Auditor says budget right on track

By Julie L. Carlson

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

No worries, Deaf Smith County was right on track with the Fiscal 1999 budget.

County Auditor Dan Warrick, who is closing the books on FY 1999, said the county's three major budgets are turning out as planned.

"There's not any major problem. The funds are still adequate," Warrick said.

The Road and Bridge fund showed a surplus of about $75,000. For this fund, the revenue was about $963,900 and the expenditures were approximately $888,100.

The Road and Bridge Holding Fund allocated $94,285, with expenditures of $202,275 and $129,000 used for paying off machinery. This fund had a surplus of about $72,900. Of the three major budgets, the general fund had an expected deficit. Its revenue was $4,063,536, with expenditures of $4,432,481, leaving a deficit of about $368,945.

However, Warrick said the county administration had anticipated the deficit, which he said was largely due to county's current insurance plan. The county has switched insurance plans and expects to get the general fund budget under control.

Warrick did not mention the budgets for the Juvenile Probation fund nor the 222nd District Adult Supervision fund because these two funds have a combination of money from the state and county. The juvenile fund also receives money from Hereford Independent School District.

With a stagnant tax base like Deaf Smith County's, the county budget can become difficult to maintain and it is difficult to compete against larger counties with expanding tax bases, Warrick said.

"It is hard to stay on top of the low tax base, but we are, so things are good."

HRMC picked to help reach uninsured kids

■ Texas Healthy Kids project targets poor working families

A coalition of 20 hospital affiliates, including Hereford Regional Medical Center, serving 29 counties in Texas has been selected by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) for a pilot program intended to reach working families without health insurance for their children.

The Coalition of Health Services (CHS),

The Coalition of Health Services (CHS), based in Claude, was one of 15 applicants funded nationwide and the only one in the state of Taxas. The coalition's outreach workers plan a variety of events in each county to promote Taxas Health Kids, a new way for parents to get access to quality care for their children.

More than 11 million children in the United States and 1.4 million in Texas have no health insurance. Based on Texas Health & Human Services Commission statistics, an estimated 35,000 children in the 29county area are uninsured. Studies show that children with insurance are healthier and do better in school. Parents with insurance save out-of-pecket money and miss less Texas has created three new programs that make it easier for families to get health insurance. Texas Healthy Kids is available to many families with a monthly income of up to $2,500. It covers many medical services, including examinations, shots, doctor's visits, prescription drugs, and dental care.

To get the world out about Texas Healthy

Kids and to get them enrolled, the coalition will send out the CARE Van to football and volleyball games in the 29 counties. Other campaign efforts include high school cheerleading contests and a coloring/art con-test for elementary and middle schools.

■ White House sends budget director to meet with committees

WASHINGTON (AP) -Clinton administration officials and congressional budget-writers seem ready to resume talks on a string of spending bills after a day of caustic partisan exchanges.

White House Budget Director Jack Lew was expected at the Capitol today, two days after his first session with leaders of the House and Senate appropriations committees. Since then, the two sides have done little but accuse each other of spending Social Security surpluses, and complaining about each other's at-

"To all of the Democrats who want to raise taxes or raid Social Security to balance the budget, the Republican Congress says no," House Majority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Texas, said at a news conference Thursday.

Comments like that - and television ads the House GOP's campaign committee has run in some Democrats' districts - have drawn Democratic ire.

"As long as Republicans let Tom DeLay drive the boat, we're going to be locked in a bad disagreement," said House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo.

Meanwhile, Republicans seemed on the brink of pushing the last of the 13 spending bills for the new fiscal year through Congress, a measure providing the departments of Health and Human Services, Labor and Education with more than $310 billion. Should they succeed, Republicans would consider that a major tactical victory, letting them assert that they finished their spending business without touching Social Security's reserves. Democrats say the bills do dip into Social Security, citing reports from the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office.

Clinton has threatened to veto the labor-education bill, one of five he has vetoed or threatened to veto. The measure ignores most of his $1.4 billion plan to hire teachers, instead providing $1.2 billion to states for a range of educa tion programs.

To keep their spending bills from eating into Social Security surpluses — the GOP's primary budget goal of the year - Republican leaders were making final decisions on the roughly $5 billion in savings they will need.

The bulk of it — about $4.3 billion — will come from an across-the-board cut in all spending bills, said Republicans speaking on condition of anonymity. They say such a reduction would be barely felt, which Democrats contest.

High school students who take music lessons and join theater groups do better in math, reading, history, geography and citizenship, according to a study of Education Department data to be published today. "If young Americans are to succeed and to contribute to what Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan describes as our 'economy of ideas,' they will need an education that develops imaginative, flexible and tough-minded thinking," Education Secretary Richard Riley said in a message accompanying the study. "The arts powerfully nurture the ability to think in this manner."

The study, which tracked more than 25,000 students for more than 10 years, found that students who reported consistently high levels of involvement with instrumental music scored significantly higher on math tests by the 12th grade.

