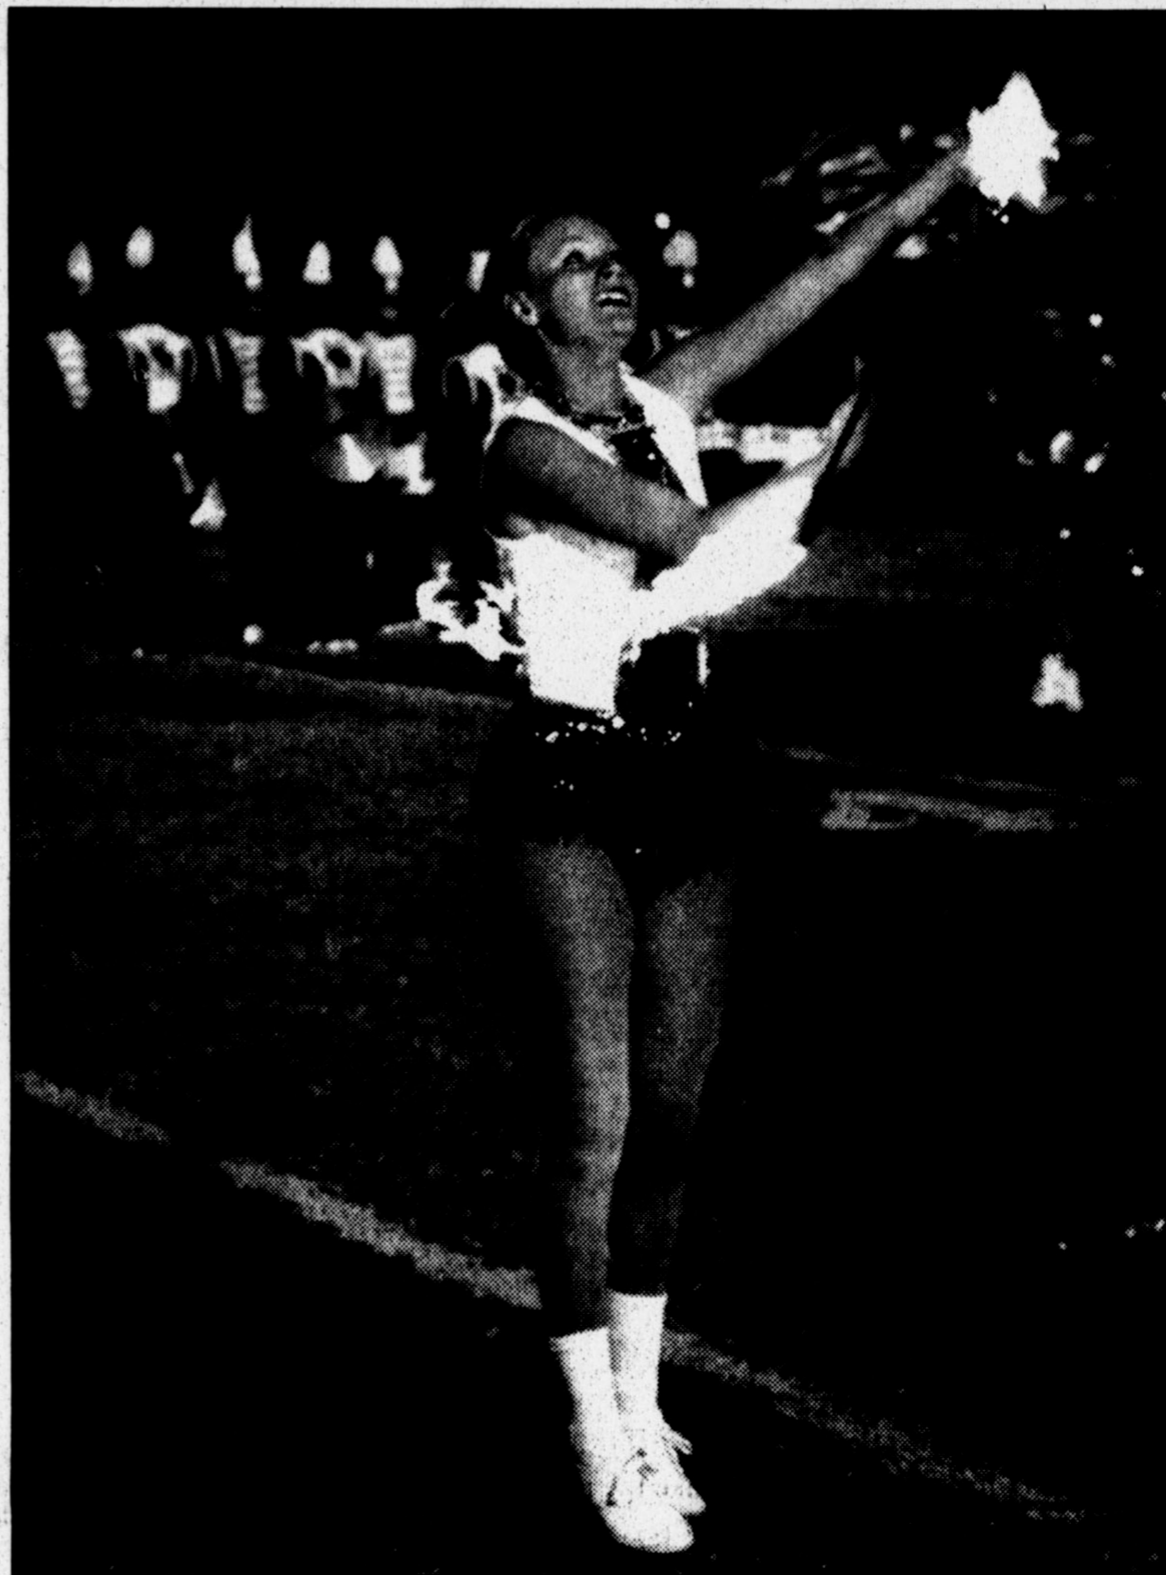

It became apparent that the couple was into both bondage and fantasies. Mr. Batman had attempted to leap from the dresser onto the bed. In the process, he bumped his head on the ceiling fan and went out like a light.

The next-door couple untied Mrs. Batman, revived Mr. Batman, and took him to the hospital where he was treated for a superficial head injury and released. This certainly gives new meaning to the term "safe sex."

'Treat' family with Halloween menu

ST. LOUIS -- Halloween is officially one of the most celebrated days of the year. Kids of all ages get into the spirit with costumes, decorations and most importantly, treats. In many communities, parties and neighborhood celebrations have replaced traditional trick-or-treating, providing a fun and safe way to celebrate Halloween.

Treat your family, friends, ghosts and goblins to this frightfully good menu. Whether you are hosting a Halloween party or a festive Halloween family feast, the following recipes will delight all.

Monster Eye Meatball and Berry Scary Sauce with Spooky Spaghetti combines the goodness of lean ground beef with the fiber and nutrition of whole grain oats for an extra moist rendition of an old favorite.

"Oatmeal is a whole grain ingredient that can be a low fat source of soluble and insoluble fiber while adding great flavor, texture and nutrition to many recipes," said Maureen Blazevic with Ralston Foods, maker of 3 Minute Brand Oats.

Ghouls and Goblins Fruited Stew is a great way to include fruit and fiber in any meal or snack.

As part of your celebration, let your costumed creatures decorate their own Pumpkin Patch Brownies and Hair'Em Scare'Em Cookies. Simply provide a covered table with a variety of candy decorations and icing for a frightfully delicious dessert or take-home treat.

Serve this "frightfully" good Halloween menu which combines nutrition and fun.

Depression screenings offered at WTAMU, AC

More than 80 percent of those suffering from depression can be treated successfully. That is the aim of West Texas A&M University's Student Counseling Services and the Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority on National Depression Screening Day (NDS) Thursday.

