OUTLOOK

Unseasonably warm readings continue

Near-record highs are expected through the start of the weekend, with little or no rain in the forecast, according to The Associated Press.

Some light fog was reported today at Tyler, Longview and Corsicana. Dense fog formed along the middle Texas coast from Brazoria County to around Victoria.

But visibilities were greater than five miles at Tyler and Corsicana and three-quarters of a mile in Longview.

Early-morning lows ranged from t he 40s to the 70s in South Texas.

It was 39 degrees at Dalhart and Marfa, 49 at Junction, 52 at Longview, 57 at Dryden, 61 at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and 70 at McAllen.

Winds were mostly easterly and northeasterly at less than 10 mph.

It should be clear and dry across most of the state through Sunday with afternoon highs in the mid-70s along the upper Texas coast, upper 70s elsewhere and some readings near 90 along the Big Bend of the Rio Grande.

Overnight lows should be in the lower 40s to the lower 50s, except for upper 30s in the Guadalupe Mountains.

A slight chance for showers and thunderstorms was predicted across deep South Texas.

WACKY WEATHER

Farmers benefitting, but ranchers hurting

By The Associated Press

For Texas agriculture, unseasonably warm temperatures and a lack of rainfall are both a blessing and a curse.

The mild fall weather will mean fresh tomatoes, peppers and other warm-season vegetables for dinner tables at Thanksgiving — perhaps even Christmas. But ranchers who have planted winter rye and oats forage for livestock are watching as seedlings fail to germinate. Drought conditions have returned to most of the past four years.

For some Texans sweating in near-record temperatures, the state is poised for the warmest November in history.

At Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, daily temperatures have averaged 63.6 degrees — 7.4 degrees above normal - in a month when the record average reading of 63.2 degrees was set in 1909.

Except for lack of rainfall, Texas farmers could get excited about it. "It's great!" farm co-owner Fred Verstuyft told the San Antonio Express-News. "Everything is growing about as good as we've ever seen it." But some cattle raisers fac-

U.S. retail sales steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail sales held steady in October as Americans pulled in their spending on cars and furniture but shelled out more for hardware, building supplies and clothing.

Total retail sales last month were unchanged at a seasonally adjusted $252.5 billion, the Commerce Department year. said today. That was in line with most 'analysts' expecta-

In September, sales fell by 0.1 percent; the government previously had estimated a 0.1 percent gain.

In a separate report today, the Labor Department said the growth in American workers' productivity jumped in the third quarter while growth in labor costs moderated.

Productivity, defined as the amount of output for each hour of work, rose at a 4.2 percent annual rate from July through September.

At the same time, unit labor costs, considered a key measure of wage pressure, rose just 0.6 percent, the slowest quarterly increase this

Meanwhile, retail sales have climbed or held steady most months of this year and last month were 8.5 percent higher than October 1998. The resilient U.S. economy, unemployment at a 29-year low of 4.1 percent and tame inflation have helped to give the nation's retailers a strong year.

But there have been some signs that the economy may be slowing. Consumer confidence has fallen in the last four months, home sales are down and consumers are using their credit cards less freely.

And, while consumer spending, which accounts for twothirds of all economic activity, rose at a solid annual rate of 4.3 percent in the July-September quarter, it was down from 5.1 percent growth in the second quarter.

Federal Reserve policy-makers will decide next week whether to raise interest rates for a third time this year. Economists, which have been split over what they believe the Fed will do on Tuesday, said both reports, particularly the good news on strong thirdquarter productivity growth, which helps keep inflation low.

Merchants can

Hereford merchants will get a chance to show off their wares at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce's "Merchants Winter Gala." The annual event will be Monday at the Hereford Community Center, 100 Ave. C.

The merchant booths will open at 5 p.m. for shopping, with the evening banquet beginning at 7 p.m. Chamber officials are encouraging area husbands to take their wives on a date to the gala.

Entertainment will be provided by Emily Fry, Miss Hereford; Wendy Brisendine, former Miss Hereford; Diana Detten and Abby Wilks.

There also will be door prizes donated by participating merchants.

Tickets for the gala are $8.50 each and can be obtained at the chamber or at any of the following merchants: Merle Norman Cosmetics, C.I.C.S, Wishes, Boots & Saddles West-ern Wear, Beall's, Radio Shack, Manley's Furniture, Kids Alley, The Secret Garden, Renee's Repeat Boutique, Inkahoots, Greene's Gifts and Picture Perfect. The chamber requests tickets be purchased or reserved by calling at 364-3333 by 5 p.m. Friday.

Smog creates health risks

HOUSTON (AP) — Ten percent of inner-city children here have asthma or symptoms similar to the respiratory disease, according to researchers who say the number is twice the previous estimate in a metropolitan area plagued by smog.

Local health experts previously relied on a general estimate that 5 percent of children here and elsewhere around the country have asthma.

