Bradley closes gap with Gore

WASHINGTON (AP) — The race for the Democratic presidential nomination, which has grown close in early primary states like New Hampshire and New York, now is growing tighter nationally.

While Bill Bradley is closing the gap on the Democratic front-runner, Vice President Al Gore, both remain behind George W. Bush, the leader among Republican presidential candidates, in a CNN/USA Today/Gallup poll released Monday.

Gore had the support of 51 percent while Bradley, a former senator from New Jersey, had 39 percent among people likely to vote in a Democratic

Residents don't like these newcomers

Waddling along a country road, their white stripe acting as a warning beacon, skunks certainly have their place. They kill mice, and snakes and even eat snake eggs.

Long before they are seen, though, their pungent odor announces their unwelcome arrival.

Unfortunately for a number of Hereford residents, these furry black and white cousins of the weasel have decided to move into town, leaving behind the quiet country roads.

Hereford Animal Control officer Xavier Frausto said his office has received more calls this year about skunks being in town than in all the previous years combined.

"We've trapped six so far," Frausto said. "I'm not really sure why they are coming in. Maybe they are going through dumpsters or eating pet food."

Frausto said most calls are coming from the northeast parts of town, especially along 16th Street.

Often the biggest problem is the odor, but many residents are also concerned about diseases which can be transmitted to domestic pets or humans should they suffer a skunk bite.

"None of the trapped skunks have shown any symptom of rabies," Frausto said. "They're night animals and usually caught at night, but if one is seen during the day, it might be sick. We can't tell without sending it off for tests."

Dr. Les Mayes of the Hereford Veterinarian Clinic said the Texas Veterinarian Medical Association confirms there have been no rabies positive skunks in our immediate area.

"We want to stress that residents should not try to catch skunks. Call the animal control office and let them do it. There is always the possibility skunks can carry rabies," Mayes said.

It's a no-win situation for the residents, the animal control officer and especially the skunk when the smelly critters come to town.

Frausto said the department has live traps which it loans to residents who are having a problem with smelly visitors.

Animal control officers set the traps and collect the animals when captured. Unfortunately, the skunk usually sprays at least once, so the resident gets to endure the odor for a number of days.

The animal control officer also take a good chance at getting sprayed.

Captured skunks in the cages are covered tightly with a blanket which helps absorb the odors and are then taken to the animal shelter to be euthanized.

Frausto said that even if this seems cruel, it's the only way to keep the animals out of town. Besides, he doesn't know of a way to release them without being sprayed.

He said there are ways to discourage skunks from making their home under residents' houses and sheds, but there are no foolproof ways to keep

It's not likely Cody Hodges will ever be throwing any passes at this reptile, although the Hereford quarterback did spot the salamander in the open on the field at Demon Stadium in Dumas. The Herd was leaving the field when Hodges spotted the salamander. He picked up the little reptile and moved it to safety away from the football action. Hodges' humanitarian attitude didn't extend to the Dumas Demons on Friday, completing 10 or 12 passes for 207 yards and two TDs as Hereford rolled to a 44-16 victory over its District 3-4A rival.

Farm bailout to benefit large, profitable farms

■ Assistance package eases rules designed to help family farms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the largest, most profitable farms in the country would be among the biggest beneficiaries of Congress' $8.7 billion agricultural assistance package because it loosens rules that were intended to target government payments to family-size operations.

An individual farm could claim up to $460,000 in subsidies a year — double the current restriction — and the legislation creates a new way for producers to get around even that limit.

The new limit would be high enough to cover a giant, 6,000-acre corn farm in the Midwest or a 3,000-acre cotton operation in Texas. The average farm in the country is less than 500 acres.

"It's a terrible idea," said Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D. "I just think that's a sorry state of affairs when we're short of money to help family farms that you have some large producers getting $460,000."

But farm organizations that pushed for raising the subsidy limits say low commodity prices are hurting big farms as well as small ones.

"Producers need to get their income from the marketplace (but) the marketplace simply isn't providing it right now," said Steve Pringle, legislative director of the Texas Farm Bureau, a farmer organization.

The Senate is expected to give final approval to the aid package this week and send it to President Clinton for his signature. The White House has made no threat of a veto. The House passed the legislation Oct. 1.

The payment limits apply to two different programs: crop subsidies that vary according to fluctuations in commodity prices; and annual "market transition" payments, which were guaranteed to producers under the 1996 farm law.

