Folk group to open community concert series

By Donald M. Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Before Beatlemania and the British Invasion swept the United States, folk music reigned supreme.

And, one of the most popular folk groups was the Brothers Four.

Four decades after four musically inclined Phi Gamma Delta fraternity brothers — Bob Flick, John Paine, Mike Kirkland and Dick Foley — got together at college, the Brothers Four continue to record and play at numerous festivals around the U.S. They also make yearly tours in Asia and Japan, where they have released albums that aren't available in the U.S.

One of their U.S. appearances this year will be in Hereford on Thursday for the inaugural performance of the Hereford Community Concert Association's series for 1999-2000.

The theme of this year's concert series of "The Season of a Century" and features three Community Concert performers as well as Amarillo Little Theatre's touring production.

The first concert of the new century will be Feb. 1, with a performance by The Cassidys, a popular Irish group. The singers also will bring along a traditional Irish step dancer, songs, musical numbers and dancing.

On April 8, Robert Trantham will perform "In Thinking About America," which is a musical drama of the Civil War era.

Memberships in the HCCA are:

- Adult, $25;
- Student, $15;
- Family, $60; and
- Single-parent family, $35.

HCCA memberships will be available at the Brothers Four concert or by contacting Sharon Cramer, 364-0164; Kristen Smith, 364-0536; or David Fanning, 364-7670.

The original members of the group met at the University of Washington in late 1950s. They played at a variety of campus events and in 1958 became regular performers at the Colony Club in Seattle.

In the spring of 1959, they performed at the hungry i in San Francisco, where they were introduced to Mort Lewis, then manager of jazz great Dave Brubeck. The group sent a demo to Lewis, who persuaded Columbia Records to sign the Brothers Four to a record contract.

Their first album, "The Brothers Four," was released in 1960 and included "Greenfields," which would be their most successful single.

In 1962, the group had another hit single, "Green Leaves of Summer," which was the theme song of John Wayne's movie "The Alamo."

After being named the "Most Promising Group of 1960" by Billboard magazine, the group became one of the hottest groups around, playing on most of the major TV variety shows, selling out college arenas and

The Brothers Four, (from left) John Paine, Terry Lauber, Mark Pearson and Bob Flick, will open the annual Community Concert Association season.

School finances

■ HISD committed to reducing debt by $2.2 million in this year

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Hereford Independent School District is committed to satisfying $2.2 million in debt payments during the current school year, according to a district administration statement released late Friday.

The press release did not indicate when the debt would mature, nor did it reveal what the district's total indebtedness is. Earlier statements have indicated the debt load may be as high as $16 million.

As of last week, the district has not completed reconciliations of its bank balances.

This is in addition to normal operating costs and accounts for about 10 percent of the approximately $22 million budget approved for 1999-2000.

In an effort to deal with its financial crisis, the HISD trustees voted Tuesday night to raise the tax rate by 5 cents, to $1.4391 per $100 assessed valuation. The tax increase will generate an additional $221,450 in local revenue and $374,385 in state revenue, for a total of $595,835 for Fiscal 2000.

The largest of the debt payments include repayment of funds from the Texas Education Agency (TEA), technology, early teacher retirement buyouts and new construction/remodeling.

These debts, falling student enrollment and declining property values have HISD financially strapped, but "it's not anything we can't deal with and overcome," Superintendent Beth Abernethy said. "We are working with a very strong fiscal responsibility policy."

"Our administrators and directors are watching budgets carefully and are committed to giving our children the education they deserve. The overall HISD budget has been trimmed this year, but we have not taken away from instruction — that is something on which we will not compromise."

School officials also are working to keep classroom attendance at a high level. State funding to public schools is based on the Average Daily Attendance (ADA) figures. Currently, those are slightly above projections.

The loss in property value is attributed mostly to homestead exemptions mandated by state law. Currently, HISD has lost more than $59 million in taxable property because of exemptions to homeowners and additional exemptions for senior citizens. This translates into more than $853,000 in lost local tax revenue.

Several debt payments to which HISD is committed are also of concern to the district.

A one-time payment of $854,045 will be made to TEA to cover an overpayment of funds from the state agency to HISD in 1998-99. All of the debt must be satisfied this year.

Other one-time payments include $4,972 to complete a purchase agreement on vending machines at the junior high and $1,800 for a billboard advertising the school district.

HISD will also pay $486,064 on the debt incurred with the purchase of new technology.

TOUGH JOB

JENNIFER EGGEN

"Anyone can wind up on the wrong side of this desk. The ones who do the best, and don't keep coming back, are the ones who accept they made a mistake and have to atone for it."

Eggen keeping vision of reality

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

It's not a job for do-gooders, nor is it a job for anyone afraid to see reality, but the job of adult supervision officer now plays an important role in the world of criminal justice.

Adult supervision officers, more commonly known as probation officers, see that individuals convicted of crimes complete a series of tasks to repay the community rather than go to prison.

Deaf Smith County Adult Supervision Officer Jennifer Eggen said, "We can only do so much. We point them in the right direction and hope they learn to want to be successful."

This, according to Eggen, is the biggest reason probationers either succeed and stay away from trouble or fail and wind up back in the system.

"We try to get through to them and make them understand they can have some kind of honorable life," Eggen said.

The world of a probation officer is much more than just keeping tabs on would-be miscreants. Eggen spends numerous hours encouraging clients to get involved with meaningful organizations as well as pushing them toward the first step of meeting their terms of probation by getting them to enroll in GED classes.

"We've got to get them to take responsibility. Part of that responsibility is getting them to understand a better education will help them get a better job. When they get that better job, most don't want to do anything to mess it up," Eggen said.

Eggen knows she can't make anyone do anything they don't want to do, but getting them to move beyond their circumstances gives her a place to start working.

"I let them know that just because they grew up seeing their father beat up their mom doesn't mean they have to beat up their wives and kids. All the help is out there, but they have to want it before we can do anything," she said.

Eggen sees all types and all classes of people in her office and says she doesn't hold anything against someone for making one or two mistakes, but at some point a person has to realize society is not going to stand for habitual offenders.

"Anyone can wind up on the wrong side of this desk," Eggen said. "The ones who do the best, and don't keep coming back, are the ones who

City to discuss tax break

Hereford city commissioners will consider a tax abatement request from Top of Texas Inc. when they meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the commission chamber at City Hall, 224 N. Lee.

The five-year, 50 percent tax abatement is being requested by the company, which is expanding its facility on New York Avenue. The abatement was recommended by the Deaf Smith County Tax Abatement Board and already has been granted by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District and rejected by the Hereford Independent School District.

In other business, the commissioners will consider a proposed ordinance regarding Hereford Municipal Court technology fees and will discuss a trash problem in alleys.

'McHappy Day' event set

The Hereford McDonald's Restaurant will join thousands of McDonald's volunteers and more than 12,500 of the fast-food chain's restaurants Monday in celebrating "McHappy Day," a national fundraising and community service initiative.

The McDonald's outlets will donate $1 from every Big Mac Extra Value meal sold Monday to Ronald McDonald House Charities to help fund the charity's grant program and to support the cornerstone program, Ronald McDonald House. Of all funds raised, 75 percent will go to local chapters of RMHC, with the remaining 25 percent to the worldwide organization.

"We are thrilled that McDonald's restaurant in Hereford is actively involved with the first McHappy Day in America," said Rick Robillard, restaurant owner/manager. "Hereford customers and our employees can feel good about participating in an event that, through their local chapter of Ronald McDonald House Charities, will help others in their community."

Ronald McDonald House Charities provides comfort and care to children and families through its network of local charities in 32 countries.

playing 250-300 concerts per year.

After the Beatles took America by storm in 1964 and folk artist Bob Dylan went electric, the interest in folk music declined and with it went the record contracts.

Although the group continues to tour and record, only Paine (vocals, guitar) and Flick (vocals, bass) remain from the original group. Kirkland (vocals, guitar, banjo) left the group in 1969, to be replaced by Mark Pearson (vocals, guitar, banjo), and Foley (vocals, guitar) left in 1990, to be replaced by Terry Lauber (vocals, guitar, mandolin).

Also, the Concerteers for the 1999-2000 series will be announced. The Concerteers are young people who serve as greeters, ushers, doormen and provide other assistance when necessary.

Nancy Denison and Beverly Harder are co-chairmen for the Concerteers.

The Concerteers for the season are:

- Kylee Auckerman, daughter of Rick and Georgia Auckerman;
- Craig Campbell, son of Jim and Brenda Campbell;
- Lisa Coneway, vice president and daughter of Tom and Betty Coneway;
- Jay Crawford, president and son of C.K. and Sharon Crawford;
- Flint Dollar, son of Wayne and Kris Dollar;
- Lynita Dotson, daughter of Rodney and Lynn Dotson;
- Gus Guseman, son of Chip and Cathy Guseman;
- Cathy Higgins, daughter of Dan and Vickie Higgins;
- Kevin Jesko, son of David and Glenda Jesko;
- Kara Landrum, P.R. committee and daughter of Mark and Billie Landrum;
- Kerris Montgomery, daughter of Mauri and Lydia Montgomery;
- Holly Schilling, secretary and daughter of Dennis and Shelly Schilling; and
- Bethany Williams, daughter of Margaret Williams.

accept they made a mistake and have to atone for it."

As in any job, Eggen sees some problems she would like to see changed, topping that list is the number of repeat offenders who continually enter and leave the system, one offense after another.

"I'd like to see stiffer rules for probation, especially after two or three times — maybe some more shock probation with time spent behind penitentiary fences," she said.

Another problem Eggen sees for her clients is the ongoing trouble with substance abuse.

"Almost every case of spousal or child abuse can be traced back to secondary substance abuse problems. If we could end that, many of our clients would never be back."

Eggen knows that not everyone likes her and a lot of clients come in with the attitude she is either a pushover or a hard and uncaring bureaucrat.

"If they come in and do what they are supposed to do, we get along fine. If they come in and always have a different excuse for not meeting their terms of probation, they find out how hard I can be," she said.

Even though Eggen has always been interested in law and criminal justice, she started out in a completely different field — as teacher at St. Anthony's School.

After four years of teaching, Eggen applied for the position of adult supervision officer.

"I've always been interested in criminal law, but I don't have the self-discipline to go through law school," she said.

Her four years as a teacher, though, have taught her that she does want to teach. She is pursuing a master's degree in criminal justice and hopes to someday teach.

"Lately I've felt like combining the criminal justice and teaching fields," she said.

She says she sees some positive results from the work she does, but feels at some time her impact will have more effect by teaching criminal justice classes than dealing with the criminals.

HHS band seeks 39th straight Division I

By Virginia Artho

Special to The Brand

As Hereford's Mighty Maroon Band marches nearer this season's contest dates, the rallying cry of "Tradition!" echoes through their cavernous band hall, marching fields and stadiums.

The 1999 Mighty Maroon Band has an opportunity to qualify for state this year, but their foremost goal is continuing the tradition of excellence in UIL regional competition.

The band is after its 39th consecutive Division I rating, a standard of achievement that is a proud boast of the community.

Senior and four-year veteran Sarah Artho said the "tradition needs to live on." She believes especially so because "it's the only one like it in Hereford." Artho said garnering a Division I is vastly important to upper classes.

Senior and band council president John Rodriguez agrees, stating, "It's our last contest of the millennium, and we don't want to go out with a bad mark." Head director Bill Nelson added, "You guys have to get me to retirement without a bad mark."

Though the pressure of tradition weighs heavy, Rodriguez said the band members "work beat under pressure" and are revving up their performance under the sobering intensity of having only a brief two weeks before their first contest.

Leading up to the Oct. 16 regional contest at Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo is the Texas Tech Marching Festival Saturday at Jones Stadium in Lubbock. Performance time for each contest is to be announced. Nelson said the admission fees in Lubbock support Kappa Kappa Psi projects.

Rodriguez said the Tech festival is where "we go to rate ourselves, see what we can do, and discover what to look forward to or correct." He said the preview contest also serves to "inspire the band and show what we're up against" with other aspiring bands.

The 195-member band consists of "a majority of young members. It's been a slow start this year, but we're coming on strong. Our sound is really opening up, and we're marching better every time we go through the program," Nelson said.

Nelson said the band is "enthusiastic and really gets excited when they get it right."

Aiding are five full-time, one part-time staff members and crucial volunteer sponsors. Nelson said the organization has consistently boasted of "high standards and high achievers" and this year there is "more student leadership, with more members taking up slack and helping than ever before."

Rodriguez said much of the band's strength lies in its togetherness.

"It's like a big family," he said. Heather Lee, the band's junior representative and self-appointed secretary, is so confident of their chances at qualifying for state competition that she already is brainstorming fund-raising ideas.

"Swing Fever" is the high-energy theme for the Mighty

Maroon's 1999 program. Nelson said the inspiration to incorporate swing music came to him while performing with the South Plains Dance Orchestra, a South Plains College jazz band he has played with for about 20 years. His band performs two or three times a year, including their popular "Senior Prom" that caters to senior citizens and generates funds for the college's music department scholarships.

However, over half those in attendance at last year's event were college students caught up with the latest swing fever. Nelson feels especially connected to the swing style, saying he recalls his parents cutting the rug to the lively tunes born of the '30's and '40's Big Band era, and now enjoys the revival among his students.

Nelson admits swing music is "more complicated to march to, because it's so syncopated." In other words, students must pair their marching with notes that are played off beat. Nelson said, "A lot of bands play classical music for state contention, but that's just not Hereford. We like to play toe-tapping music that everyone can enjoy."

UIL officials have reduced the length of contest programs from a maximum of 10 minutes to eight. So the Mighty Maroon Band will perform only three titles: the classic "Jump, Jive & Wail," originally recorded by singing artist Louie Prima; "Zoot Suit Riot," a 1998 hit introduced by The Brian Setzer Orchestra who is also credited with initiating the returning swing craze; and the classic "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," previously recorded by Duke Ellington and featuring Rodriguez's trumpet solo.