Newest estimates were based on an extensive survey of 21,000 children in 60 schools in the Houston Independent School District.

High measurements of ozone, a respiratory irritant and smog's main ingredient, have propelled Houston past Los Angeles, the perennial national leader, as the 1999 smog capital. These readings have refocused concern among local officials and others on the impact of pollution on people's

Study reveals HIV defense

WASHINGTON (AP) - Almost from the moment it invades the body, the virus that causes AIDS goes on the defensive, quickly infecting cells that help it dodge killing drugs and the hunter cells of the immune system. In a study published today in the journal Science, researchers report that HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, is able to establish a silent, chronic infection by moving into inactive white blood cells, called resting T-cells.

Earlier studies have shown that HIV establishes a reservoir of infection, but the new research demonstrates just how quickly the killer virus sets up its defenses.

"These chronically infected cells are important because they allow the virus to persist below the radar screen of the immune system, particularly at the time of the transmission," said Dr. Ashley T. Haase, an HIV researcher at the University of Minnesota and the senior author of the study.

Haase said the study shows that a short time after the sexual transmission of the AIDS virus, there is an infection in the resting T-cells, a hiding place that protects the virus from drugs.

The finding is contrary to the belief that HIV first infects two other targets, macrophages and dendritic cells, and then spreads to active Tcells.

Instead, said Haase, the virus in its initial infection moves in about equal proportions into both the resting and the active T-cells.

Dr. Tony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases at the National Institutes of Health, said the Haase study "was a nice piece of work" that gives important new insight into the early stages of HIV infection.

By quickly infecting the resting T-cells, said Fauci, the virus "gives itself some insurance of survival." A virus in resting T-cells is a much more difficult target for both the immune system and for antiviral drugs, he said.

Vanity boosts student readers

Area residents can provide an extra helping hand in the effort t assure that all children can read, simply by purchasing a special license plat for their motor vehicle under a special plan adopted by the state of Texas.

The "Read To Succeed" license plate is a colorful specialty plate that promotes reading in Texas. The purchase of this plate, the first ever to be designed by a Texas student, will provide educational materials for local public school libraries.

Cost of these special plates is only $30, in addition to the regular registration fee, however every "Read To Succeed" license plate will generate $25 for the purchase of educational materials for the public school library of the purchaser's choice.

To order the new "Read To Succeed" license plate, simply fill the application form (available at the nearest school) and mail it along with a check to the Texas Department of Transportation. Please be sure to indicate on the application the local school district and campus name where your donation should be directed. The school librarian or principal can provide this information. The new plates will arrive at the Deaf Smith County Tax Assessor-Collector's Office in 6-8 weeks.

The "Read To Succeed" plates can also be personalized for an additional $40. Motorists will have their choice of five characters, symbols or spaces to add a custom touch. The grand total for this option is $70 ($30 for the Read To Succeed plate and $40 for personalization) plus the normal registration fees.

The plates can be updated at any time, even if current registration has not expired.

Application blanks may be obtained at the County Tax Office, school libraries and can also be downloaded from the Internet at www.tea.state.us/ reading.

Completed applications should be mailed to the Vehicle Titles and Registration Division, Texas Department of Transportation, Austin, Texas 78779-0001, with the appropriate special license plate fee.

The special license plates may be transferred to another vehicle registered in the applicant's name.

FDA proposes trans-fat labeling

WASHINGTON (AP) -Food labels would begin listing a little-known but nasty type of fat called trans fat under rules proposed today by the Food and Drug Administration.

Experts say that trans fatty acids, the stuff that makes doughnuts and french fries taste so good, may be even worse than saturated fat. But consumers have had no way to know how much of it is in their foods.

Under the proposed label, the listing for saturated fat would have to include the amount of trans fat added to the amount of saturated fat. An asterisk would indicate that trans fat is included, with a footnote telling consumers how many grams are in each serving.

The move comes in the wake of research offering damning evidence against trans fat, which may the worst artery clogger of all. Studies indicate that eating trans fat increases LDL-cholesterol, often called "bad cholesterol," which increases the risk of heart disease. At the same time, it decreases the amount of HDL - the "good cholesterol" that is good for the heart. Evidence in hand, consumer advocates petitioned the FDA to add trans fat to the nutritional labels that have been required on food packages since 1994. The new rules will take effect after a 90-day comment period.

"The nation's experience with the new food label has shown that it can be a power-ful tool for consumers," FDA Commissioner Jane Henney said today in a statement. "By requiring information about trans fatty acids, this proposal should assist individuals in their efforts to reduce their risk of coronary heart disease."

The proposed rule would also allow manufacturers to label certain foods as "trans fat free." And products that call themselves low in saturated fat, low in cholesterol, 'lean" and "extra lean" would also have to be low in transfat.

Trans fat comprises up to 10 percent of the calories in a typical diet. The best example may be stick margarine, but it's also hidden in crackers, cookies, pastries and deep-fried fast foods. Spreadable margarine in tubs, though, contain little if any trans fat.