This observation held true for students regardless of their parents' income, occupations

WASHINGTON (AP) - If and levels of education, said James S. Catterall, the lead author and an education professor at the University of California, Los Angeles.

While 38.6 percent of higher-income students who were uninvolved in music scored high in math, 48 percent of those highly interested in music received the high marks.

"Kids who are more advantaged tend to be more involved in the arts. Pe-They riod. have more opportunities and you'd expect them to do better," Catterall said in an interview.

But the influence of music was far more pronounced among lower-income students.

Among the lower-income students without music involvement, only 15.5 percent achieved high math scores. But of the musically oriented group, more than twice as many excelled in math. "It's not a matter of economic advantage. It's a matter of something happening with the arts for the kids, Catterall said.

The study also found that as students progress through high school they are less likely to be involved in the arts.

No evidence in slayings

AUSTIN (AP) — No physical evidence links two suspects to the 1991 slaying of four teen-age girls at a yogurt shop, investigators say.

In testimony Thursday, Austin police detective Ron Lara said Forrest Welborn, 23, of Lockhart, and Maurice Pierce, 24, of Lewisville, are connected to the crime only by the confessions of two additional suspects.

Lara said items were being analyzed by the Department of Public Safety, but that the results had not come back yet. Lara did not describe the evidence.

Welborn and Pierce were arrested Oct. 6 along with Michael James Scott, 25, of Buda, and Robert Burns Springsteen, Jr.,

24, of Charleston, W.Va. The four men have been charged with capital murder in connection to the murders of Eliza Hope Thomas, 17; Amy Ayers, 13; Jennifer Harbison, 17; and Jennifer's sister Sarah Harbison, 15, at an I Can't Believe It's Yogurt! store on Dec. 6,

Each of the girls were shot in the head. Miss Thomas and Jennifer Harbison worked at the store, which was set on fire after they were killed.

Cross burnings worry residents

SAN AUGUSTINE, Texas (AP) — East Texas residents who have sighted burning crosses, one in front of a church, are worried about what has become a symbol of intolerance in advance of a third trial in a race-related slaying.

Less than 50 miles away from San Augustine County is Jasper, the site of a black man's dragging death. A third suspect in the slaying is scheduled to face trial Monday on capital murder charges.

The FBI and San Augustine County sheriff's deputies are investigating the two burnings, which were reported within two weeks of each other.

Sheriff's officials told The Daily Sentinel (Nacogdoches) the first cross burning — at a white woman's house — was an isolated incident likely meant to be taken as a prank. But less than two weeks later, a cross was set ablaze on the grounds of a small, predominantly black church nestled in the country near parkland.

C.J. Jones, a longtime Pisgah Baptist Church member, said members and a few visitors meet every third Wednesday night for prayer meeting and every third Sunday morning for

Former president releases letters

HOUSTON (AP) — Thousands of pages of former President George Bush's letters, diaries and other personal documents have become available to journalists, scholars and other researchers.

The documents cover a 36-year period, from World War II until just prior to Bush's terms as vice president. Bush had already agreed to donate his papers to the George Bush Presidential Library and Museum at Texas A&M University in College Station a few years ago.

But more recently, he agreed to release his personal items for study — and unlike other former presidents, before his

"It tells us a lot about him, that he does want people to come and study his life," David Alsobrook, executive director of the Bush facility, told the Houston Chronicle.

Included in the collection are Bush's memos, as chairman of the national Republican Party, to the Republican president, Richard Nixon, in the year and a half before Nixon's resignation in August 1974.

In one of the memos, Bush said Democrat Barbara Jordan, serving then as the first black Congress member from Houston, had volunteered as a secret, unofficial political consultant for the GOP.

No voucher in new education

WASHINGTON (AP) — House lawmakers took the first step toward renewing the nation's largest education law without endorsing a move toward private-school choice.

The House voted 358-67 Thursday to pass a bipartisan $9.9 billion plan known as Title I aimed at boosting the achievement of 10.5 million poor and otherwise disadvantaged school children.

Affecting a quarter of U.S. schoolchildren in nearly half of the nation's schools, the five-year plan would provide books, teachers, computers and other help if signed into law.

Republican leaders have long argued the federal government interferes too often in the running of lccal schools. On Thursday, the GOP lost bids to give federal aid directly to parents for vouchers, but won passage of a separate bill giving 10 states in a pilot proplying with Title I and other federal school programs.

"I am pleased that a solid bipartisan majority in the House voted to reject the false promise of vouchers," said President Clinton, who promised to tinker with the Title I

Title I and the other education programs under the 34year-old Elementary and Secondary Education Act have yet to come before the Senate.

Clinton and Democrats were heartened by 52 Republicans who helped them defeat, 257-166, a plan by House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, that would spend $100 million a year to let children in lowperforming schools attend private and parochial schools with $3,500 vouchers.

Rep. Bill Goodling, R-Pa., chairman of the House Education and the Workforce Committee, also declared victory. gram more freedom in com- He said he had long believed the federal level weren't work-

"Today we passed Title I and for the first time we are demanding accountability," said Goodling, who voted against the voucher plan.