Screening sponsored by both entities will be conducted at 9 a.m., noon, 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. in Room 211 of the Virgil Henson Activities Center on the WTAMU campus and at the Amarillo College Student Union Building.

A 30-minute session will include a brief questionnaire/assessment that will be evaluated by a mental health professional after a short information presentation.

"The purpose of National Depression Screening Day is to call attention to the illness of depression, to educate the public about its symptoms and to connect those in need of treatment to people who can help," Dayna Schertler, WTAMU counselor, said. "If depression is recognized and treated, many people will begin to return to normal functioning within six to eight weeks."

For the first time, the national program will include an emphasis on suicide prevention. Suicide is the ninth leading cause of death in the U.S. Almost 5,000 people ages 15-24 kill themselves each year.

According to the American Foundation of Suicide Prevention, most depressed people are not suicidal, but most suicidal people are depressed.

NDS participants will receive a suicide-risk questionnaire that is designed to be taken by someone who is concerned about a friend or loved one.

"The questionnaire covers the symptoms or behaviors that may indicate suicide risk," Schertler said. "This is important because nearly 75 percent of all people who take their own lives give some warning of the intentions to a friend or family member."

The form also includes practical advice on the do's and don'ts of helping a person who is suicidal.

Each screening session is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Schertler at 806/651-2340.

Hereford completes the first half of district play unbeaten and will begin the second on Saturday at 3 p.m. when they host their big time rival, the Dumas Demonettes at the Whiteface Gym.

By Yuri Soto

AMARILLO — The Lady Whitefaces wrapped up the first half of District 3-4A play with another victory.

They did it, though, rather sluggishly.

But a win is a win, and the Lady Whitefaces got it Tuesday night with a 15-3, 15-5 victory against the Amarillo Caprock Lady Longhorns at Caprock High School.

Part of the reason for the early struggle is Caprock is not a team the Lady Whitefaces get excited about to play. Heck, they're not Dumas.

