Hereford weather

Wednesday's high, 88; low, 59; no precipitation; year-to-date rainfall, 5.99 inches.

Rainfall prospects better in Texas

In the wake of a cool front that pushed dry air deep into Texas, rising humidity from moist Gulf air is increasing the chances of rainfall.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms developed today along the upper Texas coast.

Patchy fog developed early Thursday in the Coastal Plains. Low-level cloudiness extended into the Hill Country. A dry upper-level ridge persisted in West Texas.

Early-morning temperatures in the 60s were reported in all but the lower Rio Grande Valley, with lower 70s. Readings include 60 degrees at Burnet, 61 at Marfa, 74 at El Paso and 80 at Galveston.

Winds were mostly light and variable across the eastern half of Texas. Southerly winds around 10 to 15 mph prevailed over the western half of the state, with easterly winds of 15 to 20 mph, gusting to 20 mph, along the coast.

With increasing humidity in South Texas, scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected through Friday in coastal sections with isolated showers elsewhere. Evening rainfall should develop in the West Texas mountains and Panhandle.

Daytime highs will be in the 80s and 90s, with around 102 in the Big Bend valleys. Lows overnight should be mainly in the 60s, including the Hill Country, with 70s along the Rio Grande and 50s in the mountains.

IT'S HARVEST TIME

■ Producers anxiously watch the sky as they prepare to start harvesting their wheat crops

By Dianna F. Dandridge

Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Fields of waving wheat gleam golden as producers wait the first day of harvest.

Farmers and cutters anxiously watch the sky. Will it rain, or worse yet, will it hail and beat the ripe grain down, dashing all hopes of harvest?

Throughout the Panhandle, producers face this common prospect. Longtime producers know the wheat harvest often coincides with the onset of early summer severe weather, which can delay or even prevent harvest.

"What we need right now is a couple of dry days, so

RED RAIDER DAY

Fan-tastic — Nearly 100 Hereford and area Texas Tech Red Raider fans played in the Speedy Nieman Memorial Golf Tournament Wednesday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course and capped the fun with an evening dinner social at the Hereford Country Club during Hereford's annual Red Raider Day. The golf tournament this year honored the memory of late Hereford Brand Publisher and Tech alumnus O.G. "Speedy" Nieman, who was also an avid Red Raider booster. During the dinner social, fans were also introduced to new members of the school's football coaching staff, an overview of athletic activities and ongoing Red Raider Club projects at Texas Tech by first-year football coach Mike Leach (right), TTU Athletic Director Gerald Myers and head basketball coach James Dickey.

Deadline nears for appeals

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Property owners who disagree with the appraisal have until Friday to file a protest with the Deaf Smith County Appraisal Review Board (ARB).

The appraisal review board (ARB) is an independent panel of residents responsible for hearing and settling protests for property owners who disagree with some action by the appraisal district. The notice includes instructions on how and when to file a protest and a protest form.

Hearings on the protests will be June 27.

The Deaf Smith County Appraisal District mailed 4,100 letters last month to county property owners showing their proposed appraised value for 2000.

According to chief appraiser Danny Jones, two years of drought during the latter part of the 1990s had an adverse effect on the tax base in Deaf Smith County, which saw the value of agricultural land fall by about $6 million last year. Within the Hereford Independent School District, the value of agricultural land fell by about $7 million.

Jones acknowledged the estimated valuation of the land for 2000 may change after the Deaf Smith County Appraisal Review Board (ARB) hears protests from property owners; however, he said the value of farmland still will be lower than in 1999.

In determining the value of agricultural land, the appraisal district includes a five-year average of crop value.

Crop yields (and value) were down in 1997 and 1998 because of drought, but when the appraisers begin work on the 2001 valuations, the 1999 crop year will be the base — and the yields higher than 1997 and 1998.

Tax abatements also cost the county and school district about $3 million each.

Archer-Daniels-Midland, built a grain-handling complex near the junction of U.S. Highway 60 and County Road 1, and Bimbo Cereal Foods Inc.'s masa mill near Dawn, received 50 percent, five-year tax abatements.

Because of the abatement, both companies will be taxed on half of the value of their properties. The taxable value of ADM is $1,889,500; Bimbo's taxable value is $4,301,960.

The value of residential property within the county rose by about $9 million; inside HISD, the increase was about $8 million. Jones said homeowners in the northwest part of Hereford will see an increase in their property values for the second consecutive year.