Farmers are technically allowed to receive no more than $75,000 in crop subsidies and $40,000 a year in market transition payments under current law. But many farms, especially in the South, legally claim twice that much because they are divided into different entities. A husband and a wife, for example, can claim separate payments on the same farm.

The aid package would double those caps, so farms could get up to $300,000 in crop subsidies and $160,000 in

"I just asked, 'Do you know about this?' and one teacher jumped up and grabbed the book and threw it against wall and started swearing. At that moment I realized it was a controversial issue."

Terry Mondy, science teacher, Wheeling, Ill.

Confusion clouds the science debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terry Mondy, who's taught high school science for 32 years in Wheeling, Ill., already knows the difficulty teachers will face if they are ever forced to balance evolution and creationism in their classrooms.

Mondy and teachers like him can easily find books on evolution, which describes how life on Earth developed from single-celled organisms over about 3.5 billion years. But his students also ask questions about creationism — a biblical-based view that holds God created life on Earth in six days approximately 6,000 years ago.

He recalled one time when he took a book on creationism to a meeting in the teachers' lounge: "I just asked, 'Do you know about this?' and one teacher jumped up and grabbed the book and threw it against wall and started swearing."

"At that moment I realized it was a controversial issue."

No state can force a public school teacher to teach creationism, the Supreme Court ruled in 1997, citing separation of church and state. And evolution dominates in virtually all public middle school and high school science textbooks.

Clinton widens insurance outreach

Officials use schools to register poor students in federal health programs

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Clinton is directing education and health officials to develop ways of enrolling uninsured children in federal health insurance for the poor through their schools.

Clinton, in a speech to the American Academy of Pediatrics today, was announcing a campaign to reach children eligible for Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program, or CHIP. The program permits states to offer Medicaid or other insurance to children in low-income working families who are not poor enough to qualify for traditional Medicaid.

About half of the more than 10 million children who qualify for the programs are unenrolled, a White House statement said.

Some participating states, including Alabama, Georgia, Indiana, Florida, Illinois and New Jersey, already are using schools to enroll children in the programs.

More than 1,500 schools in 49 states that were asked in August to participate have said they would join the Insure Kids Now campaign, a program launched in February to sign up children for CHIP, the White House said.

This week, the secretaries of health and human services and education will send information to state agencies explaining how schools and state governments can use CHIP reach programs.

Other new recruiting measures include:

- Informing grandparents about their grandchildren's eligibility through annual Social Security cost-of-living-adjustment notices.

- Informing families who seek help filing their tax returns through the Voluntary Income Tax Assistance program.

- A $9.5 million partnership between the Department of Health and Human Services and the David and Lucille Packard Foundation that will research outreach techniques for getting health care to poor children, with a focus on minority youngsters and those with special medical needs.

Clinton planned to sign an executive order instructing the secretaries of health and human services, education and agriculture to report to him in six months on how to institutionalize the school out-

11-year-old in need of counseling

Dear Ann Landers: I am disturbed about the questionable behavior of my stepgranddaughter. "Caitlin" is 11 years old and dresses like an adult, often provocatively. I realize many preteen girls dress inappropriately these days, but Caitlin flaunts her body like no 11-year-old I have ever seen. Recently, her stepfather opened a catalog of men's wear and showed her pictures of well-built, well-endowed males in very brief underwear, which left little to the imagination. He shoved the catalog photos in front of the child and laughingly said, "What do you think of THIS?" She gave him a bored look. Apparently, it was nothing new to her. The girl's reaction, and her stepfather's behavior, disturbed me tremendously.

Caitlin displays her growing sexuality in many ways, including unnatural attention to her younger brother, who is almost 3 years old. My husband sees her as "caring" for her brother. I see other things. I've heard her tell the boy, "Kiss me on the mouth." She then turns his head around and gives him a long kiss. She fondles him, wants to change his pants, and bath him.

Am I crazy to think there is a dangerous trend developing? — Eugene, Oregon

Dear Eugene: This child needs counseling NOW. Do everything you can to see that she gets it. Her highly charged sexuality is distressing, and her stepfather's attitude is downright scary.

Meanwhile, Caitlin should not be left alone with her younger brother. Share this letter with your husband, and ask for his support.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from "C.M. in Milpitas, Calif.," who said the Department of Education lost her file and kept billing her for her student loan. After the mess was finally straightened out, she was harassed by bills demanding she pay a balance of $0. That's right — zero dollars.

