Economy continues to grow

NEW YORK (AP) - The U.S. industrial sector grew in January for the 12th consecutive month, though at a slightly slower pace than in December, a manufacturers' group said today in a report that raised inflation worries.

The report by the National Association of Purchasing Management confirmed that the current economic expansion --- the longest in American history - is continuing.

A worrying jump in the prices of raw materials suggests that Federal Reserve policy-makers, who began a two-day meeting in Washington today, have even more reason to raise interest rates to cool the economy and try to prevent a surge in inflation.

"The manufacturing sector appears to have momentum, but prices are rising to levels of concern, particularly with a new round of petroleum price increases," said Norbert J. Ore, head of the group's business survey committee.

The association said its manufacturing index, based on a national survey of executive who buy raw materials and other supplies for industry, registered 56.3 percent in January, down slightly from a revised 56.8 percent in December. A reading above 50 percent indicates growth.

The figure is watched closely because it is the first national reading for January on U.S. industrial performance.

The index component that measures prices factories pay for raw materials soared in January to 72.6 percent from a revised 68.3 percent the month before.

The group said that 17 of 20 industries indicated higher prices, a trend that has become increasingly evident over the past five months.

Combest plans regional hearings

By Donald M. Cooper

Heretard Brand Manasine Filitar

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest will be taking the show on the road next month as the House Agriculture Committee begins a series of field hearings on revamping U.S. agricultural policy.

Combest said the committee, which is looking at ways to correct inadequacies in the 1995 Freedom to Farm Act, which set U.S. farm policy, will conduct regional hearings to gather information from producers about possible legislation.

In a conference call with Panhandle editors and pub-allow all farmers to express the needs of their region.

"About 50 members (of the House) have asked to have hearings held in their districts, but that's just not possible," Combest said "We're looking to the 6th of March for the first hearing," he said. The field hearings should be concluded by late April, he anid

"The perception of the hear ings has gone very well

He said the re- There's been tremendous ingional hearings will terest, and the Seattle trade talks and the other trade talks have boosted interest," he said, referring to the World Trade Organization meeting in Seattle and talks with the European Community. Both talks have raised numerous agricultural issues.

"We hope to find a consensus (among producers) across the country," Combest said. "So, it is going to be an extremely busy year, especially in the first few months, but I feel good about the effort. We have strong bipartisan support."

Combest said the current farm bill, which many producers sarcastically refer to as the "Freedom to Fail Act," does not provide an adequate safety net for farmers affected by natural disasters and falling prices.

He noted the Congress approved a farm relief package of about $9 billion last fall, which included money for weather-related disasters. The disasters, which included flooding and drought, was a "recognition that there is a void in current farm policy ... but we can't be going back to Congress every year for relief."

had saved. I Ann saved one on Landers abortion, because I had one. Only a few people knew about it. The column meant so much to me because it appeared at a time when I desperately needed to know that not all women who have abortions are sleazy bimbos or trying to get out of "paying the piper" for their immoral behavior.

I got pregnant even though I was using birth control. I was living in a small town where I knew no one, and felt lonely and depressed. I was not a "bad" girl. I was brought up in a religious home. The shame alone made me contemplate suicide. Then, there you were, Ann, a person I respected, one whose advice I had been reading since I was 10 years old. I felt like you understood. I will always keep that column to remind myself of why I had the abortion and how you saved me from a life of selfdestruction — or no life at all. Thank you for that. — Grateful Up North

Dear Grateful: A letter like yours makes all the hard work worthwhile. I am grateful to YOU for taking the time and trouble to write. I hope all the women who have walked in your shoes will find comfort and solace in what you have written.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on that letter from "Hunted Down in Texas." I know exactly how she feels. I also gave up a baby for adoption many years ago, and never expected to hear from the child again, which was fine with me. I went on with my life, and was very content. Then, WHAM! I get this letter from a grown man saying he was so glad he finally found me. I ended up calling him, but I wish I hadn't. There have been many unpleasant complications. I have no maternal feelings for this man. I gave up for adoption a tiny baby, so how can I feel motherly toward a 50-year-old man I don't know? Please tell "Hunted" she is not alone. - Sorry Now Back East