The total appraised values of property for 2000 are:

• Hereford, $284,850,696, up $11 million;

• Deaf Smith County, $584,592,775, up $27 million;

• Deaf Smith County Hospital District, $583,031,943, up $27 million;

• Hereford Independent School District, $480,828,944, up $24 million; and

• Walcott School District, $29,966,049, down $824,888.

U.S. jobless claims rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — New claims for unemployment benefits took a surprising jump last week, hitting their highest level since the beginning of the year, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said 309,000 Americans filed new claims for jobless benefits for the week ending June 3, up by 20,000 from the previous week. That was the highest level since Jan. 8.

Government officials said they believed last week's increase mostly reflected difficulties adjusting the data to account for the Memorial Day holiday.

The more stable four-week moving average of unemployment claims, which smooths out week-to-week volatility also rose last week to 290,250.

Even with the increase, however, the four-week moving average has been running below 300,000 since late October.

Economists consider claims below 300,000 an indication of a tight labor market, meaning employers are having trouble finding qualified workers to fill job openings.

While that's good for workers, economists find it worrisome. They fear that employers will recruit workers with big increases in wages and benefits, increased costs that companies could pass along to consumers in the form of higher prices.

The Federal Reserve has boosted short-term interest rates six times since last June, including a half-point increase last month.

Getting ready for parade — Mike Temple, owner of Battlehammer Iron Works in Hereford, looks at a 1927 fire truck, which will be in Saturday's Town & Country Jubilee. However, before the retired fire truck can roll along the parade route, Temple has to make brackets and mount them on the vehicle. Temple said the brackets will be used to hold ladders. The Town & Country Jubilee Parade will follow the annual Greg Black Memorial 10K and Fun Run.

Estate tax divides democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) - Normally a reliable opponent of Republican tax cuts, Rep. William Jefferson of Louisiana is among 46 House Democrats backing a GOP bill to repeal inheritance taxes - and causing headaches for Democratic leaders who are trying to prevent wholesale defections.

For Jefferson and other black and Hispanic lawmakers, the estate tax is not just a rich man's problem but is seen as a threat to minority businesses now thriving in the booming economy. Democrats from rural areas are concerned that estate taxes cause family farms to be sold.

"The reason people are so interested is that it's an anti-wealth-building tax in a time when African-Americans and Hispanics are trying to build wealth," said Jefferson, who is from New Orleans but grew up poor in northeast Louisiana. "For many of them, it's their first time ever to be able to build wealth. There is a wealth gap in this country that we have to care about."

The House is scheduled Friday to consider a bill to gradually reduce estate taxes over 10 years at a cost of about $105 billion out of the projected federal surplus. President Clinton is threatening a veto, citing the estimated cost of $50 billion a year after repeal is completed in 2010.

Republicans, with strong backing by business and farm lobbyists, long have sought to repeal the tax, but in this election year they're gaining more Democrats than ever before. Current law exempts $675,000 of a person's estate from the tax; $1.3 million for farms and small businesses. Even though only about 2 percent of all people who die ever pay the tax - most of them quite wealthy - the stories told by farmers and small businesses about their tax fears and the high costs of estate planning are politically compelling.

"I'm afraid it will be the demise of the company," said Frank Armstrong of the National Fruit Product Co. of Winchester, Va., which makes applesauce and other products.

There is even an outside chance that enough Democrats could defect to gain the necessary two-thirds House vote to override a Clinton veto, which would force Senate Democrats to reconsider any delaying tactics.

"We don't believe the Senate can sustain a filibuster," said House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas. "Any Democrat that wants to vote against the estate tax is certainly welcome to do so."

Repeal of the estate tax was included in last year's vetoed $792 billion tax cut, a measure Republicans have taken apart this year in favor of moving individual tax bills that have maximum political appeal. A slogan like "Kill the Death Tax" is easy to understand.

"It's more easily defined and it helps broaden the base of support," Rep. Jerry Weller, R-Ill., said of the stand-alone strategy. "We believe these issues we've been moving are issues of tax fairness."

In an attempt to ward off defections, two senior Democrats outlined an estate tax alternative Wednesday that is less costly than the Republican bill - about $22 billion over 10 years - and targets tax relief more toward family farms and small businesses. Two sponsors are Rep. Charles Rangel of New York, senior Democrat on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. Charles Stenholm of Texas, top Democrat on the Agriculture Committee and a leading fiscal conservative.