Until now, the only way consumers' could determine whether a food included trans fat was to look for "hydrogenated" on the list of ingredients.

That's because the most common source of trans fat is partially hydrogenated vegetable oil, in which liquid oil is turned into a solid to protect against spoiling and to maintain the flavor over time. Typically, the harder a margarine or cooking fat, the more trans fat it includes.

"Trans fat is a phantom fat in our food right now," said Margo Wootan, a senior scien-tist at Center for Science in the Public Interest, which first petitioned for the new labels in 1994. "Since then the evidence has just gotten stronger and stronger that trans fat raises blood cholesterol and increases heart disease risk."

Recently, I parked in the handicapped spot at the super-market. I have a handicapped tag hanging on my rearview mirror. Before I could get out of the car, a "gentleman" walked up and said, "You certainly don't look handicapped to me. You should not be parking in that space." I looked at him and said, "And you, sir, look intelligent, but I guess looks can be deceiving."

The prostate is a gland of the male reproductive system. It is quite small, about the size and shape of a walnut. Approximately 80 percent of all men develop an enlarged prostate. Prostate cancer occurs in 1 out of 10 men, and each year, more than 30,000 men in the United States die of prostate cancer.

Prostate diseases usually occur in men over age 40. Some symptoms include a weak urinary stream, difficulty starting urination, frequent urination, difficulty postponing urination, awakening frequently at night to urinate, interruption of the urinary stream, blood in the urine and pain or burning during urination.

The American Urological Association and the American Cancer Society agree that both a digital exam and a PSA should be offered annually for men beginning at age 50. For men at high risk, such as African Americans or those with a family history of prostate cancer, testing should begin at age 45. Men age 75 and older should consult their physician about early detection.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

We look forward to worship this Sunday and invite you to bring some of your stuff when you come to worship with us. Bring your brain so you can express your emotions and use your mind wisely. Bring your hurts as we believe that our God can help us with our hurts. Bring your family and friends as we all need each other. And leave a few things at home, like excuses. We have empty rooms and parts of a few pews filled with them already. We'd rather have them filled with your presence.

We will also be offering several Bible study classes that look to God's word to speak to their circumstances. This starts at 9:45 a.m. Our worship time is at 10:50 a.m. Please know that you are welcome and we look forward to seeing you.

You will find us at the heart of Hereford at 500 Main St. or you may call 364-0696 for more information or transportation. You may want to visit our web site at firstbaptisthereford.com as there is lots of good information

AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Jim Bulin and the congregation of Avenue Baptist Church, 130 North 25 Mile Avenue, invite you to worship with them.

Sunday morning worship is at 11. Rev. Bulin's sermon title will be "O For the Pain" from Jeremiah 4:1-22.

Sunday evening at 6 p.m. we will have our Thanksgiving Banquet. Turkey and dressing will be furnished by the church. Those attending are asked to bring salads, vegetables and desserts. After the meal there will be a musical program presented by "Rejoice" from Wayland Baptist University.

Ladies Prayer Group meets at 6 p.m. Monday. Choir practice is on Monday at 7:30 p.m. The choir has begun practice on the Christmas Cantata. Anyone who wants to be a part of this special presentation in December needs to practice with the choir now.

Avenue Baptist is bringing a Bible study to the residents of Hereford Care Center at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesdays. Feel free to join us as we study and sing in ministry to these good people.

Women on Mission will meet every Wednesday at 12 noon. All women of the church are invited to bring your lunch and meet in the fellowship hall. Children on Mission will meet on Wednesdays from 6-7 p.m. All children through the sixth grade are invited.

Wednesday night is the regular monthly business meeting at 6:30. There will be a short prayer service before the meeting. If you have a prayer request, call the church office at 364-1564

Youth ABC Time is Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. in the fellowship hall. All young people are encouraged to participate in Youth Group.

The installation of new central heating and air conditioning in the sanctuary has begun. The church is trying to collect as much money as possible before the installation is complete. The church has received approximately 1/2 of the total cost. You are invited to have part in this much needed improvement in the sanctuary. Those who would like to contribute, please designate your offering "heating and air conditioning." Avenue Baptist Church will host the Hereford Ministerial Alliance's Community Thanksgiving Service on Nov. 21 at 6 p.m. Everyone is asked to bring a can of food for the Good Shepherd Food Pantry. An offering will also be taken to support that work.

Avenue Baptist Church has Bible teaching and Bible preaching. If you are looking for a church and a place to serve God, we invite you to join us.

WESTWAY BAPTIST CHURCH

November is the month to pause and recall all the many things in our daily lives for which we are thankful. Nov. 11 immediately comes to mind as we realize anew that nothing is ever free. We hope you remembered all those who have and are serving in our countries armed forces and many who have given their lives that we may enjoy our American way of life.