A second bill, pushed all year by the House GOP leadership with busloads of smiling youngsters at photo opportunities, was meant to free any willing state from federal rules. But on Thursday moderate Republicans cut a deal with conservatives to limit the program to an experiment for 10 states — many of them run by Republican governors who want to be free of the Education Department regulations.

The Academic Achievement for All Act, or "Straight A's," was passed 213-208, under threat of veto. Democrats say it just turns the programs into a lump sum of money that that education programs on states could use on children who are neither poor nor lowachieving.

> As the two parties roll into an election year, they have scrambled to prove their worth on the popular topic of educa-

> "I came to this Congress to make education a priority, not to make it a political issue," charged Rep. Bob Etheridge, D-N.C., who opposed Straight A's bill.

Some educators criticized the Title I bill for making too little change in the program.

"The so-called 'reforms' in this package, while not harmful, don't amount to a hill of beans," said Chester E. Finn Jr., president of the Fordham Foundation national education research group and a former education official under the Reagan administration. "Every important idea for real change has been defeated."

FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS

Bountiful" is all about going home. With one eye on Bountiful and the other on the lectionary Psalm (90), Pastor Nathan L. Stone, Ph.D., will preach a sermon entitled, "Beyond Bountiful." If time and logistics will allow, a portion of "Trip to Bountiful" will be shown in worship at 10:30. Gathered worship concludes no later than 11:30. Worship continues wherever the people eat, converse, hug, love, play with a pet and observe this beautiful earth.

FOB likes to consider herself not religious in the traditional, creedal, dogmatized, institutional sense. Rather, FOB prefers being thought of as spiritual in the sense of being attuned to the nuances of Love, allowing for the imperfections of being human and open to the surprises of change and all that is mystical. One of FOB's primary concerns is for those good people who find organized religion irrelevant, ineffectual and repressive.

Sunday morning snacks (homemade and delicious) are served at 9:15. Sunday school follows with unique and innovative classes for younger children (ages 3-5), older children (ages 6-9), and youth (ages 10-14). Mendoza scored twice in the first quarter. The first one was a 4-yard run. The other was a 26yard touchdown pass from Tyson Yosten. Nick Foster's run gave the Whitefaces two points on the conversion.

The other touchdown was scored by Russell Carr, who caught a 48-yard pass form Stewart Carr. Barrett Abernathy's extra point kick put the final points on the board.

The 9th 'A' team improves to 5-2-1 on the season.

Longhorns still enamored by Cornhusker fans

By Jim Vertuno The Associated Press

AUSTIN (AP) - First came the stunned silence. Then came the standing ovation that Texas coach Mack Brown will remember forever. A year after Texas stopped Nebraska's 47-game home winning streak with a 20-16 victory, the Longhorns are still talking about how well they were treated by Nebraska fans. third-ranked The Cornhuskers (6-0, 3-0 Big 12) come to Austin Saturday for the first time since 1960 in what has developed into one of the Big 12's best new rival-ries. Duncan to lead Spurs in '99-'00, but for how long?

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The big man with the mean jump hook, killer bank shot and deadly serious stare is back to try to lead the Spurs to a second straight NBA championship.

Even if Tim Duncan reaches that goal there's no guarantee he'll return for a shot at a third ring. After this season, Duncan could be done in San Antonio.

"I'm keeping my options open," said Duncan, in the last season of his three-year contract. "At the end of the year, I'll figure out if I'm going to be here or somewhere else."

The Orlando Magic and Chicago Bulls are two of the teams that will have enough salary cap room to make a run at the 7foot All-Star, who led the Spurs to their first title in June and won the most valuable player award in the finals.

The man considered the best player in the league says his decision will be based partly on a Nov. 2 vote in Bexar County on construction of a new basketball arena. That vote could determine whether the Spurs remain in the city, and Duncan has indicated he wants to know where the team will play before committing to another contract.

It's widely known, for instance, that Duncan and Orlando coach Doc Rivers are friends. The chance to play for Rivers, who was a Spurs broadcaster last season, could be a big draw for Duncan next summer.

"That's overblown," Rivers said. "Guys are going to do what they want to do. There's nothing I can do to talk a guy into coming or leaving. They have a championship team and I don't see that changing anytime soon." Before accepting the Orlando job in June, Rivers informally guided Duncan and other Spurs in workouts during the NBA lockout, when coaches weren't allowed to have contact with

"I know him. He's a good guy. I worked out with him a bit during the lockout. That's about it," Duncan said.

The NBA's tampering rule prohibits coaches and players from trying to entice players under contract to other teams.

Former Spur Will Perdue, now with Chicago, was admonished by the league recently for comments he made about Duncan possibly joining the Bulls after his San Antonio contract is up.

"Tim Duncan is not married to San Antonio by any means," Perdue said. "He's made that very clear."