Rangel said that given Clinton's opposition, the main purpose of the GOP bill is to "send out political messages, us against them," but he acknowledged the attraction for many Democrats to the repeal legislation.

"It's a good concept," he said. "It sounds like the right thing to do."

One national poll taken for Republicans indicated that 50 percent of registered voters said they would vote for a GOP candidate who backed repealing the estate tax, compared with 38 percent favoring a Democrat who preferred to use the money for priority spending and Social Security. The poll of 800 registered voters, taken May 15-17, had a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

But Rangel and Rep. Ben Cardin, D-Md., are reminding their colleagues that the Republican measure would take billions of dollars away from spending on such priorities as education and a Medicare prescription drug benefit, as well as any plan to ensure the future solvency of Social Security. They say farmers and small businesses can be helped without complete repeal.

"We should be looking at this from a surgical point of view," Cardin said. "A lot of people who think they would like to repeal the estate tax should put it in the context of fiscal policy. We'll have a huge hole in the federal treasury."

CREATORS SYNDICATE

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers:

I recently attended my 25th high school class reunion. I had a wonderful time, but I noticed a few people seemed uncomfortable, and their discomfort made others uncomfortable as well. I have compiled a list of DOs and DON'Ts for such events. With reunion time just around the corner, I hope you will print my "Reunion Rules" for others who may be feeling awkward about attending the festivities:

1. No whining or moaning over what "might have been," or anything else depressing. No one wants a pall cast over this happy event.
2. Seek out people who have made a difference in your life, and thank them. They will appreciate it.
3. Check your midlife crisis at the door. No one needs to know you are having an affair or that your spouse just left you.
4. Do not brush off anyone who wants to talk to you. It doesn't matter whether or not you liked that person in high school. We have all changed.

5. Bring an extra hankie, and cry all you want when you are overwhelmed by nostalgia and old friends. Tears can be a great catharsis.

6. All responses to questions should be at least two full sentences. Don't be abrupt. It will make you appear snobbish.

7. Don't do too much bragging. It puts a spotlight on your insecurities. The best compliments are the ones you get without fishing.

8. Any remarks about your baldness, weight or wrinkles should be countered with something humorous or self-deprecating. No offense is intended. Sometimes, when people are surprised at the change in the appearance of an old friend, they don't know how to deal with it, so they try to mask their surprise with humor.

9. Be careful how you approach others. Be respectful. Remember that you are dealing with someone's wife, husband, mother or father.

10. Be yourself. We remember you from way back, and will accept you the way you are. — See You in St. Louis

Dear St. Louis: The high school reunion guidelines you have set forth also can be applied to weddings and other social events where friends of long-standing get together. They are sensible and sure to diminish tension and ease the tight spots. Thanks for sending them on.

Dear Ann Landers: "A Grateful Daughter in Mississippi" wrote to you about the integrity her mother demonstrated when she paid a doctor's bill that was many years old. That brought to mind a story that puts the spotlight on the other member of the equation — the doctor.

In 1951, my mother had a tumor removed by the world-renowned surgeon Dr. Michael DeBaKey. At the time, my parents had very little money, and Dr. DeBaKey wrote in a holiday note, "Please do not worry about your financial obligation." Decades later, my mother sent him the money she owed. He responded with a handwritten letter, inviting her to visit him if she were ever in Texas again.

I am grateful to Dr. DeBaKey and others like him, who, through the years, have put the patient's welfare ahead of money. You may use my name if you print my letter. — Arlene Wasserman, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Dear Arlene Wasserman: Dr. DeBaKey has been a dear friend of mine for more than 30 years. You will be pleased to know he did surgery until he was 90, and is still in the best of health and enjoying life.

Check presentation — Six area Long John Silver's locations, five in Amarillo and one in Hereford, raised a total of $4,220 for the Children's Miracle Network. Local manager Lewis Fixsen, center, and Long John Silver's employee Sandy Campos, right, made the check presentation to Nyllyn Nickels with KFDA during the live broadcast on Channel 4 Sunday.

LOW SWINGER

BRAND/Mauri Montgomery

Low swinger—Hereford Diamondback Brandon Bingham takes a whack at a low pitch during the Hereford's game against Tascoea Wednesday afternoon. The Diamondbacks had compiled a 5-3 record during the eight games before Wednesday's double header at Whiteface Field. The Diamondbacks are a part of a West Texas summer league.