As we observe Thanksgiving later this month, we urge you to count your blessing, count your gain and not your losses, count your joys and not your woes, count your friends and not your foes.

On Nov. 21 we will have a Thanksgiving dinner following worship services. All are invited to bring a covered dish and join with us as we celebrate the great things of 1999. Following lunch we will have a time of singing and sharing. Please come for this special time.

Sunday school is at 10 a.m. morning worship is at 11 and Bible study is at 6 p.m.

Let us begin today to give thanks for all the blessings and love we have and can share with one another.

Herefords, Canyon Randall look to get state tournament berth with regional final victory

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor It has become a constant: The Region I volleyball finals go through the Texas Panhandle. Hereford knows that very well, as the Lady Whitefaces have participated in the last seven Region I Class 4A volleyball finals.

But Canyon Randall is new to this aspect, make that tradition, of Texas Panhandle teams playing for a berth at the state championships in Austin.

It has been building up from a long time. Who knows, this might be the year for the Lady Raiders.

"We've come so far this year and our kids are so fired up," Randall coach Shelly Williams said Tuesday after the Lady Raiders survived a 15-11, 15-10 victory over Cleburne. "We want to get to state and we look at Hereford as another match in the way. Hopefully, we'll take of business when we see them."

Oh, by the way, these two teams have met before, early in the season.

It was Sept. 18, on a Saturday afternoon, where Hereford walked into Randall High School for a match against the Raiders and walked out with a 17-15, 15-13 loss to the Lady Raiders.

Both teams have improved since then, but it's easy to say that Randall has the advantage for many reasons, mainly because of the Sept. 18 win and their front line of hitters.

"Obviously, we're going to be the underdog in this situation," Hereford coach Brenda Kitten said. "They are so solid in every position." Hereford was able to take a huge lead on Randall back then, but errors, which marred Hereford on Tuesday against Denton High, cost them the match.

Kitten knows this will be the toughest match the Lady Whitefaces will play all year, but the feeling is mutual.

"I think they will be a tough match for us," Williams said. "They're an established program and they've been there year after year.

They have a lot of experience under the belt, so I see it's going to be a good match," Williams

Big Line — Hitters Ashley Fangman (left) and Sarah Griffin (right) will be depended on to help Hereford shut down Canyon Randall's front line as both meet on Saturday at 2 p.m. at Amarillo Caprock High School for the Class 4A Region I Final. added.

A key for Hereford will be to slow down the pace of Anika Holmes and Magan McCormick, who keyed Randall's hitters all season.

"They've got five great hitters on the court all the time," Kitten said. "The setter does a great offense out of their passing, so, job setting the ball in all there's not a weak spot that we positions, their hitters do a good job of mixing up hits with offspeed attacks.

"I think their ball control was real good against Cleburne," Kitten added. "They receive the ball well and pass receive well and are able to run a lot of are going to go after and attack."

Randall has been hot. The last tough victory came at the expense of perennial volleyball power Dumas, which Randall dethroned last Saturday with a 15-11, 15-11 win.

As good as Randall looks on paper, and on the court, they know they can't take anyone for granted, especially Hereford.

"Not at this point," Williams said. "Both teams want to go really bad (to state) and the losers won't and that what's on the line so we'll see what happens."

And the plan for Shelly Williams and Canyon Randall to get past Hereford is a nobrainer on her part.

"We're going to do what we've been doing all year," she said. "We are going to continue to pass well, we have excellent setters who are putting the ball into the hands of our excellent

Brazilian exchange student enjoying football, life in the U.S.

Special to The Brand "You're hired."

With those words from the coaching staff, the Hereford Whitefaces filled a much-needed offensive position, one which has played a big part in their success on the football field this season and may provide a little bit of local history as they take the field tonight in a playoff game against Plainview.

The object of those two words, "You're hired," was Rafael Campos, a foreign ex-change student who had never played the game but decided to give it a shot when he arrived in Hereford from Brazil for his senior year in high school. "I had friends (in Brazil) who knew about American sports and they told me to give it a try," Campos said in near-perfect English. "I asked if they had soccer. When I was told no, I decided to try for kicker on the football team.

The way he explains it, the coaches were receptive to his desire and allowed him to kick this oddly shaped ball he'd never played with before.

"When I hit more through the goal posts than I missed, the coaches said 'you're hired' and here I am." His acceptance on the team by players and coaches alike may provide a first for Hereford, the only time a foreign exchange student has played such an important posi-tion on a playoff team.

A soccer player in his native Brazil, Campos said he didn't find it that difficult to make the change to football, although he admitted the ball is harder than a soccer ball and, "It's not round!"

He joined the squad which had been practicing since the early days of August and began working on kicking extra points and field goals, developing the skills needed to be an important member of the team. He kicked the ball so many times that he wore a hole in the soccer shoes he brought from Brazil.