If Duncan changed his mind and wanted to sign a contract extension with the Spurs, he'd have to do it by Oct. 31, two days before the season begins. He could get a six-year extension for $70.9 million, or a seven-year deal next summer worth $86 million.

Other teams could pay him a comparable amount, although not quite as much, under the league's collective bargaining rules.

"It's not a matter of money," Duncan said. "I figure I'll make pretty good money anywhere.'

The Spurs had the NBA's best record last season and lost just twice in the playoffs. But they learned over the summer that small forward Sean Elliott will miss the season following a kidney transplant.

With an aging center, 34-year-old David Robinson, and a starting backcourt featuring journeymen Avery Johnson and Mario Elie, the Spurs don't have a supporting cast that would ensure a dynasty even if Duncan stayed.

Robinson believes his frontcourt partner will stay with the Spurs if the team is successful this season. In Orlando or Chicago, Duncan would be part of a major rebuilding project.

"I'm not really that worried about it, because if you keep winning, there's nobody in the world that would leave a situation like that," Robinson said.

Spurs coach Gregg Popovich doesn't blame Duncan for waiting to make a decision.

"Where each of us lives our life is pretty important to all of us," Popovich said. "So, if I'm in his shoes I wait until the end of the year when I'm a free agent and I make my decision then based on a lot of different factors."

Duncan, the No. 1 draft pick in 1997 out of Wake Forest, lived up to expectations — and then some — in his first two seasons.

In 1998, he was rookie of the year. Last season he finished third behind Karl Malone and Alonzo Mourning in most valuable player voting, although many ballots were turned in before Duncan led the Spurs to the championship.

Duncan was the only player last season in the top 10 in scoring average (21.7 points), rebounding (11.4), blocked shots (2.52) and field-goal percentage (49.5).

With a jam-packed summer, first with the NBA Finals and then playing for the U.S. team in the Olympic qualifying tournament, Duncan had a short offseason and little time to work on his game — not that he really needs to.

Marquez, Kendra Wright, Catie Betzen. Whoa, the list goes on and on and on.

With stars like that, of course, the team was not as wellrounded.

But this year's Lady Whitefaces, thanks to the leadership of Walker, have become more team-oriented.

"Everybody contributes more and everybody does their job to get where they want to be," Walker said.

Did we mention volleyball is a team sport?

This young and underrated team has been able to do something the star-studded teams with all those legends could not accomplish.

These young Lady White-faces, led by Walker, captured Hereford's first district championship since 1995.

But that doesn't mean she's learned from the best. She had to pick up a few things along the

"I learned a lot. You just learn to communicate better on the court, and how to play more intense," Walker said. "It's very different what you learn. You just learn a lot from the upper class and that's what I try to do is teach and be a good leader to the team."

That has resulted in Walker leading the Lady Whitefaces in kills, averaging 14 per game.

Things can only get better for the Lady Whitefaces from now on, if they want it. They wanted a district championship and they earned it. It's a different feeling not being second banana to Dumas.

"It's a whole lot different because it's the first time we've won district out right since '95. It's a good feeling when we're at the usual place where most teams should be at this point." Walker and the Lady White-faces now have even loftier goals, something they have lacked in the last few games. They need the intensity back, but Walker knows, like the leader she is, that they will be back.

"Our goal right now is to pick up the intensity in practice because I know it will carry on into the games," Walker said.
"For the playoffs, just to be well prepared and not have anything come as a surprise for us.

There's no one better to jumpstart the intensity than the SUPERDUPERSTAR herself, Tori Walker.

Oh, by the way, guess who got a $1,000 scholarship from the High School Extra show on Fox Sports Southwest?

Changes of addresses, attitudes for Yankees, Braves

Teams duke it out for championship

ATLANTA (AP) — A lot has changed since the New York Yankees last came south for the World Series.

The old stadium is just a parking lot now, with painted lines where the basepaths used to be. Jimmy Key and Cecil Fielder are out of baseball. Mark Wohlers and Marquis Grissom are out of At-

"I don't think we're going to spend a lot of time figuring out what's the difference between now and 1996," Braves pitcher Tom Glavine said Thursday.

Glavine will start against Orlando "El Duque" Hernandez, MVP of the AL Championship Series, in Game 1 Saturday night at Turner Field.

The addresses have switched, and so have the attitudes going into a rematch of the '96 Series, won by New York in six games.

"That team wasn't sure if it was good enough to beat the Braves," said pitcher David Cone, one of 12 Yankees left from that club. "We had never done it before. Now we have the experience to know what we can do."

First baseman Tino Martinez said: "That year we were the underdogs. We wanted to win, but this year we expect to win."

Chipper Jones is one of only eight Braves still remaining.

"We're a lot closer as a team, we're a lot tighter,' the third baseman said. "We didn't have a lot of injuries '96, we didn't have a lot of adversity."

The Braves only setback came that season after they won the first two games of the World Series at New York. Back home, in the final three games ever at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, they lost three in a row to the Yankees.