Hereford splits double headers

The Hereford Diamondbacks improved their record to 5-3 after splitting a double header this week with Canyon.

Canyon stole game one of the series 6-5 off senior pitcher Eddie Lacey (2-1). In the second game, junior Michael Rhyne (3-1) took the mound for the Diamondbacks and pitched them to a 13-3 triumph over Canyon. Rhyne helped his own cause by homer in the third while senior Andrew Villarreal, junior J.P. Hillman and Chris Ruckman each had hits ending the game because of the 10-run rule and winning 13-3.

Last weekend, the team split another double header with Clarendon winning the first game 10-3 but losing game two 1-0. C.J. Berryman took the loss for Hereford while Rhyne won the first game.

Cunningham new Aikman backup

Former Eagle, Viking inks deal

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Randall Cunningham and the Dallas Cowboys say the former Minnesota Vikings quarterback has agreed to terms on a three-year contract worth $1 million in base salary and signing bonus for this year.

The free agent, who will be Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman's backup, agreed to the pact early Thursday, according to the Cowboys' Web site.

"We're very happy to have Randall Cunningham on our football team," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said in a prepared statement. "We feel he certainly a high-caliber quarterback, and has been for many years in this league."

The Cowboys said Cunningham will receive a base salary of $500,000 this season, and a $500,000 signing bonus. The contract also contains several incentive clauses, depending on amount of his playing time.

Cunningham, 37, has played 14 seasons in the National Football League. During his career, the longtime Philadelphia Eagle has posted a 79-52-1 record as a starter. He was waived by the Minnesota Vikings last week for salary-cap reasons.

"Along with Troy, Randall brings a lot of experience and leadership to our quarterback position," said Jones. "We feel very confident to have a player with his talents as our backup."

The Cowboys said the move probably would mean Paul Justin, 31, goes to the No. 3 quarterback. But rookies Charles Puleri and Clinton Stoerner will also be vying for the final spot behind Aikman and Cunningham.

"I'm not one of these guys who goes in and tries to take Troy's job," Cunningham told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in today's edition. "I'm not one of these guys who's going to stir up things. In Dallas, I know I can go into a camp, receive the plays and have time to study them. My prayers are that Troy stays healthy all year."

Cunningham will count about $700,000 toward the Cowboys' salary cap, according to The Dallas Morning News.

A league source told the newspaper that Cunningham informed the Detroit Lions on Wednesday morning that he was not interested in playing for the team. Tampa Bay, which had offered Cunningham a one-year contract, wanted him to wait until next week before making a decision.

"In my heart, I want to be in Dallas," Cunningham told the Star-Telegram.

He said he plans to fly to Dallas on Sunday and attend the Cowboys' mini-camp beginning Monday at the team's Valley Ranch complex in suburban Irving.

Aikman has missed part of the last two seasons because of concussions. Cunningham led the Vikings to the NFC championship in 1998, when he was 259-of-424 for 3,704 yards with 34 touchdowns and 10 interceptions.

Shaq big in Lakers' win

■ Reggie Miller scores seven points in Pacer loss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shaquille O'Neal was extremely good. Reggie Miller was extremely bad.

Not much else mattered in Game 1 of the NBA Finals.

O'Neal's 43 points and 19 rebounds led the Los Angeles Lakers to a 104-87 victory over the Indiana Pacers on Wednesday night. The Lakers' MVP center brought the Pacers' worst fears about this series to life, shrugging off Indiana's defense to dominate the paint as only Shaq can.

"We've basically got to go back to the drawing board and figure out what to do with that phenomenon, No. 34," Indiana forward Jalen Rose said. Meanwhile, Miller was 1-for-16 from the field in the worst playoff game of a career built on dramatic postseason performances. The Pacers' star guard missed shots long, short and sideways on his way to seven points, a career playoff low.

"He didn't really have anything going on, and that made it kind of easy for us," Lakers forward Glen Rice said. "I don't know if he's ever shot that badly in a big game."

The Lakers never trailed after the game's first basket and opened a 15-point lead in the first quarter. When Indiana finally made it close in the second half, O'Neal, who was 21-of-31 from the field, shot and passed the Lakers to another comfortable lead and an easy victory.