"Borger is next to last in district and Caprock is last, but both of them are still very good teams," Hereford coach Brenda Kitten said. "Sometimes, it's difficult because you look at the records and you think they're not going to put much on the floor and you don't have to earn your points."

At the start of the match, the Lady Whitefaces and the Lady Horns traded sideouts. Caprock made sideouts, thanks to their own service errors. Hereford gave Caprock chances, thanks to kill errors.

"It's just hard to get up for a team like Caprock," said middle hitter Tori Walker, who had only six kills on the evening. "No offense against them, but the adrenaline is not there like it is for Dumas."

That's because the Lady Whitefaces welcome Dumas on Saturday to the Whiteface Gym. The junior varsity plays at 2 p.m. and the varsity plays immediately after.

Walker, who's forte is usually kills, succeeded more as a blocker and had six.

"We've been working on blocking a lot and that's what's been hurting us during the season," Walker said. "So, we've been working on that a lot and its beginning to pay off for us."

Three of those block aces by Walker came in game one, were Hereford jumped to a 4-1 lead thanks to a block assist by Walker and Audra Witkowski, a kill by Toni Eicke, a service ace by Ashley Gonzalez and a service error on Caprock.

"It should have been more of a challenge," Caprock coach Lisa Thomason said. "We weren't just clicking on it. Just an off night and it didn't happen tonight for us."

A block ace and a kill by Sarah Griffin and errors by the Longhorns put Hereford to a commanding 11-1 lead. But from there, the game took a while to end due to great defensive digs by both squads and errors by both teams that led to many sideouts.

After block aces by Caprock's Misty Turlington and Kasey Garrison and a kill error from

Quiet success drives Ramirez

■ Whiteface cornerback's play part of the reason Hereford's defense is tough all-around

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor

Andrew Ramirez is a very quiet, shy young man.

One of the few of his type who strolls around the Hereford Whiteface locker room not saying much.

But there's a saying that actions speak louder than words.

In Ramirez's case, that holds true.

He currently leads the Whitefaces in interceptions with two. Last year, he intercepted four balls from opposing quarterbacks.

This year, he's on pace to pick off six.

Ramirez is just one of many reasons Hereford's defense is very difficult to pass against. A main reason for his play has been his confidence and his toughness.

"I feel confident because I guess it comes through practice," Ramirez said. "I feel there's a lot of people looking up to me right now and it's making my practice efforts a whole lot better and it shows in the game."

Boy, it does.

Trailing 7-6 with less than three minutes left in the game on Friday against Canyon,

Ramirez made a diving interception off a pass from Canyon's Anthony May at the Hereford 34-yard line that gave the Whitefaces a second chance to get a winning score.

But, it didn't happen.

The defense allowed 101 yards total offense by Canyon, with 27 of those yards coming through the air, which attributes the toughness of Hereford's secondary.

"Our defense is a whole lot better this year," Ramirez said. "It's the No. 1 defense in the area. It's confidence on the field that has helped me play better and it has a lot to do with it."

"It's a lot of pressure and Andrew has come up on this system well," Hereford coach Craig Yenser said. "This year, you can't say enough about him, he just makes a great play."

The other interception he's made this year was not as spectacular as the one against Canyon, but it was effective.

Late in the game against Andrews, Ramirez intercepted a Jaime Bueno pass and sealed a tough road win for Hereford.

Plays like that makes him get the confidence that those players need — especially the Canyon pick off.

"It makes you feel good, especially after this past game because no other interception felt like this one," Ramirez said. "When we got the ball, it felt really good. I could have done more with the ball but he didn't throw it high enough."

Having a good secondary is always important because teams may never know when the opposing team is going for the pass. Ramirez knows it has to be good.

"It's got to be really good. For example, Canyon throws about 25 times in four games and we have thrown twice more than that," he said. "They threw four passes in the whole game and when they did, we stuck to our game plan and made the key plays. I think secondary is real important for a defense."

Going back to the beginning, the quiet Ramirez doesn't say much to anybody, nonetheless the media or the Whitefaces' opponents.

But if he had a wide receiver to see eye-to-eye, he'd would say this to opponents as a warning.

"I dare them to burn us deep," he said.

Ed Belfour made 32 saves while Wregget stopped 11.

Zubov's shot from center glanced off Wregget's glove and trickled over the goal line, for a 1-0 lead in the first.

Detroit outshot Dallas 15-6 in the second. Wregget made a glove save on Zubov's shot and Nieuwendyk hit the post.

Hull lifts Stars over Detroit Red Wings, 3-2

DETROIT (AP) — Brett Hull's power-play goal midway through the third period gave the Dallas Stars a 3-2 win over the Detroit Red Wings Tuesday.

Hull fired a pass from Joe Nieuwendyk past Ken Wregget 11:18 into the period to break a 2-2 tie.

Sergei Zubov had a goal and an assist and Blake Sloan scored.

Yankees pound Rangers

■ Bernie Williams records eight RBI in 8-0 blanking of Texas

NEW YORK (AP) — Sure, they're not the 1998 Yankees. In their postseason opener, they looked even stronger.