This happened to me as well. A financial aid adviser told me that the quickest way to solve this problem was to "pay" the bill, so I sent a check for $0. This is the only way the computer knows to stop sending statement letters. Calling the customer-service centers is useless, because the centers don't always communicate with the billing departments. Since I sent that check, I have not been bothered, but get this, Ann, the billing department actually tried to cash it. — Minneapolis

Dear Mpls.: Is the "billing department" another computer, or a live person? If it's the latter, I'd worry.

Dear Ann Landers: I am now in my 60s, and have been wearing a hearing aid since I was 2 years old. I was made deaf by measles, before we had the vaccine.

Please tell your readers that most people, when they see an individual wearing a hearing aid, immediately raise their voices to the point of yelling. This can be very embarrassing, especially when others are nearby. It has happened to me in restaurants, department stores, supermarkets, gas stations, and so on.

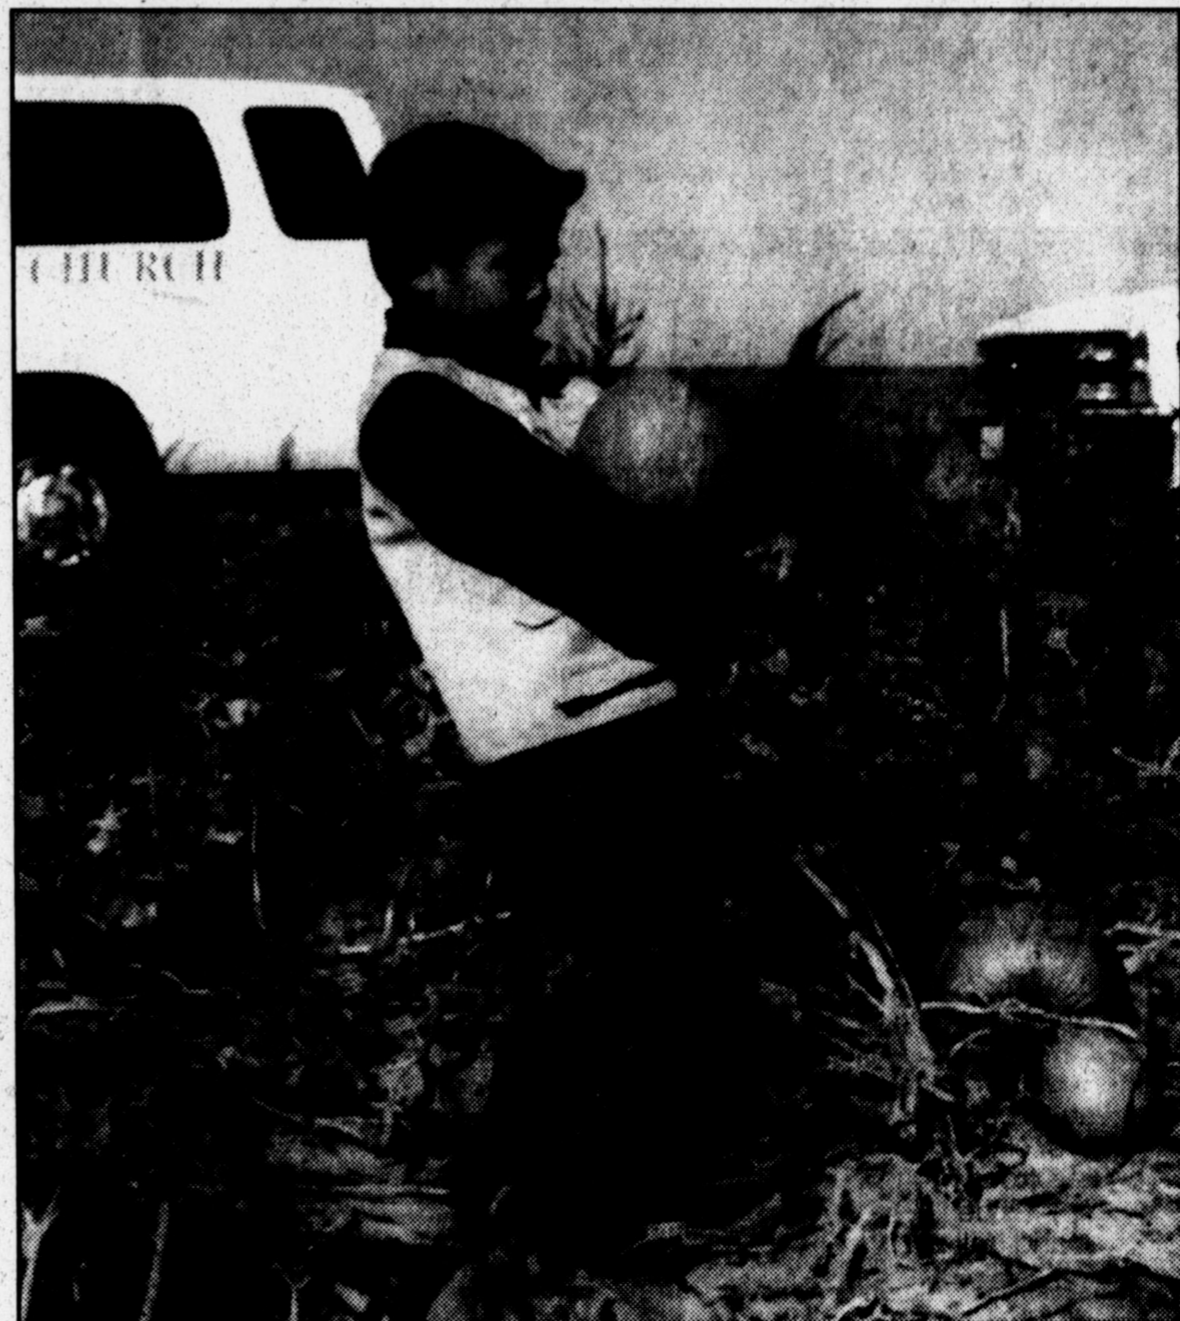

Many times, I have told the speaker, "You don't need to yell. My hearing aid allows me to hear you just fine." It makes no difference. They continue to shout anyway. In many instances, it makes me think that I am not the only one with a hearing problem. I hope you print this, Ann. The public needs to be educated. — L.G. in Sarasota, Fla.

Dear Sarasota: The inclination to speak louder when one spots a hearing aid is natural. What people SHOULD do is speak more distinctly and, if possible, look directly at the person being spoken to. Individuals with defective hearing often become adept at reading lips.

Right internal temperature critical in preventing foodborne illness

Talk temperature with a cook and the image that usually pops to mind is the heating gauge on a kitchen's oven. Bake at 350 degrees - cook slowly at 275 degrees - sear at 425 degrees.

But an even more critical temperature is the one that foods reach internally. Food Safety experts at Texas Department of Health (TDH) say that foods are properly cooked when they are heated long enough and at a high enough temperature to kill harmful bacteria. And those temperatures vary with the type of food.

"The key is to use a meat thermometer for accuracy," Ione Wenzel of the TDH Retail Foods Division said. "It's the one sure way to know that meat and poultry are thoroughly cooked. In addition to preventing foodborne illness, a meat thermometer can help prevent overcooking and provide a gauge to show that foods are being held to the right temperature."