"I just got the ball in deep position and took high percentage shots," O'Neal said. "If those shots are falling, we're going to be a tough team to beat."

Game 2 is Friday night at Staples Center.

O'Neal's performance was made possible by the Lakers' adherence to their game plan, something that hasn't always been this talented but mercurial team's strength.

Los Angeles patiently worked the ball into O'Neal all night, while Shaq continually established excellent low-post position and scored on short shots. He made 12 layups and dunks, six jumpers from inside 12 feet and three hook shots.

Kobe Bryant had 14 quiet points for the Lakers, while Ron Harper added 12.

"We executed the game plan 10 times better than we have at any time in this playoff run," said Rick Fox, who scored nine of his 11 points in the fourth quarter as the Lakers pulled away. "This was a performance that was due."

While Shaq was immensely successful in his first finals game with the Lakers, 12-year veteran and California native Miller made a disastrous finals debut.

He missed all seven of his shots in the first half, finally scored on a weak layup midway through the third quarter, and didn't hit another shot despite numerous open looks.

His trademark bravado still intact, Miller almost seemed as though he didn't believe what he had done — or rather, hadn't done.

"I tell you what, if they continue to give me those looks, they're going to be in trouble," he said.

Hays drafted by Seattle Mariners

From staff and wire reports

Hereford native Sam Hays was selected in the fourth round by the Seattle Mariners during Tuesday's Major League Baseball 2000 Draft.

Hays finished his senior year at Waco High with a 6-2 record while striking out 126 in 70 innings. The 6-foot-5 210 pounder was named the district's Most Valuable Player, and he also is ranked in the top five percent of his class.

The Mariners signed Hays even though he has committed himself to Baylor University. Hays was projected to go earlier in the draft but teams were afraid to select him because of his commitment to college. That does not mean the Mariners are not trying to sign him though.

"We selected him with the thought of signing him," Frank Mattox, the Mariners' director of scouting said.

Mattox said the team is currently discussing how much the club could offer him.

"My signability was a big issue (with scouts)," Hays said. "It was going to take first-round money to sign. I wasn't just going to jump at the first offer. I'll listen to what the Mariners have to say."

Hays was the first of Seattle's 16 picks in this year's draft. Sam is the son of John C. and Polly Hays. He is also the grandson of Nancy Hays.

TWO SAMSONS: TV news veteran showing light side

By Anlek Jeedanun
AP Internet Writer

On a recent show about Sports Illustrated's swimsuit models, Sam Donaldson donned 3-D glasses found in the magazine. He chatted with supermodel Daniela Pestova and showed video from the shoot.

On other segments, Donaldson bantered with actress Tracey Ullman about her new bed and her passion for sleeping. He exchanged double entendres with comedian Jon Stewart. He recited lyrics to Limp Bizkit's hip-hop tune "Nookie," sans profanity.

Is this the same Sam Donaldson who reported from the White House on Jimmy Carter's peace efforts and Ronald Reagan's bullet wounds? Is this the same Sam Donaldson who interviews the nation's top political leaders each Sunday on ABC's "This Week"?

Yes and no. Donaldson is much looser on his Internet-only news program, which has just expanded from three to five shows a week. It airs at 12:30 p.m. Eastern on ABC News' Web site, although it's available any time after that.

Because the show draws a younger audience, producers can book hipper guests and Donaldson can express wit rarely seen on news shows.

"When you approach a hard news subject, such as interviewing the secretary of state about Kosovo, you do it quite seriously," Donaldson says. "On the Web, we're not doing hard news. I'm able to be looser, if looser means not having to watch every word."

Besides, he says, "If I'm kidding around with (comedian) Janeane Garofalo, why would I act as if I were interrogating Ronald Reagan about whether he was selling arms to Iran?"

SAM DONALDSON
Newscaster looser on his Internet-only news program.

Greg Panos, a consultant who studies Internet news shows, worries about credibility. Will viewers who see a goofy Donaldson on the Web take his serious interviews on TV seriously? "Once they've seen it, the cat's out of the bag," Panos says. "People aren't sophisticated enough to handle the expansion of his human dimension."

Donaldson and his producers disagree. "He's as credible, accurate as ever, but he is also forthright to a degree people are perhaps not used to seeing," says Steve Jones, executive producer for ABCNews.com. "What you're seeing on the Webcast is more truly reflective of Sam. He has a mischievous side, playful, yet extremely inquisitive."