Picking up right where they left off last October, New York blanked Texas yet again, with Orlando Hernandez allowing two hits in eight innings and Bernie Williams driving in six runs as the World Series champions beat the Rangers 8-0 Tuesday night.

"I always pitch well with pressure," Hernandez said. "I like to have pressure when I pitch."

Williams, showing why the Yankees paid $87.5 million to keep him, had a two-run double off loser Aaron Sele in the fifth, a three-run homer off Mike Venafro in the sixth and an RBI single off Jeff Fassero in the eighth.

So much for the talk earlier this year that he doesn't hit under pressure.

"I thought I was going to have a terrible night," Williams said. "I was sleepy and dragging a little bit and it was cold. Something happened when they said the lineup. Something inside of me just woke up, said it's time to play."

He started slowly, with a groundout in the first. He wasn't happy.

"I said you just got to go out and play hard, you got to wake up. This is the postseason. This is not the regular season anymore."

He also made a sliding catch of Juan Gonzalez's liner to center field with two on in the third inning.

"I didn't think I had a shot at it," Williams said. "At the last minute, the ball stayed up longer than I had anticipated."

Williams, seeming distracted by his impending free agency, was 0-for-11 against Texas in last year's series and 9-for-48 (.188) in the postseason. He nearly signed with Boston before the Yankees upped their offer at the last moment in December.

"He's a special person, a special talent," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "For him to have not only the night he had tonight but the year he had this year, it's very impressive. The night he had tonight was unbelievable."

Texas has just one run in its last 42 innings in the playoffs, all against New York, and has lost seven straight postseason games since beating the Yankees in the Rangers' first one, in 1996.

"I don't care Yankee Stadium, Yellowstone Park, it doesn't matter. We can score more runs than this by accident," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said.

After a day off, the series resumes at Yankee Stadium on Thursday, with Andy Pettitte (14-11) pitching for New York against Rick Helling (13-11).

Last year, when New York came off its record 114-48 regular season and flattened Texas in a first-round sweep, holding the Rangers one run and a .141 average.

This year, the Yankees' record slipped a league-high 16 wins to 98-64, creating doubt whether they were strong enough to win their third Series title in four years.

But "El Duque" roped the Rangers and improved to 3-0 with a 0.41 ERA in postseason play (one run in 20 innings). Jeff Nelson followed with a hitless ninth.

"They're all great hitters," Hernandez said through a translator. "Luck was on my side."

While Texas has led the American League in hitting for two straight years, the Rangers haven't scored a single run in their last 22 postseason innings.

Texas mounted its best threat in the first inning, loading the bases on a one-out double by Ivan Rodriguez and walks to Rusty Greer and Rafael Palmeiro. But Hernandez got out of it by striking out Todd Zeile to end the inning.

After that, Hernandez allowed only a single by Rodriguez in the third.

It was reminiscent of his first playoff start, when the Yankees were trailing Cleveland 2 games to 1 in last year's championship series. "El Duque" got into a two-out jam in the first, retired Jim Thome on a flyout to the right-field warning track, then blanked the Indians through seven innings.

Sele, who lost Game 3 to the Yankees last year, fell behind in the second inning because of a bad defensive play by Rusty Greer in left.

Tino Martinez singled leading off the second, and was erased on Darryl Strawberry's grounder to second, which Mark McLemore bobbled slightly.

But Strawberry, who was diagnosed with colon cancer during last year's series against the Rangers and missed the entire postseason, hustled down the line and beat shortstop Royce Clayton's throw to avoid a double play. Greer then seemed to lose Ricky Ledee's curving liner in the lights, and it sailed past him to the wall as Strawberry scored on what was ruled a double.

Sele shook Greer's hand in the dugout after the inning, as if to say, "No problem," but the way the Rangers hit in the playoffs, even one run is too much to overcome.

"That's four unearned runs as far as I'm concerned," said Oates, angry with his fielders.

Williams doubled over the head of center fielder Tom Goodwin in the fifth following one-out singles by Derek Jeter and Paul O'Neill. Sele left after walks to Ledee and Jeter in the sixth, and a run scored when O'Neill's grounder to third skipped into outfield off Zeile.

Sele, 11-3 in his final 16 starts, allowed four runs — three earned — and six hits in five-plus innings. He also walked five, but two were intentional.

"We have to play better than this," he said. "We have to pitch better, hit better and field better to beat them."

Houston cools off 'Hotlanta,' 6-1

ATLANTA (AP) — Everything worked out just fine for the Houston Astros.

After a frantic end to the regular season — and beyond — the Astros appeared to be a thoroughly relaxed team in Game 1 of the NL division series against the rested Atlanta Braves.

Daryle Ward hit a tiebreaking homer in the sixth off Greg Maddux, and Braves-killer Ken Caminiti clinched it with a three-run shot in the ninth as the Astros defeated Atlanta 6-1 Tuesday, claiming home-field advantage in the best-of-5 series.