"He didn't like our football shoes," Coach Craig Yenzer said, "so we got him a pair of soccer shoes and he's been kicking just fine in those." Yenzer said Campos has been a welcome addition to the team not only because of his newly learned football kicking skills, but also because of his personality.

"He has a good sense of humor and the kids really like him," Yenzer said.
The feeling is mutual.

Campos explains, "I really enjoy it and like how everybody (in Hereford) loves the team and coaches. These guys are really dedicated to the sport."

Admitting he might enjoy learning another position, especially wide receiver, Campos says his main goal is to "do just what they (coaches) want man what they (coaches) want me to do.

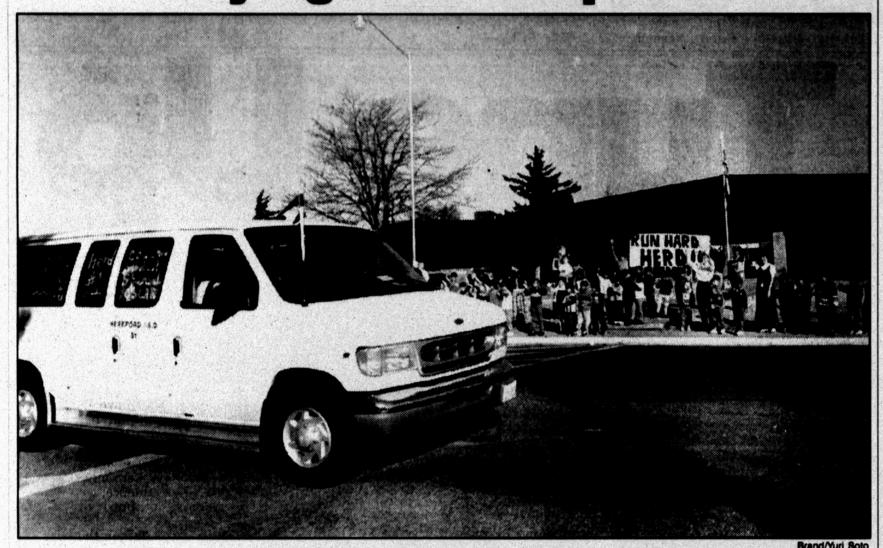

But Campos also says he thinks it might be fun to play some defense. "I want to tackle someone!" he exclaimed, but in the same breath he admits it wouldn't be the best thing for the Herd because he has learned that for someone who kicks field goals and extra points to have that chance would mean something went GOOOOOOAL — It's not exactly soccer, but Hereford Whiteface kicker Rafael Campos practices American Football field goals instead to what he is used to, but he is scoring goals for the Whitefaces and has helped Hereford to a successful season on the special teams.

Texas team looking for title

By Jim Vertuno

The Associated Press

AUSTIN (AP) - Big bodies and a load of newcomers. It all has Texas feeling pretty good about its chances of repeating as the Big 12 regular season champion.

Last season, Texas shrugged off an 0-4 start and depleted roster to finish 19-13 under first-year head coach Rick Barnes.

This year, with two of the league's best players returning, the Longhorns expect even more.

We have an unbelievable amount of talent," said forward Gabe Muoneke, who led Texas last season with 16.5 points per game.

"We're leaps and bounds ahead of where we were last year at this time," he said. "Our goal (now) is beyond just winning the Big 12. Our goal is winning the national championship."

Such words hardly seemed possible last season as Texas floundered to 3-8 before righting itself with a 5-0 run when the conference schedule began.

The turnaround earned Barnes Big 12 coach of the year honors and the Longhorns — along with Kansas and Oklahoma - are among the favorites for the conference title this year.

Barnes approves of the big

"Every year when writers from around the country sit down to do their preseason pick, · I want the University of Texas to be one of those 10 to 15 teams that they always pencil in," Barnes said.

"To be a top program, the expectation level has got to go up. I want that and our fans want that," he said. For Texas, it all starts up

The Longhorns have probably the league's most physically intimidating front line with the muscular and versatile 6-foot-7, 250-pound the country's top 25 high Muoneke and 7-foot junior center Chris Mihm. Both were voted all-conference last sea-

Mihm established himself as one of the country's best big men with 19 doubledoubles last season. He averaged 13.7 points and 11 re-bounds and has been named the conference's preseason player of the year.

"It's a great honor but at the same time it's preseason player of the year. If I'm there at the end of the season, then I've really accomplished something," Mihm

The key will be the perimeter, where lexas struggled last season. Starting point guard Ivan Wagner averaged 6.1 points last season and shot just 31 percent from the floor. Returning shooting guard, William Clay, Texas' first man off the bench last season, averaged 8.1 points.

Barnes hopes newcomers such as Lawrence Williams, who averaged 19.5 points and shot 41.5 percent from 3point range at Panola Junior College, will spark the of-school players as a senior.

"There is no doubt that our team is built around Chris Mihm and Gabe Muoneke," Barnes said. "A year ago,
people sagged back on them
... I hope they do that again this year. We have guys who will make shots and take shots."