In the pivotal play of the series. Jim Leyritz hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning on a hanging breaking ball from Wohlers in Game 4. The long drive sailed over the glove of left fielder Andruw Jones.

That was a mistake that he hit it," Jones said after Thursday's workout. "But I don't remember that stuff. That was 1996 and this is 1999. I'm hoping things go differently."

The defending champion Yankees are trying to win their third championship in four years. Atlanta is hoping to win its second title in the '90s - and avoid becoming the first team to lose four World Series in a decade since the New York Giants from 1910-19.

The Braves won two of three at Yankee Stadium in July during interleague play. But slugger Ryan Klesko, who homered twice in one of those games, said that won't have much effect on what happens in October.

Klesko said the results from 1996 won't play a role, either. "I think we've changed a lot more than they have."

To be on the safe side, however, Klesko planned to watch tapes Thursday night from that other World Series with the Yankees. He was limited to a lone single in 10 at-bats in that matchup.

Cone will start Game 2 for New York against Greg Maddux. When the series moves back to Yankee Stadium, it will be Atlanta's Kevin Millwood against Andy Pettitte in Game 3 and then John Smoltz vs. Roger Clemens in Game 4.

Among the pitchers missing from 1996 Series are World Series MVP John Wetteland and Key from the Yankees and Denny Neagle, Steve Avery and Wonlers from the Braves.

Gone from the starting lineup in Game 1 that year are Grissom, Mark Lemke, Fred McGriff, Jermaine Dye and Jeff Blauser from the Braves — catcher Javy Lopez is injured — and Wade Boggs, Mariano Duncan and Fielder from the Yankees.

"There's not a whole lot of guys left on the teams," Maddux said. "All that matters now is 1999."

Horns

Dominic Raiola said. "They're this high-and-mighty deal. I don't like that song either."

Texas players and coaches sing "The Eyes of Texas" after every game. After beating Nebraska last year, Texas players hoisted Brown on their shoulders.

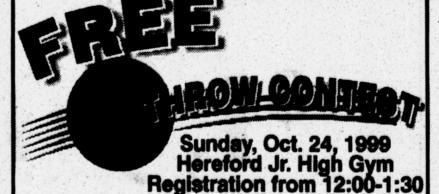

"I had my helmet on. My head down," Raiola said. "It was cloudy and kind of dark. It made me disgusted to hear

"I hate Texas," center that song. It made me sick to see them celebrating on our field."

Texas players are more re-served. They say last year's game means little to them.

"We have done some things against them the past two years, but it doesn't mean anything this season," Texas cornerback Ahmad Brooks said.

"If we want to be Big 12 contenders, we have to beat

Tagliabue visits Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue once questioned Houston's commitment to professional football. Bob McNair gave him 700 million reasons to convince him otherwise.

Tagliabue, making his first public appearance here since owners voted earlier this month to return to Houston in 2002, said he doesn't regret owners' decision to choose the nation's 11th-largest television market over No. 2 Los Angeles.

As Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams was preparing to move the team to Tennessee three years ago and disillusioned fans spurned the team, Tagliabue intimated at the time the city showed less desire for football as counterparts Cleveland and Baltimore.

On Thursday, Tagliabue praised fans, political leaders and McNair, whose $700 million bid earlier this month coupled with an upcoming $310 million retractable roof stadium - steamrollered Los Angeles' halfhearted attempts.

McNair, whose businesses are based atop the landmark Pennzoil Building downtown, is building an NFL information center in the lobby, complete with a sample luxury suite that should be ready in December.

McNair hopes to have 75 of the 146 planned luxury boxes sold by Jan. 15. The team's Web site already has gotten about 3 million hits, and more than 63,000 fans have asked about season tickets.

Groundbreaking in the Astrodome parking lot for the proposed 69,500-seat stadium is set for March, which is when the team's nickname will be announced. Fans will get their say on the name in a coordinated media effort scheduled to begin soon.

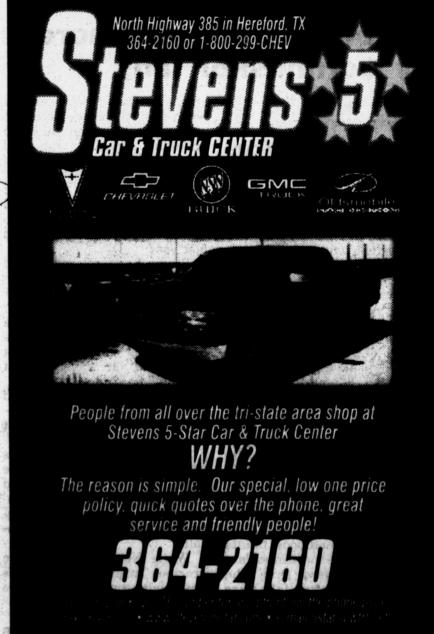

The Houston Texans is considered the favorite, but McNair said he's open to suggestions, which are pouring in from the Internet, letters to the Houston Chronicle and calls to sports talk shows.