Many cooks, especially those who have been standing over a hot stove for years, use the look and touch method of judging whether a dish is ready to serve.

Are the juices from meat and poultry clear rather than pink? Does the thigh joint of a turkey or chicken move easily? Have the hamburgers turned from red to brown? Is the fish opaque and flake easily with a fork?

"These used to be great indicators of whether food was completely cooked," Wenzel said. "However, we now know from good science that there are times these types of visual indicators can be wrong. Some beef ground into hamburger can turn brown well before it reaches a safe temperature. And although the meat on a turkey leg may be properly cooked, stuffing inside the bird may require more cooking time or a higher temperature to be fully cooked and destroy any harmful bacteria. Also, many microwave ovens have 'cold spots' which can keep parts of a food from reaching safe temperatures."

Using a meat thermometer should be a habit, Wenzel advises, one which takes the guesswork out of cooking safely.

"A meat thermometer can be used for all foods," she said. "It will measure the temperature of casseroles, meat loaves, egg dishes and ham as well as meat and poultry to assure that bacteria such as salmonella and E. coli 0157:H7 have been destroyed."

According to Wenzel, there are several types of meat thermometers available at grocery, hardware or kitchen supply stores. They include:

- Regular, oven-proof thermometers that go in food at the beginning of the cooking time and can be read easily.

- Instant-read and digital types, not intended to go into the oven, but that give a quick reading when inserted into the food after cooking.

- Pop-up thermometers, most often found in turkey. They also may be purchased for other types of meat.

- Microwave-safe thermometers designed to be used only in microwave ovens.

"Whatever the type, be sure the thermometer used is clean and is specifically designed for meat and poultry cooking," Wenzel said. "Others, such as those used in making candy, will not work with meat and poultry. Also, be sure the meat thermometer has an easy-to-read dial, one that is made with stainless steel and has a shatter-proof clear lens."

Most meat thermometers are accurate to within plus or minus two degrees.