Though this is only the second year for Nelson as head director, he has been a fixture with the band far longer, beginning as a member of Hereford's formerly dubbed "Big Domino Band" for four years and graduating in 1962. He boasts a spot in Hereford's first Division I-rated marching band that launched the tradition in 1961.

Should the Mighty Maroon succeed in their rating quest at regional contest, they'll advance to area competition on Oct. 23 at Odessa, where they'll strive to be one of the top two contenders in their division. From there, they hope to jump, jive and wail to state competition in Waco on Nov. 1, a feat not realized since about 1991.

TO FEIGN A NOD

In the den, an old pa with a cod
Was the top of his pitch. Like a clod
He was trying to croon
His son to sleep like a loon.
Were I the tot, I would feign a nod.

TORTURED?

Then the pa, with the steam of a plum
Was singing opera with the mum.
"What's that noise by a tart?"
"That pa practicing a part."
"I thought he was tortured by a bum."

SCALD OR SING

In the tub that ole man like a gong
Split my ears. I said, "Min, run along
To the bathroom and check
On Byron. I can't spec
If he's scalding or singing a song."

GOT FIXED?

And that chap in a split from a fall -
He cut practice, and so bounced a ball
Because he was ticked off.
A tot had asked the Prof
If the organ got fixed near a wall.

EXCELLENT BASS

And despite the refrains of the case
With the sounds of an old growling face
Or mouse squeaks caused by a cat
Like an owl, I think that
This man's voice is an excellent bass.

HISD representing state in Red Ribbon

Hereford Independent School District will have another reason to celebrate this year when the district participates in the annual Red Ribbon Celebration.

HISD has been selected as THE Texas school district to join the Red Ribbon Coalition. Organized through Irvine (California) Community Drug Prevention, and funded in part by an Alpha Xi Delta Foundation - Choose Children Grant, one school district from each state was invited to participate as a coalition member.

"Hereford is proud to have received this honor," said Kelly Moulton, coordinator for this event.

Throughout the week of Oct. 23-31, there will be opportunities for students, parents, teachers and community leaders to sign a pledge sheet.

Prevention is a continuing process. The most important aspect of prevention is enlisting parents as partners in educating their children about the devastating effects of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs.

The Red Ribbon Celebration contributes to the overall program in the district prevention curricula.

The Red Ribbon Celebration originated after the brutal slaying in 1985 of Enrique "Kiki" Camarena, a federal Drug Enforcement Administration agent who was kidnapped and murdered in Mexico because of his pursuit of the Mexican drug cartel. After his death, young people in Camarena's hometown of Calexico, California began wearing red ribbons in his honor.

School prayer: A child's view

(Editor's note: This poem, which was written by a 12-year-old girl in Boston, Mass., was submitted by Jim and Cindy Yeager of Hereford.)

Now I sit me down in school
Where praying is against the rule.
For this great nation under God
Finds mention of Him very odd.
If scripture now the class recites
It violates the Bill of Rights.
Anytime my head I bow
Becomes a federal matter now.
The law is specific; the law is precise
Praying out loud is no longer nice.

Praying aloud in a public hall
Upsets those who believe in nothing at all.
In silence alone we can meditate
And if God should get the credit — great!
They are bringing their guns;
I don't dare bring my Bible,
To do so, might make me liable.
So, now, O Lord, this plea I make;
Should I be shot in school,
My soul, please take.

EDITORIALS

Here are excerpts from recent editorials in newspapers in the United States and abroad:

The Lowell (Mass.) Sun, on sanctions against North Korea:

Sanctions (against North Korea) are an ineffectual weapon and these had been in effect for 46 years with no discernible effect. Clinton has lifted most restrictions on travel, trade and investment. Bans remain on sales of military and military-related technology.

This will hardly be a bonanza for U.S. exporters. North Korea doesn't make anything we particularly want and is too broke to buy what we're selling. But anything that might open that paranoid and hermetic country to the outside world is a plus. Regimes like the one in Pyongyang survive only as long as they can keep their people isolated and oppressed.

And lifting sanctions doesn't smell quite so much like blackmail as other attempts to cajole the North Koreans into freezing their missile and nuclear arms programs.

Clinton's critics are accusing him of caving into extortion and terrorism, but there is no book of right and wrong ways to deal with an insular, irrational and paranoid regime. ...

The Gazette, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on Al Gore campaign:

See Al Gore. See Al Gore run for president. See Al Gore try to keep up a brave face.

Surveys released over the past few months indicate Americans are growing tired of Bill Clinton which, in turn, could hurt Gore.

For instance, a Pew Research poll in July said 44 percent thought the House was right to impeach Clinton in the Monica Lewinsky scandal, up from 35 percent last December. ...

So what did Gore do in Indianola (Iowa) a while back? He denied that "Clinton fatigue" is dogging the campaign. He said history foretells a rebound next year that will help him. He said it's just typical, in the seventh year of a two-term presidency, for a president's ratings to slip. "In the eighth year," Gore said, "there's a renewed burst of energy and positive feeling about what's been done and the reasons why a president has had two terms."

But the Clinton presidency is anything but typical.

And what else could Al Gore say? That he agreed that his president has been a louse? He has to be loyal. He has to be complimentary. He has to keep up a brave face.

Or does he? ...

What a refreshing turn presidential politics would take if Al Gore stopped trying to defend his president and publicly struck out on his own.

The Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, on federal budget surplus:

At some point President Clinton is going to run out of excuses for why he won't share more than a pittance of the federal budget surplus with the American

Newspapers playing vital role in our nation

Beginning Sunday, our nation celebrates National Newspaper Week. While most Americans may not be familiar with National Newspaper Week, all Americans should be aware of the vital role that newspapers play in our society. But National Newspaper Week not only reminds us of the importance of newspapers, it reminds us of the importance of having a free press.

It was George Mason who called the freedom of the press "one of the greatest bulwarks of liberty." He was correct. We live in a country with many cherished freedoms, and while we are privileged to have these liberties, they are frequently taken for granted. National Newspaper Week reminds us how fortunate we are to live in a nation with a free press.

Newspapers are an important part of our American tradition. Our Republic was founded with the help of Thomas Paine and other journalists whose pamphlets and ideals helped shape our Constitution.

The American press corps has always been on the front lines of American history. In our modern era, journalists have been on hand to record the events that have shaped our time. When America has been rocked by tragedy, whether it be the Kennedy assassination or Space Shuttle Challenger explosion, the press has been there to help unite us. In times of war, as with the massacres in Kosovo and the starvation in Somalia, the pictures and descriptions of human suffering have helped mobilize our nation.

In their efforts to bring the truth into American households, many journalists have had to make the ultimate sacrifice. Our First Amendment protects the freedom of the press, but unfortunately, it cannot always protect the lives of those journalists who risk everything to keep our society informed. Their deaths are an eternal reminder that journalism is not only a vital profession, but also a noble one.

Today, Americans have more avenues to receive their news than ever before. The radio, television and now Internet have all transformed the ways in which we obtain information. Some have said that the rise of these media diminishes the importance of newspapers. They are wrong.

Newspapers are, and will continue to be, an essential component of the journalism world. Newspapers inform us, teach us, entertain us, and expand our horizons. I am privileged to live in an area of the country that is served by three large and outstanding newspapers. The Chicago Tribune, Chicago Sun-Times and Daily Herald are important to the people in the Chicagoland area. In addition to global and national news, they provide detailed local news that is of particular concern to those in the area. In addition, rural Illinois is served by scores of smaller, weekly newspapers that provide a sense of community to local residents.

The Internet, television and radio all serve their purposes, but as a former high school teacher and coach, I can remember reading about the exploits of all our students in the local paper. It was a thrill for the students and parents — and it was a thrill for me.

As we enter the new millennium, National Newspaper Week provides a fitting time to remember the impact that a free press has had on our society. It is also an appropriate time to reflect on the contributions that newspapers have made, and will continue to make, in cities and towns across the nation.

Politics: It's in the blood

My interest in politics probably is genetic.

My paternal great-grandfather served several terms as county clerk in Sevier County in southwestern Arkansas and he had a first cousin who was Arkansas attorney general.

My maternal grandfather always followed politics, a trait that, judging from old Civil War letters, he inherited from his father.

Granddad once proudly pointed where he hitched his wagon when he saw Arkansas Gov. Jeff Davis speak at a Democratic rally in Center Point.

My grandfather was a "yellow dog Democrat," one of those voters who would cast a ballot for a yellow dog before voting for a Republican, a political allegiance that was abandoned by his children when George McGovern was the Democrats' presidential nominee in 1972.

In 1904, the first year he was eligible to vote in a presidential election, my grandfather went to the polls to vote against Theodore Roosevelt. Years later, he didn't remember the name of the Democratic nominee (Alton B. Parker), but it didn't matter — Roosevelt was a Republican.

Every four years, Granddad faithfully went to the polls to affirm his allegiance to the Democratic Party.

He was proud to have voted for Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was mild about Harry S. Truman and distrustful of Lyndon Johnson, primarily because LBJ was a Texan.

Granddad liked Ike, but he voted for Adlai Stevenson in both 1952 and 1956.

The only real test of Granddad's allegiance to the Democrats came in 1928 when Al Smith was the party's nominee. Although I don't recall ever seeing my grandfather darken the doors of a church, he still retained enough of his deeply devout southern Baptist father's beliefs that he worried about a Catholic being in the White House.

In the end, however, Granddad decided the Catholic Smith in the White House would be better than the Republican Herbert Hoover — a conviction that was reinforced when the Depression hit during Hoover's administration.

Once Granddad crossed the religious Rubicon, he proudly voted for another Catholic, John F. Kennedy in 1960. That the Republican nominee was Richard Nixon, a man whom my grandfather detested, made the decision much easier.

I don't have any medical proof, but I believe that Nixon's election in 1968 contributed to my grandfather's death.

On Christmas Day 1969, Granddad decided to spend a few days at his youngest daughter's home and after Christmas dinner, he got into the car with his daughter, Missie, and son-in-law, Dale, for the ride to their home. Along the way, he had a stroke.

My aunt later said Granddad was doing fine, even started talking about politics, but he had a stroke and collapsed in the back seat.

That, to me, was the clue: Granddad started talking about politics. Since my aunt was rather apolitical, he must have been talking to Uncle Dale.

Uncle Dale is a Republican.

BUDGET What Is It? Comedy or chaos?

Walter R. Mears
The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan once called it a Mickey Mouse system, and said his chimpanzee co-star in "Bedtime for Bonzo" made more sense than the way a divided government was setting its budget.

As the Republican Congress and the Democratic White House argue into overtime, as usual, on financing the government, the maneuvering would fit a comedy script.

The idea of a 13-month year, for example, and the designation of so predictable an expense as the 2000 census as a $4.1 billion emergency to avoid counting it against spending limits.

The repetitive debate in which each political side accuses the other of doing what it denies.

The Democrats' pleasure at watching the Republican majority struggle.

Or the Republican resolution the House approved declaring that it should not consider spending any of the Social Security surplus for anything else, and should keep trying to reduce the national debt. It did not — could not — bind Congress to do what the resolution said it should do.

Republicans accused the Democrats of trying to raid Social Security funds to cover spending President Clinton wants. They countered, with a report from the Congressional Budget Office to back them, that spending the Republicans favor would cost about $18 billion in Social Security surpluses next year.

White House Chief of Staff John Podesta said the whole budget process was headed toward chaos.

Clinton said he didn't want a fight with the Republicans, but he does not sound conciliatory. Signing a resolution to keep the government from running out of money because of deadlines that passed Friday without appropriations to keep things going, he accused the Republicans of resorting to "gimmicks and gamesmanship" instead of passing a responsible budget.

By responsible, of course, he means one that fits his priorities.

That is no more likely in this divided government than it was for Reagan, in 1982, when his Republican administration had to deal with a Democratic Congress, and he made his remarks about Mickey Mouse and Bonzo.

Actually, the system looks logical and orderly. But that's on paper.

The process itself is the product of budget reform 25 years ago, when Congress set up a series of deadlines for action — and almost immediately began missing them. It begins with a president's budget in the winter, a congressional budget in the spring, to be followed by action on the 13 appropriations bills to fill in the blanks, which is supposed to be done by mid-September but never is. Then, in time for the Oct. 1 budget new year, there is supposed to be a final measure covering both spending and the tax revenues to pay for it.

Signing the extension Congress passed to keep federal agencies from running out of funds until Oct. 21, Clinton said he didn't want to but "it was the only way to prevent another government shutdown," a reminder of the 1995 budget mess that resulted in partial shutdowns.

That year, the Republicans, newly in control of Congress, let it happen instead of compromising to avoid Clinton vetoes, figuring he would get the blame. Instead, they did.

They want no replay, but neither do they want a budget deal like the one they made last year, which still rankles conservatives for the spending Clinton won.

The president has vetoed one 2000 appropriation bill, and there are veto threats against five more because of GOP cuts he won't accept.

The latest is against a plan by House Republican leaders to delay payments to about 20 million low-income working families, which would push $8.7 billion in spending into the next budget year. It wouldn't save any money, but it would make the 2000 numbers look better. Clinton said if they do it he won't sign it.

Eventually, they'll come to terms. And the cycle will begin again, next time to be settled in the midst of the 2000 election campaign.

The process itself is the product of budget reform 25 years ago, when Congress set up a series of deadlines for action — and almost immediately began missing them.

taxpayers who created it. New figures indicated this year's surplus is going to be even higher than the previous forecast.

The Clinton administration says the overcharge of the taxpayers for fiscal year 1999, which ends Thursday, will be at least $115 billion, up from $99 billion projected earlier.

Yet against the backdrop of that rapidly swelling surplus, Clinton still insists the broad tax-cutting plan he vetoed last week is "too big, too bloated." We wonder: How enormous, how gargantuan would the surplus have to get for Clinton to agree to anything more than the minuscule, "targeted" tax cut he supports?

The answer, found in nearly seven years of Clinton fiscal policy, is that there will never be a surplus large enough or economic conditions favorable enough, for this big-government spender to curb his appetite. ...