Financial giant suing over a Web address

NEW YORK (AP) - A rose called by any other name might smell as sweet, but for a financial services giant, having to come up with another Web address because someone else owns the one it wants just stinks.

Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Co. is suing the 17year-old creator of the www.msdwonline.com site, saying the Web address infringes on the company's trademarks and asking a judge to stop him from using it.

Ivan Wong of Hillsborough, Calif., said his site, "Mud Sweat's Downhill World," is named after the store that sold him his mountainbike, Mud, Sweat and Gears. The similarity to Morgan Stanley's main site, www.msdw.com, was just a coincidence, he

Baptist booklet offends Hindus

NEW YORK (AP) - Millions of Hindus worship in the darkness of Satan, the nation's largest Protestant denomination contends in a new booklet urging its members to pray for millions of Hindu souls. The Southern Baptist Convention has previously published booklets soliciting prayers for Muslims and Jews, offending leaders of those faiths.

Now, some 30,000 booklets to be issued Monday in time for Divali, the major Hindu festival of lights, calls for the conversion of those "who worship gods which are not God." The booklet says that Hindus have no concept of sin or personal responsibility.

"Pray that the darkness and the power of Satan will be broken," the guide says.

The language in this publication is harsher than was used in the earlier booklets, said Louis Moore, the book's final editor. "There is a clearer definition that Hindus are lost," he said. "We're all lost without Jesus Christ."

Divali is a major festival, dedicated to the worship of Laksmi, goddess of prosperity and goodness.

The timing of the publication is profoundly insulting, said Umaa Mysorekar, the secretary-treasurer of the Council of Hindu Temples. She called the thinking "not only absurd but also ignorant. I don't think Jesus himself would have said not to respect other religions."

Claims of Hindus in darkness and in Satan's grip also offend

"The lightness is within us ... There are no satanic activities, she said. "All the fundamental mythologies in Hinduism represent righteousness."

Hari Sharma, president of the Hindu Temple of Greater Chicago, agreed.

"Whoever publishes such a book does a disservice to the society," he said. "People should understand one another's religions, not go back into history when we were attacking one another."

Moore said that earlier books on prayers were misrepresented as aggressive evange-

"We're not encouraging people to go out on the streets and buttonhole every Hindu they see," the editor said. "But it would be wonderful if the opportunity arises.'

Moore has no idea whether earlier books led to conversions. "No records are being kept," he said. "The records are in heaven."

A guide offering prayers for Buddhists is planned.

DOVER, N.H. (AP - Vice President Al Gore was chirping along, deftly fielding questions from undecided voters he hoped to woo when stopped him dead in his tracks. Giving a human face to the purported "Clinton fatigue" that some say has hurt Gore's quest for the 2000 Democratic presidential nomination, the 42-year-old administrative assistant told the vice president Thursday that she was disappointed in President Clinton for his affair with Monica Lewinsky.

Malizia declared she was looking for a leader who was "an honest man but a moral man," and with her 14-yearold daughter, Kendra, seated by her side, she stated: "I want your viewpoint on that."

Gore, his voice dropping noticeably, replied: "I want to Question stops him in his tracks.

Laurrie Malizia stood up and take my own values of faith and family to the presidency. I understand the disappointment that you feel, and I felt it myself. I think most people want to look to the future, turn that page and move on. So, all I can do is tell you about myself and about my commitment to you."

With that, Gore recounted his personal history, his 29year marriage and spoke proudly of his four children and first grandson, born on the Fourth of July.

Afterwards, Malizia said that she liked Gore's answer but would still think about Gary Bauer, the Republican conservative activist, before making a primary choice.

Bush backers' ads target Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — A series of television ads running in Washington and New Hampshire and mocking the Democratic presidential candidates are being paid for by the moderate Republican Lead-ership Council. The group includes many supporters of Texas Gov. George W. Bush, who is leading his rivals for the GOP presidential nomination.

More than half of the council's advisory board — 13 of 23 — have endorsed Bush. and several RLC leaders are raising money for Bush or chairing his state campaigns.