"For poultry, insert the meat thermometer into the inner thigh area near the breast but not touching bone," Wenzel said. "For beef, pork, lamb, veal or ham - roasts, steaks or chops - the thermometer should go into the center of the thickest part, away from bone, fat and gristle. For ground meat and poultry, casseroles and egg dishes place the thermometer in the thickest area. Insert the thermometer sideways in thin foods such as patties."

The temperature of stuffing also should be measured, according to Wenzel. At the end of the standing time, the internal temperature of stuffing should reach 165 degrees F. Reheated foods should reach the same 165 degrees F mark. Soups and gravies should be brought to a rolling boil. When holding or serving a buffet, hot cooked foods must remain at 140 degrees F or higher. (And cold foods should be kept at 41 degrees F or lower.)

After each use, wash the stem section of the meat thermometer thoroughly in hot, soapy water.

"A meat thermometer should be as much a part of safe cooking as pot holders and clean utensils," Wenzel said. "It's a habit that can help keep families healthy."

Dumas' Doomsday

Hereford middle hitter Tori Walker spikes a ball toward the Dumas defense Saturday during the Lady Whitefaces 15-6, 17-15 victory. Hereford is now on the right track of winning a 3-4A district title. They travel to Amarillo to face Palo Duro High School.

■ Lady Whitefaces break three-game losing streak at home to Demonettes

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor

"Don't be sad. Don't be blue. We beat you in football, too."

— The Hereford Whiteface football players attending Saturday volleyball match against Dumas.

It was a question who wanted it the most during Saturday's volleyball match between Hereford and Dumas.

In the last four years, they both have split their matches, with the Demonettes having won the last three matches.

But not this time, because the Lady Whitefaces overcame 12 sideouts near the end of the second game of the match and won a classic battle with the Demonettes, 15-6, 17-15.

"We were very aware of us losing on our home court the last four years," setter Audra Witkowski said. "We were just really focused and we didn't want to let them beat us on this court where we put so much work into."

Dumas, like in the first match against the Lady Whitefaces, struck first when block aces from Beth Ratliff and Breanna Breland and a dig error on Valerie Guzman put them up 2-0.

But Hereford would score the next seven points with kills by Witkowski, Tori Walker, Toni Eicke and a couple of defensive errors.

Tiffany Johnson's kill, coupled with two errors by the Lady Whitefaces, closed the score at 7-5.

From there, Hereford would put the Demonettes away in the first game.

"Today, more than any other day this season, we saw a lot of more fear in our kids," Hereford coach Brenda Kitten said. "We've beaten each other on the other's court over the last three years and there's more pressure when you play at home."

Hereford added to the pressure on the Demonettes, thanks to block aces from Michelle Bernhardt and Sarah Griffin, kills from Witkowski, Bernhardt and Eicke, and more errors on the Dumas defense. That ended game one.

"This late in the season we're playing tight," Dumas coach Jack Wilson said. "Were not clicking, our hitters are not putting the ball down, not playing defense, we're not serving well and not passing well. So we're struggling in all areas."

Things would get just a bit better for the Demonettes in the second game.

Cassie Doss started Dumas off with a 1-0 lead on a service ace.

Two more errors on the Lady Whitefaces put Dumas up 3-0 but two block aces on Sarah Griffin and a kill and block ace from Tori Walker put Hereford was up 4-3 in the second game.

From there, it was a see-saw

Tennis struggles against Dumas

Alade, Isaacson and Goforth win only matches against Demons

From Staff Reports

The Hereford tennis team again faced a tough competitor in Dumas. Again, they struggled to get anything going as they lost 17 matches and won three.

Two out of the three victories came out of the girls singles bracket. Ivory Isaacson defeated Chrissy Nies, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. Lindsee Goforth also was a winner, defeating Jeannie Fewell, 6-4, 7-5.

Daren Alade defeated Andrew Ward, 7-5, 6-3, in the only victory in boys singles by the ### Whitefaces.

The rest of the team was not so lucky.

Nelson Beville lost to Matt Coggins, 6-0, 6-0; Riley Hall fell to Ryan TeBest, 6-0, 6-0; Ian Isaacson lost to Shelby Melban, 6-2, 6-4; Aaron Kozak defeated Harrison Hoffman, 6-2, 6-2; Cody Crouch bests Clay Cosby, 6-0, 7-5; and Clayton Blackshear gets beaten by Justin Boardman, 6-3, 6-3.