The Herald, Everett, Wash., on U.S. arrears to the United Nations:

Unless it wants to embarrass the country seriously, Congress ought to pay America's bills to the United Nations.

Our late bills at the United Nations now run to $1 billion or more. We have been behind in payments so long that other nations are thoroughly irked. ... State Department officials believe that our views on a number of issues also are being taken less seriously by some countries at the United Nations.

If a partial payment is not made by the end of the year, we could lose our vote in the U.N. General Assembly. Our crucial vote on the Security Council.

The real absurdity is that the United States has every reason to support the United Nations. The international body continues to provide the world's best hope for avoiding major wars. It has already helped contain Iraq's and Yugoslavia's aggression. United Nations relief efforts help millions of people in the world survive war and famine. ...

No one who is a billion dollars behind on payment can expect to tell others how to run their affairs. We will only make ourselves look silly if we keep trying to do that at the United Nations.

American Press, Lake Charles, La., on patients' records:

The public has been put into a corner by the outright sale by one company to another of names, addresses and financial data. ... It could get worse. Your medical records and things you told your psychiatrist or counselor may be scooped up and used by businesses.

Doctors' groups are warning members of Congress that ... legislation recently passed by the House would violate a principle that patients must consent to the disclosure of medical records. ...

Opponents of the legislation fear ... that medical records of an insurer showing a customer has cancer or AIDS could be used by an affiliated bank to deny a loan.

Some provisions of the bill would allow health insurance companies to share medical data with life insurers when people apply for life insurance policies.

We hope that this measure will be wiped out by a better-informed Senate.

Deming (N.M.) Headlight, on money and the presidential race:

The presidential primary season has yet to begin, and four candidates have pulled out of the Republican contest.

With former Vice President Dan Quayle's departure ..., eight candidates are left in the GOP race. Three of the candidates — Quayle, Rep. John Kasich of Ohio and former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander — withdrew because of a lack of money. The other, Sen. Bob Smith of New Hampshire, quit because he believed Republicans had strayed from the conservative line.

Texas Gov. George Bush, the front runner for the Republican nomination, has raised more than $50 million, breaking all kinds of fund-raising records. Bush's millions are practically scaring his opponents into submission.

The Democrats are certainly not immune to the power of money. In their case, many potential candidates decided against even entering the race because they feared Vice President Al Gore's fund-raising prowess. Only former Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey dared to throw his hat into the ring.

... Voters should elect the next president based on policy positions and character, not the ability to raise funds.

The Express, London, on gays in the military:

At long last the witch hunt that was the treatment of homosexuals in the armed forces has come to an end. The European Court of Human Rights ruling won by four gay armed services personnel should mean no one else in the forces is discriminated against or humiliated because of their sexuality. The intrusion of privacy meted out to personnel, often when their homosexuality was only suspected, is a damning indictment of the small-minded and petty prejudices that existed in the forces.

Tages-Anzeiger, Zurich, Switzerland, on reports of Russian corruption:

Reports of corruption and money laundering have further damaged Russia's image among the G-7, the world's seven leading industrial nations.

The almost-honorary member had to listen to a lecture in Washington. The G-7 is demanding a fight against corruption and money-laundering, as well as security measures to ensure that money from international organizations isn't siphoned off. ...

Russia is too important to western governments simply to be left to itself.

But the West has misunderstood the meaning of the word "support." One cannot "pump billions into the Russian mire without paying close attention to how the money is used and to domestic politics.

Sports brings out best, worst in its participants

Sports — in one form or fashion, probably more than any one thing — works either for the benefit or detriment of the participant or the would-be participant.

Most people who know me know I'm not much into sports. People who know me know my idea of sports is finding a large body of water and promptly taking a swim.

Ball games never held much interest for me. I used to play the occasional tennis game, only to get royally whipped by my sister. I even used to participate in the neighborhood softball games. There I could at least hit the ball.

I always enjoyed playing basketball, even though I was never very good. I still enjoy shooting hoops or a game with my kids, but nothing serious.

Football means nothing to me. I never liked homecoming stuff — NEVER went to pep rallies — and what little I know about the game now, I've learned from my son.

What I do know about sports though is with the appropriate leadership and coaching sporting events can work wonders for the attitude of a kid.

Unfortunately, an egotistical or irresponsible coach has the ability to undo any good previously accomplished by a participant, maybe even to the point where young participants decide the game just isn't fun anymore.

I stress fun in any game, whether it be basketball, poker or Monopoly. When it becomes a win-at-all-costs proposition, then the fun goes to the wayside.

I remember as a young junior high student signing up for girls basketball — mainly just to compete with my sister — and the surprised look on the coach's face when he met me.

Dianna F. Dandridge

I'm sure when he saw another Dandridge name on the roster he was expecting someone much akin to my sister — athletic, svelte, nimble and coordinated. Instead he got a short, dumpy, often clumsy, bookworm. Let's just say my schedule was changed. Actually, that didn't really bother me because I wound up being the librarian's assistant.

Even after that, I still enjoyed playing certain sports, as long as it remained in good fun. The first sign of an argument or fight will still end the game for me.

Part of the fun is knowing everyone gets to play a part in the game, regardless of ability. Just because someone is not any good at a sport does not mean they should not be able to enjoy playing at some level.

This is where organizations such as Little Dribblers, Kids Inc. and YMCA youth activities have the opportunity to play a major role in kids' lives.

This is also where the volunteer coaches can do so much to benefit the young players. Unfortunately, the opposite is true as well.

I remember my brother's Little League coach — after the team lost the first game — telling the boys they were all losers and he was ashamed to be their coach. Several boys quit the team and it placed last in league play. Does anyone wonder why?

In another scenario, a Little Dribbler coach with a bench full of clumsy, uncoordinated, and mostly non-athletic fifth-grade girls went on to win a third-place ribbon. She watched as all the girls smiled for the group picture, knowing each member had played a role in the successes and losses.

Not only had she encouraged all the girls to do their best, she wanted all of us realize the fun and benefits from an enjoyable athletic activity.

It seems, though, that approach is as antiquated as is Eli Whitney's original cotton gin.

I recently watched some boys play flag football and was appalled when I heard the coaches yell and criticize these kids who should have been enjoying the sport.

That's not to say all the coaches bullied the boys. Matter of fact, most were wonderful with the kids, explaining what play was to be used and allowing the boys an opportunity to play.

Unfortunately, the teams of most interest to me were coached by more of the bully type.

I doubt these kids will learn any appropriate sportsmanship, useable game skills, or even more of an understanding of the game from these coaches.

The lucky kids will go beyond the obnoxious coaches and play for the fun of it. The unlucky ones will use these inappropriate teachings and use them in their daily lives, always trying to bully someone else.

Surely, that is not what the game of football is all about.

YOUR EYES

Refractive Surgery Wave of the Future?

Much has been said and written about laser surgery for the eyes. The controversial radial keratotomy procedure debuted in 1978 to correct myopia or astigmatism. Proponent predicted patients would no longer need corrective eyewear, but RK continues to decline in popularity for lack of reliability or long-term stability. Still, laser surgical procedures, including refractive surgery, have increased almost tenfold over the past 12 years. Because half of the world's population requires vision correction and more successful technologies are being introduced every day, similar growth is predicted in the future.

Even so, most of the 140 million Americans who wear eyeglasses or contact lenses will continue to do so. The vast majority of candidates for refractive surgery are reluctant to try it. Most patients still need corrective eyewear after the surgery is preformed. Others choose to show off designer eyewear even if they no longer have myopia.

Before you throw away your eyewear, consult with an eye care professional.

Indians' version of battle is given

By Richard Pyle
The Associated Press

The faces staring out from the page are leathery, chiseled, emotionally opaque. The names — Goes Ahead, White Man Runs Him, Yellow Robe, Iron Hawk — resonate as war cries and gunfire once did across the treeless hills of eastern Montana.

These Indians were there when Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer and some 200 U.S. cavalry troopers met death at Little Bighorn on June 25, 1876. They were the Crow and Arikara scouts who rode with Custer, and the Sioux and Cheyenne braves who destroyed him that hot Sunday afternoon.

Just as the outcome permanently tarnished Custer's reputation, it left the Indians a bitter legacy that for some, has lasted 123 years, says Herman J. Viola, author of a new book that looks at the famous battle from the Indians' point of view.

"None of the four tribes involved find any comfort in the events of 1876," says Viola, curator emeritus of the Smithsonian Institution.

"The Crow and Arikara not only feel betrayed by the government they sought to help, but today they are more often seen as traitors for helping the cavalry hunt down their traditional enemies," he says.

"The Cheyenne and Sioux, on the other hand, suffered terribly for their victory. In fact, elderly descendants of the Cheyenne and Sioux who were present at Little Bighorn still fear some sort of retribution awaits them if their family connection to Custer's demise is revealed."

Viola's book, "Little Bighorn Remembered: The Untold Indian Story of Custer's Last Stand," appears this month. It includes many obscure and previously unpublished details about the most famous event of the Indian wars.

The book also includes a new reconstruction of Custer's movements at Little Bighorn by National Park Service archaeologist Douglas Scott, and the first publication of all 41 drawings of the battle by Sioux chief Red Horse.

The overriding theme is the conflict among the Plains tribes that transcended war with the Army — Crow and Arikara versus their traditional enemies, the Sioux and Cheyenne.

"This is not the Indians against the cowboys — this is Indians against Indians," Viola said in an interview.

"I am very excited about this book," says Joseph Medicine Crow, of Lodge Grass, Mont., a tribal historian.

Medicine Crow's great-uncle, or "grandfather in the Indian way," was White Man Runs Him, an imposing 6-foot-6 warrior who was one of the six Crow scouts with Custer that day and survived only because Custer released the scouts from duty.

As a boy, Medicine Crow listened as White Man Runs Him and four other former scouts told stories of their relationship with Custer.

In the book, Medicine Crow says the Crows' friendly ties with the whites were based on a 100-year-old tribal prophecy that resistance meant eventual disaster and an 1825 treaty that, was consummated by the ritual touching of a knife blade to tongues.

"This was a sacred oath that will be kept forever," Medicine Crow says.

He adds that in later years, when asked to help the army fight the Sioux and Cheyennes, the Crows saw themselves as using the whites.

While the Sioux led by the famous Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse have always overshadowed their Cheyenne allies, the Arikara are "the real forgotten people" on the other side, says Viola, although they lost three scouts killed and the Crows none.

Even after 123 years, fear and suspicion persists, Viola says. "Old, old Indians still are afraid to talk about Little Bighorn. They still think the government is going to punish them. They say, 'You don't know the government.'"

This is especially true with Cheyennes, who according to rumors may still have "Custer memorabilia" — paper money, weapons and battlefield artifacts — hidden away, he said.

In 1908, four surviving Custer scouts returned to Little Bighorn with Edward S. Curtis, a famed scholar-photographer on Indian culture. Curtis died in 1925 and his unpublished papers were rediscovered in 1988 by a son, then 95, who sent them to the Smithsonian.

Based on those writings, the Smithsonian's curator emeritus of military history, James Hutchins, contributes a chapter to Viola's book. He adds new details to the familiar story of how Custer divided his force into three parts and ordered his second-in-command, Major Marcus Reno, to attack the Indian encampment.

Three Arikara scouts with Reno were killed, but the Crows survived. Most continued to serve with the military. While Custer was acclaimed a fallen hero, Reno was publicly vilified for his actions at Little Bighorn.

In a foreword, Gerard Baker, a former Park Service superintendent of the Little Bighorn battlefield, says modern-day critics who deride the Crows and Arikaras for siding with the government forget that the Plains tribes were already at war with each other, and some needed help to survive.

"Indians today often look back at Little Bighorn and see only the harmful results of the Indian alliance with the U.S. Army," writes Baker, whose Indian descendants include Arikara. "Hindsight is always 20-20, but our ancestors did not have crystal balls."

'Down Under' comes up here

Special to The Brand
CANYON — Art and music from "Down Under" will take center stage at West Texas A&M University.

The activities will begin with an art lecture at 2 p.m. today followed at 4 p.m. by a music recital in Mary Moody Northern Recital Hall.

The lecture and recital are in conjunction with Amarillo's 8th International Week, which continues through Saturday.

Judy Sutton Kracke, WTAMU art instructor, intends to focus the lecture on the origin of the images that create the Australian Aborigine's abstract art. Kracke will show examples of Aborigines art on slides and sculptures that she acquired from various artists in Australia.

"Aborigine means the original people," Kracke said. "They are the longest living continuous culture in the world that has changed very little in the past 100,000 years."

Kracke said the location of the tribe determines how different stories and styles are portrayed by the artist.

"Aboriginal art is passed down from generation to generation," Kracke said. "Mythology and culture are two driving forces behind the concept of Aborigine art."

Kracke has spent considerable time with the Koori tribe of Australia and is looking forward to a future visit.

"The Aborigine's concept of thinking is exceptionally different from ours, and it is something we should explore to gain a different perspective," she said.

Following the lecture, a reception will be held in the Northern Hall Atrium and will be sponsored by Friends of Cornette Library.

An Australian music presentation will begin at 4 p.m. in the recital hall.

"The recital will include a combination of contemporary, classical and folk music by Australian composers," Dr. Susan Martin Tariq, associate professor of music and recital coordinator, said.

Faculty members to perform are Denise Parr-Scanlin, piano; Dr. Joe Ella Cansler, voice; Dr. Cloyce Beatty-Stadley, voice; Dr. Robert Hanson, voice; Martin Tariq, marimba; and Sally Turk, flute.

Michelle Sheffield of Canyon, a graduate student in music, and Nicole Koetting of Amarillo, a senior music therapy major, will present a special two-piano duo.

Dr. Ted DuBois, head of the Department of Music and Dance, will present brief introductions that explain the Australian connection.

The lecture and recital are free and open to the public.

Mini-grants available to help kids

Special to The Brand

The Amarillo Area Foundation wants to award approximately $10,000 to fill some very special and unique needs for area children.