The Astros were a clear underdog against the powerful Braves, who won six of seven meetings during the regular season. Houston lost nine of its last 15 games, going to the final day before clinching its third straight Central title.

Even then, the Astros did not know where they would be playing until Monday night. They left for the airport with the possibility of either Atlanta or Arizona; when the Mets beat Cincinnati 5-0 in a wild-card playoff, Houston's chartered plane headed east.

"That is kind of mind-boggling," Ward said. "I think I fell asleep, so I just forgot about all of it."

Atlanta clinched its division with a week to go, winning 11 of its last 13 games to finish with a major league-high 103 wins. But the Braves have been this route before: eight straight playoff appearances have produced only one World Series title.

Now, they've got to win three of the next four games against Houston just to advance to the next round. Game 2 is today at Turner Field.

"The noose tightens a little quicker in the short series," Chipper Jones said. "It's important for us all to bring our 'A' games to the ballpark."

The Astros sealed the victory in the ninth with four runs against reliever Mike Remlinger. Carl Everett had a sacrifice fly before Caminiti haunted the Braves again.

Playing for San Diego, Caminiti hit a 10th-inning homer to win the first game of the 1998 NL championship series. The Padres went on to a 4-2 victory over Atlanta.

While the Braves have lost the last two years in the NLCS, the division series has been a virtual cakewalk since the format was instituted in 1995. Before Tuesday, they were 12-1 overall, including 10 straight victories.

Houston, on the other hand, has never won in five playoff series, including a 3-0 sweep by the Braves in 1997. The Astros won't get swept this year.

"Two years in a row, we lost the first game," Bagwell said. "This gives us tremendous momentum."

Home field wasn't much of an advantage for the Braves in Game 1. The turnout of 39,119 was nearly 11,000 short of capacity at Turner Field and the smallest in Atlanta's 44-game postseason history.

In the right-field upper deck, only a few dozen people occupied seven sections of blue seats.

Horns

Walker put the score 11-3 in favor of Hereford, the Lady Whitefaces forced the Lady 'Horns' into errors to put the first game away.

The second game was no different from the first.

A kill by Michelle Bernhardt and two errors by Caprock put Hereford up 3-0. The third point, however, did not come until both teams had exchanged sideouts six times.

"We have our times were some of us struggle and some of us don't," said Toni Eicke, who got five kills, "but we're going to come where we all play together and it's going to come to us at some time."

Two more errors put Hereford up 5-1, but serve aces by Polly Matejko of Caprock closed the score to 5-3.

From there Tori Walker and the Caprock errors took over.

Two block aces and a kill by Walker and three kill errors by the Lady 'Horns' gave Hereford a 10-4 lead.

Eicke followed that with two kills and another Walker kill that gave the Lady Whitefaces a 13-4 lead.

A net violation gave Caprock their fifth point of the game, but another error on the Lady 'Horns' part, followed by kills from Eicke and Walker ended the match and the first half of district play was over.

"I told Coach (Kristi) Lytal before we began the match that I am glad that we get this first round over with," Kitten said.

Now comes part two of the big challenge in the district.

The Lady Whitefaces go for round four against the Demonettes of Dumas on Saturday and hope to break a losing streak to their rivals from the north.

Hereford has lost three straight to the Demonettes at the Whiteface Gym.

"The last three years they've embarrassed us on our home court just as we've done to them," Kitten said. "This group wants to make sure they want to have a big win against such a rival on their home court. Like I said earlier, you don't really have to work hard to get pumped up for this one."

Alfonzo, Mets slam Diamondbacks, 8-4

PHOENIX (AP) — Edgardo Alfonzo ruined Randy Johnson at the start and buried the Arizona Diamondbacks at the finish.

Alfonzo, who had a solo home run in the first inning, hit a grand slam with two outs in the ninth off reliever Bobby Chouinard as the New York Mets beat the Diamondbacks 8-4 Tuesday night in the opener of their NL playoff series.

with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth, lost his sixth straight postseason decision, a major league record. He struck out 11 and held on through an exhausting 138 pitches as Arizona rallied from a 4-1 deficit to tie it at 4.

John Olerud became the first left-handed batter to hit a homer off Johnson in two years with his two-run shot in the third that made it 3-0.

The Diamondbacks rallied on home runs by Erubiel

Durazo and Luis Gonzalez to make it 4-4.

Johnson settled down to pitch four hitless innings, but another lefty, Robin Ventura, led off the ninth with a single. With one out, Rey Ordóñez singled, then Johnson walked Melvin Mora to load the bases and bring on Chouinard.

Third baseman Matt Williams made a diving stop, his second of the game, on Rickey Henderson's grounder, and threw home to force out Ventura.

But Alfonzo hit Chouinard's 3-1 pitch just inside the left field foul pole for the grand slam.

Johnson, whose postseason record fell to 2-6, allowed seven runs on eight hits. Turk Wendell pitched one inning and was the winner.