Dear Sorry: I have said in the past that if both the birth parent and the adopted child wish to meet each other, it's OK with me. However, I do not encourage hunting down someone who may not wish to be found unless there is a legitimate medical reason to do so.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the divorced mother of two young children — a 10-year-old girl by my ex-husband, and a 4-year-old boy by another man. My ex-husband is a wonderful, loving father to our daughter. Unfortunately, my son's biological father will have nothing to do with him, and has made it clear that he does not wish to be part of the child's life.

Here's the problem. Every-to be part of their visits together. Should I level with her and explain the situation? If so, how should I do it? I need your advice, Ann. - A Loving Mother

Dear Loving Mother: It is obvious that, at some point, you must tell your daughter the true nature of the sibling relationship. Ten years of age is not too young to give her this information. It is sad that the boy's biological father cannot open his heart to his son. In the long run, he would be the winner. Meanwhile, your little boy needs a father figure. If there is no other man in the picture, ask your car-ing and decent ex-husband if he would be willing to fill that role on a part-time basis by including the boy on a few of those father-daughter outings. It would benefit the whole family. That first kiss, that first embrace ... Remember all those things that brought you and your loved one together? Ann Landers' new booklet, "How We Met," is now available. This collection of sentimental love stories will make a terrific Valentine's Day gift for that special someone. It's a perfect addition to that box of chocolates or bouquet of flowers. For a copy, please send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.50 (this includes postage and handling) to: How We Met, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, IL 60611-0562 (in Canada, $6.50).

Yenzer coming into his own in wrestling

By Yuri Soto

Hereford Brand Sports Editor Life is full of challenges. Every day is a challenge for anyone in this earth.

For Tyler Yenzer, life is not much of a challenge yet.

But life on the wrestling mat has been a bit of a challenge. "It's kind of different from last year to this year because last year I was wrestling the 135-pound class and I was wrestling against people my own age," Yenzer said. He has only recorded five wins in the 1999-2000 season.

He's had to wrestle in a different weight class than what he was used to.

He's had to wrestle against older, more experienced high school wrestlers.

He's practiced against wrestlers that lack experience on the mat, so, it's been a little harder for Yenzer to get any wins.

But the son of Hereford's head football coach and athletic director Craig Yenzer has made a name for himself on the mat.

"This year I have to wrestle harder but I think I have done pretty well this season," Yenzer said.

Yenzer has recorded five wins this season, three by pin, and has captured the attention of opponent wrestlers,

"He's been a very exciting guy to coach," Hereford coach Mike Dominguez said. "He works hard, tries to get bet-ter and works on his tech-nicue and has a lot of heart nique and has a lot of heart when he does."

The love for contact sports may come from the usual place other people would expect.

But the competitive drive Yenzer brings to the mat comes from within. And, boy, does he love those contact sports. "The physical contact is good," Yenzer said. "I like the contact and I like the sport in a lot of ways."

Denae Brinkman and Brianna Finley lost to Henry/ Darrow, 6-1, 6-3; were defeated by Shelton/Henry, 6-0, 6-1 and lost to Sorensen/Palmer, 6-2, 6-1.

The tennis teams return to Levelland on Feb. 18-19 for the Lobo Tennis Tournament.

Nelson Beville, shown here in fall tennis action, won three matches at Levelland in practice matches this past Saturday. Beville and Riley Hall were winners in the boys' singles matches. The tennis teams starts the season on Feb. 18-19.

ars outgun rival Edmonton Oilers, 2-1

DALLAS (AP) - At the age of 39, Guy Carbonneau can still muster a burst of speed when necessary.