The foundation is now accepting applications for mini-grants from the Children's Fund. The fund will distribute individual grants from the charitable contributions raised during the 1998 Children's fund campaign held last holiday season. Each mini-grant will range from $500 to $1,000.

Any 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization operating in the 26 northernmost counties of the Texas Panhandle that offers services to children is eligible to apply for the one-time grant. Interested agencies should call the Amarillo Area Foundation to request an application form. Completed applications must be returned to the Amarillo Area foundation on or before Oct. 4.

Instead of token seasonal gift giving, Children's Fund provides local citizens a way to acknowledge business associates and special friends through a special charitable gift in their name. Since 1993, the Children's Fund has awarded more than $50,000 from charitable gifts with an additional $10,000 to be awarded in November.

The Downtown Women's Center in Amarillo is working to create a handcrafted gift item again this year which will be mailed to each honored recipient as a symbol of the gift made to area children.

The Children's Fund helps agencies meet those special needs of children and youth which are not met through normal funding channels. Grants from this Foundation fund have made possible such items as:

- Basic items of socks, shoes, a toothbrush and shampoo for underprivileged children
- Birthday gifts for children removed from their home because of abuse or neglect
- A ranch Christmas outing for chronically or critically ill children and their families
- Baby beds, car seats and diapers for needy children whose mothers attend parenting classes
- New gloves to accompany free coats being given to children of low to moderate income families, and Christmas presents for families who are spending their last holiday together due to terminal illness.

The Children's Fund was established in 1993 to raise additional monies to enhance the quality of life for underprivileged children. The Amarillo Area Foundation, a community foundation, is a public charity which both accepts funds from individuals, families, businesses and other groups that want to help Panhandle communities, and gives funds through carefully considered grants to charitable organizations for the enrichment of the quality of life of the people in the 26 northernmost counties of the Texas Panhandle.

Season tickets to BIT on sale

Special to The Brand
CANYON — Tickets for performances of the Branding Iron Theatre (BIT) at West Texas A&M University are available.

Season tickets are $6 per person per production and can be used anytime during the season. Season ticket holders have first-seat preference and will be reminded about reservations four weeks before each opening date.

"Regular adult admission is $7 per adult for plays and $10 per adult for the musical," Perry Crafton, WTAMU theatre director, said. "Season tickets are only $6 per adult for any production. We have some relatively unknown pieces this year that audience members will really enjoy."

The BIT will open the season Oct. 6-9 with "Getting Out" by Marsha Norman. The off-Broadway story focuses on a woman just released from prison after serving a sentence for murder. As Arlene starts her life over, her past literally haunts her in the form of Arlie, her destructive former self. As the BIT entry into the Kennedy Center/American College Theatre Festival, it is a work that conveys the struggle of a woman fighting for her life against incredible odds.

"The Desk Set" by William Marchant will be Dec. 1-5. With all the Y2K "crisis" talk, this comedy about Bunny and her co-workers who have come under fire by Emmarac, an electronic brain. Set in 1955, Bunny is called to lead the fight against Emmarac.

"American Story," a new musical, will be March 1-4. Since the experimental production at Amarillo College, local authors Laurel Varabedian and Bill Evans have been working with BIT staff to reshape the musical for a large-cast, full-stage production.

"Successful Strategies" by Murivaux and translated by Timberlake Wetenbaker will be April 26-29. The French Restoration farce pairs two separate lovers who have been cast off by their intendeds and are now preparing to marry each other. The race is on for the jilted lovers to collaborate and gain revenge on their former companions.

Solving the Interest Rate Mystery

Interest rates can be more mysterious than a Stephen King thriller. If the prime rate is 5 percent, why does it cost 10 percent to borrow money?

Cracking the interest rate code starts with understanding two significant short-term rates: the federal funds rate and the prime rate.

Short-term rates are most affected by the federal funds rate. Federal funds are funds, such as those in excess of reserve requirements, deposited by commercial banks at Federal Reserve Banks. On the flip side, banks that don't have enough funds to meet reserve requirements may have to borrow from other banks. They can borrow funds deposited by other banks at Federal Reserve Banks, and the amount of interest they pay is the federal funds rate. These borrowing transactions are generally overnight.

The federal funds rate is volatile because it's calculated on a day-to-day basis. Economic and technical factors influence its direction. By increasing or decreasing the federal funds target rate, the Fed can orchestrate the flow of money into the economy. A lower federal funds rate makes borrowing more attractive for banks and their customers, thereby increasing the flow of money into the economy. A higher federal funds rate tightens the flow. These moves by the Fed are generally cautious, avoiding knee-jerk reactions to breaking news of the economy. The federal funds rate is the benchmark for pricing other short-term securities.

The more widely publicized prime rate is the interest rate banks charge to their most credit-worthy customers, typically only blue chip corporations. Rates on loans to less credit-worthy customers (which generally include most individuals and businesses) are tied to prime rate.

Prime rate is determined by the market forces affecting a bank's cost of funds and the rates borrowers will accept. Because Fed funds are the source of funds to a bank, the prime rate set by a bank must be higher than the federal funds rate the bank pays. The difference, or spread, reflects the amount of risk the bank is willing to take in assuming a customer loan, plus a reasonable profit for the bank and its shareholders. When the Federal Reserve raises or lowers its rates, the prime rate follows.

The next time you're mystified by rates on short-term securities, remember these two clues: prime rate and federal funds rate.

Shocker

Herd's support goes hand in hand

Hey, Hereford athletes, gives yourselves a pat on the back.

I know. Tonight is the Homecoming Dance and everyone is just too busy to pick up a copy of the Hereford Brand and read this column.

Yeah, I know every girl is in her house or at some beauty parlor in Amarillo getting their hair done.

And I know you guys are doing some last minute roaming through the closet, or shopping, to find that suit you haven't worn since last year's dance.

So, it's been a busy day this Saturday afternoon.

But I have some things to say about the Hereford athletes.

The last two volleyball games I covered I saw nothing but football players.

Football players?

Yes, Hereford.

L.J. Vallejo, Ram Zambrano, the Hodges' twins, Rick Bordayo, Kurtis Flood, and Vernon Adams, to name a few of the warriors of the gridiron, that have spent around one hour of their free time last Saturday and Tuesday watching the Lady Whitefaces volleyball program.

I've also seen volleyball players at the football games, even if it means driving nearly four hours to Andrews.

This shows a great example of the respect both squads have for each other and the camaradery their share. Most importantly is the support they give to each other.

It's tough to go out to see the tennis team because they are on the road a lot. Ditto for cross-country and golf. But the bigger sports do give respect to the other sports in their own way.

One way I can think of is pep rallies. They'll present the accomplishments of the teams and the others cheer on. Now that's support.

Which brings me to another point.

I talked to a couple of football players and challenged them to a little wager.

This is the challenge.

If they go unbeaten throughout the regular season and/or win the District 3-4A championship, I will have each member of the team shave my head completely bald.

You'll be seeing an Uncle Fester look-a-like sports editor in the press box in a Hereford playoff game this fall.

I even challenge the volleyball team. If they go unbeaten in district play and/or win a district title, I'll wear make up on my face for the first playoff game.

For both teams, that's a challenge.

I think that's the only way I can show support for the teams, because I have to show professionalism while working and trying to cover a game. I can't really show support for the hometown team while working.

If I wasn't working, I'd be the first one to wear a maroon-colored afro with white and maroon paint on my face. But I can't do that. I have a job to do.

Hereford's athletes do good in supporting other athletes in different sports. I even support the Whitefaces and the Lady Whitefaces in a very indirect and professional way, trying my best covering sports for the newspaper.

Looking for Holes — Canyon running back Clete Andrews looks for yardage as he tries to get away from Hereford's Michael Barba on Friday night.

Turnovers, mistakes and penalties contribute to Herd's 14-6 setback to non-district rival Canyon

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor

The way the Hereford Whitefaces have been playing for the last four weeks, they seemed unbeatable.

The only way they could be beaten was only if they beat themselves.

Well, against Canyon on Friday night, they beat themselves with penalties and turnovers and lost their Homecoming game to the Canyon High Eagles, 14-6 at Whiteface Stadium.

"Our mistakes killed us," Hereford coach Craig Yenser said. "You can't blame it on any one person. As a team, we made the mistakes."

The troubles started early for the Whitefaces.

An early touchdown from Cody Hodges to Slade Hodges was nullified by a controversial offensive pass interference penalty called on Slade with 5:14 left in the first quarter.

Hereford had a 30-yard field goal attempt early in the second quarter and a chance for them to take a 3-0 lead. But Mike Bedolla's kick hooked to the left and the game remained scoreless with 10:50 left in the first half.

Hereford's drives were long as they held the ball for nearly 17 minutes in the first half of the ball game, but 50-yards of penalties denied the Whitefaces any scoring chances.

When they did score, they still struggled.

"We didn't take advantage of our scoring opportunities," Yenser said. "I was pleased with their effort but we just made too many mistakes."

On fourth-and-one from the Hereford one yard line, L.J. Vallejo looked for holes on the Canyon High defense during Hereford's 14-6 loss on Friday.

before halftime, Cody Hodges ran a quarterback option to the right side and dove to the end zone for a 6-0 lead, and that's how the score was at halftime.

Bedolla botched the extra-

That completed a grueling, eight-minute drive that went 91 yards on eighteen plays.

"Went in after halftime, coach (J.R.) Compton said that the team with the less mistakes was going to win the ball game," said L.J. Vallejo, who ran for 38 yards on the night, "and it's obvious what's happened today."

Canyon had only been able to generate 33 yards offense and 14 yards passing on one completion.

"They had a good scheme and coach Yenser did a good job but I was proud of our kids," Canyon coach Bill Patterson said. They hung in there."

The Eagles only ran 12 plays in the first half.

"We're going to learn some lessons on offense,"

Patterson said. "There's some things that broke people free, but I am certainly proud of our kids."

In the second half, Canyon was able to finally capitalize on the Whitefaces' mistakes.

In the first offensive series for Hereford, Cody Hodges threw a 13-yard pass intended for George Castillo, but the ball fell into the hands of Canyon's Rusty Shorter at the Whiteface 40-yard line.

That pick off set up Chris Scott's one-yard touchdown plunge with 9:27 left in the third, giving the Eagles a 7-6 lead.

Hereford was forced to punt on the next series. Then Canyon's running offense took over.

"You got to give coach Patterson credit," Yenser said. "They were sound at what they did and they were able to take it to us."

The air says the season is changing --and Beau knows fall

The black Lab is getting antsy. An original good time guy, he feels the cooler air of the first few light cold fronts of September and is perking up immensely.

His tail, ever a fearsome object of potential mayhem in its exaggerated happy flailing, is an even more menacing object, swaying to-and-fro like a berserk wrecking ball, now that he feels the seasons changing. There's no doubt when he enters the garage en route to his food dish, just listen for the alternating thumping and clanging as his tail beats rhythmically between the wall and the side of the pickup.

Always playful, though he ran in granny gear in the heat of the summer, he is absolutely rambunctious now. He tears around the yard in pursuit of a plastic Coke bottle that rolls before his thunderous charges and frantic pawing, setting up a clatter on the concrete of the back porch.

He grabs the bottle in that great yawning, yet gentle mouth, and sprints with it from one end of the yard to the other and back again in a frenetic game. He is a kid celebrating the fair, the circus, the end of school, Christmas, all at once, because he knows what the cooler air will soon bring.

Beau the Lab knows that fall and the time of poking around in weeds and stalks for birds is close at hand.

The purpose for which he was born will avail itself to him again.

He will get to ride in the crate in the back of the pickup and be set loose to romp once more in the ocher fields, filling his broad nose with the tantalizing scent of rainbow-colored roosters, working within shotgun range of his man so that he can be cast on a pell-mell charge to send hunkered-down roosters squawking skyward in thunderous flushes. Though he has never snatched any of the elongated tailfeathers of these roosters on the rise, he loves to leap high after them and try...Gets those roosters boiling out lots faster.

His eyes will fix again on flights of ducks and geese coasting toward the decoys, his intense brown-eyed glance tipping-off the hunters he allows to share his company to the presence of the fowl long before the untalented noses and eyes of the two-legged hunters have acquired them...His man is none too bright when it comes to scent and sight, but then, he means well, shoots passably enough to give him a bird to gather in now and again--and he puts decent chow in his dish. The man's kid is fun to play with--a definite bonus.

Beau knows chances will come again to fetch back hard-hit geese that have sailed far downwind of the spread before falling. He'll probably get to make a few more of those pack-a-lunch retrieves that let him range out a long way and show off to an appreciative audience sitting amidst the decoys...Wishes that man wouldn't make him sit still and wait so long when the geese are floating into the decoys with their wings locked and feet down...Sometimes it seems like they're never going to shoot. Beau knows fall...The pace of the training bumper work will pick up a lot soon, and the addicting scent of those pheasant will be on the canvas bumpers again. The fun's about to begin. -SD-

A series of nine public meetings are being conducted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service throughout the Central Flyway in the weeks ahead in order to discuss issues pertaining to snow goose management.

Texas will host a meeting October 5 in Rosenberg at the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Building, 1436 Band Road, from 7-9:30 p.m.

The session will provide a forum for individuals to voice their concerns about light geese, particularly as they relate to Texas, and to comment on proposed special regulations to increase light goose harvest in the Central and Mississippi Flyways.

If you aren't able to attend this session in the coastal country, but are interested in the snow goose issue, the Fish & Wildlife Service invites public participation in the scoping process for preparing an Environmental Impact Statement that considers management alternatives to address the exploding population of lesser snow geese, Ross' geese, and greater snow geese.

Written comments on EIS scoping should be submitted by November 22 to the Chief, Office of Migratory Bird Management, U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, 4401 North Fairfax Drive, Suite 634, Arlington, VA 22203. Comments may be presented via e-mail to white_goose_eis@fws.gov.