One potential stumbling block is the early schedule. After opening at home against Louisiana-Lafayette, Texas travels to the Puerto Rico Shootout over the Thanksgiving weekend.

Texas returns to the mainland for consecutive games against Arizona, Wisconsin and San Diego, all of whom beat the Longhorns last season.

"Our schedule, I don't like the way if flows at all." Barnes said. "I think the way it starts and the way we travel early is not real good."

Texas also travels to play defending national champion Connecticut in January. That game should give Texas a clear idea of whether the Long-horns can live up to Muoneke's goals.

"I just think anytime you get a chance to play the de-fending national champion you've got to do that," Barnes hitters, and if we continue to do it with the passing that we've been having, we'll be just fine."

The Lady Raiders still, though, have to somehow also put a beat on the Hereford mystique. We just have to play solid the whole way through and hopefully make a battle out of every

When he graduates in May, Campos says he would like to continue his education in the United States and has applied to five schools, including Nebraska, Yale, Princeton and Harvard.

"I can get into a good college in Brazil, so if I stay here, I want to attend the best," Campos says. He also admits that he would be willing to play kicker for a football team and soccer if he is accepted at one of these schools.

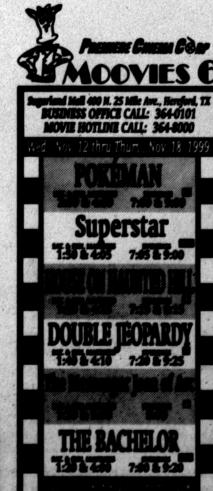

The exchange program in which he participates is nothing new to the young Brazilian. His older sister was an exchange student six years ago, attending school in New Jersey. She returned to their native country and earned a college degree to become an English teacher.

Democrats have edge in congressional races

By Will Lester

The political climate entering the 2000 election season is more favorable for Democrats, but a poll suggests that advantage may be of more benefit in the races for Congress than for the White House.

The Democratic Party is in very good shape," said Andrew Kohut, director of the Pew Research Center for the People & the Press. "But its chances to win the White House are once again bedeviled by social conservatives, the so-called Reagan Democrats, who have played a role in every Democratic presidential defeat since 1968."

Many conservative Democrats and independents join Republicans from every wing of their party in supporting the GOP front-runner, Texas Gov. George W. Bush.

As Bush draws support across a broad spectrum of voter groups, a comprehensive political poll by the Pew Research Center suggested Thursday that the governor's Democratic rivals face early obstacles.

Bill Bradley, a former New Jersey senator, has more work to do introducing himself to voters; Vice President Al Gore must reintroduce himself after the trauma of President Clinton's impeachment.

"Gore is really tied to Clinton," said George Appleby, a Des Moines, Iowa, lawyer and Democrat. "Even the people who have stood by (Clinton) can't wait for this to be over. They don't want to be embarrassed."

The political landscape in 1999 differs dramatically from five years ago when Pew last looked in great detail at the mood and preferences of voting-age Americans.

"Moderates reign, they reign right, left and center," said Kohut. "These are not the angry people we saw five

In a series of political values questions, people were asked their feelings about government, the poor, immigrants, and minorities. The shifts toward moderation across the board since 1994 "are pretty small changes," Kohut said. "But it's the direction of the changes that are significant."

For example, almost two-thirds in 1995 agreed with the statement "government is always wasteful and inefficient." Five years later, half agreed.

In 1994, disaffected voters turned over control of Congress to Newt Gingrich and the Republicans. But the Republican poll standings have faded and Kohut suggested the national Republican Party currently has "a real image problem.'

Democrats have the edge this year in the percentage of people who say they belong to that party, 34 percent, compared to 27 percent for Republicans and 39 percent independent. In 1994, 30 percent said they were Democrat, 32 percent Republican and 38 percent independent.

Democrats have a clear edge on top policy issues like Medicare, education, the economy and health care, while Republicans have a big advantage on the morality issue.

Bush has generals; McCain has grunts

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Both George W. Bush and John McCain have former New Hampshire governors working for their campaigns, but that's where the similarities end.

Walter Peterson, governor from 1969 to 1973, recently was named McCain's honorary state chairman and largely has remained on the fringes of the day-to-day operations.

By contrast, Sen. Judd
Gregg, governor from 19891993, joined Bush's campaign in April and has shadowed Bush's every move here ever

Their roles illustrate a key difference between the two organizations as the nation's earliest presidential primary approaches: Bush's campaign draws strength from big-name backers; McCain relies on depth at the grassroots level.

But with recent polls showing McCain, an Arizona senator and Vietnam War hero, gaining on Bush in New Hampshire and another suggesting that voters think the Texas governor is neglecting the state, there are signs that Bush's strategy could be shift-

In town Wednesday to make his candidacy for the Feb. 1. New Hampshire primary official, Bush promised to visit more often.