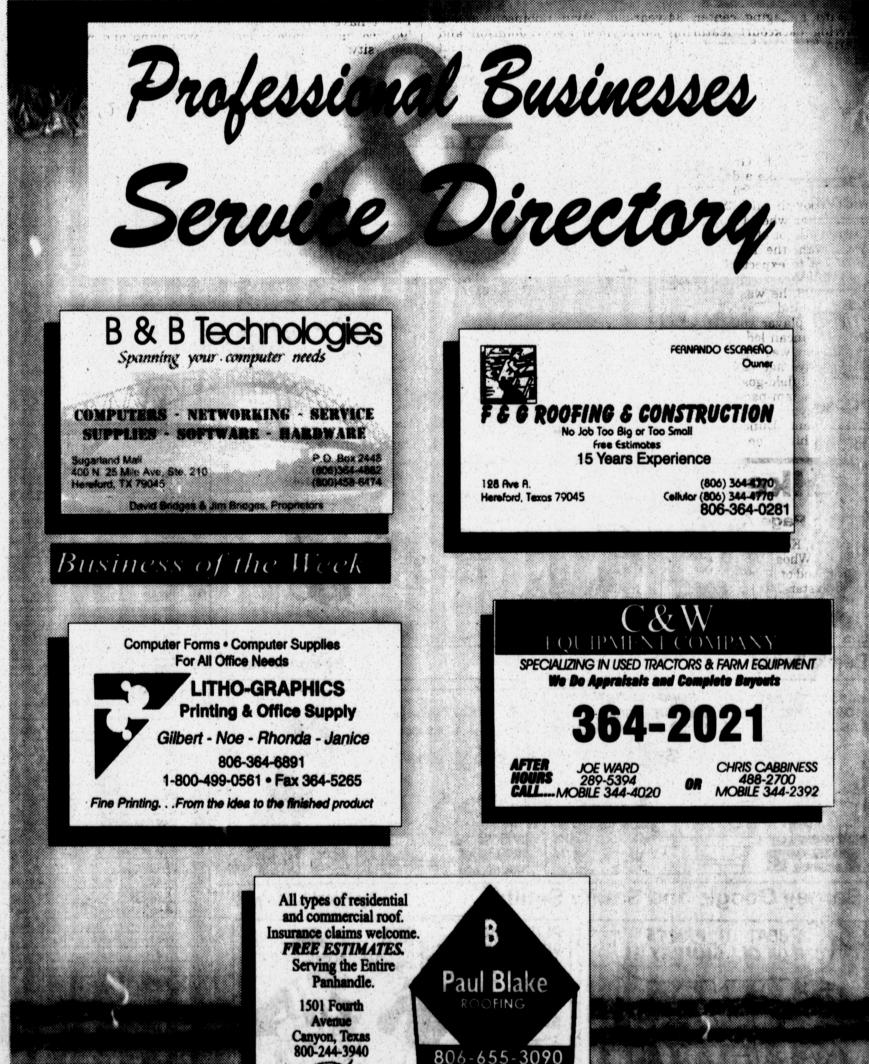

The ads are not covered by federal election laws since they do not specifically urge viewers to vote against Vice President Al Gore or Bill Bradley. Democratic National Committee officials questioned the arrangement Thursday.

"These new revelations make it look like George W.

Bush is using third-party groups to run ads more than a year before the election," said DNC spokeswoman Jenny Backus. "The close ties between his campaign and the RLC are going to raise some serious questions and deserve close investigation."

Mark Miller, the council's executive director, denied any link between the $150,000 ad buy and the Bush campaign. The ads are running in advance of next week's New Hampshire debate between Gore and Bradley.

"There's going to be a lot of talk about this debate," said Miller. "What they're really going to debate is how much money they're going to spend on this program or that program. We think that it's important to highlight the issues that the Republican Leadership Council promotes: lower taxes, less government and more freedom."

Mandela gave the assembly a hearty "Shalom" — Hebrew ARCHBISHOP TUTU "peace" and

Abortion vote said to expose the 'extremists'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans and Democrats alike said new Senate votes on abortion exposed the chamber's "extremists.

In votes Thursday that are likely to provide fodder for the 2000 elections, the Senate went on record supporting the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion. Later, it passed a bill that would outlaw a certain type of late-term abortions.

"This is going to be an absolutely huge issue next year," Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., said of the 51-47 vote that declared that the high court's Roe vs. Wade ruling established "an important constitutional right" and should not be overturned.

"Now we see the extremists in the Senate," Boxer said.
The nonbinding resolution was an amendment to the lateterm abortion bill. That bill, which was sponsored by Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., later passed 63-34, four votes short of what would be needed to overcome a promised veto by President Clinton, if all 100 senators voted.

Republican Sens. Connie Mack of Florida and Judd Gregg of New Hampshire who both voted yes in last year's override attempt - were absent Thursday.

GOP presidential front-runner George W. Bush applauded the Senate "for its vote to end the inhumane practice of partial-birth abortion. I urge President Clinton to ... sign this bill."

Vice President Al Gore, the front-runner for the 2000 Democratic nomination, said,

"Today's vote by the Republicans in the U.S. Senate should serve as a wake-up call to all Americans as to what is truly at stake in this election.

Santorum's bill would ban certain late-term abortions unless the mother's life was endangered by her pregnancy. Clinton, who has vetoed two earlier bans, also opposed Santorum's bill because it lacked an exception for a woman whose health, not life, was endangered.

Santorum described the debate as a moral attack on a brutal medical procedure that involves partially delivering a live fetus before emptying its skull and killing it.

"This is not an attempt to change or overturn Roe vs. Wade," he said. "At least we should be able to draw the line that when a child is in the process of being born, it's too late to have an abortion."

But Democrats declared a political victory based on the Roe vs. Wade amendment.

"It is the sense of the Congress that Roe v. Wade was an appropriate decision and secures an important constitutional right and such a decision should not be overturned." read the resolution sponsored by Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa, for whom the late-term abortion issue caused trouble in his bid for a third term.