Girls singles from Dumas also had their share of wins. Jamielle Poll defeated Kimberly Scott, 6-3, 6-2; Jaime Ames defeated Kylee Auckermann, 6-4, 6-3; Denae Brinkman struggled against Brittany Mitchell, 6-2, 6-3; and Katherine Fry was swept by Alicia Schubert, 6-1, 6-1. Brianna Finley lost 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles saw Beville-Hall lose to Coggins-TeBest, 7-5, 6-0; Melban and Kozak defeated Isaacson-Hoffman, 6-1, 6-1; Blackshear-Alade were beaten by Boardman-Ward, 6-3, 6-2; Scott-Isaacson lost a tough one to Pool-Nies, 7-6, 6-3; Goforth-Fry were swept by Ames-Mitchell, 6-0, 6-0; and the Brinkman-Finley combo lost to Martin and Schubert, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Kylee Auckermann and Clay Cosby lost to Fewell-Crouch, 6-2, 6-2 in mixed doubles.

The tennis team's take court next Saturday at 1 p.m. when they host Borger.

Red Sox to face Yankees in ALCS

CLEVELAND (AP) — As champagne sprayed around him, John Valentin jumped up on a podium in the middle of Boston's clubhouse and screamed for quiet.

"Hey!" Valentin yelled to his teammates. Unsuccessful, he tried again.

"Hey!" he said. Finally, with most of the room's attention, Valentin had a message for the Red Sox — and maybe one for the New York Yankees.

"They'd better sweep us!" Valentin said.

Boston's stunning comeback from an 0-2 deficit to win the division series over Cleveland with a 12-8 victory in Game 5 Monday night ended the Indians' season and forewarned the Yankees they had better not be overconfident in the ALCS beginning Wednesday.

Whatever the Indians did, the Red Sox did better.

They outslugged them, outscored baseball's highest-scoring team in 49 years.

They outpitched them as Pedro Martinez continued his dominant 1999 season with a comeback as improbable as Boston's.

And they beat history, becoming just the fifth major league team to rally from an 0-2 deficit in a best-of-5 playoff series.

"There ain't no scale that can measure the heart of this team," Boston's Trot Nixon said. "Whether we're down two games or three games, there is no quit in this team."

And certainly none in Martinez, who pitched six hitless innings just two days after he couldn't even play a game of catch because of a back injury.

Oh, and that so-called Boston curse. If the Red Sox are haunted, then Martinez might just be the one to exorcise all those demons — from the Babe to Bucky to Buckner.

"You might say we're celebrating a little too hard," pitcher Bret Saberhagen said in the middle of the Red Sox party. "But after a series like this, you have to kick off your shoes a little bit."

Making a surprise relief appearance, Martinez refused to come out after manager Jimmy Williams put him in and struck out eight in a six-inning stint. The right-hander, who had to leave Game 1 with a strained back muscle, finished with 10 shutout innings in the series.

"I wouldn't come out," Martinez said. "As long as I was able to throw the ball over the plate, I was going to stay in there."

Troy O'Leary supplied the offense, twice thwarting the Indians' strategy of intentionally walking Nomar Garciaparra by driving in seven runs with a pair of breaking score of 49. He wins a cash prize of $10.

There were a total of 127 participants in this week's contest. Five other contestants missed four games.

The top three winners this week will be eligible for the Grand Prize of $1,000 at the end of the year.

homers — including the first postseason grand slam in Red Sox history.

With the shocking win, the wild-card Red Sox will play their hated rival in the postseason for the first time, starting Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium.

It was too early for Williams to begin worrying about pitching matchups against the defending World Series champions.

"Who we going to pitch?" he said. "What day is it?"

The five games were a blur of comebacks, injuries, pitching changes and runs, runs and runs — 79 in all, three short of the record for any postseason series.

O'Leary, who went 0-for-5 in Game 4, hit his slam in the third and snapped an 8-8 tie in the seventh with a three-run homer for the Red Sox, trying for their first World Series title since 1918.

For years, the Red Sox have been haunted, from the trade of Babe Ruth to the Yankees in 1920, to Bucky Dent's homer over the Green Monster that propelled New York to victory in the 1978 AL East tiebreaker, to Bill Buckner's error that helped cost them the 1986 Series against the Mets.

Maybe Martinez will be the one to end all that suffering.

It sure didn't look promising for the Red Sox a few days ago when Martinez pulled himself from his start in the opener after four innings with a strained muscle in his back. And it got worse for the Red Sox when GarciaParra was unable to go in Game 3 because of an injured wrist.