'Millennium' feasts on 1,000 years in tasty bites

Frazier Moore
The Associated Press

If you do the math on "Millennium," CNN's 10-hour portrait of the past thousand years, you're struck by all that must be missing.

Figure it out: "Millennium" has less than 30 seconds to cover each year's global happenings from AD 1000 to the present. Is this a documentary series or a fool's errand?

If you tune in its premiere at 9 p.m. CDT Sunday, "Millennium" will surprise you.

Though it was spurred by millennium mania, this would be a fascinating series in any year. It's an ambitious project with no stake in being all-inclusive, just compelling. And how time flies when you're having fun!

In five vignettes each hour (that is, per century), "Millennium" seizes on big stories, personalities and ideas, then presents them with majesty and style. Actor Ben Kingsley narrates, but the words take a back seat to the visuals and music.

"It's intended to be a pleasure for the eye and the ear," says British filmmaker Sir Jeremy Isaacs, who shared executive producer duties with Pat Mitchell, president of Time Inc.-CNN Productions. "It's history as a magic carpet ride into the past."

Here is the itinerary for the first edition, "Century of the Sword: The Eleventh Century":

The world's preeminent civilization, China, which had innovations other cultures hadn't even imagined: printing, paper money, gunpowder and kites that carried humans aloft. Not to mention what was perhaps the world's first restaurant (it specialized in take-out chicken).

The vast expanse of Islam from India to Spain, flourishing particularly in Cordoba, Europe's largest city, which was home to more than 1,000 mosques.

India, whose towering spiritualism, scholarship and wealth were undermined by its indifference to neighboring cultures and advances.

Jerusalem, where pilgrims flocked from all over Europe seeking salvation as they anticipated the thousandth anniversary of Christ's crucifixion in 1033 — and perhaps the end of the world.

And imperial seclusion in Japan as chronicled by Sei Shonagon, a lady-in-waiting in the royal court, in her diary "The Pillow Book." "A splendid sanctuary of friskiness that makes the Playboy Mansion seem like a flophouse, where no one ever seemed to get a full night's sleep — or be burdened with a full night's bedfellow. Declares "The Pillow Book": "One's attachment to a man depends largely on the elegance of his leave-taking."

"Millennium" will continue each Sunday, devoted to a successive hundred years with a loosely applied theme (Century of the Scythe, Telescope, Furnace, Globe). It concludes Dec. 12 with, natch, the 20th century.

Along the way, a special Web site (CNN.com/1000) will offer supplementary material for viewers whose curiosity is piqued — and how could it not be? — by glimpses of Genghis Kahn, those enormous sailing vessels of Admiral Zheng, the exquisite churches carved from an Ethiopian mountainside, or Pierre de Maupertuis, who almost 300 years ago led an expedition to the Arctic Circle to determine Earth's precise shape.

"We know our own history best," says Isaacs, acknowledging that narcissism and proximity distort one's view of the past. "But 'Millennium' tells of other histories, of people all over the world who in the last thousand years influenced those around them."

In doing so, "Millennium" adds up to 50 illuminating sketches.

Does it add up to anything more sweeping? Can any grand conclusions about humankind be reached?

"This was never intended to be a series that drew a line through things," Isaacs cautions. He can point to three concepts binding these 1,000 years.

First, science overtakes religion as an explanation of how the world works.

"Second, you see the balance of world interest and cultural energy moving from the East to the West."

And, third, the world's piecemeal knowledge of itself becomes a general awareness. Once, few people knew what life was like over the next mountain or beyond the sea. But at the end of the 20th century, you not only know of the existence of others globally, you also know what they're doing. And, increasingly, you're doing the same thing.

Like watching CNN.

Sci-fi author pays $42,100 to dine with Oprah Winfrey

DALLAS — Science fiction author James L. Halperin wanted lunch with Oprah Winfrey — and the attendant publicity — so much that he paid $42,100 for the honor.

Halperin submitted the winning bid during an online auction Saturday to raise money for disaster victims through Oprah's Angel Network.

Halperin topped 84 other bidders. He also paid $10,100 for a pair of backstage passes to Ms. Winfrey's TV show and $6,550 more to attend a yoga class with the talk show host.

"Every novelist wants to meet Oprah," he said.

Through a feature on her show called Oprah's Book Club, Ms. Winfrey every month recommends books to her audience, and Halperin hopes he can convince her to read one of his books, either "The First Immortal" or "The Truth Machine."

A date for the lunch has not been set.

Meanwhile, Ms. Winfrey is being courted by the Reform Party to run for president in 2000. Some party members from Minnesota have created a Web site to draft Ms. Winfrey for the 2000 presidential race.

"It is Jesse Ventura times 100," said Paul Larsen, chairman of the draft committee and a party leader.

Writing want ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 • Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 • Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 • Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 • Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

"Too often, my party has confused the need for limited government with a disdain for government itself."

George W. Bush

Bush criticizes Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edging away from an unpopular Congress, George W. Bush said Tuesday fellow Republicans are too often dour, pessimistic and focused on economic "to the exclusion of all else."