Eagles

Amending for their early struggles, the Eagles, led by Chris Scott's running, marched 37 yards to the Whiteface 19, but missed a 36-yard field goal and the score remained 7-6 after three quarters.

Then, the wall fell on the Whitefaces. After giving up two punts in their first two series of the fourth quarter, the third series saw Canyon's Jackson Robinson intercept a tipped ball by Morris Penalber at the Hereford 40-yard line.

Canyon was forced to punt. The next three were more of the same for Hereford.

An interception by Derek Turner on a long Hail-Mary-like pass gave the Eagles the ball at their own nine.

Two plays later, Andrew Ramirez picked off Anthony May's pass that fell short from Nathan Stevens' hands and Hereford had a shot from their 34-yard line with 1:54 left in the game.

Then, came the killer.

On third-and-four from the Eagle 28, Cody Hodges looked for his brother, Slade, only to find Matt Allen in the way and picking off the ball, which he returned for 77-yards for a score with 54 seconds left and put a dagger in the hearts of the Whitefaces.

Allen again intercepted Cody Hodges at the Herd's 20 and returned it to the five to seal the victory.

"It's a big win," Patterson said. "It's good to win this ball game, but we're looking to win a district championship. The next five weeks count."

As big a loss as it was for the players, Yenzler said he won't allow that to get in the way of preparing for district opponents.

"Our biggest concern is that this game didn't have a lot of weight in the minds of our players," Yenzler said. "We have some team things that we need to figure out. We just can't have the turnovers, penalties and missed opportunities."

From now on, every game counts for Hereford as they start District 3-4A play next Friday at Dumas.

"District is when it really counts," Vallejo said. "This is for all the marbles."

Angels one-run better on Rangers

ANAHEIM (AP) — Jeff DaVanon got his first major league hit and ended the game with his second — a ninth-inning home run that triggered a wild celebration by the Anaheim Angels.

But the backslapping ended once the Angels returned to their clubhouse. It was time to give one last good-luck handshake to GM Bill Bavasi — who resigned an hour after the first pitch of Friday night's 7-6 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"I don't think any good can come out of this situation," center fielder Jim Edmonds said. "But hopefully, we can finish strong and just see the good side of this team that he put together. If we win next year with this team, it's all because of him and not anybody else. He put us on the field."

Troy Glaus helped stop the Rangers' six-game winning streak with a career-high four RBIs, including a game-tying, two-run single in the eighth inning and a two-run homer in the fourth. But all the postgame talk centered around Bavasi, who called it quits a month after Terry Collins' tearful resignation as manager.

"It's out of my control," said Mo Vaughn, signed by Bavasi to an $80 million, six-year contract. "All I can do is thank him for giving me the opportunity here. I'll always be grateful.

Hopefully, over the course of my contract, I can prove I was worth it."

DaVanon, the son of former major leaguer Jerry DaVanon, homered off Mike Morgan (13-9). The victory went to Mike Holtz (2-3), who tied a career best with three innings of one-hit relief.

"I still have chills," said DaVanon, who also singled in the sixth. "It's a little boy's fantasy come true. The adrenaline just kicked in and I kept running fast because I wanted to be sure it went out."

Because of the loss, the only way Texas can open the playoffs at home would be if the Rangers win their final two games and the Cleveland Indians lose their final two. If that doesn't happen, the Rangers open at the Yankees on Tuesday night.

"Of course we'd like to have it, but it's not going to be a situation where we're not going to feel we have a chance to win the series," designated hitter Lee Stevens said. "But anytime you can play more games at home, obviously you do have a slight edge over whoever you're playing."

Rangers starter Esteban Loaiza allowed three runs and six hits in seven innings and left with a 6-3 lead.

But the Angels rallied in the eighth against Mike Venafro and Tim Crabbtree, parlaying two singles, a walk and third baseman Todd Zeile's 25th error into three runs. Crabbtree allowed an RBI single by Tim Salmon and Glaus' clutch hit.

Ivan Rodriguez set an AL record for catchers with his 35th homer, and Tom Goodwin hit a three-run shot to help Texas build a 5-0 lead in the first four innings against rookie Ramon Ortiz.

The Rangers, who clinched their third AL West title in four years on Sunday, opened the scoring in the first on an RBI single by Rafael Palmeiro. They made it 2-0 in the third on Rodriguez's towering homer to right-center, which broke the AL mark for catchers set by Oakland's Terry Steinbach in 1996.

Loaiza retired his first 10 batters before giving up a single to Edmonds, who scored on Vaughn's single. One out later, Glaus' 29th homer trimmed the Rangers' lead to 5-3.

Loaiza stranded two runners in scoring position by retiring Glaus on a grounder to third to end the sixth. The Rangers made it 6-3 in the seventh when Scarborough Green scored on Holtz's bases-loaded wild pitch to Palmeiro.

Ortiz gave up six runs and eight hits in six-plus innings.

Astros lose ground on Reds, get beaten by Dodgers, 5-1

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros lost and still have a chance to win the NL Central. That's not the way they want to do it.

The Astros remained tied with the Cincinnati Reds following Friday night's 5-1 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers because the Reds lost to Milwaukee 4-3 in 11 innings.

"We've been making too many mental mistakes," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "You have to play better than that if you want to go into the playoffs the right way and not by watching other teams put you in."

The New York Mets crept within one game of the Astros and Reds in the wild-card race after they beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 Friday night.

Jose Lima (20-10) was scheduled to start for the Astros today against the Dodgers and if the Astros should win and need a victory Sunday to secure a playoff spot, 21-game winner Mike Hampton could get the call.

"All we can do is play our butts off the next two days," Jeff Bagwell said. "I haven't seen our guys pressing, I've seen them battling."

The Astros had plenty of chances to put themselves in a better position against the Dodgers but they couldn't break through against Eric Gagne (1-1), who got his first major league victory.

"I knew this would be a tough series with three teams fighting for two playoff spots," Bagwell said. "We didn't play very well. We deserved to lose. All you can do is the best you can."

Dodgers manager Davey Johnson will give the Astros a break. He's going to rest Sheffield for the final two games and he won't pitch Kevin Brown on Sunday.

"I'm sure the Mets and Reds would like to see him pitch, but I don't work for them," Johnson said. "I don't feel comfortable bringing our ace back on three days rest with the kind of year he's had."

"It's one thing if we're fighting for the playoffs, then you stress him. It's another thing to bring him in and stress him when you're out of the race."

That doesn't mean the Dodgers still won't try to spoil the Astros' chances.

"We're not paying attention to which teams are in it," Sheffield said. "We know Houston is one of the team and if we are the spoilers that's the way it is."

"We're just trying to play hard and find out if some of our young guys can play. We don't care who's in it and who's not, who we help and who we don't help. Whoever it is, they've got to earn it."

Gagne allowed five hits in six innings as Los Angeles won for the 10th time in 13 games.

"You'd like to do it like the Braves or like we did last year (run away with title)," Craig Biggio said. "But we've battled through things all year and had a lot of injuries. It's a dog fight with two games to go, so we'll see how it goes."

Shane Reynolds (16-14), who has two wins in 11 starts since Aug. 5, allowed five runs and eight hits in five innings.

"We've got a couple of games left and anything can happen," Reynolds said. "There's no sense to worry about this. We've just got to do our job here. We can't worry about what's happening elsewhere."

Sheffield's 34th homer put Los Angeles ahead 1-0 in the first. Jeff Bagwell then made a diving catch on Devon White's liner down the first-base line to save two runs.

Sheffield hit a two-run single in the third and Adrian Beltre had an RBI single.

Ditka: Williams won't play Sunday against Chicago

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Saints rookie running back Ricky Williams' hyperextended elbow will keep him out of Sunday's game against the Chicago Bears "unless there's an unbelievable change," coach Mike Ditka said Friday.

Ditka said he made the decision after reading comments Williams made Thursday during his weekly talk with reporters.

"I can do a little bit of everything, but I can't do anything really well," Williams said after practice Thursday, saying the brace he wears makes it hard to feel the ball or switch hands.

Williams also noted he had not taken a real hit in practice since being injured Sept. 19 against the San Francisco 49ers.

"If he comes up to me and says, 'I can take any hit they give me. I can roll. I can hit. I can do anything.' That's a different story, but he can't do that right now, and maybe it was wishful thinking on my part, and I take the blame for that. I really do," Ditka said Friday.

If Williams can't play, Lamar Smith is likely to be the starter at halfback. Williams is the Saints' leading rusher with 120 yards on 32 carries, but Smith has averaged 5.1 yards with 77 yards on 15 carries.

Frequent questions about Williams and other personnel decisions for Sunday's game clearly angered Ditka.

"Why don't we just call Chicago and tell them what the hell we're going to do?" he asked. "Just call them on the phone. Tell them, we're not going to do this. Just call them up. I told you after I answered the first thing, let it go. Why do you keep doing this to me? That bugs me. It really bugs me."

Edmonton Oilers retire Gretzky's No. 99

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Now Wayne Gretzky feels his retirement is final.

Nearly five months after playing his last game, Gretzky had his No. 99 retired by the Edmonton Oilers in extravagant ceremonies Friday night, and the Great One called it the "official" end of his unparalleled hockey career.

Gretzky spent a major part of his career in Edmonton, helping the Oilers win four Stanley Cups in the '80s before playing for teams in Los Angeles, St. Louis and New York.

"As emotional as it was, I couldn't help but stand there and smile, thinking over all the wonderful times that I had playing and living here," said Gretzky, who was given the tribute before the Oilers' season opener against the Rangers.

The Oilers and Rangers played to a 1-1 tie.

Gretzky's No. 99 jersey was raised to the rafters in a moving ceremony at Skyreach Centre. In attendance were more than 17,000 cheering fans including Gretzky's family and ex-teammates.

"I guess it's only fitting that they're parking me (the banner) behind that net," said Gretzky, referring to the area where he was offensively potent.

The simple blue banner bearing Gretzky's name, number and the team's oil drop logo was lifted to the ceiling following an eye-popping light show and video extravaganza highlighted by Gretzky's greatest goals being replayed on the Jumbotron.

Gretzky thanked the team and the city's fans, saying, "the years here have been nothing but wonderful, nothing but great."

He said he accepted his retirement decision the moment he announced it in the spring. "The fact I can't do it (play hockey), it kills me but I've got peace of mind because it was time to move on."

"When I saw that banner go up, there was no turning back."

He said he came home spiritually to Edmonton when he dropped the puck before Game 4 of the Oilers-Dallas Stars playoff series in April. "That's when I said I'm kind of an Edmonton Oiler again."

Many of Gretzky's former Edmonton teammates were in attendance, including current Oilers coach Kevin Lowe and Jari Kurri, who scored many goals off Gretzky's seeing-eye passes. Kurri flew in from Finland for the ceremony.

"A lot of memories came back — the good old days, the two-on-ones, stuff like that," Gretzky said.

John Muckler, ex-Oilers coach and currently coach of the Rangers, added: "I was just standing there, more or less, saying, 'Hey guy, you deserve all this.'"

The crowd gave Gretzky a five-minute standing ovation when he entered in a cloud of dry ice and circled the rink standing on the bed of a slow-moving black pickup. Flashbulbs popped as players, fans and even the refs saluted Gretzky.

Gretzky then hopped off and was hugged by mentor and former coach Glen Sather, who is now team president. In his speech, Sather called Gretzky "a great Canadian hero."

Also at center ice were Gretzky's father Walter, mother Phyllis, wife Janet and children Paulina, Ty and Trevor.

Ex-Oilers Kurri, Mark Messier and Dave Semenko then unveiled a Wei Luan portrait of Gretzky celebrating a goal.

The ceremony capped a day of Wayne-adoration that began at noon when 5,000 screaming fans ignored freezing temperatures to jam the City Hall square to say goodbye.

"One more year! One more year!" they chanted to Gretzky.

"They took my skates to the Hall of Fame!" he shouted. "I don't even have skates!"

The city hall affair was to officially change the name of the 3-mile expressway that runs past Skyreach to Wayne Gretzky Drive.

A bronze statue of him hoisting aloft the Stanley Cup already stands outside the rink. It was erected a decade ago after his trade to the Los Angeles Kings.

"Once the sweater goes up, it's the official end," said Gretzky, adding, "I still wish I could play. I still wish I could be out there."

The NHL has already announced his No. 99 will be retired throughout the league, but Edmonton is the first city to send his jersey to the rafters.

Gretzky holds 61 NHL records. Included are his 894 goals and 1,963 assists for 2,857 points. In 208 career playoff games, he collected 122 goals and 260 assists.

He played one season in the now-defunct WHA. He scored 46 regular-season goals plus 10 more in the playoffs to give him a combined pro hockey mark of 1,072 — one more than boyhood idol Gordie Howe.

Gretzky will be inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto on Nov. 22. The hall's directors waived the usual three-year waiting period.

Museum display reveals family history

Family history - Deaf Smith County Museum displays its newest feature called "family history." The wedding dresses belonged to members of the same family. Mrs. Mary Aker (mother of Helen Rose, Ann Carroll and Kathryn Ruga) dyed her wedding dress green after the wedding (far right), Helen Rose and Ann Carroll borrowed the same dress (middle) and Mrs. Tess Fox (sisters' great-aunt) donated her wedding gown (far left) along with several other pieces of clothing to the museum.

Wedding dresses provide genealogical link

By Julie L. Carlson

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Genealogy is a term which is heard about more often today than 100 years ago. People are wanting to find out about their family's history, where they came from, how they got to where they are, what types of jobs their family members held; the curiosity runs wild and with all the technology today, genealogy research is becoming the easiest way to find the answers to these questions.

Since Hereford is a fairly new city at 101 years old, and not a large one at that, its history and residents are easy to research. However, the family ties and who belongs to which family can become complicated. In order for people to relate to you, you have to be attached to a family name which has been in Hereford for several years.

One family man who settled here in 1902 made a good family name for his wife and three daughters and their family ties are an example of just how complicated genealogy can become. The daughters later married, dropping their maiden name and making their married name just as well known and liked. The man was Mr. Cliff Aker, his wife was Mary Fox and his daughters are Helen Rose, Ann Carroll and the late Kathryn Ruga.