But Boston pounced on Cleveland's shaky pitching staff, scoring nine runs in Game 3 before shattering records with their 23-7 rout in Game 4.

But Martinez brought some sanity to a series of atrocious pitching, putting an exclamation point on his dominating 1999 season. The right-hander, who went 23-4 during the regular season, will now get a chance to pitch the Red Sox back to the World Series for the first time since 1986.

"He couldn't even pick up the ball two days ago," Saberhagen said, "and was almost in tears. He's just the most unbelievable pitcher I've ever seen in my life."

Meanwhile, the Indians, who have been waiting since 1948 to win a Series, were denied a third straight trip to the ALCS when their pitching staff collapsed.

Jim Thome homered twice and Travis Fryman hit a solo shot for the Indians, who will now spend the winter wondering why they could never shake an injury bug that plagued them all season.

Cleveland, which lost Game 3 starter Dave Burba to injury, also watched center fielder Kenny Lofton dislocate his left shoulder sliding into first base Monday night.

"We were shorthanded, beat up and we still went out and gave a great effort," Indians catcher Sandy Alomar said. "We battled, but we just got beat. Once they got the momentum, it was like trying to climb Mount Everest."

Cleveland's offseason also could include an agreement to sell the team that came within two outs of winning the Series in 1997 and has won five straight AL Central titles.

"I still can't believe we lost," Omar Vizquel said.

With the score 8-8 in the seventh, O'Leary made the Indians pay for electing to walk GarciaParra again.

Facing loser Paul Shuey, Valentin singled and, after a forceout, Indians manager Mike Hargrove decided to walk GarciaParra, who hit .451 against Cleveland during the regular season (23-for-51) with 17 RBIs in 12 games.

And for the second time, the strategy blew up in Hargrove's face, with O'Leary hitting Shuey's first pitch over the right-field wall for an 11-8 lead.

"We chose to put him on rather than pitch around him tonight," Hargrove said. "We had been handling O'Leary up until tonight."

Given the cushion, Martinez took the Red Sox home from there, fanning Vizquel for the final out to give Boston its first win in a postseason series since 1986.

Martinez crouched at the edge of the mound and was hugged by catcher Jason Varitek as the Red Sox poured onto the field to celebrate a series that three days earlier they couldn't have imagined winning.

"They talk about an MVP for this series," Williams said. "I think it's the whole team, not just one guy."

Irvin might play this season

IRVING (AP) — Wearing a protective collar around his neck, Michael Irvin flew home Monday and will await further examinations to determine the severity of his injury.

Early indications suggest the Dallas Cowboys receiver will recover from a swollen spinal cord and herniated disc and play again this season.

Irvin was injured when he was tackled early in Sunday's 13-10 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles, and now the question is how much time he will miss.

"It's really too hard to tell how long he's going to be out right now," trainer Jim Maurer said. "We're optimistic that Mike will be back this year."

Irvin, who is taking medicine to reduce the swelling, will see a Dallas-area spine specialist Wednesday. An MRI will be taken and compared to one made hours after the injury. How much has changed will determine the next step in his treatment.

Exams Sunday showed swelling in the spinal cord in two places near the base of the skull. Maurer said he doesn't expect the new pictures to show any further damage that may have been obscured by the initial swelling.

"I think they got a pretty good picture of everything he incurred," Maurer said.

The trainer admitted Monday that Irvin lost some feeling immediately after the injury.

"He had some limitations on the field," Maurer said. "He didn't have full motor function and he had pain in his neck."

Irvin was able to move his hands and feet within 15 minutes, much to the relief of his terrified teammates. He was then strapped to a stretcher and taken to the spinal unit at Thomas Jefferson Hospital, where he spent the night.

By Monday morning, Irvin had regained full use of his motor functions — the most encouraging sign yet.

"That's one of the reasons he's being released as early as today," Maurer said.

The 33-year-old has been a leader for Dallas on and off the field since joining the team in 1988. He hasn't missed a game because of injury since 1990, Emmitt Smith's rookie season.

Ernie Mills will start in Irvin's place. Rookie Wane McGarity, who has been inactive the last two weeks, also will get more playing time.

Gailey said the team would still consider adding another receiver if Irvin was going to be out six to eight weeks.

One option is former Cowboy Alvin Harper, who worked out for coaches last week.

Herd

battle with many players contributing to each side's cause.

"It became kind of a chess match when you entered all your kids for the third time," Kitten said. "You have a lot of kids playing a lot of positions that they are normally used too."

Hereford went up 5-3 on a Walker kill.

Then, two errors by the Lady Whitefaces tied the game at 5-5.