With the passage of the Roe vs. Wade amendment, Democrats need not fear the late-term abortion issue. Harkin said.

Eight Republicans joined 43 of the chamber's 45 Democrats in support of the Roe vs. Wade resolution.

SEN. KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Her vote Thursday in the Senate's first-ever referendum on Roe vs. Wade appeared to clarify peoples' views of her abortion stance.

Vote clarifies some views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kay Bailey Hutchison has long been a magnet for criticism for her views on abortion, drawing the ire of activists on both sides of the divide for positions that don't fall neatly into either camp.

But with her vote Thursday in the Senate's first-ever referendum on Roe vs. Wade, the Texas Republican appeared to clarify peoples' views of her abortion stance.

Her opposition to a resolution affirming Senate support for the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion pleased the anti-abortion forces that engaged in a highprofile battle against her in Texas. And abortion-rights groups said the vote offers conclusive proof that she is allied against their cause.

"Sen. Hutchison is not prochoice, never has been pro-choice," said Kate Michelman, president of the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League. "The good thing about her vote today is it clearly defines her anti-choice views.

Bill Price, head of Texans United for Life, said: "It was a courageous vote."

The senator herself, however, refused to attach significance to a vote that its Democratic sponsor acknowledged was engineered as a wedge issue for the 2000 campaign - in which Mrs. Hutchison and a third of the Senate are up for re-election.

"These are political attempts to make people have tough votes," she said. Mrs. Hutchison reiterated her opposition to a constitutional amendment banning

Roe vs. Wade. "I would not vote to repeal Roe vs. Wade as it stands today," she said in an interview. But she voiced her support for "reasonable" restrictions such as bans on lateterm abortions and federal funding - stances that have earned her a "zero" rating from NARAL.

Mrs. Hutchison said she voted against the non-binding resolution offered by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, because she disagreed with its findings.

The resolution reads: "It is the sense of the Congress that Roe vs. Wade was an appropriate decision and secures an important constitutional right and such a decision should not be overturned."

Voting for the resolution, which narrowly passed the Senate on a 51-48 vote, "would have wedded me to language that I could not say ... that I could support," she said.

House takes its first step toward a review of Title I

WASHINGTON (AP) - House lawmakers took the first step toward renewing the nation's largest education law

without endorsing a move toward private-school choice.

The House voted 358-67 Thursday to pass a bipartisan $9.9 billion plan known as Title I aimed at boosting the achievement of 10.5 million poor and otherwise disadvantaged school children.

Affecting a quarter of U.S. schoolchildren in nearly half of the U.S. schools, the five-year plan would provide books, teachers, computers and other help if signed into law.

Republican leaders have long argued the federal government interferes too often in the running of local schools. On Thursday, the GOP lost bids to give federal aid directly to parents for vouchers, but won passage of a separate bill giving 10 states in a pilot program more freedom in complying with Title I and other federal school programs.

(U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, a Lubbock Republican whose 19th District includes Deaf Smith County, voted for the

"I am pleased that a solid bipartisan majority in the House voted to reject the false promise of vouchers," said President Clinton, who promised to tinker with the Title I

Title I and the other education programs under the 34-year-old El-ementary and Secondary Education Act have yet to come before the

Clinton and Democrats were heartened by 52 Republicans who helped them defeat, 257-166, a plan by House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, that would spend $100 million a year to let children in low-performing schools attend private and parochial schools with $3,500 vouchers.

Rep. Bill Goodling, R-Pa., chairman of the House Education and the Workforce Committee, also desired victory.
He said he had long believed that education programs on the federal level weren't working.

A second bill, pushed all year by the House GOP
opportunities, was meant to free any willing state from federal rules. But on Thursday moderate Republicans cut a deal with conservatives to limit the program to an experiment for 10 states.

Writing want ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/ products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

· Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

· Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition. Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best save-money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are times to reach you.

GOP, Demos agree on financial service overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — After days of grueling negotia-tions, key Republican lawmakers have reached agreement with Democrats and administration officials on community lending rules for banks, lifting the specter of a veto of major legislation overhauling the financial services laws.

The accord came in the wee hours today after the latest in a series of marathon closeddoor meetings that have gone on through much of the week. Lawmakers and Treasury Department officials emerged after midnight from a five-hour closed door meeting early today and announced the compromise. They then presented the deal to a group of House and Senate negotiators considering the financial services am for the first time optimistic that we will pass, after a long time, financial services legislation," said Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "In 19 years, we are the closest we have ever been to actually achieving a bill."

Final approval of the legis-lative package by the negotiators could come in the next few days. It would lift Depression-era legal barriers and allow banks, brokerage firms and insurance companies to merge and sell each other's products. The administration supports the package in principle but has threatened a veto over provisions it says would weaken the 1977 Community Reinvestment Act, which requires banks to make loans in low-income and minority areas in which they operate. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who drafted the provisions, is a longtime critic of the 1977 law and has blocked efforts to expand its reach in the new legislation.