Carbonneau broke to the net and converted a pass from Brett Hull with 6:44 left to give the Dallas Stars to a 2-1 victory over the Edmonton Oilers on Monday night.

past speedy Todd Marchant and Marchant. You see the play in drove hard through the slot. Carbonneau got his stick down as the puck arrived to beat Oilers goalie Tommy Salo for Carbonneau's sixth goal of the season.

"He (Hull) saw me at the blue line," Carbonneau said. "When I hit the red line, I knew what was going to happen and I had to beat your mind and it was a perfect pass.'

Hull is primarily known as a scorer, as his 603 career goals will attest. But Hull also has 479 career assists.

"A lot of people see Brett Hull as a scorer and a shooter," Carbonneau said. "They tend to forget how good he can pass the puck."

Carbonneau's role is mainly as a checker and faceoff specialist, but Carbonneau can score; he has 256 career goals. "I play against him every shift and he does a great job,' said Oilers center Doug Weight. "I've got tremendous respect for him. He knows his role and he knows when to get involved in the offense."

The Stars also got a 20-save performance from Ed Belfour to remain unbeaten (6-0-2) in their last eight regular-season meetings against Edmonton, and 22-3-3 in the last 28. Since 1993, the Oilers are 1-12-1 against the Stars in Dallas.

Of course, he's talking about wrestling.

But the physical contact aspect of his activities also have to involve football, in which Yenzer thinks there's similarities.

"The physical contact and aggressiveness are what makes football and wrestling very similar," he said.

Yenzer also comes from many roads of motivation:

* He gets it on the practice mat, where Mike Dominguez does his duty as a coach to motivate athletes.

on Monday night with a 3-0-1 record. All three defeats by the Oilers were by one goal.

"It's frustrating for sure," said Oilers left wing Ryan Smyth. "One goal is big, it's worth two points. We've got to fight through that."

Said Oilers coach Kevin Lowe: "We had them on their heels, but we weren't able to capitalize. I hope we get a shot at them in the playoffs."

Dallas capitalized on a twoman advantage for a 1,0 lead when Mike Modano swept in a rebound at 5:35 of the first period, Modano's 20th.

Edmonton tied it at 1 with 3.1 seconds left in the first period on Bill Guerin's powerplay goal, a one-timer from the left circle, Guerin has 15 goals.

The Stars are 5-2 in their last seven games as they continue to advance in the Western Conference standings.

"Tonight had a playoff level of intensity to it," said Stars coach Ken Hitchcock. "It was a whale of a hockey game."

Salo made 19 saves for the Oilers.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an emply space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to wirte, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

* Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

* Use Key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key workds are location, type of contruction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

Don't use abbreviations. it's tempting to abbreviate and save. money if ads are billed by the line. Brnad ads are billed by the workd, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

* Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

'Black boxes' of airliner may have been located OXNARD, Calif. (AP) - Investigators trying to learn why an Alaska Airlines jet with 88 people plunged into the Pacific said today they have recovered four bodies and heard "pinging" from the ocean, apparently from the aircraft's flight recorders. Officials hope data from the so-called "black boxes" could provide key clues to Monday's crash of the MD-83 jetliner, including whether the airliner was brought down because of problems with a device that's supposed to stabilize the plane. That is obviously a prime lead and a prime finding that will be followed," said Coast Guard Vice Adm. Tom Collins. No survivors have been found.

The price of the pigs ranged from $2.50 pound to a stag-gering $11 pound. Eddie Lacey's two pigs brought in some of the highest prices per pound, with one animal going for $6 a pound and his last animal claiming the 2000's highest price per pound of $11.

Six goats were sold at the local auction, with Joshua Hicks' 85-pound grand cham-pion bringing in $5 per pound. His second-place goat sold for $6.50 a pound, while Gary Brorman's 104-pound reserve grand champion brought in $5.50 a pound. The high-earning goat be-longed to Allyson Paetzold and brought in $9.50 a pound for 96 pounds.

Lambs at the Hereford show had a maximum pay weight of 135 pounds and a floor price of $65.

Dieter Brannon's 147-pound grand champion brought in top money selling for $7.50 a pound.