Sisters Helen and Ann not only shared the same maiden name, but also the same wedding dress. Married just two years apart, the sisters wore the same dress and also served in each others' wedding parties, along with the middle sister Kathryn.

The sisters' donated their wedding dress along with their mother's wedding dress to the Deaf Smith County Museum. Their great-aunt, Mrs. Tess Fox, has also donated several of her dresses and accessories to the museum along with her wedding dress.

The museum's Fashion Committee (a branch of the Historical Society) changes the display each fall and spring. This fall and winter's display features clothing worn by early pioneers, fashionable mink and velvet coats of the early to mid 1900s worn by the wealthy during Hereford winters, and also features a section which they call family history. The family history section consists of Mrs. Aker, Helen and Ann and Mrs. Fox's wedding dresses along with Mrs. Fox's accessories.

This display is special because it involves not only generations of clothing but also generations of family. The eye-catching family history section is part of the Aker and Fox genealogy, standing behind glass.

Clothes tell a lot of a person's personality, status in society and time period in which innocent browser would not notice Mary Aker's wedding dress because it's green. Yes, green. When she married, it was white but she later dyed it green to be able to wear it more often. An accessory used to accent her dress in the display is a necklace made of rose petals. Mary had the rose petals wrapped into balls to make for a unique necklace. It is unknown where the rose petals large bow and several buttons up the back of the dress were the style for weddings in the late '40s and early '50s, as well as the '90s; when it comes to fashion, what goes around comes around.

Ann bought the dress in 1948 at White and Kirk of Amarillo, a very classy, modern ladies apparel store. She and J.T. were married in Hereford's First United Methodist Church's "old sanctuary," just before it was remodeled to the one which is used today.

Two years after Ann's wedding, Helen married Austin C. Rose, Jr. in 1950, wearing the same eloquent dress and in the same church. However, Helen and Austin were the first couple to be married in the completed remodeled sanctuary. One other wedding had been performed in the new sanctuary, but with fold-out chairs while Helen's wedding had the pews and all.

One other dress displayed is yet another wedding dress. This dress is the girls' great aunt Tess Fox's. Tess Fox was from Friona where she met her husband, Homer Fox of Hereford. Homer went to Friona to manage a branch of Fox Mercantile Co., which had been established by an older brother.

After they were married in 1913, they moved to Hereford where Homer opened a branch of the Fox Mercantile Co. and named it the Fox Man's Shop located on Main Street. Needless to say, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Fox modeled the most stylish apparel.

"She (Tess Fox) was the best dressed and most fashionable in Hereford at that time," Helen Rose said.

Mrs. Fox later donated several items of clothing and accessories to the Museum. Along with the wedding dresses, a chifferobe is used to display a highly fashionable rust-colored dress with sparkly butterflies hanging on the door and a yellow and black suit and coordinating hat. Several other styles of Mrs. Fox's hats are also used on the display along with Homer Fox's cuff links with his initials, a pearl grape brooch, several pair of her shoes and the list is never ending of her stylish pieces on display and also items she has donated to the museum including one of her 1920s swimsuits.

When doing genealogy research, people head to the library, court house and today the Internet. What most people don't realize is researching family history can begin at museums. Even though the Deaf Smith County's Museum display is made mainly of clothes, pictures of Helen and Ann with their sister Kathryn have been placed beside the wedding gowns along with Ann's wedding announcement. These women, Ann, Helen, Mrs. Aker and Mrs. Fox are now linked not only with family ties but by fashion.

The sisters' father, Cliff Aker, moved to Hereford in 1902, at the age of 6, with his grandmother and two brothers. After his return from World War I, he began work at the Western National Bank of Hereford. It was later bought and called the First State Bank and bought once again and named the First National Bank (currently named First Bank Southwest). Cliff and his wife, Mary Jane Fox, married in 1922.

When looking at the museum display the came from, but it sounds romantic to say they came from the bouquet she carried in her wedding, but nobody knows.

The couple later had three daughters. The eldest, Mary Ann, married in 1948 to Hereford native J.T. Carroll. J.T. was also a banker for several years, in Amarillo, before moving back to Hereford in 1974. The stunning silk wedding gown, worn by Ann and later by Helen, with a train that lays on the ground like a feather, dainty and careful, can not be missed in the display. The Depression screenings offered

More than 80 percent of those suffering from depression can be treated successfully. That is the aim of West Texas A&M University's Student Counseling Services and the Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority on National Depression Screening Day (NDSD) Thursday, Oct. 7.

Screening sponsored by both entities will be conducted at 9 a.m., noon, 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. in Room 211 of the Virgil Henson Activities Center on the WTAMU campus and at the Amarillo College Student Union Building.

A 30-minute session will include a brief questionnaire/assessment that will be evaluated by a mental health professional after a short information presentation.

"The purpose of National Depression Screening Day is to call attention to the illness of depression, to educate the public about its symptoms and to connect those in need of treatment to people who can help," Dayna Schertler, WTAMU counselor, said. "If depression is recognized and treated, many people will begin to return to normal functioning within six to eight weeks."

For the first time, the national program will include an emphasis on suicide prevention. Suicide is the ninth leading cause of death in the U.S. Almost 5,000 people ages 15-24 kill themselves each year.

According to the American Foundation of Suicide Prevention, most depressed people are not suicidal, but most suicidal people are depressed.

NDSD participants will receive a suicide-risk questionnaire that is designed to be taken by someone who is concerned about a friend or loved one.

"The questionnaire covers the symptoms or behaviors that may indicate suicide risk," Schertler said. "This is important because nearly 75 percent of all people who take their own lives give some warning of the intentions to a friend or family member."

The form also includes practical advice on the do's and don'ts of helping a person who is suicidal.

Each screening session is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Schertler at 806/651-2340.

...celebrate 40th anniversary

Couple will be feted on 40th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Castillo will be honored on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary with a wedding, reception and dance beginning at 10 a.m. on Oct. 9 at San Jose Catholic Church.

Castillo and the former Elva Casarez were married Nov. 30, 1959, in Hereford where they have lived since that time.

Castillo is retired from Sugarland Feedyard where he was employed for 28 years. Both are members of San Jose Catholic Church.

Hosts for the occasion will be children of the couple, George Castillo, Peter Castillo, Henry Castillo and Eudelia Irvegas, all of Hereford; and Jesse Castillo of Roswell, N.M.

They have 13 grandchildren.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You goofed big time when you told "Concerned Wife in Nashville" not to be so paranoid about her husband running errands without the children. She said she had no proof "Clyde" was doing anything wrong, but it worried her that whenever he went out, he refused to take the kids along. You told her to lighten up, and asked, "How much trouble can Clyde get into on his way to the grocery store?" Well, I can tell you. Plenty.

My father used to run errands to the hardware store and bakery, and would never take us kids with him because he wanted to flirt with any cutie he might encounter along the way. He would leave the house frequently to call his sweetie-of-the-month from a pay phone a few blocks away. (This was before cell phones were so popular.) How do I know this? Because one day, I spotted him in a phone booth shortly after he had left the house on one of his "errands." I said nothing to my mother, but she eventually found out about his affairs on her own. She didn't divorce him, but their marriage was never the same after that.

So, Ann, "Concerned Wife" does have something to keep her eye on, and you did her no favor when you let Clyde off the hook. — Daughter of

Experience in Dallas

Dear D.O.E.: You are so right. My readers clobbered me for my naive response to "Concerned Wife in Nashville." Keep reading for more:

From Rockford, Ill.: When you're wrong, you're REALLY wrong. My ex-husband went shopping a lot, and he always came home with something for me — to prove he was actually shopping. What he was really doing was meeting his girlfriend. I was the perfect wife, or so I thought. Actually, I was the perfect fool.

Houston: My husband didn't run errands like Clyde. He took frequent "fishing trips" and "emergency business trips." I finally zoned in and discovered those trips were with a newly divorced "friend" from church. I'm just sorry it took me so long to wise up.

Windsor, Ontario: That wife in Nashville should trust her intuition. It's as good as a private eye, and a lot cheaper. My husband got away with plenty until it dawned on me that he always took his cell phone when he went to the store on an errand. I followed him one day, and caught him having a quickie in the parking lot of the supermarket in broad daylight. I decided against divorce. Mandated counseling put our marriage back on track, but it took a lot of healing on my part.

Eureka, Calif.: Clyde could easily be having an affair. Thirty minutes is plenty of time. I know, because I did it in less when I was cheating on my husband. I'm now 59 and faithful, and life is much simpler.

Tampa, Fla.: My wife and I exchanged knowing looks at the breakfast table when we read about Clyde and his lengthy "errands." I was a Clyde, and the guilt was killing me. I went for counseling and discovered I was suffering from clinical depression; "medicating" myself with sexual excitement. Counseling worked miracles for me. I hope Clyde sees this and follows through.

Rochester, N.Y.: I should have wised up when my husband began hiding his delivery schedule. (He's a truck driver.) I tried bleaching my hair blonde and losing weight, but finally decided he was the one who had to change. I told him, "Shape up, or you're out the door." He knew I was serious, and has been a straight arrow ever since. Women with husbands who stray should not tolerate the cheating. They need to get tough. I did, and it changed my life.

Adrian ISD welcomes new superintendent

Adrian Independent School District hosted an open house to welcome its new superintendent, Mike Long, on Sept. 27.

Long has been in education for 21 years, starting as an ag teacher and later becoming principal of Boles ISD.

"My hope for this year is to maintain the high level of academics and to take in more students. Today we have 90 students in kindergarten through 12th grade. My goal would be to have 117-120 by this time next year," Long said.

A brief meeting was held in the auditorium to recognize the school's achievements, including being an exemplary school, and to recognize the staff.

Long-time employee, Francis Pridmore, who recently retired, was recognized in the meeting and a reception was held in her honor in conjunction with the open house.

School employees this year include Sherry Hale, K-1st grade; Marty Burns, 2nd-3rd grade; Rita Bronniman, 3rd-4th grade; Diane Brooks, business computer applications and accounting; Bart Cadenhead, health, drivers ed, and boys coach; Monty Hale, mathematics; Greg Little, history and girls coach; Luis Orozco, Spanish; Teresa Sutton, special ed and language arts; Lynda Talley, English and speech; Jay Vines, science; and Bob Wood, ag science.

Others employed in the office as aids; cafeteria workers, maintenance personnel and bus drivers, include: Shari Torres, Audrey Grukley, Connie Harwood, Ruby Henderson, Linda Pridmore, Angela Heiselman, Sally Ferguson, Don McCool, Beth Long, Kathy Hogrebe, Annette Jung, Larry Pridmore and Darrel Collins.

100th Anniversary

Post commanders, past and present, pictured above, in attendance at the Veterans of Foreign Wars 100th anniversary celebration were, from left, Earl Stagner, Kenneth Gott, Tommy Goheen, John Yocum, Bill Craig, Bobby Vaughn, Stan Fry, Mel Charest and Robert Kubacak. Roy Wederbrook Post 4818 has donated more than $12,000 to local charities this past year. VFW Auxiliary presidents, past and present, pictured below, who attended the anniversary celebration held Wednesday were, from left, Erma Loving, Peggy Oakes, Marie Goheen, Betty Boggs, Ruth Morris, Linda Maeder, Colleen Schaeffer and Laura Smith.

Auxiliary gives membership pins

The Ladies Auxiliary to Roy Wederbrook Post 4818 had a regular session meeting on Aug. 2 with 12 members present and president Laura Smith presiding.

Continuous membership pins were awarded; five members received five year pins, two received 10 year pins, three received 15 year pins and three others received 20 year pins and one member received a 40 year pin.

The Auxiliary met again Sept. 13 with Laura Smith presiding. A special ceremony was held for Doris Coffin who passed away Aug. 29, 1999. The charter was draped in ceremony to honor Coffin.

In other business, toiletry items were donated to the Ronald McDonald House at the VA Hospital in Amarillo. Members were also reminded September was Hospital Month. In recognition of Hospital Month, members donated eyeglasses for the veterans at the VA Medical Center in Amarillo, they also donated money to the VA Medical Center for the annual Christmas Party. The money is used to buy items from which the hospitalized veterans may choose Christmas gifts for their family members at no cost.

Members present were: Mildred Clements, Becky Curtis, Pixie Forbus, Marie Gohein, Essie Martin, Peggy Oakes, Edith Richardson, Frankie Ruland, Leona Sowell, Laura Smith and Anita Vardell.

On Sept. 29, VFW celebrated its 100th Anniversary and honored past commanders. The celebration was held at the VFW Hall Wednesday night. Invitations had been sent to veterans and auxiliary members and their spouses.

VFW presidents and past presidents of both VFW and Auxiliary were given special recognition.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. with special guest District 13 president. A meal will be provided preceding the meeting at 7 p.m.

Delta Xi chapter members recommit

Delta Xi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International held its first meeting of the year in September.

The meeting was called to order by president Kris Dollar, the golden moment was presented by Rose Mary Shook, Murlene Streum gave the invocation and the chapter collect was lead by Donna Warrick.

Music chairman Jean Rickettes accompanied members as they sang the contribution of women to education.

After the business meeting, a candlelight recommitment ceremony was presented by the Ceremonials Committee. Members of the committee include: Eloise McDougal, Thelma Alexander, Linda Cumpton and Dorothy Brownlow.

The seven purposes of the Society were recited and the symbols were reviewed.

Hostesses for the salad supper were: Carole McGilvary, Pat Simnacher, Bera Boyd, Marge Bell, Shelia Staughan and Rose Mary Shook.

Members present were: Dorothy Mercer, Della Stagner,

Dr. Adams recognized

Dr. Milton Adams was recognized this week by the Hereford Masonic Lodge for 50 years of membership.

Making the presentation of the certificate was worshipful master Dennis Newton.