"Too often, my party has confused the need for limited government with a disdain for government itself," the GOP presidential front-runner told New York conservatives.

It marked the second time in a week the Texas governor has declared his independence from the congressional wing of the party, suggesting that he feels comfortable challenging elements of the GOP establishment — a contrast to the 1996 presidential nominee, Bob Dole, who struggled constantly to keep party leaders satisfied.

Unveiling his second education initiative in the Democratic bastion of New York also underscored Bush's intention to pursue a general election strategy that courts voters outside the GOP base.

In a speech to a conservative thinktank, Bush said: "Too often, on social issues, my party has painted an image of America slouching toward Gomorrah." He borrowed the line from the title of a book by conservative Robert Bork.

"Too often, my party has focused on the national economy, to the exclusion of all else — speaking a sterile language of rates and numbers, of CBO this and GNP that."

Government should be limited, but not to the point that Americans get hurt. "That should be our goal: A limited government, respected for doing a few things and doing them well."

In each case, he said Republicans have a good point: There are too many broken homes and lives; a vigorous economy should be sought and small government is good government.

But he weighed in with a flip side — a rosier view — by saying welfare, education and crime problems are being combated with compassion by Republican reforms.

"Problems that seemed inevitable proved to be reversible," Bush said. "They gave way to an optimistic, governing conservatism."

Advisers and aides say Bush is fleshing out his "compassionate conservative" philosophy with examples that show his desire to blend conservative principles with more moderate rhetoric.

In many ways, it's a matter of tone.

"It's a continuation of his highlighting the differences between conservatism with a frown and conservatism with a smile," spokeswoman Mindy Tucker said.

Democrats called Bush's remarks a ploy to mask his true conservative leanings.

"George Bush is just offering new rhetorical wrapping paper on the same Republican package of wrong ideas for America," Democratic National Committee spokeswoman Jenny Backus said.

To some operatives, the strategy is reminiscent of Clinton's 1996 effort to distance himself from both his own party and the GOP majority.

Bush advisers said, however, that the governor's goal is less Machiavellian. He simply wants to rise above the partisan leadership style of congressional leaders and discuss social issues in a positive light — rather than in a way that seems to condemn people.

One Bush adviser used this example: Welfare reformers need to find fault with men who haven't paid child support, not single mothers who are trying to make ends meet.

Polls show that many Americans find Republicans in Congress are too strident and

AL GORE
 Pledges to put concerns for families at top of his agenda

Gore promises to be focused on families

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Al Gore is proposing preschool for every child, "family friendly" policies at work and other steps to ease the burden on working parents.

Gore, addressing a Manhattan fund-raising luncheon Tuesday, promised to put the concerns of families at the top of his agenda if he becomes president.

"If you do not understand the fatigue of the American working woman, then you don't deserve to be president of the United States," he told a mostly female crowd of about 600 supporters. "If you elect me president, I will honor your struggle by making it easier to be a good worker and a good parent at the same time."

Gore, fighting former Sen. Bill Bradley for the Democratic presidential nomination, said he wanted to further women's rights by ensuring equal pay for equal work, keeping abortion legal and offering help to those juggling demands of jobs and family.

"If you elect me president, I will make available high-quality preschool for every child in every family across the United States," said Gore, who shared the stage with his daughter, Karenna Gore Schiff, a Columbia University law student and mother of a 3-month-old boy. "It's the single best investment we can make."

Gore said he wants to create tax incentives for employers that provide on-site day care or help to parents when child-care arrangements fall through. He also said he would encourage businesses to offer job shares, flexible schedules and telecommuting.

Dole seeks to enliven campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watching her bankroll dwindle and her second-tier star on the national stage being eclipsed by Sen. John McCain, Elizabeth Dole will try to punch up her strategy and stake a claim to McCain's home turf in hope of winning back some headlines.

Once-gentle Dole aides now make no pretense about the gritty battle Dole must wage to survive in a Republican presidential field dominated by Texas Gov. George W. Bush and enlivened, of late, by McCain and his best-selling memoir of his Vietnam war days.

"I applaud the McCain people, they've gotten a good ride," said Dole strategist Tony Fabrizio. But it's time for Dole to try and stop him, he added, since McCain's good publicity has yet to carry him above Dole in national horserace polls.

Dole travels Friday to McCain's home state of Arizona to showcase her endorsement by Phoenix Mayor Skip Rimsza. And she told aides Tuesday she wants to "make a real splash" with a get-tough-on-drugs speech scheduled for Thursday in San Diego.

Ex-president's letters published

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letters, for George Bush, are like handshakes for any other politician — something to be doled out generously and with a firm, personal touch, however fleeting.

The former president has always been a man of letters — long, searching ones to his family, short breezy ones to friends, little notes of courtesy to the merest of acquaintances. He is said to have the "Himalayas of address books."

Now a mountain of Bush's correspondence has come into public view with the release of "All the Best." His collection of selected letters and diary entries stands in place of the memoirs Bush says he will never write.