"I have a lot of work to do to convince the people of New Hampshire I have their trust, but I'm making pretty good progress," he said. "This is a state that expects candidates to come and look people in the eye, and I'm coming.'

A day earlier, Bush's campaign announced a New Hampshire "Veterans for Bush Leadership Team" to parry McCain's strength among vet-

The campaign of Texas Gov. George W. Bush (left) draws strength from bigname backers; Arizona Sen. John McCain relies on depth at the grassroots

The question is whether Bush is reacting to McCain's progress or merely letting his campaign take a logical course.

A poll of New Hampshire voters released Thursday showed McCain for the first time tied with Bush in the race for the Republican presidential nomination. Bush had 38 percent, compared to 35 percent for McCain. The American Research Group poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Joel Maiola, Bush's New Hampshire campaign manager, denied this week that the campaign is switching gears.

"Not at all, it's a continuation of the strategy," he said. Events beyond Bush's control — including a mass shooting in Forth Worth, Texas — made it difficult for Bush to get to New Hampshire much this fall, Maiola said, but the plan all along was to increase his presence now.

Not everyone finds the explanation complete. "I think a little bit of the change in the Bush campaign lately was part of their stratvey Center.

"If you're the about you. Eventually, you're forced to little earlier than expected."

But Bush and McCain also differ in how they are campaigning for an election sometimes decided by a few thousand votes. Bush's events Wednesday were crowded and controlled, with more handshakes than dialogue between

In contrast, McCain sched-uled three of his trademark "town meetings" with voters for today, when he files for the primary, plus talks at a lunch, a college and a high school.

"It's been obvious that Judd Gregg has let the Austin gampaign office run (Bush's) New Hampshire campaign," says Mike Dennehy, McCain's New England campaign direcegy, and part of it is because McCain has done better than anticipated," said Andrew Smith, director of the University of New Hampshire Surfront-runner by that

Gore turned down Guard

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) -Vice President Al Gore said a relative offered him the chance to join the National Guard and avoid the draft but he turned it down.

"I could have done that." he said in an interview in today's editions of USA Today. "I thought about that, and because a lot of those decisions were made with political influence, I could have done that, but it did not feel Gore's father, the late Sen. Albert Gore Sr., strongly opposed the war.

The vice president said that as he struggled with what to do about the draft once he graduated from Harvard University in 1969, a cousin offered to help him join the guard as a way out.

Gore declined to identify the relative who made the offer or the guard unit involved, except to say that it was in a state neighboring his native Tennessee.

Blast raising fears of narco-terrorism

BOGOTA, Colombia— Just hours after a car bomb killed eight people here and evoked fears of a renewed narco-terrorist campaign, President Andres Pastrana sent a firm message to the attack's organizers: The government isn't backing down this time.

Pastrana signed decrees Thursday evening clearing the way for three accused drug traffickers to stand trial in the United States. His move comes eight years after the Colombian government banned such extraditions, capitulating to a series of anti-extradition terrorist attacks that killed hundreds.

Thursday's carnage — the result of a shrapnel-packed bomb in a red Mazda sedan was the worst in the Colombian capital since 1993, when the nearly decade-long wave of terror by the Medellin co-caine cartel ended with the death of its leader, Pablo Escobar.

The 150-pound bomb dug a three-foot crater beside a wide avenue in a wealthy part of Bogota and blew out the win-dows of banks, stores and apartment buildings as much as a quarter-mile away. Korean survivers tell of mass slayings

WASHINGTON - South Korean survivors of an alleged mass killing of civilian refugees by U.S. troops finally are getting a chance to tell their harrowing stories to Army investigators. Keum Cho-ja, 61, says she'll talk about how the bullet injuries ruined her marriage.

Chung Koo-hak, 57, will explain how his nose was torn apart by an American bullet. Yang Hae-sook, 61, wants to talk about her left eye blown out in a bombing and how women and children died in a pool of blood.

"I came here to tell the truth about No Gun Ri," Yang said. "I want to tell how American soldiers came to our village and took so many children and women and killed almost all of them."

They are among the few dozens South Koreans who survived the 1950 episode at No Gun Ri, a South Korean hamlet where witnesses say U.S. troops killed hundreds of civilian refugees in the early days of the Korean War.

Four South Koreans planned to meet Patrick T. Henry, an assistant secretary of the Army, and other Pentagon of-ficials today in their first trip to the United States.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 20 cents a word for first insertion ($4.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

Times	Rate	Min
I day per word	.20	$4.00
2 days per word	.31	$6.20
3 days per word	.42	$8.40
4 days per word	.53	$10.60
5 days per word	.64	$12.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines -- those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphs, all capital letters. Rates are $5.30 per column inch.

LEGALS Ad rates for legal notices are $5.30 per column inch.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Writing want ads

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/ products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

· Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and · Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best that really sell!