The reserve champion lamb sold for $5.50 a pound and was owned by Nelson Beville.

Farms

Combest, who acknowledged he didn't support the Freedom to Farm bill initially, said the proponents had described the legislation as a "phase-out plan" for agriculture subsidies and would reduce costs; however, the costs actually have increased under the program.

The good elements of the program, he said, are the flex-ibility offered farmers, who can make their planting decisions based on their perception of the market, and the elimination of crop acreage limits.

However, he said the pro-gram fails to provide an adequate safety net to deal with disasters, both natural and eco-

"We need to fix the elements that aren't good," without eliminating those that are. he said. "Balancing is going to be the challenge."

Collins said the bodies recovered were those of an infant, two women and a man. He said the rescue mission to make, and it's a difficult one," Collins said during a news conference. "The challenge is time, as time ticks off, risks go up." Meanwhile, Coast Guard ships, Navy vessels and a private boat combed the choppy sea about 10 miles off the Southern California coast for debris that could help explain what caused the jetliner to crash.

Before daylight, a 10-member team from the National Transportation Safety Board in Washington arrived at the scene to take over the investigation.

Monday night, commercial squid boats used nets to haul in grim reminders of lives lost:

the surface.

Flight 261 from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, to San Francisco and Seattle hit the water 4:36 p.m. Monday in what a witness described as a nose dive. The weather was clear at the time.

Moments before the crash, one of the two pilots radioed that he was having trouble with "stabilizer trim" and asked to be diverted to Los Angeles for an emergency landing, airline spokesman Jack Evans said.

The plane fell 17,000 feet before being lost from radar screens, officials said. It crashed into an area 10 miles offshore in water 300 feet to 750 feet deep.

Israel blames Syria for violence guerrillas attacks on its northern towns. Hezbollah is leading the war to liberate the area.

Barak is under pressure to show results from the revived peace process with Syria, and may face a serious crisis of confidence if he does not deliver on his campaign promise to bring quiet to Israel's north-ern border with Lebanon.

British, Irish study report on IRA arms

BELFAST, Northern Ireland - The British and Irish governments early today studied a long-awaited report by a disarmament commission looking into whether the Irish Republican Army is finally willing to reveal its network of arms dumps.

Neither government would reveal details of the report, which they received just be-fore midnight Monday. That was the deadline set by American mediator George Mitchell as part of his successful mission last year to rescue North-ern Ireland's Good Friday peace accord of 1998.

But Catholic and Protestant politicians in the province's 8-week-old Cabinet fear that the report will confirm that the IRA has not yet begun to disarm, and that this in turn will force the British government to suspend the local administration's powers and resume so-called "direct rule" from London.

The compromise package brokered by Mitchell required the major Protestant party, the Ulster Unionists, to form a Cabinet that included the IRAlinked Sinn Fein party in advance of any IRA disarmament. In exchange, the IRA was supposed to cooperate with the disarmament commission and negotiate the gradual destruction of its hidden weapons stores.

Death penalty foes receive good news

SPRINGFIELD, III. - A temporary halt to executions in Illinois has energized a movement that questions the fairness of capital punishment, though supporters acknowl-edge they're a long way from bringing change to other states.

At least five states are considering moratoriums or bans on capital punishment this year. They are considered long shots and similar previous efforts have failed.

But opponents were invigo-rated when the moratorium was announced by Gov. George Ryan on Monday. Ryan, saying "there is no margin for error when it comes to put-ting a person to death," called for a special panel to study the state's capital punishment system.

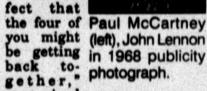

TWO OF US' John, Paul get back on film

By Frazier Moore The Associated Press

This much is true: On April 24, 1976, John Lennon and Paul McCartney happened to be watching "Saturday Night Live" when, to their glee, pro-ducer Lorne Michaels made a tongue-in-cheek appeal to them, along with their exbandmates.