And what of the line between entertainment and journalism? Jones does not see a problem.

"Entertainment to me is a program that has a single, often diversionary goal," he says. "What Sam Donaldson does is not escapist entertainment. It's the presentation of information but in an engaging way."

As one of the first news veterans with a regular Internet show, Donaldson is a pioneer. He initially hesitated, he says, but then recognized that at age 66 he was unlikely to succeed Peter Jennings as the evening news anchor.

Viewership for the Net show remains in the thousands rather than the millions typical for network TV. Yet Donaldson says he and his network are committed to it.

Jones says ABC cares more at this point about understanding the new medium than about making money. Begun in September, the 20-minute program includes one commercial break — Donaldson jokes that it costs $3.25 a spot.

Donaldson's early Web shows took more of a hard-news approach. But when the show booked politicians, viewership dropped. And few bothered to watch Ernest Hemingway's son.

The main lesson so far: Although it's a television program broadcast over the Net, don't make it appear too much like one. Adapt the program to the online audience.

It's good to be AOL honcho's child

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — It's good to be the daughter of an America Online president.

Twelve-year-old Rachel Colburn's bat mitzvah Sunday was the talk of the town after boy band N Sync played a 45-minute set and signed autographs. Rachel's father, David Colburn, is the president of business affairs for Dulles, Va.-based AOL.

AOL spokeswoman Wendy Goldberg said the band members have a relationship with Colburn, and they did the gig as a favor.

She declined to say whether the performers were paid.

"It was a lovely gesture," Goldberg said. Inside.com, the Web site that first reported the performance along with The Washington Post, estimated that a paid performance would cost at least $1 million. The Post gave a more modest estimate of $350,000.

"They were very nice," said Rachel's mother, Kathleen Colburn. "But the main event was the bat mitzvah."

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs."
Then remember these hints:
• Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
• Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach

Harvest

we can just get in the fields and get the harvest done," Edward Allison, Farm Service Agency county committee member, said. "We usually start about June 20. We're 10 days to two weeks ahead of schedule."

Farmers have experienced two years of declining wheat planting and much of what has been planted is no longer irrigated. Much of the dryland wheat was planted mainly as animal feed and has been grazed out.

Last week's rain was too late and too little to do the area wheat crop much good, Allison said. "Rains were scattered and a lot of fields didn't get any thing," Allison said.

Joe Artho, manager at Hereford Grain, said some wheat from the Ford area is starting to come in, but it is still early.

"When we get out in the fields, it's going to get started with a bang," Artho said. "The yield looks like it's going to be down some this year, with dryland wheat only making eight to 10 bushels."

Wheat that has been tested is showing about 16 percent moisture and producers are just waiting until the ure content drops below 13 percent.

Wheat harvest in northern wheat-rowing areas such as Kansas began early this week after cutters were delayed by rain.

As the wheat harvest begins, many producers hesitate to estimate the yield, but a common thought is that this will be an above average year, but not anywhere near the records of previous years.

"Our wheat is looking really good," said Jan Dickerson, whose father farms near Happy. "But, I don't want to say anything until we can get it cut. Just looking at it, it looks pretty good."

Microsoft to appeal breakup

REDMOND, Wash. (AP) — Undaunted by a federal judge's order to break Microsoft Corp. in two, company co-founder and Chairman Bill Gates insists the computer software giant has not broken antitrust laws. The company today filed for a stay of U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson's order.

"This is the beginning of a new chapter in this case," Gates said. "We will be appealing this decision, and we believe we have a very strong case on appeal."

Sitting in Washington, D.C., Jackson on Wednesday approved the breakup proposal that had been offered by the federal government and 17 of the 19 states that joined in a suit against the company. He said any other action would simply encourage Microsoft to continue engaging in anticompetitive behavior.

"There is credible evidence ... to suggest Microsoft, convinced of its own innocence, continues to do business as it has in the past, and may yet do to other markets what it has already done in the PC operating system and browser markets," Jackson wrote in ordering the most dramatic antitrust breakup in the United States since AT&T in 1984.

Microsoft today filed its request for an immediate stay of Jackson's order, including the business restrictions the judge placed on the company. Jackson has not ruled on the request, but is expected to refuse it. Microsoft would then be free to ask for a stay from an appeals court, which would be more likely to grant it.