Recovery crews resume work

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Navy recovery crews resumed their search on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean today for the voice cockpit recorder of EgyptAir Flight 990, but technical problems cut the effort short.

The remote-controlled robot Magnum went back into the water about 2 a.m., but was pulled out four hours later. Navy Cmdr. Timothy O'Leary said the robot would be repaired and back in action soon.

Another robot, Deep Drone, was on its way to the crash site 60 miles off Nantucket Island, Mass.

High seas on Thursday halted efforts to find the "black box" that investigators say may help reveal what happened during the final moments of the doomed flight. The tape could include crew member conversations.

The device is now the focus of the investigation after an early analysis of data on the flight data recorder only heightened the mystery of what happened to the Boeing

The New York-to-Cairo flight crashed on Oct. 31, killing all 217 people aboard. The cause is unknown.

A preliminary analysis of the flight data recorder announced Wednesday by the National Transportation Safety Board eliminated at least one theory about what may have caused the disaster. NTSB Chairman James Hall said there was no evidence the plane's thrust reversers, which are used while landing, deployed accidentally.

Hall said the plane had been cruising normally at 33,000 feet when the autopilot disconnected.

FDA warns about using dietary drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says Triax Metabolic Accelerator is a potentially dangerous hormonal drug masquerading as a dietary supplement and should not be used.

The product, which contains the ingredient tiratricol, another name for the thyroid hormone TRIAC, is promoted in health food stores and over the Internet as a way to lose weight by increasing metabo-

Anyone using Triax should stop immediately, the Food and Drug Administration said Thursday. Also, the agency urged Triax users to see a doctor if they have symptoms of thyroid disease, including fatigue, profound weight loss. diarrhea, anxiety, nervousness or insomnia.

The product's distributor insisted Triax is safe and threatened to sue the FDA.

But people who take the recommended dose of Triax could be getting up to 10 times more per day of a potent thyroid hormone than is normal, said Dr. David Orloff, an FDA medical officer.

That can cause not just uncomfortable thyroid-related symptoms, but can increase the risk of heart attack, stroke and high blood pressure, particularly in people with underlying heart disease, he said.

While the FDA's published warning mentioned only Triax, a quick Internet search uncov-

but barriers remain

ered numerous other tiratricolcontaining products. When told, FDA officials responded that they would investigate further.

"I think that's wise," Orloff said when asked if consumers should avoid any tiratricol. Missouri-based Syntrax Innovations Inc. said it would challenge FDA's charges in court.

"They are saying it's a drug. It's totally legal" under a 1994 dietary supplements law, said owner Derek Syntrax Cornelius.

That law released dietary supplements from most federal regulation, unless the FDA can prove a product poses a health risk. The last time a supplement manufacturer sued the FDA for declaring its product a drug-in-disguise, the government lost.

"We've sold 100,000 bottles, with not one complaint," Cornelius added. "I don't have a cease-and-desist (order), and we are going to continue to distribute it.

But the FDA cited a 38year-old Los Angeles Triax user, who saw a doctor for severe diarrhea and other thyroid-related symptoms. Laboratory tests uncovered severe hyperthyroidism that the woman's doctor linked to Triax. Her husband, a fellow Triax user, was then tested and also found to have the ailment, Orloff said.

men make gains,

NEW YORK (AP) — More women are among the top ranks of corporate America, but they are seriously underrepresented in mid-management jobs that lead to promotions, according to new research.

A survey by the women's research group Catalyst showed that women who are black, Asian-American and Hispanic hold 1.3 percent of the executive positions in the nation's largest companies.

They appear to be making steady progress in the head-quarters of Fortune 500 companies, both in rank and compensation, since figures were first compiled in 1995, the New York group said Thursday.

About 11.9 percent of 11,681 corporate officers in America's top 500 companies are women, from 11.2 percent last year and 8.7 percent five years ago, according to government statistics that were confirmed by the companies, Catalyst said.

Meanwhile, 3.3 percent of companies' top earners — measured in salaries, bonuses and annual stock options — are women, compared with 2.7 percent last year and 1.2 percent along every dimension ... they're moving in the right direction, and that's important," Catalyst president Sheila Wellington said.

Still, serious obstacles remain for women who want to corporate jobs, she said. The biggest hurdle appears to be that women are not well represented in so-called line officer positions — those who run the factories, head the sales staffs and supervise the accounting. Senior management tends to be promoted from these jobs.

"It's kind of a glass wall," "The numbers are small, but Ms. Wellington said. "Women tell Catalyst that they're not perceived as tough enough for line jobs. They're seen as having people skills, 'soft' skills, and are nudged into human resources and public relations."

Susan Meisi erating officer of the Society for Human Resource Management, a professional associa-tion based in Alexandria, Va., agrees.

"Some has to do with a good, old-fashioned dash of discrimination," she said. "There are preconceived notions that they can't put women in cer-tain positions because of fam-ily demands."