Drawing to benefit FUMC 180

Local supporters of the 180 Youth Ministry being organized by First United Methodist Church of Hereford are holding a drawing for a fully restored 1967 Chevrolet pickup. Tickets for the drawing will go on sale this month for $100 each.

Proceeds from the drawing will benefit the 180 program, a youth ministry originally begun in the summer of 1995 at Church on the Move in Tulsa, Okla.

Cory Campbell, FUMC youth minister, has been instrumental in initiating the program in Hereford.

"The program is designed to help church members stop telling and start showing kids they are loved," Campbell said.

The youth group from Church on the Move originated the 180 name and designed a logo, giving meaning to each number: 1 - bring one friend; 8 - weeks of Bible study; and 0 - pledge no sex, drugs or alcohol.

More information about the drawing for the pickup or about the 180 program is available by calling Campbell at 364-0770.

'College Is..' topic of presentation

"College Is..." an informative program for high school upperclassmen and their parents, will be presented by Courty Extension Agent Beverly Harder at 6 p.m. Monday, Oct. 4, in the community center.

The program, sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, is a free of charge and open to the public.

The presentation will include explanations of: college language, finances, management skills, ACT-SAT tests, dormitory living, record keeping, transcripts, student life opportunities and scholarships. Information packets will also be available.

Harder will discuss the need for personal data forms, which are helpful during the scholarship application process. A timetable of tasks to be completed during a student's junior and senior years of high school will be detailed.

For further information, call the Extension office, 364-3573.

KUB Award Winners

The Hereford Beautification Alliance has announced the names of the recipients for the KUB (Keeping Us Beautiful) Award for the week of Oct. 3:

The KUB Award is given to acknowledge those individuals and businesses who take the time and effort to maintain their property.

Property is judged for neatness, free of weeds and junk, lawn mowed, no junk cars parked on premises, and flowers (in season) and shrubs.

No major prizes are awarded but recipients receive an award letter.

Winners for the week of Oct. 3 are:

- *Mrs. R.C. Anderson, 408 Westhaven
- *Larry Messner, 120 Greenwood
- *A.L. Daniels, 126 Juniper
- *Jackie Redwine, 435 Centre

The Alliance congratulates these winners for the high standard they are setting.

IN MEMORY OF MOTHER

God saw she was getting tired and getting well was not to be. So he put his arms around her and whispered come with me.

With tearful eyes we watched her suffer and saw her fade away and though we loved her dearly, we could not ask her to stay because daddy was waiting just outside.

A golden heart had stopped beating. Hard working hands put to rest. God broke our hearts to prove to us he only takes the best.

We are extremely grateful for the prayers, cards, food, and friendship shown to us. Thank you and God bless you!

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Equal pay for equal work? Really?

I like to read, and one of my favorite recreational reads is Marilyn vos Savant's column in the newspaper's Sunday Parade magazine. It's called, "Ask Marilyn" and features her answers to reader's provocative questions.

The columns vos Savant writes are witty, insightful and entertaining. I enjoy them though they seldom contain anything about small business.

This may come as a shock to Hillary Clinton fans, but vos Savant is listed in the "Guinness Book of World Records" Hall of Fame as the female with the "Highest IQ." There really is a world's smallest woman. Maybe, Hillary grew up in the wrong village. Sorry, I digress.

Recently, a reader wrote to "Ask Marilyn" with a question about why women are paid less than men for equal work. Here is an excerpt from vos Savant's reply: "Consider this: If their work is equal, why aren't employers slashing their payroll costs by hiring women instead of men? In a free market, businesses are highly competitive, and if they are paying men more than they pay women - by any percentage - there must be a reason."

Think about this

I found the above statement very thought provoking. I favor equal pay for equal work. It's fair, honest and it's common sense.

However, it doesn't always work that way. Gender gaps still exist. The latest figures I recall hearing is that women are averaging between 75 and 80 percent of what men are earning in the same jobs.

There are several possible explanations. One reason may be a woman's willingness to accept less. Some may feel that a job with only average pay is better than no job at all.

Another reason may be that some women have less experience than their associates. For example, women who stay home to raise children, may find that their male counterparts kept current with technology, industry developments and relationships.

A third explanation may be that management is still a male dominated arena. Some managers may just feel more comfortable with other men in leadership roles. I think this is particularly true with managers who are less confident and competent. They may feel intimidated by bright, able and aggressive women.

Another possibility may be the law of supply and demand. As more and more women poured into the workforce in the 70's, 80's and 90's, the increasing supply may have contributed to lower wages.

What is equal work?

While most of us support equal pay for equal work, the tough question is, "What is equal work?" Consider these examples. First, two fourth-grade schoolteachers. Equal work justifying equal pay? In reality one teacher loves the students, spends untold hours preparing special projects and challenges the students daily. The other is just marking time until retirement.

Another example. Two truck drivers, same number of years of service and miles driven. Equal work justifying equal pay? One driver has a spotless record, spends hours maintaining the employer's truck and has driving habits that save the owner nearly 10 percent in fuel cost each year. The other has had two accidents in the past two years and drives the dickens out of the truck. Are both worth the same money?

One more scenario. Two retail clerks with the same experience and education. One is customer service focused, the other is looking for a real job. Are both worth the same pay?

Equal pay for equal work is a good concept that is very difficult to administer fairly. Not all employees are created equal, and not all equal work is equal. Therefore, I think our free-market system has done pretty well. Yes, there is still room for improvement, and we all should work for that.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By Martha Russell

We often do not realize what we have until someone comes to visit us and makes us aware of how blessed we are. It's like seeing things through new eyes.

This past Saturday, Sept. 25, Deaf Smith County Library was privileged to host the fall meeting of Texas Library Association District 2. Librarians from school, college, special and public libraries all over the Panhandle came to Hereford to learn, fellowship and elect officers. Oh, yes! There were door prizes and refreshments, too.

In the midst of various hosting duties I conducted a few impromptu tours of the library. I, of course, knew that we have a nice facility with room for many different kinds of activities. But as I listened to the exclamations and envious remarks of other Panhandle librarians, I began to gain a new appreciation of the foresight and progressive attitude that must have prevailed when this building was built 20-something years ago. And, not only was such foresight evident in the design and construction of the building, but also the maintenance of the whole concept of a public library.

It's not every community the size of Hereford, especially with the surrounding sparse population, that has a public library of this quality. Over the years, with the support and leadership of the powers-that-be, Deaf Smith County Library has remained an excellent facility and valuable asset to the city and county.

There are things you can criticize about Hereford. (Kids will tell you that "there is nothing to do here," but kids are supposed to say that, I think it's programmed into their DNA somehow.) We recognize that there are some areas where improvement is needed; there always will be in this life. However, as we focus on the positives in our community, the library is certainly one of those positives. My thanks to those who have had a part in creating and maintaining this institution for me and my family.

We had an excellent lunch at the Country Club complete with interesting and pleasant conversation. All in all, the members of TLA District 2 left Hereford with a very favorable impression of our city. We are so glad that we invited TLA to come here and experience what we know to be a good community to live in.

While we are talking about thanks, we need to acknowledge again how valuable our Friends of the Library group is to us. They provided wonderful refreshments for midmorning and midafternoon breaks at the District 2 meeting. And they did it so cheerfully!

Our thanks also to the county maintenance staff for the extra effort they put into "sprucing up" the place. Good job, guys!

Also, the Mormon missionaries have been faithful volunteers to dust shelves for us. These young men are really great help. They don't just sling a dust cloth around. They have been very conscientious to move all the books on all the shelves and dust in places "where no man has gone before," at least not in a long time.

You might be interested to know that Beverly Lambert, Tierra Blanca school librarian, was the chair-elect who planned the event. Beverly is now officially the chair, and Joe Weaver, native of Hereford and former Deaf Smith County Library Assistant Director, is now the chair-elect. Rebecca Walls was elected councilor. Hereford is well represented in the leadership of the Texas Library Association.

Beverly and her "cohorts" did an excellent job planning and executing the meeting. The theme they chose was "Building Partnerships." Since different types of libraries target different populations and different needs in their communities, sometimes we let those differences divide us rather than complement and enhance us. It was good to emphasize how we can help each other rather than how we can compete.

New on our shelves this week is a first novel from Michelle Blake, The Tentmaker. Lily James Connor has just spent the last week six months in her native Texas by her father's bedside watching him die. When her old friend

Bishop Lamont Spencer calls to offer her a job as interim pastor for a wealthy Boston parish that has just lost its beloved priest, she jumps at the chance. As a tentmaker - an ordained priest who makes a living outside the church - she is an old hand at filling in for parishes that are temporarily without a rector.

Soon after Lily takes over the job, she begins to suspect both the official version of the priest's death (a heart attack caused by insulin shock) and those who insist on its truth. As she relentlessly pursues the deadly secrets hidden deep within the heart of the parish, Lily discovers that she may pay for her role as truth-seeker with her own life.

My grandmother always loved the joke about the farmer who hitched a ride with a man whose car had one of those new-fangled air conditioners. He got so cold in the car that he thought it probably was time to go home and butcher. Since the weather is getting cooler as fall approaches, I am reminded of the joke and the new book we have this week, Basic Butchering of Livestock and Game, by John J. Mettler, Jr., D.V.M. Combined with 130 detailed illustrations by Elayne Sears, the reader is provided with complete, step-by-step instructions for slaughtering beef, veal, pork, lamb, poultry, rabbit and venison. This might come in handy if you're stocking up for the possible Y2K crisis.

This week we have a bonanza of computer books. Windows 98 for Dummies (the long version and the quick reference version), Illustrated Telecom Dictio- nary by Jade Clayton, the sixth edition of Internet for Dummies, Upgrading and Repairing PCS by Scott Mueller, and Accounting Made Easy With Your Computer by Jean E. Gutmann. Come get 'em quick before they're outdated!

Other new books are: Gravity by Tess Gerritsen, Watchdog: A Melanie Travis Mystery by Larien Berenson

Little Green Men, a comic, quasi-science fiction by Christopher Buckley

Ender's Shadow by Orson Scott Card, a real sci-fi Planet of the Blind by Stephen Kuusisto

Red Cross Update

By Deanna Edwards

Tri-County Chapter Executive Director

The American Red Cross is on the scene providing the support necessary for the affected families of Hurricane Floyd. To date, much-needed shelter has been provided for more than 216,121 people.

Some of these were sheltered during the evacuation and have had to continue residing in shelters now that floodwaters have inundated their homes.

Hurricane Floyd relief effort continues to be a massive undertaking for the Red Cross. American Red Cross-National Headquarters has launched an urgent $25 million hurricane fund-raising appeal.

Texas has been assigned $1.2 million of this. Last year other states helped raise in excess of $10 million to help the victims of Texas floods.

Each chapter is assigned an individual goal. We would like for the Tri-County Chapter to exceed its assigned goal. Please help by making your donation to the American Red Cross, Tri-County chapter, P.O. Box 1371, Hereford, Texas 79045.

Mark your check for Hurricane Floyd or enclose a note with cash donations. All donations received undesignated will be used for this disaster until our goal is reached.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary donations of time and money from the American people.

The Tri-County Chapter is proud to be sponsored by the United Way.

Military Muster

Cass Burns, son of Cathy Brownlow of Hereford, enlisted on active duty in the United States Air Force on Sept. 15.

Burns will attend Air Force Basic Training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio.

According to the local Air Force recruiter, Burns will earn credits toward an associate degree in applied sciences through the Community College of the Air Force upon completion of basic training and technical training school.

Growers curtail sugarbeet research

Officials seek better seed varieties more marketing opportunities

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

For two growing seasons sugarbeet growers and other interested individuals have wondered if sugarbeets would ever again be a feasible crop in the local area.

According to Kenneth Frye, president of Texas-New Mexico Sugarbeet Growers Association, that question can only be answered with data from ongoing research on new varieties and possible changes in the world sugar market.

In an interview earlier this week, Frye said the Sugarbeet Growers Association opted to maintain its board when Holly Sugar closed its Hereford Plant in January of 1998 in an effort to pursue research and maintain information.

Sugarbeet research conducted at Bushland, Hereford, and Dumas by Charlie Rush at the Bushland Research Center and financed by Imperial Holly Sugar, the Texas-New Mexico Sugarbeet Growers Association, and outside funds, indicate the time is not right to continue a sugarbeet campaign.

Frye said there are a number of problems associated with the sugar industry which lead officials to believe the best approach is to scale back research and wait for better circumstances.

The problems, including a world wide sugar glut and a bumper crop of both sugar cane and sugar beets in the U.S., indicate now is not the time to add more sugar to the market.

The Hereford plant continues to produce sugar from sugarbeet molasses using the ion exclusion process.

Holly Sugar district manager Dave Duncan said the company uses sugarbeet molasses from its three sister plants in Michigan, Wyoming and Montana.

The plant currently produces in excess of a half million hundredweight, which is less than half of the plant's capabilities.

Imperial Holly Sugar officials at one time hoped to get enough growers interested in growing sugar beets to organize a co-op, but data now available indicates that until the world market changes and better, more area suited varieties can be developed, this idea has been put on hold.

"The future of sugarbeets isn't dead," said Frye. "We're waiting for better seed varieties and marketing opportunities. We still need more complete data. Variety research will be scaled back, but it isn't finished by any means."

Texas sweet potatoes small, adequate

Pests and decreased late season rainfall lead to severe problems. Top quality product should be available.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Despite insect problems and questionable yields, Texans can expect plenty of sweet potatoes for their Thanksgiving dinners, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Marty Baker, extension horticulturist in Overton, said state sweet potato yields are down this year because of drought and severe weevil problems.

"However, the yield is adequate," he said. "We can still expect top quality sweet potatoes for Thanksgiving dinners."

Baker said despite the mid-June drought, producers are currently digging and will be continuing through October.

Baker said there are several possible reasons for the sweet potato weevil outbreak.

"It is likely the weevils came from bad sweet potatoes from another source or state," he said.

They could also be the result of abandoned fields that were not harvested or cared for properly, Baker said.