After a kill by Walker put the Whitefaces up 6-5, Elisheba Matthyse got a kill and tied the match at 6-6.

Witkowski and Walker gave the Lady Whitefaces a 7-6 lead, but a Jennifer Bonner kill, a Ratliff service ace and an error on Hereford put Dumas up at 9-7.

Walker battled back with a kill and only trailed 8-9.

At that moment, it looked like the Demonettes were going to run away with game two.

A Ratliff service ace and two errors put Dumas up 12-9. From there, things got heart-wrenching for everyone at the Whiteface Gym.

"I think we played aggressively in the second game and made a lot of mistakes, but we made up for them at the end of the game," hitter Sarah Griffin said.

Aces by Griffin and Walker and two errors on the Demonettes put Hereford up 13-12.

Service aces decided the next three scores as Hereford went up 14-14.

An error on the Demonettes gave the lady Whitefaces a 15-14 lead, but Dumas tied it back on a Walker kill error.

After exchanging sideouts four times, Walker made up for her kill error that tied the game with two kills to end matters.

"We knew we hadn't beaten them at home in a while," Walker said. "We were wanting to beat them but we have had trouble with them here at home. It was cool to finally beat them here."

With that monkey off their backs, the Lady Whitefaces are now on the right track for a district title. But they know they'll be put to the limits.

"The rest of the games are going to be just as hard, not physically but mentally," Walker said. "It'll be just as hard trying to get up for those teams."

Kitten knows the importance of those games coming up, and won't let her charges take them lightly.

"We talked about the next three matches after the Caprock match and know how tough those matches are going to be," Kitten said.

As for Dumas, they still have one more thing to defend.

"We still got a chance to win a state championship and that's what we looking for," Wilson said. "We're going to have to make big time improvements."

Who knows, these two might meet again.

Writing want ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Notice of Concentrated Animal Feeding Operation Application

TPDES Permit No. 03475

APPLICATION. CLIFF A. SKILES, JR., 1506 West Park Avenue, Hereford TX 79045 has applied to the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission (TNRCC) for TPDES Permit No. 03475 to renew and replace state permit to operate an existing beef cattle facility at a maximum capacity of 10,000 head in Deaf Smith County, Texas. No discharge of pollutants into the waters in the state is authorized by this permit. All waste and wastewater will be beneficially used on agricultural land.

The existing facility is located on the east side of an unnamed county road approximately 1.5 miles north of its intersection with Farm-to-Market Road 1062 and approximately 11 miles north-northeast of Hereford in Deaf Smith County, Texas. The facility is located in the drainage area of the Upper Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River in Segment No. 0229 of the Red River Basin.

The Executive Director of the TNRCC has prepared a draft permit which, if approved, would establish the parameters and limitations within which the facility must operate.

PUBLIC COMMITTEE/PUBLIC MEETING. Written public comments and requests for public meetings may be submitted to the Office of the Chief Clerk, at the address provided in the information section below, within 30 days of the date of newspaper publication of this notice. A public meeting is intended for the taking of public comments, and is not a contested case hearing. A public meeting will be held if the Executive Director determines that there is a significant degree of public interest in the application.

CONTESTED CASE HEARING. The TNRCC may grant a contested case hearing on this application if a written hearing request is filed within 30 days from the date of newspaper publication of this notice. The Executive Director may approve the application unless a written request for a contested case hearing is filed within 30 days after newspaper publication of this notice.

To request a contested case hearing, you must submit the following: (1) your name (or for a group or association, an official representative), mailing address, daytime phone number, and fax number, if any; (2) applicant's name and permit number; (3) the statement "[I/we] request a contested case hearing;" (4) a brief and specific description of how you would be affected by the application in a way not common to the general public; and (5) the location and distance of your property relative to the proposed activity. You may also submit your proposed adjustments to the application or permit which would satisfy your concerns. Requests for a contested case hearing must be submitted in writing to the Office of the Chief Clerk at the address provided in the information section below.

If a hearing request is filed, the Executive Director will not issue the permit and will forward the application and hearing request to the TNRCC Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled Commission meeting. If a contested case hearing is held, it will be a legal proceeding similar to a civil trial in state district court.

INFORMATION. Written hearing requests, public comments or requests for a public meeting should be submitted to the Office of the Chief Clerk, MC 105, TNRCC, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, TX 78711-3087, for information concerning the hearing process, contact the Public Interest Counsel, MC 103, the same address. For additional information, please contact the Office of Public Assistance at 1-800-687-4040.