"Lately there have been a lot of rumors to the ef-

Michaels, who invited the Beatles to reunite on "SNL." And if money was the stick-ing point, he was ready with a breathtaking offer: $3,000, to divvy up as they wished. John and Paul, chortling at this gag just a few blocks from NBC, almost stunned the world by showing up for the broadcast that very night. That they didn't, that the Beatles never played together again, that the 35-year-old Lennon wouldn't live past 40 - these and other whatmight-have-beens lend the new VH1 movie "Two of Us" enormous power.

But even without knowing what you know, you wouldn't want to miss this sentimental journey.

Directed by Michael Lindsay-Hogg from an exceptional script by Mark Stanfield, this sometimes joyous, sometimes wistful film premieres at 8 p.m. CST today.

JERUSALEM - Blaming Syria for violence in southern Lebanon, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak says he will not negotiate with the Syrians until Damascus cuts off support for the Islamic militant Hezbollah.

With 30,000 troops in Lebanon, Syria is its neighbor's main powerbroker. Israel has long maintained that Syria has tacitly approved — and in some cases, encouraged — the flow of arms to the Iranianbacked Hezbollah.

The prime minister's decision Monday not to return to peace talks until Syria reins in the Hezbollah guerrilla army came hours after three soldiers were killed in an ambush in south Lebanon and a day after the guerrillas assas-sinated the No. 2 man in Israel's allied militia, the South Lebanon Army. The SLA's 2,500 soldiers help 1,500 Israeli soldiers control a swath of South Lebanon occupied by Israel. Israel calls the area a security zone, using it as a buffer against

Candidates make their final pitches

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Presidential candidates gave their final pitches at polling places today as notoriously cantankerous New Hampshire voters began having their say. George W. Bush predicted "I'm going to win," while rival John McCain joked about a landslide victory in the tight GOP race.

"I'm ready for the verdict," Democrat Bill Bradley declared at a school in Merrimack, where he shook voters' hands, telling each: "I need your help." Bradley paused to chat with Republican hopeful Gary Bauer, who showed up at the same school. "How does it look?" Bauer school look?" Bauer asked.

"It looks good," Bradley said.
McCain and Bush each cut short plans to visit more polling places when it became obvious the mob of reporters surrounding them was annoying some voters.
When McCain, surrounded by press, stopped at a Manchester school, one woman pushing her way to the door snapped, "Whoever that is in the middle of there, I'm not going to vote for him."
"We can't disrupt polling places anymore," McCain said two such stops. "It doesn't serve any purpose. It just makes people mad."

Bush visited four polling places, then gave up on the idea at 9:30 a.m., saying he would spend the rest of the day with his wife and daughters, watching a movie in their hotel room.

As the organizational muscle swung into play, the fiery rhetoric of the past few days was muted a bit in both the Republican and Democratic races.

"We feel we've done just about everything we possibly could," Vice President Al Gore's wife, Tipper, said on ABC's "Good Morning America." McCain grew philosophic. "I'm intent on winning. But if we lose, we have fought the good fight in this campaign and I'm proud of the job that we've done."

NEW HAMPSHIRE PRIMARY Dixville Notch voters like McCain, Bradley

DIXVILLE NOTCH, N.H. (AP) — Though Sen. John McCain received a majority of the first votes cast in the earliest-in-the-nation primary state today, Texas Gov. George Bush could become the GOP's nominee if history repeats itself. The Republican chosen by Dixville Notch's voters has gone on to win the party's nomination in every presiden-tial election since 1968.

Dixville Notch's 29 registered voters favored Bush over McCain, 12-10, but Hart's Lo-cation, the other tiny hamlet that votes at 12:01 a.m. on primary day in New Hamp-shire, favored McCain over Bush, 9-5.

In the Democratic race, former' New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley did well in both votes, beating Vice President Al Gore 9-3 at the Notchland Inn in Hart's Location and 4-2 at The Balsams in Dixville Notch.

The combined vote was Bradley 13 votes, Gore 5, and McCain 19, Bush 17.