He said homeowners may have also contributed to the weevil problem.

"Many homeowners plant morning glories which host the weevil," he said. "Others plant ornamental sweet potatoes in their ground cover when they landscape."

Baker said producers are using pheromone traps to deal with the sweet potato weevil problem.

"The pheromone traps are used to trap the males," he said.

Baker said the drought and weevil problems will not adversely affect prices.

"The main factor in sweet potato prices is the inadequate supply from the Eastern states," he said.

He said the impact is hard to predict, but prices will be fluctuating as a result of the flooding in North and South Carolina.

Brian Cummins, extension agent in Van Zandt County, said the sweet potato yields in North Texas are much better than last year.

"Last year we got about one-tenth of the average crop," he said. "This year we are just below average."

Cummins said he attributes the improvement to the rainfall in April, May and June during planting.

"The moisture made perfect conditions for setting," he said.

Cummins said the sweet potatoes are slightly below average in size because the rainfall did not continue through the summer.

"We are in the midst of harvest and are just now getting the rain needed to size up the potatoes," he said. "We only have 30 days until the first frost is expected, and we need to be finished by then."

Cummins said in addition to sweet potato weevils, producers in North Texas faced problems with cutworms and grubworms.

"The insect damage was spotty, though," he said. "Overall, few fields were affected."

Rio Grande Valley oranges sweet, juicy

Officials yet to identify citrus blemishing culprit

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Mysterious markings have shown up on some Rio Grande Valley oranges, making them less attractive, but those in the citrus industry say fruit with damaged peel tastes just as good.

"Someone remarked that it's such a pity that we are judged by the part of the fruit that they always throw away," said Rio Hondo gift basket shipper Violet Lang, who has not been affected by the recent batch of flawed fruit.

The harvest of early oranges in the Rio Grande Valley is under way and some of the N-33 Navel, Marrs and Everhard oranges have turned up with strange blemishes. The permanent spots, which cover up to 30 percent of the orange peel, are about half a centimeter large and are yellow to orange in color. The fruit is picked green, but the spots remain lighter as the oranges ripen.

The dry spells in the Valley that have been broken by that he expected the Valley's citrus crop this year to be a good one overall.

In any case, the mystery spots have not affected the taste, French said. Still, growers selling the fruit on the fresh fruit market need oranges that appeal to the eye as well as taste buds.

Mrs. Lang, who had not seen or heard of the recent batch of damaged citrus, said the fruit she and her husband ship in 2,000 gift baskets a year must be attractive. Damaged "number two" fruit is sold for lower prices to roadside peddlers or others.

Donald Thompson, president of Thompson Grove Care in Weslaco, owns about 100 acres of citrus and looks after another 700 or 800 acres for other growers. He said clean, undamaged fruit can go for $120 to $150 a ton in the fresh fruit market while peel-damaged fruit might settle for $50 a ton at a juice plant.

"Some years there are pests we don't see and then the following year they're very prevalent,"

Victor French, Citrus Center entomologist heavy downpours could be responsible.

Another potential culprit is the leaf-footed bug, which gets into fruit and causes raised mounds of gum just under the surface. French is exposing clean fruit to leaf-footed bugs to see if he can duplicate the damage.

Green stink bugs or a creature known as the false spider mite also might be responsible. French said although false spider mites have usually affected Valley grapefruit in the past, the pests currently are damaging oranges in Brazil.

The fact that the cause is a mystery is not unusual, French said.

"Some years there are pests we don't see and then the following year they're very prevalent," he said, adding Citrus Center entomologist Victor French estimates that less than 1 percent of Valley orchards have been affected.

"Not all orchards have it, by any means," French said. "It's not prevalent at all." Although some of the markings have been blamed on herbicide damage, scientists at the Texas A&M-Kingsville Citrus Center in Weslaco are continuing to conduct tests on other possible causes.

Some of the suspects are weather and pests.

Citrus blemish in the Rio Grand Valley fruits may be caused by one of several problems including:

- Herbicide damage
- Weather
- Insects

Blemishes have not affected the taste or the quality of the fruit. Only the rind is marred.

Writing want ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Roswell among season's best dramas

Jason Behr (left), Shiri Appleby and Brendan Fehr star in one of the season's best new shows, The WB Network's new hourlong series Roswell. The show takes a more literal look at the classic story line of lovers from two very different worlds.

In a season otherwise notable mainly for its mediocrity, this week marks the premiere of a teen drama that crosses generations in its appeal.

At first glance, Roswell — which premieres on The WB Network Wednesday, Oct. 6 — sounds as flaky as its unlikely heritage would suggest: It's a collaborative effort between writer Jason Katims of My So-Called Life and director-producer David Nutter of The X-Files.

Why, then, does it work so well?

As the first episode opens, teen-age waitress Liz Parker (Shiri Appleby) is caught in the crossfire during unexpected gunplay at her father's Crashdown Cafe in Roswell, N.M. As she falls, mortally wounded, classmate Max Evans (Jason Behr, Dawson's Creek) rushes to her side.

Shielding Liz's body, Max presses his palm to her wound and mysteriously heals it, then dashes away. Only later, when Liz confronts him, does Max reveal his big secret: He's a surviving descendant of the beings on board the spacecraft that, according to popular legend, crashed in the New Mexico desert in 1947.

Sounds goofy? Maybe. But just as another WB hit, Buffy the Vampire Slayer, has mined lodes of metaphorical gold with its high-school-as-horror-movie premise, so Roswell resonates profoundly with its theme of a Juliet in love with a Romeo who is the ultimate outsider.

Max's healing of Liz forms a potent psychic bond between the two of them, a link that clearly reveals to her that he has loved her ever since childhood, when he and fellow alien Isabel (dishy Katherine Heigl, My Father, the Hero) were found and adopted by a loving middle-class family. A third survivor, cynical Michael Guerin (Brendan Fehr), was adopted by an uncaring father who "keeps him around for the monthly check."

These alien teens know nothing of their lineage or their home planet, although Liz learns, during the course of the pilot episode, that at least one other survivor of the crash was on the scene back in the '50s.

"The three alien characters in the show don't know about their history, which, from a writing point of view, makes it exciting because as they discover their (history), the audience is discovering it, too," Katims says.

"It's something that we are going to discover with them, and it will be a long ride and hopefully, a really fulfilling journey."

Certainly the pilot, one of the season's best, has a wealth of emotionally complex characters. Even the "villain," Sheriff Valenti (William Sadler), is given a back story that fully justifies the passion with which he pursues Max and his fellow aliens.

Likewise, Majandra Delfino (Zeus & Roxanne) is utterly delightful as Maria De Luca, Liz's friend and fellow waitress.

But the focus of the show, logically, is on Liz and Max, a young couple who have some intergalactic hurdles to overcome. The fresh-faced Appleby is utterly charming, but it's the puppy-eyed Behr who is destined to be the show's breakout star.

Expect teen chat rooms on the Internet to be buzzing with the straightforward passion this amazing young actor brings to the role. When Liz realizes that, in saving her life, Max has put his own life in her hands, she asks why he did it.

"It was you," he replies, in the simplest, yet most romantic moment of the fall TV season.

IN FOCUS

The luminous Isabella Rossellini is the focus of Bravo Profiles, airing Thursday, Oct. 7, on Bravo.

The daughter of actress Ingrid Bergman and director Roberto Rossellini, she seemed destined for a career in the film industry.

Though she has earned critical praise in feature films (Blue Velvet) and made a name for herself as one of the very few working models over the age of 40, Rossellini's recent success has been on television in big-budget miniseries, including Merlin and The Odyssey.

David Boreanaz stars in Angel, premiering Tuesday, Oct. 5, on The WB Network.

A spinoff of the critically acclaimed Buffy the Vampire Slayer, the new series sees Angel move from Sunnydale to the City of Angels on his quest for redemption.

In Los Angeles, Angel runs into former Sunnydale resident Cordelia Chase (Charisma Carpenter), now a struggling actress.

Together, with spiritual guide Doyle (Glenn Quinn), the duo does battle with the darker side of the star-studded city.

Scott Bairstow stars as Lt. Thomas Hobbes, a soldier sent into a lethal virtual-reality combat simulation, in Harsh Realm. The series premieres Friday on Fox.

Harsh Realm ventures into the world of virtual reality

A new series from sci-fi master Chris Carter finds its way onto the Fox prime-time lineup via a wild roller-coaster ride into the realm of virtual reality.

Harsh Realm makes its debut Friday, Oct. 8, in what has become the premium time slot for out-of-the-ordinary programming.

Lt. Thomas Hobbes (Scott Bairstow) is preparing for his new life with his fiancée (Samantha Mathis in a recurring guest role) when he is called upon for one more mission for the military: testing a high-tech, virtual-reality combat training simulation code-named "Harsh Realm."

Once inside the program, Hobbes discovers his superiors have led him astray. He's in a very real life-and-death struggle in a virtual world with no rules and very little humanity. His assignment turns into a personal search-and-destroy mission in an environment governed as a police state.

The only way Hobbes can return to the real world and his fiancée is to oust dictator Omar Santiago (Terry O'Quinn), a high scorer in the Harsh Realm simulation who refuses to leave the program since he's running the virtual kingdom from the inside. To complicate matters, a fellow soldier (Max Martini) whom Hobbes saved years earlier in the real world has joined Santiago's virtual brigade of tyranny.

Mike Pinnocchio (D.B. Sweeney) leads a band of soldiers who also have been duped into participating in the program. They join Hobbes on his quest to take out Santiago and exit the simulation.

Look for a cameo appearance by the otherworldly Lance Henriksen (Millennium). A certain star of The X-Files also lends her voice to a scene in the pilot episode; Gillian Anderson narrates the video introduction to the Harsh Realm simulation.

Constrained by an hourlong premiere, many questions remain to be answered in the balance of this season. Other than Hobbes, there's still room for character development, but the acting, special effects and action sequences are first-rate.

Can Harsh Realm successfully follow in the footsteps of The X-Files? It's off to a good start.

Q: You were correct that Mark Harmon and Cristina Ferrare are not related, but you overlooked the point that was confusing this reader. Before he married Ferrare, John DeLorean was wed to Kelly Harmon, Mark's sister. No doubt that accounts for the confusion. —Larry Sullivan (and others) via e-mail.

A: You're right, of course, Larry, as several other readers hastened to remind me. As always, thanks to everyone who took the time to write.

Q: Is Madylin Sweetin (Everybody Loves Raymond) related to Jodie Sweetin from Full House? —A.N., Webb City, Mo.

A: Madylin Sweeten (note spelling) is the real-life sister of Sullivan and Sawyer Sweeten, who also play her little brothers on Raymond, but they are not related to Jodie Sweetin — who, by the way, has a recurring role on Fox's Party of Five this season.

Q: Can you give us a brief career update on David E. Kelley? What about his history brought him such rapid fame? —Bob C., Prescott, Ariz.

A: Kelley, whose Ally McBeal and The Practice recently won Emmys as best comedy and drama series, respectively, left a successful career as a Boston lawyer just over a decade ago to try his hand at writing and producing. His screenplay for From the Hip attracted the attention of Steven Bochco, who was in the process of creating L.A. Law.

Kelley swiftly rose through the ranks on Law, then created Doogie Howser, M.D. with Bochco and, in 1992, Picket Fences. Chicago Hope, Ally McBeal and The Practice soon followed.

This season, in addition to writing for Ally and The Practice, Kelley is trying to revitalize Chicago Hope and whip his troubled new series Snoops into shape, while overseeing the new, re-edited half-hour version of Ally.

Mark Harmon

Q: I enjoyed John Crook's story about Dorothy Swanson and Viewers for Quality Television, but no address appeared with the article. Where may I contact VQT? —E.K., Flint, Mich.

A: The address is VQT, P.O. Box 195, Fairfax Station, VA 22039. Web surfers can contact the organization at www.vqt.org.

Q: When did T.J. Hooker premiere? —J.M. in New Jersey.

A: The William Shatner ABC police drama premiered March 13, 1982, and ran until Sept. 17, 1987.

Q: My mother insists that the character of Maris has been seen several times on Frasier. I say the character never has appeared, partly because of the extreme jokes made about her appearance. —Linda J. Standley, Fort Bragg, Calif.

A: You are correct, Linda. Maris never has appeared on camera.

SOAP TALK

Wedding bells at Days; Hitchcock link to Y&R

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Wedding bells are ringing all over the place for the cast of Days of Our Lives.

Austin Peck (Austin Reed) recently popped the question to longtime girlfriend Tara Crespo. He set up the perfect romantic dinner by the beach to do the deed. The couple plans to wed some time next year.

Bryan Dattilo (Lucas Roberts) and his fiancée, Jessica Lahm, were married Aug. 21. The wedding was planned for summer 2000, but that was before Lahm found out a baby was on the way. Their son is due Dec. 31.

Dear Candace: I recently viewed Alfred Hitchcock's Torn Curtain, and one of the actresses looked like the same woman who plays Mary on The Young and the Restless. Could you tell me if I'm right? —Keith Carlisle, Anderson, S.C.

Dear Reader: Carolyn Conwell (Mary, Y&R) played the farmer's wife in Torn Curtain.

Dear Candace: I'm a big fan of Passions and Days of Our Lives. Did the woman who plays Ivy Crane on Passions ever guest star on 7th Heaven? And can you tell me where to write the producers on Days to tell them I want a love story between Greta and Eric (Julianne Morris, Jensen Ackles)? —S.P. via the Internet.

Dear Reader: What a memory you have. Kim Johnston Ulrich, who plays Ivy, made a guest appearance on 7th Heaven in 1996.

The address for Days is NBC-TV, 3000 West Alameda Ave., Burbank, CA 91523.

Dear Candace: I usually love Ryan (Cameron Mathison) on All My Children. But lately he has been totally wasted with a dull story line. He should go crawling back to Gillian (Esta Terblanche). —Kathryn Anderson via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Ryan will be spending more time with Hayley (Kelly Ripa), and Gillian will be out in the cold.