The correspondence ranges from hair-raising letters home from the Pacific theater in World War II, when he was shot down, to a rumination a year ago on what it's like to fish as an old man ("if I turn fast, I wobble").

And it is one of the early entries in a coming bonanza of Bush family biographies that could leave readers feeling ambushed.

The rest are focused on his eldest son George W., the Texas governor and Republican presidential aspirant, and include an autobiography the governor's press secretary has been polishing up.

Report: FBI fired at Waco

WASHINGTON (AP) — An expert hired by the House Government Reform Committee says he believes an FBI agent fired shots during the bureau's 1993 siege of the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, Texas.

That view, expressed in an interview published in today's editions of The Washington Post, is at odds with the FBI's position that none of its agents fired shots at any time during the siege in which about 80 people died.

The expert in thermal imaging and videotape analysis, Carlos Ghigliotti, has done work for the FBI in the past.

"I conclude that the FBI fired shots on that day," Ghigliotti told the Post in an interview conducted Tuesday. "I conclude this based on the ground-view videotapes taken from several different angles simultaneously and based on the overheard thermal tape. The gunfire from the ground is there, without a doubt."

Ghigliotti, owner of Infra-Red Technologies Corp., in Laurel, Md., said the tapes also confirm that the Davidians fired at FBI agents during the assault.

Although FBI agents were operating under rules that permitted them to return fire, bureau officials have maintained that no agents fired any shots.

Ghigliotti is not asserting that any injuries or deaths were caused by FBI gunshots.

He told the Post he reached his conclusion after spending hundreds of hours reviewing various tapes of the siege, including a newly released FBI audio recording that was part of a videotape turned over to Congress recently in response to a subpoena.

Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., chairman of the committee that retained Ghigliotti said "it is premature to make any final determination."

"We don't want to go off half-cocked," Burton said. "As soon as we get all the necessary information, we will hold hearings and present the information to the American people."

GOP plan drawing fire

■ Demos charging cuts to endanger crucial programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are using a House Republican proposal to cut spending across the board by 2.7 percent as a launching pad to attack them for considering harsh cuts in crucial, popular programs.

Even though Republicans have not yet decided to pursue the cuts or what their final size would be, Democrats at the White House and the Capitol jumped on them Tuesday anyway.

As Republicans continued seeking ways to avoid spending Social Security's surpluses this year, Democrats trotted out their own examples of what they asserted such cuts would mean: Over 1 million low-income children denied federal education aid, perhaps 200,000 fewer troops, up to 11 million fewer meals served by the Meal on Wheels program for the elderly and others.

"I could go on to what it would do to the NIH budget," said White House spokesman Joe Lockhart, referring to the National Institutes of Health, "what it would do to the FBI budgets, what it would do to our anti-terrorism efforts."

"This is like a blind date," said the top Democrat on the House Appropriations Committee, Rep. David Obey of Wisconsin. "Wait till the mask comes off."

Unsure whether they could push the plan through the House that they narrowly control, Republicans have not yet decided to use it. They also don't know precisely how deep the final cut would be because it is unclear if any programs would be exempted, such as defense.

House Majority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Texas, called the proposal "a work in progress," and fired back.

"This White House wants to spend more money," he said. "Everything they do and say is designed to have more money to spend."

House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, said the idea has "currency" among GOP lawmakers. But he said House leaders want to coordinate their savings with the Senate, and warned that proposed across-the-board spending reductions often end up getting complicated.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., called the plan "one of the options we could consider" as spending bills are finished.

Kentucky deleting 'evolution'

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The word "evolution" has been deleted from guidelines of what Kentucky public school students should know and be tested on, the latest blow to a topic many scientists consider a cornerstone of biology.

State Education Department officials substituted "change over time" for evolution during a last-minute editing session, said Associate Education Commissioner Linda Houghton, who oversees the department's curriculum work.

She cited state "testing sensitivity" guidelines, designed to keep children from taking a position on subjects such as death, divorce and animal rights. The list also includes the theory of evolution, which holds that humans evolved from more primitive species.

Deputy Commissioner Gene Wilhoit said he and other department officials saw no need to keep the word evolution in the guidelines for high school and middle school students.

"The word is a lightning rod that creates a diversion from what we're teaching, and we did not want to advocate a particular doctrine or a specific view," Wilhoit said.

Biology teachers said the decision will discourage schools from covering the topic.

"A lot of teachers are upset about this," said Ken Rosenbaum, director of the Kentucky Science Teachers Association. "They know it was done for political reasons. It's either a scientific theory or it's not. Why don't we just stop calling the sunrise the sunrise?"

The topic is controversial because some view evolution as inconsistent with their religious beliefs.

In a high-profile decision in August, the Kansas Board of Education adopted new standards that play down scientific importance of evolution.

In Kentucky, teachers campaigned for including evolution in updated state curriculum guidelines. The word was in the final draft of the guidelines presented to the state Board of Education in August.