In Dixville Notch in the Ballot Room of The Balsams, Steve Forbes had 1 and Gary Bauer and Alan Keyes were shut out.

In Hart's Location, fringe candidate Jeffrey Peters got one write-in vote.

Two voters also wrote in Elizabeth Dole's name for vice president. She dropped out of the presidential race in October.

"I think Senator Bradley has a better chance of working with Congress," said Democrat David Nesbitt, 48, The Balsams' cross-country skiing director. "He's been a team player all his life." McCain supporter Sharon Pearson, 31, supervisor of the checklist in Dixville Notch and a registered independent, said the Arizona senator got her vote because of his record in the military and the U.S. Senate.

"I feel I have a lot of faith in him," Pearson said. "He has had to address a broader range of issues."

Dixville has 14 registered Republicans, three Democrats and 12 independents. Hart's Location has 12 Republicans, four Democrats and 12 independents. One didn't vote.

Ed Butler and Les Schoof, owners of the Notchland Inn, said they voted for Bradley partly because Bradley was the only candidate to make a campaign visit to the inn on Saturday.

"I thought he was impressive. He reinforced my vote," Butler said. "If Al Gore or George Bush would have come, it might have made my vote more difficult."

The tradition of having everyone vote at midnight and closing the polls a few min-utes later began in Hart's Lo-cation in 1948, when nearly everyone worked for the railroad and had to be at work before the polls opened. After letting the tradition languish there, Hart's Location revived it in 1996. Dixville Notch began voting in 1960.

"It's not a gimmick. This is real," said Stephen Barba, president of The Balsams grand hotel. "This is what America is known for, people being able to cast ballots organized by their own communities." Dixville Notch has enjoyed 100 percent voter turnout for 40 years. Many of the 29 registered voters are accustomed to being outnumbered by me-dia as they line up in front of their individual voting booths, ballots in hand, and wait for moderator and Balsams owner Neil Tillotson, 101, to cast the country's first primary vote at 12:01 a.m.

At Notchland, the voters entered 20 makeshift voting booths enclosed by shower curtains with each voter's name on a booth. The three married couples voted together. Afterward, the entire town of 42 residents posed for a photo in front of the inn at 12:40 a.m.

The rest of the state's voters cast their ballots between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m. today.

Pollsters may feel sheepish

WASHINGTON (AP) -With the blizzard of polling prior to today's New Hampshire primary, some pollsters might feel a little sheepish by Wednesday morning.

Some polls showed Sen. John McCain ahead in the Republican presidential race, others had him tied with Gov. George W. Bush. Vice President Al Gore leads in some polls of the Democratic candidates though the margin was narrowing, and a new one out Monday had the race between Gore and former Sen. Bill Bradley too close to call.

For pollsters who get the winner right, they could be far off on the margins of vic-tory, giving a candidate with a close second-place finish a chance to claim that he's "beat the expectations." Or the results today might embarrass most of them.

New Hampshire, with its independent-minded voters who closely follow the primary campaigns, has a habit of confounding at least some of the pollsters — a situation made worse by the sheer number of polls.

Of the late polls in the 1996 GOP primary in New Hampshire, some said Bob Dole would win and some picked Pat Buchanan, the eventual winner.

Veteran New Hampshire pollsters concede the public gets a little cynical about all the polls and the differing findings.

"It just reinforces people's notion that you can't believe what the polls say," said Dick Bennett of the American Research Group in Manchester, who said getting an accurate picture of the electorate is a tricky business. "It's like three-dimensional chess."

RKM Research of Portsmouth asked during one of its recent presidential polls how many of the respondents had participated in a political poll in the last six months. Twothirds said they had at least once, some several times.

"Nowhere else do so many pollsters compete for the at-tention of so few voters," said R. Kelly Myers, director of research for RKM.

"You don't leave the game early when it's this close," said New Hampshire Secretary of State Bill Gardner, who has counted 18 firms poll-ing in the state. "Most people want to see the whole game.
